Verdict on Ginsburg's first weeks on bench: fast start

By Laurie Asseo
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Judging by her energetic questioning from the bench, Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg is quickly hitting full stride in her new job.

Intensive questioning last week by Ginsburg in a sexual-harassment case caused one lawyer to abandon his contention that the woman who had filed a lawsuit must prove the conduct harmed her performance at work.

"She basically pushed him to concede the case," said Georgetown University law professor Susan Deller Ross.

During her first two weeks of high court arguments, Ginsburg has asked lawyers frequent and probing questions on other issues such as drug forfeitures and civil rights law.

Child-support system's shift to pay-withholding hits bump

By Mitchell Landsberg
Associated Press writer

On Jan. 1, 1994, a quiet revolution will be won in the way Americans pay child support. On that day, federal law will require virtually all new child-support awards to be withheld from the paychecks of absent parents.

It is a momentous change, at least on the face of it. From that day on, Americans can regard child-support in the same light as taxes and health insurance — hidden payments that don't come out of anyone's wallet because they never make it that far.

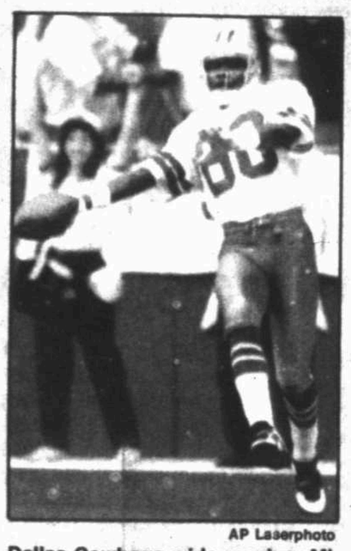

But like a lot of momentous changes, especially those dreamed up in Washington, this one is neither as simple nor as straightforward as it might seem.

To begin with, there won't be any change in some states because they've required withhold-

6 U.S. ships ride horizon; Haiti braces

■ U.S. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole to offer legislation restricting use of American force.

Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — A U.S. warship rode the horizon off the capital Sunday — to some Haitians an omen that a foreign invasion was imminent, to others a harbinger that democracy might soon be restored.

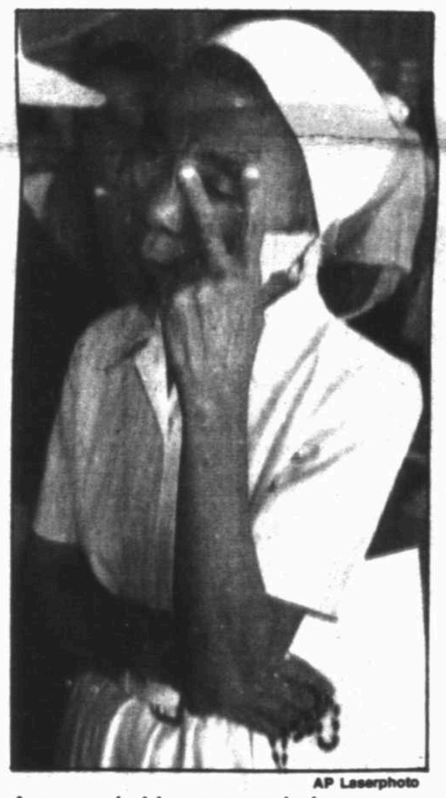

The USS Sterett was one of six dispatched by President Clinton to enforce a U.N. arms and oil embargo that is take effect at midnight today unless Haiti's military leaders cooperate with a U.N.-brokered accord on bringing back ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

It was the first one spotted by the capital's fearful residents, although a Pentagon spokesman in Washington, Maj. Steve Little, said all six were in place Sunday.

Army commander Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras, whose resignation is part of the U.N. accord, indicated Sunday that the army does not want to challenge the United States.

"The Haitian people do not want to confront the American might," he told CNN. "We do not have the intention of defying the United States."

Cedras also repeated his call for a national conference of all Haitian sectors to resolve the crisis and the army's displeasure with the United Nations as mediator, and said that a papal representative would be a good alternative.

The ceremony was set in conjunction with the 30th anniversary of the Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped in Midland. Five fruitless pear trees were planted in the park before the commemorative tree ceremony.

The trees were planted in honor of the recording library volunteers and supporters, according to Tim Brady, president of the recording library's board of directors.

Brady spoke before about two dozen supporters under the gazebo in the center of the park, telling the crowd he hoped the trees

Tip from computer operator led to Hutchison indictment

By Joe Cutbirth
N.Y. Times News Service

AUSTIN — Four days after U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's landslide election victory in June, a career employee with the Texas Treasury Department informed the Travis County district attorney's office of a deliberate effort to erase information from state computers.

Evidence that led to indictments charging that Hutchison, a Republican who was then state treasurer, sought to cover up illegal use of the Treasury office for political purposes surfaced after the phone call from Wesley McGehee, a Treasury network services technician, according to sources familiar with the events.

The sources said that McGehee, who had worked at the Treasury Department more than a decade, came forward after Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher holds a copy of her memoirs in London.

Thatcher: Bush wasn't always reliable, but Reagan was great

LONDON (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, in her memoirs released Sunday, said her relations with President Bush were "somewhat strained." But with President Reagan the chemistry never failed — even when she chewed him out.

In "The Downing Street Years," the former prime minister said Bush shared her opposition to swift German unification, but backed off when she challenged him.

"I found myself dealing with an administration which saw Germany as its main European partner in leadership, which encouraged the integration of Europe ... and which sometimes seemed to underestimate the need for a strong nuclear defense," Lady Thatcher, 68, wrote. "I felt I could not always rely on American cooperation."

WEATHER WATCH

Some clouds, low 80s ahead

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for partly clouds skies with a high in the low 80s and winds out of the west 10-15 mph, according to a National Weather Service spokesman.

