Oil Man Dies In Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)-An American oil executive was shot to death in Ahwaz today as some 1,000 high school students marched through Tehran shouting anti-American slogans and demanding the overthrow of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Paul Grimm, managing director of operations of the Oil Service Company of Iran, was hit while driving to work about 7 a.m., company officials said. Ahwaz is about 340 miles southwest of Tehran in the heart of the oil fields.

SALT Talks Snag

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)-A last moment snag surfaced Saturday in negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union delaying agreement on a new strategic arms limitation treaty.

Two Trains Collide

TOKYO (AP)-Two trains collided in Communist China, killing about 100 passengers and injuring 200 others, Japan's Kyodo news service reported from Peking today.

Kyodo quoted informed sources as saying the accident occurred Monday in Chengchow, about 400 miles southwest of Peking, and that one of the engineers was asleep at the switch.

Jet Falls Into Sea

PLERMO, Sicily (AP)-An Alitalia jetliner packed mostly with Sicilian workers on a special Christmas flight home crashed, broke apart and sank in the sea off Palermo early today, and 108 of the 129 aboard were feared drowned, officials said.

Fishing boats plucked 21 survivors from the water, and doctors said most of them were suffering from shock, minor fractures and light poisoning from swallowing jet fuel that spilled from the 10-year-old DC-9.

More Bodies Likely

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP)-A convicted sex offender has been charged with the murder of a 15-year-old boy after three decomposed bodies were found beneath the man's home in a search authorities say may yield more grisly remains. John W. Gacy Jr. was charged Friday with murdering Robert Piest, a Des Plaines youth who was reported missing Dec. 11. Gacy was denied bond at a hearing in which his attorney, Sam Amirante, described him as "a very sick person, physically and otherwise."

Protestors Greet Carter In Plains

PLAINS, Ga. (AP)-President Carter, home in Plains for Christmas, found main street choked with the tractors of angry farmers and plans laid for a protest against his China policies.

When the Carter family arrived by plane Friday at Fort Benning, Ga., he told the welcoming high school band and a large delegation of local officials and townspeople, "It always feels good to be home."

But when his motorcade arrived at Plains, it swung around the northern fringe of the little southwest Georgia town to avoid the tractors and protestors blocking U.S. 280 which runs through the middle of town.

The motorcade to Carter's house kept him away from the tractors, but if he drives into town - as he usually does on trips home - he's likely to see evidence of the protest for higher farm prices since many of the tractors were still here early today.

Four men were charged with obstructing law enforcement officers during the protest which drew as many as 400 tractors and 1,000 persons, Plains Police Chief James McClung said.

As Plains coped with the farmers and their tractors, local authorities awaited new demonstrators, citizens of Taiwan who oppose the Carter plan to cancel the mutual defense treaty between their country and the United States.

The demonstrators, said to be residents of the United States, were to rally today near the site of a $25,000 flower garden given to Plains earlier this year by its "sister city" of Kaosiung, a Taiwanese urban center of more than one million persons.

Although the outside world intruded, Carter plainly intended to put the emphasis of his trip home on a family Christmas.

"Miss Lillian" Carter, his 80-year-old mother, met him at the airport with a hug and a kiss. And the president and first lady brought with them on Air Force One their 11-year-old daughter Amy, son Chip and his son James Earl Carter IV, son Jeff and his wife Annette.

Suits Filed In Dec. 8 Crash

ROBY—Six lawsuits have been filed here in behalf of the familes of nine victims of a truck-school bus crash Dec. 8 which claimed the lives of four McCaulley High School students and sent 21 other persons to hospitals with injuries.

It was reported that lawyers for other families have indicated that they plan to file suits soon.

Five of the suits already filed seek more than $3.5 million in damages. Another suit would leave the amount of damages up to a jury.

The suits accuse Cardinal Survey Co. of Odessa, owners of the truck involved in the crash, of negligence for allowing William Dixon, 21, to drive the truck. Subsequent to the fatal crash it was revealed that Dixon had been convicted of a number of traffic violations in the past three years. He is hospitalized in Abilene. No charges have been filed against him, but a Fisher County grand jury is expected to take up the case in January.

Attorney Temple B. Dixon of Sweetwater has filed a suit in behalf of the family of Bonnie and Kathy Pippin. Bonnie, a senior, was killed in the wreck, and her sister, 16, was injured. Dixon said the suit does not specify a dollar amount, but asks for a jury trial and requests the jury to set the amount.

G. Bert Smith Jr. of Odessa filed five other suits which seek $3,558,000 for his clients. He filed in behalf of the familes of Anita K. Dunlap, 17, who has been released from the hospital; Edd Farmer, the school superintendent and coach of the boys' basketball team which was traveling on the bus, and Farmer's 9-year-old daughter Julie, who have both been released from the hospital; Carla Mae Young, 17, who is still in Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene; Bobby Benevides, 17, who is in Fisher County Hospital; and Earl Williams, 18, and his brother Wandell Williams, both of whom have been released from the hospital.

Smith said that $1.5 million is for exemplary or punitive damages and the rest is for actual damages.

The lawsuits allege that Dixon, the truck driver, was negligent and that he tried to pass a vehicle and ran a stop sign in the process.

George Maner of the Lubbock law firm of Maner, Nelson, Jones and Reaud, said his firm plans to file a damage suit for the familes of 11 other victims of the accident "in the near future."

Prices Brighten Picture...

Over 20,000 Bales Of Scurry Cotton Are Out

It's a far cry from 1977 in volume and the quality leaves something to be desired, but Scurry County's 1978 cotton crop will have a substantial impact on the area's economy.

That was the forecast by the end of the week as the ginning season moved past the half-way point.

County gins had turned out more than 15,000 bales and had nearly 5,000 bales on their yards in a survey late Thursday, to account for approximately 20,000 bales. This is nearly as much as some had predicted the entire yield for the year would be. Obviously it will go considerably higher.

Also on the brighter side, the price, which has hovered around the 65-cents-per-pound area, is a good 20 to 25 cents more than it was last year.

"If we could have had this year's prices with last year's crop, it would have been something," said Milton Stephens, president of the Scurry County Producers Association. However, he said farmers probably were just as fortunate to have a much better price to apply to a short crop this year.

Much of this year's crop has been of relatively low quality, especially compared to the 1977 crop. But there is a demand for it.

Also, cottonseed have virtually doubled in price from last year, going above $125 per ton. Stephens said that seed from a bale last year would not pay for the ginning, but this year a farmer can

Rev. Jensen Takes Post In Kansas

The Rev. Jonathan K. Jensen, Pastor of Grace Lutheran Church in Snyder, has accepted a call to become a staff pastor at Faith Lutheran Church in Prairie Village, Kansas. Rev. Jensen will conduct his final worship service in Snyder today and leave for Kansas sometime around the end of the year.

Rev. Jensen and his wife came to Snyder in October of 1976 from Haysville, Kan. near Wichita, where he had served since his ordination in 1973. He served Grace Lutheran in Snyder as the fifth pastor since the congregation's founding in 1956.

Rev. Jensen is a native of Overland Park, Kan., which is a Kansas City suburb neighboring the location of his new church. He received his B.A. degree from Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kan., and a master of divinity from the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago.

Grace Lutheran will be served by the Rev. Herbert Zimmerman of Roscoe effective this week. The regular schedule of worship and activities will be maintained.

Ask Us

Q--What is being done about illegal sale of drugs in Snyder and could parents organize and help fight this serious problem some way?

A--Illegal drugs are confiscated and persons with them are arrested and charged with appropriate offenses whenever and wherever they are found. Parents could do a lot to discourage illegal drug traffic if all could prevent their children from becoming involved. Officers tell us that just about all of those arrested in drug cases have parents.

No Paper On Christmas Day

Monday will be a general holiday in Snyder as area residents celebrate Christmas.

The Snyder Daily News will not publish a paper on Monday, since Christmas Day is one of the two holidays each year when the staff takes a full day off.

Most business firms in the city, along with offices of government agencies will be closed Monday.

The SDN Column

The hustle and bustle of the preliminaries have run their course. Now, the main event is at hand. Tomorrow is Christmas Day.

For many, it may seem anti-climactic. To others, the contrasting tranquility of the holiday may be welcome and to still others it may be a day of loneliness. In most cases, Christmas usually is a day for nostalgia which often means that it is a trying time for some.

But, no matter which way you view it, Christmas is a special day, an important event on the calendar. Although nobody knows for certain whether Dec. 25 is even close to the actual birthday of the Christ Child, it has long been considered fitting by most Christians to celebrate the greatest of great events with a special day, and Dec. 25 seems as logical as any.

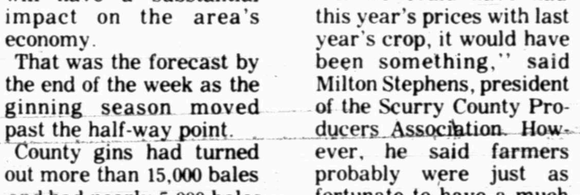

And no matter whether they have been involved in anything associated with religion during the past year, there are those who bristle at any suggestion that anyone or anything might interefere with the observance of Christmas. This has contributed mightily to the unpopularity of the well-known atheist, Madalyn Murray O'Hair.

Thus, the tradition of the Christmas celebration has come to be a source of power. And despite the so-called corruption by commercialism, it continues to be in most cases precisely what it was intended to be. That is, a season of good will and a time to renew friendships, and relationships with family and kin. This objective within itself is enough to make it worthwhile.

perils of greenery

Many people reason the world could solve all its food problems if the desert tracts in the Third World countries could be turned into green, fertile land but a researcher in the Soviet Union says such ideas are doomed to failure.

Already water is being brought to arid areas along parts of the Saharan border near the Mediterranean but the Russian expert says the plan merely upsets the ecological balance of the centuries of evolution.

The result, according to Dr. A. G. Babayev of Turkman, is not new life but greater death.

The water-bearers would be guilty of killing with kindness,'" is the way Dr. Babyev puts it.

Babyev says that years of parched conditions had led plants and animals to adapt to a situation in which water was required in only the scantiest quantities.

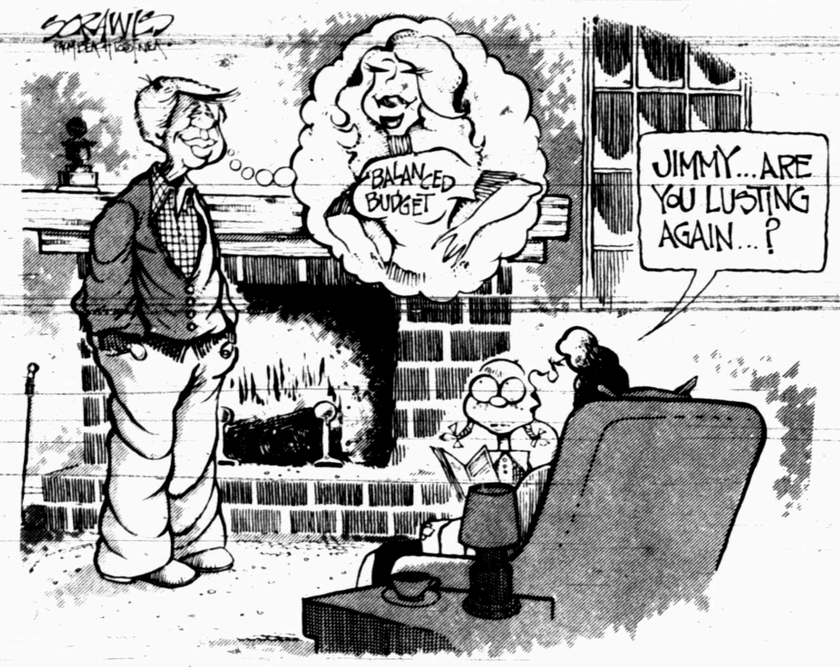

To channel water under such conditions would be as disastrous to the environment there as it would be elsewhere to withhold water, according to Babyev. In effect, the desert would simply 'drown,' with far-reaching consequence.

Trees such as the saksaul, which is a basic fuel for desert tribes, would succumb quickly. And although desert trees can be wiped out easily, they take an exceptionally long time to grow.

Similarly, desert animal species which have become not only used to arid conditions but dependent upon them would be threatened and possibly obliterated.

It proves once again that there are purposes in all of God's planning and that "all of God's creatures are still of Him a part."

The world likely would be better served if water could be available in areas which has everything else needed to grow crops—climate, soil and know-how by the people to get maximum production from the combination. One such area is West Texas, where a shortage of water is a constant worry.

time out for swiss

Time was when time was a real moneymaker for the Swiss.

As recently as 1970, their watchmaking industry held 70 percent of the world market. Today, they are down to 30 percent and still losing ground.

The Swiss are having a time of it for two reasons. Japanese and American producers got a jump on them in the introduction of digital and quartz watches and the rapid appreciation of the Swiss franc is pricing Swiss-made timepieces out of the world market.

One response to falling exports of watches has been to export production operations to Hong Kong and similar cheap-labor sites, according to a Wall Street Journal report on the situation.

That, however, is no help to thousands of Swiss back home whose livelihoods have depended on the industry. With companies operating at from 70 to 50 or less percent of capacity, layoffs are increasing.

It's a situation which a number of U.S. industries—textiles, garments, television sets—can well sympathize with. Unfortunately, they can't offer the Swiss any solutions because they haven't been able to come up with any for themselves.

Chalk it up to another example of how the economic times are changing.

by roy mcqueen, publisher

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Merry Christmas."

In today's sophisticated and complicated world, it's not uncommon for yesterday's hero to awake some morning with lagging popularity rating.

It happens in all walks of life. Last season's home-run hitter or 20-game pitcher may find himself traded or on waivers. A veteran corporate executive finds his office taken by a youngster with a slick breif case.

Even presidents have suffered from the opinions of the fickle public.... cheers one day and jeers the next.

It was our opinion that the only fellow without PR problems was Santa Claus. He ventures from his North Pole address only once a year, and there is always an eager group of kids awaiting his annual visit.

But even Santa has a PR problem this year. We were somewhat aw[illegible] of one last December [illegible]en the movie "Star Wars" made the toys popular with the youngsters and factories were unable to gear up fast enough.

This year the demand is for those electronic games--especially electronic football. They're about the size of a hand-held calculator and we suspect that the shortage problem resulted as much from their popularity with the adults as the kids.

Last summer they were available for about $30 each. Now they simply aren't available at any price and haven't been for several months. Without a doubt, they are one of the most asked-for items this year. That does leave Santa with somewhat of a credibility problem.

