BRYAN

Only One W. J. B.—In The Days of Bland—Free Silver — Frisco And Waterloo—Eternity.

HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 1.—William Jennings Bryan was the political idol of the democrats of Texas—for many years. His "Crown of Thorns and Cross of Gold" speech in the city of Chicago in 1896 set the people of Texas aflame. The writer held down a seat at the press table when the speech was made.

Fitzgerald.

Charles A. Culberson was governor of Texas and chairman of the delegation. Bryan was a $35 a week staff correspondent for the Omaha World - Herald, the newspaper edited and published by former Senator Gilbert Hitchcock.

Bryan had been a member of congress. He had been a failure as a lawyer. His taste was in another direction. He loved the writing game and the platform game. He was not the pioneer apostle of free silver. Richard Parks Bland of Missouri, known to fame as Silver Dick, was the apostle of bi-metalism or a double standard. Silver Dick was a candidate before the convention. His followers were enthusiastic.

* * *

THEN as now, there were religious prejudices in America. Mrs. Bland was a catholic, her husband a protestant. Delegates from the south and west who were opposed to the nomination of Bland placed the poison where it would do the most good. They said that Silver Dick was all right, that he was sound to the core but it would not do to nominate a man whose wife was a members of the catholic church.

Charles A. Culberson was a Bland man. He was furious when the religion of Mrs. Bland was attacked. There were tears in his eyes when he denounced most vociferously the men who planted the poison where it would have the most telling effect. Culberson remained steadfast to the cause of Bland until the flag of the great Missourian had been furled forever.

* * *

THAT convention is ancient history. Bryan made his speech. It was the most spectacular and magnetizing speech that had been made in fifty years in a democratic convention. Great orators had assailed free silver. They spoke for Grover Cleveland and the financial traditions of the party of Jefferson. Then Bryan was given his inning. His preroration won him the nomination. it is reproduced here:

"It would be presumptious, indeed to present myself against the distinguished gentlemen to whom you have listened if this were a mere measuring of abilities; but this is not a contest between persons. The humblest citizen in all the land, when clad in the armor of a righteous cause is stronger than all the hosts of error. I came to speak to you in defense of a cause as holy as the cause of liberty—the cause of humanity. The individual is but an atom; he is born, he dies; but principles are eternal and this has been a contest over a principle. Having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world, supported by the commercial interests, and the laboring interests and the toilers everywhere, we will answer those who demand a single gold standard by saying, 'You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon the cross of gold.'"

* * *

WHAT happened is ancient history. Bryan was made the standard bearer and re rocked the republic in the campaign that he made between two oceans and the Canadian and Mexican borders. The gold standard won; William McKinley became president of the United States. From that hour to this the gold standard has never been displaced or even shaken and all predictions of Bryan failed of fulfilment. Right here let it be said that the man who was called the great Commoner was neither a radical nor a religious bigot. Many of his closest friends and staunchest supporters for thirty years were prominent members of the catholic church. He was not responsible in any sense for the attack made upon the religion of Mrs. Bland in the historic convention in 1896.

There were two tails to the Bryan kite in that campaign. Arthur Sewell of Maine was named by the democrats and the late Thomas E. Watson of Georgia, the man who founded the modern order known and the ku klux klan was the nominee of the Populist party. They accepted Bryan as their standard bearer but they rejected Sewell of Maine. Texas rolled up a tremendous majority for Bryan in all three of his campaigns for the presidency. Colonel E. M. House was his friend; John H. Reagan was his friend; James Stephen Hogg was his friend and the rank and file of the party were almost mad about the man.

* * *

HE visited Texas many times throughout the years that followed. His paid lectures drew huge audiences. He dominated the politics of the state. He shaped the policies of the democratic party. To be against Bryan, in the eyes of the masses, for many years was to be a traitor to the party of Jefferson. He made his winter home in Texas for several years. He came to Texas on fishing and hunting trips and at one time he

REALTY BOARD TAKES STAND ON WATER TAX

Says City Should Have Free Use of All Irrigation

CHARGE IS UNFAIR

Resolution Asks Directors Of Project to Make a Change

Members of the Wichita Falls real estate board voted unanimously at noon luncheon Saturday this resolution:

Resolved: That every property owner within the boundaries of irrigation district number one, which includes the city of Wichita Falls, is entitled to water for irrigation purposes from Lake Kemp, free of all charges except the cost of conveyances in the canals.

Discussing the resolution following its passage, members of the board pointed out that it establishes a precedent of opini in this city with regard to the irrigation project and that if the irrigation board, meeting this fall, accepts the boards view of the matter, result of its action will be of far-reaching effect.

Specifically, board members' explanation was this:

Paying for Dams.

Wichita Falls is the financier or money bag for irrigation district number two. Citizens of Wichita Falls are taxing themselves at the rate of 90 cents per the $100 valuation to pay for the two big dams and the irrigation system. On the basis of the present irrigation system it has cost $110 per acre to irrigate the lands in district number two. The land owners, however, are only paying $35 per acre.

This, based on amortized payments over a period of 34 years, amounts to $2.45 for principal and interest for each acre of land.

The citizens of Wichita Falls instead of paying $2.45 per acre are paying 90 cents on the $100 ad valorem. Therefore, the realty board reasoned that any charge for water to any citizen of district number one other than a charge for conveying the water or maintenance charge is a double tax.

Take a refinery for instance.

Costly to Refiners.

It pays its irrigation ad valorem tax of 90 cents on the $100. In addition it is paying irrigation district number one 7 1-2 cents per 1,000 gallons for taking water out of the district's canals at the refinery's expense. This, says the realty board's resolution in effect, is a double tax. There should be no charge of 7 1-2 cents per 1,000 gallons; in fact, no charge whatsoever, except carrying charges which cover the cost of bringing the water from the dam in the canals to the refinery.

The board's action, if corresponding to the concensus of the realty board, would not only affect large water usersr as in the case of the refineries, but would accrue to considerable financial saving to the farmer. The farmer who owns land in district number one, it was pointed out, would pay only a maintenance charge and this is especially applicable to the farmer under the old Wichita irrigation system.

"FINE," SAYS NEW MANAGER OF IRRIGATION

G. A. Remington Makes First Address On Project Here

AT REALTY BOARD

Proper Development Only Thing Needed, He Asserts

A tribute to the engineering skill represented in the Wichita county irrigation project and a confident expression of successful future development were contained Saturday in an address made by G. A. Remington, manager of Wichita county water improvement district No. 1, before the Wichita Falls real estate board.

The address was received with special interest since it is the first public utterance given by Mr. Remington since he assumed the managership of the project two months ago. In his preface he emphasized that the remarks to follow were made with full understanding that there were as yet many features of the local project with which he was unfamiliar. He said, however, that an intensive study of the system had convinced him it was one of vast potentialities. It needed, he said, only proper nurturing.

Mr. Remington's talk touched on five general subjects: Colonization, soil preparation, intensive cultivation, delivery of water in rotation, and cooperation. His address in full was as follows:

It is with great pleasure that I appear before you to give publicly my first impressions of conditions on this irrigation project. Had your invitation been delayed until I had become better acquainted with conditions here it is possible that this paper would read more intelligently and be of more value.

After I have finished I will be glad to attempt to answer any questions regarding my subject.

On this project, the engineer has come and gone. He has done his work well and gone his way. He carried the people's pocketbook for a time. He has expended nearly $5,000,000 and the benefits to generations yet to come will be realized and enjoyed long after the cost has been forgotten. He built better than he knew. He has made it possible to cultivate and produce where nothing would grow before. One cannot take a trip out over the reservoirs, canals and laterals of this system without coming back dazed with the greatness of it all. It will stand as a monument to the foresight of thinking men and to the progress and enterprise of a great people and a great city.

Building Is Past.

But the building program is past—we are now at another stage in our development. The construction works must be kept in as near the same state of preservation as it was in when the engineers left it in order that the system may meet at all times any reasonable demands upon it and be able to

The opinion also holds that the state insurance commissioner would have no jurisdiction over such a company, but respectfully declines to answer the uestion of John M. Scott, insurance commissioner, whether a company returning to Texas for the purpose of lending money would be liable for any taxes due the state on premiums collected on Texas policies written before the withdrawal of the company from the state.

WHO WILL BE HELMSMAN OF STATE'S SHIP?

Three Names Mentioned In Lull That Comes Before The Storm

LYNCH, MOODY, MA?

Davidson Believed to Have The Best Force To Work With

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 1.—This is the lull which precedes the political storm soon to engulf Texas in its biennial return.

But ie seems the sails which are being set to ride that turbulent gale are more clearly defined on the horizon than at this early a time for many years.

The most obvious of all is the Lynch Davidson craft, the only one definitely lined up at the starting-buoy.

In the still-calm foreground two other campaigns for governor are taking distinct, definite form.

Moody in Race.

It has been said before, but can now be said with more assurance than ever that Dan Moody is in the governor's race unless he declares himself out of it, like T. W. Davidson did recently. No one has yet been seen here who believes he will take himself out of the race which his friends have established for him.

Whatever he has done, and he has said nothing that indicates a purpose of seeking the governor's office next year, there has been no act which would not leave him in a clear-cut running-shape for this race.

The Fergusons are guiding the ship of state, as the platitudinists are accustomed to say. They have this craft under full steam and well in hand. Mrs. Ferguson has added hers to her husband's experience in running affairs of Texas; and neither probably would be willing to relinquish the hold, when conditions are more propitious than for nearly a decade, to again win the office.

Good Business.

There has been a bit of good political business shown by the Fergusons; another illustration of the way in which Ferguson turns to account even what might be construed as unfavorable situations.

The pardons of this administration have been much discussed. They have been news, because the people of Texas are tremendously interested

United States, In a Pinch, Able To Support Population of More Than 574,000,000, Experts Declare

But It May Have to Resort to Methods Used in Germany; New York to Feel the Pinch First of All.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Md., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The United States can support a population of 350,000,000 and by applying German methods, a population of 574,000,000 it was asserted at the institute of politics today by Prof. R. J. McFall of the agricultural economics department, Massachusetts agricultural college. He declared that contrary to the malthusian doctrine the world would be able to feed itself indefinitely.

"The present tendencies of the growth of population lead us to suppose that man's increase will not overtake the still abundant opportunities to expand the food supply. We may accordingly anticipate plenty opportunity for the human race to enter a new and better phase of economic existence.

"The larder holds a subordinate place in determining the concentration, increase and even decline of population in civilized communities, though it may be the cause of a rise and fall in numbers in primitive communities."

Professor McFall also predicted that the density of populations in industrial communities would be dissipated "in exorable force of natural law."

Professor Edward M. East of Harvard university said that eventually the food supply would be the most important population factor. He likened the supply to a huge piece of cheese at which the rats were nibbling.

"It has been predicted that in thirty years no one but the very rich and the very poor will be able to live in New York City," he asserted. "The middle class will have been squeezed out by the upper and neither millstones of population pressure."

OVERSIGHT IN BILLS LEAD TO RUINOUS RELIEF

All of Central Part of State Is Drenched by Heavy Downpours

DALLAS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The rains started in Texas several days ago swept southward last night into a portion of the drouth stricken counties of Central Texas and gave more or less relief. The precipitation varied from slight showers to 2.50 inches. Even the light showers were sufficient to benefit growing cotton and crops, reports said.

Considerable drop in temperature came with the rains. Waco reported a summer norther and El Paso reported snow flurries.

Early reports today indicated the heavy rains continued last night in West Texas where streams were full and some sections of roads impassable.

Rail traffic was delayed on two or three places in Southwest Texas. Where the rain was light yesterday and last night heavy clouds continued today with prospects of more showers.

All of the northern part of East Texas now has been dampened to soaked.

The drop in temperature in Dallas brought welcome relief from the long hot dry spell. Blankets were used last night for the first time in weeks. Today was cool with light clouds.

AUSTIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—It was a cold day in Austin today following a drop of 42 degrees in temperature since Friday and a shower last night, H. S. Henderson, local weather observer, reported today. The temperature early today was 63 degrees. Thursday it was 105. Less than one inch of rainfall was recorded here during July, one of the driest and hottest months on record.

INCH RAIN IN TEMPLE.

Is First Good Precipitation Since Early June.

TEMPLE, Texas, Aug. 1.—Nearly an inch of rain had fallen here up to noon today. It was the first moisture of any amount since early in June, although some sections of the county had experienced thundershowers several times.

had almost made up his mind to transfer his allegiance to Texas and become a boni-fide citizen of the Lone Star commonwealth.

As he grew older he became more tyrrinical in his leadership, more sensorious in his attitude and his criticisms of democrats who did not accept his dogmas or bow down to his imperial will. Bryan was a great actor as well as a great prator. He knew the value of climaxes. He knew the value of dramatic poses. He always chose an opportune time for his spectacular displays. He was as crafty as a Tallyrand and as ambitious as a Cesar. He resigned as secretary of state when his country was almost on the verge of war with Germany. This for a time broke his hold upon many Texans.

HE deserted Champ Clark at Baltimore. Roger Sullivan of Illinois, whom Bryan hated, sat in the Baltimore convention. Sullivan, Tom Taggart of Indiana and Charles F. Murphy of New York who had blocked the nomination of Wilson, became convinced that Bryan hoped to be the nominee of the convention and it was then that Sullivan whispered to Murphy and Taggart that it was Wilson or Bryan and the famous Boss of the Illinois democracy gave orders to his delegation to get ready to go to Wilson and foverer block the presidential ambitions of the Nebraskan.

Murphy and Taggart followed the lead of Sullivan. Wilson was nominated and he was elected. He called Bryan into his cabinet and two years later the resignation of Bryan was the political sensation of the country. Regardless of all this, Bryan never lost his grip upon a vast majority of the rank and file voters of Texas until the coming of the San Francisco convention in 1920. He ordered the delegation from Texas to vote for his minority report, to set aside the majority report of the committee on platform and to substitute his offering. There was a pitched battle in the camp of the delegates. Bryan lost by a vote of 32 to 8. Delegates from Texas voted to sustain General M. M. Crane, their representative on the platform committee and the majority report submitted by the committee. It was a great shock to the leaders of the delegation.

2 Johnson, Col. Thomas H. Thomas M. Campbell, Cullen Thomas, Joe Burkett, William Hobby and two others remained loyal to Bryan to the last.

* * *

WHEN notified of the action of the delegation Bryan was furious. He told his loyal Texans that the rebels as he called them, would not dare to alight from the regular stations on their arrival in their home state; that they would have to get off at the nearest water tanks and sneak home. He never forgave the democrats of Texas who voted to throw his minority report into the wate basket. At Madison Square Garden convention the Love-Marvin delegates fro mexas worked in harmony with the Bryan-McAdoo forces. Among those delegates were men who had been anti-Bryan all their political lives. They had no love for Bryan but they hoped to win the nomination for McAdoo and should he be elected have the privilege of invading the clover patch when harvest time came.

IN closing it may be said that for many years the Texas democracy followed the flag of the famous orator and preacher who will rest with the mighty dead at Arlington. His Waterloo came in the Golden Gate City. There his strangle hold was broken. Regardless of this there are thousands of Texas democrats, farmers and wage workers, ultra prohibitionists and devout members of the evangelical churches, who looked upon Bryan in the days of his activity as the greatest living American and now that he is dead they are ready to cannonize him as one of the immortal saints of democracy.

Everywhere throughout new England the leading newspapers and the leading politicians have been generous in their tributes to the fallen giant. Among the most fervent of these tributes were those tendered by leading catholics of the manufacturing cities and towns who looked upon Bryan as the foremost champion of organized labor in the age in which he lived. He passed on as the great orators and great leaders of all the ages have passed on. There is no man of his calibre in the middles west or the Rocky mountain states to step into his shoes. Democrats of his way of thinking are as leaderless as the followers of Fighting Bob LaFollette whom Bryan loved and sincerely mourned in the not remote past.

THERE was only one Theodore Roosevelt; there was only one Woodrow Wilson; there was only one William Jennings Bryan. Now new leaders and new issues will come to the fore and the passing show will continue to roll on as it has rolled in all the years since the Father of His Country witnessed the inauguration of his successor and retired to the shades of private life which was only a step from the tomb of Eternity.

CHICAGO RODEO SQUABBLE GOES ON IN LETTERS

Charges And Denials Are Still Being Made By Parties

CHICAG, Aug. 1.—The Chicago association of commerce issues this statement:

"For several weeks certain sections of the country have been flooded with circulars containing misleading and false statements regarding rodeo contests. Many of these have been accompanied by letters making scurrilous accusations and unfounded charges against the Chicago Association of Commerce and Tex Austin, manager and directors of the rodeo to be held from August 15 to August 23 in the Grant Park Stadium.

"Anonymous statements deserve no reply. But when they are the means of persuading many estimable people to support unfounded charges due consideration of the public interest, as well as courtesy toward those who are misinformed, excuses the attention given such statements in this open letter. Without going into exhaustive detail, it suffices that we make this categorical denial of the libelous and untrue allegations published and circulated.

It Is Not True.

"(1) That the state of Texas passed a law forbidding rodeos. (Many are held in Texas each year and this year. More rodeos are held in Texas annually than in any other state.)

"(2) That Tex Austin was imprisoned for cruelty to animals in England and in New York. (At Wembley and at New York, the charges were disapproved in court and the cases thrown out.)

"(3) That torturing appliances are used on steers and horses.

"(5) That burning liquids are applied to animals.

"(5) That cruelty or abuse of animals is permitted. The rules governing the Chicago rodeo are similar to those of all recognized rodeos and provide that any contestant abusing an animal is disqualified.

Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, president of the board of the Women's City club of Chicago, issued this statement today.

In spite of the evident good intentions of the rodeo committee of the Association of Commerce to prevent all avoidable cruelty in their exhibition, the board of directors of the Woman's City club feels constrained to continue their protest against the exploitation of animals for financial gain; furthermore, we believe that the sight of such exhibition as bulldogging and calf-throwing cannot fail to have a brutalizing or terrorizing effect, according to his temperament, upon any child seeing it, and we hope that no parent will permit small or adolescent children to attend the rodeo scheduled for August in Chicago."

Mrs. John T. Bowen, secretary and past president of the Women's City club has received the following from the Rev. Wilber T. Elmore, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lincoln, Neb., after attending a rodeo held at Obama:

"We object the meat to the bulldogging, but to twist the steer's neck until he is thrown must be brutal. One steer had his horn torn off."

Mrs. Bowen also gave out this from Dr. J. T. Tascher of Prophetstown, Ill.

"On Thursday, July 9, at Cedar Rapids, myself, with thousands of others, say a cowboy break off a steer's horn at the base while bulldogging him."

in them. There have been many pardons, measured by previous numbers. The Fergusons have linked with these pardons the names of those who have recommended them. Rev. J. Frank Norris, Felix D. Robertson, opposition candidate to Mrs. Ferguson; Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller, T. W. Davidson, district judges and district attorneys, members of the county political machines throughout the state, names of outstanding ministers, lawyers and doctors, and other citizens.

In other words, attack by the opposition on the pardon record is being cut off because the answer is being built into the records—How can you condemn a pardon when you asked it."

Moody's presence in the race is confirmed from many sources. His tilts with the Fergusons on the amnesty law, on university royalty legal questions and otherwise, have mapped out for him a course of opposition to them.

The San Antonio Express sent to Austin George D. Armistead, sagacious political observer who has held state and federal offices as postmaster of San Antonio and as state highway commissioner. Armistead talked to Moody and to those about Moody and to the rumor squad about the capitol, returned to San Antonio and wrote his conclusions that Moody is a candidate and will be in the race to the finish.

He said nothing new, but expressed his opinion with the assurance of convictions. Dan Moody went to the Plainview rail hearing; and it was said there that his friends and supporters in West Texas gave him more encouragement than he had heard elsewhere. And he carried all but two northwest Texas and Panhandle counties by a majority over three opponents in the first race.

Lynch To Be Strong.

Lynch Davidson lacked but 5,000 votes of going into the run-off in 1924, despite the fact that his own hard campaign was to some extent nullified by amateurish mistages of his headquarters. He, as a business man, made the race on business issues, with a sound support in every section. He has a working organization to start the next race hardly equalled by the office-holders, and far ahead of any other possible entrant.

Lynch Davidson is announcing and T. W. Davidson is withdrawing, urged that there not be the flock of candidates next time that there were the last. T. W. said that in order for the mass of voters who supported the two Davidsons and the other defeated candidates of the first primary to have a voice in the next nomination, they must unite behind one man. Lynch Davidson says he is the man they should unite upon, and likewise has urged it the patriotic duty of the ambitious ones who would have no chance of winning, to stay out of the race.

There probably will be some others in the race. How many, or how prominent they may be remains to be seen. There are rumbles or efforts to bring out a man on whom klan strength could concentrate; but the klan voter, probably as much as any other, is going to try to light on a leader that stands to win.

With the three dominant leaders in the field, all anti-klan, the question now is: Between these, which way would the klan swing?

LADYBUG CROP SHORT

WENATCHEE, Wash., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A shortage of 6,000,000 ladybugs was reported this spring by Clark Turner, "ladybug king," who is conducting a new industry in North Central Washington—that of furnishing ladybugs to orchardists.

Despite a hard winter on ladybugs, Turner sold nearly 3,000,000 this spring. They are gathered in the higher regions of the Cascade mountains, and in certain crevices are very thick.

The red-coated little insects are shipped to the fruit ranches and planted about 1,000 to an acre. Breeding several times during a season they multiply very rapidly, and are a natural enemy of the green and woolly aphis, peach tree louse and other orchard pests.

HOPES TO REPLACE PIANO.

Inventor of New Musical Instrment Has High Ambition.

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—A Russian musician, S. Gilev, has invented a new musical instrument which, he hopes, will replace upright and grand pianos. The instrument, which has an ordinary keyboard, is in the form of a box one yard wide and weighing only eight pounds. The usual strings are replaced by a steel comb, and the little hammers by tiny pinchers which touch upon the teeth of the combs.

Russian composers and musicians, including Ippolitov-Ivanov and Avrsnek, who have played the instrument at the Moscow Conservatory of Music, testify that it is capable of replacing existing pianos and that it has a stronger tone and superior intonations than the ordinary pianos. The new instrument has been christened "Pichetone." It is believed it can be produced at a low enough price to compete successfully with the present bulky old fashioned pianos.

GIANT HURLER HAS DOMESTIC AFFAIRS AIRED

Wife Brings Divorce Suit Against Him, Naming Bathing Beauty

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The love of Hugh McQuillan, pitcher of the Giants, for "Miss Bronx," the winner of a beauty contest representing that borough of New York, is described in affidavits which Judge Cropsey of Brooklyn has under consideration in separation proceedings brought by Mrs. Nellie Tracy McQuillan of Worcester, Mass.

McQuillan flaunted his love for the prize beauty, Miss Helene Goebbel, in his wife's face, says an affidavit by Miss May Tracy, sister of the complainant, cited yesterday.

The affidavit quotes McQuillan as saying to his wife "I can not be happy with you. Let me have my freedom so I can marry this girl, for she is the only one that can make me happy. I will pay you a certain sum at regular intervals."

"It appears to me," the affidavit goes on, "that my husband is still a member of the New York Giants only because the club is at the present poorly equipped with good pitchers and is putting up with him in the hope he will change his habits and finish the season in good shape."

Affidavits of two reporters that they had seen a picture of the ball player on Miss Goebbel's dresser while interviewing her were submitted. The pitcher deposed that his wife deserted him, taking a check for $4,400, his share of last year's, world's series money, and leaving him penniless.

McQuillan was directed by supreme court Justice Cropsey to pay his wife temporary alimony of $500 a month during the remainder of the baseball season or until her suit for separation has been heard.

The court denied Mrs. McQuillan's application for attorney fees, holding she had sufficient funds of her own to pay counsel. The amount fixed by Justice Cropsey is the same as that which Mrs. McQuillan alleged her husband agreed to settle on her.

REALTY BOARD

return to the users the greatest service at the smallest cost.

The operation and maintenance period on all irrigation projects must follow the construction period and the upkeep costs will be light or heavy for the first five or ten years, as the construction work proves good or bad. On this project where the construction work has been good the maintenance cost should be light; in other words, if the construction work had been slip-shod and unsafe, the maintenance cost would immediately become heavy and the service poor.

Each canal system has its own peculiar maintenance problems. This district may develop some problems unknown to any other project; other projects may have problems that will never be known here. For instance some canal systems systematically trap pocket gophers from the banks; others asphyxiate them in their burrows by the exhaust from a Ford car. Some districts have aquatic plant growth commonly called "moss" in their canals until the flow of water is completely "choaked. It has been the experience of other canal organizations to have the ice float in the canal when the snow was leaving and overflow the canal banks. This is not liable ot happen in Texas for a few days yet. On the Twin Falls project in Idaho they have a drainage system consisting of six-inch wells drilled through lava rock to relieve the water pressure underneath and to a depth of nearly 100 feet. This system is successful but very expensive. Some of these things we will never have to contend with here.

Your immediate problems on this project, as I see them at this time, are colonization, soil preparation, intensive cultivation, delivery of water in rotation and co-operation.

Colonization.

We have a land problem here. Most of the area included in district No. 1 is held in tracts too large. These will gradually be cut up and sold off in smaller farms. It is quite difficult to tell what this farm unit should be. I would say that the size of the unit depends in a measure on the family to be supported. Some farmers will have more help of their own than others and consequently able to successfully farm a larger unit. Do not be discouraged if this "cutting-up" process takes a considerable time. There is no way to force the selling of land held privately in large tracts. The fact that these areas are in an improvement district, which has the right to tax whether the land is in cultivation or not will have a tendency to encourage farming by large owners if this can be done at a profit or the sale of the land in smaller tracts.

Before the days of irrigation districts and such organizations with the taxing power, land settlement was a very serious problem. If the canal company had to wait until the land owner was ready to clear and cultivate his land before he had to pay, the usual result was that the company went broke. When sub-divisions are made some attention should be given to the natural topography of the tract and division lines run where the land will irrigate the best. As bad as a sub-division of these large holdings are needed or necessary these tracts should not be placed on the market at unreasonably large prices which would discourage the actual farmerowner and finally reflect to the detriment of the project. The best advertisement for an irrigation project is a contented settler on the land.

Soil Preparation.

The difficulties that many irrigators are having this year is on account of a lack of preparation of the soil before the crop was planted. The land should be thoroughly leveled with a fresno scraper on most farms.

Some standard farm leveler should be used on the land fellowing ploughing, whether the use of the fresno is necessary or not. The introduction of a two-way sulky plow into this valley and its general use by the farmers would aid in keeping the land level once it has been put in good condition. Such a plow avoids the dead furrow or back furrow in the field which is always difficult to irrigate over.

All crops except pasture should be corrugated with the natural slope of the lands. Pasture lands should be bordered parallel to the natural slope and flooded. No row crop should be flooded. This method would certainly prove injurious except in cases where land is sandy.

Intensive Farming.

