Gramm makes a better move

WASHINGTON — Sen. Phil Gramm, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Thursday he has switched his assignments on the panel's subcommittees to better position himself to look out for Texas' interests.

He will be ranking Republican on the defense industry and technology subcommittee, a panel which oversees military hardware production.

"It will also give me a leadership position in the area of research and development," Gramm said of the assignment. "I am hoping from this position to have a research center for the Defense Department in our state. That would be a tremendous boost for us."

The senator also will be a member of the military construction subcommittee, which he said will help him win new military facilities for Texas.

Gramm was instrumental in the selection of Corpus Christi as a new homeport for the Navy. His new committee assignment, he believes, will help him see that project completed without a snag.

He also is a new member of the subcommittee on conventional forces which oversees the procurement of new weapon systems.

Officials to meet in city

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

West Texas government officials from 16 counties will travel to Big Spring in July to attend a meeting of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission it was decided Thursday afternoon during a Legislative luncheon in Midland.

The commission is one of 24 regional planning commissions throughout the state that assists city and county governments, said Executive Director Ernie Crawford of the commission.

Approximately 165 persons, including State Senator John Montford, attended the luncheon sponsored by the commission.

Howard County Commissioner O.L. Brown, who has served on the commission's board for four years, explained this morning that he has been active in attempting to procure grants for work on the north and west sides of Big Spring through the Commission.

He was appointed by Governor Mark White to serve on the review committee.

The work would specifically concern sewers and roads, Brown said.

"We review grants and act on them with favorable or unfavorable results," he said about his duties as a board member.

Fund-raising for the expansion of the Heritage Museum begins this month with the Chuck Wagon Bar-B-Que Thursday, Jan. 29. Plans for the expansion have been discussed for several years and land was donated eight to 10 years ago for the purpose, Museum officials

Fund raising begins for museum expansion

By RUTH FRIEDBERG

It may take 10 years, but the Heritage Museum will get a new wing, Wade Choate said Thursday.

Choate, chairman of the long-range planning committee, said he was hopeful construction of the wing, to be situated in the lot just north of the museum, would begin a year from now.

The idea of museum expansion has been discussed for several years, former Heritage President Harry Middleton explained.

It was not until last May, however, that architect Phil Furquerson designed the plans. The land for the proposed wing was donated by Mr. and Mrs. H.D. Cowden about eight to 10 years ago, for the purpose of expanding the facility, Choate said.

Funding for the wing will come from community and museum member donations, plus foundation grants, Furquerson said. Completion of the building is dependent on how quickly funds are secured.

Plans will be unveiled to approximately 350 museum members during the 1987 Chuck Wagon Bar-B-Que Jan. 29, at the Dora Roberts Community Center, Museum Curator Angie Way said.

The new 10,500-square-foot facility will be a two-story structure, attached to the old building by two hallways, Furquerson said.

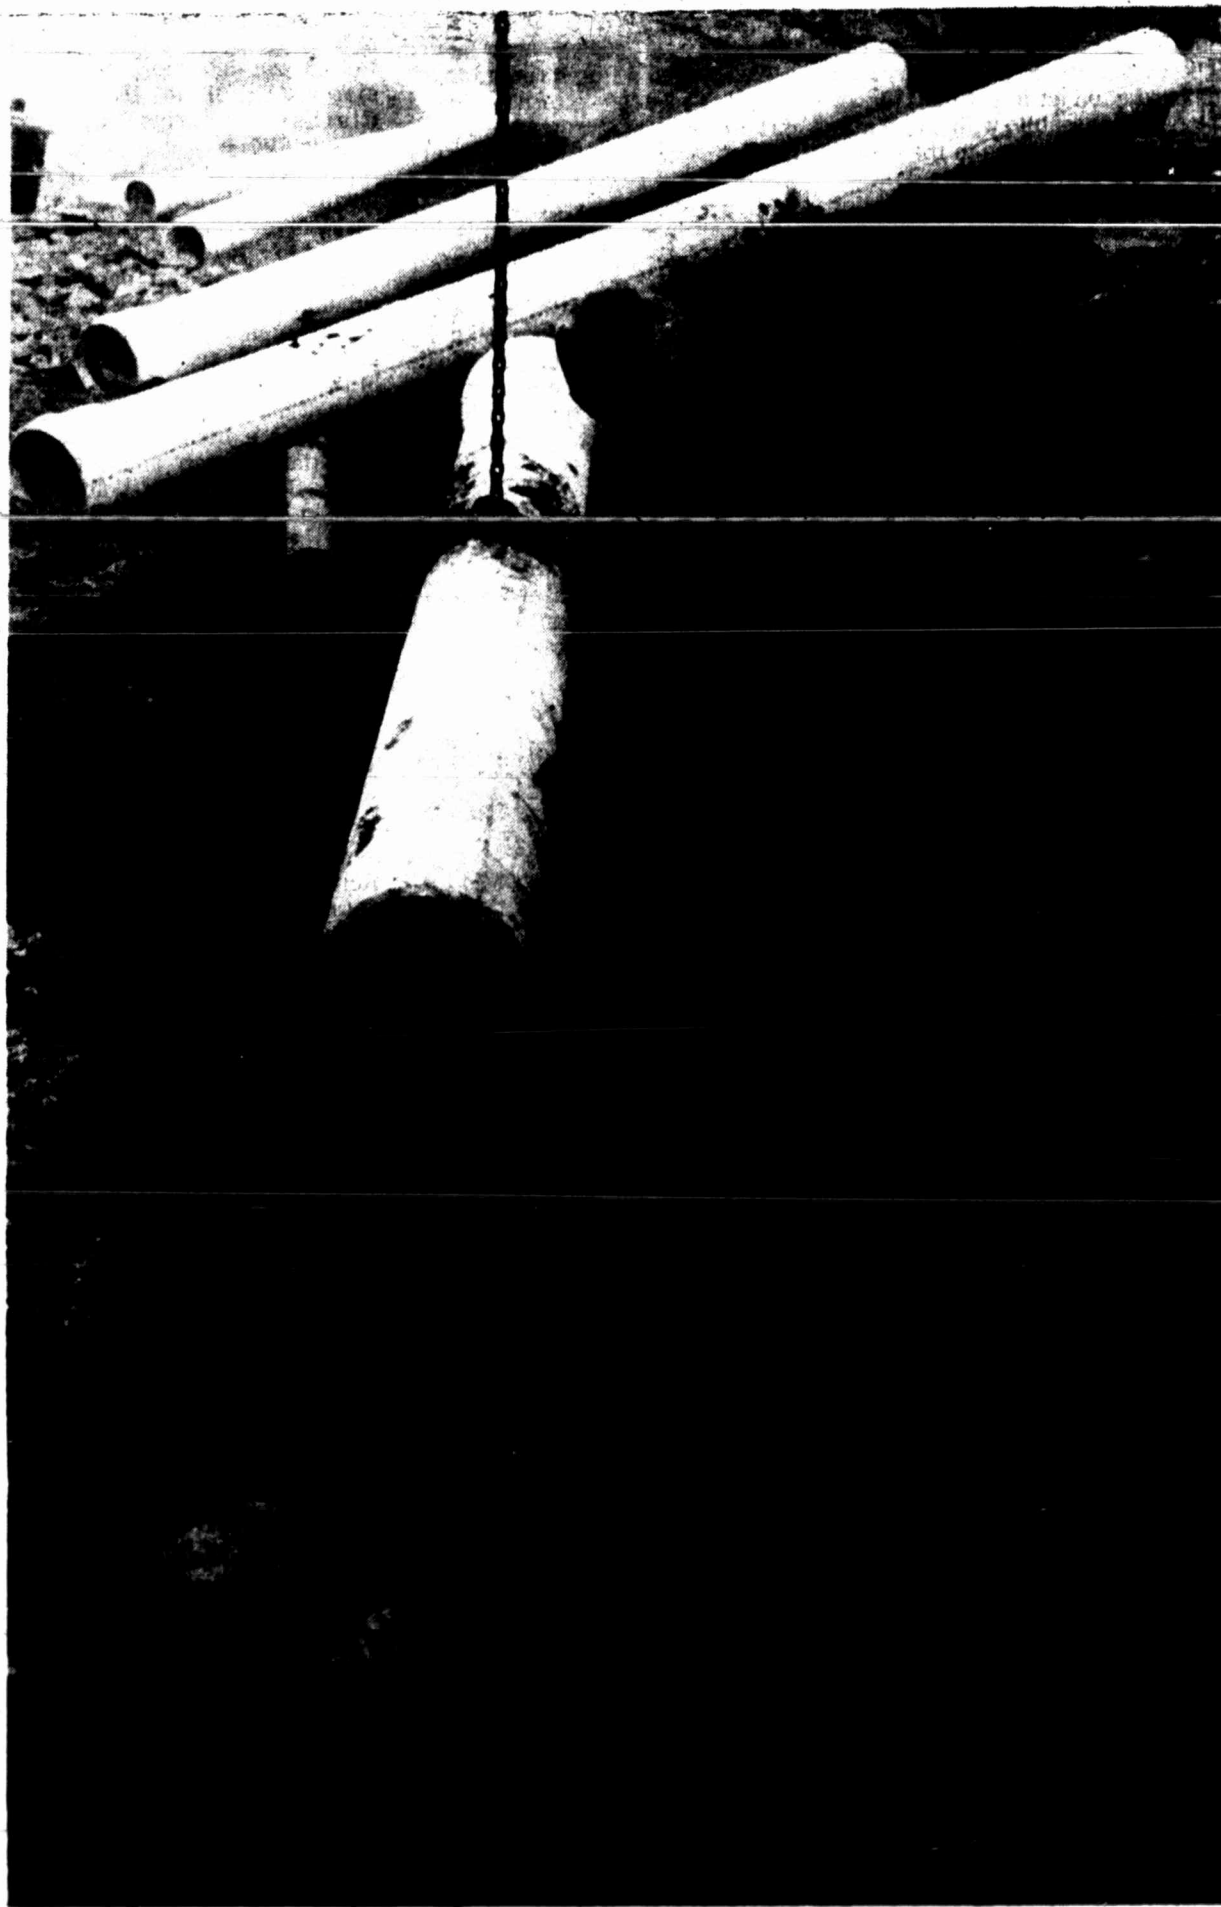

The present building is 3,600-square feet.

