

Dulaney declared winner...

52 percent back incumbent for judge

The most talked about political race in recent Scurry County history ended Tuesday with incumbent District Judge Gene Dulaney returning for his second four-year term.

Dulaney, 68, polled 52 percent of the vote, gaining majority margins in both Scurry and Borden Counties which comprise the 132nd District.

In Scurry County, Dulaney also won 11 of the 15 voting precincts. At the close of absentee balloting last Friday, however, he was behind his Democratic opponent Pete Greene, who also challenged Dulaney four years ago for the district judge's post.

With a record absentee count noted here, Greene had 907 votes to Dulaney's 875.

By the final tally Tuesday, however, it was 3,241 for the incumbent Republican and 2,932 for Greene in Scurry County.

The Borden County vote made it 3,484 for Dulaney and 3,116 for Greene, a difference of 368 votes or approximately 5.5 percent of the total.

In the Scurry County vote, Dulaney carried the majority of ballot boxes located in the rural communities. His margin here was 53 percent for combined voting at Fluvanna, Union, Knapp, Ira, Dunn, Hermleigh and Lloyd Mountain.

Of these rural boxes, Greene won at Fluvanna and Lloyd Mountain.

The combined rural vote for these seven ballot boxes was 1,019 in the judge's race.

Three ballot boxes with primarily in-city voting and large voter turnouts are located at the school administration building (Pct. 8), the national guard armory, (Pct. 18) and the Towle

Park Barn (Pct. 19).

These three boxes accounted for more than 1,600 votes Tuesday and Dulaney polled 55 percent of this total.

Voting in the central area of Snyder is concentrated in Pcts 11 (Senior Center) and 16 (county health unit). These two precincts generated 501 votes Tuesday with Greene polling 54 percent.

Three other voting precincts have mixed voting representation split between rural residents and in-city voters. They include Pcts. 12 and 15, which vote at the See JUDGE'S, page 9

In Brief

Wright mad

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright on Tuesday slammed the television networks' practice of declaring a winner in the presidential race before polls in western states had closed.

Bus accident

PLANO, Texas (AP) — Twelve middle school students complained of minor injuries and were taken to a hospital Tuesday night after a chain reaction accident involving four vehicles at a traffic light, authorities said.

Local

Vote canvass

Scurry County commissioners are scheduled to meet at 1:30 p.m. Thursday for the official canvass of returns from the Tuesday general election.

ISD break-in Sheriff's officers Wednesday morning were investigating a burglary at the school building in Hermleigh.

An officer said the burglar or burglars entered the building through an unlocked window in the boys' restroom and stole about $150 from a school office.

There was reportedly no vandalism related to the break-in.

Ornament class

Mike Thornton, director for adult education-extension services at Western Texas College, will teach a workshop on the making of chili pepper ornaments for the Christmas tree from 10 a.m. until noon Thursday at the Scurry County Museum.

There will be a workshop fee of $7. For museum members and volunteers, the cost will be $5.

Soccer meet

The Snyder Soccer Association will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Texas Electric Reddy Room. All interested persons are invited.

Siren test

The sirens will be tested in Snyder Thursday at 7 p.m., civil defense officials report.

Bentsen clips Bush's coattails in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — George Bush won the presidency with the help of his adopted home state, but Lloyd Bentsen's showing in his Senate re-election bid shortened the vice president's coattails.

Texas voters continued to move away from their solidly Democratic history Tuesday, with the GOP making gains in the Texas Supreme Court and the state legislature.

But with the immensely popular Bentsen appearing twice at the top of the ballot — as Michael Dukakis' running mate and for a fourth term in the Senate — Democrats picked up one and appeared likely to pick up another seat in Congress.

With 97 percent of the Texas vote counted by early today, Bush was leading Dukakis, 2,821,505 to 2,209,622, or 56 to 44 percent. Bentsen was beating U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, 2,956,893 to 1,973,296, or 60 to 40 percent.

"There are people right here — I recognize them — started out with me in politics in 1962," Bush told supporters at a Houston victory rally. "And you never lost faith. You never left me. And you're a source of my strength. This is a moving night for all of us."

Bentsen claimed his Senate victory early and praised Dukakis as defeat became apparent.

"I have never seen a candidate that worked any harder, or in those last three or four weeks delivered a message any stronger than did Mike Dukakis in those closing days," Bentsen said. "And he made me proud to be his partner."

Bush collected Texas' 29 electoral votes, the nation's third largest total, and exit polls portrayed his typical supporter as a white, professional male paid more than $20,000 who calls himself a conservative.

Dukakis won only 89 of 254 counties with about 80 percent of the vote counted. He scored overwhelming victories in South Texas, including a 2-to-1 margin in heavily Hispanic Cameron County, the southernmost in the U.S.

Every ballot counted in Hudspeth County, in sparsely populated far West Texas. With all 10 precincts counted, Dukakis won the county 406 to 405.

Secretary of state named

HOUSTON (AP) — President-elect George Bush, barely pausing to savor his smashing election victory, today named campaign chairman James A. Baker III to be the secretary of state in the new Republican administration.

Bush used a morning-after news conference to make the first handful of appointments in his transition team, appointing chief of staff Craig Fuller and senior campaign adviser Bob Teeter as co-directors of the transition.

His first Cabinet appointment was no surprise at all.

Democratic candidates win two-of-two area state races

Republican efforts to gain control of traditionally Democratic state senate and house seats that include Scurry County fell dramatically short in Tuesday's general election.

Despite a strong home-county showing by former Snyder Mayor Rod Waller, Democrat David Counts of Knox City won 10 of 12 counties for election to the 78th District House Seat.

Unofficial totals in the 12-county legislative district showed Counts with 18,218 votes or 58 percent. Waller managed 42 percent of the votes or a total of 12,782.

State Sen. Steve Carriker of Roby won re-election and a full four-year term in a repeat performance of last August's special election.

Unofficial returns in the vast 30-county 30th District showed Carriker, a former state representative for the 78th District, with 60 percent of the votes. The tally, with approximately 5,500 votes still out in Denton County, was 91,568 for Carriker compared with 62,211 for Republican Bobby Albert of Wichita Falls who failed again to carry his home county.

Albert was able to carry only Grayson, but by only 162 votes. Carriker's office just before noon Wednesday said that computer problems in Denton county had delayed returns.

Waller led the balloting only in Scurry and Taylor counties. In Scurry County, Waller picked up 3,636 votes for 59 percent. Counts garnered 2,468 votes in Scurry County as Waller carried 10 of Scurry County's 16 voting boxes. See COUNTS, page 9

Scurry 'splits' Bush, Bentsen vote

As they did four years ago, a majority of Scurry County residents voted Republican in the race for the U.S. presidency, supporting winner George Bush by a 63 percent margin Tuesday.

However, like most of the state, a majority of county voters switched parties for the ballot's second race, supporting Lloyd Bentsen in his return to the U.S. Senate by a 54 percent margin.

In the race for president, 3,749 individuals voted for the ticket of George Bush-Dan Quayle and 2,119 voted for Michael Dukakis-Lloyd Bentsen.

In Bentsen's senate race, he polled 3,355 here compared to 2,754 for opponent Beau Boulter of Amarillo.

An estimated 69.5 percent of the county's registered voters turned out Tuesday, falling short of a record turnout. Four years ago, when Reagan was returned for his second term, some 73 percent of local voters turned out with 6,700 ballots cast.

The official vote total for Scurry County Tuesday was 6,380 ballots out of the 9,175 registered to vote.

In other statewide races, county voters supported the two ultimate winners for seats on the Railroad Commission, endorsed the losing candidate-incumbent Paul Dunn of Levelland for the state school board seat for this region, and approved three amendments to the state constitution which also passed statewide.

In the RRC races, 64 percent of the local vote supported Jim Nugent, the Democratic candidate, over Republican Ed Emmett, and 66 percent approved Kent Hance, the Republican, over his opponent Clint Hackney for an unexpired term.

