Four-Day Session Predicted For Convention

Well...
I Dunno,
But...

We guess that the candidates took us at our word. We commented several days ago that we'd seen fewer candidate cards this year than in past election years, and sure enough, they've been seen that we got 'em.

And it is both amusing and interesting to read some of the candidates' cards which are being distributed in the present political campaign. The most unusual card we have seen is being used by a candidate for the Legislature from our neighboring county to the west. The top line reads "Opposed to Gifts, Rackets & High Taxes." We'd like to ask who's not opposed to this? We're likewise opposed to polio, cockroaches, sin, and the high cost of living. In fact, the RCL is about to get us down, hence our strong opposition.

Continuing—The bottom line of the same candidate's card takes the prize. It reads: "I can handle any situation." This, we must say, covers a lot of territory. How about the drought situation? Also, the Russian situation? No doubt he can handle the Palestine situation. President Truman and Secretary Marshall are now wrestling with the Russian situation and the Berlin situation, and no one they'd welcome the services of a man who admittedly "can handle any situation." His services are badly needed in Washington, not Austin. We've not had the pleasure of meeting this particular candidate, but from this card, he is evidently a modest and timid soul. But, according to his card, his ability to handle any situation cannot be discounted. We predict, however, he's gonna experience considerable difficulty in handling the election situation on July 24th.

Well, blow us down! Leave it to those Jaycees, like we always say. They get the darndest ideas, but funny thing about them they usually help the other fellow as well as the Jaycees.

Now listen to this one. Since the rains the weeds are running away from them out at the rodeo arena and they're offering any sheep raiser free grazing and water for a herd of sheep that can be taken out there to work the grounds over.

Now don't all step up at once! But we guess they could arrange staggered shifts if enough raisers offered herds.

Betcha, they get 'em!

One of the parking meter promoters about town has really been giving us a line on the subject recently, and his arguments sound good. Whether they would work here or not is something that we can't say. However, there's one thing about it, parking meters can be installed on the test basis and if they don't work they are taken out without cost to the city.

The parking situation in downtown Ranger does need some kind of attention, according to the gripes we've been hearing about it recently. And not all of the gripes come from Ranger, people, by any means.

Of course, since we footed it, our opinion on the strength of experience wouldn't have much weight but part of our job is to report what the other citizens are saying, as the friend says, "so the people may know." And brother there's plenty been said about being unable to find a place to park in downtown Ranger.

One of the strongest arguments in favor of the meters is the revenue that the city will get from them. We need money to go ahead with our airport improvement program, to do something about an improved water supply and dozens of other improvements that might gain some financial support from the meters.

If it costs nothing to give 'em a try, it looks like a good opportunity to prove the situation one way or the other.

American piano manufacturers turned out 143,000 instruments in 1947.

DONORS SET RULES FOR CALF SCRAMBLE

The following merchants have donated calves for the FFA calf scramble to be held in connection with the Jaycee Rodeo July 28-31 and have established the rules which will govern the scramble contest:

A. J. Ratliff, Swaney's Pharmacy, Times Publishing Co., Ranger Peanut Co., E. L. Martin & Sons, Commercial State Bank, Anderson-Pruett Chevrolet Co., Ranger Furniture Exchange, L. R. Pearson, Ranger Jaycees.

The Rules are as follows:
1. Every participant must file a minor's release to relieve all parties of responsibility in case of any accident connected with this contest.
2. Qualifications for contestants:
a. Member of FFA and not older than 16 yrs. as of July 28, 1948.
b. Must be in school.

3. Boys and calves will be placed in the arena as directed by arena director, Frank Mariani.
4. Boys will take into the arena a halter which must be placed on the calf in the proper manner (can not be used as a lariat.)

5. Each boy will attempt to catch and halter a calf without aid. The boy catching the calf must lead the calf to the gate.
6. If a boy has hold of a calf, any other boy will be allowed to touch the calf until it breaks away.

7. Each boy will be given a reasonable time to halter and remove his calf, but if necessary the referees may require the boy to release the calf and let other participants try if he is slowing up the show to much.