Tonight should be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain or thunderstorms after midnight and a low in the lower 50s. Tuesday should be mostly cloudly with a 30 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms and a high in the mid 70s.

After a low of 51, compared to the record low of 37 set in 1989, the temperatures rose to 90 - only five degrees lower than the record high of 95 set in 1964.

STATE

Several parts of the state were threatened by severe weather Sunday evening following a day of mostly typical conditions.

The north-central Texas counties of Hamilton and Mills were under severe thunderstorm advisories as the region was under a tornado watch. Golfball-sized hail was reported at Pottsville in western Hamilton County.

West Texas endured a tornado watch in the eastern Concho Valley last night, following a day of mostly cloudy skies in some parts and mostly sunny skies in others. There was some isolated rain.

The overnight forecast called for a chance of thunderstorms around the Concho Valley

Today, there is a chance of afternoon thunderstorms in the Concho Valley with conditions over the rest of the region fair to partly cloudy.

The cold front that moved through North Texas early Sunday reversed directions by the afternoon as a warm front inched in, bringing mostly cloudy conditions across the region.

Once the sun broke through, temperatures reached as high as 92 in Abilene.

An overnight with partly cloudy skies and a slight chance of thunderstorms toward the west and south was to turn into mostly cloudy skies today with a chance of thunderstorms in the west and central.

Temperatures were to range from the low to mid-60s to the upper 70s.

A trough of low pressure in West Texas and a high pressure ridge in the Gulf of Mexico kept South Texas rain-free on Sunday, with skies clear to partly cloudy and temperatures in the 80s and 90s.

The forecast for South Texas calls for partly cloudy skies through today with a slight chance for showers or thunderstorms along the upper coast.

NATION

Snow and rain spread across parts of the West on Sunday as a storm system moved toward the Rockies. Heavy rain was scattered around the Great Lakes and the Southeast.

Some of the snow was heavy in the mountains of southern Utah and southwestern and central Colorado. Two to 5 inches of snow was reported by morning near Cedar Mountain in southwest Utah. In Colorado, 4 inches was reported at Divide, with 2 inches at Leadville and 1 inch at Summitville and Empire, the National Weather Service said.

An additional 2 to 4 inches of snow was possible above 8,000 feet in southern Utah, and 4 to 7 inches was possible above 9,000 feet in the mountains of southwestern and central Colorado, the weather service said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

TAPE: Trees honor volunteers, supporters would symbolize a token of the recording library's gratitude to its supporters, sponsors and volunteers.

"Why plant trees, you may ask," Brady said. "We wanted to do something to benefit the community for their efforts in assisting us. . . . It is the volunteers and supporters who have really made the reading library prosper the way it has."

Brady gave a brief history of the recording library noting its start in Midland 30 years ago as the first of its kind in Texas. Since then, two others have organized in the state.

Brady proudly proclaimed the Midland recording library the first in the nation to meet the quality standards of the Library of Congress in 1978.

Midland Mayor J.D. Faircloth was present to read from the city's proclamation of this week as "Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped Week" in Midland.

Faircloth said the City Council wants to thank Midlanders for the hundreds of people who have contributed thousands of hours of work to the recording library.

He said the proclamation reflects the city's gratitude to the dedicated volunteers and staff for providing entertainment and educational opportunities to the blind and physically handicapped.

"We want to thank you all for the many hours of work . . . allowing the (blind and physically handicapped) to enjoy the many written works now available to them," Faircloth said.

Rod Slaton, vice president of the recording library board of directors, explained just how difficult it is to make the recordings by reading an excerpt of a column written by a Texas author on his experiences reading his own work for tape.

In the column, written by Leon Hale, the author noted that volunteers have to be dedicated because had he known just how hard it was he may not have done it himself.

Brady concluded the ceremony by reminding everyone of the open house and tour of the recording library facilities from 4:30-6:30 p.m. Thursday at 202 North C St.

MEMOIRS: With Reagan, chemistry never failed

ain in favor of Germany as the main U.S. ally after the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and the crumbling of communism.

Thatcher turned an Anglo-American special relationship into a major plank of foreign policy during her 11½ years in power.

She was ousted in November 1990 when her Conservative Party legislators revolted, nervous because of her unpopularity and her prickly relations with Britain's partners in the 12-nation European Community. Lady Thatcher is now a member of the unelected House of Lords.

Her 618-page book, for which publishers HarperCollins reportedly paid her the equivalent of $5.25 million, goes on sale today. Copies were given to news organizations Sunday.

However, sections of the book criticizing her successor, John Major, and others who served in her Cabinets have been leaked for several weeks, embarrassing the Conservative government.

She said her relationship with Bush improved when he committed U.S. troops to the Gulf War. "I had always liked George Bush. Now my respect for him soared."

But among foreign leaders, only Reagan got unreserved praise from the Iron Lady — for everything from showing her the TelePromTer cuing system he used for a speech in 1982 to backing down or apologizing in their two big quarrels.

These were over her refusal to negotiate with Argentina during the 1982 Falkland Islands war and the U.S. invasion of Grenada a year later.

"We were under continual pressure from Washington to avoid the final military humiliation of Argentina," she wrote.

When Reagan called she simply refused to order a cease-fire: "This conversation was a little painful at the time but it had a worthwhile effect."

Of Grenada, where the invasion ended a left-wing coup in the former British colony, she said, "I felt dismayed and let down."

Then Reagan called. "The president began by saying, in that disarming way of his, that if he was in London and dropped in to see me he would be careful to throw his hat through the door first. . . . I more or less held my peace."

In contrast, the former prime minister said she learned that Bush thought she talked too much.

She said she messaged Reagan's successor, in office nearly a year when the Berlin Wall fell Nov. 9, 1989, that German unification was "not something to be addressed at present."

"The president later telephoned me to thank me for my message with which he agreed," she said.

She put the same argument to him at a meeting at Camp David soon afterward.

consulting with an attorney to seek "whistle-blower-type protection." The sources said that McGehee was upset because computer tapes that were supposed to contain permanent Treasury Department records had been doctored in April and May 1992 and then placed in Treasury archives.

