

"THIS IS A 'NO NO' FOLKS" - four-year-old Coby Livesay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Livesay, wants to pass the word along that riding in dad's pickup doesn't mean something like this. Young Coby also points out a good practice, that of wearing protective goggles when involved in activities which might cause injury to eyes. Coby's demonstration of "do's and don'ts" are a reminder of National Farm Safety Week which began Thursday.

Farm Safety Week Set

There perhaps was a day when all a farmer in the field required was a straw hat, a good pair of coveralls, a sharp plow and a one-eyed mule.

Those days are gone, however, and today's agriculturalist should make use of the special attire available for modern farming and the highly diverse set of potential accident-causing situations brought on by a degree of mechanization that even he may not be aware of, according to Leon Urban Farm Department manager for the National Safety Council.

Few farms today can operate successfully without a tractor, stake wagons, anhydrous ammonia carriers, and a harrow rake. Most farms also employ more complicated machinery during the harvest season using elevator/conveyor units, combines, mowers, corn pickers, shellers and balers.

Today's farmer doesn't have to look like a defensive guard running out onto the playing field, but he should equip himself with some simple head, hand, foot and body protection devices.

Nearly two-thirds (62 percent) of nonfatal farm injuries are work-related and 29 percent of these involve farm machinery, according to the National Safety Council, based upon statistics in an eight-state review of farm accidents.

Tractors account for about two out of every five accidents involving seven basic types of the farm machinery operated. Injuries to the trunk were most often the result of tractor accidents (20 percent.) Fingers were the most frequently injured part of the body in elevators and conveyors (42 percent), combines (40 percent), and balers (33 percent).

Obviously from these reports today's farmer should invest in a pair of protective gloves, shoe boots with safety uppers and lowers, a bump cap to avoid head injury, and probably ear muffs or plugs to avoid hearing loss from excessive noise.

Insecticides, pesticides and other chemical sprays more often than not set up dangereous atmosphere for the unprotected and today's farmer should be aware of his and his family or work crew's need for protective breathing apparatus during spraying and other operations where dust or chemical flyback is present. Depending upon the type of spray conditions, he may need a simple face mask or a cartridge-type filter and respirator system.

One of the most overlooked safety items are safety glasses or goggles, which may be designed to protect against both sun and/or various types of flying debris. Glasses should have break-resistant, shatter-proof lenses, now available through special heat treating, so that they crumble into tiny pieces instead of sharp fragments that can do irreparable harm to eye tissues.

Such glasses also offer protection against discomforts caused by pollen granules, chaff blowback, low hanging branches, as well as long periods of exposure.

Although tractors were the type of machinery most often involved in nonfatal work accidents they were not the most severe in terms of weighted average days lost, according to recent farm accident surveys conducted in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Inidana and Oregon. The weighted average days lost technique was developed by the National Safety Council as a way to measure accident severity.

The weighted average days lost per injury for each of seven types of farm machinery were: elevators and conveyors, 240 days; combines,209 days; wagons, 76 days; tractors, 58 days; mowers, 53 days; corn pickers and/or shellers, 22 days; and balers, 5 days.

The weighted average days lost for the seven selected types of farm machinery combined was 105 days, nearly twice the weighted average of 55 days lost for all farm nonfatal work-related injuries in the five state study.

Obviously then, today's agriculturalist must be a specialist both in his approach to farm methods as well as safety. Lost days mean lost profits and a farmer by the very nature of his work, cannot easily regain lost time the way a manufacturing plant can with second shift operations.

Safety experts have learned over the years that accidents can be "planned against" by employing some simple spot-check inventory rules, by using the proper equipment for protection, and some "good old-fashioned horse sense."

Local 'Chamber Maids' Keep Busy Schedules

Miss Jennie Lynn Gunter is working as secretary this summer in the office of Olton Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture.

Assisting Mrs. Frances Redinger, she is compiling card files on all Olton businesses and all clubs and organizations. In this connection Mrs. Redinger states that it would be helpful for each organization to file its new yearbook in the C-C/A office for reference.

Chamber card files also cover all government contacts available, and government agencies local, county, state and federal.

A community calendar is maintained in the Chamber office and beginning in September, Mrs. Redinger states the weekly calendar will be published in the columns of The Olton Enterprise.

As a matter of curiosity, the "chamber maids" have been keeping statistics on the activitiy of the office which shows an average of six pieces of in-coming mail daily; four out-going letters; 13 phone calls; and six people entering the office daily, for inquiries or other business. These "average day" figures take place in the three hours, 9 a.m. until 12 noon that the office is open.

Another interestng fact is that from one to two committee meetings each week use the facilities offered by the office, also.

Sorghum Board Election Set

Four board members will be named when the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board holds its third biennial election Sept. 15.