8. At least two referees will be in the arena through out the contest and undue roughness, poor sportsmanship, or any action contrary to these rules automatically disqualifies any contestant.

9. Once each month the boy must make a written report to the Vocational Agriculture Teacher, and a complete summary submitted at the end of the year along with a 250 word narrative on "What I have gained from Feeding My calf."

10. These calves will not be allowed to be sold, traded or disposed of except by consent of the Calf Scramble Committee. The calf must be returned for exhibit at the Stock show the following year.

11. All participants will be notified when and where they will meet to enter the scramble.

12. This scramble will be held in accordance with the Interscholastic Ruling in order to protect each boy's amateur standing.

13. In the event that any boy fails to give his calf the proper care at any time during the feeding period the calf scramble committee reserves the privilege to reclaim the calf and transfer it to a more worthy boy.

VISITING FIREMEN LEARN BURKBURNETT, TEX. (UP)—Delegates to the West Firemen's Association convention here got a practical demonstration of how it's done. The Burk Burnett volunteer fire department put the fire out as 150 visiting firemen looked on and cheered.

Dairymen Meet Friday Night At Carbon At 8

G. G. Gibson, Dairy Specialist of the A. & M. College Extension Service, will talk to members of the Eastland County Dairy Association on artificial insemination at a meeting in Carbon, Friday night. The meeting will be held in the Agricultural building beginning at 8 o'clock.

One of the objectives of the recently organized County Dairy Association, which now has 100 members of which A. Z. Myrick of Cisco is president, is to set up an

Mexican Plane Crash Found

Sixteen persons, eight Mexicans and eight Americans, were killed in the wreckage of this shattered U.S.-Mexican anti-Foot and Mouth Disease Commission DC-3, after it slammed into the side of a Orizaba Peak. The Peak is 18,546 feet high and is about 120 miles east of Mexico City. (U.S. Air Force Photo from NEA Telephoto).

EASTLAND COUNTY ROCK MAY BE USED IN WHITNEY DAM

Much if not all of the crushed rock to be used in the construction of the large dam now being built near Whitney on the Brazos River watershed, is to be secured in Eastland county according to reliable information secured by the Eastland Telegram.

The Whitney Dam, one of a series of 13 major dams contemplated by the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation District on the Brazos watershed, has been under construction for a year or more to date only dirt work has been done. The dam, which it is estimated will cost approximately $30,000,000 is being constructed by Army engineers using government funds.

The Waco Text Material Company of Waco, sometime ago began taking corings of rock along either side of the M. K. & T. railroad about two or three miles east of Carbon in the vicinity of "Potato Hill", a landmark of that area. Following the taking of these corings, which it is understood were sent out for analysis by government experts, the taking of leases by the Waco Text Material Company was started and better than 1,000 acres have already been leased.

N. B. Steddum Killed By Train At Olden

N. B. Steddum, 38, of Olden, a section hand on the T & P Railroad, was killed about 7:40 this morning while he and a companion, B. L. Snodgrass, were operating a tamping machine. Snodgrass was temporarily absent from the machine when the accident occurred.

Justice of the Peace, E. E. Wood, and deputy Sheriff Frank Schaefer were called and held an inquest at the scene of the accident.

Steddum's body was badly mangled, having been thrown 60 feet down an embankment.

Steddum is survived by a wife and children.

The Hamner Funeral Home here is in charge of the body.

The remaining restrictions seemed certain to cut deep into the economy of the Western sectors, throwing thousands of the 2,500,000 Germans in the Allied areas out of work, and seriously inconveniencing all the rest.

Observers expected Communist agitators to find fertile ground among the unemployed thousands, and the possibility of Communist-led riots and disorders could not be overlooked.

It is planned to employ a technician to do the inseminating work.

Weatherford Man Fatally Shot By Political Enemy

WEATHERFORD, July 8. (UP)—Legislative candidate Eugene Miller died today, eight hours after being shot by a man whom he identified only as a political enemy.

The assailant who fired three pistol shots into his body was one of three strangers who stopped at Miller's farm home in an automobile, Packer County authorities said, picking together statements made by Miller before he died.

