The Rev. T. J. Hoover, 73-year-old retired minister, was killed while on his way to church at El Campo when a motor car passenger train struck his light coupe. Buddy Boston, 19, of Carbondale, Tex., a farm youth, died in a hospital of injuries suffered when an automobile struck him near his home. The driver was exonerated.

Three Mexican cotton pickers, en route home to Weslaco from Mississippi fields, were killed near Teague. They were Lorenzo Sausedo, 24; Primitivo Ramos, 12, and Gregorio Castro, 40. Three others were critically injured and 30 received minor hurts when two trucks collided. CONTACT WITH ABDUCTOR REPORTED

FIFTH DAY IN KIDNAP HUNT IS REACHED

FEARS ARE EXPRESSED THAT MRS. STOLL WILL BE SLAIN

(By The Associated Press)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 15.—The fifth day, the most portentous for Alice Speed Stoll since she was kidnaped, brought the belief today that the family has established contact with the abductor.

Those in a position to know agreed that the fifth day played an important part in the $50,000 ransom note. Fears have been expressed that the kidnaper intended to kill the young society matron if at that time he had not received the ransom and made his way to safety.

No Appeal Made

With the case at this critical stage, it was pointed out significantly that Sunday was the first day since the kidnaping last Wednesday to pass without an appeal by radio to the kidnaper. The ransom money has been dispatched to Nashville, apparently to be called for there or forwarded elsewhere.

With all the law forces of the nation, state, county and city massed in a hunt for the wealthy young victim, the primary consideration was still for her safety—coming before making an arrest or even establishing a case.

Most promising of the clues run down by the officers today seemed to be that suggested by the reported sighting of a woman who looked like Mrs. Stoll in Warren county half way between Louisville and Nashville. It was in this direction that Stoll drove furiously last Friday.

Honeycombed With Caves

This section of Kentucky is honeycombed with caves. Beneath every hill and opening into every valley, they lie in hundreds. The region is wild and sparsely settled.

Some investigators agreed that Mrs. Stoll—if still alive, despite be-

POSSE HUNTS FOR THREE FUGITIVES

SHERMAN, Oct. 15 (AP)—Four automobile loads of Dallas officers came to Sherman early today to join a posse of county and city officers who spread a net around the west part of the county in a hunt for D. M. Hood and his two sons, Carl and Clifford, who last week abducted Jack Rapp, McAllen deputy.

The trio, after having eluded officers of Texas and Oklahoma since Thursday night when they released Rapp, appeared yesterday near Sherman and kidnaped a Sherman youth who was squirrel hunting. They tied him to a tree with bailing wire and took his rifle and cartridges.

Then, they burglarized a house in the same vicinity, obtaining additional weapons, ammunition and clothing.

Two Autos Stolen Here Sunday Night

Two automobiles were stolen here Sunday night, police were informed.

A 1929 Chevrolet coupe owned by Miss Margaret Ballard, 1802 Avenue M, was taken from the rear of that address, and a 1933 Chevrolet coupe owned by Archie Bahm, 2435 Twenty-second street, from near Main street and Ave J. Bahm's automobile bore Michigan license plates.

Indicative of frequent and widespread stealing of automobiles, routine reports from the National Automobile Theft bureau at Dallas to the police department this morning showed 17 thefts in Texas.

A new Ford V-8 coach found late last week near Lubbock was stolen in Dallas, while the owner, L. W. Kemper, whose address was not given, was visiting there, the auto theft bureau reported to the sheriff's department. Plates on the Ford had been stolen from a Dallas county Buick.

Twelve Hundred Miners Threaten Mass Suicide Unless Pay Is Boosted

"WE ARE DETERMINED TO DIE—FORGET ABOUT US—GOODBYE TO OUR CHILDREN," STRIKERS DECLARE IN PIT; COFFINS ARE ORDERED

(By The Associated Press)

PECS, Hungary, Oct. 15 (AP)—Long hours of silence from those that were left of 1,200 coal miners who threatened mass suicide in a black mine pit 1,000 feet under ground caused fears for the worst this afternoon.

"We are determined to die . . . forget about us . . . goodbye to the children."

Coffins Requested

This, together with a request for 345 coffins, was the last that had been heard from them. That was early this morning.

At 2 p. m. government officials wished to send troops to the bottom of the pit to force the strikers to the surface at the point of bayonet and gun, and put an end to their threats of self-elimination unless wage demands of $3.50 a week are met.

But the fact that the mine elevator holds only 16 men thus far had prevented the government from taking any steps, since authorities feared the famined and enraged miners might attempt to butcher the soldiers with pickaxes.

Terrible scenes were reported from the dark subterranean chasm where hunger striking miners now have endured 96 hours of steady self-confinement because mine owners refused to give them more than two days employment weekly and to pay more than $2.

Complications Feared

The government hesitated to force the company owning the mine, in which Austrians and Britishers are heavily invested, to meet the miners' demands, fearing it might lead to complications with foreign governments. It would also lead, authorities feared, to similar strikes for wage increases among Hungarian miners throughout the country.

The villagers, tense and excited, interpreted this to mean that the threatened mass suicide — without precedent in capital-labor contro-

River Bills Pushed

Sponsors of bills to curb the devastating flood waters of the Colorado and Brazos rivers and convert the streams into servants of the people by turning their energy to useful purposes sought prompt action in the Texas legislature today.

Public hearings have been called by committees of both houses to discuss the Colorado river bill. It would set up a state agency to complete a dam in the Colorado river above Austin with the aid of a $4,500,000 P. W. A. loan and supervise its operation after completion.

Would Remit Taxes

The Brazos river bill would lend state help to the Brazos river conservation and reclamation district by remitting certain state taxes to be used as a basis for a federal loan and grant of $50,000,000 for a gigantic flood control project. The Brazos river was approved Friday by the house conservation and reclamation committee and has been placed on the house calendar. Its

MRS. ROOSEVELT TO MAKE CAMPAIGN ADDRESSES FOR FRIEND IN NEW YORK

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced today she would make five campaign speeches in New York, her home state, urging the election of her old friend, Mrs. Daniel O'Day, as congresswoman-at-large.

The decision by Mrs. Roosevelt to take the stump shatters all precedent for the wife of a president. Her husband has held strictly aloof from congressional campaigns.

Mrs. Roosevelt announced also that she would step back into her old role of New York financial chairman under Mrs. O'Day for the next few weeks.

The president's wife explained that Mrs. O'Day was her chief in New York Democratic politics for thirteen years.

YOUNG WORKER CONFESSES TO CRIME

LABORER SAYS CHILD THROWN INTO FIRE AFTER SHE FELL

(By The Associated Press)

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Police said today that Lawrence Stone, husky young laborer, had confessed throwing 5-year-old Nancy Jean Costigan into a huge apartment house furnace.

A tiny gold ring, a child's wristwatch and a few blackened bones were removed from the furnace yesterday after the six-foot, oil-fed flames had been turned off. They were all that remained.

Assault Denied

A trail of blood through a basement maze was interpreted by police as mute testimony of a brutal assault, but Stone's confession, as announced by Chief Inspector Michael I. Silverstein, said the girl was hurt in a fall.

Stone, discharged handyman at the apartment house, was quoted as confessing he had been playing with the child in the basement and had hit her with her rubber ball. She fell, he said, striking her head on the concrete floor.

Then she "turned blue."

Stone started to carry Nancy Jean upstairs, the confession continued, but became panic-stricken. He threw her into the flames.

Blood smeared on his clothes led to the arrest of Stone, who is 24. He insisted during hours of questioning that he knew nothing of the slaying.

Two Seen Together

Police said he explained that he got the blood on his clothes while helping to turn upright a police patrol which had been in a collision on its way to the apartment house. But, Inspector Silverstein said, a hall man had noticed Stone's blood-flecked necktie before the slaying was discovered.

A tenant of the building said she had seen Stone and the child to-

ASSAULT CHARGED IN AFFRAY HERE

A charge of aggravated assault was filed against R. A. Smith, 31, of 404 Ninth street, in county court this morning as a result of an altercation, in which police made two arrests, Sunday afternoon in the 1300-block Avenue H.

Smith was charged with striking John McElroy, son of the operator of the Little hotel, in that block, with an automobile jack. Erving McElroy, the father, signed the complaint, drawn by Hugh Anderson, assistant county attorney.

Police arrested Smith and Ollie Sawyer, 26, of Lubbock in investigation of the altercation, in which they said Smith, Sawyer, the McElroys and a negro porter participated.

John McElroy, who suffered a head injury, and Sawyer received medical treatment.

Smith was released on bond Sunday after being transferred to county custody. Sawyer remained in city jail this morning in lieu of payment of a $10 fine, imposed after he pleaded guilty of fighting.

WAR CHIEF DIES

Raymond Poincare, the last of France's four great World war chiefs, who died in Paris early today.

DEATH CLAIMS POINCARE

WAR-TIME PRESIDENT OF FRANCE DIES AT AGE OF 74 TODAY

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Oct. 15—Raymond Poincare, one of the last of France's great World war figures, died quietly at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

The war-time president and "savior of the franc" ten years later, was 74 years old.

Shock Speeds Death

The shock of the Marseille assassinations may have hurried the end. M. Poincare grieved over the disastrous event, for he knew King Alexander well and Louis Barthou was his life-long friend.

Death came at his home here after a short illness which doctors thought was not serious. The elderly statesman had expected to leave shortly on his annual winter trip to the Riviera.

Although virtually in political retirement since he resigned as premier in 1929, Poincare had just been reelected to a departmental council seat after a spectacular physical comeback. Doctors two years ago gave him up for lost.

"He was just worn out," they said today.

Voice Stilled

All last night his wife and friends watched with him. He was conscious but an extension of his paralysis stilled his voice. He died in a silent room as a cold and windy rainstorm rattled the windows of his Paris home.

Poincare's last written words constituted a newspaper article he had dictated about Barthou. He worked

TESTIFIES FOR OWN DEFENSE AT HEARING

GERMAN SAYS HE WAS AT HOME THE NIGHT OF LINDY KIDNAP

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann testified before Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer in supreme court, Bronx, today that he was at his East 222nd street home in the Bronx the night of March 1, 1932, the night the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped.

Asked by his counsel whether he recalled "the first day of March, 1932," Hauptmann testified without hesitation that he remembered taking his wife, Anna, who preceded him on the stand, home from a Bronx lunchroom where she worked that night.

"Remained At Home"

He remembered clearly, also, he said, taking her to work that morning.

The prisoner said he called at the bakery between 6 and 7 p. m., the night of the kidnaping, had supper there, and went home with his wife, remaining at home that night.