That portion of the Wichita valley now under the constructed canal system is no longer a part of the great Texas cow pasture so far as agriculture is concerned. The farmers in this territory must farm intensively because this method of farming will pay. They have the advantage over most all new projects that other resources aside from agriculture are bearing the greatest portion of the burdens of the project until agriculture gets upon its feet, and that they have the advantages of a large local market that will consume all the fruit and vegetables raised for many years to come. There are many places along the Wichita river that are quite rough but covered with natural shade trees. It is my opinion that all this class of land will be irrigated and used as pastures for dairy cattle. You have a large local demand for dairy products and pasture grasses will be found that will thrive here under irrigation. If any one is still an unbeliever in irrigated agriculture in this valley he should visit some of the cotton fields on the project and compare them with the dry land cotton near by. This should convince the most skeptical.

Delivery of Water in Rotation.

There are three methods of making irrigation water deliveries in general use.

The continuous flow method.
The delivery on demand method.
The rotation method.

The delivery of water to each user in a continuous flow is common to small projects, especially where the irrigation season is long with no summer rains, and it is the system of delivery with which the writer is most familiar. Authorities agree that it is a wasteful method at best and should never be attempted on this system.

The delivery of water on demand is the ideal system of delivery for the water user but the most difficult method for the canal organization to adopt on account of the danger of breaks in the ditches trying to supply an excessive demand in hot weather or following a rainy spell. It would not be economy to construct a canal system large enough to make a demand delivery. This system of delivery is not practical only during the development period when but a portion of the land is cultivated and when there is ample capacity in the canals.

The rotation method is in reality a systematic demand system except that the supply is steady from the canal to the lateral and deliveries are made from the laterals to the users in order commencing with the first or last user. By this method the rider makes deliveries on a pre-arranged schedule to some user or group of users for a certain number of hours day or night according to acres and kind of crop. This method compells each second foot of water to do its full duty to the user and to the canal organization and when officially adopted as a part of the water delivery rules of the district will have a tendency to keep the ground water table down to a safe level.

Care should be used in the use or waste of water to avoid the expense of drainage as long as possible.

All well organized and well governed canal systems keep their head gates securely locked. This is no reflection on any user. It is simply an insurance to all users that they will get their allotment of water when needed.

Co-operation.

It is necessary that there be a spirit of friendliness and co-operation. If the maintenance organization that we set up on this project has the good will and favorable public opinion of the water users and others with whom we come in contact then we will succeed and be of some service; otherwise the organization will fail and be of no value. If any district land owner or water user has anything to say regarding the service that he is getting the place to lay in complaints is at the office. When you have a "kick" to make come to the office and "kick." Your complaint will be considered and adjusted if possible. If you have no complaints to make, come to the office any way. We will outline our policies for the operation and maintenance of this project to any interested group of men and would like to have their opinions and suggestions.

You will find all the officers of the irrigation district willing to join with the local experimental station and with your county far mgent in any move for the betterment of the agricultural conditions of the valley.

Will Rogers Refuses To Enter Race For Arkansas Governor

ROGERS, Ark., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Will Rogers has declined to become a candidate for governor of Arkansas.

The celebrated comedian was invited to enter the race by the Rogers Kiwanis club which received the following reply:

"Thanks for your offer to govern Arkansas. That's one state I could not govern. I got the best part of Arkansas here now, but I have not been able to govern her, but I do thank Arkansas, especially Rogers, for furnishing me a governor for 18 years. Rogers is the Claremore of Arkansas and that's the last word in towns. Regards to the town jestor, Tom Morgan. Good luck.

Ex-Minister Shoots Wife and Himself

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 1—(AP) The Rev. George W. Holder shot and killed his wife and then killed himself at their home here today.

The shooting took place in the dining room and both persons are believed to have died almost instantly. Police did not definitely assign a motive, but declared their preliminary investigation indicated ill health was the cause of the tragedy.

The couple, who were married only recently, apparently were in the midst of their morning meal when the wife was shot down and the minister then fired a bullet through his own heart.

Holder retired from active ministerial duties several years ago and in recent months had been working in a furniture store. Mrs. Holder had been his housekeeper until she became his wife. Both were about 35 years old.

Holder's first wife died several years ago leaving three children who now survive the father.

Fire Damage In Liberty To Run Around $200,000

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 1.—Loss in a fire which swept Liberty starting at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning was estimated at $200,000 when the blaze was brought under control at 2 o'clock, according to telephone messages from a journal reporter telephoned from Raywood.

The fire started in the second story of the Jo-Mil feed store and was kept under control until the water supply gave out. It spread rapidly then, sweeping the west side of Main street. Then it spread across the street. The only building on the south side of the Southern Pacific tracks to be burned was the Southern Pacific depot.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Aug. 1.—(AP)—John Burgore of this town was shot and fatally wounded this afternoon when he failed to stop at the command of prohibition agents who were seeking him through the street. The shot is alleged to have been fired by Prohibition Agent Joseph A. Furbershaw of Washington, who was placed under arrest after the shooting.

"Death Chair" Scare Is Fatal to Negro

HOUSTON, Aug. 1.— (AP) — When efforts were made totake the photograph of Ed Robinson, in the identification bureau at police headquarters here this morning, he ran amuck and severly beat R. R. Reifel, assistant in the bureau, and was himself killed by City Detective B. W. Payne, attracted to the room by the screams of clerks.

It was only after a bloody battle and firing of nine shots that the negro was killed.

The negro first used a club, when he thought they were conducting him to the electric chair when told to come into a photograph room. He grabbed a club and attacked Reifel, who was badly beaten.

Reifel secured a gun from his desk in an effort to subdue the negro. The negro quickly wrested this from him and began firing.

Detective Payne rushed into the room and the negro knocked him down and began firing at him. Payne got his own gun from his pocket and exchanged the fire at close range. He fired five shots at the negro, three of which took effect and the negro was killed. The negro fired four shots.

The negro had served two terms in an insane asylum and a third lunacy warrant had just been issued for him.

Detective Payne was charged with murder but released on a nominal bond of $1.

REFUGEES FILL BORDER TOWN; MORE ON WAY

Families Ousted from Polish Town Suffer Heavily

SCHNEIDEMUHL, Germany, Aug. 1.—(AP)—All day and far into the night, trucks, moving vans and trains have poured into this city carrying German refugees from the former German district of Poland whence they have been expelled because they voted in favor of Germany in th Upper Silesian Plebiscite of 1921.

The number of refugees in concentration camp here keeps changing so rapidly that it is impossible to obtain exact figures. Many remain only a short time while making purchases or leases of lands they intend to farm; others are awaiting replies to inquiries for employment; still others without friends or relations wait despondently for something to turn up.

An average of 600 refugees a day has arrived here during the last week. It has been possible to transfer about 200 a day into the interior.

West Texas Garners State's Big Wildcat Play As Year Grows Older

CROCKETT IS MOST ACTIVE AREA OF ALL

New Oil Town Springs Up Near World Discovery Well

HASKELL GETS SHOW

Rain During Week Should Help Drilling Operations Along

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 1.—With the other districts failing to yield anything of importance, the great play that has been moving into West Texas was more than ever evident last week.

There was little of importance anywhere in Texas last week, though Haskell county, which has not had a dozen tests all told, including present operations, yielding at least a marker.

In Crockett county a short distance north of the World discovery well, 28 miles southwest of Big Lake, an oil town called Leonpowell has been laid out with 10,000 square feet in the center of each block held open for drilling should the field be proven there.

Crockett County.

Humble Oil and Refining company and Marland Oil company of Texas, have made a location on the acreage purchased from the World Oil company of Fort Worth, 1,000 feet west of the discovery, in section 2, block BB-2. Humble also spudded a test six miles southwest in the northeast corner of section 12, block 3, Washington county railway survey.

Gulf Production company made a location 330 feet from the northeast corner of the southeast of section 31, block 12, two and a half miles northeast of the World well, in Crockett county.

Schleicher country, bordering Crockett on the east, gained a new location, in the extreme north part 12 miles south of Christoval, in the Tom Green county school lands. On the Lee Williams ranch, it is 7,300 feet north and 3,600 feet west of the southeast corner of survey 3. It is the only operation reported there, with few, if any, ever before.

O'Reilly and Slack resumed drilling at 3,075 feet north of Big Lake, in Reagan county, at 3,075 feet in section 17, block 10, T. U. lands. Gulf No. 1 Campbell, southeast of section 1, block 1, T. U. lands, Reagan county, was drilling in salt at 1,300 feet and Marland has a derrick up and is moving in for No. 1 M. J. Wilson in the northwest of section 1199, six miles due north of the Big Lake field.

Cogell and Masche in section 23, block 8, Texas University lands, was drilling with a wet hole at 2,980 feet at last reports.

Crockett Drilling Syndicate Nt. 1, Massie in Crockett county had set 8 1-4 inch casing at 2,676 feet in hard black lime. Shaffer brothers of Dallas spudded near the southwest of the southeast of the southeast of section 9, block 47, T. U. lands, south of Big Lake in Crockett county.

Showing at 3,057.

Kanawaha-Angelo Oil company No. 1, L. T. Clark, center of the southwest of section 6, G. C. and S. F. railway survey, block "A", 14 miles south and east of Sterling Cit. Sterling county, was drilling at 3,200 feet after a chloroform showing at 3,057 feet. The company will start another test one and one-half miles slightly south of west of its present location, in section 10, it is reported.

In Pecos county, Gulf Production company on the White and Baker ranch, section 85, block 4, ran 5 3-16 inch pipe to 2,660 feet and Dixie Oil company on the Sherbino ranch, section 51, block C-4, G. C. and S. F. railway survey, was below 300 feet, near Menzie's dry hole 3,700 feet deep and Transcontinental's duster 1,600 feet.

Adams Oil company No. 1 Devlin, block 213, survey 3, tract 34, 20 miles northeast of Fort Stockton. Pecos county, is reported to have oil in the hole from a sand at 1,000 feet, though scouts do not confirm this.

Haskell County.

H. H. Adams and W. L. Moody III No. 1 Proctor, Rodrigues survey, in the extreme southeast corner of Haskell county and southwest of the Schimmel oil well at 3,007 feet in southwestern Throckmorton county, has an oil sand at 1,692 feet on which casing has been set for a test. The oil show followed 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas at 1,662 to 1,672 feet and two bailers of oil were taken from the hole. The test is half a mile north of the Shackelford county line.

Trojan Oil company No. 1 Scott and Utterback, five miles west of Dublin, Comanche county. Central West Texas, some 175 miles southwest of Fort Worth, is reported to have 3,200 feet of oil in the hole from gray lime at 3,520 feet, though it is being made a mystery well. Casing has been run for a test.

Eight new locations have been made in 11 days in and around the Cross Plains townsite, Callahan county, as a result of the completion of Mook-Texas Oil company, M. E. Wakefield and Canyon Oil and Gas company No. 1 McDonough, J. Knight survey, for 100 barrels at 1,434 feet. Half of these are rigging or drilling. At least 25 additional contracts will be let within the next 60 days if a third of the eight are successful.

Completion of F. W. Stone and company No. 1 Jesse Byrd, half mile due east of Cross Cut, Brown county, has been delayed by water from leaky casing and it may be necessary to plug for a gas well and start a twin test.

Five scattered wildcats are now drilling around the Cross Cut district but none are down far enough, deepest being 900 feet.

Balcones Fault Zone.

The Balcones Fault line in East Central Texas had a quiet week, the only completions being dry holes. E. L. Smith Oil company got salt water and abandoned at 2,400 feet No. 1 Jones, between the Humphreys Jones two wells north of Kosse. No. 1 being an abandoned producer which is reported to have made 274,000 barrels before quitting.

The rains last week will give new life to drilling operations in Texas. Creeks and water holes, as well as water wells, which had not gone dry in years were barren before the present precipitation. South part of East Central Texas, the Gulf coast and Southwest Texas yet remains dry.

The refined market is a sick proposition in the Mid-Continent at present, with fuel oil and burning oils furnishing the only strong spots. A gas war has developed in Fort Worth and the posted price at filling stations is 18 cents. The price has gone down five cents within the last month.

Gasoline Price Cut Two Cents Over Oklahoma

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 1.—Price cutting, rebating and other forms of undermining the gasoline price structure caused the Marland Refining company Saturday to cut the gasoline prices 2 cents a gallon in Oklahoma, making the new tank wagon 19 and the service 22 cents. Other concerns met the cut.

Efficiency of Gasoline Extraction From Crude Is Up 3 Per Cent In Year

Comment has been made at various times regarding the increased efficency of refining plants, with respect to gasoline production, and while the gasoline yield from some crude has been increased from below 25 per cent to over 60 per cent in a few instances by new and improved methods of refining. It is none the less remarkable however, that for the month of May, 1925, the Mid-Continent refineries as a whole averaged a yield of 42.8 per cent, according to the latest figures released by the bureau of mines, the Western Petroleum Refiners association points out.

This sets a record for high average yield in the Mid-Continent. There has been steady progress each year, from an average yield in 1918 of 30.31 per cent to 40.08 during 1924, and the average of 38.83 per cent during the first five months of 1924 to 41.90 per cent during the same period of the present year.

The amount of crude charged to the still of Mid-Continent refineries during the first five months of 1925 was 25 per cent in excess of the amount charged during the same period of 1924, while the production of gasoline from this crude increased nearly 33 per cent.

News of the Fields

Hardeman County

Benedum-Trees will soon begin drilling No. 1 Wheat, an old hole in Hardeman county, North Texas, taken over at a depth of 2,770 feet. A standard rig was moved in and cleaning out is virtually completed.

Smackover Production

The Graves sand at Smackover on Thursday produced at the rate of 151,800 barrels a day from 605 completions, of which 143 were dead; 331 pumping; 52 on air, and 48 making better than 75 per cent b. s. and water.

Texhoma, Burnett-N

Texhoma Oil and Refining company will plug and abandon its No. 1-N, Burnett, in section 2, H&TCRRCO survey, abstract 507, southeast of Electra, after testing salt water in sand at 1,953 feet, Wichita county.

Texhoma, Taylor

Texhoma Oil and Refining company had a sand yesterday and was setting casing to test in its Taylor A-5, northeast of the Texhoma-Gose pool, block 487, section 8, ATNCL, depth of the sand about 1,600 feet, Archer county.

Staley-Wynne, Burnett

Staley and Wynne have a nice well swabbing about 200 barrels a day from sand at 1,789 to 1,807 feet in their No. 1, Burnett, located in the northeast corner of the southwest 40 acres of the northwest quarter of section 6, G. R. Meade survey, abstract 464, in the regular South Fowlkes station productive district.

Lesh-MvCaul, Hynds

Lesh and McCaul will put their No. 1, Hynds, in the northeast corner of their Hynds lease containing 20 acres about nine miles north of Nocona, North Montague county, on the pump today for about 100 barrels a day. The well has been flowing by heads, oil showing about 30 degrees gravity from sand at about 914-30 feet. It will be tubed today.

Shallow Burk Stuff

The shallow area about two miles north of Bacon on the Burkburnett road has been showing increasing activity of late, last month showing about 10 successful completions. Ascot Oil company made six wells on their Roller lease for a combined flush of about 200 barrels from sand at about 980 feet. Bonchil Oil company made two wells on their Beach lease to the north and A. D. Robinson's Roller lease to the east showed two new wells.

Plains, Kilcrease

Plains Production company No. 5, Kilcrease, in block 1809, TE&LCO well from sand topped at a depth of survey, northeast of Olney, is a small 987 feet, rated at possibly 50 barrels.

Texhoma, Burnett-A

Texhoma Oil and Refining company bailed dry and was coring ahead yesterday in its Perkins-Cullum Burnett Ranch A-1, about two miles south of the rodeo grounds at Burke Station, Wichita county. Steel line measurement showed sand at 846-852 feet.

Prairie Buy

The Prairie Oil and Gas company has strengthened its holdings in the active Greenwood county areas of Kansas by purchasing three properties of the Emerald Oil company, one being on the J. W. Teter land in the very heart of the old Teter pool, with nine producing wells; one on the P. H. Landergan quarter section with one producing well and two dry holes, and a 50 per cent interest in the H. A. Dales farm, with the operation of the lease. The consideration was not learned but is believed to be in six figures.

Howard County

Deep Rock Oil company of Fort Worth, a Shaffer and Billsby subsidiary, plans to spud in Thursday morning No. 1 Hyman, center of the southeast of section 88, block 20, Waco & Northwestern railway survey, Howard county, about 25 miles southwest of Westbrook in Mitchell county and in a district which now has a half dozen wildcats going or getting under way. It is Deep Rock's first Texas drilling operation.

New Garber Sand

The Garber-Covington area of Garfield county, Okla., was given a pleasant surprise early Friday when the Sinclair Oil and Gas company in No. 20-W Kisner, in the northwest corner of 19-22-3w, a diagonal east offset to the Wilcox sand discovery well there, found a sand at 4,023 feet and barely in it six inches it flowed at the rate of 50 barrels an hour.

Being below the Layton pay and admittedly above the Wilcox formation, the geologists are inclined to thing that the producing horizon is the Bartlesville. At any rate it adds a new producing startum to the wonderful Garber-Covington field.

The No. 25 Belveal of the Sinclair company, in the northeast corner of 24-22-4w, had a show at this depth when it was seeking the Wilcox early in the year.

Wilbarger Pool Opener Will Be Plugged—Deserted

Consolidated Oil company and Staley and Wynne will pull casing, plug and abandon their hole in the H&GNRRCO survey, abstract 907, Waggoner pasture, eastern Wilbarger county, some distance south of the Gulf group.

The well has been pumping oil for several months now, making about 25 barrels a day at first but of late dropping to about two barrels and a half a day, all from a 1,900-foot sand. It was originally heralded as a new pool opener for Wilbarger county, although it never had the appearance of making as good a well as other wildcat completions in the county.

Louisiana Oil Buys 200,000 Bbls Oil

Louisiana Oil Refining company has purchased 200,000 barrels of Haynesville crude, including tankage, from Amerada Petroleum corporation, price reported being at a concession because it has been in storage several years.

Oil Gossip

The Texas company on August 2 will surrender its option to purchase 51 per cent of the stock of the Carib company of Maine, which controls the Carib Syndicate, Ltd., operating in Central and South America.

Southern Pipe Line company directors have declared the regular dollar quarterly dividend payable Sept. 1 to stock of August 15.

Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation regular quarterly dividend of one and threefourths per cent on the preferred shares will be paid Sept. 1 to stock of Aug. 15.

The Sun Oil company reports that for the six months ended June 30, its net income was $2,529,001 after all charges, or equal to $2.39 per share.

Skelly Oil company and subsidiaries report a net income of $1,578,209 after interest, depletion, depreciation, but not before federal taxes, for June 30 quarter. This equals $1.91 a share on the part of $25 on $20,579,090 capital stock against $750,134 or 91 cents for the preceding quarter, and $596,032, or 72 cents for the second quarter of 1924. The six months net was $2,328,344 or $2.82 a share against $1,499,954 for the first half of 1924.

German Oil Imports Get Back to Normal

Imports of petroleum products into eGrmany in the first quarter of 1925 totaled 312,154 metric tons, a 90% increase over imports in the 1924 period, and almost equal to 1913 receipts for corresponding months. The United States supplied about 68.5% of the total, against 65% average in previous years, says the department of commerce.

THROCK AREA MAY GET PLAY DURING FALL

Scattered Production And Lots of Drilling Should Help County

WILDCAT COUNTY

Big Play May be Expected In Area Surrounding, Recent Finds

With several wells down to interesting depths and a number of others drilling, all wildcats, Throckmorton county is showing a good deal of activity these days. The drilling at present although confining itself principally to the south part of the county, is more or less scattered and is therefore giving this newest of district fields a thorough test. A short resume of wells drilling shows nearly all of the large operators to be represented. This fact together with a small amount of scattered production will bring the field more or less into the limelight this fall as the future oil field of this North Texas territory. A short review of several wells which are of especial interest is as follows:

Stiles, Putnam No. 1.

On the Putnam land located in the Baber survey abstract 177 and about two miles to the south of Texhoma's gasser on the Reynolds land in the Comanche Indian reservation, Stiles and associates are shut down waiting on water at 910 feet.

Three miles east of the Comanche production in the Premium surveys, section 1614, Schimmel and others are underreaming 10-inch casing at 1,440 feet.

On the Burchalter land in section 224, BBB&C survey, approximately five miles due southwest of the town of Throckmorton, Smith et al are drilling at 1,350 feet.

In the Day Land and Cattle company survey, section 8, the Domestic Oil corporation are drilling at 1,442 feet. This well is located about two miles to the west of the Smith test on the Burchalter land.

On the Cole land in section 1026 of the Premium surveys Staley & Wynne are drilling at 1,636 feet on their No. 1 test. In the Stubblefield area and offsetting their production the Humble Oil and Refining company are fishing for a bit shot off in the hole at 700 feet.

To the south of the Humble well, Foster and associates are drilling at 1,450 feet on their No. 2 Stubblefield.

Texhoma-Hunter.

On the Graham land in section 2438 the Texhoma-Hunter test is nearing 1,100 feet after passing through several sands in which the petroleum contents were nil.

To the south of this test the Red Bank Oil corporation is attempting to drill past a bit in the hole at 2,405 feet. This test is located in section 2206 of the Premium surveys and will be watched with a great deal of interest as it will be the next well to reach the new sand as uncovered by Schimmel and associates on their No. 1 Kelly and which is now good for 160 barrels, flowing.

Two miles south of Throckmorton, Hongland and associates are drilling at 1,300 feet in their test on the Hawsley land. The same distance to the north on the Rhodes land a test is rapidly reaching the interesting stage and is drilling at 1,120 feet.

On the Batchelor land about eight miles to the east of Throckmorton in section 2121 TE&L survey, Johnson et al are shut down temporarily at 1,000 feet.

In the Comanche Indian reservation the Texhoma Oil and Refining are drilling at 1,317 feet in a good gas show on their No. 3 Reynolds land in section 37.

Hoffer, Richards.

To the north and in section 195 BB &C survey, Hoffer is drilling at 1,300 feet on his No. 1 Richards.

On the Parrot land to the east the same operator is drilling at 350 feet on his test in section 2318 of the Premium surveys.

This completes a more or less comprehensive survey of activities in this newest of north field areas. Although the field to date has not produced any startling discoveries, it will well bear watching, for in this direction without question lies a large amount of Wichita Falls' future production.

CONQUER ARKANSAS RIVER

Water is Turned From Natural Channel Into a Manufactured One.

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Man's battle has been won against the turbulent Arkansas river which in June, 1921, overflower, its banks in an angry flood, wreaking $30,000,000 damage on the surrounding countryside and taking a hundred lives.

The river has been turned recently from its old natural channel into a man-made passageway, lined with concrete levees, and now, according to engineers, there will be no recurrence of the devastating flood disaster. The flood protection project was not scheduled for completion until 1926 but through favorable weather conditions during the winter the major portions of the project were finished recently.

A difficult engineering problem was encountered in the construction of the new channel and building of the levees. The new channel passed through the yards of the Denver, Rio Grande Western railroad and in order to carry out the project it was necessary to move the railroad yards during the process of construction of the new channel. This was done without interruption to the railroad service.

Of the $4,000,000 expended on the flood protection project, $1,000,000 was utilized in the construction of the channel through the railroad yards.

The flood protection work, engineers said, required the moving of 1,100,000 cubic yards of dirt and construction of 34 miles of railroad track and seven bridges and viaducts.

A concrete retention dam was built across the river seven miles north of Pueblo. The dam will store 21,000 acre feet of water which can be utilized in local irrigation projects.

REFINERS ARE IN DILEMMA SO THEY SAY

Little Business During Past Week And Market Weakens

GASOLINE WEAK

Fuel Oil Is Strongest Mid-Continent Product At Present

The coming of August finds Mid-Continent refiners somewhat apprehensive of the market for the next few weeks.

Refiners declare that unless buying of gasoline perks up appreciably in the next fortnight that they will be "blown up." During the last two weeks of July there was very little spot buying and such business as was transacted was on a weakening market. But for contract business on hand many refineries would have had a hard time of it.

Stocks of motor fuel are plentiful, even with virtually all plants curtailing operations. If the weather continues warm during August the tourists will burn up lots of gasoline and jobbers who have been loath to get away from the "hand to mouth" buying idea may return to the market and reduce some of the stocks in Kansas, Oklahoma, North Texas, North Louisiana and South Arkansas and bring smiles to the brows of the sales managers and refiners.

Inquiry Friday at Tulsa showed 56-58, 450 gasoline firm at 11 1-2 cents; the 56-58, 43 7of the U. S Motor specifications at 11 3-4, and the 58-60, 437 at 12 cents. Of the higher gravities, the 60-62, 400, is offered at 13 1-4 to 13 1-2; the 64-66, 390, at 14 to 14 1-4 and the 64-66, 375, at 14 1-4 to 14 1-2, with 68-70 at 15 to 15 1-2 cents. Some refiners are asking slightly more than these figures but the prices mentioned are those at which sales are being made.

Fuel oil continues the most active refinery product. The bulk of the sales are from $1 to $1.02 1-2, but some sales are also reported at $1.05 and a number of refiners have their quotations up to $1.10. The demand is good. Gas oil is also strong. Other refinery products are just so so.

SMITH-TIDAL WELLS GO ON PUMP IN WEEK

Ray And Massie Get Nice Well in 1,300-Foot Sand

WEEK IS QUIET

Beatty Is Plugging Back To 1,700 Feet in Well In Section 47

VERNON, Aug. 1.—Ray-Massie made the only new strike in the local fields during the week by picking up the 1,300-foot pay in their No. 5, Bond-Hawkins-Williams located in section 100, block 14, H. & T. C. survey. The well topped the sand at 1,302 feet and is swabbing over 200 barrels daily.

M. L. V. Smith has completed his well in section 35, block 2, and it is making about 150 barrels on the pump. The completion of this well adds about a mile and a quarter to the local fields, as it is that distance from production, located south of the old Sigler well. It has 11 feet of sand from 2,405 to 2,420 feet.

Tidal Oil and Gas company has completed the well in section 35, block 4, and through it has opened up a new area south of Harrold. This well is some four miles east of the Noble producer. It is rated at better than 100 barrels.

Practically all operations have been held up due to the rains during the last two days and no new wells are spudding.

W. T. Wells is still shut down with tools in the hole in the well on section 21, block 14, at 1,730 feet. The last time operators steamed up was on July 15.

Frank Beatty is plugging back to the sand at 1,925 feet in section 47, block 4, after shooting a heavy shot in a lime formation in the 2,400-foot neighborhood. There is little hope now for more than a very small producer. This hole was carried below 2,700 feet in an effort to bring in a big flow.

E. A. Landreth is quite active on his leases. No. 3, lease B, located on section 52, block 2, is drilling at 1,100 feet. No. 2 on the same section is underreaming at 1,505 feet. No. 1, lease A, located in section 43, block 4, is drilling at 1,240.

Durham has three wells that are going down rapidly. No. 1 on section 25, block 2, is drilling at 1,315 feet. No. 3 on section 1, block 17, is drilling at 1,300 feet. No. 2 on section 20, block 2, started drilling again yesterday after fishing for tools at 1,165 feet.

McKinna is running 12-inch to the bottom of the hole at 1,405 feet in section 43, block 4. The well on section 31, block 4, is drilling at 1,926 feet, and is expected to pick up the pay sand at 1,950 feet.

Consolidated has abandoned the well on section 27, J. Pointevant survey, at a total depth of 2,607 feet.

Wichtex Oil company is drilling at 1,200 feet in section 47, block 17.

TAX VALUATIONS INCREASE.

