Strikers Shut Down Two Railway Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strikers began shutting down the Southern Railway and the Union Pacific today after all-night summit negotiations at the Labor Department failed to produce agreement on work rules.

The two lines together account for 8.9 per cent of the nation's rail miles and carry 23 per cent of all rail shipments of farm produce, according to industry figures.

However, negotiations among Cabinet officials, railroad presidents and President Charles Luna of the AFL-CIO United Transportation Union were set to resume later, possibly today.

The strike over work rules would idle an estimated 48,000 employees on the two roads and affect Southern and Western states. However, effects of the strike—the nation's third major rail stoppage in seven months—would be felt in various degrees by other railroads as surely as the nation's rail system is joined together. Few commuters would be affected.

Also at the Labor Department bargaining table were the president of the Norfolk & Western and a representative for the Southern Pacific, the two roads set for a UTU strike next Friday, and the president of Chicago and North Western whose 6 a.m. strike deadline has been delayed by a federal court until July 23.

The UTU represents 190,000 brakemen and other operating crew members.

UTU members planned to report at the rest of the nation's railroads and work under much harsher rules promised by the industry as retaliation for the selective, or "whipsaw," walkouts against the Southern and UP.

In addition to work rules, key issues are wages and working conditions.

Railroad spokesmen have argued the UTU should accept a contract package similar to the one signed by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. That package included a 42-per-cent pay raise over 42 months and elimination of disputed work rules.

Local Phone Workers Continue To Stay Away From Their Jobs

Local telephone operators and inside workers, continued to stay away from jobs today, refusing to cross a Western Electric picket line put up here Wednesday.

The 65 operators and seven plant men honoring the picket lines of the subsidiary company, are closely watching developments at the bargaining table in St. Louis where Communication Workers of America representatives are meeting with Southwestern Bell representatives. A strike has been called for all Bell workers for 12:01 a.m. Saturday if bargaining fails. The Bell Strike would affect all telephone workers in the area.

Local union steward H.V. "Red" Ballard said today he had talked with union officials in Lubbock and was advised no word had been received from the bargaining committee.

Negotiators have until midnight to reach an agreement. Bell workers across the nation will walk out if the deadline is reached without an acceptable offer, union officials said.

Ballard said Lubbock officials were in agreement with Pampa officials in interpreting the back-to-work rule concerning the negotiations. Some reports have stated workers would be off the job until each employee had received a copy of an agreement and returned it for ratification. Ballard said his feeling on the matter was the bargaining committee could issue a back-to-work order if it felt the agreement was satisfactory, and then allow 21

Texas Health Officials Working On Ways To Stop Spreading VEE

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Health officials from throughout the state gathered at Austin today for an emergency meeting in the wake of an epidemic of Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE) in Texas horses and humans.

The latest estimates indicated that 34 persons in the Lower Rio Valley have been hospitalized with VEE symptoms and over 500 horses have been stricken.

Health authorities have estimated that the death rate in horses can be up to 80 per cent; humans suffer flu-like symptoms and recover within a few days.

The disease, a rare strain of "sleeping sickness," has killed thousands of horses during the past two years in South and Central America and Mexico.

Horses throughout the state were being vaccinated on a voluntary basis with an experimental vaccine developed by the U. S. Army. There is no vaccine for humans. The vaccine being used for horses has strong side effects for humans.

The U. S. Senate Wednesday voted an additional $1 million appropriation to aid in the fight against the disease as an amendment to a farm bill.

Horse owners and agricultural interests in other states became alarmed over the rapid spread of the disease in Texas. By late Thursday, nine states and Canada placed an embargo on Texas horses. Other states were considering similar action. The strongest embargo was in Virginia, where officials said they are barring any horse that has been in Texas during the past 60 days.

The state embargo action came after a federal embargo imposed earlier in the week by the U. S. Agriculture Department, which includes the movement of horses from one county to another within the state, was imposed shortly after the first case of VEE was confirmed in humans at Brownsville and the experimental vaccine was ordered released throughout the state.

The emergency meeting at Austin was called to give federal and state health experts an opportunity to discuss the disease with state and local health authorities. Experts were to discuss the disease and then conduct a question and answer session.

Dead horses continued to cause health problems in the Valley where one official estimates that 25-30 horses were dying each day in Cameron County.

Dr. John Copenhaver, director of the Joint Hidalgo-Cameron County Health Department, said there were reports of dead horses in the Rio Grande, the

Announcement Draws Varied World Reaction

TOYKO (AP) — Nationalist China lodged a strong protest today against President Nixon's plan to visit Communist China, and a South Korean spokesman termed the trip shocking news. But other Asian allies of the United States approved.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu said he hoped the trip "could constitute a first step toward the elaboration of lasting peace for this part of the world." His rival, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, called on South Vietnam "to take adequate and timely measures to protect itself and its national interests."

The report reached the Far East in mid-morning and took government officials and the public by surprise. Newspapers rushed out extra editions and anxious callers jammed newspaper switchboards for details.

Nationalist China's ambassador to the United States, James C. Shen, told newsmen in Washington he was not informed of Nixon's plans until about half an hour before the President's broadcast.

His report apparently did not reach Taipei before the news reports, and at the news top officials of President Chiang Kai-shek's regime went into a hurried 45-minute conference. Afterward a spokesman said the government had "lodged a strong protest to the government of the United States."

Nixon's announcement surprised officials and private citizens in staunchly anti-Communist South Korea. A spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said "it was shocking news" but added the government would withhold official comment until it heard from its embassy in Washington.