James M. Fawcett, defense counsel, completed his direct examination of the witness shortly before 1 o'clock, and a recess was taken until 2 p. m.

Opposes Extradition

DOCTOR ASKS FOR EXECUTED MEN FOR EXPERIMENTS

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 15. (AP)—A request that he be permitted to attempt to resuscitate executed criminals in the interests of science was made today to the governors of Arizona, Colorado and Nevada by Dr. Robert E. Cornish, who successfully revived a clinically killed dog in experiments to restore life.

Dr. Cornish, who put a mongrel dog to death in his laboratory last April 13 and revived the animal, asked the governors' cooperation in carrying out his proposed experiments.

Should such permission be granted the convict, if revived, would be free, but he added the prisoner probably would consent to serving a life term.

In his letters to the governors, Dr. Cornish declared he would not proceed without the consent of the prisoner, his attorney or relatives.

Balance Yourself To Achieve Grace

Albertina Rasch, whose dancers are famous on the stage and in motion pictures, recommends this exercise to reduce the legs and develop balance and poise. From the deep lunging position (above), the legs are pulled together and the body is raised to a standing position.

NEA Service Staff Writer

Balance and poise—how fortunate are the women who possess these two valuable assets! Yet many girls go on, year after year, caring for the skin and hair, but neglecting the very things that are the fundamentals of real beauty.

Think of a dozen women whom you know. Which are the most charming, the nicest guests and most gracious hostesses? The ones with poise and balance, of course. Then let that be the keynote to your own resolutions in the name of beauty. Make up your mind to improve your carriage, to acquire physical balance, and poise will come more easily.

If you stand awkwardly, or appear ill at ease with strangers and walk as though you had lead in your shoes, promise yourself to do something about these defects before they become too deep-seated to correct. Remember to breathe deeply when you feel slightly embarrassed. Try to forget yourself when you're with a group. And then learn to do exercises that improve posture loosen up tense muscles and make you walk in a light, graceful manner.

Exercises are most pleasant when done to music. Turn on the radio or the victrola and do your dozen-for-poise to some gay tune you like to hum. Smile all the while you're doing them.

Stand with ankles together, arms outstretched, shoulder level, at the sides. Take a long step forward with your right foot and, swinging the right arm forward in front of you and the left one back and slightly downward, lunge forward, bending the right knee. The left knee should be only one inch from the floor. Feel the waistline muscles stretch and pull as you go down.

Hold the position five seconds and then, swinging the arms back to the original position, draw the left leg up to the right and stand erect again. Repeat at least ten times. Incidentally, this exercise, in addition to giving your body more poise and balance, tends to reduce the legs.

FOR SICK FRIENDS

Flowers are an appropriate gift for sick people, but if they have to remain in bed for quite a long period of time there are other gifts which often are even more appreciated.

Books, of course, are always in order but often the invalid is too weak to hold a book. The answer to that is one of the new book and magazine racks made especially for reading in bed.

There are charming bed jackets and night gowns trimmed with lace which delight any woman patient and warm, soft robes for a man when he is ready to sit up. Bedroom slippers and mules are always appreciated.

Hospital pillows are not always comfortable, nor are the slips particularly attractive, so why not give the invalid a pair of fine, hand-embroidered pillow slips or else a soft pillow and one slip?

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW ABOUT YOUR TELEPHONE

Scientists of Bell Laboratories are paid to be dissatisfied with telephone service . . . to find better ways of furnishing it . . . to keep the cost of service low. Without their help, the men and women who give your telephone service here could not do their job so well.

1. The telephone had its birth nearly 60 years ago in a makeshift research laboratory, where Alexander Graham Bell watched a tiny straw attached to the eardrum from a human skull trace wavering lines on smoked glass. In the half century and more since then, the history of the telephone has been told in the countless scientific problems that have been solved.

2. Bell Telephone Laboratories, the research arm of the telephone service, has contributed the developments that led to transcontinental and transoceanic telephone calls; that make possible 1800, instead of 50, pairs of wires in a single telephone cable; that allow, by using special equipment, for four simultaneous conversations over a single long distance line

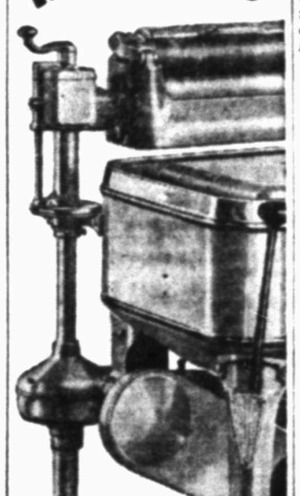

3. Entirely as by-products of this research, the scientists employed at the laboratories have invented an artificial larynx for persons deprived of speech by throat operations, produced many aids for the hard of hearing, and developed equipment for sending pictures over wires.

INVENTIONS of the research scientists at Bell Laboratories have been devoted, not to swelling profits, but to improvements and economies that have aided this company in giving good service at a fair cost to the telephone user.

This policy has been adopted in the belief that, as much from your standpoint as from our own, it is sound and workable. It is based upon the feeling that in an undertaking planned like the telephone service for the long pull, what is best for the telephone user is in the end the course that will bring us the surer, more enduring success.

Mother, know the value of feeding your children a Breakfast cereal that has all the food value that it needs. Why feed them "hash" when it is cheaper to give them the product in one of its original stages.

Evolution Has Upset Man's Ocular System and Brought About "BRAIN FAG"

The modern life uses eyes as they never were intended to be used, and the resulting fatigue is the cause of all ocular discomfort. Primitive man used his eyes almost entirely out-of-doors under very high intensities of daylight—intensities hundreds of times greater than we find indoors today. When the sun went down his tasks were ended for the day. And he used his eyes for distant, not close seeing—hunting, fishing and the most menial of seeing tasks. Even in Abraham Lincoln's time very few people studied or sewed or read as we do—far into the night.

Modern civilization has completely changed all this. We have lightly tossed aside the fact that our eyes were in the process of developing for hundreds of thousands of years—and developing for distance seeing under tremendous quantities of natural daylight. In the last few seconds on the clock of time we have taken liberties with all four of nature's principles—distance seeing, lots of light to aid our eyes, a relatively short day, and easy visual tasks. Instead, we have substituted close seeing indoors, extremely low levels of lighting, a much longer day, and abnormally severe tasks.

The eye is a marvelous organ, but not so remarkable that it is able to adapt itself in the short space of a few seconds on our six hundred-thousand-year clock to the severe change we have imposed upon it. Perhaps that is why so much eye trouble is prevalent today. Man developed a visual apparatus and a 'brain pattern' of using it, according to the needs of the primitive hunting animal he was until a few short generations ago. Even now we are but two generations away from the pioneer. The mechanization of our environment has placed a wholly new burden on this age-old faculty.

Man does not see with his eyes. He sees with his conscious, thinking mind. Any interference in these higher nervous centers makes visual absorption impossible, for vision is not a muscular function but a brain function.

The modern Optometrist practicing the new Optometry is able to adapt the eyes of man to the world in which he lives today. Optometry today does not think in terms of long and short eye balls nor does he have you look at the old chart across the room and read letters while he takes lens from the old trial case and puts them before your eyes until you say you see, that kind of an examination is gone, it is inadequate; bearing this in mind, we can well realize that in the complex, strenuous, highly developed life of today, it is necessary for the Optometrist to prepare himself to cope with conditions as they are today. He has done this in a splendid way by the knowledge gained through the extension program sponsored by the Graduate Foundation Clinic which is also sponsored by the American Optometric Association. The modern optometrist today makes at least a twenty one point examination, that is, he makes at least twenty one findings of a pair of eyes. These findings are placed on a chart prepared for the purpose then he is able to look at this chart and tell just how the different parts of the eyes are functioning and exactly how the two eyes are working togather. With this new examination the Optometrist measures the amount of nerve impulse coming from the brain going into the different functions of the eye. The public is demanding better eyesight service: the Optometrist is meeting that demand.

ARTHUR MEETS MACKEY HERE

GENE LA BELLE FACES DORY DETTON IN MAT SHOW SEMI-FINAL

Ernie Arthur, claimant to the middleweight championship of Canada, meets Cyclone Mackey in the main event of Sled Allen's mat show Wednesday night.

In the semi-final bout, Gene La Belle, cross-eyed matman from France, wrestles with Dory Detton La Belle is a grappler of the bullish, muscle-tearing classification. Pitted against Detton he may lose but will do terrific damage before being pinned.

And right now Detton would be better off were he to do battle with a nice gentlemanly fellow such as Jack Van Bebber, or Honeysuckle Lew Mueller.

Injury Crops Out

A few weeks ago Detton was thrown from the ring across a steel chair—the way you throw a watermelon against a rock when you want to smash it. Detton turned two immelmans in the air and landed on his back across the chair. But it did not smash him. it only sprained his hinges and the next night he soundly drubbed Danny McShain at Amarillo. But this back injury made itself evident when Dory met Clingman last week. And it will not be soothingly massaged by the fierce Frenchman Wednesday night.

Eddie O'Shea, Irish buffon, tackles Buddy Edwards in the prelim.

FROGS AND AGGIES TO CLASH SATURDAY IN CHAMPIONSHIP TILT

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

One Southwest conference championship game will be played Saturday when the Texas Christian Frogs will strive to prolong their jinx over the Texas A. and M. Aggies. Having rushed through two important weeks of great football in which they gained national prestige for the Southwest, the other conference members will be up and plowing for touchdowns again Saturday in a schedule of four intersectional and one non-conference within the state game.

For several years the Christians of Fort Worth have held the upper hand over the Cadets of College Station. Many of the games have been close but always the Christians have won. The Aggies hope to reverse the charges Saturday at College Station, where they will entertain the Fort Worth school in the first 1934 conference game for Texas A. and M. and the second for Texas Christian.

Win Over Tulsa

The Frogs started their conference campaign two weeks ago by dropping a 24 to 10 battle to the University of Arkansas. Just to prove they still have scoring punch, the Frogs invaded Tulsa Saturday and beat Tulsa university, 14 to 12. At the same time, Texas A. and M. was losing to Centenary college, 13 to 0. On this year's records, Texas Christian holds an edge in the lone conference struggle Saturday but beating the Aggies on Kyle field has always been a difficult job.

Tied for the conference lead, the Rice institute Owls will invade Omaha, Neb., to tackle Creighton in a night game. Having whipped Southern Methodist Saturday, 9 to 0, when Bill Wallace scored a touchdown and John Sylvester booted a field goal, the Owls again proved they have the stuff of which championship teams are made of. Creighton defeated Rice last year, 14 to 13. It probably will be a Rice victory this year.