City tax valuations increased approximately 4$00,000 during the past year, according to announcement made this morning by S. H. Hall, city secretary, just after completing the rolls for this year. The valuations this year totaled $6,365,598. Last year the total valuations were $5,972,106.

Only 1247 poll taxes were assessed in the city, according to the tabulation just completed. This indicates that there has been little increase in adult population of the city, as last year's assessed polls totaled 1238. Giants Move Into League Lead When Corsairs Drop Pair

Ed Hughes' Column

MOST CHAMPS HAVE HIGH STRUNG TEMPERAMENTS

One of the popular fallacies of the day concerns the championship type in the realm of sport.

The erroneous idea has it that the champion in most, if not in all branches of sport, is a chap of steel-ribbed nerve, one who never experiences a loss of confidence at any time—and all that sort of thing.

Truth is, that is all wrong.

The most formidable champions, those that have compiled the most envious records, have been chaps of a nervous disposition. When you find a chap of the nervous sort pitted against a phlegmatic type, the kind that never worries, have no doubts about the winner. Pick the bozo who frets a bit. It's a good sign usually.

Young Francis Hussey, the boy sprint star, who recently won the national title in a driving finish from De Hart Hubbard puts a terrific lot of energy into his running. He is of the agreeably nervous type, and is so full of running that he has to pace considerably before an important dash to keep from exploding. Jim Barnes, who won the British open, at Prestwick, and Willie Merfarlane, who won the American open, are like Hussey. Both are nervous fellows who are really urged to their limits by this lashing urge force.

DEMPSEY, A RESTLESS INDIVIDUAL.

Most of all the great fighters of the ring have been those with nervous dispositions. Dempsey, for instance, is really a very highly strung individual. It is this picturesque nervousness which keeps him hopping trains, running from one end of the continent to the other. Jack can't sit still. His high-pitched temperament, in a large degree, really makes him the great fighter he is. It drives him full tilt at his foe, makes him release a perfect storm of blows. A scrapper with a wooden disposition never fought like Dempsey.

Very often the nervous fighter can "take more" than the stolid chap. Benny Leonard and Gene Tunney belong to the nervous type of fighter who belieflits by this temperament. Both are high strung fellows. It is this disposition which gives Leonard his admirable qualities of speed, alertness and swift hitting power.

Terry McGovern, greatest of feather weights, the pocket edition of Dempsey, belonged in this class also. He could hardly wait for the bell to ring. And the pace he set was a soul tearing one. His record, like Dempsey's is studded with a vivid string of quick knockouts.

In baseball, Ty Cobb is another of the breed.

Ty is high strung, and literally fidgets for action on the field. His hitting, base running, and general all-around exploits on the field, including his quarrels, are well known to us all.

Johnny Evers, Arthur Fletcher, scrappy manager of the Phillies, and Stanley Harris of the Senators belong in the same category.

* * *

Sprinter's Nerves Keyed to High Pitch.

Every good sprinter I ever heard of had this driving nerve force highly developed. Charlie Paddock is superstitious. He always knocks wood when starting one of his whirlwind, "century dashes." That is one way of showing his nervous disposition. Loren Murchison is a bundle of nerves on the track and the speed he can throw into a 220 or a "100" is something worth gazing at.

One of the queerest and most interesting cases of the kind concerns the middle distance star, Jake Driscoll of Boston. Jake once explained to me that he always stayed up late the night before a race instead of going to bed early. He said that if he turned in early he couldn't get to sleep for thinking about the race. So he always stayed up late into the morning reading the papers. Then he slept soundly until a few hours before the race. He, therefore didn't give his keyed up nervous system a chance to "crack," and he had just enough nervousness in his system to permit him to run like a deer.

When Jake was "right" he was a hard man to beat as his record testifies.

Bill Tilden used to be an abnormally nervous type on the courts. Some years back when Billy Johnston used to be able to take his measure, Tilden was really the victim of a fretting disposition. He used to worry about an impending match for days in advance, and on one occasion went on the courts practically a nervous wreck to be defeated after a close battle. Tilden has got over this trouble now, has discovered an equapoise of nervous energy which has made him unbeatable in his sphere. In the old days he lacked the confidence in his stroking which is so marked in his every movement on the court these days.

Security and Texhomas Begin Twilight Title Play Monday

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

FREDDY BOONE, THE SPUDDER MASCOT, DEPARTED WICHITA FALLS SATURDAY TO JOIN THE SPUDDERS IN WACO AT THE RUSH CALL OF SKIPPER TANNER. NOW THE SPUDDER CHANCES FOR VICTORY ARE GREATLY ENHANCED.

* * *

Joking aside, the Tanner forces are so short handed what with injuries and sudden departure of temperamental pitcher that Freddy was sent for to do the chunking in batting practice.

* * *

RAIN TWO-PLY BOON.

Wet grounds in Central Texas Saturday was not only a boon to the hitherto drouth inflicted district, but by causing postponement of the series opener in Waco no doubt brought twofold benefit to the traveling Wichita Falls club. The off day gave a sorely overworked mound staff a much needed rest.

* * *

But the double header today may bring Tanner's pitchers right back to the same status again. If he can get by with using only two flingers it'll be bad enough, but there is a good possibility that Waco's hard-hitting nine will force the manager to send several to the hill before the day is over.

* * *

Bob Osborn and Dick Morgan appear to be the likely box selections for Tanner.

* * *

PROUD OF PING.

Speaking of today's double header, we overheard one staunch supporter of Ping Bodie last night lay a wager, taking the short end of a 15 to 10 bet, that Pingus would connect for a homer in one of the games. That's real support for you.

* * *

Bodie has poled 27 non-stop clouts to date. He hasn't been hitting at his regular stride for a week or more. The lay of averages give him an even chance to slap one over this afternoon on Waco's pitching staff which, after all, has been hurling at an in-and-out pace. May not be such poor judgment on the part of the enthusiastic Bodie fan, at that.

* * *

That first base proposition all but has Tanner down. Golvin arrived yesterday in Wichita Falls in bad shape. Examination of the ankle hurt in the second San Antonio game shows that a bone is chipped.

* * *

Tanner wired the Record News last night that he is trying to get another initial sacker, but hasn't succeeded so far.

* * *

Buddy, in his telegram to this newspaper, said that he may try Bodie on first and send Alex Metzler to the outfield. It was announced Friday that Metzler, the Spudder youngster with Ardmore of the Western association on option, had been recalled.

* * *

MAY USE CARL.

Williams may be used at first, said Tanner, who declared, however, that the big hurler would not be worked at this position until after another pitcher had been acquired.

* * *

NEW PITCHER.

Word came from Prexy Harvey up in Rochester, Minn., by way of Acting President Gardner Saturday that Jess Winters, right hander, had been obtained from Portland of the Coast league. Winters is to report immediately. This slabster has participated in 18 games this season, winning six and losing six.

* * *

Just as soon as Winters joins the team it would not be a bit surprising to see Williams at first base.

* * *

STILL FIGHTING.

Tanner's parting words: "Think I will have things in good shape in a few days. We are certainly going to stay in there and keep fighting to win!"

PRESENT DAY RING CHAMPS SEEM AFRAID TO RISK THEIR TITLES WITH REAL FIGHTERS

No-Decision Bouts, Over-Weight Limit Tilts, And Slow But Safe Sparring Now the Vogue

By ROBERT EDGREN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—I happened to meet the tin eared sport last night. He was full of conversation, as usual. I suggested we go over and see a fight.

"Say," snorted the Tin Eared Sport, "I'm offa these fights for a long time. Leastwise I'm offa these fights where a champion is supposed to be defending his title. If I ever see a fight again it's going to be where they guarantee to put on nothing but preliminary bouts and champions is barred from the arena like the commission barred Jack Kearns out of the Polo Grounds. I wanta see it fixed so a champion couldn't get in wearing false whiskers and a Looie Fifteen masquerade costume. If you got any show like that in mind I'll go you."

"Why," I askd the Tin Eared Sport, "what's the matter with the champions?"

"You ask me that after what Berlenbach done with Marullo the other night in Jersey, when the referee had to chuck 'em out of the ring?" queried the Tin Eared Sport reproachfully. "And me with a ringside seat without no Annie Oakley punched in it. That was one night I loosened up and bought a ticket. I sure thought it would be worth the money. I thought Paul was always going to be one of these desperate slugging fighters, like he was at the start.

I thought Paul was going to reform the champion game. He don't know a thing in the world but how to get in and wallop, so how could I figure him like the rest of the champions, trying to be clever and play safe? I see Paul a few days before the fight, and he gave me a William J. Bryan on how he beat Marullo to a pulp the first time they fought (though as I remember Marullo didn't do so bad that time). He tells me how the doctor comes into his dressing room after the fight, weeping like a child, and tells Paul he's just finished the job of pushing Marullo's face back into shape so he can be recognized.

"Moreover, Paul tells me that what he done to Marullo that time won't be nothing to what he'll do to him in Jersey, and after he massacres Marullo he's going to go after the heavyweights and make Dempsey either fight or run out of the country."

"There was one little thing Paul said that ought to have put me wise before I went and bought a ticket with the rest of the eggs, at that. He was telling how he nearly knocked out Stribling last year (though I didn't see him hit Stribling, as I remember), when he began to sway around and look cunning and he says: "I'm getting to move so fast and clever now they ain't going to hit me no more, and when I hit them they're going to slow up so they'll be easy to catch.

Fitzsimmons Good Eample Of Real Fighting Champion

"That ought to have been the tip off to me," continued the Tin Eared Sport. "When one of these walloping babies begins to talk about how clever he is you can know he's through being interesting. There's just two kinds of fighters worth looking at: Fighters with no brains and an ungodly wallop, and fighters with brains enough to know they mustn't let their natural intelligence interfere with a willingness to sock. Packey McFarland had it about right when he said a champion is a guy with a string back and nothing to rattle around in his head if he gets popped on the chin. Berlenbach was a hit in his early fights because he went out walloping until something dropped. He was a refreshing novelty in a world of fighters who want to be clever. When he tries to be clever he just joins the tiresome majority."

"Hold on a minute," I said. "You're forgetting that Paul broke a bone in his right hand in the Marullo fight. The Jerse ycommission exonerated him and ordered the club to pay the purse.

"I'm not forgetting anything," retorted the Tin Eared Sport. "Of course Paul cracked something in his right hand. He did that trying to be clever. But his left hand is his knock-out hand, isn't it? He could have taken a chance with that, couldn't he? Seems to me I remember that Bob Fitzsimmons smashed two knuckles of his right hand hitting George Gardner on the head in the third round and won a 20-round decision and the light-heavyweight title with his left hand. He fought 17 rounds with one hand, and he was over 40 years old, too. He broke his right hand on Jeffries, and came within an ace of stopping Jeff with his left before that buckled too and he was knocked out. Bob licked Corbett with one hand. He broke his right three days before, in training.

"That brings up the real trouble with champions in these days," went on the Tin Eared Sport. "All a champion thinks of now is saving his title and keeping it a long time. His title is his capital and he's a business man. In the old days when fighters went out into the woods and fought for a hatful of money, winner to take all, they didn't stall.

"The modern champion is a business man. He may not be yellow about taking a punch on the chin—that's nothing. But he's yellow about losing the title. And why not? With the title he's a rich guy, and without the title he goes back among the ham and eggers.

Champions Hard Scrappers When Crown's Not At Stake

"You look 'em over. How often do you see a champion put up a real fight? A champion nearly always lets the other fellow do the fighting, and he finds some way of stalling out of danger. That Greb-Walker fight a while back was a great fight, wasn't it? Walker fought like a wild man to get the middleweight title, and Greb had to fight to hold it. There wasn't any way of stalling. There was a decision, and Greb couldn't make Walker come in above the middleweight limit. It was different when Walker was fighting on the Pacific coast last spring. Mickey made his opponent sign contracts to weigh in over the welterweight limit, so the title wouldn't be at stake. Then, having no title to lose, he sailed in and knocked them out. If the title had been up Mickey probably would have been very careful and clever. Not that Mickey is yellow or anything like that—he proved his gameness in the Greb fight. But like most of the champions he has a streak when the title is concerned.

"It has been a custom with some of our flock of new champions to stick to no-decision bouts and make opponents come in over the weight limit. If boxing commissions don't wake up and stop that sort of stalling everybody is going to lose interest in the champions. Say—name the champions in all the classes offhand—can you?

"Of course we've had a few real fighting champions who weren't afraid to take a chance after their managers had been persuaded to let them fight. Benny Leonard took all the good boys in his class. Some of them knocked Benny down for nine seconds, but he always got up and slipped over a knockout or a good beating a few rounds later. Benny was in a class by himself.

"Jack Dempsey didn't know what it was to stall and dodge risks in a fight. His idea was to knock his man out in the shortest possible time, in every fight. He met tought resistance in two fights, with Brennan and Firpo, and the way he fought showed he wasn't afraid of being licked, whatever happened. He was satisfied to outpoint Tom Gibbons, but he gave Tom every chance. But even Dempsey hasn't been an ideal champion. After beating Willard, Dempsey said he'd take them all on and be a real fighting champion. He has done very little fighting, perhaps because Jack Kearns wouldn't let him. Dempsey is back from Europe and promises to turn over a new leaf. If Jack goes back to his old habit of fighting every month or two for the next year instead of taking two years to talk over a fight he'll be the most popular champion we ever had."

"But will he do it?" I asked.

Coaches on Way To Rockne School

AUSTIN, Aug. 1.—Knute Rockne, coach of the Notre Dame Micks, national football champions of 1924, and Dr. Walter Meanwell, basket ball coach of Wisconsin university, will arrive in Austin tonight and will begin their work Monday morning in the school for coaches to be conducted at St. Edward's university here August 3-15. Coaches who will attend the school were arriving today, and Jack Meagher, athletic director of St. Edward's university, said close to 200 coaches would be in Austin by Monday morning.

Eight or nine states will be represented in the coaching school, Meagher said. "Reservations already have been made by coaches from Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Arizona, New Mexico, California and Utah," he said.

A large number of well known Texas college and university coaches will attend the school, E. J. "Doc" Stewart of the University of Texas, whose coaching school at Kerrville came to an end a short time ago, will attend the school for at least a week. Among other coaches who will attend are "Dad" Amis, coach of the 1924 champions of the T. I. A. A., the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets; Pete Cawthon of Austin college and E. P. Shotwell and Vic Payne of Simmons college.

Hagen Collapses And Digel Sweeps To Golf Victory

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Leo Digel, of Greak Neck, N. Y., today equalled the record of the late J. Douglas Edgar of Atlanta, Ga., by scoring his second consecutive victory in the Canadian open golf championship with a score of 295 for 72 holes.

Digel's triumph was made possible by the unexpected collapse of the veteran star expected to give him his keenest opposition—Walter Hagen. The Florida professional started badly on the first hole of his afternoon round, hooking out of bounds and requiring an eight. He never seemed fully to regain his stride during the remainder of the round, requiring an 80 to Digel's 78.

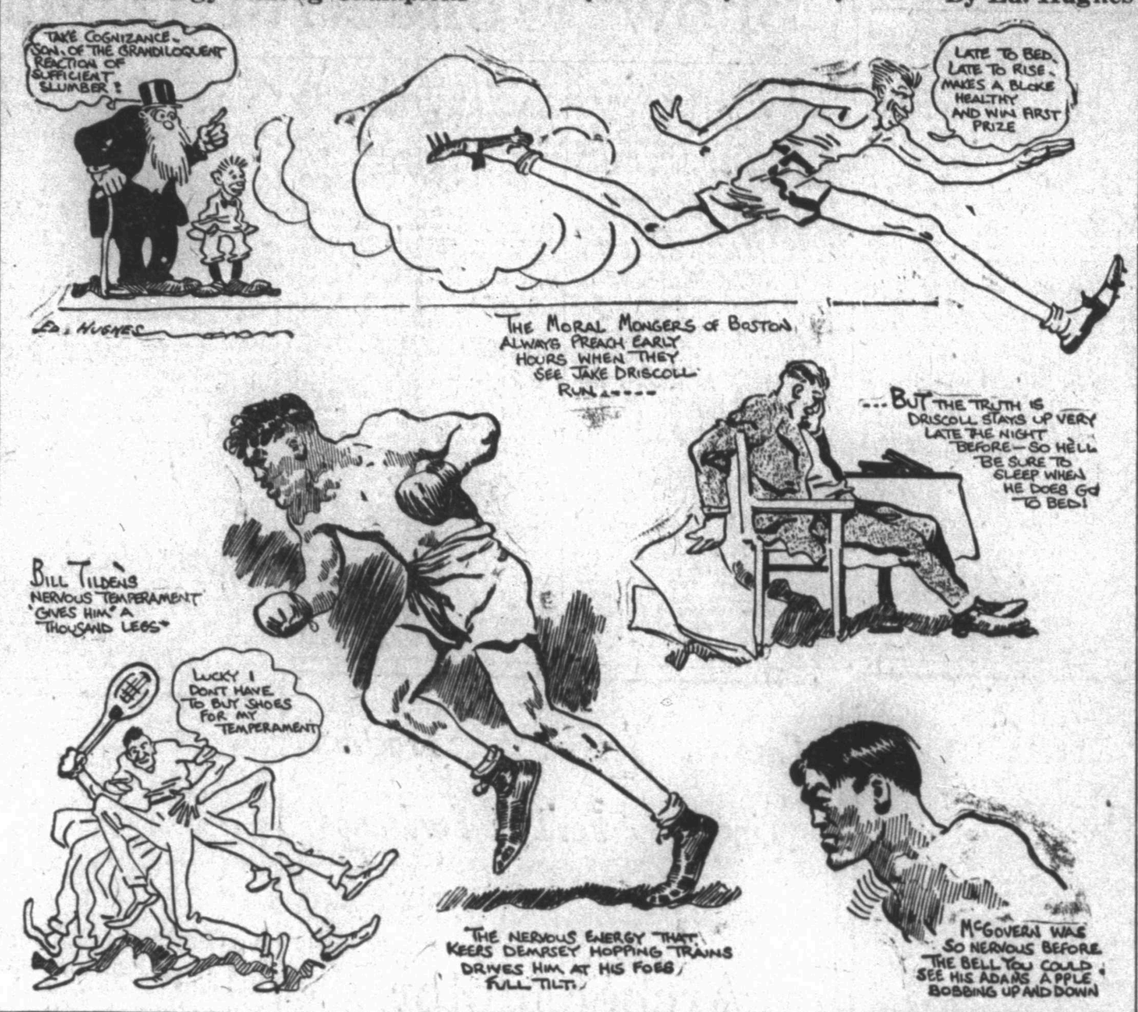

Hagen's tumble also aided Mike Brady of Mamaroneck, N. Y., to slip into second place with a card of 297, while Andy Kay of Lambton, Toronto, held third place with Hagen, each having cards of 301.

The present and former holder of the United States open championship tied for fifth place, both Willie MacFarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Cyril Walker of Englewood shooting 304. Digel, by his victory, comes into possession of a gold medal and $500.

Cards to Train In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 1.—The St. Louis Cardinals will do their spring training in San Antonio in 1925, according to a letter received today by the chamber of commerce from Branch Rickey, vice-president and former manager of the club.

Decision to train the team in San Antonio was made by the club owners shortly after a recent visit here by Rickey, when he inspected the playing field and training facilities. The team was invited here by the chamber of commerce who agreed to put the feld in condition and properly equip the clubhouse.

The teams will reach here shortly before March 1 when the actual training will begin.

Charles Comisky, president of the Chicago White Sox is considering San Antonio for spring training, according to a recent letter received by chamber officials.

The Minneapolis team of the American association which trained here last spring is expected to return.

American Refiners To Play Boosters

The American Refinery will invade Frederick, Okla., today for a tilt with the Frederick Boosters. Skipper Medford said he would use Ronie Glidewell on the hill and Tank Horton behind the bat.

MACKS BUY MAY BROTHERS.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Kit and Orie May, brothers of Staunton, Va., both pitchers for Martinsburg in the Blue Ridge league, have been sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. Martinsburg club officials announced the deal today said the brothers would report to Philadelphia at the end of the present Blue Ridge season. The consideration, their paid, was $2,500.

They Play Boston Bloomers Today.

It's an innovation this bringing girl baseball players to Wichita Falls for a game with Monroe's Travelers, Wichita Falls Twilight league team, Sunday afternoon and for that reason a big crowd is expected at Spudder park.

But whether playing the Boston Bloomers or not, Riley Rawls, outfielder and manager of the Travelers, and Andy Taylor, speedy third sacker, are well worth the price of admission to witness in action. This pair stacks up as two of the best players in the Twilight league this year. They'll be in there this afternoon. Game starts at 3 o'clock.

Cobb Slips As Youthful Rice Climbs to Top

Rogers Hits in Hard Luck But Still Leads National

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Ty Cobb, veteran of 20 major league campaigns today is beginning to show the strain in his conquest of the 1925 American league batting championship.

The Tiger leader, coming out second best in his tilt with the pitchers, dropped this week from the lofty eminence he held, to fourth place while the youthful Harry Rice of the St. Louis Browns, tacking 10 points on his average, moved into second place. Cobb's failure to smack the ball where there were no fielders meant a loss of 18 points and made a wider gulf between him and the leader, Tris Speaker.

The veteran Clevelnad pilot not only held the lead, but added a point to his average over his mark of a week ago. Speaker is batting .405, followed by Rice with .395. Harry Heilmann of the Tigers is third with .386, with Cobb next in line with .384. The figures are based on games including Wednesday.

Macks Hold Own

The heavy swingers of the Philadelphia wrecking crew are holding their own and this does not count the pinch hitting French, who is at the top with a fall to .366. Among the others who are coming is Rice of the Senators who now figures among the leaders. The consistent George Sisler of St. Louis is holding his own as he has done for weeks.

Al Simmons of the Athletics has been hitting consistently, displacing Ken Williams of the Browns for total base honors. Simmons, with 144 hits, has a total of 236 bases. They include 31 doubles, six triples and 16 homers. Williams failed to add to his string of 24 home runs.

Johnny Mostil's speed has given him the honors as the best run getter. In addition to stealing 34 bases, the White Sox flash has crossed the plate 8 Stimes.

Other leading batters:

Sisler, St. Louis, .371; E. Rice, Washington, .367; J. Sewell, Cleveland, .360; Simmons, Philadelphia, .366; Wingo, Detroit, .366; Lamar, Philadelphia, .364; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .364; Hale, Philadelphia, .360.

Cuyler Counts Most

Hazen Cuyler, is the first player in the major leagues to cross the century mark in runs earned. The speedy fly chaser of the Pirates has counted 101 times. His tremendous speed is one of the reasons why Pittsburgh is leading the National league pennant race. During the last week Cuyler swiped six bases which planted him right on Carey's tail with 21. Carey has stolen 22.

Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals has been hitting in tough luck. For the first time since June 10, he dropped below the .400 mark. He still has a comfortable lead over his rivals, however, batting .398, 12 points lower than a week ago. Apparently he has been swinging harder than usual, and as a result pulled away from the menacing Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs in their race for the home run honors. Hornsby added two to his string and is showing the way with 26. Hartnett is trailing with 23.

Catcher Wilson of the Phillies and Milton Stock of the Dodgers, along with Jimmy Bottomley of the Cardinals, have shown inclinations to challenge. Wilson is the runner-up to Hornsby with an advance of eight points over his previous mark.

Other leading batters: Fournier, Brooklyn, .378; Burrus, Boston, .358; Wrightstone, Philadelphia, .356; Bancroft, Boston, .354; Cuyler, Pittsburg, .352; Felix, Boston, .352; Harper, Philadelphia, .351; Blades, St. Louis, .351.

BOTH TEAMS PRIMED FOR HARD SERIES

Courtney Faces Trout In Opener—Oilers Await Shadie's Return

Twilight title honors will be decided in a best two out of three-game series beginning Monday, Aug. 2. The Texhoma club, winners of the first half and Security National bank, winners of the last half, will be the two clubs that battle for all season honors.

Texhomas won the first half through a 6 to 4 victory over the American refinery, who finished a tie witht hem at the midway split. In the last half of the race Texhoma finished second.

The Security National bank finished poorly in the first half and very little was expected of this team in the last half. They added to their club Sid Stanfield, brainy little catcher and then swept through the last half with six straight wins before dropping the final game of the series to the Travelers, 16 to 6.

For the first game "Oklahoma Lee" Courtney will be the mound selection of the Bankers. The big bank club skipper has been doing some nice hurling through the last half, and on a good diamond should be hard to stop.

Trout will be the starting pitcher for Texhoma, according to Manager Gordon. Trout has done but little pitching thus far in the league, but has shown results in what time he has worked.

Last year Courtney took two games from Texhoma in the play-off by the scores of 4 to 3 and 4 to 2.

For the second game, Gabe Harris will be the Banker's selection for mound duty. Harris has been one of the best pitchers in the league, and much is expected from this chap in the big series.

Texhoma will use "No-Hit" McDuffy on the hill for the second game, with Vernie Ross handling him. This was the battery that won the first half honors for Texhoma in the play-off game with American Refinery. The youngster has done some nice pitching all year, most notable of which is the hurling of a no-hit game over the First Christian club in the Sunday school league.

In case a third game is needed to decide the issue the pitching will be a doubtful thing. Security bank has only Jimmy Parker left for work, but Skipper Courtney may make an effort to come back for the final tilt.

Texhoma will be in a better shape to play a third game, with both Choc Thompson and Randolph on the pitching last, yet Thompson will probably be used in the outfield if Sadie Hale doesn't get in town in time to take his infield position. If Hale arrives in time for the series Gerard Boone will be shifted to the outfield.

For the rest of the club's men, rated as to the positions which they will play, the teams rank about on even terms, save for the outfield, where Texhoma has a slight edge. At first base the Security has Fats Mathis, as good a fielder as the league can boast, but Fats has been having trouble with his stick work. The big first sacker is hitting the ball, but somebody is all the time popping up in front of it.

Texhoma has Slim Kellogg at first, and like Mathis is a great fielder, but with hitting below par.

At second base Texhoma will have Gerard Boone, while the Security will have "Jelly" Graves. Boone and Graves are both fieldnig in great form. Their hitting is also going fine. They rank at about even terms. At short the strong points of the inner works is brought out. The work of Shadie Hale, Texhoma short, will be missed greatly if he fails to arrive in time for the games. Hershel Johnson will be able to put up a nice game, if he is kept at second base. "Monty" Montgomery, recognized as one of the best in the league, will be the shortstop of the Bankers.

At third base, Security has Curren Brown and Texhoma has Hood Kisziar. Both are nice fielders and fair hitters. Hood is the more dangerous of the two in the pinch.

Behind the bath both clubs the strong. Sid Hatfield and Joe Crouch with the Security make a sweet pair of maskmen, while Dub Davis and Vernie Ross also give Texhoma a nice set of catchers.

With Texhoma using Choc Thompson, pitcher, in the outer garden, they still have a nice outfield in McMahon, Gordon and Thompson. The Security has a good outer defense but are young and untried in crucial games. The Security outfield is Patterson, Platt and Harris. Skipper Courtney will take the outfield in the days Harris will be on the hillock.

The probable starting lineups:

Security National Bank—Montgomery, ss; Mathis, 1b; Graves, 2b; Stanfield, c; Courtney, p; Harris, rf; Brown, 3b; Patterson, lf; Platt, cf; reserve lists, Parker, Walker, Crouch, Martin.