Statewide, Nugent won with 56 percent of the vote and Hance won with 54 percent.

For the state school board seat, Monte Hasie, the Republican candidate for District 15, was declared the winner over Dunn, a holdover member from the appointed board.

Final results of the election were only 94 percent complete Tuesday, but Hasie was declared the winner around 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

In the local ballot, however, Dunn was favored over Hasie, a former Lubbock school board member, by a margin of 2,936 votes to 2,672.

In amendment voting, Amendment 1, the so-called "good roads" proposal, was approved by local voters by an 88 percent margin.

Proposition 2, which would establish an economic stabilization fund in the state treasury, was supported in local voting by a 59 percent approval rate.

For Amendment 3, designed to create a Texas growth fund by using the investment of the permanent university fund, the permanent school fund and public employee retirement systems, Scurry Countians approved it by 58 percent.

Local prison project awarded one-year ago

One year ago, Snyder and Scurry County citizens were anxiously awaiting the news—but this time it was unrelated to the election process.

The decision, however, was as important to the county as any made Tuesday.

On the morning of Nov. 9, 1987, the Texas Department of Corrections board in Austin held hearings on proposals from various groups around the state, each asking that TDC build either a 2,250-man or a 1,000-man unit in their hometowns.

Early that afternoon, the news came that Snyder was one of the chosen few.

About 200 local citizens had ridden buses, a caravan of cars and airplanes to the hearing, which culminated more than two years of work here.

Construction is underway on the Price Daniel Unit five miles east of Snyder and is scheduled to be completed in late June.

Former U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, who coincidentally managed George Bush's Texas campaign for president, had headed Snyder's lobbying effort to get the prison.

At the hearing one year ago today, he commented the local bid was "the best proposal I've seen in government."

"The time has come for a prison facility in West Texas," Loeffler told the TDC board.

The groundbreaking for the new 1,000-man unit was held April 18 with an event attended by some 600 individuals. Featured speaker at that time was Charles Terrell of Dallas. See PRISON, page 9

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The teller on Deep Creek says, "If you don't learn from mistakes, there's no use making 'em."

A pharmacist in Lebanon, Mo., read an advertisement for silver coins and decided they would be a good investment. It all seemed simple enough.

The pharmacist called his broker and ordered 3,000 silver Eagles for a total price of $24,810.

As expected, the pharmacist received confirmation from PaineWebber, but it read 3,000 gold Eagles. Then a call came from the broker saying that the paperwork was in error, but would be quickly corrected. Then a second telephone call came from the brokerage house saying the error had not been straightened out.

One morning, the pharmacist received a telephone call from his local postmaster. There were six shoebox-size packages for the pharmacist but addressed to the wrong box number. Each box was insured for $155,000.

Needless to say, hometown postal officials were curious. The pharmacist, tied up at his store, asked his 79-year-old mother to pick up the gold coins.

She found the packages battered and taped up. They were so heavy that the postmaster helped carry them to her car. Following her son's instructions to be discreet, the mother answered that they were diesel parts for a backhoe.

Instead of $24,000 in silver coins, the druggist now had $886,000 in gold coins on his coffee table. After taking a snapshot, the pharmacist rented two safe deposit boxes and called his embarrassed broker.

The broker first rejected the idea of hiring an armored car to retrieve the coins, plus they balked at reimbursing the pharmacist for the safe deposit boxes. "They said mail them back, and I said come get your gold yourself."

Three weeks later, two red-faced PaineWebber officials from New York showed up with an armored car. The town's mayor and six police officers stood by during the hasty inventory of the coins.

The Wall Street Journal says PaineWebber prefers not to discuss the snafu. The pharmacist had fun—in fact he went ahead and ordered 1,000 more silver coins from the same broker, and said "Thanks PaineWebber."

Bentsen wins one, loses one

AUSTIN (AP) — Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, his hopes of becoming vice president dashed, said his re-election to a fourth Senate term will allow him to get on with the business of helping Texas.

"There's still a lot of work to do for this state which has taken so many hits," Bentsen said Tuesday after piling up a 3-2 margin over U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, a two-term Republican congressman from Amarillo.

With 98 percent of the precincts reporting, Bentsen had 3,023,341 votes, or 60 percent, to 2,023,093 or 40 percent for Boulter, 46.

Bentsen said that stretching from the Alamo to the recent economic slump, Texans always have solved problems.

"And we have always come out tougher than before, because people in this state have spirit to overcome adversity," he told happy but somewhat subdued supporters who had hoped to celebrate a Michael Dukakis-Bentsen victory at the top of the Democratic ticket.

Bentsen, 67, is chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, and Democrats said he will gain standing from his campaign as Dukakis' running mate.

"I think Lloyd Bentsen's stature has definitely risen nationally as a result of the campaign. He will be a leading spokesman of the Democratic Party in Washington," said Ed Martin, state Democratic executive director.

Bentsen's Senate victory was "an expression of confidence in an outstanding officeholder," Martin said.

Bentsen's name appeared twice on the Texas ballot under a 1959 state law written to allow Lyndon Johnson to run at the same time for U.S. Senate and the White House in 1960.

Bentsen consistently led in the polls and raised millions more than Boulter, who was awaiting election returns in Amarillo and refused to concede defeat late Tuesday night. Boulter said votes still were out in his congressional district and other conservative areas.

"No candidate who's done this well has been outspent by what I've been outspent by," said Boulter. He blasted Bentsen's dual candidacy in the campaign as a "power grab."

Bentsen had said the dual run was necessary to prevent the forfeiture of his seat, because Democrats under state law could not have put a replacement Senate candidate on the ballot if he had dropped his candidacy.

Sakharov given medical tests

BOSTON (AP) — Following his wife's example, Soviet human rights activist Andrei Sakharov underwent a heart examination as part of his first trip to the West.

The 67-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner, who was examined Tuesday, might receive a pacemaker to regulate his heartbeat before returning to Moscow, a family member said. Sakharov suffers from chronic angina, or chest pain.

His wife, Yelena Bonner, came to the same hospital, Massachusetts General, for heart bypass surgery in 1986.

The hospital said it would not release test results or provide any other medical information for the next 10 to 14 days, at the request of Sakharov's family.

His son-in-law, Efrem Yankelevich, says if doctors decide a pacemaker is needed, Sakharov will undergo surgery before returning to the Soviet Union later this month.

The physician is scheduled to fly home Nov. 18, but relatives and colleagues have said his visa is flexible and could be extended.

Yankelevich said last week that pacemakers, which are implanted under the skin, are not generally available in the Soviet Union.

Though frail, Sakharov has maintained a demanding schedule and appears to be in generally good health.

He is believed to have suffered a minor stroke when Soviet authorities force-fed him during a 1985 hunger strike.

That fast, which lasted several weeks, prompted the Soviet authorities to allow his wife to come to Boston for heart surgery. She had suffered two heart attacks.

Sakharov was also weakened by a hunger strike in 1981, said Joshua Rubenstein, an Amnesty International specialist on Soviet dissidents. That 18-day fast forced the Soviets to allow a young woman, Elizaveta Alekseyeva, to emigrate to the United States to marry Sakharov's stepson, Alexei Semyonov.

Sakharov has commented little on his physical condition. Asked at a news conference Monday about his health, he said only that "it hasn't changed either way" recently.

Loving Wife Treasures What's In Husband's Head, Not on It

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for three years. He's a wonderful man and I love him dearly, but here's the problem: He wears a hairpiece and he's very secretive about it. He knows that I know he wears a hairpiece, but I have never seen him without it, and I feel as though he is almost hiding something from me. He doesn't sleep in it, but he insists on having our bedroom pitch-dark at night.

I would never ask him to let me see him without his hairpiece because I know how sensitive he is about it, but I'm sure he would be just as handsome without it.

Lately he has talked more openly about it, telling me how a hairpiece is made, fitted, etc. Wearing a hairpiece can be an inconvenience at times. Do you think I should tell him that if he's wearing it for me, he doesn't have to?

