Cry, 'Yankee Go Home' Is Ole Miss Students' Yell

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — Milling University of Mississippi students, shouting "Yankees, go home," Monday night threw soft drink bottles, eggs and firecrackers at the soldier guards of Negro student James H. Meredith.

No one was hurt and there were no arrests in the demonstration which began at the university cafeteria while Meredith was eating dinner and later spread to the Negro's dormitory where it continued well into the night.

It was the worst demonstration on the campus since the bloody rioting, touched off by Meredith's admission Sept. 30, that killed two persons and injured several hundred others.

There was no apparent attempt to harm Meredith. He emerged during the melee in front of the cafeteria and went virtually unharmed back to his dormitory, Baxter Hall. The later demonstration outside Baxter Hall occurred at the opposite end of the dormitory from Meredith's apartment.

Several soldiers and U.S. marshals chased a few of the students who hurled eggs, bottles and firecrackers at a jeep-load of soldiers outside the cafeteria. They were unable to catch the youths, however, and the crowd of about 200 students broke up after campus police chief Burns Tatum jokingly told them to "let them (the soldiers) go on now. I've run that jeep off."

But students later began harassing soldiers standing guard outside Baxter Hall by tossing firecrackers and loudpopping "cherry bombs" down from dormitory windows. A group of several hundred students gathered in front of a dormitory across the street from Baxter Hall.

Dean of Students L. L. Love was talking with students inside Baxter while the disturbance went on outside. There have been reports of consistent harassment of Meredith, such as slamming doors, shouting and fireworks, by students in Baxter. Students sources quoted Love as saying he had advised against housing Meredith on the campus but that he had been overruled by Justice Department officials.

Love later walked over and urged the students to return to their dormitories and the group began dispersing.

Chet C. Lander Resigns Post As Hospital Director

Resignation of Chet C. Lander, administrator of Highland General Hospital since its opening more than 13 years ago, was announced today by Don Conley, chairman of the Board of Managers for the hospital.

The resignation, due to ill health, becomes effective Nov. 1. At a meeting of the Hospital Board yesterday afternoon, B. W. Robertson, who came to Pampa from Northwest Hospital in Amarillo four months ago as assistant administrator, was named to succeed Lander as acting administrator.

In announcing the resignation, the hospital board adopted a resolution which stated:

"Whereas: "Due to ill health, C. C. Lander, Administrator of Highland General Hospital, has submitted his resignation, effective November 1, 1962.

"C. C. Lander has served as such Administrator for more than thirteen years, having managed the hospital from its opening date. Through his excellent leadership and management, said hospital has been one of the most successful financially in the State of Texas, and at the same time the people of Gray County have received the finest of hospital care."

"Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Board of Managers of Highland General Hospital that we hereby express to C. C. Lander, for ourselves and all the people of Pampa and Gray County, our sincere appreciation for his long and devoted service, which has made a great and outstanding contribution to the welfare of all who live in this part of Texas."

"We extend to him our sincere best wishes for the future, and hope that he may soon regain good health."

Lander, who has been on a leave of absence from the hospital, resides at 1316 Garland St.

Jerry Ward's Hospital Bill Is $34,984.35

DALLAS (UPI) — Jerry Ward, 30, of Borger, Tex., is a charity patient at Baylor Hospital in Dallas. His hospital bill currently totals $34,984.35. He is a hemophiliac.

Most of the money spent in Ward's 65 days of hospital treatment has gone for blood transfusions and drugs to try to get his blood to clot normally.

Ward was operated on Aug. 31 to correct a bleeding ulcer, and subsequently underwent two other operations.

Ward's hospital tab is being picked up by the hospital and the Wadley Research Institute and Blood Bank. A spokesman for the blood bank said at least 287 donors are needed to replace the blood given Ward.

CROP Drive Set Tonight

Are you glad to see our children and young people involved in worthwhile endeavors?

This evening hundreds of Pampa young people will give their time to Trick-or-Treat for CROP, as they take their milk cartons marked CROP and make a house-to-house solicitation for funds to continue this program of Church world service. "These young people take their responsibility seriously and it is hoped that the people of our community will respond generously," CROP officials said.

The Key Club has joined the Ministerial Alliance as co-sponsors this year and it is hoped that this will provide even better coverage of the community. "Please leave your porch light burning and give only to those identified by the official CROP emblem. The solicitation will take place on Tuesday only," officials stated.

Scientists Push Launching Plans

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — U.S. scientists today went ahead with plans for another attempt to launch their oft-delayed "winking star" satellite into orbit around earth Wednesday.

The shot, which has gone on and then off the firing schedule with some regularity for the last eight days, had been set for today but the Air Force again called it off, this time less than four hours before the planned blast-off.

No reason was given for the new postponement of Anna. Anna is a 355-pound satellite built to help missilemen and map-makers pinpoint any place on earth with more accuracy than has ever been attained before.

Scientists hope to send it into an orbit about 700 miles above earth with a two-stage Thor-Able star.

US Lifts Cuban Arms Blockade For Twenty-Four Hour Period

Diplomats See UN Defeat For Red Chinese

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Western diplomats predicted that Russia's effort to get Communist China into the United Nations would be defeated today by a heavier vote than last year, partly because of Peiping's border war with India.

The only proposition before the 110-nation General Assembly was a Soviet draft resolution almost identical to the one rejected last December by a 48-36 vote.

It demanded that the assembly expel Nationalist China and seat Communist China in its place.

Advance estimates of the vote against the Russian proposal this year ranged from 50 to 55. About 40 members were expected to vote with the Russians and the rest to abstain.

Runs Into Delays The China debate began eight days ago but ran into delays because of the United Nations' preoccupation with the Cuban crisis last week.

Even many of the delegations which believe Red China should take its place in the United Nations are cool to the idea at this time because of Peiping's frontier battle with India.

The Soviet bloc, with the exception of Albania which currently is at odds with Moscow, argued the case for Communist China with less spirit than at any time in the 13-year history of the China representation problem.

The only significant change in the voting pattern, however, was expected among the 12 African delegations known as the Brazzaville group.

India Favors Seat Last year five voted against seating Communist China and seven abstained. Nationalist Chinese sources expected most or all of them would vote against Communist China this year.

Of the six new U.N. members, Algeria said it would vote for Red China and Rwanda said it would vote against. The others did not declare themselves in advance.

The highlight of the debate was India's denunciation of the Peiping regime for "flagrant, massive and premeditated aggression" on the northern Indian frontier.

Nevertheless, India said it would vote for a seat for Red China in keeping with its long standing argument that it would be better to deal with Peiping in the United Nations.

ACTRESS DOING WELL

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Actress Janet Leigh was reported in "good condition and doing very well" today at Doctor's Hospital where she is recovering from an emergency appendectomy.

Miss Leigh, who recently married stockbroker Robert Brandt, went to the hospital early Monday on the advice of her physician. She is expected to remain hospitalized for about a week.

Indian Troops On Offensive Push

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Indian troops went on the offensive today for the first time since the Communist Chinese stepped up their invasion of the border regions 10 days ago.

A government spokesman announced the switch in Indian tactics by saying the New Delhi forces had moved into a limited offensive action in the Northeast Frontier Agency.

In the NEFA our troops are probing forward in the vicinity of Jang and have engaged the Chinese positions with artillery fire," he said.

Jang is about five miles east of the important town of Towang, which fell to the invaders last week.

Now Using Mortars The spokesman said that in the Lohit division of the NEFA "our troops engaged Chinese positions with heavy mortar fire."

This was the first mention of Indian forces using heavy mortar fire since the undeclared war started.

The spokesman also announced that in the Siang frontier division in the central NEFA Indian troops withdrew from one forward post following a third Chinese attack. The outpost had withstood two previous assaults, but was forced to yield on the third.

Elsewhere in the NEFA and in Ladakh on the northwestern border, the spokesman said, "There has been no change in the situation since Monday."

Previously, the Indian army chief of staff told his embattled forces that the invaders were being held "on all fronts."

In a special order of the day, Gen. P.N. Thapar promised the hard-pressed front line troops: "You will get everything necessary to resume the offensive."

The order was India's first official announcement that its troops have been able to stop the Chinese Reds in both the eastern and western sectors since their mid-October breakthrough. It also contained the first promise of stepped up firepower along with a pledge to take the offensive.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru suspended his neutralist policy Monday long enough to send the United States an urgent plea for infantry supplies that could be rushed to the northern border areas.

Britain Sends Firearms Officials in London said two Royal Air Force Britannicas loaded with small arms were dispatched to India during the week-end. Reliable sources said Nehru also appealed for arms from France and Canada.

An embassy spokesman said Monday that U.S. military equipment (See INDIA, Page 3)

Last-Minute Drive Against Bond Issue

A last-minute attempt to defeat the $1.5-million bond issue being voted on in Pampa today was launched on a local radio station last night and today.

A spot commercial was read at intervals advising voters to vote against the bond issue.

The commercial stated, in substance, that a "high official of the State Highway department" had said Hwy. 60 would not be re-routed around Pampa if the bond issue fails.

Actually, plans already had been drawn by the State Highway Department, to re-route the highway around Pampa when needed.

The plans were halted and the State Highway Department agreed to await the City Commission's plans to provide money to improve the highways and drainage within the city and pay the city's share of the cost.

That's what the voters are voting on today.

Chili Smith, Amarillo divisional highway engineer, said today he had one phone call yesterday about the Pampa election today and he spoke with the man only as an individual voter and explained that the highway department wanted to cooperate with the city in its plans at all times.

"I can't say at this time whether we would go around Pampa or not," Smith said. "This would all depend upon the city's plans in the future."

G. K. Reading, resident highway engineer in Pampa, said he had talked with no one yesterday (See BOND ISSUE, Page 3)

Thant, UN 'Experts' Are Due In Havana

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States at dawn today lifted its Cuban arms blockade for 48 hours while United Nations Acting Secretary General Thant will be in Cuba arranging for removal of Russian missiles.

Thant and a party of U.S. military and diplomatic experts were due in Havana today to work out with Premier Fidel Castro plans for admitting U.N. observers to verify dismantling of the Soviet weapons which produced a near-war crisis last week between the United States and Russia.

Castro, his angry demands to the contrary, appeared to have little choice but agreement with any plan approved by Russia. The Kremlin seemed unimpressed by Castro's insistence that the United States would have to give up its Guantanamo Bay naval base.

Thant Requests Suspension

The naval blockade was suspended by the White House at Thant's request. No mention was made in the White House announcement of aerial surveillance which continued through Monday.

Three American planes made surveillance flights over Cuba Monday in an effort to determine whether launching pad construction work had stopped and missiles dismantled as Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev promised President Kennedy Sunday.

Kennedy ordered another 10 a.m. EST meeting of his National Security Council (NSC) executive committee. Expert interpretation of the aerial photographs made Monday was expected to be ready for the chief executive and his top advisers by that time.

American officials said information from Soviet diplomats relayed in informal, round-about fashion was that construction work at intermediate range ballistic missile sites had stopped.

U.S. officials had no reason to believe otherwise, but they wanted to see the aerial surveys before reaching a definite conclusion.

As the blockade was suspended, Defense Department officials pointed out that no Soviet ships were approaching the quarantine line. Two Turkish vessels were bound for Cuba from Russian Black Sea ports with announced cargoes of wheat which would be allowed through in any case.

Caribbean Tension Eases

Also, consideration was being given here to turning over aerial reconnaissance to the United Nations, possibly using American planes or aircraft and crews of other hemisphere nations. This surveillance, would be designed to verify dismantling of missile bases, a process which the United States wants carried out speedily.

With the arms quarantine lifted for 48 hours, there was a corresponding let-up in Caribbean tension for at least the same period. Conversations in New York between Thant, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov and U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson continued.

Jury Is Named For Estes Trial

TYLER (UPI) — Lawyers today named 11 men and one woman to try bankrupt farm tycoon Billie Sol Estes on state charges of theft and swindling.

