Newcomers Boost Republican Party In Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston pollster confirms what Texas Republicans have been saying for years — the GOP is getting stronger.

V. Lance Tarrance, who conducted polls and opinion research for the successful campaigns of Gov. Bill Clements, Sen. John Tower and several other candidates, says "new" Texans mean a net gain of 78,000 votes for the GOP.

Tarrance, who predicted Clements' and Tower's races to within one percentage point, based his conclusions on at least 18 surveys of Texan opinion and voting preferences.

Since 1970, he says, immigrants to the state included about 252,000 Republicans and 174,000 strong Democrats, giving the GOP thousands of new votes.

The new Texans are also younger and better-educated than average, he reports.

Good Republican news is that 42 percent of the state's newcomers consider themselvess either "somewhat Republican" or "mostly Republican."

By constrast statewide, only 26 percent of voters say they are Republican. Obviously, this is bad news for Democrats.

About 10 percent of the state's 6 million registered voters have moved into the state since 1970, the studies show, while about 20 percent of the voters have moved from one part of Texas to another.

Tarrance's conclusions include:

–63 percent of new voters are under 45 years old, compared with 55 percent statewide.

–85 percent are white, compared with 81 percent statewide.

–College graduates make up 34 percent of the immigrants, compared with 29 percent for the whole state.

Other conclusions are:

–Just 13 percent of the new Texans describe themselves as "ticket-splitters," those who do not feel obligated to vote only for one party or the other, compared with 24 percent statewide.

–"Mostly Democratic" voters make up 29 percent of the newcomers, compared with 34 percent statewide.

–Regardless of the influx of new Republicans, only 57 percent of the new Texans say they are conservative. Many traditional Democrats in Texas, especially in rural areas, are more conservative than many Republicans.

–But the GOP gains even more votes because 60 percent of ticket-splitters can be expected to vote Republican, making the total about 160,000 new votes.

The change is significant, Tarrance explains, when one considers the 1970 governor's race. Republican Paul Eggers lost to former Gov. Preston Smith by less than 159,000 votes.

The pollster also pointed out that while voter turnout was about the same in 1970 and 1978, Clements' margin of victory was only about 20,000 votes.

Israel Assails U.S. Contact With PLO

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel protested to the United States today over a meeting last month between the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations and a Palestinian official.

The protest expressed "deep regret" over the meeting between Andrew Young and a PLO official and disputed a U.S. explanation that it was accidental.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan sent the protest to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance through the Israeli ambassador to Washington, Ephraim Evron, a foreign ministry announcement said.

The announcement said U.N. Ambassador Young "held a preparatory discussion for the upcoming meeting of the Security Council on the subject of the Palestinians" with Palestine Liberation Organization U.N. observer Zehdi Labib Terzi.

"The government of Israel... expressed its deep regret" over the meeting, the announcement said.

A State Department spokesman said Monday that Terzi "arrived unexpectedly" during a meeting Young held July 23 with the Kuwaiti U.N. ambassador Abdul Yaccouv Bishara and no "substantial discussion" was held in the "accidental" encounter.

Dayan said the meeting contradicted "repeated and unequivical commitments... that the United States will not recognize the PLO or negotiate with it until it recognizes Israel's right to exist and accepts U.N. Security Council resolutions 242 and 338."

In Dallas Robert Strauss, President Carter's Mideast ambassador-at-large, rejected any notion the United States had weakened either its commitment to Israel or its support of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people.

Strauss told the American Bar Association Monday the United States has not changed its position, as outlined by the Camp David Mideast peace accords,supporting Israel's right to exist and the Palestinians right to participate in determining their future.

"The idea that there has been any lessening of the U.S. commitment to keep Israel strong, so that it will remain secure, to promote Israel's future or to fulfill all of our undertakings or commitments to Israel is false," Strauss said.

Dayan said Monday Israel had American backing for its policy of attacking Palestinian guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon.

"The Americans accept the (government's) policy that we have the authority, the right and, I say, the obligation to attack the terrorist bases," Dayan told a meeting of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Likud bloc in Tel Aviv Monday.

"The Americans do not agree with one thing," Dayan said. "Attacks on civilians and, principally, when this is done with American weapons. Here we have difficulties from time to time."

Council Approves Budget

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

With only minor modifications, Lubbock City Council members this morning approved a city budget for the coming year which will leave the tax rate unchanged.

City Manager Larry Cunningham had proposed a $28.4 million budget for the city's general fund to finance city operations.

The council added only $25,000 to that budget figure, but shifted other funds to finance budget additions.

Initially, council members reduced the budget by $244,000 by lowering proposed pay increases for city employees from 9 percent to 7 percent.

The 9 percent wage hike would have cost about $1 million, but council members said they felt a 7 percent raise was adequate to keep city salaries competitive with private business.

Mayor Dirk West noted the employees are under the merit system, which will allow pay increases in addition to the 7 percent and said the council's responsibility is to "keep the budget in line."

On Monday council members also cited President Carter's 7 percent wage guidelines as reason for opposing a larger pay increase despite Cunningham's assertion the increase would average only 7 percent as required by the presidential guidelines.

However, the primary discussion focused on weeds, brush pickup and parks, with the council deciding to increase funds next year only for the latter.

The council approved a nearly $95,000 increase in park maintenance for the coming year, about $44,000 of which will purchase additional fertilizer, herbicides and water to irrigate developed parks.

Also, the funds would permit the parks department to add five workers

More Oil Splashes Beaches

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Pessimistic scientists, discouraged by the thickest concentrations of oil from a Mexican slick yet to foul Texas beaches, warned today that any shift in fickle Gulf winds could push miles-long swaths of additional oil onto Padre Island.

"I don't see any relief from it," said John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. "There's nothing in the foreseeable future to change the situation here."

The situation included a pair of oil patches that appeared today on beaches in front of resort hotels on South Padre Island. The large globs were 90 miles south of another patch that washed ashore earlier.

Such patches paled in significance when compared to huge slicks lurking offshore that worried the scientists.

"We're watching the large patches...the patches below 40 yards by 40 yards we aren't even keeping up with now. There's just too many of them," Robinson said.

He said scientists are particularly concerned about a concentration of thick, floating oil 8½ miles long and a half mile wide sitting several miles off the coast near Brownsville. Robinson said that patch is expected to "narrowly miss the coast" according to computer predictions.

"A slight change of wind will put it on the coast," he said."They (large oil slicks) still might come ashore somewhere else. We hope there is a reversal of currents somewhere, but we're not certain of that at this time by any means." A so-called reverse current would tend to suck floating oil back toward the center of the Gulf of Mexico.

PAWS Volunteers Find Homes For Pets Here

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Sad-eyed puppies and scared kittens that turn up at Lubbock's Animal Shelter because they have somehow lost their homes now stand a better chance of being returned to their owners or finding new homes, with the arrival of People for Animal Welfare on the scene.

PAWS volunteers, working daily, man a lost and found counter at the shelter, keep a card file of lost pets according to their owners' descriptions and newspaper lost and found ads.

They get to know the animals in the shelter — usually about 75 — and the new ones brought in daily, so when a lost animal arrives that meets a filed description, the volunteers can tell the owners their pet may be at the shelter.

Volunteers also are able to match lost or abandoned pets with new owners, says Nancy Hickman, director the organization.

In the two weeks PAWS volunteers have been in the shelter, they have returned more than 30 animals to their homes, according to Mrs. Hickman.

She says working within the animal shelter gives PAWS volunteers an edge on behalf of the animals there. "You could almost say we're the voice of the animal," she commented.

Through the PAWS lost and found counter, Mrs. Hickman says she expects to see a "decrease in the number of animals destroyed at the shelter, and an increase in the responsibility of people for their pets."

Last year some 10,000 animals were destroyed at the shelter at a cost to taxpayers of more than $175,000.

PAWS also hopes to "act as a cata-

SPAG Picks New Leader

Jerry D. Casstevens, deputy executive director of the East Texas Council of Governments based in Kilgore, was unanimously named permanent executive director of the South Plains Association of Governments at its board of directors meeting today.

Casstevens has had about seven years experience with the East Texas organization, with prior experience with the West Central Council of Governments based in Abilene. Casstevens is a former Lubbockite, attending Texas Tech University.

Glenda Robinson has been serving as acting director of SPAG since the death of Truett Mayes in February. Mrs. Robinson said today that the board has not yet set the official date of Casstevens's takeover of the position.

The SPAG board will be meeting in open session this afternoon, following its morning executive session to discuss the appointment of the new director.

Nuclear Plant To Release Radioactive Air

A-J News Services

HERSHEY, Pa. — Safe levels of radioactive air will be vented into the atmosphere from the damaged Three Mile Island reactor containment building this fall as part of the plant's $400 million recovery project, utility officials say.

General Public Utilities, owner of the nuclear power station, said the venting will be spread over a 30-day period and the total radiation will represent a tiny fraction of dangerous levels.

"The company realizes that this is an issue of considerable concern," said Robert Arnold, the utility's vice president and chief of the recovery operation at Three Mile Island.

He could give no definite dates for the venting, but said there would be ample advance notice.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission today recommended that an untested system called Epicor II be used to purify 280,000 gallons of contaminated water trapped in the nuclear power plant.

A report released by the NRC staff concluded that use of the system would have a minimal impact on the public and workers involved in the cleanup process.

The Epicor II system would attempt to purify the water and remove dangerous radioactive particles in solid form.

The NRC had no comment on proposed plans to dump the 280,000 gallons of water into the Susquehanna River after the radioactive particles have been removed, a move opposed by the city of Lancaster and environmental groups.

The total possible dose rate from the venting of radioactive air would be just over a tenth of a millirem of gamma radiation and less than 15 millirems of the far less troublesome beta radiation, Arnold said.

A rem is the standard unit of measurement for absorbed radiation in living tissue. A millirem is a thousandth of a rem. Americans, on average, receive 100 millirems to 200 millirems of radiation each year from natural background sources.

Arnold noted the highest total accumulated off-site radiation dose anyone could have received since the March 28 nuclear accident was 83 millirems, and federal limits are for 3,000 millirems in any three-month period.

The venting is part of a four-year recovery project outlined in a report released by the utility Monday.

"This schedule does not include consideration for a number of potential delaying factors," the utility said in a statement.

Test Center's Dogs Live To Eat

ST. ANNE, Ill. (AP) — On a shady knoll in the rolling countryside south of Chicago, some of the world's most pampered pooches work for a living by eating.

These chow hounds — 550 of them — live in immaculate kennels, and spend their lives testing dog food.

Will they prefer a competitor's dog food over Gaines? Will they like a new formula being tested for market? Will they become ill and lose weight on certain diets? Will they gain too much weight on others? What do they go for the most — canned, dry or soft and moist foods?

Food preferences and health assessments are the basis for intensive analysis and study at the center. The dogs get complete physical examinations every six months.

Manager William Vollink says dogs are like people; they are what they eat.

At the center, their food is closely monitored. It is weighed, placed in identical stainless steel bowls each morning and put in the dog's "apartments," which have fenced-in outside runs.

Later, the leftover food is picked up and weighed again and data fed into a computer. A computer tape for a 5-year-old dog, for instance, may contain 3,500 observations.

Just by turning their heads to select food from a certain bowl, the dogs determine what flavors and textures of dog food are most acceptable. Some dogs get hooked on one type of food and will turn up their noses at any other. Some are right-footed or left-footed and will always chose the bowl on one side. All this has to be taken into account for accurate assessments.

Vollink says it takes his staff six to eight months to verify the claims for just one product.

"Some dogs like cheese, some don't," said Vollink. "There is more of a variation of tastes within a single breed than between different breeds.

"Basic flavors are beef, egg, liver, chicken, bacon and egg. It may surprise you to know that nine times out of 10 a dog will select bacon and egg," he said. "Color co-ordination in the meal doesn't mean anthing to a dog, they are somewhat color blind."

Vollink said purebreds are used because they have predictable growth and weight. "The breed, size and age spectrum is maintained to duplicate as much as possible kinds of dogs Gaines' customers are apt to own," he said.

Some dogs suffer weight problems and lose their places on the taste testing panel. They then become ideal subjects for tests of low-calorie dog food.

The kennels are full of happy tail-wagging dogs barking welcome to strangers. They are bred at the center and generations of them are monitored from puppyhood through old age.

Some are fed only one product throughout their lives and are not aware of any other kind of food, said Vollink.

"Our oldest dog now is 16, but the tests continue after they pass into old age," said Vollink. "We have an old age home where they get special attention and monitoring of food made especially for aging dogs."

Estrada Will Not Miss Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Erik Estrada, critically injured in an accident during filming of NBC's "CHiPs" television series, will appear in every episode of the program this fall, said executive producer Cy Chermak.

ESTRADA

"Erik will be in every episode we make," Chermak said Monday. "We wouldn't make any without him, but we will film them when he's ready to work."

Estrada, 30, was in stable condition Monday at UCLA Medical Center. The actor, who was boosted to teen-idol status when the program debuted two years ago, broke his sternum, three ribs and his right wrist when his police motorcycle crashed during filming last week.

"We're going to create a situation in which Erik's character (Frank "Ponch" Poncherello) has an accident," Chermak said. "As Erik recuperates, the character ... will recuperate on the screen," said Chermak. "When Erik is well enough we will film him in the hospital."

But, said Chermak, Estrada's accident will not be televised.

"There were some early reports that we were going to use the footage of his accident on television. We're not going to do that," he said. "We're going to create a fictional, dramatized version of an accident using a stand-in."

Teen-Age Star Out Of Hospital

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Teen-age film star Brook Shields has been released from a hospital here after being stricken by bronchitis and influenza, a movie spokesman said.

Miss Shields was expected back on location in Fiji today to continue shooting the movie, "Blue Lagoon," but the spokesman said the 14-year-old actress' return could be delayed.

Kissinger Visits Shah

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (AP) — Former President Nixon's call on the Shah of Iran has been followed up by a "social visit" from Nixon's secretary of state, Henry Kissinger.

The shah entertained Kissinger Monday at his new residence-in-exile. A spokesman for the deposed monarch said Kissinger was here for a "social visit."

Spokesman Robert Armao said he did not know what the two men discussed, nor how long Kissinger would stay.

The shah and his immediate family arrived in Mexico June 10, after receiving a 90-day tourist visa, reportedly through Kissinger and David Rockefeller, chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank.

Mel Brooks Target Of Lawsuit

BROOKS

In the complaint filed Monday in U.S. District Court here, Pomerance claimed Brooks' use of the title creates confusion in the public mind, misappropriates the reputation and good will of the play's author and producers, and dilutes the property rights of the award-winning stage drama.

Both the Pomerance play and the Brooks movie are based on the real-life story of a Victorian freak, John Merrick. However, the complaint said the movie is completely unrelated to the play in script and production.

The play's producers, Richmond Crinkley, Elizabeth McCann and Nelle Nugent joined in the complaint, agreeing with Pomerance that they did not object to the Brooks movie, but only to the use of the title "The Elephant Man."

Chicago Investigators Probing Rubble Of Collapsed Stadium

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — The partially built wooden roof of the Rosemont Horizon arena, within sight of busy O'Hare International Airport, lies like matchsticks over a grid today as investigators try to find out why the roof fell, killing five workmen.

"We can reconstruct everything here," said Eric Mees, a design consultant on the roof, "but lives are gone."

Mees, a design engineering consultant on the roof, said Monday's collapse did not occur from too much weight. But he did not rule out the wind as a possible factor, perhaps causing the partially finished roof to act as a sail.

"All it takes is for one thing to go wrong," he said. "Anything you can think of can happen."

Witnesses said the collapse occurred shortly after a low-flying plane roared overhead on its way to O'Hare.

Fred Schroeder, an architect with the firm of Anthony R. Rossi, which designed the arena, said it was "very wild and very premature" to speculate about whether the plane could have triggered the collapse.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Neal Callahan said he had never heard of airplane turbulence causing any destruction on the ground although "large jets do give off mini-tornadoes, as we call them."

And Rosemont Mayor Donald E. Stephens said he was "certain that airplane vibration was not the cause." He said that before construction began, engineers studied the potential effects of locating the arena so close to the airport.

The arena was planned with an all-wooden roof in part because of its acoustical superiority to other types of roofs used on arenas, Stephens said.

An all-wood roof now covers a stadium at Northern Arizona State University in Flagstaff, Ariz. Construction on it began in 1975 and it opened for the 1978 football season.

Callahan said planes were flying "just a couple hundred feet" over the construction site Monday morning.

Witnesses and survivors told of feeling vibrations just before the roof with its 30-ton beams began to splinter.

"There were about 18 men working on the roof when a plane came over," said James Pinkston, 43, a concrete worker.

NY Police Capture Escapee In Woods

GARDINER, N.Y. (AP) — An escaped convict who had held a hostage for nearly two days was captured in heavy underbrush early today after slipping out of a home in rural Ulster County, state police said.

The hostage was reported unharmed.

Richard Gantz, 28, who climbed out a rear window of the home at dawn, offered no resistance when authorities surrounded him in a heavily wooded area one-half mile north of the house, said Capt. Stanley Kowalik of the Middletown state police post.

Kowalik said Gantz, who escaped from prison last week while serving time for rape and robbery convictions, was trying to burrow into the heavy underbrush when he was spotted. He was taken to Highland state police barracks.

Gantz darted from the home at about the time a shot was fired and fled into a 100-acre orchard. Kowalik confirmed that a trooper's gun had been fired, but said it was not clear why.

Troopers chased the escapee through the orchard and across the road, where he doubled back into the wooded area and was captured about two hours after fleeing from the house, Kowalik said.

Gantz had been holed up in the house with a shotgun. State police said after he fled they had accounted for the weapons they thought he had in the home.

Charles Eidel of the Gardiner Rescue Squad said the hostage, Lester Cossano, told officers he was not bound during the ordeal, which began Sunday.

Eidel quoted Cossano as saying he and Gantz were "very compatable and very friendly."

Originally, five persons — Cossano, his pregnant wife, their two sons and another woman — were being held as hostages in the home. All except Cossano had been released by Monday morning.

"It was like a powder keg," said Genevieve Soto, one of the hostages. "He told us he had nothing to lose. I don't think he has it in him to hurt anybody. He was a perfect gentleman. He just wants his freedom."

Monday evening, electricity to the house was cut off in an attempt to force Gantz to resme negotiations and to prevent him from watching television reports about the incident, said State Police Maj. P.T. Gromacki.

Officials said Gantz was serving prison terms up to 25 years on rape and robbery convictions.

SUMMIT FEVER IN HAVANA — Cubans walk past one of the hundreds of posters plastering Havana that proclaim the Sixth Non-Aligned Summit Conference which commences in Havana Sept. 3. Cubans hope for a record-breaking turnout of 55 to 60 chiefs of state or heads of government. (AP Laserphoto)

Cuba Sets High Hopes For 92-Nation Summit

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Summit fever is gripping Havana as Fidel Castro's government prepares to play host to what may turn into the largest assembly of chiefs of state and government heads ever held.

With less than a month to go before the start of the Sixth Non-Aligned Summit Conference on Sept. 3, Havana is plastered with posters hailing the event and slashing at the movement's major targets: imperialism, apartheid, Zionism, racial discrimination and foreign military bases.

The 92-nation Non-Aligned Movement brings together countries that claim to take neither side in the East-West rivalry between the Soviet and American blocs. It includes such pro-Soviet governments as Cuba and Ethiopia and such pro-Western ones as Nigeria and Singapore.

Cuban officials hope for a record-breaking turnout of 55 to 60 chiefs of state or government heads. The largest number of summit-rank delegates to a previous non-aligned summit was 53, in Algiers, Algeria, six years ago.

Other countries will be represented by lower-ranking officials.

Other than the host, President Castro, the most famous figure present will be the sole survivor of the trio who founded the movement in 1961, 87-year-old President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia.

The other two founders were Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India, who died in 1964, and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, who died in 1970.

With preliminary meetings of ambassadors beginning Aug. 28 and foreign ministers convening Aug. 30 to draw up the agenda for their chiefs, hundreds of workmen are putting in 10-hour shifts to complete the gleaming glass, marble and wood Palacio de Congresos that will house the meetings.

Thousands of others, including soldiers, maids, chauffeurs and night-club dancers, are rehearsing for their contributions.

At Jose Marti International Airport, army officers are being trained to augment the airport's security and immigration teams.

Drivers who are bilingual in English and Spanish are getting used to a fleet of more than 200 new Mercedes sedans in which they will chauffeur the delegates about.

The Tropicana, Havana's biggest night club, curtailed its schedule so performers could rehearse a new show for the delegates. The city's other night clubs also cut back their programs to prepare new routines for the summit visitors.

Newspapers and magazines are devoting much space to the summit preparations. The city has been given a general cleanup; major thoroughfares and intersections have been freshly landscaped, and the only mosque has been given a facelift for the benefit of visiting Moslem dignitaries.

A phalanx of telex operators has been assembled at the Palacio de Congresos to handle press reports and other traffic in English, Spanish, French and Arabic. More than 800 journalists are expected to cover the meeting, and the facilities prepared for them include four press rooms, one for each of the four official languages, and eight television galleries overlooking the main hall. There are four large ones for foreign networks and four smaller one for domestic broadcasters.

Irish Mark Decade Of Military Control

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Northern Ireland marked the 10th anniversary today of the British Army's intervention in the province's Protestant-Catholic warfare with new threats of violence from the guerrilla armies and no hopes of peace.

The Ulster Defense Association, biggest of the province's Protestant paramilitary organizations, warned it will take up its guns again if British troops do not eliminate the Roman Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army.

The outlawed IRA's Provisional wing, fighting to unite Ulster (Northern Ireland) with the neighboring Irish Republic, declared Sunday to the cheers of 10,000 Catholic marchers in Belfast: "We'll fight to the death ... to end the 800 years of British oppression."

The province's one million Protestants, who outnumber the Catholics 2 to 1, are just as determined to remain British because in a united Ireland the Catholics would outnumber them more than 3 to 1.