The main entrance of the proposed facility will face Scurry Street.

Museum Curator Angie Way expects the top floor to be used to display theme exhibits. Heritage's collection of paintings by frontier artist Harvey Wallace Caylor may be moved to the addition, Curator Way said.

Administrative offices and a video library, with tapes depicting the history of Big Spring and the museum, will occupy the bottom floor.

Museum members Pat Hardison and Brad Estill are in the process of producing the videos, Way said. A sample is to be shown at MUSEUM page 2A

Fire department reports 13.3% more calls in '86

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Two Big Spring residents died in fires during 1986, and the fire department experienced an 13.3 percent increase in calls over the year before, according to a report from Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lea Settles.

Retired Big Spring schoolteacher Helen D. Ebling, 69, was found dead in her burning house, 2805 Cactus, in January, 1986.

She was recovering from a broken hip she suffered about a month earlier when someone stole her purse outside a local grocery store, police have said. It is not known whether the injury prevented her from escaping.

A 13-month-old Big Spring baby died after children playing with matches caused a fire at 1014 Runnels St. during September, Settles reported at the time.

Nicholas Richardson, son of Dennis and Donna Richardson of that address, was pulled from the smoke-filled house by a firefighter, and attempts to revive him were unsuccessful.

An infant and an elderly woman died in fires in 1985 as well. 5½-month-old Amber Michelle Owens perished when flames engulfed the mobile home where she lived, outside city limits.

Pauline Peacock, 72, 2707 Coronado St., died at a hospital of burns she received when her clothing caught fire. Officials have said the woman might have been

Analysts doubtful of market barometer

From staff and wire reports

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrial average passed a symbolic milestone when it leaped over the 2,000 mark for the first time, but some analysts say the "granddaddy" of stock barometers is outmoded.

The Dow Jones average close Thursday at 2,002.25 as part of a rally that has seen a rise of more than 100 points in the first five trading sessions of 1987.

Despite the overwhelming figures, Midland broker Jim Bell, with Merrill Lynch, said he did not believe the Dow Jones was outmoded.

"It's just one of many gauges. The others are moving up too. I think the Dow Jones is a symbol, but symbols are sometimes big deals. In this case, we moved up 100 points in less than a week, which is extremely strong," Bell said.

Newton D. Zinder, technical analyst with the New York investment firm E.F. Hutton Group Inc., believes otherwise.

"From a market standpoint, 2,000 is only one point above 1,999," Zinder said.

Bell pointed to the price of oil as a big reason for the rise in the market. He said that while the low oil prices have hurt the West Texas economy, they have not necessarily hurt local stock trading.

"Though the oil prices have been a disaster locally, it's easier for energy based companies to be profitable when they're spending $15 a gallon rather than $35."

"With banking weak in the energy areas, we're finding that people are coming to us," Bell said.

Some analysts suggested that the closely watched average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks has become an outmoded gauge of Wall Street's health, although it still reflects the strong underlying demand for stocks that has helped drive the market with dizzying speed for more than four years.

"I really think the numbers game for the Dow is totally meaningless," said Robert Nurock, publisher of the Astute Investor newsletter and designer of a technical market index for the PBS-TV program "Wall Street Week."

Rafting accident claims one life

ODESSA (AP) — A 20-year-old man who survived a Rio Grande raft accident said it seemed like forever that he and two companions were under water after their raft capsized.

One of the rafters died in the accident in the Big Bend National Park.

"It seemed like forever before we came up," said Les Montgomery, one of two rafters who were stranded for two days.

Montgomery and his girlfriend, Nova Knightstep, 18, were stranded from Saturday until Monday. They had been riding on a raft with her father, Riley Knightstep, when the raft capsized.

Park rangers found the body of Knightstep, a 43-year-old Odessa businessman, Monday, said Bob Rothe, the park's public information officer.

Ms. Knightstep said Thursday that the three rented a four-man rubber raft and the necessary equipment for a two-day raft trip. She said they floated about an hour to near the entrance of the Santa Elena Canyon, where they hit a wall of water and overturned.

Montgomery said Thursday he grasped some rocks and pulled himself to the shore in time to see the other two washing downstream.

Ms. Knightstep said she saw her father struggling in the water ahead of her, then lost consciousness and woke up on a narrow slice of beach surrounded by cliffs.

She estimated the river to be 100 feet in width, and decided it was too rough for her to cross.

The young woman said that she first believed she would be rescued, but by Monday she despaired, thinking, "If they find me, they find me."

About 30 minutes after she rested with her back to the river, Larry Humphries, a commercial river guide and outfitter, spotted the woman.

Humphries said he found Montgomery at about noon Monday on the U.S. side of the river. After wading out to speak to Montgomery, Humphries packed camp and began the search for Ms. Knightstep.

"He (Montgomery) didn't know if the others were alive or not," Humphries told the Odessa American. He said he found Ms. Knightstep about a mile farther downstream.

Both Ms. Knightstep and Montgomery suffered from exposure and trauma, he said.

Ms. Knightstep's mother, Candy, said her daughter told her none of the three was wearing life vests because the water had been tranquil before the sudden capsizing.

Knightstep had been rafting in the Santa Elena Canyon several times prior to his fatal trip, Mrs. Knightstep said, adding that "we're fishing and boating people."

Big Spring city officials, left to right, Cotton Mize, Harold Hall and Mack Wofford attended Thursday a Legislative luncheon sponsored by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission at The Midland Hilton. Hall recommended during a board meeting following the luncheon that the Commission's meet in Big Spring in July.

mission, said the volunteer agency has accomplished "some significant things."

He specifically spoke about its aging department which assists local senior citizen operations, its implementation of the Joint Training Partnership Act to aid the under and unemployed, and its criminal justice division that has established a police training academy at the Midland Air Terminal.

The commission's work primarily entails coordinating efforts for local governments which seek information and the acquisition of funding for projects, Tschauner said.

A date for the July meeting will be decided upon sometime in May or June, Crawford said.

Coahoma board chops another $200,000

COAHOMA — The Coahoma School Board, in a special meeting Thursday night, cut salaries, supplies and a teaching position for a total of $200,000 in reductions for the 1987-88 school year budget, said Superintendent Jerry Doyle.

Doyle said the board has now cut approximately $450,000 from next year's budget, and will cut $100,000 more in the next two months "if we can find it." The budget slashing has been prompted by the low price of oil, which has drastically cut Coahoma's tax base.

The Coahoma superintendent said teacher salaries would be 5 percent lower next year; principal salaries would be 5 to 7 percent lower; the athletic budget will be cut by 19 percent, to include supplies and operational costs; extracurricular salary supplements will be cut by 5 percent;

Instructional supplies and capital outlay costs will be reduced by $40,000; and the elementary music position will be eliminated. Doyle said elementary teachers will integrate music instruction into their other teaching responsibilities. He said elimination of the industrial arts and vocational office education programs was considered, but he said the board did not eliminate those programs.

Woman stable after collision

A 52-year-old Coahoma woman was in stable condition this morning in Scenic Mountain Medical Center as a result of injuries suffered in a Thursday night automobile accident, a hospital spokeswoman said this morning.

Gloria Green Lewis of South Route Box 20B in Coahoma was rushed to the hospital by Lee Ambulance attendants after the car she was driving collided with a truck tractor driven by David Ray Pool, 27, P.O. Box 2173 on Vealmoor Highway, according to a Department of Public Safety accident report.

She was eastbound on Midway Road at approximately 5 p.m. and collided with Pool as he was attempting to turn west on Midway Road from Howard County Road 33.

No citations were issued because of conflicting stories from Lewis and Pool as to how the accident occurred, according to the report.

The investigating officer didn't find physical evidence at the scene nor witnesses to substantiate either driver's version of the accident, according to the report.

An increase of 68 fire department calls during 1986 over the previous year was primarily a result of an increase in grass fires during an unusually dry period early in the year, Settles said.

The fire department responded to three major residence fires, two commercial fires with "extremely high" dollar losses, and a hotel fire on the north side of town, he said.

Monetary loss from Big Spring fires during 1986 were listed at $532,522, an increase of $30,097 over 1985's $502,425 figure. The hotel fire accounted for $60,000 of the 1986 figure.

The figures compare to $587,605 on 532 runs for 1984, and $531,533 on 472 runs for 1983.

Big Spring experienced 72 residential fires, plus 12 commercial, one trailer house, 31 auto, 158 grass and trash, two fences, three storage barns, 29 dumpsters, one city dump and nine other fires, for a total of 318.

In addition, the fire department received 61 false alarms, 24 mistaken alarms, 42 smoke scares, 21 rescue calls and 55 wash down, stand-by and other alarms, for a total of 203 in Big Spring.

In Howard County outside the city limits, the fire department responded to 19 structure fires and 40 other alarms. Howard County's 1986 monetary loss was listed at $256,900.

OAS backs new effort

WASHINGTON — The Organization of American States, with a reluctant nod from the United States, is backing a new diplomatic mission aimed at ending the conflict in Central America.

The Reagan administration has been cool to the initiative because of what Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams called "a danger of unwise compromises" which could undermine the U.S.-backed Contra guerrillas in their fight with Nicaragua's leftist government.

The Permanent Council of the OAS met in extraordinary session Thursday at the request of U.S. Ambassador Richard T. McCormack to hear an explanation from the organization's secretary general, Joao Baena Soares, of his role in arranging the diplomatic offensive.

Baena, along with U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar and the foreign ministers of eight Latin American nations, are slated to travel Jan. 17-20 to five Central American nations: El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

Brakes may be key

WASHINGTON — The collision of an Amtrak passenger train and three freight locomotives is causing federal regulators to explore whether automatic emergency brakes, already on passenger trains, also should be on freight locomotives.

Sources close to the investigation into last Sunday's accident, in which 15 passengers aboard an Amtrak train were killed and more than 170 injured, said the automatic brakes might have prevented the accident, the worst in Amtrak's history.

The devices in recent years have been phased into widespread use on Amtrak passenger trains, mainly on the busy Northeast corridor, but are not used or required on freight trains.