None of the three men in the car was identified by name, they said.

Weatherford Man Fatally Shot By Political Enemy

WEATHERFORD, July 8. (UP)—Legislative candidate Eugene Miller died today, eight hours after being shot by a man whom he identified only as a political enemy.

The assailant who fired three pistol shots into his body was one of three strangers who stopped at Miller's farm home in an automobile, Packer County authorities said, picking together statements made by Miller before he died.

None of the three men in the car was identified by name, they said.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8. (UP)—Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath today set a four-day target for the Democratic National Convention to nominate President Truman and pick a vice-presidential candidate from a long list of prospects.

McGrath said he expected the convention, which meets Monday, to wind up its work Thursday night. It could take longer if there are any fights over the platform or nominations but McGrath didn't seem to expect it.

Meanwhile, former Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, in his first political statement since leaving the Presidential cabinet, urged the nomination and election of President Truman.

Hannegan denied reports that he had tried to tell Mr. Truman to withdraw from the Presidential race and added:

"I am going to attend the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia. Harry Truman has been a good president for all of the people of America. He should be nominated and elected."

McGrath said he and Mr. Truman have no personal preferences for the vice presidential nomination. Some of the President's top political advisers are urging choice of an easterner. The names of Gov. William Preston Lane of Maryland and Robert F. Wagner of New York, son of the Senator, were prominently mentioned.

McGrath said that Lane certainly would be acceptable to me—but no more or no less than a number of others." He said there was a "long list" of prospects and the race was wide open.

The party chairman said he had no doubt President Truman will be nominated despite the desire of some party elements to dump him and draft Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There will be a meeting of the dump-Truman crowd here Saturday night.

A few hours before the caucus McGrath may be confronted in the last pre-convention meeting of his national committee with a resolution formally asking President Truman to step aside.

Sen. Olin Johnson of South Carolina, a leader of the draft Eisenhower movement, has said he will offer such a resolution at that time. McGrath said the resolution would be "in proper order," but he saw no chance of its adoption.

Prospective Airport Operator Due Here Sat.

Mayor Lee Dockery announced today that Bill Strain of Fort Worth will be in Ranger Saturday to look over the Ranger Airport with a view of taking over the management and operation of the port.

Strain who comes from Meacham Field is a CAA inspector and a licensed airplane mechanic.

The port has been under the direct supervision of the city commission for the past two weeks after C. C. McKeever released his lease from the city.

Mayor Dockery stated that every effort is being made to secure an efficient man for the airport management, though due to the fact that there are so few qualified men available, the problem is not an easy one.

Taft-Hartley Law Has Added To Maritime Labor Problems

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The Taft-Hartley labor law is headed for its biggest test case yet in the current fight between seven maritime unions and the West Coast, Great Lakes, Atlantic and Gulf Coast ship operators. Principal issue is the hiring hall—the place where seamen and longshoremen go to get jobs.

Under labor practices now firmly established, only union members can get jobs in hiring halls because the maritime unions have all had "closed shop" contracts, and they have been running the halls. But the Taft-Hartley act outlawed the closed shop and says it's an unfair labor practice for an employer to discriminate against union members or non-members. So the employers now say they can't sign renewals of their contracts which expired on June 15—continuing the hiring halls as they have been operated in the past—without breaking the law.

Five CIO unions, one AFL and one independent maintain that this stand by the employers is a concerted effort to do two things. First, to do away with the hiring hall. Second to bust the closed shop at sea and along the waterfront, returning to "open shop" hiring of men without regard to union membership.

Employer ship operators and shipping agents are far from united on what their future hiring policies should be, but in general they deny both these charges.

With regard to the first point, most employers say they want to keep the hiring hall, but they want them run differently, to comply with the law. On the east coast, hiring halls are now maintained by the unions. On the west coast hiring halls are jointly run by unions and employers. The "dispatchers" who assign the men waiting their turns for jobs in the hiring halls are now all union men. Most employers say that in the future they must maintain the hiring hall, but employment offices are run in other industries, and that the dispatchers should be neutral—which to them means non-union men.