We've heard stories that some folks with electronic footballs have been able to sell theirs for as much as $100. That says a lot for supply and demand.

Santa's gift to our eight-year-old was rather simple and relatively inexpensive. For some reason, he has become enchanted with mail--all kinds of mail.

His love for mail resulted in this year's Christmas present--his own postal box at the Snyder post office. Talk about a gift that will last all year.....

new supreme court

A professional observer eventually develops a separate sense of "direction." Trends become apparent before they are measurable.

After eight years with my fingers crossed I find that one such trend is now measurable:

The Earl Warren Court was soft on criminals; crime increased.

The Warren Burger Court is less soft on criminals; crime is less.

The boat-rocking Earl Warren Court was obsessed with individual rights frequently at the expense of society's rights.

It resulted in a heyday for the bad guys.

Historically the responsibility of the court is to interpret the law. The Earl Warren Court improperly and frequently trespassed on the legislative prerogative of "making the law."

What we have experienced under the Warren Burger Court is a period of consolidation, not a drastic reversal of direction.

Nonetheless the court is measurably more "conservative," its philosophy more in tune with the philosophy of most of us.

U.S. News and World Report surveyed jurists and lawyers. "More than three out of four (78.1 percent) prefer the Burger Court to the Warren Court."

"Nearly 99 percent describe the Burger Court as more conservative with 78.4 percent approving the more conservative philosophy."

The FBI Crime Report reveals a parallel improvement in the crime rate.

From 1959 to 1969 the number of reported crimes increased at an average annual rate of 11.1 percent.

From 1970 to mid 1978 the number was increasing at the lesser annual rate of 5.3 percent.

But recent years, since the end of 1975, the number of reported crimes actually decreased an average 2 percent per year!

The logical conclusion, since nothing else has changed, is that the cumulative effect of Burger Court decisions has allowed more vigorous law enforcement, hence less crime.

The Annual Harvard Review remembers that during the Earl Warren years years 1953-1968 decisions favored criminal defendants almost two-to-one (64.2 percent to 35.8 percent).

And the last two years of the Earl Warren Court criminal defendants were favored 76 percent.

Recently the balance has been restored to approximately 50-50. And the last two terms, on balance, lawmen gained more than they lost.

But so precarious is this balance—with most decisions almost evenly divided right and left—that the next appointment to the Court is of immense significance.

It will carry us forward or backward.

Backward to a preoccupation with the rights of wrongdoers—

Or forward to a time when you might even walk the streets your taxes paid for in safety again.

"Time to wake up! Daddy can't wait to go and see if Santa was here!"

WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Carter's strict moral code and unfavorable image of "fat cat" campaign contributors in an era of political reform have complicated the Democratic Party's efforts to wipe out its massive 10-year-old deficit.

Determined to eliminate the debt, even at the cost of generating unfavorable publicity, the Democratic National Committee (DNC) late last year sought a special exemption from the federal law governing campaign financing.

That statute limits individuals to yearly contributions of $1,000 to each candidate, $5,000 to each multi-candidate political action committee and $20,000 to the national committees involved in contests for federal offices—seats in Congress, the presidency and the vice presidency.

But because most of the DNC debt was incurred in connection with the 1968 presidential campaign, before the current law was passed, the Federal Election Commission early this year waived the contribution limitations for the Democrats.

With authority to solicit unlimited amounts throughout most of 1978, the Democrats have collected only slightly more than $250,000, leaving a deficit of approximately $1.4 million to be paid before fund-raising begins in earnest for the 1980 presidential and congressional campaigns.

That's a marked improvement over the autumn of 1969, when the decade-old debt reached it peak of $8.3 million. But Democratic fund-raisers have a long way to go if they are to attain their goal of balancing the party's books by mid-1979.

The names of the major donors to the special debt-retirement fund have not been previously published, but here's a list of the last of the "fat cats" in American politics.

The most generous contribution by far has been Lew Wasserman, the Beverly Hills, Calif., board chairman of MCA, Inc., a major entertainment conglomerate. He gave $100,000.

Ranking behind him are two $25,000 donors: Richard O'Neill, a Mission Vejo Calif., investor, and John McMillian, the Salt Lake City, Utah, board chairman of the Northwest Pipeline Co., the firm planning to build a gas pipeline from Alaska to the "lower 48" states.

Joseph Kanter, a Miami, Fla., real estate developer, has given $18,000, while $10,000 contributions have been received from entertainer Helen Reddy and her husband, Jeff Wald; the Communications Workers of America; and Columbus, Ga., businessman John Amos.

Current pledges include an additional $40,000 from the Communications Workers, another $15,000 from Amos, $50,000 from the United Auto Workers and $100,000 from Minneapolis food distributor Jeno Palucci. Smaller commitments bring the total pledge to about $400,000.

The Democrats' inability to move more rapidly in eliminating their debt can be attributed, in part, to the reluctance of wealthy donors to be publicly identified at a time when the spirit of reform has made "fat cats" more unpopular than ever.

Less than 10 years ago, those contributors could be assured of anonymity because candidates and political parties regularly took advantage of loopholes in a now-superseded law that thwarted public disclosure.

Even those who were identified were part of a sizable group of well-heeled donors for whom five- and six-figure political contributions were a way of life.

And the unfavorable publicity often was offset by recognition of the donors' generosity by the White House—under both Democratic and Republican presidents—in the form of special advantages and privileges in dealing with the federal government.

But Carter has imposed upon the process his inviolate personal code of political ethics. "There are ways to raise a lot more money that are questionable but legal," confides one party official. "But if I even thought about them, the president would have my scalp."

Farmers Boost Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON (AP)-Encouraged by substantially higher prices, farmers have boosted their winter wheat plantings 8 percent for the 1979 harvest.

The agriculture Department said Thursday that the crop could produce about 1.44 billion bushels when harvested next summer, up 15 percent from this year's reduced yield.

Farmers planted 51.5 million acres of winter wheat this fall, compared to 47.7 million planted a year ago for the 1978 crop, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

Yields were estimated to average 28 bushels per acre planted, compared to 26.2 bushels for the 1978 crop.

The forecast, the first by the department on 1979 winter wheat prospects, was based on surveys made Dec. 1.

Winter wheat accounts for about three-fourths of the total U.S. Wheat production. The remainder will be planted in the spring and harvested later in 1979.

Pair Solemnizes Vows

Christiane Bockholt of College Station and Gary Don Wittie exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony in a Dec. 9, 3 p.m. wedding in the St. Mary's Catholic Church in College Station. Rev. Bill Brooks performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. Anton J. Bockholt of College Station, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Wittie, Rt. 2, Box 208 Snyder.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She chose an organza gown which featured a fitted bodice with a raised waistline covered with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. The sheer, full sleeves were made of matching lace. The fitted bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline. The full skirt fell gracefully in three tiers to a chapel length train. Each tier was edged with Chantilly lace.

Her fingertip length veil was edged with Chantilly lace matching her dress. Her headpiece was also covered in matching lace and seed pearls.

The bride carried a cascade of gardenias and white roses and variegated ivy.

Ginny Bodman of Bay City, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of pleated Qiana in dark spice red. She carried two red roses.

Bridesmaids were Elaine Buckholt of Robstown, cousin of the bride, Jennene Bockholt, another cousin, of Missouri City, Mo., and Tambrey Senter of College Station. They were attired in floor length gown of pleated Qiana in dark spice red and each carried two red roses.

Mother of the bride chose for her daughter's wedding a full length jade green pleated Qiana knit with a chiffon cape. The groom's mother wore a cream knit formal length knit with brown tone border print adorning the long sleeves and skirt. They wore cymbidium orchid corsages.

Steve R. Hanlon of College Station served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were David L. Wittie, and Steve D. Wittie of Waco, both brothers of the groom. Ushers were Michael P. Bodman of Bay City, brother-in-law of the bride, and Robert McCommon of Houston.

The groom wore a gray formal tuxedo with a gray satin lapel containing a white rose boutonniere.

MRS. GARY DON WITTIE

The groomsmen wore black tuxedos with satin lapels and red rose boutonnieres.

The music program for the ceremony included selections by organist Henry Berger. Mike Barta accompanied himself on the guitar as he sang "God Made Love."

A three tiered, white cake decorated with green fern and fresh flowers was served at the reception following the wedding ceremony. This was placed on the bride's table laid with a white lace cloth. Silver punch and coffee service adorned the table centered with two silver candelabra.

The groom's table was covered with a burgundy cloth centered with a brass candelabrum. The chocolate cake was decorated with the Texas A&M emblem.

Serving were Marilyn Skoruppa and Rita Bockholt. Janet Reynolds presided at the registry.

Texas Pecans. Tasty As Ever

COLLEGE STATION -- New pecan crops are now available and as tasty as ever, says a foods and nutrition specialist.

Texas pecans give that "out of this world" touch to any recipe--they have the distinction of being the first fresh food on the Moon, Marilyn Haggard points out.

In addition pecans are an excellent source of energy, vitamins, minerals and protein, she continues.

Pecans store well in the refrigerator or freezer--shelled pecans keep six months or more in the refrigerator and over 18 months in the freezer.

Today's hand was played in a really expert duplicate. The players were so good that every South wound up in three spades and everyone but one made it.

West started with four rounds of hearts. Each declarer trumped the fourth one high in dummy, led a trump to his queen and a low club toward dummy. West would make his best play and duck so dummy's queen would hold that trick. Each declarer would continue by playing out all his trumps to produce a three-card ending. Poor West would have to discard down to king-jack of diamonds and ace of clubs whereupon declarer would throw him in with the ace of clubs and make him lead away from his diamond king.

As stated earlier, this was a very high-level event, but one East player turned out to be even a higher level player.

At trick three Bob Hammann of Dallas ruffed his partner's good heart and led back a diamond. Bob had seen that he had this one chance to gain the lead to play that diamond and took advantage of the opportunity. Now West was sure of three hearts, one diamond, one club and a plus score.

Crazy Price Gap Widens With New OPEC Action

By MAX SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—Michel T. Halbouty says he awoke mad.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Nations had just announced plans to increase crude oil prices to $14.54 a barrel by October.

"It is really crazy," said Halbouty, a Houston independent operator and an internationally known geologist.

"How can the American public increase the foreign payments deficit to pay these people nearly $15 a barrel and still pay domestic operators $5.31 for the majority of the 8 million barrels a day produced in this country."

The former president of the 15,000-member American Association of Petroleum Geologists said the difference in prices is the reason why U.S. oilmen are not going out hunting for new reserves.

Based on my studies, I can definitely say we will be able to find in the future as much oil as we have found in the past in the United States and more gas in the future than we have in the past," Halbouty said.

"But we are not going out and find it unless we have incentives to do so and the greatest disincintive is the $5.31 for old oil."

Halbouty said 80 percent of the drilling rigs now at work at drilling in areas nearby or offsetting proven production.

"All they are doing is producing at faster rates," he said. "But the reserves have already been estimated. We are not increasing our reserves position one bit."

Halbouty said sufficient capital is not available to do real wildcatting on the scale that is needed.

"We are not going out in the boondocks and doing a hell of a lot of wildcatting like we should," he said.

"This all stems from two congressional bills. The first took away the percentage depletion allowance and took $3.5 billion from the industry. The 1976 compromise bill that extended crude oil price controls and removed other tax benefits took away another $3.5 billion. The $7 billion taken away from industry affected our operations procedures. It affected our exploration thinking. That $7 billion damn near killed us."

That is why, he said, the only oil find of any consequence the United States has had in the last 10 years is the Overthrust Belt in Wyoming and Idaho.

"This was an area which took guts to go in and drill," he said.

"But the reason the area is being drilled is because the acreage was purchased prior to those two congressional actions. I doubt very seriously the companies would have drilled that wildcat area with today's prices and conditions. But they already had the acreage and either had to do something with it or let it go. So they decided to drill."

Halbouty said tremendous quantities of oil and gas await to be discovered in such areas as Northern California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Western Utah, Arizona, and Nevada.

"We just haven't drilled the wells," he said.

"If we had drilled in that area as many wells as in Harris County Houston we'd probably have found a hell of a lot of gas. But just very few wells have been drilled."

Halbouty said he puts his money where his mouth is.

"I drilled the deepest well ever drilled in Idaho and got a dry hole," he said.

"Okay, but I set up a lot of geology and I'll bet somebody is going to come in there pretty soon near where I drilled and find something."

He said $5.31 oil and high costs are killing wildcatting.

"The other day we were drilling a well, not an unusual well, at 10,100 feet and found out the cost was $410,000," Halbouty said.

"I blew my stack," he said, adding he then checked his records and found he had drilled in 1972 a similar well to the same depth for $98,000.

Yearbook Aid Sought

by CURTIS W. TATE

HERMLEIGH—The 1979 Cardinal Call staff is seeking community assistance in two areas of the yearbook production.

The first area concerns the cover design of the book. The staff has selected a design that will feature a drawing of a cardinal on the front cover.

The staff has devised a way by which any student or interested person can participate in the designing of the cover. Any person wishing to draw a cardinal suitable for the cover may do so and submit that drawing to the yearbook staff for consideration by Jan. 5.

Drawings should be made on regular typing paper with black ink or felt tipped pen. The drawing must also fit into a 7" by 7" square.

The staff is anxious to receive several entries for consideration. The staff feels this is an excellent way for people not normally involved in producing the Cardinal Call to take part in the process.

Second, the yearbook staff is seeking information concerning the year of the first publication of the school yearbook.

Each edition of the annual publicaton should contain a volume number, but through the years these numbers have been omitted. In order for the staff to include an accurate volume number in this year's book, the staff must ascertain the date of the first publication.

The oldest yearbook the school administration office possesses is the 1947 Cardinal Call. The present yearbook staff will be grateful if any person knowing of a publication date prior to 1947 will contact the high school office personnel or any member of the senior class.

Persons who have not purchased a yearbook may do so by contacting the yearbook staff in the high school library between 10:30 and 11:30 on weekdays. The price of the 1979 Cardinal Call is nine dollars.

Singer Fights For Job Security

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In the exalted world of opera, a mundane quarrel over job security might seem as out of place as Lohengrin arriving on stage by rubber raft instead of by swan.

But not to soprano Lucine Amara. After performing regularly at the Metropolitan Opera for 27 years, she has been battling for two years to keep singing.

On one side, a 53-year-old soprano who admits she's overweight and wrinkled but who says she still sings well and is being discriminated against because of her age. On the other side, the Met's management, which says her age has nothing to do with it, but that she is vocally bland and lacks dramatic presence.