The terms of Larry Witten of Olton, K.B. Parish of Springlake, Ralph Mabry of Petersburg and C.P. Smith of Hale Center expire. All four are eligible for re-election.

Eligible to vote in the election and to serve on the board are persons living in the 29-county TGSPB area who produce grain sorghum and pay the board assessment.

Any persons wishing to be nominated for membership on the board should make application to the board at least 30 days before the election. The application must be signed by the nominee and 10 other eligible voters.

Ballots will be mailed to voters and must be returned to the TGSPB office by Sept. 15. Eligible voters who do not receive ballots by Sept. 1 may obtain one from county agents.

Counties in the TGSPB area are Armstrong, Bailey, Briscoe, Carson, Castro, Cochran, Crosby, Dallam, Dawson, Deaf Smith, Floyd, Gaines, Hale, Hansford, Hartely, Hockley, Hutchinson, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Moore, Oldham, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Sherman, Swisher, Terry and Yoakum.

Rainfall Totals Are Varied

Moisture laden clouds have been drifting in the area during the past week dropping varying amounts of rain.

Heaviest fall, Tuesday afternoon, measured 1.05 inches within the city Similar amounts were reported north and east of the city, with lighter showers increasing totals to two inches and more.

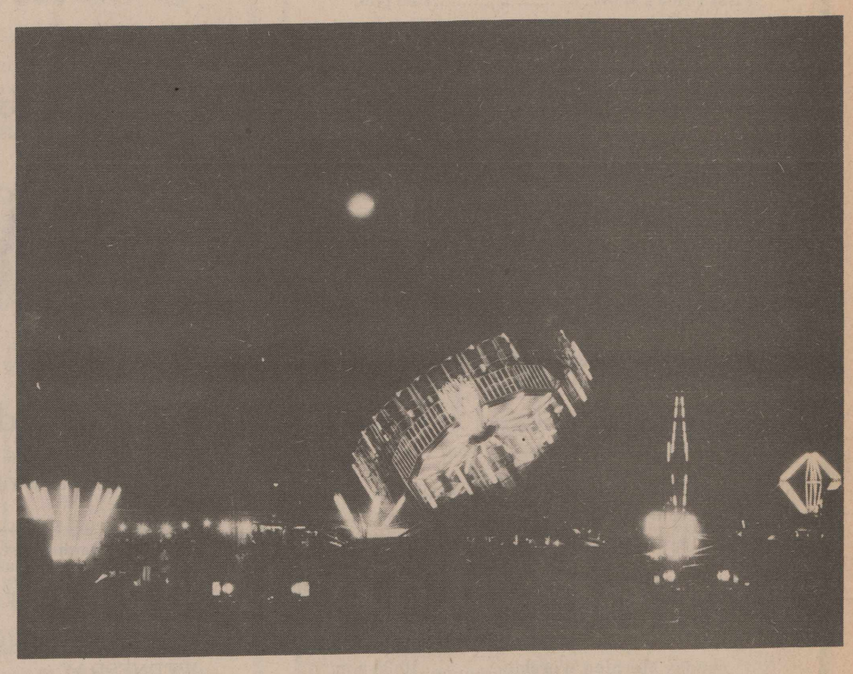

Heavier amounts have fallen south of the city. Mrs. John Jefferies, near Olton Recreation Center, has measured almost four inches since last Saturday. Jefferies farmland farther south have had from three to four inches, hay on the ground was the only crop that did not find it beneficial.

Jake Mitchell states a similar amount of rain fell southeast of the city.

To the west many have reported heavy rains, two inches and more, from the Tuesday clouds. Only one area reported little or no significant amounts. Sherilyn McGill, daughter of Mack McGill, states that her father has measured only .06 inches of moisture and still has wells running. Likewise Raymond Durham, in that same area, reported only .02 inches and irrigation still going on.

Eugene Griffin, official weatherman, shows a total of 2.15 from last Saturday, through Wednesday of this week, at the city reporting station.

Many farmers could not be reached, the wells turned off at least temporarily, they had left the vicinity for brief vacations.

DESPITE DRENCHING RAINS, Lions Club Carnival activity was visible during the past week several different nights with large crowds on hand to enjoy the fun and games.

Why - Bicentennial?

Mrs. Gene Brownrigg, executive director of the Bicentennial Commission of Texas, addressed the 20th annual Texas Travel Counselors Conference in San Antonio last April. There she outlined some of the ways Texans will celebrate the nation's 200th birthday. Following are a few of her remarks:

"The question I have been asked most frequently in our state, is why the Bicentennial in the State of Texas By accident of geography we were not one of the 13 original colonies....yet Texas citizens have led the way in the nation on Bicentennial planning.

"I believe the answer to the question is a philosophy that the Texas Commission has adopted....a philosophy that we are celebrating an IDEA.