Seoul citizens, many with bewildered looks, intently read the news on bulletin boards in front of newspaper buildings before the afternoon papers hit the streets.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government termed Nixon's announcement a "very good thing." Acting Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura told newsmen: "We welcome the visit as an improvement of relations between the United States and China." He said his government was informed in advance of Nixon's plans.

Prime Minister Sir Keith Holyoake of New Zealand called Nixon's announcement heartening and said, "I hope this development will give more depth to recent tendencies on the part of China toward more relaxed relations with other countries."

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand, whose country has troops in Vietnam, said Nixon's trip may help bring peace to Southeast Asia.

Sir Leslie Curry of Australia, whose country also has a contingent of troops in Vietnam, said he thinks most nations which don't have relations with Peking will wait to see the outcome.

Meanwhile, there had been no change in the arrival time of serum to be used in the Texas Panhandle to vaccinate horses against the disease.

Holly Gray, association president, said the directors will decide whether the spread of Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis (VEE) in Texas warrants cancellation of the show.

Nixon's Visit To Peking Believed Personal Triumph For Chou

EDITOR'S NOTE: John Roderick of The Associated Press accompanied the U.S. table tennis team to Communist China in April, the first American news agency correspondent to visit there since 1949. Roderick reported from China from the end of World War II until 1948 and since has followed Chinese affairs closely.

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — President Nixon's decision to visit Peking immensely strengthens the moderate wing of Chinese communism, led by Premier Chou En-lai, which seeks to advance Communist aims peacefully rather than through the use of force.

The international Communist movement alternates between the use of war and the application of parliamentary, or united front, tactics in its drive to achieve its goals. Red China at the present time is in the peaceful phase, following the violence and excesses of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution.

Chou, long an advocate of united front tactics, has been entrusted by the party to serve as architect and spokesman of the new soft approach to the United States and the West.

It was in this context that April he made a sharp turn in the long hostile relations with the United States by inviting an American table tennis team and three American newsmen to visit the Chinese mainland.

The Nixon visit represents a personal triumph for the urbane, articulate 73-year-old statesman-diplomat.

If it is successful, there could be an end, at least for a time, to the Vietnam war. Tensions over Formosa could be eased. The prospects for peace in Asia would be brightened.

Failure would expose Chou's moderate line to criticism within the ruling Communist party. The ultra-leftists—led by Mao Tse-tung's wife, Chiang Ching; his old secretary, Chen Po-ta, and politburo member Yao Wen-yuan—might persuade the majority to vote for their tougher line of brinkmanship in relations with the United States.

The faction which seems to hold the decisive vote is led by the army chiefs. They rose to positions of power in the provinces and on the central committee after they were called in to suppress the fanatic Red Guards during the cultural revolution.

For a variety of reasons they want to see China stable and free of foreign conflict for the next five to 10 years. One reason is that the fourth five-year plan has just gotten under way. Its objective is to build China industrially and militarily.

The Vietnam war is an enormous drain on China's resources. If it could be halted on terms acceptable to North Vietnam, the money and technicians now diverted to Hanoi could be employed in the five-year plan.

The question of Formosa is another one which preoccupies the Chinese military chiefs. They would like to see that potential danger spot defused so they could give their entire attention to the estimated one million Soviet troops on the borders of Manchuria.

Chou's negotiating skills are being relied on to relax tension in both areas. Chinese troops on a continuous alert cannot be spared for the major role in production envisaged for them in the five-year plan.

While this writer was in China in April, Communist party members told him talks could be held about Formosa without the prior withdrawal of American troops from the Nationalist island. This was the first suggestion of a softening of position on this key issue standing in the way of a full rapprochement between the United States and Red China.

Chou also went out of his way to tell American newsmen later that if Formosa is returned to China, there would be no acts of revenge against its inhabitants.

Chou, still vigorous and in excellent health despite his age, first gained international attention in the 1930s as the Communist representative in talks with Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang Party. He was the Communist man in wartime Chungking and the party's chief negotiator in the fruitless coalition discussions held by Gen. George C. Marshall.

He dominated the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina and stole the show from Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru at the African-Asian conference in Bandung in 1955.

He established himself there as China's spokesman for peaceful coexistence. The quarrel with Nikita Khrushchev and the Soviet Communist leaders brought an end to this soft line, and it gave way to a less flexible one.

Chou was the moderating influence during the 1966-68 cultural revolution, and Peking's new "Ping-Pong diplomacy" appears to be based on the return of political stability, an upsurge in the economy brought about by nine consecutive bumper harvests and the requirements of the five-year plan.

SEC Plans Further Questioning Of Smith For Role In Stock Case

DALLAS (AP) — Further questioning of Gov. Preston Smith about an insurance stock scandal is planned by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Dallas News reported today.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed source as saying the governor has asked permission to expand on statements made to SEC examiners last Friday in Austin.

SEC investigators originally quizzed Smith last Dec. 18 in his office at Austin. Nearly a month later the government agency filed a civil suit in Dallas alleging stock manipulation and fraud by 15 individuals and 13 corporations.

The governor is among top politicians who have acknowledged taking quick profits in stock deals financed by loans from a bank controlled by Houston financier Frank W. Sharp.

One of those named in the suit, Smith and the other political figures are not defendants in the SEC's injunction suit, however.

The Dallas News said it had learned that Smith, in giving a deposition last week, told the SEC he was unaware that Sharp sought passage of certain banking legislation until a year after he vetoed the measures.