Miss Amara says that after 745 performances singing for the Met constitutes her steady job and the house is her home. The Met says she has always been more stand-in than star and insists on a free hand in using the best soloists.

What sets her apart from many aging singers is her complaint to the Human Rights division of New York State - and its ruling that she was a victim of age discrimination.

Opera singers, like athletes, have always dreaded the effects of advancing years and more vocal problems.

But Miss Amara says she's not ready to retire - and so she rejected the Met's attempt to settle by offering more than $60,000 for the current year just to be available as an understudy.

"If my voice had deteriorated I'd have taken the money and shut up," Miss Amara says. "But I'm not going to let them give me 'hush money' when I know I'm as good as ever."

Her claim of discrimination is based largely on a comment she says Met Music Director James Levine made about her to a colleague in the fall of 1976.

"If Lucine Amara would go away," Levine is said to have remarked, "change the color of her hair, have a facelift, change her name and come back within a month singing as she does now, she would be the hottest new soprano around."

Neither Levine nor anyone else at the Met will comment on this or other facets of the case. But Miss Amara says Levine acknowledged that remark when she confronted him. She says he added that the public was "tired of her" and that she had "been around too long."

By that point in her career, Miss Amara - a native of Hartford, Conn. - had sung 26 different major roles at the Met, and was soon to add a 27th. And always she could be called on to step in at the last minute if another artist canceled.

By 1976, she says, she had fewer scheduled performances and more assignments as "first cover" - chief understudy for a specific role, singing only if the star cancels.

"The straw that broke the camel's back" came in December 1976, when Martina Arroyo got sick the day of an "Aida" Saturday afternoon broadcast performance.

"I was first cover and Martina even called me to say she was canceling," Miss Amara recalled. "But then I learned Gilda Cruz-Romo, who wasn't even under contract, was being brought in instead." This year, Miss Cruz-Romo is under contract to sing all the "Aidas."

Miss Amara went to the Human Rights division, and after a prolonged series of hearings, she won the ruling in her favor last April. But so far it's been a paper victory, since she has not sung at the Met again.

"We simply cannot force them to let her sing," says Charles Hayes, spokesman for the division. "It would mean setting ourselves up as experts on what makes one opera singer better than another.

"All we can do is say to the Met, look, there is reason to believe you discriminated here and now you should try to make it up to her."

Miss Amara wants more than a face-saving compromise.

"I was hired from 1958 to 1977 as an on-stage performer," she says, "yet I am now told to only do rehearsals, in room, with no more hope of performing before audiences."

Although the Met management refuses to discuss the case, some of its written statements convey an appreciation for Miss Amara's past contributions to the house - overshadowed by a concern for present and future artistic standards.

"In the 27 years that Lucine has performed here, she has always had a good, dependable voice and has been well-prepared and an invaluable member of the company," Executive Director Anthony Bliss wrote in July to admirers who had complained of not hearing her. "She has not, unfortunately, secured a position for herself among the international stars upon whom the success of an opera season depends."

Whether she will again command the stage at the Metropolitan may be decided in court. The Human Rights division says it will probably hold a public hearing soon, which could produce a final recommendation that she accept the Met's understudy offer. Her only recourse then would be to sue.

Whatever, Lucine Amara says she is not through singing. She is adding new, heavier dramatic roles to her repertoire - such as Turandot in the Puccini opera.

Lester Freedman, director of the Toledo Opera Association who has hired her to sing "Turandot" next May, says:

"I think she's better than ever or I wouldn't be giving her an assignment like this. Not only is she one of the best sopranos around, she's one of the most solid."

A Vitamin E rich diet can help protect the lungs from the effects of noxious air pollutants, such as ozone and nitrogen dioxide, reports Dr. D. Menzel of Duke Univ. Medical Center.

It may offer a prevention of emphysema and other chronic lung diseases that are environmentally triggered. Vitamin E may act as an antioxidant, preventing the damaging effects of oxidation within the lungs, which is partly caused by inhaling air-borne pollutants.

Severe hiatal hernia

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a hiatal hernia. Some years ago two dogs chased me from the bus line and caused me to fall on an iron. It was sidewise between my breasts when I fell on it.

I went to a doctor for I could hardly breathe, but nothing showed then. My husband had to lower me in bed by holding my hands and helping me raise up. Through all the years it is better sometimes and worse others. I take a hernia tablet but I don't know what it is.

I have spells of pain that go to my throat and feels as if someone had his hands around my throat choking me, besides all the pain through my chest at the same time. If I eat or drink water, that will usually stop the choking and pains.

I'm 5 feet 6 and I try to keep my weight down. The doctor told me to eat something when the pain starts and this does help. Last summer I was in the hospital four days to see if these pains are from my heart or the hernia. I was in oxygen because the pains were so bad. The problem was not my heart.

I carry antacids in my purse all the time because if I start having pain and take the antacid soon enough, it will stop them. As I get older will this condition get worse? I noticed in one of your columns you mentioned a Health Letter on hiatal hernia. I need all the information I can get. Would you please send it to me?

DEAR READER — As you know, a hiatal hernia means a rupture of the stomach through an enlarged hole in the diaphragm. We all have a normal hole in the diaphragm. The usual cause of this problem is just an excessive enlargement of this hole. Women tend to develop this during pregnancy and possibly because of pregnancies, women are more prone to this disorder than men.

There are a few instances in which the diaphragm can be injured and cause a hernia. I don't know whether that is true in your case, but in view of your history of injury, it could be a factor. Whether it is a complication of childbirth, obesity or injury, the end results can sometimes be very disagreeable as you described.

Many people have a small hiatal hernia and never have any symptoms, but large ones or severe ones can cause severe chest pain as you described and the pain may be so severe and of such a nature as to resemble a heart attack. Sometimes all a doctor can do is put a patient with such complaints into the hospital and observe them for a few days in order to tell what the problem really is.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, that you requested. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

This issue will give you needed information on small meals to prevent regurgitation of acid content of the stomach into the lower esophagus. It will also give you more information about daily living patterns such as keeping your bed elevated, how long you should wait after eating before you lie down and the importance of not wearing any tight or constricting device around your abdomen. Your antacid medicines are fine but all the other measures that you need to correct in your living pattern will help make life a little easier.

I hope your hernia will not get worse as you get older, although there is certainly no guarantee about it. One of the things you can do that will help prevent difficulties is to eliminate any obesity that you might have.

'Stop Campbell' Miami's Theme Sunday

MIAMI (AP)—Last time the Miami Dolphins and the Houston Oilers played, it was a case of two irresistible forces meeting two very moveable objects.

The Dolphins couldn't stop Earl Campbell and the Oilers couldn't stop Bob Griese. But in the end, Campbell was just a little more irresistible in the 35-30 Oilers victory at the Astrodome.

Miami's defenders have no doubts about what they have to do to win Sunday's 3 p.m. wild card playoff game here.

"If we've ever played a swarming defense, we have to do it this week, because I don't know many men that time after time can bring Earl down one-on-one. But I don't know many men, Earl included, who, when all 11 guys are around him, can run with much success," linebacker Steve Towle said.

Towle said what he says was his worst game of the season as Campbell broke tackle after tackle in gaining 199 yards and four touchdowns.

"He has the acceleration and the balance of a much smaller man," Towle said. "There are lots of big, strong guys, and lots of small, fast guys, but few who have everything. Earl has the acceleration and the balance of O.J. Simpson - only he's a lot bigger and stronger."

Griese shredded the Oiler defense in one of the best games of his highly successful career.

He completed 23 of 33 passes for a career-high 327 yards.

Griese ended the regular season by hitting 12 of 13 passes in a 23-3 Monday night victory over New England.

Both Campbell and Griese will play with banged-up ribs.

Campbell broke a rib against the Pittsburgh Steelers Dec. 3 and has been sub-par since. Griese's ribs were severely bruised in the Patriot game and he has been unable to practice this week.

Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini plans to play despite an injured knee, cracked ribs and a sprained ankle. His backup, rookie Gifford Neilson, played for the first time in last week's 45-24 loss to San Diego.

Griese's backup, Don Strock, quarterbacked the team to a 4-2 record while Griese recovered from a knee injury. He's thrown 12 touchdown passes, one more than Griese, and Coach Don Shula indicated he'd have no hesitancy to use Strock if Griese appears hampered too much.

"We have all the confidence in the world in Don Strock," Shula said.

Halfback Delvin Williams, battered throughout the season, has shown the effects the past two weeks. The NFL's fourth-leading rusher gained only seven yards in the two games. A sore knee has slowed him.

Veteran guard Larry Little is questionable for the game because of a painful knee and ankle.

The Oilers' offense figures to be even more dependant on Campbell that usual, with Pastorini hurting and receivers Rich Caster and Mike Renfro sidelined. Rookie free agents Robert Woods and Guido Merkens are Sideline Glances Bids Happy Holidays...

Instant Xmas Athletes

By BILL McCLELLAN

EVER NOTICE how Christmas turns us all into athletes? It's true.

It's only temporary of course, and very amateur, because right around the corner lurks income taxes, and most of us are suddenly benched for the remainder of the season.

BUT JUST for a little while, two or three weeks maybe, we do things we never thought we could do. For example, take the wife who demands her husband to get up from his favorite chair in front of the television set to cart in groceries. It's normal enough from Jan. 2 until Dec. 22. But come those few days of good cheer, and she'll gladly tote around a 25-pound stuffed turkey. Especially when she knows her mother is coming to visit.

SEE WHAT I mean? How about these?

THE KIDS, too frail or just too busy to help carry in packages on a normal occasion, will heft giant sacks from the trunk of the car, run up the steps with them and into the living room - if there's even a hint they might contain Christmas gifts.

DAD, WHO used to take his time driving to Grandmother's house - oh how long it took to get there - becomes a race driver as he tries to make it for the Fiesta Bowl kickoff. He'll have the endurance to sit in front of that TV all day, too. But don't bring up the fact that he couldn't find time to go see Love Story with you. It's not fair.

MOM, WHO hasn't enough time on June 12th to take clothes to the cleaners, will, on Dec. 24, break all records rushing to three shopping centers, the beautician, the grocery store, wrap 19 presents, sweep the floor and cook Christmas dinner, all in an afternoon.

BROTHER MIKE, who just yesterday hurt his ankle - and thus needed his supper brought to him while watching Happy Days - will be out on Christmas morning, riding his new bike up and down the street, miraculously healed like a veteran.

OR DAD again, who never could find his tool chest when it came to putting up those new towel racks, somehow manages to ereet two 10-speed bicycles, a 47-piece, $12 storage chest and a train set - all during the pregame show.

IF YOU'VE never thought about it before, give it a minute right now. Quickie quiz----1. What's the only thing that takes longer to tear down than it takes to construct? A Christmas tree, of course. It's that instant athletic ability that does it. Somehow it just begins fading away after the 25th.

OF COURSE there are a few folks out there who quietly pack everything away in its place immediately after the holidays and go about business as usual. The rest of us have to make excuses when, on Feb. 3 company calls and that dried up, pitiful thing still stands in the corner. But maybe that's not you, either. Maybe you're one of those who seeks advantages in keeping the tree up "just a little past Christmas."

AFTER ALL, it makes a dandy place to hide Easter eggs.

THANKS, AND have a very MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Tigers Look For Number 18

SAN ANGELO—Coach Jack Stephenson brings his greedy band of Snyder Tigers into Central gym here Tuesday for an 8 p.m. game with the Bobcats.

The Tigers have hoisted quite a record so far this season, gulping down 17 victories in 21 outings. Last Thursday's 71-59 victory over Midland Lee - where Stephenson, once coached - was an example.

"We played a great game," commented the third-year Snyder Coach. "We are playing very good basketball right now. Not too many teams in the state can claim 17 wins."

Most of Snyder's victories were against Class 4A competition, also.

Joining the varsity will be coming off of a 103-39 win over Lee. Tuesday's battles will begin with the 6:15 JV game.

A, AA Playoffs Wrapped Up

By The Associated Press

Sealy and China Springs captured state titles Friday night as the Texas schoolboy football season drew to a close.

What began with grueling practice sessions in August wound up with glorious finishes Friday night as Sealy downed defending 2A champion Wylie, 42-20, and China Spring took a 42-3 victory over Lexington in the Class A finale.

The Class 4A title was at stake Saturday when Plano and Houston Stratford met at the Astrodome.

Eric Dickerson rushed for 296 yards, the most yards ever gained by a player in a high school championship game, as Sealy tood the title from the injury riddled Wylie Pirates at Baylor Stadium in Waco.

Sealy wound up 15-0. Wylie was 13-2.

Kenneth Elliott's 64-yard touchdown run on the first scrimmage play in the second half broke open a defensive struggle and boosted China Spring to a 42-3 victory over Lexington in the Class A title game at Temple.

STRETCHES FOR TWO--Snyder's Brad Richardson stretches for the basket in recent varsity basketball action. Tuesday, the Tigers will be looking to stretch their already bulging 17-4 record as they travel to San Angelo for an 8 p.m. game with the Bobcats. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Midshipmen Win First Holiday Bowl...

Navy Rallies Past Cougars

SAN DIEGO (AP)—"I played my heart out," said Navy senior Phil McConkey, named most valuable offensive player in the first Holiday Bowl after the Midshipmen rallied from a two-touchdown deficit.

The 5-foot-10, 165-pound split end caught four passes for 88 yards, capped off by a 65-yard scoring play on a pass from Bob Leszczynski with about 12 minutes left in the 23-16 victory over Brigham Young University Friday night.

The Cougars of BYU, who became hosts for the game by winning the Western Athletic Conference title, led 16-3 early in the third period.

"I never felt like we were going to lose the game," senior quarterback Leszczynski said. "This was going to be the last game of my career and I was going to be sure it was a good one."

"We played some very emotional games this year," McConkey said. "If you can't get up for a game like this, you don't belong in athletics."

BYU sophomore quarterback Jim McMahon passed for one touchdown and ran for another, then said after the game: "We practiced and we had a game plan and we never used it."

BYU coaches sent in plays from the sidelines, alternating quarterbacks McMahon and Marc Wilson. McMahon threw 10 yards to Mike Chronister for the first BYU touchdown and ran 2 yards for the other, completing 9 of 18 passes for 133 yards with one interception.

"They did everything we expected them to, but we just didn't follow our game plan well," said McMahon. "I would have done a few things differently. But we just didn't attack them like we practiced.

"We knew their defense was tough and they played as we expected. But their offense surprised us," McMahon added.