The sectarian hostility is rooted in centuries of political and religious rivalry and bigotry that was intensified when the partition of Ireland in 1922 left nationalist ambitions for a unified Ireland unfulfilled and at the same time put a sizable Catholic population in Northern Ireland under Protestant domination. The present crisis began shaping up in the mid-1960s and exploded in 1969.

Nearly 2,000 men, women and children have been killed in Ulster and more than 21,200 have been wounded since Aug. 14, 1969, when British reinforcements arrived in Belfast after hard street fighting in Londonderry. Another 150 persons have been slain in the Irish Republic and mainland Britain in spillover terrorism.

Nearly 6,500 bombs have gutted the centers of cities and towns. More than 90,000 buildings have been destroyed or damaged.

Some 72,000 people have emigrated to flee "the Troubles."

Many on both sides fear that the death and destruction of the past decade has been just a "warm-up" for all-out civil war.

"The more the terrorism continues ... the more so-called moderate elements will be sucked in to take up positions alongside the hardliners on both sides," warned James Molyneaux, leader of the Protestant Unionist Party.

"The situation has not substantially improved," said Maj. Gen. James Glover, commander of the 13,500 British troops in the province. "Although in some ways the level of violence may have gone down numerically, there's little doubt that the effectiveness of the terrorist attacks has increased."

Soviet Sees Jane Fonda As Heroin

MOSCOW (AP) — Jane Fonda's name is "like a curse to Hollywood bosses" because of her politics, says the Soviet youth newspaper, but in Russian eyes she's a "symbol of American freedom fighters" like the radical black activist Angela Davis.

"The name of Jane Fonda is today on all the blacklists of America," journalist V. Krivchin wrote in Komsomolskaya Pravda. "The Pentagon, CIA, FBI, all are vigilantly watching her. ... She is like Joan of Arc, and they are threatening her with the same fate."

The long, detailed article gave the impression that Miss Fonda is unable to make movies and noted she "was deprived of the Oscar award" for her performance in "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" which was shown on Soviet television in July.

Nothing was said about her current box office hit "The China Syndrome" or the Academy Awards she won for "Klute" and "Coming Home."

Krivchin wrote that unlike most Hollywood superstars, fame and fortune were not enough for Miss Fonda.

"The natural beauty and artistic talent which Mother Nature bestowed on Jane Fonda would seem to mean a cloudless life for the Hollywood star," he wrote. "... But she, who was to be the idol of the American philistines, refused to conform to the Hollywood mold."

The writer said she has found "new prominence, especially among common people in America" — American Indians, blacks, Puerto Ricans and Mexican-Americans — as a result of her outspoken political views.

"Jane Fonda was forced to hide out in Paris from the persecution of authorities and from the attacks and harassment of those who wanted to portray her as an unbalanced movie star," it said.

India, Bangladesh Stop Bihari Moslem March

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Government action by both Bangladesh and India prevented the planned march today of nearly half a million Bihari Moslems from Bangladesh across India to their homeland in Pakistan, Indian officials said.

"Peace prevailed on all fronts and no Pakistanis, either individually or in groups, were seen near the border," said Inspector General N.C. Pal of the Indian Border Security Force.

Pal said authorities in Bangladesh broke up a gathering of about 30,000 Pakistanis in a district called Norturn in Dinajpur.

Indian security forces have also sealed off the border to stop the planned march by an estimated 427,000 refugees, non-Bengali Moslems stranded in Bangladesh since it separated from Pakistan seven years ago.

A Bangladesh government source said the refugees seemed to have abandoned their plans to march 1500 miles across India to their homeland in Pakistan. The decision to start the march on Aug. 14 coincided with Pakistan's National Day. On that day 32 years ago Britain decided it would leave its colony on the Indian subcontinent after splitting it into India and East and West Pakistan.

The Bihari Moslems who now want to leave migrated at the time of partition from India's Bihar state to Bangladesh, which was then East Pakistan.

Since 1971, when East Pakistan seceded and became the independent nation of Bangladesh following a brief Indo-Pakistani war, the non-Bengali minority has been reduced to the condition of stateless persons.

The refugees insist they are Pakistani nationals and have a right to return to their homeland.

But Pakistan has reportedly agreed to take only 25,000 of them.

Indian officials say the refugee problem is a bilateral question between Bangladesh and Pakistan, and New Delhi will never allow a "human corridor" through India.

The security forces have sealed off the border for the next few days to prevent trespassing. "Even people with valid travel documents will not be allowed entry into Indian teritory" across the Bangladesh border, officials said.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

New Deal Is An Old Deal

THE CARTER administration arguably is the most racist in our national history.

A quarter century after the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision and 15 years after passage of the Civil Rights Act, we are seeing racial distinctions being made a focal point of national policy in education, employment, and even the appointment of federal judges.

The administration's expressed aim in all these fields is to prefer some racial and national origin minorities over others.

"In a nation literally composed of minorities, it is difficult to imagine a more inflammatory or reactionary course," writes U.S. Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, in the current issue of Battle Line, the American Conservative Union's monthly magazine.

ASHBROOK ACCUSES the administration of being "highly selective" in its observance of laws. It tries, he says, to mask racial quotas under the ambiguous term "affirmative action."

As originally conceived, going back to Franklin D. Roosevelt, the term meant simply the elimination of policies which discriminate on the basis of race, national origin, or (more recently) sex.

But this laudable policy has, in Rep. Ashbrook's opinion, undergone a striking change.

Certain "favored" minority groups, e.g., blacks, Chicanos, American Indians and Eskimos, and women, are to be preferred in employment and in every other conceivable way, he says, over every other minority group, and men.

"This has been described, wrongly in my view," he writes, "as 'reverse discrimination.' It is discrimination pure and simple: racism on a massive scale practiced as national policy."

THESE POLICIES, particularly in employment and education, are counter-productive. They lead us not into some bright future of equal opportunity for all, but back into an ugly past of discrimination on the basis of race, sex, and national origin.

"The overwhelming majority of Americans has rejected such practices," argues Ashbrook. "Their resurrection in any guise is further proof of the intellectual and moral bankruptcy of contemporary liberalism."

Is there a quick way to reverse the trend? Congress has not shown the courage to face up to the issue.

The courts are attacking the problem piecemeal and prolonged litigation does not promise timely relief.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

As I Was Saying...

I'M SUBMITTING my bill for $65,500 to City Hall as my fee for Traffic Engineering Consultant services over the last few years.

If you want your cut, join me in line at the nearest red light.

We're entitled. Not only do we have a prior claim, we're also $500 cheaper than the Outside Consultant the City Council hired out of Dallas.

And we all said the same thing.

Traffic signals need re-timing, we said. So did he.

Some of the signals aren't needed and should be removed, we said. So did he.

Intersections need to be widened, we said. So did he.

We don't need better equipment; we need better use of the equipment we have, we said. So did he.

Nothing's going to really solve the problem until we get some crosstown expressways, we said. So did he.

The signal timing at 34th St. and Ave. L is okay like it is, he said. We didn't say that. Never will.

THE CITY COUNCIL used federal taxpayer funds for the $66,000 consultants' survey. In the bureaucratic vernacular, this means it didn't cost nobody nothing.

If it takes $66,000 of nobody's money to get some action on what everybody's been saying needed to be done, it'd be money well spent, though.

I've been harping for years, for example, that the signal light at 8th St. and Ave. L is a useless nuisance.

What I can't understand is why this and other repeated citizen complaints haven't at least been checked out before now.

Folks down at the Texas Highway Department in Austin—where they've literally built expressways on top of expressways—long ago grew callous to my repeated reminders that Lubbock is the only major city in the state without state- and federally funded crosstown expressways.

"LUBBOCK'S GRID system of streets makes an expressway unnecessary," they said for the first dozen years.

Maybe the consultant's concurrence with local citizens' views will goad the state engineers into not only getting the I-27 north-south expressway Built In Our Lifetime but into constructing an east-west expressway, too.

But they won't if the City doesn't rise up in righteous indignation and demand Equal Treatment with every other city in Texas.

When it comes to traffic, though, about the only thing we can be sure the City will do is hand out speeding tickets—which, incidentally, is just great if good sense is used in where to set up the radar units.

BUT TRAFFIC TICKETS don't move traffic. Synchronized signal lights, adequate turn lanes, one-way streets, grade separations and—especially—expressways do.

If City Hall would be responsive to the needs for action that we, the people, call to its attention it wouldn't need to hire Outside Consultants to advise what needs to be done.

Which reminds me. If the City Council will pay me my $65,500 fee for Traffic Engineering Consultant services, I'll endorse the check right back to them on one condition.

That condition being that they use the money to hire somebody to get the weeds cut.

Note to City Hall: As this is written, one of the most luxuriant but small weed patches in town is behind the mayor's office. Downtown.

According to the map, Lubbock already has one King Avenue.

Presidents come and go from Texas Tech, but the same old bumpy University Avenue keeps clogging traffic coming and going.

"SUNFLOWER OIL may soon provide fuel for farmers as an alternative for diesel, according to research by the Department of Agricultural Technical Services," the South African Digest reports.

"If every maize farmer used 1/10th of the land he is now using for maize production to grow sunflowers, he would produce sufficient fuel to cultivate the remainder of his maize lands," the Minister of Agriculture said.

By golly, the way sunflowers grow around Lubbock it'd be no trick at all to fuel another tractorcade to Washington this winter!

Paul Scott:

Castro Targets U.S. Territory

WASHINGTON—Fidel Castro has set his revolutionary sights on U.S. territory as he begins his 21st year in control of Communist Cuba after shooting his way to power in 1959.

The Kremlin's $6-billion man had targeted Puerto Rico in its stepped-up campaign to turn the entire Caribbean and Central America into a series of advance Communist military-diplomatic bases for the encirclement, destabilization, and eventual take-over of the U.S.

The destruction of the pro-U.S. government in Nicaragua, managed in large part by the Carter administration's cutoff of military and economic aid, has caused the emergence of "new factors" highly favorable to the Moscow-Havana strategy in the region.

THESE "NEW FACTORS" involve the Carter administration's (1) lack of will to protect U.S. vital interests in Central America, and (2) President Carter's decision to accommodate rather than oppose Castro's new "interventionist policies" in the region.

Failure to contest Moscow's establishment of a high-ranking military command structure in Cuba is another sign of the complete collapse of U.S. will to protect vital interests of this country in the strategic Caribbean region.

The new Soviet command, involving the air and naval defenses of Cuba and surrounding waters, means Soviet warships and aircraft manned by Soviet pilots will be operating inside the U.S. defense perimeter for the Western Hemisphere, including the waters off the coast of Puerto Rico.

WHAT IS SIGNIFICANT about the Puerto Rico ploy is that its planning reached the political action stage with the May 30-31 preparatory meeting in Havana of the 2nd International Conference in Solidarity with the Independence of Puerto Rico. The actual conference is to be held in Mexico in November.

Front man for the Havana-Mexico meeting is Romesh Chandra, head of the World Peace Council, the Soviet-controlled propaganda and covert espionage organization.

In interviews in Havana, Romesh Chandra openly admitted that the purpose of the conference was to organize something special along the lines of what has happened in Ethiopia, Afghanistan and is now going on in Iran and Nicaragua.

The strategy is designed to build international support for a Communist revolution in Puerto Rico.

Cuba has now been turned into the Soviet's most important advance military-diplomatic operational base in the world and Castro's Soviet trained, equipped and financed troops are now playing a decisive role in spreading communism throughout the world.

The island base of Cuba is now used yearly by Moscow and Havana as a training camp for thousands of guerrillas and terrorists in Central and Latin America and Puerto Rico.

The Carter administration's failure to block the use of the Soviet's base in Cuba to push their objectives in Africa and now in Central America apparently has convinced Soviet-Cuban leaders that they can now for the first time move against U.S. territory without serious risk.

The possibility of Castro bringing the Soviet Communist revolution to U.S. territory would be a laughing matter except for the documented help and protection which the Cuban leader has received from American officials and sections of the media during his first 20 years in power.

In light of what has happened, this possibility must now be taken seriously.

Sylvia Porter:

Credit 'Bubble' Blown To The Bursting Point

WASHINGTON—As the cost of living spirals relentlessly upward at a terrifying double-digit pace, more and more millions of you are borrowing more and more billions of dollars.

You are borrowing not only to cover your essential expenses but also to buy goods you will need and want in the future before you expect their prices to surge even higher and make your squeeze even more intolerable.

By so doing, you are not only reflecting the worst inflationary pinch of modern times but you also are becoming another cause of the pinch. You are creating what, in effect, is a chicken-and-egg credit cycle.

Of course, playing their major roles in the price spiral are the oft-mentioned factors:

The oil price hikes slapped on the world so arbitrarily by the oil producing nations (OPEC); excessive regulations and obsolete restrictions that add to costs across the board; a prolonged and truly dangerous lag in U.S. productivity;

Price-fixing at almost all levels of business and industry, legal or illegal; hard-to-get-rid-of labor "fat" marbled into the bureaucratic muscle; other forces not so easily remembered.

• Interest on your consumer debt (in most cases, an annual 12 to 18 percent) is even higher than today's annual rate of inflation, so it takes money out of your pocket overall.

Buying an item on time over three to four years means the item costs about twice as much as buying it for cash. This pressures your budget even harder, leads you to more borrowing merely to meet the interest.

• The amounts you spend by borrowing what you haven't as yet earned add to the money supply just as the amounts the Treasury borrows beyond its revenues adds to the money supply.

Your own budget deficits pump billions into the dollars stream and help dilute the value of each dollar in that stream.

• TO PAY BACK all your loans, a big chunk of money would have to be siphoned out of the economy. To prevent this, we would have to keep borrowing even more and more—until the bubble burst and perhaps paved the way for another chaotic depression.

The fear of this leads many top policymakers to a secret preference to persist in inflation-making measures.

• The more credit is borrowed by more people, the more will be owed by those who can't or don't pay. The cost of what you bought gets built into the price of what you buy.

Although not openly admitted, many of those in power positions today favor blowing up the Great Credit Bubble even bigger—not letting it down gently or even at all.

Many of our laws on consumer credit have encouraged an attitude that almost all Americans have the equivalent of a constitutional right to credit.

"Buy Now, Pay Later" is a commonplace promotion slogan. Credit cards foster the illusion that purchases are cost-free because no cash has to be paid at the time of purchase.

SHOULD ANYTHING be done about this? Yes! Specifically:

(1) Be warned and fully aware of the risks of excessive credit and the danger of addiction to its use. If you are in trouble, seek credit counseling from a nearby counseling agency at once.

(2) Recognize that credit is not a good thing for everyone and not everybody should be entitled to it. Creditors should be allowed without censure to reject poor credit risks. Unwise extension of credit hurts both the individual borrower and the economy.

(3) Rid yourself of the idea that ever-rising consumer credit is a solid prop under an expanding economy. It isn't; it's an inherently shaky one and the more heavily we try to rely on it, the shakier it can become.

(4) Insist that fair means be used to collect debts and that rough collection tactics be punished severely. Instead of this approach, discourage promotion of "easy credit" and don't fall for any of the "easy money" lures yourself.

BE ON GUARD against the possibility that if a credit crash does come, the courts will be overwhelmed by an enormous influx of debt collection suits and our bankruptcy system will be totally unprepared to handle any flood of consumer bankruptcies.

We also may have to face agonizing questions of massive utility shutoffs for nonpayment.

John D. Lofton:

Door Shut To Open Government

WASHINGTON—George Hardy, president of the 600,000-member Service Employes International Union, says that President Carter's firing of HEW Secretary Joe Califano was a "gutless and indecent" act.

Well, this is obviously arguable. But one thing's for sure: In terms of open government, Jimmy Carter has come a long way since he was a presidential candidate.

On Dec. 12, 1974, at the National Press Club, Carter announced his candidacy, declaring that the "root of the problem" facing the country was not so much that the people had lost confidence in government but that, time and time again, government had demonstrated its lack of confidence in the people.

TO REMEDY THIS situation, he proposed, among other things: "We must insure better public understanding of executive policy and better exchange of ideas between Congress and the White House.

"Cabinet members representing the President should meet in scheduled public interrogation sessions with the full bodies of Congress."

In January 1976, Carter said that it was too much secrecy in government that had encouraged "distrust, disillusionment and frustration" in the country.

In his book "Promises to Keep," Los Angeles Times political writer Bob Shogan says that before Carter was elected, Hamilton Jordan told him: "If Jimmy is elected, you'll see a strong Cabinet."

PRIOR TO HIS election, Carter reportedly told Shogan: "I believe in giving Cabinet members authority. I don't want a group of yes men or yes women in my Cabinet. I need to have strong advocates for their positions, particularly when we meet as a group."

So what has happened? First, President Carter has scrubbed Candidate Carter's idea of having the Cabinet publicly grilled by the Congress. This hasn't happened.

And second, 2½ years into his presidency, Carter has canned four Cabinet members without one public word as to why the firings occurred.

Appearing in the White House press room on July 19, the President read a five-point statement explaining his Cabinet shakeup. He called the changes "constructive," said he was "pleased" with them, characterized every move as "positive" and pleaded for the full support of all Americans.

A FEW DAYS later, Hamilton Jordan, the new presidential chief of staff, appeared on the nationally televised news show "Meet the Press." In a word, he stonewalled.

When asked three times why it was necessary to ask the entire Cabinet to submit their resignations if the President planned to fire only a few, Jordan said it would not be "productive" to examine in detail why the President did what he did. He said the American people are not concerned as to exactly what happened, only that it has happened.

Elaborating on his own new role, Jordan went overboard, saying, incomprehensibly, that not only would he not stand between Cabinet members and the President, but also: "I will not even stand between myself and my colleagues on the senior staff."

Addressing himself to the new importance that is to be attached to loyalty to the President, Jordan launched into a tear-jerking homily on the virtues of loyalty. Loyalty "in itself is not a bad thing." Indeed it isn't.

But privately, and much more candidly, there are indications that, under the new White House setup, loyalty is to be the only thing.

The Wall Street Journal quotes a presidential adviser as saying that now: "The litmus test is loyalty—period. Ideology and ability are unimportant." This is bad.

OBVIOUSLY, IF I were President, Joe Califano, Brock Adams and Michael Blumenthal would not have been my first choices for Cabinet posts. But this is not the point.

Perhaps it is true, as some are saying, that most Americans have never heard of these people and most of those who have couldn't tell you what they did.

My point is that when he fired these individuals the President had an obligation—both to them and the American people—to say publicly why they were dismissed.

The fact that he chose not to do this seems to be, in my judgment, more of that kind of excessive governmental secrecy which candidate Jimmy Carter correctly deplored when he was seeking the office he now holds.

BODY RETURNED

RESEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The body of another North Korean who apparently drowned and floated down a river into South Korea was returned to North Korea at the Panmunjom truce village today during a brief meeting of the Military Armistice Commission. The body, clad in a military uniform, was found in the Hantan River near the border throught the center of the demilitarized zone, a spokesman for the United Nations Command said. It was the third such body returned to North Korea since June.

No. 3 America's energy problem is a multi-faceted issue. This is the third in a series in which we will take each of the individual factors involved, one at a time, and discuss the effect of each.

The refinery's challenge: make more from less.

Chevron's refineries operate 24 hours a day, all year round, except for periodic maintenance and repair of individual units. So, what do refineries have to do with the oil shortage?

The problem starts with crude oil. There must be enough available for a refinery to operate continuously at capacity. Unfortunately, the Iranian revolution created a shortage of crude.

Secondly, crude oil comes in a variety of types, some of which are better than others for producing gasoline and other light fuels. For example, heavy Alaskan crude contains on the average, one-third less gasoline than the lighter Middle Eastern crudes. And while most Chevron refineries are able to get more out of these heavier crudes than many other refineries, the reduced availability of light crude is still a problem.

Excessive regulations make matters worse.

Excessive governmental regulations also reduce the amount of light fuel we can get out of a barrel of crude oil. For instance, Federal regulations have severely limited the use of lead, an additive which can be used to raise the octane of gasoline to needed levels...this means less refined product from the same amount of crude.

Making a commitment to meet the challenge.

Over the next five years, Chevron will be spending more than $1 billion at our refineries for facilities to get more out of heavier crudes and achieve even greater energy savings and pollution control capabilities. This will help meet increased demands for gasoline, diesel, jet and heating fuels.

Even with all-out refinery efforts to make more fuel, everything must be done to develop domestic energy sources. At the same time, all of us must do an even better job of conserving energy.

Thank you for listening.

Industry Told To Check Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief inflation adviser says he hopes the food industry will "look again" to make sure it is giving consumers a fair shake on food prices now that it knows the government is looking over its shoulders.

Alfred Kahn made the statement after Carter summoned 16 food industry representatives, including top executives of major supermarket chains, to the White House Monday to demonstrate his concern over rising retail prices.

Carter told the group he was "particularly disturbed" that supermarket prices have been going up when farm prices have been coming down. "We are very concerned about this trend," he emphasized during the meeting, which lasted more than an hour.

But a supermarket spokesman, Robert O. Aders of the Food Marketing Institute, said Carter was told he had been given faulty data on food prices. Aders also said the food representatives stressed that they were not gouging the consumer.

"I'm sure we convinced the president there has been no profiteering at all," Aders, who is president of the institute, told reporters after the meeting.

He didn't deny that retail prices might still be increasing while farm prices are declining, but said this reflects the normal food industry time lag and that the trends even out over time.

Aders also said any real relief from rising food prices depends on controlling inflation, as the cost of food goes up along with everything else. "It all depends on the general inflation rate," he said.

Aders, the group's spokesman, said several supermarket executives told Carter they were not increasing their overall profit margin at consumers' expense. But he said he didn't know whether this was true of the entire industry.

About 30 retail food firms have been named by the administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability as probably not complying with the government's voluntary price guidelines.

Supermarket chains that were represented included the Kroger Co., Pathmark, Albertson's, Safeway, Jewel, A& P, Winn-Dixie and Super Valu. Representatives of the meat industry also attended.

Kahn told reporters Carter voiced skepticism over the assertion that the government's food-price figures were wrong. The data, Carter said, showed that while farm prices declined at an annual rate of 17 percent in the last three months, retail prices increased at an 8 percent annual rate.

