Lemon Pies Just Spuds At Cooking Class Here

That Pie You Raved About Last Night Wasn't What You Thought, Expert At Kemp Shows Her Pupils.

"Half an animal will be butchered and each cut, from the rump to the neck will be named, explained and priced for the class," Mrs. Chitwood announced for Wednesday's program at the close of the lecture.

"I will lecture on the nutritive value of all the various cuts, will prepare meats in all phases of cookery, and will bake and decorate a ham at the class hour."

CHEER UP! That wonderful lemon pie that wifey served you last night at dinner was made out of the mashed potatoes left over from lunch. She's been attending the Record News cooking school at the Kemp hotel ball room, under the direction of Mrs. Ida L. Chitwood, nationally prominent food expert, and that was one of the main points of Tuesday afternoon's lesson on pie.

Mrs. Chitwood told her class how to make a delicious and inexpensive pie, using mashed potatoes as one of the main ingredients. Furthermore, she made one so they could see how, and baked it for them, decorating it after it came out of the oven with whipped cream by means of a pastry tube, forming rosebuds and twisted ropes, producing beautiful effects. She then cut another pie and decorated each piece separately to insure the beauty of the dessert when served.

ANOTHER delicious pie, demonstrated before the audience was the "Crisco Scotch," a rich brown filling full of pecan meats. Both pies required a ready baked crust, and the expert told the women present that they need not worry about a pie shell with a bumpy, uneven bottom which made an unattractive pie.

To their surprise, after she had lined the plate with pie paste, she placed a sheet of oiled paper over the paste and poured into the plate a layer of ordinary rice grains.

"That, you see, will keep the bottom of the pie even and prevent bubbles and lumps from baking in it," Mrs. Chitwood explained.

Cautioning her class to use cold ingredients, to handle the dough quickly and not to stretch it when placing in pie pan, the expert told them that with proper, even baking they should produce a tender, crisp crust that would break at the touch of a fork.

"THE tenderness of the crust, and a delicate brown color are essential to success, but the thickness of the crust is purely a matter of taste.

"If you would save scraps of dough for use again, be careful to lay them neatly on top of each other, fold them carefully and squarely and roll out. Don't wad them in a bunch or the crust when rolled out will be tough and leathery."

"Music has a place in the house and especially in the dining room," the food expert stated. "We are all happier when we eat by music. For this reason I am happy to have here at the school a magnificent New Edison phonograph and records, which have been sent for my use this week by the Wichita Music company."

Explaining why, contrary to her usual custom, she was appearing before her school clad in a colored house dress instead of the usual garb of all white, Mrs. Chitwood stated, "I like the little house dresses with a touch of color because when I appear in this "Nelly Don" frock from Perkins-Timberlake, I am dressed just as you women dress in your homes. I am a professional expert, and this is the garb of the housewife's profession.

"I prefer the Nelly Don dress because of individuality of design and material and the reasonable price."

USING pasteurized cream from the Producer's creamery for the whipped cream on her pies, Mrs. Chitwood endorsed it heartily, warning her hearers against using milk and butter in which dangerous germs and bacteria had not been killed by heat.

"More germs causing disease get into the body through milk and butter than through any other one source. Don't endanger the health of your family by using unsafe dairy products."

The little girl managed to get hold of bottles in a medicine chest Sunday afternoon and had swallowed the contents of the iodine container before her parents knew what she was doing.

FRITZ IS SURE LOCKWOOD CAR WILL STAND UP

Daredevil Starts Tuesday On His 100-Hour Driye Through This Territory

CHAINED TO WHEEL

Chief Hodgins Shackles Him To Machine And Seals Hood of Motor

Several hundred people, a crowd that jammed the corner in front of Zales jewelry store Eighth and Ohio, fought their way to see Daredevil Lockwood start off on his 100-hour non-stop run in his Reo at noon Tuesday.

The crowd pushed and pummeled itself in such manner that several traffic officers aided by Chief of Police Hodgins, were needed to clear the path for Lockwood's car as he set out on his arduous trip.

Hodgins Locks Cuffs.

Before he left Chief Hodgins securely locked the handcuffs which will hold the Daredevil to the wheel until 4:30 Saturday afternoon and then fastened the seals which locked the hood of the motor, making it impossible to make any adjustments to the engine or to replenish the oil during the entire trip.

The Daredevil was accompanied on his start by C. O. Fritz of the Fritz Motor Co., local Marmon, Reo and Rollins dealers, under whose auspices the Daredevil was brought to Wichita Falls. After visiting Iowa Park, Electra, and Burkburnett, he drove back into Wichita Falls where he completed the rest of the night on the streets of city.

Bet You $1,000.

"I'm not afraid I won't last" declared Lockwood. "I've done it a good many times before, from coast to coast. The only question with me is: 'Will the Reo last?'"

D. Fritz, president of the Fritz Motor Co., broke in here:

If that Reo doesn't last throughout the run we'll give you $1,000 more than your contract calls for. That means you'll get $4,000 instead of the $3,000 promised you.

"That's a go," answered Lockwood. I'm going to give her the hardest driving I know how." But be sure and tell the chief to have those keys to these cuffs ready Saturday afternoon."

"Crawford Got Wrong Man," Cox Hints When He Grills Defendant

Unexpected Charge Is Seen In Examination Of Dallas Attorney

DALLAS, Jan. 27.—(AP)—After undergoing a severe cross-examination by District Attorney Shelby Cox, William Lester Crawford, on trial in district criminal court for the slaying of Paul M. O'Day, September 14, for alleged derogatory remarks about Crawford's mother, Mrs. Kate Lamar Crawford, the defendant was finally excused.

But not until after it had been intimated by the prosecutor that Crawford had killed the wrong man and Crawford had stated that to kill O'Day was the last thing he wanted to do.

Crawford wanted O'Day to withdraw a brief in a will suit over the estate of the late Col. W. L. Crawford, attacking the character of his mother, he said, but when O'Day "admitted to me that he had attacked the chastity of my moher and asserted he could prove his charges, I was paralyzed until I realized what he said, then I grabbed the shotgun and fired. I do not know how many times I shot."

State Springs Surprise.

The implication that Crawford shot O'Day for something another lawyer had done was the surprise of the afternoon session. Crawford admitted that he had been informed that remarks concerning his mother in the will case brief were the same as those used by Eugene Locke, O'Day's employer, in a motion for a new trial in the will case a year ago, but he insisted that O'Day repeated the insult when he stopped him before the building in the American Exchange National bank building entrance.

The defense closed its case late this afternoon in the trial of Crawford with the testimony of W. J. Strawbridge, who followed the defendant on the stand.

The state placed Eugene Locke, attorney with the firm of Locke & Locke, with whom O'Day was associated, as the first witness for the rebuttal.

O'Day had been with the firm since 1919, the witness said, receiving a portion of the firm's earnings in addition to his salary and the firm had been employed by Mrs. Lucy Craycroft, half sister of Crawford, in a suit to break Col. W. L. Crawford's will.

Locke testified that he was responsible for the questions asked Willis Evans, negro coachman, answers to which formed the negro's deposition as contained in the brief Crawford read on the night before he killed O'Day. He stated that he participated in the preparation of the motion for a new trial of the Crawford will suit, in which motion the language used, based on the negro coachman's testimony and that of others, was identical with that used in the brief which Crawford read the night before the shooting.

Read To Jury.

This language was read to the jury Tuesday afternoon, from a copy of the motion by District Attorney Shelby Cox. It was this language that Crawford swore on the stand earlier in the day caused him to get a shot gun and start for Paul O'Day's office.

Eugene Locke testified only one session was held in his firm's offices when the negro's testimony was taken and that William Lester Crawford and his mother remained in the room, throughout with the exception of five minutes, when Crawford answered a telephone call. Crawford, Locke said, asked they that the taking of the negro's testimony be suspended while he was out and in that interval his request was granted.

Crawford had testified that two sessions of that hearing were held, one in the afternoon of February 2 and another at 1 o'clock the next morning, to which he had driven his mother. Mrs. Crawford testified that she recalled attending but one session. Crawford also had testified that he left the second afternoon at the request of his mother and did not hear the negro's testimony at any time.

District Attorney Cox in cross-examining Crawford asked:

"Don't you know you killed the man who did not use the language in the brief?"

"No sir," Crawford replied.

Locke On Stand.

Eugene Locke was still on the witness stand when court recessed at 4:45 p. m. Just before recess Locke repeated his statement, saying he was most positive that there was only one session of the hearing, and that the notary's certificate to the effect that the afternoon session had recessed until 10 o'clock next morning, was so specified by agreement and did not state the facts. It was agreed to, he said, in order that the date, February 3, might conform to the date on the notary's commission.

The defense had rested at 3:20 p. m. after Strawbridge, juror in a trial in the will suit, testified about remarks O'Day is alleged to have said about Mrs. Kate Lamar Crawford, defendant's mother. When this testimony was being taken Crawford lost control of himself again, sobbed and pounded the table with his clinched fists.

Barber Swaths Sheriff's Face In Hot Rags And Makes His Getaway

BEAUMONT, Texas, Jan. 27.—Hot towels over the face of a sheriff in Florida, who recognized him after he had escaped from the state prison farm at Camillia, aided John Lewis, caught here Sunday by police, to foil the officer, according to a story given police here today. He declared that he left the towels on the sheriff's face while he was shaving him and disappeared the back way while the sheriff was waiting for the shave to be completed.

Officers are expected here from the Georgia prison farm to return Lewis, within the next few days. He has expressed a willingness to return without requisition papers.

PARNELL SAYS HIS BILL O. K.

Wires Collier Notice Will Be Given Before Hearing Is Set

In reply to a telegraphic protest wired Thursday morning by Mayor Frank Collier, Senator J. D. Parnell yesterday sent word back that ample notice would be given before the final hearings on his municipal utilities bill and that he felt sure when its full purpose would be understood no complaint would be lodged against it by Texas cities. Acting under authorization of the city council, Mayor Collier wired the Wichita Falls senator, requesting that he delay further legislative action on his bill until interested parties could be heard from.

Senator Parnell's bill is one which provides for the regulation, management and expenditures of revenues from municipally owned public utilities. The measure is regarded in many quarters as one which would be harmful to such enterprises and for this reason protest has been made.

Noted Engineers to Debate

Value of Rigid And Flexible Paving To Be Argued Out

Two noted engineers, yet to be announced but who are said to be among the foremost authorities in their line in the United States are to debate the respective merits of flexible and rigid pavings in an appearance soon before the Wichita Falls Technical club. The debate, which will be one of the big features of the Tech club's yearly program will come about the middle of February, probably the 17th.

In the discussion one of the men will support flexible paving, an example of which is asphalt, as the most economical and serviceable, while the other will present the strong points of rigid paving, of which concrete is an example. Both will be absolutely authoritative in their work.

Members of the city council, the county commissioners court and others interested in paving matters will be invited to attend the meeting.

RELIGION ONLY CURE FOR SHOT RIDDEN HERRIN

So Says Minister At Sheriff Thomas' Funeral Tuesday

GUNS ARE ON GUARD

Man Who "Got" Young And Two Others Buried; Many Attend

HERRIN, Ills., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Declaring that nothing but personal religion can save Herrin, the Rev. John Meeker, Presbyterian minister late today said the last rites over Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas, two-gun leader of the anti-klan forces in the county, while the coroner took up the task of unraveling Saturday night's shooting which claimed the lives of Thomas, S. Glenn Young and two others.

All of the eleven witnesses today gave testimony which tended to support the version of the shooting related by Young's friends.

Thomas Fired First.

Those witnesses who saw the shooting asserted that Thomas fired first and that it was his bullet that killed Young. Another testified that Thomas earlier in the day "appeared to have been drinking," and that he was seen with a number of strangers in several places.

The witnesses who were outside of the hotel at the time testified that at least three shots were fired by persons outside of the hotel and that shots came from the upper windows of the hotel and from the direction of City Judge E. N. Bowen's office across the street.

The mysterious shot heard on the main street of the town and supposed to have been fired at Ross Lisenby, a policeman, was in reality fired by Lisenby, some of the witnesses indicated, although none could testify that they actually saw him shoot.

He Killed Young.

All of the witnesses who saw the shooting agreed that Thomas killed Young, while several added that Young killed Thomas after himself receiving a fatal wound. Opinions differed as to who killed Ed Forbes and all denied any knowledge of who killed Homer Warren, but all agreed he must have been killed by bullets fired from the outside.

Meanwhile several thousand mourners gathered at the Thomas home for the funeral ceremonies. The house itself was so small it could accommodate only a few of the miners, business men, women and other friends.

Sheriff George Calligan, with an escort of two automobile loads of deputies, arrived early and went into the house. Some of his deputies accompanied him while others scattered through the crowd, one deputy, stationed on top of a truck in front of the house, remained on guard through the ceremony.

Conference On Shoals Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The house late today, by a vote of 181 to 41, ordered the Underwood bill authorizing the lease of Muscle Shoals to private interests sent to conference with the senate, in an effort to adjust differences in time for final action at this session of congress. The appointment of house conferees put the matter again up to the senate, where the selection of managers to confer with those of the house is expected to arouse considerable discussion.

55 Oklahomans Facing New Start In Life As Eden's Bubble Bursts

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 27.—Fifty-five men, women and children who sold their homes near Chetocah, Okla., to purchase land in Mexico, only to find that they had been defrauded, disbanded in San Antonio tonight after spending the day at the I. G. N. station. They came here from Laredo where they discovered they possessed no land which they believed they had purchased.

The party intended to colonize land in the southern part of the state of Yera Cruz, for which they paid two dollars an acre. Several car loads of mules, cows, hogs and chickens were taken with the colonists. The stock cars were stopped in San Antonio on their way to Mexico after the people learned that they had been defrauded.

Each of the 13 families who were in San Antonio Tuesday had sold all of their land and household goods near Chetocah before leaving for Mexico. Several of the families plan to settle near San Antonio and secure work of any kind on farms to make a living. Other families are going to other places where they hope to secure lands and two of the families intend to go back to Oklahoma and attempt to buy farming land.

The colonists were inveigled into purchasing fictitious lands by a man who gave his name as Johnson and circulated bright colored pamphlets and posters, depicting a town of "Eden," which Johnson claimed was a modern Utopia. The land transaction was made between the farmers and a company with headquarters in Denver, Colorado, according to a paper which purported to be a certificate showing the purchase of a tract of land from the company.

The farmers paid $2 an acre down when they purchased the land, agreeing to pay $30 an acre as full payment. The remainder of the purchase price was to be paid within 10 years according to the agreement. In addition to the purchase of the land each of the farmers was to pay to Johnson $100, for which he was to secure cars to transport each of the families and all of the stock and household goods which each family desired to take to Mexico.