Texhoma—Johnson, ss; Kellogg, 1b; Gordon, cf; Thompson, rf; Kisziar, 3b; McMahon, lf; Boone, 2b; Davis, c; Trout, p; reserve lists, Ross, McDuffy, Randolph.

Steer Forward Defense His Big Worry, Says Doc

AUSTIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—E. J. "Doc" Stewart, head football coacl of Texas university, said today upon his return from Kerryville, where he held a school for coaches, that building a line of championship calibre would be his hardest task this coming fall when the Longhorns tackle one of their most difficult football schedules of history. He announced fall training would start September 10.

ARCHER COUNTY AND ARCHER CITY

Show Wonderful Development

The Methodist church of Archer City, the Baptist church of Archer City, the Christian church of Archer City invites you to worship at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening when in Archer City.

PERSONAL INTERVIEWS WITH ARCHER CITY BUILDERS.

J. A. Fudge, proprietor of the City bakery of Archer City, has been a resident 14 years. He is also a contractor and has contributed much to the wise and stable growth of the city. W. K. Fudge, his son, has followed baking for nearly ten years and puts the utmost in quality into the product of the bakery.

W. A. Baggett, one of the proprietors of the City market of Archer City, has been n the county for some time. He thinks the fine school system, the churches and the prosperity of the town make it a fine place to live.

Judge S. C. Walker of Archer City, who has helped the growth of Archer county and been a kindly and willing leader in fraternal and public welfare activities thinks the fine promise of the city is due to the more than ordinarily good class of people, the good schools, good church units and society.

D. F. Daub of George's filling station, says that one of the most important prospects in view for Archer is that when the hard surface roads are finished, Archer City will be on the main highway from Wichita Falls to Mineral Wells and Fort Worth.

One of the first things Archer is considering to meet recent expansion is a paid fire department. We have plenty of water, good pressure and some modern equipment, but the growth of the business section is so rapid we must have experienced fire fighters. To get this and many other needed advantages of a city such as Archer is fast becoming, we will soon have a paid secretary for the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Daub has a fuel oil station in Archer from which he ships eight to 10 cars weekly.

He came here from Wichita Falls some year and a half ago, and certainly believes in the future of the town.

Ben H. Huddleston of the Archer City Motor Co., Ford dealers, came to Archer City last September. He thinks the county has indefinite resources. The oil potentialities point to a 20-year production at least, and from looking around Wichita Falls situation, he thinks the wisdom of the builders of that city will impress the citizens of Archer City to keep the farm development up with the oil to balance and enhance each industry. In event the oil does decrease in the next 20 years and agriculture will support the expansion, Archer is making plans that indicate well balanced if startling growth.

T. E. Morrison, one of the proprietors of the City market, says of Archer City that on his return from a six months' trip he was much surprised by the remarkable strides the city has made in building and oil commerce.

The people of Archer City have an unusually wide vision of trade expansion on a solid and honest foundation.

They have refused to use cheap and temporary means of extension.

F. L. Childers of the C. & M. Service Station, Archer City, moved from Wichita Falls three years ago because he saw the vast possibilities of the town.

He thinks its success is insured by he fine class of citizens, the progressive plans and various programs being carried to a successful outcome. Archer is inviting the development of her virgin farm lands.

Mr. Childers is helping make the town a finer and bigger one.

T. L. Looney is one of the builders of the Archer City of today. Mr. Looney is principally interested in the Archer City Realty Co., and has aided in the planning of the town since its early days. He says the town needs a 50-rom hotel and the owner of such could indeed make a nice income from its operation. The writer, was not able to get a room at the hotels because of the great demand.

H. K. Dycus, mayor of Archer City, thinks the most important thing in the splendid city of Archer is the fine citizenry. He asserts they are the finest citizens in the world and we are inclined to think he is right. Mr. Dycus, a fine citizen himself, is held in highest esteem by the people of Archer City. He was much embarrassed by the fear that he might be quoted as using some "flowery language" in this interview, when assured only plain facts were required, he gave them gladly.

He cited the fact that there is absolute safety in Archer City from the effects of crime, bad moral conditions, or people. So far as real worth is concerned, the people of Archer City deserve the prosperity the discovery of oil has brought the town. He also has a fine herd of Hereford cattle.

Mr. W. C. Young was in conference with Mr. Dycus when we called. Mr. Young is a former mayor of Archer City and now resident in Wichita Falls. Mr. Young says Archer City is growing and improving in a striking way. The finest oil resources of the state being found within a few miles of the city has given the progressive citizenry an opportunity to make Archer City an important commercial center.

Mr. E. G. Thornton, lawyer, of Archer City, says of Archer that he moved here in March and the outlook is very bright in that it is the county seat of, if not the best, one of the best oil producing counties in the state. New oil pools are constantly being discovered in the county. That means oil may be found immediately adjacent to Archer City. All these advantages in addition to the large ranch interests which have made this section widely known as a producer of prize winning stock and the vast stretches of land yet to be developed, both from the standpoint of oil production and agriculture, make this section the richest in promise of any part of a rich state.

Connie Hays of the General Insurance Co., says the pull together or community spirit is very strong in Archer City. The city has entered upon a great and well deserved era of permanent and logical expansion, due to the oil production near the city. The employment of a secretary of the chamber of commerce will help the various organizations keep step in the marvelous development of the town into an important oil center. To pull together is the only way the individual can insure his own welfare and prosperity, and Archer City has never been laggard in the things that make for progress safety and service for all.

Mr. Hays thinks Archer is making glorious history, and the visitor observes that that history is clean of the often found dross of human weakness of hasty ill-done work and unfair business dealings.

Archer is indeed a place you would like to live and thrive with its fine citizens.

L. K. Hyer of the Guarantee Abstract Co., Archer City, says of his town "we have a lot of fine churches, schools and a magnificent court house we have very little use for a jail as there is never ant crime or disorder here in spite of the supposed reputation of an oil center. Great activity in and around Archer City demands the formation of a chamber of commerce with paid secretary to replace the casual organization we now have.

Mr. John P. Flemming of the Powers State bank of Archer City, says that with the $100,000 improvement of an already fine court house, the tearing down of a good school to build a $7,500 high school building the contemplated sewer system, the good road system to Wichita Falls for which bonds have been voted by Archer county, the building of a high power line by the Wichita Falls Electric Co., there is more to be said of the future of Archer City than the city builders have words to express, so they are "saying it with deeds." There is some consideration being given the creation of a project that will store water to give Archer City a supply equal to Lake Kemp. This and many other things for the advancement of the city will require the formation of a commercial organization with a competent secretary who will keep the various units of improvement abreast of each other in this comprehensive program of a city in the making. All the required attributes are here, it only needs the co-ordination and fitting together such projects deserve and must have, and in a few months and years the song will be, "I remember when this corner had only a frame building instead of this imposing office building of many stories," or do you see that residence? Five years ago that land was pasture for cattle and now the city has extended into a corporation of several miles in extent.

Thus is a great city built, with the steady and careful energy and forethought of the men of vision who lay the first plans and toil patiently to carry them out to the perfect result to be observed in the Archer City of today.

The visitor agrees with Mr. Flemming, the city builder of Archer are saying it with deeds, deeds of marvelous worth as an example to other communities of what can be done with a bit of faith and a stretch of mesquite grown land in the wonderful oil fields of north Texas.

Mrs. E. H. Ikard, Archer county sheriff, says the most notable thing about this old-new town of Archer City is the fact that the life of the people has been of such a high moral and friendly character there has been no let down by reason of the oil field traffic and the coming of the usual transient oil field worker. There are no trashy idlers to make trouble. Community self respect does have its effect upon the new comer and as Archer City people had always stood only for civic cleanliness and decency, the undesirables of the oil field workers and drifters have not come to Archer City. The entire community co-operates in making Archer City an ideal place to live and raise a family in the security of clean and wholesome conditions.

Mr. C. E. Taylor, district and county clerk of Archer county, says the growth of the community has been so rapid and startling we have outgrown the facilities of even the town of a year ago. There is no doubt that in the course of a few months a permanent commercial organization of the chamber of commerce will be formed to supplement the casual organization effected more than a year ago.

The demand for information as to Archer's resources has become so heavy a paid secretary is urgently needed to answer the correspondence and keep up with the details of a multitude of various projects now being carried out for civic improvement.

The citizens of Archer have never failedto lead other communities in consistent and well planned advancement of the interests of the town and the future of Archer is one of constant progressiveness.

Mr. W. T. Mayes of the Mayes & Skurd drug store, says the work of the present chamber of commerce has contributed much to the growth of Archer City, but, the intense expansion of the oil fields around Archer City demands a more modern city and the employment of a paid secretary to avoid a costly duplication of effort in the various plans for the betterment of the city.

Along social lines much has been done by the P. T. A. under the fine self-sacrificing leadership of Mrs. W. S. Wilson, wife of the superintendent of schools.

The various church societies have done much to redeem the life of the town from the curse of carelessness that gives rise to many abuses of the child life of any town. Archer City has a wonderful opportunity ahead.

R. F. Burnett of the barber shop, says there is much sentiment for the backing of a live comprehensive commercial organization to properly represent the town before the public and put out information as to the manifold advantages of Archer City as a commercial center and a place to live.

Dr. T. C. McCurdy, commandant of the Ira Jones post 198 of the American Legion, and the good friend and confidant of all who need a friend, says it is not possible to build a city without absolute co-operation as well as plans. That Archer City has made such fine progress is due to the hearty pull together attitude of her planners.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Stock prices displayed a strong undertone in today's brief and quiet session of the market. The appearance of off strong buying support for many of the popular steels, motors, oils and other standard industrial resulted in a virtual cessation of professional selling pressure, net gains of 1 to 3 points being scattered throughout the list at the close.

Operators for the rise derived encouragement from the cheerful tenor of the weekly mercantile reviews and encouraging trade reports from the basic industries. One of the most constructive developments o fthe day was the publication of a government report showing that gasoline consumption in June was 27 per cent above that of a year ago and that, despite recent breaking production of the crude oil in that month there had been a substantial reduction of gasoline stocks in storage. A bulletin interpretation also was placed upon the apparent avoidance of a British coal strike. Standard industrials received good support. U. S. Steel common crossed 118 for a small fractional gain on the day: American Can moved up nearly 2 points to 209⅝, and Baldwin advanced slightly to 113¼.

Pool operations were again in evidence. New York canners was bid up three points to a new 1925 high at 51½; F. G. Shattuck company climbed over two points to a record top at 76½; Case Threshing Machine preferred attained a new maximum price at 86¾. International Telephone soared nearly five points to a new high at 129¾. renewed accumulation of Philip Morris was based on reports of large sales of new brands of cigarettes.

Commercial solvents issues reacted sharply on a small turnover and heaviness also was noted in Brown Shoe, Mathieson Alkali, May Department stores, Otis Steel preferred, and Midland Steel products preferred.

Rails continued to respond to reports of unusually favorable June earnings. Southern railway moved up nearly two points to par and good gains were also recorded by Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line and Frisco common.

Foreign exchanges were quiet but firm. Demand sterling ruling slightly higher around $4.85⅝ and French francs were quoted at just below 4.75 cents. Scandinavian exchanges held steady.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—The cotton market worked toward lower levels today and although the publication of the leading totals of Secretary Hester's annual report on the supply and distribution of the crop for the past season caused quite a sharp rally during the first hour of trading the reports of good rains in the belt and even in the Texas south section proved too much for constructive sentiment and prices made new lows in the second hour. October traded 35 points below the high which followed Hester's figures and 23 points below yesterday's close. There was a slight rally in the late trading on week-end covering but the close showed net losses for the day of 17 to 21 points.

The Liverpool market was closed today so the local opening was unaffected by cables. Nevertheless opening trades showed losses of 9 to 13 points and this decline was soon increased to 14 to 18 points with October at 23.55 and December at 23.70. The bearish trend was encouraged by further rains in the belt. When the principal totals of Secretary Hester's annual report were issued near the end of the first half hour of trading the market made a sharp spurt on the bullish construction placed on the totals, particularly the world's consumption and carry-over. October jumped up to 23.85 and December to 23.95, or 25 to 30 points up from the early lows.

As the weather map showed quite general rains, incuding some good rains in central Texas in the heart of the dreuth district, the gain was soon lost and prices made new lows at 23.50 for October and 23.62 for December or 33 to 35 points down from the highs. The market rallied slightly near the end. Secretary Hester made the commercial crop of last season 14,898,000 bales, the consumption 14,247,000 and the carry-over at the close of the season 2,550,000.

A local private authority made the crop condition 64 and the indicated yield 13,466,000 bales. Experts today 21,370 bales, all from Houston.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Expected reduction of unofficial estimates of the 1925 domestic yield of spring wheat had much to do with a lively fresh advance in wheat prices today. The wheat market closed strong at 2¼ to 4¼c net gain. September $1.53¾ to 1.55⅝ and December $1.53½ to 1.54, with corn ¼ to 1c up, oats unchanged to ¾c higher and provisions ranging from 10 cents decline to a rise of 15c.

Corn and oats sympathized with the action of wheat dealings in both the feed grains, however, lacked volume.

Provisions were mostly lower with hogs and as a result of slackness in export demand for lard.

The Adventures Of Ronald in N. York

Ronald Bentley is a modern youth —one for whom the night holds no terrors except that of having to go home before daylight. He lives in a small town, has a wealthy father and is possessed with an unconquorable desire to display his derility at every turn.

John Bentley, his father, has entirely different ideas and wishes to cure his son of his wildness. In such a case, what would seem more natural than to send the boy to New York with the object of letting him get himself into a few real scrapes which would make him content with family life in the old home town.

This he does and here we disclose through letters from Rodney to "the governor," his escapades and his "Night Life of New York."

RONALD BENTLEY'S LETTER TO HIS FATHER ON NIGHT LIFE IN NEW YORK.

Dear Governor:

Am at last in the big town and neartly parked in a rear big downtown hotel. Boy it is some high powered shack. You could put the old Mansion House of Clay City in one of its elevators and still have room for a smoke.

I know I am going to like it. Things have started popping already. Called for a number on the phone this morning but didn't get turned in any further than the hotel switchboard. Her voice listened so interesting I didn't want any further. I went down to investigate, had to slip a little blood money to a bell hop to get me into the switchboard room. There I ran onto about 16 good looking kids so had to get on a phone and call them one at a time until I found the one by recognizing her voice. Her name is Meg and Dad she is some queen. If you should turn this mamma loose in Clay City she'd stop traffic.

You know the actress I met in Clay, Carrie Reed, well she is here and just called to date me up for the evening. (Now there's New York for you!) Said we would take in a show then hit the midnight cabarets. Night Life! That's what this boy's soul doth hunger for. And believe your sonny, he is going to show 'em some speed that will make the fast set popeyed.

S'ing.
RONALD.

American Queen Bows to English Star on Courts

Miss Helen Wills Suffers Her First Defeat In America

SEABRIGHT, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, an American citizen returning to her native land with an English accent and a Wimbledon stroke, after an absence of 13 years today bowled over the queen of the American court.

First Tourney.

Playing her first tournament tennis since her arrival here three weeks ago, she defeated Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Calif., 19-year-old American champion in the final round of the Seabright invitation tournament, 6-3, 6-3. This marked the climax of a series of upsets which have marked the play throughout the week.

Miss Ryan's victory was as impressive as it was decisive. There were no frills attached. Discarding her tennis shoes, she roamed the damp courts in her stocking feet with more aggressiveness than her youthful opponent and accomplished the downfall of Miss Wills in 42 1-2 minutes.

The grass courts, boggy from yesterday's continued downpour, were heavy and uncertain, but Miss Ryan appeared not to notice the sluggish bound of the ball. She was all over the court getting and driving with tantalizing accuracy and steadiness and scoring a major share of her points on her rival's errors.

Miss Ryan is a former Californian.

Play in the other finals went according to form. Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., America's second ranking star, defeated James O. Anderson, singles champion of Australia, in the final of the men's singles, 6-1, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0. The Australian faltered badly before the steady play of his youthful opponent and contributed overwhelmingly to his own downfall by a consistent patter which he played upon the net with his smashing drives.

Teamed with Miss Eleanor Goss of New York in the finals of the women's doubles, Miss Ryan defeated Miss Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne of California, 11-9, 6-1. In the men's doubles, William M. Fort Worth Klan Burn Crosses As Protest To City

FORT WORTH, Aug. 1.—Forty "fiery crosses," symbol of the Knights of the ku klux klan, were burned in different parts of the city Friday night as a protest against certain actions taken by the city administration in recent weeks.

Klan number 101 would not issue any official statement as to why the crosses were burned. However, it was unofficially learned that these were among the reasons:

"Because the city government has 'imported' department heads from other cities.

"Because the administration is alleged by the klan to have discriminated against certain klansmen in refusing to give employment or by dismissing some who were in the employment of the city.

"Because several klansmen, employed in the water department, were dismissed from service in the past few days."

"The indignation crosses" were not meant for a protest against the city managerial form of government. They, it was unofficially reported, were "intended as resentment against actions of the government.

Robertson Home To Be Completed Soon

The home that friends of Mrs. Hattie Robertson are building for her at 608 Van Buren street is rapidly nearing completion and may possibly be ready for occupancy as early as August 15, the builders assert.

There has been a scarcity of labor lately due to other building operations under way in Wichita Falls, and but for that it would have been finished now. The finished house will be valued at about something like $5,000. Approximately half of this was donated in cash by friends of the Robertsons all over the state. Local lumber companies have donated much of the material needed, and Wichita Falls carpenters and artisans have furnished all the labor required up to this time.

Fort Worth Appeals Court Hears Petition in Estate Fight

A ruling by Chief Justice Conner of the second court fo civil appeals at Fort Worth in which he granted a temporary injunction to children of the late E. A. McCleskey of Iowa Park marked another step Saturday in the legal controversy over division of the McCleskey estate. The court fight is being staged by the children of Mr. McCleskey on one side and their stepmother on the other.

Is an Injunction.

The ruling of Justice Conner Saturday was given in the form of an injunction which restrains Mrs. McCleskey from in any way interferring with the plaintiffs' possession and control of a deed of partition of the estate. The plaintiffs in the case were Sam and Henry McCleskey and Mrs. Adeline Zink and Mrs. Rosa Friberg.

Worth $40,000.

The estate left by Mr. McCleskey is now worth about $40,000. The litigation over it started shortly after the elder McCleskey's death when a deed of partition was drawn disposing of the estate. This was later cancelled in the 89th district court here and Mrs. McCleskey was given a life estate of one-third of the property. Later another partition was made in district court here and a judgment returned favoring the children. McCleskey appealed from the decision and the case is still pending. The injunction granted by Justice Conner yesterday is effective until the higher courts have ruled on Mrs. McCleskey's original petition.

Girl Bandit Jeers Companions While They Rob Soldier

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 1.—Toying with the gasoline accelerator of her automobile, San Antonio's youthful girl-bandit leader, chided her two men companions Friday night while they robbed Sergeant John Spangler, Kelly Field medical detachment, of $32.

Alternately racing and retarding the engine as if unafraid of any attention her action might draw, she said to her companion:

"Hurry up with that bully."

"Climb in," she commanded, starting the automobile as the bandit mounted the running board.

Sergeant Spangler was waiting for a street car when the bandit car drove up. He looked up to stare into the muzzle of a revolver, police were told. One bandit alighted. The victim was ordered to turn around and the bandit began his search.

LITTLE OLD TOWN

By FANNIE HURST

Author of "Lammux", "Humoresque"

Copyright, 1925, by
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Peola was one of those commonplace corn-beef-and-cabbage towns with EXOTIC ORCHID NAMES.

And Marion Jane was a product of Peola. People said she ought to go on the stage. And at last SHE CAME TO THINK SO TOO.

She became a headliner in vaudeville, too. A GREAT SUCCESS.

But Marion Jane's Mother! When she and Marion Jane came back to Peola the Mother NEVER DARED so much as turn her head to peer at the roof of THE LITTLE HOUSE between the elms.

THE Carraways lived in Peola. One of those commonplace corned-beef-and-cabbage little towns with exotic orchid names that line the Vandalia railroad tracks.

There was a People's Bank, a chain grocery store, a new one-story concrete post office and a gasoline station, visible from the train as it sped past.

Also a glimpse of base-burner in the little brick station and an invariable truck of milk cans drawn up at the edge of the platform.

You could see the roof of the Carraway cottage, too, if you knew just which particular elm trees to look between as the train shot again into open country.

Marion Carraway and her daughter Marion-Jane lived on Elm Street, two blocks from the station in a cottage of the sort you see on calendars. Rambler roses DID clamber over a front gate with a canopy built over IT for them to climb up on. A red brick walk, reddened by Marion Carraway on Tuesdays and Saturdays, led up to a front door that in June was half hidden under more climbing roses.

Marion Carraway was a seamstress, and when she sewed in that open doorway, every once in a while she took a deep, audible breath. Of pleasure.

Marion-Jane, her daughter, worked in the telephone exchange. There never was a time, in sitting there at her sewing thinking of her, that the mother's heart did not seem literally to contract with the parent's cardinal emotions of pride and joy in offspring.

Marion-Jane was so pretty. So young, in an adorable boyish way! And full of such swagger, too. Marion Carraway loved to sew for her far into the night, after the orders were out of the way. It was a thankful job, sewing for Marion-Jane. She wore her clothes so well. In a debonnair way that reminded the mother of the father who had left her widowed since the year of Marion-Jane's birth.

At all the local entertainments, Marion-Jane carried off the honors. She sang so charmingly. In a high, thin, saucy little voice that delighted. And dance! From a very little girl Marion-Jane had danced through that cottage. Been its sunshine. Its life and its vitality.

People said she ought to go on the stage. That is how it must have started. The townspeople, full of admiration for the quality of mime and terpsichore in Marion-Jane, felt it about her sincerely. With her prettiness and her wittiness Marion-Jane was a born actress. Marion-Jane ought to go on the stage.

And slowly the idea, dripping, dripping upon that pretty head of Marion-Jane's, penetrated. It was after the annual entertainment given by the Telephone Exchange employees for charity, that Marion-Jane came out openly and rebelliously and announced her determination to go on the professional stage. And Marion Carraway, who had fought the idea determinedly, consistently, over a period of three years, realized suddenly the futility of further opposition. There were green little flames of anger at the flanges of Marion-Jane's nose, most of the time, these days, and some of her prettiness was already dissolving into little lines of bitterness that had no place upon the lovely blondeness of her face.

With her heart heavy within her, Marion Carraway realized that the time had come to give in. And giving in, to Marion Carraway, meant giving up. Giving up the little home that had become, as it were, part of her very heart. Partly because she had paid for it with stitches and eyesight and spinal-column, and largely because it had been the scene of the dancing into girlhood of her Marion-Jane.

When Marion decided that she must give in, that is exactly what it meant. Giving up. Giving up.

She would no more have permitted Marion-Jane to set out alone! Marion-Jane, whose loveliness and innocence and darlingness were jewels to be guarded. So when Marion-Jane set out from Peola in her search for fame, Marion Carraway went, too. With the proceeds from the sale of the little cottage safe on checking account in the People's Bank and more tears in her heart than she ever imagined it could hold.

Marion-Jane had her bad times. Her very bad times. Months of the kind of disappointment that can glimmer across youth and sometimes save up scars on old age. It was not the disappointment that mattered so much those first months. After all, there was the checking account behind them. It was the life in a box. Hotel rooms that smelled of sour flesh and the breath of disappointed sighs. Dim, cat-ridden courtyards for vista. Long unavailing tramps through city streets that seemed to fly up and slap Marion and Marion-Jane in the face.

Months of it. And Marion-Jane, who had been lovely as a field flower is lovely, taking on some of the sophistication of the city flower. It seemed sometimes that there were too many tears in Marion's heart ever to flow out.

And then one day, at a try-out in a vaudeville agent's office, something in Marion-Jane got itself across to a producer with his eye out for the little eccentric charm that bubbled up through the surface commonplaceness of Marion-Jane's performance.

Two or three suggestions from the producer who detected it brought out a streak of fantasy and humor that transformed Marion-Jane's performance from the flavor of the strawberry festival to something with a tang and a distinction.

Three weeks later Marion-Jane started on a cross-country vaudeville tour that kept her employed forty weeks of that year.

The next year, even though she was not a headliner, her salary almost doubled. And at the end of five years Marion-Jane Carraway was a well-known song-and-dance artist on the largest vaudeville circuit in the country.

Marion-Jane and her mother travelled in a compartment now and went to and from the theater in taxis and ate after-performance suppers in the best grill rooms.

Her dresses came from the smartest shops, and Marion, except for sewing an occasional spangle in the dressing room before a performance. Marion had never so much as to lift her needle. All of Marion-Jane's dainty little lingerie came hand-made from the largest department store in New York, and usually, when Marion-Jane wrote in such an order, she wrote it in for two.

Marion-Jane, in no mean way, let me tell you, was a success.

Managers booked her for future seasons before she had finished the present.

Her position on the programmes was usually only one removed from the headline act.

Men and women congratulated Marion on the success of her daughter.

And Peola! Every once in a while, Marion-Jane played her home town. And how they flocked. And how Marion-Jane and her mother held court in the little old St. Charles Hotel where Marion-Jane had dined only once during her residence in Peola—that occasion being the celebration after a Knights of Columbus entertainment in which she had appeared.

Marion Carraway's old cronies crowded around her, full of whole-hearted joy in the good things that life had brought their old friend.

The old cronies she had left behind her to take to the open road with her daughter. Most of them looked older now than Marion. Monotony in small towns can accomplish that. Many of them had died. Some of them she had to visit in their homes, since decrepitude was upon them.

She was a breath to them from an outer world. A world of success and of the better things of life.

And always, particularly when it came time to have the outgoing train flagged for them to board it as it sped through Peola, it seemed to Marion again that the tears in her heart could never exhaust themselves. Never once in all of their returns to Peola did she dare to allow herself to pass the little house on Elm Street.

It would have hurt too much.

Marion's destiny now was thrown with success. Marion's destiny, the one to which her cronies thrilled, was to be one always of the catching of trains, the hurried snacks of supper in theatrical dressing rooms, the waiting in hotel rooms for Marion-Jane to come home from her diversions, the tipping of porters, the trays of breakfast dishes outside of hotel doors, the long, cinder-infested nights in railway sleepers.

Yes, when Marion Carraway sped out of Peola after these hurry-up visits with Marion-Jane, she never so much as dared to turn her head to peer at the roof of the house between the two elms.

It would have hurt still more her hurting heart.

Howe About: Martin Kallikak, Esq., Accepting Education, an Old Yodler. —By Ed. W. Howe

In a town near where I live a man was shot and killed by an assassin unknown. The newspapers were full of it at the time. I visited the town not long after the tragedy, and heard the men talk about it. They said the murdered man was a decent fellow, and as certainly a martyr to his family, as a good many women were before suffrage. They said he was a hard worker, and well behaved in all respects, but that he had a worthless wife and children. The men of the town do not doubt that some of his family killed him, and are still looking around in the hope of finding the culprit.