McGehee declined to comment on Saturday. "I have been advised by my attorney not to comment on anything," he said.

At least two other computer technicians — all acting independently — also kept records of information that was purged from Treasury computers during the same period, according to the sources.

Hutchison has repeatedly disavowed any wrongdoing. At least twice since the investigation became public in June, she has said that no documents were improperly altered or destroyed.

"There has been no destruction of records to my knowledge at the Treasury," she said last month after a brief appearance before a Travis County grand jury. It is generally believed that during that appearance, she invoked her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

The senator's media spokesman, Dave Beckwith, reiterated on Friday that Hutchison was not involved in any wrongdoing.

"No state materials were destroyed; no state documents were destroyed," he said.

Beckwith said he has "no idea" why the computer operators thought they needed to make back-up tapes for their own protection.

"All ongoing political operations for Kay Bailey Hutchison were done elsewhere," he said. "It was all done the way other state officials do it."

Hutchison's attorney, Dick DeGuerin of Houston, said yesterday that he preferred not to "try the case in the newspapers" and that "the truth will come out at the trial.

"I think it's going to be real clear she didn't commit any offense and that she ran the Treasury better than anyone had up until she left the office," he said.

"Kay didn't authorize the destruction of any records."

Hutchison was indicted last month on one misdemeanor count and four felony counts. The indictments allege that she used state employees and equipment for personal and political purposes and that she either ordered or knew about a cover-up when Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle began to investigate.

If convicted of all charges, she could face a maximum prison sentence of up to 61 years and fines of up to $43,000.

According to one source, McGehee waited until after Hutchison was elected to the Senate to come forward because "he did not want to be painted with the same brush (as other former Treasury employees) . . . that it was just politics."

BRACE: Six U.S. warships take positions

leaders of the 1991 coup that overthrew Aristide their only international recognition. It also accused Aristide, a former priest, of fomenting class divisions and withdrew the papal nuncio after Aristide's election, sending him back only after the coup.

Aristide, the country's first freely elected leader, was to return Oct. 30 under an accord he and Cedras signed in July. A pro-Aristide prime minister had taken office to ease the transition, which was to be aided by a 1,600-man U.N. military mission.

But Cedras refused last week to step down due to a dispute over an amnesty for human-rights violators. A U.S. warship carrying troops for the U.N. mission turned back in the face of unruly port workers and protesters. The country's justice minister was assassinated in broad daylight.

As the tensions grew, U.S. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole said Sunday he will offer legislation restricting Clinton's authority to send troops to Haiti.

Dole, speaking on CBS' "Face the Nation," said he will offer an amendment early this week requiring congressional authorization for sending American troops to Haiti unless the president certifies certain conditions, such as a threat to national security, exist.

"I wouldn't risk any American lives to put Aristide back in power and try to force democracy on Haiti," he said.

In Haiti, some of the 2,000 Canadians in the country left Sunday at the urging of their embassy, and Belgium also issued a recommendation for its 400 citizens to leave.

Nearly all U.N. personnel have been evacuated from the country and the U.S Embassy is warning Americans in Haiti to be careful.

There is wide hostility toward Americans from Haitians who believe that an invasion or longtime military presence, such as in Somalia, is in the works. One ultranationalist leader said Saturday his followers would use voodoo against foreign invaders.

Still, Aristide is widely popular with Haiti's poor masses, and there is overwhelming support among ordinary Haitians for a U.N. peace plan that would put the traditionally repressive military back in the barracks.

Cedras told CNN that there was no threat to any Americans, or to any U.N. personnel.

"There is no threat against any American on Haitian soil," he said. "This is an internal problem." He said no members of the civilian U.N. mission had been threatened in the year they have been in the country.

He also reiterated his conditions for stepping down, including a military amnesty.

Despairing Port-au-Prince residents were also jamming aboard trucks Sunday to flee the city. Bus drivers seeking to capitalize on the fear doubled fares.

On a street in the capital, gunmen killed a young woman who had been carrying a suitcase, presumably intending to leave. There were no further details.

Opponents of Aristide's return threatened to shut down business in Port-au-Prince again today.

Stanley Schrager, the U.S. Embassy spokesman in Haiti, said U.S. policy-makers believe Cedras is unlikely to meet the United Nations' terms for avoiding the sanctions.

The sanctions, initially imposed after Aristide's ouster, were credited with helping induce Cedras into signing the July accord. They were lifted in August, and the reimposition was expected to drive the Western Hemisphere's poorest country further into economic despair.

But Michel McKenzie Joseph, who stood on a Port-au-Prince street watching others cram into departing vehicles, said he felt hopeful that the sanctions and the warships' looming presence would work.

VERDICT: Ginsburg hits stride

spective of a former women's rights advocate to the conservative court, said some observers who noted that Ginsburg at one point described the "old days" of sexist law professors.

"She has hit the ground running," said Stuart M. Gerson, former acting attorney general in the Bush administration. "She has shown a great deal of energy and preparedness. Being on the court is awe-inspiring, but she is not awe-struck."

New justices often hold back when just arriving on the bench.

Justice David H. Souter waited three weeks to ask his first question in 1990. Now a frequent and incisive questioner, Souter admits finding the job overwhelming at first.

Ginsburg's performance is being likened to the equally fast start in 1986 by Justice Antonin Scalia, her former federal appeals court colleague.

"It's not just that she's asking lots of questions. It's that she's asking outstanding questions that get to the heart of the matter," said Georgetown University law professor Susan Low Bloch.

In the sex-harassment case, the lawyer representing the woman, who filed the lawsuit against a Tennessee company, didn't escape close questioning either. Ginsburg suggested he was making the case more complicated than it should be.

If a woman is told "you think like a woman" and a male coworker is not subjected to similar comments, "doesn't that make their job more difficult?" Ginsburg asked.