The final jury was chosen when each side exercised 10 peremptory challenges to cut a 32-member panel to 12 members.

The jurors all live in Tyler. They are:

W. E. Florey, an oil scout for Superior Oil Co.

Hugh Robertson, a general contractor.

C. V. Gordon, a motel operator.

Wilson Nutt, an electrician.

J. W. Brown, an electrical equipment inspector.

W. D. Holfield, an electrician.

D. L. Adkins, an oil company office manager.

James S. Burton, a power company lineman.

Robert S. Hamilton III, a warehouseman.

Tommy G. Mallory, assistant city water superintendent.

Ronnie O. Dike, a dairy salesman.

Mrs. Ralph Malone, a refinery secretary.

Defense attorneys had objected to nine of the jurors seated for the trial.

More than 100 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify. The defense has said Estes will not take the stand, and indicated in questioning the jury panel that they may rest without putting on any testimony.

'Fancy Free' To Be Highlight Of 'Bernstein Gala'

"A Leonard Bernstein Gala," a handsome show with noted singers, dancers and orchestra coming to Pampa on Wednesday night under the aegis of S. Hurok, will celebrate high points in the widely-diversified career of Leonard Bernstein, composer.

Bernstein, one of the contemporary world's few many-sided men of genius, is also, of course, famed as the conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony, an incomparable speaker on music on television, and as a pianist.

A highlight of the "Bernstein Gala" will be the American Ballet Theatre production of the Jerome Robbins-Bernstein ballet "Fancy Free," which launched both artists into fame in 1944. John Kriza and Christine Mayer, who have performed the leading roles many times with the American Ballet Theatre in North America and last year behind the Iron Curtain in Bulgaria, Rumania and the Soviet Union, head the cast.

"Trouble in Tahiti," Bernstein's satirical one-act opera on life in the American suburbs will open the program, and the final third will be devoted to the hit Bernstein musicals "West Side Story," "On the Town," "Wonderful Town," "Candide" and "Peter Pan."

Castro Goes All-Out To Regain Prestige

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
MIAMI (UPI) — The Castro regime went all-out today to regain some of the prestige it lost when the Soviet Union went over Havana's head to negotiate the Cuban crisis with the United States.

Government-controlled newspapers, radio and television stations sought to convince their audience that "everyone" in Cuba and abroad supported Premier Fidel Castro in the showdown with the United States, in which Russia agreed to dismantle its Cuban missile bases.

The Castro propaganda machine also pushed for public acceptance of Castro's five minimum demands for ending the Cuban crisis, including U.S. withdrawal from the Guantanamo naval base.

To Continue Agitation Army chief Raul Castro, Fidel's younger brother, said in a statement intended for other Latin American nations, "To those people who have made our cause their own, we say Cuba will not fail them."

Latin American experts regarded this as a pledge to continue Communist agitation in the Western Hemisphere no matter what the outcome of the current crisis.

In Caracas, the Venezuelan government accused the Castro regime of turning loose terrorists to bolster its sagging prestige. This charge was supported by U.S. intelligence sources in Washington.

An informed source said the embassies of six Latin American countries have conveyed to the U.S. State Department their anticipation of renewed Cuban terrorist campaigns.

However, most observers expected Castro to "lie low" pending completion of the Soviet missile bases issue.

Outward Support Unchanged Soviet-Cuban solidarity was outwardly unchanged by the crisis. In the United Nations, Cuban delegate Mario Garcia Inchaustegui rose Monday to support the Russian proposal for a nuclear ban without inspection—only 72 hours after his own country had been revealed as the first Latin American nation with the means to launch nuclear warheads.

Some Cuban exiles were disappointed that Castro had not been ousted by the United States, but Carlos Prio Socarras, Cuban ex-president, gave strong support to President Kennedy's policies.

Cities Western Unity "The Democratic world has given a splendid demonstration of cohesion and unity," Prio said. "Lining up behind the United States, the nation which bears on its shoulders the heaviest responsibility in the defense of the free world."

Prior said many Cuban exiles "perhaps feel a bit disappointed" because Cuba was not invaded, "but one needs only to go back 10 days to understand how much we have advanced in our struggle to overthrow Castro and his Communist government."

He called on his Cuban countrymen to unite strongly against Castro and urged the Organization of American States (OAS) to fulfill "its duty to root out Communist subversion in the Western Hemisphere."

Paris Social Worker Wins 1962 'Search For Peace' Writing Contest

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — At Letters Abroad — switchboard for global pen pal network — they get essays about the "search for peace."

The 1962 essay contest, asking for plain words on the "1962 search" drew responses from bartenders, sailors, secretaries, government workers, scientists, diplomats and educators around the world.

The contest, sponsored by Letters Abroad in cooperation with the Voice of America and the Readers Digest Foundation, attracted 3,275 essayists from 111 countries.

Listen to some of the peace plans:
—Gerd Quinling, 22, a student in West Germany: "One can only try to get together to lay the foundation of a peace by mutual limitation of power. For the peace, if it is to be a lasting order, implies two kinds — a balance of power and the permanent willingness for cooperation."
—Sadashiv S. Shavan, 23, Thana, India: "The overriding problem today is to arrive at an ultimate common denominator in the world — a denominator which would reconcile the conflicts ... and suppress forever the destructive forces which are now delicately balanced in intense rivalry against each other. The ultimate common denominator and the point at which all conflicting interests ultimately converge is man."

—Dr. Hugo de Castro, 45, Fortaleza, Brazil: "The United States of America are, out of doubt, a champion in the struggle for peace the world over. Facilitating to other peoples the immensity of their resources in all fields of activity, they are helping nations to vanquish ignorance and underdevelopment.

—Annette Watney, 44, Paris, France: "Peace still stands for what, in our hearts, we desire above all. To bring it nearer in 1962 and in succeeding years is a task for which our combined efforts at all levels of international and national action will hardly be enough. Each one of us must fight for it ..."
—Leong Siew Yue, Malaya, a 21 year old student: "Very often a man hunts far and wide for something which lies on his doorstep, but which has always escaped his notice. Thus, world leaders who aim to establish international peace may not realize that the search for peace should begin within themselves."

Miss Watney, a Paris social worker, won the contest.
"The peace of the world," Miss Watney wrote, "depends also on us, not only as citizens, but as human beings."
"It is, in the end, each one of us who in our attitudes, whether to our neighbors or to the world as a whole, can create a climate of brotherhood or enmity."

Baptist General Convention Gets Underway Today

FORT WORTH (SpI) — More than 6,000 Baptists from nearly every Baptist church in the state were expected to attend the annual Baptist General Convention of Texas here today through Thursday.

Most of the convening Baptists arrived Monday to attend two other statewide Baptist conventions — the annual Texas Baptist Brotherhood Convention meeting at Connell Baptist Church here, and the Texas Baptist Woman's Missionary Union Convention.

The 77th annual session of the BGCT will place special emphasis on inspirational preaching by some of the denomination's top speakers, said Dr. James H. Landes of Wichita Falls, president of the convention. Theme for the meeting will be "God's Word for God's World."

Major business items expected to come before the convention include consideration of a record $14,876,807 missions budget for 1963, election of more than 300 trustees and directors of 25 Texas Baptist institutions, and consideration of three new Baptist institutions.

Proposals will be presented recommending that the Baptist convention assume ownership and operation of Mexican Baptist Bible Institute in San Antonio, Valley Baptist Academy in Harlingen, and a proposed $5 million hospital to be built in Amarillo within the next four or five years.

Messengers to the convention are also expected to approve a proposal to conduct a state-wide Baptist evangelistic crusade in 1964 designed to reach more than 2½ million Latin Americans.

A special report on the 1963 Japan Baptist Crusade, sponsored by Texas Baptists will come during the Wednesday night convention session. The vast evangelistic effort, featuring Billy Graham as a principal speaker, will be held March 26-May 6, with about 600 Baptist pastors and laymen leading revival meetings in Japan.

Principal speakers for the convention include Dr. Herschel H. Hobbs of Oklahoma City, president of the Southern Baptist Convention; Dr. Baker James Cauthen of Richmond, Va., executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board; and Dr. Robert Hinson of Cleveland, Ohio, a medical doctor who led a recent mass inoculation project against smallpox in Liberia.

Interment will follow in Memory Gardens.

SC Meeting Held Today

The Student Council of Pampa High School announced in its weekly meeting this morning that the student directories will be ready by next Tuesday and will cost 51 cents. Other matters were discussed by the students.

The first item of business on the group's agenda was the discussion of the career sheets due to be turned in today in connection with the planned Career Clinic.

Plans were made for the CROP drive that is slated for tonight. The competition will be between the three classes. Seniors will meet at 1840 Fir. The sophomores will meet at 1204 Charles and the juniors at 2317 Duncan. All three classes will meet at 6:30 p.m.

After the game Friday night, the students will be treated to a dance at the Youth Center with a live band slated. The dance will be from 9:30 to 11:30 p.m. Price is 25 cents.

Another dance is slated for this Wednesday night with a live band. It will be at the Youth Center from 8 until 11.

The pep rally for the Palo Duro game is slated for Friday at 3:10 at the field house. It will be Parents Night at the game. The current plans are that the mothers will get mums at the pep rally.

The group also announced Philip Smith as the junior Optimist for the month; Raymond Nance as Junior Rotarian; and Janie Thompson as Lions Club Sweetheart.

He had not called back at press time.

Over 400 voters had turned out at the polls to vote on the $1.5 million dollar bond issue for street and drainage improvements on three main highways inside the city limits by 11 a.m. today. The election officials termed the turnout as average to good. The polls did not close until 7 p.m.

The total votes, 431 at 11 a.m., were cast in the four local wards with City Hall receiving 188, North Fire Station 158, South Fire Station 49, and Ward's Cabinet Shop 36.

Only persons with a poll tax who own property in Pampa are eligible to vote in the election.

The voting places are located as follows:

two segments of the program, and they will be joined by the dancers for the choreographic side of the Bernstein Broadway musicals.

The show is under the auspices of the Pampa Community Concert Association and admission is by membership only.

PCCA officials reminded Pampans today that arrangements have been made with the Pampa Police Department to patrol regularly the grounds around the Pampa Junior High Auditorium, where the show will be staged starting at 8 p.m., on the night of the production. That happens to be Halloween night.

Some $1,550 In Equipment Stolen Here

Equipment valued at $1,550 was stolen Saturday and Sunday nights from the Collier Oil Well cementing Co., 403 W. Atchison, according to reports filed with police by Henry Collier, owner and manager.

The loot consisted of four swivel joints valued at $250 each and a 30-foot high pressure hose worth $500.

The swivel joints, two Chiksons and two Hunts, were taken Sunday night after the hose had been taken Saturday night.

Company officials thought at first the equipment possibly could have been borrowed but when they received no further word on the missing swivel joints and hose it was decided they had been stolen.

Police said the equipment was removed from two trucks parked on company property.

Weekly Report To Texans

By SEN. JOHN TOWER

CONGRESS IN REVIEW: The Congress, in its wisdom, deleted more than $4 billion in spending proposals from the Kennedy Administration proposals, that would have totaled $96 billion plus, as submitted, according to an Associated Press tabulation. The total would have been more than $5 billion in savings, had Congress not increased Kennedy-McNamara proposals for the military by about $500 million, to strengthen our defense position in several key areas. This vast spending budget of $92 billion plus, assures us of another big Kennedy deficit for the fiscal year, with various Senate Committee analysts already predicting the deficit figure will be at least $8 billion. This spending total is exclusive of the $9.431 billion we must spend this year for interest on the national debt, which is a permanent appropriation, and is not voted on each year.

In review, Congress defeated the President's proposition that there be created a Department of Urban Affairs. I am glad that this measure was defeated because I am convinced that it would mean the further intrusion of the federal government into the affairs of the state and city governments.