"We've been particularly disturbed recently because the price of the food to the farmers has been going down substantially and the price of food to the consumers at the retail outlets has still been going up quite rapidly," Carter said.

Justices Feel Gannett Decision May Be Misleading To Judges

DALLAS (AP) — The future impact of a Supreme Court edict that curtails public access to court proceedings has been clouded by two high court members who suggest judges nationwide may be misreading the decision.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. told an American Bar Association audience Monday that the decision's true meaning possibly is being misinterpreted. His comment came six days after Chief Justice Warren E. Burger voiced the same concern to a reporter in Flagstaff, Ariz.

Powell's commment came during a panel discussion at the ABA's national convention in which the Supreme Court's July 2 decision, called Gannett vs. DePasquale, was raised.

In that ruling, a 5-4 court majority led by Justice Potter Stewart said the constitutional right to a public criminal trial applies only to defendants.

The public and news media may be excluded from pretrial hearings when defendants request that the proceedings be closed and the presiding judge believes secrecy is needed to assure a fair trial, the court said.

Both Powell and Burger voted with the majority in a test case stemming from the exclusion of a Gannett news organization reporter from a pretrial hearing in a Rochester, N.Y., area murder case.

Powell wrote in a concurring opinion that judges should not automatically close such proceedings when confronted with a defendant's request. He suggested that judges explore alternatives.

His comment Monday came after a fellow panelist, First Amendment lawyer Floyd Abrams of New York, noted that the Gannett ruling already has been relied on by numerous judges who have closed their courtrooms.

"Don't you think it's possible that some of these judges were misled by what appeared in the press?" Powell asked. "The opinion was based solely on the Sixth Amendment (protecting fair trial). The First Amendment (free-press) aspect of the problem was never reached by the court."

Powell added, "Don't you think that some of this crying wolf may be a bit premature?"

The Washington-based Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press reported last week that a national survey had disclosed 39 instances since the Gannett ruling in which judges had closed or attempted to close court proceedings.

A county judge in Huntington, W.Va., approved a defense motion last month to exclude all news reporters from the courtroom while allowing non-reporter members of the public to remain.

Courts' View Of Sexual Discrimination Chided

DALLAS (AP) — Federal courts too often treat women's claims of sexual discrimination as "lightweight matters," a Columbia University law professor who's argued numerous women's rights cases before the Supreme Court says.

Overall, Ruth Bader Ginsburg told lawyers and judges Monday, the Supreme Court and lower tribunals have displayed a "failure to appreciate the very deep roots ... of the law's reinforcement of society's discrimination against women."

Recalling a comment once made by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger during a Supreme Court argument — that because of innate superior manual dexterity women make the best secretaries — Professor Ginsburg said old notions die hard.

"I have a male secretary this year and he is super," Professor Ginsburg said to a predominantly male audience that responded with an outburst of laughter and applause.

Monday's panel often turned into a cordial-but-candid confrontation between expert critics of the nation's courts and the two federal judges participating.

When Houston trial lawyer Kraft Eidman complained about crowded and bogged-down court dockets, Goldberg, a member of the 5th Circuit appeals court, replied: "Judges don't initiate lawsuits."

County Commissioners Debate Pay Hike

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County commissioners are debating raises of more than 20 percent for criminal district attorney staff members while already having planned 23-percent pay increases for themselves.

Those are the only two county departments with proposed salary increases of more than 20 percent for 1980, and the increases for staff attorneys of Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford were discussed at length in a county budget session Monday afternoon.

Citizens Crime Prevention Council members Monday supported Montford as he defended his 1980 budget increase requests before the commissioners.

Meanwhile, some county officials were grumbling about the raise the commissioners have planned for themselves next year.

Unless the commissioners change their own proposal, their salaries will go from $17,832 this year to $22,008 in 1980.

County Judge Rodrick Shaw and the two Lubbock County court-at-law judges are being increased by state law from $26,772 to $30,875.

Despite having to plead for raises in his own department, however, Montford was not one of the critics.

"I think they are fairly low-paid in a statewide survey of other commissioners courts," he said when asked his opinion of the commissioners court schedule. "I think they deserve a raise."

Shaw said the commissioners, Coy Biggs of Slaton, Edgar Chance, Jim Lancaster of Idalou and Alton Brazell, will be paid the same as county department heads with the raise.

"It was the thought of the commissioners court that the commissioners' salaries should be the same as the county clerk, the district clerk and the sheriff," Shaw said. "So this will equalize those salaries."

The other department heads and county employees in general are scheduled for an eight-percent raise from 1979 to 1980, Shaw observed after the meeting.

Montford supporters from the Citizens Crime Prevention Council enlivened the Monday afternoon budget session with a plug for the district attorney, who has been in office nearly eight months.

Howard Yandell, president of the First National Bank and a council member, said he and committee leaders Clarence Solnick and Ethel McLeod "are here to give support to John Montford and the terrific job we think he is doing."

Yandell urged the commissioners to give Montford what he is asking "at least to the point that would enable John to keep the staff he has now."

Much of the 17-percent budget increase Montford has requested — from $568,372 to $665,000 — is for staff salary increases.

The chief county legal officer said Monday he particularly wants the 1980 maximum for felony prosecutors raised to $1,750 per month from the maximum this year of $1,500.

"If we can get the staff salaries we have budgeted here, we'll be basically competitive," Montford said.

The commissioners have been holding sessions on 1980 budget requests from the various county departments all this month.

With construction [illegible] for the new county jail [illegible], the 1979 total budget appropriations for that year total $10,731,131 while the 1980 budget currently totals about $9.4 million.

A public hearing on the budget and adoption is scheduled for Sept. 24.

HSCH Accuses Area Hospitals Of Needless Patient Transfers

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Officials at Health Sciences Center Hospital say other hospitals are "dumping" non-paying patients on the teaching hospital — and administrator Bob Berryman is preparing documentation to prove it.

Berryman referred to the "unusual admission practice" associated with these non-paying transfers at Monday's county hospital district board meeting, saying that area hospitals must start paying for their own "charity cases." The administrator said he is preparing proof of specific cases where patients have been transferred from another emergency room to to emergency facilities at Health Sciences for no other reason than their non-paying status.

McInturff said he could cite instances where people had been sent to Health Sciences from another hospital's emergency room in a taxi. The hospital needs to set a policy for transfer admissions, he said.

But board member C. Wayne Smith warned against turning people away, saying the board could not set that kind of policy. "You're just not going to turn down somebody a doctor says is an emergency," Smith said.

"But we ought to publicize it if they dump on us," Smith said.

Dr. Richard Lockwood, vice president for Texas Tech Health Sciences Centers, said that some of the transfers — though they may be financial liabilities — are desirable from a teaching standpoint. But McInturff countered, saying that if patients were being admitted just for teaching purposes then the medical school ought to pay for them.

Berryman said he would have examples of the non-paying transfers ready by the next scheduled board meeting.

In other actions, the board gave representatives from Brookwood Management Services the authority to re-route the flow of patients to and from the hospital's ancillary services. Brookwood's data processing specialist, Tom Kearney, said there is mass confusion in the minds of the public as to who gets paid for what at Health Sciences.

The current location of registration centers, doctors offices at lab services allows patients to leave the hospital without paying or making arrangements to pay, Kearney said.

"I've never in my life been anywhere where you had to look to pay," Berryman said. Patients ready to check out of the hospital have to look for a cashier, he said.

Board member Dub Rushing expressed concern that too much re-routing might further confuse and drive away paying patients, who he said should be treated like customers. "We've got to get these people back."

But Berryman said the first consideration at this stage is keeping the hospital open.

Berryman reported to the board that all patients had been moved from the fourth floor to the third to save on utility bills. He also told the board that representatives from Brookwood have pinpointed about 25,000 square feet of floor space where the lights can be turned off and doors closed to conserve energy.

Board members voted to delay their plans to change data processing services under recommendation from the district's finance committee.

Grain Dealer Faces Charge Of Cheating

By PAT R. TEAGUE
United Press International Writer

Bobby M. Johnson, the elusive entrepreneur who dived from a boat in the Gulf of Mexico and surfaced 2½ years later in Idaho, may face charges of cheating farmers of millions of dollars on grain deals, but to some folks back home he's just a "fine guy" whose downfall was generosity.

On Wednesday, the hefty Iowa Park grain dealer will appear for pre-trial arguments before U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon in Wichita Falls. Included in the arguments will be a defense motion to move the trial because of extensive publicity.

Not everyone — including a man to whom Johnson owed "a pretty large sum" — attributes dark motives to Johnson's alleged wrongdoings.

An Iowa Park merchant who requested anonymity said Johnson "was just a fine guy trying to get things together where he could more or less support his family. The whole family, his brothers and the whole deal.

"I'm not bitter toward him. Their whole family, as far as I'm concerned, are friends of mine. He didn't do it intentionally. Undoubtedly, he felt like the insurance settlement would probably pay his (creditors) off and he could get out of it that way," the merchant said.

Johnson's odyssey began on Jan. 3, 1977. Three Johnson employees and two go-go girls said the then-42-year-old millionaire — carrying $100,000 recently borrowed from a Corpus Christi bank — fell from his 27-foot pleasure boat, the Honey Beau, near Port Aransas.

Nueces County Constable Ben Cash and later the FBI had doubts about the incident, and a death certificate was never issued. Two and a half years later, on July 14, Johnson was stopped for a traffic violation in Rexburg, Idaho, and the chase ended.

During the time when it was unsure whether Johnson was alive, inquiries into his financial dealings turned up numerous irregularities.

The first was the discovery of a shortage of more than $1 million worth of grain at the Robert Johnson Grain and Molasses Co. of Iowa Park.

Additionally, authorities learned that:

—He had switched beneficiaries on some of his life insurance policies.

—The U.S. Department of Agriculture had revoked Johnson's permit to store grain.

In September 1977 in Abilene, Johnson was indicted on 26 counts of transporting stolen grain in interstate commerce and falsifying records before the Commodity Credit Corp.

Two life insurance companies — American General Life and Occidental Life Insurance Co. — filed civil suits against Johnson beneficiaries who had claimed they were owed more than $4 million in benefits.

Constable Cash, for a time involved in his own imbroglio with Nueces County commissioners over whether to continue pursuing Johnson, recalls his thoughts when Johnson was arrested.

"I was relieved," he said. "In the beginning there, we were kind of by ourself down here in believing the old boy didn't drown. Now that it's proven out that we were right, you got a certain amount of satisfaction in knowing that all your work wasn't wasted and in vain."

Cash is still involved in the Johnson case, attempting to gather evidence against suspected co-conspirators.

Johnson himself may have been Cash's greatest source of inspiration to continue the search despite pressures to give it up.

"I tell you the one thing that kept me fired up and going at this thing is that from one of the people involved that told me that Johnson made the statement that 'They got nothing but a bunch of dumb cops down there in Port Aransas and they won't know the difference,'" Cash said.

Shrimpers Protest Custom Violations

SEADRIFT (AP) — Local fishermen, angry over violations of the unwritten customs governing coastal waters, claim the crabbing and shrimping industries cannot stand any more pressure from Vietnamese refugees.

About 50 local independent fishermen from this tiny, seacoast village gathered Monday night to voice their complaints against the refugees who, they say, have disobeyed "exclusive" fishing rights.

"Nothing was really resolved," remarked F.J. Cunningham, state president of the Texas Bay Fishermen's Association. "Everyone just got to say their piece and let off some steam."

Tensions between local fishermen and Vietnamese refugees has been rapidly building since one crabber was shot to death last week. Two Vietnamese men have been charged in connection with the murder.

"I think it (the meeting) made them feel a lot better. They just got up and said exactly what they thought — right or wrong," Mayor Rayburn Haynie said after the two-hour gripe session. "It got people talking to each other rather than just looking at each other."

The mayor also noted that most of the 50 persons attending the meeting seemed disgusted that the federal government did not have a training program for refugees.

"I think most of them blame the government for the present situation. They feel the U.S. can't support everyone," Haynie added.

One member of the Vietnamese community also addressed the meeting, trying to explain their situation and the problems associated with moving to a new country.

However, most seemed to think the refugees should be relocated.

The situation has nothing to do with race, Haynie added. "It'd be the same if they were from New York City."

Robert Alexander, a community relations expert, was scheduled to present a plan for a joint committee to community residents. However, Alexander was detained because he could not schedule a flight into the South Texas area until Wednesday.

"We have talked about forming some kind of small community group with people from both sides to try to work out our problems on a day-to-day basis instead of waiting for months and letting things get blown out of kilter," Haynie said.

The committee is one of several ideas the city council has discussed since the arrival of Alexander, a Justice Department official based in Dallas, Haynie said.

Six Counties Included In DPS Speed Project

AUSTIN (AP) — Special efforts will be made in six Texas counties to improve compliance with the 55 mile-per-hour speed limits, the Department of Public Safety said Monday.

The counties included in "Project Accident Reduction" are Bexar, Williamson, Bell, Smith, Wise and Ector. The project continues through Dec. 31.

Officials said a special task force of highway patrol troopers will augment regularly assigned personnel during periods of high accident frequency. The task force will come from troopers working on their days off or overtime beyond a regular shift.

All troopers will be in marked patrol units.

Payment for overtime costs will be provided from a $509,000 grant obtained through the Texas Office of Traffic Safety.

The DPS said the counties were selected on the basis of statistics showing high accident rates, high traffic volumes and above average speeds.

Similar programs on a lesser scale are already in operation in Hopkins, Franklin, Denton, Tarrant and Hidalgo counties, and in the 21 counties of the Corpus Christi district.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am 64 years old. I have always been a fairly attractive woman, and have had my opportunities to marry, but I never did because I was embarrassed over having such a small bosom.

I am going with a man who wants to marry me and I want to know if I'm too old to have an operation to enlarge my bust. Have you ever heard of a woman having this kind of surgery in her 60s? (P.S. If I decide to go ahead with it, could my husband tell the difference between me and the real thing?)

CONSIDERING IT

DEAR CONSIDERING: My medical consultants inform me that when women in their 60s have that kind of surgery, most of them regret having waited so long.

If you decide to go ahead with it, consult a Board Certified plastic surgeon.

(P.S. Your husband may or may not be able to tell the difference between you and the real thing. It depends on how much experience he's had with the real things.)

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Please print this. It's an open letter to my brother:

Dear Brother:

Tomorrow will be 10 years since I took Mama into my home. You were all for sending her to a state institution, but I couldn't do that.

You tell me I'm getting paid pretty good because I get Mama's Social Security check every month. Do you really think $232.90 is "good pay" for taking care of a total invalid 24 hours a day? And when her check runs out, I use mine ($192), and before the 3rd of the month rolls around, it's all gone. mine and Mama's.

My good husband struggles to keep our bills paid with his Social Security check. It isn't easy.

You say you can't afford to help, but I notice you manage to keep yourself in beer, cigarettes and Valium, and drive a new car. You also take vacation trips. I don't. And your home is paid for. Mine isn't.

If you don't want to give me cash because you're afraid I might spend it on myself, why don't you donate some disposable diapers since Mama is incontinent. Or buy me some detergent now and then? I use a lot because I change Mama's bed linen twice a day.

I would really appreciate it if you and your lovely wife would stay with Mama for just one night; change her diaper, bathe her and turn her every few hours so I could get one full night's sleep.

You never bother to visit Mama because her mind is gone and you say she wouldn't know that you were here. She couldn't see you because she's blind, and she couldn't hear you because she's deaf. It's true. Mama doesn't know you anymore. But you know Mama.

When Mama dies, you will cry hardest at her funeral. And you will probably criticize me for not crying. By then I'll be all cried out and I won't have anything to cry about. But you will. Think about it.

Several Dangers Threaten Peregrine Falcon Survival

By JOE WING

ITHACA, N.Y. (WNS) — It begins to look as if the peregrine falcon is going to hack it once more on the Eastern seaboard, despite DDT, bureaucrats and great owls.

"I'm optimistic now," says Prof. Tom Cade of Cornell, who has sparked the major effort to reestablish this noble bird in the wild.

Once the darling hunting hawk of aristocrats and kings, it was wiped out east of the Rockies by the now outlawed pesticide DDT, and endangered in the world. DDT causes the birds to raise thin-shelled eggs that do not hatch.

Since 1973, Tom Cade's Peregrine Fund, financed this year by $350,000 in government and private appropriations, has released about 320 of the birds. A hundred are being given their freedom this year from the "hawk barn" at Cornell and a facility at Fort Collins, Colo.

What sends Dr. Cade's hopes soaring is the news that six of the released falcons formed pairs this spring, that one pair laid eggs (stolen, however, by a crow or other predator), and that one unmated female laid infertile eggs on a 33rd story ledge of the U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty building in Boston, of all places.

The broody female and the three pairs were provided with fledglings from the hawk barn and have been raising them normally.

"It was a little discouraging earlier this year, before we knew about the pairs being formed," says Dr. Cade, but now it seems just a matter of time before we gain success.

He is not so optimistic about Colorado where DDT seems more persistent.

There are 18 peregrine subspecies around the world. When the one in eastern America became extinct, Cade and others dreamed up the plan to replace it with artificially-bred birds from other areas. The various subspecies are so similar that even an expert cannot differentiate them in the field.

Breeding them is not all that simple. About 40 of the birds from British Columbia (where they ae relatively common), Alaska, Spain, Scotland and other areas are penned in the hawk barn. Some of the females are reluctant and must be impregnated artificially.

Releasing them poses its own problems. If fed by hand, the fledglings become so attached to their attendants that they can never make it in the wild. So Dr. Cade has drawn on the expertise of falconers to "hack" them. That is they're placed on platforms at a dozen suitable sites from Virginia to New Hampshire, including Washington, D.C., and fed anonymously through a pipe.

In time they teach themselves to fly and to hunt. Without parents to guard them however, they are vulnerable to adult birds of prey like the great horned owl, which takes its toll regularly.

At one stage in the game moreover, federal functionaries threw the program a curve by objecting that government funds cannot be used to subsidize a bird like the British Canadian subspecies, which is not endangered, and that "foreign" birds cannot be released in the United States. These hassles, says Dr. Cade, have been smoothed out.

Still other efforts to save the peregrine are being made. The Canadian Wildlife Service has been releasing artifically bred birds in Alberta. And in California, where the peregrine population nearly faded out ten years ago, there are now 23 know nesting pairs. A team headed by Brian Walton of San Jose State University incubates eggs laid by captive and wild falcons, inseminates non-mating birds and nurtures injured ones. Their goal is a stable population of 50.

The crow-sized peregrine has been prized for centuries by falconers. Hunting its prey in open country, it half closes its long wings, stoops on its prey from on high at speeds of 160 miles and hour or more, and strikes it dead in the air with clenched talons.

Inefficient Cooking Methods Frustrate Purpose Of Economy Buying,

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Recipes alone cannot hold the line on your food budget today — if they ever could.

It is not just what you cook but also how you cook that helps determine the real cost of food.

It makes little sense, for example, to heat a full-size conventional oven to cook one pot of baked beans or any other inexpensive casserole if the fuel energy you use costs more than the money you save on ingredients. That can happen, as the cost of cooking fuels continues to rise rapidly.

Thoughtless or careless shopping and storage habits also add up. Before driving long distances from store to store to buy specials, do you try to determine if the price of the gasoline will outweigh the savings on the food?

Other mistakes include an overstuffed refrigerator and a freezer so large it is only half to three-quarters full most of the time. In the first instance, cold air cannot circulate properly, and food quality deteriorates faster and spoilage occurs. In the second, you are paying dearly to freeze air. It might be more economical in the long run to replace the large model freezer with a size better suited to your household.

Even the type of kitchen range you use, and your utensils and small appliances can affect your food budget. Electricity is more expensive than gas because it costs more to produce and transmit to customers.

But small appliances such as countertop toaster-ovens, toaster-broiler ovens and electric skillets can be real bargains for small household. Even though they use electricity and take about the same time to cook a given food as a full-size conventional oven, the amount of fuel use is less in most cases because the space to be heated is smaller.

Microwave ovens can also save time and fuel for some things. But the savings dwindle when the ovens are filled to capacity — sometimes to within a few minutes of the time needed on a range-top burner or in a conventional oven.

Convection ovens are another option, some in ranges and others as portable countertop appliances. They cook an estimated 25-30 percent faster than conventional gas and electric ovens because a fan in the oven cavity keeps hot air circulating constantly. While this does save fuel, the August issue of Consumer Reports found the results less than satisfactors with some foods.

In an article evaluating electric and gas ranges, the magazine researchers reported the three convection ovens they tested proved "a bit faster than other designs — maybe half an hour from the four hours needed for a roast.

"On the other hand, convection cooking may force a lot of changes in your cooking habits."

Among the changes: lower temperature settings than normal recipes call for, placement of food in the oven (positioned too high, "foods may be spoiled by the concentrated blast of hot air from ducts at the top of the oven."

The researchers were not happy with results with sensitive dishes such as baked alaska but found a convection oven did a good job with a trayful of hamburgers and lamb chops. The ovens used were all part of ranges.

The magazine is currently testing tabletop convection ovens for a similar report.

Another bad habit many of us tend to forget is food waste. A lot of what we throw out thoughtlessly could be used instead to save money and also make meals taste better.

For instance, ends of loaves or bread crusts can be used to make melba toast, croutons, dried bread crumbs or coating mixes — either in a gas oven with only the heat of the pilot light or in an unheated oven. The latter takes a little longer but works just as well.

Shopping habits are an important factor; so is unit pricing. If your community lacks a unit pricing law, a pocket calculator can pay for itself in the money you save by quickly determining which of two or more products represents the better value.

To determine the cost per pound or per quart, simply divide a product's price by the number of ounces, then multiply by either 16 or 32, whichever is pertinent. You may sometimes find that two smaller containers are a better buy than one large one.

Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ◇.

On this seemingly colorless hand North and South displayed not only a fine understanding of the principles of bidding, but more importantly, a delicate partnership touch.