"Do you need anything further than that? The terms and conditions (of a job) aren't equal if one is called names and the other isn't," she said.

Ginsburg suggested an equally straightforward view during arguments on a civil rights case, pointing out that whatever penalties are required, the law has been clear since 1964: "Thou shalt not discriminate."

In another argument, she said a drug-forfeiture law's basic message also is clear: "That's part of the penalty; you forfeit the home where the drugs were kept."

Ginsburg's vigorous performance comes as no surprise to lawyers who argued before her on the federal appeals court.

"The potential is there for her to establish herself early on as a leading member of the Supreme Court," said Charles Cooper, a former assistant attorney general in the Reagan administration. But he added, "Saying that at this stage is quite treacherous."

Her influence in the court's decisions and opinion-writing remains an open question. It will depend in part on what opinions she is assigned to write by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist or the senior justice on the prevailing side of a case.

"It's hard to say that she'll necessarily change a vote in this instance or change the way an opinion is written," said Marcia Greenberger of the National Women's Law Center.

PATH: Child support shifts to withholding

ing of child-support payments for years. Other states will probably miss the federal deadline, which has been lurking in the statute books since the Family Support Act was enacted in 1988.

"It's a very fluid situation right now," said Craig Hathaway, a senior policy specialist at the federal Office of Child Support Enforcement. Translation: States are still scrambling to try to comply with the federal rules, and some don't have a prayer of making it on time.

"I don't think (it's) going to work," said Irwin Garfinkel, a professor of social work at Columbia University who has written extensively about child support. "I think we're going to have a little problem here," he added.

None of this means withholding won't happen. It's already used to pay child support to welfare recipients, and the new rules — which expand it to nearly everyone else — will eventually make it universal. Under the new law, exceptions are basically only made when couples agree on alternative arrangements.

Almost everyone agrees that withholding works, ensuring that many women and children (a few men are on the receiving end, but very few) will receive child-support payments without a monthly tug-of-war.

Of course, some men may be dismayed to learn that their paychecks are suddenly lighter because of child-support payments — and that their personal lives are suddenly the business of their bosses. The bosses, who will have additional paperwork to fill out, aren't going to be happy either.

"It's not really a workplace issue whether a guy is making his child-support payment," complained D.J. Gribbin, a tax policy analyst with the National Federation of Independent Business.

Employers, he said, may well ask, "Why am I responsible for this?"

The answer: Because the government says so.

Still, sensitivity to business may explain one aspect of the new law that is anathema to many state governments. Federal officials say the new rules require public agencies to mail out the child-support checks.

That way, employers have to make out only one check each month — to the public agency. Otherwise, they would have to send checks directly to each child's custodial parent. That might be no problem for a business with only one or two employees with child-support orders, but it could be daunting for larger employers.

Some states now require businesses to send checks directly to the custodial parents, however. And state officials are loath to lift the burden from employers' shoulders and put it on their own.

That has led state officials, represented by the National Council of State Child Support Enforcement Administrators, to argue that federal officials are misinterpreting the law.

Federal officials disagree, but say they are working with state officials to work out the disagreements. Meanwhile, states like Massachusetts and California — which put the full burden on businesses — acknowledge that they won't comply with the new federal requirements. The showdown could lead to federal sanctions, or to a change in the law.

Payroll withholding for child support is hardly a new concept. Some states have used it in some cases since the turn of the century. It was a way for judges to make sure their child-support awards were carried out.

"Couples would argue," Garfinkel said. "He'd say, 'I made the payment,' and she'd say, 'No you didn't,' and the judges got sick of that."

In the 1980s, led by Wisconsin, a few states experimented with requiring withholding in all cases.

Aidid forces dismantle barricades; crowds protest Boutros-Ghali

MOGADISHU, Somalia (NYT) — In an apparent gesture of good will, forces loyal to Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid have dismantled most of the dozen roadblocks they had erected along a main thoroughfare in the capital, U.S. military officers said on Sunday.

U.S. Army helicopters that fly surveillance missions over the city every night have detected a significant decrease in the number of barricades along 21 October Road, their commander said. A flight along the street on Sunday afternoon showed that only two or three barricades now block the way of traffic.

The change is important because the roadblocks built by Aidid's forces had essentially prevented U.N. forces from moving along the east-west road. In talks here last week, Robert B. Oakley, President Clinton's envoy, urged aides to the general to instruct his forces to remove the barriers.

The opening of the route to regular traffic could allow U.N. or U.S. forces to begin patrols of the area without having to take the potentially provocative step of breaking down the barriers.

But the barriers, which are often made from junked cars and metal trestles, could easily be rebuilt, and military officials here said it was too soon to tell what the step might mean.

In a sign that problems may still lie ahead, more than a thousand Somalis rallied in Mogadishu on Sunday to deliver a message of anger toward the United Nations and Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali.

"Boutros Boutros-Ghali has bombed us and murdered us," a man screamed through a loudspeaker. "We do not want him here."

The crowd, mostly women and children, paraded with "Long Live Aidid" banners and chorused back: "Boutros-Ghali down. UNOSOM down." UNOSOM is the abbreviation for U.N. Operation in Somalia.

The rally was a visible sign of a rising tension against the United Nations, and in particular, against Boutros-Ghali, who was in Mozambique on Sunday and has not confirmed whether he will visit Somalia in the next few days, as planned.

Among supporters of Aidid, there is a deep-seated hatred of Boutros-Ghali, whom they accuse of siding with other clans and whom they consider personally responsible for the past months of U.N. military attacks.

The word among members of Aidid's political party, the Somalia National Alliance, is that Mogadishu will not stand by and ignore the visit. In January, stone-throwing crowds prevented Boutros-Ghali from leaving the U.N. compound here and the secretary-general had to be rescued by U.S. troops.

The United States, worried that fighting could erupt again, has advised the secretary-general not to come.