Railroad industry representatives have argued that the automatic brake triggering system may be suitable for passenger trains of normally 12 or fewer cars, but could create a derailment when activated on long, cumbersome freight trains of 100 or more cars.

Surrogate mom testifies

HACKENSACK, N.J. — Surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead says she had intended to give her baby to the couple who hired her to bear the child, but "something took over" in the delivery room.

"I think it was just being a mother," a tearful Mrs. Whitehead, her soft voice breaking at times, testified in Superior Court on Thursday in a case that could shape the future of surrogate motherhood.

Mrs. Whitehead testified that from her first meeting with the Sterns, she understood that she would give the couple the baby, but her feelings changed while giving birth March 27. "In the end, something took over," she said.

Lawmakers plan to aid homeless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez says he is encouraged by a $100 million administration proposal to aid the homeless because President Reagan in the past has denied there was a problem.

"Before he'd said there is no problem. Now he says there is a $100 million problem. I think that is extremely hopeful," Gonzalez said Thursday.

The San Antonio Democrat is joined by a bipartisan group of congressmen who seek to do something for the homeless in the United States.

As chairman of the subcommittee on housing and community development, he said he wants to schedule hearings on the homeless soon after the House reconvenes Jan. 20.

"We're looking for $500 million in emergency aid now because $100 million is totally inadequate after the lack of action last year and the years before," Gonzalez said in proposing a $500 million emergency package of food, shelter and other aid to homeless Americans.

Gonzalez said he was stunned to see that Reagan had included a request for $100 million in aid to the homeless in his 1988 budget.

Gonzalez on Thursday also introduced a bill that would provide $350 million in 1988 to pay for further food and shelter for the homeless.

"Since we have such bipartisan support I think it will be a very quick session and we will get it through and appropriated by the end March," he said.

"This is the most hopeful thing that has happened in six years," he said. "We've got the Republican and Democratic leadership behind it so it's possible that we could get an appropriation before the end of March."

The House package includes $170 million for emergency shelter, $100 million for family housing, $30 million for transitional housing and $50 million for new health care programs for the homeless. It also contains money to renovate government property and buildings to help the homeless.

A man bicycles down a snow-covered street in Hamburg, West Germany, Thursday. Severe winter weather has beset most of Northern Europe and part of the Soviet Union causing accidents, injuries and deaths.

'Arctic' Europe

Harsh weather causes injuries, deaths

Swedes donned longjohns on the advice of arctic survival experts, waist-deep snow isolated more than 200 Greek mountain villages, and a freezing fog forced the cancellation of scores of flights at London's Heathrow Airport.

Severe winter weather on Thursday beset much of northern Europe, the Soviet Union and northern Greece, creating road conditions that caused numerous traffic accidents, injuries and some deaths.

In Warsaw, where temperatures fell to minus 24 Thursday, salesladies in the main Centrum department stores downtown bundled up in heavy overcoats and fur hats because the room temperature was only 23 above due to heating problems, a Polish television news report said.

A freezing fog covered much of southeast and central England on Thursday, forcing Heathrow Airport officials to cancel more than 60 arrivals and departures and delay 70 other flights for one to five hours, including 15 to the United States.

Air traffic controllers reported less than 400 feet of visibility at Heathrow and Gatwick, London's two busiest airports, where movements were restricted to planes with automatic takeoff and landing systems. Other incoming planes were diverted to Luton, Stansted and Manchester, the Royal Air Force station at Northolt and to Brussels and Paris.

Air traffic apparently was back to normal this morning.

Highway pileups injured more than 50 people, police said.

Bone-numbing temperatures were recorded Thursday in the Soviet Union and across Scandinavia, with readings of minus 25 in Moscow, minus 17 in Helsinki, Finland; minus 4 in Stockholm, Sweden; and 1 above in Oslo, Norway.

Police told PAP, the official Polish news agency, that the body of a 51-year-old farmer who froze to death was found Thursday in a field near the central city of Wloclawek.

Hospital emergency rooms in Warsaw and other cities reported treating many people for broken arms and legs suffered from slipping on ice-glazed streets, PAP said.

Arctic survival experts recommended in newspaper articles that Swedes wear longjohns and warm headgear to ward off the cold. They also advised people to skip washing their faces in the morning to preserve protective facial grease.

Henning Engstrom, a private security guard patrolling outside the Soviet Embassy in Stockholm, was wearing a fur cap and two hoods, five sweaters, two coats, two pairs of mittens, two pairs of wool socks, longjohns and two pairs of trousers.

"You get used to the cold and dress accordingly. It is no problem," he said.

Fire probe continues

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Authorities investigating arson at the Dupont Plaza Hotel said they have no specific suspects even though they know how the fire was set and spread.

Justice Secretary Hector Rivera Cruz told a news conference Thursday that "it could be a week; it could be a month, too" before any arrest warrants are issued.

Rivera Cruz and Police Chief Carlos Lopez Feliciano said they called the news conference to curtail rumors that were spreading in the absence of detailed official reports about the New Year's Eve blaze that killed 96 people and injured more than 140.

"There is a lot of speculation and theorizing of facts that could in the long run hurt the investigation," Lopez Feliciano told reporters. "We want to avoid that situation."

He and Rivera Cruz said investigators were focusing on a labor dispute at the hotel, but added that union members were no more suspect hotel than management or anybody else.

Iran claims Iraq attack

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran said today its forces backed by warplanes stormed across the Shatt al-Arab waterway as part of a two-pronged offensive and pushed 2½ miles into southern Iraq, killing 5,000 Iraqis.

Iraq said the Iranians were chased out of most positions they had overrun, but retained a "foothold" on Iraqi territory. Iraq said some Iranian soldiers were trapped.

It was not immediately clear whether the attacks constituted the "final offensive" Iran has threatened to launch before spring.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the offensive was launched in the southern Shalamcheh region near Basra, Iraq's second-largest city, where the Shatt al-Arab divides the two countries.

Shamir seeks summit

TEL AVIV, Israel — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir appealed to King Hussein of Jordan for a summit meeting after he was briefed by U.S. envoy Richard Murphy, who met with the king in Amman.

Murphy, who talked with Shamir on Thursday, met today with Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin and then left for Egypt. The assistant U.S. secretary of state is on a two-week tour of the region in an effort to revitalize the Middle East peace process.

Details of Murphy's meeting with Rabin were not disclosed.

"I call on King Hussein ... to meet me face to face," Shamir said in remarks broadcast Thursday on Israel television. "We must decide that there is no alternative to direct talks."

Hussein repeated to Murphy that he wants an international peace conference to be attended by all parties concerned and the five members of the U.N. Security Council — the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France.

Monetary Fund not for Soviets

Any Soviet application for membership in the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank would be actively opposed by the Reagan administration, according to Treasury Secretary James A. Baker.

Concerned over World Bank President Barber A. Conable's Oct. 16 comment that the bank "would be happy to explore" a membership bid from Moscow, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., wrote Baker that Moscow's "record of aggression abroad and oppression at home" made it clear that Soviet membership would not be in the interest of the bank or of the United States.

"Silence on this matter can only lead to confusion about U.S. intentions and will encourage the Soviets to believe they can move forward in requesting membership," he said.

If it joined the bank, Kemp said, the USSR would distract other members from their concentration on a market-oriented system and could become the "ringleader" of an anti-democratic coalition within the bank.

His letter complained that, after Conable's comment, the administration has not said it would oppose a Soviet membership bid, but only that no bid had been made.

Baker's letter in reply said the USSR is unlikely and unwilling to comply with either the World Bank or IMF membership requirements. "The administration would oppose Soviet membership actively within their respective boards to this end," Baker added.

Kemp and Baker are to be commended, the former for asking the administration to publicly state its position, and the latter for unequivocally doing so.

The USSR, in fact, could not be a legitimate member of either financial institution. For a nation to apply for World Bank membership, it must first qualify to be an IMF member. In this connection, consider the statement of Jahangir Amuzegar, a former IMF executive director:

"It is no secret that the IMF statutes and covenants expect the Fund to promote a world of free markets, free trade and unitary exchange rates under a multilateral payments system. To allow a different course of action would place the IMF in violation of its legal mandate."

The USSR is philosophically opposed to free markets and free trade. It has no place in the IMF nor, by extension, in the World Bank.

Good deeds not enough

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I feel like I'm a reasonably good person, and I have always tried to help my fellow man whenever I could — although I don't claim to be perfect, of course. Isn't this what Christianity is all about? I guess I worry a little about whether or not I've done enough to please God. — R.I.

DEAR R.I.: Certainly a Christian will want to be a good person, because he knows that God is good and, as a follower of Jesus Christ, he should be good also. In fact, one of the characteristics of the true Christian is that he is "full of goodness" (Romans 15:14).

But a Christian is also one who knows he can never be good enough in God's eyes to earn his salvation. In other words, a true Christian is more than a person who lives a good life. As you have suggested, the real question is: "How does God see me?"

The Bible answers by reminding us that God is holy and perfect — and His standard is perfection. None of us will ever get into heaven because we have been good enough, for "there is no one righteous, not even one" (Romans 3:10). No matter how good we are, we are never good enough to win God's favor.

Does this mean we can never be saved or spend eternity with God in heaven? No! You see, God has done for us what we could never do for ourselves. He sent His only Son, Jesus Christ, to take away our sins. When we come to Him by faith He removes our sins (like a set of dirty old clothes) and robes us in His perfect righteousness. "God made him who had no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God" (2 Corinthians 5:21).

Don't trust your own good deeds. Instead, trust Christ and what He has done for you. Right now you can open your heart to Him and make your commitment to Him. With Christ in your heart, you can know that someday you will go to be with Him forever.

Today in history

Today is Friday, Jan. 9, the ninth day of 1987. There are 356 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 9, 1793, what is generally regarded as the first successful balloon flight in the United States took place as Frenchman Jean Pierre Blanchard traveled between Philadelphia and Woodbury, N.J.

On this date:

In 1788, Connecticut became the fifth state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1861, Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1942, the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff was created.

In 1945, American soldiers led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur invaded Luzon in the Philippines during World War II.

In 1964, anti-U.S. rioting broke out in the Panama Canal Zone.