Unnamed sources state, however, that Dr. Elmer Baum—state Democratic chairman and a business partner of the governor—gave the SEC sworn testimony last week that he had informed Smith about Sharp's interest in the vetoed bills. The legislation would have placed state banks, including one controlled by Sharp, under state instead of federal regulation.

The Dallas newspaper gave these details:

Baum also was questioned by the SEC last Dec. 18. He was asked then if he had talked with Smith prior to the veto about Sharp and Austin lawyer John Osorio being interested in the banking measures.

"He was aware of that," Baum was quoted as replying.

There now is talk that Smith's third session with SEC examiners may be set for about the middle of next week and an aide of the governor, Bob Bullock, also may give testimony then.

In the transcript of Smith's first interrogation, filed with sworn statements from 31 other individuals in connection with the pending SEC suit, Smith acknowledged that he and Baum divided a $125,000 profit from buying and selling National Bankers Life Insurance Co. stock in the summer of 1969.

Two phone company employees were arrested and charged with arson in the burning of cables that cut telephone service to 8,000 subscribers in Mundelein, Aurora and Libertyville, Ill.

company office ventilating system forced the evacuation of more than 100 nonstrikers.

In Yonkers, N.Y., a phone company supervisor was beaten and slightly injured while performing emergency repairs. His companion, working atop a pole, escaped unscathed but their truck was vandalized.

A woman employee was assaulted as she attempted to leave a company parking lot at Nashville, Tenn., and a shot was fired into the car of another woman employee, a company spokesman said.

Eggs were thrown at company cars or vehicles driven by supervisory employees at Brooklyn Center, a Minneapolis suburb.

Art Koski, president of CWA Local 7250 in St. Paul, said the picket line violence was unprecedented but predicted, "it will continue. Gone are the days of buddy-buddy relationship between a complacent picket and the scab called management."

Apollo 15 Astronauts Will Make On-Spot Study Of Moon Craters

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — For ages scientists have argued whether all the moon's craters were created by meteor impact, or whether some are volcanic. The Apollo 15 astronauts may make an on-the-spot settlement of the question.

The Apollo 15 launch is scheduled for Monday, July 26.

During their exploration of the Hadley-Apennine landing site, David R. Scott and James B. Irwin will examine two areas that might be associated with volcanism.

They are the Hadley Rille, a 1,200-foot gorge that meanders for 70 miles in the Sea of Rains, and a group of craters known as the North Complex. Photographs indicate these craters might be dormant volcanoes.

During two of their three excursions on the surface, the astronauts will drive their four-wheel moon buggy to different spots on the rim of the mile-wide rille.

"We'll collect some samples at the rim and make observations," Scott said.

"The rilles are found many places on the moon, so it would be nice to know what they are in trying to reconstruct the history of the moon," Scott explained. He noted there are many theories about their formation, including water flow, lava flow, the flow of hot gases due to volcanism, collapsed lava tubes or open faults.

"We'll be looking for stratification that could indicate a series of flows," the Apollo 15 commander said. "Even when we get there and look at it, I don't think we're going to be able to tell why it's there until we get back and the geologists study the photography and samples."

Apollo 15's best chance of proving the volcano theory will be at North Complex, a two-mile drive from the landing site.

Will they be able to tell on spot if the craters are volcanic?

"We've gone through a lot of training to make that judgment," Irwin replied. "Hopefully we'll find evidence of a lava flow which would be an immediate clue."

PAMPA DAILY NEWS PAMPA, TEXAS 65th YEAR Friday, July 16, 1971

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A year ago my father passed away. He was 69 years old. Since then my mother has been carrying on until she has me half crazy. You would think she was the only woman ever to lose a husband. She had a good life with him and she should be grateful she had him that long.

However, my real problem is that I live only a block away from her. I run over every day, but it's not enough for her. She spends every free hour at my house, saying she had nothing to live for and she is going to take an "overdose."

She keeps saying she can't live alone (I think she wants to move in with me and that would be the end of me.) She is not disabled in any way, but she complains and whines constantly until I am about to have a nervous breakdown.

I have no privacy. She has brothers and sisters, but she is here all the time, or else she's at home calling me to come over. She won't even turn on her TV. She's rather sit and feel sorry for herself.

She criticizes everything and tears everyone to pieces. My husband is thinking of asking for a transfer so we can move away. What else can we do?

SMOTHERED

DEAR SMOTHERED: You can take your mother to a doctor. Your mother needs professional help in handling her grief. And you need some help in learning how to handle your mother.

DEAR ABBY: A 19-year-old man (if you can call him that) was recently found guilty of beating two of his girl friends' children, and he was given the maximum penalty of 180 days in the work house. The children, ages 4 and 5, were taken to the hospital and treated for numerous lacerations and welts across their backs, which the state claimed were inflicted by a knotted electric cord.

The mother of these battered tots was 17 years old, and she had three other children — one per year beginning when she was 12 years old!

Now if this isn't a case in favor of planned parenthood, I don't know what is.

APPALLED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR APPALLED: Amen!

DEAR ABBY: This problem has been on my mind for several years and I hope you can help me.

Many years ago I obtained a divorce from a man, but before the divorce was final, I married again. We both knew my divorce was not final at the time, but we had to get married, so we did. I have had my final papers for years but we've never renewed our vows. My question is, how legal is this marriage?