The entire group was to leave Chetocah on January 1 and make the payment of $100 to Johnson on the day. The train was to leave. Johnson failed to appear on the appointed day of departure and after waiting until January 25, the colonists engaged cars for themselves and their stock and left for Laredo, hoping to get in touch with Johnson later.

When they reached Laredo Monday they found after consulting authorities that the titles to the land was of no account. The passports which the men had secured were not acceptable to the officers at the bridge to Mexico. All the women and children slept on the benches at the station, while the men took care of the stock cars.

TEXAS DEFEATS IT TUESDAY BY VOTE OF 7 TO 1

Senate Adopts Same Thing By Vote of 20 to 2; Debate Is Long

NO RECONSIDERATION

Motion Carries to Table Further Consideration of The Measure

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Barring possible reconcideration, the child labor amendment to the constitution tonight had been defeated, the proposal having been defeated in either one or both houses of the legislatures or by referendum, in thirteen states. Under the constitution the amendment would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the 48 states, so that an adverse vote in 13 states would make this impossible.

Oklahoma, Kansas and Ohio today were added to the list of states finally rejecting the amendment while similar action was taken in the senates of North Dakota and Washington.

California and Arkansas were the only states favoring the proposal while the amendment was rejected by one or both houses of the legislatures in the following states: North and South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, South and North Dakota, Kansas, Ohio, Washington and Delaware.

TEXAS HOUSE TURNS IT DOWN

AUSTIN, Jan. 27.—(AP)—National regulation of child labor, so far as Texas is concerned, was definitely declined today when the house adopted 111 to 16, the senate resolution rejecting the proposed twentieth amendment to the federal constitution. The same resolution was adopted in the senate, 20 to 2.

The vote was taken after prolonged debate led by senate members who pleaded with the members to uphold state's rights and vote against "the encroachment of congress and state affairs." Representative Kemble of Fort Worth suggested the house refer the amendment to the vote of the people.

Reconsideration Barred.

Reconsideration of the resolution was barred when a motion to reconsider, and to table this motion prevailed.

The proposed law against worthless checks was ordered engrossed. The McFarlane bill, makes a worthless check prima facie evidence of intent to defraud. The vote was 96 to 19 for engrossment.

Other bills engrossed were:

By Daniel a bill providing for employment of an assistant district attorney in towns of 28,000 or over. By Barker, designed to prevent fraud in the selling and repairing mattresses and quilts. Fees allowed county officers in counties less than 37,000 inhabitants, are fixed in a bill by Roaland, while a bill by Hull, to the right of incorporation to include firms doing commercial engineering and architectural work, textile mills, barber shops and beauty parlors and others.

A committee to investigate the status of the sale of quarantine stations along the border and coast to the United States government was authorized when a senate concurrent resolution passed the house. The senate which authorized the thirty-seventh legislature, has not been consummated, because of apparent discrepancies in the title, it was explained.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 27.—Kansas has refused to ratify the proposed child labor amendment to the United States constitution. By a vote of 30 to 9 the state senate today approved a house resolution rejecting the amendment and the issue was tabled for this session of the legislature when Henry M. Laing, president pro tem, ruled that further consideration would not be in order.

OLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 27.—The Oklahoma legislature late today formally repudiated ratification of the child labor amendment to the national constitution but left a loop-hole whereby the people of the state may vote upon it. The state senate voted 24 to 19 to reject ratification. The house had decisively defeated ratification last week.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 27.—A resolution rejecting a proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution was adopted by the senate of the state legislature here today, 27 to 15.

"Impeachment Removal Must Not Bother Ma"

AUSTIN, Jan. 27.—(AP) — Removal of the impeachment judgement against James E. Ferguson, former governor, must not interfere with his wife's administration, Mr. Ferguson said today in commenting on the impeachment clearance resolutions to come before the senate tomorrow.

What are known as the Hardin and Price resolutions are on the calendar for action tomorrow morning in the senate. It was rumored here tonight that the Price resolution might be substituted for the Hardin resolution. The Price resolution calls for appointment of a committee to investigate wars and means of clearing Mr. Ferguson. The Hardin resolution goes a little further and states that Mr. Ferguson is entitled to have the impeachment removed and by rights this should be done.

"My position," said Mr. Ferguson, "is that if the matter is put up to the legislature in some form, I hope it will be brought to a prompt and speedy issue.

"No good purpose should now be subserved by entering into the bitter acrimonies of the past and for that reason I hope the matter will be passed on it at once and I shall not murmur or brag over whatever the result may be.

"I am mainly interested in seeing my wife's administration become a success, and I do not want even this matter, as important as it is to me, to interfere in the slightest, with the program which the people are expecting from this administration."

Stone Rules for Californians In Property Law Tax

Government May Be Forced To Pay Back Big Sums Already Collected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — Attorney General Stone has held that the federal government's basis of taxing California estates under the California community property law is incorrect, and the treasury faces refunding of taxes thus collected since the California law was enacted.

The attorney general expressed no opinion with respect to the principles governing the taxation of income derived from community property.

To Go To Court.

Simultaneously with the announcement of Mr. Stone's opinon on the estate tax phase, which was requested by the treasury, the latter department announced it was prepared to seek a final court determination of the right of husband and wife each to make a separate return covering one-half of the community income.

The treasury, under Mr. Stone's ruling, will have to refund only about $3,000,000 collected illegally on estate taxes. Approximately $77,000,000 is involved in the income tax feature of the two years old controversy.

Stephens Company Yard Is Scene of Dinner Monday Night.

The Stephens Lumber company was host to the lumber dealers and representatives at dinner in their offices Monday evening, 23 men representing every lumber yard in Wichita Falls being present. Odis Stephens presided and carved a 25-pound turkey, served with ham, and all the fixings.

A Hoo-Hoo club, similar to Hoo-Hoo organizations of lumber leaders in the large cities of the United States was discussed for Wichita Falls at the dinner and plans put under way which may culminate in such an organization here.

The lumber dealers of Wichita Falls are taking steps to send delegates to the Southwestern Lumber Association convention in Oklahoma City soon.

WHEAT JUST MISSES $2

Excited Speculators See It Go To $1.99 3-4 Tuesday.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Crowds of excited speculative buyers gunning for $2.00 a bushel wheat grazed the mark today, and hit $1.99 3-4 instead. The immediate chief reason given for buying was a report that Hungary, one of the principal wheat producing nations of Europe, had found it necessary to purchase 1,000,000 bushels in far-away Argentina. A country itself estimated to be short 50,000,000 bushels compared with last year.

Gangman Looking Death in Face Is Quiet As to Foe

Torrio Wavers Between Life And Death But Refuses To Talk

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Johnny Torrio, uncrowned king of Chicago gangland since the assassination of O'Banion two months ago tonight, wavered between life and death in the hospital to which he was taken last Saturday after four gunmen attempted to slay him in front of his home.

Late today a priest was called to administer sacrament of extreme unction and doctors said it was doubtful if he would survive the night. In the crisis, the man who lived by the gun and appeared likely to die by it, revealed not a hint as to the identity of his assailants, although the police are convinced that he knows them.

His wife and other relatives likewise maintained silence although his wife has admitted she also knows who shot her husband.

Torrio today failed to identify George Moran, a pal of O'Banion, as one of his assailants, although a 17-year-old youth, who witnessed the attack, said Moran was one of the four men who shot Torrio.

Will Buy Baby Beef

Jones Sounding Out Field For Contestants In Race

With definite decision made to launch a number of Baby Beef clubs in this territory this summer as a prelude to awarding prizes and selling the stock at the Texas-Oklahoma fair in October, officials of the fair association and County Agricultural Agent Guy R. Jones are laying preliminary grounds for the founding of the clubs. Mr. Jones is making a survey of the field to determine the number of contestants who may enter and when this accomplished the calves will be purchased and distributed.

The idea is to buy yearlings of the same breed and in the same condition, present them to entrants in the contest for feeding and care and then auction off the stock at the fair. The proceeds go first to pay for the yearling and the surplus is turned over to the boy who raised the animal.

Dallas Representative Introduces Bill To Legalize Boxing In Texas

TEXAS LOOP FRANCHISE CREW MEETS TODAY IN ATTEMPT TO FILL OUT EIGHT-CLUB CIRCUIT

Waco Proposition to Be Entertained, Says Harvey—Schedule Session Postponed Again.

Whether or not Waco, divorced from the Texas association last Sunday and a one-time Texas league city now seeking the orphan Galveston franchise, will regain entrance to the Lone Star loop may be decided in part today at Dallas. At any rate, Texas league officials will be ready to entertain a proposition by the Brazos river village.

The committee selected by Texas league officials, and which consists of R. O. Harvey of Wichita Falls, Paul LaGrave of Fort Worth, and Walter Morris of Dallas, to place the Galveston franchise will meet in Dallas this morning for another try at bringing back the league to an eight-club basis.

The Wichita Falls member of the committee when asked last night if the outlook seemed favorable for the Waco entrance to the class A circuit said: "I would not say that, as yet. In fact, we would not say that indications favor any particular city right now. But, the committee will be prepared to consider a proposition made by the Waco committee, and, of course, if this proves satisfactory to the Texas league the Galveston franchise will be placed in Waco."

Mr. Harvey departed Wichita Falls last night for Dallas and the franchise session.

It was announced Tuesday that the Texas league schedule meeting slated for Shreveport this coming Saturday has again been postponed, this time to February 7 and 8. It is expected that by this time an eighth city will have been added to the now seven-club circuit.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

On the face of it, Waco seems destined to obtain the Galveston berth, but don't forget that ancient wheeze about the slip, the cup, and the lip. Waco cannot possibly expect to get off very lightly in the way of money which must be spent.

Cauliflower Card Finally Arranged.

Elmer McMullen will scrap Johnny Hoffman.

That's the latest dope on the local fisticuff doings tomorrow night.

Promoter Don Wofford has found the sledding rather rough the past several days, what with a touch of the flu himself, and the sudden cropping up of injuries to his main eventers as fast as he gets them dated.

Speedy Sparks was first billed with Jimmy Bean for the legion final Thursday. Then Sparks came up missing, figuratively speaking, with a broken mitt. Wofford hopped to it and matched Dago Ryan with Hoffman. Ryan was rearing for a return voyage to Wichita Falls, but yesterday he sprained a shoulder, and hurts a fist in an accident, so he said over long distance telephone from Dallas.

Now the old reliable favorite, Mister Elmer McMullen of Dodge City, Kan., and other parts, has been billed to go on with Hoffman. These boys will be here sure, declared Wofford last night, or doggone it, you can put me in jail.

Duke Trammel will be matched with the victor Thursday a week, advised Don.

The rest of the card for tomorrow will hold just as it is, too, according to the promoter. It's a likely appearing program.

Tabby Levine has agreed to step with Johnny Sherwood, clever little Fort Worth feather, in an eight-rounder. Battling Jennings of Henrietta will meet George Storey, Oklahoma City scrapper who comes with a reputation to defend, over the six-round route. Kid Pendlan of Lawton and Navy Lyons of Thrift, also, are scheduled for six rounds. All four of the six-canto participants are welterweights.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

And, oh yes, there's to be the usual hilarious negro battle royal. Some fans would rather witness this type of ring warfare than any other bit of fisticuffing dished up for their entertainment.

Watson Hated "Yankees."

The recent release of pitcher John Watson by the New York Giants recalls an interesting yarn Watson was wont to tell pertaining to the way he dodged a possible chance to play with the Yankees.

Watson was playing with Fort Smith then. A Yankee scout dropped into Tulsa, Okla., where the Fort Smith team was to play a series. The word got to Watson that the scout wanted to see him pitch and had a contract ready for him to sign if he showed the right amount of promise.

Watson, born and raised in Louisiana, had seen or heard little of the world when he began to play baseball and carried an inborn hatred of the word "Yankee," inherited from his ancestors of civil war days. So he decided he didn't want to play with a team bearing that name.

He forthwith decided that if he was called upon to pitch, he would exert himself little in the hope his punk showing would discourage the keen-eyed scout. Imagine Watson's surprise when he found that, no matter how easily he lobbed them over the opposition failed to hit 'em. He was experiencing one of those days when a pitcher seem sto have everything without realizing it.

Tulsa failed to collect more than a hit or two off him in four innings. Watson started to figure out some other way of discouraging the "ivory hunter." Suddenly he had a bright idea. He sat down on the bench after the next inning, calmly took off his shoes and socks and with them in his hand walked across the diamond, through the exit gate and on to the hotel, a few blocks away.

The scout saw him go.

Later, while Watson sat in the lobby of the hotel, the scout gave him the once over with an odd expression on his face, then checked out and headed for the depot. Watson saw him go and followed him to the train to make sure he had departed.

Later on Watson got a chance to show his stuff to one of Connie Mack's scouts. John pitched his handoff and impressed Connie's envoy. He failed to get along well with Mack, however, and soon drifted away from Philadelphia. He played with the Boston Braves and the Pirates before he joined the Giants.

Watson might have become a great pitcher had he been blessed with a clearer realization of the seriousness of things.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

But John found it hard to "keep both feet on the ground." McGraw had many run-ins with him before deciding he couldn't use him any more.

SEVEN MORE YANKS SIGN UP FOR 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Seven more members of the New York Yankees have signed for 1925, according to an announcement today by Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the club.

Miller Huggins, manager, who was expected to arrive here today, sent word that he would be in New York Friday. He forwarded the signed contract of Steve O'Neill, catcher, obtained by the Yanks from the Boston Red Sox, together with a statement from O'Neill that he was entirely satisfied with the terms offered him and that he would start training immediately.

The commission, composed of three men, would have all rule-making powers and the right to license clubs, organizations or corporations to stage boxing bouts. An annual license fee of $500 and a five per cent tax on gross receipts is provided.

A secretary to keep the records of the commission would be paid any salary fixed by the commission, not to exceed $2,500, annually.

The Y. M. C. A., or similar organization, that holds bouts for charity or entertainment, where the principals receive no compensation are exempt from the annual license fee.

Little Uncovered In Investigation Of Ball Scandal

Attorney Hopes For Results Within Next Few Days

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The district attorney's investigation into the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal was continued today when Horace Ford, second baseman of the Philadelphia Nationals, was questioned as to his knowledge of the $500 bribe offered to Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop, by Jimmy O'Connell, New York outfielder, in a game here near the close of last season.

Ford, it was understood told Assistant District Attorney Brothers, in charge of the investigation that his first knowledge of the affair came when Sand took him into his confidence after the game. According to the testimony taken before Commissioner Landis, Ford advised Sand to "use his own judgment." Subsequently Sand related his story to Arthur Fletcher, manager of the Phillies.

The examination of Ford followed interrogation yesterday of two other figures in the scandal, Frank Frisch, captain of the Giants and Sand.

Others will be interviewed during the next few days in an effort to uncover any basis for grand jury action and indictments.