Away to a flying start with conference victories over Texas Christian and Baylor, the University of Arkansas Razorbacks are in for a severe test of their scoring power when they battle Louisiana State at Shreveport. The Razorbacks got Fullback Criswell through for a touchdown Saturday at Little Rock to beat the Baylor Bears, 6 to 0. Louisiana whipped Arkansas last year, 20 to 0, and this year the Tigers have played a pair of Southwest conference teams, Rice and Southern Methodist, to ties.

Texas Meets Centenary

Having breezed through a 19 to 0 victory Saturday over the University of Oklahoma, the University of Texas battles Centenary college at Austin. The Longhorns will be severely crippled for this contest because of Bohn Hilliard's hip injury, received in the last half of the Oklahoma game. With Hilliard, ace halfback, out of the lineup the Longhorns are in dire danger of having their undefeated record spoiled. Irvin Gilbreath kept the record spotless Saturday when he galloped for three touchdowns against the Sooners.

Oklahoma A. and M. will invade Dallas to battle Southern Methodist. These two teams played a 7 to 7 tie last year. The Mustangs aerial attack was a complete flop against Rice. Robert Wilson, ace Methodist ball lugger, could not plow the Rice defense. The Mustangs high pre-season stock has suffered a sharp decline.

Baylor university will play Hardin-Simmons university in a night game at Abilene. This should be one in the win book for Baylor.

He is survived by the widow and a five year old son. The body was sent to Stephenville, his former home, for burial.

NO LET-UP IN GRID WAR IS INDICATED

POTENTIAL CHAMPIONS ARE EMERGING FROM DUST OF CONFLICT

BY HERBERT W. Barker
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—The football whirligig, dizzier than ever this year, swirls along this week with no signs of a let-up anywhere along the line.

Slowly but surely potential conference or sectional champions are emerging from the dust of conflict although it will take several more weeks before the outline is clear enough to be read accurately.

This week's slate lines up this way:

Pitt Meets Minnesota

East—Two great intersectional offerings top the card. Pitt conqueror of Southern California, collides with the Big Ten powerhouse, Minnesota. Fordham engages St. Mary's in a duel that lost some of its interest when the Gaels were so unexpectedly set back by Nevada last week. Princeton's first test comes against Washington & Lee while Army continues its warm-up campaign against Sewanee. Manhattan must tackle Michigan State, Villanova plays Detroit, Dartmouth entertains Virginia, and Syracuse waits for Ohio Wesleyan. Columbia and Navy clash in a game between undefeated elevens while Brown and Yale renew their feud at New Haven, both already beaten. Temple, tied by Indiana, has West Virginia to hurdle Friday night when Tulsa will play George Washington.

Irish Play Carnegie Tech

Mid-west — Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame, Colgate and Ohio State, Georgia Tech and Michigan for intersectional flavor, while Purdue and Wisconsin and Chicago and Indiana meet in Big Ten conference duels. Iowa, upset by Nebraska, faces Iowa State, conqueror of Missouri. Illinois has an open date. Oklahoma and Nebraska may settle the Big Six title at Norman while Kansas and Kansas State are playing at Manhattan.

South — Alabama against Tennessee in the big battle of a Southeastern conference program marked otherwise by the Vanderbilt-Auburn and Tulane-Georgia matches. Virginia Poly and Maryland are paired in the only Southern conference game of the day. Florida and North Carolina State, North Carolina and Kentucky furnished the inter-conference fun while Louisiana State stacks up against Arkansas' Razorbacks, powerful Southwest outfit.

Three Lead In Southwest

Southwest—Rice, Texas and Arkansas the apparent contenders and all slated for non-conference opposition, Texas against Centenary and Rice against Creighton. Texas A. and M. meets Texas Christian in a conference game. Southern Methodist, beaten by Rice, plays Oklahoma A. and M.

Far West—Southern California, beaten twice in succession for the first time since Howard Jones became coach, will try to get back into the winning column against Oregon State, while California plays U. C. L. A. and Oregon tangles with Idaho. Stanford, the leader along with Washington and Washington State, confronts the strong University of San Francisco outfit.

Rocky Mountain—A heavy slate headed by the Utah-Denver battle. Utah Aggies play Wyoming; Brigham Young tackles Colorado university; Colorado Aggies meet Colorado Mines, and Colorado college plays Colorado Teachers.

SHORT COURSE PLANNED

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 15.—Designed to give operators with practical experience a better understanding of the theory involved in laundry work, the first annual short course for laundrymen will be held Nov. 6-7-8 at exas A&M college. The short course will be conducted by the college department of chemistry and chemical engineering and under the auspices of the Texas Laundry Owners' association.

TEXAS GRAD NAMED

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—Information has been received at the University of Texas of the appointment of Ellis A. Bonnett, 1920 graduate of that institution, as American consul at Amsterdam, Netherlands. He was formerly stationed at Duranga, Mexico.

SPORTOGRAPH

by COLLIER PARRIS

True Copyright 1933

THE TEXAS TECH Matadors will toss another party for their big boosters, the members of the Matador Club, tonight at the football field. Starting at 7:30 o'clock, Coaches Cawthon and Smith will send their boys through slow motion acts for the benefit of the other coaches. Last Monday night's party went over so well that they want another one.

Your correspondent took Saturday afternoon off and west with Coach Chapman to Amarillo to scout the Golden Sandies against Fort Worth's Central Panthers. We did not feel badly about scouting Amarillo, because Blair Cherry, Sandie coach, not only scouted the Westerners Friday night, but worked as umpire of the game. And the umpire sees more than any other official.

In fact, there was a bit of beefing about the officiating, Carl Moulden, Borger coach, half-jestingly charging that Cherry was paying more attention as a scout than as an official.

But back to the Sandies and their victory over Central, a victory that was considered an upset by nearly everybody in Amarillo. You could take Amarillo at even money with almost any citizen in the town, and some of them would have given you points. Central has a nice looking ball club that should have beaten Amarillo's lighter boys. But Central was playing against Butler Field as much as against the Sandies, and after the break that gave Amarillo the first touchdown—an 89 yard run by Fullback Harlow with an intercepted pass—you could feel the Panthers weakening. They outplayed Amarillo most of the first half, but the Sandies came back and looked like a real ball club the rest of the way.

We were impressed with the Sandies, but so far they do not have a thing the Westerners do not have. If they were playing this week we would take Lubbock and maybe give you a touchdown, but Amarillo's team is developing, slowly but surely. By November 12, when the Sandies come here to play Lubbock, they will be a much improved ball club. Lubbock, on the other hand, has developed fast. If the Westerners can maintain the speed and tempo which now makes them look like a million bucks, they can beat Amarillo, and maybe Pampa, but there is such a thing as developing too fast, then going stale. The Westerners have got to keep humping if they go to town.

Amarillo's line looked good at times, woefully weak at other times. The ends, particularly Mr. Peterson, are strong. The backfield does not show a particularly outstanding man unless it is Harlow, the captain, who can twist himself through small holes and run a broken field pretty well. On his long runs, however, he had some mighty good blocking from the ends. Little Red Stidger, playing regular quarterback for Amarillo now after saving the day against Lubbock last year with his kick for extra point, is a great hustler, and so is Bufkin, another back, but none of them or all of them have anything over any one or all of Chapman's backs.

THE MATADORS made a fine showing in Oklahoma City. The fans over there went for them in a big way, and why not? They played almost perfect ball, offensively and defensively, "and don't think O. C. U. didn't have a good ball club," we're told by parties who saw the game, although Bus Ham, Daily Oklahoman sports editor, started his story off thusly: "The referee, John B. Old, was the best ball carrier the Oklahoma City university eleven had Friday night. He lugged the pigskin 108 yards for them, but the Bugs would have needed two or three more Olds, a couple of Granges and a Nagurski in order to sucessfully combat a rampant band of Matadors from Texas Tech."

Line Coach Smith drops by as we are typing these lines last night and tells us the boys really did crack 'em and rock 'em, although it was all done legally. Those penalties were not because of rough or dirty play, but for holding a couple of times and for off sides.

Smith tells us that when the first string went in for the fourth quarter—the shock troops played nearly three-fourths of the game—that McKeever and Clark and the others would look across the line of scrimmage and taunt the Bugs with: "Well, boys, we're gonna put 'er in high this time. Watch us go." And with that, they took the ball on the 13-yard line and drove down the field, 8, 10, 12 yards at a whack, for a touchdown.

Lining up again, the Matadors shouted: "Look out for us again, we're coming right your way." And again they drove for a touchdown, dry-cracking the opposition with precision and ambition.

Once more they lined up, and it was getting late. "All right, over there," they called to their opponents, "We're really gonna put it in high this time. Watch us go!" And then O. C. U. kicked a punt, Clark shagged it on his 35 yard line and scooted this way and that for 65 yards and another touchdown. But Juicy Owen, charging hard and fast in an effort to block the kick, was off side, and the touchdown didn't count.

It's a little late, but here's a card which came in the mail.

"Dear Mr. Parris

Can you think of anything more appropriate for Schoolboy Rowe's wedding than to have Paul Dean serve as best man?

E. S. Martin."

The wedding is over, and Paul was out of it. Martin's suggestion is o. k., but for once Rowe must have wanted to take the spotlight away from Paul. The younger Dean already had served as best man once in Rowe's life. The score was 4 to 3, we believe.

HORTON SMITH TAKES PRIZE IN TOURNEY

WOOD IS SECOND AND ARMOUR IS THIRD AT LOUISVILLE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 15 (AP)—Horton Smith, 26-year-old professional at Oak Park, Ill., today held an impressive victory over a field of 200 in the first annual Louisville $5,000 open golf tournament.

Smith went into the final 18-hole round yesterday with a three stroke lead and posted a 72-hole total of 286, two under par to win the $1,000 first prize. Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., took second prize of $800 with 289 and Tommy Armour, Chicago with 290 took down third money of $600.

Tony Manero of High Point, N. C., and Billy Burke of Cleveland split fourth and fifth, taking $450 each.

RED SHIRTS OFF FOR TITLE GAME

The Red Shirts, Lubbock's motorcycle polo team, left at 8 o'clock yesterday morning for Philadelphia where Sunday they meet the Philadelphia Quakers for the American Motorcycle association's world championship.

The Lubbock team left by automobile, towing their motorcycles in trailers.

The teams will meet on a field used by the Frankford Trojans, a professional football team.

Rhodes Scholarship Deadline Announced

AUSTIN, Oct. 15 (AP)—Dr. D. A. Penick, chairman of the scholarship committee at the University of Texas, has announced he will receive applications for the Rhodes scholarship competition until Nov. 17. Election of a candidate will be made the first week in January.