LOVING WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't hit him with it between the grapefruit and the cornflakes, but when he mentions his hairpiece again, tell him how you feel about it. A man who wears one wears it because he thinks he looks better with it — and many do, if it's styled and fitted properly. But the more openness and less "hiding," the better the relationship.

not bring their children. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest.

IMPOSED UPON

DEAR IMPOSED UPON: You can't be imposed upon without your cooperation. It should not be necessary to specify "no children." And if a working person shows up with a child in tow, he (or she) should be set straight. And promptly.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a poem titled "Equality Day," sent to you by Kris Cavosie, who had found it in a newsletter published by the Nebraska Coalition of Women. You stated that the author was unknown.

Well, I am the author. I wrote that poem in 1973 when I first became aware of the need for women's liberation. However, I've always felt that the quest for women's liberation is not anti-men — that men as well as women have much to gain.

I am happy to allow non-profit organizations to use my poem. All I ask is that I be credited as the author. Over the years, this poem has surfaced in many publications. It's been fascinating and rewarding to see the distance this "child" of mine has traveled, and now it's made "Dear Abby."

Voters in Texas okay three amendments

AUSTIN (AP) — Voter approval of three constitutional amendments designed to save, protect and invest money will help modernize the way state government handles its finances, according to the author of two of the proposals.

"These are tiny steps where we start becoming a part of the rest of the country," said state Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, who wrote two of the amendments and supported all three, which were overwhelmingly endorsed by voters Tuesday.

Schlueter said the amendments will put Texas in step with most other states when it comes to handling its budget.

Proposition 1 guarantees all federal highway money reimbursed to Texas for highway projects is used for those projects.

Proposition 2 creates the "Rainy Day Fund." It calls for any state budget surpluses to be set aside for spending in other years when revenues fall short of projections.

Proposition 3, dubbed the "Texas Growth Fund," grants more investment flexibility to trustees of the state's two education funds and two state-employee pension funds, including permission to invest in the growth fund.

With 83 percent of the precincts reporting, Proposition 1 was favored by 2,894,012 to 440,867, or 86.8 percent to 13.2 percent; Proposition 2 was ahead 1,971,886 to 1,239,915, or 61.4 percent to 38.6 percent; and Proposition 3 was winning by 2,061,038 to 1,218,417, or 62.8 percent to 37.2 percent.

The three propositions resulted from last year's bruising legislative session, where lawmakers were faced with a staggering $6 billion deficit and a record $5.7 billion tax hike.

Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis supported all three amendments.

No organized opposition to the amendments surfaced, although the Texas League of Women Voters recommended their defeat. The group opposes dedicating money through the Texas Constitution, arguing that such restrictions limit lawmakers' options when writing a state budget.

Supporters of Proposition 1 said it would protect highway money from lawmakers who might try to use the federal reimbursement for items not related to roads.

Supporters of Proposition 2 said saving surplus revenues could help during hard economic times, but opponents said the state shouldn't stockpile money when many state services are underfunded.

Dukakis waited too long, Democrats say

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 600 Democratic Party supporters, acknowledging disappointment in the party's presidential defeat, said Michael Dukakis lost the race because he waited too long to answer George Bush's negative campaign.

Other supporters and state officials said Dukakis waited too long to answer Bush's campaign ad that criticized a Massachusetts prison furlough program and charged that Dukakis was soft on crime and defense.

"Obviously, Bush's negative advertisements hurt Dukakis, and the governor was reluctant to fight back," said Matt Pierce, a Boston native attending graduate school at the University of Texas.

"Dukakis decided to take the high ground, which was a mistake," said Pierce, 22.

The Democratic supporters gathered at the historic Driskill Hotel and throughout the evening were optimistic that Dukakis and vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen would pull out a victory.

Bentsen was assured a victory over Beau Boulter in his re-election bid for the U.S. Senate, but he delayed his acceptance speech in that race until he knew where the presidential race was heading.

When he walked into a ballroom about 9:45 p.m., the supporters cheered him on as he accepted the Senate victory, but refused to concede the presidential race.

"The night is still early," he said, leaving it up to Dukakis to concede the election.

Later, after Dukakis conceded defeat, the party began to disband and more jeers went up from the remaining crowd when Bush accepted the victory and other Texas Republicans rode his coattails to victories in other races.

"I'm just sorry that the Democrats didn't push harder to go ahead," said Sheri Kocurek, who drove from Houston for the Democratic celebration.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, who is expected to seek the Democratic nomination for governor in 1990, said Bush shed the "wimp" label and Dukakis never was able to shed the "liberal" image that Bush cast on him.

"George Bush's handlers were really good and they ought to be commended," Mattox said.

Phillips elected chief justice

AUSTIN (AP) — Tom Phillips, a Harvard Law School graduate, who campaigned with a GOP "reform slate" trying to break the Democratic lock on the Texas Supreme Court, says he hopes his election as chief justice will establish some new precedents for judicial campaigns.

Phillips on Tuesday became the first Republican to win that post in modern times as he defeated Justice Ted Robertson, a 67-year-old Democrat.

With 98.8 percent of the precincts reporting, Phillips led Robertson 56.5 percent to 43.5 percent.

Noting that CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" program asked last year, "Is justice for sale?" in Texas, Phillips had refused to accept any campaign contribution over $5,000 and criticized his opponent for not placing limits on his donors.

Phillips said he hopes such limits "will dispel the 'justice for sale' image '60 Minutes' came up with."

Three Democrats defeated their Republican opponents but Phillips' victory was sweetened with a win by fellow Republican Nathan Hecht, who ousted incumbent Justice Bill Kilgarlin in a tight contest. The GOP effort was the most ambitious GOP challenge for the high court since Reconstruction.

With the strong GOP showing, Phillips, 39, was asked if Texas is now a two-party state in judicial elections.

"If it was 1 1/2, now it's at least 1 3/4," he replied.

Democratic Justice Raul Gonzalez, who two years ago became the first Hispanic to win a statewide office in Texas, defeated Dallas appeals court judge Charles Ben Howell, a Republican who got the cold shoulder from GOP activists. Gonzalez led 56.7 percent to 41.8 percent.

The other Democratic winners were Austin lawyer Lloyd Doggett, who rebounded from his 1984 U.S. Senate loss to defeat Houston appeals court judge Paul Murphy, and former North Texas Congressman Jack Hightower, who spoiled GOP Justice Barbara Culver's bid to become the first woman elected to the court.

Ms. Culver is one of three Republicans, including Phillips and Eugene Cook of Houston, who joined the court this year as appointees of Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

With 98.8 percent of the vote counted, Doggett, a 10-year veteran of the state Senate, led Murphy 54.9 percent to 45.1 percent. Hightower, who was ousted from Congress in 1984, was up 56.6 percent to 44.4 percent over Ms. Culver.

Cook, who carried the nickname "Clean Gene," edged Democrat Karl Bayer, another Austin lawyer. Cook garnered 51.7 percent of the votes cast while Bayer captured 48.3 percent.

The race between Democrat Kilgarlin and Hecht, a Dallas appeals court judge, was tight throughout Tuesday's voting. When it was over, Hecht had 50.2 percent of the vote to Kilgarlin's 49.8 percent.

Kilgarlin was one of two sitting Supreme Court justices who were publicly rebuked last year by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

Little trumps mean a lot

By James Jacoby

A very normal way to take tricks on defense is to use a low trump for ruffing if declarer has not had a chance to take that trump away from you. You can also make a similar play as declarer when you're left with a trump smaller than the defenders'. Score it by ruffing, and you'll often make a contract that you thought was failing.