TROUBLED
DEAR TROUBLED: Some states recognize common law marriages, but I wouldn't bet on that as a solution to this problem. I advise you to quietly get married without broadly proclaiming the fact that your first marriage was invalid. But before you do anything, I advise you to see a competent lawyer.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Where did we go wrong" in Wheeling, W.Va.: From your letter I would say you did your best. Some parents "train up a child in the way he should go," and out of sheer rebellion, the child deliberately departs from it.

Quivira Girl Scout Tells Camp Events

(Editor's Note) — Established camp is underway at the Quivira Girl Scout Council's new Camp Cibola. The Girl Scout office here recently received this report from Miss Phyllis Reynolds, a camper who will be in the seventh grade at Lee Junior High this fall.

"This week 90 girls are enjoying the first session of two weeks of established camp at Camp Cibola, located two miles west of highway 70 at the old Clarendon Country Club.

"There is a great choice of activities. Tuesday morning the girls had a real experience as they cooked out breakfast. After breakfast the girls usually have sports, such as archery, croquet, volleyball, softball, and swimming. Some girls will enter the water ballet and others will take swimming lessons, which include non-swimmers, beginners, swimmers and life saving.

Later in the afternoon some girls have crafts, which include: tie dyeing, macrame, tile mosaics, egg carton crafts, and painting.

"Most of the campers will hike Wednesday. Topping off the day will be a Tacky Dinner with a style show. An out of season Christmas dinner, complete with Santa Claus and a pinata, is also planned. Some of the units will have special birthday parties with popcorn, cake, some-mores, and games. Friday night there will be a last night campfire.

POLLY'S POINTERS Remedies Help Fight Damp House Problem

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Josephine who has a dampness problem in her summer cabin. We scattered perfumed moth crystals everywhere the day we closed the house to go home. We also found that by sprinkling cinnamon in our kitchen, especially under the shelf paper in the cupboards, we eliminated ants.

cabinet, we did not know what to do with the portable case. It was too nice to throw away. Finally, my husband came up with a great idea. We had no chair to use with the cabinet so he put ready made legs on the portable case and this gives me a roomy storage chest, a bench and it even has handles for easy carrying.

MRS. C.C.

DEAR POLLY — I was heartbroken to find a musty and mildew odor prevalent when we moved to Florida, but discovered my own remedy and hope it helps Josephine with her problem. I hung mildew bags in all my closets after completely painting them. A five-pound bag of camphor nuggets was sprinkled all around, even behind beds and under the mattresses. I bought a 10-pound bag of charcoal briquettes and put a few of them in tin cans or plastic containers placed in the closets both high up and on the floor. I also put these in all the dresser drawers. I punched holes in the covers of the containers so no clothes could become blackened from it. I constantly air my pillows and blankets in the sun.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — What is the easiest and best way to clean your home typewriter at a minimal cost?

Also, is there any way to mend ripped vinyl plastic that is on a hassock?

MRS. R.M.

DEAR POLLY — I bought a sewing machine cabinet for my portable and, after my husband put my machine in the desk

Religion In The News

With GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

A bearded, vigorous priest of 43, Dean Allen took up his post July 1, as director of Berkeley Center, a center for experimentation in the training of ministers for the church.

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai does not appear optimistic about chances for Communist China gaining admission to the United Nations this year, the leader of Australia's opposition Labor party said today.

He has moved into a studious atmosphere. From turbulence, he has stepped into comparative quiet. Yet it's an area, he says of deepening affliction in America.

It was created out of a new affiliation between Yale and Berkeley Divinity School, of which he remains dean.

Gough Whitlam made the statement at a news conference in Tokyo. The party leader spent 12 days in China and talked with Chou and other Communist Chinese leaders. He and his party delegation are en route home.

"It's ominous," says the Rev. J. Michael Allen, New Haven, Conn., the new associate dean of Yale Divinity School.

His new book, "This Time, This Place," published by Bobbs-Merrill, is a moving, perceptive commentary on faith under fire of modern challenges to it.

Whitlam added Chou was confident, however, that Peking's membership in the United Nations "is inevitable in the quite near future" and will be accomplished with the ouster of the Chinese Nationalists.

Dean Allen for 10 years was an Episcopal minister on Manhattan's shabby lower East Side where he mixed robust worship, drama, art, jailtime, marches and battling for social and racial justice. Of his shift to the academic world, he says:

"We are a nation afraid... that in giving others a share in freedom we will lose it, as if there were not enough freedom to go around," he writes of the civil rights struggle of blacks in which he twice went to jail.

The U.N. General Assembly will consider the Chinese representation issue again at its session opening Sept. 21. Pro-Peking supporters will call again for the seating of Peking and the ouster of the Nationalists.

"It's where the hurt and need has intensified. Students have fallen into a terrible despair. It just wells up in them. They're crying out for something, for gentleness and compassion. But they see only horrors."

As an educational administrator, Dean Allen, a World War II Army officer and magazine writer before entering the ministry, said that "if there ever was a time in history for understanding the meaning of the Cross, this is it."

He disclosed also that he had met with Winthrop Trown, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state, and Armin Meyer, the U.S. ambassador to Japan, and told them of China's willingness to attend an international conference on Vietnam similar to the 1964 Geneva talks that ended the Indochina war.

"So they're giving up, cutting out. That's why the campuses have been so quiet this year. It's a frightening thing for the future of the kids and the future of the country."

Noting that Jesus, in the defeat of the Crucifixion, actually was victorious, he added: "Maybe it's time for withdrawal, for a moratorium, if we've totally given up, we may be ready for triumph."

He said Brown and Meyer were very anxious to know more about his talks with Chou.

The Weekly Message of Inspiration...