Two former University of Texas students are now at Oxford, holders of the scholarship. They are Robert Ekle and Wilson Elkins, who starred on the gridiron as well as in class rooms.

Several university students have received the noted scholarship. The late Harry P. Steger, literary agent for O. Henry, was the first. Another, Bob Field, now is active in Mayor LaGuardia's administration in New York. E. O. Mather, a Fort Worth attorney, and Terrel Sledge, ranching near Kyle, are others.

Westerners And Eagles To Meet

HIGH-SCORING SQUAD FROM ABILENE WILL BE HERE FRIDAY

The Abilene High school Eagles, who scored almost a touchdown a minute against Wichita Falls last week, settle down on Matador Field Friday night for an interdistrict game with Weldon Chapman's Lubbock Westerners.

The Elephants and the Westerners have started the season with a high flurry of scoring over strong teams. Abilene has defeated Coleman, San Angelo, Sweetwater and Wichita Falls by one-sided scores. Lubbock has trampled Big Spring, Ranger, Austin of El Paso and Borger. So when the two powerful schoolboy aggregations meet, the unofficial championship of West Texas may be settled.

Heavy Line, Light Backs

Coach Dewey Mayhew has a heavy line to blaze the way for a light-footed backfield this year. Heaviest men are the tackles, but the standout linemen thus far have been the regular guards.

Schuppack, left tackle, weighs 225-pounds in the nude after a three-hour workout. Collins, Schuppach's running mate, is a scant 195-pounder.

The guards, Howell and Balfanz, are 160-pounders, but about the best units on Mayhew's squad. According to Backfield Coach Berl Huffman who scouted the Wichita Falls debacle.

A glance at the Abilene starting lineup gives one the feeling that Mayhew has slipped some of the sophomore grads back on the squad. Balfanz, Blackmon, Howell, Jones, Moser, Galbraith and Walter—all these boys are younger brothers or relatives of one-time Eagle stars.

The Westerners this afternoon began a week's drill for the climatic contest.

Twenty-two million dollars' worth of $20 gold pieces were coined at the United States Mint during November, 1931. Total coinage during that month was 1,650,000 pieces, valued at $22,055,000.

TECH GRIDDERS TO BE HOSTS TO MATADOR CLUB

Almost all the rules of the gridiron will be broken at Matador Field tonight by the varsity and freshmen football teams of Texas Tech. At least they will be broken in pantomime as Coaches Pete Cawthon and Dutchy Smith explain common infractions of rules to members of the Matador club.

The program, similiar to one given by the Tech athletic department last Monday, gets under way at 8 o'clock.

We will be pleased to estimate the cost of repainting and repairing your property and tell you how to obtain a loan through the Federal Housing Act. See us today. Lubbock Lumber Co., 4th and Ave Q. Phone 1510.—Adv.

OLD GUARD TO FACE TEST

REGULAR REPUBLICANS MAY BE EQUALED BY GOP INSURGENTS

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (AP)—Old Guard Republicans in the senate today faced their most severe test in years as to whether they can maintain their numerical strength in that chamber.

If jubilant Democratic predictions of November election results prove sound, insurgent Republicans for the first time will have almost as much personnel power in the senate as the regulars.

16 GOP Seats To Be Filled

Sixteen senate seats now held by Republicans are to be filled next month. Eleven incumbent candidates come under the head of Old Guarders. It is among these that Democrats claim they will make substantial gains to off-set whatever increases Republicans might make in the house.

The degree of insurgency of the other candidates varies, but Democrats believe that in view of their past records they can hope for some continued support from them on "new deal" legislation.

At present the Republicans control 35 senate seats. They already have re-elected Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, an Old Guarder, but he is facing an election contest started by the Democratic candidate, I. H. Dubord.

Face Demo Opponents

Of the 35, there are 21 generally classified as regulars. Should the Democrats capture six to ten seats as they predict, the Old Guard would be reduced to merely a corporal's guard. On the other hand, all but one of the Republican independents have Democratic opponents and there may be casualties among them.

In 1932, Democrats filled 27 and Republicans five senate seats, with independents taking three of the latter. In 1930 Democrats took 19 and Republicans 12, of whom four have differed with the Republican organization on various issues.

Republican irregulars seeking re-election in November are Senators Hiram Johnson of California, Cutting of New Mexico, Frazier of North Dakota, and LaFollette of Wisconsin, who is running on the new Progressive ticket, and Joseph I. France of Maryland, who is campaigning on a Republican platform pledging cooperation with the Roosevelt campaign.

Demos Expect Gains

Democrats, by reason of primary votes and reports received at party headquarters, expect to win senate seats from regular Republicans in West Virginia, Missouri, Ohio, Maryland, Indiana, New Jersey, Connecticut, and probably Rhode Island and Pennsylvania, besides retaining the 17 seats they now hold that are up.

Republicans, however, expect to offset Democratic gains by capturing three senate seats now held by Democrats in Wyoming and Montana.

With the exception of Rhode Island, all the 32 states where senators are to be elected next month have selected candidates. In that state Peter G. Gerry, former Democratic senator, is slated to oppose Senator Felix Hebert, Republican regular.

KIDNAPING

ing ill with a cold when she was taken away in a negligee and a light coat—might be hidden in one of those little caverns.

Even natives of the region have been lost for days when injured or otherwise caught in the caves, even when friends had some general idea of where to search for them. In these several hundred square miles, the kidnapers could have found a place to conceal themselves for weeks.

No Progress Claimed

So far as the man who is directing the search is concerned, the case apparently is exactly where it started.

"I won't claim any progress has been made," said Harold Nathan, department of justice agent.

The five futile days have yielded clues and have been marked by important developments, but no results.

Thursday morning passed with quick organization of a widespread hunt for the young society matron. Officers searched cabins and houseboats on the Ohio river, one day gone.

Friday morning saw the $30,000 ransom started on its way. The bundle of small bills lay that afternoon in Nashville waiting to be claimed. The husband returned from a furious drive through central Kentucky and broadcast an announcement that "we have met all the ransom requirements." The statement, designed for the kidnaper, plainly indicated the ransom had been paid according to his directions. Two days gone.

No Hint Of Fulfillment

Saturday and there was no hint of fulfillment. Federal, state and city officers suddenly swooped down upon the Stoll neighborhood and started a methodical combing of the wooded lands around it. The roar of their motors and the bustle of their search destroyed the picture of peace and quiet carefully built up to assure the kidnaper he could make contact unheeded by the law. Three days gone.

Sunday morning, saw an army airplane hastily rise to scan the highways leading from Louisville. It sought a car reported by James E. Scales, a contracting plasterer, to contain Mrs. Stoll, bound and helpless. The intensive search of the countryside continued. The fourth day ended in vain watching.

Their hurried and literal compliance with the specific directions of the kidnap note gave the Stolls hope that the death they feared threatened her might be averted. Despite growing conviction among many that the captive is already dead, they passed Sunday awaiting the word for which they have appealed by newspaper and radio time and time again.

DAILY MARKETS

Cotton Market

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15 (AP) — Cotton opened easier as Liverpool cables came in worse than due. First trades here showed losses of 6 to 8 points. Prices improved 1 to 5 points soon after the start on some trade buying, price fixing by mills and short covering. October traded at 12.33, March 12.41 and May 12.49, or 2 to 5 points below Saturday's close.

The market ruled quiet all morning with prices fluctuating narrowly. At the end of the first hour of trading December eased to 12.26, March to 12.37 and May to 12.44, or 7 to 9 points below the close of Saturday. This decline was due to lack of buying power.

Later prices rallied 9 points from the lows on moderate trade buying and covering by shorts, reaching new highs at 12.35 for December, 12.46 for March and 12.53 for May, or 2 points net down to 2 points up compared with Saturday's close.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady 3 to 7 lower under southern and foreign selling and on smaller world consumption figures. Oct. 12.18A; Dec 12.28; Jan. 12.31; March 12.35; May 12.45; July 12.47.

Private cables from Liverpool increased competition with American cotton by foreign growths abroad may have been a contributing factor on the opening decline, but offerings were not heavy and were absorbed within a few points of the initial prices.

General business was quiet and the market at the end of the first half hour was about 4 to 7 points net lower. The steadier early ruling of the stock market seemed to bring some scattered buying into cotton on the setback. According to the New York cotton exchange service, world consumption of cotton of all growths during August totaled 1,900,000 bales compared with 1,935,000 in July and 2,179,000 in August last year. This included 979,000 bales of American cotton for August compared with 1,262,000 last year while the consumption of foreign cotton in equivalent 478-pound net weight bales amounted to 921,000 bales against 917,000 in August a year ago.

After selling off to 12.23 for December and 12.39 for May during the middle of the morning or about 9 to 10 points net lower under continued liquidation and a little southern selling, prices turned steadier in a comparatively quiet market. Brokers supposed to be operating for Wall Street interests were among the buyers presumably on the better early ruling of the stock market, while offerings were light and prices rallied rather sharply. At midday December was selling around 12.36 and May at 12.52 or about 13 points above the early low levels and 4 points net higher.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—The stock market settled down today to wait for something to give it another lift and prices, generally, milled about in a relatively dull and mildly irregular range.

News of interest to the equities division was a little spotty and traders again appeared to have donned their coats of caution. Grains rallied briskly after early hesitancy but cotton was without much pulling power. Bonds were quiet and fairly steady. The dollars continued to move up against leading European currencies.

Metal shares were the best of the list. Gains of around a point or so were shown by U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco. Such issues as N. Y. Central, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, General Foods, National Biscuit, Johns-Manville, American Can, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Case and Westinghouse improved moderately. McLellan Stores preferred and common lost about a point each, as did Standard Oil of New Jersey and Air Reduction.

Two Are Jailed On Shoplifting Count

Two men, one giving Lubbock as his home address, were arrested in Plainview on shoplifting charges, entered pleas of guilty Saturday and were fined $25 and costs each, a total of $48.20, in county court. The fines, on the several counts, amounted to $433.80.

Unable to pay, they were sentenced to 100 days in jail, H. M. La Font, county judge, said. They were said to have had in a car in their possession 28 pairs of ladies hose, 12 pairs ladies gloves, four leather jackets, two ladies dresses and some auto parts.

The men gave the names of John Vanderslice, Cisco, and W. F. Forrest, Lubbock.

KILL FEWER PIGS

COPENHAGEN (AP)—The number of pigs killed at Denmark's export slaughter-houses in the first half of the year was 26 per cent less than in the same period in 1933. Official figures show the 1934 total to have been 2,528,943 against 3,418,179 last year.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. (AP)—Corn took first place in grain trade attention much of the time today, and scored material upturns in value.