Follow today's play carefully. Declarer ducked the opening spade lead in dummy. East won the queen and played back the deuce of diamonds. After taking dummy's ace of diamonds, declarer led a low heart from dummy, losing his queen to West's king. West led back a diamond, ruffed by declarer. Now a heart was played to dummy's ace. The jack of clubs was played from dummy, and East's four. South's two and West's nine completed the trick. Then came dummy's 10 of clubs, king from East and ace from South, with West showing out. That meant declarer had a club loser to go with two heart losers and the spade already lost at trick one. But look what happened. Declarer played a spade to dummy's ace and ruffed another diamond. Then he ruffed a spade in dummy and led another diamond. What could East do? If he came in with his master trump, South would simply discard a losing club. If he shed a club, South would make his last little trump and cash the club queen for 10 tricks.

Four Who Care
On November 5th many Snyder residents participated in the American Heart Association Turkey Walk. I would like to thank all those who did; however, I would like to specifically thank

* Audine McCann Mae Phariss
* Mary Palacios Dixie Rogers

These four individuals have once again shown why the caring staff at Snyder Nursing Center has made us Snyder's leader in long-term health care. Thanks again for your time and effort.

Bush waltzed across Texas

DALLAS (AP) — George Bush won the county of his adopted home, the county of his first job and even Reagan County (no relation, of course) in his sweeping victory waltz across Texas.

In all, with more than 90 percent of the ballot boxes counted in Texas, Bush carried 165 of 254 counties Tuesday, scoring major areas of support in urban centers such as Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth.

The president-elect also carried the counties of predominantly Hispanic San Antonio and El Paso, although Democrat Michael Dukakis showed overwhelming support in South Texas.

And Dukakis supporters found every vote counted in Hudspeth County. With 10 of 10 precincts in, Dukakis won that county, 406 to 405.

It had to be small consolation. Starr County, one of poorest in nation, went for Dukakis with vigor, 6,091 to only 1,141, with 10 of 12 boxes counted. In fact most of the Rio Grande Valley went for the Spanish-speaking Democrat, who carried the southernmost county in the nation, Cameron.

Dukakis also showed some scattered strength in parts of West Texas, parts of East Texas — Jefferson County cast 39,470 for him compared to 25,026 for Bush — and Travis County, home of the state capital, Austin.

Bush received huge vote chunks in Dallas County and its surrounding suburbs (Collin County, home to Plano, went 67,776 to 22,934 for Bush). He also won Tarrant County, which is home to Democratic House Speaker Jim Wright.

Midland County, where he began his business career, returned for him: 30,288 to only 8,277. So did Ector County, where he once lived, by a 2-to-1 margin.

Pegged to start against Vikings...

Sweeney will get his chance

DALLAS (AP) - Kevin Sweeney has one game to prove he deserves to be the starting quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys.

If he doesn't produce against the Minnesota Vikings on Sunday, Steve Pelluer could have his job back.

"I'm getting my shot, and that's all I've ever asked for," Sweeney said. "I'm not going to say I'm out there to terrorize the NFL. I just hope the players rally with me and we can win the next six games."

He added, "I have to face the test before I can give the answers."

Pelluer said he wasn't surprised at Tom Landry's decision to replace him.

"I will be as supportive of Kevin as I can. But I have the confidence I can do the job if I get it back. This is just one step back in my career," Pelluer said.

Landry announced on Tuesday that Sweeney, whom he once cut after training camp, is his starter for the time being.

"Kevin earned the start, but the worse thing that can happen is for people to expect him to be a miracle worker against the Vikings," Landry said.

With the Cowboys trailing 26-0, Sweeney - a seventh-round pick in 1987 - came off the bench to replace Pelluer for the second half of Sunday's game with the New York Giants. Sweeney threw three touchdown passes, and Dallas lost only 29-21.

Dallas has lost its last six games in a row and is 2-8 for the season under Pelluer as a starter.

Landry said starting is a lot more difficult than being the relief quarterback.

"It's a little different when you tee it up from the first tee," Landry said. "Kevin is confident and I believe he will get the job done, but we can't expect miracles. It will be interesting to see what he can do."

Sweeney started and won two games last year as a member of the "Rhinstone Cowboys" replacement team.

"The players have a lot of respect for him," Landry said. "He is exciting and he has the ability to throw deep. Some say he isn't mobile enough but when you run for your life you can get pretty fast."

Landry said Pelluer took his demotion in stride.

"He was fine," Landry said. "He is a team player."

Asked if he was influenced by club president Tex Schramm, a longtime Sweeney backer, Landry quipped "No, Tex lets me dig my own graves."

But Schramm was clearly pleased with the choice.

"The fans are anxious to see some excitement. I've said all along, it's up to us to create the excitement," Schramm said. "There was just something special about Sweeney in the replacement games. Of course, once he starts, he has to perform like anybody else."

Asked how long he thought a fan honeymoon with Sweeney would last, Schramm said, "Oh, probably about two interceptions."

The player reaction was immediately positive.

"Why not give the guy a shot?" asked linebacker Steve DeOssie. "He's played great and deserves it. It will get the team pumped up, that's for sure. It will be exciting."

Landry said Sweeney must earn the starter's job from week to week.

"Pelluer is tough enough to handle this," Landry said. "If Sweeney keeps playing well, then he has a chance to stay as the starter. He's the starter now, but that doesn't mean anything in the permanence of the position. I'm not disappointed in Steve at all."

Report indicates Smith gets 30-day suspension

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers nose tackle Doug Smith was suspended for 30 days for violating the NFL's substance abuse policy, a newspaper reported today.

Smith, who is having the best season of his four-year career, will miss a minimum of four games under terms of the NFL policy, the Houston Chronicle reported.

"I don't know anything about it. I'll be there (practice) tomorrow as far as I know," Smith told the Chronicle Tuesday night.

Oilers officials had no comment on Smith's suspension late Tuesday. No one was at Oilers' office today and a call by The Associated Press to a spokesman for the team went unanswered.

George Kickliter, his Alabama-based agent, did not return the Chronicle's telephone calls.

Smith, who was tested under the reasonable-cause portion of the league policy, becomes the 20th player suspended by the NFL this season.

The Oilers will be able to replace Smith on the roster. He will be placed on the reserve non-football illness list. Because the trading deadline passed last month, the team probably will have to sign a nose tackle to play a reserve role until Smith returns.

Smith was involved in controversy in early September when he had two consecutive unexcused absences. Coach Jerry Glanville sent him home when he showed up for practice.

Texas, Texas Tech get jump on early national signing day

by The Associated Press

The early national basketball signing period started today, with Texas and Texas Tech expected to get a jump on their Southwest Conference counterparts in signatures of top high school and junior college players.

High school or junior college players who don't commit in the early signing period, which extends through next Wednesday, must wait until April 13.

Texas already has an oral commitment from 6-4 Tony Watson of Pflugerville, who averaged 28 points, seven rebounds and four assists as a junior.

Tech's Red Raiders already have an oral commitment from Barron Brown, a 6-3 guard from Lancaster, and Tech is expected to sign 6-1 Leslie Wallace of Lubbock, who can play either guard spot and is regarded as one of the state's top players.

Texas was waiting to hear from 6-7 Jamal Faulkner of Queens, N.Y., considered one of the nation's top 15 players, who said he had narrowed his choices to Texas and Pitt.

Cory Lockridge, 6-9, of Abilene, who averaged 10 points and 11 rebounds last season, said he would choose between Texas, Texas Tech, Lamar University and Miami, Fla.

Bart Beasley, a 6-8 forward from Eustace, indicated he would decide today between Texas and Texas Tech. Beasley earlier committed orally to Southern Methodist, but reneged on that commitment after SMU officials grilled him at length about his academics, even though he passed his SAT.

Houston was expected to sign Derek Smith, a 6-5 swingman from Humble, who averaged 19.4 points and 14.1 rebounds as a junior.

Rice had oral commitments from four players who were expected to sign in the early period. They were 6-9 Brent Scott of Lansing, Mich., 5-11 Marvin Moore of Killeen, 6-6 Scott Tynes of Klein Forest, and 6-5 Dejuan Eubanks of Dallas Kimball.

Greg Kinzer, 6-10, of Richardson Berkner gave an oral commitment to SMU, and Arkansas had an oral commitment from 6-6 Clyde Fletcher of Westark Community College.