East's opening bid and the two passes that followed were normal actions. Note North's decision to make a takeout double rather than bid one no trump—in the passout seat a balancing bid of one no trump shows a hand of about 11-15 points. South routinely showed his best suit, and North's rebid described a hand that was equivalent to a one no trump opening bid.

Many players would now have passed, and South's decision to bid on merits special commendation. Also noteworthy is his decision to introduce his poor heart suit rather than rebid his reasonable five-card spade suit. In the light of the auction, South realized he had a relatively good hand and that a four-card major, however weak, might be of interest to partner.

North paused to take stock of the situation. It was almost certain that South held five spades and four hearts. While he had a minimum no trump in terms of point count, he did have good fillers and excellent fit in both of his partner's suits. Since a 4-4 holding is usually more effective than a 5-3 trump fit, North raised to three hearts. South boldly accepted the invitation on the strength of his singleton club and fine intermediates.

West led the top of his partner's suit against South's four-heart contract, and dummy's ten lost to East's king. Declarer won the club return and ran the ten of hearts to East's queen. East continued with the king of clubs, ruffed in the closed hand. A heart fetched the jack from West, and dummy's king went to East's ace.

Declarer was now in control. No matter what East returned, declarer would be able to win and, if necessary, get to dummy to draw the last trump. Declarer's spades would then take the rest of the tricks. Two trumps and a diamond were declarer's only losers.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Governors Expected To Discuss Spill

CIUDAD VICTORIA, Mexico (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements and Gov. Enrique Cardenas Gonzalez of the adjoining Mexican state of Tamaulipas meet today to discuss mutual problems.

The two governors also were expected to discuss the Mexican oil spill that has affected the beaches and waters of both states.

Officially, the agenda called for talks on undocumented workers who cross the Rio Grande to work in the United States, border drug traffic, oil and gas production, industrial development and exchange of agricultural products.

There was considerable ceremony on the schedule also, however.

Clements, accompanied by Mrs. Clements, was to place a wreath on the monument honoring the first governor of Tamaulipas, General Jose Bernardo Guiterrez de Lara. The Clements will be officially received by Mayor Jorge Bladimir Joch, and tour a government housing project.

The two governors will speak to a session of the Tamaulipas congress, before their talks in the governor's palace.

Clements' flight to Ciudad Victoria was another in a series of meetings and contacts he began with officials from both sides of the border shortly after being inaugurated last January.

Last June, Clements sponsored a meeting in Brownsville for the governors of U.S. border states and their staffs.

All Clements' talks, including one with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, have centered around control of illegal aliens, drug traffic and the possibility of recently discovered Mexican oil being exported to the United States.

Texas' agriculturally rich Lower Rio Grande Valley is matched in many ways on the Mexican side of the border by vast vegetable and citrus acreage.

On Thursday, Clements makes a similar trip to Monterrey to visit with Gov. Martinez Dominguez of the state of Nuevo Leon.

He will talk with the governor of Coahuila on Aug. 27 and the governor of Chihuahua on Aug. 29.

Clements To Limit Employee Rolls

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements has urged leaders of the Texas Public Employees Union to join his effort to make government smaller yet more efficient through stronger measures than attrition.

Clements, keynote speaker for the annual meeting of delegates to the TPEA convention, Monday conceded attrition alone would not meet his goal of a 5 percent per year reduction in the number of state employees during the next two years.

He listed reducing employment as the first step in his state government effectiveness program, but said the program also includes performance planning and review, management by objective, improved zero base budgeting for state agencies, management training programs and management reviews to determine how agencies are performing.

Clements also reiterated his stand that the TPEA, and not a labor union, is the best avenue for state workers to resolve their grievances against the state.

"I think the TPEA provides a good avenue of input for state employees, as it has for the past 30-plus years, and I want all of you to know that I am 100 percent opposed to unionizing our state employees in Texas," Clements told the cheering group.

"I believe that the vast majority of state employees are not in favor of unionizing and never were, and what's more, the people of Texas are not in favor of state employee unions and never will be."

Comptroller Bob Bullock had suggested in a speech to the Texas AFL-CIO convention three weeks ago that state employees organize into unions for collective bargaining purposes.

Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby, in a speech to the opening session of the TPEA convention Sunday, had said he is strongly opposed to unionization of state workers.

Reduction of the number of state employees was a key issue in Clements' campaign for governor in 1978, and he had indicated earlier the goal of reducing the state employee work force by 25,000 during his first term could be achieved through attrition.

Murder Rate Burdens Houston Police

HOUSTON (AP) — Police Chief Harry Caldwell is transferring six detectives to the Homicide Division and taking other steps to strengthen its investigation unit after one of Houston's bloodiest weekends ever.

The overworked division recorded 17 murders over the weekend, not counting two women found early Friday with their throats slashed. The number of killings reached 383, or 44 percent above the total this time last year.

The police chief said he will request 10 more detective positions, with most of those in the Homicide Division, and will transfer five Spanish-speaking patrol officers to the division to act as interpreters.

The transfer of six detectives will be temporary. Now 66 detectives are assigned to work homicides, two of whom speak Spanish.

Caldwell said he is not ready to ask for outside aid as has Atlanta, where state troopers are assisting police.

"The Police Department cannot control the murder rate and I doubt if the entire Fifth Cavalry could have an impact on the homicide rate," Caldwell said Monday.

Caldwell has said repeatedly a major portion of the murder rate increase can be blamed on Houston's rapid population growth.

On Monday, he said many of the murders are committed by acquaintances or relatives of the victims.

Officers Cleared In Shooting

HOUSTON (AP) — Three Houston police officers were cleared Monday of any wrongdoing in the deaths of two men.

A Harris County grand jury cleared two officers in the March 8 shooting death of a man who shot at them when they answered a disturbance call to his home.

Officers R.J. Fisher and J.L. McGee were cleared in the death of Bennie Bonner, 57, of Houston.

Bonner opened fire on the two officers when they responded to a call. A friend had tried to persuade Bonner, who had been acting erratically, to go to a hospital.

Bonner responded with a shotgun, Moseley said, and shot at the officers. Bonner was shot four times and died at the scene.

The third officer was cleared in the death of a man who fell in jail while scuffling there after his arrest.

Dallas Woman Slain At Home

FARMERS BRANCH (AP) — The nude body of Cheryl Susan Ballinger, 26, a stewardess for Braniff Airlines, was found Monday night in a bedroom of her family's home, police said.

Detectives said her body had numerous stab wounds.

The victim's father, Neil Ballinger, a mechanic for Braniff, made the grim discovery about two hours after he returned home for work. When he walked into the house and called for his daughter but got no response he said he assumed she was out jogging in this Dallas suburb.

He told police he mowed the grass and about 8:30 p.m. decided to search the house, whereupon he found her body on the floor of her back bedroom.

Police Sgt. Virgil Ellzey said the home had not been ransacked and no murder weapon was found. He said Miss Ballinger lived in the one-story, three-bedroom home with her parents.

Police Catch Burglar Carrying TV, Luggage

Police arrested a 19-year-old Lubbock man shortly after midnight Monday in connection with the burglary of University Hair Styling at 807 University Avenue.

Reports show the man was stopped by patrol officers when he was observed carrying a portable television set and a black suitcase near the intersection of Fourth Street and University Avenue.

When police asked for identification, the man said he had none and allowed officers to search the suitcase, according to reports.

When police discovered a receipt from the University Hair Styling shop in the man's suitcase, they checked and learned the shop had been burglarized earlier in the night.

Police investigating the burglary told arresting officers blood had been found near a window of the shop where entry was gained. The man was arrested after police observed blood on his clothing and a hair dryer and hair care supplies in the suitcase.

In other criminal activity, police arrested a 23-year-old Houston woman about 5:30 p.m. Monday and booked her on charges of prostitution after she allegedly propositioned an undercover officer in a Lubbock motel.

Reports indicate officers asked a motel porter if he had any women and were told to rent a room and wait.

The woman entered the room and, after some small talk, reportedly told the officer straight sex would cost him $60. Other police then entered the room and placed her under arrest.

A blind man thwarted an 11-year-old boy's attempt to rob him during an incident about 1:50 p.m. Monday at the snack bar in the main post office, 1515 Ave. G.

Billy Ray Pullin, 56, snack bar owner, told police that he heard the juvenile take the entry chain down to go behind the counter and pull the cash drawer. A bystander saw the boy attempting to take the cash and yelled at Pullin, who grabbed the suspect.

Pullin held the boy until police arrived, reports show. The youngster was taken to the police juvenile division.

Bill L. Bates, owner of the Belaire Office Building, 3610 Ave. Q, reported that vandals wrote obscenities across the back wall of the two-story building, causing an estimated $3,000 worth of damage. The incident allegedly occurred sometime between 9 a.m. and 1:50 p.m. Monday.

Oscar Rositas told police that thieves took $1,203 worth of painting equipment at a house under construction at 2309 89th St. sometime between Saturday and Monday morning.

Jimmy Grady Ponder of 2103 30th St. complained that burglars removed $1,000 worth of property from his van sometime between 1 and 8 a.m. Monday. The stolen goods included tires and assorted tools.

Lloyd Mikesell, a salesman at Don Crow Chevrolet, reported that someone took a Texas state flag, valued at $65, from a flag pole at the car lot sometime between 6 p.m. Friday and noon Saturday.

DOE Cites Oil Refiners For Price Violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Energy Department has cited the nation's leading refiners for $4.8 billion in alleged overcharges in a continuig three-year probe of the oil industry, officials said today.

Bob Boldt, chief of field operations for the agency's office of general counsel, said Exxon, the nation's largest oil company, leads the list of suspected violators with more than $1 billion in citations.

Exxon is followed by Texaco and Gulf, each with about $1 billion in citations for a variety of overcharges between the 1973 Arab oil embargo and 1976, he said.

Boldt said most of the citations allege that the refiners wrongly classified oil they sold under the three-tiered oil price control system adopted in 1973.

Under the system, which preceded phased decontrol, refiners were permitted to charge higher prices for oil from new fields than from older ones.

Boldt said the Energy Department will try in each case to identify customers who were allegedly victimized by the overcharges so that they can be repaid.

The U.S. Treasury would be the beneficiary of recovered overcharges whenever the victims cannot be found.

But Boldt said it may take 15 years of litigation to make the penalties stick in some of the larger cases.

"You can imagine, with the amount of dollars involved, the companies aren't exactly rolling over and getting out their checkbooks," he said.

Boldt said the office of special counsel, which has a staff of 492 lawyers and auditors, was organized after a 1977 report criticized the former Federal Energy Administration for failing to keep tabs on violations of oil control policies.

The Energy Department has also begun investigating to determine whether pricing violations have taken place during the current oil shortage, but the results of the probe are still being evaluated, he said.

By November, Boldt said audits would be completed on the top 15 oil companies in the current investigation, covering the period from 1973 to 1976. A second phase of the probe, slated for completion in September 1980, will cover the next 20 largest companies, he said.

Companion Of Victim Describes Shooting

By NANCY DORN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The female companion of Robert Rios Rivera broke into tears on the witness stand this morning after testifying that assailants who accosted her and Rivera on a country road east of Lubbock in April 1978 shot Rivera "right away."

The woman's story came during the first day of testimony in the murder trial of Charles Walter Hill in 137th District Court.

Judge Robert C. Wright recessed the trial at 10:30 a.m. after the 23-year-old woman broke into tears as prosecutors questioned her about Rivera's murder on April 1, 1978.

The woman, nervously biting her lips throughout testimony, said Rivera picked her up at her east Lubbock home at 10 p.m. that night and the two traveled to a liquor store southeast of town to buy beer. After driving around town and out to the Lubbock airport, she said that they drove to a farm road just east of Loop 289 and East 19th Street and parked.

Rivera was getting back into the car, she said, when voices yelled "You Mexicans, get out of the car."

When Rivera yelled back, the assailants shot him, the woman testified.

The first witness called by the prosecution was Amarillo pathologist Dr. Jose A. Diaz-Esquivel. The pathologist said Rivera was killed by two bullets that entered his body around his mouth. He said powder burns indicated the bullets were fired from a short range.

"In general, I would say (the bullets entered) from two to four feet," Diaz-Esquivel said. The pathologist testified that one bullet was recovered from the left side of the heart, where it was deflected after hitting a bone in the back of Rivera's head.

The jury was seated shortly before 10 a.m. The trial was delayed by a "civil matter that approached emergency proportions," Wright explained.

Gary Lynn Vester, Hill's half-brother was convicted of Rivera's murder in April and sentenced to a 50-year prison term.

Authorities Awaiting Autopsy

LORENZO (Special) — Crosby County sheriff's deputies this morning were awaiting an autopsy report in their investigation into the death of a 39-year-old Lubbock woman who allegedly was shot while she and a man were firing at targets south of here.

Janice Reedy, 39, of 1802 Sixth St., Apt. 17, was dead at 12:34 p.m. Monday on arrival at Health Sciences Center Hospital in Lubbock. She had suffered a single gunshot wound to the left shoulder, reports indicate.

Lubbock Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy is withholding a ruling pending completion of an autopsy, which was being performed this morning at St. Mary's Hospital.

The woman's 55-year-old male companion drove her to the hospital, according to reports.

Lubbock County Deputy Don Gass said the man, also of Lubbock, told him he and the woman were firing a .38-caliber pistol at rocks and cans in the area. He told the deputy the woman was holding the pistol braced against her left arm and that the gun fired when she turned toward him.

Gass said he turned over the investigation to Crosby County sheriff's deputies about 4:30 p.m. Monday when it was learned the incident actually took place outside Lubbock County. At that time, the man took Gass to the scene.

The incident reportedly occurred about noon Monday about a quarter of a mile north of Farm Road 40 on Farm Road 378 south of Lorenzo. The area is about 22 miles east of Lubbock.

Miss Reedy had lived in Lubbock about a week, moving here from Los Angeles.

Showers Return To South Plains

A-J News Services

Moisture-packed clouds from the Gulf of Mexico flowed over Texas Monday night, and scattered rain totaled more than a half-inch in parts of the South Plains.

Weathermen predict a 20-percent chance of rain today and a 30-percent chance tonight and Wednesday as the rain clouds linger.

Clovis, N. M., had .19, Trinidad, Colo., 1.82 and Marfa 1.50.

Lubbock temperatures were expected to be in the high 80s today and Wednesday and in the high 60s tonight, weathermen said.

Southerly winds of 10 to 15 mph were predicted today and tonight.

The southerly flow of moisture covered the Big Bend region of Southwestern Texas and reached northward across West Texas to the Panhandle Monday night.

East Texas had widely scattered clouds at daybreak, and low clouds were coming in over San Antonio, weathermen reported.

Meanwhile, a very early preview of autumn greeted most of the northern third of the nation today and much-needed rains brought relief to parched and fire-plagued areas of the West.

The National Weather Service said a massive high-pressure system in Canada was responsible for generally clear skies and cool temperatures across the northern Plains, upper Midwest and Great Lakes region.

Temperatures were expected to dip into the 30s in parts on North Dakota and Montana overnight, prompting the NWS To post a frost warning. Readings in the 40s and 50s were common from the Pacific Northwest to New England.

Showers and thundershowers were scattered from West Texas through the Rockies and into the Pacific Northwest. Rains also spread over upstate New York and Pennsylvania.

Forest firefighters in several Western states — principally Idaho — welcomed a liberal dose of rainfall Monday that helped them gain control over a number of blazes. More than a half-inch of rain was recorded in Boise, Idaho.

Reviewer Rebukes Breast Cancer Book

AUSTIN (AP) — Ninth-grade girls should learn about self-examination for breast cancer but a mixed health science class is not the place to teach it, says textbook reviewer Norma Gabler.

"I think the information is fantastic and I wish it was given a long time ago," Mrs. Gabler said Monday at the annual State Textbook Committee hearing.

"But what are we going to do about the boys in the class, excuse them? And what if the teacher is a man?" the Longview critic asked. "I think it would be embarrassing but the boys might find it exciting."

A girls' physicial education class would be a better place to discuss the matter, she said.

Mrs. Gabler objected to suggested discussion subjects in "Health, A Way of Life" by Scott, Foresman and Co.

The 18-year veteran critic started off the four-day hearings on 44 textbooks worth $6.8 million that are proposed for use in Texas high schools beginning 1980-1981.

The 15-member textbook commtitee of teachers and school administrators will recommend which books should be adopted in September. The State Board of Education will make final selections in November.

High school books on health, American government, typing, computer math and auto repair are being critiqued this year. Texts for all elementary and secondary subjects are reviewed in a six-year cycle.

Mrs. Gabler and her husband, Mel, operate Educational Research Analysts, a consulting business, and spend almost all year preparing for the annual hearings.

"It's a way of life for us," Mrs. Gabler said of their work.

The conservative reviewers have gained national publicity with their effort to make publishers more responsive to what they call "the views of many parents." Mrs. Gabler says she will be featured on CBS' "Sixty Minutes" probably this fall.

This year, the Gablers said they frequently found books that failed to adequately explain free enterprise, fostered rebellion among students and invaded family privacy.

Sheila Haralson works for the Gablers' consulting firm and helped present book protests with her boss.

Mrs. Haralson, 24, estimated it takes up to two weeks and 100 work hours to read and crtique a single text.

Publishers must prepare equally detailed responses to reviewers' criticisms.

Sid Cooper, southwestern manager for Houghton Mifflin Co., said eight people worked for a week preparing answers to eight critiques. Company executives spent another week reviewing the responses.

Surrender Of Japan Anniversary Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-four years ago today, President Harry S. Truman announced to the nation that the Japanese had surrendered unconditionally and that World War II was over.

Nineteen days later, on Sept. 2, 1945 — V-J Day — the surrender ceremony took place on the deck of the battleship USS Missouri.

Border Patrol Questions Man About Slayings

Local Border Patrol and Mexican Consulate authorities today are questioning a 32-year-old Mexican citizen arrested Monday near Muleshoe and suspected of killing three men in Mexico.

Billy Rowe, head of the Lubbock Border Patrol unit, said his office received an anonymous letter, forwarded from the El Paso office, saying the suspect was in the Muleshoe area. The letter, written in Spanish, also mentions the three alleged slayings, the latest of which reportedly occurred in April, just before the suspect illegally entered the United States.

Rowe said he and Bailey County sheriff's deputy Bob Henderson Sunday talked with a farmer who had hired the suspect. The farmer said he remembered the man, notable because of his green eyes, but that the suspect had quit about three days earlier.

However, Rowe said, the farmer remembered Monday where the suspect possibly was working and contacted his new employer, another Bailey County farmer. The two farmers apprehended the suspect, Rowe said, placed him in a pickup and took him to the sheriff's office.

The suspect was transported to Lubbock Monday afternoon.

Officials with the Mexican Consulate have contacted Mexico City authorities and are waiting for further information on the alleged murders. Rowe said officials with the consulate here are expected to question the suspect this afternoon.

Escapee Receives 20-Year Term

James Loggins Jr., 26, was sentenced this morning to 20 years in prison and a $3,000 fine.

The 72nd District Court jury deliberated just over an hour before returning the sentence. The eight-man, four-woman panel Monday afternoon took just seven minutes to find Loggins guilty of escaping from Lubbock County Jail April 9.

Although the escape conviction carries only a 2-to 10-year prison sentence, first assistant criminal district attorney Jim Bob Darnell asked the jury to return a 20-year term and $10,000 fine punishment verdict under a section of the penal code's habitual criminal charge.

Loggins was convicted of theft in January by a Potter County jury.

Judge Denzil Bevers will consider a prosecution motion Aug. 31 to consolidate today's punishment with sentences of 40 and 75 years Loggins is serving concurrently for aggravated robbery and burglary convictions in Lubbock County.

Drug Treatment Grant Awarded

A $132,000 grant has been awarded the Lubbock Regional Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center for drug abuse treatment and rehabilitation in 10 area counties.

The Texas Department of Community Affairs announced that the $232,800 program will be funded in part with $100,104 in local, non-federal matching funds by the 1210 Texas Ave. MH-MR center.

Counties to be included are Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Garza, Hockley, King, Lubbock, Lynn, Terry and Yoakum counties.

Funding is also through the state agency and the National Institute on Drug Abuse, which is a branch of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Schools Offer Repair Class

The Lubbock Independent School District adult education program will sponsor an automobile body repairman and painter class at a date no later than Aug. 27.

Classroom training by the school district is open to those who are accepted by the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) Manpower intake office. Such trainees will be paid $2.90 per hour.

Trainees will receive 960 hours (six months) credit for the class which is scheduled Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

For more information contact the LISD adult education office, 765-9338 or the CETA Manpower intake office, 763-6493.

Rose Wilson Heads Freedom Fund

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) has installed Rose Wilson, chairman of the NAACP Freedom Fund here, as 1979-1980 president.

She was chosen by the NAACP Executive Committee to serve out the unexpired term of the Rev. Roy C. Jones, who resigned as president last spring.

Also having served as youth work chairman, she will serve as president until the next regular election in December 1980, the executive committee announced.

PHOTO SHOW

CHICAGO (AP) — The show "Inside Our Homes, Outside Our Windows: Photographs of Chicago Ethnic Communities" is on view at the Museum of Contemporary Art through Sept. 30. The museum says the 118 black and white photographs in the exhibition were taken by Jonas Dovydenas in 1977.

Delight Your Pals With Penny Picnic

By SHARI LEWIS

Sometime before the summer is over have a "penny picnic." Here's how:

Tell all your friends to pack a picnic package (a good lunch in a paper bag) and meet you at the neighborhood park, at the beach, or in your backyard. Ask 'em each to bring a handful of pennies, too (say, 10).

On a big blanket, have your pals pile their picnic packages. In a 9 ounce paper cup, have them to plop their pennies.

Then, leaving two kids behind, take everyone on a hike so that they can work up an appetite.

While they are gone, the two kids scatter the pennies in the grass and under the bushes.

When the hikers return, tell them each to pick a picnic lunch bag — but not the one they brought.

After the surprise lunches are eaten, have a Penny Hunt. Everyone has to search for the pennies (except the two kids who hid 'em).