I find a good deal of satisfaction in the fact that the most successful play of modern times, "Abie's Irish Rose," was universally condemned by the critics . . . I have seen it—as I finally saw "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and "The Birth of a Nation"—and liked it . . . I hope the critics admired "Uncle Tom's Cabin:" I despised it.

Look at Russia carefully. The politicians and reformers have tried all their plans; they have been given full swing. . . . And after you have looked Russia over, tell me what you think of it now, with half the people starving, and the other half engaged in fighting, burning and stealing.

During th Revolutionary War, one Martin Kallikak, a young soldier of a good New Jersey family, had an illicit affair with a feeble-minded servant girl, by whom he had a son. Some years later Martin married a woman of good family, by whom he had several legitimate children.

Martin's legitimate children by the woman of good stock all turned out well, and founded one of the most distinguished families of New Jersey. In this family and its collateral branches, down to the present day, we find nothing but good representative citizenship. There are doctors, lawyers, judges, educators, traders, landholders; respectable citizens, men and women prominent in every phase of social life. They have scattered over the United States and are prominent in their communities wherever they have gone. There have been no feeble-minded among them, no immoral women, no illegitimate children.

In sharp contrast to this branch of the family stands the descendants of the feeble-minded girl. Of these, 480 have been traced. Their record is: 143 clearly feeble-minded, 36 illegitimate, 33 grossly immoral (mostly prostitutes), 24 confined alcoholics, 3 epileptics, 82 died in infancy, 3 criminals, 8 kept houses of ill fame.

Here we see two family lines, with the same paternal ancestor, living on the same soil and breathing the same air; yet the bar sinister has marked every generation of the one and has been unknown in the other.

Young people hard to manage, who won't work, or go to school are really half-witted;

Good blood should not be mixed with their bad blood.

There is no dispute whatever today in any section of science which is conethnography, ethnography—that body cerned with man-anatomy, physiology, cestor. A few reactionary writers and mind derived from an animal anquote older men of science who died before the evidence was complete, but no real authority now admits a doubt about it. The theory that the human mind, the human body, was created, and not evolved, is countenanced by no man of authority. The case for evolution is as strong as the case for astronomy or geology. Practically no one doubts the teachings of astronomy or geology, yet millions doubt the findings of the same teachers when it comes to evolution . . . It is a queer phase in human character. Why should men unreservedly accept education in one fied, and reject it in another? . . . I believe it would be better for all to accept education in all things, but they may do as they please.

The Socialist screechers cannot write ten lines, or utter twenty words, without attacking Capital, and its owners. The owners of Capital are the most respectable, useful and intelligent of the population. The more decent part of the people have created a great country here, without assistance from the Socialists. OIn order to create a decent country, they have found it necessary to have Capital, character, industry, temperance, and some respect for the lessons of experience. If you can point to anything a Socialist ever created except a disturbance, a book, or Ringing Speech reeking with unfairness. Having been beaten in the race for respectability and success, very naturally Socialists do not admire those who have behaved better.

There is a great amount of useful education in the world. Acquire it, nad you may live more comfortably, usefully, easily, more successfully. Why not, therefore, aim to acquire this useful education from month to month, year to year, day to day, as you find time for education? Why neglect it when you have spare time? Why engage in foolish, annoying arguments or missions?

There are a dozen ways of expressing a negative. I once heard a man reply to a silly questioner with two words. It expressed not only complete contempt for the silly man, but for silliness in general. It was a complete knockout, in two words.

It is often necessary for gentlemen to become rougher than the Rough Necks. If violence is excusable on one side it is on the other.

A woman correspondent jumped all over me the other day . . . And I was thinking I was rather a good fellow.

I believe Calvin Coolidge is the first president I have admired after election.

A man saves a dollar, and the wolves take after him.

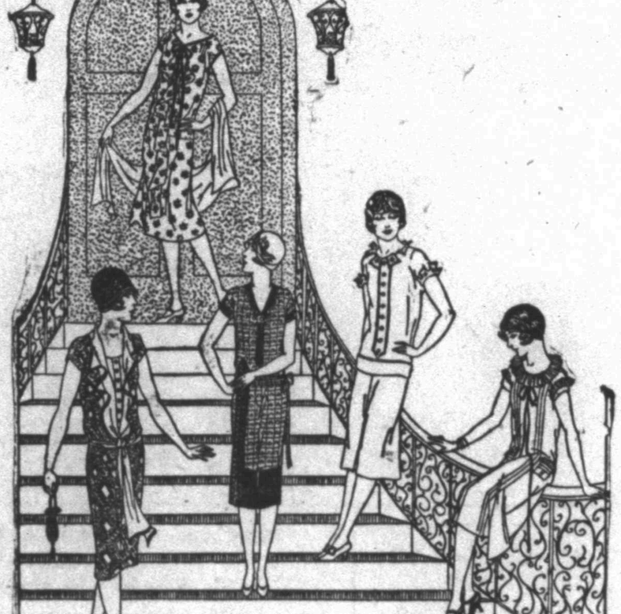

I know a woman who must be in the neighborhood of sixty. She never could sing ,and could not be taught, but has "kept up her music" until the present, and shows no signs of quitting . . . That's the trouble with Art: It has so many enthusiastic lady followers who have no real appreciation of art, no judgment, no ability. And they talk as though they were old Missus Art herself . . . If a man of similar ability should keep up his singing to sixty and beyond, the other men would make violent fun of him: usually they save him long before he is sixty.

But it's different with a woman: I heard the editor of a local paper saying last night that h was compelled to write a "good notice" next day for the singing of old Missus Art, and that the prospect sickened him.

RUBBER PRICE RISING; 1 SHIP FAILS TO DOCK

Two Vessels However Make Port Before July 31 Deadline

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The price of crude rubber has again taken an upward trend despite a slight relaxation of restrictions on rubber exports from British colonies, effective today.

Under the Stevenson restriction act, against which the American Rubber trade has complained through the state department, the British colonies for the last six months have been allowed to export only 65 per cent of the rated rubber production capacity. Beginning today this is raised to 75 per cent, as provided in the last act.

The American rubber trade is disappointed because its request for an 85 per cent exportation limit has not been granted and the law apparently allowed to run its course.

Colonial Secretary Amery said in London that by early next year all restrictions would have been removed. Most of the current year's rubber transactions were made, he said, at comparatively low prices and present quotations represent speculative values of the small amount of rubber immediately available.

Spot quotations of smoked ribbed sheets yesterday advanced 6 cents a pound both on the New York and London markets over the previous close. Respective quotations were 95 cents a pound and in London 4 shillings, 2 pence.

Two of three ships which had been racing to New York from Singapore to land 6,500 tons of crude rubber valued at $14,000,000 for July delivery made port before the dead line last midnight. The British freighters Menelaus and Siberian Prince docked yesterday. The Kansas is not expected to arrive until Thursday. Brokers will be forced to buy rubber on the open market at a loss to fill part of the contracts which called for delivery of the 6,500 tons yesterday.

John Coolidge Off To Camp; Cal Wants Him to Be Let Alone

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 1.—(AP)—John Coolidge, son of the president, goes to Camp Devents today for another hitch of military training with his father hoping that he will be let aloen by newspaper reporters andphotographers and permitted to do his patriotic duty unobstrusively like any other American youth.

Mr. Coolidge has concluded that in spite of the many advantages it is hard to be the son of a president. His position does not give him the opportunity other boys have to forge ahead on their own and there is danger of limelight spoiling a boy.

At Devens where John was in training two years ago the president hopes that he will be subjected to the same discipline and required to do the same duties as other youths who are going into the citizens training camps tomorrow. While John is at the camp his father and mother expect to visit him.

U. S. HAS MOST PHONES

Over 16,000,000 Instruments Reported In This Country

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Statistics compiled here recently by the Southern California Telephone company show that the United States, with approximately 16,000,000 instruments, leads the world in telephone development. Of the world's telephones, 63 per cent in the countries of Europe and 11 per cent in countries of otheer continents.

In European countries the average number of telephones is 12 for each 1,000 inhabitants, while in the United States the figures show that there are 131 telephones development. Of the world's telephones, 63 per cent are in the United States, 26 per cent in the countries of Europe and 11 per cent in the countries of other continents.

In European countries the average number of telephones is 12 for each 1,000 inhabitants, while in the United States the figures show that there are 131 telephones for every thousand.

The statistics revealed in cities in the United States of 50,000 population or over the average number of instruments was 177 for each 1,000 inhabitants. Atlantic City, N. J., shows the greatest develtpment, having 366 phones per 1,000 persons. Omaha, Neb., with its 284 per 1,000 is second Pasadena, Cali., with 274: Des Moines, Ia., 267; Lincoln, Neb., 262, and San Francisco with 259 rank third, fourth, and fifth in the order named.

Chicago ranks thirteenth with 238 telephones per 1,000 population; Boston is twenty-fourth with 222, and New York City, despite the fact that it has more instruments than Berlin, London, Paris, Liverpool, Rome, Antwerp, Brussels, and Shanghai, combined, ranks in forty-third place.

Enemies of the People —By James J. Montague

Perhaps no man in professional life has a greater opportunity for genuine public service than the golf architect. But through some strange perversity in his nature he is not only blind to this opportunity but persists in doing disservice after disservice to people who are his intimates and who have always been kind to him.

The great surgeon, whose success depends on utter freedom from motion, complete forgetfulness of sentiment and human equation will often yield to a kindly impulse and neglect to send a bill to a patient who could not afford to contract the operation habit if he had to pay. The cold, merciless lawyer occasionally seeks in one way or another to make life a little more pleasant for other occupants of the world. I have even known dentists, who after rubbing a whirling grindstone against a patient's nerves for an hour would go to the closet, uncork a new bottle and give him a drink.

But does the golf architect ever relent? He does not. Does he ever, after having set up nights for weeks that he might foresee all the possible means of plunging honest old gentlemen into a succession of despairs return to his work and remould it nearer to the heart's desire of the vast majority of the devotees of the game? Not at all, instead if he builds the course ovr again he makes it more impossible, if this word can be used in a relative sense.

Some years ago I accompanied a golf architect over a terrain which a number of persons, including myself had purchased at a figure we could not afford, and hoped at a figure we could still less afford to make into a field of recreation.

It was a rocky, hilly countryside, traversed by winding brooks and studded here and there with tangly undergrowth. The architect's face wore an evilly anticipatory smile as he surveyed it.

"Do you think you can make a golf course out of this?" I inquired. "It seems to be pretty well encumbered with obstacles, doesn't it?"

"They will do, for a beginning," he replied. "By bringing more rocks, digging a few pits here and there, and deepening the course of the stream, it can be made to serve. I will make a sketch of it as it stands and let you know the result in a few days."

In a few days he submitted his plan. It looked beautiful on paper. But to the lay mind a plan is misleading. It's perfectly flat surface can convey no idea of the serrations and excavations and deviosities of the finished work.

For a year workmen toiled on our property, while the architect watched them grimly.

Now and then some tender-hearted laborer would protest at the erection of a huge sand dune over which a ball must be propelled in order to reach a green. Occasionally one of our committee would protest as cruel and unusual the transferring of the course of a deep brook so as to make it cross five times a 600-yard fairway.

But the architect was admant. He thought of all the obstacles that he had ever heard of, and these being insufficient to satisfy him he took three months off and went to Scotland to study the work that other men in his profession had done.

We had a hill about sixty feet high in the center of the course, and we had often remarked to one another when we were inspecting the property preparatory to buying it that this hill would make a fine tee, as it would be possible to secure the aid of gravitation in driving from it.

When the architect had the height of his eminence increased fifty fee we were lound in our praises of him. But we didn't understand. It wasn't the tee, but the green that he placed on the top of the hill. And not satisfied with that, he studded the slopes with big granite boulders so that unless a ball was driven cleen to the top it would return to the sender, probably landing on his head.

There were originally a few stretches of clear greensward on the location, and it was of these that most of us had thought when we were figuring on reducing our scores.

Where it wasn't possible to break these up with winding brooks, the architect introduced traps in series, each of them defended by a large sand dune so placed that it would just catch and intercept a nice drive or brassie.

We were a little rueful when we surveyed the completed work, carpeted with young grass, and began to play the game.

We found the course about eighteen strokes harder than any other we had played on, but gradually we began to master its intricacies, and by studying the roll of the ground in various places were able to outfox the architect and better our games. Then our resentment against him abated somewhat. After all, we said, he did not design the course as he did out of any spite against us. His purpose was merely to teach us to cope with difficulties, so that if we played on any other links we would have no trouble.

But we didn't know the man.

At the end of the first year he came back and watched us play for a couple of days, and then went into session with the greens committee, which was composed of seven or eight men who cared nothing for the trouble other people got into so long as they could avoid them themselves.

The following week new gangs of workmen appeared on the course. Every hole on which the architect had seen anybody make par was remodeled. Two or three holes were changed about and made into dog's legs which were so cunningly laid out that a good drive would land out of bounds, and a mediocre drive would fall so far short that at least two more were required to get the ball around the corner.

Wherever fairways were wide enough to enable a drive less straight than a rifle shot to land on them, they were narrowed.

The brook was again rerouted so that it intersected more fairways, and exactly in the center of the first fairway was introduced a lake 170 yards across, and with no possible means of getting around it.

We are gradually learning to get around the course in eighteen to twenty over par. But we do it evenings when there is nobody on the course, for fear the architect will hear about it and come back to make more trouble for us.

The World Sees But Little of Film That Is Used in Pictures

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—The footage in the film flashed upon the screen in the motion picture taeater is but a fraction of the tremedous amounts used in its production. Thousands of feet of the narrow celluloid pass daily through the dark rooms and laboratories of motion picture studios that dot the vicinity of Los Angeles.

At one large production plant near here approximately 770,000 feet of film weekly or 40,000,000 feet yearly go through processes that result in the pictures which pass in review before millions of theater goers throughout the world.

Although the audience sees, in a six-reel production only about 6,000 feet of film, often as much as 150,000 to 400,000 feet are taken. Two cameras are trained on the scene being photographed while sometmes as many as five others are used in order that the scene may be taken from every possible angle and at its different speeds.

Out of the mass of film developed, on each production, the cutting department and the editorial workers select the "master" negative from which the release prints are made. These are printed by machine and and placed on mammoth drume which revolve slowly through developing solutions. Hundreds of prints of the "master" negative are made and sent to all corners of the globe.

A CAREFUL MIND

The will of the late Lord Curzon has proven a revelation, some of the phases of which were so startling that they have been suppressed. It is understood that criticisms aimed at Lloyd George are responsible for much of the stir which has been created. Lord Curzon in his will severely takes to task an unnamed premier, who could be none other than Lloyd George, for usurping the functions of the foreign secretary in framing the peace treaty at Versailles. His arguments are less remarkable than the fact that he took the trouble in drawing his will to arraign a political chief for thrusting him into the background.

But Lord Curzon was a painstaking man and his last testament bears the stamp of a careful man. He was so intent upon making his will a public document to be long remembered that he expended a tremedous amount of energy in writing it out in pencil the day before the operation which preceded his death. His intention seems to have been like that of Julius Caesar in making the will immortalized by Mark Anthony's famous funeral oration—to confound his opponents and endear his memory to the people.

The major part of the Curzon fortune, estimated at a million and three-quarters, goes to the British nation. Lord Curzon's two castles are to be thrown open to the public at a nominal charge to provide funds for upkeep. He has also left the people a valuable art collection, and to the most noted institutions in the country, the British museum and Oxford university, collections of relics of Nelson and Napoleon. His voluminous Indian correspondence is to become the prized possession of the museum.

These gifts to the public are sufficient to make the name of Curzon live in the nation's memory. But they contrast strangely with the small bequests made to Lord Curzon's relatives. His widow receives an interest in his town house with its contents, 3,000 pounds sterling annually and the residue of his personal property. Ast the daughter of the late J. Monroe Hinds, United States minister to Brazil, she needs no addition to her wealth from the estate of her husband. No doubt she would have been left out of the Curzon will except for its author's desire to show respect and affection by granting her an interest in the house which she had so long called her own.

The children of his first wife and those of his second wife by her former husband are not provided for by Lord Curzon because provision had already been made for the former by their grandparents and for the latter by their father. Lord Curzon was freer to give to the public in disregard of the claim of relatives than almost any other wealthy man because in his marriages he was careful to choose rich mates. Much of his advancement came on account of his fortunate matrimonial alliances. He made them, like everything else in his life, serve his main purpose of political preferment. Yet despite his careful planning, he failed to reach his coveted goal—the British premiership. Giving his life to the foreign service, he witnessed a change in the current of politics which destroyed his ambitions. Britain turned to domestic concerns, and the foreign secretary with his great talents was ignored. Yet though he was rejected he defends his cause even in death, and defends it ably.

TAKING SAFE GROUND

President Coolidge has fulfilled expectations by taking safe ground on the subject of tax reduction. He has let it be understood that he is quite as much for general relief for taxpayers as he is for the improvement of the yield of tax levies. Accordingly, he has given consent for a scaling down of taxes throughout the various income brackets. No one particular cut is favored by him to the neglect of another. All alike receive his commendation if they are genuine reductions. He has not even insisted upon the depths of cuts to be made, but has left the proportion of reduction in each instance to the discretion of congress.

Although the president would like to see federal inheritance taxes abolished outright, he has indicated that he would be satisfied with substantial reduction. Particularly desirous of having deep slashes made in the surtaxes, he yet grants great latitude to Congress. He has intimated that a reduction in the maximum rate to 25 per cent would be reasonable, and that he will even accept a reduction to 12 per cent if it can be shown that such a low figure will not deprive the government of revenue.

From this outline of his present views it is apparent that Mr. Coolidge has learned from his experience with congress on tax reduction. He contents himself with favoring a broad policy and thereby avoids his former error of trying to force on congress an exact program minutely worked out in every detail. He knows now that compromise is the governing principle of legislation, and that nothing can ever come out of the congressional hopper as it went it. Whether he is satisfied with this fact or not, he accepts it as something with which he cannot afford to quarrel. Should he try to ignore it, he would immediately have to contend with the old democratic-progressive line-up in congress. Furthermore, he would be confronted with a serious split in the administration forces.

Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, who led the republican fight in the house, has become committed to the federal inheritance tax as a means of making up for losses on reduced income taxes. If the president insisted too much upon abolition of this tax, he would place one of his leaders in congress in a most embarrassing position and perhaps produce a major dissatisfaction in administration ranks. He very naturally hesitates to run into this danger to party control when there is little prospect that he could win anything by taking so large a hazard.

WHY EARTHQUAKES COME.

Earthquakes are most terrible punishment which a righteous God inflicts upon sinners here below. This is the verdict of Rev. H. F. Milligan, a noted preacher of New England. He says that nothing but national repentence can prevent national destruction and the repeated earthquakes in California and elsewhere are but the warnings of a merciful God of the wrath that is to be inflicted upon the world. There were earthquakes before the coming of the Man of Galilee. Who sent them?

THE OLD GAME AT THE PUBLIC'S EXPENSE

Anthracite miners and operators are playing their old game at the public's expense. Even before their negotiations open each group has taken an inflexible attitude. The miners will not consent to arbitration in case of disagreement with the operators over the signing of a new contract to replace the one presently in force. Their position appears to be dicted by fear that if they agree to arbitration the operators may fail to reach a present understanding with them on disputed points, with the intention of carrying on a prolonged controversy in the courts. This fear is buttressed by a contention equally as groundless. It is said without point, since a decision has already been taken, that there is plenty of time in which to reach an agreement by September 1, when a new contract must be signed to prevent a suspension of mine operations.

Though more reticent in declaring their views, the operators are no less stubborn in their stand. They would tie the hands of the miners by exacting in advance a non-strike pledge. Then they would secure an agreement for arbitration, which might very well mean nothing except unlimited discussion and procrastination. At bottom, the purpose of the operators is to force upon the miners a reduced wage. But the miners, in line with their consistent policy never to yield anything, are resolved not to accept it. Thus a deadlock appears likely. If it cannot be broken the mines will be closed down and the public must manage somehow to take care of itself.

Neither reduced wages nor a suspension, however, will cure the temporary depression in the coal industry. It is something which will remedy itself if given time. Since coal enters into the manufacture of all the principal metals, and there is now a shortage of output of these on account of a general lull in the world's business, coal naturally suffers with all other raw materials. There is really nothing to do about it except to wait. It is a matter of lasting out a bad period. But, apparently, neither the miners nor the operators possess such fortitude. The miners would obtain increased pay to compensate them for reduced employment. The operators would secure a wage cut to balance the losses of declining production.

But what the miners and operators do not understand is that in taking their present attitude they are playing the part of quiters under a serious industrial responsibility. If they fail to agree they will throw upon the public a burden properly their own. Such an act of desertion and betrayal cannot possibly be condoned by the new ethical conscience that is steadily gaining ground in industry.

A GIANT IN MORAL FORCE

Now that Bryan is dead his partisan supporters and political opponents vie with one another in praise of his personality. All join in granting him sincerity of purpose, unflagging energy in defense of the cause he believed to be right and uncompromising devotion to the truth. And this must be the verdict of history as well as that of the generation in which he lived. Bryan was a giant in moral force, and as such greater than any of the things he tried to accomplish. He will be remembered as a crusader who rode gallantly through the shifting events of thirty years of our political history, strenuously battling for the people's rights.

No man ever used the power of oratory to better purpose. But just because he employed it to such good effect it led him into those errors to which orators seem peculiarly susceptible. The very intensity of his feelings and the strength of his convictions caused him to indulge in over-emphasis and to make his views extreme in order to make them arresting. Time developed his political faults to such a degree that he at last found that the age in which he lived was out of sympathy with the opinions he held. He did not cease to advance his opinions for this reason. He did not change and did not wish to change. If some of his more violent opponents derided him as a failure, they at least paid him the compliment of fearing his influence.

To know where Bryan stood on any question was to know whether the moral forces of the country had been aroused upon the question. His voice was accepted by millions as the voice of liberalism and democracy, and his opponents never ceased to fear that he might again produce such a surprise as that with which he captured the democratic presidential nomination in 1896 or that which enabled him to secure the nomination of Woodrow Wilson in 1912. It could not be forgotten that Bryan had three times made an aggressive organization of a hopeless minority, keeping the democratic party alive when the country as a whole was admittedly republican, or that, with Wilson's nomination, he gave democracy its first real chance to come back into power since the war between the states. The man who could do these things might do anything. He was watched by friends and foes with absorbed attention.

His removal leaves an empty place in American politics which cannot be filled. No other man of our times was so fertile in invention, so original in ideas. So productive was his imaginative faculty that he even gave weapons to his opponents. When his bequest of political thought to the country is properly recognized the people will be amazed at its magnitude. We are all the poorer because Bryan is no longer here to supply us with startling suggestions.

BRYAN'S LATEST CREED.

"School teachers paid by taxation should not be permitted to teach under the guise of science or philosophy anything that undermines faith in God, impairs belief in the Bible or discredits the Son of God and the Savior of the world. Evolutionists rob the Savior of the glory of the virgin birth, the majesty of His deity and the triumph of His resurrection. They weaken faith in the Bible by discarding the miracles and the super-natural and by eliminating from the Bible all that conflicts with their theories. They render the Book a scrap of paper."

Rev. J. Frank Norris of Texas and not William Jennings Bryan started the fight on evolution away down here in Texas. This some four years ago. He invited Bryan to come to Texas two years ago and join his forces and his standard. This when Brother Schroeder of Navarro county introduced his famous anti-evolution bill in the lower house of the Texas legislature. It would have been a Bryan paramount issue in 1928 had Bryan lived. Now what?

HE MADE GRAPE JUICE FAMOUS.

When William Jennings Bryan became secretary of state in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson he issued the announcement that grape juice would be substituted for alcoholic beverages whenever he entertained members of the diplomatic corps. This message rang around the world.

Bryan was as good as his word. He banished alcohol and the reign of grape juice was ushered in. Now we have a dry republic on the surface at least, and grape juice punch is a great national beverage. Now grape juice manufacturers are multi-millionaires and the wine grapes of California which sold for ten dollars a ton before the coming of prohibition last year reached the peak price of $100 per ton.

William Jennings Bryan should be looked upon as the patron saint of the grape growers of California. He pushed them from poverty to opulence.

The Fable of Being Correctand Proper —By G. Ade

"You are sitting there with a dirty look in your eye."

ONCE there was a Man named Alonzo Frothingham whose wife used to bawl him out something scandalous on account of his crude Manner of Speech and his Penchant for using all of the Smart Aleck Slang he could pick up. Even when Company was present he made no apparent Effort to recognize the Presnce of the Dominie or the College Profs, but seemed to take a loafish Delight in saying right out in front of them, "Not on our Whiskers," or "How do you get that Way?" or, possibly, "I'll tell the cock-eyed World." He sure was an Injun.

The wife, whose front name was Mehitabel, often told him that one Reason why she let out such a Yelp about his Coarse Language was that he had no Excuse for pulling the Hick Stuff. He had been incubated in an Atmosphere of Culture, and, later, attended the State University. He had read all the Works of Sir Walter Scott and Robert W. Chambers. He had delivered Orations which were Scholarly and full of bang-up Words, such as "Vouchsafe," "Eleemosynary," and "Peradventure," so what was the Large Idea of trying to make Folks think he was a Longshoreman?

No matter how thoroughly a Lady is On to her Permanent Affliction and however low may be her Estimate of of his Moral Grandeur and Intellectual Prowness, she always tries to be loyal to His Nobs and spread the Impression among the Neighbors that he is a Combination of Elihu Root, Calvin Coolidge, the Pope, ex-President Eliot and Dr. William Lyon Phelps of Yale. He may be a Mutt at Home but when he gets to the Bench Show he is a World's Champion with a Ribbon around his Neck.

Now there was simply no Let-Up to Mehitabel ragging Alonzo on account of his Predelection for the low-brow Venacular. She said that no refined Gentleman would ever speak about busting the Slats of an Enemy or designate the family Doctor as a Slice of Herkimer or refer to a Young Lady Caller as a Pip.

She told Lon that their Social Ambitions would never be realized and the would not receive the Sacred Pink Tickets admitting them to the most inner and refrigerated Circles of Polite Society until he put the Soft Pedal on his Roughneck Conversation and learned to apply Salve instead of Red Pepper.

She dinged at him so long that finally he made what is known as The Married Man's Compromise, i. e., he decided to let her have her Own Way in Everything. He said he would Chop on the Chuck Conners Dialect and make Lindley Murray sound like a Vulgarian. He would convert his most trival Talk into a Well of purest English undefiled, so that all who heard him would be prone to emit Exclamations of Wonder and Admiration. Yes, indeed!

At that, the Good Wife was not prepared for the Verbal Confectionery which he began to lavish upon her. For instance, they were seated at the Dinner Table and she wanted to know if he had put in a pleasant and profitable Day, whereupon he replied, "On the Contrary, I have been subjected to a Series of rather harrowing Experiences, all tending to disturb my Calm and ruffle, what is, under all but abnormal Circumstances, a truly Angelic Temper."

"Have you gone off your Nut?" asked Mehitabel.

"No, ma'am, I am trying let let you know that Everything went Punk with me today, but I am endeavoring to convey the Information in Language so chaste and dignified that even my best Pal and severest Critic cannot find Fault with her little Alonzo."

"You can lay off the cheap and rowdy Expressions without trying to make a Fool of the Dictionary," suggested Friend Wife.