Andre McGee, a 6-foot point guard from Corpus Christi King narrowed his choices to New Mexico and Texas, but said he would wait until next spring to commit. His coach, Sam Odoms, said McGee, who averaged 21.5 points and 10 assists as a junior, might also consider Providence, Oklahoma, Colorado and Colorado State.

Houston was expected to be the choice of two Jacksonville College stars - 6-9 Carl Herrera and 6-6 Armando Becker, but they said they plan to wait until next spring to sign. They led Jacksonville to an eighth-place finish last season in the National Junior College Tournament.

Jacksonville coach Vernon Harton is the father of University of Houston assistant coach Ray Harton, and Houston is the only school Herrera and Becker have visited officially.

Cat football teams play

Snyder underclassmen football teams wrap up their respective seasons Thursday night.

In the only out of town contest, Snyder freshmen play in Monahans at 6 p.m.

Locally, the seventh graders play Midland Greenwood at 5 p.m. at Travis Field. The eighth grade tests Greenwood at 5 p.m. at Tiger Stadium followed by a 7 p.m. game pitting Snyder and Monahans junior varsity squads.

Miles, Dumas are victors

Miles ran past Three Way and Dumas downed Leander in state volleyball playoff action Tuesday at Snyder High School Gym.

Miles defeated Three Way 15-2, 15-3 in a Class 1A matchup while 4-1A champion Dumas whipped Leander 15-3, 15-7.

In other area action, defending state and District 4-4A champion Pecos outlasted Taylor 15-17, 15-5, 15-11, while Alpine stopped Brownfield in Class 3A, 15-5, 15-6.

Also, Seminole defeated Fabens 15-9, 15-4 in a 3A shootout while Plains upended Bronte in Class 1A, 16-14, 15-6.

Dusters here Thursday

Western Texas College's Lady Dusters make their home debut here Friday, matching up with rival South Plains in Scurry County Coliseum.

The two Western Junior College Athletic Conference teams also play Saturday in the coliseum. Both games start at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Season passes will be honored.

The games pit the coaches' preseason No. 1 and 2 teams. Coach Lyndon Hardin's Lady Texans of SPC are the favorite to win the WJCAC. The games Friday and Saturday will not be conference contests, however.

Western is 5-2 for the season while South Plains is 5-0.

Scrimmages Thursday

Snyder High School basketball teams, gearing up for the 1988-89 season, scrimmage here Thursday.

Coach Larry Scott's Tigers take on Merkel at 5:30 p.m. in Scurry County Coliseum.

Snyder varsity girls will entertain Klondike and Roscoe in scrimmage action at the high school gym. The girls will begin playing about 4 p.m.

Klondike and Roscoe girls will also bring junior varsity teams. They will join Snyder freshmen in scrimmages at Gym 1, one of the practice gyms on the SHS campus.

Snyder varsity girls open their season Nov. 14 by hosting Abilene Cooper. Snyder boys open their season Nov. 18 in Abilene.

Canseco AP player of year

NEW YORK (AP) - While Oakland right fielder Jose Canseco doesn't consider himself a part of baseball history, he already has some historic numbers.

Canseco, the first major leaguer to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases in one season, was selected The Associated Press Player of the Year on Tuesday.

In a landslide result, Canseco received 141½ votes from a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. Los Angeles right-hander Orel Hershiser was runner-up with 13 votes followed by Minnesota's Kirby Puckett with five votes and Boston's Mike Greenwell with 4½. The balloting was conducted after the World Series.

On Aug. 6, Canseco stole his 30th base to become the 11th player to reach the 30-30 club, joining such all-time greats as Willie Mays and Hank Aaron. On Sept. 23, Canseco took his place alone in baseball history when he stole his 40th base.

"I don't think I'm going to be a person to fit in (baseball history)," Canseco said. "I think the fans and the press will put it in some kind of category."

The fans put Canseco in the All-Star game at Cincinnati by naming him on more ballots than any other player in the American League.

"It means a lot because it shows the improvement I've made between 1986 and 1988," said Canseco, who was married earlier this month.

Canseco hit 240 in 1986 with 33 homers and 117 runs batted in en route to the American League Rookie of the Year award. In 1987, he had 31 homers and 113

RBI. This season, it all came together as he led the majors with 42 homers and 124 RBI while hitting .307.

The AL charts 17 different offensive categories and Canseco ranked in the top 10 in 12 of them.

Canseco has homered more times in his first three full seasons (106) than anyone but Eddie Mathews (112) and Joe DiMaggio (107).

6-Man poll

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) -

Christoval will carry the favorite's banner into the state high school six-man football playoffs later this week after sweeping top honors in the final Lubbock Avalanche-Journal weekly poll.

The Cougars, 9-0, who battle Loraine Friday at Bronte, captured all six first-place votes in balloting by a panel of West Texas sports writers.

Although Christoval was able to hold onto its No.1 slot, other teams weren't so fortunate.

Lohn, ranked No.1 throughout the season until a 78-74 loss to Christoval Oct. 30, lost a 58-48 decision to Panther Creek Friday and dropped from second to No. 8.

May, despite a 46-15 win against Sidney, dropped out of the top 10.

Here is the final Lubbock Avalanche-Journal weekly high school six-man football poll with season's records and points (based on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1):

1, Christoval (9-0) 60. 2, Trent (10-0), 51. 3, Zephyr (9-0), 50. 4, Fort Hancock (10-0), 37. 5, New Home (9-0), 35. 6, Milford (9-0), 22. 7, Cherokee (9-1), 18. 8, Lohn (7-2), 17. 9, Bovina (6-3), 11. 10 (tie), Harrold (9-0), 9, and Lazbuddie (9-1), 9.

New Republican state senator added

AUSTIN (AP) — Democrats remain in firm control of the Texas Legislature although several House seats are switching hands and Republicans are making a slight dent in the state Senate.

One of the biggest surprises after Tuesday's voting was the narrow defeat of eight-term state Rep. Ed Watson, D-Deer Park.

Watson lost his southeast Harris County district to Republican Mike Jackson, president of a La Porte construction company, by just 17 votes out of nearly 26,000 cast. Unofficial results put Jackson ahead, 12,953 to 12,936.

Republican Party Chairman Fred Meyer remained optimistic even though the party failed to gain the five to 15 seats in the House he had predicted.

"We're picking up across the board in this state, both at the local level and the statewide level," Meyer said.

But Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, called the legislative races "a wash."

"If we break even in the House, that would be a big setback" for Republicans, he said.

If nearly complete figures hold up today, Democrats will lose one seat but still outnumber Republicans 24-7 in the state Senate. In the House, the count of 94 Democrats and 56 Republicans will show the same pre-election breakdown.

The lone GOP Senate gain came in the seat that had been held by Democrat Bill Sarpalius, who stepped down for what appeared to be a successful run for that area's congressional seat.

Republican Teel Bivins was leading Mel Phillips 64,507 to 46,779, or 58 to 42 percent, with 88 percent of the precincts reporting.

Across the state in East Texas, a hard-fought campaign was coming down to the wire with the lead changing hands several times. Richard Anderson, the incumbent Democrat, led Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, 66,647 to 66,020 with 88 percent of the precincts reported.

Although 15 Senate seats were up for grabs, Republicans and Democrats squared off in only seven races. Incumbents dominated the remaining contests.

Sens. Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite; Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin; Robert "Bob" Glasgow, D-Stephenville; and Cyndi Taylor Krier, R-San Antonio, all won re-election. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, also won re-election to a seat he won earlier this year in a special election when Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, resigned to work for the University of Texas.

In the House, 59 races were contested.

Democrats defeated one Republican incumbent, led another and won two open seats that had been in Republican hands.

Republicans unseated one Democrat, took two open seats previously held by Democrats and led in another.

Parker McCollough, D-Georgetown, defeated Republican incumbent Randall Riley, R-Round Rock, 27,993 to 25,203, or 52 percent to 46.8 percent.