Army Checks Allegations

NEW YORK (AP)-The U.S. Military Academy has ordered its top legal brain to investigate charges by former football Coach Homer Smith of blatant recruiting violations. The Academy said the findings would be turned over to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

At the same time, a West Point spokesman said the officer who conducted an investigation a year ago into somewhat similar charges by Smith quoted the former coach as saying that he considered the alleged violations "neither flagrant nor intentional."

Aggies Upset 11th Seeded Kentucky In Tournament

By The Associated Press

They call it the "Kentucky Invitational Tournament," and for many years the Kentucky Wildcats have owned it lock, stock and basket.

But Friday night the Wildcats lost their grip.

Despite the support of most of the vociferous 23,000 fans in Rupp Arena, the nation's 11th-ranked team dropped a 73-69 decision to 17th-ranked Texas A&M.

That's the first time since 1957 that Kentucky has been beaten in the first round of its home-grown tournament in Lexington.

"I've never had a bigger victory," said Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf. "I never thought I would ever see Rupp Arena, let alone beat Kentucky here."

Stopping Eagles' Running Game The Key, Says Bennett

ATLANTA (AP)—Atlanta Falcon Coach Leeman Bennett says there's not much left to hide by now, so he wasn't bothered that a large number of guests were watching his team practice.

Both sides know by now what the Falcons and the Philadelphia Eagles are going to try to do Sunday afternoon in a nationally televised match of National Conference wild-card playoff teams in Atlanta Stadium. The only question is which National Football League team will succeed.

"We've got nothing to hide at this late stage," Bennett said Friday. "The Eagles know what we're going to try to do. We've just go to do it."

Bennett said he has a pretty good idea of what the Eagles have to offer as well.

"The key is stopping their running game," he said. "If we don't...."

If they don't stop the likes of halfback Wilbert Montgomery, who averaged 4.7 yards per carry in rolling up 1,220 yards during the regular season, the Falcons will probably also have trouble stopping the Ron Jaworski-to-Harold Carmichael pass connection.

Carmichael, at 6-foot-8, is nearly a foot taller than most of the opposing defensive backs. But 5-0 cornerback Rolland Lawrence says the Falcon secondary has a plan to get Carmichael's attention.

"They'll throw high," Lawrence predicted. "I would, too, if I were throwing against a bunch of Munchkins like us. But he still isn't gonna like it. He's going to have to contend with everybody. I won't by going against him every time. But Wherever he goes, he's gonna get hit."

Lawrence says he thinks Carmichael, who caught 55 passes for 1,072 yards and eight touchdowns during the season, will lose his appetite for receptions as the afternoon wears on.

their replacements.

"By losing Mike and Rich, we've taken a lot of pressure off the other team's defense," Houston Coach Bum Phillips said. "They've gone back to double-teaming Kenny Burrough and keying hard on Earl. We don't have the weapons we used to."

The Dolphins' defense, playing with increased confidence and two new players (Charlie Babb replaced Rick Volk at safety and Gerald Small replaced Curtis Johnson at cornerback) since the Houston game, finished the season by blanking Washington, holding Oakland to six points and New England to three.

"I think a lot of it has to do with confidence and not making the mistakes that come from inexperience," Shula said. "It's tough enough in this league without making the mental errors we were making."

Small, a rookie, has four interceptions in four games. The Dolphins' defense has picked off 12 passes in its last four games.

Miami finished the regular-season 11-5 and in second place in the American Football Conference East. Houston was 10-6 and runner-up in the AFC Central.

If Miami wins Sunday, it plays Pittsburgh in the second round of the playoffs. If Houston wins, it plays New England.

Surprising Georgia Bulldogs In the Bluebonnet Bowl

HOUSTON (AP)—Georgia Coach Vince Dooley admits he didn't do a very good job of predicting the success of his football team.

Frankly, he would have settled for a winning season and a head start on 1979.

Instead, the Bulldogs surprised their coach with a 9-1-1 record and find themselves opposite Stanford in the 19th annual Bluebonnet Bowl New Year's Eve in the Astrodome.

"Of the 15 years I've been at Georgia, this team may have done more with less than any team we've ever had and I say that as the highest compliment," Dooley said.

Dooley points to the fact that the Bulldogs finished seventh in the Southeastern Conference in total offense yet ended up second in scoring. Georgia was eighth in total defense but second in defense against scoring.

"We did not figure to have a good team," Dooley said. "We felt if we had a winning season, that we would have been successful and pleased. But a lot of factors entered into them being better than we anticipated."

One factor involved was good luck.

"We've been quite fortunate," Dooley said. "I guess you could even say we were lucky and there are plenty of examples of that."

It started in Georgia's opening game against Baylor when the Bears were leading 16-7 and driving for another touchdown when Baylor running back Greg Hawthorne suddenly fumbled, Georgia recovered and went on to win the game.

As it turned out, a Georgia linebacker who had been blocked out of the play, caused the fumble.

"One of our linebackers caught Hawthorne by the shirt and turned him and Hawthorne's arm extended out," Dooley said. "While it's in that position, our other linebacker, who has been knocked down, raised up to see what's going on. His head hits Hawthorne's elbow and he fumbles. It was something like that all year."

The Bulldogs offense is fueled by senior running back Willie McClendon, who came into his own when Dooley installed the I formation. McClendon finished the year with 1,312 yards rushing on 287 carries and 13 touchdowns.

Stanford will come into the game with a 7-4 record and the nation's leading passer in quarterback Steve Dils, the second Stanford player to lead the nation in passes in two years.

Dils completed 22.5 passes per game and led the country in touchdown passes at 22 and completion percentage at .632.

Kickoff is at 7 p.m. CST Dec. 31.

TV Critic Talks About Interviewing The Stars

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Last night instead of watching the stars on television I talked about interviewing them for a class at UCLA.

I had never conducted a class before, and frankly I would have rather faced a star who just separated from his wife, was mad at his agent, thought the network was going to dump his show, or didn't like what I said about his series.

It's much easier to face people with a pad and pen in hand than to stand up in front of a class. But a friend asked me to do one class on "The Personality Interview" at the UCLA Extension School while he was on vacation.

I've been a reporter for 26 years and for the past 11 years I've been interviewing movie and television personalities. And, yes, I told the class, there was a difference between interviewing an ordinary person and a celeberity.

The interview with the celebrity is more ritualized. First of all, every star is insulated behind a Berlin Wall of press agents, business managers, agents and lawyers. At an interview some will cling to the press agent like a security blanket. I only make one demand of a press agent: be quiet and don't interfere during the interview. Let him coach the star before, not during the interview.

The star has an image to project and promote. It can be Mr. Nice Guy, macho, maverick, Miss Sex Symbol, or what's more fashionable now, I-am-not-a-sex-symbol.

You try to probe beneath that, politely but persistently. No one's ever threatened to punch me out, but I've had a few threaten to stop the interview.

One big TV star got white knuckles and his jaw muscles twitched, but he answered my question about reports that he had an inflated ego. So, I've learned if you have any nasty questions, save them for last.

Never make the mistake of believing a star wants to be your buddy, no matter how friendly he is during the interview. The friendliness is part of the ritual. This is not to say, however, that some stars are not genuinely outgoing and friendly. There's nothing more deflating to the ego than to have your new friend pass you five minutes after the interview is over and fail to recognize you.

I was raised before the advent of television, when Hollywood still meant glamor and stars were bigger than life like Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy and Gary Cooper.

When I finally began to meet stars I found they really were no different than anyone else. Just bigger egos, more pampered, and possibly a little more insecure because it's such a tenuous profession. Without the favorable camera angles and glamorous lighting nearly all have imperfections, and they say and do the same dumb things that all the rest of us do.

People become actors because of an ego drive to perform before an audience - even it it's only an audience of one.

FOR WHICH BASEBALL team do these young leopards roar? The Chicago Cubs, perhaps. Or maybe the Cincinnati Reds; after all, they are named Pete (left) and Rose after the Cincinnati hitter because their father hails from that city's zoo. Of course, the cubs, themselves, reside at the Bronx Zoo, not far from the home of those "Bronx Bombers," the New York Yankees.

3 Persons Sentenced

Three persons were sentenced Thursday in 132nd District Court.

Found guilty in a jury trial last month, James Edward Neblett was formally sentenced to serve two years in jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested Sept. 21.

McBride Finishes Doctoral Work

MICHAEL McBRIDE

Michael McBride, associate professor of journalism-mass communication at Western Texas College, has completed requirements for his doctor of education degree at Texas Tech University.

McBride chose as his doctoral major higher education, with a minor in mass communication. He will be awarded the doctorate officially at commencement exercises in May.

His doctoral dissertation was titled "A Study of the Relationship Between Community College Faculty Jungian Personality Types and Selected Instructional Variables." The research project examined the faculty personality as measured by the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator and faculty attitudes toward teaching-learning processes.

Dr. Dayton Y. Roberts, professor of higher education, served as committee chairman and director of McBride's dissertation.

A native of Abilene, McBride was awarded the bachelor of arts at Angelo State University in 1967 and the master of arts at Texas Tech in 1973. He joined the faculty at WTC in 1973 and serves as faculty adviser for the campus student publications and teaches journalism and photography.

He and his wife, Elaine, have one daughter, Michelle, 7.

Shopped Early

SPRINGFIELD Mass. (AP)-The Christmas baby arrived early.

Andrew Charles Christmas, that is.

He was born to Donald and Theresa Christmas of Enfield, Conn., at Baystate Medical Center Tuesday, weighing in at 9 pounds, 10½ ounces.

His 29-year-old mother said she planned ahead for his birth. "I knew I was going to be tied up some, so I shopped early," she said.

A GIFT FOR CHRISTMAS

Christmas time comes every year
With Santa Claus
And all his deer
There's mistletoe
And sometimes snow
And holley wreaths abound
While special dreams,
(Not dreamt year 'round)
Keep children's hopes
And eyes aglow,
They try in Vain
To sleep so sound,
Knowing Christmas is so near.
And a feeling of warmth
Inside will grow
When close friends hoist
A cup of cheer.
Christmas is a time for gifts
And that no one denies.
But the gift I give to you
Is not one money buys.
It doesn't come in ribbon,
Nor does it have a card.
It won't be underneath the tree,
So please don't look so hard.
You'll only find my gift of Love
When you look into my eyes.

Three Needn't Be a Crowd

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband's mother came to live with me and my husband 23 years ago, she made our lives so miserable that I vowed I would never bring such misery to my children if I ever had to live with them. One day I sat down and wrote myself a letter containing some "rules." I put in in an envelope marked, "To be opened on the day I go to live with one of my children." Then I put it away.

I've been widowed and self-sufficient for eight years, but I was recently forced to give up my job and go to live with my daughter. I'm submitting that letter. Perhaps your older readers might benefit from it, as I intend to. Here are the rules:

—Give what you can toward your keep. Any budget will stretch just so far.

—Keep yourself clean and neat. Fresh undies and daily baths are a must.

—Remember, it is THEIR home. Give them privacy at every opportunity.

—Try to make your own friends and develop interests outside the home.

—If you suspect they would like to go away on a vacation, but are hesitant because of you, offer to visit another relative or friend so they will be free to go.

—Don't offer any advice or express any opinion on family matters unless asked.

—Volunteer information that they might be too embarrassed to ask for, such as arrangements for your burial, hospitalization, etc.

These rules were written over 25 years ago. I read them often and am determined to keep them.

SEVENTY-SIX AND HOLDING

DEAR ABBY: Our eldest daughter had to get married at 18, after having gone steady with a "very nice" boy for three years, so we made a rule for the younger childen: NO GOING STEADY.

Now we are having trouble with our 15-year-old daughter. She wants to go steady. We said no, she has to have a date with another boy between dates with her special boyfriend. She says no one else asks her.

Tell me, Abby, how can parents keep their children from going steady? We know from past experience that it is dangerous, and we don't want any more "hurry-up" marriages in our family. But if the kids don't want to go with anyone else, or if no one else asks them, what can parents do?

TRYING HARD

DEAR TRYING: Instead of making rules, if parents would work toward building the kind of relationship with their children that lends itself to straight talk on a sensible, unemotional basis, they would fare better.

Let your children know why too much togetherness puts a strain on two normal young people who have a strong physical attraction for each other. Explain that this attraction is usually equated with love—but don't put it down and say it's only puppy love.

Tell them that the only way to reduce temptation is to reduce the time spent together alone.

Tell them that you are aware that when young people think they are in love, the more they make out the more difficult it is to control their desires, and they seldom do less when they're together than they did the previous time. Let them know that you understand and trust them, but you are opposed to going steady because you want to help them, not punish them. And then, Mother, you will have less to worry about.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: If you want to have a truly merry Christmas, call someone you suspect might be alone and include him or her in your plans.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to that woman whose husband let the pet cockatoo fly loose in the house was the pits! If the husband refused to clean up after the bird, you should have told her to do it. But to facetiously suggest that she leave the window open, buy a cat, or let you know if she wants a good recipe for stewed cockatoo on toast showed an insensitivity that was unlike you, Abby.

Don't you realize that some people have absolutely no sense of humor and might take you seriously?

Please revise your answer, or I'll tell Doris Day on you.

BIRD LOVER IN AURORA

DEAR BIRD LOVER: Consider it revised. I've eaten a lot of crow in my day, but I swear I've never tasted stewed cockatoo. I was only kidding, but I should not have been so flip about a subject as serious as life—even when it's for the birds.

A better suggestion would have been to simply return the bird to the pet shop.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this before the next touchdown.

Our son plays football for a major university. He's a star and we're very proud of him.

Many friends and relatives want to see Sonny play, so they ask us to get them tickets. Proud Papa gets the tickets, which he pays for out of his own pocket. Meanwhile, delighted friends and relatives assume that Proud Papa gets a dozen or so freebies per game.

Not so! Parents get only two complimentary tickets for each game. How can we handle this awkward situation gracefully?

PROUD PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: When you're tackled for tickets don't hesitate to say that you have no freebies to give them, but you'll gladly get the tickets if they'll pay for them.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand just one more letter about chasity belts? Legend has it that a young knight was preparing to go off to the crusades. He kissed his lovely young wife and locked her into her chasity belt, as was the custom in those days.

Then the knight called on his best friend and said, "Here is the key to my wife's chastity belt. Keep it. And if I am not back in seven days you will know I'm dead, so please unlock my wife so she can marry again."

With that, the knight galloped off to do battle. He was gone only two hours when he was overtaken by his friend who came charging after him in a cloud of dust, shouting: "You gave me the wrong key!"