In 1968, Surveyor 7 made a soft landing on the moon, ending the American series of unmanned explorations of the lunar surface.

In 1972, reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes, speaking by telephone from the Bahamas to reporters in Hollywood, said a purported biography of him by Clifford Irving was a fake.

King Hussein meets death more than once in lifetime

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — King Hussein of Jordan has a long and intimate relationship with death. In fact, he is the only head of state we know of who believes — and has stated publicly — that he died and came back to life after an out-of-body experience.

It happened in January 1984. The king, who has a chronic heart condition, began hemorrhaging suddenly and lost consciousness. His heart stopped beating.

Hussein believes he "went into another world," as he told an interviewer, adding: "I was a free spirit, floating above my own body. It was rather pleasant, really." This description jibes with those of less exalted individuals whose stories about dying and returning to life are staples of checkout-counter publications.

Hussein and the Grim Reaper are old acquaintances, dating back to the July day in 1951 when the future monarch was nearly killed by the assassin who had just murdered his grandfather, King Abdullah. "I have learned from my grandfather to scorn death," Hussein once said, "and to know the peace of the soul — something that only those who are not afraid to die know."

Hussein's most celebrated brush with death occurred in October 1958, but the 51-year-old king remembers it as if it happened last week. Two Syrian MiGs attacked the small, slow-moving plane Hussein was piloting, in what the king is convinced was a deliberate attempt by the Damascus government to kill or capture him.

He recounted the narrow escape recently in an interview with Dale Van Atta.

"We were in a small, twin-engine aircraft, just a little aircraft," the king recalled, "and I was on my way to Europe for a holiday."

On board the six-seater were Hussein's uncle, a friend, two Jordanian air force pilots — and Royal Air Force Wing Commander Jock Dalglish, the Scotsman who had taught Hussein to fly.

"Our relations with Syria were not all that close at the time," Hussein went on. "Anyway, we assumed we had all the clearances to overfly Syria. ... We arrived on the Syrian border, reported that we had arrived there and were told (by the Syrians) to continue. A little later, we were told that we didn't have clearance to overfly. ... "And then they told us we had absolutely no permission to overfly and we had to land at Damascus. It was a surprise. I contacted Amman and told them what was happening. At the same time I turned back."

"(My people in Amman) asked us to proceed to the nearest point on the Jordanian border as soon as possible. Damascus came on again and said we had to land. I told them we couldn't do that."

"Then I decided the best thing to do was to dive to a lower altitude. Maybe we could avoid the radar. ... I dropped right down to zero. We flew very, very low toward the border as fast as we could go." That was only 240 miles an hour, and two Syrian jets quickly picked them up and headed toward them. "At that point I thought this was it," the king said. "My first idea was to ram one of them ... then it would be over. But fortunately, I had with me the man who taught me how to fly."

Dalglish took the controls and turned the royal airplane's slow speed into an advantage. He put the small plane into a series of slow, tight turns and the MiGs overshoot their target repeatedly. "At one point they came in on both sides," Hussein recalled. "They nearly collided with each other, which gave us some cheer."

What the king calls "an attack on a head of state unparalleled in history" ended without harm to anyone, as the RAF veteran flew the king's plane into Jordanian air space. It also ended without war, since Hussein's radioed "mayday" calls were not picked up by his air force, which would have scrambled to their monarch's defense.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Environmental Protection Agency has bungled a program intended to save taxpayers' money by charging its employees for unauthorized long-distance calls.

The agency's inspector general reported that some $71,000 worth of unofficial toll calls were made at EPA headquarters here in the first quarter of 1985 — but only $2,900 was recovered from the offending employees. And the program didn't comply with the 1974 Privacy Act, the inspector general reported.

RELUCTANT G-MAN: Our sources in the FBI's Washington office say they were invited to join a task force to investigate possible illegal activity by Lt. Col. Ollie North at least a week before Attorney General Edwin Meese said he came to the conclusion that federal laws may have been broken.

Meese said it was this conclusion that prompted his investigation of the Iranian/contras connection. One FBI official turned down the offer because he had grown close to North while providing protection after threats were made against North's family, our sources say.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Here we go again. The usual blue-ribbon commission of fatcats has concluded that members of Congress and other high government officials are so woefully underpaid they're practically sleeping on the grates.

It seems they're having a terrible time trying to put aside any savings and send their kids to college. How awful! How unique their problem is!

Congressmen are already paid more than five times the average American worker's wages. Maybe if the pay scale were lowered, we'd get some people in the government who actually know what life is like in the cold, cruel world most of us have to live in.

Wives find husbands predictable

By DEBRA FOWLER

Killeen Daily Herald

Maybe someone can tell me what happens to men when they get married.

What happens to these supposedly strong and independent creatures who seemed to have it all together when they used to pick you up for a date?

If you ever overhear a group of women talking about their husbands, you'll find that married men seem to have quite a few common characteristics.

Look at married men when they're sick, for example.

When a man gets a cold, he jumps in bed and stays there for days, almost any woman will tell you. And the whining that comes out of his sick room is unbelievable. He wants soup to unstuff his nose; he wants ice cream to make his throat feel better; he wants extra pillows so he can watch TV.

"Every move he makes is painful — it must be, for all the moaning he does," a friend of mine said about her husband, who was, at the time, wallowing in misery with a sinus infection. "He says he doesn't sleep a wink all night — but his snoring keeps me awake. And he claims nothing tastes good — after he eats three pieces of pie."

"If I don't call him from work to check on him, he pouts," she declared. "It drives me crazy."

A man can play tackle for the Dallas Cowboys, drive an 18-wheeler 12 hours a day, work construction or work on Wall Street — it doesn't matter. When a stuffy nose strikes, the world stops.

But — their wives can have massive surgery and men still expect us to carry on business as usual.

Few married men I've ever met can keep up with their belongings. How they survived before they got married is a wonder to me.

"Have you seen my keys?" my spouse asks me almost every other day.

"Have you looked for them?" I used to respond.

"No," he'd say. "I figured that since you're always putting things away, I shouldn't waste my time looking — you probably put them somewhere."

This used to annoy me, especially when I could see his keys from where I happened to be sitting or standing. And they always were exactly where he threw them when he came through the door. After several years of pointing this out, however, I now just go get them and hand them to him. Why bother making a fuss when the next question will probably be:

"Have you seen my sunglasses? I know I left them right there."

Men seem to believe that we wives spend our leisure time rearranging their closets. Whenever they're not around, we sneak into their closets and begin hiding things — as if we don't have enough to do.

Another thing most married women don't like to do is let their husbands do the grocery shopping. A bachelor is used to shopping for decent food for himself. A married man, who usually doesn't plan the meals, isn't.

In addition to buying the roast, the chicken and the vegetables you asked him to buy, he comes home with pickled artichokes, five bags of tortilla chips, seven jars of hot sauce and five cans of sardines. My mother actually has a special shelf in her pantry for my father's impulse food buys. Whenever, he says he wants "something different," she slings the pantry door open, points to his shelf and says "have at it, the salmon balls and stuffed herring you bought last week await you."

But who's complaining? These are the things that add spice — and indigestion — to life.

Man wants past to quit haunting him

DEAR ABBY: I was raised by adoptive parents, born in the 1890s with old-fashioned ideas. Sex was a dirty word in our household, and as a result, at the age of 21 I was arrested on a morals charge. I spent three or four days in jail, then was put on six months probation and the charge was filed with the FBI. I have not been in any trouble since, but this happened 38 years ago in the state of Ohio. Don't you think that after 38 years this charge should be taken off the FBI records? I have lost a good many jobs — good jobs — over it, and I think that I have been punished enough because of this one mistake.

I have been happily married for 31 years and am desperately hoping you can help me accomplish this.

DEAR DESPERATE: Under the Freedom of Information Act, you are entitled to know if your "morals charge" record is still on file with the FBI. Send a notarized letter listing your full name, date and place of birth, and current address to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover Building, Washington, D.C. 20535. Mark on the envelope: Attention: F.O.I.A. You also must include a photocopy of your driver's license or some other form of current identification. You will be advised of your "record," if it is still in existence.

DEAR ABBY: I am an executive secretary for a department head of an oil company. Two years ago, when I started working for "Mr. John Jones," I asked him how he preferred to be addressed because I have had bosses who preferred to be addressed by their first names. He said his preference was "Mr. Jones." I had no problem with that as I am from the generation of secretaries who are accustomed to more formality in the office than is now generally the custom.

My problem is with the boss's wife — who until two weeks ago I had never met personally. (We still have not been formally introduced.) When calling the office, she would always say, "Mary, this is Mrs. Jones. Is Mr. Jones there?"

Two weeks ago my boss returned from lunch. His wife was with him. They both passed my desk on their way to his office. She said, "Hello," but he didn't introduce us. I was immediately called in for dictation. They both sat there. (Still no introduction.) When she left his office, she acknowledged me with a nod.

When she phones the office, she continues to call me "Mary," while referring to herself as "Mrs. Jones." How can I deal with this on a daily basis? I've checked out volumes of etiquette books from the library and none addresses this issue.

STEAMING IN TEXAS

DEAR STEAMING: Your boss is insensitive and rude, and so is his wife. Common sense and sensitivity are not to be found in any etiquette book. If you like your job, and the benefits outweigh the drawbacks, adjust to the situation. Don't complain to your boss. It would only cause problems for yourself.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a good one to add to your comments about smoking: Quitting the smoking habit is the easiest thing in the world. I should know; I've done it 100 times.

OLD SMOKEY

DEAR OLD SMOKEY: The only way to quit smoking is to simply quit smoking — no ifs, ands or butts. (EDITH ZITTLER)

(To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: "Dear Abby," Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Prolactin hormone has a number of effects

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I can find no information on hyperprolactinemia. And in that connection, what does the medicine, bromocriptine, have to do with prolactin? How long does one have to take that medicine? What would happen if I didn't take the pills? — L.A.D.

The pituitary gland makes the prolactin hormone, and it has a number of effects.

Its most immediate and prominent effect is to promote lactation, the production of milk in breast tissue. And by inhibiting the effects of certain sex hormones, prolactin overproduction may prevent ovulation, and hence pregnancy.