Todd Hunter, D-Corpus Christi, defeated Republican Gene Seaman in District 36, which was Republican Ted Roberts' seat before he stepped down. And Democrat Floyd Holder defeated Republican Delwin Jones in District 83 in Lubbock to take back Republican Ron Givens' seat.

Libby Linebarger, D-Manchaca, led incumbent Republican Anne Cooper, 18,434 to 15,687, or 54 percent to 46 percent, with 75 percent of the precincts counted.

On the Republican side, Bill Thomas of Greenville defeated Lowell G. Walker for the seat vacated by Democrat Bob Aiken.

Republican Kenneth "Kim" Brimer, R-Arlington, defeated Richard Millsap, D-Fort Worth. The seat was open after Millsap's brother, Mike, resigned to become an executive assistant to House Speaker Gib Lewis. Brimer had lost to Mike Millsap two years ago.

In addition to upsetting Watson, Republicans were leading in Big Spring, where Troy Fraser outpaced Johnnie Lou Avery, 15,378 to 14,554, or 51.4 percent to 48.6 percent, with 96 percent of the precincts counted.

Ethics problems claim congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voters threw out a pair of congressmen entangled in ethics problems, but returned a hauntingly familiar House of Representatives that for the 35th straight year will be dominated by Democrats.

As the last votes were being counted early today, the same voters who chose Republican presidential candidate George Bush were on the verge of padding a Democratic margin in the House that had stood at 255-177 in the 100th Congress with three vacancies.

It would be the first time in 28 years that the party losing the presidency still managed to gain ground in the House. Early today Democrats had won 253 seats and led for eight others, compared to 170 Republican victories and four GOP leads.

The enormous financial and other advantages that incumbents possess proved the key dynamic in Tuesday's voting. Ninety-nine percent of the 408 representatives seeking new terms were on their way to re-election early today.

Democrats claimed the results proved that voters preferred their policies, with Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee chairman Rep. Beryl Anthony, D-Ark., saying, "They gave us their vote of confidence."

Republicans contested that. House Minority Leader Bob

Michel said the amount of money incumbents raise has become "incredible."

Whatever caused the incumbent tide, it was not enough to pull at least three legislators to victory.

Fourteen-term Rep. Fernand St Germain, D-R.I., chairman of the House Banking Committee, was beaten by GOP attorney Ronald Machtley. Just two weeks before Election Day, a 5-month-old Justice Department letter had been unsealed, referring to "substantial evidence of serious and sustained misconduct" by St Germain for allegedly accepting favors from lobbyists.

The department has referred its findings to the House ethics committee, which has yet to say what it will do.

"Believe me, I wanted to be re-elected, but I am looking forward to all of a sudden spending a little time with my wife and my two daughters," said St Germain, 60.

The last chairman of a House panel to be defeated was Oregon Rep. Al Ullman, who headed the Ways and Means Committee until his 1980 loss. Rep. Henry Gonzales, D-Texas, is likely to succeed St Germain as banking chairman.

In suburban Atlanta, Ben Jones, a Democrat who portrayed Cooter on television's "The Dukes of Hazzard," ousted two-term Republican Rep. Pat Swindall in one of the country's most bitter campaigns.

The campaign centered on Jones' past arrests and alcohol problems, and Swindall's election-eve perjury indictment in a drug money laundering case. Swindall took his defeat with a smile and led his supporters in a rendition of "Amazing Grace."

Democrats had much to smile about in Texas. On the Gulf Coast, Republican Rep. Mac Sweeney, a two-term incumbent, lost to Democratic lawyer Greg Laughlin, and state Sen. Bill Sarpalius was leading GOP hopeful Larry Milner for a vacant Panhandle seat.

Democrats also scooped up a vacant seat previously held by a Republican in Nebraska when former state Sen. Peter Hoagland defeated Jerry Schenken, a doctor. The two candidates raised $1.7 million between them in their fight for the district that had been represented by Rep. Hal Daub, who ran unsuccessfully for Senate.

The GOP struck back in Florida, grabbing the north central seat left vacant by Democratic Rep. Buddy MacKay, who was running for the Senate. Republican businessman Cliff Stearns defeated state House Speaker Jon Mills for the seat.

Two lawmakers whose names came up during the federal probe into fraud at the Pentagon found themselves locked in tight races. Ten-term Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla., found himself leading Republican Craig James by only 12 votes with 97 percent of the tallies in.

In Maryland, Democratic Rep. Roy Dyson, retained his seat by an eyelash. He led Republican Wayne Gilchrest by about 1,500 votes with all but 1 percent of the precincts counted. Dyson also received negative publicity this year when his top aide killed himself after revelations of unusual personal demands he had made on male staff workers.

In the country's only legitimate three-way battle, Republican Peter Smith became Vermont's sole House member, edging out Burlington mayor Bernard Sanders, a socialist, by 42-39 percent. Democrat Paul Poirier finished with 19 percent.

The most expensive contest in the nation — a $2.3 million affair — was in the Santa Barbara, Calif., district that will be President Reagan's home when he leaves the White House in January. GOP Rep. Robert Lagomarsino, a seven-term incumbent, was holding off Democratic state Sen. Gary K. Hart — no relation to former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart — by 6,000 votes with half the ballot counted.

Witnesses call B-1 bomber pilot 'hero'

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Witnesses are calling the pilot of an Air Force B-1B bomber a hero for staying with the burning plane long enough to steer it away from farm houses and trailer parks and into the cow pasture where it crashed.

All four men on the plane, including Capt. George M. Gover, ejected safely near Dyess Air Force Base on Tuesday afternoon.

The three crewmen bailed out first, then Gover ejected about a half-mile away after turning the plane toward an unpopulated area, said Walter Gilstrap, who drove his pickup truck through the fields to rescue the crewmen.

"In my mind, what that pilot did was not only save the lives of his crew but the lives of civilians in the area," Gilstrap said. "He rode it out for as long as he could and set it down where no one would be hurt. That's what he did. They ought to give that man a Distinguished Flying Cross."

Air Force officials said the crash occurred on a routine training flight near Dyess, which is the home base for 29 B-1Bs.

Air Force officials Tuesday night would not speculate on the cause of the crash. They set up a roadblock and sealed off an area around the crash site.

Air Force spokesman Al Dostal said wreckage was scattered over an area 7 miles long and 2 miles wide.

At Dyess, Air Force spokeswoman Beverly Foster said a team of military investigators would examine the wreck Wednesday.

Pilot Gover and the three other crewmen, Capt. Michael E. Waters, aircraft commander; Capt. Charles M. Zarza, offensive systems operator; and 1st Lt. Anton Eret Jr., defensive systems operator, were all in good condition late Tuesday at the Dyess Air Force Base hospital, said Air Force spokeswoman Linda Gellnere.

Gilstrap said he was eating a bowl of soup in the Tye Truck Stop just west of Abilene, where he has a knife-sharpening stand, when people around him started yelling about a plane on fire.

"I looked out the window and saw three parachutes and I knew what was happening," he said. "So I got in the truck and drove — I kind of had the coordinates figured out — I drove to where I thought they would be."

Gilstrap found the three crewmen scattered about one field, while the pilot a half-mile away in a different pasture.

There were flames in the field where he picked up the crewmen, but not close enough to burn them, Gilstrap said. Witnesses said flames from the crash rose 10 stories in the air and smoke was seen 20 miles away.

Gilstrap said two men were able to get into the truck's cab, and the third, who was "scratched up a little from landing in some trees," got into the bed of the truck.

"They were all in shock," he said. "They hugged me and I hugged them and two of them asked me to call their wives."

He dropped the men off at a nearby road where Air Force rescue crews were waiting, Gilstrap said.

"That pilot," he said, "that guy is a hero. That's coming from a shade-tree expert, but that's what I say."

Another witness, Lou Paulsen, said the plane was flying about 2 miles north of Interstate 20 near Tye when smoke spewed from its left engine.