HA HA IN CHICAGO

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COTTON HARVEST

Cotton harvest appears to be over the 50 percent complete mark with approximately 20,000 bales either ginned or on the yard. Good open weather for stripping has prevailed for the past couple of weeks and producers have made good use of it.

TIME TO CONTROL LICE

Lice cost U.S. cattlemen more than $50 million annually, so it's important to control them.

Lice begin to reproduce rapidly with the onset of cool weather, so peak populations on cattle occur in late winter and early spring. Uncontrolled lice can soon infest a whole herd because with cold weather, cattle tend to bunch up more so that the pests can move easily from one animal to another. Heavy hair coats on animals during cold weather also afford protection for the parasites and allow for increased reproduction.

Both types of lice--blood-sucking and biting--infest cattle. Sucking lice pierce the animal's skin and suck blood while biting lice feed on particles of hair, scale, scab and skin exudation.

Lice infestations irritate animals, causing itching, scratching and rubbing on fences or anything else available. This produces denuded areas, bruises and lacerations on the affected animal. Heavily infested animals will have an unthrifty appearance and will suffer weight reduction, decreased milk production, anemia or even death. Lice infested animals may also be more subject to infectious diseases. Heavy lice infestations often stunt calves.

Spraying or dipping infested animals with the proper insecticide is the most effective means of controlling lice.

However, properly placed and maintained dust bags offer effective control and save both time and labor. Position dust bags prior to lice buildup so that cattle can become accustomed to using the bags. A dust bag station should serve about 30 head. Depending on cattle size, place the bags so that they hang 18-24 inches above the ground. Forced-use of dust bags, where they are placed so that cattle must pass under them to get feed or water, begin to control lice sooner than those used free-choice. By allowing a two-to-three week adjustment period, free-choice bags can be about as effective as forced-use types.

In a spraying or dipping program an animal must receive a thorough soaking in each of two applications 14-18 days apart to effectively control lice. The second spray or dip will kill any lice hatching from eggs that were laid prior to the first spraying. When spraying, use a high pressure (250 pounds per square inch) and thoroughly wet animals to the skin.

Some Cancer Patients Know They'll Recover

By KEVIN McKEAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-Some cancer patients seem to know in advance whether they will recover, two Texas researchers say. This gut feeling is often unconscious, but turns up in the symbols patients use when asked to draw an imaginary picture of their disease.

Dr. Jeanne Achterberg and her husband, Dr. G. Frank Lawlis, came to that conclusion after soliciting such drawings from 90 cancer patients.

Images of power and strength, like knights, Vikings and large animals, portended well for recovery, says Dr. Achterberg, assistant professor of physical medicine at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

Machinery, ants, lobsters and crabs - the Zodiacal symbol for cancer - appeared more often in drawings of patients who died, she says.

"Crabs were dreadful - you know, there's no stopping them," she says. "We would kind of shudder whenever a patient would describe that because the patients seemed to have such a weak expectation of recovery."

The cancer drawings became one part of a test which she and her husband worked out to determine a patient's attitude toward his disease and his doctors. The test was good at predicting whether a patient would do sharply better or worse, Dr. Achterberg said, but less reliable for those in between.

With the gift-giving season approaching, two chemists at Rutgers University have warned against disposing of colored gift-wrapping papers by burning them in the Yuletide fire.

John F. Bertagnolli and Dr. Sidney A. Katz said ina report to the American Chemical Society that burning the papers can release poisonous lead and chromium used in the coloring pigments.

You should also stop the kids from chewing the paper, the researchers said.

Bertagnolli and Katz tested 17 gift wrapping samples selected at random and found lead and chromium in 14, or 80 percent, of them.

Many states and cities issue a daily air quotient or similar measure of pollution, something that's important especially to the elderly and to persons with heart and lung conditions for whom over-exertion in badly tainted air can be dangerous.

But these reports are often "confusing and inconsistent," because at least 15 different parts of the country, says Dr. Sol Katz, associate medical editor of American Family Physician magazine.

"When descriptive words are given, no two indices are alike, and 41 different words are used," he writes. For example, the numerical value of 25 could mean anything from "extremely light" to "severe" health danger, depending on the index.

Dr. Katz urges adoption of a Pollutant Standards Index prepared by a federal task force. This uses a scale from zero to 500 and only five descriptions ranging from "good" to "hazardous."

Actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr. was born in 1909.

Peter O'Toole Settles To More Tranquil Life

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) – Peter O'Toole dismisses his fiery Irish image.

"I now have quiet pleasures too," says the eminent stage-film star, who once declared life never should be tranquil.

"But then, social mores have been changing, so perhaps they've caught up with me, or I've caught up with them. Or whatever."

With a roguish smile, he takes a sip of tea. This is matinee day, and the between performance interlude often induces contemplative calm in a player.

But there's something more. At age 46, O'Toole is making his first in-person tour on this side of the Atlantic - a time for a good impression.

The husky blond from Falway has arrived as actor-manager of a Canadian troupe to which he has made "ongoing commitment" in partnership with Ed Mirvish, a theater owner in Toronto.

After debut there, the company visited Chicago and this weekend winds up a highly gratifying stay at the Kennedy Performing Arts Center here. Two plays were given, Noel Coward's "Present Laughter" and Anton Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya."

"They buttress each other," their mentor says.

An invitation to Broadway next "is under consideration."

O'Toole has been invited there before but has an abiding aversion "to commercial theater because of the commitment you have to make.

"The prospect of signing to do one play for a year absolutely terrifies me. In that time I'll do five - that's the way I was brought up."

His reputation on these shores was earned by a formidable movie array including "Lawrence of Arabia," "Becket," "The Lion in Winter" and others in which he enacted widely varied roles, ranging from Jehovah to a Nazi general.

"I do films for money and theater for pleasure," he says, making careful distinction.

In the current pair of plays, which he chose for the company, his aim as usual was interpretive challenge.

For "Uncle Vanya," O'Toole commissioned a complete new translation by Frederick Moneyer, feeling that previous versions never caught its true Slavic essence.

Having appeared in two previous productions of the play, O'Toole this time recruited as the director Nat Brenner, who gave him his start as an apprentice with the Bristol Old Vic 30 years ago.

The Coward play provided a second opportunity at innovation. Instead of playing the central role with foppish elegane - "as might be expected" - he comes on with tweedy roughness.

"Any man who is going to schlepp around Africa with six shows," says O'Toole of the character, "and who runs his own company, can't wander around being epicene in the privacy of his own home."

Besides, he adds, Coward directed him in a television version of the play "and pushed me further and further and further into this kind of portrayal."

Looking ahead, O'Toole would like to continue his Canadian alliance by "going out every year or 18 months with a group and open wherever we want."

An ensemble company, he adds, "is a notion, it's not a building or even a philosophy - just a passion and it takes a long time to create. There's nothing instant. After these five months or so we'll know what kind of an outfit we are and who wishes to persevere. I like the pursuit of excellence."

As for career goals, "there are none in an arranged, graph sense. Acting is very important, but in the frame of my life, it is just a part. I'm a very private man. I like acting that's my game. My passion also is writing."

Between performance stints, O'Toole "usually goes back to Ireland where I scribble," and this time may write a play. He's done several before and is convinced "drama is the hardest thing in the world of literature."

As for the general state of theatrical creativity, O'Toole regrets "there's a great deal of conservatism everywhere, both in the types of plays produced and the use of technical advances. A lot of it is downright dinosaur."

The Fiery Irishman continues, at least, to smolder.

More Vandalism Reports Probed

Six more criminal mischief complaints were received Friday along with a pair of theft reports and several minor traffic accidents.

Roy Bailey, onwer of Snyder Glass and Mirror, reported that $260 worth of windows were knocked out at his firm. Albert Zamora told police a door window at his 4001 College Ave. home was destroyed, resulting in a $25 loss to him.

Tim Flynn told officers the back window to his car was destroyed. He set his loss at $100. He, though, was luckier than Mrs. Darlene Robbins who said she would be out $200 in replacing a window that had been shot out sometime during the night at her 2400 25th St. residence.

Even she, however, was luckier than Bill Eiland. Eiland estimated the value of a shot-out window on his GMC Motor home to be worth $500. The vehicle was parked at 2807 34th St., according to reports, when the damage was inflicted.

The final criminal mischief complaint came in about 6:30 p.m. Friday when Tommy Hollis said a $50 window to his car was shot out. That complaint came from 2204 42nd St.

Friday was also marked by the theft of a $705 saddle and bridle from Rick Bolding. Bolding told officers the merchandise was lifted from his pickup while the vehicle was parked at 100 East 37th St. That report was received shortly after 11 a.m.

Then, at 11:38 a.m., Mrs. Lewis Mitchell reported she was missing $70 from her purse at her 3001 Ave. U home.

Friday's first traffic mishap occurred at the intersection of 22nd St. and Ave. Z. It involved a 1972 Pontiac driven by Jessie Ramos and a fence owned by Nina Sailers. It took place about 8 a.m.

A two-car collision was recorded about 4 p.m. in the 3800 block of College Ave. Involved in it were a 1973 Grand Prix driven by Larry Duane Smith and a 1977 Bonneville driven by Charlotte R. Masters.

The final collision was also a two-car wreck occurring on Highway 180. It took place about 6 p.m. and involved a 1977 Toronado driven by Fairy Grapham Eicke and a 1976 Monza driven by Howard K. Hill.

Presley Mystique Worth Millions

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —Elvis Presley is dead but his mystique is still worth millions, according to court records showing the singer's estate earned almost $5 million since his death 16 months ago.

The figure was contained in a request filed by the singer's father, Vernon Presley, asking approval for payment to lawyers and accountants, and for his salary.

The elder Presley said the estate earned $4,993,897 from Aug. 22, 1977, through July 31, 1978. The sources of income were not detailed.

The Roman poet Equintus Horatius Flaccus Horace was born in 65 B.C.

Oklahoma Expects Good Cotton Crop

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)- State agricultural observers claim that despite dire predictions during the dry days of last summer Oklahoma's cotton crop is expected to reach about 350,000, or over 80 percent of last year's bumper crop.

O.H. Williams, extension agent for a seven-county area in western Oklahoma, said that the cotton picture as viewed this summer was changed by existing soil moisture, late rains and a lingering mild winter.

He also said the yield per acre of this year's cotton is less than last year's yield, but that more acres were planted this year.

Women's lib endorses green Christmas

For about 35 years both men and women have been sentimentally dreaming of a "White Christmas." The poignant message of Irving Berlin's popular song is dear to us all, at holiday time. However, a Green Christmas is an ancient custom and more universally observed.

At pagan winter festivals in early times, winter flowering plants and evergreens were prized for their promise of the return of the sun and of spring. Holly and ivy are part of that ancient heritage and were extolled in an old Christmas carol "The Holly and the Ivy."

As far back as those ancient pagan games, holly was characterized as masculine, ivy as feminine. At a later date, it was decided that spiney-leaved hollies are "he" and smooth-leaved hollies are "she."

Depending on the kind of holly brought home at the holidays, it was determined whether he or she would be head of the house, the New Year!

Womens libbers will undoubtedly be cornering the market on smooth-leaved holly this happy holiday season!

SCENTED GIFT

Pomander balls make beautiful gifts trimmed up with velvet ribbons, lace and pretty braid. Tie them prettily from bits and pieces you have tucked away in your sewing box. Their fragrance will last long after the holidays are gone.

CHRISTMAS WRAP

Aluminum foil makes any gift special looking and is especially marvelous for wrapping those odd shaped things that never seem to fit into any box. Wrap and tie with brightly colored yarn . . . several different colors at the same time!

Out, Out, Dratted Spot!

More entertaining means more minor casualties through this festive season. Most spots and stains are easily removed if you really know how to handle them properly. Eash process described should be tested on the extra fabric of an inside seam, or a corner of the fabric involved, before attacking the actual stain.

In a kit of first aid cleaning agents and tools be sure to include an eyedropper (to measure one drop of liquid at a time), an art gum eraser, magnifying glass, white vinegar, and a soapless shampoo (not meant for hair). Spots are best removed from the wrong side of the fabric, with a paper towel placed beneath them. Move the towel around so the soil comes off on a clean part. Pat dry, do not iron. Remember soap will do more harm than good, it often "sets" the stain. When a chemical has been used, hold spot over a glass of cold water, and pat the fabric into the water gently.

Coffee: For table linens, hold stained fabric taut over a deep basin. (Tie into place.) Put basin into empty bathtub and from as high as possible, pour boiling water directly onto spot until it is removed. Pour slowly and carefully!

Cocoa and chocolate: As soon as possible sponge with cold water. A paste of Borax and water can be applied to table linens.

Chewing gum: Rub with ice cube until hard. Scrape as much as possible away. If fabric is linen or cotton texture, put adhesive tape over spot and press down hard. Pull adhesive up quickly while someone else holds the fabric tight.

Candle droppings: Scrape excess wax away. White wax spots can be put between 2 layers of blotting paper and pressed with a warm iron. If spot persists, dilute a little wood alcohol with water and apply.

Ice cream: Sponge with warm water and let dry. Sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

Lipstick: Sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

Blood: Fresh blood stains respond well to a mixture of 2 tablespoons of salt and 1 tablespoon water. If fabric is washable soak in cold water. For white fabric that is not washable use hydrogen peroxide.

Ink: A solution of table salt and water will remove most fresh ink spots.

Shoe polish and heel marks: Dampen a clean, soft cloth with a reliable cleaning fluid, kerosene or turpentine and rub gently on reverse side of fabric.

Greeting cards have colorful, historic sources

Each year researchers come up with more and more fascinating information about the origins of Christmas and New Year greetings.

Greeting cards are usually made of stiff paper or cardboard, but cloth, vellum, leather, celluloid, metal, wood, clay, cork, and new materials have been added to their designs. Cards and their messages vary in size. In 1929 an inscribed grain of rice was presented as a Christmas greeting to the Prince of Wales, and in 1924, President Calvin Coolidge received a Christmas card that measured 21 x 33 inches!

In ancient Egypt the New Year was celebrated by the exchange of symbolic presents such as scent bottles and scarabs inscribed "an ab nab" ("all good luck"). The Romans exchanged strenae, originally branches of laurel or olive, often coated with gold leaf. Symbols of seasonal good will, such as a Roman lamp and the figure of Victory surrounded by strenae, were combined on objects of baked clay, with the inscription "Anno Novo faustum felix tibi sit" ("May the New Year be happy and lucky for you"). The acknowledgment of the New Year with the exchanges of good will continued in Europe through the early days of Christianity.