"Unfortunately I cannot do so," he replied. "There doesn't seem to be any happy Compromise between Slang and Jaw-breakers. When one decides to correct his manner of Speech by refraining from the current Catch Phrases of the Street, the homely Colloquialisms and all of the Barberous Americanisms which are so repulsive to High School Superintendents, he finds himself at once imbedded in a Bog of polysallabic Circumloctuions."

"Slip me that Last One again," said Mehitabel. "I muffed it."

"I was endeavoring," said Alonzo, "to suggest that when One starts in on a painful and determined Effort to make all of his Oral Efforts comport with the inflexible Rules of the Lexicographers and Purists, he will find himself up against it unless—beg pardon—he will find himself confronting a Dilemma. In that he will be compelled to use only those Words and Phrases which have not been vulgarized by Common Usage. He will have to can the Angelo-Saxon and cotton to those long, double-jointed Derivaties from the Latin and the Result will be, as I remarked a Moment ago, a Series of polysyllabic Circumlocutions."

"I am glad that you remember some of the Long Words that you heard in College," she said, "but don't think you are going to jar any Laugh out of me by Springing that line of Low Comedy. One can be Civilized without trying to talk like an Editorial.'

"Whatever else they may hang on to you, you will always be Free when accused of being Funny," said Mehitable, giving him the Fishy Eye. "I am trying to get you Parlor Broke and teach you to eat with a Fork and you, with your Usual Deficiency in ordinary Bovine Intelligence and appalling Absence of Good Taste, are trying to kid my noble Efforts, gum up the whole Program and make me look like a dessicated Wham. Many a woman has beat it to Reno and got a Decree for a good deal less than I have to put up with."

"You wrong me, Sweetie, insisted Alonzo. "I am trying with all of my Boyish Strength and with my Fingers crossed, to make my Talk sweet and purty and sanitary. For nearly One Hundred Years, as nearly as I can estimate the time,you have been throwing the Harpoon at me because I talk like George M. Cohan instead of George the Fifth. Up to the time that our Honeymoon evaporated and you began to give me a Line on my Spectacular Inferiority, I labored under the pleasant Delusion that I was one of Nature's Noblemen. And now, because I use the only kind of talk which can be understood by the Dubs with whom I am compelled to associate, you are trying to make it out that I am a flat-headed Moron. I don't know just what a Moron is but whatever it is, that's me. Now that I have got rid of my burglar Tools and am trying to go straight and want to keep away from the Old Life, why does the dear Little Helpmate refuse to lend a Helping Hand? Remember, that no matter how long a man may have been talking Loose Talk, he may be down but he's never out.

"At this juncture, when you should be singing 'Rescue the Perishing,' and getting ready to heave me the Life Line you are sitting there with a Dirty Look in your Eye, regarding me as if I were a loathsome Reptile instead of a dandy little Fellow with a Heart of Gold."

"I don't remember the exact Wording of our Nuptial Agreement," said Mrs. Frothingham, "but I am sure there is nothing in the Contract to the Effect that I would be expected to live in a Nut College. When you are at your Top Form, Alonzo, you are no Leon Errol and just at present you are as excruciating as a Hearse with Plumes on it. The only way I can fit into the Picture with you is to wear Black the Year round. When it comes to assassinating Mirth you have certainly got many a Notch on your Gun."

"Alonzo began to suspect that his attempt to duplicate the banner Performances of Thomas Babington Macaulay, Joseph Addison and Walter Pater had gone blooey and blah.

He had started out to qualify for the Intelligensia and had landed back in the Ash-Heap.

It became evident that he was not a Rhetorician, but a Rube. So he gave Notice that in the Future he would confine himself to Words of One Syllable.

"Make them as Few as possible," said Mehitabel, "unless you want to break your Plate and get the Air."

Moral: There never was a House big enough for two High-Browns.

Potash & Perlmutter Discuss Pictures by Telegraph —By Montague Glass

"Suppose for instance, Abe, you was on the road, and someone was to send your Rosie, by telegraph an anonymous snapshot of you and a lady dress buyer getting into me for fifty per cent of a ten dollar luncheon."

"Yes, Mawruss, the world is getting to be a small place after all, when it comes to trying to find somewheres, a newspaper which is so far form the place where the Prince of Wales happens to be for the time being, that it is impossible to print half tone pictures of him in the illustrated section, 'yunderstand," Abe Potash observed the other morning. "Which not only wireless but also western union and postal telegraphy has been so improved lately, that two hours after the Prince of Wales has shot a couple of lions in Africa, the picture of it arrives by straight telegram in South Bend, Ind., as quickly as though he had shot them in Elkhart or at the very furthest,—Fort Wayne."

"It seems to me, Abe," Morris ventured to say, "that with what it costs per word for cable tolls, y'understand, they might take a chance of missing the evening editions and send pictures of the Prince of Wales, shooting two lions, by day letter instead of straight wire, or they might even send the Prince and one lion by day message, leaving the other lion to go by night letter."

"That depends on whether the telegraph company, in sending pictures of the Prince of Wales shooting two lions, y'understand, charge by the prince or by the lion," Abe replied. "Which the same thing has occurred to me particularly when I have seen i nthe paper in the course of one day, six telegraphed pictures of Mr. Coolidge in a high silk hat, y'understand, and if the rate for telegraphing one silk hat is equivalent to two words of less than ten letters each, understand me, it would mean quite a saving to the newspapers if they sent the silk hats all together in one night letter or let them go for granted unless otherwise notified."

"It would also do the telegraph companies out of as much money as if the words letter follows were left out of practically one hundred per cent of all business telegrams,'" Morris commented, "although, Abe, joking to one side, in telegraphing such pictures as the Mayor of Los Angles welcoming the Shriners' Convention, understand me, there would be considerable economy in telegraphing only the Mayor of Los Angeles and one sample Shriner, on account of one Shriner in the Shriners' Convention looking so much like all the other Shriners that any expert electro-typer in a newspaper office could duplicate the sample Shriner enough times to make what the editor might consider to be a convention."

"Still, Mawruss, this here sending photographs by telegraph has biz possibilities in the future," Abe said. "Unless something is done about it like making it a felony," Morris suggested, "otherwise it's bound to get worser and worser, Abe, until the first thing you know, from telegraphing still photographs of such interesting news pictures as Mayor Hylan going off on another vacation, y'understand, they will be sending by straight wire collect, should Married Men Behave a super-feature picture in seven reels, with such titles as: And then came the dawn of a new day—shortened to.

Dawn New Day Stop.

"Say! Everybody don't knock moving pictures like you do, Mawruss," Abe said, "and you could take it from me, Mawruss, that the day ain't far distant when by a combination of radio broashcasting and telegraphing, moving pictures will be put into any up-to-date American home with every feature of a first class moving picture theater except being shown to your seat by a fancy-dressed girl usher and having your feet trod on by the people arriving after you do."

Enter Valentino into American Homes via Telegraphic Picture Exit Morris

Well, as I ain't interested financially in any moving picture theayter, Abe, that don't worry me as much as it might," Morris observed. "Although if the telegraph companies of the country have got any idea of putting Rudolph Valentino into every American home that can afford to pay for installing the necessary wiring, y'understand, I for one am in favor of taking it up with the interstate commerce commission before it goes any further."

"I see no objection to it," Abe remarked, "if it's going to keep people at hime nights."

"Say! It would not only keep me at home nights, but it would also practically make a hermit out of me," Morris declared. "As the matter stands today, Abe, I've just about made up what I call my mind, that I ain't going to go to any more houses where they've got a radio, on account of having heard Kiss Me Again on an average of four times a night every evening during the past six months from all points east of Hastings, Neb., and if things come to such a pass where I couldn't go and visit a friends house without running the risk of seeing the same Hollywood stars in the same six reel picture with the same incidental music, Abe, I'm going to be practically bed-ridden outside of business hours for the rest of my life."

Anonymous Telegraphic Pictures May Wreck Many a Home

"Even sending still photographs by wire has its dangerous side, Abe," Morris continued. "It used to was in the days before even telegraphy had reached the point of sending written messages, that a lot of mischief was caused by people writing anonymous letters, but can you imagine what harm could be done by people making anonymous snap shots and sending them by telegraph?

"Suppose for instance, Abe, you was on the road making Chicago and other bitg cities where dress buyers expect a little hospitality, y'understand, and someone was to send your Rosie by telegraph an anonymous snapshot of you and a lady dress buyer getting into me for fifty per cent of a ten dollar luncheon at one of them swell hotels on Michigan avenue? An inventor like Thomas J. Edison or whoever it is that invented such meises, don't consider such possibilities when he takes out his patent, and you can take it from me, Abe, if the interstate commerce commission don't do something in the near future, this here invention of sending photographs by telegraphy will have busted up so many homes that there won't be enough homes left to make installing the necessary wiring profitable for the telegraph companies."

"Well, there will have to be a whole lot of improvements in the invention before that happens, Mawruss," Abe declared, "because all the telegraph pictures of the Prince of Wales shooting zebras in Africa which I have seen so far, Mawruss, have been so full of wavy lines, y'understand, that it was a fair fifty-fifty gambling proposition as to which was the prince and which was the rebras, y'understand."

"Other telegraphed pictures which has so far been published, ain't no improvement on them prince pictures neither. Only last week, I seen a picture sent by wireless of the nef finance minister of France, Mawruss, and if all the dots on his face was caused by the wireless, Mawruss, maybe France could pay her debt to us and maybe she couldn't, but if on the other hand them dots was caused by measles, smallpox, or even indigestion, y'understand, then it looks to me like France was depending on an awful sick man to do a pretty heavy job."

"In any event, Abe, I wouldn't make no snap judgments if I was you on the strength of a wireless photograph," Morris concluded, "not until it was confirmed by mail anyway."

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Nailed that one!" grunted Warren, after a well-aimed slap at the back of his neck. "Where's that spray? Well, get busy with it."

"The first night they've been bad this summer, Bobbie, get Uncle Warren the spray. Jane'll give it to you. No, she's upstairs by this time—I'll go."

"Don't see how they get through this screen," Lawrence's cigar glowed in the darkness. "That's a double fine mesh around this porch."

"You got the bipless variety out here," Warren scratched his ankle.

"If they'll only let us sleep tonight," Helen plied her fan. "We'd better not turn on the light in our room."

"Not much left," Carrie came out with the spray. "I'll order some tomorrow."

"Lemme squirt it!! shrilled Bobbie.

"No, you'll get it in your eyes. Run up and get that citronella—on mother's dresser."

"You have just heard Vivandi's Concerto, played by Miss Yvonne Regal. Prof. Otto Vogel will now give you a ten-minute talk on the Einstein theory."

"Not on a hot night!" Warren dialed into a syncopated supper orchestra.

"This it?" Bobbie came dashing out with a bottle.

"Yes, give it to Uncle Warren."

"No, you don't soak me in that smelly stuff! Rather have the mosquitos."

"Well, what's the dope for tomorrow" asked Lawrence. "Decided yet?"

"We might drive out to Stonycroft. Have luncheon at Birchgate Inn—and dinner on the way home at the Chaucer Arms," was Carrie's alacritous suggestion.

"Oh, isn't it too hot for an all-day drive?" demurred Helen, knowing that Warren would pay for both meals at those high-priced roadhouses.

"How about the beach?" Lawrence fumbled for matches in his coat on the chair.

"Not on Sunday," vetoed Warren. "Too crowded."

"Bobbie, leave those dials alone!" as the static sizzled like frying fat. "We'll wait till morning and see what kind of a day it is."

"Look at those fireflys!" Helen gazed out at the light-spangled lawn. "Want me to catch you one, Aunt Helen You can keep em in a glass."

"No, no, it's cruel to catch them!"

"Bobbie, come back — shut that screen door! That's how they get in. Tight!"

Helen, dreading to see any live thing caught, watched Bobbie dart about the shadowy lawn.

"Wonderful things those lightning bugs," Warren elevated his feet to the railing. "Phosphorus, of course — but why can't it be commercialized? Put a crimp in the electric meter."

"Got one! Wanna see it?" Bobbie came dashing back with closed fist.

"Let it go!" pleaded Helen. Then, from past experience, "I'll give you a nickel for it."

"Aw, gee!" as there was no glow, no motion. "I'll catch you 'nother."

"No, no, I'll give you the nickel not to catch any more. You promise?"

"Now, Bobbie, you must go to bed. Yes, put it in your bank. No, you don't need mother—Jane's up there. And tell her to scrub your knees good."

A relieveing silence followed Bobbie's reluctant departure.

Helen, tired and sleepy, lay back in the porch hammock. Kept awake by the mosquitos both nights—and the long exhaustive drive that afternoon!

And three more days and nights!

All summer she had been dreading this annual week with Warren's sister. Always an ordeal, this year it seemed more trying than ever.

Carrie, hostile, critical. Bobbie, noisy, nerve-cracking. The heat, the mosquitos, and the sleepless nights!

"You ought to be glad you're not in town tonight. Go 'way, you're full of fleas!" Carrie prodded Tramp with her foot. "Paper says it was 96 this morning."

Helen wanted to say that the nights in their apartment were cool compared to this. Instead she stooped to pet Tramp, now curled up at her feet.

"Carrie, how 'bout some lemonade " suggested Lawrence.

"All right, if you want to make it. Plenty of lemons in the ice-box. Warren, shut off that station."

"She ought to do a dance," as he drowned out a strident soprano.

"He won't go to bed," called Jane from upstairs. "He's got his water pistol."

"She's no good at all with Bobbie," dropping her fan, Carrie swished in.

Alone with Warren, Helen lowered her voice to a pleading undertone.

"Dear, if I don't sleep tonight, I'll be sick. Can't we go home tomorrow? Can't you say—"

"Nothing doing! You try to pull that every time we come. Now we're here for a week—and we're goin' to stay!"

"And be all worn out when we get home—we were last year. I lost three pounds."

"Here you are," Lawrence swung out with an ice-tinkling tray.

"Gosh, that's sour!" sputtered Warren. "Short on sugar?"

"By Jiminy, I did forget the sugar!"

"I'll get it," offered Helen. "I know where it is."

Through the dark dining room and kitchen, and into the pantry.

That stewed rhubarb left out of the ice-box—not even covered! And that greasy can—bacon drippings! Ugh! And Carrie was always criticising her maids.

Spooning some sugar from the white enamel tin, Helen glimpsed a Dresden china bowl on the shelf above. Her last year's Christmas gift to Carrie!

And not the first time she had found her presents relegated to the kitchen. But with four more days no use fanning resentment.

"Don't want it very sweet, do you?" when she stirred the sugar into the lemonade.

"Don't ever bring him another water pistol," snapped Carrie, rejoining them. "He drenched the bed squirting at Jane. Too sour!"

"I thought I put in a lot. So much sugar isn't good for us."

"Well, we don't share your prejudices, Helen. You always have some new health code you try to inflict on everybody else."

"Helen's right, we all eat too much sugar," Lawrence tempered his wife's rude thrust. "And it's the candy you put away that's making you stout."

"I haven't gained a pound in six weeks!" bristling. "And I don't intend to starve myself as some people do to keep thin!"

"What's the time?" yawned Warren. "Too early to turn in?"

"Not for me," Helen, eager to escape, slid out of the hammock. I'll go on up now," leaving him to finish his cigar. "Good-night everybody!"

Upstairs in the large shadowy guest room, she undressed in the dark.

Her heard ached, her eyes ached. Sick from the heat and sleepless nights.

Four more days! And no plausible excuse to curtail their visit.

Last year she had written Nora to phone there was a leak and the year before she had connived with Warren's stenographer to summon him back. She dared no further variation of that ruse.

At the bed now, sprinkling citronella over the pillows.

Someone under the bed! Screaming, she dashed towards the door.

A shrill giggle—Bobbie!

Then, surmounting her shattered nerves, came a swift inspiration.

Before they could race up the stairs, she lay inert on the floor.

"Here's some," Carrie's flurried treble. "He didn't mean to! He was just playing."

A sprinkle of cold water on her face. Helen moaned and turned her head lest her flinching eyelids betray her.

"That was devilish prank!" from Lawrence. "I'll tan him for that."

The strong bedside light making difficult her feigned faint, Helen stirred, sighed, and opened her eyes.

"What was it?" achieving a dazed vagueness. "What happened?"

"Just Bobbie. Hid under the bed and grabbed at you. You're all right now, Kitten." Warren awkwardly brushed back her hair.

Her eyes closed languidly. Her feminine love for dramatics would have prolonged the scene, but her sister-in-law's keen scrutiny hastened her revival.

At last alone, with plaintive appeal Helen looked up at Warren, still sitting on the bed.

"All right now, Kitten?" not varying his solicitous phrase.

"Dear won't you take me home tomorrow?" weakly.

"Tomorrow? Why, we can't shove off so soon! They'll think—"

'Oh, I want to go home!" with quivering sobs. "Oh!" dropping back. "I feel faint again."

"Here, Carrie brought this," holding the salts under her nose. "All right now? Hate like thunder to cut short our visit—"

"I'll be sick if I stay! The heat and the mosquitos— And now this shock", tremulously. "There's a train at 9:30. Dear, can't we—"

"Oh, I'm all unstrung! And the way run off like that. I can't—"

"See here, Kitten, it'll look fierce to my heart beats! That awful—"

A sobbing interim as the ammonia salts brought real tears.

"The 9:30? You promise? Oh!" sinking back with restrained relief.

Her strategy having served its purpose, Helen's resuscitation was rapid. But not too rapid. She still luxuriated in Warren's rare solicitude.

"A good lambasting — that's what I'll hand him," raging at his impish nephew. 'Hiding under the bed—and jumping out at you!"

"Oh, he didn't realize how it would frighten me," now grateful for the prank. "Dear, put out the lights. We'll be eaten up! Yes, I'm all right now. You'd better drag the bed to the window—we'll get more air."

"Not much to get," moving the bed with her in it. "And no let up in sight. Paper says hotter tomorrow."

"Tomorrow? Dear, it doesn't matter how hot it is tomorrow—we're going home! Aren't you glad? You know you are! Think of our cool, airy apartment after these two days' 'rest' in the country!"

62 COUNTIES STATE COTTON CROP IS POOR

Northwest Texas Has Best Reports, Some of Crop To be Good

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Cotton apparently is in distress in approximately 62 counties, which make up the more pronounced drouth area of the state, according to reports to H. H. Schutz, government statisitician here.

The era, these reports indicate, extends from the northern limits of Central Texas well into the south part of the state and lap over into East and West Texas.

Only Local Benefit.

Scattered rains and showers have brought only local benefit, according to general reports to Mr. Schutz, while high temperatures and hot winds have caused considerable detriment to the crop in many parts of the state.

Some reports indicate the presence of boll weevil but due to the heat and dry weather, its ravages have generally been held in check.

In northwest Texas conditions range from promising to bad. The Childress correspondent notes that the crop has been damaged considerably and is suffering severely from the drouth. Rain coming immediately, it is indicated would mean a fair crop but no rain for 10 days from the date of the report, which was July 16, would mean almost a failure. Cotton on light lands, the correspondent asserts, looks like a failure but on the sandy land and river bottoms it looks well at present.

At Claude in Armstrong county, grasshoppers have slightly damaged the crop and there are scattering reports of worm damage. Conditions, however, are reported promising at present. Crosbyton in Crosby county, asserts that hot, dry winds are causing damage which is hard to estimate. Rain even within 10 days, the correspondent says, would cause only a small recovery in percentage condition which is estimated at 40 per cent at the moment.

Reports from other sections of the state show conditions are considerably spotted.

North Texas; Honey Grove, Fannin county; spotted condition makes it hard to give a percentage of condition. On one farm it will be good fair moisture and the farm next to it will be in serious need of rain. Some farmers think the crop is deteriorating.

Commerce, Hunt county: weevil showing up in rank cotton on bottom lands. Upland cotton is making a growth due to dry weather.

Kaufman, Terrell county, weather hot and dry with a few scattered showers. Some complaint of the cotton flea. One-fifth of the county is in fair shape and the condition of the balance is bad. Some cotton will make a bale to 20 acres. Some cotton is not up yet.

Fort Worth, Tarrant county; local showers have developed cotton in spots. The plant is not suffering badly for want of rain yet but it will suffer within two or three weeks. Weevil infestation is not bad yet.

Northwest Texas.

Northeast Texas: Hughes Springs, Cass county; cotton looks good at present, although it is just beginning to need rain. The crop is not far entugh advanced that a continued dry spell or insects could not put it below normal yield.

Texarkana, Bowie county: up to a few days ago local prospects for a crop were the best in several years but it is suffering now for want of rain.

Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county; damage from weevil is very light, even less than last year, but there is more damage from the cotton flea. Otherwise, conditions are fairly good, probably 65 per cent normal.

Prichett, Upshur county; as a whole the crop is far ahead of last year's, although in parts of the county were no rai has fallen the crop is very poor.

West Texas: Clyde, Callaghan county; conditions are good, in this immediate vicinity. Lice have quit and there is no other insect damage. Growth has been good but showers are needed to hold the cotton.

Baird, Brown county: cotton is deteriorating from the dry weather; lice are still damaging it and grasshoppers are dting some damage.

Stanton, Martin county; while the ice have stopped the growth to some extent, they have not materially damaged the crop, which is growing nicely. No doubt a good rain would help cotton somewhat but it is pot suffering from lack of it and will not suffer for two weeks yet.

Brady, McCulloch county; this section failed to get the rains which fell in other sections of West Texas since the last day of May. Hence crops have deteriorated badly and will make only small yields, unless it rains soon.

Colorado, Mitchell county: showers fell lately over about one-half of county, but apparently on account of its advance in growth the etndition of cotton has droppd from extra good to very good. Grasshoppers have appeared but damage from that source is not yet great.

Central Texas: Elgin, Bastrop county; unless it rains soon and ctton makes a fall crop, the yield will not be 10 per cent normal. The drouth has killed cotton on a considerable area.

Lockhart, Caldwell county; "We have no crops of any kind," the corresptndent writes, "and the only chances we have to raise anything would come if a good rain should fall before September 1. It would be only feedstuffs at that."

Dublin, Erath county; weevil doing slight damage to date op account of hot, dry weather. Black land cotton has stopped growing but that in the sand is still growing and fruiting. The crop is about three weeks late.

Frost, Navarro county; cotton stalks are small. If rain does not come soon, the bolls will not average two to a stalk.

East Texas; Henderson, Chandler county; good showers have fallen since June 25 and cotton prospects are the best in years in the eastern half of the county.

Anderson, Grimes county; crop very spotted and hard to estimate. Hot, dry weather is checking weevil damage.

South Texas; Floresville, Wilson county; fifty per cent of the crop is fairly good but the leaf wtrm is becoming very bad.

Bishop, Nueces county; too dry for even the weevil to live. Will do well to get 20 bales from 400 acres. Many farmers will not make a bale from 100 acres.

Corpus Christi, Nueces county; will make a bale to every 15 acres. Leaf worms and dry weather have retarded growth of the plant.

Alamo, Hidalgo county; hot, dry weather cut down the weevil crop and made the cotton crop early. About one-third of the crop has been already ginned.

Southeast Texas; Chicago, Barzoria county; cotton is young and late. The crop will depend upon damage done by weevil. At Iowa Colony in this county, cotton is reported shedding due to showers and to the boll weevil.

New Ulm, Austin county; early cotton will make a bale to 25 or 30 acres; late cotton will make nothing unless rain comes soon. No boll weevil at present. At Wallis in this county, the crop is still looking well, with hot weather holding in check the ravages of the boll weevil.

Waller, Waller county; if rains do not come within a few days, the crop will be cut considerably.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

Leo.

Today's planetary aspects are rather overcast, and while not actually adverse, they presage a state of mind that is not compatible with peace and harmony. There will be experienced a desire to criticise and an urge to engage in acrimonious argument. This, of course, can be controlled and overcome by exercise of will power and a refusal to allow yourself to be influenced by any such promptings. No exercises of a violent nature should engage your attention, and it were well to conform to the ordinary observances and recreations of a Sunday. In the evening, conditions improve, and the vibrations will be stimulating, thereby paving the way for happiness and peace in the family circle.

A girl born today will, during early childhood, not display many signs of good health. She will, however, possess much latent strength and powers of recuperation, which will ensure for her a robust womanhood. A boy born today will enjoy exceptionally good health, be almost entirely free from sickness, and develop remarkable physical prowess. Tempermentally, both boy and girl will have attractive personalities, and be winsome, unselfish and kind. Neither of them will be happy or contented with the irksomeness of indoor life, and they will both revel in outdoor pleasures, and freedom from restraint or confinement. They will be exceptionally truthful, possess a high sense of duty, without being either priggish or excessively prudish.

If today is your birthday, regardless of sex, you have considerable business ability, display great aptitude in the handling of details, and apply yourself very conscientiously to the execution of any task you may tackle. You are more progressive than conservative, and have a well balanced sense of proportion, and a foresight that, at times, seems almost uncanny.

You are optimistic, but never to the extent of allowing yourself to be fooled by what you would like to happen, but which, you know, will not happen. You are buoyant, have an attractive personality, and are sincere in all walks of life.

CHURCH HOLDS PARADE

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—For the first time in 400 years, Corpus Christi Day was celebrated recently at the German capital by a public procession. This is taken as evidence of the much more tolerant attitude of the republican regime as compared with the old monarchical. Under the monarchy, the official state religion of Prussia was Protestant, and the king was at the same time titular head of the church. Catholic processions such as are customary in Bavaria, for instance, on Corpus Christi Day were forbidden.

PLENTY OF GOOD SHOWS THIS WEEK

All Theatres Promise Varied Entertainment

A new system will be inaugurated at the Olympic theater beginning next Saturday, when the management announces all its film offerings to run for one week, begnning each Saturday.

The new step has been taken, it is stated, due to the interest shown by theater goers for long run productions. Better films can also be obtained when contracted for one week instead of three days, and this has had a hand in causing the change.

Plenty of good films are on at the Wichita Falls theaters for the week. A good comedy at the Olympic will start the week while a melodrama and comedy will be the beginning for the Mission. The Palace and Garden also will offer good pictures.

The Strand is still closed for repairs and no date has been set for its reopening under a new management. Hogever, it is thought that the new theater will be opened within the next two weeks, and definite announcement made by next Sunday.

"Paths to Paradise."

"Paths to Paradise" is the offering at Olympic, beginning yesterday and continuing until Saturday. The film is said by those who have seen it, to be one of the best shown in Wichita Falls in some time.

Betty Compson, ever the favorite with theater goers, takes the leading role, with a strong supporting cast composed of Raymond Griffith, who plays opposite the star, Tom Santschi, Bert Woodruff and Fred Kelsey. The show, a comedy with more than the usual share of laughter, takes a cut out of real life and portrays throughout human nature as it would react toward such conditions as arise in the show.

Betty Compson plays the role of the ficritious queen of the San Francisco Chinatown and underworld. With her confederates she escapes with a quantity of valuable jewels. The congederate played by Raymond Griffith, is known to his friends as the "Duke From Duluth." They are of course pursued by a hard boiled detective, who in the end gets the jewels and everything comes out all right.

Cleverness has been made to take the place of "hokum" in the film, and the two "crooks" work out their cases with a bit of human thinking rather than through impossible situations. It is an adaption of the famous novel "Heart of a Thief," by Paul Armstrong.

'Manicure Girl."