Although Mr. Brothers declined to discuss the hearings he has held so far, it was intimated he has as yet uncovered no information affording new clues to a solution of the case.

Ed Takes First Fall in Legal Tilt With Munn

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Jan. 27.—Wayne (Big) Munn, heavyweight wrestling champion, lost the first fall of his legal bout with E. (Strangler) Lewis today when a circuit judge here declined to issue a temporary restraining order against the former champion. Munn based his plea on allegations that Lewis has interfered with Munn's wrestling contracts, slandered his title a champion and adopted a policy of threats and intimidation against him. The champion asked a temporary restraining order pending a hearing on an application for an injunction.

Judge Willard P. Hall, who sat in the case today, explained that his refusal was not absolute and asked Munn and his manager to show the court some authority for their action. The court advised Munn to bring a damage suit based upon a specific act of interference and slander.

GOLF

as Champions Play It

Is there any correct stance for putting? Should the feet be spread apart or should they be together?

Answered by

BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional

I believe in a square stance, feet two feet apart, ball opposite left heel right elbow resting on top of [illegible] to insure control. There are [illegible] different stances used with [illegible] success, but the average golfer does not take the necessary care to adopt any one idea of putting, hence in most cases bad putting results. I think a person can make himself or herself a good putter by adopting one stance for putting, such as I have outlined.

MURCHISON BEATS SCHOLZ

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Jackson Scholz, American, who won the Olympic 200 metre championship met defeat tonight in his return to indoor competition, when he trailed Loren Murchison, Newark flier, and Harold (Boots) Lever, former Pennsylvania star, in the 50 yard final to the Melrose invitation sprint series.

Hoffman to Clash With McMullen Thursday.

Johnny Hoffman, fast stepping San Antonio welter, will take on the popular Elmer McMullen of Dodge City, Kan., in the ten-round main event of the legion card Thursday, announces Promoter Don Wofford. Hoffman has done most of his boxing in the east, and has mingled with the top-notchers. Johnny hopped down to San Antonio not so long ago, cleaned up everything there, and enjoyed himself so much he decided to call the Alamo city his home.

THEY'RE HITTING HARD OLD TRAIL UP AGAIN, ARE ED, ABE, AND TIGER

Strangler Will Find Task Tough, But It Won't Be So Difficult For Flowers and Goldstein

The way back is long.

Those who have traveled it or have fallen by the roadside, foot-weary and discouraged in their efforts will tell you that.

Those who are forced to trudge the road to Comebackville early in their careers find it is a bit shorter and smoother than those who must fight their way back and with the cry of age dinning in their ears. But it stretches long and dusty to all.

Ed "Strangler" Lewis is of the latter class. Lewis has announced that he has cut short plans for a European trip and will enter a three months intensive training course in preparation for matches which will force Wayne Munn to give him a return match for the world's heavyweight wrestling title. Munn is recognized as the holder of that honor since he threw Lewis out of the ring in their recent match.

It was partly the old story with Lewis. Life had been kind to him of late years burring his domestic difficulties. He won the world's title from Joe Stecher in 1920, a year after the famous proponent of the scissors hold, had defeated him, Earl Caddock and Wladek Zbyszko in a tournament. Lewis held the title six months, only to lose it to the elder Zbyszko, Stanislaus, in May, 1921. The following March he regained the crown in a return match.

Lewis Wasn't In Condition

For the past three years Lewis had been making easy money in barnstorming expeditions. Delgeut training was slighted. His opponents, local celebrities, gave him little trouble. Then came the match with Munn. Lewis knew the former Nebraska star to be practically a novice at the game. The match was held up to Lewis as being "easy money." No one had tipped off the Strangler that Munn was a physical giant in strength as well as build. Lewis found that Munn laughed at the skull crushing headlock, the hold which had carried Lewis to fame. Munn had Lewis on the defensive when he picked the champ up and dropped him into the ash as beyond the ropes.

Lewis friends argue that Munn should have been disqualified. But the fact remains that the world's heavyweight wrestling champion should not find himself in such a predicament—rules or no rules.

So Lewis faces the long road.

Tiger Flowers, one of the outstanding negro boxers of the day, was on the high road to fame—and a title match with Harry Greb for the world's middleweight title when he tackled Jack Delaney the other night. Now the Tiger must fight himself out of the fistic jungle to the roadside again to start the journey back. Delaney knocked the Tiger for a goal. Lucky punch or not, it turned the trick.

Delaney basks in the limelight now and Flowers must live down that knockout before he can regain his prestige.

Goldstein and Flowers Young

Abe Goldstein, bantamweight champion of the world for a few short months, finds himself starting on the road back. Basking in the cooling breezes and sheltered shade at the top of the hill is Eddie Cannonball Martin. Before their recent fight Martin was but one of the "likely contenders." Goldstein drew the big end of the purse for the fight. He drew the applause when the men entered the ring. The world was his—until Martin battered him down.

Goldstein and Flowers have youth. You may look for them back at the brow of the hill soon, benefited some by the dusty tramp.

But as for Lewis.

Fate was kind to him when she carried him to the top of the wrestling game. Many there are who still say the road was "made" for him. Now it will be Lewis, the ex-champion, doing "the same old comeback stunt."

OSBORN SHATTERS HIGH JUMP RECORD

Nurmi Scores Flashy Victory Over Americans

Another World Mark Goes Down, And Joie Ray Loses Again

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi demonstrated his ability tonight to vanquish America's greatest runners over any distance he chooses when he raced the heart out of Joie Ray and three other stars in world's record time in a spectacular three quarter mile event featuring the first half of the two-night mile Millrose track and field carnival.

Flashing a dazzling sprint over the last lap that seemed to leave his other opponents standing still, the phantom Finn, glancing back over his shoulder broke the tape 10 yards in front of Ray, with Jimmy Connolly, Lloyd Hahn and Leo Larrive fighting gamely but badly beaten, trailing in that order.

Nurmi whose time of 3:03 4-5 represented his thirteenth world's record performance in eight races, supplied the greatest thrill of one of the most sensational meets ever held in New York. But he again was pressed for chief laurels by his sturdy countryman, Willie Ritola, who hung up four world's indoor marks in a three mile race in which he lapped Verne Booth, former Johns Hopkins star, and a half dozen other opponents.

Ritola eclipsed four of the five records he put on the books only three days ago in the Brooklyn college games, 10:33 2-5, former mark 10:35; two and one half miles 11:45 4-5, former mark 11:48; two and three quarter miles 12:57 4-5, former 13.01; three miles 14.04; former 14:11-3-5.

Altogether six world's indoor marks were toppled in a startling exhibition of speed and stamina, Harold M. Osborn, famous all-round star of the Illinois Athletic club, hanging up the other mark when he leaped to a new high jump record of 6 feet, 6 and 1-4 inches. Osborn broke the old record by an inch, defeating, among others, Leroy Brown of Colorado.

Ray, setting a dazzling pace from the start with Nurmi last of the field of five, made a supreme effort to conquer the invader, but when Nurmi shot out in the last lap, the little American dropped back quickly in spite of his most desperate challenges.

Jimmy Connolly, former Georgetown star, ran a brilliant race, staying with Ray for seven laps and challenging Nurmi several times, but he also wilted under the Finn's withering pace. Lloyd Habn, Boston A. A., and Leo Larrive, Holy Cross star were never dangerous, finishing fourth and fifth.

Nurmi was looking back over his shoulder as he uncorked the finishing spurt that put his rivals to route. This slight slackening of his pace probably cost him a second world record, for he failed by a fifth of a second to beat the mark for two-thirds of a mile, 2:43-3-5, held by Connolly. Nurmi's 3-4 mile mark broke by one and one-fifth seconds the former record of 3:05, made by Ray in 1918. Ray himself was only two-fifths of a second behind his former record time.

It was Nurmi's thirteenth world mark in the eight races he has run in this country.

Kraft to Doff Monkey Suit

Wichita Falls Fans Chirp, "It's But An Annual Wheeze!"

FORT WORTH, Texas, Jan. 27.—Clarence Kraft, first baseman of the Fort Worth Panthers, who led the world in home run hitting last year, probably will retire from baseball and enter the automobile business in Fort Worth at once.

This was learned Tuesday noon from no less a personage than Kraft himself. The big first baseman declared that the deal that will put him into automobile business as a dealer, has NOT been closed but probably will be closed in a few hours.

THAT'S HOKUM, SAY SPUD FANS.

Wichita Falls fandom will take this Kraft announcement with several oversized grains of salt, declared a prominent local sportsman last night when informed of Big Boy's declaration to quit pastiming.

That's a bunch of hokum, and an annual wheeze down in Cowtown, said another enthusiast.

A third Spudder fan offered to wager the writer any reasonable amount of coin of the realm that the opening day of the Texas League will find the class A loop's home run king carroting at the Cat initial station in Cat spangles as usual.

Munn to Defend Crown in Match With Zbyszko

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 27.—Wayne (Big) Munn will defend his newly won wrestling crown in a finish match here February 11 with Stanislaus Zbyszko, former world's champion, it was announced tonight.

The match originally was scheduled for Chicago, February 3, but was cancelled when Billy Sandow, manager of Ed (Strangler) Lewis, from whom Munn won the title here recently brought an injunction suit to restrain Munn from being billed as champion.

"Sandow may stop us from wrestling outside Kansas City, but it isn't likely he will stop us here," declared Gabe Kaufman, manager of Munn and matchmaker.

Kaufman said he would take Munn to Chicago to see the Lewis-Mondt match February 3. "While there," he said, "I hope to introduce Munn from the ringside and at the same time demonstrate to the wrestling commission the holds Munn used in dethroning Lewis. Possibly they won't care to see it, but in case they do we will be there with the evidence."

DOLAN MAY YET GET AROUND TO MATTER OF REMEMBERING WHAT HE FORGOT, IF ANYTHING

Exiled Giant Coach to Appear At Baseball Scandal Investigation By Gotham Attorney

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
I. N. S. Staff Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Cozy Dolan, the man who may yet get around to the matter of remembering what he forgot, if anything, is coming back to Broadway within the next 48 hours to answer for his part, if any, in baseball's latest scandal.

His attorney, William Fallon, reaffirmed today his statement that Dolan will welcome a reopening of the case, but neglected to state just when Cozy will furnish visible evidence of this sentiment.

One report had it that Dolan was to appear at the district attorney's office today to be questioned at or about the same time as Horace Ford, Philadelphia second baseman, the first man to whom Sand told of O'Connell's attempted bribery. But nothing has been heard of Dolan leaving his home at Oshkosh, Wis. In fact, Dolan's silence has been almost painful during recent months.

May Extradite.

Assistant District Attorney Brothers, conducting the investigation is believed to know of Dolan's intentions, but Brothers is saying very little these days. He did admit, however, that if Dolan declines to appear, nothing immediate could be done about it.

The former Giant coach, alleged by O'Connell to have been inspiration behind his (O'Connell's) attempt bribe, has been barred from baseball; therefore he no longer is under the jurisdiction of Judge Landis' office. The judge has notified the district attorney's office that he can and will produce all others identified with the case, with the exception of Dolan and O'Connell, the two men dropped from the lists as a result of the original inquiry.

Must Have Indictment.

Only extradition proceedings could produce the pair, in the event they undertook to ignore the district attorney's invitation. They cannot be extradite until an indictment is brought in by the grand jury.

Perhaps Brothers may not be so far away from this step as might appear at first. At least he gave tongue to this optimistic remark after interviewing Frank Frisch and Heine Sand yesterday.

"I consider that we have made satisfactory progress in this case. We are making headway and I think we will get to the bottom in time.

Just what would be his next step if Dolan fails to appear Brothers declined to say.

Frisch, Young and Kelly are innocent in the eyes of the law as long as the charges against them are made only by a self confessed conspirator.

Dolan is the crux of the situation, provided there is a crux and a situation.

Waco Business Men Start Drive For Team Funds

C. of C. And Y. M. B. L. Set Out To Raise $15,000 For Texas Berth

WACO, Texas, Jan. 27. — Teams representing the chamber of commerce, Y. M. B. L., will take the streets tomorrow to raise $15,000 with which to finance a Waco club, for the Texas League during the season. Until this money is pledged their is no Waco League to handle a contract.

C. R. Turner will go to Dallas tomorrow as representative of the Waco chamber of commerce and Y. M. B. L. to present to a Texas baseball league the above facts regarding the baseball situation here. With this statement, Mr. Turner carries the assurance that the Waco business organization and Waco fans are strongly behind the proposition to put Texas League baseball here, and that it is believed, that the $20,000 will be raised in a short campaign.

Mr. Turner, who has acted as head of a citizens committee during the negotiations for a baseball change here, is in communication with several men well known to baseball, with the hope of closing a trade with them to handle the Waco team, and he is of the opinion that some such man, or some major league baseball club, will take over the Waco franchise before the season ends. In the meantime, a $20,000 stock company will be formed among the Waco business men and fans.

The amount to be raised is $10,000 more than was at first expected, on account of plans to improve the ball park and extend the grand stand.

Players sold by Waco, while operating under the loan of the franchise, would be credited against the purchase price. Sales could not be made without consent of the Texas League.

The Waco men interested in the project realize that any delay in closing up matters here is inconveniencing the Texas League, in delaying schedule arrangements and other details that should be settled at once. Hence the matter is being pushed as vigorously as possible.

CHICAGO CLAIMS PRO GRID TITLE

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—The Chicago Bears' professional football club tonight claimed the professional championship of the United States despite the awarding of the title to Cleveland. They rest their claim on the fact that they had signed a contract with the Cleveland club for games on October 5 and December 7 being beaten in Cleveland on the former date and defeating Cleveland in Chicago on December 7.

The Cleveland officials claim the season closed before they were defeated by the Bears and the game was only an exhibition game.

Cooking-School Visitors Get Look in On Kemp Hotel Kitchens and See How Big Scale Food Preparation Is Done

Huge fry pans that a person could sit down in, great soup kettles as large as a washtub, and endless array of ladles, funnels, skimmers and queer utensils named heaven-knows-what, were the delight of over 75 curious and interested Wichita Falls women in attendance at the Record News cooking school at the Kemp Hotel, when they were conducted through the enormous modern kitchens of the hotel by Joe Huckins III, manager, and Louis Shuppe, head chef of the cuisine, which is the last word in equipment, sanitation, and efficiency.

Spick and Span.

The throngs of women who streamed through the aisles of the great kitchen were heard to remark on the shining cleanliness of the place, as they delved into the mysteries of the electrical equipment; from the huge mixer that did everything from mashing potatoes to kneading bread dough or whipping cream, down to the little electrical device which automatically boils eggs, timing them to a split second.

They saw the stove on which the cooking of many things takes place at once—too long and large to even comprehend, and the steam tables across the aisle in which the foods are placed to keep hot until served.