When a woman's pituitary overproduces prolactin, the level in the blood rises, and that is where we get the word, prolactinemia. With overproduction, the woman may have seepage of milk from the breast, along with a loss of periods, and, as noted earlier, infertility.

What about the bromocriptine connection? In a roundabout way, that medicine shuts down the pituitary's production of prolactin. It happens this way. The brain makes a chemical called dopamine, which in turn is responsible for stopping prolactin production in the pituitary. Bromocriptine enhances the brain's dopamine production and in that way cuts off pituitary production.

The usual course of bromocriptine medicine for a woman with your problem is up to six months. At that time, the patient is tested to see if prolactin is going to rise again, or whether more medicine is needed.

I hope you are not planning to quit your medicine on your own. All I can say is that if you stop taking the drug, your old symptoms, whatever they might have been, are likely to return.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a problem that someone once told me is called Raynaud's syndrome. What happens is the arteries going from my hand to my pinky finger seem to be shut off and the finger turns white. The only way I've found to get the circulation going again is to put the finger under hot water and massage it. This only happens when it's cold. Is this Raynaud's? It's been occurring for a year now. — C.C.

It sounds like and probably is Raynaud's.

You have it down pretty well. The arteries to the fingers (or toes in some cases) suddenly go into spasms, turning the skin blue, then white, and finally red. Is that what's happening?

Cold exposure is the stimulus for the spasms. I would be remiss in not mentioning one of the unpleasant causative factors. It can happen in conjunction with lupus, but only a few have the problem.

Besides protecting the hands from cold, you have to stop smoking if you indulge. Some find that swinging their hands in a forceful arc from head to sides, like a salute, restores circulation quickly.

It doesn't sound as though yours is a severe case. It can be for some people. Some need drugs, like nifedipine, to control things. Some find that injecting reserpine directly into the artery may give relief for long periods.

But wait a minute. You haven't even told me whether your problem has been definitely diagnosed as Raynaud's. If not, that's the first order of business. Then you can talk over some of these options if you are having a troublesome time of it.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Chicken is said to be good as part of a cholesterol-lowering diet, but shouldn't the skin be removed? — O.M.

The skin is rich in fats and is best removed if cholesterol reduction is the goal.

FOR MRS. Y.H.G. — Believe your doctor. He has given you assurance that your fibroids are not a problem. Large fibroids that block the uterine outlet may be. Those are unusual. Fibroids are growths on the uterine muscle. They are quite common. One in four women over 35 has one or more fibroids. And, as I said, they usually do not create trouble during pregnancy.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is at the same time vital to human life. For a copy of his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly," write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Missionaries choose to serve the Lord

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

At a time when most young men are cramming for exams, going to college football games and chasing girls, James Sarantis and Jim Hanson have chosen to serve the Lord.

Both say the decision was easy, in an interview this week. Sarantis, 22, and Hanson, 19, are serving in a two-year missionary program with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Their mission: "To tell people what our church believes," says Sarantis.

Both men have been called to West Texas, by the general authority of the church, from their native lands — Sarantis of Calgary, Canada (where the '88 Olympics are to be hosted) and Hanson of Calabasas, Calif.

"We don't get to choose where we go, but we can make requests," Hanson says. "I requested France, but got Big Spring," he said, with a laugh.

Sarantis says he had a feeling he would go to the U.S., but requested Canada because of the expense. "But, I'm glad I'm here."

Missionaries are a major function of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Sarantis says.

"The church admonishes all worthy males to go on a missionary," Sarantis said.

Worthiness is "having the righteous desire to live the commandments," Hanson says, explaining that such worthiness is determined through interviews with church officials.

Before the men (and women are becoming a large part of the program) go on their missions, they are sent to Provo, Utah for a three-week course where they are "trained in the basics," Hanson said.

"We learn six lessons that missionaries present to the people," Sarantis says.

The missionaries don't expect the people to come to them, so they go to the people — literally. On an average day, (during their six-day work week) the pair visits approximately 40 homes, they say. Of that number, they estimate that one or two are receptive and allow the men to share their message.

Sarantis says at first he was "apprehensive...I thought people would be adamant about their religion. The rejection can be a little despairing at times, but the times that we are able to talk to the people and change their lives for the better are the times we look forward to."

Hanson says he finds that "the people in Big Spring are friendly — even when they say no, they thank us for dropping by."

That friendlier attitude is among the differences he's experienced while in Texas, compared to his missionary service in Solvang (a small town north of Los Angeles). "There's just something different about California and Texas."

Both men say they enjoy sharing the word of God and interacting with people.

Hanson says he is benefitting from his experience.

"You really get to know yourself. I've gotten closer to the Lord and have set my priorities straight."

Along with the advantages, the two say, there are genuine sacrifices.

During their mission, the men are not allowed to return home, although they can call and correspond with their families and friends.

"This way we can really focus on our mission," Hanson said. "If we go home, then we might not want to go back and we get away from the purpose of the mission."

The loss of financial gain is another major sacrifice.

"The missions are not paid by the church, they're paid by the individual," Sarantis says. "Which costs around $8,000."

Both men agree that it's worth the sacrifices to be a missionary.

"The attributes we attain more than make up for the sacrifices," Sarantis concluded.

Church briefs

Light Company to present service

The Light Company will host a children's and adult service on Jan. 11 at 9:45 a.m. at the First Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster.

The Light Company is a ministry of Willie and Mavis Watts who chose its name because Jesus is the light of the world and they are two Watt's spreading His light into the hearts of children everywhere, according to a release from The Light Company.

The couple uses puppets, music, contests and storytelling to share their message of Christ.

Willie and Mavis Watts are from Pine River, Minnesota where he pastored a nondenominational church for 19 years. Children have always been of major interest to them, the release stated.

Pastor Gary Smith invites the public to attend.

Winter study presented to women

Betty Reagan, missionary education director, presented the first of the winter studies "New Birth...Unending Growth," at a recent meeting of the Women of the First Church of God.

The study is written by Renee Johns, associate national secretary with the WCG in Anderson, Ind.

The objective of the study, according to a release from the group, is to recognize Christ in our midst and the necessity of continual spiritual growth.

Elsie Smallwood and Renae Loy assisted the leader and read the parts of Mary and the Fishermen.

Values of the Kingdom of God do not mesh with the values of the world. The world says to be rich and powerful; Christ says to be a servant, the release stated.

Questions presented for group participation included: Have we encountered Christ in a totally unexpected way? In what ways are we influenced by the world? And what can we do to support one another in the struggle?

Spiritual life director, Renae Loy, challenged each one present to look for ways to promote Christ and His way of life in our daily contacts.

Mrs. Tim (Janet) Loy, finance director, of Natchez, Miss. was a visitor.

Loy presented the benediction.

Pastors invited to prayer clinic

Pastors and church leaders of Howard County are invited to attend Dr. Larry Lea's prayer clinic on Jan. 13 from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. at Christ Fellowship Church.

Lea is a graduate of Dallas Baptist University, Southwestern Theological Seminary and the California Graduate School of Theology. Seven years ago he began a home prayer meeting with 13 people. Through prayer, that group has grown into a church over 11,000 members, according to a release from Everett Bender.

The video prayer clinic is free and is possible through a joint effort of the Howard County Ministerial Fellowship and KWTC-TV.

For more information, contact Everett Bender at 263-0556 or 267-3767.

Local attorney to share testimony

The Mayor's Prayer Breakfast will be conducted tomorrow morning at the Homestead Inn from 8-9 a.m.

Admission is free. For those who are hungry, a continental-style breakfast will be served for $2 per person.

Lanny Hamby, local attorney and long time Big Spring resident, will be sharing his testimony.

Music will be provided pastor Carl Taylor and his wife, Sharon. Taylor is an evangelist and recording artist and has recently taken the pastorate at First Assembly of God here.

Reservations can be made by calling the Homestead Inn, 267-4361.

Salvation Army Captain recalls getting help himself as a child

LAREDO (AP) — When Francis Gary was 12 years old, he accompanied his mother to a Salvation Army center in Lafayette, La.

They weren't just curious observers or thrift-shop bargain hunters. They needed food.

"That's where I found the Lord," Gary said. "I was saved from sin when I was 12. But I didn't decide to be an officer overnight — that was a long process."

Francis Gary is now Capt. Gary, and since August he has headed the Salvation Army Corp office on Matamoros Street. He has directed Army operations in Alabama, Florida and several Texas communities since becoming an officer in 1964.

"The Army world is the same from one place to another," he said. "You're dealing with different people, but you're still dealing with need and need is the same wherever you find it."

At the Salvation Army Training School in Atlanta, Ga., he studied both business management and the Bible — mostly the Bible.

"The ministry is my life," he said. "It's difficult work, but our Lord had it much worse than we do, so we strive through his strength and his grace to be able to do what we have to do."

The close relationship of physical and spiritual need is central to the organization's philosophy.

Ron Carr, director of public relations for the Salvation Army in Texas, described the organization as "an international charitable movement organized and operated on a quasi-military model and dedicated to the love of God and the practical needs of humanity."

A Salvation Army post has been in Laredo for 65 years, but the Matamoros building is only 10 years old.

It is a clean, white, ranch-style structure.

On a recent night, a group of young and middle-aged men — their hair long, their clothes ragged, smelling of tobacco, alcohol, and dirt — waited to be admitted for a free meal and a night's lodging.

"You have to knock, man," one of them said as he rolled a cigarette.

Inside there is an admitting desk where the street people are checked for identification.

"If we admitted illegals, we would be harboring fugitives,"

Gary explains.

The transients stay the night — sometimes two or three nights — in a small dormitory room.

Women transients are not admitted to the building.

There is another dormitory for men in the Army's pre-release program. The men are prisoners released by the Department of Justice in San Antonio.

They stay for up to 120 days, and receive counseling from Gary and the program director.

The bunks in the dormitory are a bit ragged. There is the unmistakable smell of the transients.

The kitchen, like the other offices, are clean and modern.

But the tables and chairs where the men eat have the ragged look of the dormitory.

There is a large chapel, brightly lit and spotless, in which Gary conducts the Army's religious services.

The main services are on Sunday. But on Wednesday night there is a Bible study group for Santa Nino neighborhood residents. Last week's session drew 20 women and children. They were driven to and from the center in the Salvation Army bus.