"We're celebrating an idea, the seed of which was conceived in the hearts of man, was nurtured for years, finally found fertile soil about 1765, then had a struggling birth in 1776 when the idea was named "Declaration of Independence."

"The bicentennial is national in scope and belongs to each and every American, deriving its strength from the people. We have two firm beliefs: One, we believe that every Texan has a talent to give, if offered an opportunity to give that talent. And we know that 1976 is not the end of 200 years....it is the beginning of 300.

"When you work with something like the Bicentennial, you meet the skeptic. You meet the individual who says, "Celebrate? Why in heaven's name celebrate? What can you possibly find to celebrate? Why, we've got crime, minority problems, urban blight, oppression, generation gap, drugs. What are you going to CELEBRATE?

"Our bicentennial is a time to honor our heritage, a time to illuminate our history, a time to celebrate ourselves, a time to reestablish the ideas and ideals upon which this nation was founded. A time to realize the dignity of individual as well as collective effort.

"And a time to say unashamedly, "I have a love affair with my country."

For Social Security Recipients

New Service Offered At Bank

A new service for recipients of social security checks has been announced by Alan Brown, Olton State Bank.

Brown explained that the federal program had been pre-tested in Florida and Georgia and was a "workable program."

Those who receive social security checks each month may now have them sent directly to their account at Olton State Bank. They will be deposited and a deposit slip will be mailed to the recipient, the same day.

"In order to get into the program, simply bring in your next Social Security check from which we will obtain necessary information. There will be no charges for handling, provided the customer does not overdraw his account," Brown stated. "Special checks will be furnished. We will fill out all the necessary forms, which the customer must sign and his check will then be mailed each month directly to us."

"All other correspondence from the social security office to those receiving checks will still be sent directly to them," he reported.

Dona Kelley will be handling the new program and will fill in the forms for those who wish to participate. There are many different ways the account may be set up. Those wishing to have a portion of their check put into savings and the other portion into a checking account may do so by stating so on the form. Installment loans may be repaid the same way. Those wishing more information may come in and talk with Dona and she will gladly explain the program in more detail.

In the event that a person wishing to withdraw from the program after being in it, Brown said it was a simply a matter of "letting us know. It takes only about three days to cancel the agreement."

Changes of addresses will still have to be sent to the social security office. The bank and the office will work closely together.

There are 43,675,000 checks mailed each month which totals about $8 billion. One of every 1,000 checks is either stolen, lost or forged. The object of this program is to improve service to the social security beneficiary and eliminiate the problems of loss, theft or forgery.

Dear Editor

Examples

Dear Editor,

When everyone is yelling, "Make the youngsters drive right and obey the law," how are we supposed to learn to obey the law when the police don't stop at stop signs and use turn signals?

He was in no hurry because we were going the same way he was. Also we were driving down the street and a city employee was in a front end loader and didn't even stop at a stop sign. My brother had to go nearly off the road to keep from being hit by him.

I wish everyone would heard older people talk about driving as bad as they say we do. Please withold my name.

Who Cares?

By Rex Boyles

This article is coming to you "live" from atop of the world. As I write to you, I'm sitting in a big green (Braniff) bird. We are somewhere between Dallas and New York at about 33,000 feet above good solid earth. From up here everything looks so tiny! It looks as if the whole world has been built in miniature.

When we first took off, I began to notice the houses and other buildings becoming dwarf size. Buildings that are called skyscrapers soon become "doll" houses in just a matter of moments and miles. The surrounding area, which at times seems to be nothing more than miles of desolation, is suddenly becoming a beautiful patch-work quilt with shades of greens, golds, and browns. Those cotton fields, that seem to cover at least 3 counties when you're plowing or hoeing are becoming just tiny pieces of a grand jigsaw puzzle, as we continue to climb higher. Hey, that super Interstate highway has turned into just a tiny toy race track. The cars are really "neat" looking! When we're riding in them all comfortable and proud, little do we know that they look like little "hot wheel" toy cars from a few thousand feet up---

As a person sits in this exalted position above all earth dwellers, he gets an overwhelming sense of power and judgment. With acres seeming but inches and miles seeming as yards. What could keep a person from feeling such? It is as if I could reach out and control the activity of the world below. It seems as if it could be within my power to take a breath and begin a sandstorm...tap a foot and crush our world...snap a finger and cause an earthquake. From up here nothing seems too big, too important, or too necessary.

Sitting above the clouds and feeling rather self-sufficient (which would be rather stupid considering that you wouldn't be above the clouds without that airplane), it could be relatively easy to lapse into a "power" complex (e.g. I can do whatever however I choose). It would be easy to begin to despise the lower things, such as, cars, farms, and cities and thereby lose all consideration for anything or anyone as you sit above all of this ordinary "ho-hum" existence.