In the 15th century, master wood engravers produced inscribed prints which had the same intent as the modern Christmas and New Year cards. One of these shows the Christ Child with halo, before a cross holding a scroll on which appears "Ein gust selig ior" ("A good and happy year"). During the 18th and early 19th centuries, copper plate engravers were producing prints and calendars for the New Year and greetings by merchants and tradesmen were common.

Recognized as the first Christmas card is one designed in England by J. C. Horsley, in 1843 for his friend Sir Henry Cole. An edition of 1,000 copies was placed on sale at Felix Summerly's Treasure House in London in 1846. They were printed by lithography on stiff cardboard, in dark sepia and hand colored. The design shows a family party in progress, beneath which is the greeting, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

A similar card was designed by W. M. Egley of London and produced as an etching in 1848. While this card is more elaborate, its design suggests a relationship to the Cole-Horsley card. The same may be said of an American Christmas card of the same period, designed by R. H. Pease of Albany, N.Y., which bore the inscription, "Pease's Great Variety Store in The Temple of Fancy." Sentiment cards were exchanged and collected in the United States from 1830 to the Civil War and many have survived among them an "expanding heart" Christmas present or greeting card in purse form, dating from about 1859.

Today you can say Merry Christmas in Macedonian, Greek, Hungarian, any one of 32 languages plus Braille. There are greeting cards available in our polyglot nation in Polish, Spanish, Japanese, Armenian, Croatian, Chinese, Macedonian, Portuguese, Greek, Swedish, Norwegian, Hungarian, Lithuanian, to name just a few. Distributed throughout the United States, many are produced in this country, others come from abroad.

It was noted by one of the manufacturers of these Christmas cards, that whenever there is turmoil or a revolution in a foreign country, the sales in that language soar. Since type faces in some languages are unavailable, many of the exotic messages are photographed from the originals. In the case of some Chinese messages, a waiter in a Chinese restaurant who is also an artist, wrote the greetings on a piece of paper from which they were photographed and reproduced.

¡Felices Navidades! Froliche Welhnachten! To you all!

Little folks bake cookies for fun and happy hours

Youngsters can spend many creative hours in the kitchen, baking and putting together their very own cookies and Christmas treats.

The recipes below are easy for little folk and will provide some toothsome goodies to add excitement to your table, hang on your tree or wrap as gifts.

Basic Cookies (from a mix). Decide which cookie to make and make up basic dough from package directions. Use ginger-cookie mix if preferred. Roll dough out about ⅛" thick. Cut in desired shapes. Bake as package directs, then decorate with prepared frosting.

Santa Cookie: From cookie dough mix, cut out tear drop shape about 3" tall. Sprinkle with red sugar. Bake, cool, then decorate. Pointed top of tear drop is Santa's peaked hat. The wide bottom, his body.

A Festive Name

"Merry Christmas" in June? September? It is for a lovely young lady in Sacramento, California, whose name is truly Merry Cheree Christmas!

In answer to endless inquiries and as many jokes, this charming young woman never tires of explaining that her name really is Merry Christmas, and is spelled just that way. She is used to people thinking it's funny and the constant teasing, but enjoys the fun of it as much as others.

Miss Christmas, whose fame has spread all over the world, spends a considerable amount of time answering the many people who write her. She starts writing her Christmas cards in September.

Asked about marriage proposals and changing her name, Miss Christmas responded "Well, I've seriously thought about marriage a couple of times, but I was raised the old-fashioned way and I guess I'm looking for an old-fashioned type of person who thinks like I do. I really like the traditional things — like Christmas."

NO CHRISTMAS

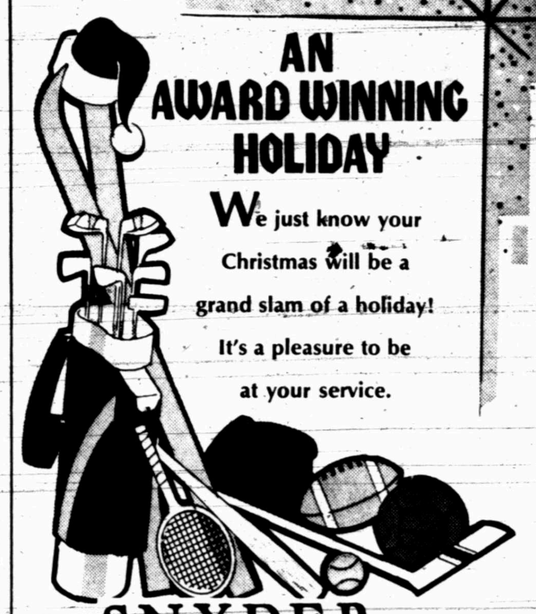

Because its inhabitants are Buddhists and Mohammedans, Christmas Day is never celebrated on Christmas Island, located in the Indian Ocean! And no Christmas festivities are held in Santa Claus's hometown of Myrna, Turkey. The birthplace of St. Nicholas is a Mohammedan community.

LEGAL HOLIDAY

The only religious holiday recognized as a legal holiday throughout the United States is Christmas. Alabama became the first state to declare Christmas a legal holiday, in 1836. By 1890, all other states had done the same.

Corsican Fruitcakes Famous The Worldover

By Michelle Scott
Associated Press Writer

CORSICANA (AP)—You might say Corsicana has cornered the market when it comes to fruits and nuts, for it is here that the Collin Street Bakery produces its world famous fruitcakes.

It's not that the bakery, located about 50 miles south of Dallas, particularly wanted to become the biggest producer of the chewy, fruit and nut-laden morsels. They simply want to be the best, said John Crawford, the bakery's sales director. And Crawford does his best to play down the volume of business the bakery does.

He would prefer people think of the modern facilities as simply "a little bakery in Texas." He said the company brass "agonized" over whether to run a picture of the new bakery, which incidentally is not located on Collin street, after it was built in 1965. They finally decided to run the photo, but he said it hasn't hurt business one iota.

Last year, the "little bakery" shipped fruitcakes to a half-million customers in 158 countries and did a booming $12 million in sales, said J. William McNutt Jr., the bakery's president. But McNutt, too, is worried about his business's overwhelming success.

"I don't want the business to get beyond us doing it totally first class," the tall, casually attired McNutt said. "The one word that would mirror what we do is 'quality.' We would change the product only over my dead body."

Doing it first class means making sure each fruitcake is 27 percent pecans as stipulated in the recipe brought to Texas in 1896 by a young German baker named Gus Weidmann. Following Weidmann's recipe to the letter, last year the folks at the bakery stirred up 3 million pounds of pecans, 1 million pounds of flour, 1,820,000 eggs, 500,000 pounds of cherries and 200,000 pounds of honey.

Crawford said the bakery's success stems largely from being big on little things and using only pure ingredients. But, oddly enough, it was the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus that initiated the bakery's mammoth mail order business when they stopped in Corsicana during a Christmas season many years past and asked Weidmann to send fruitcakes to their friends and relatives.

Some circus performers still order the fruitcakes for holiday giving as do University of Alabama head football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, television's Laverne and Shirley stars Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams, and the Harlem Globetrotters.

The bakery is so well known that an order from Guam reached its destination although the address read merely "The Best Fruitcake in the World" and another addressed "FROOT KAKE" got there, too.

These orders are filled with the same care as the order from Southwest Life Insurance Co. in Dallas for 1,000 of the delectable tidbits.

Most of the baking is done between Oct. 15 and Dec. 15 when the bakery's regular staff of 40 swells to 450. Much of the extra help comes from retired persons in the area, Crawford said, and many come back year after year.

E.C. Whittenburg, who's been pressing decorative pecans, pineapples and cherries into the tops of fruitcakes for 23 years now, doesn't even look anymore as he slaps his doughnut-shaped press into the tubular pans - and he never misses a beat.

McNutt likes to tell a story that stresses the bakery's personal touch.

About three years ago, McNutt got a letter from a man who said he and his brother had exchanged a certain tie at Christmas and birthdays for the last 20 years.

The man wanted McNutt to have the tie baked into a fruitcake and deliver it to his brother. McNutt made good on the order. The brother cut into the cake Christmas day, and thus a 20-year-old tie that binds was severed.

Evergreen Scent Draws Visitors To Exhibit

By MICHAEL O'CONNOR
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — An evergreen scent draws visitors past the paintings and sculpture in the Houston Museum of Fine Arts to a celebration of Christmas around the world.

Amid the mobiles and modern paintings is a tiny niche displaying traditional yuletides of the Old World and the New - six seasonal settings from foreign lands and pioneer Texas.

A 12-foot "American Tree" at the museum entrance, set up by the Garden Club of Houston, heralds the exhibit. The tree is sumptuously trimmed with lights and more than 1,000 hand-made ornaments from West Germany.

The decorations are reproductions of those brought to America by German immigrants, who introduced the custom of the tannenbaum to the New World.

The imposing evergreen represents the custom of the community tree that dates back 100 years and is still popular in many cities and towns throughout the United States.

A visitor need only follow his nose to the Masterson Junior Gallery and the rest of the exhibit: "Traditions and Festivals - Heritages in Houston."

Prominent in the display is an Italian Creche, a miniature nativity scene telling the story of Christ's birth. The Holy Family is sheltered in a grotto instead of a stable, surrounded by animals, angels, shepherds and the Three Wise Men, who move closer to the grotto each day. The infant Jesus enters the scene Christmas Day.

Next is a scene depicting a 10-year-old girl's room as it might appear during Hanukkah, the eight-day Jewish Feast of Lights whose beginning coincides this year with Christmas Day. A tape recording explains the holiday and its traditions.

The visitor also gets a look at a present-day Swedish Christmas and a rural Mexican fiesta, complete with adobe hut and children breaking a pinata full of candy and toys.

The exhibit then brings him north to the Lone Star State with two exhibits - a reproduction of a dining room in the home of a Gulf Coast planter circa 1890-1910 and a trek through the museum's Little Thicket.

Decorating the turn-of-the-century home is a native cedar hung with traditional paper ring chains and popcorn, and a Christmas table set with antique china.

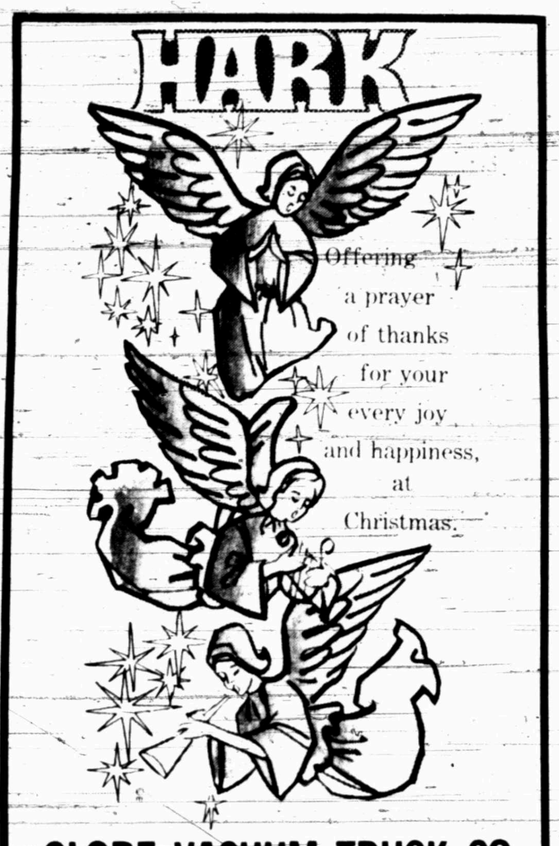

The "Texas Forest" is a Piney Woods replica replete with ceramic animals created by students from the museum's junior school and special classes at Texas Children's and M.D. Anderson hospitals, Houston School for the Deaf and Montrose Elementary School.

The exhibit, which is free, continues through the end of the month.

New touches bring color to Christmas table

Every day can be a holiday through the Christmas season. A little imagination goes a long way in keeping your family full of that festive spirit . . .

Sprinkle a touch of candied fruit into hot oatmeal for a breakfast treat.

Give your favorite fruit salad that holiday look with a sprinkle of pomegranate seeds.

Cut bells from slices of canned cranberry sauce when serving.

Candy canes make flavorful stirrers in cups of hot cocoa or tea.

Year-round favorite casseroles have a holiday look topped with a cheese star.

Place a waxed paper stencil of a Christmas tree over a bowl of potatoes or rice . . . sprinkle with chopped parsley . . . remove stencil.

Pimento poinsettias make colorful garnishes on any one of many dishes or bordering a filled platter.

Addressing a long list of Christmas cards can really be fun! Gather the family around the table and keep them happily at work with cookies and hot fruit punch!

Legends Surround Custom Of Trimming The Christmas Tree

From the top:

The Christmas tree and the ornaments we hang on it are German in origin and legend dates them back many centuries. St. Boniface, an English missionary who Christianized the German Druids in the 7th century, supposedly toppled a holy oak of the pagans with a single blow on Christmas night. Behind the oak was a small evergreen, which the missionary explained was a holy tree, and a symbol of endless life. St. Boniface decreed that the fir was to be recognized as the tree of the Christ child.

Another legend tells that Martin Luther improvised a Christmas tree in an effort to explain to his wife and children, the impression the night sky made on him. He placed lighted candles on the branches of a fir and saw myriad stars in them!

German settlers brought the Christmas tree custom to America where it became popular in the early 1800's. The custom was so unique that for some years churches and private businesses often set up decorated trees and charged admission to view them.

Craftsmen in the Thuringian Mountains in Germany started production of delicate glass ornaments to decorate their evergreens in the mid-1870's.

By the turn of the century, the Yule tree moved from the church auditorium into the home and tree trimming became a family tradition. Electric lights and tinsel replaced candles, but many traditional trims, like popcorn and cranberry garlands, still grace fragrant trees.

Today our tree trims are as varied and personal as our people. Corn husk dolls and ornaments have been "rediscovered", and quilted, patchwork stars, animals and figures are gay and popular. Trees are hung with frosted pine cones, yarn figures, miniature toys and glazed cookie dough ornaments. In this land of endless creative talents there's no end to the imaginative directions tree trimming takes.

The wonder of Christmas is enhanced by this lovely custom and we share the special beauty it brings to a bewitching, festive season.

Instant Photography Captures

When you take self-developing pictures at Christmas your whole family can see the magic of color images emerging on a blank print! Children love watching them develop and appreciative relatives treat them as something special when you send them as thank you notes.