"The Manicure Girl" featuring Bebe Daniels is the mid-week offering at the Olympic, beginning Wednesday. The film, a popular comedy with plenty of laughs and a great understanding of human nature, brings something to movie goers that is always appreciated.

Bebe Daniels plays the part of a manicure girl in a fashionable New York hotel where she has learned to take men at what they are worth and sometimes a little less. She becomes acquainted with a rich Mr. Morgan, to the worry of her fiance, a poor electrician, and in time her engagement is broken off. The manner in which the four cornered love affair, for Mr. Morgan is also married, is worked out provides plenty of humor and drama.

In the supporting cast are such stars as Edmund Burns, Hale Hamilton and Dorothy Cumming.

"The Making of O'Malley" to open at the Mission theatre today, and run for four days, brings to Wichita Falls another of the new famous Gerald Beaumont stories. The film takes human nature, takes life as it is, and recites but an incident from the life of an ordinary human, with a touch of romance and kindred feeling that has made Beaumont one of the greatest short story writers of today.

Sills plays the part of a cop in New York, who because he is conceited is placed on the toughest street corner in the city, a corner where every morning thousands of school children pass on their way to school, all of whom must be carefully watched as they cross the streets, due to the heavy traffic. O'Malley makes good and how he does it forms one of the best plots ever penned by the writer.

Dorothy MacKaill plays opposite the battling cop, and in the supporting cast appear the names of Claude King, Thomas Carrigan, Julia Hurley, Helen Rowland, Warner Richmond, Charles Graham, Allen Brander, Dell Craig and Jack de Lacy.

Few shows offer the real story as does the plot of the Mission offering and theatre goers who miss seeing the film will have missed a treat.

"She Wolves."

"She Wolves," appearing at the Mission theatre Thursday brings another good drama to Wichita Falls. The plot plays upon the old French marriage custom, as compared with the American style, and rounded out by the excellent acting of such stars as Alma Rubens and Jack Mulhall presents a successful film.

The story deals with the choosing of husbands by willful parents who, following time honored customs, refuse to consider the wishes of the daughter. In this instance a husband is chosen for a young American girl who needs must get out of the arrangement when she views the man selected. How she does it and the manner in which the plot is rounded out to make all incidents conform, offers a good show.

Due to their great popularity the Ches Davis Musical Revue will show at the Palace theatre again this week, offering changes of programs on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The comedy will not be shown on Sunday.

In addition to the daily movie offerings and the vaudeville acts the management announces baseball of the Wichita Falls team each day at 4 o'clock. The game is reproduced on the electrical scoreboard showing play by play.

Today only Harry Carey will be featured in the "Flaming Forties," a story of adventure that carries with it plenty of romance and drama. An all star cast will be seen in the supporting roles and a great show is assured.

Three complete movie changes will be made during the week. Monday and Tuesday "The Top of the World" will show. Wednesday and Thursday Florence Vidor will be seen in "The Ramshackle House," and Friday and Saturday Dick Hatton will appear in "Horse Sense."

750 Children Have Parts in Film, "Making of O'Malley" Here Today

"Jiggers, Skinny, here comes the cop!"

That was the cry that went up as a blue-coated figure stalked into one of the class rooms of the Holy Name parochial school in New York one day during the filming of "The Making of O'Malley," the First National picture to be shown at the Mission today.

But the traditional awe of the mischievous child for the policeman gave way before shouts of jubilant greeting as the youngsters recognized in the wearer of the uniform one of their favorite film stars—Milton Sills.

Sills spent two days at the school filming scenes for the picture. Rev. Joseph A. Kerwin, head of the school, and Brother Walter, the principal, turned the schoolroom and 750 of the children over to Earl Hudson, who supervised the production.

In one of the scenes Sills is called on to make a speech to a schoolroom full of youngsters. He is a New York policeman, unaccustomed to speaking, and, of course, meets with difficulty in getting started. After a lot of false starts and sputtering he finally shouts: "I'm Officer Jim. I'm here to see you get protection. Now, all of you be good boys and girls and mind your teacher."

Of course, that wasn't what he wanted to say.

When Sills started his speech the youngsters howled with joy. Every time he stopped to gulp they shouted until they could be heard in the street. Director Lambert Hillyer and his assistants labored for almost an hour before they could quiet the mob long enough to film the scene.

BETTY COMPSON AND RAYMOND GRIFFITH IN A SCENE FROM THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE 'PATHS TO PARADISE'

"Paths to Paradise" One of Best Films to Ever Show in Wichita

A fine crook comedy with a brand new treatment is what is offered at the Olympic theater in the Paramount picture, "Paths to Paradise," featuring Betty Compson and Raymond Griffith.

"Paths to Paradise," a Clarence Badger production, adapted for the screen by Keene Thompson from the play, "The Heart of a Thief," by Paul Armstrong, is a story of two clever crooks who team up, fall in love and reform, after giving the entire San Francisco police force the chase of their lives.

Clever Girl Thief.

Betty, a clever girl thief, is head of a band of roughnecks of San Francisco's Chinatown. She and her pals make a profitable business of "taking over rubber necks." Their cellar dive is visited one night by Ray Griffith, to all appearances, "fair meat" for the gang. It's not long before Betty has his roll, only to have Ray turn around and flash a badge. When Ray suggests that they might possibly buy their way out of the situation, money, watches and jewelry are immediately poured into his waiting "topper." Then out he skips, being careful to leave his badge behind. Betty picks it up and reads "San Francisco Gas Meter Inspector"—Ray is really "the Dude from Duluth," the cleverest of clever gentlemen crooks.

His next job is at a fashionable reception. Posing as a detective, he waits his chance to get his hands on a priceless necklace, but strikes a snag when Betty puts in an appearance in maid's costume. It's a battle of wits between the two of them for the gems, until they finally decide to team up.

They skip with the necklace, and a general alarm is sent out. The Mexican border is their objective. En route a mutual love arises and Betty declares that if they are to be married and trust each other they cannot go through with the job, so back they go, straight through the police cordon, replace the jewels and receive a fat reward from the owner who still believes Griffith to be a real detective. It's fair sailing after that.

Picture for yourself the inimitable Ray in such a role. There's not a let up in the laughs; there's no lagging in the interest; there's no pause in the thrills. Remember Betty as a girl crook in "The Miracle Man," the role that skyrocketed her to stardom.

Heading the cast playing in support of the principals are Tom Santschi, Fred Kelsey and Bert Woodruff.

Harry Carey in "The Flaming Forties" Appears at Palace

One of the most interesting figures of the American stage appears in "The Flaming Forties," Harry Carey's fifth Hunt Stromberg production, an adaptation of Bret Harte's famous "Tennessee's Pardner," which shows Sunday at the Palace theater.

Frank Norcross.

Frank Norcross is the gentleman in question, and although today he is 73 years old and his hair and moustache are gray, his memory still sticks with him and he can tell of the days when he was a leading man for Charles Froham and appeared with such great actresses as Kitty Blanchard (afterwards Mrs. McKee Rankin), Mary Anderson, Lotta and Maggie Mitchell.

But he especially likes to tell of how he helped to make Eva Tanguay the great theatrical figure that she is.

"I first met Eva when we were playing "The Streets of New York," in Holyoke, Mass.," Norcross explains. "For one of the scenes we would always take on extra amateur talent, and among the would-be performers who appeared at the stage door was a little ragged miss who said she could sing and dance. Local folks knew her only as 'Tangy,' but she got a great hand at every performance.

"Several years later, after touring the west, I returned to New York to launch a musical comedy of my own writing what I called 'The Sambo Girl' There I found little 'Tangy' grown up but only a 'song and dance girl' on the smaller vaudeville circuits. I decided that she should play the title part and we set about writing an introductory song for her.

A Meeting.

"A meeting was held in my office. There were four of us, Eva, Harry Sutton and Jean Lennox, song writers, and myself. To the others I said, "We've got to have a song that will fit Eva. She has an unusual personality and it will have to be about that.

"To these remarks, Eva said, 'Say anything about me. I don't care.'

"'That's it,' I yelled. 'I don't care.' And so we went to work on the song that was to make Eva famous. In about 10 minutes we had it completed.

"There's no rhyme or reason to it. Nobody could sing it but Eva Tanguay I sold it to a music publisher and he never made a dime on it. I don't believe they sold 25 copies. It was strictly a personality song and could only be sung by Eva Tanguay. But the lyrics fitted Eva to a 'T' and the song has stuck to her ever since."

Frank Norcross portrays Colonel Starbottle in "The Flaming Forties" and is one of the featured members of Carey's supporting cast which includes Jacquelin Gadsdon, William Norton Bailey, James Mason and Wilbur Higby. Tom Forman directed under the personal superivision of Hunt Stromberg.

OLYMPIC CHANGES POLICY

Hereafter One Film Will Be Run All Week, Instead of 4 Days

Beginning Saturday, Aug. 22, the Olympic theatre, will be launched upon an entirely new policy. A policy significant of the continual upward trend of that most popular of all modern day amusements, the motion picture. What the Capitol is to New York City, the Metropolitan to Los Angeles and the Palace is to Dallas, it is the plan of the D. F. & R. enterprises to make the Olympic to Wichita Falls.

Better Pictures

But in point of the selection of its pictures the Olympic of Wichita Falls will surpass the above mentioned houses for Wichita Falls has not yet quite grown to the size that it will enable a theatre to employ a big orchestra such as is a feature of the big city picture palaces, therefore it is the intention of the Olympic to make up for this in offering its patrons only the very biggest and best pictures produced by the entire motion picture industry.

A feature of the new policy will be the playing of each picture one week opening on Saturday. Instead of having a regular booking of certain short reels these will be selected with the idea of giving variety to the show thus making each number on the program stand out as a distinct unit.

Just to give its patrons an idea of what they have to look forward to the following are a few of its coming pictures: "The Ten Commandments," "The Iron Horse," "Lightnin'," "The Fool," Douglas Fairbanks in "Don Q," Mary Pickford in "Little Annie Roonie," Charlie Chaplin's big 10 reel comedy special "The Gold Rush," Zane Grey's "The Vanishing American," "The Keeper of the Bees," by Gene Stratton Porter, Harold Bell Wright's "A Son of His Father," Zane Grey's "Wild Horse Mesa," Coleen Moore in "Irene" and "We Moderns," Norma Talmadge in "Graustarke," James Cruze's sequel to "The Covered Wagon," "The Winning of the West," Harold Lloyd in "The Freshman" and "The Lost World."

Fifty-two of the very biggest and best pictures produced by the entire motion picture industry will make up the theatre's yearly program.

The Olympic has been a favored theatre with show goers ever since its opening in 1920 and its coming change in policy is a natural one to be made in the march of progress. While practically every picture will be of the super-production class popular prices will prevail for all shows.

"Our New Congressman" to Show At the Palace Monday and Tuesday

Monday and Tuesday the Ches Davis Musical Revue presents "Our New Congressman" at the Palace theater. The show is a new comedy in three acts with Mart Jiggs doing the principal comedy role as "Hugo Schultz."

This play is oneof Mr. Maron's own ideas, beng a tabaloid version of the original production he starred in a few years ago in that city. Mr. Maron promises the audiences many new and novel surprises in the show, never before seen at the Palace theater.

Other comedy parts will be ably played by Kenny Brenna, known as "The Man Who Is Funny Before He Speaks," and Burt Southern, "The Man Who Dances on His Head."

A new addition to the cast of the revue is the "Rube Hopper," the silver-throated baritone, who will be seen with the company beginning on Monday. Mr. Hooper ish recognised as one of the best harmony singers ever to appear on a musical comedy stage.

New vaudeville songs and dances will be introduced by Owen Brunett, "The Southern Nightingale," Frank Shephard, Carmen Mayer, the Renaud Sisters, the Imperial Trio and other members of the company.

OLD PAINTING IS FOUND

OSLO, Aug. 1.—(AP).—Art circles are greatly interested in the discovery of a painting which experts are inclined to believe to be a portrait of King Charles I of England.

The picture was purchased by an Oslo solicitor recently. It depicits the king at about the age of 35, dressed in a suit of dark velvet with a broad collar of fine lace, and with hair falling in long curls over his shoulders.

The owner has had photographic copies made and dispatched them to every famous gallery in Europe where contemporary portraits of Charles I are known to be. Experts at these galleries are reported to have unanimously pronounced that the original is not a copy of any known portrait of the king.

BEBE DANIELS AND EDMUND BURNS IN THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE "THE MANICURE GIRL"

Bebe Daniels Takes Leading Role In Comedy At Olympic Beginning Wednesday

In these days of feminine emancipation, when woman demands and receives!—the right to lead her own life, it's a question what right, if any, her fiance has in saying how far she may go with other men.

If, for instance, a wealthy man sends her money for theatre tickets, does he mean just that? And if so, has the fiance the right to tell her to return it, even if the best he can do is provide seats up near the roof?

This is the rock that comes near to wrecking the happiness of Maria and young Tony in "The Manicure Girl," Bebe Daniels' new Paramount picture, which comes to the Olympic Wednesday. Maria (Bebe) decides to keep the money, just to show Tony that he can't "boss" her, which leaves nothing for Tony to do but bid her farewell without the usual lover's trimmings. And Maria, bent on leading her own life, finds herself becoming more and more involved with the wealthy man until, just when things seem to be all set for the final catastrophe an unexpected development brings her to a realization that Tony was right, after all.

Edmund Burns plays opposite the star. Hale Hamilton, Dorothy Cummings and others appear in support.

Foreign Customs Shown in Film, "She Wolves" at the Mission

Few American girls can appreciate or understand the position of the French girl whose parents choose her future husband for her. In France the entire marriage is arranged between the parents of the young couple without any consideration of the feelings of the prospective bride and bridegroom.

The French marriage procedure forms one of the opening sequences of the William Cox special, "She Wolves," which will open at the Mission theatre on Thursday.

The girl, played by the exquisite Alma Rubens, is called upon to meet her future husband, interpreted by Jack Mulhall, at afternoon tea. That he does not resemble her dream hero is a bitter disappointment, and so it would be to any girl with individuality. It would be an impossibility for an American girl to adapt herself to French customs in this regard. Her choice of a husband must be actuated by love and love cannot be ordered by parents or guardians.

The French explanation for their method of arranging the marriages of their daughters is more or less logical. Girls from seventeen to twenty-one, they argue, do not know their own minds. Their fancies are influenced wholly by the heart and no consideration is given by a young girl to the suitability of the man who makes her heart go pit-a-pat every time she thinks of him.

But mothers and fathers can weigh the respective merits of suitors impartially, with the result that French girls often find themselves after marriage in love with their own husbands—a strange development in the eyes of their western sisters.

CHRYSLER CAR PRICES CUT TO LOWER LEVEL

Factory Head Announces What Is Considered Unexpected Slice

Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Chrysler corporation, announces new and lower prices on the Chrysler Six, as well as a number of improvements and refinements in engineering design which raise this car to new performance peaks.

The new price range is from $1,395 for the phaeton model to $2,005 for the crown imperial, f. o. b. Detroit.

Included in the improvements are a motor of greater power and smoothness, a chassis of greater sturdiness and rigidity with greater use of alloy steels, and a group of the most attractive body designs and colorings.

"These refinements are but the natural results achieved by an organization that is not content to stand still," is Mr. Chrysler's comment on the new prices and developments of the Chrysler Six.

"When we first brought out this model we were greatly flattered to have it hailed as most nearly approximating six-cylinder motor car perfection. However, our engineering and factory executives worked unstintedly to improve the design of the car and our manufacturing methods. This, notwithstanding the fact that motoring public held that our factory and our product was two years ahead of its time.

Lengthy research and experimentation have enabled us to enhance the Chrysler Six performance qualities at the same time that application of further scientific manufacturing methods, combined with greater quantity production, has resulted in economies which have enabled us to reduce materially Chrysler Six prices."

Most important of the new engineering features, Mr. Chrysler points out, are the improvements in the power plant. The latest Chrysler Six has a cylinder bore of 3½ inches. This increase in piston displacement delivers nearly 10% greater power, enabling the new six to attain its top range of 70 miles per hour with greater ease. It also gives swifter acceleration and getaway with a proved record of 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, better pulling power up steep grades and through mud and sand.

Maintain Economy Despite Added Power

The greater power delivered by the motor has been compensated by a heavier and more rigid crankshaft, with nearly 50% greater torsional rigidity. Pistons, connecting rods, bearings and other reciprocating parts have been constructed correspondingly heavier.

Totake care of the greater fuel demands the carburetor opening has been increased 1/8 of an inch, but redesigning of this unit has enabled Chrysler engineers to perfect its efficiency so that economy standard of 20 or more miles to a gallon of gas is maintained. Oil pump capacity has also been increased 12½%.

Despite the increased power delivered by the motor the larger seven-bearing crankshaft, the larger dynamically and statically balanced flywheel and the other scientifically balanced rotating parts, completely smooth out periodic vibration which ordinarily arises from an increase of piston displacement and the resulting greater torque.

The Purolator, an oil filter which removes all impurities from the crankcase oil as the motor runs, which was first adopted as standard equipment by Chrysler; and an air cleaner which prevents dust and road grit from entering the cylinders with the fuel, minimizing the formation of carbon in the cylinders, continue to be standard equipment of the Chrysler Six engine.

In the flywheel has been mounted a clutch of single-plate type. This, coupled with transmission gears nearly 30% larger than the previous design, peamits smoother and seasier gear engagement. The gear shift lever has been lengthened for greater convenience of the driver.

The emergency brake on the rear end of the transmission has also been increased one inch in diameter.

The differential carrier has been made more sturdy and rigid to handle the increased engine power. Ring gear and pinions are larger and the teeth are cut at steeper pitch, permit more substantial engagement.

The body design which has been so characteristically Chrysler is unchanged save for minor details.

The smartness of the roadster type, which Chrysler has done much to restore to popularity, has been enhanced in many details. New bullet type head lamps, a top bow finished in walnue to match the steering wheel and instrument board panel, fitting into a nickel plated thimble, automatic windshield wiper, wider doors permitting greater ease in getting behind the steering, side hinges on the golf equipment door, and top of uncoated and rubberized material, are a few of the new feautures.

Not only can the top be folded back neatly but by unbuttoning four curtain fasteners and loosening a few bolts the top can be taken off.

All the new Chrysler Six models appear in distinctive and tasteful duco color combinations. The roadster and brougham are done in copra and chicle drab with flamingo carmine striping. The phaeton colors of plymouth and Pilgrim greys, are set off by the same carmine striping. Bagdad and Topango greens, with rich gold bronze striping are used on the Crown Imperial. The Imperial now appears in marine blue and black. The Sedan is done in chicle dray and flamingo carmine stripe. The Royal Coupe is in Algerian and Bambalina blue tones, with fawn grey striping; and the colors of the coach have been altered to Thebes gyps, with fawn grey striping.

BOXER SURVIVES RE-UNITE

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A reunion of surviving officers and crew of the former German gunboat Iltis, the first war vessel to run the gauntlet of the Taku forts during the Boxer uprising 25 years ago, was held here recently. Former Commander von Lans, now a retired admiral, welcomed former officers and men.

The only war correspondent aboard the vessel during the Taku forts engagement was an American, Joseph Herrings, who was the first man on board to be wounded, an exploding shell fracturing two of his ribs.

Quarter of Century Sees Great Progress In Auto Industry In United States

FLINT, Mich., Aug. 1.—Progress obtained by work of the hardest kind has brought the automotive industry within a quarter of a century from virtually nothing to the commanding place in the industrial life of our country. Now that first place has been attained, there should be no tendency to sit back satisfied. This attitude must not be assumed if the industry is to retain its leading position.

The commercial history of this country is replete with instances of manufacturers who felt that they had arrived and could rest content only later to be rudely awakened by some young, vigorous rival, who recognized the principle that to succeed you must progress.

Best Each Year.

Every year for two decades the leading automobile manufacturers have bought out what they honestly believed was the best car in its price class, and felt that it could not be excelled. Yet within 12 months their own engineers have proved that the product could be improved. And so it has gone on each year seeing better automobiles, and so it will continue as long as it is possible to make improvements.

Years ago the Buick Motor company took for its slogan "When Better Automobiles Are Built Buick Will Build Them." This was not selected as a vainglorious boast, but was predicted on the well defined policy that Buick intends bettering its products by the adoption of such improvements as continuous experience may develop.

Perfect Car to Come.

Maybe the perfect automobile is yet to be built. No one can say how close or how far we are from that coveted result. Extensive research will reveal this and this fact is recognized by the more progressive manufacturers who are constantly striving to make a better car.

This has been the policy of the Buick Motor company and it will continue as such. The large engineering and research staffs of the Buick are constantly working to create better Buicks, and as they progress better Buicks will be built.

It is a good thing for the industry as a whole that there is a tendency to discard the habit of making change merely for the sake of having a change. But this extended to the curtailment of real improvements from year to year would mean but one thing ultimately—that the automotive industry would start slipping backward, for it is a trusim that nothing stands still, we must continue to go forward or go backward.

MARMON AUTO SAID TO HAVE STRONG FRAME

Former Aide to Wilson Narrowly Escapes Injury

Following an accident in which the Marmon car he was driving was struck by a big army truck, traveling at a speed of 30 miles an hour, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., former aide to President Wilson, attributed his escape from serious injury to the strong steel running board construction of the Marmon car.

While driving in Washington, Admiral Grayson stopped at a street intersection to allow passengers to unload from a street car. Hearing a commotion on the sidewalk to the left of him, he looked to the left and saw an army truck bearing down upon him. The brakes on the truck were inoperative and the truck gained speed as it approached, finally crashing into his car exactly opposite the left front seat.

The force of the collision drove in the running board to a point about four inches from the body and turned Admiral Grayson's car entirely around, which permitted the truck to pass by on the left side. Admiral Grayson was knocked under the steering wheel and the breath was knocked out of him but otherwise he was unhurt.

The car was driven to the Marmon service station in Washington. Admiral Grayson, after the accident, said that the Marmon "side bumpers" as steel running boards are called, by bearing the brunt of the impact, probably saved his life. Marmon steel running boards are hot riveted to the frame, making them an integral part of the frame of the car and giving an added factor of safety. In numerous instances they have been the means of saving human life as testified to by letters received from Marmon owners everywhere.

OVERLAND CAR BRINGS PRICE DOWN LOWER

New And Popular Model Proves Self to Be One Of Cheapest

That lower prices and the steadily increase of retail sales in the automobile field herald a stability of other industries throughout the county is the contention of Willys-Overland officials who are watching with interest the mounting sales on the new Overland standard sedan recently announced.

Only by the closest application to detail and the unusual bulk purchases of material, coupled with increased production due to extremely heavy sales in the field, has Willys-Overland been able to produce this five-passenger sedan at $655, the lowest priced sedan with sliding gear transmission.

Several unusual features incorporated in the Overland standard sedan have bolstered the demand for this popular model, according to dealers. Longer and narrower windows together with the popular one-piece adjustable windshield give greated vision and ventilation, two wider and heavier doors that provide greater safety for children in the rear seats than in the ordinary two-door sedan have proven popular. Longer and lower lines have added to the beauty of this attractive car which is upholstered in fine Bedford cloth that harmonizes with interior fittings.

One of the unique features of the new Overland standard sedan is the instantaneous rearrangement of the interior to form a comfortable bed for the camper and tourist. The rear seat cushion is pulled forward onto the floor, the front cushion replaces the rear seat and the backs of the front seat are tipped forward, making an unusually comfortable bed. This feature was especially designed for travellers to materially assist in their economies of travel. The new Overland standard sedan at its price of $655 is bringing, according to Willys-Overland factory officials, a host of open car buyers into the closed car class.

CAR REGISTRATION HIGH

New York, Aug. 1.—A total of 19,000,000 automobiles and motor trucks will be registered in the United States at the close of the current year, according to an estimate of automotive industries. This estimate is based upon the actual registration during the first six months of the year.

New York state, as in previous years, holds first place, 1,332,166 cars and trucks having been registered in this state since January 1. California holds second place, with 1,283,203, and Ohio third, with 1,282,943.

New Cadillac Offers Many Improvements

This improvement, coupled with the oil filter, makes it possible to operate the engine 2,000 miles instead of the customary 500 before changing oil. During that period the oil will be free from water, gasoline and dirt—elements heretofore common to motor car engines, and destructive to the oil's efficiency.

Another important chassis improvement, in addition to its general simplification, is the adoption of semi-elliptic springs with a unique ball and socket rear shackle to minimize wear at that vulnerable point.

Metal Cases.

Battery and tool boxes are now set into locked metal cases in the front fenders, making them remarkably accessible. Radiator is of the cellular type, which is not easily damaged by freezing, and is considerably higher. Radiator shutters, adopted as standard, are controlled thermostatically. The radiator support is stiffer. The water pump system has been simplified by the use of a single pump, of larger capacity.

Furthering the chassis simplification, the electrical generating and starting system is now in separate units—generator at the engine front and starter at the rear. The torque arm hanger is of an improved rubberized fabric type, reducing weight and assuring absolute silence. All other types of constructions, it is pointed out, are suspectible to wear and can be kept in good adjustment only by frequent attention.

Prices of the various standard models are as follow:

Five-passenger brougham $2,995; two-passenger coupe $3,045; four-passenger victoria $3,095; five-passenger sedan 3,195; seven-passenger sedan $3,295; seven-passenger imperial $3,455. Custom-built model price are: Roadster $3,250; seven-passenger touring $3,250; phaeton $3,250; five-passenger coupe $4,000; five-passenger sedan $4,150; seven-passenger suburban $4,285; seven-passenger imperial $4,485.

Reductions compared with those of the previous series Cadillac models range from $190 to $930.

LATEST NASH MODELS GAIN IN POPULARITY

Smart Appearance of Cars Has Favorable Effect On Motorists

Because of the remarkable popularity which the Nash line has enjoyed for the past year, an unusual amount of interest attached to the new Nash models which are being shown for the first time. The reveal no radical changes in either appearance or mechanical design, but the many motorists who study them carefully find plenty of evidence of a refinement of detail throughout the cars that promises to add greatly to the already high favor the Nash line enjoys.

In the closed cars, the new French-type roof and visor lend new smartness to the appearance. A belt line marked by dark moulding emphasizes the sweeping and graceful lines of the bodies. In the Special Six models, the radiator has been changed so that it much resembles the Advanced Six series.

Hand Brake Changed.

A change that adds markedly to the comfort and convenience of the front-seat passengers is to be found in the new location of the hand brake and a new type of gear-shift lever.

"The gear-shift lever on the new Nashes is unique. It is given a wide curve at the bottom, which permits much more room between the lever and the seat, and permits easy entrance or exit from either side.

Have New Guage.

"A new type of gasoline guage is included in the dash instruments. The filler cap for the gas tank and for the oil requires only half a turn to unfasten it.

"An aid cleaner features both the Advanced Six and Special Six models, and gives added protection to the motor against undue wear of pistons and cylinder walls.

"The Nash four-wheel brakes, the Nash motor, and in fact all the essentials of the Nash chassis remain unchanged. It is a tribute to the thoroughness of Nash preliminary engineering that the four-wheel brakes which were introduced last August proved such an unqualified success.