PAMPA CHURCH OF CHRIST

MR. JEROLD BARNARD

"At Jesus' Feet"
Luke 10:38-42

This three-word expression describes a bodily posture which numerous individuals assumed toward our Lord during the days of his flesh, indicating their gratitude, devotion, penitence, humility, and their eagerness to learn and obey the master.

"At Jesus' Feet" is an appropriate position for God's creatures all over the world. He is our Friend, and our Redeemer, he is our Lord and our King. Let us, therefore, sit at the feet of Jesus.

Like Mary, as eager learners, seeking the light of eternal truth. (Luke 10:38-42; Ps. 1:1,2; John 8:32; 14:36.)

Like Jairus, as pleading intercessors, we must be interested in the well-being of (Luke 8:40-42; 3 John 2; Phil. 4:6), others.

Like the Samaritan, as should be weeping for our sins, and seeking divine pardon. (Luke 7:36-38; 1 John 1:1,2.)

Like the Samaritan, as grateful recipients of divine compassion and the cleansing power, of the blood of Christ. (Luke 17:11-16; Eph. 5:20.)

Like the unknown Gadarene, for the security the Lord can give. (Luke 8:26-35; Ps. 91:1.)

Like the adoring women, worshipping the living Lord. (Matt. 28:8, 9; John 4: John 4:23,24; Rev. 22:8,9.)

Like the beloved John, We should be filled with devotion and reverential awe. (Rev. 1:10-17.)

Let all who hear his gentle voice today come and fall at his feet in humble submission, obeying from the heart that form of doctrine to the end that they may be free from the practice and the guilt and the tyranny and the penalty of sin. (Matt. 7:21; Acts 22:16; Romans 6:17,18; Heb. 5:8,9.)

New York Assesses Its Liberal Abortion Law Effects

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor
NEW YORK (NEA)—It's just over a year since the enactment of New York State's liberal abortion law—the controversial legislation that led abortion critics to predict dire consequences for the morals, culture and health of citizens in this, largest city in the United States.

Since July 1, 1970, when the liberal law went into effect, city officials report that physicians here have performed some 165,000 abortions—more than believed possible a year ago. And, at both private and city abortion facilities, the operations have been performed for less money and with a greater degree of safety than even some abortion proponents had predicted.

Essentially, the New York law leaves the decision to have an abortion to a woman and her physician up to the 24th week of pregnancy. Unlike recently passed liberal abortion laws in states such as Hawaii, Alaska and Washington, New York's law has no residency requirements and some 64 per cent of the abortions in the city have been performed on women from out of state. This new abortion mecca hasn't been without its initial problems, though: public confusion, scheduling difficulties, resistance by some physicians and profiteering by others. The state's attorney general recently banned profit-

FIGURES IN THOUSANDS

STEADY RISE in reported pregnancy terminations has been registered since adoption of New York City's liberalized abortion laws. With no residency requirement, the city is also becoming a center for the country with the abortion rate up most sharply for nonresidents.

making abortion referral services which were misleading unknowning women into paying $50 to $150 referral fees for services on their behalf. Generally, the "services" rendered by these commercial outfits amounted to little more than a single telephone call.

Still, there may be more positive than negative points to be made with regard to New York's first year of abortion experience, and the trends keep improving.

"It is gratifying," says Gordon Chase, the city Health Services administrator, "that more and more women who seek abortions are doing so in the first trimester (12 weeks) of pregnancy, when the procedure is easier and safer."

Last July and August fewer than 70 per cent of the abortions performed here were before the 13th week of pregnancy. The percentage has now climbed to higher than 80.

The mortality rate and the rate of medical complications from abortions are dropping proportionately. Medical complications—from legal abortions have dropped from an early rate of 12.4 per 1,000 to about 8.7 per 1,000.

In the first eight months of the new law, there had been 15 abortion-associated deaths (several from illegal abortions), but there have been no deaths reported since.

Aside from these administrative and medical advances, progress also has been made on the social side of the problem. In Ohio, where the legislature is currently considering abortion reform, a recent guest editorial in the Cincinnati Post and Times-Star noted:

"Those who cannot afford the price must carry the unwanted pregnancy to term or seek unsafe abortions from quacks brandishing knitting needles and coat hangers. Each year 400 to 1,000 women in the United States die from out of hospital abortions, and 350,000 are admitted to hospitals for damages inflicted by unsafe procedures."

Until New York's abortion reform, a large number of those casualties occurred here. But in the first six months of the liberal abortion law, poor and nonwhite women received nearly half of the legal abortions performed in New York City, and a good number of these were paid for under various medical insurance plans.

And, according to expectations, New York health officials are gratified by the fact that the number of illegal and clandestine abortions has dropped in the last year.

City hospitals report that they are treating fewer victims of botched abortions now than in recent years. Criminal and self-induced abortions—which have always contributed greatly to maternal mortality rates—are also down. Maternal mortality rates have dropped to 2.3 maternal deaths per 10,000 live births, from 5.2 deaths per 10,000 live births a year ago.

It is also reported that for the first time in 10 years the number of illegitimate births has decreased, and the birth rate has also begun to drop off after years of a steady climb.

Cost of legal abortions—initially thought to be a major problem to deal with—has also been brought under control. A year ago the cost of an early abortion ranged from $300 to $600. Today, however, safe procedures performed on an outpatient basis are readily available for as little as $150. The cost of late abortions, where hospital stays are required, has also dropped considerably.