"At first there was just a puff of smoke, then fire," Paulsen told the Abilene Reporter-News. "It looked like it started to go out, then it flared up big."

Paulsen, an Air Force reserve member, said the pilot apparently abandoned hope of returning to Dyess and turned the plane to ditch it in the fields.

"The last parachute came out seconds before the plane crashed in a ravine in an unpopulated area," Paulsen said.

Air Force officials said all B-1Bs in Texas are based at the 96th Bombardment Wing, 12th Air Division, 15th Air Force (SAC), at Dyess.

The B-1Bs were built at a cost of $204.1 million a piece in 1987 by Rockwell International Corp. It is the first new long-range bomber to be produced by the United States in more than 25 years.

Republican incumbent said ousted

DALLAS (AP) — Democrat Greg Laughlin began to campaign almost from the day he narrowly lost the 1986 District 14 congressional race to incumbent Republican Mac Sweeney, but his long-haul effort paid off.

Laughlin's win Tuesday over Sweeney gave the Democrats their 19th seat in Texas' 27-member U.S. House delegation.

The delegation's 25 other incumbents — including House Speaker Jim Wright — won a trip back to Washington, and the outcome of a tight race for the state's only vacant seat was put on hold due to a mechanical vote-counting snafu in populous Randall County.

With all but a handful of the votes counted, Laughlin led Sweeney by 6 percentage points in the South Texas district. Laughlin's winning margin was greater than the 6,600-vote nail-biter through which Sweeney returned to Congress in 1986. Sweeney, a Wharton insurance executive, was swept into office in President Reagan's 1984 landslide.

Laughlin said his unsuccessful run at Sweeney taught him to be better organized, and aid from the national Democratic organization also helped.

"People knew me better and I worked at getting better known in the district and listening and meeting people," said Laughlin, an attorney from West Columbia, near Lake Jackson.

In the Panhandle's District 13, state Sen. Bill Sarpalius and his Republican opponent, Larry Milner, waited through the night for results of their race for the seat that Republican Beau Boulter vacated for his unsuccessful run for U.S. Senate.

The breakdown of Randall County's ballot-counting computer prevented the tallying, of almost 40,000 votes from the heavily Republican county. Democrat Sarpalius held a commanding lead with 93 percent of the vote tabulated.

"I feel good about Randall County. I just don't see Larry picking up 14,000 votes in addition to what we would be getting," Sarpalius said early today.

Voters returned 17 Democratic incumbents to Congress while the GOP will have at least eight representatives. Along with Republican Jack Fields, Speaker Wright and four other Democrats were re-elected in uncontested races.

2 RR commissioners fight off challengers

DALLAS (AP) — Republican Kent Hance and Democrat Jim Nugent torpedoed major challenges to retain their posts on the Texas Railroad Commission, and both attributed their victories to positive, upbeat campaigns.

Hance defeated Democrat Clint Hackney by a 55-to-45 percent margin Tuesday in a race marked by Hackney's criticism of Hance for neglecting commission business to attend OPEC meetings.

The commission is a three-member panel that regulates the oil and gas, railroad and trucking industries in Texas.

Appointed to the post last year by Gov. Bill Clements, the Republican incumbent attributed his win to what he called his "positive" campaign.

"Even when our opponent got negative ... we remained positive," Hance said after his victory. "We just ignored him because I didn't have time to teach him the issues."

Hance said he thought his insistence that Texas become more involved in the world oil scene, including attending meetings of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, helped him win.

"I think that was positive," he said. "We made a decision to speak up for Texas."

Hance and Hackney were battling for the remaining two years of an unexpired commission term.

After his loss was apparent, Hackney said Hance had greater name recognition because he sought two different statewide offices in the past four years. But Hackney said he thought he was gaining momentum in the final days of the race.

"I think things turned my way, and the question is did they turn my way enough to get more than 50 percent of the vote," he said.

With 93 percent of the vote counted, Hance had 2,542,042 votes to Hackney's 2,082,529.

In his bid for another full term on the Railroad Commission, Nugent said he relied on his experience on the panel to carry him to victory over Republican challenger Ed Emmett.

Nugent, with 93 percent of the votes counted, had 2,585,772 votes, or 56 percent, to Emmett's 1,863,501, or 41 percent. Libertarian candidate Richard Draheim captured 1 percent of the vote, while New Alliance Party candidate Reynaldo Lozano garnered 2 percent.

Leading up to the election, Nugent said he was running a positive campaign and virtually refused to discuss his opponent.

He also focused on Texas' troubled oil and gas industry, citing suggestions he made to the Texas Legislature during its last session as ways of reviving the ailing business.

Nugent said late Tuesday night from his campaign headquarters in Austin that he believed Emmett concentrated too heavily on deregulation of trucking in his campaign.

In Scurry County, Waller's biggest margin of victory came in the absentee box where he outdistanced Counts 1,046 to 705 and in box 8 (school administration building) where Waller picked up 400 votes compared to 132 for Counts.

"I'm disappointed, but I think the loss was due partly to the largely Democratic area in the district. I appreciated the support in Snyder. I would have hated to lose in my hometown."

Counts attributed his victory to the grass-roots support, and pledged to work hard at representing all the people in the 78th District.

Carriker Tuesday night expressed his appreciation to voters of the 30th District for their "confidence." Carriker said he attempted to run a totally positive campaign and that voters had responded positively to it.

Carriker had easily won an Aug. 10 special election to replace Ray Farabee as state senator. The Counts-Waller battle was to gain the 78th House seat vacated by Carriker.

U.S. House District 14. He held a 6 percent lead over Sweeney with most precincts reporting early today.

"I'm excited and I'm looking forward to representing the people of the 14th District," said Laughlin, who lost to Sweeney in 1984.

The outcome of the race in District 13, the Panhandle seat vacated by Boulter, was delayed by a ballot-counting computer malfunction in Randall County. Democrat Bill Sarpalus held a 10-point lead, or about 14,000 votes, but in the 1984 election, about 24,000 votes were cast in Amarillo-dominated Randall County.

While the overall voter turnout here was not a record, the 1988 presidential election did set an all-time high for the absentee turnout in Scurry County.

At the close of absentee balloting last Friday, 1843 ballots were counted. This shattered the previous record of 800 absentee votes.

County, favoring Republicans by a 3-to-1 margin.

The rest of the seats were won by incumbents, including 17 who were involved in contested races. They are Democrats Mike Andrews, John Bryant, Albert Bustamante, Jim Chapman, Martin Frost, Kika de la Garza, Henry B. Gonzalez, Ralph Hall, Marvin Leath, Mickey Leland, Jake Pickle and Charles Wilson and Republicans Bill Archer, Dick Arney, Joe Barton, Steve Bartlett, Larry Combest, Tom DeLay and Lamar Smith.

House Speaker Jim Wright was among four other Democrats and one Republican who were unopposed for re-election to the House. They were: Democrats Jack Brooks, Ron Coleman, Solomon Ortiz, Charles Stenholm and Republican Jack Fields.

There will be several new faces in the Texas Legislature this spring, but the balance of power, with Democrats in control, will remain essentially the same. However, Republicans made inroads in the state Senate.

The GOP also gained in the Texas Supreme Court.

DR. GOTT

PETER
GOTT, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My legs are swollen and the skin is cracked and bleeding. I keep my feet elevated, with dressings on the legs, but I'm an active person and just sitting is not my cup of tea. My doctor tells me to take water pills and says there's no cure. Is he correct?

DEAR READER: You appear to be suffering the consequences of stasis dermatitis, a form of chronic skin irritation caused by poor circulation in the legs.

When we sit or stand erect, gravity pulls blood into the leg veins toward the feet. This causes a corresponding increase in hydrostatic pressure, that is, pressure in the veins increases, causing a condition called dependent edema.

Ordinarily, venous blood does not tend to pool in the lower legs because of a system of valves that prevents excessive venous backflow. However, if those veins are incompetent (don't fully close), as is the case with varicose veins, the veins will dilate and swell, thereby accepting more blood and further increasing the pressure.