A notable stimulus to the corn market was announcement that the government would offer $1 a bushel option contracts on seed corn in drouth states to owners who had accepted corn loans at 55 cents. Besides, a decrease of 561,000 buahels was shown in the corn visible supply, and for the first time in many weeks the total supply fell below the corresponding 1933 aggregate.

Corn closed unsettled, 1-4 to 3-4 over Saturday's finish; May 78 1-2 to 5-8, wheat 1-2 to 7-8 down May 99 7-8 to 1.00, oats 1-8 off to 1-4 up, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents decline.

Paroled Convict Is Caught After Fight

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 15 (AP)—Assault to murder charges were prepared today against Rollie Cansler, paroled Texas convict, captured by four Huntsville officers after a spectacular gun fight which ended only when Cansler's mother persuaded him to surrender as he cowered in her home.

Cansler, chased several miles along a highway by Sheriff C. L. Mitchell, Deputy E. R. Lindley and State Highway Patrolmen Neal Arthur and Al Goolsby, traded blasts of shotgun and pistol fire with his pursuers before stopping at his mother's home.

Previously Cansler had been arrested for allegedly threatening a man at the Walker county fair. He escaped from officers as they neared the Walker county jail and was not seen until spotted by the four officers as he drove along a street in Huntsville.

Two Kansas City boys trapped a black widow spider and turned it over to a laboratory for experimental purposes.

MASS SUICIDE

versy — was already partly accomplished.

Representatives of the government were skeptical. They were not able, however, to determine the true state of affairs among the self-entombed miners. Five guards stand at the mouth of the mine. They are armed with pickaxes, and they threaten death to any who attempt to enter.

No Food, Water, Lights

The strange strike has been going on for more than ninety hours. During that time the men have been without food, water and lights.

Frantic wives of the men, fearing the miners would starve, sent bread and bologna into the pit today. The food was as quickly returned. With it came the note.

"We are determined to die. Forget about us. Goodye to the children."

Efforts were renewed today to negotiate with the men, but it appeared likely the attempt would not be successful. The minister of commerce sent emissaries. The sentries barred their path with the menacing pickaxes.

Militia Reenforced

An additional 3,500 miners were locked out today by the mine owners, precipitating new fears among the people. The temper of the 40,000 inhabitants is strained. Regiments of militia patrolling the city were reenforced.

There is a possibility that the government will take over the mines. What action it would take, once in control, was not made known.

Premier Goemboes sought without success to end the strike yesterday. He sent five emissaries into the mine to deliver this ultimatum:

"Come up with in 30 minutes. If you refrain from lawlessness, and violence, we will negotiate with you."

It served but to anger the men the more. The emissaries were held hostage. Word was sent back:

"Rather than suffer the slow pangs of death by starvation, we will commit suicide by smothering ourselves."

The five emissaries — all trade union delegates who agreed to act for the government — were set free only after the government had threatened to blow up the mines.

To Kill Horses

The persistent refusal of the mine operators to meet the wage demand drove the miners to send out word today that they intended to kill their horses in reprisal for the operators' continued opposition.

The horror of the situation in the mine was disclosed last night when 44 strikers were brought to the surface.

Some were at the point of death. Others were unconscious, their condition grave.

The contention of the Danube Steam Navigation company, owner of the mine, is that it is unable to accede to the wage demands because of the slack market for coal. The company, in which there is a heavy British investment, has stated it has on hand 15,000 carloads of coal which it has been unable to sell.

IF YOU THINK YOUR GROCERY BILL IS HIGH LOOK AT PRICES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. (AP)—The grocery bills come materially higher in Washington than in Texas upon the basis of an informal and unofficial survey.

Comparison of prices as listed in newspaper advertisements—the housewife's guide—indicated a decided edge for the Texas consumer over his fellow at the national capital.

Newspapers Selected

Advertisements from Texas newspapers of Friday, October 5, were placed against those published in Washington for Thursday, October 4, the latter date being selected in view of an apparently general low price sale movement here on Friday.

For purposes of the comparison the Houston Chronicle and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram were used as representative Texas newspapers.

The following commodities, presumably in the same general range as to quality and grade, with perhaps one or two exceptions, were selected at random:

	Washington	Houston	Ft. Worth
Round steak	27-31 cents	23	29
Sirloin	35	--	31
Bacon	29	22	25-29
Eggs	43 (dozen)	--	23-29

MRS. VANDERBILT'S BATTLE FOR HER HEIRESS-DAUGHTER WILL BEGIN ANEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's fight for her little heiress-daughter, Gloria, begins anew in supreme court today with kinfolk presenting further charges she is unfit to bring up the child.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the aunt from whom Mrs. Vanderbilt seeks to recover Gloria, is expected to present by Wednesday her last witness in the habeas corpus proceedings brought by the mother. Agnes Sattler, hotel beauty parlor operator, is to be first on the stand today.

Crossing the Atlantic to deny charges of intimacy with Mrs. Vanderbilt, Prince Hohenlohe-Langenberg is due aboard the S. S. Bremen with his wife later in the day. Mrs. Vanderbilt's two sisters and a brother also will testify in her behalf, but her mother has sided with Mrs. Whitney.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and one sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, returned to their town house from a hotel suite during the week-end. But their butler, Charles Zaug, was not there to open the door. He had testified against his employer.

"He never should have been employed here," a maid stormed. "He told so many things that were not so."

What Zaug told is a secret. The hearings got off to such a sensational start that the presiding justice made them private.

charge in the Lindbergh kidnap case.

As soon as Hauptmann took the witness chair, the attorneys went into a conference at the bench.

Hauptmann sat rigidly in the chair, his face freshly shaven, and wearing a grey suit, white soft shirt, and for the first time in his court appearances since he was placed in Bronx county jail, he wore a necktie. The tie was a dark blue with polka dots.

Entirely Composed

Once while the attorneys were in conference he looked out over the courtroom and seemed entirely composed.

Hauptmann's wife testified that her husband must have been home on the night of March 1, 1932, the night of the kidnaping, as it was Tuesday and he always called for her to take her home from her work at a Bronx bakery on Tuesday nights.

On cross-examination she said she had told Inspector Henry Bruckman, in charge of Bronx detectives, a short time after her husband's arrest, that she didn't know whether her husband was at home the night of March 1, 1932. On re-direct examination, however, she said when she found March 1, 1932, was Tuesday, she knew her husband must have been home that night because he always called for her at the bakery on Tuesday nights.

His body lay today on a brass bed in the library among the books that had been his greatest friends and comfort. Beside him were a sister of charity and Mme. Marguerite, his nurse during his several grave illnesses since his resignation five years ago.

Last of War Chiefs

Former Premier Andre Tardieu, one of the first to come to the home when the news was known, said he "found him with the face of ten years ago, the calm, reflective visage of the true chief of state. There was no tenseness, only sereneness."

Poincare was the last of France's four great war chiefs. Foch, Joffre and Clemenceau are gone. Of the school of noted statesmen that were his contemporaries, which included Viviani, Briand, and Caillaux, there remain only Millerand, Doumergue and Caillaux.

Friends and political opponents alike speak of Poincare as "the last of the great men," some adding "where will France find new ones?"

Six Suspects Are Held For Slaying

FORT WORTH, Oct. 15 (AP)—Six suspects were held in the Tarrant county jail here today in connection with the slaying last Monday of E. E. Mallory, 24-year-old filling station attendant.

A large part of the loot taken in the robbery of Mallory's station was recovered by officers after a small boy led them to a spot beneath a culvert in northeast Tarrant county on the Retta-Manafield road.

The word "pajamas" comes from a Hindustani word meaning "leg cloth."

Parents Upstairs

Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Costigan, her parents, were upstairs with Mrs. Newhouse when the slaying was discovered. They had come to take Nancy Jean home. She was their only child.

Nancy Jean had been playing merrily with the little rubber ball most of the afternoon, building employes noticed. The last they saw her was about 4:30 p. m.

At 5 o'clock, Charles Hutchinson went into the cellar to regulate the furnace and started for the steep metal steps leading to the sub-basement which contains the oil-burner. Almost immediately he noticed bloodstains.

The trail meandered through the basement and into the table tennis room, where Nancy Jean's ball lay on the floor, and then down to the furnace door.

Hurrying for assistance, Hutchinson saw a man in the basement. He identified the shadowy figure as the former handyman and saw the blood on his tie, Inspector Silverstein said. He did not stop to speak to Stone, however.

With Frank Springer, another employe, Hutchinson opened the furnace door, saw the blackened skull and turned off the oil.

Cremated Quickly

Dr. Amos O. Squire, Westchester county medical examiner, estimated that the fire was fierce enough to cremate the body in two minutes. The ring from the child's little finger identified it. Her pocketbook was found nearby.

Three detectives were slightly injured as the patrol wagon collided with the automobile of H. G. Cornell and an ambulance was called to take them to the hospital while other officers hunted for the handyman.

Stone, who admitted he had served a reformatory term for a robbery six years ago in Hartford, Conn., said he recently read a book on crime in which he found the statement: "Crime doesn't pay."

"And," he added, "I know that crime don't pay myself."

MEXICAN IS HELD ON ROBBERY COUNT

SLATON, Oct. 15 (Special)—One Mexican was jailed and another wounded as a result of attempting, investigators said, to rob two other Mexicans here late Saturday.

Santos Benevedas, 28, once charged with murder and acquitted, was taken to county jail at Lubbock yesterday. L. Rubio, identified as Benevedas' confederate, will be jailed upon recovering sufficiently from knife-wounds, Police Chief R. L. Wicker said.

Rubio today was at his home. He had suffered cuts, which the police chief believed to be superficial, in the chest and adjacent areas.

Burton S. Burks, assistant district attorney, and Sheriff Tom Abel investigated the case Sunday.

Two unidentified Mexicans from Snyder reported one of them had slashed Rubio when he and Benevedas, on running-boards of an automobile occupied by the visitors attempted to hold them up, the sheriff said. The Snyder Mexicans were not detained, Police Chief Wicker said.

Assistant District Attorney Burks, who took statements in the attempted robbery case at Slaton, was not available here today, as he and District Attorney Daniel A. Blair were in Crosby county for trial of a criminal case.

Mrs. Ruth Sides Is Pneumonia Victim

Mrs. Ruth Sides, 86, died of pneumonia late Sunday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. E. L. McCoy, near Meadow. Mrs. Sides had lived in that vicinity about 10 years.

Funeral services were to be conducted by Rev. Mr. Horn, a Meadow Baptist minister, at Meadow this afternoon, Rix-Bynum Funeral home announced.