On the second point, some employers say they are willing to make a "union shop" contract with the maritime unions. This means that employers could hire whom they pleased, with the understanding that all employees would join the union if there was an election in which a majority of the employees voted that they wished the union to represent them in collective bargaining.

From a practical operating standpoint, this presents a number of problems in the maritime trades not common to other employment. The difficulties of holding elections to determine bargaining agents are obvious and could easily lead to union busting.

The position of employers in not wanting to sign new contracts that violate the Taft-Hartley law can be appreciated. The reluctance of unions to sign contracts that lead to their destruction is also understandable. In this situation, it seems only fair to say that the Taft-Hartley law is certainly not helping labor and management reach agreements to renew working conditions that have operated satisfactorily in the past and have become established practices.

Another disturbing factor is a National Labor Relations Board complaint filed by Great Lakes tanker fleet operators who charge that maintenance of the hiring hall is violation of fair labor practice. An NLRB decision on this case may be appealed to the courts and a final decision on this phase of the law may not be made for months. This case is cited by the unions as evidence that the employers' real aim is to rub out the hiring hall.

All parties are now supposed to be negotiating under an 80-day cooling-off period imposed by Taft-Hartley law court injunction, which ends Sept. 5. If no settlement is reached by then, Harry Bridges says there will be a strike against the law and it will be a lalapaioza.

Cards Have Some Rough Edges But Dyer Smooths Them Out

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The more you see of the Cardinals the more you appreciate the job Eddie Dyer is doing. —Coopers and Ray Sanders—when Billy Southworth shuffled off to Boston, and Dyer was coaxed back from the Texas oil fields. And by this time it was evident that the farm crop was drying up.

But Manager Dyer never lost his poise taking the works, World Series and all, after beating the Dodgers in a play-off.

There are holes in this edition of the Red Birds, too, but the soft-spoken Dyer quietly knits them together.

The batting averages of the three catchers have to be added to get 300. Nothing Joe Garagiola is the only one of the three with any potential at the plate, but his throwing is erratic. Del Rice couldn't hit a right-hander with a snow shovel, and is no Joe DiMaggio against southpaws. Del Wilber is big and slow.

Totally inexperienced there, Nippy Jones makes mistakes at first base.

Whitey Kurovski, who was a remarkable clutch hitter in 1947, with 27 home runs, 104 runs-batted-in and an average of .310, has been of little use thus far.

DON LANG has been around for years, was called in from Columbus on the strength of having a good year. He has been a lifesaver as an adequate third baseman getting 350, something he never did before.

Aging Terry Moore isn't what he was in the field or at bat, and Four Sack Dunak has been a disappointment at the plate.

That Man Musial further stresses his versatility and value to the St. Louis Nationals by standing out in center field when Round Ron Northing plays right against right-hand pitching.

When the Cards dropped 13 of 23, including losing streaks of six and five, the others took heart, but here they are back on their old form. They moved into Ebbets Field for the still highly important test with the Dodgers after forcing Bostonians to check for a time at least the idea that the Braves were a shoo-in. All they did in the Hub was win three in a row.

With the score 2-to-2 in the ninth of the second game in Boston, Billy the Kid Southworth removed Bill Voiselle for left-handed Clyde Shoen. With that, the great Musial walked back to the dugout to change his bat.

"Well, boy, I guess I'll have to send in a hitter for you," said Dyer, with a dead pan.

Musial's eyes popped out. The best hitter in the National League was taken back for an instant. Then all the Red Birds roared.

Stan Musial smacked his fifth consecutive single of the night to put another victory in the Cardinals' column.

Regardless of the circumstances, the blazes in the red blazers are perfectly relaxed under Eddie Dyer.

Pirate Gold. If Any Eludes Town

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UP)—

Rumors and stories of buried treasure here are as perpetual as the gulls still wheeling over harbor waters which once floated pirate ships of Teach, Bonney, and Bonnet.

Yet, a single copper coin of the colonial government of South Carolina is the only booty ever located in this historic city.