Congress defeated the medical care proposal of the President would have created a federally-sponsored medical care program, under Social Security. This was defeated by a very narrow margin and has been generally viewed, throughout the country, as a bill that should have been defeated.

Congress voted large appropriations for foreign aid, but reduced JFK requests by about $1 billion.

The Farm Bill, as passed, is a bill which satisfies no one. Advocates of outright regimentation of the farmer feel that it does not go far enough. There are many of us who feel that it goes too far. I look forward to the day when we can return farming to a market-regulated economy.

The UN bond provision was passed, which I opposed. The President will have discretionary power to purchase UN bonds.

We defeated outright a number of the Kennedy Administration bills, and it should be noted that most of those which were passed, were not approved in the form which the President originally requested.

There are notable failures of the President in the foreign policy field, as dramatized by the Cuban situation, and the failure of this Administration to save any money, and to show any fiscal responsibility, is tragic.

Administration advocates, who try to "point with pride" to the enactment of any considerable part of the President's New Frontier proposals, are hard pressed. Aside from the usual money bills, or Departmental appropriations, and the foreign trade bill, the measures that came through the legislative hopper are really only bits and pieces of what the President sought to obtain. And most of the trimming saved the taxpayers money.

FOREIGN TRADE BILL: I regret that the Foreign Trade Bill, as passed by Congress and signed by the President, and now the law of the land, was pretty much what the Administration wanted. I testified before the Senate Finance Committee, during hearings on the bill, and urged that Congress retain more authority, and go slow in enactment. My resolution, introduced in the spring, provides for establishment of a Joint Congressional Committee on Foreign Trade to exercise Congressional oversight in the field, and I shall do my best to get a hearing on this measure during the next session.

RESTRICTS PROPAGANDA: The new postal rate measure includes a provision restricting the transmission of Communist propaganda through the mails.

SAVINGS AND LOAN: I am appreciative of the resolution, passed by the Texas Savings and Loan League, in recent convention in Austin, thanking me for assisting the industry in its effort "to secure equitable tax treatment."

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD: I receive many inquiries from those who would like to read the Congressional Record every day. My own allotment is so limited that schools, libraries and similar organizations, where a large number of citizens can have access to it, receive most of those copies. However, if you are interested in receiving the Congressional Record for the next session, you may subscribe directly by sending $1.50 a month to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

A PROGRAM FOR CONSERVATIVES: I am appreciative of the many favorable comments that my modest paperback, a 60,000 word discussion of my affirmative conservative legislative program as introduced this year in the Senate, has received. My plans are to develop and expand this program when the Congress convenes again in January. I understand my volume is now available at many book stores and news stands, and I especially enjoyed meeting many friends at an autograph party that launched it, at Cokesbury's in Dallas, September 19.

WORLD TOUR: My plans for a world tour, at my own expense, to familiarize myself with some of our areas of foreign policy concern around the world, will take me to Anchorage, Tokyo, Taipei, Hong Kong, Bangkok, New Delhi, Teheran, Ankara, Nairobi, Lagos, Lisbon, and London, in the period from November 15 to December 13.

SERVICE ACADEMY TESTS: On November 10, 384 young Texans will compete for nomination to the four Service Academies: Air Force, Military, Naval, and Merchant Marine. These young men, between the ages of 17 and 22, will undergo the Civil Service Preliminary Examination upon which I will base my competitive appointments to these Academies. I would like to wish each and every one of them the best of luck in this examination. Although no more applications will be accepted for the class of 1963, I look forward to hearing from students who would like to enter in 1964.

NATIONAL DEBATE TOPIC: This year the national debate topic, both for high schools and colleges, has to do with the United States trade and tariff policies, and the problems posed by expansion of the Common Market in the United States and the Western Hemisphere. While I have already heard from students in many parts of Texas, I will be glad to send a copy of a study which has been made by the Library of Congress on this matter, and some of my own related views, to students of this topic of all ages.

OBSERVATION: The President says he needs more members of his own party in Congress, but he already has a two-to-one majority in the Senate, and a three-to-two majority in the House, yet not one of 12 major appropriation bills was passed until after the fiscal year ended June 30, and it was mid-October, in the final week of the longest peacetime session in 20 years, before final action was taken on these important money measures.

RATINGS: Americans for Constitutional Action, announcing their 1962 performance honor roll, name Bottom (R-S.D.) and Tower (R-Texas) as rating 100 per cent, with Goldwater (R-Ariz.) 99 per cent and Williams (R-De.) 97 per cent.

The Lighter Side

The Conspiracy Against Bachelors

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I have been married so long I sometimes forget how the other half lives.

A reminder came my way the other day in the person of a young man-about-town whose passion for anonymity prompts me to refer to him here as Sam Freeloader.

I didn't think that Freeloader had a care in the world, but when he stopped by my desk it was plain to see that something was troubling him.

"You are justly revered for your willingness to take up the cudgels on behalf of worthy causes," he said. "Why don't you write something about the plight of bachelors?"

"I wasn't aware that bachelors were in need of aid and comfort," I replied. "It seems to me they have the situation well in hand."

"Not so," said Freeloader. "Everyone knows about the problems that left-handed people have. The world is set up for the convenience of right-handed people. It's much the same way with bachelors."

"The world is set up for the convenience of married people. There is an organized conspiracy in America to make bachelor life untenable."

"That is a serious charge," I said. "Do you have any evidence to support it?"

"Take such an ordinary necessity of life as bread," Freeloader said. "Bread only is sold in large loaves. If a bachelor doesn't get an invitation to dinner and is forced to fix something to eat in his apartment, he's got to buy a whole loaf of bread."

"It may be two weeks before he dines at home again. By that time the bread will be moldy and he has to buy another loaf."

"Pie is the same way. Did you ever try to buy a single slice of pie?"

"That is indeed a severe hardship," I said. "Are there other handicaps?"

"Almost all appliances are anti-bachelor," Freeloader asserted. "Look at the refrigerator. It has a lot of space for food, which we don't need, and just a small compartment for ice cubes."

"Why can't they make a refrigerator that is 90 per cent ice cubes and 10 per cent food? Why can't they make a bachelor-sized loaf of bread?"

"I can see your point," I said. "Anything else?"

"Yes," he said, bitterly. "Just once I would like to find something that isn't cheaper by the dozen. There ought to be some things that are cheaper if you only buy one."

"You might as well face it," I told him. "The only thing cheaper in the singular form is a wife."

Keep Family Piano In Tune With Room

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Placing a piano in the average smallish room can prove a real challenge especially when wall space is limited. Pianos are handsome, expensive and bulky pieces of furniture. They also are temperamental about their location. Whether yours is a musically sensitive family or not, the piano is a major item in a furniture arrangement.

Once you own a piano, you're committed to treating it with respect. You don't store the piano in an attic or basement when the youngsters grow up.

Like many other families, I suspect, we invested in a piano when our eldest child showed, at age 8, a slight aptitude and interest in music. When her aptitude and interest waned a couple of years later, our son started finger-finger his way through book 1 of easy songs for little people. His finger action has now shifted from bass to baseball. However, there is still our youngest who does seem to have an aptitude

Danish modern piano with a framed cane back doubles as a room divider; separates entrance from the living room.

Candelight Supper To Be Sponsored By Altrusa Club

The Altrusa Club of Panama will have its annual Chili Supper by Candelight on Nov. 12 in St. Matthews Episcopal Parish Hall, 727 W. Browning. Homemade chili and pies, Cokes and coffee will be served beginning at 5:30 p.m. and concluding at 8:30 p.m., according to Mrs. B. M. Behrman, finance chairman.

Finance committee members assisting with the planning are Mrs. Don Robinson, Thelma Bray, Clyde Vanderberg, and Inez Carter.

Proceeds from the chili ticket sales will be used for the club's Senior Center, Career Clinic and Scholarship projects.

Tickets, $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, may be purchased from any Altrusa Club member.

Door prizes will also be provided by the following merchants: Coston's Bakery, Clayton's Floral Shoppe, Zales Jewelry, McCarty's Jewellers, Citizens Bank and Trust Company, Behrman's, Smith's Shoe Store, Anderson's Western Wear, Home Builder's Supply Co. and B&B Pharmacy.

and interest. Currently, the piano gets its workout at the hands of the little girl from next door who is practicing a rousing Indian war dance. As Dorie says, our piano plays louder than hers and besides her mother is resting.

Meanwhile, where to put the piano is a staple question. Pianos shouldn't be placed next to an outside wall (too cold), nor in direct sunlight (too hot). They must be guarded against too dry an atmosphere or a too humid one. Our piano tuner — you must keep the precise mechanism tuned whether you play it or not — advised placing a bowl of water back of the bottom front panel to maintain moisture in the air during dry weather. In excessively damp climates, it's possible to have a wire heater installed to dry out the air.

As a more reliable guide, I asked piano designer, Gunnar Benson what he could suggest about the selection and placement of pianos for maximum convenience and effect. Benson has won top design awards for his company.

Pianos are available in different sizes, styles and finishes. The first consideration should be selecting a style and finish which will blend or harmonize with other furnishings, because a piano is usually a once-in-a-lifetime purchase.

Benson's designs are conservative and free of extreme or faddish features. He has designed over 50 different styles and finishes, ranging from 18th century to early American and Danish modern. Fine hardwoods such as walnut, maple, mahogany, cherry and oak are used and finished in high, medium or dull luster according to the style.

If you'd like to place a piano at right angles to a wall or to serve as a room divider, you can order one with an acoustically correct factory-built backing which resembles cane. While it is possible to cover the piano back with porous fabric or cane yourself, a factory-made back is usually neater and more easily installed.

Benson also points out that decorative accents such as bowls of flowers or figurines may be arranged on the piano top to soften the straight lines. Use felt pads under vases or bowls which might scratch the finish.

Modern construction methods have improved interior mechanisms in many new pianos and made them less susceptible to atmospheric changes, he added. In a modern, well-insulated house, a new piano could be placed near an outside wall without damage.

Dear Abby... Should Know About The Facts Of Life

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I found four puppies huddled together in a shoe box on my porch. They couldn't have been a week old. My husband and I love animals but we both work so we couldn't keep them. I told my neighbor I was taking them to the animal shelter where they would have a good home. She said I was foolish, that they would either be killed immediately or given out for "experimental purposes." Is this true? How can the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals do anything so inhumane?

LOVE ANIMALS
DEAR ABBY: Every animal brought to the shelter is kept for several days in the hope that someone will "adopt" him. (Those requesting pets are carefully screened and only those who can give an animal good home are permitted to have one.) If a home cannot be found, the animal is "put to sleep" by the most humane method known to science. (A decomposition chamber.) While this may seem "cruel," it is better than letting an animal die of starvation or exposure outside the shelter. Not all S.P.C.A.'s release animals for "experimental purposes." If the public supported their local animal shelters, animals could be kept longer and given more opportunity for adoption.

DEAR ABBY: When my mother died she left me a beautiful pair of diamond earrings. I would like to wear them but I never had my ears pierced when I was a child. Is it dangerous to have them pierced now? I am fearful of the operation.

MRS. E. R.
DEAR MRS. E. R.: It is not dangerous if it is done by a physician. But a jeweler could "fix" the earrings to be worn without having to have your ears pierced.

DEAR ABBY: I know why I sometimes pick the table that is still messy from the last dinner. It is usually one of the choice tables. The tables that are cleared and set up are the ones nobody wants. Near the kitchen, near the door, near the washroom or right under the air conditioner.

Contentedly I pause before
The silence of their darkened door,

I tiptoe to my pride-and-joys...
And sprawl head first across their toys.