As I sit and think such an absurd thought. I also think how great it is that we have a God who does not think such things. Our God sits as creator and lord over all things, and He has the right to do or demand whatever and however He chooses. Sitting where He does and possessing the powers that He does, He is self-sufficient, and having no need of such trivia as us, He could choose to no longer consider us. But that is just the point, he does consider and care for us. He is not unaware of our needs, desires, fears, or joys. He takes note of our worries and victories.

God cares for us individually. He knows the number of the hair on our head. He cares for flowers, and by that care He proves that His love for us; because everybody knows that we are more important than flowers (Matthew 6).

As I head toward Ireland, I want you all to know one very important thing, God cares for you. Now because He does, there is no problem nor joy too small for His concern, Cast all your cares on Him for He cares for you...

Everything But The Kitchen Sink

By Mozelle Trotter

Happenstance almost put the Better Half in the movies this week. Well, not really, but it did lead to an interesting little interlude.

Returning home Tuesday from the West Texas State 16-18 Babe Ruth in Graham placed Gene in the filming area of Roy Rogers' new movie, "McIntosh and T.J." Topping a rise in the highway, he was stopped by a Highway Patrolman who asked that he wait for a few minutes so that filming might not be hampered by traffic on the road.

Sure enough, right out in view of passers-by, the "King of the Cowboys" was being shot by the camera crew. In just a moment there came the cry, "Cut" and the close proximity with a "real live movie star" was over.

**** **** ****

There's a first time for every thing and I've had a really unique "first." I've been "pet sitting" this week only it really has been nothing more than feeding one little dog, two hamsters some tropical fish and The Thing.

The Thing is a great big tarantula! His - or maybe it's her - home is a three-pound coffee can with air holes cut in the plastic lid. One hole is larger than the others and it's through this space that I drop the critter's breakfast and supper.

Had any one told me a few years ago I'd someday be feeding a tarantula I'd have promptly looked up the information on how to contact the "fellas in white coats." Now, I need their phone number for ME!

Guess what The Thing eats!

Baby frogs! (This may lead to my being reported to the Society for Prevention to Cruelty to Critters.)

"All you do is to drop one of the little frogs through that biggest hole," were my instructions. Hm-m-m. That's easier said than done

Do you know, the first feeding, took six (at least) attempts before I could get my fingers to cooperate enough to pick up one of those tiny leaping amphibians! Even then, I could scarcely keep from flinging the little thing away with an appropriate "e-e-e-k." I had shudders on top of shudders!

I have a healthy respect for The Thing. I get no closer than basically necessary to drop that tiny victim to its destined last meal.

Webster says tarantulas are "typically rather sluggish and though capable of biting sharply are not significantly poisonous to man."

It's just that I'm not sure this particular tarantula has read Webster!