On the military front, Lt. Col. Lee Gore, who commands the surveillance operation, said that the abrupt halt in mortar attacks against U.S. forces in the last 10 days has allowed his helicopter unit to shift its attention .

Hard-line Arabs to keep boycott against Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (NYT) — Diplomats said on Sunday that the 43-year-old Arab ban on commercial and financial ties with Israel would not be lifted anytime soon and that the official blacklist of foreign companies that do business with Israel might even be expanded at the urging of hard-line states.

Arab League officials are to meet in Damascus on Oct. 24 to discuss increasing the blacklist despite appeals from U.S. officials, who argue that the boycott of 10,000 companies should be lifted soon to add momentum to Middle East peace talks.

Assistant Secretary of State Edward Djerejian told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Friday in Washington that the Arab blacklist was "totally unacceptable."

He said the Clinton administration had told several Arab countries, including Syria, that adding companies to the list "would be a step, obviously, in the wrong direction" after the signing of an accord last month by Israel and the Palestinians.

But Arab diplomats in Damascus and Cairo said that hard-line Arab states like Syria, Iraq and Libya were seeking to widen the boycott, in part because they were unhappy with the accord.

"Any lifting or alteration of the boycott," said a senior Arab diplomat, "would have to be unanimous, and since unanimity is impossible, it will remain in force."

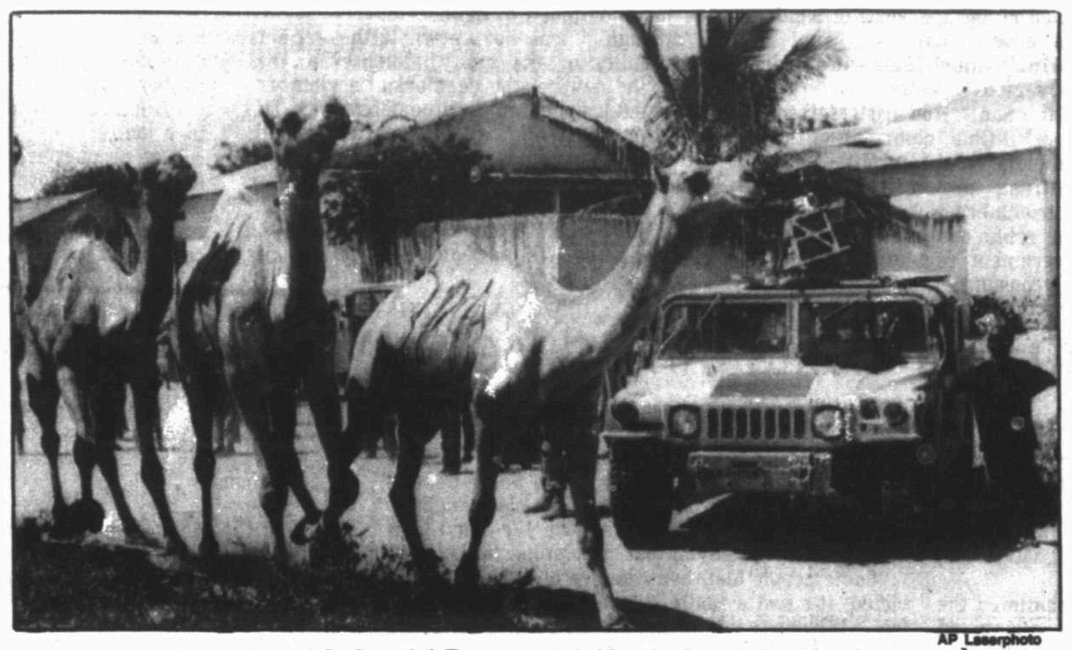

Even moderate Arab governments like Saudi Arabia's are reluctant to support a repeal because they do not want to give ammunition to their Islamic hardline critics, the diplomats said. Militant Islamic groups have denounced the pact on self-rule in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and Jericho as a sellout that compromises Palestinians' interests.

Several Arab officials said they would be reluctant to give up the boycott as long as Israel has nuclear weapons, continues to occupy Gaza, the West Bank, the Golan Heights and southern Lebanon and fails to reach an agreement with its neighbors on sharing scarce water.

The boycott was adopted by Arab countries in 1950 to isolate and cripple Israel. The Arab League operates a Boycott Office in Damascus where Arab representatives are to meet this month to consider adding new companies to the list, the Arab diplomats in Cairo and Damascus said. During its last meeting, on May 1, the Boycott Office added 13 new companies to the list, including Rubbermaid and General Dynamics.

"It is too soon to talk about lifting the boycott," Fahem bin Sultan al-Qasimi, the secretary general of the Gulf Cooperation Council, was quoted Sunday as saying by the Arabic daily Al-Hayat.

The boycott includes a ban on commercial activity with Israel.

U.S., U.N. struggle with Somalia

■ News Analysis

MOGADISHU, Somalia — The worst seemed to be over for Somalia in May, with starvation virtually ended and Mogadishu's streets safer than they had been for nearly four years.

Today, the United Nations and the United States find themselves looking for a way out of the tangled mess that was supposed to be a blueprint for future U.N. peacemaking operations.

June 5 — a month and a day after the U.N. took control of Operation Restore Hope from the United States — was the turning point. Twenty-four Pakistani troops were killed in coordinated ambushes.

Since then, the U.N. has found itself drawn into an urban guerrilla war and a public-relations quagmire that have stymied the agency's efforts at nation-building.

"This blueprint is very complex," U.N. special envoy Adm. Jonathan Howe admitted last week. "It may have to be redrawn in several ways."

In May, Pakistani troops took over control of south Mogadishu after the departure of most U.S. forces, patrolling the bustling streets in open pickup trucks.

Today, few military vehicles stray far from U.N. strongpoints. They are waiting for the last of the American tanks and Bradley fighting vehicles to arrive, along with the U.S. reinforcements that have been trickling in.