"We have set a good example for other states to follow," says Dr. Jean Pakter, head of maternal services for the city. And she added, "New York would be happy to relinquish its role as an abortion center for the country."

Connally Says Jobless Rate Will Decline

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally said yesterday he is not very optimistic that the unemployment rate will decline substantially this year. But he said the jobless rate will begin to fall as the economy expands.

Connally said at a news conference the Nixon administration expects the rate of inflation to stabilize and the unemployment rate to begin declining this year.

However, the drop in the unemployment rate from 6.2 per cent to 5.6 per cent in June was a statistical aberration more than anything else, he commented. "I don't think we ought to view that as a very significant downturn," he said.

Connally, recently designated as President Nixon's chief economic adviser, said the nation should begin to see improvement on both the job and inflation fronts by this fall.

The economy is now in a "substantial expansion of considerable proportion," he said. "It's broad in its sweep and deep in its track."

He said the administration will continue to try to cut the jobless rate without refueling inflation.

Connally said he hopes recent strikes and negotiations in key industries will not lead to "another round of catch-up" in wages that will trigger more inflation.

The economy is picking up through stronger retail sales and stepped-up business activity, Connally said, all pointing to an improvement in the unemployment situation by this fall, he said.

The administration expects new figures will show the economy grew by $20 billion to $25 billion from April through June.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Friday, July 16, the 197th day of 1971. There are 168 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: on this day in history an atomic bomb was exploded over the desert in New Mexico. It was the beginning of the Atomic Age.

On this date: In 1790, the District of Columbia was established as the seat of the U.S. government.

In 1862, David Glasgow Farragut became the first admiral in the U.S. Navy.

In 1918, Russia's Czar Nicholas II, his empress and their five children were executed by the Bolsheviks.

In 1951, King Leopold III of Belgium abdicated and was succeeded on the throne by his son, Baudouin.

In 1957, Marin Maj. John Glenn Jr. established a transcontinental speed record when he flew a jet plane from California to New York in three hours, 23 minutes, eight seconds.

In 1858, U.S. Marines were landed at Beirut, Lebanon, airport to aid the Lebanese government in a struggle against rebels.

Ten years ago: U.S.-Soviet arms talks resumed in Moscow in an atmosphere of pessimism because of a dispute over the status of Berlin.

Five years ago: Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi left Moscow after meetings in which Soviet officials promised $1 billion in aid to India.

One year ago: Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Anne arrived in Washington for a White House visit.

We're sorry, but...

Everything possible is being done to assure dependable telephone service during the telephone work stoppage. Telephone switchboards are being manned and local and Long Distance dial equipment is being maintained.

Here are two ways you can help yourself have the best possible phone service:

1. Dial your own Long Distance calls. They will go through at low station-to-station rates. And they are not delayed by the work stoppage. (Check the front of your directory for complete dialing instructions on how to dial your own Long Distance calls.)

2. Look in the directory first when you're not sure of the local phone number. It's faster and will save you time.

Dry Weather Still Hanging On In Many Areas In Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Texas drifted further along the summer drought trail during the past week, with only widely scattered rains to relieve a few areas. A general rain is the only real answer to a dry spell that can be traced back to the winter. Dr. John E. son, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Dryland crops are suffering across the state, stockmen are obliged to feed because of parched pastures, water tanks are low or dry, and livestock marketing is increasing. Only irrigated crops are progressing, the director said.

District agents described their respective areas like this:

Panhandle: Irrigated grain sorghum, corn, sugar beets and cotton are growing well. Corn silking and tasseling. The wheat harvest is complete, with chiseling and disking of stubble in more areas.

Dryland forage and grain sorghum are either unplanted or growth-retarded due to dry conditions. Ranges are still holding some of their green from rains several weeks ago but won't last much longer. Livestock conditions are good in some areas.

South Plains: Hot, dry weather was hanging on in this region, especially in counties south of Lubbock, where large acreages of grain sorghum remained unplanted because of drought. Crop fared better in the northern sector.

Corn leaf aphids were working on corn and grain sorghum in Bailey and Lamb counties, while greenbugs and aphids fed on sorghum in Cochran, Hale, Heckley, Swisher, Lubbock and Crosby counties. Potatoes, onion and cabbage were being harvested, while tomatoes and peppers made good progress. Livestock appeared in satisfactory condition.

Rolling Plains: Moisture is needed in this entire region. Cotton is generally poor, with growth ranging from two-leaf to bloom stage. Dry soil is killing some of the cotton.

Ranges are poor to fair and offer only limited grazing. Stock water is low, and some is being hauled. Stockmen are forced to feed their animals, and marketing is increasing.

North Central: Moisture is very short with all crops suffering. Pastures offer very little grazing. Some water tanks are low, others are dry. The hay crop is short. Peach production also is short, but prices are good.

Northeast: Dry soils have cut the growth of hay, grain sorghum, corn, pastures and corn is tasseling, but only roasting ears are being harvested. Vegetables are burning.

Stock water is low, livestock are fair and culling continues. Far West: Decline of range lands has brought on increased marketing of lambs, calves and other surplus livestock. Irrigated crops are holding up, and alfalfa, onions and cantaloupes are being harvested. Irrigated cotton is growing well and has only light insect infestations.

West Central: Bandera County is the only area blessed with recent rains. Elsewhere, the drought remains. Grain sorghum is in various growth stages and doing well where widely scattered in Mason County.

The pecan crop outlook is poor. Webworms are in Menard County pecans, and honeydew is troubling the nuts in Tom Green County.