Circles Of Highland Baptist W.M.U. Meet And Have Election Of Officers

The four circles of the Highland Baptist S.M.U. met recently in homes to elect officers. The Patricia Boone Circle met in the home of Mrs. L. F. Karlin. Opening prayer was led by Mrs. John Dawes and the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Tommie Rhoten; vice president, Mrs. Lee Gilleland; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John Dawes; program, Mrs. Lee Gilleland; mission study, Mrs. Wayne Brister; Bible study, Mrs. L. F. Karlin; community missions, Mrs. Tommie Rhoten. Closing prayer was given by Mrs. Wayne Brister. The Elizabeth Garrett Circle met in the home of Mrs. Donald Lea, 2208 N. Sumner. The opening prayer was led by Mrs. Morris Belote. Officers elected are as follows: chairman, Mrs. Donald Lea; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Giesler; program chairman, Mrs. M. Butler; mission study, Mrs. Morris Belote; Bible study, Mrs. Morris Belote; prayer chairman, Mrs. Joe Bob Hudson; stewardship chairman, Mrs. Joe Bob Hudson; community missions, Mrs. George Moore; enlistment chairman, Mrs. Stroud. Mrs. Butler closed the meeting with prayer.

Bio study, Mrs. W. T. Fain; community missions and stewardship, Mrs. Darlene Drennan. Mrs. Thomas closed the meeting with prayer.

The Church Circle met at the church for study. The following officers were elected: chairman, Mrs. Tom Stewart; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Clyde Laycock; community missions, Mrs. D. W. Tracy; mission study, chairman, Mrs. Leony Allen; Bible study, Mrs. Gilbert Morris; program chairman, Mrs. Ronald Scott; and prayer and stewardship, Mrs. Allison.

Mrs. Allison led the closing prayer.

Foreign Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

President Kennedy has made a point of the fact that the U.S. "quarantine" of Cuba will not cut off the necessities of life, as the Soviets attempted to do in their 1948 Berlin blockade.

In actual fact, inept Communist leadership and resistance of the workers already have placed the Cuban people at close to the subsistence level.

All staple goods and most household commodities are rationed.

A government decree in March permitted each person three-quarters of a pound of meat and one and a half pounds of beans per week, and six pounds of rice and one cake of soap per month.

The government has been forced to parade tanks, troops and artillery to counter demonstrations against food scarcities in a country which once had one of the highest living standards in Latin America.

Nothing to Buy

As shortages have mounted so has absenteeism. Earnings meant little if there was nothing to buy.

The Soviet Union has promised $437 million in credits to Cuba, of which about $45 million has been disbursed. The money spent thus far had no visible effect.

One of the top Communists, Blas Roca, wrote in the party newspaper Hoy:

"If we do not increase our production, there is no possible defense... because people who are dead of hunger cannot carry out the defense."

Economic Report
Noted the Swiss Review of World Affairs:

"Because of Cuba's utter dependence on the East bloc today, it now faces the question whether and to what extent its Communist trade partners will be willing and able to supply it with the raw materials, consumer goods and, above all, the food it cannot produce itself but must have to escape economic chaos..."

"Havana's stores are now stocked with the cheapest and most useless products of Eastern origin: poorly printed Communist pamphlets from Moscow, ceramics and artificial flowers from China, low-quality household goods made in East Germany and Czechoslovakia..."

"Despite the great scarcity of meat the people refused to buy

Group Asks Hearing Be Postponed

AUSTIN (UPI)—Opponents to the proposed Palo Duro dam near Hansford in the Texas Panhandle asked the State Water Commission today to postpone a hearing until "accurate" information on the reservoir is filed.

Frank Douglass, an attorney for Humble Oil and Refining Co. who acted as spokesman for several firms opposing the reservoir, told the commission that he was unable to tell where the water line would be from maps filed by the Palo Duro River Authority.

"We would like for the commission to ask the authority to file accurate and complete information on where the reservoir will be," Douglass said.

They will be isolated in sound-proof rooms and wired for brain study.

INTRODUCING THE 1963 DODGE

The something comfortable in this case is a 1963 Dodge Polara 4-door hardtop. It's not the clinging kind of comfortable, either. More like house-coat comfortable. Lots of room to move around in. See how the roof sweeps straight back instead of rounding off. That means plenty of headroom for passengers, front and back. Seats are sofa-soft and chair-high. All Dodge models offer this kind of comfort at a variety of prices—all low! We have a number of interesting items for the male set, too. For economy, a hustling 225 cubic inch 6. For action, a stable full of V8 horsepower. For assured satisfaction, a revolutionary new 5-year/50,000-mile warranty*.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Several years ago, a sports editor asked a distant colleague why the result of a Honduras-Guatemala football game was so late in being reported. The editor received the following message in reply:

"It seems that there was a riot in Guatemala city that day, one killed, 50 injured, etc. No game. So our man there filed nothing. No game, no story, he felt. Ye gods!"

I think that that message each time I watch NBC-TV's new series, "It's A Man's World," about four boys who live on a houseboat docked at a small Midwest college town. "Nothing" happens if you have been brainwashed into the security of expecting usual format stuff; yet everything happens if you take in the whole picture, in which side dramas, unexploited and unmapped, are often more compelling than main events.

Shows Real Promise

Sharply attuned to the laughter and tears of the everyday human comedy, "It's A Man's World" is the only drama of the new season to show real promise of originality. In a bad season, it is the best of the new dramas; and, improving steadily as it is, could turn out to be the only freshman program of stature and a welcome addition to any year if it can survive the ratings, which is questionable at present.

The show's loving and mature understanding of young people who are neither idiots nor punks was demonstrated Monday night in an episode about one of the boys and his fiancée who want to be alone together so that — well, so that they can be alone together.

Like the other characters in the series, they are normal youngsters without being television's idea of "typical" ones. They are fine, and attractive people; they plan to get married; it is a beautiful Saturday; he works in a gas station; she has a class; they both have duties and are too responsible to shirk them; but they are normal, and they want to be alone. Comically, torturing, people keep preventing it — not on purpose; friends, family keep imposing on them.

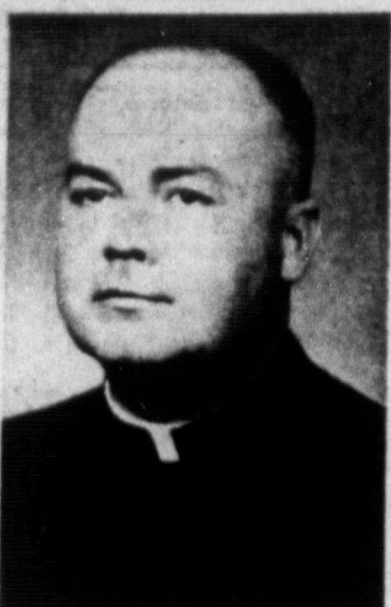

Finally Alone

Finally, they get away. They find themselves at a relative's home, with the house all to themselves. And you have never seen a better, more touching, love scene on television. They are normal, but they have been taught what is right and wrong. They try to avoid the subject, or even looking at each other. Things built so perfectly that when he asks her innocently, "What do you want to do tonight?", it had a shockingly funny and dramatic effect. Finally, in one of the loveliest embraces a camera ever caught, they decide to leave and wait until they are married.

"It's A Man's World" understands mood; the music varies from country to sophisticated to circus style, the last type fitting the human comedy theme; the boys and the girlfriends of the two oldest ones are excellent; and the ratings are bad against "Cheyenne," "To Tell the Truth" and "I've Got A Secret." Watch "It's A Man's World," and if you like it, write to the network. The series needs you against the sponsors and public who say, "Give me something new, fresh and original—like 'Ben Casey.'"

Instead of hearing all the time about how much Americans eat, here are some statistics about how much Americans eat. Last year the per capita consumption of vegetables, other than potatoes, was indicated at 99 pounds of fresh vegetables, 24.2 pounds of canned, 10.8 pounds of frozen vegetables, 7.6 pounds of dry edible beans and 1.4 pounds of dry field beans.

REV. WILLIAM E. WEST
... TESA vice-president

Rev. West Named Texas Episcopal Schools Veep

The Rev. William E. West, Rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church and Headmaster of the Day School, was elected Vice-President of the Texas Episcopal Schools Association at the recent convention in San Antonio. His term as vice-president is for three years.

The Texas Episcopal School Association meets annually for a three-day teachers' workshop program and convention. There are over seventy-five Episcopal Schools in Texas and over seven-hundred schools nationally.

Part of Rev. West's duties will be to visit these schools and to advise on standards of certification and accreditation. His election also places him on the National Episcopal Schools planning committee for the National Convention which will be held in Washington, D.C., in November 1963. The entire staff of St. Matthew's Day School attended the Workshop and Convention last week and includes Mrs. John Hessey, Miss Lelia Clifford, Mrs. C. D. Anderson and Mrs. George Casey.

Much work was spent on a course entitled The Unified Phonics by Drs. Spaulding and Spaulding, which teaches children to read, write and spell in one operation instead of three. The method is under consideration for adoption in St. Matthew's School.

Still More On 'Hush Puppies'

By Dick West
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — It is beginning to appear that I will never be able to finish my lectures on "great dishes of the Western world." (no applause please.)

Each time that I sit down to compose a new canto, I am forced to stop and defend myself against attacks from people who want to fight about hush puppies.

Not only have they denounced my recent treatise on the origin of hush puppies; one reader went so far as to question whether hush puppies were a food at all. He claimed they were a type of shoe.

I thought the same thing the first time I ate one. But if you ever step on a hush puppy with bare feet you will quickly conclude that they are better eaten than worn.

Versions Conflict

Mrs. J. W. Willis, of Manchester, Ga., writes that my version of how the hush puppy was discovered, and the amended version submitted by Mrs. Edna B. Russell of Smyrna, Del., both conflict with her "family dogma."

She insists that hush puppies were discovered by her husband, who as an infant accidentally consumed some raw cornmeal balls that his parents were using for dogfish bait.

I am willing to admit that Mrs. Willis' story sounds plausible. On several occasions when I have been served hush puppies, the cook didn't even bother to remove the hook.

Mrs. Willis also has an interesting theory on the origin of collard greens. She claims that they grew in the Garden of Eden and that Adam and Eve wore them instead of fig leaves when they wanted to dress for dinner.

Two Die In Train-Truck Collision

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — A heavily laden gravel truck slammed into the middle of a speeding Santa Fe passenger train Monday killing two persons and injuring 30 others.

The driver of the truck, Edward White, 43, Anaheim, died in the crash that derailed the train's locomotive, mail car and four passenger cars. Also killed was Larry J. Davis, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, believe to be a Navy recruit en route to San Diego, Calif. He died in surgery after his leg was severed upon impact.

Investigators said the truck slammed into the middle of the train at an intersection. The train rumbled on for half a mile after the crash before halting on a railroad bridge over the Santa Ana River.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

Mort Meanswell owned a parking lot. It was enclosed by an eight foot fence and had one entrance and one exit. Mort kept at least one attendant on duty at all times to park and watch after his customers' cars. Patrons were requested to leave their keys in the car to enable the attendants to park the cars as well as move them when necessary.

Hotrod Harry parked his car in Mort's lot and was given a claim check. He promptly put it into his pocket without paying any attention to it. Upon the back of the claim check was written, "The person accepting this ticket assumes all risk of accident, and expressly agrees that the management shall not be liable, under any circumstances, for any injury to person, loss or damage."

A couple of hours later Harry returned. His car had been stolen. Mort Meanswell said that he was sorry, but pointed to the statement on the back of the claim check. Mort refused to pay for the stolen car. Harry sued him.

FORMER NKVD AGENT TELLS OF RED TYRANNY

The never-ending caravan of tourists and officials returning from Russia pass on stories of new religious freedom, industrial production, and other wonders of the Soviet system. They continually point out the momentous task ahead of us in order to keep pace with Soviet advances.

Knowing that the Communists are pathological liars, have you ever wondered what goes on behind the facade that is conveniently raised for the benefit of foreign visitors?

Information Available: Fortunately, we don't have to wonder. Escapees from communism have often written autobiographies—describing conditions drastically different from those told by American visitors. In the latest of these, I Was An NKVD Agent, Anatoli Granovsky provides a realistic view of activities behind the Iron Curtain, out of sight of American tourists and visiting dignitaries.