Before Gary preaches on the 1st Epistle of St. John, he leads the group — which fills only a small part of the chapel — in a song from the Salvation Army Song Book:

"Sweet hour of prayer, sweet hour of prayer; That calls me from a world of care; and bids me at my father's throne; make all my wants and wishes known."

"In seasons of distress and grief; my soul has often found relief; and oft escaped the tempter's snare; by thy return sweet hour of prayer."

As Gary sings in English, his assistant sings in Spanish. On Sunday, Gary's wife accompanies the singing on the organ.

Some of the girls giggle, and Gary asks them to remember where they are.

He is dressed in his blue Salvation Army uniform with red epaulettes.

The song finished, he begins his sermon. "The word I'd like you to think about is the word fellowship," he says. "I have heard a man say that there is nothing like the fellowship among Salvation Army people — a fellowship that is ours because we are in Christ together. The blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin."

Administrative aide Barbara LeMond, left, and Legislative aid Patricia Shipton, pack office supplies of former Rep. Billy Hall, D-Laredo, as Hall's old office was vacated to make way for incoming freshman legislators prior to the beginning of next week's 70th session of the Texas Legislature. State celebration a success

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' 150th anniversary of independence celebration had its ups and downs but generally it was a success, particularly at the local level, the Sesquicentennial Commission reported Thursday.

"There was more to the Sesquicentennial than T-shirts and TV shows," Patrick Terry, commission director, told a news conference.

"There is no question the downturn of the economy had an effect on the celebrations, but the remarkable thing is that the economy did not destroy it. It came out looking well," Terry said.

The commission, which was authorized by the 1985 Legislature to coordinate celebrations of the state's 150th anniversary, will not make its final report until March.

However, Terry said Thursday that with 46 percent of the sanctioned organizations reporting, local Sesquicentennial communities and associations initiated projects with a cost value of almost $177 million.

Terry said local organizations raised $59 million to help fund the projects.

"The economic impact of these projects on local communities is a plus element not previously factored into the Sesquicentennial celebration," Terry said. "It reflects the grass roots nature of the organizational efforts in 252 of the 254 Texas counties. More significantly, it reflects the character of participating Texans, whose enthusiasm and individual efforts contributed to the enduring qualities of a peoples' celebration."

Terry pointed out that a number of projects, such as the Buffalo Bayou Revitalization Program in Houston and the Stockyard Development Project in Fort Worth, were long range fund-raising efforts with continuing community benefits.

He also pointed out several community projects that he said merited distinction.

Those include the Fredericksburg and Gillespie County organizations which had projects valued at $68,000 and raised $83,000 in funds. In Post and Garza County there were projects valued at $727,000. Funds raised totaled $632,000. Nacodoches had projects valued at $2.1 million and raised $1 million in funds. Crockett and Houston County sponsored projects valued at $3.7 million and raised $3.6 million.

State

Prison cure may be costly

DALLAS (AP) — Texas may have to spend more than $400 million on its beleaguered prison system to avoid paying a $24 million monthly fine for not meeting court-ordered reforms, Gov.-elect Bill Clements says.

However, he has hopes of easing the sting of U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's contempt order today, as he and Attorney General Jim Mattox traveled to Tyler to present various proposals to conform with the judge's dictates.

"I think what he (Justice) wants to hear from us more than anything else is a strong, firm, absolute commitment of good faith ... and in a timely fashion," Clements said. "And 'timely fashion' means that 14 years is too long."

The case has been in the courts for that long, with the approximately 38,000 inmates claiming that the nation's second-largest prison system is too crowded and does not treat prisoners properly.

On Monday, Justice said the Texas Department of Corrections hadn't lived up to agreements in an earlier settlement and gave the TDC until March 31 to clear up the problems. Fines of $800,500 per day could begin April 1 if Justice isn't satisfied with the TDC's actions.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Mattox and House Speaker Gib Lewis gathered in Clements' downtown Dallas office Thursday for a closed-door session on what to do about Justice's contempt order.

Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation alleging that the Austin State Hospital failed to adequately record the woman's head injuries.

It also claimed that doctors did not recognize her worsening condition was caused by a life-threatening blood clot pushing on her brain.

Mayfield said the $150,000 settlement should "send a message to the state hospital that every mental patient, no matter how chronically disturbed, has a value as a human being, as a mother, a father, a son or a daughter."

Board ponders HB72 rule

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education has voted to recommend that lawmakers stop forcing school districts to fail students who have more than five unexcused absences.

The absences rule is part of HB72, the 1984 public school reform act, and requires the failing grade even if students pass exams.

By a 7-5 preliminary vote, the board decided Thursday that the absences rule is not needed. If the board votes final approval to the proposal Saturday, it will go to the Legislature that convenes Tuesday.

The board, meeting as a committee Thursday, approved a long list of proposed changes in state law.

'Choker' to prison for life

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A University of Houston student said she's relieved a man known as the "choker rapist" was sentenced to life in prison.

Alison Lauer, 18, testified in the state's case against Thomas Earl Grettenberg.

Grettenberg, 34, was once sentenced to 123 years in prison on a series of rape and burglary convictions in Austin. He was sentenced to life in prison on Thursday after being convicted of burglary with intent to commit aggravated assault.

Ms. Lauer said during the four-day trial that Grettenberg used a strap to choke her from behind in her bedroom early Aug. 18.

MHMR to pay in fatal case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Mental health department has agreed to pay $150,000 to the family of an Austin State Hospital mental patient who died from a brain injury after she repeatedly was hit in the head by other patients.

The 1984 death of Rebecca Sample, 60, was ruled a homicide by the Travis County medical examiner, Dr. Robert Bayardo.

In 1985, Ms. Sample's daughter, Rebecca Mayfield of Marble Falls, filed a $550,000 suit against the

Queens fall in tourney opening round, 72-60

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

ODESSA — The Howard College Hawk-Queens got off to a rough start in the second half of the season by dropping a 72-60 decision to the Central Arizona Vaqueras in the opening round of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce Tournament of Champions.

The Vaqueras came into the contest with a 13-1 record and a number seven ranking in the nation. Their only loss was to the Australian national team. The Vaqueras played up to their billing, controlling the game start to finish.

Central Arizona set the tone of the game early, dominating with good man-to-man defense and superior rebounding. The Vaqueras led 21-11 at the 8:41 mark of the first half and it ballooned to 30-15 with 4:51 left in the half.

Then Howard made its most impressive showing of the game. HC coach Don Stevens went with his "small lineup," using four guards and one post player in a trapping press. The result — seven Central Arizona turnovers, and Howard had narrowed the lead to four at the half. Pam Franklin's 40-footer at the buzzer left Howard trailing 35-31.

Although Howard's "small lineup" got the job done in the closing minutes of the half, it would be no match for the much-taller Vaqueras in the second half. The Queens were without post players Carolyn Willand and Sophia Ish, and they were dearly missed. Central Arizona outrebounded Howard 55-37.

The Arizona team hit 11 of its first 14 shots in the second period and held a commanding 59-41 lead with 12:02 left in the game. From then on, the reserves finished Howard off.

"We really missed our big girls tonight," said Howard coach Don Stevens. "We had to go with our small lineup in the second half. We wanted to come out in the second half and set the tone by playing the first five minutes as hard as we could, but we didn't. Plus they shot the ball extremely well in the second half."

On the other hand, the Howard starters had a miserable night shooting the ball, especially leading scorer Terri Powell. The Howard starters combined for a modest 29 points.

Powell, who was averaging 14 points per game, hit just one of 14 shots. The main reason was the tight defense of Central Arizona guard Lynne Long.

Central Arizona coach Lin Laursen said her team's man-to-man defense was the key to the win. "We knew what we had to do against them and that was play good man-to-man defense," said the lady who has been the CA head coach for the last 15 years. "We very seldom play man-to-man defense but we knew Howard had some good shooters."

One Queen that did have a good shooting game was freshman guard Leslie Gooch. The 5-4 ball-of-fire hustled and hustled her way to a game-high 23 points and four rebounds. She came off the bench and sunk 10 of 16 field goal attempts.

"They have a good team," said Stevens of Central Arizona. "But we sure made them look good too. Leslie Gooch played a great game. If she had any help at all we might have had a chance."

Central Arizona was led by 6-4 post player Tammy Leikem who scored 21 points, got 12 rebounds and blocked two shots. Although CA held a big height advantage, its next two leading rebounders were guards. Greta Naranjo and Jackie Joiner each got 10 boards.

Guard Pam Franklin played a strong game for Howard, getting a team-high seven rebounds and three steals. Trena Jackson scored 10 points, all in the first half.

Howard, 12-6 for the season, will play Panola today at two. Central Arizona will play South Plains, a 78-74 winner over Panola. In other tournament action it was Hobbs, N.M. Junior College over Temple 83-82 in overtime and Odessa defeated Western Oklahoma 80-56.

Chiefs fire coach

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Eleven days after the Kansas City Chiefs made their first trip to the NFL playoffs since 1971, owner Lamar Hunt made the surprise announcement that Coach John Mackovic had been fired.

Hunt, who has now fired five head coaches since 1974, said at a hastily called news conference at Arrowhead Stadium Thursday night that Mackovic was "a very fine man" but that the club lacked the right chemistry.

"There is no perfect formula for becoming the best in football," Hunt said. "We'd all like to think we have the right answers. In this case, I have to make a judgment, and I have reluctantly concluded that a head coaching change is necessary at this time."

Hunt said there would be no immediate decision on Mackovic's replacement.

However, there was speculation that Frank Gansz, the Chiefs' popular special-teams coach who resigned Wednesday, and longtime defensive coordinator Walt Corey would be considered for the job.

After reading a statement, Hunt declined to answer questions from reporters.

Mackovic was told late Thursday afternoon during a meeting with Hunt, team President Jack Steadman and General Manager Jim Schaaf that he was fired.

The firing apparently came as a shock to Mackovic. He had appeared relaxed and confident after meeting with Hunt, Steadman and Schaaf for two hours Wednesday to discuss Gansz' departure and Mackovic's plans for the Chiefs.

A woman who answered the telephone at Mackovic's home Thursday night said he would have no comment. A club spokesman said Mackovic would probably hold a news conference in the next few days.