Peering into the brick oven they listened to their guide as he told them of the vast quantities of bread, rolls, pies, doughnuts, sweet rolls and cinnimon rolls turned out daily.

Dish Washing Machine.

Perhaps the most interesting sight in all the great kitchen and the one that semed more like fairy land to the home keepers, was the device which picked up the dishes on an endless belt of wooden feet, carried them into a machine which washed them and sterilized them with live steam at a temperature of 600 degrees Fahrenheit and delivered them rapidly at the other side to be placed on drain racks. Interesting too, were the endless shelves of dishes of every sort and seemingly inexhaustible qualities.

Fifty workers, Mr. Huckins explained, were employed constantly in the kitchen, which because of its extraordinarily fine equipment for its size, ranks as one of the finest hotel kitchens in this country.

It was pointed out to the ladies that everything used on the tables of the Kemp hotel dining service was prepared right from the start in the kitchen.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 27.—Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo Jr., daughter in law of the war time secretary of the treasury, will open a "Chintz shop" in her Los Angeles home next week, the Los Angeles Times says today.

"Visitors to my home are always copying my decortive schemes anyway," the Times quotes Mrs. McAdoo as saying, "so I have concluded that I might as well commercialize this talent and profit by it."

CRAWFORD

prepared by O'Day, and which related to a deposition by Willie Evans, a negro coachman employed by Colonel Crawford before his marriage to Mrs. Kate Lamar, the defendant's mother, are alleged to have caused young Crawford to lose control of himself. The deposition was excluded as evidence in the will contest trials, but commented upon in the brief, with statements to the effect that the coachman's excluded testimony showed Mrs. Lamar married Colonel Crawford for money and social position.

Young Crawford denied he was present when the deposition was taken and knew nothing of the nature of it until he read it in the brief the night before O'Day was shot and killed. He said he was not in court at the time of the will case trials when the deposition was offered or discussed.

"That negro Evans testified—that portion you read in the brief on the night before the shooting—did you hear any of it during the trial of the will case?" Crawford was asked.

"No sir, not that I know of."

Crawford said he was not a lawyer or party in the will suit. He said he left the court room at the end of the first argument in that case.

He Left the Room.

"Why did you leave then?" he was asked.

"Because I knew the arguments of the lawyers on the other side would be severe to my mother and I knew it would be painful for me to sit in the court room and hear them," he replied.

"Could you have sat there and listened to those lawyers criticise your mother?" was asked.

An objection by the state was sustained and Crawford's counsel then asked:

"Then why did you leave?"

"Because I didn't want to hear the lawyers criticise my mother."

"You didn't dream that they would attack your mother's character, did you?"

"No, sir."

"What happened after the conclusion of the arguments?"

"The court instructed a verdict in favor of my mother."

The witness told of his activities the day previous to the shooting and of having obtained a copy of the brief in the will case. He said he placed it in his pocket and did not look at it until in the evening after dinner, as his mother testified yesterday.

After reading parts of it, he testified, he could not believe he had read correctly, so he read those parts a second time. He told of his mother entering his room at that time and said he talked to her.

"Do you remember what you discussed with her?"

"I don't remember much, Mr. Allen," Crawford replied.

"Did you go to sleep after that?"

"No, sir," Crawford replied.

"Did you read Willis Evans' testimony?"

"Yes sir."

"Did you read the statements set out by the lawyers?"

"Yes sir."

"What did you think about it?"

"The negro's perjury was bad enough, but there was absolutely no excuse for what the lawyers had written."

"What did you decide to do?"

"I knew the brief had been filed, and I knew that only one living man could withdraw it. I decided to go to him and get him to withdraw it so it would not stand over my mother's head and my head and my children's heads, if I should ever have any, as a record for all time."

Decided to See O'Day.

"What next did you decide to do?"

"To go see him. I at first thought that I would go then."

"In the middle of the night?"

"Yes. But I don't know why I changed my mind."

The state objected to the form of a question asking whether the defendant thought anyone would assail the good name of his mother. The form was changed and the witness answered he never had such thought.

"Did you remember much about what happened after that?" he then was asked.

"I don't remember much about it—no, sir."

Crawford's counsel pointed out to him excerpts from the brief in question and the remarks made about the deposition of Willis Evans and asked: "William, do you think the testimony of that negro justified the remarks made by Paul O'Day?"

"No sir, I did not, the perjury of the negro was bad enough but it did not, compare with that of the attorney."

Later in the examination Crawford was asked again:

"Was there word of trouth of what Willis Evans said?"

"I know there was not."

"Did you think it would have gone into that brief, unless some attorneys just wanted to win a case?"

"I did not, and I knew Paul O'Day was responsible."

"You believed that, then?"

"Yes, and I do now. And I believe further that it was done to infimidate and scare my mother and that they thought she would give up some of her property and make a settlement rather than be humiliated."

"Now what was the condition of your mind?"

"You'd have to go through the same night, Mr. Allen, to know."

"Did you sleep any?"

"No."

"Were these conclusions reached 'after' your mother came into your room, or 'after?'

"After."

Looked For Gun.

Crawford then told how the morning of the shooting he looked for a shot gun at his home, not finding the first one, he sought and then getting a gun which belonged to a man rooming there. He said the gun was not loaded and that he got some shells from a basket. He said he left the house through a side entrance to keep his mother from seeing he had a gun as he did not wish her to worry.

"Why did you have that gun?"

"Because I didn't believe any man would have said what that man said about my mother and not arm himself. I wanted a gun when I talked to him, because I wanted those briefs withdrawn. I had a two fold purpose and I thought if I had a gun he would be more likely to listen to me."

"William, did you intend to kill Paul O'day?"

"To kill that man was the last thing I wanted to do."

"Why?"

"Just for the reason that this court room is crowded now. I didn't want my mother to go through this ordeal."

Crawford told of his trip down town in his mother's automobile as he carried the gun. How he had to hunt a place to park the car, and said he sat in the car possibly about fifteen minutes. He told of getting out of the car, and pausing on the sidewalk in front of the bank building, where the shooting occurred.

Telling of reading the brief, how he obtained a shotgun and waited for O'Day to appear at the entrance of his office building, Crawford said he called to O'Day and said:

"I told him, I have just read your brief—do you question my mother's chastity?"

"Why did you ask him that, William?" Crawford's attorney asked.

"I felt sure that he'd say that he didn't. I knew that I could show him that he had done my mother an awful wrong, and felt that I could induce him to withdraw the brief."

"What answer did you expect O'Day to make to your question?"

"I expected him to say 'no.'"

"And what did he say?"

"Yes, and I can prove what I say."

"Were you expecting that sort of an answer?"

"I was not."

Tells of Meeting Him.

Crawford said that O'Day started into the lobby, that as O'Day passed him, a brief case O'Day carried struck him on the leg. Crawford said he was "paralyzed by his answer," and continued, "when I realized what he had said, I reached back and got my gun and ran in there and shot him."

Asked "Why did you shoot him?" Crawford replied:

"I couldn't help it."

The witness denied that up to the moment O'Day had answered his question (Crawford) did not expect to shoot him. He said he had been under a tremendous nervous and mental strain from the time he read the brief the night before until the shooting. He did not remember seeing various persons whose names were mentioned in questions.

Crawford then was turned over to the state for cross-examination. He was asked and reiterated denials that he knew what was contained in the brief in the will case until the night before the trouble or that he knew what were the contents of a deposition by Willis Evans, a negro coachman employed by the defendant's father before marriage to Mrs. Kate Lamar, the defendant's mother. He denied he had any curiosity about the contents of the deposition. Crawford declared his only purpose in going to see O'Day was to "get those briefs," saying "I thought I should get those briefs to protect my mother's honor."

"He said he had not reasoned out what he would do with the shotgun if O'day refused to give him the briefs, reiterating his statement on direct examination, that he thought "any man who would say what he did about my mother, or any other man's mother, for that matter, wouldn't walk the streets unarmed—and I thought more probably he would give me the brief if he saw the shotgun."

THEY FAIL TO BREAK IN.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, while in South America visited the rich and prosperous state of Argentina. There he found 70,000 Spaniards and 90,000 Italians who had been barred from these shores by the Johnson Immigration Act.

Secretary Davis is a Welshman. He came to America when a little lad. He must have been handed a cock and bull story while in Argentina. Spaniards do not come to the United States. They prefer Mexico or the South American republic. As for Italians, they are as much at home in Argentaina as they are in New York City.

A third of the population of Argentina is of Italian ancestry. Italians migrated to that country long before the coming of the Civil war in the United States. They were the pioneers in establishing the wheat industry in Argentina. Now they have been excluded from these shores and millions are certain to desert Italy for South American lands.

Italy has a population of 35,000,000. It has no timber resources or mineral resources. It is impossible for a small country like Italy to support a vast population and the surplus must find a haven somewhere under the world skies. South America is the haven for the sons and daughters of Italy who have been excluded from this great republic of the west.

"IS THE LINE BUSY?"

Now we are told by an authority that the telephone systems in America have strung enough wire to go around the earth 1,400 times, or 35 million miles of wire; they have placed one telephone for every seven persons in the country, or 15 million telephones. Over these systems 21,450,000,000 calls were made in one year or over 10 times the number of people on the earth. Capital investment in American telephone systems amounts to $2,750,000,000; the employes number 300,000, and the number of bond and share holders is 350,000. This is something staggering. Gone is the tallow dip age.

A REMARKABLE SHOWING.

According to the statistician of the Texas Public Service Information bureau, every day the American people invested half a billion dollars in 1924. That is, they invested in public utility securities, excluding the securities of steam railroads. In 1923 the total sales of these securities was $300,000,000. In 1922 it was $175,000,000; in 1921 it was $80,000,000. Now it is said that the sales for 1924 ran close to $500,000,000. Why should the pessimist be abroad in the land?

GROWTH OF TEXAS.

According to a recent bulletin, Texas has 21 electric railway systems and the value of these systems is approximately $80,000,000. According to the bulletin, in 1923 these electric railway lines carried approximately 300,000,000. This amounted to more more than 63 car rides for every man, woman and child in the state. Gone are the old cattle trails and the dust of time has buried the oxcart period of civilization. Now why should the state lag behind in education, highway construction or conservation of resources.

What Today Means To You

AQUARIUS

During the early part of the day, the planetary aspects are very favorable, and indicate success in almost any line of conservative endeavor, provided there is constructive ability and forceful energy. The signs particularly encourage deals in real estate, mining, and mechanical fields. In the afternoon, the vibrations denote a lack of stimulation, and breed an air of discouragement and depression. Under such circumstances, it is politic to refrain from any excessive efforts, and to take things calmy and with great deliberation. Your temperament is liable to be affected, and you should be very circumspect in all things, and maintain poise, by exercising self-restraint.

A child born today will require, during the infant period, more than ordinary care and attention. Its natal weakness need not, however, cause worry or anxiety. All it will need in order to attain physical normaley will be careful nutrition and wholesome environment. Once it has ceased to be a baby, its health will cause no trouble, as all its ailments will be of a very slight character. Its disposition will be very affectionate and trusting, fond of outdoor sports and pastimes, whilst, at the same time, it will not neglect its studies. Brilliant things must not be expected from this child, but it will be at all times very happy, and bring happiness and enjoyment to those with whom it associates.

If today is your birthday, your character is rather complex, as it is made up of good and bad in about equal proportions. Your conscience is no small, still voice, but a loud speaker, and every day you are waging internal conflicts with the warring elements in your "make-up." You are more than anxious to be right, and do the right thing, but the perversity of your tendencies often impel you to do those things which you ought not to do, and to leave undone those things which you ought to do.

You are at times honest and straightforward, persevering and consistent, affectionate and considerate. On the other hand at other times you are more shrewd than honest, more circumlocutory than straightforward. You are also occasionally subject to fits of laziness, and become erratic. Your affections are very deeply rooted, but you sometimes allow your thoughts and acts to wander from the "straight and narrow," much to your own discomfiture and remorse. If you could only allow your good impulses to rule your life, not only would you experience greater happiness, but your life would be more successful, and your friends more numerous.

Successful people born on this date are: Coleman Sellers, engineer and inventor; Edward W. Morley, chemist; Sir Henry M. Stanley, explorer; Alexander Doyle, sculptor; Daniel Loerllard, financier.

More Truth Than Poetry

Said I to a sheik: "When the desert you roam
In your wayward Arabian style,
And pitch 'neath a palm tree your portable home
By the sound of the murmuring Nile,
And you gaze at the stars in the tropical sky,
'Ere to slumber you silently sink—
And the sibilant sand like a serpent slips by,
Pray what are the thoughts that you think?"
"I think," said the sheik, "how I'll get back to town,
If I've run out of gas, or the flivver breaks down."

Said I to the Red Man: "No longer your brow
Is smeared with the pigment of war;
You don't scalp the pale face as cruelly now
As you did in the brave days of yore.
Yet afar o'er the prairies you absently gaze
And a frown on your features I find,
Are you mourning for bloodier, happier days?
Is that what you've got on your mind?"
"Ugh! No!" quoth the brave, looking weary and bored,
"Me think how can by'um good second hand Ford!"

Said I to a cowboy: "Why sit on this fence,
With that beaten out look in your eyes?
Why are not you mounted and galloping hence
Where you mountain tops soar to the skies?
Is your pinto worn out from the last break neck chase
Did he founder in yesterday's greulling race,
And foddering up on fresh hay?
That you sit here and idle all day?"
"Aw nix," said the cowboy, "you ain't got me right,
I lost my tin Lizzie at poker last night."

WORTH WHILE.

The late Thomas Ince left more than $1,600,000. Our ambition at one time was to be a bank director. Now we want to be a motion picture director.

HOW DID HE LEARN 'EM?

A man in New York said to a judge: "I won't work," in eight languages. College students are wondering how he acquired all those languages with that kind of disposition.

By Dr. Frank Crane

THE BACK-LOG OF PROSPERITY

Mr. William E. Knox, president of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York, and also president of the American Bankers' Association, delivered an address the other day in Cleveland before the Bankers' club.

He called the savings of the people the Back-Log of Prosperity.

There is no doubt of his correctness. If our prosperity rested upon the whim of the few it would be flickering. Since it rests upon the motion of the public it argues continued success.

Savings not only mean dollars in the banks. It means an increase of the capital which is to be devoted toward the development of the country. This is because the money in the banks is immediately applied by the bankers for the purposes of securities in railroad and other industrial developments.

The fact that our savings have increased from $11,600,000,000 to $24,000,000,000 means the small savings of many millions of people, instead of being fooled away in some manner of immediate consumption, are massed together and applied to the upbuilding of our industrial equipment.

"These tremendous savings figures," he said, "indicate sound habits of thought and practice on the part of millions of people. It is one of the most promising elements in the situation today. It means that we not only have the resources for prosperity, but also the common sense to make good use of them."