Dinner guests in the Arden Ransom home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Hezzie Holder of Beaver, Oklahoma and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Bowdle of Booker.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ramp attended the concert given by Carlos Montoya Monday evening in Pampa.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Cannedy attended ordination services for their son Rod Cannedy at Menard on Sunday. Mr. Cannedy was ordained as pastor of the Hillcrest Baptist Mission by the First Baptist Church of Menard.

Mr. and Mrs. Cannedy spent the week end in Menard.

Conferences Are Scheduled By Legal Foundation

Conferences on government contracts and personal injury litigation will be presented by the Southwestern Legal Foundation in Dallas during November, according to Boyd Taylor, Pampa attorney.

Taylor, Foundation resident representative, revealed that the government contracts institute will be held Nov. 8-10, and personal injury litigation Nov. 29-Dec. 1.

Lecturers to participate in the government contracts program include: Lt. Gen. A. T. McNamara, director of the Defense Supply Agency, Dept. of Defense, and Thomas D. Morris, assistant secretary of Defense, Installations and Logistics.

Other speakers will be: Col. John D. Kooker, chief, Procurement Law Division, Office of the Judge Advocate General, Dept. of the Army; George H. Newsome, counsel, IBM Data Systems Division, New York; Jack Paul, Beverly Hills attorney, and Lola Dickerson, attorney from Boston.

Also, Merritt H. Steger, general counsel, Dept. of the Navy; Barron K. Grier and Gilbert A. Cuneo, Washington, D. C. attorneys; Col. William W. Thybony, assistant director for procurement policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense; Elbert G. Bellows, secretary and counsel, The DeLaval Separator Co., New York City; Crittenden Jarvis of Dallas, Ling-Temco-Vought.

Subjects to be reviewed at the Personal Injury Institute will be: Jury selection; preparation of witness to testify; what X-ray can show in the injured person; exhibits and demonstrative evidence; techniques in jury persuasion; and electrical tests to determine degree of disability.

Old Ref Sez So

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The Old Ref has consented to write a column exclusively for the Pampa Daily News to appear each week on Tuesday afternoons. Old Ref presently gives his predictions and comments on various football games every Friday afternoon and will continue until the season ends.)

Kenny Hebert, Pampa junior, is one of the finest kickers in high school football. Hebert, with his talented toe, split the uprights twice last Friday on long field goals to the amazement of some spectators and coaches.

Hebert (pronounced A - Bear) sparked in the Friday scrimmage between the sophomores and juniors against the seniors. The tailback - quarterback split the uprights on boots of 58 and 37 yards. The ball was placed on the 48-yard line on the first kick. With a good wind and a limber leg, Hebert turned in a performance that would make many professional blush.

To prove the first field goal wasn't a fluke, Hebert kicked a 37 yard field goal against the same wind from an angle. The ball was placed even with a "hash" marker.

The punters in the Southwest Conference seemed to be improving each week. One of these weeks the leading punter in the SWC, Danny Thomas, of SMU, might catch Hebert in the punting department. Thomas, with some great kicking in last week's game, is sporting a 43.7 punting average. Hebert's punting average is 45.2.

One can readily take note that the SWC punters stand further back than Hebert, but on the other hand they don't have to kick the ball as quickly as Hebert.

After the game scrimmage, Hebert was overheard asking the coach about a square-toed special kicking shoe. What does Hebert need another shoe for?

While on the subject of kicking, Don Myers, ninth grade coach at Robert E. Lee, reports that one of his ninth graders (Larry Daniels) kicked the ball into the end zone on the fly the other day. This led didn't need a special kicking shoe either. He kicked the ball barefooted. And that's some kickin' for a junior high boy!

In last Friday's scrimmage game, the question of who was the fastest on the Harvester football team was debated by the spectators in the stands. Kenny Hebert, noted as one of the fastest in the district, broke lose for a long run. It first appeared that the speedster would out race the seniors. Long-legged Randy Matson, covering five yards every two and one-half steps, caught Hebert before he reached the goal line. The angle of pursuit advantage was very slight, if any.

As far as the Old Ref is concerned, Hebert is the fastest on the 50 and Matson on the 100. He could be wrong. There are some other speedy hoppers on that Harvester team.

Coach Otis Holladay was all smiles as he watched the first half of the scrimmage as a spectator. The assistant coaches, holding the scrimmage, had earlier threatened to lock Holladay in the press box to keep him a spectator.

Holladay, a real bundle of energy that seems to radiate to everyone around him, was down on the playing field the second half. The players played like some of their coach's enthusiasm had rubbed off on them. The futures belted the seniors, 26-6.

On behalf of the seniors, the fact needs to be pointed out that they had only 11 men that were not injured for the contest. Some boys had to play in positions that were a bit strange to them.

NCAA Expects Early Settlement With AAU

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) expects a peaceful settlement of its struggle for control of amateur athletics in the United States before the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

"Right will triumph," said executive director Walter Byers in a report on his group's fight with the national Amateur Athletic Union (AAU), which now controls American participation in international events covering track and field, basketball and gymnastics.

The policy-making council of the NCAA, in the second day of a three-day fall session in New York, was scheduled today for further discussion of the NCAA's annual convention at Los Angeles, Jan. 7-9.

But while Byers was predicting an early settlement, the NCAA Monday released a bulletin to member colleges urging they withdraw from the AAU until that group indicates a more "co-operative attitude" toward members of NCAA federations in matters of track and field, basketball and gymnastics.

An Internal Dispute
"We are asking the AAU either to join our federations in those sports or join in dual sanctioning movements so there can be a complete use of our personnel and facilities in putting together our international teams," said Byers.

The executive director of the NCAA said the differences between the two groups are an internal dispute and must be resolved within the U.S.

"We expect a settlement long before the 1964 Olympics," Byers said. "The board of directors of the U.S. Olympic Committee has appointed a nine-man panel to study the situation and attempt to bring the warring factions together."

At this moment, international federations recognize the AAU as the controlling body for several sports in the U.S.

Both groups have scheduled rival meets, with the AAU threatening to outlaw any athlete who competes in an event not sanctioned by the AAU. Under international rules, any athlete "outlawed" by the AAU cannot compete in Olympic games.

Four Recommendations
Four key recommendations were evolved by the NCAA's policy-making body Monday for action at the annual convention. They were:

1. Easing of a rule on the amount of time a high school athlete can spend on a college campus before enrolling if that appearance is confined solely to a development program approved by the U.S. Olympic Committee.
2. A hockey player who competes for a Canadian team subsidized by professionals in Canada may be eligible for U.S. college squads if he has not been paid for playing.

3. Withdrawing support of a proposed national "letter of intent" for the registration of athletes whereby a prospective student-athlete who signs such a contract by June 15 may not transfer to another college in the fall.

4. Easing of a rule that would enable college players to engage in Little League baseball, golf, tennis and other summer recreation programs.

Tickets For Cotton Bowl Now On Sale

DALLAS (SpI) — Only eight more days remain for football fans to order tickets for the 1963 Cotton Bowl Classic.

Tickets now on sale to the general public range all the way from seats on the 50-yard line to end-zone seats. Who gets what seats will be determined by a drawing, with the better seats going to the first names drawn. Everyone who applies for tickets prior to the November 6 deadline will have an equal chance in the drawing.

There are more than 25,000 tickets available to the general public, and applications have been accepted by the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association since Thursday. The price of tickets is $5.50 each, and there is no limit on the number of tickets an individual may order. However, no more than ten tickets should be ordered in a single application.

Those desiring more than ten tickets should submit two or more applications with a separate check or money order accompanying each application. Ticket orders should be mailed to the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, Box 7185 in Wood Station, Dallas, and a 25-cent mailing fee should be added to each application. Envelopes must be postmarked no later than midnight November 6 to be included in the draw for the 25,000 available tickets.

Mustangs, Texas Head SWC Slate

By PAUL FREEMAN

United Press International
The now-fifth ranked University of Texas Longhorns scheduled a tough workout for today so Darrell Royal can show his boys who "they" are.

Royal, whose Longhorns meet Southern Methodist University Saturday in Austin, said he had heard SMU coach Hayden Fry "told his boys that 'they' think it's a joke that SMU is on top of the Southwest Conference."

"I," Royal told a news conference Monday, "just want to know who 'they' is."

The surprising SMU squad ran through a light workout in sweat clothes Monday, then watched movies of its 14-0 win over Texas Tech Saturday.

TCU Saddened
The Texas Christian football squad and coaching staff attended the funeral of teammate Bud Priddy, a TCU halfback killed in an automobile accident Sunday.

The Frogs held a wind sprint after returning from the Kaufman, Tex., funeral services. The Frogs host Baylor University this Saturday.

Baylor coach John Bridges warned his players that TCU quarterback Sonny Gibbs is a big problem to face, in more ways than one.

"Gibbs is not only big, but he's a great passer and a powerful runner and that's problem enough for anybody's football team," Bridges said. The Bears polished up on passing and goal line defense.

Coach Frank Broyles of the ninth-ranked University of Arkansas Razorbacks said three regulars, including two who have been out the last three games, will be ready Saturday when Arkansas plays Texas A&M at College Station. They are end Jim John, fullback Danny Brabham and "Monster Man" Billy Joe Moody, the No. 2 fullback.

"Good Shape
The Aggies worked on special defenses against the Arkansas offense, and tried out a few new offensive wrinkles of their own. Coach Hank Foldberg said his squad was in "good shape."

The Rice University football squad's 23 members who saw the most action in Saturday's 14-14 tie with the Texas Longhorns got off light in practice. Coach Jess Neely ran the rest of his team hard in preparation for Saturday night's Houston game with Texas Tech. Neely said injured senior tailback Ronnie Graham will be ready to go against Tech.

And Texas Tech held a light, no-contact drill in sweat suits. Tackle Bill Malone, who suffered a concussion against Baylor, rejoined the squad as did center C. C. Willis, who bruised a hand in Saturday's 14-0 loss to Southern Methodist.

Sturdy Stamford, one of only five perfect record teams left in Texas schoolboy football's Class AAA circles, collides with another undefeated-untied power, the Winters Blizzards, in the feature contest of this week's schedule.

Despite their lofty records, the winner of this game won't necessarily take command of their rugged District 8 race because Ballinger also is unbeaten in league play and still faces both teams.

While the Stamford-Winters contest is the only one matching unbeaten-untied teams, there are a half dozen others matching teams for district leadership.

These involve Olney at Quanah in District 5, Columbus at Katy in 21, Boling at Missouri City in 25, Tuloso-Midway at Aransas Pass in 30, Freer at Hebbronville in 31 and Los Fresnos at Edcouch-Elsa in 32.

Olney, in fact, can clinch a playoff berth by beating Quanah.

Jacksboro, another of the five perfect record clubs, entertains Nocona in a battle of survival in District 9, where Bowie also remains with an untarnished district slate.

Wicks, pilot of British Empire heavyweight champion Henry Cooper, declared today he would not even consider Cooper's meeting champion Sonny Liston—"not for any money."

Cooper is training for a London title defense on Nov. 13 against Dick Richardson of Wales.

At the gymnasium, Wicks admitted, "After Henry beats Richardson, a fight with Ingemar Johansson is well on the way. Cooper will fight anybody—Floyd Patterson, Johansson—anybody else; but not Liston!"

He declared: "Liston we will not have, not for any money. My fighter comes first—not the money!"

When Cooper was asked if he would like to fight Liston, he primed and gestured toward Wicks with this suggestion: "Ask my manager."

Longhorns Drop In UPI Poll To No. 5

NEW YORK (UPI)—Northwestern, which has ridden the arm of sophomore quarterback Tom Myers to five straight victories, took over the No. 1 spot in the United Press International college football ratings today.

Alabama (6-0) advanced to second place and Southern California (5-0) to third as Texas, the top-ranked team for the past three weeks, dropped to fifth place following its 14-14 tie with Rice Saturday night.