If you already have an instant camera you can capture the complete holiday mood starting before the actual day. Shoot the family selecting your tree and decorating it with bright ornaments.

Or will this be the year you ask Santa for an instant camera? If so, let's hope he remembers to mark the package "open me first" so you can begin photographing when all the excitement starts.

Here are some suggestions from Kodak photo experts. They'll help you take good pictures with the least amount of work.

* Tell a complete beginning-to-end story by starting with shots of the youngsters in front of a pile of unopened presents and closing as they are tucked in bed.
* Check your background for distractions before pressing the shutter release. Undesirable clutter can often be eliminated by shooting from another direction or moving closer to your subject.
* Add variety and impact to your pictures by shooting from different angles and distances.

Holiday Memories To Cherish

* For interesting pictures photograph when your subjects are doing something . . . opening gifts, enjoying dinner, playing with toys, arriving at your home.

Tempting scent to holiday candles

You have only to light a candle to fill your home with the tempting smells of holiday fare. Cranberries, gingerbread, nut bread waft through the air whetting family appetites. Hollyberry and fresh pine scented candles add to natural greenery and give an elegant touch to a mantle or dinner table. Scented candles, newly available, add to the festive mood of Christmas. To make candles last through the holiday season here are some suggestions:

★ Tapers on a dinner table should be at lip or chin level. The soft glow is flattering to all.
★ When blowing candles out hold your finger in front of the flame to keep the hot wax from spattering.
★ Scratching through the outer layer of wax with your fingernail, will release additional fragrance from scented candles.
★ Store candles by laying them flat in a dark, dry place. For slow and even burning, place candles in refrigerator overnight before using.

Geographer George Mercator died in 1594.

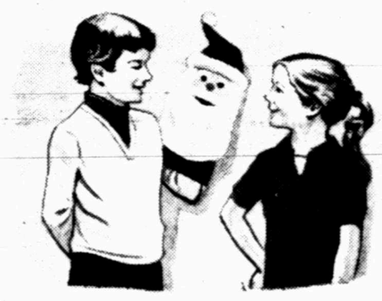

As people everywhere reverently celebrate the Birth of Christ, we pause and give thanks for His wondrous teachings.

Armenian Church Still Attracts Huge Crowds

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer

ECHMIADZIN, U.S.S.R. (AP)-The Echmiadzin Cathedral here is one of the oldest churches in Christendom. It was built in 303 A.D. by St. Gregory, who, it is said, saw a vision of Christ on this spot.

On a recent Sunday the cathedral was crowded with small children, teenagers, married couples and elderly people, their faces bathed in the glow of flickering candles. Congregations of Russian Orthodox Churches, by contrast, usually consist mostly of old women.

But this cathedral is the St. Peter's of the Armenian Orthodox Church, which through the centuries has pulled the Armenian people together, despite their worldwide dispersal, and helped them keep a national identity. They number seven million today, and call many lands home.

Vazgen 1, the 130th successor to St. Gregory the Elightene, who was the church's first patriarch, says the church is flourishing despite his Holy See's location in the officially atheistic Soviet Union.

"Of course the state is atheistic," says the 70-year-old, white-bearded supreme patriarch, or Cathlicos as he is called. "But it is also a fact that in our inner religious life there is no hindrance or interference. Just the opposite. The state displays a kind, helpful, respectful attitude."

Such statements are common from churchmen in the Soviet Union who are anxious to maintain what is at best a precarious existence. But the Kremlin's caution in dealing with the church is perhaps a recognition of its strong influence among Armenians.

Under the main altar of the Cathedral is a room containing a fire worshipping altar from pagan times. The Armenian Church has incorporated some pagan practices in its rituals. A family with a special occasion to celebrate will bring sheep, cocks or doves to the church to be blessed by a priest before slaughtering.

For such services, as well as baptisms, marriages and funerals, the church receives donations. These, together with the sale of candles and contributions from Armenians abroad, support the church.

"We don't get any financial assistance from the state and we don't need any," Vazgen 1 says.

But like the Russian Orthodox Church, Vazgen 1 can't do with the money as he likes. He can't set up old people's homes, schools or hospitals, which are the state's prerogative. And he has to account for expenditures to the state committee for religious affairs.

The church's wealth can be gauged from the gift Vazgen 1 gave to the Armenian people to mark this 29th anniversary in 1975 as Catholicos.

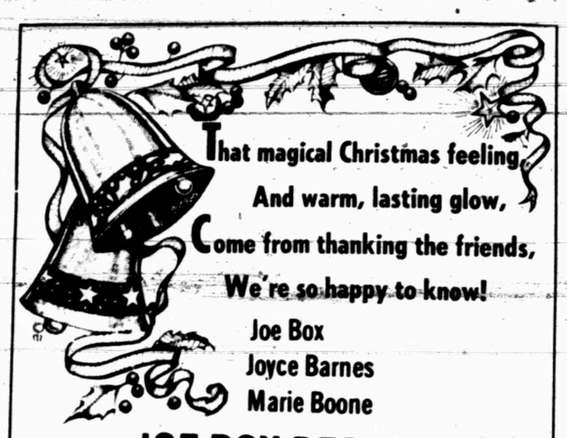

Kept in a combination lock vault in his residence, it is a tablet of the Armenian alphabet with each letter made in gold. The tablet has special significance, an aide explained, because the Armenian language has been as important as religion in maintaining national identity.

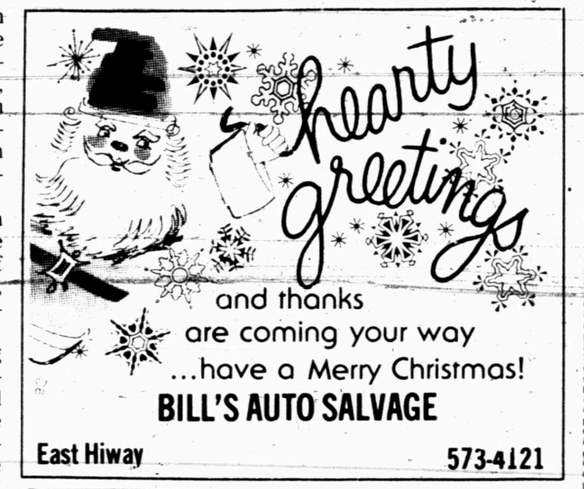

The 7 million Armenian Christians throughout the world include upwards of 40,000 in the United States, where there are two archbishoprics.

Two Americans, Greg Dourgarian, 21, of Sacramento, Calif., and Richard Abdalian, 31, of Boston are studying for the priesthood in the seminary here with students from Lebanon and other countries.

Three million Armenians live in Soviet Armenia, and another 1.5 million in other Soviet republics, particularly neighboring Georgia and Azerbaijan. There are an additional 2 million Armenians in Europe and the Middle East.

The church has maintained important religious centers abroad, including patriarchs in Jerusalem since the 6th Century, Istanbul since the 15th Century and one established this century in Antelias, Lebanon.

MERRY CHRISTMAS
Wishing you bright holidays as Christmas lights up the world.
It's a pleasure to serve you.
LISA'S BEAUTY BAR

Looking ahead to Christmas — Give a gift you make yourself

Some of the nicest gifts you can give are those you've made yourself. They have a special way of showing you really care.

The recipes below are for interesting holiday treats that you can make before the festivities begin. Attractively wrapped they will make most welcome gifts, or perhaps you'll want to show them off at home, for guests and your loving family.

Rum or Bourbon Balls

Make these a few weeks before giving, so they have a chance to ripen.

1 cup pecans, almonds or walnuts, chopped fine
1 cup vanilla wafer crumbs
2 tablespoons Dutch cocoa
1 cup powdered sugar
1½ tablespoons white karo syrup
¼ cup rum or bourbon

Mix all ingredients together. Using about 1 rounded teaspoon of the mixture, form small balls. Roll in extra powdered sugar and store in tightly covered container, making sure they are not crowded together. That's it! For a change, try chocolate wafers instead of the vanilla, but leave cocoa out of recipe if you do.

Leckerli

½ cup honey
1 cup sugar
½ cup chopped candied lemon and orange peel
1½ tsp. nutmeg
1½ tsp. cloves
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 tsp. baking soda
1 cup unblanched almonds, sliced thin
Grated rind of ½ lemon
2¾ cups sifted flour

Heat honey and ½ cup sugar to boiling. Remove from heat and add peel, spices and baking soda dissolved in 2 tablespoons cold water. Add remaining ingredients and knead until well blended. Roll dough to ½ inch thickness. Put on greased waxed paper, on cookie sheet and bake in moderate oven, 325°, for about 25 minutes. Turn out on wire rack and remove paper immediately. Turn, right side up. Cook remaining ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup water until mixture spins a thread. Spread on leckerli and cut in diamond shapes. Store in airtight container for at least a week before giving or using.

Nut Loaf Sensation

¾ cup sugar
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 packages pitted dates — about 1 lb.
1 cup well-drained maraschino cherries
3 cups shelled Brazil nuts — 2 lb. unshelled, or 1 lb. shelled
3 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla

"Stirring the Christmas Pudding" from Harper's Weekly, December 30, 1876. Courtesy of The New York Historical Society, New York City.

Start heating oven. Grease, then line with waxed paper, a loaf pan measuring 9" x 5" x 3". Place first 4 ingredients in sifter. In large bowl put nuts, dates and cherries and sift flour mixture over them. Mix with hands till fruits and nuts are well coated. Beat eggs till foamy, add vanilla, stir into nut mix until well mixed. Spread evenly in pan, bake until done. Cool in pan on wire rack for 15 minutes. Remove from pan; peel paper off; cool on rack. Wrap in aluminum foil and store in refrigerator. Will keep for 5 or 6 weeks.

Happy holiday nibbling to all!

THE STORY OF THE CHRISTMAS STOCKING

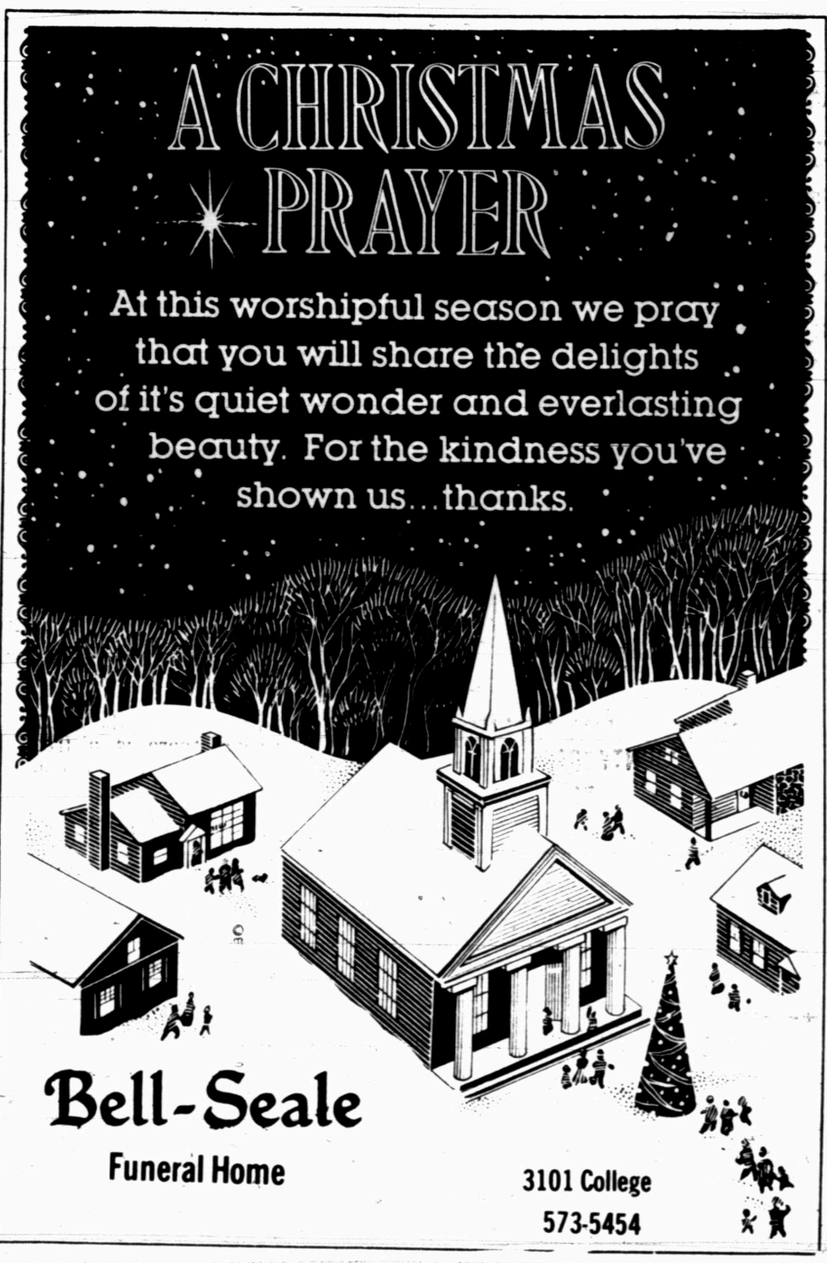

Legend has it that a casual blunder by St. Nicholas started the custom of hanging Christmas stockings. While making his yearly rooftop visits in Holland, this kindly gent dropped his purse down a chimney. Much to the good fortune of those below, the purse fell into a stocking left on the hearth to dry. As word spread of the family's good luck, the tradition of hanging Christmas stockings became popular and widespread.

The first formal cremation of a human in the United States was performed in 1792.

Christmas Just Another Day In Some Places

By The Associated Press

It is sad to note that there is nothing special planned this Christmas for Donna, Carolyn and Pearl, for Tony, Alan and Carmen, for Rudy and Trudy, for Bill and Snowball, or for most of the animals at the St. Louis Zoo.

It is also sad to note that there was, at this writing, nothing special planned for the gamblers at Resorts International Casino in Atlantic City, except a few decorations. The casino admitted in early December it hadn't given Christmas a thought but maybe would arrange a show for sick and orphan kids.

The star of Christmas winks down this eve on an America resplendent in trees, toys, yule logs and carols. But being a star, it shines on a lot of outlandish places as well, places and people apart from the warmth of Christmas cards, apart from the geniality of friends well-knit, apart from the comfort of family, apart from everything else that other people are a part of.

Because its glow is so universal, it tends to exaggerate the shadows people cast. What is true every other day of the year is more true at Christmas time. The poor feel poorer, the rich richer, the lonely lonelier, the happy happier.