The strength of a country is indicated in two ways. First, by the valor and health of its people, and, second, by the amount of resources that they have piled up behind them.

When it comes to a case of war, the people must not only be willing to fight, but they must have capital enough to enable them to get something to fight with.

The pocketbook is a very important element of national defense.

Sub Rosa

THE CHATTERBOX.

"Dear Mimi: I want to know why I'm not popular. Seems to me I'm just as good-looking as loads of other girls, know how to dance, and I'm not exactly loss for conversation. In fact, I'm rather inclined the other way. I usually do most of the talking, and the boys seem to be interested. It's never hard for me to think of things to say—so I'm writing for your pamphlet "Food for Conversation."

"It seems to me, Mimi, there are so many things to talk about—such as school work, dancing, friends, and so forth, that no more food for conversation is necessary. I'm sure my lack is not in that direction. What is it? I'm a blonde, with pretty good features, and my family has enough money for me to dress nicely. Lots of boys come to see me once or twice, but they never come after that. What can be the matter?" M.

Well, I think this young lady has told us pretty definitely what's the matter in the fourth sentence of her letter. "She usually does most of the talking." Horrors! What man is going to stand for that?

Surely, the one lesson every girl learns before she is old enough to put up her hair, or have it bobbed as the case may be—is that a man likes above all things to talk about himself, and he likes to talk.

He may listen patiently, and with apparent interest to a recital of your troubles at school, of the many dances you've attended lately, the clever actions of your five year old brother—but inwardly he's putting you down as a chatterbox.

Perhaps he isn't conscious, himself, of the lack he feels in your conversation. Perhaps he just has a vague feeling that he isn't as entertained and interested when talking to you as he is when holding a conversation with V—— who lives down the street from you.

Don't think I'm advising you to devote a whole evening to discussing the boy whom you're entertaining. As I've often said, it's absolutely essential to have a good fundamental knowledge of books, and current topics to be an interesting conversationalist but—let the man start the discussion on all these things.

Let him tell you what he thinks about this and that, voice his undoubtedly important views on the affairs of the world—and then show by your replies that you have an intelligent opinion on these subjects yourself.

Never subject any man to the boredom of listening all evening to long-winded stories about you and your friends, your family, your business associates. Always, if you must tell anecdotes, let them be about people he knows, and in whom he has an interest.

Oh, it's quite as bad to be a too-good talker, as to be a shy retiring violet who has to write to Mimi for food for conversation.

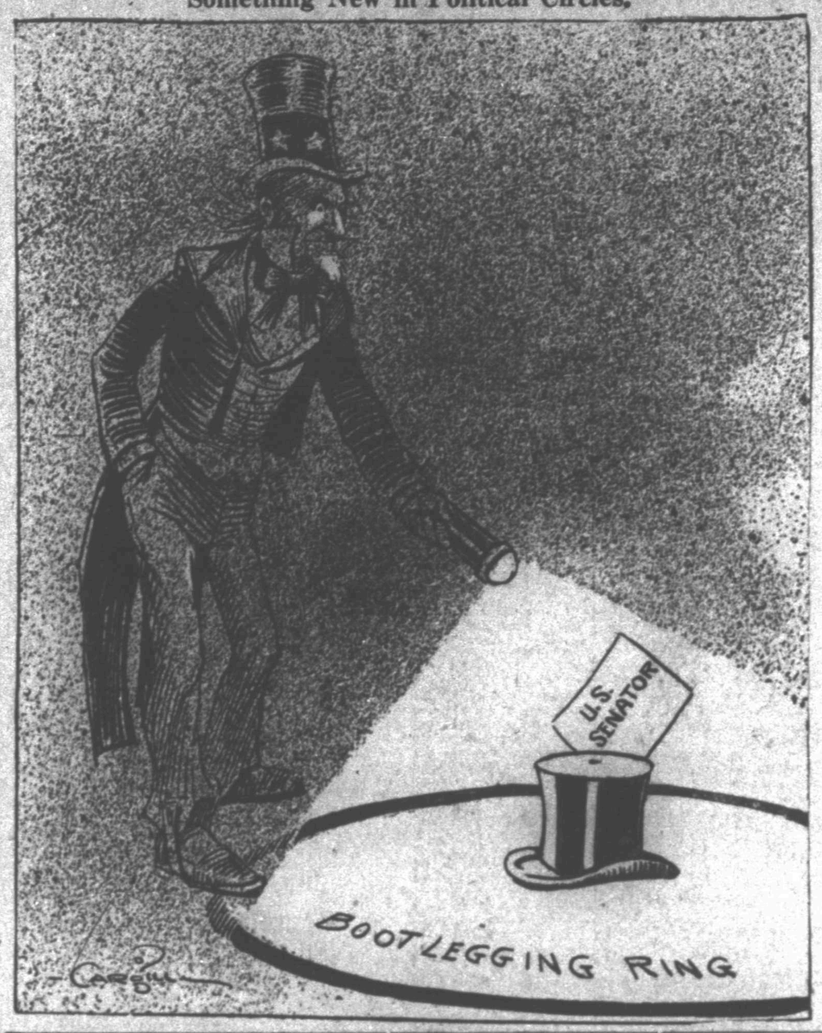

There's hope for the girl who's too self-conscious to talk properly. She can train herself to become an interesting and fluent talker.

But the young woman who feels herself competent to handle the conversation, on her own, all evening is in a dangerous state of mind. She's got to unlearn the bad habit of chattering.

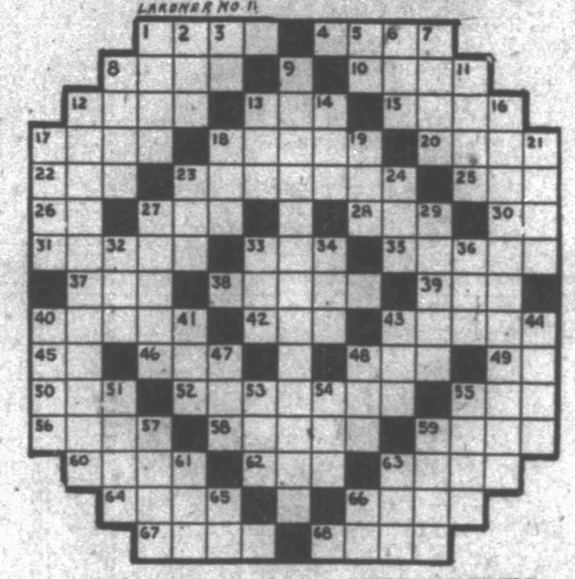

In spite of what you say M—— I'm going to send you "Food For Conversation"—real conversation, the sort that will keep the boys coming time after time. I do so want to help all you girls to the good times and many attentions that is girlhood's due.

Write me in care of this paper. I won't publish your letters, unless you ask me to. Enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Cross-Word Puzzle

How to Solve the Cross Word Puzzle.

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may of course begin both a horizontal and a vertical. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross-clues to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED

GLEANINGS

FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

Really Educated.

What is an educated man?

Ramsey MacDonald, lately prime minister of England, visited a workingman's college in London and expressed the opinion that an educated man is not a "learned man." By this he meant that he is not necessarily educated because he is learned. Nor is he an educated man simply because he is a university man, MacDonald opined.

"The educated man is a man with certain subtle spiritual qualities which make him calm in adversity, happy when alone, just in his dealings, rational and sane in the fullest meaning of that word in all the affairs of his life."

We prefer this definition of an educated man to one given by President Hopkins of Dartmouth in a recent address:

"Such a man must have been humble in the presence of great minds and great souls, must have been simple in contacts with his fellows, and must have been indefatigable in his desire to cultivate and maintain the power of his mind and to accumulate knowledge which makes up the data of accurate reasoning."

It should be remembered that, in strictness, there is no such thing as an educated man. A famous biologist once wrote: "Suppose that an adult man, in full vigor of his faculties, could be suddenly placed in the world, as Adam is said to have been, and then left to do as he best might. How long would he be left uneducated? Not five minutes. Nature would begin to teach him, through the eye, the ear, the touch, the properties of objects. Pain and pleasure would be at his elbow telling him to do this, and avoid that; and by slow degrees the man would receive an education which, if narrow, would be thorough, real and adequate to his circumstances, though there would be no erring and very few accomplishments."

Every person, then, is educated, in a sense; but the gulf between the degree of education attained by the average man, and the highest degree of education, is abysmal.

Thomas Huxley said that man has had a liberal education who has been trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will, and does with ease and pleasure all the work that, as a mechanism, it is capable of;

Whose intellect is a clear, cold logic machine, with all its parts of equal strength, and in smooth working order; ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work, and sure the gossamers as well as forge the anchors of the mind;

Whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental truths of nature and the laws of her operations;

One who, not stunted asectic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art, to hate all vileness, and to respect others as himself.

In other words, those who take honors in nature's university, who learn the laws which govern men and things and obey them, are the really educated.

POEMS THAT LIVE

SWEET ARE THE CHARMS.

Sweet are the charms of her I love:
More fragrant than the damask rose,
Soft as the down of turtle dove,
Gentle as the air when zephyr blows,
Refreshing as descending rains
To sunburnt climes and thirsty plains,
The green of the trees looks far greener than ever,
And the linnets are singing, "True lovers don't sever!"

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

LEADING STRINGS.

Horses are considered intelligent when they will go whither they are driven without balking or running away.

Children, at the age when they are supposed to be "in leading strings," are considered models when they get out of bed in the morning and go to bed at night exactly when they are told to, and make no fuss about it.

But when human beings arrive at the age of twenty-one, they ought to have judgment enough to use some choice as to the leading strings which direct their curse.

And if they find that these leading strings are taking them in the wrong direction it is time to make a change.

Naturally there has to be discipline and organization in life, or it would not be possible for great numbers of people to work together.

But there is always room for individual thought and individual energy, and the people who are too lazy or too cowardly to exert these qualities must be driven, and in any direction the drivers may select.

It is a foolish father who will seek to keep a boy in leading strings, insisting that he choose a particular calling, whether he has any interest in it or not.

It is a foolish mother who will try to keep her son at home after he has grown, and undertake to choose for him the wife with whom he must live long after the well intending but misguided mother has been laid to her rest.

Up to a certain time, children need the advice and counsel of their parents. For many years young people in business need the direction and suggestion of others of more experience.

But there comes a time when everybody must break leading strings, and decide to have something to say about his own career, or sink into slavish submission to the will of others for the rest of his life.

I recall the case of a boy who was so devoted to his mother that he gave up at her pleading a girl whom he loved, and who would have made him an excellent wife.

The girl, having a spirit of her own, refused to have her life blighted by the lad's insistence on waiting till he could talk his mother over.

She married another man, and raised a happy family.

The boy remained a bachelor as long as his mother lived, and at forty-five, married a woman who has made his life a burden to him ever since.

His loyalty to his mother was not as commendable as it was foolish. He had wasted the years of his youth, and did not marry till his judgment was so blunted that he was not able to choose a mate with intelligence.

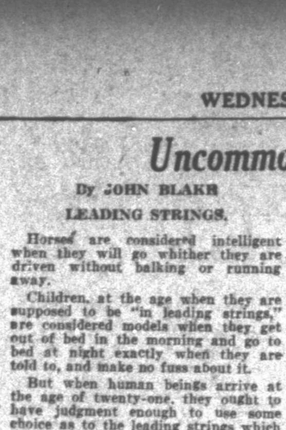

Parents ought to perform the same function for their children as do the ways perform for ships which are built on them, supporting them and sustaining them while their characters are forming, but getting out of the way when the hour comes for the launching.

Those who are forever in leading strings have no independence and no judgment, and both qualities are highly essential to the business of getting out of life the happiness that it holds for all ablebodied and mentally sound young men and women.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

Irrigation

Dr. Youngblood's Address to the Chamber of Commerce

The principal speaker at the chamber of commerce annual banquet held at the Junior college January 9 was Dr. B. Youngblood, director of the Texas experiment stations.

Dr. Youngblood is a widely known authority on agriculture. He is well acquainted with the problems that confront the farmer, the stockraiser, and the irrigationist here and elsewhere. Through his travels and the various contacts he makes with irrigation in Texas and other states he is certainly competent to advise on the problems that are to be encountered here.

In his address he gave us advice which if needed will save many mistakes in the development of this project and will save the expenditure of millions of dollars in the course of the coming years.

The address attracted but little attention and caused less comment. Just why this should be is hard to understand unless it was that the men in the audience were interested in things other than irrigation and agricultural development and failed to realize the value of his remarks.

Dr. Youngblood has supplied us with a copy of his address and it is our intention to place before the people here the more salient facts contained in it together with such comment as may be necessary to show how it applies in detail to our problems.

We are sure that no criticisms are intended in this address. In fact it is plainly stated that he approves of the work done so far, but who would not warn a blind man on the brink of a precipice of his danger.

In subsequent articles we will use excerpts from this able address and show how the advice given applies to our problems.

Playing with Fire
The Story of a Social Climber
by Lucille Van Slyke

"He'd just have to behave!" she thought childishly.

And in the end, of course, bored almost to tears by the week of teaching and tutoring and the, to her, depressing effect of living in the "world without men," she went to Mrs. Hartwell directly after breakfast on Saturday morning with a low-voiced request for an afternoon to go to New York "on business." She tripped away vastly relieved that the principal had asked no questions but merely said that the station cart would be going down for the eleven-forty train.

"I believe Miss Fenwick is going in to see her oculist," she added.

Rosalie's heart sank. Miss Fenwick was the Vassar graduate who had repeatedly cautioned her against Dick Converse. The sharp-eyed Miss Fenwick would be sure to see him in the station and likely to guess that they had some sort of rendezvous. Almost she decided she would not go!

Then too, the ever-present clothes problem was a handicap. It sometimes seemed to the shabby Rosalie that every time she wanted to do anything at all she was confronted with her irritating lack of a proper wardrobe. Certainly her dowdy Emsville suit would not do for this momentous trip to New York. Nor could she wear her gay new sport things. In the end she stayed in the little grey jersey frock she had bought from Miss Fenwick and hastily pulled the new grey felt hat over her pretty forehead and had to run to be in time for the station cart. She assuaged a conscience that was growing guiltier in feeling every moment, with the fact that Mrs. Hartwell was really to blame for her going, for that lady had commissioned her with an errand at a stationer's shop in Madison avenue.

SHE was in a nervous jumpy mood by the time they reached the station. Dick saw them coming and discreetly retired behind a newspaper at the far end of the platform. After the train came he hid himself in the depths of the smoking car. But Rosalie had an anxious moment an hour later as the train was pulling into Grand Central when Miss Fenwick casually suggested that they have luncheon together at her club.

"Oh, I can't," Rosalie said vaguely. "I have to meet a friend from out of town."

Dick was waiting for her at the appointed place.