NEWS OF TRAVEL

ISRAEL PRIME MINISTER STRESSES TOURISM

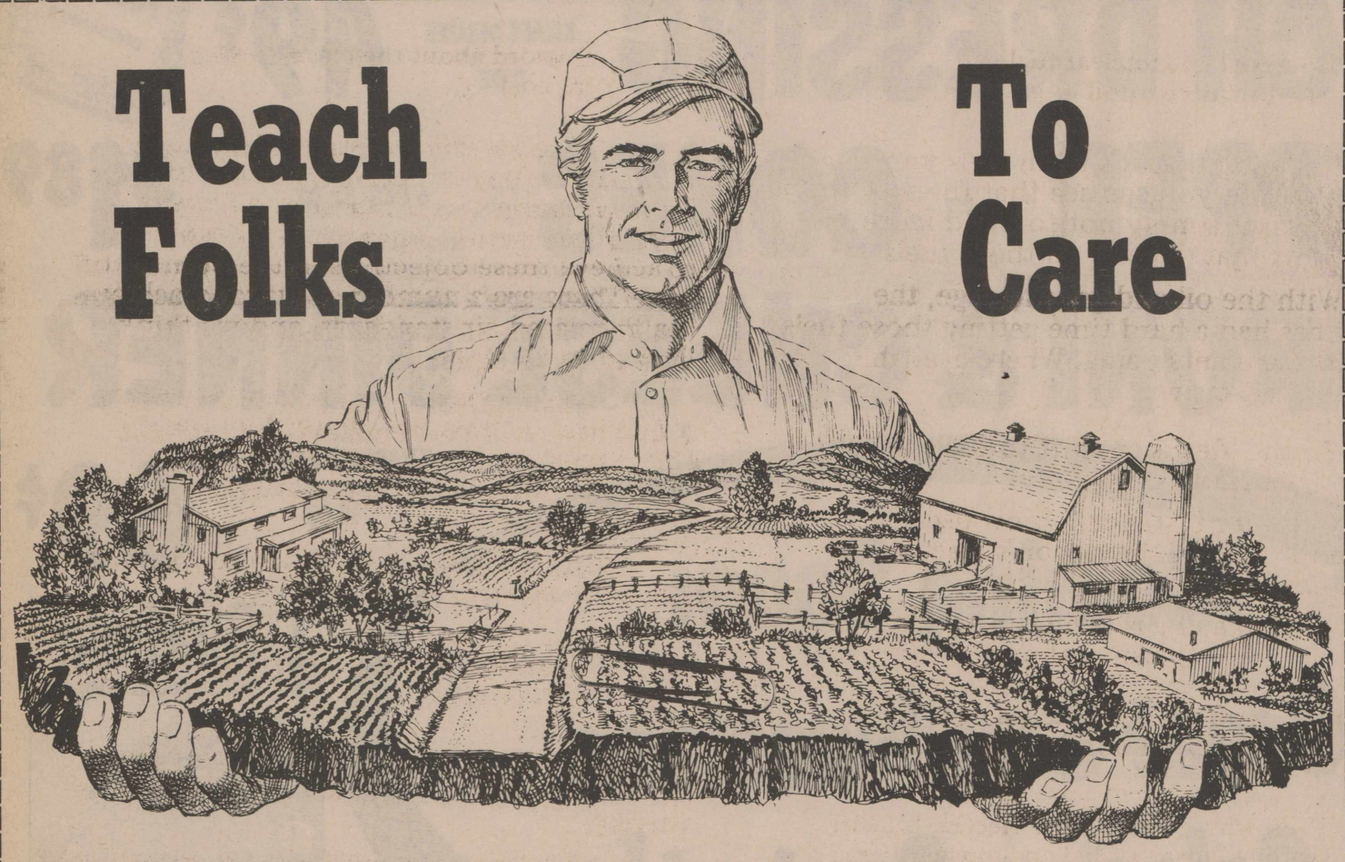

Israel Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, seated, and Israel Minister of Tourism Moshe Kol recently spoke at a specially convened North American Conference on Israel Tourism, in New York.

The Conference, which was attended by more than 250 religious and lay leaders from throughout the United States and Canada, showed the high priority the Israel Government places on tourism from the United States as a means of fostering US-Israel understanding.

According to Israel Zuriel, Israel Commissioner for Tourism for North America, tourism is Israel's number one foreign currency earner and as such is vital to the economy.

In recent years, Israel, with such attractions as Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and the Galilee has become a major travel destination for U.S. tourists.

Teach Folks To Care

There's more to farming than cultivating and reaping, raising and marketing, investing and profiting. Farming brings satisfaction, pride and love of the land. Farming is caring. But, if not cared for properly, farming could mean disaster. Take the time to instruct your family and workers to report any default in machinery, buildings, electrical wiring; and any change in livestock. Make sure everything on the farm is in sound shape.

The land is yours to draw your livelihood from.

Respect it...guard it against accidents.

M&W Perfect Kern'l GRAIN DRYERS

UNMATCHED CAPACITY • UNBEATABLE ECONOMY
GRAIN QUALITY NO OTHER DRYER CAN TOUCH

These are the unchallenged champions of grain drying. Farmers all over the country have found out that nothing gives them the capacity, the economy and the grain quality they have to have to keep ahead in today's farming. Every kernel gets the same treatment. There's no overheating, no overdrying — no pockets of wet grain to invite spoilage. And they do the job faster and cheaper too!

"Nobody can do more to stretch America's critical fuels than your electric companies."

Roy Tolk
Chairman Of The Board
Southwestern Public Service Company

You count on your electric company for dependable electric service.

But your electric companies can do even more for you.

By building new plants that use different fuels to make electricity, they can "free up" hundreds of millions of barrels of badly needed oil and millions of cubic feet of gas.

A single nuclear plant can produce as much electricity in a year as a gas-fired plant burning 57 million 960 thousand MCF of gas.

Almost any fuel can be converted into electricity.

Your electric company uses a generator to make electricity. And like the generator in your car, it needs to be turned by something.

In hydroelectric plants, the generators are hooked up to elaborate "water wheel" turbines that turn them.

But in most electric plants, it is steam, made in a boiler, that turns the generators.

How you make the steam is a key to saving fuels for this country.

In gas or oil-fired plants, these fuels are burned to make the steam. In coal plants, coal. In nuclear power plants, the carefully controlled nuclear reaction gives off heat that makes the steam.

How coal and nuclear fuel can take the place of oil or gas.

Knowing that it's all in how you make the steam, you can see that the way to save oil or gas is simply not to build more power plants that depend on those fuels.

With the oil and gas shortage, the industry has had a hard time getting those fuels to keep these plants going. Where available, it has been expensive.

So the idea is to shift to fuels which are more plentiful.

Coal, for instance, is now used to make about 46% of the nation's electricity. Nuclear energy only 6%.