"The announcement of the new models was very welcome to us for we had been completely sold out of the former series for some time and were eagerly awaiting the arrival of the new line. From present indications, the new cars are going to break even the high sales records set during the past twelve months, and August looks as though it would set a new high record for Nash sales by a wide margin."

German War Veterans Pass Resolution Against Memorials.

MUNICH, Aug., 1.—The Legion of German War Veterans at its third national convention passed a resolution criticising the various regimental and veteran clubs for erecting so many monuments for dead comrades instead of properly caring for their widows and children, as a more befitting method of honoring the memory of the dead. The resolution recommended the construction of a number of recreation homes for the widows and orphans of soldiers killed in the war. The Legion of German War Veterans comprises more than 400,000 members throughout the country.

A NEW LINE OF

Cadillac Cars

IS ANNOUNCED

The simplest, quickest way to convey to you an adequate conception of these new Cadillac cars — the most superlatively beautiful line that Cadillac has ever produced—is to record a practical and highly important fact.

That fact is that in the development of these new cars, Cadillac has expended more than $2,500,000 in jigs, tools and dies alone for the purpose of producing the finest Cadillac in history.

All of the resources—engineering, purchasing and manufacturing—of both Cadillac and General Motors have been brought to bear upon this paramount object.

Providing, by means of new engineering, a new standard of beauty, a new measure of ease and a new brilliancy of performance unequaled in Cadillac history ——and true to all the fine Cadillac traditions.

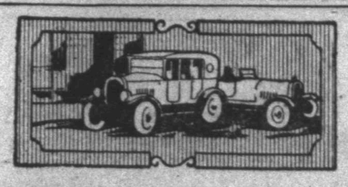

All of Cadillac's 23-year experience in manufacturing fine cars—the last 11 years with eight-cylinder cars exclusively—unites with Cadillac's latest engineering conceptions in producing this new creation.

We are certain that you will share our opinion that the new line of eight-cylinder Cadillac cars not only surpasses all others in every important essential, but goes far beyond Cadillacs previous best.

We invite you to come in and see the new Cadillac on display soon.

NEW CADILLAC, LOWER PRICED, IS ANNOUNCED

Improved Appearance Is Great Asset to The Late Models

At a cost of $2,500,000 the Cadillac Motor Car company has designed and placed in production a new car, announced and now on display by Cadillac distributors and dealers for the first time.

The new car, which continues characteristics which have marked the Cadillac particularly during the past eleven years, including the V-typed, 90-degree, eight-cylinder engine, is entirely redesigned as to engine, chassis, and body and incorporates notable improvements, according to the company's announcement.

The new Cadillacs, the announcement states, are refined and more spirited in appearance, more lively in performance, and simplified in construction and maintenance. They provide even greater riding comfort and the prices on the various body models have been reduced by amounts ranging from $190 to $930.

Conjecture Rife.

Conjecture as to the next step by the Cadillac company has been rife since its announcement two years ago of the fundamental perfection of the V-type, 90-degree, eight-cylinder principle of engine design. The company's engineers at that time were beginning their investigations for production of a new car. The $2,500,000 expenditure has been invested in new dies, jigs, tools and fixtures for manufacture of parts which almost without exception have been redesigned.

Six standard and seven custom-built bodies are included in the new line, with prices ranging from $2,995 for the standard five-passenger brougham to $4,485 for the seven-passenger custom imperial. The three open cars—roadster, touring and phaeton—have custom-built bodies.

The new Cadillacs are low, fleet and graceful. Their lines are new and sweeping, somewhat European in effect, with longer bonnet, refinement of radiator design, new fenders with foreign touch, and new and distinctive lamps, both headlamps and rear signals. The bodies are finished in various colors—blues, greens, grays, browns and creams—setting off the skillful blending of curves and contours.

Both standard and custom-built bodies are by Fisher, designed and produced by that organization working in close co-operation with Cadillac engineers.

"Squarely in line with the most advanced tendencies in motor car design, the progress presented in the new Cadillac is the logical continuation of Cadillac's creative accomplishment," says Lawrence P. Fisher, president and general manager of the company. "Combined with the inherent balance of the Cadillac V-type, eight engine, a feat achieved by our engineers two years ago, and generally believed 'impossible,' engineering researches of the past two years have lead to a refinement of that design as the most direct route to the type of car which Cadillac is constantly striving to produce.

A Beautiful Car.

"From the owner's point of view, we believe it will appeal as a beautiful car, endowed with the finest, most efficient, simplest and most accessible chassis Cadillac has ever produced. Improved in every particular, it retains the acknowledged Cadillac characteristics of highest excellence in design, mechanical construction and fine workmanship.

"Engine changes have been made which, first of all, practically eliminate crankcase dilution and condensation, and give the car tremendous specific advantages. This is an accomplishment toward which engineers of the whole industry have been striving for more than ten years. Its achievement in this car solves what has been a problem with all internal combustion engines. It will rank as one of the foremost contributions to modern motor car development.

"From an engineering standpoint, everything consistent with the best practice has been done to build the car low. The riding position is even more comfortable than formerly and the bodies themselves are unusually low. Lighter and simpler construction, incorporated where consistent with Cadillac quality, gives added advantage to the increased engine power and efficiency. Chassis refinements and simplification have lessened its weight 263 pounds; and the complete cars of various models are reduced in weight by 280 to 420 pounds. With the greater engine power, these factors produce distinctly improved performance."

In addition to the longer, more sleek bonnet, the interiors are even more luxurious, it is pointed out. There is also more room for the occupants, seats are more comfortable, upholstery materials richer, and the appointments and fitments even finer. Vision, especially frontal vision, has been increased to the maximum in the enclosed models by reducing the pillars which carry the window construction. Open bodies carry collapsible tops so designed and tailored as to fold neatly in a compact envelope, setting off the smart, custom-built body lines. Mechanical refinements inside each car include instrument board with walnut finish, on which all instruments including a new, electrically-operated gasoline quantity gauge, are effectively grouped.

Engine Improved.

An important phase of the engine improvement, the company points out, is in the oiling and, specifically, the features of it whereby crankcase dilution and condensation are eliminated. In internal combustion engines, dilution and condensation mean the presence of gasoline and water in the oil. These have always been a serious enemy to motor life. The source of this contamination is in the gases which seep past the piston rings and which consist of unburned gasoline and water vapor resulting from combustion.

In the new car, solution of this problem has been provided in a unique crankcase ventilating system. This prevents both dilution and condensation by expelling the gases that may seep past the pistons before they have opportunity to condense.

In attaining this result, advantage is taken of the Cadillac crankshaft which, with its compensating weights, serves to draw air into the crankcase. Crankshaft rotation builds up in the crankcase a pressure slightly higher than atmospheric pressure. This, together with the air forced down by the descending pistons, forces the seepage gases through ports in the cylinder walls into the valve compartments. Pre-heating the air drawn into the crankcase prevents condensation of the vapor before its expulsion.

Harmonic Balancer On The New Oaklands Are Gaining Much Notice

The desire of the average American to be well posted on the engine and other mechanical features of a motor car were strikingly revealed this last week among the tens of thousands who visited Oakland show rooms throughout the country to inspect the new Oakland Six cylinder cars shown for the first time.

McElreath Motor company, local Oakland dealers, report that of all the questions asked by visitors, the most persistent centered about the Harmonic Balancer, an exclusive engineering development for eliminating torsional virbation in the Oakland engine.

Mechanical Achievement.

From the nation-wide interest evinced in this advanced engineering feature, it is predicted that it will take its place among the great mechanical achievements of automotive engineering, comparable to the introduction of four wheel brakes two years ago.

Like all great improvements, the Harmonic Balancer is both simple in principle and simple in design. It is a well known fact that the crankshaft of an automobile engine twists under each piston impulse, very slightly to be sure, but as the impulses become more rapid along the speed range, a point is reached where each piston impulse follows up and adds to the vibration. At these speeds, the angle of twist in the shaft is many times more than the twist given by any one cylinder. This is the cause of so-called "periods of vibration" which occur at certain points along the speed range. It is this vibration that the Harmonic Balancer eliminates.

The Harmonic Balancer consists of a light steel bar, pivoted to the shaft at its center and tensioned by stiff springs at either end. The weight of the bar and the stiffness of the springs are so selected that the Balancer has a natural frequently of vibration practically the same as that of the crankshaft itself. When, therefore, there is the slightest movement of the shaft, the Harmonic Balancer picks it up and vibrates in the opposite direction, thus neutralizing all torsional vibration.

Counter Action.

Stated simply, the principle of the Harmonic Balancer is based on the fact that the simplest way to stop any object that is moving is to push it in the opposite direction with a force equal to the force of the moving object. In this way the "periods of vibration" of the shaft are eliminated and the engine operates smoothly on up through the speed range, the Harmonic Balancer actively opposing any tendency of the shaft to vibrate.

Former Football Star Named Auto Sales Dept. Head

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—"Duffy" Kirk, for 19 years a resident of Hollywood and one of the oldest men from point of service with Stanley W. Smith, Inc., Hollywood Hudson-Essex retail and service organization, has just been named manager of sales in that community for the Smith company, it was announced by Mr. Smith.

Kirk joined the Smith sales staff coincident with that firm taking over the representation of the Hudson-Essex in the Hollywood territory.

The new sales manager is remembered by many of the older residents of Hollywood as a one-time star on Hollywood high school football teams, his most memorable performance being on the occasin of the "big game" of the season of 1914 when he played throughout the Manual Arts-Hollywood contest with a broken hand.

The appointment of Kirk as Hollywood sales manager for the concern augurs well for an ever-increasing volume of the Hudson-Essex sales in that community, thinks Mr. Smith, who reasons that Kirk's sales and executive ability coupled with his wide acquaintance there should pave the way for a "flock" of new sales records.

CHEVROLET CO. SAYS SERVICE A GREAT THING

Salesmen Are Taught The Value Of it In Their Work

A great deal has been said about rendering proper service on automobiles to owners. As a result of the many articles that have been written on this subject, there has been a constant improvement in automobile service. However, "actions speak louder than words," and the Chevrolet Motor company, in its attempt to get rapid action toward the betterment of service decided not only to lay down policies but to spend money in assisting dealers by practical work on how they could actually render better service to their customers.

Planned Campaign.

In order to do this, a year ago last August the Chevrolet Motor company planned a campaign with its dealer organizations and service stations to arrange their shops, equipment and personnel along lines that would actually give the type of service that every automobile owner desires. To accomplish this with our large dealer organization, consisting of approximately 6,500 dealers, it was necessary to train a special service promotion representative and an assistant in each Chevrolet zone territory, whose primary duty was to go into every Chevrolet dealer's service station and remain there long enough to put into effect the methods suggested by the Chevrolet Motor company.

The schedule of work to be done by the service promotion representative covers the arrangement of the shop, so that the work, benches and tool equipment will be properly placed for efficient service and maximum service space for the handling of the largest number of cars without congestion; the installation of special tools, which will enable the service station to render fast and efficient repair work at the lowest cost; arranging the stockroom and setting up the proper supply of service parts; establishing a flat rate system of repairs, so that the car owner will know exactly how much any particular job is going to cost him.

Train Service Men.

Another very important duty of the Chevrolet service promotion representative is to train the service men in the dealer's organization not only in the proper use of the special tool equipment and in the handling of the repair work, but also in the manner in which they should contact with the car owners.

A record is kept of the activities of the Chevrolet service promotion representatives, so that when these men once start working on a dealer's service station, they are not given a release on this work until their record indicates that everything has been taken care of and the job has been completed 100 per cent.

It is the expectation, from what has already been accomplished, to place every Chevrolet service station in a position to give quick service to its customers; quote reasonable prices before starting the work, and to insure satisfactory repair work to the car owner.

LANDING FIELD POINTS GIVEN BY AUTO HEAD

Rickenbacker Gives Good Idea on Airplane Fields

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 1.—Now that commercial aviation is the livest topic of the hour, and every city, town and hamlet, which makes and pretentions to progressiveness is striving to "get on the air line," there has developed an unquenchable thirst for information as to the requirements, location, size and other specifications of an airdrome or landing field.

It is only natural that a large percentage of inquiries on this subject should be directed to America's premier aviator, Captain E. V. Rickenbacker.

"Like the movie star who receives so many mash notes she has to hire a corps of secretaries to answer them, I find it necessary to reply to these many inquiries through the medium of the public press," says the famous ace, "because my own duties as vice-president and director of sales, Rickenbacker Motor company, occupy all the time of my business day.

Several Obstacles.

"I do find time to respond to many invitations to address chambers of commerce, advertising clubs and other civic bodies in the effort to 'sell the city a landing field,' and I enjoy more than almost anything else the pleasure of being present at the dedication of such fields after the city has acquired them.

"I find, however, that there are many popular misconceptions with regard to what constitutes a practical airdrome.

"There are also several obstacles in the way, when a community starts out to acquire one.

"First, of course, we have the political boss, or other influential citizen who has property he wants to sell, and who is, therefore, convinced that his tract would make an ideal landing field.

"Then we have the real estate promoter, who is far-sighted enough to realize that the airdrome will be the community center of the future. This latter is a perfectly legitimate object, provided the city fathers do not allow themselves to accept as a landing field somethnig that is not properly located for that purpose.

"I know a number of cases where a city has accepted, as a gift, a field which is so unsuited to the purpose that it really would be cheaper to go out and buy one.

Sometimes an Impediment.

"As a matter of fact, a field that merely passes for such in name but is not at all suited for the purpose is an impediment rather than a help—it serves to defer the day when the town will go on the "air line."

"If the following essentials are observed as the requirements for a landing field, and if a tract be secured which will conform, there will be little danger of acquiring one that will be wholly unsuitable.

"In the first place, the field should be not less than one mile square—a full section.

"Every inch of that square mile should be available for landing at all times.

"The average person, who is a non-flyer, imagines that a 'two-way' field is sufficient, meaning by that, a field which has a strip, a quarter, or a half, or even a mile long, sunning—say north and south, or east and west—on which planes can land.

"This will answer a good deal of the time because such a field is usually laid out with due regard to the prevailing winds. Under ideal conditions, almost any plane can land there.

"It should be remembered, however, that an airplane should always 'take off' and land directly against the wind. And while it is possible for a skillful pilot to take off or land 'cross wind,' it is a risky maneuver.

"This is particularly so with either very small or very large ships. The very small ones—'pursuit' planes—have a high landing speed—60 to 70 miles per hour—and because of their small wing spread, do not have a very long 'gliding angle.'

"On the other hand, the big passenger ships of the present, and especially those of the future, which will carry thirty to fifty passengers, land at slower speeds and have a long 'gliding angle.'

Like a Train.

"In other words, they are not unlike a railroad train or a steamship. These latter cannot come to a stop instantly but must have plenty of space.

"The Leviathan, for example, must cease going under her own power when still out in the open sea, and from there she must be pulled and pushed and directed by small tug boats—fourteen of them.

"The 20th Century Limited begins to slow down a full mile from the depot—if she did not, she would be liable to go right on through.

"The 'four-way' landing field, when it is merely two legs of a square, is little better than the 'two-way.'

"This type of field will do all right if the wind happens to be directly from either of the four major points of the compass, but again you have the problem of cross winds.

"This is a case where economy is expensive.

"A field should be procured which is square—at least a mile square—and, if it is to serve the needs of the future, every part of the tract should be leveled off, cleared of trees and sown to grass.

"All trees, poles or other obstructions bordering the field should be removed.

"Electric wires should be put under ground—every pole is a menace to a landing field.

"For it must be remembered that motors occasionally fail in airplanes as well as in locomotives and automobiles—and a crippled ship may not choose its landing speed nor angle of glide.

"This done, a practical flyer, or expert on air-way, should be called in to advise as to proper marking of the field, erection of wind signals, night lights, etc.

"Then, one ship, or twenty, can come in and land in any wind, night as well as day."

Thinks Plains Farms Should All Be Split

LOCKNEY, Aug. 1.—(AP).—Development of the South Plains of Texas to full possibilities rests in splitting section farms to farms of a quarter section or less in the opinion of Will McGee, for 35 years a resident of Floyd county, who is now tilling 112 acres near here.

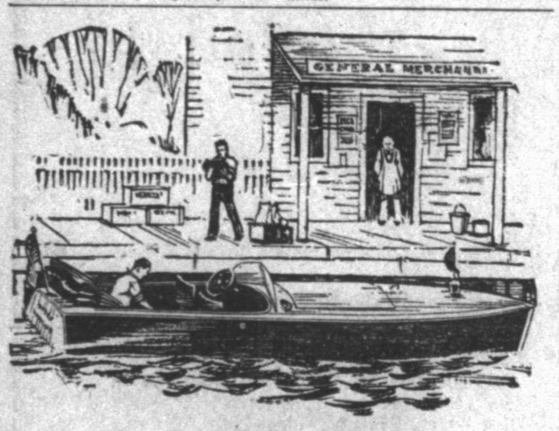

"For a long time development of the South Plains on a large scale was made impossible because the ranchmen refused to divide their huge holdings into farms. Now the development of the plains is being retarded by tendency of farmers to undertake tilling of too large tracts. There are few men, who, even with the assistance of members of their family, can properly take care of more than 160 acres," Mr. McGee said. "I used to farm more than a section of land but now I find that I get better results from my 112 acres."

During the 35 years he has farmed on the plains, Mr. McGee said he had never had a complete crop failure. Fertility and versalitity of the soil enable the thinking farmer to make a fair crop in some product, almost regardless of weather conditions, he said.

The ideal crop combination for the plains, in the opinion of Mr. McGee, is composed of cotton, alfalfa, wheat, maize and kaffir corn.

PROPOSE JAPANESE GUILDS

TOKYO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A guild which would handle the Russo-Japanese import and export trade has been proposed by Viscount Shimpei Goto, according to the vernaculars. It is said the proposed guild would be capitalized at 150,000,000 yen. The trade with Russia, according to Viscount Goto's scheme, would be handled by the Japanese guild and the Soviet Bureau of Trade. The guild would also look after any concessions granted by Russia to Japanese.

If there be an epidemic of price-cutting in the industry, Overland is not concerned with it. For never will Overland be a party to any policy that involves the cutting of prices to a figure necessitating a proportionate cut in quality. ¶ The reason—and the ONLY reason—Overland Six prices are now reduced is because we are selling twice the number of these fine cars we had planned. ¶ This means huge savings in our purchases, huge savings in manufacturing. ¶ Therefore, to keep our sales volume at this satisfactory level, these economies are now passed on to you. Before you buy any car in this price class, don't be stampeded. ¶ Shop carefully around. Investigate all moderate-priced Sixes. Then, check your findings against this big Overland Six. ¶ As an experienced owner you must then admit that never before, for as little as $895, have you been offered so much of quality and of value in any automobile.

Awakening to the Value of Natural Gas

All through the natural gas territory of the United States there is an awakening to the true value of natural gas. A speaker at a recent bankers' dinner pointed out that the great saving it had made possible in Ohio had aided the banks remarkably in obtaining the capital necessary to finance industry, and had enriched the people in the thirty years that state had enjoyed natural gas.

Natural gas does reduce living expenses greatly, not only in the actual saving in fuel bills, which is about half, but also in the time, the cleanliness and the convenience. It gives to Texas each year millions of dollars, millions of hours, and inestimable comfort.

The economic advantages are so great that it is conservative to say the rapid development and increasing wealth of this part of Texas have been aided greatly by the intelligence and enterprise displayed in the furnishing and distribution of natural gas.

PILLARS SIGN OF WEALTH

Old Custom in Danzig Shows Farmer's Riches

NEUTEICH, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The tax collector in the Free City of Danzig does not have much trouble determining how large are the farms in the district under his jurisdiction. Since time immemorial there has obtained the custom of indicating one's wealth in land by the number of pillars on his front porch. Every pillar stands for one "huf," or "hoof," an old German designation which is equivalent to 20 acres.

Certain very wealthy farmers substitute marble pillars for wood. There are several examples of this kind around Neuteich.

Ring Deplores Annoying Benefits of Telephone. Little Woman's Record of Specially Light Day Reveals List of False Alarms—Many Call but Few Are Chosen.

—By Ring Lardner.

To the editor:

Seems like lately the telephone company are always advertising new improvements in their service whereby it makes it simpler for people to reach each other by telephone and I suppose the company feels pretty proud of themself for the advances they have made, but on the other hand it looks to me like the chamber of commerce or Mayor Hylan or whoever has got jurisdiction over same should ought to put their ft. down before these improvements goes much further and not only put a quietus on them but go a step past that and order them to withdmw some of the improvements already made because as a matter of fact telephoning is a whole lot too easy as it is and has been for several yrs.

At my request or you might say orders, the little woman kept a record the other dya of all the calls that day, and as luck would have it, it happened to be a specially light day but nevertheless will set down the results and you can judge same for yourslfs:

Tough on Mr. Gimster from Chi.

1. For the madam—Strange voice wanted to know whether he could interest her in some fine Florida grape fruit and oranges from his own ranch in Florida. Talked for 15 minutes before he give her a chance to say no.

2. Is Mr. Webb there? No. Isn't this Manhassett 103? No, this is Great Neck 103. Oh, they gave me the wrong number.

3. For the master—Strange voice said his name was Wallem and he represented the Woove Lyceum Bureau or something and would the master consider a lecture tour. No, the master didn't give lecures only to his kiddies. But we could make you a mighty fine proposition. (Master hung up by mistake).

4. For the master—This is Mr. Cleeve representing the Home for disreputable Cousins or something Said he met us once at the football game. Understood we was well acquainted with Gene Buck and Ed Wynn. Would we mind calling them up and asking them to run a benefit one the evening of July 16? Reply was that we had ceased to be on very friendly terms with either of the parties, but Mr. Cleeve could call them up himself and Mr. Buck's number was 255 whereas on the other hand Mr. Wynn's was 490. Was sure they would be glad to put on a benefit as they both revelled in them.

5. (The madam answers). Strange voice wanted to know if her husband was in. Who wants him, please? Well, tell him it's an old pal of his from Chicago. But what name shall I say? Tell him Charley Gimster. All right, I'll call him. (The master comes to the telephone). Hello. Hello, there. Maybe you don't remember me. It's Charley Gimster from Chi. I met you a couple of times in Stillson's. Oh, yes. Well, I just wanted to say hello, and would you come down I'm going back on the Century tomorrow afternoon. Well, that's tough because I have got to run over to Philadelphia tonight and won't be back till Wednesday. But I'm certainly glad you called up.

6. Voice of central.—Some one was ringing you but there is nobody on the line now. Excuse it please.

7. For the master—Familiar voice says ain't you going to trade in your car? Yes, but not till fall. But I can give you a much better trade now than if you wait till fall. Yes, but I'm going to wait till fall. But you will get a much better deal now than in the fall. I don't doubt it, but I'm going to wait till fall. Well, let me know as soon as you are ready.

8. (The madam answers) Strange voice asks if Mr. Augstein is in? What number do you want? I want Great Neck 133. Well, this is Great Neck 103. Oh.

Now of course the reader will say to themself well ain't they got no friends that ever calls them up and wants them to go on a party or something? The point is well taken but still and all at the same time suppose somebody does call you up and want you to go on a party why it just means that you half to go up and put on a pair of shoes and maybe shave or change your shirt.

And not only that but suppose somebody calls up and invites you to their house to play bridge or something and you say yes and you ain't no sooner hung up the receiver when the thing rings again and somebody else invites you to their house and it is a house where you would a whole lot rather go than the other house, why it is bound to make you wished your telephone had been out of order a few minutes in the place of working so good all the while.

All and all I can remember living back in Niles, Michigan, 30 or 40 yrs. ago and we didn't have no telephone and neither di anybody else and those was amongst the happiest days of my life.

RING LARDNER.

Strange Voice Said His Name Was Wallem And He Represented the Woove Lyceum Bureau (Master Hung up by Mistake).

DOORS OF TWO CLUBS KNOCKED DOWN BY COPS

Five Men Under Arrest For Liquor Law Violations

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—As a result of battering down with sledge-hammers the doors of two Broadway clubs by 12 prohibition agents, five men were under arrestt oday and the value of the government's stock of seized liquor had increased $1,000.

Inaugurating steps against 200 clubs in an effort to make Broadway as dry as Sahara, to use the words of one of the agents, the agents last night smashed the door of one club when they failed to gain admittance by giving a countersign. Then at another club using crowbars they pried iron shutters from a fire escape window after a password had proved an ineffective means of getting inside.

Bandits Lose Out On Third Attempt

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., Aug. 1. (AP)—After holding up two motorists on roads near Ponca City, Okla., last night, three bandits were stopped in the third attempt and one of their number, Douglas Starr, was shot in the head and seriously wounded. Starr is said to be a relative of Henry Starr, notorious Oklahoma bandit. Officers are searching for the other two. The same three men are claimed to have held up five automobiles near Arkansas City in recent weeks.

Laugh Every Twenty Feet Is Ambition Of Comic Film Director

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP).—The average two-reel comedy contains 75 laughs and the picture that audiences will talk about afterwards has a mirth provoking incident at approximately every 20 feet of film, Del Lord, director, recently declared after a check of comedies at several theaters.

The sustained laugh is the kind for which comedy directors strive. This laugh begins early in the picture. It starts with a low chuckle and swells to a rear of laughter.

A situation that seldom fails to elicit a burst of merriment is when the comedian thinks he is safe after being pursued by the villian only to find that he isn't, Lord says.

CANADA'S NEWSPRINT BIG

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The monthly canadian production of newsprint in May exceeded that of the United States, the bureau of statistics announced, when Canada produced 130,013 tons, against 129,126 tons produced in the United States.

For the first five months of the year, Canadian production was 622,235 tons, compared with 632,034 tons in the United States.

Further expansion of the pulp and paper industry in Canada is expected as the result of permission by the International Joint Commission for the development of power by the New Brunswick government at Grand Falls. Two mills will be erected in that province when the power is available.

Mother Appeals For Lost Son by Radio; Find Body in Lake

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—A few hours after a determined mother seeking her lost son had appealed by radio to perhaps millions, the body of the lad, Dwight Tracy, seven years old, was taken from Lake Michigan.

Then the mother who had bravely insisted since he vanished last Monday when he took his scooter to play in Jackson park, that he still lived, collapsed in her husband's arms.

Although the police had believed when another boy found the scooter on the lake shore that Dwight had drowned accidentally, they said they would investigate the possibility that older boys might have pushed him into the water. Two bruises were found on his head.

So many hearts were vibrating in the search for the boy that newspapers issued "extras" and socres of persons gathered outside the Tracy home and the morgue after the body was found.

ELLSWORTH IS UNDAUNTED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Lincoln Ellsworth, co-explorer with Roald Amundsen in the latter's recent polar flight, returned today on the steamship Frederick III, said another flight to the north pole would be attempted.

"I certainly hope to try again," he said, "and we look on the last attempt as merely a preliminary. We have not made definite plans for a new start."

Officer Says Fifty U. S. Sailors Will Be Married to Natives

SAN FRACISCO, Aug. 1.—(AP) Fifty American sailors now with the fleet at Melbourne will return to the United States married to Austrlian girls. This was the estimate made yesterday by a fleet officer who made a survey of the situation after two sailors marched to the altar.

The manner in which the American sailors are reported to have captured the hearts of the Australian girls directly contradicts and discounts reports cabled here previously that sailors and Australian citizens had engaged in several encounters. High officials of the fleet have refuted reports of major disorders ashore.