Arkansas and Nebraska joined the top 10 group in 9th and 10th places.

Wisconsin and Auburn dropped out of the select group. Nineteen members of the 35-man UPI Board of Coaches picked Northwestern the national leader after its 35-6 weekend victory over Notre Dame. The Wildcats have scored 189 points in their five wins.

Alabama, 35-6 victor over Tulsa, was the first-place choice of 12 coaches; two voted for Southern California and one each for fourth-ranked Mississippi (5-0) and seventh-ranked Michigan State (4-1).

The other spots in the top 10 group were filled by Louisiana State, in sixth place, and Washington, in eighth.

Auburn headed the second 10 group, followed by Ohio State, which led the major colleges the first week of this season. Wisconsin dropped all the way from fourth place to 13th after losing to Ohio State.

Missouri ranked 14th, followed in order by Purdue, Oregon and Duke. Georgia Tech and Minnesota were tied for 18th place and Penn State was 20th. Miami (Fla.) and Army were the only two other teams that received votes this week.

UPI Ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United Press International major college football ratings (with first-place votes and won-lost records in parentheses):

2. Alabama (12) (6-0)	305
3. Southern Calif (2) (5-0)	203
4. Mississippi (5-0)	201
5. Texas (5-0-1)	197
6. Louisiana State (5-0-1)	162
7. Michigan State (1) (4-1)	123
8. Washington (4-0-2)	68
9. Arkansas (5-1)	68
10. Nebraska (6-0)	44

Second 10 teams — 11, Auburn, 41; 12, Ohio State, 38; 13, Wisconsin, 36; 14, Missouri, 32; 15, Purdue, 30; 16, Oregon, 23; 17, Duke, 11; 18 (tie) Georgia Tech and Minnesota, 7 each; 20, Penn State, 6.

Others—Miami (Fla.), 5; Army.

QB Club Will Meet Tonight

The weekly Quarterback Club meeting is slated for 7:30 p.m. in the Pampa High Cafeteria. The scouting report on the Harvesters' opponent, Palo Duro, will be given. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Wichita Falls Tries Another Tough Foe

By United Press International

Top-ranked Wichita Falls tackles its second undefeated-untied district rival in as many weeks Friday night to highlight this week's Class AAAA-AAA Texas schoolboy football schedule.

But the Wichita Falls-Irving showdown in District 4-AAAAA won't be the only one in which district leaders are facing each other. Theirs is the only game matching undefeated-untied teams, however.

Sherman and Denison stage a 7-AAAAA elimination brawl, Houston Bellaire and Houston Jones scrap for 9-AAAAA honors, Port Arthur and Beaumont South Park collide in a 11-AAAAA showdown Saturday when Arkansas plays Texas A&M at College Station. They are end Jim John, fullback Danny Brabham and "Monster Man" Billy Joe Moody, the No. 2 fullback.

Bean Purple Wins Stakes

By United Press International

Beau Purple's stunning victory in the Man O' War stakes may have earned the 5-year-old horse a shot at the $125,000 added Washington D.C. International at Laurel, Nov. 12.

Jack Dreyfus, owner of Beau Purple, and trainer Hal Jerkens both said they would be happy to send the front-running horse to the International "if he is invited."

In winning the $114,800 Man O' War, Beau Purple bested Kelso and Carry Back, already named to represent the United States in the mile and one-half turf classic.

Ridden by Bill Boland, Beau Purple clipped three-fifths of a second off the Belmont Park turf course record with a clocking of 2:28 3-5 for one and one-half miles. Kelso, the odds-on favorite, finished two lengths back. Axi II finished third and Carry Back was fifth.

Harvesters, Dons Top Local Action

Several top games are scheduled for Pampa teams this week with the Pampa Harvesters slated to host the Palo Duro Dons in a Dist. 3-AAAAA contest.

The game will start at 7:30 at Harvesters Field.

Pampa's "B" team, the Shockers, will travel to Amarillo to play the Tascosa Raiders. The game is slated for 4 p.m. The Raiders have two wins and four losses this season as compared to the Shockers' 2-5 record.

In junior high action, Robert E. Lee's teams play three games and Pampa Jr. High's teams are open except the ninth graders.

The ninth grade Rebels will play Gruver's "B" team with the eighth graders slated to play Gruver's ninth graders. Joe Perryman's seventh graders will play Perryton's seventh graders.

Pampa Jr. High's ninth graders will play Phillips' ninth graders.

Bill Rigney Cited Top AL Manager

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Rigney of the Los Angeles Angels—a teachers as well as a manager—was named the American League's Manager of the year today by the United Press International.

The gray-haired, high-strung former Giant infielder and manager, was selected by 21 of the 24 baseball writers who formed the UPI's 1962 board of baseball experts. Sam Mele of the Minnesota Twins received the other three votes.

The Angels, playing only their second season, surprised the sports world by remaining in the AL pennant race until mid-September and finally finished third, 10 games behind the pennant-winning New York Yankees. Their rise from an infant franchise in 1961 to a flag threat in 1962 constitutes the most amazing development of its kind in major league history.

Some experts say it wasn't until Rigney took over the Angels that he really learned to be a manager. With the Angels, he only had moderate talent available, compared to the players at his disposal when he managed the Giants.

Instant Missiles! Just Beats All, Doesn't It? So Says The Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Hon. Timothy Tugbutton exploded into the office brandishing his cane as usual, but in a mood of pleased wonderment rather than in his usual rage.

WHACK, and Tugbutton's cane struck the news desk.

"It's a modern miracle, that's what it is," the old man shouted. "A honest to gosh modern miracle."

"What miracle, Tim?" inquired Grant Dillman, the office drudge.

"What miracle?" Tugbutton thundered, the rising inflection and tone of voice indicating that a familiar rage was coming on.

"What miracle, the man says." The old man banged away at the news desk, gradually regaining his composure. Then, with a snort, Tugbutton gave voice.

Instant Missiles

"What miracle! Instant missiles, that's what miracle. And instant missile bases, that's another one."

"Instant missiles! Yes sir, they've come to pass right over there on old Beady's Island. And instant bases, they've come to pass, too."

"One day, there was Cuba clean and free of bases and missiles as a baby's crib. Next day or so what have they got on that island? Missiles, that's what, and bases, instant type.

"I'll tell you fellows, it beats all. That's what it does, it beats all. Them Russians, they must be mighty smart technicians, too. Old Khrush, he just sent the pieces over on a boat to his pal Castro and sent a lot of technicians with monkey wrenches and hammers and such as that, and the technicians just waved their tools around, fluttered their hands and hollered 'poof da da' and what happened? Instant missiles."

"Now you take us," Tugbutton continued. "You take us building a missile launcher out there somewhere on the prairie."

Building Bases

"We spent some time building bases, sweat a lot and finally get 'em built. But those Russians, no sir. One day they ain't got any missiles or any bases either and next day, almost, they got 'em with the fuse ready to be lit. We oughta find out how they do that."

"Or, maybe them Russians just look to be smarter and faster than they really are. Maybe they wasn't so smart and so fast at all but it was just that we were looking so hard and talking so much about Berlin and what old Khrush was gonna do to us there that we somehow didn't get our cameras aimed at those missile places between the time the Russians started to build 'em and the time they had 'em built."

"And those Republicans hollering all the time that the Russians were too loading Cuba with missiles. Lots of folks were beginning to believe that, too. Good thing for the Democrats that you fell for in the White House finally spotted 'em."

"Instant missiles! Beats all, don't it?"

Two Testified Before Slant-Hole Oil Inquiry

DALLAS (UPI) — Two former federal officials testified Monday at an inquiry into slant-hole oil well drilling, but three witnesses failed to show up.

The Texas House General Investigating Committee adjourned after Monday's testimony and announced that an executive session will be held in Austin on Nov. 3.

James R. Lewis and Nelson Puett, the officials, testified they were aware of slanted oil well drilling in Texas since the early 1950's, but could not trust agents of the state railroad commission to help investigate. The Railroad Commission regulates the oil industry in Texas.

Effort Cost Job

Lewis, chairman of the federal petroleum board until 1953, said he was fired for "pressing my own investigation too hard."

Puett, chairman of the federal agency from 1953-60, backed up Lewis' statements.

Puett said his staff could not rely on or cooperate with agents of the state railroad commission "because the information would get back to the oil operators."

One witness declined to answer questions Monday. Temple Pyle Jr. of Longview refused to say anything about his oil dealings with Gregg County Judge Earl Sharp. Pyle refused to answer on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Judge Sharp, one of the three witnesses who failed to appear, said in a statement issued through his wife that it had become necessary for him to re-enter the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., "due to some setbacks in my condition."

"I May Return"

"I hope it will be of temporary duration and that I may return to Gregg County in the early future," the statement said.

Also missing were Dist. Judge David C. Moore of Longview and oilman J. W. Baton of Kilgore.

In his testimony, Puett said one commission official, L. D. Murphy, "had been shooting dice with known hot oil men using $100 bills." Murphy, a district engineer fired last May, is under state indictment for taking bribes in the slant hole scandal.

E. B. Germany, chairman of the board of Lone Star Steel Co., said there is a difference of opinion on whether oil wells he owns bottom under adjoining leases. Germany said inclination surveys have shown different results, but he is cooperating with major oil firms on new surveys.

State Rep. Bill Hollowell of Grand Saline presided over the hearing.

In the Democratic Primary I ran against Representative Grainger McIlhenny as a Democrat. As in all Political campaigns, we had differences of opinion...but these were the type differences of opinion that has made the Democratic Party in Texas the Party of Progress and Responsible State Government.

In my campaign in the Primary all my statements were those of a Democrat. Those who saw fit to support me, I feel were Democrats. I suggest that each of you now actively work for and support Grainger McIlhenny as our Party Nominee for State Representative.

Priest Shoots Knife-Wielding Burglar-Killer

By ROBERT A. GINSBURG

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Roman Catholic priest today shot a knife-wielding burglar who had stabbed to death the housekeeper of his rectory and critically wounded the cook.

The Rev. Stephen O'Donnell, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, wounded the assailant and held him for police after being roused from bed by the screams of the women downstairs in the rectory.

The victim was Miss Bridget Walsh, 43, who was pronounced dead at Cook County Hospital. Also stabbed was Miss Margaret Walsh, 35, who was taken to Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital. Both were natives of Ireland who came to this country 14 years ago and had worked at Chicago churches for most of that time.

Police said the burglar, identified as Larry Vernon, 22, San Antonio, Tex., entered the rectory by smashing a front window, reaching through it and then opening the door.

The women, whose bedrooms were on the first floor, awoke and he attacked them with two butcher knives he had grabbed in the kitchen.

They tried to run for help. Betty fell unconscious at the foot of the stairs leading to the second floor, and Peggy collapsed halfway up them.

Father O'Donnell and the curate, the Rev. Daniel Holihan, came downstairs to find the killer ransacking the sitting room of the rectory, located behind the church just west of Chicago's Loop in an area of factories and warehouses.

The priest shot Vernon in the leg with a .45 caliber automatic pistol when the latter rushed at him with a knife. Holihan called police, who took the attacker to the hospital at the city jail.

Reds Say Missile Bases Forced End To The US 'Big-Stick Policy'

By ROBERT J. KORENGOLD

United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow radio said today that Soviet missile bases in Cuba had forced President Kennedy to "renounce the big stick policy" and "declare he will not use force in Cuba."

"This is the reason why the Soviet government has considered it possible to dismantle the rocket bases in Cuba which were only destined to prevent imminent actions by the imperialists," said the broadcasts, which were beamed at the Caribbean island.

It was the part of a series of radio and newspaper explanations giving the Soviet view of why Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev agreed to the U.S. demand to withdraw the missiles.

The whole tenor of the campaign has been to portray Khrushchev as the champion of peace and depict the United States policies as the basic cause of the Cuban crisis.