Rocks once were among the biggest threats for foreign troops. Now they face remote-controlled land mines, rocket-propelled grenades, and heavy-caliber machine guns. There are rumors of even heavier weaponry.

Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid had seen his influence steadily erode following the arrival of foreign troops, but he appears to have won the tactical fight.

Despite attacks, Bosnian groups vow POW move

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Sarajevo residents were urged to stay indoors Sunday as occasional detonations shook the city. But even as they fought each other, Serbs and Muslims agreed to start exchanging all prisoners.

The shelling was lighter than Saturday, when U.N. monitors counted 590 projectiles hitting the city and 69 rounds fired by Sarajevo defenders at besieging Serbs in surrounding hills.

At least 10 people were killed and 57 wounded in Sarajevo over the weekend, most of them Saturday, officials said. On both days, Bosnian army officials claimed the Serbs were using chemical weapons, but that report could not be substantiated.

The fiercest attacks in months on Sarajevo brought Gen. Jean Cot, commander of U.N. forces in former Yugoslavia, to the Bosnian capital. He met with commanders of the Muslim-led Bosnian army to protest the temporary detention of eight U.N. soldiers by Bosnian troops on Saturday.

At the height of the fighting Saturday, rival Bosnian government and Serb leaders met at Sarajevo airport and agreed to exchange all prisoners, starting Wednesday, Bosnian radio reported Sunday.

Warring Bosnian Serbs, Croats and Muslims agreed last month to exchange prisoners but the trades have yet to materialize.

In a related development, Croatian radio reported that Croatian and Bosnian Croat leaders remained committed to Tuesday as the start of their prisoner exchange with the Muslim-led Bosnian government. That day was agreed on last week by the two sides.

Greenpeace: Russians dump atomic waste in sea

TOKYO (AP) — A Russian navy convoy began pumping liquid radioactive waste into the Japan Sea early Sunday, the environmental group Greenpeace said.

Monitors on a Greenpeace vessel shadowing the three Russian ships since Saturday said they measured radiation in the air near the dumpsite at ten times background levels when the dumping began at around 8 a.m.

Greenpeace said the ships arrived at the dumpsite, 338 miles west of Japan's northernmost main island of Hokkaido, around midnight (11 a.m. EDT Saturday).

John Sprange, an activist aboard the MV Greenpeace, said the crew of one of the ships, the TNT-27, was pumping liquid waste from tanks into the sea.

The Greenpeace ship sent an inflatable boat with five crew members within 15 yards of the TNT-27, Greenpeace activists said. The observers reported seeing several containers with radiation symbols, which Greenpeace believes contain solid radioactive waste.

The liquid waste is primarily reactor coolant and cleaning waters from dilapidated nuclear-powered submarines, they said, adding they believed TNT-27 was carrying 900 tons of it.

There was no immediate reaction to the report from Russian officials.

Joshua Handler, of the Greenpeace Moscow office, said the Russian navy apparently asked for permission to dump during the summer, and permission was given by the Ministry of Ecology in late September.

The Russian navy had previously dumped two defueled submarine reactors in the sea of Japan, a reactor screen as well as liquid and solid waste in the sea of Okhotsk.

Muslim separatists threaten to blow up mosque in India

SRINAGAR, India (AP) — Indian officials tried to talk outnumbered Muslim separatists occupying Kashmir's holiest shrine into surrendering Sunday, but the rebels refused and threatened to blow up the mosque if soldiers entered.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao met with his Cabinet to discuss the crisis at the Hazratbal Mosque, believed to be the center of the armed effort to separate Jammu-Kashmir state from India.

The domed, white marble building houses what is believed to be a hair from the prophet Mohammed, a relic so holy that its brief disappearance 20 years ago sparked a week of rioting.

Police said they moved to the building Friday in the belief that militants intending to steal the relic had broken the locks of the sanctuary. The guerrillas accused the security forces of trying to remove the relic themselves in an attempt to discredit the rebels.

Some 400 soldiers surrounded the mosque Sunday in the second day of the standoff. Police said 60 armed rebels were inside.

But one militant inside the mosque, who gave his name as Omar, said in a telephone interview only eight of the 175 people inside were militants, and only six had guns. He said they would not open fire unless the soldiers shot first.

"It is very tense in here," he said. "The simple people inside don't have water or food."

They are afraid of being brutalized by Indian security forces if they leave, he said, and are willing to sacrifice themselves.

Government worries about communications revolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recent string of multi-billion-dollar corporate alliances is aimed at creating a revolutionary information network, spawning business opportunities unheard of since the post-war boom of the 1950s.

But the government is worried the new communication giants may attain monopolistic power, so federal regulators and lawmakers are busy looking for ways to bridle this new frontier of technology and commerce.

Congress appears to be willing to let telephone companies enter the cable TV business as long as there is competition for local phone service, something that does not now exist.

Legislation is being written in both the House and the Senate addressing some of the anticipated problems of mergers like the one announced last Wednesday between Bell Atlantic phone company and the cable giant, Tele-Communications Inc. (TCI).

But industry officials maintain the marketplace is changing too fast for government regulation to keep up.

"Not only are current policies hopelessly outdated," said Louis Rutigliano, vice chairman of the Ameritech regional phone company, "but any attempt to propose new laws and regulations that micro-manage this industry is doomed to failure because no one can predict what this industry will look like tomorrow, much less in five years."

But Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, chairman of the Judiciary subcommittee on antitrust, argues the recent spate of mergers between phone and cable companies beg for government regulation to protect consumers.

Los Angeles braces for Denny case verdicts

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — This careworn city was in a state of nervous limbo Sunday as it awaited once again the possibility of verdicts in a racially tense trial: the case of two black men accused of beating a white truck driver in last year's riots.

On Saturday, the jury said it had reached verdicts on 9 out of 15 counts against the two men and deadlocked on the others. The judge, John Ouderkirk of Superior Court, indicated that he might read the verdicts today but said he would also ask the jury to consider deliberating further on the unresolved counts.