Pastures are declining, stock tanks are drying, and stock marketing is increasing. Sheep shearing is finished for the season.

Central: Rain is needed badly in this region. Much of the corn and grain sorghum on dryland is beyond help, although early cotton is blooming in the blacklands and holding on fairly well.

Little corn has been planted, and poor yields are anticipated. Dryland peanuts need moisture now. Corn borer damage is reported in all counties, particularly in Brown County. The pecan crop is below normal. Livestock and pastures are in poor condition, and cattle are being marketed in fairly large numbers.

East: Soil moisture is short to very short. Hay making is at a near standstill, corn prospects are fair, vegetable production has slowed, and the peach crop is skimpy. Pastures are puny, but livestock are in fair to good shape, and the market is firm.

South Central: Conditions vary from short to adequate in soil moisture. More rain will be needed for continued growth of late crops and pastures. Some hay is being cut, but the supply is critically short.

Pastures and ranges are below average. Stock tanks are very low.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Soil moisture in this normally high rainfall area is still mostly short. Cotton is blooming, and there is considerable weevil and bollworm infestations. Soybeans are blooming and podding, corn is maturing rapidly, and grain sorghum is maturing irregularly. A few farmers have begun harvesting of sorghum and reporting yields of about 3,000 pounds per acre.

Rice is about ready for harvest. Some producers will start cutting by Aug. 1. Vegetables are going to market, and melons are showing good growth. The hay crop is average, and the second cutting will be light. The pecan crop is below average.

Pastures also are below average and are providing only about 50 percent grazing. Livestock is in fair to good shape, the market is firm, and there is some supplemental feeding and culling.

South: Moisture is generally adequate, with the exception of San Patricio county. Showers have even delayed grain harvesting in a few areas. Cotton harvesting is beginning in the Rio Grande Valley. Pastures and ranges are improved from rains last week. Some hay is being cut.

Farmers are busy preparing land for fall planting of vegetables.

Vaccinations are in full swing for Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis (VEE), the disease that is moving northward in Mexico and threatening U.S. horses. A quarantine is in effect on movement of unvaccinated horses in many South Texas counties.

DENVER (AP)—U.S. chess expert Bobby Fischer continued his winning streak Tuesday when he forced Bent Larsen of Denmark to resign after 33 moves in the fourth game of their match.

Fischer now leads 4-0 and needs only 1½ points in the remaining six games with Larsen to clinch the match.

PAMPA DAILY NEWS
PAMPA, TEX. 75401
FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1970

JEANE DIXON

Your Horoscope

SATURDAY JULY 11

YOUR BIRTHDAY SATURDAY: Three phases mark this year of transformation: definite effort to reduce and clarify existing obligations for a few months; then, each according to details of his own life pattern, a time of rest and recreation, search for new attitudes and habits for several weeks; then on to more realistic responsibilities, perhaps in a novel direction or in technical specialties just coming to general use.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Staying in the minority may be unfamiliar experience, and you run into a brief spell of loneliness. Resolve not to let disagreements spoil your weekend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The farther you can get away from your regular rounds of daily habits the better. If you haven't got a list of things you've never done put one together.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It's natural for you not to stay put Saturday. Keep matters simple and be nearly alone as you can manage. Concentrate on something you have wanted to do for a long time.

CANCER (June 21-July 20): Keeping in touch means more than just knowing names. Group efforts thrive according to emotional factors rather than material capability.

LEO (July 21-Aug. 20): Your persuasive powers run higher; assert more of a share in leading your community. Assemble a larger team, recruit younger people.

VIRGO (Aug. 21-Sept. 20): Being selective should not involve estrangement or farewells. Simply decide which people you want to go along with, if anybody.

LIBRA (Sept. 21-Oct. 20): You have more to do than planned, just when it's least convenient. This being so, the sooner you dispose of weekend chores, the better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 21-Nov. 20): A spirit of adventure and curiosity will help Saturday. Even old habits offer food for thought, stand a good chance of being interrupted by surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 21-Dec. 20): Short cuts are appealing but are of no avail unless you know the system of how and when to get back on the main track.

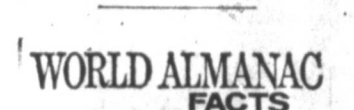

BY passing important people, for example, do not work out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 21-Jan. 19): Charity and redemption starts at and near home—with yourself and those you cherish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Break out of your recent ruts, recover contacts with former associates, relatives you haven't seen in quite a while.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Clear up misunderstandings among family members. Trying to do the same amongst people you have not known a long time scatters them out or berks an already doubtful connection.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

George M. Cohan is considered the father of American musical comedy. The World Almanac notes that he was awarded the Medal of Honor in 1941 for his patriotic World War I songs, "Over There" and "You're a Grand Old Flag." Intensely patriotic, Cohan claimed July 4 as his birthday rather than the actual July 3.

NEW YORK (AP) — Albert H. Bowker, leaving his post as chancellor of the City University to become chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley, got a warm sendoff Tuesday from officials and educators.

Among those at a breakfast reception were Mayor John V. Lindsay and the presidents of all 20 colleges in the CUNY system, which Bowker headed for eight years.

JAMES K. RUSSELL

PHS Graduate Gets Scholarship

James Keith Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Russell, 1617 Hamilton, is the recipient of a scholarship award from the Henry L. Doherty (Cities Service Company) Educational Foundation. James is a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School and plans to attend Lubbock Christian College where he will study electrical engineering.