Lacks Anti-U.S. Vituperation

At the same time, there has been a notable lack of anti-U.S. vituperation in the commentaries.

In another broadcast to North America, Moscow Radio said the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement "will undoubtedly meet with the applause of the whole world and promote universal peace."

"Mr. Kennedy's assurances that neither the U.S.A. nor any other country of the Western Hemisphere will attack Cuba produces an entirely new situation," it said.

"It was the constant danger of an invasion that prompted the Soviet government to give Cuba the utmost assistance in building up its defense."

The Soviet news agency Tass carried without comment this morning a story about the American decision to lift the arms blockade of Cuba during the visit to Havana of Thant, acting secretary general of the United Nations.

Ignore Castro's Demand

The Russians appeared to be ignoring Fidel Castro's demand that the United States get out of Guantanamo naval base in Cuba as part of a settlement.

A high Soviet military source in Moscow indicated that Castro probably will have to abide by any arrangement forged between Moscow and Washington.

The source said that:

—Khrushchev dropped his suggestion for a Cuba-Turkey bases swap because of President Kennedy's determined rejection.

—In his opinion, the Soviets would have answered any American invasion of Cuba with some type of military response.

—The Russians had considered the possibility of a U.S. invasion of Cuba but the blockade took them somewhat by surprise.

—The Soviet military ban on leaves will not be lifted until the United States ends the blockade.

—Khrushchev, sent his special representative, Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov, to the United States so quickly because the situation was dangerous and fast action was necessary.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the right of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Profit Is The Throttle

While you slept last night, you were robbed.

The dollars you have in your billfold or purse were reduced in purchasing power by that invisible taxing agent known as inflation. So were all the dollars you had saved or invested against the necessities of a "rainy" day.

When you were awakened in the morning it is probable that an alarm bell of some sort started fifty taxes on an alarm clock. Some of them are luxury taxes your day. There are more than most of them are hidden.

Your billfold, itself, which contains a few of your dollars was taxed as a luxury when you bought it. The dollars you put into it were taxed away in part when you tried to put your earnings into it. When you take dollars out of your billfold to spend, you will be taxed a sales tax on those dollars.

When you sit down to eat your breakfast you will have paid all kinds of taxes on your eggs, bacon and coffee. If you had roasts, keep in mind that there are 131 separate and distinct taxes which are paid whenever you buy a small loaf of bread.

The farmer who raised the food you eat has paid an enormous number of taxes including taxes on his land, on his farm equipment, on the things he raises. The farmer is told that this is necessary to keep the wheels of progress turning.

The manufacturer who made the frying pan in which you prepared the eggs, the toaster which made your fresh bread golden and crisp, the plates from which you eat, the silver service, the table cloth, the table, the chairs, the floor coverings, the window panes, the curtains, the stove, the refrigerator, the storage cabinets and everything else you possess were taxed before he could produce these things.

When you ordered them delivered, the man who provided the transportation, whether they were carried overland by the railroads, thru the skies on airplanes or thru canals by barges, paid an enormous number of taxes so that he could do your bidding.

Almost everything that you have in your home was inspected somewhere along the line by government men who taxed everyone in the process before you got what you wanted.

Whenever you buy something, you are compelled to pay all of the costs, including the taxes. This means that you must pay your pro-rata share of wages, social security, old age benefits, insurance, coffee breaks, and so on, as well as your share for the equipment, the land, the raw materials, and the final products which come to you as a result of your efforts. At each point in the entire process, from the mines where the iron ore is excavated, thru the mills and the assembly lines, right up to your door step, you and you alone will be called upon to cover every conceivable kind of charge, including all the taxes.

And don't think these taxes, the numerous, are of necessity small in each case. Corporations, for instance, pay 52 cents out of every $1.00 they take in as profits. This means that many corporations cannot afford to improve their production methods, cannot afford to hire more workers, cannot afford to cut the price to you.

But for all of these taxes what do you receive? True, there are schools (which ought to be in private hands), and there are all kinds of trumped-up advantages, roads, sewer systems and sometimes government - provided power. But most of these things could be easily provided by private persons at a fraction of the cost. And all of them have been provided privately at one time or another and, in spite of difficulties, could be again.

Most of what you receive for your taxes is trouble. Your government has assisted in creating a great international uneasiness with much of your money. It may even involve you in a war which you will be asked to fight. Somehow, under conditions of this kind, we are moved to inquire what makes all of the government services we receive, most of which we never requested, worth the money?

Time Tells

Three fourths of what it takes to become sage is age.

But Is It Worth IT

Who benefits when enterprise earns a fair profit?

There's an obvious answer, of course — that the beneficiaries are the owners and officers and employees of the enterprise in question.

But that answer covers only a bit of the ground. For profit is a basic ingredient of all business progress — and so profit serves us all, one way or another, one time or another.

A spokesman for the meat packing industry recently put the matter this way: "Good profit does much more than parallel good performance. It is one of the essential factors in bringing good performance about. In other words, good profit is by no means merely a result; it is also causative, dynamic and energizing."

The packers, know this full well. Their profits have been extremely low. Many consider them seriously inadequate, in the light of the need to improve methods of operation and to provide a still better service to the producers of livestock and the consuming public. They are attacking the problem in every way they can — through cost reduction programs, stimulated sales efforts, and more varied and attractive offerings.

That aside there should be much greater realization of the undeniable fact that profit is the throttle in a free enterprise economy. Without it, the road ahead would lead to stagnation and decay.

Editor:

Government in the state of Texas is a multi-million dollar business. It is therefore apparent that we need a dedicated, conservative business man to conduct this business. Bill Hayes is such a man. He believes in sound business management against waste, inefficiency and bureaucracy. He believes in states rights, individual rights and free enterprise.

One of Mr. Hayes' greatest concerns is in teaching our American Heritage in the Texas schools — that our children may understand and develop into strong individuals in order to preserve our great nation.

A vote for O. W. "Bill" Hayes, Republican nominee for Lt. Governor will make possible a better Texas and nation.

Vote November 6th.

Mrs. Charles Norton

In the frozen food field, peas are first in customer demand among the vegetables, and strawberries are first among the fruits, a survey of one supermarket chain reveals. And when it comes to canned vegetables, peas also rank first among vegetables, and peaches among the canned fruits. . . And while we're on the subject: Tomato juice, far from being a modern product, was available nearly 200 years ago, but at that time it was taken chiefly as a medicine. Pharmacies in New York and Philadelphia then sold tomato juice for $2 a pint.

So some crafty person arranged it so the top row of letters contained all the letters required to spell TYPEWRITER.

After listening to a two-hour briefing by the President, CIA Director John McConne, Secretary Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary McNamara, the bipartisan group of legislators vigorously urged consideration of stronger military measures, ranging from an immediate invasion to a total military blockade of Cuba. Representative Carl Vinson, D-Ga., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, took the lead, contending: "It is time to go all the way. We should invade immediately to eliminate this Soviet military buildup just 90 miles from our shores." He told the President that he fully supported his proposals, but was concerned that they did not provide for elimination of the Castro regime.

"There should be no half-way measures," Vinson warned. "Khrushchev respects force and firmness. If he sees that this country means business, he will back down and will not interfere with our ships or planes."

Senator Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, fully endorsed Vinson's proposal, urging that a total blockade of armed shipments to Cuba be put into effect immediately.

"If time is needed to prepare for and mount an invasion of Cuba, we should clear the way for that by blocking all arms shipments immediately," declared Russell. U.S. Preparing for Invasion if Necessary, President Assures Leaders in Briefing

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders raised only one major challenge to President Kennedy's seven-point program for quarantining Cuba.

In their historic White House conference, they questioned the President on whether he was going far enough in limiting military action to a "selective" sea-and-air blockade of Cuba. After listening to a two-hour briefing by the President, CIA Director John McConne, Secretary Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary McNamara, the bipartisan group of legislators vigorously urged consideration of stronger military measures, ranging from an immediate invasion to a total military blockade of Cuba.

Representative Carl Vinson, D-Ga., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, took the lead, contending: "It is time to go all the way. We should invade immediately to eliminate this Soviet military buildup just 90 miles from our shores." He told the President that he fully supported his proposals, but was concerned that they did not provide for elimination of the Castro regime.

"There should be no half-way measures," Vinson warned. "Khrushchev respects force and firmness. If he sees that this country means business, he will back down and will not interfere with our ships or planes."

Senator Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, fully endorsed Vinson's proposal, urging that a total blockade of armed shipments to Cuba be put into effect immediately.

"If time is needed to prepare for and mount an invasion of Cuba, we should clear the way for that by blocking all arms shipments immediately," declared Russell. "Your 'selective' blockade is a step in the right direction. But it doesn't go far enough. All military supplies from the Soviet bloc, whether they involve a 1,000-mile missile, jet bomber, or a barrel of jet fuel, that no individual has a moral right to do, if you use the Golden Rule as a standard of right, that they believe it.

Or it might be stated in another way by saying that very few people believe in respecting private property belonging to others. And when they do not respect the private property of others, it is hard to see how they could expect others to respect their own private property. And since man cannot live and exist without property, it is of the utmost importance that everyone should respect the private property of others.

If you have some questions that are puzzling you on economics, send in your questions on this subject to The Pampa News, as well as questions on how the government should be limited to injure no one. should be stopped. "WE MAY INVADE" — "I have not ruled out either course of action," replied the President. "It takes time to launch an invasion of the size needed to secure the island. By following the plan I have outlined, the Kremlin will have sufficient time to radically change its course in Cuba."

"What happens if they continue to send offensive-type weapons?" asked Senator Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. "If their shipments continue, and they fail to agree on the dismantling of their IRBM and ICBM bases, I will have no other alternative than to follow your proposals," said the President. "Until we determine Soviet reaction, preparations for all eventualities, including invasion, are going ahead as swiftly as possible."

"Are precautionary steps being taken to prepare for a possible Soviet military strike at or blockade of West Berlin?" asked Speaker McCormack, D - Mass. "It would be my guess that if Khrushchev made any countermove, it would come there."

"All U.S. military forces are being put on full alert," replied the President. "We are preparing for any eventuality in West Berlin. Also, I have sent former Secretary of State Acheson to Europe to brief the NATO foreign ministers on what we are doing in Cuba."

McCormack, in endorsing the President's proposals, said he was particularly impressed with "your decision to issue a direct warning to Khrushchev."

"You go directly to the heart of the Cuban problem in your direct warning to Khrushchev," McCormack told the President. "When you go on the air tonight, I hope you make it just as strong as you did here. The only thing Khrushchev respects is military strength and firmness. If he knows it will mean war, he will not move against West Berlin or try to go through the blockade."

One of the big surprises of the briefing came when Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, urged that the President use military force to knock out the Cuban missile bases.

"It would be safer for us to go in and destroy those four missile bases than to stop Soviet ships on the high seas," argued Fulbright. "Khrushchev is sure to react violently if his vessels are intercepted and boarded."

"If we bomb those bases hundreds of Russian military technicians operating those installations would be killed," replied the President. "This could bring an even more violent reaction."

"As long as those missile bases are there," said Senator Russell, "there is a danger that hundreds of thousands of Americans will be killed. We must use all the military force at our command to eliminate those bases."

President Kennedy told the leaders he planned to seek the support of members of the Organization of American States for collective military action against Cuba before taking any further steps.

"Should we fail to obtain OAS support, I may have to come back and ask that Congress be recalled into session," reported the President. "This is one of the reasons I am asking you to remain in Washington the next 72 hours."

Earlier in their briefing, the legislators were told that sending missiles and bombers to Cuba represented "a dangerous and radical change in Soviet policy." "The intermediate range ballistic missiles and IL-28 jet bombers sent to Cuba were the first the Kremlin had ever permitted to be exported outside of Russia," McConne reported. "This clearly indicates that a decision had been made within the Kremlin to make Cuba a Soviet nuclear missile base despite the risk it might involve."