Surviving were the daughter and a son, H. M. Sides of Van Zandt county.

EARLY ARREST IS EXPECTED

LEADER OF GANG THAT PLOTTED AGAINST ROYALTY SOUGHT

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Oct. 15—On information wrung from two prisoners, authorities of three countries hoped today for the quick arrest of the "Machiavellian" brain which directed the Marseille assassinations.

A combined drive is planned at Lausalle by heads of Swiss, French and Yugoslav forces. They are working on information supplied by Ivan Rajtich and Zvonemer Pospechil, claimed by police to have confessed to plotting against royalty. They are in jail at Annecy awaiting a probable death sentence.

"Gun-Girl" Sought

A widespread hunt throughout France and Switzerland continued for Marie Vjoudroch, beautiful "gun-girl" member of the band.

Swiss officers said a meeting of the plotters of King Alexander's death was held at Lausanne Sept. 28, where "the minutest detail of the massacre was planned with Machiavellian cunning.

The huge gang, they asserted, worked with a "cell" system under which each member knew only two others. Often they stayed at the same hotels without knowledge of their confederates' existence.

MORE THAN EIGHT HUNDRED PERSONS HEAR MAHON TALK

Welfare work for underprivileged children will be benefited by $150 in collections from about 340 men who attended a union Bible school class Sunday morning at Palace theater.

George H. Mahon, of Colorado, congressman-elect from the 19th district, spoke to the class. His subject was "The Christian and His Bible." Mr. Mahon urged use of the Bible in solving problems which man cannot solve alone.

Mrs. Vernon Marshall began the service with an organ recital. A male quartet, composed of Dr. Vernon Marshall, W. W. Rix, H. W. Richardson and Edgar Shelton, sang. H. W. Moore led the assemblage in singing.

Arrangements had been made for regular members of Bible classes to attend the downtown meeting, their attendance to be counted for their regular classes. Class secretaries checked the attendance.

authors hoped to obtain early floor consideration.

Committees in both houses also were pressed for early decision on bills to remit penalties and interest on delinquent taxes. Numerous propositions suggesting a method by which the state could aid its beleaguered taxpayers have been advanced. Members, it appeared, generally agreed relief of some type should be extended but were at odds on the method to be pursued.

Two Men Remain In Serious Conditions

HOUSTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Two men remained in serious conditions today after their lower limbs had been caught in a whirling digging blade of a dredge near Morgan's Point.

T. H. Sumter, 23, of Galveston and J. D. Dault of Galveston were loosening a bearing on the digging blade of the dredge "The Duplex." An electrician in the control room inadvertently threw the switch. The blades cut off Sumter's right foot at the ankle and amputation of Dault's left leg at the knee was necessary.

Dutcher's News And Views OF WASHINGTON

Dutcher

(Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — The many friends of organized labor in this administration are groaning rather dismally while foes don a supercilious grin.

Figures on A. F. of L. membership, showing an increase in the first full year under NIRA and its encouragement to organize, have arrived with a dull thud.

They offer little or no help to an administration which is trying to educate employers as to the rights of labor — and having a tough time of it.

The A. F. of L. Executive Council has reported a gain of 388,000 dues-paying members over 1933 and a total membership of 2,643,000.

Disregarding President Bill Green's rosy last-year vision of a membership of 25,000,000, it is the breakdown of the figures —which has had little or no publicity—that is causing labor students to despair.

About 83,000 of the increase was due to the entrance of Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers into the federation. Another 125,000 new members were reported by the International Ladies' Garment Workers. Other unions showed gains, few of them significant, and there were a number of actual decreases.

Membership Drops

The United Textile Workers, who had been claiming a paid up membership of 300,000, prior to the recent strike, turned up with a voting strength of 38,700 members, as against 15,000 last year.

And the Amalgamated Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers, who were threatening boldly to strike not so long ago, reported only 5500 members as compared with 4600 last year.

Although President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers had been credited hereabouts with a prodigious organization campaign, netting hundreds of thousands of new members, he showed up with but 300,000, which was no more than his claim a year ago and 100,000 less than he reported in 1931.

It seems that John, like other labor leaders, has been excusing a lot of the boys from paying dues.

Most astonishing of all, the A. F. of L.'s Federal labor unions, designed to catch workers in previously unorganized industries such as automobiles, showed—their figures being combined with those for directly affiliated local unions — a drop from 71,000 to 51,000.

This despite the Executive Council's cheerful report of a "virtual uprising of workers for union membership."

Spirit Is Stronger

Obviously, though the federation still shows a decline of nearly 350,000 from its 1931 membership, the labor movement and the militancy of workers are much stronger than the figures indicate.

The textile strike showed that. Hundreds of thousands have signed up for union membership, but don't show on the official count because they aren't paying dues.

But critics of the A. F. of L. cite the record to bolster their contention that the A. F. of L. shows complete lack of capacity for organization work, is largely in charge of members whose chief ambition is to hang onto their jobs, is operated on oratory and prefers clutching to the administration's coat-tails to standing on its own feet.

Union labor organization is a tacit factor in New Deal policy—at least as long as employers are encouraged to organize. But the administration finds no easy answer to assertions by industrialists that the A. F. of L. represents small minorities and that workers don't want to organize under its banner.

Officials have tried to make this plain to labor leaders. Can anyone, they ask, expect to scare the powerful steel industry with a union membership of 5500?

Independent Unions Rise

Impatience with the A. F. of L. is tempered in some quarters with satisfaction that its weakness, rather than its strength, creates a problem. But it is freely predicted that many new unions independent of the A. F. of L. will be heard from in the next year.

There's much sentiment in the administration for the industrial rather than the craft type of union, which has tied up too many PWA projects by jurisdictional disputes.

While the headlines proclaimed an internal A. F. of L. row at the San Francisco convention involving the Building Trades department, it was recalled here that Secretary Frances Perkins had expected to move her outfit in to swell new Department of Labor Building last spring.

She would have been in there long since if the iron workers' union hadn't got to fighting with the carpenters and the cement-finishers with the marble setters and held up the job.

These jurisdictional squabbles lasted eight months. (The Labor Department now plans to move in November.)

A. F. of L. Snubbed

The spirit of sweet love and affection commonly supposed to exist between the administration and the federation probably will seem even less visible unless the A. F. of L. wakes up. The tendency is to exaggerate it even now.

You may recall that both Hoover and Roosevelt cheerfully affronted the A. F. of L.'s dignity by disregarding its leadership when they chose secretaries of labor. The labor man it chose for the new National Industrial Recovery Board was Hillman, who built his strong union outside the A. F. of L. and is still remote from its hierarchy.

Donald Richberg, now top dog in this administration next to Roosevelt, won his fame as a labor lawyer—with the independent railroad unions.

When the administration turns to labor leadership for man power and counsel, in fact, the A. F. of L. gets the crumbs.

Two Film Stars, One The Most Beautiful And The Other The Most Talented, Express Desire To "Change Places"

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—Movieland's most beautiful woman and its most talented aren't satisfied with the honors they now hold. Each wants to change places with the other.

All of which seems to bear out that age-old crack about the other fellow's pasture always looking the greener. At least such is the case in Hollywood. I doubt if there are half a dozen persons here who are satisfied with their present positions. All want something else.

A short time ago Claudette Colbert was voted the most beautiful actress on the screen by the film folk themselves. A few weeks later Helen Hayes was named as the best screen actress by members of the industry.

But Claudette wants to be known as the best actress. And Helen wants to be acclaimed the most beautiful. Both have their reasons too.

"I would much rather hold the title of the best actress, for several reasons," Miss Colbert declares. "First of all, nobody can kid me about my beauty. I've looked at this 'pan' too many times.

"I'll admit that I can get by as an attractive girl, but mainly because I spend a lot of time on my appearance. Besides, we're born with looks, but we have to acquire ability.

"Consequently, it is a far greater honor to have our ability recognized."

In taking the opposite tack Miss Hayes says, "My ambition is to be the foremost actress on the screen. And I don't think acting ability counts as much as beauty and personality, which cannot be separated, in a screen career. Hence, I would much prefer the distinction of being the most beautiful of all screen actresses."

Wrapped in Cellophane

In her next picture, "Repeal," Carole Lombard will appear in one sequence attired in a gown of black cellophane velvet, said to be the only one of its kind in existence. The material, which drapes like velvet, but has a shimmering quality, is made by drawing tiny strips of cellophane through a fine silk mesh.

Learning Things

An interesting fact disclosed during the research work on "David Copperfield" is that prior to 1800 potatoes were considered unfit to eat.

Why Worry?

"Now that I've quit worrying about things, I know my success is assured." That's what Rochelle Hudson told me as we sat in her studio dressing room while waiting for her to be called to the set.

During her first couple of years in pictures, the young brunet from Oklahoma worried about everything. She continually feared that others would grab all the good roles.

RELIEF FOR U. S. TREASURY

News that the Treasury Department is preparing to continue the task of converting Fourth Liberty Loan bonds into securities bearing a lower rate of interest is a reminder that we have a fine chance, in this way, to relieve the current strain on the federal treasury.

This bond issue originally totaled a little under $7,000,000,000. It bore 4¼ per cent interest when issued. Last spring approximately $1,875,000,000 was converted into 3 per cent bonds. At present some $1,250,000,000 more is being converted into 3¼ per cent bonds and 2½ per cent notes.

Now it is planned to convert the remainder of the issue; and it is worth noting that a substantial saving is in prospect. Already something like $33,000,000 a year in interest charges has been saved.

If the whole issue is converted, the annual saving will reach $66,000,000. At a time when federal finances are being strained to the utmost, such a saving is well worth making.

Long Football Career

Today it's Andy Devine who steps forward and claims the longest football career in history—15 years. He played two years in high school, one year in prep school, four years in college, and eight years in the movies.

This is the first year since Andy had the initial coat of grease paint put on his face, that he hasn't appeared in at least one gridiron film. And the only reason he escaped this autumn is because he already was tied up in "The President Vanishes" when his studio wanted him again to don the moleskin togs.

Longest Week-End Trip

How would you like to travel 12,000 miles just to spend a week-end? Doesn't sound exactly reasonable, but that is what Kathleen Howard's sister, Marjorie, did. Marjorie, now living in Paris, wanted to see her sister, so she boarded the first steamer leaving France. Arriving in New York, she took a plane and landed in Hollywood on Friday night. On Sunday night she again boarded a plane and started back to Paris.

Toto Takes Off

NEW YORK.—Toto, the 20-weeks-old, 200-pound elephant, is no longer at the Central Park zoo—he flew away.