The uncertainty of this plan added to the uneasiness. Although local radio and television stations were reporting that verdicts would be read today, legal experts said it was also possible that the judge would hold the verdicts while the jury continued to deliberate.

Although it was not known if the verdicts were guilty or not guilty, defense lawyers called the news of the deadlocks "a victory." They said it appeared that the defendants, Damian Monroe Williams, 20, and Henry Keith Watson, 29, had not been convicted of the most serious charges, which could imprison them for life.

The jury said it had deadlocked on 5 of 10 counts against Williams and 1 out of 5 counts against Watson. Technically, the case involves 12 counts, but 3 of these counts involve both defendants. The men are charged in the beating of the truck driver, Reginald O. Denny, and seven other white, Hispanic or Asian people in last year's rioting.

"The main goal was to avoid conviction on any charge that could bring life in prison," said Williams' lawyer, Edi M.O. Faal.

Prosecutors noted that the jury, newly constituted after reports of turmoil in the jury room and the removal of two members, had deliberated for only two and a half days. Deputy District Attorney Janet Moore said Saturday that she would urge the judge to send the jurors back to resolve differences.

Under questioning by the judge on Saturday, the jury forewoman said she did not believe that further deliberations or instructions in the law would help the jury break its deadlocks. Only one juror said she believed that further deliberations could be helpful.

"Think about it tomorrow as to whether further instructions on the law or deliberations will be productive," the judge told the sequestered jurors before sending them back to their hotel for the rest of the weekend. "When you return on Monday I will take the verdicts on the counts you have decided. I will ask you if further deliberations will be productive. Think about it."

Although California law permits the reading of partial verdicts, Robert A. Pugsley, a law professor at Southwestern University, said such a course of action in this highly charged case "would be insanity and suicidal."

"The judge left it terribly unclear as to whether verdicts would be read or would not be read Monday morning," he said. "I don't think we should have to be in the position of guessing about something like this."

In a familiar drill, black churches mobilized their peacekeeping forces in South-Central Los Angeles, news vans prepared to circle the criminal courts building, the police were placed in heightened readiness and the city's emergency services activated.

Lt. John Dunkin, a spokesman for the Los Angeles Police Department, said the department was gearing up Sunday and would institute whatever level of alert it decided was appropriate.

The videotaped beatings with which Williams and Watson are charged came in the first hours of a riot on April 29, 1992, that exploded after four white police officers were acquitted in a state trial of assaulting Rodney G. King, a black motorist.

Trucker beating trial elicits mixed views

By Paul Hefner
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — With verdicts imminent in the Reginald Denny beating case, many residents of South Central Los Angeles have been awaiting the jury's decision with a mixture of resignation and concern.

Eighteen months after the riots that shattered the community and spawned the trial, opinion is mixed about how the verdicts, whatever they are, will be greeted.

Some say convictions of defendants Damian Monroe Williams and Henry Keith Watson will inflame tensions, following a judge's decision last week to remove one juror over defense objections and to keep another the defense wanted dismissed.

"The community ought to be inflamed when they see such a miscarriage of justice perpetuated by a man in a robe who purports himself to be an impartial arbiter of the facts," Don Jackson, a spokesman for the Williams family, said Thursday on ABC's "Nightline."

Others say convictions would not be a surprise — and would not likely trigger any further outbreak of violence.

"What did we get out of it the first time? It didn't help us," said Steven Hawkins, 23, a South Central Los Angeles father of an 18-month-old daughter. "Now, there ain't nothing left to loot. We didn't gain nothing from destroying our own properties.

"Some people feel, hell, they've already been convicted, it's just a matter of time. That's just how I feel," Hawkins said, adding that he's more concerned about finding a job and feeding a family than he is about the Denny verdict.

"I'm really not paying much attention. I'm just looking for employment," he said. "That's where I'm at. I could be out with the homeless, pushing shopping carts around."

On Saturday, civic leaders in the African-American community said that the mood remains tense, but the announcement of possible deadlocks is welcome.

Joe Duff, president of the Los Angeles branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the announcement Saturday that the jury had stalled on several counts was a good sign.

48 rats could orbit planet with shuttle today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA loaded a fresh batch of 48 rats into the space shuttle Columbia on Sunday for the third launch attempt in less than a week.

Columbia was due to lift off at 10:53 a.m. EDT today on a 14-day medical research flight, the longest planned for a shuttle.

The first two launch attempts Thursday and Friday were thwarted by computer and communications system failures. Officials said both problems were resolved.

"In this business, you have to go when you're ready and you can't be anxious or antsy or anything like that. That's not the way it works," said NASA test director Bill Dowdell.

Rain and thunderstorms added to last week's troubles, but meteorologists had forecast an 80 percent chance of acceptable conditions for today's launch attempt.

The seven astronauts spent the weekend relaxing and reviewing flight plans. Two of the four scientists — veterinarian Martin Fettman and biochemist Shannon Lucid — left in place the catheters intended to help measure blood pressure during the flight.

Each of the astronauts will submit to numerous medical tests aimed at studying body changes in weightlessness and space motion sickness.

The rats are intended for similar tests.

NASA program scientist Frank Sulzman said rats undergo physical changes in weightlessness faster than humans, making the animals valuable research tools.

A previous batch of 48 rats was removed from Columbia on Saturday after the earlier launch delays. Those rats were killed and discarded.