Family treasures, buried in haste during the Civil War, have been turned up. But the gold and jewels of pirate days remain unaccounted for, except in words.

During WPA days, workmen on a street paving project reportedly unearthed a pot of gold. The treasure was said to date from colonial times. It later developed that only a few coins were found in a glass jar. It had been buried on the site of an old, abandoned race track.

The story that silver "bits" (the eighth part of Spanish pieces of eight) were dug from a drain was never proved.

Only the single copper coin is evidence of buried treasure.

Nobody Loves Forever

E. E. STORY: Jessica Gordon, a beautiful young girl, had been with a boy named Tom for as long as she could remember. She was a Tom boy's daughter and Tom was her father's name. She was a Tom boy's daughter and Tom was her father's name. She was a Tom boy's daughter and Tom was her father's name.

BEFORE she had been in the house "4" hours Jessica knew that Tom was completely blind to any fault in either his mother or his sister. In turn they worshipped Tom. And spoiled him.

Jessica endured endless snubs when she tried to win Mrs. Blake's approval. Lucy echoed her mother's opinions, whether willingly or because she feared to differ with her mother. Jessica could not tell.

She did not know that she had interfered with Mrs. Blake's plans for the son she worshipped and that Mrs. Blake would not forgive her, that she had a strong contempt for any girl incapable of doing household tasks, that she blamed Jessica for the marriage and disliked her; and yet, because it was Tom's wish that his wife remain with her until he came home, Tom's decision was respected.

Unaware of his mother's antagonism and too blinded by lack of understanding to be aware of Jessica's low spirits, at the moment, Tom stood between them; but every day brought the time closer when he would leave her. Every day made her more and more determined to tell him she would not stay with his mother and sister. Every day Jessica weakly postponed the actual scene she felt would follow when she announced her unwillingness to accede to Tom's decision.

Day by day she realized that she and her husband had only one thing in common—love-mating situation, the same attraction which rushed them headlong into this miserable situation. Love-making was the only weapon Jessica possessed and shamelessly she used it whenever she had the chance to get Tom alone. Her caresses pleased and flattered him. Could she win him away from these two women with her kisses?

SHE was almost sure she could, and the day before Tom left she put her influence to the test. She sat before the window doing her nails and Tom came in from the bathroom for his shave. "I don't like that stuff you put on your nails," he said bluntly. "You won't be here to see it." Jessica held up a hand and wiggled the fingers to dry her polish. Tom rattled a drawer, slammed it shut. "Mom doesn't like it either."

Jessica bit her lip. "When I'm in a place of my own she won't have to see it," she observed boldly. "What are you talking about?" "An apartment?" "An apartment?" She nodded and slanted her eyes at him and smiled, but Tom would have none of it. His face was hard and angry.

"Just get that nonsense out of your head, Jess." Then bluntly, "Remember, you haven't any money." "You have an allotment, don't you?" she demanded. Tom shifted his glance and busied himself collecting his shirt and tie from the back of a chair. Finally he answered, "Mom has that. I've always turned my pay check over to Mom and she banks it. I used to do it when I worked at the plant and since I've been in the Army I've done the same."

"But you're married now." Her self-control was slipping fast. "That doesn't change things. Mom's willing to take you in and board and room you. She's promised to try to teach you something useful. I'm not wasting money on apartments. We'll need every cent I can save for when I get home. You should be thankful."

"If you say that again, I'll scream!"

JESSICA jumped up and overturned the nail polish which ran in a trickling stream across the faded rug. "I hate to stay here. I hate your mother and she hates me. Things are different here," Jessica ended weakly, frightened by Tom's angry face.

"You bet they're different. We don't have a pack of servants to wait on us. We have to work. We have to save and get ahead and plan for the future. When I come back you'll have to know how to wash my clothes and pack a dinner and live on a workingman's wages. Ever think of that?" No. She had not thought of that. She was too proud to remind Tom that he had not considered that when he held her in his arms and urged her to marry him. He had given no thought to the future. He had wanted her—she must belong to him.

She did. And there was no escape. She had $20 of borrowed money between her and dependence upon Tom's mother and sister.