The oil and gas saving answer is to build new plants that can use coal or nuclear energy. Both of these alternative fuels also offer important economic advantages over oil and gas. There are economies for consumers, too.

Then why haven't more electric utilities switched over to coal and nuclear fuels?

The answer is the industry is trying — but the going is tough.

The past year has been so hard on some electric companies financially that 83 new nuclear installations have been delayed or shelved. And what hurts most is that it takes 10 years to build a nuclear plant. Based on projections of the population and energy use for 1985, we need each one of the plants still being held up.

The country needs new coal-burning plants, too. But environmental restrictions have closed off much of the coal supply.

We are optimistic that the delays will be overcome and construction schedules maintained on both nuclear and coal-burning plants. We hope that a reasonable balance can be struck between our environmental goals and our energy needs.

The country has hundreds of years worth of coal in the ground and a long-range supply of uranium to rely on—these are two fuels we have in great supply. And that, to the electric companies, is fuel reliability.

Fortunately, Southwestern Public Service Company continues to be a financially healthy company, thanks to understanding customers and effective regulatory agencies, and has been able to go ahead with its construction plans.

A word about the clean burning of coal.

The electric companies favor and support the objectives of the Clean Air Act, but have disagreed so far with the Environmental Protection Agency on the best way to achieve these objectives in the burning of coal. There are a number of ways to achieve health-related air standards, and we think they all have a place.

A requirement to install unnecessary equipment will cost consumers hundreds of millions of dollars. Not to mention the possible threat to the continuity of service.

As we've said, reliability must govern whatever electric companies do.

How you can help stretch all of our fuels.

This last year, you helped by using electricity wisely, but there's still more you can do.

Shift any electrical job you can out of the "rush hour" periods to quieter times, such as nights and weekends.

If enough people do this, your electric company can often avoid having to start up an extra generator during rush hours.

And since these "spare" generators are generally less efficient than the main generators, they use more fuel.

So shifting electrical jobs can really help.

Can new coal and nuclear plants slow down the rapid rise of electric rates?

Electricity prices, like everything else, have climbed rapidly the last year and show every indication of continuing to climb.

So the economies of a nuclear plant, for instance, cannot turn inflation around, but they can slow it down. And that is important.

To sum up, your electric companies are in a unique position of being able to help stretch this country's critical fuels—specifically oil and natural gas—and keep your electric service reliable at the same time.

It's a big order, but with your help, we can do it.

MRS. C.D. KIRKPATRICK

Cook Of The Week

"Your can take the girl out of the country," says our Cook of the Week, "but you can't take the country out of the girl." Mrs. C.D. Kirkpatrick smilingly proclaims, "I feel real lucky to be a country girl."

Mable and Cass Kirkpatrick have two daughters, Barbara Alford and Brenda Skelton, both of Lubbock. They are the proud grandparents of a grandson, Howard Alford, 10.

Although she is a cosmotologist and has her own beauty shop, Mabel likes to help her farmer husband and drives a grain truck for him during harvest. She has been busy filling fruit jars and freezer with the bounty of her garden.

Hungry for farm fresh eggs, Mabel and Cass fixed a pen back of their house where they have 200 young chickens which hold promise of those eggs as well as fried chicken.

Expressing an enjoyment of living, Mabel likes to play golf, go horseback riding and swim. She and Cass share an enthusiasm for square dancing and are members of the Swinging O's. They also belong to a round dance club at the YMCA in Plainview.

Mabel likes to play the piano for her own pastime. She attends First Baptist Church.

The Lemon Chess Pie Mabel shares is one which belonged to her mother. She likes to keep frozen ones so that when unexpected company comes, a tasty dessert is just minutes away from being ready to serve.

LEMON CHESS PIE

Beat 6 eggs slightly; add 2 cups sugar gradually. Add juice of 3 lemons and 4 T. melted butter. Pour into 2 unbaked pie shells and bake 45 min. in 325 degree oven.

Mabel keeps everlasting yeast on hand and bakes her own bread. She graciously offers to aid bread makers with a start of everlasting yeast. She shares her bread recipe for those who have their own yeast, borrow from a friend or accept her own start.

EVERLASTING YEAST BREAD

Every day or so add to starter: 2 T. flour, 2 T. water and 2 t. sugar. Mix well. In 4 to 6 days, you'll have enough yeast built up to make bread. Keep mixture in refrigerator until the night before you plan to make bread.

TO MAKE BREAD: Mix 2½ c. lukewarm water and about half of yeast starter. Add enough flour to make and thick paste and let set overnight. The next morning work in ½ c. shortening, ½ c. sugar.

Mix shortening and sugar into paste mixture until well blended. Add 1 t. salt. Put flour into large pan and work yeast mixture into flour until it will handle well.