"I guess we're the careful clandestine kids, eh?" he laughed as he saw her worried look.

There were flowers as well as fruits on sale in the little shop. He bought some gardenias, pinning one to her shoulder and fastening the other in his own coat lapel. They discovered when they were in the street that the autumn day had turned suddenly cold and windy. Rosalie ashamed of her shabby coat, had come without any wrap and she shivered involuntarily.

"I've a positive inspiration," Dick said casually. "I have to buy a birthday gift for my sister. We'll go get a scarf and you can wear it for me, save my carrying it and all that sort of thing."

Surely nobody could have objected to so eminently practical a suggestion. Rosalie didn't. And the shop to which he took her, though it seemed small to her unsophisticated eyes, was filled with such gay and lovely things that it was hard to chose.

He picked out a rather gaudy one with longitudinal stripes of gypsy colors that seemed to Rosalie rather too bright. But when the saleswoman had artfully draped it about her slim grey shoulders and the girl saw her own reflection in the long mirror she agreed with Dick that it was a "perfect peach."

"And warm as toast," she chattered as she pulled the soft wool about her throat when they were in the street.

They lunched in a demurely smart restaurant, where Rosalie was fascinated with everything and everybody. The music was heavenly she hummed under her breath and her eyes were bright with excitement.

AFTERWARD they loitered their way through a cross street filled with alluring shops and in the end they had to hurry to make their matinee on time.

Dick had chosen a tuneful musical comedy and Rosalie adored every minute of it. When they came out into the twilight street she lifted shining eyes to his and murmured:

"I feel like Cinderella, you know—it's been simply wonderful."

"Well, Cinderella had until midnight," he suggested carefully. "Let's go somewhere for some tea."

She shook her head.

"No, I'm going straight back to school," she said sternly.

She began pulling the scarf from around her shoulders.

"You'd better take this, I'll be in my train and won't be cold at all —"

"Um, said Wick. "I couldn't manage it—they didn't give us any box. Tell you what, you wear it out in the country and I'll drop around some day for it."

She flushed.

"I could mail it to you, I—Mrs. Hartwell—well, she won't let any of us teachers have anything to do with—with male relatives of the pupils," she stammered. "I really should not have come with you today."

"Sorry you came?" he asked her tenderly.

She shook her head shyly.

"Aha, you're found out old Dicko isn't such a bad play fellow, eh?" he added. He looked very handsome smiling down at her. "The idea of their treating you like you were one of the pupils!" he went on, heatedly. "If you are old enough to teach you are old enough to know where you want to go and with whom! They literally force you to sneak, don't they? Well, personally I rather like this clandestine stuff! Makes me feel young and devilish! Tell you what you do. Keep kidding the Harpy along. Clandestine kidding we'll call it. Tell her you have some—er—more business about Wednesday will you? I want you to see a really big hotel at tea time. We'll have some tea and a couple of dancers. There's a three fifty train, gets you in town a little before five. I'll meet you the same place we met today—"

She didn't promise of course. But all the way out in the train a Mona Lisa smile wreathed her lips.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
The Cinderella Game

THE scarf that Dick Converse had bought, suppositiously for his sister, never reached that estimable soul, set at forty-seven. For on Monday morning, when Rosalie had it nicely tied up ready to send to Dick, she found a little letter from him in her morning mail in which he said that he had discovered that his sister was going south for the winter and would need a thinner scarf and that he did wish Rosalie would keep on wearing this one for the time being.

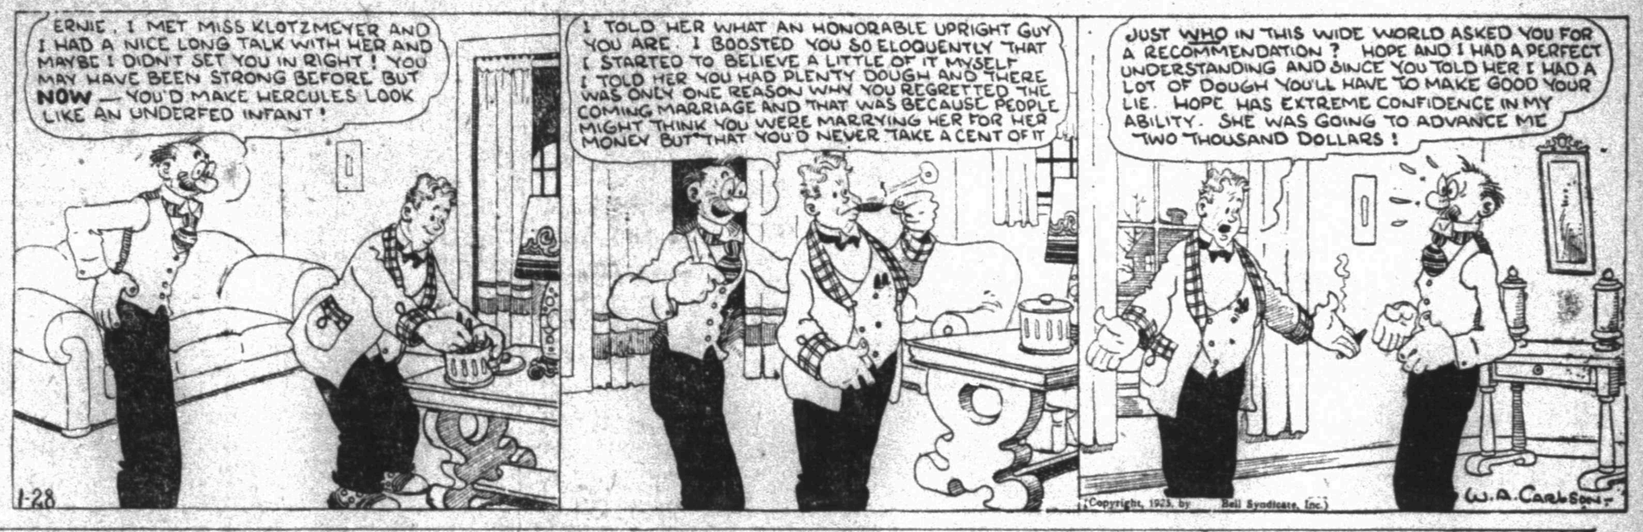

"—I'm not giving it to you but I'm asking you to keep the moths out of it by wearing it—" he wrote. "You made me very happy Saturday and I am looking forward to the next time we play the Cinderella game—"

They played it many times in the weeks that followed. Rosalie told herself that she couldn't have endured the out and out drudgery that was hers if she didn't have some diversion. She utterly loathed her job. And she had burned her bridges behind her with a vengeance the day when she sent her ring back to Chet Ferguson. He surprised her by not even answering her letter. Her sister Jean wrote her a ten page scolding that made Rosalie perfectly furious.

"You've behaved abominably to Chet and broken the poor boy's heart," she said. "I am ashamed of you. I never thought that a sister of mine could be just a mercenary little jilt."

Dots Puzzle -

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

IT ISN'T FAIR FOR MARRIED SONS AND DAUGHTERS TO DUMP THEIR BURDENS ON THE OLD MOTHER WHO HAS CARRIED THEM FOR ONE GENERATION—HER RESPONSIBILITIES SHOULD END WHEN HER CHILDREN GET MARRIED.

A mother recently said to me: "Will you please write something about married children inviting themselves back home for mother to cook dinner for every Sunday and every holiday?

"I have four as fine children as any woman has ever been blessed with, perfectly satisfactory in-laws, and half a dozen grandchildren that are infant phenomenons in my eyes. I am devoted to each and every one of them, and glad that they always want to come back to home and mother, but by the time I have prepared a company dinner for my beloved family and cleaned up after it I am worn to a frazzle.

"Sunday isn't a day of rest for me. It is a day of nervous prostration, for it takes just as much time and work and worry to cook for your children as it does to cook for any one else. Perhaps it takes a little more, because John expects to have the souffle potatoes that he thinks that nobody can make like mother can, and Mary looks forward to getting her favorite dessert, and Tom will be disappointed if he doesn't have the fried chicken he has been crazy about ever since he was a boy, and Agnes will feel defrauded if mother hasn't prepared her pet salad.

"Now, as I said before, I am devoted to my family, and I like to see them gathered about my table, and I know they enjoy meeting with each other every Sunday, but I think there should be a little reciprocity in these matters and that mother shouldn't be left with the bag to hold all the time.

"Why doesn't it occur to them that it is just as much trouble and labor for mother to get up a big dinner as it is for them? Why do they never have a bunch that mother would like to be invited out for Sunday dinner now and then to meet her children, instead of their always coming to her? Why don't they realize that mother would even like a quiet Sunday occasionally in which to loaf and invite her soul, with not even a grandchild to disturb her?

"Of course, my children don't mean to impose upon me. No more do the majority of other mothers' children. But for all of that, most of us find that our married children, and especially our married daughters, force a species of slavery upon us.

"They dump their burdens down on our shoulders. They turn our homes into free restaurants and orphan asylums. They make us sick nurses and baby nurses, and instead of our cares and responsibilities being lightened by our children getting married, they are multiplied by just the number of new in-laws and babies we acquire.

"When there is any sickness in any of her children's families, they run hot-foot for mother, because mother is about as good as a professional nurse, and she doesn't have to be paid. And, as in a big family connection there is nearly always somebody ill, mother is pretty constantly on the job. But her children never dream that they are putting any hardship upon her, or demanding any sacrifice from her, because they are accustomed to having mother nurse them when they are sick.

"When John decides that he will take his wife and run over to Europe for a jaunt, they don't bother at all about what they will do with the children. They simply tell mother that they are going to give her a treat by letting her have their little darlings all to herself for three wonderful months. And John's wife leaves a volume of instructions about how the baby is to be fed, and instructs mother in all the latest new-fangled theories about child rearing, and blithely departs for her vacation, while mother spends a strenuous season wrestling with a lot of spoiled youngsters.

"Mary and Agnes have no hesitancy in parking out their infants at mother's whenever they want to go to the matinee, or on a shopping orgy, or have a bridge date. Mother plays nursemaid, and has her neat house cluttered up, and plays horse and reads stories until her tongue hangs out and she wears herself to a frazzle trying to entertain children that she can't spank and make behave, as she used to her own children. And when Mary and Agnes finally retrieve their kiddies, she feels as if a steamroller had passed over her and she was a million years old.

"Now, it isn't that we mothers don't want to help our children. We do. It is not that we do not wish to gather them about us. We do. But we don't want to be made a perpetual sacrifice to them.

"We have given them all of our youth. We have walked the colic with them when they were babies. We have spent weary nights watching by their sick beds. We have sewed and mended and cooked for them while they were growing boys and girls. We have gone shabby and done without the things we have wanted to send them to college and give them good clothes when they were young, and now that they are grown and have set up homes of their own we think it is our time to have a little rest and pleasure.

"We think that bringing up one family of children is enough of a job for any woman. We think that our children should take care of their own children as we did of ours, and without expecting us to do it for them. We think that they should occasionally cook dinners for us instead of having us cook dinners for them. We even think that they should keep their worries and anxieties to themselves a little, instead of running to mother, and saddling her with troubles she cannot shield them from.

"In a word, we think that mother should not always be made the family goat. What do you think?"

"The same," I replied. What about it, girls?

A freshman class meeting will be held Monday morning at 9:30 at the college. Plans will be discussed for the rummage sale which will be held for the benefit of the Annual. Orders will be taken for the W. F. J. C. belts and buckles.

Announcement was made Tuesday that a college newspaper is practically assured. The Retail Merchants association has recognized the advertising as legitimate, and this with the assurance of hearty support from the business men guarantee the financial success. Plans are being perfected by Professor Edwards, who with the support and co-operation of the K. O. H. club has made it possible for a paper. It but remains for the official board and Dr. Cantwell to give their final approval of all the details. It is reported that little doubt is felt that this approval will be forthcoming and that a paper will do much towards encouraging college spirit and building up a great interest in the college.

Miss Ruth Moore was elected president of the Social Science club of the high school, Monday morning at the regular semi-monthly meeting held in the auditorium. Other officers were vice-president, Ford Chauncey; secretary, Fred Cooper; treasurer, Jane Moore.

All students who make an exemption grade in any subject of the history department are eligible to belong. The purpose of the club is to obtain from the oral reports given at the meetings a knowledge of current history, civic and economic problems. The club will meet twice each month.

The horse sense that prevented wrecks in the old days probably belonged to the horse.

Don't cook all over the house!

Mrs. Ida Chitwood, in her lectures in the Cooking School conducted by this newspaper explains that it is not necessary to have your whole house smell of smoke whenever you have deep frying to do.

"With Crisco," she says, "you need not heat your fat to the smoking point, because Crisco's proper frying temperature is below its burning (or smoking) point."

Not alone in frying does Crisco improve cooking results, but it also excels as shortening for all pastries, cakes and biscuits.

Burbank Sorry For Dorothy Ellingson

By LUTHER BURBANK
World Famous Plant Wizard and Scientist

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Jan. 27.—My sympathies in the case of Dorothy Ellingson, are with the misguided girl but my judgment is that for the protection of others some punishment must be prescribed.

The poor dead mother cannot be wholly blamed by any means, as in our very mixed race, individual peculiarties may be expected occasionally in any family.

Human heredity is complicated combination of ancestry, especially so in the American race.

As in plant and animal life, so in human life there are thousands of inherited tendencies which seek expression. Most of these are encouraged or inhibited by environment.

The social fabric, as a whole, is often partly at fault.

The privileges and responsibilities of life are too often thought of little importance, especially by the thoughtless young.

The house passed the appropriation bill carrying funds for the department of state, justice, commerce and labor.

Representatives of a number of churches appeared before the house foreign affairs committee to urge American participation in the world court.

Indications pointed to several changes in positions at the department of justice in addition to the retirement of Attorney General Stone.

Secretary Wilbur told the house military committee that President Coolidge was opposed to the bill for unification of the army and navy air services.

Final congressional action was taken by the senate on passage of the Smith-Hoch resolution looking ultimately to a readjustment of freight rates.

Economy Plans of Ma's Legislature Have Drab Future

Mass Of Matters Remain For Attention As New Week Starts

CAN'T MAKE HASTE

Just Too Much to Do And Too Little Time to Do It In, Is Trouble

By W. BOYD GATEWOOD
Record News Staff at Austin.

AUSTIN, Jan. 27.—Economy and haste, twin demands made of the thirty-ninth legislature by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and concurred in by the legislature itself, are doomed to fail of success, competent authorities in both houses acknowledged reluctantly here today as they prepared for the session's third week.

Completion of its manifold duties and tasks, including the passage of all appropriation measures, by this legislature is no longer a chance even to be hoped.

Outlook Doubtful.

The financial outlook is not optimistic. A net deficit, instead of a balance or a surplus, appears in prospect at the end of the fiscal year, unless very substantial increases are made in the general fund or unless a keen-edged paring knife is used to trim appropriations to their utmost. That deficit may reach a million or a million and a half.