Cities Service Company has awarded 280 scholarships for the 1971-72 academic year to sons and daughters of employees attending colleges and universities in 32 states and the District of Columbia.

Totaling $111,400, the grants are administered by the Henry L. Doherty Educational Foundation which was established in 1939 in honor of the founder of Cities Service who died that same year. Over the 32 year period, the Foundation has distributed more than $1.5 million in scholarship assistance to children of employees. The Doherty Educational Foundation is supported by voluntary contributions from employees of Cities Service Company and its subsidiaries. Employee donations are matched equally by the company.

The scholarships are one of several annual educational and philanthropic programs maintained by Cities Service.

LONDON (AP) — Frank Sinatra, who has retired from show business, turned up in London Friday night and dined out with U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. Walter Anenberg.

Sinatra's daughter Tina was there too, accompanied by actor Robert Wagner.

The five spent the evening at Tiberio's, a restaurant in Mayfair.

The American singer didn't tell newsmen why he was in London.

A Backward Glance Over Rainmaking History In Texas

SAN ANGELO (AP) — There have been a lot of rain coaxes including C.W. Post, the famous cereal king, trying to bring rain from Texas skies over the years.

One of the first rainmaking experiments in Texas took place near Midland in August 1891. No rain had fallen in 18 months.

Edward Powers contended that artillery bombardments caused rainfall. He published a book, "War and Weather," it was financed by $10,000 from Congress and another $2,000 from the Agriculture Department.

It took four wagons to haul the scientists, crews and huge tanks of hydrogen and oxygen and other explosives.

The equipment had hardly been set up when rain poured down for two hours. Scientific elation also was drenched when it was learned the rain was a part of general showers which had fallen over most of West Texas.

For the next two weeks, his crew attempted to summon a man-made downpour. They arranged cannons in a semicircle and fired them in unison at what appeared to be a wisp of cloud.

They planted explosives in prairie dog holes and rattled the earth.

They launched 10-foot balloons filled with hydrogen and oxygen for explosion. Winds carried the balloons out of sight.

They attached explosives to kites and detonated them electrically.

On the final day of the experiment, one last balloon was launched. About a mile up, the balloon burst.

That evening heavy clouds formed. Workers hurriedly assembled another "electric kite" and loaded it with sulphuric acid.

The blast brought a few sprinkles. Continued explosions produced more rainfall and one observer noted "after each explosion the quantity of rainfall increased." But the rain ceased the next morning.

Rains in the mid-90s eased things a bit, but by 1902, a dry spell occurred. Charles Hatfield of Carlsbad constructed three tall towers on the North Concho River and pumped clouds of colored gas into the air and sent up balloons loaded with dynamite. Some rain fell.

The C.W. Post experiment pretty well followed the Powers whenever there is an area of warfare.

From 1911 to 1914, Post spent $50,000 to simulate battles with artillery bombardment along the Caprock. It ended fruitlessly.

The second era came after Dr. Vincent Schaefer made a discovery in the General Electric Research Laboratories. He demonstrated in 1946 the effect dry ice has upon super-cooled water droplets.

Shortly thereafter, he and Drs. Irving Langmuir and Bernard

Vonnegut began to show in laboratory and field work that cloud seeding works.

By 1951, cloud seeding in Texas had resumed and three operations were underway.

The number of programs increased yearly to five in 1953.

A large number of West Texas farmers had hired a weather modification company to suppress hail, but objections were raised that the operation also reduced rainfall.

The resultant litigation reached the Texas Supreme Court which confirmed an injunction against the cloudseeders.

The 60th Legislature passed the Weather Modification Act effective Aug. 28, 1967.

The Texas Water Development Board administered the act.

The board provided a small grant in 1968 for a warm cloud study to be done by Texas A&M.

Later, a contract for $60,000 from the Reclamation Bureau was received by the university.

The first weather modification license was issued Sept. 15, 1969, to World Weather Inc. of Houston. The firm planned to do fog dispersal work at airfields, but an application for an operation permit was not made.

On April 1, 1970, Atmospherics Inc. of Fresno, Calif., received the second license to perform a hail suppression program on the High Plains, paid for by a group of farmers known as the Plains Weather Improvement Association.

The board has since issued another permit to Atmospherics Inc. for a rain-making project sponsored by the Colorado River Municipal Water District, which began April 15, 1971.

The latest permit was issued to Meteorology Research Inc. of Altadena, Calif.—the private contracting company that is running "Project Teacup" under the administration of the Water Development Board.

Texas remain skeptical. After one successful clouding effort, one man jokingly said he caused the rain by opening a jar of Illinois sauerkraut whose fumes prompted the clouds to boil and produce rain.

Another man said he saw the Texas Rain Bird fly over just before the clouds broke. And an East Texan has suggested that radio stations get recordings of Choctaw Indian rain dances to play.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The preliminary report of auditing practices on Wall Street, just released by the New York attorney general, produced no immediate legal charges but it did jar open again the door to a haunted clubhouse.

Allowed to exercise a great deal of self-regulation over the years, the broker members of the club developed some bizarre attitudes and weird rituals some of which tend to linger.

One example is the surprise audit that is no surprise at all.

"A farce," the report states, adding:

"Our inquiry reveals that sometimes five days prior to the audit date, a few men of the audit staff appear on the premises of large brokerage firms. The broker then prepares desk space, rooms and other paraphernalia."

In addition, "The broker may also alert his work force that overtime may be necessary over the weekend." The surprise audit, it concludes, "rarely begins in an atmosphere of surprise."

Surprising too are some of the things left out of the audit.