She said meekly, "I'm sorry, Tom. Please don't be angry."

The day following the argument Tom left Akron. Jessica went to the station with him. She clung to his big hand. She cried. Tom, too, was shaken. He held her close and kissed her over and over. He said, "Don't worry, honey, I'll come home."

She watched him stalk away through the crowd. Tears blinded her as she left the station.

Lucy who had accompanied them, with sudden kindness, "Don't cry, Tom's lucky, he'll come back."

"But I'm so alone here."

Lucy was silent for a moment. Then she said, "Mom means to be kind. She—well she never expected Tom to marry a girl like you."

Speaking of Oil Booms—

... the increased lease activity in Eastland County has been a real break for several types of business. Abstractors as a general rule struggle along for years on bare existence with heavy overhead expenses until something on the present order comes along, if it does, then everybody else is busy, too, sufficient help is not available and away goes our reputation for prompt service. So for the time being please file your orders a little ahead of anticipated needs.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By Boyce House

In November of 1920, I came to Texas. I had to sell the paper which I owned in Arkansas and came to this state to rest in order to build up my health. After riding on the train for almost 24 hours, I prepared to get off in San Antonio. Nearly a thousand miles from home and friends a stranger in a strange land, I felt lonely, indeed.

Imagine my surprise as I stepped off the train and heard a voice exclaim, "Boyce House, what are you doing away down here?" The speaker was a schoolmate of Central High days in Memphis, Tenn., who was at the station to meet a relative. The sight of a familiar face and the sound of a friendly voice drove away the "lost" feeling.

I have never seen that schoolmate since then.

A man living in a small Western city was in Chicago on a business trip. Under the impulse of a spirit of mischief, he entered the telegraph office and sent a message to a man living in his town. The telegram read, "Flee at once: all is discovered. (Signed) You know who."

When the traveler returned, he found that the man to whom he had sent the message had left—and he never did come back!

Jim White was a cowboy out in New Mexico. One day, he came

An elaborate array of exhibits by home demonstration clubs, 4-H clubs and individuals in this area will be shown at the three-day Peach and Melon Festival to be held in De Leon on July 22, 23, and 24.

L. M. Black, in charge of exhibits as well as being general chairman of arrangements, said this week entries are coming in faster than had been anticipated and it now appears the exhibit building will be crowded to capacity.

A livestock and poultry show will also be an added feature at which FFA boys will exhibit their livestock and poultry. A large tent has been secured to house the show and the finest purebred stock in this section will be shown.

The tent will be erected on Monday before the festival opens on Thursday in order to give showmen a chance to arrange for space.

No charge will be made for entries and prizes and ribbons will be awarded to the winners.

I am a Democrat, bitterly opposed to the encroachment of Communism and as your Representative would fight uncompromisingly to destroy the threat of this menace on every occasion. It would be my aim and objective to represent you at Austin as servant and not as master. I do not seek this office as a means of personal honor or self-gain, but as an opportunity to again serve my country for which I fought.

During the coming weeks I hope to visit every voting precinct in the district, giving you an opportunity to examine my views on any political queries. I do not intend to "straddle the fence" or deceive the electorate on any question. I want very much to win this race but never would I do so at the expense of truth or honor.

Should I fail to contact you please do not consider it an intentional oversight. I realize I cannot in this short time meet and talk with nearly 10,000 people, however, I invite any of you to visit me in Cross Plains. The latch string is always out and your visits are not only welcomed but invited.

Between now and election day I will appreciate your investigation of my qualifications and record, and if possible to lend me your support and influence. Thanking you sincerely for the considera-

Will's Hospitality Isn't "Cracked"

Ever since January, Will Dudley planned to give his living room that "new look"—planned to carefully refinish the woodwork and replaster the walls.

Every time Will got out the putty to start filling in the cracks, a neighbor stopped by to pass the time of day—and first thing you knew, there was a group of us helping Will do the job up right. After Will called a halt to the evening's work, we'd sit around the fire enjoying a friendly argument and a sparkling glass of mellow beer.