Each kid can keep what he/she finds during this treasure hunt, and you might even have a prize for the one who finds the most.

Now, a penny's not a genuine treasure anymore, but each time a penny is discovered, I promise that you'll hear a whoop of delight.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: When is it right and proper to lose your temper?

ANSWER: When it's a bad one.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Cut out these three pieces. How quickly can you fit them together so that they form a square? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Hormone Eases Pain, Anxiety

SEATTLE (UPI) — Some women may feel relaxed and near-euphoric during childbirth because their body is producing a "happiness hormone," says a Seattle researcher.

Dr. J.C. Houck, a biochemist and director of the Virginia Mason Research Center, said the hormone is beta endorphin, which was discovered in 1976.

Houck said he and other investigators have discovered the hormone is present in human placenta and in the pancreas.

Other than during childbirth, the bodies of both men and women may produce beta endorphin to relieve pain and anxiety, he said. Other researchers have reported that the hormone may be useful in eliminating the withdrawal symptoms of heroin addicts.

Animals Earn Keep By Doing Commercials

BOSTON (AP) — Fats, Lover Boy and Paula the Penguin may have their quirks, but freeloading isn't one of them. They all earn their keep at the New England Aquarium by starring in commercials or making personal appearances.

Fats, a 4-year-old beaver, is the latest resident at the non-profit institution to pay room and board. She earned it in two days of photo sessions for Nigberg Corp., a Framingham, Mass., advertising agency.

Nigberg hired Fats to appear with a video display terminal being marketed under the trade name "The Beaver" by the Perkin-Elmer Corp., of Randolph, N.J.

In exchange for Fats' services, Nigberg will "adopt" the beaver for a year, paying some $650 for the care and feeding of the animal.

Fats joins a small animal work force at the aquarium which includes Paul and Lover Boy, two of the aquarium's 19 penguins whose careers have taken them as far as New York.

Paula has appeared in a candy commercial for Peter Paul; Lover Boy was once a special guest at a formal dinner held by New York's Museum of Natural History.

"We sometimes accept offers because it is very expensive to feed these animals," said Carla Skinder, an animal technologist who accompanies the aquarium residents on their occasional forays into the wilds of Madison Avenue.

"Any time you can make money to help your animal along without hurting it is a plus," she said. "Some animals really enjoy the situation."

According to Miss Skinder, the South African jackass penguins — named for their braying call — are real professionals, taking the commuter flight from Boston to New York in their stride.

"Lover Boy likes to fly," she said. "He was a big hit on the plane and was even invited into the cockpit.

"He was the guest of honor at a formal dinner at the Natural History Museum and, of course, he was already properly dressed. I was his date and had to wear a formal gown."

Lover Boy once appeared at a United Way fundraiser in Boston, clad in a T-shirt which proclaimed: "I give at the office." He received a $25 fee for that job.

Miss Skinder says the work has kept the penguins in herring and smelt for over a year.

But the aquarium remains picky about prospective clients and the animals' amateur status also cuts into work.

The aquarium recently turned down requests by a rock band which wanted a penguin for a New York appearance and a wealthy hostess who wanted Lover Boy for one of her parties.

"Most ad agencies are looking for professionally trained animals and would prefer to avoid going to zoos or aquariums," said a spokeswoman for Animal Talent Scouts, a New York firm.

"And, besides, we only get calls for penguins about once a year."

Firm Developing 'Adventure Capsule'

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — There's a roller coaster in the basement at Doron Precision Systems here. And a submarine, an aircraft carrier and a cropdusting plane, too.

They are different versions of the Doron "adventure capsule" — an electronic sight-and-sound chamber that lets "riders" soar through space or plumb the depths without ever moving.

Doron, the leading manufacturer of driver training simulators, is pioneering development of the thrill simulators for use in amusement parks. The 12-seat device uses widescreen movies, sound effects and sophisticated electronics to play games with the mind.

"All we're doing is fooling with the inner ear," said Richard Ward, vice president for operations of the company.

Inside the darkened capsule known as SR-2, "riders" have no sense of horizon. So as the SR-2 begins to pitch from side to side or back to front, the mind takes off.

The first of the $85,000 devices has been installed on the Queen Mary, docked at Long Beach harbor in California. There, beginning in September, tourists will take simulated submarine rides.

Riders, Doron officials say, will get to go places and do things never before possible in amusement parks. Plans call for trips in cropdusters, aircraft carrier landings, hangliding and, perhaps, a tour through outer space.

The chief advantage for operators, Doron says, is that the SR-2 is a safe, cheap thrill. A new roller coaster can cost $1 million or more; another major expense for the parks is liability insurance for the occasional death or injury on a ride — an unlikely event in the simulated world of the SR-2.

For Doron, the plunge into electronic thrills is an extension of its more serious line of business: driver training simulators that allow classroom-bound students to get the feeling of driving by piloting a car down a moviescreen street.

"This is a natural offshoot," according to Carl Wenzinger Jr., company president. The company's 125 employees have developed skills in electronics, engineering and filmmaking — skills now transferred to the new product.

Doron has its own film editing and sound facilities at its Binghamton plant, but outside film crews are often hired for the actual shooting.

Donald Duck 45 Years Old

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Donald Duck, the star of 128 Walt Disney cartoons, has turned 45 years old.

His first screen appearance was June 9, 1934, as a bit player in "The Wise Little Hen" but, according to the man who knows him best, Donald's real personality didn't develop until his second film, "Orphan's Benefit."

The man is Clarence Nash, Donald's voice in every film.

Nash, 74 and retired for nine years, said Donald's voice had been inspired by a pet goat he had raised as a boy in Independence, Mo., that made "a strange noise when it was hungry."

DR. LAMB

Cracked Skin

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need something for hands that just crack open like you had cut them with a knife. What causes that? I also have high blood pressure.

And I've coughed every winter since I had whooping cough when I was 8 years old. I am now 68.

DEAR READER — In many instances it's absolutely necessary to see a skin problem before you can really tell what it is. That's why you should see your doctor.

You may just have very dry skin. In such instances using a skin moisturizer will solve the problem. No moisturizer is really any better than plain Vaseline. The thick salve can be rubbed over your hands and wiped off clean and still leave a thin film that will trap the skin's natural moisture.

There are a number of infections of the skin that can cause similar problems and there are untold opportunities for chemical irritation these days.

Regarding your cough, it is a symptom. I am sending you The Health Letter No. 8-10, Cough: How and When To Treat It, to give you more information about this symptom. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Anyone who develops a cough that persists any length of time really should see a physician. Those of short duration could be from a common cold but a persistent cough can even be a sign of lung cancer. I'm confident that's not true in your case. If you've had lung cancer for 60 years, you couldn't be writing to me now.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We recently moved from a state with soft water to where the water is very hard. Is it harmful to our bodies — kidneys, bladder and so forth — if we drink this hard water? If it is harmful to drink, is it also harmful to wash our dishes with it because of the residue?

DEAR READER — By hard water, most people mean water that contains lime; it's the lime deposits that you see on utensils and bowls that contain standing water.

The lime doesn't have any real medical significance. It's interesting to note that there are a number of research studies that suggest individuals who drink hard water are less likely to have heart and circulatory problems than those who drink soft water. This issue is debated and some theories have been offered as to why soft water, at least in our modern plumbing, isn't necessarily the best choice.

I must say, though, that if you have distilled water — which is about as soft as it can get — and if no other chemicals enter that water in any way through the plumbing or other sources, there isn't much of a way that plain distilled water could be harmful to your body. That doesn't answer the possibility, though, that certain minerals might be protective to your body. In any case, it's most unlikely that water will be detrimental to your health in any way just because it is hard.

Candidates Blast Brutality Suit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two of the city's mayoral candidates have joined out-going Mayor Frank Rizzo in criticizing an unprecedented federal police-brutality suit — but each has a different reason.

The Justice Department filed suit Monday alleging that Rizzo and 19 other top city officials condoned widespread police brutality which was "arbitrary, unreasonable or shocking to the conscience," especially in contacts with blacks and Hispanics.

The lawsuit could result in severe cuts in federal aid to the city.

Rizzo, who leaves office in January, told a news conference Monday that the suit was politically motivated — attempting to appeal to minority voters who once supported President Carter.

Rizzo, a policeman for 28 years and police commissioner for four years before becoming mayor, described the Carter administration as "a group of people which are desperate and trying to regroup."

Republican mayoral candidate David W. Marston, a former U.S. Attorney, said the suit lumped "the vast majority of law-abiding police officers ... with those who are guilty, and I believe that is wrong."

And William J. Green, the Democratic candidate for mayor, said he would have preferred that the action would have been delayed to give the next mayor a chance to institute changes in the department.

After two terms, Rizzo is not eligible for another term.

There are 8,085 officers and 890 civilians employed by the nation's fourth-largest city. The government suit said an average of 1,100 brutality complaints are filed against the department each year.

Assistant Attorney General Drew S. Days III told a news conference in Washington that within 45 days, the city could lose federal money it receives through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Department officials said that in the last 10 years, Philadelphia had received $10.2 million from the LEAA, $42.7 million in revenue sharing funds and $24.5 million in public works employment funds.

Days, head of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, said other federal police-brutality investigations are under way in Houston, Memphis, Tenn., and Mobile, Ala.

Others criticizing the suit included Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill, who was named as a defendant, and Pat Stark, national president of the Fraternal Order of Police.

But Hilda Silverman, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Philadelphia, supported the government, saying the suit "recognizes a recognition of the magnitude of the problem and extent to which that problem has been created and sustained by the people at the top."

Alphonso Deal, who retired in November after spending 25 years as a Philadelphia policeman, said the suit was a "long time coming."

"I am so happy that they (the Justice Department) realize the real culprits are the mayor and the police commissioner and others at the top," said Deal.

Pair Named In Drowning Deaths Of Refugees Off Florida Coast

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two men have been accused of murder in the deaths of six persons — five of them children — who were forced into deep water from a boat loaded with Haitian refugees being smuggled into the United States, authorities say.

"The captain had a shotgun and ordered everyone overboard," Marie Ange Toussaint, 27, one of 11 survivors, said Monday. "He took my purse which had $1,000 and pushed us over the side" about a quarter-mile from shore.

James K. Knowles, 18, of Tarpon Bay, the Bahamas, and Jeffrey Robert Hastings, 29, of Hypoluxo, Fla., were charged with six counts of first-degree murder each.

The men are being held in lieu of bond — $90,000 for Knowles and $60,000 for Hastings.

South Palm Beach police officer Kurt Halbin said he shined his car's spotlight on the boat at 5:39 a.m.

"I heard a lot of screaming," Halbin said. "I turned my spotlight on and it hit right on them and someone started kicking people off."

Halbin said the boat's crew threw the children overboard and fired shots in the air to force others to jump.

Police said they believed the six drowning victims were a mother and her five children. The woman was in her 30s and her three boys ranged in age from 6 to 11 and her two girls from 6 to 9, police said.

Halbin said he and officer David Ward heard the woman screaming.

"They were terrible screams. I guess she was looking for her children," Ward added.

Officers said the man identified as the boat's owner John W. Ferguson, 36, of Delray Beach, was released after questioning.

"We received the evidence and decided it was inappropriate to hold Mr. Ferguson on any charge at this point," said assistant state attorney Bill King.

Officers said survivors told them that the group, most in their teens and early 20s, wanted to find jobs in the United States.

Number Of Bank Holdups Paces Rate Of Inflation

By United Press International

There's a virtual epidemic of them in New York City. But even bank tellers in peaceful Portland, Ore., are getting more stickup artists at their windows these days. Bank robberies, like inflation, are on the rise.

The FBI predicts there will be a double-digit increase of 13 percent in bank holdups this year alone and lots of the finger-pointing is at the sad shape of the economy.

"It's definitely tied to the economic situation," said Gene Scrum, head of security for the Cleveland Trust Co., Ohio's largest bank. "As the economic situation worsens, bank robberies seem to increase."

In Raleigh, N.C., however, FBI agent Herbert Monahan Jr. scoffs at such theories: "Most people who rob banks don't work, they rob banks for employment."

The number of holdups is running well ahead of last year and the FBI expects more than 6,000 bank robberies will occur by Sept. 20, the end of the current fiscal year. That compares with 5,300 bank holdup in fiscal 1978.

In New York City, more than 450 robberies were reported through July alone, when a one-month record of 125 holdups was set. In fact, on one day early this month, 14 banks were held up. In all of 1978, there were only 358 bank robberies.

"Usually an increase like this will fit in with a recession or economic slowdown," said special agent Joseph MacFarlane of the FBI's New York office. "In 1975, we experienced the same thing."

FBI officials in Portland said bank robberies have increased dramatically in the past two years. There have been 69 holdups so far this year and 95 in 1978. In 1977, there were only 62 for the entire year.

The economy is not getting the sole blame, however.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stocks Fall In Active Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell in fairly active trading today giving up a portion of their gains in recent days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which rose nearly 17 points in the past two sessions, fell 3.67 to 871.59 by noon today.

Overall losing issues outnumbered gainers by a tiny fraction, in a tally of all trades on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts attributed today's decline mostly to profit-taking sales following gains in the last five out of six sessions.

Some also suggested that traders may be wary about rising interest rates as the Federal Reserve's policy-making committee holds its monthly meeting today. The committee's decisions are not announced but a tightening of credit, in an effort to slow inflation and support the dollar, has been widely forecast.

Trading volume remained active at 18.43 million shares by midday. That was down from heavy trading of 20.06 million in the previous session.

MGIC Investment, after a delayed opening, fell 4 to 32. The company said earlier that mergers talks with an unnamed financial service company had ended without agreement.

Among casino stocks, Bally fell 1 to 38¾ and Caesars World lost ⅜ to 24⅝. Del Webb rose ¼ to 16⅞ and Playboy gained ⅛ to 17⅛.

The NYSE composite index fell .18 to 61.00. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .17 203.37.

GM Branch Offers Help To Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — The finance subsidiary of General Motors Corp. will help its counterpart at Chrysler Corp. finance new car inventories for dealers, the GM subsidiary said today.

GM said the General Motors Acceptance Corp. would provide $230 million through the purchase from Chrysler Financial Corp. of receivables — amounts of money owed to a company.

Purchases will be made monthly through January, GM said.

It was the second sale of receivables by Chrysler Financial in less than a week.

Last Friday, Chrysler Financial agreed to sell $500 million in retail receivables to Household Finance Corp. in two parts, $300 million next Tuesday and $200 million in September.

Chrysler Financial's credit standing has been dragged down by the well-publicized financial difficulties of its manufacturing parent.

The two major rating services lowered their quality estimate of Chrysler Financial's short-term notes from a respectable AA to B, a rating that implies the notes carry an element of speculation. The lower rating means many lenders are barred by law from buying the notes.

Normally, Chrysler Financial would pay off maturing notes with the proceeds from new notes. But it now can sell few new notes.

On July 31, according to Ward's Automotive Reports, Chrysler and its dealers had 295,000 cars on hand, or a 108-day supply.

Inventory Hike Shown For June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business inventories swelled in June by 1.3 percent, the Commerce Department reported today, offering further evidence the nation may be in a recession.

June's sharp inventory rise, follows a 1.1 percent increase in May and a 1.4 percent upsurge in April. Since June 1978, inventories have increased 12.9 percent.

Economists watch inventories carefully to chart the direction and depth of a recession. When inventories accumulate too rapidly, businesses are compelled to cancel and delay orders.

Manufacturers, in turn, cut back production and often lay off workers.

The last recession in 1973-74 was made much worse, many economists argue, because inventories grew too rapidly.

"Even after the economy turned weak in 1973, inventories continued to accumulate through the third quarter of 1973," said Jeffrey Green, an economist for Wharton Econometrics Forecasting Associates of Philadelphia.

The Commerce Department report showed that manufacturing, retail and merchant wholesaler inventories increased from a seasonally adjusted $401.7 billion in May to $406.7 billion in June.

Civic Leader Reaches 89

As the oldest member of First National Bank's board of directors, he planned to celebrate the occasion by attending the board meeting this afternoon. An open house for friends will follow this evening at his 16th Street home.

Kuykendall's involvement in banking began in Muleshoe with his presidency of Blackwater Valley State Bank. In 1919 he and his wife, the former Mary Vesta Rogers, moved to Clovis, N.M., where Kuykendall became vice president of the First National Bank.

Since moving to Lubbock in 1924, Kuykendall has been active in business, community and church affairs.

He started Kuykendall Chevrolet Co. which he owned until 1955, in 1924. He then was associated with Kuykendall Investment Co. in Lubbock.

Over the years he has headed or helped organize the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Board of City Development, Lubbock Community Planning Council, American Red Cross, Methodist Hospital, YMCA, Water Resources Board and Milam Children's Home.

Kuykendall also has been a lay leader of First Church of Christ, and active in the state and national brotherhood. He has served on the board of trustees of Texas Christian University and Jarvis College.

Kuykendall and his wife live at 2201 16th St., a house they built in 1929. They have three children.

Students Encouraged To Visit Counselors

Lubbock Independent School District high school students who are interested in vocational programs are invited to visit the vocational counselors at their schools, officials said today.

The five vocational counselors for Monterey, Coronado, Lubbock, Estacado and Dunbar-Struggs are on duty and available for counseling.

Viets Accuse China Of Massing Troops

PEKING (UPI) — Vietnamese negotiators accused China today of massing 300,000 troops for another attack on Vietnam. Like the nine sessions before it, the latest round of peace talks ended in deadlock.

Both sides swapped old charges and the only positive note in the 11th round of peace talks since the 29-day war between Vietnam and China ended March 17 was that both sides agreed to meet again at an unspecified date.

The radio of the Khmer Rouge resistance, broadcasting from southern China, today charged that Vietnam has strengthened its military forces in Cambodia to help shore up the regime it installed after the ouster of Pol Pot.

The broadcast, monitored in Thailand, said two more Vietnamese divisions have moved into northeastern Cambodia since mid-July.

China responded to Vietnam's charge that it was planning another invasion by repeating its demand that the Vietnamese pull out of Cambodia and Laos.

Foreign diplomats said the talks are making no progress, but that neither side wants to take the onus for breaking off negotiations.

After the three-hour negotiating session ended, the chief Vietnamese negotiator, Vice Foreign Minister Ding Nho Liem, called a news conference to charge that China has 30 divisions poised for a renewal of the fighting.

He said 12 of the divisions are deployed along the China-Vietnam border,with another 18 divisions in backup areas. He said that each Chinese division is comprised of about 10,000 soldiers.

"The meeting this morning made no progress. The Chinese side promised to continue talks in Peking. We are awaiting arrangements with the Chinese side for the next meeting," Liem said.

China's ambassador to Vietnam, Yong Gongsu, told reporters the talks had made no headway, but added that "progress doesn't depend on the number of times the two sides meet."

Five sessions were held in Hanoi in April and May. The second round, of which Tuesday's session was the fifth, began late in June in Peking.

Liem accused the Chinese of stretching out the interval between each session. Today's meeting was held 15 days after the last session, which took place July 30.

The Chinese delegation chief, Vice Foreign Minister Han Nianlong, said in a speech at the talks that Vietnam's ambitions to dominate Indochina were the cause of Sino-Vietnamese tensions.

Normalization of relations between the two former allies must start from this fundamental question, Han said.

"It is our hope the Vietnamese side will act to put an end to its policies of opposition and hostility against China and the pursuance of regional hegemonism.

"First and foremost, it must withdraw its troops from Kampuchea (Cambodia) and Laos. It must cease to carry out armed provocation and intrusion into Chinese territory."

Liem retorted that China was trying to aggravate the border tension in an attmpt to exert pressure at the talks and create the pretext for a renewed war against Vietnam.

"Coupled with these dangerous armed provocations are the stepping-up of collusion with U.S. imperialism ... and repeatedly they are uttered by some Chinese leaders to launch another aggressive war against Vietnam."

Khomeini's Supporters, Leftists Battling In Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Leftist guerrillas and right-wing Moslem zealots today clashed for a third day in a widening split between factions that supported the February revolution engineered by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The fighting was between about 350 members of the People's Fedayeen guerrilla organization and a band of Moslems described as "anti-Fedayeen," the official Pars news agency said. The Fedayeen had gathered in downtown Tehran and marched past Tehran University to protest the takeover Monday of their headquarters by club-wielding government-backed revolutionary guards.

Pars said revolutionary troops fired their guns into the air to disperse the combatants, who met in front of the Fedayeen headquarters. There was no report of injuries.

The split in the Iranian revolutionary forces between leftist opponents of Khomeini's conservative sectarianism and militant supporters of the Shiite Moslem patriarch appeared to be widening.

More than 300 guerrillas of another leftist group, the Mojahedeen, began a sitdown under armed protection in front of their headquarters to prevent attacks by groups of Moslem zealots marching by.

Other groups of Moslem extremists armed with knives and clubs were reported circulating through the city harassing pedestrians. One man said he saw a group attack a bearded young man carrying books who they said "looked like a communist."

The nine-story Mojahedeen headquarters in central Tehran was heavily guarded by armed men behind sandbags on the roof and at the entrance. Two truckloads of armed revolutionary guardsmen were stationed nearby as a precaution.

The religious extremists, in several groups of about 50 each, made repeated marches past the building shouting "Communism is destroyed! Islam is victorious!"

The Mojahedeens said they would continue their sitdown until the government could guarantee their headquarters would not be attacked.

"We will sit here until we save this building," said one young man. "If they want to kill us, let them."

Although the Mojahedeen is a Moslem group, it is Marxist-oriented and seeks to establish a workers' state and a classless society in Iran. Its goals are anathema to Khomeini and the conservative clerics who have dominated the Iranian revolution so far.

Meanwhile, press reports said three more persons were executed by Islamic revolutionary firing squads, bringing the total number of reported executions to 402 since the February revolution. Those reported killed included a former policeman in the central town of Shahrkurd and two men charged with committing adultery with a married woman.

Monday's attacks by zealots were in retaliation for a weekend march by an estimated 100,000 leftists to protest Khomeini's crackdown on the press. Late Monday, an estimated 100,000 supporters of the ayatollah massed at Tehran University to demonstrated solidarity with his policies.