Eventually, the veins balloon out and, aside from becoming unsightly, will stretch. As the venous walls — and the delicate walls of capillary blood vessels — become thinner, colorless liquid from the blood leaks out into tissues. This edema fluid causes swelling, a feeling of heaviness and — eventually — skin irritation.

Dependent edema is seen in conditions other than varicose veins, including heart failure, liver disease, malnutrition and pregnancy. (The edema of pregnancy is due to the fact that the developing baby produces progressive pressure on the pelvic veins, thereby increasing hydrostatic pressure in the legs.)

Elevation of the legs and avoidance of prolonged standing will help the ailment by using gravity to encourage blood flow out of the legs. In addition, diuretic medicine, which stimulates the kidneys to excrete more fluid, will often reduce edema.

Also, using elastic stockings and other types of support hose helps to counterbalance the increased venous pressure in the legs, thereby inhibiting leakage of liquid from overburdened blood vessels.

As you can see, treatment of stasis dermatitis depends on the cause. Topical measures — such as moisturizing creams, prompt attention to infection, avoidance of scratches and other trauma and careful washing — will help maintain skin integrity and reduce discomfort.

However, despite the skin treatment, effective therapy must be directed toward moving the tissue fluid back into the body for elimination by the kidneys.

While your doctor may be correct that, in your case, the affliction cannot be cured, useful therapy is available to minimize your discomfort.

DEAR READER: My husband has worked the graveyard shift for 14 years. Now the company wants to put everyone on rotating shifts. Won't this play havoc with their sleep cycles?

DEAR READER: Rotating shifts do play havoc with sleep cycles. If a person becomes accustomed to sleeping at a particular time and is then required to alter that pattern, sleeplessness can result until the new pattern is established.

Your husband may have difficulty constantly changing shifts. Unfortunately, neither you nor I have any control over company policy, so — short of negotiating a compromise through your husband's union — he may have to work out his difficulties as best he can.

Your family doctor may be willing to prescribe safe, short-term sleeping medicine to get your husband over the hump.

Study: state dept. not checking security clearances rigorously

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has not conducted routine security background checks on three-fourths of its employees who have held sensitive positions for at least five years, according to a study by Congress' investigative arm.

The study by the General Accounting Office found that some of the top-secret employees who were not subject to the reinvestigations were found to have committed serious security violations and crimes.

"As the espionage cases of the past few years have clearly demonstrated, U.S. government employees with security clearances and access to classified information are prime targets for recruitment by foreign intelligence operatives," said Rep. Jack Brooks, a Beaumont Democrat who requested the study by Congress' investigative arm.

"This underscores the importance of conducting periodic security background reinvestigations," said Brooks, chairman of the Government Operations Committee.

The study found 6,739 of the State Department's 8,929 employees in sensitive positions for more than five years have not been reinvestigated. Of these,

3,908 had not been reinvestigated in more than 10 years, and dozens had not been reinvestigated in 25 years or more.

The State Department disputed the GAO's findings, with spokesman Rudi Boone saying Tuesday: "We don't believe those figures are correct."

Boone said more than half of the approximately 9,000 employees in question had been reinvestigated over the past five years, with priority given to scrutinizing employees who have access to classified information.

"We do admit there is a backlog but over the last four years we have put a real emphasis on reducing the backlog," said another department official. Boone said the department expects to complete 2,000 reinvestigations this fiscal year and that its percentage of reinvestigations matches or exceeds most other federal agencies.

The GAO, in reviewing State Department files, found several employees who had not undergone routine reinvestigations were subsequently determined to be security risks.

Among them was an economic affairs officer who violated the department's non-fraternization policy by engaging in affairs with women from Eastern Block countries.

Details were sketchy, but Chief Deputy Dave Jones, 59, was killed at about 1:30 a.m. while responding to the call, said jailer Bob Haley.

AP analysis...

Bush confronts challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — His resume crowned with an unsurpassing entry, George Bush now confronts the challenge of matching it with performance as 41st President of the United States.

After a bitter campaign, the president-elect must take command of a divided government so burdened with debt that options are scarce, with a long agenda of problems that cannot wait, and with little guidance from the voters because they seldom were consulted on the issues of governing.

And Bush, the multi-job Republican appointee who became an eight-year understudy, must prove that his resume of government jobs has prepared him for the presidency as President Reagan said it had. For the first time since he left Congress 18 years ago, Bush is beholden to no boss except the voters. He hasn't told them a lot about what he intends to do, but he must tell them soon.

Symbolism, slogans and lip readings won't suffice. They belong to a campaign that never did — kinder, gentler or very instructive about either candidate's blueprint for the future.

Bush won a hefty majority of Tuesday's popular vote, and that translated into an electoral vote landslide. With it, he overcame what he'd jokingly called the curse of Martin Van Buren, the last sitting vice president elected president, 152 years ago.

Bush captured about 54 percent of the popular vote, and 426 of the 538 electoral votes that actually elect a president.

Conceding defeat in Boston, Gov. Michael Dukakis promised to cooperate with Bush. "This nation faces major challenges ahead and we must work together," he said. At the same time, he noted pointedly that Congress remained solidly Democratic, on both sides of the Capitol.

Bush is well aware of that. "I'll do my level best to reach out and work constructively with the United States Congress," he said.

He'll have to do without the kind of political clout Reagan carried during his first term.

Reagan's 1980 election helped fashion Republican gains in Congress — and produced a GOP Senate majority that lasted six years. Bush showed no such coat-tails. While his Republican ticket was winning, the Democrats were strengthening their congressional majorities a bit.

Clearly, the first mission for the president-elect was to bury the hatchet he'd been using on Dukakis all fall, in a campaign that concentrated on negatives — on showing that the other candidate didn't deserve the job.

Democratic grudges won't be forgotten soon, so the Bush peacemaking effort is not going to be easy. He wasted no time in getting started. His election-night celebration was a rally with a sermon.

"A campaign is a disagreement and disagreements divide," he told supporters in Houston. "But an election is a decision and decisions clear the way for harmony and peace. And I mean to be president of all the people."

He said he would seek to be worthy of the trust of his supporters and to earn the trust of his opponents. "My hand is out to you," he said. "I want to be your president, too."

The policy proposals so lacking in the campaign fare will have to follow quickly. Bush must fill in the blanks in his oxymoronic "flexible freeze" of the federal budget. He still has some persuading to do to convince even Republicans that the deficit can be curbed with — "read my lips" — no new taxes.

One campaign specific was his call for a cut in the capital gains tax which Dukakis denounced as a tax break for the rich. Bush said it would spur investment and create jobs. Now he will have to make that case to Congress and, in particular, to Chairman Lloyd Bentsen of the Senate Finance Committee. While losing as Democratic vice presidential nominee, Bentsen was overwhelmingly re-elected to the Senate in Texas.

Candidate Bush promised to maintain the foreign policy and economic achievements he credited to Reagan's leadership.

Reagan said the new GOP administration has a mandate to "continue the changes that create jobs, prosperity and peace for all Americans."

President-elect Bush must define the changes he will indeed continue — and those he will change.

21 persons are indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal indictment alleges that a Houston doctor and 20 others operated a nationwide chain of weight-loss and anti-smoking clinics as a front for such racketeering activities as mail fraud, bankruptcy fraud and money laundering.

All 21 have been indicted in the alleged scheme involving false insurance claims filed for people who visited the clinics to lose weight or quit smoking, federal officials said Tuesday.

Those named in the indictment include five doctors, management personnel and clinic managers.

The 87-count indictment, issued in October but unsealed Tuesday, is the result of an investigation nicknamed "STOPDOC" that began more than a year ago, U.S. Attorney Henry Oncken said.

At the center of the alleged scheme is Dr. Nicholas Bachynsky, a 46-year-old Houston doctor in federal custody on 86 counts, including violation of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Statute, Oncken said. Seven other Houstonians also were in custody, but one suspect remains a fugitive in the Soviet Union, he said.