Occupying no less than six seats in a passenger plane, Toto took off from the Curtiss airport for his new home, the St. Louis zoo. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who brought him from an African jungle.

Toto took his trunk along, but disdained a parachute.

Where's Piggy?

MILTON, N. H.—This little piggy went — nobody knows where.

The pig, pet of Farmer Walt Cheney, was cavorting in the yard when strangers drove up and asked for some water for their car. Cheney gave them the water and went into the house. As he closed the door, he heard a squeal and turned. Both the pig and the strangers were gone.

Mailman's Holiday

CHICAGO. — John McReynolds is a mailman, but contrary to the popular belief, he doesn't spend his day off walking.

Instead, he hired a rickasha at the World's fair and rode from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. The bill was $18, but all the mailman had was $13.

He was brought before a judge for failing to pay, but the company agreed then to settle for the $13.

Ends Hunger Strike

CLARINDA, Ia.—The hunger strike that Lloyd Jewell, 26, conducted in protest against the Iowa state liquor law is ended.

Jewell, in jail on a charge of bringing Missouri liquor into Iowa, said he broke the strike after 16 days on the advice of friends and lawyers.

Doctors ordered warm milk and toast for the first meal, with regular meals to start tomorrow. Officers said they doubted Jewell's claim that he didn't take any food during the strike.

Isolates Metal

At a cost that makes it worth $1,000,000 an ounce, more expensive than radium, a new metal—protactinium—has been isolated by Dr. Aristid von Grosse, above, visiting chemistry professor at the University of Chicago. No. 91 in the list of 92 known chemical elements, protactinium is more radioactive than radium. Only one-tenth of a gram of it has been obtained to date.

Three Minute Relief From Periodical Pains

It is so unnecessary to suffer month after month from inorganic pains, because "B. C." will bring soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of common colds, headaches and neuralgia, muscular aches and pains, reducing fever and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

©1934 NEA Service, Inc.

The man from the car fired four shots at close range, turned, jumped into his car and swung around the corner. Decker . . . was the first to reach the body.

CHAPTER 1

Crime sifted into police headquarters and then seeped down into the press room in the basement with the unfailing regularity of dirty water draining through the waste pipe of a bathtub.

Charles Morden sat at his battered desk and held in his hand a telephone which was directly connected with The Blade.

"I've got another purse snatching for you," he droned. "Elizabeth Givens, 42—3612 Reeder street — alighted from Thirty-second avenue car line at Waters street. Half a block from the car line two men who had been walking behind her rushed past and snatched her purse. The purse contained $7.42 in cash, some letters, a key ring with keys to her house, and a compact.

"Here's a funny one: A man who gives his name as John Smith,48—732 Maple avenue—driving a Chrysler roadster, license number 6B9813, arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. There was a chicken with him. She gives the name of Mary Briggs, her age as 22, and says she has no residence. She claims she was a hitch-hiker that Smith picked up in the automobile a few minutes before his arrest. He had a minor traffic accident with a car driven by George Moffit, 32—619 Melrose street. The accident took place at the intersection of Webster and Broadway. Traffic Officer Carl Wheaton was on duty at the corner. He smelled liquor on Smith's breath, started questioning him. Smith seemed anxious to get away. He had a wallet well filled with money, and tried to bribe the officer. Wheaton got suspicious. There was a report of a couple of service station stick-ups—the one I sent in about two hours ago—where a man and a woman drove up to the service station and the woman did the stick-up. The pair had been driving a Chrysler roadster, so Wheaton made an investigation. . . ."

An officer appeared in the doorway and beckoned to Morden. Morden nodded his head, said into the transmitter, "Just a second. Something's up."

Morden hung up the telephone and bounded into the corridor, where the officer passed him a written memo and gave a low whistle. He asked one or two questions, jotted down notes, then rushed back to the telephone and picked up the receiver.

There was an interval of silence, then Morden's eyes gleamed with enthusiasm. He slid an appraising palm along the edges of his glossy black hair, making certain that the waves were smoothed into pace. His voice took on a tone of bantering invitation.

"Hello, brat, I wondered if you'd give me a tumble. Listen, cutie, I've found a swell new eating place. They put on a good floor show. What do you say we toddle over and . . ."

Abruptly his voice returned to its droning, bored monotone.

"Okay. Edward Shillingby, 53—563 Monadnock building, at Ninth and Central, unmarried, licensed as a private detective, shot at 10:15 by a gangster on Western avenue between Cypress and Hazel. A man driving a Cadillac coupe, with the left fender dented, drove slowly along the curb. Thomas Decker, 48—1542 Washington street, unmarried, was walking along the sidewalk. The car pulled in close to the curb. A lone occupant raised a gun, said, 'All right, you skunk, here's where you get yours.' Decker, in a panic, started to run. The man called after him. 'Beg your pardon, buddy, I got the wrong guy.'

"The car got into motion, went on past Decker. He had a good look at it but couldn't get the license number. The tail light had been doctored or else was dim. But he could see the dent on the left rear fender. It was a gray Cadillac coupe. The driver wore an overcoat and a black slouch hat. Fifty yards down the street the car stopped. Shillingby was walking along the sidewalk. The man in the car got out, walked across the sidewalk, said something to Shillingby, stood close to him, and Decker says they seemed to be standing still for two or three seconds. Then the man from the Cadillac fired four shots at close range, turned jumped into his car and swung around the corner. Decker ran to Shillingby, and was the first to reach the body.

"The dead man was Edward Shillingby. Identification made from letters in his pocket and his private detective's license. There was a typewritten statement in his pocket that if he should be found dead, police were to call Fay Bronson, at Lockhaven 2934, and to question Philip Lampson, sometimes known as 'Cincinnati Red.'

"Officers called Fay Bronson. She lives at 1924 Argyle, apartment 19B, age 23. She said that Shillingby had been working up a case against Lampson. She didn't know what the case was. Shillingby had said he was going out to shadow Lampson. He thought Lampson might grab him and frish him, so he had his secretary type out this statement. The secretary says the object of the statement was to keep Lampson from bumping Shillingby off.

"That scunds sort of fishy. Shillingby probably had something up his sleeve. He may have intended to talk with Lampson and flash the statement on Lampson. Now here's another funny angle on the case: Decker is in a panic. He made his statement to the police, gave his name and address, promised that he'd be available as a witness. He skipped out. Just a few minutes ago police received a telephone communication from Sidney Griff, the criminologist, stating that Decker had consulted him. He said Decker was afraid Lampson's gang would kill him to keep him from testifying. Griff says that he'll produce Decker any time it's necessary to have him as a witness, that in the meantime Decker is going to be very much under cover."

The receiver made squawking noises.

"Sure," Morden said, "I can get a good story out of that John Smith case and make a human interest yarn out of the hitch-hiker who was picked up for a ride and found herself under arrest. She isn't hard on the eyes. She'd make a good picture and is the type that would sit on the edge of a desk and show plenty of leg. Too bad we haven't got time to get a photographer down here in time to make the first edition. But we might shoot her for a good follow-up yarn. . . . Sure, John Smith is a phony, but the officers are going to find out who he is before they turn him loose. Okay, I'll call you back in seven minutes—10 at the latest."

Tom Carsons, of the detective bureau, was killing time until the men from the service station would arrive to make the identification. He looked up as Morden entered the room and nodded. Then he turned back to the tall, somewhat paunchy individual who sat on a wooden bench, his shoulders slightly stooped, his eyes nervously flickering about the room. On a chair nearby sat a girl with eyes that were dark, wary and watchful.

Morden swept the girl with an appreciative eye, waited until her glance rested upon his face, and smiled.

After a moment she returned the smile.

Tom Carsons looked over at the man and said in a weary voice. "You're talking just the way they all of them talk. If I had a nickel for every guy who claimed he was going to break me for holding him, I wouldn't have to work. You say your address is 732 Maple avenue. Then, when we prove you don't live there, you say you're John Smith of Riverview, and that you gave us a fake name and address because you didn't want to be involved in a lot of scandal. The girl claims she's a hitch-hiker and hasn't any home; that you picked her up, and . . ."

"That's right," said the man.

"Shut up," Carsons said. "I'll ask you questions when I want you to talk."

The man wet his lips nervously with the tip of his tongue and shifted his eyes to the girl. The girl fidgeted in her chair, suddenly looked over to Carsons and correctly interpreted the cool humor of his gaze.

"Honest to God!" she said. "If I knew anything about him I'd tell you. I'm telling you the God's own truth. I was just walking and wasn't even giving the drivers a tumble when this fellow pulled his roadster in alongside the curb and asked me if I didn't want a lift. I told him I didn't, and he put the car in low gear and crawled along . . ."

The telephone rang.

Carsons held the receiver to his ear, nodded his head and then looked across at the man on the bench.

"Now," he said, "we're getting somewhere."

He spoke into the transmitter, "That's all the dope you've got?"

He nodded, slipped the receiver back into place, wrote rapidly on a sheet of paper, then looked up at the man.

"All right, Mr. Frank B. Cathay, suppose you tell us the truth?"

The man on the bench did not wince. His eyes slitted slightly, as though concentrating in swift thought.

"You got the name from the place where I rented the car, didn't you?" he said.

Carsons' manner was the manner of a cat torturing a mouse.

"Why?" he asked with smirking innocence. "Was that the name you gave when you rented the car?"

The man on the bench nodded.

"All right," he said, "there's no use keeping up the pretense any more. I'm Frank B. Cathay of Riverview."

He got to his feet, took a card case from his hip pocket, opened the card case, showed driving licenses, lodge card memberships, golf club cards.

The telephone rang again. Carsons pressed the receiver against his left ear, propped his left elbow on the desk.

"Yeah, this is headquarters, Carsons speaking. No, I know now that it's a bum steer. But how about a chap named Cathay? Seems to be rather a big bug, with membership in a lot of country clubs, and . . . . oh, he is, is he? That's interesting . . . . candidate for the office of city councilman, huh? President of a luncheon club, huh? Director in a bank, huh? . . . Well, he's held here—well, he's just being held for questioning, that's all. Thanks . . . I see . . . . uh huh . . . all right—thanks."

He hung up the telephone and looked at the man on the bench with a new-found respect.

"Why the hell didn't you come clean in the first place?" he asked.

"I couldn't afford to. I can't afford to get mixed into this. I can't afford to get any notoriety."

Carsons nodded.

"You should have come clean in the first place," he said. "You were only picked up on suspicion. Let's just check you identity. What's your address in Riverview?"

The man spoke without hesitation.

"My address is at 268 Walnut avenue. My telephone number is Main 6831. My office is in the First National Bank building. I have suite 908—a suite of five rooms occupying the entire from of the ninth floor."