The next day, begin adding again to starter so that you have enough to bake bread again the next week.

Mabel says she likes to pinch off two or three small bits of dough and make cloverleaf rolls in a greased muffin tin.

ITALIAN CREAM CAKE

2 c. sugar
½ c. Crisco
1 stick melted oleo
5 egg yolks

Cream together and add:

2 c. flour
1 c. buttermilk
1 t. soda
1 c. coconut

Beat egg whites till stiff and fold into batter. Pour in three well greased, floured cake pans and bake in 350 degree oven.

ICING

1 8 oz. pkg. cream cheese
1 stick oleo, melted
1 box powdered sugar
1 t. vanilla
½ c. nuts, chopped fine

Blend together and frost cake.

Of Area Industries

Survey Made By SWPS

The Area Development of Southwestern Public Service Company has completed a survey of industries in the area served by the electric company.

The first phase of the survey, completed in March, was made in all of the towns that SPS serves in Texas except Amarillo and Lubbock. The second phase of the survey covers these two metropolitan areas.

"The purpose of the survey is to assemble information that will aid in the design of programs to assist existing manufacturers expand their production facilities," commented Larry Milner, Area Development manager for SPS in Amarillo.

The survey, representing twenty-three communities on the North and South Plains, reveals that 52.4 percent of the existing industries responding to the survey plan future expansion. Forty-seven of the companies surveyed plan expansion within the next twelve months, while another sixty-one plan expansion in the next three years. During the next five years, twenty-five more companies plan expansion.

Employment expansion for the near future was projected in the range of forty-three percent.

The survey covers general manufacturing, agri-related, and oil and gas related industries, with a total employee representation of more than 14,000. Of this number, about 9,000 are production workers, 1,000 are management employees and the remainder work in clerical or administrative jobs.

In discussing the survey, Milner said, "Some of the major problems faced by industry when planning expansion are labor supply, reduced sales, resources, financing, lack of technical information, transportation, building space, management and air pollution laws.

"Helping all the towns in our service area with new and existing industries is on of our primary functions. We feel that the information in this industrial survey will aid us in providing that help," Milner concluded.

Texas 'Safety Week' Set

Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Week, set by Governor Dolph Briscoe, began Thursday, July 25.

The week-long emphasis will highlight farm and ranch accident prevention, through programs conducted by the Texas Safety Association, Texas Farm Bureau, State Agricultural Extension Service, Future Farmers and Future Homemakers, and the Young Farmers of Texas.

Records show that 285 Texas farm and ranch residents died in 1974, an increase over the 214 fatal accidents which occurred in 1973. Accidents involving traffic, tractors and drownings were the leading causes of fatalities in 1974.

"Farmers and ranchers have become increasingly concerned with the various agricultural safety regulations issued by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)," according to Joe L. Smetana, Texas Safety Association Vice President for Farm and ranch Safety.

"Of particular concern due to recent regulations are the certification or licensing of farmers and ranchers to use restricted pesticides, and the roll over protective structures for farm tractors," explained Smetana, who is Safety Director for the Texas Farm Bureau.

In his proclamation of the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Week, Gov. Briscoe urged "all who live and work on Texas farms and ranches to put safety first, to plan for accident prevention and to work diligently to remove hazards in agricultural environments."

The Texas week coincides with National Farm Safety Week, as declared by President Ford.

MIRACULOUS POWER

Dear Mr. Swaim: Recently a faith-healer visited our city. He received an amazing amount of publicity in the newspapers, on television, and on radio, and appeared to be able to perform miracles. Is it possible for men today to perform miracles as did those in the New Testament?

I personally believe that those "miracles" performed today are not even closely akin to those that Jesus and His apostles in the first century performed. And I believe that there are many people today who are exploiting God's word for merchandise and popularity. I believe that many are deceiving ignorant people who do not know or understand the Scriptures and who do not take the time to find out the purpose of miracles and their time limitation.

Even in Jesus' own day, there were those who sought to buy the power of God to use it for improper purposes. Simon the Sorcerer wanted to use the power of God in such a way as to be no more than a commercial magician. But he found it impossible to buy such power. Many of the supposed miracles performed today are nothing more than the hysterics of emotionally overwrought people, or staged events for the purpose of attracting a crowd and taking up a collection, and do not in any way fit the pattern of those miracles that Jesus and the apostles performed to verify the Word and to show the power of God as being active in their lives prior to the writing of the New Testament and the maturity of the Church.

For a confidential and Biblical answer to your questions, write Larry Swaim, 985 Ponce de Leon Avenue, N.E., Atlanta, Georgia 30306.

DO YOU HAVE ADEQUATE FARM LIABILITY COVERAGE

This year, nearly 15,000 farm residents will die in accidents. More than, 1,000,000 will be injured.