The leftists are angry about the closing of the Tehran newspaper Ayandegan last week and about the new press code barring criticism of Khomeini and his associates. The government also published a tough new code for foreign journalists on Monday.

In Paris, former Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar predicted in an interview with Agence France-Presse predicted Khomeini's regime will last no more than six months, and "I will deliver the coup de grace."

"The Khomeini business will be settled in five or six months," he said. "The Khomeini regime will fall very fast, not because of its opposition, but because of the unfathomable stupidity of its leaders whose policies are leading to an explosion."

Council Shifts Budget Funds

who would maintain the appearance of as yet undeveloped parkland.

The additional park funds would put the city one year ahead of schedule in improving the appearance of parks, after several years of neglect when all efforts were directed toward development of the Canyon Lakes.

"By next summer we ought to see a marked improvement toward getting the parks back in shape," Councilman Alan Henry said in advocating the additional funding.

He noted parks filled with good grass are "less expensive to maintain," because they must be mowed less frequently and said the improved park maintenance "is certain to help the entire city."

Council members also are being asked to allocate federal revenue sharing funds to replace the sprinkler systems in some older parks.

West noted in the past five years the amount of park acreage in the city has doubled, while the Parks Department budget has remained about the same.

The parks have an added importance in West Texas, West said, because the only topography is which is man-made.

There was less agreement among council members on what to do about brush pickup and unmowed weeds.

Councilman Bill McAlister pushed for a pickup service on a call-in basis, but other council members said such a service would have to pay its own way.

City Manager Larry Cunningham said such a pickup service would be "very expensive" and inefficient," since pickup crews might have to travel the same alleys many times and since calls would come from all over town.

However, Cunningham is investigating the experience of other cities with such a pickup program and told council members they could add the program at a later date if it is self-sustaining or supported through an increase in the garbage charge.

However, Mayor Dirk West said he would oppose any increase in the garbage charge, but would support charging those people using the brush pickup service.

To reinstate a limited form of brush pickup, cut out of the budget last year to make way for a tax cut, would cost about $319,000, Cunningham estimated.

Council members also did not see eye-to-eye on how to combat the problem of property owners not keeping weeds cut on their property.

McAlister wants to, if possible, eliminate some of the notices which must be sent to property owners before the city has the weeds cut, then assesses the owner the mowing cost.

However, there are questions about the legality of such a proposal.

If possible, Cunningham said the reduction in notices could free up about $10,000 which could be devoted to mowing the weeds.

Councilman Bud Aderton said he favored a concentrated attack on weeds in the downtown area by hiring one person to cut weeds on curbs, streets and sidewalks.

However, other council members said all areas of the city should be treated equally.

Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan said she found the weed discussion hard to believe.

"We've got things which deal with life or death that we can't afford," she said, "and we knock ourselves out talking about cutting weeds for people.

"The people of this community have enough common sense to go out and cut their weeds. I just can't believe this."

Mrs. Jordan angrily opposed any program of cutting weeds for citizens who are "too lazy and don't give a damn," and suggested getting weeds cut was more a project for the Chamber of Commerce than for the city.

Three members of the council prevailed in shifting funds from the hotel-motel tax from debt service to allow a Civic Center "promoter" to be hired.

When the council approved an agreement with the Chamber of Commerce to have the chamber operate the Convention and Tourism Bureau, it did so with the understanding the city would employ someone to promote the Civic Center and other city meeting facilities.

However, West and Aderton opposed adding such a person to the Civic Center staff, with West advocating the city withdraw its $59,000 contribution to the operation of the tourism bureau and force the chamber to pay for the entire operation.

Aderton said he wanted to see how the program works in its first year before deciding a Civic Center promoter is needed.

However, Mrs. Jordan, McAlister and Henry prevailed, saying a staff person is needed to promote the Civic Center for use by local groups.

The $1.12 per $100 valuation which will finance the budget is within "Truth in Taxation" guidelines, tax assessor-collector John Brooks told the council.

Council members will hold a public hearing on the budget at 10:30 a.m. on Sept. 13.

PAWS Aids Animals

lyst" for all local animal organizations. Mrs. Hickman says she would like to see an advisory board of representatives from the organizations develop animal welfare material to be used in Lubbock schools.

Teaching children respect for animals also teaches them "a reverence for life," Mrs. Hickman commented.

Like most animal welfare spokesmen, Mrs. Hickman faults owner irresponsibility for the problems of pets.

"People are not really aware of the responsibility of owning a pet when they buy that cute little pup or kitten at the pet shop. Having a pet is just like having a child," she commented.

Animal Shelter Director Tom Trombley says he expects the Lubbock-based PAWS program to "work really well. We just don't have the time to keep track of lost pets and their owners."

He added pet owners should make sure their animals are tagged and not allowed to run loose.

PAWS is a non-profit organization chartered by the state. Anyone wishing to become a member or volunteer should contact PAWS at P.O. Box 3965 or call the Animal Shelter.

Fort Worth Judge Tells Jury Of Posing As Slaying Victim

FORT WORTH (AP) — A soft-spoken Texas judge told a jury today how he posed as a dead man in an FBI scenario that led to the arrest of millionaire Cullen Davis.

Judge Joe Eidson said he slipped into a ketchup-soaked T-shirt singed with cigarette burns and curled up in the trunk of a car. He identified the soiled shirt and three "bullet holes" and said the FBI photograph of the incident accurately portrayed the grisly scene.

The state introduced the shirt and the photograph into evidence as testimony in Davis' murder-for-hire trial moved into its second day.

Prosecutrs contend it was a snapshot of the "slain" judge that convinced Davis last summer to hand over $25,000 to friend-turned-informant David McCrory.

Minutes later, a small army of officers seized Davis and charged him with soliciting the murder of the domestic relations judge.

Eidson, 61, then the judge presiding over the Davis divorce case, was the leadoff witness Monday when the state opened its case against the stoic Fort Worth industrialist.

Davis, 45, testified previously that he was never shown the snapshot of Eidson and that the $25,000 was money he had been holding for McCrory for "safekeeping."

The jury in the original trial could not reach a verdict and a mistrial was declared.

Davis says he was framed by his ex-wife, Priscilla, 38, from whom he was divorced last spring after Eidson had removed himself from the case.

Eidson told the jury he appeared once as a state witness against Davis and that the defendant's attorneys in February 1978 sought his removal from the divorce case.

"I did not step aside," he said.

Prosecutor Jack Strickland said in his opening statement it was after Eidson's refusal to relinquish jurisdiction that Davis allegedly decided to "take matters into his own hands."

Strickland said Davis was convinced Eidson was "leaning" toward Priscilla and her attorneys in his divorce rulings and "had to be removed from the case at any cost."

The evidence will show, Strickland said, that Davis commanded or induced McCrory to find a hit man to kill Eidson and others.

With a recorder hidden beneath his clothing, McCrory met with Davis twice last August and discussed the murders of Eidson and other purported enemies.

The FBI viodeotaped the second meeting, and it is that film and the recordings that form the heart of the state's case.

On the first tape, Davis instructs McCrory to "do the judge and then his wife and that would be it."

AFTER THE DELUGE — This was the scene in Morvi in western India after a dam burst and sent a wall of water through the streets late Saturday. Rescuers Wading Through Mud In Grim Search For Survivors

A-J News Services

NEW DELHI, India — Vultures descended today on the northwest Indian town of Morvi, devastated by raging floods from a burst dam, and rescuers waded through deep mud in search of survivors.

"No one in Gujarat recalls seeing so many dead in such a short time," one social worker said.

Officials said the numbr of people killed by the disaster was ebout 1,000, but Indian reporters and some survivors said they believed more than 5,000 died in the flood that swept into the industrial city of 60,000 after the torrential rains breached the Monchi dam Saturday.

The Hindustan Times said its estimate of 25,000 victims was based on the populations of Morvi and the nearby villages of Lilapur and Adepar, all hard hit when the dam broke.

The United News of India said the toll could go as high as 10,000, and state officials said at least 1,000 drowned in and near Morvi.

The worst previous dam disaster on record occurred in 1962 at Belluno, Italy, where 2,300 died.

"Morvi is dead," said Sanat Jhaveri, a goldsmith from Rajkot, a nearby city. Jhaveri's ancestral home was in Morvi, 300 miles north of Bombay.

"When I reached Morvi, or what is left of it, to pick up my aunt, I could not locate my own home," Jhaveri said. "In its place I found a huge blob of mud and tiles with a couple of sticks of bamboo sticking out."

"Wherever I went, I saw badly bloated bodies lying scattered in the streets."

"Vultures were everywhere — vultures on tree tops and vultures hovered over the collapsed homes. The smell of dead bodies — it was a nauseating scene."

Jhaveri said he had to walk and wade through miles of mud before reaching the town.

Health authorities said they feared an outbreak of epidemics if decomposing bodies were not buried quickly. Large numbers of bodies were believed to have been swept downstream by the flood, reporters at the scene said.

"We are planning to innoculate 1,000 refugees per hour," one health official said.

Haribhai Bhoora, a Morvi insurance underwriter and a survivor, told reporters he and his brother had managed to smash a hole in the roof of their home Saturday to save six members of their family.

"We could not save four others who remained trapped inside another room," Bhoora said. "We had to leave fast with the people we had managed to save before gushing waters closed over our home."

Army troops were dispatched to join in the search and rescue work, but road washouts delayed them. "Even aerial surveys and food-dropping operations are badly hampered," one social worker said.

United News said a helicopter crew dropped food packages to survivors clinging to trees near Maliya village.

Travelers from nearby areas said they saw hundreds of displaced refugees moving along the highway outside Morvi.

Prime Minister Charan Singh sent Agriculture Minister Brahm Perkash to the scene of the disaster. Textile workers in Ahmedabad, the capital and industrial center of Gujarat, said they would work the Independence Day holiday Wednesday and donate their earnings to the state's flood relief fund.

Chagra Defense Ends Testimony

AUSTIN (AP) — The defense rested its case today in the "Colombian Connection" drug smuggling trial of Jimmy Chagra after an attempt to show Chagra is a Las Vegas gambler — not a dope dealer.

Chagra's lawyers introduced tax returns for 1973 through 1978 to prove their contentions. Chagra said on each of those returns he showed his occupation as "gambling" or "professional gambler."

But on cross-examination, Chagra acknowledged that his return for 1977 — the year of the alleged Colombian marijuana and cocaine smuggling ventures — he attached a statement declining to give his occupation and invoking the constitutional right against self-incrimination.

Chagra explained under further questioning that nothing had changed with regard to his occupation in 1977, but that he had changed tax lawyers. He said the new lawyer advised him not to list his occupation as "gambler" because he was living at that time in Florida, a state that prohibits gambling.

In Monday's testimony, Chagra testified that Henry Wallace, the government's star witness, offered to change his testimony for a fee of $300,000.

Chagra also said Wallace told him "the government had asked him (Wallace) to call Colombia and get a Colombian national to say I (Chagra) had hired them to get Judge Wood."

U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was to have presided over Chagra's trial but was assassinated May 29 by an unknown rifleman outside his San Antonio apartment.

Chagra has steadfastly denied any connection with the Wood slaying.

Wallace testified Aug. 3 that Chagra instigated and managed a successful attempt to smuggle 13.2 pounds of cocaine from Colombia to Florida on Nov. 1, 1977. He said Chagra also was behind an unsuccessful effort to ship 30,000 pounds of marijuana from Colombia on a coastal freighter, the Dona Petra. The U.S. Coast Guard seized that ship as well as two others — the Miss Connie and the Eco Pesca IV — that Wallace said Chagra was unloading on a "freelance basis."

Wallace said he went to Colombia for Chagra, obtained the cocaine from Chagra's connections there and was Chagra's "partner" in the venture.

"I've never imported any drugs from anywhere. I've always been a gambler. I make a good living gambling and I've never had to import drugs to make a living," Chagra testified.

He said he ran into Wallace, two women and Richard Young of San Francisco, another witness against him, at the Marriott Hotel bar here on Aug. 6 — the Monday after Wallace testified.

Chagra said Wallace admitted lying because "the government was going to put him away for life."

"He said he would get on the stand and change his testimony if I would give him $300,000. I told him I was not going to be blackmailed and I didn't think the jury would believe him anyway," he said of the conversation with Wallace.

Chagra said Wallace claimed that for $300,000 he also could change the testimony of Young and Paul Taylor of Denver, who testified under grants of immunity.

Clouds Hamper Firefighters

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Heavy rains that dampened the raging Mortar Creek fire ended today, but clouds forced the continued grounding of all aircraft, hampering efforts of more than 2,200 firefighters to control the last major Western fire still burning out of control.

The rain ended early this morning after dropping more than three quarters of an inch.

Norm Hesseldahl said the rain helped cool the 64,800-acre Mortar Creek fire along the middle fork of the Salmon River, 84 miles northeast of Boise.

"The fire really cooled the fire, but it didn't put it out," Hesseldahl said. "It also left all our troops soaking wet and cold."

Fire bosses have projected the fire will be contained by Sunday. That means fire lines will be built on all sides. However, the rains delayed construction of the final 20 miles of fire line.

The rain and low clouds also grounded all helicopters and airplanes, causing a pullback of some firefighters from advanced areas that cannot be supplied by pack mules or trucks.

About 340 firefighters were on their way back to Boise today for rest. Some were being reassigned home or to their base camps, but Hesseldahl said they were being replaced with fresh crews.

About 100 men fighting the fire were stranded on a mountain all night Sunday without food when the low clouds socked in the area.

Hesseldahl said a six-mule pack train took food to the men Monday. No injuries were reported, but some firefighters had not eaten since Saturday night.

Despite the grounding of aircraft, Hesseldahl said some firefighters were being trucked as close as possible and crews were hiking into the fire area.

The U.S. Weather Service said about 0.68 inch of rain fell on the Mortar Creek fire by Monday evening. Other monitor stations nearby reported from 0.86 inch to 1 inch of rain.

Of the 13 fires burning out of control Sunday in the Western states, all were contained or under control today, except for the Mortar Creek fire.

Hesseldahl said the 10,400-acre Ship Island Fire in the Salmon National Forest, 32 miles west of Salmon, is "temporarily contained by the weather." He explained that some fire lines need to be built around the fire and some unburned trees within the fire lines need to be burned.

Linus Wright To Get Honor

Linus Wright, former assistant superintendent for business affairs for Lubbock public schools, will receive an honorary doctor of law degreee from Abilene Christian University, Friday.

Wright, who is now general superintendent of the Dallas school district, will receive the degree from ACU president John C. Stevens during the summer commencement exercises in Cullen Auditorium on campus.

Wright has been superintendent for the Dallas district since last August after serving seven years as superintendent for administration and support services with the Houston school district.

The 52-year-old native of Savoy began his teaching and administrative career in 1949 as a coach and eighth grade teacher in Denison. He later worked in the Denison system as principal and then worked in the Sherman and San Angelo systems. He served in Lubbock from 1963 to 1971.

He is a member of and has served as an officer in numerous professional organizations, including the American Association of School Administrators, National Association of School Business Officials and the Texas Association of School Curriculum Development.

Evening High School Sets Registration

Adults interested in participating in the first quarter of Lubbock Evening High School may register during the remainder of this month for classes that begin Aug. 29.

The program, sponsored by the Lubbock Independent School District, is open to persons who are at least 17 years of age and have been out of school for at least one semester.

Registration is being conducted at the adult education office, 2013 13th St. from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Each class meets two nights a week for 90 minutes each night at Lubbock High School, 2004 19th St. Tuition for each quarter unit course is $15. The first quarter will last from Aug. 29 to Nov. 20.

— English, government and American history on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:25 p.m. to 7:55 p.m.

— Advanced English, world history and sociology on Mondays and Wednesdays from 8:05 p.m. to 9:35 p.m.

— Algebra, geometry, physical science, general business and clerical practice on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:25 p.m. to 7:55 p.m.

— Typing, biology, fundamentals of mathematics and reading improvement on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8:05 p.m. to 9:35 p.m.

Students who already have high school credits may apply them toward adult education requirements. Those students must furnish the adult education office with their high school transcript so that it may be evaluated and a graduation plan can be developed.

Textbooks will be free of charge. However, deposits of $5 to $8 for each book will be required. The deposit will be refunded when the book is returned.

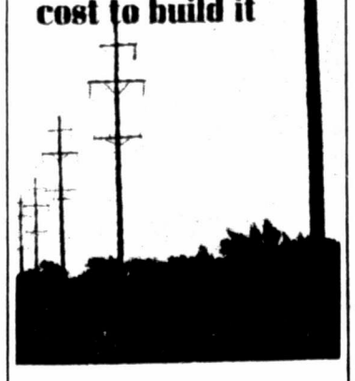
It costs more to maintain a mile of line today than it cost to build it



Inflation is a persistent problem with every business but especially the electric business because you must generate and deliver the power. The folks who generate our power have seen construction costs quadrupled and fuel costs skyrocket in the past 10 years. Our own lines cost about as much to maintain today as it cost to build them originally. But, in spite of these higher costs, the price of power from the electric cooperative will never be a penny higher than it has to be. That promise is a 40-year tradition.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Some information that you will find quite helpful may be passed on to you tomorrow in a social encounter with a friend. Do more listening than talking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An important goal can be achieved tomorrow if you take things a step at a time. Be sure of your footing before making each move.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Knowledge gained from a past experience can be put to good use tomorrow when you'll be confronted by a similar situation. Benefit from what you've learned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Because you're not likely to be deceived by outward appearances tomorrow you will handle yourself admirably in sticky situations. Follow your instincts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you usually prefer functioning independently, you will find that you'll fare better tomorrow with partners rather than doing things solo.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be reasonable about the size of the reward you expect for your efforts tomorrow. What you do will be acknowledged in small ways.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be a social asset tomorrow because you'll know how to put others at ease and get them to talk about themselves. They'll love you for it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your thoughtfulness toward loved ones will be deeply appreciated tomorrow. The little things you'll do for them will show you really care, and that you have their best interests at heart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're very good tomorrow at working with things requiring a creative or imaginative twist. Put your originality to productive uses.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be satisfied with small gains tomorrow instead of looking for the big hit. Pennies, back-to-back will add up to dollars.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It won't be difficult getting others to rally to your banner tomorrow. Your leadership qualities are evident. You'll set the proper example.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tomorrow will be a good day to gently remind one who owes you something that it is long past due. His response should be favorable at this time.

Your Birthday

August 15, 1979

This coming year will be a fun one for you because of the many new friends you'll be making. One in particular will help you get involved in fresh interests.

How to get along with other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your new Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

Woman Anti-Porn Group Tours Peep Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Behind the liquor bottles lining the dimly lit bar, two bare-breasted young women danced slowly, touching the mirrored wall, twisting to the pulsating disco beat.

At small tables, a dozen well-dressed women huddled over drinks and stared — but not with the leering interest the dancers may have been used to.

The twice-weekly tour of peep shows, "adult" bookstores and other sex emporiums is run by a group called Women Against Pornography and is intended to raise consciousness as to the effect of pornography on society's view of women.

"The essence of pornography is about the degradation and brutalization of women ... in the name of entertainment, in the name of free speech, in the name of profits."

The group, founded several months ago by feminists Gloria Steinem, Lynn Campbell, Dolores Alexander and author Susan Brownmiller, wants to establish pornography as a national feminist issue.

The activities of the group, which plans a two-day pornography conference here next month and a 20,000-person march on Times Square in October, are applauded but not officially endorsed by the National Organization for Women.

Women Against Pornography believes "women have to be encouraged to look at this stuff and have the support of other women," Miss Mehrhof sayss.

So, armed with maps, quarters for peep show movies and a wealth of curiosity, bands of women of all ages and backgrounds gather at the group's Times Square storefront and proceed toward the blinking signs offering "Girls! Girls! Girls!" and "Topless and Bottomless."

"No women allowed without escorts," he said.

"It's illegal to keep us out," shouted the women, who eventually were permitted to go inside after they produced identification proving they were over 21.

At Peepland, a similar establishment, some of the women giggled and hesitated before crowding together into booths to glimpse films entitled "Leather Porno," and "The Perverted Professors." Some of the films featured children, animals and gang rape.

But, she added, "you have to have the freedom to read and see these things. It would be an infringement of the First Amendment to close these places."

Its members say they oppose censorship, but as Miss Mehrhof said, "We're also protected by the First Amendment and we have the right of free speech. The First Amendment was never intended to protect obscenity. We are dedicated to eliminating pornography — getting it away from our eyes."

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that material cannot be judged obscene unless it meets three criteria: that it depict patently offensive, hardcore sexual conduct; lack literary, artistic, political or scientific value and go beyond contemporary community standards.

Brock Joins Select Group

Brushback Pitch Spurs 3,000th Hit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — At a time when Lou Brock's attention had begun to fade, a fastball from Dennis Lamp under the chin served to awaken the aging superstar.

The message Lamp delivered to the 40-year-old St. Louis Cardinals outfielder spurred him to his 3,000th career hit in the fourth inning against the Chicago Cubs Monday night.

One curveball later, Brock blasted a rocket off the fingertips of the tall righthander and scurried to first

A rising crescendo of the familiar chant "Lou, Lou, Lou" filled the air as Brock opened the Cards' fourth by looking at a called strike and falling behind 0-2 by foul-tipping a second pitch.

Cautiously, Lamp wasted a pitch to the outside of the plate before selecting his next delivery. Brock accepted the knockdown, arose slowly and connected squarely with a drive which caused Lamp to leave the game with severe bruises.

"I had to go after him," Lamp said following a contest which Brock left at the start of the fifth, following a series of standing ovations and a 16-minute ceremony at first base.

"I think he'd rather have me go after him tough than have me lay one in there," Lamp said. "It was a curve ball. Maybe not where I wanted it, but a good pitch. His 3,000th? I'm not ashamed to have given it up."

Brock's historic hit established him as the second St. Louis player and only the 14th in major league history to reach the lofty milestone. And, by fate, it came against the club that traded him away in 1964.