So Will's living room doesn't look like it did a year ago—but it's by far the most "livable" living room I know. A place you can always drop in for good talk, good beer, and a warm welcome.

From where I sit, so long as Will puts that atmosphere of hospitality and good fellowship ahead of everything else, we'll all be happy to help Will change the looks of his living room any time he wants.

His Horse Taken Away So Old Soldier Retires

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (UP)—A veteran soldier has decided that if the army didn't need his horse, it didn't need him either.

T-Sgt. Tom Sapash spent 27 years as a cavalryman. He never thought about retiring. But last January his horse Daisy was retired with the rest of the army's mounts. Sapash managed for a few months, but finally gave up.

"The army wasn't the same any more," he said. When he announced plans to retire, a full scale parade was held here in his honor. After the ceremony Sapash announced his plans for the future. He is going to raise horses.

The nation's first lunch wagon was a horse-drawn affair in Worcester, Mass., operated in 1822 by Sam Jones. He sold sandwiches, coffee and hot dogs.

Girl Spy For U. S. In Pacific War Comes Here As Honored Leper

By BOB BRANSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
MANILA (UP)—Joey Guerrero goes to the United States with a few personal belongings, a typewriter, and a lot of faith. Joe, who has an American decoration for her work as a spy against the Japanese, is headed for Carrollville, Louisiana, for treatment of an advanced case of leprosy.

She sailed from Manila on June 21 aboard the U. S. Army transport General Pope, expected to arrive at San Francisco about July 8.

"I have faith in the American doctors—and God," Joey said. "If they can't cure me, that's that. But I'm going to make sure the trip isn't wasted."

She is well educated and speaks flawless English. She is taking the typewriter so she can write articles to raise money for Filipino lepers.

"There are 5,000 like us in the Philippines," she explained. "If I am able to put the story into words, I know the Americans will help."

Many Americans here, including army officers, consular officials and a United Nations Social consultant, pitched in to get Joey started to the United States. She got a visa, which was difficult considering her disease, through an appeal to U. S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

Joey is in her early thirties and before she became ill could have been a contender in any beauty contest. She is Mrs. Josefina Guerrero, the wife of Dr. Renato Guerrero, a Manila physician, and the mother of an 11-year-old daughter.

She discovered that she had leprosy just before the war. She left her family and began treatment.

When the Japanese occupation began entrance to Japanese installations near Manila. For almost three years she drew maps and sketches of what she saw—gun emplacements, arsenals, supply dumps, wharves, ships, etc. She drew careful charts of Japanese mine fields in Manila.

A friend said: "Joey figured that her number was up and that she might as well join the resistance movement."

Her big chance came a few weeks ago when Maj. Gen. George E. Moore awarded her the Medal of Freedom for saying "untold" American lives and Cardinal Francis Spellman presented her a Catholic medalion for "valorous and heroic action."

Public housing, financed by cities, states and the federal government, must accompany any reconstruction done by private enterprise, Blucher said.

"The hard fact is," Blucher said, "that many of the laws contemplate rebuilding of blighted areas and that there are no housing facilities available for those who will be displaced from the slums and blighted areas."

Slum Clearance Found Declining

CHICAGO (UP)—Slum clearance in the United States is virtually at a standstill, a planning official reports.

Walter Blucher, director of the American Society of Planning Officials, blamed the shortage of housing.

"Let us not kid ourselves about urban re-development," Blucher said. "We have legislation providing for slum clearance in 24 states but almost nothing has been done."

Public housing, financed by cities, states and the federal government, must accompany any reconstruction done by private enterprise, Blucher said.

"The hard fact is," Blucher said, "that many of the laws contemplate rebuilding of blighted areas and that there are no housing facilities available for those who will be displaced from the slums and blighted areas."

Wh-wh-what a W-w-way to R-r-reduce Chicago's Marga Dieterle is gyroducting, which is a new thing in the diet-and-steambox circuit. Gyroducting happens when somebody sits on this new automatic massage couch. Wave length vibrations start "gyroducting" inside the reducer's body, activating the proper glands for reducing, it says here.