The only special thing about Christmas on an offshore oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico is a Christmas tree, prime ribs and turkey, hardly a surprise or a treat to workers who by contract get steak three times a week.

At Lonely, Alaska, a distant early warning station on the brink of the Arctic Ocean, there is a tree, steaks, ham, turkey, candied yams, fresh vegetables, and touch with home by shortwave or by "The Morale Line," an administrative telephone used for business the rest of the year.

For last minute shoppers on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills, Calif., there were men's shorts for $70, a one-man helicopter for $35,000, a $4,725 evening gown, gift wrapping free, and silver panties for the Christmas turkey at $15 the pair.

At the state prison near Joliet, Ill., there will be no movies or other entertainment in the auditorium because "you can't bring 500 guys together. There'd be too many disruptions." The Good News Singers will carole each cellblock. But everyone remembers the year the Christmas tree in a cellblock was a charred ruin on Christmas morning. No Christmas trees in the cellblocks this year.

At Boys Town, Neb., the city of little men, they remember Christmasses past, as they celebrate family Christmas this year.

Back in the days when Spencer Tracy was Father Flanagan and Mickey Rooney was his wayward charge, Christmas was more haphazard, less certain than today.

In those days, Father Edward J. Flanagan, Boys Town's founder, would wear his "monsignor robes," celebrate midnight mass, and then visit his boys to deliver a few gifts.

Things are different today. The boys live in cottages now instead of dormitories, and each of the 41 cottages has a married couple, surrogate mothers and fathers. There are ten boys to a cottage, and they will celebrate family Christmases.

At Illinois' Stateville Prison, Christmas will pass as any other day passes - slowly. Years ago they celebrated Christmas at the prison, but those days, "there wasn't all this acting out against each other and authorities," an assistant warden explained.

There will be services for the 2,200 inmates, but the Rev. David Ledford, prison chaplain, doesn't expect any more to show up than do the rest of the year. There will be a traditional Christmas dinner.

The prison furnishes each inmate three free Christmas cards, if they can't afford their own. The Salvation Army sends a toy to each child of an inmate, from Santa Claus.

But otherwise Christmas is something to get through. Assistant Warden Marie Hall explained it: "It's one of the hardest times of year to be away from family, so there's not that much merry-making. Christmas is the hardest time of the year to not be home."

Up at Lonely, Alaska, the DEW line crew of 12 will see a new movie, play pool and billiards - and a few friends from nearby Air Force and Department of Interior Petroleum Reserve No. 4 may brave the chill factor of minus 60 degrees to drop in and say hello.

Unlike the inmates at Stateville, the DEW line people sign on for 18 months duty and get six weeks vacation a year. They do their Christmas shopping by catalogue, Sears, Montgomery Ward and J.C. Penney, and send flowers by wire.

It's business as usual on the Gulf Oil rigs. After Christmas dinner, the men go right back to work. "They can't stop to sing peace on earth and good will to men," says an oil company spokesman. "They have to pull pipe."

In the coal fields of southern West Virginia, it is, unfortunately, not business as usual. The steel industry is having bad times, and so are the miners who provide that industry with the coal needed to smelt the iron ore. Several thousand are out of work and Christmas looks bleak.

In Pennsylvania's Amish country they give gifts. Sometime in their mid-teens every girl gets a Hope Chest.

But they do not indulge in Christmas lights and decorations very much, accenting instead food extraordinary.

Disney World in Florida has a 10-day Christmas pageant at its Lake Buena Vista village, but the nation's children seem to be otherwise occupied during this holiday.

While the adult animals at the St. Louis Zoo will have to live with the memories of Christmases past, the babies, like Chantek the orangutan, will get special toys. Now what do you give a baby orangutan.

Original holiday decorations add to merriment!

For a shimmering effect, swag long strips of tinsel at the top of your windows, over whatever curtains or drapes are already there. Add glistening Christmas tree balls and you'll have a picture window that is lovely inside and out.

For a festive indoor window-sill box, fill a long planter with evergreens and tuck bright tinsel flowers thickly through the greens. You might also want to stand this Christmas garden on a long book shelf.

Hang a silver metal lettuce basket in some unexpected corner of your house, filled with large and small balls of colored yarn accented with gleaming Christmas tree balls . . . all silver would be spectacular!

A simple and sophisticated table centerpiece can be a conversation piece when entertaining. Fill a glass hurricane chimney with cranberries, kumquats or crab apples and top with a tuft of graceful seasonal greenery. Flanked by graceful candles it is a lovely sight. If you're lucky enough to have a mantelpiece, this colorful arrangement will look charming on it as well.

THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Everyone gets into the act at this favorite Christmas party. Invite dear friends and relatives for a heart-warming evening for all. The hostess heaps baskets with ribbons, popcorn, colored papers and cellophane, foil; seals, bells, colored yarns, scissors, glue, whatever. Each one makes ornaments from whatever suits his or her fancy, and then uses them to trim the tree. Prizes can be awarded for the funniest, prettiest, or cleverest ornament. After light refreshments, guests take home one or two of their creations for their own tree.

$30,000 Of Christmas Going To The Dogs

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP)- Evelyn Schneider is making sure Christmas 1978 is going to the dogs - by giving her prize-winning canines a new $30,000 house, complete with central heat and air conditioning, an aquarium and piped-in music.

That's right, we said a $30,000 dog house. And, yes, it'll have central heat and air conditioning, an aquarium and piped-in music, not to mention a bird cage, a window for each kennel and a nursery - with pink and blue wallpaper, of course.

"This is their Christmas present," said Mrs. Schneider. "After this, their little presents will be limited this year. We'll only hang dog biscuits and chewies on their tree."

As you have no doubt gathered by now, Mrs. Schneider's 40 dogs are somewhat special.

She raises and trains expensive Shetland sheepdogs, whippets and golden retrievers, which have already won enough ribbons and trophies to stock the dog house's trophy room. One of her "shelties" is worth $6,000 and sheltie pups bring $300.

And there's a reason Mrs. Schneider's dog house is more plush than many people houses.

"We want them to think of it as home, to feel like they are in a home," said Mrs. Schneider, a retired veterinary technician who has raised show dogs for 20 years. "A kennel-raised dog is very ignorant. They're not socialized. We want our dogs to get used to radios, fish tanks, refrigerators and other human things.

"That way, when they go to a home, they will be comfortable and reach their full potential as show dogs."

Mrs. Schneider and her husband, Ralph, are certainly sparing nothing in their quest to make their dogs feel at home.

In addition to the central heating and air conditioning system and intercom, the 80-foot backyard house has a mirrored training area and a grooming area - with wallpaper in a dog and cat motif. Each of the 10 caged dog runs has a window.

The nursery has a special room for the expectant mothers and there's a furnished office-lounge for nervous human visitors to wait out the births.

"It'll be fixed where a person could stay here several days if the dogs are sick or need attention," she said.

Are Ralph and Evelyn Schneider crazy.

"I guess it would seem a little crazy to some," she shrugged. "But I can name a hundred people who would do this if they could. It's our hobby. The dogs are like our children. I don't ever remember existing without dogs. They're like eating and drinking to me."

Continental-Emsco Makes China Deal

DALLAS (AP)-Continental-Emsco, a division of the LTV Corp., has signed a contract to sell seven oil drilling rigs to the People's Republic of China for $40 million.

The land rigs are the first purchased from the United States by the People's Republic, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

LTV executives said the contract was signed with the China National Machinery Import and Export Corporation in Peking just five hours after the United States and China announced a new formal relationship.

The offshore rigs will be operated by the China Oil & Gas Exploration and Development Corp. on Chinese-built platforms, LTV executives said.

LTV President Raymond Hay said the purchase includes two 1500 horsepower diesel-powered rigs with a drilling capability of 20,000 to 30,000 feet and five 2000 horsepower electric rigs for use on offshore jackup drilling platforms.

5.62 Billion Eggs In November

WASHINGTON (AP)- The nation's hens continued to shell out last month, producing 5.62 billion eggs, up 1 percent from November 1977, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Wednesday that as of Dec. 1 the rate of lay for 291 million hens averaged 65.5 eggs per 100 birds. That compared with 64.6 on Nov. 1, and 65.1 a year ago.

Hot tips for entertaining

For a holiday buffet, you'll want a way to keep your hot dishes just that way. Electric hot trays are the number one choice because they are usually made to keep foods warm, without drying them up. Small electric cooking appliances are great too. You can cook a dish in one and when ready to set out on the table, you can turn the setting down to "warm." It will hold at serving temperature nicely that way.

There are many attractive tabletop warmers that use canned fuels . . . alcohol burners, butane gas burner, or candles. Be sure to read the instructions carefully, as a safety precaution.

Woman Discovers Being Santa Clause Is No Lark

By KATHLEEN HAST
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)-An attack of nerves set in as I watched the shopping mall Santa "Ho Ho Ho" in a resonant baritone and lift squealing tots in the air with burly arms.

Clearing my throat, I flexed a bicep and shifted uneasily. It was becoming ominously obvious that my upcoming shift as a thinly disguised soprano Santa Claus was not going to be the lark I first thought.

"You'll be all right," Dick Julian assured me. "Just don't promise them anything, tell them ol' Santa loves them and let 'em sit on your lap as long as they want to."

Julian owns Fun Company of the Southwest, a firm that furnishes Santas to malls, shopping centers and private parties. His running monologue of Kris Kringle anecdotes, most from the private parties, is as far from the image of a snow-driven Christmas as a blue movie...and just about as unprintable.

"I asked a little fella' in a cowboy hat and boots what he would leave Santa to eat on Christmas Eve," Julian chuckled as he strapped me into the suit. "He eyed his big, tall Daddy and sat for a long time. Then he said, 'How about a hamburger and a six-pack of Lone Star Longnecks?' They're great, these kids.

"Now if they tinkle on you, just excuse yourself. Tell them you're going to call the North Pole to check on the elves. Then come back here and change costumes," Julian continued, adjusting my beard.

"I only had two wet on me yesterday," the afternoon Santa assured me as he peeled off his sweat-drenched costume.

I felt my confidence oozing in the face of a gang of under-10-year-olds as I tried walking in the crushed red-velvet suit which swallowed me like a tent that sleeps 12.

As long as I kept my hands at shoulder level to hide the too-long sleeves, squeezed in my elbows to hold up the draw-string pants and swung my legs sideways to keep from tripping on the rubber boots, no one would notice that it wasn't a perfect fit.

Not long after I settled snugly in the Santa seat, the assault began.

Three dark-haired angels too old to believe in Santa tried several times to swipe my supply of lollipops while making outrageous gift requests.

"I want a Maserati, a football, a pair of ski boots and Cheryl Tiegs for Christmas," one asked.

"And what would you do with Cheryl Tiegs if I brought her to you." I asked, feeling superior and cleverly adult.

He looked me right in the eye in a way that 13-year-olds have no business looking and replied:

"What would YOU do with her?"

As an insistent mother shoved her screeching child onto my lap, he kicked me where he oughtn't instantly shattering what was left of my misty images of children and Christmas.

I spent the rest of the evening trying to keep mothers placated, which was no easy task. Santa is expected to hold a squirming kid long enough for a picture while trying to get the little one to smile and keep his finger out of his nose at least until after the flash goes off.

Actually, the kids didn't seem to notice, or care, that Santa wasn't of the male persuasion. Adults were a different matter.

At one point, I confided to a couple who had been staring for almost a half hour that I indeed, was a girl.

"We know. We heard it down the mall an hour ago. They said we could tell by the way you sat down."

They must have been watching the time I missed the chair and landed in the Christmas tree.

Toward the end of my four-hour stint, a girl with water-spout pigtails wandered up, stopped about four feet in front of me and declared:

"You're a woman."

Silence.

"Er...uh...well, yes. I am."

"Why don't you come sit on Santa's lap and tell Santa carefully avoiding any reference to gender here what you want for Christmas."

"I already did that this afternoon. Don't you remember."

Hand perched on cocked hip.

"Oh boy, so you did. Santa is getting old, you know. Sometimes he forgets."

"She forgets."

"Right. She."

Having put me in my place, shot me off the red velvet throne, as it were, Miss Pigtails turned to leave. Then she paused and strode toward me again. Returning for the kill, I thought.

"Here," she said, handing me a broken peppermint stick and edging closer. A quick kiss on the cheek.

"Merry Christmas... Santa."

Brownsville Woman Gets Bathroom For Christmas

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE (AP)— Luisa Martinez will probably most appreciate her favorite Christmas gift during moments of quiet solitude.

"I always prayed for something like this," the 59-year-old woman said with a hint of a tear in her eye.

As she spoke in Spanish at her one-room home, workmen hammered away on what Mrs. Martinez considers her Christmas gift - a simple addition to her home - a bathroom.

Mrs. Martinez and many other residents of the Brownsville barrio have never lived in homes with indoor plumbing. Crude outhouses - as far away from the house as possible - have been a way of life for them.

One local official estimated there are at least 2,000 inner city homes here that still have outhouses.

The addition to Mrs. Martinez' home will be ready in time for Christmas. The "gift" is financed by Uncle Sam through a program administered by the Community Development Corp., of Brownsville.

Nick Ramon, executive director of the local agency, said about 120 outhouses have been replaced since the program began in 1975. Many meager homes now also have kitchens thanks to the program.

"Some of these people just didn't know about this type of thing," Ramon said. "Our counselors had to explain what a shower curtain is for."

"I'm alone and when I went out at night I was afraid. Sometimes it rains. Sometimes I'm sick. I don't like the smell, the spiders, the bugs," she said, glancing toward the leaning structure built by a neighbor 11 years ago.

"I was waiting for God to someday come by and help me out," she added.

Under the program, the local agency can allocate up to $4,500 per project. Depending on income, the money is either a grant or a loan.

Cleotilde Perez, 58, also knows what it's like to trek to the outhouse despite rain or sleet or dark of night.

"I prayed and it was a Christmas gift from God... and these people," she said, nodding toward an agency official and three Mennonite missionaries who are providing free labor.

Mrs. Perez' new kitchen and bathroom should also be ready for Christmas. The addition will double the size of her two-room home.

I would like to have a "Star Wars" ship, a B-B gun, some books and a record player. I would like lots of toys, but I know there's lots of kids ya gotta take things to, so I won't ask for more.
My sister Stephanie is almost 2 and she wants a baby doll and some building blocks. Anyway that's what she shows us in the 'wish book'.
We will leave you cake or cookies & milk, Santa. Thank you for remembering us.