The occupational death rate among farm workers is the third highest for all types of industry.

The majority of these farm accidents are man-made. Human failures...not machines, animals or natural hazards are the cause of most of them. Most could have been avoided by strict observance of simple safety rules and common-sense caution.

Next time you are tempted to take a safety-short-cut...remember the 1,000,000 others who will carelessly take a chance...AND LOSE.

Winner

Bicentennial Double Header

The hand flips a coin. Heads I win. Tails you win.

The eyes light on the head of a colonial drummer. Did you win or lose the toss?

You won!

That head is really a tail.

You can take the word of Mary Brooks, Director of the U.S. Mint. She's our nation's coinmaker and says the colonial drummer was chosen in a national design competition to appear on the back of the new Bicentennial quarter. George Washington, she insists, still heads the coin over a new date--1776-1976--and it was all done to celebrate our country's 200th birthday.

"I know big decisions, like whether or not to walk the dog in the rain, rest on the flip of a coin," Mrs. Brooks says, "and I want to warn the nation's big decision makers about the coming big change in their small change."

In all, the Mint is changing the designs on the backs of three coins in honor of the Bicentennial. Along with Washington on the quarter, those famous faces of Kennedy and Eisenhower, with the new twin date, still head the half dollar and dollar. Again, it's the backs that carry the new Bicentennial designs. Independence Hall won its place on the back of the half dolalr. And the moon and Liberty Bell was chosen for the dollar reverse.

July 7, 1975, neighborhood banks began receiving the first of the ciruclating Bicentennial coins to be released--the Kennedy-Independence Hall half dollar. Before the end of the year, the Federal Reserve System will have had the time to supply the nation's commercial banks with the newly redesigned quarter and dollar.

"To me, these coins--like all our coins--are symbols of our nation's 200 years of freedom," Mrs. Brooks says. "They are small links with our historical and cultural heritage that will touch the hands of every man, woman and child in America."

"'Liberty!' was the rallying cry of the American Revolution--and 'Liberty' has been proclaimed and inscribed on each and every coin since the creation of the U.S. Mint in 1792."

Launching a national coinage was a big step in the formation of our young nation. "Now," Mrs. Brooks says, "we are launching the most significant coinage change in the history of the Mint."

The new coin designs are expressions of the patriotic sentiments of grassroots America. Under the sponsorship of the Treasury Department, they were selected in a national $5,000 award competition and each of the new designs bears the winner's initials.

The winning design on the back of the quarter is the work of Jack L. Ahr of Arlington Heights, Ill. Seth G. Huntington of Minneapolis, Minn., executed the reverse on the half dollar. And Dennis R. Williams, a sculpture student at the Columbus College of Art and Design, Columbus, Ohio, designed the dollar reverse.

Special 40% silver specimens of the Bicentennial coins are also available. For details, write to the Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, California 94175.

Final date for reporting cotton acreage to be eligible for disaster or deficiency payments in 1975 is Aug. 1.

OUR FLAG

Historical Highlights

Betsy Ross Or Accident?

Many Americans still believe that Betsy Ross made the first flag, although historians dispute this story. Another disputed story, according to the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, is that the first Stars and Stripes displayed in the face of an armed enemy was at Fort Schuyler, August 3, 1777. The flag was improvised. The white part came from a soldier's shirt; a captain's cloak supplied the blue of the union; and the red stripes came from the flannel petticoat of a soldier's wife, who gladly donated it for the purpose.

TEXAS TALK

By Billy Davis

Officials are predicting a decrease of no more than 20 percent in domestic purchase of feed grains during the current marketing year. Others are saying that an improved livestock market will cut the decrease to even less. USDA projections are for the production of about 220 million short tons of feed grains with about 165 million tons sold in the United States and another 42 million tons exported to foreign countries. According to the figures released by the Department of Agriculture, total carryover of feed grains by the end of the marketing year should not exceed 30 million tons. Although that's a lot of grain, records show it to be only about 60 percent as much as the carryover at the end of 1971. Officials citing these figures are predicting relatively stable prices for grain sorghum. Major factors which could produce a change in the situation include the extent of recovery of the cattle market and, as always, the most variable of all, the weather.

INSUR-MATION

Ed Jennings
Lamb County Farm Bureau 385-3444

Why is the wording in insurance policies so difficult to understand? Why not use plain talk?

All policy forms must be approved by the Department of Insurance for each state in which the policy is to be sold. Therefore, to comply with various state regulations, an insurance jargon was developed, eliminating the necessity of 50 different policy forms. Insurance companies would like to see plain talk policies since most companies maintain Policy Holder Service Departments which write to policy holders re-explaining the terms of the policy in layman's language. Companies would prefer to eliminate this additional expense and pass on the savings in premium payment reductions. Progress has been made in the last five years to simplify the language and better illustrate the benefits.