"This represents a dangerous and radical change in Soviet policy," added Secretary Rusk. He said the change indicated that the "hard-liners" in the Kremlin had influenced Khrushchev into making this decision. However, Rusk was not asked nor did he mention who the "hard-liners" were.

GHOST WRITERS — Five top-level administration officials had a hand in writing President Kennedy's statement announcing an air and sea quarantine of "offensive weapons" to Cuba. They were Ambassador Chip Bohlen, recalled from Paris; Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, now serving as a special adviser to Secretary Rusk; McGeorge Bundy, special assistant to the President for foreign affairs; Theodore C. Sorensen, special counsel to the President; and Dr. Bruno Kreisky, Austria's Foreign Minister, has sent a grim warning to the State Department. In discussing Cuba with Khrushchev, he reported, the Soviet leader said he would order his ships to go through a blockade if the U.S. rings Cuba with a naval and air embargo.

SOCIAL WHIRL — A precedent is being set in welcoming visiting heads of state. For the first time in U.S. history, a ruling official will be landed directly on the White House grounds and formally welcomed there. In the past, this has been done at a railroad depot or airport. Recipient of the new ceremonial is Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg, who will arrive in Washington by helicopter next Wednesday. The 66-year-old Duchess, who has been head of her tiny country for 43 years, will come by plane to Philadelphia. There she will transfer to the presidential helicopter which will transport her to the White House lawn, where she will be greeted by the President and Mrs. Kennedy, Secretary of State Rusk, General Maxwell Taylor, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other top officials. . . . When another guest asked M. J. Rathbone, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, how he came to be at the State Department's formal dinner for Libya's Crown Prince Hassan al-Rida al-Sanusi, the smiling reply was, "We discovered oil in his country."

Mrs. Marjorie Merriweather Post Hutton Davies May, who has had four husbands and is the richest "society queen" in the Capital, got an unusual birthday gift. Her numerous household servants presented her with a large and expensive flagpole — for her own flag. It is a yellow

Guinea Decides That The Reds Are Snobs

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Kennedy got one of the most encouraging reports he has had in a long time when the Republic of Guinea's President Sekou Toure came to Washington to tell him he was disenchanted with the Russians and communism.

When the former French colony on Africa's west coast voted for independence four years ago, the Paris government reacted brutally. President De Gaulle took it as a personal affront. All French aid was cut off, French administrators and professional people were withdrawn, badly needed doctors and teachers in particular.

The Russians moved into this vacuum by invitation. They thought they could easily take the country. President Toure himself leaned so far to the left in his policies and public statements that many Americans were ready to write off Guinea as lost to the free world.

In three years the Russians poured in the equivalent of $60 million in aid. For a country of only three million people in an area about the size of Oregon, that is a lot of money. In the same period, U.S. aid to Guinea has totaled only $4 million, surprisingly small. But it may not have been too unwisely spent.

The Russian Ambassador was asked to leave Guinea at the end of last year. The big embassy staff which numbered over 1,500 at its peak has been cut in half. Most of them are working on uncompleted projects and unkept Communist promises.

The Guineans are reported to have found the Russians unpleasant people. Because none of them spoke French, they were considered uncultured. They ignored the common people. They turned out to be racists and snobs — which is what the Americans were said to be when the Russians first moved in.

President Toure himself has embarked on a new program of telling his people about the evils of communism.

This is a good report to have at this time, for many Americans are inclined to panic when the Russians begin a big build-up in some new nation. Here is proof that the Russians make mistakes, too.

Evidence that the Guineans have swung out of the Russian satellite orbit is considerable. Guinea has and blue triangle that flew atop her million-dollar yacht "SEA CLOUD," which was sold several years ago. In presenting the flagpole to Mrs. May, the spokesman of the employees said, "There is a flagpole at the White House, another at the Capitol, and so on. We thought you should have one too."

At the base of the flagpole are several plaques with the names of the contributing employees.

President Kennedy's historic telecast announcing a military quarantine against Cuba played hob with the benefit concert of the Committee for the United Nations. Held in the State Department's handsome auditorium and with Isaac Stern, noted violinist, as the star attraction, the concert was only partially attended owing to many of the foreign diplomats unable to attend because of reporting to their chancelleries on the President's momentous action.

joined the World Bank and International Monetary Fund over strenuous Russian objections. Guinea has signed a private investment guarantee agreement with the United States. Guinea has asked for more U.S. Peace Corpsmen, which Russia also opposed. Guinea's votes in the United Nations have not supported Russia on the Cuban situation or on U.N. reorganization.

Some of the credit for this turnaround by President Toure is given to American officials like Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs G. Mennen Williams and Peace Corps director Sargent Shriver. In their visits to Guinea they have talked the line that all the United States wants for Africa is what the Africans themselves say they want — freedom and independence.

Taking a tip from a Russian failure, all members of the U.S. embassy staff in Guinea, except three clerks under young Ambassador William Atwood — who was in Washington when President Toure was here — speak French fluently.

But on top of these fine points, the Guineans have found that the Americans keep their promises and get things done, which the Russians did not do. Guinea has big bauxite deposits and other metals in which American companies are interested.

All this favorable development is by no means taken as an indication that Guinea is going to become a western ally. President Toure is still trying to run a socialist government.

The U.S. Information Center was closed last year because Guinea didn't want any foreign cultural influences. The French Catholic church has been nationalized. The Moslem school has been closed, though the country is 90 per cent Moslem. But Communist bookstores have also been padlocked.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Tuesday, Oct. 30, the 300th day of 1962 with 62 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars, the evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:
In 1929, heavy selling marked the first day's transactions on the New York Stock Exchange following the "big bust" of the day before.

In 1938, actor Orson Welles caused a national panic with his radio dramatization of an invasion of New Jersey by men from Mars.

In 1941, a German submarine torpedoed and sank a naval destroyer although the United States was not as yet at war with Germany.

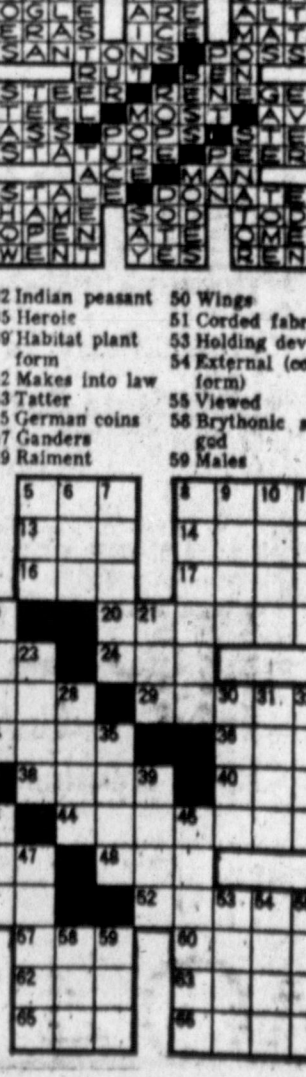

In 1948, an Army transport from Germany arrived in New York City with the first refugees to arrive in the United States under the Displaced Persons Act of 1948.

A thought for today — America's second President, John Adams, said: "The happiness of society is the end of government."

Tourist Industry May Be On The Upswing Again

AUSTIN — The Texas tourist industry may be on the upswing again after a long period of decline, the Texas Highway Department said today.

The Department reported that the number of tourists serviced this summer by its Tourist Bureaus was up 22 per cent over a year ago, while summer requests handled through its Austin mailing offices were up 26 per cent as compared to 1961. Comparison was made for the months of June, July, and August for the years 1961 and 1962.

The Highway Department's statistical research has shown a steady decline in the number of tourists visiting Texas since 1957. However, preliminary findings this year indicate that the stepped-up tourist attraction activities of the Department may be taking hold to level off this decline and encourage a moderate upswing—despite the unavailability of funds for a media advertising program to compete with other states.

As the state's official tourist agency, the Department has increased its travel promotion activities to the point where it now provides direct travel service to more than 550,000 people annually and reaches millions more through a nationwide program which generates free publicity for Texas.

The Department now distributes more than two million pieces of travel literature annually to encourage vacationing in Texas, and operates eight Tourist Bureaus at key entry points to the state. These "hospitality centers" are located at Gainesville, Denison, Texarkana, Wichita Falls, Orange, Waskom, Laredo, and Anthony (near El Paso).

They are staffed with trained Travel Counselors who make use of extensive knowledge of the state to encourage additional tourist travel on the part of visitors who stop at the bureaus.

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Campaigning Republicans cannot spare the time to mourn the loss of their No. 1 issue in this congressional election.

That issue was Cuba. President Kennedy's September - October campaign caravan encountered much evidence that the voters were worried about Cuba and were deciding to vote their unhappiness on Nov. 6. Castro and Communism in Cuba were becoming burdens too heavy for Democratic campaigners to bear.

The President effected a political switcheroo of majestic proportions with his new quarantine-Cuba policy. The Russians could not have unveiled their Cuban missile pads in more timely fashion for the good of the Kennedy Administration and the Democratic Party. The Republicans did not merely lose the campaign advantage of the Cuban issue. The President's decisive new policy boomed Democratic party and administration morale. Both had been sagging.

Demos Ahead
The campaign advantage lies now with the Democrats. The Republicans must fall back, regroup and come up with a dynamic new issue. It is fairly obvious that the Republicans should and will put dollar stability, government spending and taxation in the top spot—the issue of long-haul solvency for the treasury of the United States.

That had been the top Republican issue in the early weeks of this campaign. It is a better issue today than it was last spring. Another great fiscal year deficit is building. The Kennedy Administration is spending more and collecting less than a year ago. Even ties are financed from highway revenues. However, a national media advertising program cannot be implemented until a special appropriation is made to the Highway Department from the General Fund in accordance with state law.

so, the American taxpayer is doing his part and doing it nobly. The American taxpayer is a generous critter.

"Incomprehensible"

The current, 1962, fiscal year began at midnight last June 28, less than four months ago. The taxpayers have paid into the treasury in that period nearly $30 billion. So much money is almost incomprehensible. More easily understood is the tax collection figure for a single day. Take Oct. 18. Internal Revenue collections for that one day were $261 million—more than a quarter of a billion dollars.

This daily flood of the taxpayers' dollars into the treasury is not enough, however, to meet the bills of the congressional and executive department spenders. As of Oct. 18 they had spent so far this fiscal year $36.2 billion while collecting $29.7 billion.

The public debt is up in the past 12 months from $296 billion to $302 billion despite a permanent debt limit fixed this year at $320 billion. The end is not yet, by a big margin. The cold war is getting hot and the fuel must be taxes. Don't anticipate a tax cut next year.

Peace Time Record

Tax Foundation, Inc., of New York, calculates that the session of Congress just adjourned approved for fiscal 1963 new spending authority of about $99 billion, a peace time record. Unofficial estimates of the upcoming deficit began at $4 billion and range now to more than $7. Your dollars in your pocket, in the bank and in your insurance policy will suffer some more inflationary rot. The inflationary process is slow but it is deadly. It is like arsenic—a little at a time goes unnoticed until the accumulate poison suddenly kills. If you calculate the 1939 purchasing power of the dollar at 100 cents, the dollar is worth today $0.456 — less than half a buck.

Two-bit dollar, here we come. The helicopter is referred to as the "ugly duckling" in aircraft.

Auto Insurance

Last year alone, Allstate paid out nearly two million dollars in auto insurance dividends to policyholders in the Lone Star state.

And as of right now, Allstate is paying dividends at a rate that is 50% higher than last year's rate—to all eligible policyholders. But dividends are just one advantage of doing business with Allstate. Here are others:

- Pay in 3 installments if you wish
- No surcharges
- No "membership" fees.

And, with Allstate, you get claim service no other company can match:

5,000 full-time, salaried people who do nothing but work on claims throughout the U.S. and Canada... over 300 Allstate Drive-In Claim Centers for "on the spot" service... round the clock help, always as near as the nearest phone.

No wonder Allstate writes more auto liability insurance than any other company in the world! "May we help you?"