Ironically, Mackovic was thought to have saved his job when the Chiefs won their last three regular-season games and made the playoffs with a 10-6 record. They were defeated by the New York Jets 35-15 in the AFC wild-card game Dec. 28.

Mackovic, 43, compiled a 30-34 regular-season record in four seasons at Kansas City. He had one year remaining on his contract "which will be honored as he considers his future career plans," Hunt said.

The play of the special teams and the defense made up for the league's worst offense — for which Mackovic had sole responsibility — and carried the Chiefs to their first playoff appearance in 15 years.

Kicker Nick Lowery said the players were very upset with Gansz' resignation and several met with club officials at Lowery's home Thursday afternoon to express their displeasure.

All-Pro safety Deron Cherry said when the two-hour meeting ended, speculation was that Mackovic would actually gain a two-year extension on his contract.

"After we left the meeting, I thought things were pretty positive," Cherry said. "The players expressed the view that we didn't want to have a total overhaul of the coaching staff. ... We were more concerned to get Frank back and leave it up to them to find a way to get him back."

The highly motivated coach's special teams blocked five punts and three field goals and deflected two punts in 1986. The special teams scored all the touchdowns in the Chiefs' 24-19 victory over Pittsburgh that put them in the playoffs.

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Rick Fehr scrambled out of the trees with a 5-under-par 67 and took a two-stroke lead in the second round of the Tournament of Champions.

Mac O'Grady, who shared the first-round lead, shot a 72 that left him two shots back at 137.

Spaniard wins title

BILBAO, Spain (AP) — Alfredo Evangelista of Spain won the vacated European heavyweight boxing title with a fifth-round knockout of Andre Van den Oetelaar of the Netherlands.

Evangelista, 32, sent a hard right hook to the face of his 32-year-old opponent, who went down for the count of eight midway through the decisive round of the scheduled 12-round bout.

Paterno honored again

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, whose Nittany Lions captured the national championship with an unbeaten season, was named Division I-A Coach of the Year by his fellow coaches.

Paterno becomes the first four-time winner of the award, decided annually by a vote of American Football Coaches Association. The association is holding its annual meeting in San Diego this week.

NCAA cuts scholarships

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A group of athletic directors, in an unexpected show of defiance, rebuffed the Presidents Commission Thursday and refused to withdraw several key items from the NCAA convention, then voted to cut football scholarship limits from 30 per year to 25.

The reform-minded commission has called a special convention next June to consider what many think will be drastic measures to de-emphasize college sports. The move by the athletic directors was clearly an attempt to establish that they should have a voice in the June meeting.

"I think this sends a message to the presidents," said Georgia Tech athletic director Homer Rice. "They need to listen to us, the athletic directors, before they set up the agenda for the special convention."

The NCAA delegates had a full agenda to deal with Thursday and were hoping to conclude all their business late Friday afternoon.

The presidents opened Thursday morning's business session of the 81st annual regular NCAA convention by asking sponsors to withdraw several cost-cutting items so they can be "dealt with more directly" at the June meeting.

But the athletic directors, led by Rice, challenged the move to withdraw on the first item, the football scholarship cuts. Significantly, it was the first time the powerful Presidents Commission has failed to have its way on policy or convention items since being created in 1984.

By a vote of 51-40, delegates from the major football powers decided not to withdraw. They then proceeded to approve the measure, which goes into effect Aug. 1, 1988.

Former NFL player back on track circuit

NEW YORK (AP) — Hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah has returned to track and field just like he left it about 4½ years ago — supremely confident.

"I don't know whether it's being cocky or brash or what, but I was the best — and I'm still the best," Nehemiah said Thursday.

"Consistency has been my ace in the hole. And I will prevail."

"I've always been consistent. I win races. I know they (opposing hurdlers) can't beat me."

"If I'm not respected in any other sport, I've earned respect in hurdling."

Nehemiah earned his most respect in hurdling between 1979-1982, when he was ranked No. 1 in the world in the 110-meter high hurdles, before deciding to play professional football and signing with the San Francisco 49ers of the NFL.

During that period, he broke the world record three times — lowering it to 13.16 seconds in 1979, to 13.00 later that year and to 12.93 in 1981, a mark that still stands — and won 35 of 39 outdoor races.

Indoors, he also set the world indoor best in the 60-yard — or 55-meter — hurdles of 6.82 in 1982, and that year, in his final indoor campaign, he was unbeaten in eight races.

He still owns five of the six fastest clockings indoors and five of the seven fastest times outdoors.

Last July 16, after he and his attorney, Ron Stanco, had gone through much litigation, Nehemiah was reinstated for track and field competition by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world governing body for the sport — after they had signed papers stating that Nehemiah would not play football again.

About three weeks later, on Aug. 6, Nehemiah made a sparkling comeback, winning the 110 hurdles in 13.48 at Viareggio, Italy.

Although the time was far off his world record, Nehemiah was very satisfied.

RENALDO NEHEMIAH
...back on track

For one thing, he had suffered a tear in his left Achilles' tendon about two weeks before the race. Secondly, he never has run faster than 13.31 at Viareggio — "even when I was in good health, because that track has a very hard surface and is difficult to run on," he said.

And finally, "there were so many doubters ... they didn't think I could run under 14 seconds," Nehemiah recalled.

That race began and ended Nehemiah's season, because the Achilles' injury prevented him from competing again in 1986.

Nehemiah said he now is healed and ready to resume running indoors. He will open his extensive indoor campaign Jan. 16 in the Sunbelt Invitational at Los Angeles, the first meet of the Mobil Grand Prix season, and plans running about 12 or 13 meets, including the inaugural World Indoor Championships at Indianapolis March 6-8.

"I was never No. 2 and I'm not No. 2 now," Nehemiah said. "I'm still the guy to beat. The incentive is for me to see how close I can be to the old me."

New column coming

Beginning Sunday, the Herald will offer a new feature — an outdoors column written by H. Boyce Hale of Big Spring.

Hale, who has lived in Howard County since 1929, when he was 8 years old, has been a sports and outdoors enthusiast for almost 50 years.

The 1938 graduate of Forsan High School retired less than two years ago from his position as office manager for the T.H. Russell Co., an oilpatch construction business.

Although he served as a high school and college basketball referee for nearly 40 years, Hale says his major hobbies always have been hunting and fishing, with big game hunting his specialty.

Hale noted he has hunted in Alaska, Canada, Colorado and New Mexico as well as Texas. He added that he has fished in fresh and salt water in several states plus Canada.

His column — named Outdoors Trails — will include reports on all types of outdoor activities such as camping, hiking and sightseeing in addition hunting and fishing.

Although he occasionally will report on out-of-state trips made by himself and other local sportsmen, he said he particularly plans to emphasize what's available within weekend trip distances of Big Spring.

To help him tell about such activities, area sportsmen are encouraged to contact Hale to report on their successes, failures and unusual experiences.

He may be contacted by mail sent to Sterling City Route, Box 157-F; by telephone, at 267-6957; or by leaving messages at Big Spring sporting goods stores. He said he'll appreciate hearing from you if you have a good tale to tell.

You can expect to find his column in the Herald each Sunday.

No he's not Spud; he's Dennis Rhodes

Howard College Hawks point guard Dennis Rhodes, a former Bryan High School star, has emerged as Howard's top playmaker this season. The 5-6 Rhodes is Howard's leading assist man.

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

If quickness and heart rather than feet and inches were in the game program, then Howard College Hawks' point guard Dennis Rhodes' name would get oohs and ahhs.

Instead, the oohs and ahhs go to the 6-9s and 6-7s, and everybody feels sorry for the little Hawks, with their 5-6 point guard. And then the game starts. All of the sudden the fans change gears to, "My grandmother's faster than that guy. That big dope looks like he's lost."

Rhodes, meanwhile, is dribbling like a no nonsense Harlem Globetrotter, feeding his teammates points on a platter, and playing defense so larcenous it should be outlawed. He's quick, smart, unrelenting and sneaky, and if he was guarding you, you'd be well advised to get rid of the ball, pronto.

Offensively, Rhodes is the quarterback. In his hands the ball is like an obedient yoyo. He bounces in the backcourt, dribbling with one hand and directing traffic with another, pointing this way and that way to his teammates, who do as they're told. When he likes what he sees, he whips the ball to an open Hawk, thus igniting the Hawks' offense.

Rhodes can score as well. In the season opening win over Garden City (Kansas), he scored 21. Against Tyler he went nuts, scoring 26 points in 17 minutes before banging up his shoulder. The injury put him in street clothes for a few games, and it plagued him for the rest of the first semester.

Hawks at Kilgore this afternoon

The Howard College Hawks begin the second season this afternoon at 4 p.m. when they play Tyler Junior College in the opening round of the Kilgore College Classic in Kilgore.

The point is, a healthy Dennis Rhodes can score points. But for Hawks' coach Larry Brown, points from his point guard are pure gravy.

"He doesn't have to score a point. When you look at our team on the floor, we've got five cylinders. It's like Dennis, he's got to push all the cylinders. If Dennis doesn't get his cylinder going the car won't start," Brown said.

Rhodes played for Brown on two state championship teams at Bryan High School, and coach and player understand one another.

"Sometimes I don't even have to tell him things — he knows what I'm thinking before I think it. I wanted to get him here, because he knows how to win and he knows how to pay the price. Sometimes he gets frustrated like me, because we don't play the kind of defense he and I have been used to," Brown said.

As his coach said, the defensive letdowns bother Rhodes.

"Sometimes we're just not putting out the defensive effort that we can. The losses we have, it's just too many. We all have to do our job. Playing Midland and San Jacinto, they're better than us, but we matched up with them good in the first half but had lapses in the second half.

"On defense, you have to want the ball. That's what's wrong with our defense. We're kind of laying back and we're not really getting down and denying them and playing the hard defense," Rhodes said.

Coach and point guard obviously have high standards. Anyone who has seen the Hawks play this year knows they play pretty good defense. Though the games are high scoring, it's more because of the fast pace than lazy defense. Rhodes, who's partly responsible for the frenzied clip, can't help but remind some fans of another 5-6 basketball player as he jets up and down the court.