Meanwhile, virtually every section of the state is scrambling to plunge empty hands into the state coffers. Cries for state and county tax remissions extending over long periods of time create the greatest obstacle in the way of the economy devoutly to be wished, members of the senate finance committee and the house appropriations committee agree.

Want Tax Exemption.

Galveston county wants its tax exemption, county and state, extended 15 years. Flood control work moved Brazoria county to seek a similar tax remission. So they pour in, for this reason or that, and so numerous that legislators, seeing other drains on the treasury looming ahead, sigh resignedly and give up hope of setting a record as the economy legislature of the state.

The week's session just past has shown legislators the folly of their earlier hope for economy and haste. They know now that the appropriations cannot be passed in the constitutional sixty-day session and that a called session will have to be held for that purpose.

Last week's session likewise developed other important matters that will project themselves into the limeligh in the very near future.

There is the state child labor bill proposing regulation of the employment of children, 15 years being set as the minimum age at which they may engage in ordinary work, 17 that at which they may engage in hazardous employment. Other regulatory measures are incorporated involving sex, number of hours, etc. Farm labor is exempted.

Expect No Opposition.

No formal opposition is expected to develop on the state child labor bill. It is considered a substitute for the national child labor bill offered for ratification and peremptorily squelched.

The proposed 10 per cent tax law on cigarettes and cigars is certain to be the target of a knock down and drag out and its passage is very unlikely, a poll of opinion here would indicate.

"Why doesn't Mt pick on her sex and slap a tax on cosmetics instead of cigars and cigarettes," is a familiar complaint.

Three bank bills now before the legislature, one in the senate by Holbrook of Galveston and two by Blount of Nacogdoches in the house are not likely to escape stiff resistance from several quarters, it is predicted. The bills would make it optional whether state banks operated under the bank guaranty fund system or under a bond.

The Ferguson vindication move has not yet reached the constitutional amendment phase which a majority of authorities agree it must reach before any legal action can be taken on it.

constitutional amendments areshrdlu However, a number of proposed constitutional amendments are either before the house or senate.

One would levy a tax to pay pensions to school teachers who have served 30 years in educational work in the state. Its chance of ever getting out of the propositional stage is that of the chance of a minnow in the Mojave desert.

Another suggested constitutional amendment would submit to the people a plan to limit membership of the house to 100 and abolish the $5 per diem limit. That proposition was offered by Representative Harmon of Waco. Representative Kenyon of Galveston proposed the teacher pension plan.

The real estate bill designed to regulate and license brokers, agents and salesmen and to creat a state board of examiners is in for hard sledding. Although it has the endorsement of the state real estate association, independent real estaters have their representatives here determined to defeat the law.

Both the motor bus and truck and the highway bills went into both houses and were referred to committees. Thus far they lie more or less dormant, as does Representative Luke Mankin's "death penalty" anti-klan bill, which is expected to stir up a much red fire and high explosives.

Want Amendment.

Mrs. S. W. Mebane had scarcely been sworn in as secretary of state until a constitutional amendment was proposed in the house providing for the election of the secretary of state.

Reduction of the free school age to six years and removal of the maximum age limit; regulation of cosmetic-therapy, a bill declaring wife desertion a felony, are all bills of a general nature that fell into the legislative hopper late last week.

A proposed act directly effecting Harris, Montgomery and Liberty counties was embraced in a bil to create a new county out of joint territory included in those counties, the new county to be called Cleveland.

The only bill passed of state-wide significance was Representative Veatch's measure to abolish the markets and warehouse and weights and measures departments and shoulder ing their functions and responsibilities upon the commissioner of agriculture. It will now go to the senate.

There was the regular flood of local bills and one freak crept in. It would prevent fraud in selling and repairing mattresses, sleeping pads, quilts and blankets. It is probably aimed to bar corn shucks taking the place of cotton, feathers or horsehair.

North Texas Geological Society Is Latest Addition to Wichita's Oil Men Clubs; Garrett President

Among the more recent organizations of men engaged in the oil industry in Wichita Falls is the North Texas Geogolical Society, nine days old, with its inception dating back to Monday a week ago when a number of Wichita Falls geologists approximating 60 in number met at the Texhoma offices, and organized. The organization is in the nature of a semi-professional social club, with meetings scheduled for every second Friday evening at the Wichita club.

At the initial meeting of the club M. M. Garrett, independent geologist, was elected its president; H. B. Fuqua of the Gulf Production company, vice-president; and W. E. Hubbard of the Humble Oil and Refining company, secretary and treasurer. A committee on constitution and by-laws, composed of W. E. Hubbard (chairman), C. W. Clark, I. R. Sheldon, and H. W. C. Prommel, was appointed, with instructions to report at the next meeting, and a program committee of Wallace Thompson (chairman), A. B. Howell, Robert Kolm, Leonard Beam, and William Hudson, appointed.

The next meeting of the society will be held at the Wichita club on this coming Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, with an informal discussion of Permian - Pennsylvania formations scheduled.

The initial membership of the club is given as 43 with the list as yet incomplete, and unobtainable for publication.

Fastnow Carey Interest Sold

Another large production deal in South Archer county was reported yesterday in the consumation of a sale by J. C. Fastnow of his interest in the Hausler and Pollel leases to the Petroleum Producers company in the Carey district to the Petroleum Producers.

While the exact consideration was not learned it is known to be something in excess of $100,000. The tracts involved contain 100 acres with nine producing wells and two semi-completions that will be wells within a day or so.

Death Remains As Island's Monument

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Wreckage and scores of bodies eddying on the tides near the site of Port Alexander were all that remained today of the island swallowed by the sea, according to meager and unconfirmed reports reaching here via Paris. The disaster visiting the little Portuguese island had no confirmation of the reports that Port Alexander had been destroyed.

It was believed, however, that there were no survivors except sailors aboard craft in the harbor who were able to escape by putting to sea.

An earthquake was believed responsible. Although the disaster was reported Sunday, it may be days, even before definite information is received, probably from ships whose course lay by the place where the island stood.

McALLEN MAN IS KILLED.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 27.—Gould F. Garrett, 28, of McAllen was killed near there this morning when an automobile in which he, Raymond Alley, Harold Lemberg and Earl Zelbell of McAllen overturned. His head was crushed by the running board.

Electric Cookery Means a Saving—

In Time

Electric Ranges have proved a most important factor in cutting down the time required for household duties and in affording women the opportunity to participate in interesting and beneficial activities, club work, and social affairs.

In Energy

You will save much energy for you will be spared endless polishing and scouring of pots and pans. Electric heat creates no dirt, soot, nor smoke to stain utensils and dirty up your kitchen.

In Food

The air tight insulated oven—possible only with electric heat—prevents evaporation with its consequent shrinkage of foods and loss of flavor and food value.

In Fuel

It is economical. Much of the cooking is done on stored heat. The heat used is under accurate control assuring better cooked foods without waste from shrinkage or burning.

Utmost Convenience

The woman who never has used an electric range cannot really appreciate the cleanliness, the comforts and conveniences, and the better tasting foods resulting from electric cookery.

RECORD NEWS COOKING SCHOOL—KEMP HOTEL

300 Women Are Seeing The Proof—

At The Record News Cooking School in the Kemp ball room, women are seeing Wichita Maid Butter prove itself a super-fine butter.

Mrs. Ida Chitwood, conductor of the school, is a nationally known cooking expert. Her dishes and breads are evidence of that.

But without pure, rich, wholesome ingredients, even Mrs. Chitwood's products would lack the deliciousness and calorie content that fine cookery must have.

Mrs. Chitwood is using Wichita Maid Butter exclusively, and the results are as gratifying to us as they are to her.

When a recipe calls for butter, use Wichita Maid if you are a good cook or rapidly becoming one. it is pure. It is rich. It is super-fine butter

Always serve Wichita Maid Butter on your table if you want the family's approval.

Its delicious, appealing taste has won thousands of friends.

Hundreds of mothers, careful of their children's growth, give the youngsters bread buttered thickly with Wichita Maid. They know that the rich food content of this butter will help build healthy bodies.

And Wichita Maid looks fine on a table. The golden color, and, even, ungreasy texture make people want to eat it.

Serve it and win the whole family's approval.

"WINDOWS"—THE EYES OF YOUR HOME

By the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

Speaking of the different kinds of windows that one may use in a home, perhaps the most common type is the one which slides up and down like the Frenchman's guillotine. We call this a double hung window. It works by counterbalancing weights which are attached to it by means of substantial cords. The cords go over pulleys at the top of the frame.

The Ups and Downs of Windows

As the window goes up the weight goes down. Not so very long ago we did not use weights to balance windows, and we had to pull out a little spring snap at each side of the sash that served as a kind of a lock, and then if we had any strength left, we pulled the sash up. Sometimes it took two or three members of the family to get the sash raised from a closed position. After the sash was up, it could be held so, in one of two or three positions, because the spring fastener snapped into holes at the side of the window frame. If you let go of the sash midway between two of these fixed positions it came down with a crash. With our modern balanced window it will stay in any place you leave it, and if it is made differently from a Pullman car window it can be easily operated.

With this "double hung" type of window, the sash must fit the channel in which it is intended to slide. The cords by which it is attached to the counterbalancing weight must be of a material that will withstand frequent rolling over a metal pulley at the top of the frame. If it is of unsound material, then you may confidently expect it soon to fray and wear out and require replacement. Then the pulley can be made of pressed steel, a noisy device with inefficient friction bearings, or it can be a bronze faced affair with roller bearings with several degrees between the best type and the poorest one.

Advantages of Casement Windows

The casement window ranks higher in favor with the European home owner than it does with the American. This is not through any fault of the casement window as such, for it is an extremely efficient affair if it is well made, but because it is so often poorly made that it has not appeared to give the service that might reasonably be expected of it. When you hang a window sash on hinges and swing it out in the wind, you should be prepared to say that the hinges are of high grade material, well put on, and that the adjustment hardware by which you are able to fix the sash in any position is substantially and soundly secured, or else you may as well expect to find the sash some day after a gust of wind torn away from the hinges and lying in the flower bed at the foot of your wall. Furthermore if the locking hardware has not been put on so that the sash may be drawn up tight against the frame, you will have wind leaks, heat losses, rattles, and general dissatisfaction. Poor workmen cannot make a good casement window. Good workmen can make a thoroughly satisfactory window of this type.

The market affords many types of special casement windows, and of casement window adjusters, that are most excellent devices. If you like this kind of a window, make sure of what you are getting.—Copyright, 1924—Home Builders' Clinic

INTERESTING VARIATION DUTCH COLONIAL TYPE

Copyright, 1924—Architects' Small House Service Bureau. Plan No. 6D7.

DUTCH colonial architecture has supplied this country with many beautiful small homes. In recent years we have not always been fortunate in the homes that have been built after this style. Too often the cornices are overbearing; the roof lines not properly designed, either for the best appearance or the best room space in the second story. The little details that add so much to character have not always received the proper attention.

The small home illustrated here not only has a wonderfully sound and commodious plan, but those little details that distinguish architecture from just building have all been worked out beautifully. It is especially interesting to note that this finer character has been gained without increasing costs; indeed, the expense of construction is reduced.

This plan is an interesting variation of the ever popular Dutch colonial type. The exterior lines are pleasing and show a well proportioned gabled roof, window areas and refined entrance detail. The porch may be either enclosed or open, as preferred. A small breakfast room is a feature of the first floor plan. The center hall plan is also a convenient arrangement, not so frequently worked out with complete circulation, to kitchen, breakfast room and stairway as is the case in this plan. A coat closet is accessible from the hall.

Features of This Home

The kitchen is compact and well arranged in detail to save extra steps. Outside icing is provided. Kitchen cabinets are well placed and detailed for convenience. Lighting and excellent ventilation are special features of this kitchen.

The center of attraction of the living room is the fireplace located on the outside wall with glazed doors at either side opening directly onto the porch.

One chimney only is shown with flues for both the fireplace and furnace. In localities where conditions demand, another chimney might easily be added for the kitchen. Three good sized bedrooms and bath occupy the second floor. Cross ventilation and ample lighting are features of the sleeping rooms. Closets are good size and well located.

The Cost to Build This Home

This house is planned to be built of frame construction with wide siding, shingle roof, masonry foundation with brick base course above grade. A lot 50 feet wide will be required, if the house is built with porch to the front. Otherwise a 40 foot lot will be sufficient. There is a full basement under the house.

The cost to build this house will depend upon what you put into it and how thoroughly it is equipped. In some localities costs are higher than others. Expensive equipment will increase costs, whereas inexpensive equipment will decrease costs. This house should be reasonable to build if you use simple equipment and limit your requirements. It provides unusual convenience and living conditions for a minimum outlay of money.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The plans for small homes are furnished by the Regional Bureau of the Architect's Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., an organization made up of the representative practicing architects from leading architectural offices throughout the United States. This bureau is controlled by the American Institute of Architects, and has the endorsement of the Department of Commerce, United States government. It is practically a non-profit making public service and has as its purpose the furnishing of a very complete and dependable small house plan service at modest cost. For information regarding the blue prints and specifications, address the Home Building Editor of this paper. The United States bureau maintains an information department to answer home builders' questions at no charge. Enclose stamped addressed envelope.

WHAT YOU MAY WANT TO KNOW ABOUT BUILDING

Questions addressed to the paper will be answered by the Architect's Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., controlled by the American Institute of Architects and indorsed by the department of commerce, United States government. Inclose selfaddressed, stamped envelop for reply.

Q—The door frames that the carpenters have just finished putting in my house are not straight or level. I told the carpenters so, but they will not fix them. They look very bad. Please advise me if I have to accept this kind of work. What can I do?

A—You are entitled to good workmanship if you contracted to get it. If you do not have sound specifications or some other form of agreement defining exactly the kind of materials or workmanship to be supplied you have no comeback on anything that may be supplied to you, whether it be shoes, sealing wax, cabbages or houses.

Q—Why is it that so many of your houses do not have wide cornices? It seems to me a house without a wide cornice looks unfinished and cheap.

A—The wide cornice which is used so often in small house construction is very badly out of scale with the building, appearing too heavy. It certainly costs more than its usefulness warrants, and the upkeep is greater than that of a narrow cornice. The wide projecting cornice is not in character with the English or colonial types of architecture.

Q—When the surveyor is locating my lot lines and the corners of the building is there any other work that I should have him do.

A—Be very sure to have the grade line established at this time. This is very important for unless this line is established correctly with respect to the sewer you will have problems as to drainage which it may be impossible to solve properly. Obviously the laundry tubs in the basement should be high enough above the street sewer so that they will drain. The grade line should be established with this in view.

Q—Is it absolutely necessary to place paper between the floors?