"I waited 19 years for this. It couldn't have come at a much better time, inasmuch as it was against the team that I started with," he said.

"I think the only thing that really distracted me was the fastball under the chin. It sort of jolted me back to reality. It was close. After that, it made me realize that I wasn't concentrating as I'd have to."

Brock's 3,000th climaxed an uphill climb to a target of 100 for a season he announced early would be his swan song.

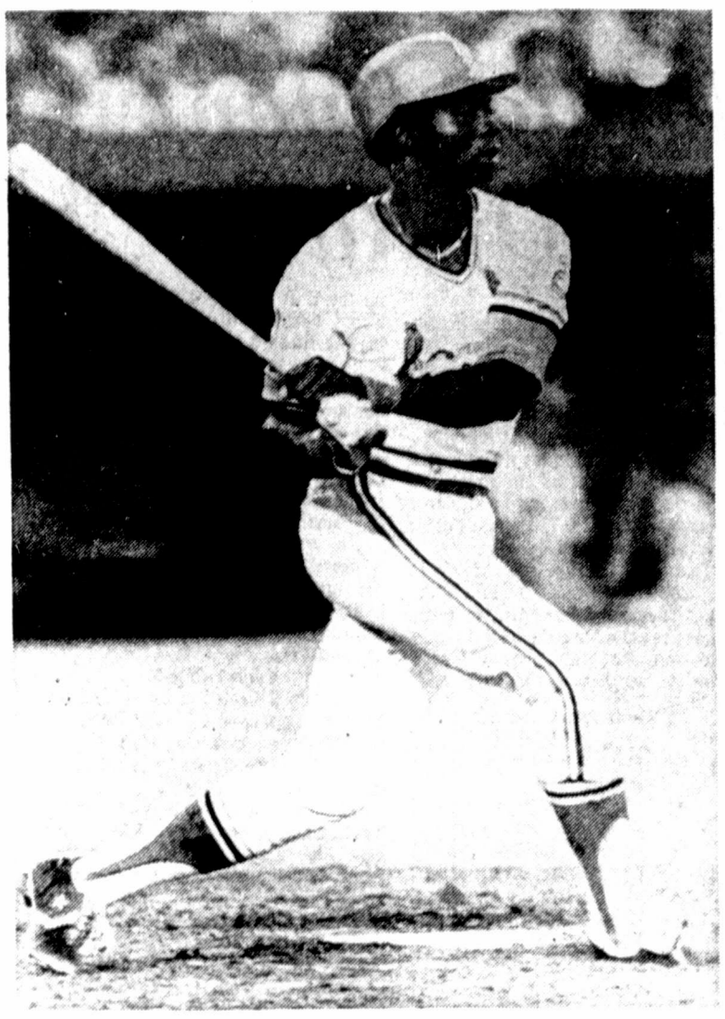
"Any time you can orchestrate your own exodus, I think you owe it to yourself," the athlete said. "Thankfully, that's the way it's happened."

Brock said Al Kaline, who reached the 3,000 plateau in 1974, planted the seed of ambition which would later bear fruition.

"He said, 'You've got a chance,'" Brock recalled. "He was right. The last couple of years have been tough. I always wanted to go out in a blaze of glory. Right now, it looks like I'm going to take advantage of the opportunity."

Pete Rose was the most recent addition to the 3,000 club, joining the ranks last year. Before that, there were Kaline and the late Roberto Clemente, who reached it in 1972 in his final game.

Stan Musial, the only other St. Louis member of the exclusive club, was on hand to congratulate Brock. "I was looking for him last year," quipped Brock, who had only 66 hits in 1978, "and I couldn't find him.



HISTORIC SWING — Lou Brock swings — and makes history. The St. Louis veteran unloaded his 3,000th major league hit in the fourth inning of Monday night's game. Brock thus became the 14th player to reach the 3,000-hit plateau. (AP Laserphoto)

Gridder's Arrest Shocks Frog Official

BROWNWOOD (UPI) — TCU starting tight end Joe Brad Bowen today was charged with aggravated kidnapping in the abduction of a football coach's daughter.

Bowen, a 6-foot-1, 220-pound senior, was being held in the Brown County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bond.

"We're in shock," said TCU athletic director Frank Windegger. This is a senior that's never caused us a minute's problem."

Windegger said no decision has been made on whether to suspend Bowen.

Bridgette Fowlkes, 19, daughter of Ronnie Fowlkes, formerly coach at Lorenzo and Tahoka and now assistant coach at Brownwood Junior High School, told police she was working at an all-night grocery when an athletic young man carrying a pistol entered about 3:30 a.m. Monday and dragged her to his car.

Miss Fowlkes said her abductor "never said a word" during 30 minutes of driving. She said she escaped when she pretended to be sick and needed to vomit. When he stopped the car, Miss Fawlkes said she ran away.

Bowen, twice an all-district tight end at Brownwood, knew Miss Fowlkes but they were not close friends, said Gordon Wood, Bowen's high school coach.

Waters Sidelined For Two Months

MUENSTER (AP) — Dallas Cowboys' All-Pro safety Charlie Waters will be sidelined for at least two, and probably three months, doctors said following an operation on the star defensive back.

"Everything was going so good for him," free safety Cliff Harris said. "You try to reason that there's a reason for everything, but you wonder. I mean, hell, he didn't even get hit."

Waters suffered a torn anterior cruciate — a knee ligament — but did not have damage to the cartilage as had been feared, said team physician Dr. Marvin Knight following a two-hour operation here Monday.

Waters, considered the most serious on a growing list of players lost because of injuries, was hurt in a noncontact misstep during the NFC champions' 27-17 exhibition loss Sunday night to Seattle. He had to be carried off the field on a stretcher.

"He went to change direction, planted his foot, started to turn and it gave out," said team spokesman Greg Aiello.

Randy Hughes was tagged to play in Waters' strong safety position. However, Aiello said, no decision had been made on Waters' roster status.

Under the new National Football League rules, a team may place up to three players on the injured reserve list and bring them back up to one month later.

Waters, 29, who played quarterback at Clemson, led the NFC champions in unassisted tackles last year with 76 and tied Harris in interceptions with four.

He made The Associated Press' second team All-NFL team last year and was voted first team All-NFL by the Pro Football Writers Association.

"It's so ironic, really. He did everything he could possibly do to prepare for this season," Harris said. "He was at his peak performance-wise. He was such a crucial part of this team, not just of the secondary or the defense."

The Cowboys have been plagued with injuries throughout the preseason.

No. 2 quarterback Danny White is nursing a broken thumb, running back Tony Dorsett has a broken toe, back-up running back Scott Laidlaw has a pulled hamstring, cornerback Benny Barnes has foot trouble, cornerback Aaron Kyle has a sore knee, tackle Rayfield Wright has an injured calf, and wide receiver Drew Pearson has sporadic hamstring problems.

OC Coaches Picket For Better Salaries

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — About 175 Oklahoma City coaches and teachers manned picket lines Monday at nine high schools to reinforce their demands for higher pay and threaten the start of football season.

The coaches insisted they would do only their teaching chores and would not take the field unless the School Board comes through with more money, although football practice is scheduled to start today.

Superintendent Thomas Payzant has warned that replacements may be sought and coaching pay may be docked if the teachers stand firm in their refusal to coach. In addition to their regular pay as teachers, coaches, through their union, have asked for $2,600 for head coaches, $2,100 for assistants and $1,950 for "C" squad coaches.

The School Board has offered $2,000, $1,150 and $850, respectively. Last year, head coaches were paid $1,200, assistants $700 and "C" coaches $500.

The coaches and teachers said they would be back every morning until their demands are met.

"I think it's an excellent turnout for the first day," said Mike Barlow, president of the American Federation of Teachers. "Everybody understands it's their issue."

The protesting coaches said last week the shift in school starting time means that they have to do all their coaching work after regular school hours.

"The one thing I don't think anybody has mentioned is that this is for the kids too," said John Sanders, head coach at John Marshall High.

Sanders said a low budget forces his athletes to compete in inadequate gear against better-equipped opponents.

There were reports Monday that players from at least two high schools would be on the practice fields today despite the absence of coaches.

Players from Northeast High School were reportedly told by head coach Eddie Davis that senior football players would be prepared today to direct practice drills and exercises.

A Northeast school administrator said such practices on school property would be against school policy.

A teacher-coach from Douglass High School, however, said players at that school would not be using its facilities to practice. Nor are Douglass coaches encouraging players to practice on their own, he added.

Pirates Not Confident Phillies Out Of Race

By The Associated Press

Kent Tekulve, the Pittsburgh Pirates' relief ace, can remember when the tables were turned, and he's not counting anyone out of the National League East Division race yet — least of all the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Pirates completed their four-game series at Philadelphia Monday night, winning 9-1 and taking three of the crucial games. The loss left the Phils, the defending division champions, eight games back. The Montreal Expos, who also lost Monday, are 2½ back.

"The situation was the same last year," said Tekulve, who pitched the last two innings of the series-ender. "Remember about this time last year, we played two big series with the Phillies, and they beat us good?

"They left us eight or nine games out, but we came back and took them to the next-to-last game of the season."

The Pirates and Phils each begin interdivisional play now. Pittsburgh moves back home for three games each with San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco, while Philadelphia goes on the road against Cincinnati for two games and Houston for three.

John Milner and Bill Madlock provided much of Pittsburgh's firepower. Milner smacked a three-run homer and drove in a fourth run with a sacrifice fly, and Madlock helped roll up the score in the ninth with a bases-loaded triple.

Jim Bibby, 9-2, won his sixth straight game for Pittsburgh and also drove in a run in the eighth with a double. Omar Moreno accounted for Pittsburgh's other run with a first-inning, leadoff homer.

"That club has too much pride to quit," Pirates catcher Ed Ott said of the Phils. "They have the talent to come back. We're not writing them off."

Houston, the West Division leader, meanwhile, was helping Pittsburgh open up the East with a 4-1 victory over the Expos behind the pitching prowess of big J.R. Richard.

Jeff Leonard scored three runs and drove in a fourth with two singles and a double for Houston, which now leads Cincinnati by 4½ games in the NL West.

Terry Puhl singled home one run and Art Howe's double scored another in the fourth, and Houston added two more runs in the fifth on RBI hits by Leonard and Jose Cruz.

Cards 3, Cubs 2

The hit struck Lamp on the right hand, bounded back toward the third base line, and Brock was on easily. Lamp left the game with a severely bruised hand.

It was Garry Templeton's sacrifice fly in the ninth, however, that gave the Cards their victory. An RBI double by Larry Biittner and a sacrifice fly by Mike Vail had tied it 2-2 in the Cubs seventh.

Brock's first single came after Templeton had singled and sent the fleet leadoff hitter to third. Templeton then scored on a grounder by Keith Hernandez.

Dramatic Homer Sinks Royals

By The Associated Press

What can be more dramatic in a baseball game than a two-out home run in the top of the ninth?

One in the bottom of the ninth.

Both Kansas City and Milwaukee provided those late theatrics Monday night, with the Brewers getting the last laugh on pinch-hitter Ben Oglivie's homer.

"Once he (Kansas City pitcher Dan Quisenberry) got behind, I knew if I got a good cut I'd have a good chance to hit it out," Oglivie said after giving the Brewers a 5-4 victory with his shot over the right-field fence at Milwaukee's County Stadium.

Coincidentally, Oglivie's dramatic homer came not long after Amos Otis provided the same kind of late lightning for the Royals in the top of the inning.

On his game-winning blast, Oglivie noted:

"Quisenberry keeps the ball down really well, but I'm a low-ball hitter. He got behind 3-0 and just gave me a fat pitch. I took advantage of it. He probably was thinking I'm not swinging, but I know that when there's two outs, I have to be swinging."

Oglivie was batting for Dick Davis when he homered off Quisenberry, 2-1. The blast made a winner of Jim Slaton, 12-6, who had earlier given up Otis' homer.

Slaton was of course momentarily troubled by Otis' blast.

"After I had thrown 130 pitches and battled like that to get out (Darrell) Porter and (Pete) La Cock in the ninth, it was really discouraging when Otis hit that pitch out," said Slaton. "But when Benjie came back and did the same thing, with two outs again, it was just unbelievable."

White Sox 7, Orioles 0

Lamar Johnson doubled to ignite a four-run Chicago fourth inning and singled home a run in the seventh as the White Sox defeated Baltimore on a five-hitter by Steve Trout.

Jim Palmer, Baltimore's three-time Cy Young Award winner coming off the disabled list, made a rare relief appearance in the last two innings and gave up Chicago's last run on a homer by Greg Pryor in the ninth.

Trout, 7-5, who recorded seven strikeouts and walked only one, leaped off the mound in exultation after completing his first major league shutout.

"I can't remember when we looked so feeble," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver after the Orioles had their lead in the American League East reduced to five games over Boston. "He did a good job."

Red Sox 6, Twins 5

Butch Hobson belted a home run off relief star Mike Marshall with two out in the eighth inning, lifting Boston over Minnesota. Hobson connected off Marshall after Fred Lynn had capped a four-run Boston seventh with a two-run homer off Minnesota starter Dave Goltz to tie the score at 5-5.

The Twins had taken a 5-0 lead in the first inning before the Red Sox battled back to tie the score. Jim Rice had his 31st homer in the fourth before the four-run Boston seventh.

Yankees 3, Rangers 2

Oscar Gamble, who went from the Ranges to the Yankees in a trade last week, delivered a solo home run in the third inning and a tie-breaking RBI single in the eighth, lifting Ron Guidry and New York over Texas.

Loser Ferguson Jenkins, 12-9, had not allowed a hit since the fourth inning and had retired 12 batters in a row when he walked Willie Randolph with two out in the eighth. Randolph stole second and scored the winning run when center fielder Mickey Rivers missed a diving try for Gamble's line drive.

Graig Nettles also had a home run to help Guidry improve his record to 11-7.

Tigers 5, Angels 3

Lou Whitaker's three-run double with two out in the sixth inning rallied Detroit over California and Nolan Ryan. Ryan, making his first start since he pulled a muscle in his right elbow in New York on July 25, carried a 2-0 lead into the sixth.

After Steve Kemp struck out to open the inning, consecutive singles by Jason Thompson, Champ Summers and Jerry Morales loaded the bases. Lance Parrish lofted a sacrifice fly to center to score the first Tiger run and after Tom Brookens was hit by a pitch, Mark Clear replaced Ryan, 12-7, and gave up Whitaker's double.

Indians 6, Mariners 0

Mike Hargrove and Bobby Bonds belted home runs to back Rick Wise's five-hit pitching as Cleveland beat Seattle. Hargrove delivered a two-run shot in the second, and Bonds added a solo homer in the third off Seattle starter Floyd Bannister, 6-12.

Blue Jays 4, A's 2

Tim Johnson drove in two runs and right-hander Claude "Butch" Edge hurled 6 2/3 innings of shutout ball in his major league debut to pace Toronto over Oakland.

Edge, the first choice of the Milwaukee Brewers in the 1974 free agant draft who moved to the Toronto organization in 1976, had a three-hitter until the seventh when three singles accounted for the A's' first run. Edge walked two and struck out six before needing relief help from Tom Buskey.

Rivers, Montanez Like Home On Range

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Rivers likes New York and Willie Montanez doesn't, but they're both happy to have found a home on the range in Texas.

"I like the people here. They treated me nice," Rivers said Monday night after the New York Yankees, his old club, beat the Texas Rangers, the team that acquired the fleet-footed outfielder less than two weeks ago.

"I didn't love New York — it was too fast for me," said Montanez, a first baseman who was picked up from the New York Mets on Sunday. Montanez made his debut with the Rangers by striking out as a pinch hitter to end Monday night's 3-2 defeat with a runner on second.

The 30-year-old Rivers, who spent 3½ seasons with the Yankees, was the catalyst of the offense as the team won three connsecutive American League pennants and two world championships. He was one of the most popular Yankees with the fans but was shipped away because the team wasn't in contention this year and the front office finally got fed up with his constant tardiness and perpetual money problems.

Montanez, 31, doesn't know about pennants, having spent most of his nine-year career with last-place ballclubs. He drove in 96 runs for the Mets last year but was hitting only .236 with five homers and 47 runs batted in this season and failed to get going after his normal slow start. In addition, he became the target of the Shea Stadium boo-birds.

"I don't worry about the fans," he said. "I knew a trade was coming, but I thought it would be during the winter. It's nice to come to a club that has a chance to win. It will be tough for the Mets to get out of last place, but I wish them luck and I hope they put it together some time."

Manager Pat Corrales said Montanez would start out as a designated hitter and will be in the lineup tonight. Ironically, Montanez belonged to the Rangers for a few hours in December 1977 before the Mets acquired him in a four-way trade with Texas, Atlanta and Pittsburgh.

Rivers, who received a warm reception from the New York fans Monday night, said he misses the Yankees "but I'm happy with the guys on the Rangers. I'm playing every day and I just want to win another pennant. It just didn't have the same old feeling this year with the Yankees.

"It was time for a change. This is better for me. The Yankees helped me by moving me up to a team in contention. No matter what they did there this year it didn't work out. I think some of the guys are getting too old. They need some young blood, someone to take my place and make things happen.

"The fans treated me great in New York and so did the front office. It was just a feeling I had that it would be better if I moved on."

Houston Oilers Seek Offensive Line Help

HOUSTON (AP) — Coach Bum Phillips, his offensive line riddled with injuries, says the Houston Oilers are talking trade for one of football's best linemen.

"That's the only thing we have going," he said after Sunday's 26-14 loss to the New York Jets.

"And I'm not sure a thing will come of this."

Two weeks ago, the Oilers lost their left tackle for the season when Greg Sampson underwent emergency brain surgery to removed a blood clot. Last week, guard George Reihner underwent right knee cartilage repair surgery and is expected to be sidelined four to six weeks.

Baseball Brass Opens Meeting

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Player relations, rules, broadcasting and energy conservation will be among the topics discussed at major league baseball's annual summer meetings this week.

A spokesman for the office of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Monday that the meetings, scheduled for today and Wednesday at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, will be dominated by committee reports.

Separate meetings for the National League and American League delegations are also planned.

NL president Charles S. "Chub" Feeney and AL president Lee MacPhail are on the eight-member Player Relations Committee that will give one of the key reports of the meetings.

Hartford Enters Finale

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) The one place you don't want to be as the final round of the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open begins is in the lead.

That's the assessment of two veteran golfers who, oddly enough, are in second place, one stroke behind the leaders.

"This is the hardest course on the tour to lead," said Jerry McGee, who is at 11-under-par 202 after three rounds at the Wethersfield Country Club.

The problem, according to McGee and J.C. Snead, is the length of the par-71 course — 6,534 yards — which is the shortest on the PGA tour.

"If your putter isn't hot, you're in trouble. You're going to get overhauled," said McGee, who won the Kemper Open two months ago.

Agreeing with McGee Monday after three rounds of the $300,000 tourney was Snead, who shared second place with him.

"Anybody can shoot a 62 or 63 and blow everybody out," said Snead, who had led the rain-delayed tournament for nearly three days.

"You just better have the lead coming into the last hole and hold it," said the 37-year-old Snead.

Even the leaders, George Cadle and Jack Renner, were unimpressed by their front-running position going into today's final 18 holes. They both shot 66s Monday for 12-under-par 201.

"Right now, all I want to do is go out early, hit some good shots and see what happens," said the 23-year-old Renner.

Lampe Claims Third Place At Tourney

BAYTOWN (Special) -Lubbock's Lampe Construction Green won five of seven games to finish third Sunday in the TAAF girls' 16-18 state slow-pitch softball tournament.

Lampe defeated the Hurst Angels 6-5 to move into the semifinals of the double-elimination tournament. The Fort Worth Chargers blanked the Lubbock girls in the semifinal contest 9-0 to end Lampe's season. The Chargers finished in second place behind the Fort Worth Dusters.

Lampe opened the tournament with an 11-1 victory over Baytown Sexson. The Lubbock team dropped its next game to the by a 3-1 score, but ripped off four consecutive victories to make the semifinals. Lampe defeated the Wichita Falls Halfbreeds 6-5, nipped the Hearst Saints 5-4 in 11 innings, clubbed the Dallas Incredibles 10-2, and nipped the Angels before checking out of the tournament at the hands of the Chargers.

Two members of the Lampe squad were selected to the all-tournament team. They were pitcher Diana Lampe and third baseman Karla Hamlett.

Phil Niekro Nixed Trade To Houston

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It came as a jolt — that weekend headline in the combined edition of The Atlanta Journal-Constitution that said, "Phil Niekro Was Almost An Astro."

The first reaction was to wonder how the Atlanta Braves could even consider trading one of the most popular athletes the city has had since the Braves introduced it to professional sports in 1966.

Niekro, exercising his right as a 10-year veteran, revealed that he had turned down a possible trade initiated by the Astros just before the June 15 trading deadline.

Analysis

It was reported that Niekro had cleared National League waivers, which remain valid until Sept. 1, but Atlanta general manager John Mullen says he considers the trade talks "a dead issue."

For Niekro's sake, maybe they should be revived.

With Houston enjoying the most successful season in its history, a trade might afford the 40-year-old veteran the opportunity to realize one of the few goals that has escaped him — pitching in a World Series.

If anyone in baseball deserves that opportunity, Phil Niekro does. His only chance may be through a trade to a contending team.

There simply is no reason to believe he'll ever accomplish that goal with the Braves, who are headed toward their fourth straight last-place finish in the NL West.

He indicates he would give more consideration to a possible trade if it were offered again.

"I wouldn't say no to Houston right away," he said. "I'm not saying I'd go and I'm not saying I wouldn't.

"The main thing about coming to Houston, if it ever developed, is the fact that I could wake up in the morning and know that I had a good chance of winning. I have almost forgotten what it tastes like to be in first place."

A trade to Houston would reunite Phil with his younger brother, Joe, who leads the NL in victories with 16, one more than Phil, who carries a 15-15 record down the stretch with the possibility of becoming only the second pitcher in modern times to have 20 victories and 20 defeats in a season.

Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox had a 24-20 mark in 1973. Such records were commonplace in the 1890s and early 1900s, but Wood was the first to cross both barriers since the great Walter Johnson went 25-20 with the 1916 Washington Senators.

It's also rare for brothers to win 20 games each in the same season. The amazing Dean brothers, Dizzy and Paul, never did it because Paul never won 20 games.

The last to accomplish that feat were the Perry brothers in 1970 when Jim was 24-12 with the Minnesota Twins and Gaylord was 23-13 with the San Francisco Giants. The Niekro brothers have an excellent opportunity to do it this year since each should have 10-12 more starts.

Phil is an amazing athlete at age 40, a time when most baseball players are living on memories, not current accomplishments. He is in his 16th major league season, all with the Braves. He lifted his career record to 212-186 Sunday night when he beat the Astros 3-2 with the 200th complete game of his career, including a league-leading 17 this season.

In these days of inflated salaries for athletes, Niekro is vastly underpaid, making a reported $200,000 annually, which is only third best on the club behind outfielders Jeff Burroughs and Gary Matthews.

He also ranks as a leader in giving his time and name to charity. If he were to leave, it would be a blow to fans who have had little to cheer about since baseball arrived in Atlanta 14 years ago.

Phil Niekro has paid the price of playing with mediocre teams. If he so desires, he's earned the right to be traded to a contender.

Arthur Ashe Returns Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis star Arthur Ashe, who suffered a mild heart attack two weeks ago, was home Monday after having been released from the hospital.

A spokesman for Ashe said the 36-year-old former Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion was resting comfortably but would not give any other details.

In an interview with the New York Post before his release, Ashe said he expects to play competitive tennis again next year.

"The doctors have told me I may be able to start hitting a ball around November," Ashe was quoted as saying. "If I get the OK from them, I'll be back on the circuit next year.

Family Distractions Fail To Stop Rankin Charge

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — As if Judy Rankin did not have enough to worry about as she tried to snap a year-long victory drought on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Snap it she did Monday by successfully defending her title in the $100,000 Western Union International Classic with a final round 70 that meant a four-under 288 for the 72 holes, but not before having to contend with members of her family.

The final round was postponed Sunday by heavy rains. For the 34-year old Mrs. Rankin it was a blessing in disguise. She had dropped four strokes behind rookie Beth Daniel before the skies opened up to wash out the round on the par 73, 6,460-yard Meadow Brook Club.

As a result, Monday saw Mrs. Rankin and Miss Daniel start play deadlocked with Donna Caponi Young for the top spot. Miss Daniel, a 22-year old graduate of Furman University, wound up with a 72 and 290 for the second-place check of $9,800.

Mrs. Young was one spot behind with a 74 and 292.

Mrs. Rankin, in collecting top prize of $15,000, ran into all kinds of distractions from her family before taking the course Monday. First of all, her husband, Yippy, who travels on tour with her and their 10-year old son, Tuey, said, "I sure hope you win because I'm tired from having to pack the car for a second straight day."

Then Tuey had his blonde-haired, green-eyed mother awake during the night because he was going to caddy for Marlene Hagge.

Mrs. Hagge already had finished Sunday's play and paid off her caddy before the round was washed out. As a result, young Rankin was offered the opportunity to carry her bag.

"He was so nervous," smiled Judy, "that he kept me up half the night saying, 'I hope I don't get into somebody's line.' Another time he wanted to know if we should be getting ready to leave for the club."

The third member of the family to offer a distraction was Rankin's father, Paul Torluemke, who taught her the game of golf and who still offers her advice whenever Judy calls home.

"He told me he was getting old and might die before I win my next tournament," smiled Mrs. Rankin. "So everybody in the family is happy.

"So am I, now that I've broken the losing streak. It's been very frustrating this year. Last year I was not in good health (a chronic back problem caused by a degenerative disc) and I wasn't playing well.

"I'm not even sure how I was able to win this tournament. This year, however, I've been playing well. I had gone into the final nine holes as the leader in three tournaments and lost all three. When you are playing as long as I have been, that's not supposed to happen.

"Getting the second chance today was the best thing that happened to me. Who knows what would have happened if we continued (Sunday), but I do know that luck would have entered into the picture more than skill because of the cold, wind and rains."

'Empty-Feeling' Alzado Blasts Broncos' GM

DENVER (AP) — Lyle Alzado, the former Denver Bronco All-Pro defensive end who flirted with a prize fighting career this summer after an exhibition bout with Muhammad Ali and was traded to Cleveland Sunday, says "right now I feel a little empty."

A grim-faced, solemn Alzado, who spent nine years with the National Football League Broncos, talked with reporters on arriving at Denver's Stapleton International Airport Monday night.

"I feel bad. Sure all this has hurt me. I'm not really bitter, but I miss Denver and I'm disappointed about what happened. I was lied to by Fred Gehrke (Bronco general manager). And I had to stand up for what I thought was right," Alzado said.

Alzado's crisis began after he boxed former heavyweight champion Ali in an eight-round exhibition on July 14 at the Broncos' Mile High Stadium.

Following the bout, Alzado said he was considering a professional boxing career and that he had been approached by promoters who made him an offer in the million-dollar area.

Alzado said Gehrke claimed "that I asked for $200,000 a year and I never suggested anything near that figure. I was wrong in losing my temper and leaving training camp, but I know I was right in what I believed. But Mr. Gehrke threw me out of his office and told my agent I was out in left field, that I was bluffing. It was embarrassing to me."

Campbell said he had sought more money for Alzado (up from an estimated $90,000 a year), a no-cut contract extended over five years and for a possible leave of absence to test his boxing career.

Mentioned Briefly

BASEBALL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals became the 14th player in major league history to reach the 3,000-hit plateau with an infield single in the fourth inning against the Chicago Cubs. Ahead of the timetable he had set for himself, Brock got his 2,999th career hit in the first inning when he looped a single to left field on a 1-1 delivery from Cubs right-hander Dennis Lamp. Then in the fourth, he lined a 2-2 pitch back to the box for a single off Lamp's hand, reaching the remarkable milestone at the age of 40.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Dillard, recently inserted into the Chicago Cubs' starting lineup, was named National League Player of the Week for the period ending Aug. 12, NL President Chub Feeney said. Dillard hit safely in all six games he played in last week, getting 12 hits in 20 at bats for a .600 average. He hit three homers, knocked in 10 runs, scored nine times and had two game-winning hits.

TENNIS

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Two-time Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova needed just 24 minutes Monday night for a 6-0, 6-0 rout of Marita Redondo in the first round of a woman's tennis tournament. Diane Fromholtz of Australia turned back Terry Holladay 7-6, 6-3, and Australian Wendy Turnbull required just 40 minutes for a 6-1, 6-1 romp over Betty Stove of The Netherlands. Eighth-seeded Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia turned back Lele Forood 7-6, 6-0, 6-4.

TORONTO (AP) — Jaime Fillol of Chile upset fourth-seeded Harold Solomon 3-6, 7-5, 6-2 in a first-round singles match at the Canadian Open tennis championships. Nina Blad of Canaa upset second-seeded Renata Tomanova of Czcholslovakia 6-1, 6-2. In other men's matches, Brian Teacher defeated Relean Genois of Canada 7-6, 6-0, Mike Grant downed Robert Bettauer of Canada 6-3, 6-4, Dominique Bedel of France defeated Derek Segal of Canada 6-2, 7-5 and Paul Kronk of Australia downed countryman Geoff Masters 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. In other women's first-round action, Lea Antonopolis downed Lise Senn 6-1, 6-3; Lisa Doherty defeated Mariana Simionescu of Romania 6-3, 6-1; Dana Gilbert upset third-seeded Tanya Harford of South Africa 0-6, 6-3, 6-2; fourth-seeded Zenda Liess defeated Joanne Russell 6-2, 6-4 and Janet Newberry, the fifth seed, eliminated Marjorie Blackwood, the Canadian national women's champion, 6-2, 7-6.

Murphy Tells Of Reputation

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Rocket guard Calvin Murphy has told a federal court jury that former Los Angeles Laker Kermit Washington has a reputation around the National Basketball Association "as a mean individual."

Murphy, testifying Monday in a multimillion dollar damage suit against the Lakers, said those who have played against Washington and those with whom he has had fights call him mean.

Rudy Tomjanovich, Rocket captain and once the club's top scorer, is suing the Lakers for an unspecified amount for injuries suffered in a one-punch fight with Washington during an Aug. 9, 1977, game. Washington is now a member of the San Diego Clippers.

Ten Napel Fights Second Big Battle

ATLANTA (AP) — Garth Ten Napel won the battle to live. Now he's fighting to play in the National Football League again.

Doctors who treated the Atlanta Falcons linebacker after he was injured in a car wreck four months ago didn't think Ten Napel would make it.

When he did — after 3½ weeks in a coma — they said he would neither walk nor talk again.

Now he's working out with the Falcons.

"That's my No. 1 desire, to play again. I may even play again this year. That's what I'm shooting for — the middle to the end of the season," Ten Napel said recently after a workout at the Falcons' camp in Suwanee, north of here.

"I wouldn't say what his chances are," said linebacker coach Doug Shively, who has been running with Ten Napel each day since his release from the hospital two months ago.

"Just a month ago he couldn't hardly run. Now he's running two miles at a clip. I think he's doing great. You think his progress is slow and then you think back to two months ago and it's unbelievable. It's like a miracle," Shively said.

"He's fortunate to be alive. Doctors said if he weren't in good shape when the wreck occurred, he never would have made it."

Ten Napel, who came to Atlanta in 1977 in a trade with the Detroit Lions, looks at the crash as a challenge.

"I'll have to play twice as hard when I come back, because I'll be playing for Andy too, he said."

During his stay in the hospital, Ten Napel lost 54 pounds, dropping to 150. Now, after undergoing therapy at the Emory University rehabilitation center three times a week and working out with weights at the Falcons camp, Ten Napel is back up to 195 pounds.

And although his speech is slow and deliberate due to damage to the motor centers of his brain, it is getting better each day, he said.

"At the beginning I could talk but people couldn't understand me at times. In communicating with my mother, I would say something and she couldn't understand me. It was frustrating," he said.

"My arm is coming along a lot slower than I would like it to, but it is getting stronger, thank goodness. It'll be a little more time and a lot of work to get rid of the limp, but doctors said nothing that I had would be permanent," he said.

Hubbers Fall In NBC Meet

Santa Maria took the lead over Lubbock on a two-run homer by Dan McInerny in the fourth inning. McInerny went on to collect four RBIs and second baseman Mike Cassiday added four hits, including two doubles.

In other elimination games at the semi-pro, double-elimination tournament, Ocala, Fla. defeated San Bernadino, Calif. 7-6; Beatrice, Neb., outdistanced Kankakee, Ill. 13-7; and Eureka, Calif., blanked Midwest City, Okla. 10-0. In winners' bracket play Liberal, Kan., defeated Phoenix, Ariz. 1-1.

It was a strong tyhrow to the plate by center fielder Rick Beck which saved the game for Ocala. Beck's power throw caught a San Bernardino runner at the plate for the last out of the game. Ocala built its offense on home runs, two by designated hitter Tony Stevens and one each by shortstop Randy Wilson and catcher Dave Falcone.

'Hawk' Remains Legend In NY

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

He is, quite frankly, a legend, pure and simple.

In the teeming playgrounds of New York City, where basketball is treated as something of a religion, Connie Hawkins remains the high priest of the sport.

They still talk about him in hushed tones and wonder just how good he might have been. In the summer leagues in Harlem where players outdo one another with acrobatic dunk shots and moves that border on magic, they still remember the Hawk and how basketball squandered his talent.

Connie Hawkins was 27 years old when he got to the National Basketball Association in 1969 — a rather advanced age for a rookie. A decade passed from the time he was the best high school basketball player in New York until he was allowed in the NBA. The years in between were spent in a limbo created by the rulers of the game who decided that Connie Hawkins shouldn't be allowed in to play their sport.

Meet Hawkins today and you are impressed by what an articulate man he is. But in 1960, he was a semi-literate teenager, caught in the web of the college basketball fixing scandal, implicated by innuendo and painted with the broad brush that kept him out of the game he was so good at.

He had been plucked out of the University of Iowa by the Manhattan district attorney, brought home to answer questions about some men who tinkered with point spreads.

"I knew the people they were asking about," he said. "But that's all. We had talked basketball. I talked basketball with a lot of people."

He was accused of being an intermediary, of introducing players to gamblers. "It was a lie," he said.

Hawkins was victimized because he couldn't defend himself. He was not exactly sophisticated in those days. "Sophisticated?" he laughed. "Hell no, I wasn't sophisticated. I was 17 and I was damned scared."

The investigators questioned him for two weeks. His story was checked and rechecked and finally he was permitted to return to Iowa. When he got there, Iowa wasn't interested anymore. He had been implicated. The fact that he was cleared meant nothing. Iowa couldn't take a chance, and neither could anybody else.

"I went home to Brooklyn, but I couldn't get into a game," he said. "Even in the schoolyards, guys were afraid to be seen with me, afraid they'd be linked to the scandal through me."

The irony of it was that Connie Hawkins was clean. He had been cleared of any involvement. But the implication was there and it was enough to freeze him out of the game.

For four years, Hawkins played with the the Harlem Globetrotters, barnstorming with them, playing on the fringes of organized basketball. Then came the American Basketball League and the Pittsburgh Rens, a pretty long jump shot away from the NBA, which had barred him for life.

Blackballed is a harsh term, but that's exactly what had happened to Connie Hawkins.

There are two things you can do in that situation — accept it or fight it. Eventually, Hawkins decided to fight.

In 1964, he filed a $6 million antitrust suit. The law in America, however, sometimes moves with painful deliberation and Hawkins began to believe that the suit would stretch beyond his productive basketball years. "There were times," he said, "when I thought it would never be resolved."

But in 1969 an out-of-court settlement was reached. Hawkins walked away with a hefty cash award and the right to play, at last, with the big boys in the NBA.

Homebuilders Tourney Won By Nail Team

The Lubbock foursome of Carl Nail, Raymond Powell, Vance Ross and Bill Blanton fired a lowball total of 64 to win the golf portion of the West Texas Homebuilders' Golf and Tennis Tournament at Hillcrest Country Club Monday.

GOLF

64 — Carl Nail-Raymond Powell-Vance Ross-Bill Blanton. 65 — Ed Raue-Bob Kizer-Greg Wood-Herb Little, won playoff over Billy Bartley-Tim Gibbs-Chester Vincent-Tom O'Jibway.

TENNIS

Blazers Sign Jim Paxson

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — First round pick Jim Paxson of the University of Dayton has been signed to a multi-year National Basketball Association contract, the Portland Trail Blazers said today. Terms were not disclosed.

Paxson, a 6-foot-6 guard, averaged 23.2 points per game last year, with averages of .526 from the field and .806 from the foul line.

HOW ABOUT 200 MPH & 14.2 MILES PER GALLON WITH 5 PASSENGERS

AND THIS IS NOT THE WHOLE STORY!

General Aviation, moving one out of every three inter-city air travel passengers, uses less than ½ of 1% of all petroleum consumed in the U.S.A. On most trips, these airplanes will actually burn less fuel than a 1979 automobile making the same trip.

Lubbock to Phoenix:
By Road – 720 miles 55 mph & 15 mpg = 13 hrs. enroute & 48 gals. fuel burned
By Air – 575 miles 198 mph & 14.2 mpg = 2.9 hrs. enroute & 40 gals. fuel burned

With your own airplane you make the schedules. You reduce endless hours on the road and eliminate airline connections, terminal layovers, and backtracking travel to hard-to-reach places. Of the 12,350 airports in the United States, only about 550 are served by airlines.

There is no reason to end a meeting before you are finished, miss an appointment, leave early to make a scheduled airline connection or search for the time it takes to drive to your next destination.

Equal Opportunity Employer, M F

Don Furr, Chairman of the Board
Furr's Cafeterias, Inc.

"We have management opportunities, and they're for real!"

Furr's Cafeterias, Inc., is now expanding its Management team to keep pace with the rapid growth of our cafeteria chain. This growth ensures that opportunities as assistant cafeteria managers, cafeteria managers, and higher level positions will be available.

We are hiring qualified candidates into our Management Training Program, and we want men and women who will put forth maximum efforts toward a rewarding career with us. Candidates should be willing to relocate occasionally during their career.

The starting salary for Manager Trainees will be based on your background and experience. The minimum starting salary is $10,400. As your career progresses and your responsibilities grow, you can expect a rapid growth in earnings. Assistant managers can earn from $14,000 to $21,000 per year, or more. Cafeteria managers can earn from $20,000 to $50,000 per year, or more.

Benefits include group medial plan, retirement plan, special manager's life insurance program, stock ownership plan, and free meals while on duty. Paid vacations are 1 week after 1 year service, 2 weeks after 3 years, 3 weeks after 10 years, and 4 weeks after 15 years service.

Furr's is currently the nation's second largest, publicly-owned cafeteria cham, with over 70 units in prime locations throughout 7 southwestern states. So if you want to work hard where your efforts will really pay off, Furr's Cafeterias has the program for you.

Pre-Owned Specials...
The response to our "Whale of a Hail Sale" was so outstanding that we now find ourselves OVERSTOCKED on excellent pre-owned AIRSTREAMS and ARGOSY TRAVEL TRAILERS. We must reduce this stock to make room for the '80 models.
We now have in stock pre-owned Airstreams and Argosys in 18', 20', 22', 25', 27' & 29' & 31', lengths with prices starting as low as .... $2995!
EXAMPLE No. 1 27' AIRSTREAM SPO Double Air, Zip-Dee awning, AM FM/8-track, TV antenna, power jack, BAL stabilizer Jacks — very sharp!
WAS $9670 — NOW $8282 .... SAVE $1388!
Was $10,575 — NOW $9494 .... SAVE $1081!
REMEMBER! A 31' AIRSTREAM TOWS WITH LESS EFFORT THAN AN AVERAGE 20' TRAVEL TRAILER!
We still have a very few Airstream Road Rangers and Monacos with slight hail damage and tremendous discounts! 8-1

Your Neighbor Since 1931, Your Realtor for Over 25 Years ... We Buy Equities ...

AH-H-H IT'S COMFY — and liveable and affordable. FHA appraisal is ordered on this super clean 3 BR, 2 bath home in Bender Terrace in S.W. Lubbock. Priced at $43,500 which also includes formal living & den, well-built storm cellar, and nice landscaping. Stubbs, S. Wilson, Coronado.

2 STORY TOWN HOUSE — no available. Has 3 BR, 2 baths up, den, kitchen, 1 2 bath down, and very low maintenance yard. Convenient S.W. Lubbock location. Only $44,900.

LOOKING FOR NICE QUITY? We have it in Quaker Heights. Located on corner lot with nice landscaping, this 1800 Sq Ft 3 BR, 2 bath home has many outstanding features which include large isolated MBR, lovely den w/cathedral beamed ceiling, fireplace, large covered patio. And this can be yours for only $15,000 equity + closing cost. Buy now before interest rates escalate.

9 UNIT APARTMENT COMPLEX — has tenants — just needs an investor who wants a tax shelter, good cash flow, with attractive brick construction. Also ref. air, 8 units furnished; well landscaped, good parking, located in downtown area.

LARGE HOME — AFFORDABLE PRICE! — Over 2100 SqFt spread over 3 BR's, 2 baths, large formal dining living, and large den. The price, not so large, is $49,950. Located in W. Lubbock. Call today for appointment.

YOU WON'T BELIEVE: (A) The Price — $46,000. (B) The down payment — Zero to Veteran. (C) The Location — Corner Lot, W. Lubbock. (D) The amenities — Lovely 3 BR, fireplace, 2 baths, sewing room, large concrete pad for boat or motor home, central heat & ref. air, storm cellar. Don't let this one get away. Call Now.

CONVENIENT — to Reese, TI, and W. Lubbock. With FHA appraisal of $37,050, which means low down payment and low interest rates that are available for this very nice 3 BR, 2 bath, step down den, located in West Wind Addition. Call now for appointment.

SPOIL YOURSELF ROTTEN — in Melonie Park, with this lovely 3BR, 2 bath home with all the extras you'd expect. Including corner fireplace. Isolated Master BR, screened back porch. Just $65,500.

DON'T EXPECT SYMPATHY ... from us if you're still throwing money away on rent! You can own your own home, use the tax break, and watch your value appreciate if you act now. We have a new listing — a cute 3 BR home with central heat & refrig. air, 2 baths, fenced yard, in W. Lubbock with FHA or VA financing available — just $37,300. Then laugh at rent payments forever.

You'll find them all in the Classified Ads

People who buy cars have one thing in common . . . different transportation needs and ideas. That's why Classified Ads in this newspaper are so helpful to car shoppers. In one place you get information on all makes of new and used cars being sold by private parties and dealers. This gives smart shoppers the most current market information so they can make a good buying decision and get the most value for their dollars. Check the fine lineup of cars in today's Classified Section whether you want a brand new 1978 or a good used model. Find your key answer to your car question in the Classified Ads.

FOR YOUR WANT ADS

CALL 762-8821

1 Gather up all the things that've been cluttering up your house. Clean out the attic, the basement, even the closets

3 Now, call your Avalanche-Journal AD-visor at 762-8821 for professional help in writing and preparing your ad.

4 The day before the sale, move everything that's for sale out to the garage. Or put a tent up on your lawn. (Just make sure there's nothing out there that you don't want to sell!) Next, set everything up in neat displays and put reasonable asking price tags on them.

5 When the big day comes, get up early, practice your sales pitch and put your directional signs up around the neighborhood so people won't have any trouble finding you.

Grain Futures

All contracts were lower for most of the trading session, but distant delivery wheat contracts recovered in a late rally and oats futures also erased part of their earlier losses.

Analysts said the Agriculture Department's prediction of a 7.11-billion-bushel corn crop was perhaps the biggest surprise to the market. About 2.13 billion bushels each were forecast for wheat and soybeans. The soybean crop would be a record, the wheat crop the second largest on record.