"Little kids come up and ask me if I'm Spud Webb. I tell them, 'No, I'm not Spud. I'm not with the Atlanta Hawks, I'm not a pro athlete,'" Rhodes said, laughing.

"It's nice that you are compared to somebody like that, but then again a person has to be his own person, to be himself. People have to see you for what you are."

Foremost among Rhodes goals is good grades. At Bryan, Rhodes once failed three classes, which forced him to miss 25 games.

"I realized, and I take them seriously all the time. Every time I see my books I think about that situation. If I'm satisfied with my school work then I kind of let basketball come," said Rhodes, who made a 3.2 last year as a freshman at Paul Quinn Junior College. He's majoring in business administration at Howard, and is considering going into banking or accounting.

It's no secret that Rhodes came to Howard to reunite with Brown. The two have a friendship that transcends the usual coach-player relationship — in fact, if Brown needs a babysitter, Rhodes is a likely candidate.

Rhodes said, "He understands me and I understand him. I'm pretty close to him as a person. I've been with him a while, so that makes him a special part of me and me a special part of him."

Brown feels just as strongly about Rhodes.

"He and I are awfully close, and I hope we stay close through the years, not just because of basketball, but because of life. Dennis is the type of kid you'd kind of like your own son to grow up like. He'll be successful later in life, because he's got that successful attitude."

"I hope he gets a chance to play somewhere (next year), and I think he will if someone will discard that size factor and just take him on abilities," Brown said.

Rhodes should be fit after a much needed Christmas break, and according to his coach, he returned in the best condition of his teammates. He's happy, healthy and ready to win ballgames for the Hawks.

"We try to make things fun for everybody," Rhodes said. "You know, it's hard work, but you try to make it fun too. Getting along with the players on my team, that's the most important thing. If you don't have that team unity, it slows the team down," Rhodes said.

The team does appear to have that unity. And Rhodes, as nice a young man as your likely to find anywhere, is a big reason.

Jordan soars; Bulls win

By The Associated Press
Michael Jordan says he's not a one-man team, but don't tell that to the Portland Trail Blazers.

"I may have been a one-man team earlier in the season, but now we've gotten to our act together, and when you look at (Charles) Oakley's 16 points and 16 rebounds and (Brad) Sellers' 15 points and 10 rebounds, nobody can accuse me of being a one-man show," Jordan said Thursday after scoring 53 points to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 121-117 NBA victory over the Trail Blazers Thursday night.

And scoring wasn't all he did. Jordan also handed out five assists, grabbed four rebounds, blocked two shots and had three steals.

NBA

"You can't just run at him when you get the ball," Portland Coach Mike Schuler said of Jordan. "He'll just go right around you. But we had no choice (but) trying to double- and triple-team him."

Jordan took advantage of the extra attention, passing off to Sellers, Oakley and John Paxson for six key points.

In other NBA games Thursday, it was Cleveland 103, Los Angeles Clippers 93; Houston 110, Indiana 96; Utah 107, Los Angeles Lakers 101; and Seattle 115, Golden State 108.

Chicago moved ahead to stay 102-101 when Jordan hit two free throws with 6:08 left in the game. He then drove to the basket for another two points.

After Portland's Jim Paxson

nected on a reverse layup and finished off his spree with a free throw to give the Bulls a 117-11 edge with 1:50 remaining.

In all, the acrobatic Jordan hit 20 of 34 field goal attempts and was 13 of 16 from the free throw line.

Jordan's previous regular-season high was 50 points on Nov. 1 against New York. Last April, he scored 63 points in a playoff game against the Boston Celtics.

Kiki Vandeweghe led the Blazers with 35 points.

Jazz 107, Lakers 101

In Salt Lake City, Karl Malone scored 11 points in the final period and Thurl Bailey tallied Utah's last three baskets as the Jazz snapped the Lakers' eight-game winning streak. The victory also ended Utah's three-game losing string.

Two field goals by center Kent Benson in the final 43 seconds of the first half gave the Jazz the lead for good, the last basket coming off one of John Stockton's franchise-high 22 assists.

Bailey led the Jazz with 29 points, while Magic Johnson had 25 for the Lakers.

Rockets 110, Pacers 96

Ralph Sampson wasn't satisfied even though he was a big factor in leading the Rockets over the Indiana Pacers in Houston.

"I'm not overall happy. I played a good first half but had only one point in the second half," Sampson said. "I got some rebounds and played some decent defense out there. I'm giving it all I got, but I was getting tired at the end."

Sampson finished with 16 rebounds — 10 in the first half — to go along with his 17 points.

"What impressed me was how he sank a free throw, Jordan con-got back into the game defensively," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said of Sampson. "He kept us in the game the first three quarters."

Lewis Lloyd led Houston with 21 points, while Indiana's Wayman Tisdale took game with 24 points.

Cavaliers 103, Clippers 93
In Richfield, Ohio, guards Ron Harper and John Bagley scored 24 and 20 points, respectively, as Cleveland handed the visiting Clippers their 14th straight defeat. The Clippers have lost 26 of their last 27 games.

"This one hurts," Clippers forward Michael Cage said. "It feels like we're getting deeper and deeper into a mental thing, like 'When are we going to win?'"

Behind 51-44 at halftime, Cleveland took the lead as Bagley scored 10 points and Harper added nine in the third quarter.

The victory snapped the Cavaliers' four-game losing streak.

Cage led the Clippers with 20 points, including 15 in the final quarter.

SuperSonics 115, Warriors 108

Dale Ellis tied his career high with 35 points to lead visiting Seattle over Golden State in Oakland.

The Warriors missed 22 free throws in the game, including seven in the final 2½ minutes.

Ellis, in his fourth pro season, also scored 35 points on Nov. 25 against the Los Angeles Clippers.

Golden State was led by guards Eric Floyd and Chris Mullin with 23 and 22 points, respectively. Mullin scored 19 of his points in the first second half.

Arkansas 79, Texas 62
The Arkansas Razorbacks have been working on their defense and the Texas Longhorns found out that the work has paid off.

The Razorbacks, playing without head coach Nolan Richardson on the bench, rolled to a 79-62 victory over Texas in the only Southwest Conference basketball game played Thursday night.

All SWC teams will be idle tonight and a full schedule is on tap Saturday. Houston will be across town at Rice and Texas A&M visits Texas Christian in Saturday afternoon games. In evening games, Texas will be at Baylor and Arkansas visits Texas Tech.

Richardson was with his daughter, Yvonne, in the University of Minnesota hospital where is battling leukemia.

Arkansas' defense concentrated on stopping Patrick Fairs, who came into the game averaging 18 points, and Raynard Davis, who averaged 15.9 prior to the game. They limited Fairs to 14 and held Davis, who scored three on free throws, without a basket from the floor.

LUBBOCK (AP) — An NCAA document released to a Lubbock television station charges Texas Tech University made illegal offers, cash payments and provided meals and clothing to recruits and their families.

The letter released Wednesday was presented to Texas Tech in September and alleged 25 recruiting violations by the school's football program. The letter said the infractions occurred between 1982 and 1984.

In October, KAMC-TV asked the school to reveal the contents of the document under the Texas Open Records Act, but Texas Tech refused.

"The attorney general ruled that on KAMC's request, the letter be released," said Bea Zeek, a university spokeswoman.

Texas Tech officials were to respond to the NCAA inquiry in November, but that deadline was extended to February. The university will complete their response next month, Ms. Zeek said.

University officials originally said no current players or coaches were involved in the charges. However, the NCAA document alleges a Tech player gave false or misleading information to investigators.

Many of the alleged infractions center around the recruitment of Converse Judson standouts Chris Pryor and Chip Lambert. The two San Antonio athletes signed with the Red Raiders in February 1984. Neither player attends Texas Tech now.

According to the letter, Pryor alleged an assistant coach and three boosters gave cash and use of a rental car to him and Lambert during recruiting.

Richmond sinks Robinson and Navy

By The Associated Press
The Richmond Spiders seem to have David Robinson's number — and it's a single digit.

After scoring in double figures for 76 consecutive games, Navy's 7-foot-1 David Robinson got caught in the Spiders' web again Thursday night and was held to eight points as the 15th-ranked Midshipmen blew an 11-point lead in the final seven minutes and were upset by Richmond 64-62.

College

The last time Robinson failed to hit double figures was an eight-point effort against Richmond on March 9, 1984.

The loss was Navy's first in 17 Colonial Athletic Association games dating back to a 67-61 loss to Richmond last January and it also was the Mids' first home setback in almost two years.

No. 1 UNLV 89, San Jose State 77
At Las Vegas, Freddie Banks and Armon Gilliam each scored 28 points as Nevada-Las Vegas ran its record to 13-0. The Rebels broke the game open in the last five minutes after San Jose State, led by Ricky Berry's 28 points, gave them all they could handle for most of the game and trailed by only one point with 7:11 remaining.

No. 3 North Carolina 98, Maryland 65

Maryland Coach Bob Wade had nothing but praise for Carolina freshman J.R. Reid but Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith is still waiting for the 6-foot-10 center to mature.

Reid scored 19 points and Kenny Smith had 18 as North Carolina ran its winning streak to 10 games in its Atlantic Coast Conference opener.

No. 4 Indiana 79, Michigan State 60
At East Lansing, Mich., Indiana's Steve Alford scored 22 of his 33 points in the second half. A 15-foot jumper by Alford with 9:29 remaining forged a 51-51 tie and Indiana, 11-1, outscored the Spartans 28-9 the rest of the way. Alford had 13 points during the spurt and made seven of 10 shots in the second half.

No. 6 Purdue 85, Northwestern 67
"We wanted to come out and get them running with us," Purdue Coach Gene Keady said. "It worked in the first half."

At Evanston, Ill., Purdue, 11-1, built a 21-point halftime lead and was never threatened, although Northwestern's Shon Morris scored 19 of his season-high 27 points in the second half.

No. 19 Kansas 67, No. 8 Temple 64
"I think I have the ability to at least change situations in the game," Kansas' 6-11 Danny Manning said after the Jayhawks posted their 40th straight home court triumph.

Manning hit his first three-point goal in three tries this season and made eight of nine field goal attempts as Kansas snapped Temple's 11-game winning streak. Manning scored 15 of his 17 points in the