A—It is not absolutely necessary but desirable, especially between the floors of the first story. This keeps dust from the basement from sifting through.

Q—We plan to build our cottage on a bed of lake sand. Can this sand be used? It is rather coarse.

A—You can use the sand if it is clean. It should not have a noticeable amount of clay in it. More especially it should not have any soil in it whatever.

Rock of Ages
"Buttermilk Jim"
Paying The Patronage

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 27.—For twenty years regents of state schools of higher education came and then they departed. A continuous line of comers and goers has ever been the rule, but Colonel James H. Lowry of the board of regents of the state school for women, known as the College of Industrial Arts, appeared to have a life lease on a regency.

For twenty years he has been president of the board of regents of the C. I. A. He is known to every ex-student and every student of this college for women and many of them call him "daddy." Now it is said the ax is about ready to fall and that Colonel Lowry will be displaced by the new governor. It is also said that Charles Connolly of Eastland county, a close friend of Former State Senator Joseph Burkett, will be the Ferguson appointed.

Colonel Lowry is the publisher of the Honey Grove Signal. He founded the Signal thirty-five years ago and has been its editor all these years. He is known near and far in newspaper circles as "Buttermilk Jim." He is the old rock of ages of the Texas Press Association, which he assisted in organizing many years ago, and from the day the College of Industrial Arts embarked on its adventure as the state college for the daughters of Texas, it has been as close to his heart as his family and his newspaper.

HE is a regular democrat, of old Tennessee stock and in all the campaigns for thirty-five years he has been in evidence. Governors have come and governors have gone, but no governor for twenty years has ever disturbed this president of the board of regents of the College of Industrial Arts. His term expired this month. If the gossips are correct, then the man from Eastland will be the successor of the old rock of ages of the Texas Press Association, the man who has presided over the deliberations of the C. I. A. regents for two decades.

THERE will be another displacement. J. R. Sullivan, prominent lawyer of Denton, who has attended many national conventions as a delegate, voted for George C. Butte for governor. He did not wait for the ax to fall. On the very day that his term expired he forwarded his resignation to Governor Pat Neff and doubtless the Sullivan resignation was the last that Neff received before he joined the army of ex-governors and ex-students.

• • •

MR. SULLIVAN has lived a long life in Texas, coming here from Kentucky and when he voted for Dr. Butte it was the first time he had ever deserted the democratic reservation and he politely told his fellow democrats that he had no apologies to offer to his critics.

-The Day's News in Pictures-

The eyes of the thoroughbred racing world are centered on the new million-dollar race track at Miami, Fla., which holds its first meeting beginning Jan. 15. The outstanding stars of 1924 are entered in the opening events. The surface of the track is composed of marl, a soil hauled from the heart of the Florida everglades. Photos show a general view of the track and grandstand, a workout on the marl-covered track, and the Misses Ethel and Alma Cassidy of New York, two fair and early visitors at the track.

The injunction stopping the city from diverting more than 4,167 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan to dispose of its sewage, having been upheld by the U. S. supreme court, Chicago has carried its fight to keep the figure at 10,000 cubic feet a second to congress. City authorities declare the decision imperils the health of millions. For years, Mid-west states and Canada, alarmed by the lowering of the level of the great lakes, have been fighting the increased diversion of water by Chicago. The photo shows the gate at Lockport, Ill., which controls the diversion.

Helen Lee Worthing, movie actress, and former Follies star, testified at the trial in New York of the editors of "Broadway Brevities," a magazine, that she paid $150 to have her picture on the cover after she had been shown an "insinuating" article about her. The editors are charged with blackmail, and a number of persons have stepped forward to accuse them. Miss Worthing is seen on the stand

A minor Muscle Shoals will soon be put to work in Kentucky. Construction of the largest rock-fill dam in the world at a point on the Dix river near Burgin, is going forward rapidly. Linked with a hydro-electric plant, it will develop 36,000 h. p., 13,000 more than that furnished by the Roosevelt dam in Arizona, and supply power to scores of towns and cities in the Blue Grass state.

FORT SMITH, Ark.—"I had been all rundown in health for a long time when I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had tried many medicines, but they did me no permanent good. NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—The cotton market developed a better tone today and despite a slightly easier opening showing a loss of 13 points on May, the market gradually advanced until at the high point of the day that month was 32 points above the early low and 18 points above the close of yesterday. The close was not much below the best, May showing a gain of 12 points and March at much as 19 points.

At the start, as Liverpool was lower than due, first trades showed losses of 9 to 13 points. The opening figures were the lows of the day. March trading at 23.10, May 23.39 and October 23.50. The decline was checked by bad weather in the belt and prices soon began to advance on reports of a good spot demand in the local market. The market remained on the upgrade practically all day following the brief period of early weakness and at the top March traded at 23.41, May 23.68 and October 23.53 or 21 to 32 points above the lows. The close was near the top on some months and actually at the top on others, and showed net gains for the day of 12 to 19 points.

The main stimulating factor of the day's session was the reported good demand for spots in the local market at a higher basis. Even short staple cotton which has been neglected for some time was in request. The sales totalled 3,591 bales, the largest sales here in a long while. Another influence contributing to the firmer tone was the unfavorable weather in the belt which is further delaying crop preparations.

The main cause of the initial decline was a cable from Liverpool announcing that the master spinners' federation had resolved to ask mills using American cotton to vote on the advisability of reducing working hours per week from 30½ to 25 hours beginning February 16. Reports of depression among woolen mills was also a contributing cause to the early dip.

Exports for the day totalled 46,280 bales of which Galveston contributed 23,119 bales.

STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Stock prices again displayed considerable irregularity in today's market. Bear traders, taking advantage of the uncertainty regarding the U. S. Steel corporation's dividend action and earnings, succeeded in unsettling the general list in the early trading, but the persistent demand for the oil shares had a steadying effect and eventually brought about a rather general recovery.

The steel corporation's report for the fourth quarter, which was issued after the market closed showed net earnings of $30,702,531 an increase of $43,816 over the preceding quarter. Owing to the fact that prices for fourth quarter delivery were lower than those of the preceding three months, the steel trade had looked for earnings of between $28,000,000 and $29,000,000. The regular dividend of $1.25 and the usual extra of 50 cents were declared setting at rest rumors that the common stock would be placed on a flat $7 annual basis.

U. S. Steel common today fluctuated within a range of about one point closing ¼ higher at 126¾. Most of the independent steels showed small fractional recessions. Pressed Steel Car dropped 1¼ points to 43½, resumption of dividends on the preferred not being announced until after the market closed.

TEXAS LIVE STOCK

FORT WORTH, Jan. 27.—Small receipts of cattle did not last long on the Tuesday market. In the first place buyers were not anxious to spend any more time than necessary on the yards, the temperature in the exchange building being more to their liking, and again they had a place for most consignments that salesmen had to offer. Prices were fully steady with strength appearing in some instances. The calf trade was weaker, of anything, and sales looked fully 25c lower than last week's close. Around 2,700 head of cattle and 200 calves were here.

Cattle receipts, 2,900; including 200 calves; market steady to strong; calves weak; beeves 3.50@8.00; stockers 3.25@7.25; fat cows 2.75@5.50; cutters 2.25@2.75; canners 1.65@2.15; heifers 3.50@7.50; yearlings 3.50@8.50; bulls 3.50@4.25; calves 2.00@8.00.

Hogs receipts 1,800; market steady; rise 25@50c lower; top 11.15; bulk 10.75@11.00; heavy 10.75@11.00; medium 10.75@11.00; light 10.50@10.75; fair mixed 10.00@10.50; fair light 9.75@10.25; common 8.50@8.50; packing sows 9.00@10.00; pigs 8.00@8.50.

Sheep receipts, 400; market steady; lambs 15.50@17.50; feeders 12.50@15.25; yearlings 11.00@12.00; wethers 8.00@11.00; ewes 8.00@10.25; culls 1.50@7.50; stockers 3.50@5.50; goats 1.50@3.50.

Wilson Praised By Richardson In U. Club Talk

GIVES CLOSE VIEW

Tells Of Impressions He Gained While Studying At Princeton

"If ever a man left public life with clean hands, Woodrow Wilson was that man," declared Rev. F. M. Richardson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district of the First M. E. church south, in an enjoyable talk on "Woodrow Wilson Close Up" before the University club at their weekly luncheon Tuesday noon at the Kemp hotel.

Rev. Richardson attended Princeton at the time Wilson was president of the institution, and his talk was characterized by intimate glimpses of Wilson's life far different from the historical and political view the world has had of the former leader of the nation.

First Impression.

"My first impression of Woodrow Wilson, which I made one morning in 1910 when I entered Princeton university, have remained with me to the present time.

"Word had passed around that Woodrow would speak that night at a Y. M. C. A. meeting at old Dodge hall, and the fellows who went early were the ones that got the seats. His great gift of speech was evident, for he held that crowd of college fellows with a simple little religious talk, drawing powerfully and with dramatic earnestness a picture of the Christ.

"Wilson was a man of tremendous action, he was always in dead earnest and meant business. The boys knew this and loved him for it.

Telling of Wilson's college life through the days when he was elected governor, and Princeton's great pride in this achievement, Dr. Richardson told of the great day when Wilson was elected president. Wilson's reverent attitude toward the great responsibility which he felt rested on his shoulders, and the serious talk in a religious vein which he made of the immense throng of Princenton students and ex-students who came in torchlight procession to his home to celebrate his victory.

Was Cleanest Man.

"Wilson was the cleanest man I ever knew. He was the best loved man that ever passed through the halls of Princeton, and any slurs against his matchless character were a travesty on truth.

Preceding the talk of the day, Hon. J. W. Wood of Dallas, who was introduced as a guest, spoke to members of the University club, expressing his pleasure at being present.

Lasses' White, famed southern minstrel, who will appear in a role of the head bell-hop in the "Hotel de Blackville," appearing at the Palace theatre tonight and Thursday with a matinee performance Thursday afternoon.

An entertainment of rare humor and melody is promised when the famous minstrels take the stage this evening.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxurance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair becomes.—Adv.

Burkburnett M. E. Starts Drive for Building Funds

Board of Stewards Meet Monday And Launch $9,000 Campaign

BURKBURNETT, Jan. 27.—At a meeting of the board of stewards and elders of the Methodist church in this city yesterday $9,000 was subscribed toward the building fund of the new $60,000 church building to be erected by this denomination in the near future.

A nucleus fund was also subscribed and given, the first dollar being given by the pastor's wife, Mrs. Hamilton; first five by Patsy Mills, a young girl; first ten by Mildred Pilkerton, a little school girl; first twenty-five by Ben Majors; J. L. Boase, first fifty; and J. H. Brumbly, first one hundred dollars.

The building committee is composed of E. L. Blum, W. T. Spicer, R. D. Cunningham, Wallace M. (Pat) Morrison, Paul Browning, and R. H. Henry, general director.

The large congregation is still holding forth in the small village structure of the years before the oil boom; it has been enlarged and remodeled but is far inadequate to accommodate the large growing congregation of church and Sabbath school. Rev. H. L. Hamilton is pastor.

"Anti-Campaign" On Hot Checks A Success—Raley

None Come Back After Prosecution of Offenders Is Started, He Says

The "anti" campaign waged by County Tax Collector Guy C. Raley against hot checks tendered in payment of taxes has had an effect, Mr. Raley reported yesterday after he had checked back and found that no trouble from this source had been encountered for over a week.

When the heavy tax rush started Mr. Raley announced his intention of prosecuting any one whose checks were returned from the bank. Half-a-dozen tax payers who inadverdently overlooked the import of this paid fines and costs in the county court as a result of their indiscretion—and then, all of a sudden, the trouble stopped.

Mr. Raley declared that in 1924 his office took in something like $10,000 of bad checks. All of these were eventually made good, but it required more work and trouble than Mr. Raley proposed to expend this time.

HERE'S THE LATEST -- COD LIVER OIL IN TASTELESS TABLETS

Greatest Flesh Builder For Skinny, Weak, Run-Down People — Full of Vitamines.

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's neat, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of cough syrup.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another 10 pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, 32 pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Smith Drug Co., Tipton Drug Co., or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 90 cents for 60 tablets—and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and beware of imitations.—Adv.

Tax Paying Made Easy

In a great number of cases it works a hardship and is often impossible for the taxpayer to meet his taxes in a lump sum as is required in the case of property and personal tax of the state, county, city, school and water improvement district.

These taxes become delinquent after January 31st and thereafter are subject to penalty, costs and interest. These charges run the total up materially.

A plan is now offered by the Wichita Falls Finance company whereby the tax payer can obtain the necessary funds to pay his taxes in full and refund the loan from them in monthly payments.

The cost is considerably less than if one's taxes become delinquent and are unpaid for several months and the fees and interest are added.

They have the funds for this purpose and can give prompt service. Call on them at 806 Eighth street, Kemp Hotel Bldg. and have the method explained.—Adv.

City's Interests To Be Urged With Lobby At Austin

Chamber Of Commerce To Send Committee There At Once

HAVE BIG MEASURES

All Discussed Tuesday At Meeting Of Board Of Directors

The departure soon of Hubert Harrison, and R. E. Duff for Austin to take their place with B. D. Sartin and other lobbyists there in the interest of legislation favorable to Wichita Falls and Wichita Falls industries was urged and made certain at a meeting yesterday morning of the directors of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce. Their work will include, among other things, petitioning the state board of control and legislators to grant permission for a new paved road to pass through the grounds of the North Texas Insane Asylum near Lake Wichita, cutting off some 40 acres there, to obtain, if possible, from the legislature an appropriation for the experimental farm here sufficient for its proper maintenance, declaring Wichita Falls in favor of the proposed zoning laws for the Texas cities at an open hearing of the legislature's committee on that question Thursday night. They will also seek permission for the expenditure of Wichita county funds in securing a free bridge across Red River above Burkburnett. They will remain at Austin for some time so as to be able to handle Wichita Falls interests in any emergency that may arise.

At Tuesday's meeting committee chairmen were instructed to prepare briefs on all matters that should be brought to the attention of legislators, and present them immediately to the council of three at Austin.

The $50,000 budget of the chamber of commerce was approved by a unanimous vote. It was announced that $46,600 in pledges was on file in the chamber offices and that no difficulty was expected in raising the remainder of the money. The budget as approved includes $15,000 for general administrative and executive allotment, $12,500 for publicity, $4,500 for the traffic department and $2,000 for the agricultural department.

According to announcement made yesterday J. W. Chatham Jr., secretary and auditor of the Wichita County Water Improvement District No. 1, will on April 1 resign his other interests and devote his entire time as manager of the chamber of commerce and the operations of the traffic department.

Discussion of proposed plans to pave a way through the new Municipal club grounds developed an inclination on the part of Fred Weeks to hold the city by an agreement to finance this proposition.