"What do you do?" asked Carsons.

"I supervise my investments," the man said with dignity.

Charles Morden sauntered from the room. At the doorway he paused with the door open just a crack.

"Do me a favor, Tom, will you?" he said.

Tom Carsons turned his head and raised his eyebrows.

"Hold him for 15 minutes," Morden said and slammed the door before Carsons could say anything. He raced down the corridor to the press room, thrust his head in the door and saw that Whipple of The Planet was seated at his desk, kept on going down the corridor until he came to a telephone booth. He entered the booth, and, as he pulled the door shut, the light clicked on. Morden reached up and extinguished the light by unscrewing the globe, a half turn. There remained enough light which filtered in through the glass which partitioned the top of the door to enable him to drop the coin and dial the number of the Blade.

"Listen, cutie," he said, "put me on with Roy . . yeah, I know. Never mind that stuff.

"Sure, the invitation is good, but forget it. This is business. I'm using a nickel of my own money. . . . Hello, Roy, this John Smith case has busted wide open. I'm telephoning from a booth in the corridor. Whipple of The Plant is on duty in the press room. He's just got the memo that was handed out from the desk, and the thing has gone into The Planet as an ordinary John Smith, suspicion of driving while intoxicated, but the man isn't John Smith at all. He's a big shot in Riverview, a man by the name of Cathay—C-a-t-h-a-y . . . that's right . . . Frank B. Cathay of Riverview. He lives at 286 Walnut avenue, has offices in the First National Bank building, is a banker and candidate for city council.

"Tom Carsons is handling the investigation, and Tom has fallen like a ton of brick for the big banking business. Tom figures the man's got political connections here he can work if he wants to. Cathay is going to pay about a hundred bucks to get eased out the back door and have the whole thing dropped. Carsons can do it because no charge was made. The guy was just picked up on suspicion, mostly suspicion of being mixed up in the service station stick-ups . . . sure, I'm certain of my facts. I heard him when he kicked through and came clean. He's got his card case with him, with his membership cards, his driving license and all of that stuff, and Carsons will have him verify the signature that's on his lodge cards and operator's license, just in order to make certain he's got the right man . . . you can put in a call for Mrs. Cathay at Riverview and get a statement out of her. . . . How do I know he's going to buy his way out? Hell! How do I know this call is costing me a nickel? If you want him held long enough to get a photographer over here you've got to bring some pressure to bear on Carsons and do it right now."

Morden slipped the receiver back into place, left the telephone booth and started down the corridor toward the room where Carsons was holding Frank B. Cathay. He had taken less than half a dozen steps from the telephone booth when Whipple of The Planet emerged.

"Where you been, guy?" he asked.

"Just fooling around, stretching my legs," Morden told him.

Whipple's gaze became more suspicious. He walked past Morden directly to the telephone booth and jerked the door shut. The switch clicked, but the light did not come on. Morden had neglected to screw the bulb back into position. Whipple reached up, twisted the globe, and the light came on.

Whipple jerked open the door and ran down the corridor to the press room. He picked up his telephone and shouted into it, "Hold everything! Morden of The Blade has picked up something hot. I don't know what it is. Let me find out."

Morden, standing in the door of the press room, lit a cigaret and grinned mockingly.

"You're sure a suspicious cuss," he said. "My city editor would can me for that."

"For what?" asked Whipple.

"Holding up the paper on a bum steer," Morden said.

"I'm not so certain it's a bum one," Whipple told him. He called the sergeant, called the radio broadcaster, even called the various precinct houses, without learning anything.

Morden, afraid to leave the room, dropped into his chair, put feet up on the battered desk and smoked placidly.

(To Be Continued)

Morden swept the girl with an appreciative eye and after a moment she returned the smile.

SILVER POLICY UNCHANGED

U. S. STICKS BY PLAN AS CHINA BUILDS UP A HIGH TAX WALL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—The United States, promising consideration to the Chinese government, nevertheless stood firmly by its silver policy today as a tax wall arose around China's supply of the white metal.

Secretary of State Hull, in a note to the Nanking government, said that the policy under which the United States is buying silver in world markets was laid down by congress and cannot be changed, in its broad objective, by the executive.

To Avoid Disturbances

Although he said that "so far as may be possible," the United States will avoid "disturbances to the economy and public finances" of China, that nation put into effect a tax of 10 per cent on silver exports.

This was designed to keep the Chinese supply of the white metal intact. The Oriental government—which is on a silver standard—had protested that American buying threatened to sap her reserves, besides damaging Chinese business by causing a "harsh deflation."

The Chinese minister, Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, in a note dated October 2, told Hull that the rise in the price of silver due to American buying discourages the export of Chinese commodities "and thereby impairs China's purchasing power for imports."

Restriction Asked

"Could not the American government," he asked, "for the present restrict its purchases to silver already in America to avoid further promoting the drain from China?"

Hull, in reply, stressed the "mandatory" nature of the act of congress which directs the president to buy silver until it reaches a ratio of 1 to 3 with gold in currency reserves.

Hull left the door open to "friendly discussion" of an inquiry by China "regarding the exchange of silver for gold." There has been unofficial talk that the United States might swap gold for silver to help the Nanking government get on a bimetallic or gold standard.

Car Registrations In Seasonal Drop

AUSTIN, Oct. 15 (Special)—New passenger automobile registrations during September in 16 representative Texas counties showed the usual seasonal decline from August to September, but there was a substantial gain over September last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Total sales in the sixteen counties aggregated 3,944 cars, a drop of 16 per cent from August, but a gain of 10 per cent over September, 1933. Sales during the current year to October 1 amounted to 39,665, against 28,449 cars during the corresponding period last year.

But officials say there are more insane women than men in Turkey, explaining that because for centuries Turkish women have been kept in seclusion, those afflicted mentally usually are looked after at home.

KING'S DEATH IS MOURNED

MANY OF ALEXANDER'S FOES WEEP AT BIER OF SLAIN RULER

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Oct. 15 (AP)—Yugoslav subjects wept today before the coffin of the king many of them opposed in life.

A royal train bearing the coffin made its way through long lines of weeping peasants yesterday from Split, where it had been brought from Marseille by the destroyer Dubrovnik.

Notables Arrive

Because of the thousands of requests for an opportunity to pay last respects to Alexander, it was decided to have the train halt at various towns between Zagreb and Belgrade, delaying its arrival in the capital until tonight.

Belgrade is already thronged with foreign princes and notables who will attend the funeral.

One of the most touching scenes when Alexander's body arrived at Split was the appearance beside the coffin of Father Antone Koroshetz, a Serbian-Greek priest and leader of the Slovanian clerical party who has spent two years in exile on Alexander's orders.

"Must Forget Past"

The leader was allowed to hire a small boat on the lonely island where he is guarded and come to Split to "say a prayer and drop a tear" on the coffin of his former foe.

For several minutes Koroshetz knelt sobbing beside the bier and then said: "This is a moment when the whole nation is weeping over our lamented sovereign. We must forget the past. We must work and live for Yugoslavia."

The king's body will lie in state for two days before the funeral.

We will be pleased to estimate the cost of repainting and repairing your property and tell you how to obtain a loan through the Federal Housing Act. See us today. Lubbock Lumber Co., 4th and Ave Q. Phone 1510.—Adv.

Charters For New Corporations Drop

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—Charters granted new corporations in Texas during September declined considerably from the previous month and from September last year both in number and in capitalization, according to the monthly report of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. A total of 99 corporations were chartered, 17 per cent below August and 28 per cent under September, 1933. The capitalization totaled $1,806,000, a drop of 18 per cent from August and 43 per cent from September last year.

There were 36 out-of-state permits granted, about 13 per cent greater than in August and 71 per cent above September a year ago.

THEY ALL NEED ENERGY . . . SO THEY

"GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!"

PHARMACIST. W. A. Seaman says: "Nerves don't trouble me—and I don't ever want them to, either. I smoke a great deal in my line of work, and I stick to Camels. They never interfere with healthy nerves and just suit my taste."

BUSINESS WOMAN. Miss Eve Miller says: "Camels give me a 'lift' when my energy is low."

SCIENTIST. Russell F. Mann says: "I like the mild flavor of Camels better and better!"

FARMER. I. A. Bailey says: "I smoke a Camel, and my energy is quickly renewed."

CIRCUS AERIALIST. Antoinette Concello: "I smoke Camels. They never upset my nerves."

THE fact that smoking a Camel does produce an increase in energy has drawn people in every walk of life to Camels.

On this page you will find Camel's "energizing effect" discussed by many smokers. They emphasize the fact that Camels do give them a healthful, enjoyable lift in energy when they are tired. They speak of the pleasure they get from Camel's mild, rich taste. And over and over comes word from steady smokers that Camels never interfere with healthy nerves.

And so—in light of the experiences of other smokers, and of the scientific evidence confirming Camel's "energizing effect"—turn to Camels yourself!

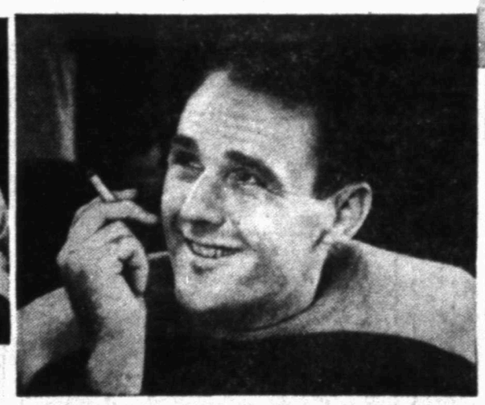

Copyright, 1934, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

SPORTSWOMAN PILOT. Mrs. Cecil Kenyon says: "I make it a rule to smoke Camels. They are the mildest cigarette I know. After a strenuous, tiring flight, when I feel worn out, a Camel quickly restores my energy."

CARTOONIST. Chon Day, well-known cartoonist, says: "I often work 10-11-12 hours at a stretch and am smoking Camels all the time. They help to increase my 'pep' when I feel tired or glum, and I also find that Camels never upset my nerves."

PRO FOOTBALL ACE. "Cliff" Montgomery says: "After a tiring game, or any time when I feel like it, I light up a Camel and get a swell 'lift'—soon feel 100% again. I am seldom without a Camel—they don't interfere with healthy nerves."

STEEPLECHASE RIDER. Crawford Burton says: "I'm a pretty incessant Camel smoker. Camels give me a 'lift' in energy and always taste so good! Camels never upset my nerves."

AIR HOSTESS. Says Miss Marian McMichael, R.N., who travels with the American Airlines: "A Camel quickly relieves any feeling of tiredness—and how good it tastes!"