Dining with a difference

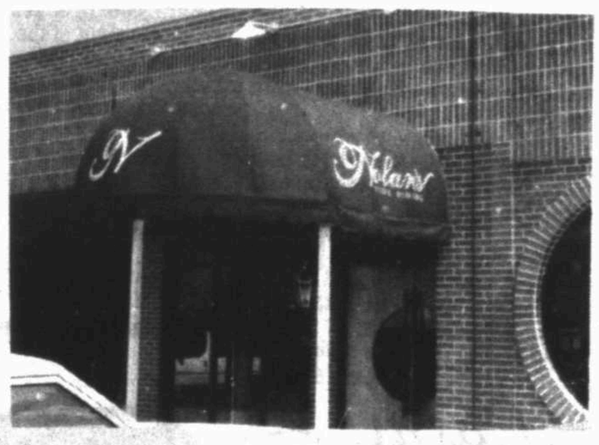

Most of the restaurants in West Texas that serve really good haute cuisine are characterized by snobbish attitudes and very high prices.

This is definitely not the case at Nolan's Fine Dining, where Chef Nolan and his wife DeLinda have created a restaurant where the enjoyment of food is paramount.

David and DeLinda Nolan have taken their passion for, and experience of French and Creole cuisine and have created a very special kind of restaurant the combines a very creative menu with a very relaxed style.

The emphasis at Nolan's is to enjoy the food: everything and everybody in the restaurant is there to help the customer to enjoy a beautiful meal.

The style is informal, the service impeccable and the food is out of this world.

Nation's mayoral races focus on crime fears

DETROIT (NYT) — Pervasive fear of violent crime is dominating mayor's races across the country in a year that is seeing the largest turnover of big-city mayors in over three decades.

In cities as diverse as Boston, Miami, Atlanta, Minneapolis and Detroit, whether the races pit blacks against blacks, blacks against whites, whites against whites, or involve other ethnic groups, veteran mayors are retiring, and crime is the dominant issue. In cities from New York to Seattle, challengers are using crime as a battering ram to try to unseat incumbents.

Experts say both mayoral races, which are dominating the off-year political landscape, and the rash of retirements reflect the grim times and diminished expectations in the nation's cities as maintaining order has long since replaced dreams of minority empowerment or urban innovation.

"There are not a whole lot of subtleties to these races," said David Axelrod, a Chicago-based political consultant whose candidates include Dennis Archer, one of the two candidates bidding to replace Coleman Young, who is retiring after 20 years as Detroit mayor. "There are fundamental fears, crime being the leading one, among the people who live in cities, and they want someone to address them. Everything else is secondary."

Still, one complication is race, which ranges from an overt issue in the conflict between Mayor David N. Dinkins and Rudolph W. Giuliani in New York to a more complex factor in other elections around the nation, including the one in Detroit.

In some cases, the mayoral retirements reflect either special circumstances, like Ray Flynn of Boston resigning to become ambassador to the Vatican, or are affected by age or health concerns like the decisions of Young and Tom Bradley of Los Angeles to give up their jobs after more than two decades in office. A conservative businessman, Richard Riordan, was elected as mayor of Los Angeles last June.

But at least as common are the frustrations of running cities in the 1990s, when addressing mounting needs with falling resources is the norm.

Fox Broadcasting pulls plug on ailing Chevy Chase Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chevy Chase has reported the news many times: Generalissimo Francisco Franco is still dead.

Now "The Chevy Chase Show" is, too.

Chase became the first casualty of the late-night television wars on Sunday as Fox Broadcasting Co. announced it was canceling his show, effective immediately.

He began Sept. 7 and battled David Letterman, Jay Leno, Arsenio Hall and Ted Koppel for viewers. But his show was savagely mauled by critics, and it performed a ratings pratfall much as Chase himself had done in his famous sendups of ex-President Ford.

"Despite the commitment of Chevy and our best creative and production minds, we started slowly and did not perform to expectations," said Lucie Salhany, chairwoman of Fox Broadcasting. "We saw nothing to indicate that the show would turn around."

She thanked him "for giving us his best effort. He is an extraordinarily talented man."

In a statement released by Fox, Chase said: "I am proud of the comedic elements that we were able to intersperse."

Californians to cast votes on school vouchers

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Depending on whom you ask, school tuition vouchers from the government could mean death — or salvation — for the nation's largest state school system.

California voters decide Nov. 2 whether to pass or flunk Proposition 174.

Given nationwide interest in using public funds to help parents choose their children's schools, the outcome also could influence the course of American education.

Proposition 174 would provide vouchers worth $2,600 each for California's 5.7 million school-age children to use at any public or private school. The amount is based on half what the state now spends per child each year in public education.

Advocates say vouchers can only improve public schools by forcing them to compete in an educational free-market for students and their voucher dollars. They also say it will save taxpayers' money by cutting public school enrollments.

Opponents argue vouchers will aid private schools at the expense of a school system already in dire need. And because vouchers don't cover full tuitions, the program would be useless for poor children whose parents lack the money to make up the difference.

"It will create two separate school systems. Separate has never been equal," said Nate White, president of the Sacramento area National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Folks in pilot's hometown grapple with mixed feelings

By Ronald Smothers
N.Y. Times News Service

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. — Along the road leading to the entrance to Fort Campbell, the signs in front of dozens of businesses read "Welcome Home Michael Durant, NSDQ." In this most military of towns, only an outsider and the uninitiated had to ask what NSDQ meant, and when they did, the answer was uttered like some magical incantation.

"NSDQ are the initials of the motto of the 160th, Mike's unit," said Loretta South, the wife of another member of the unit. "The unit is called the Night Stalkers and the motto is 'Night Stalkers Don't Quit.' "

The joy of Chief Warrant Officer Michael Durant's return home late Saturday from 11 days as a hostage in Somalia was still fresh Sunday, although in a more somber, meditative mood than the flag waving and cheering of the night before.

Many of the people leaving church services were mindful not only of the Durant family, but of the families of those still stationed in Somalia and the families of eight Fort Campbell soldiers who died in Mogadishu.

"A yellow ribbon is not enough for them," said the wife of one soldier who is still in Somalia and stood with glistening eyes outside of Bethel United Methodist Church and asked not to be quoted by name.

"President Clinton called the Durants, but he didn't call the families of those who died," the woman said. "A crisis is over for the Durants, but those other families' crisis will go on and on."

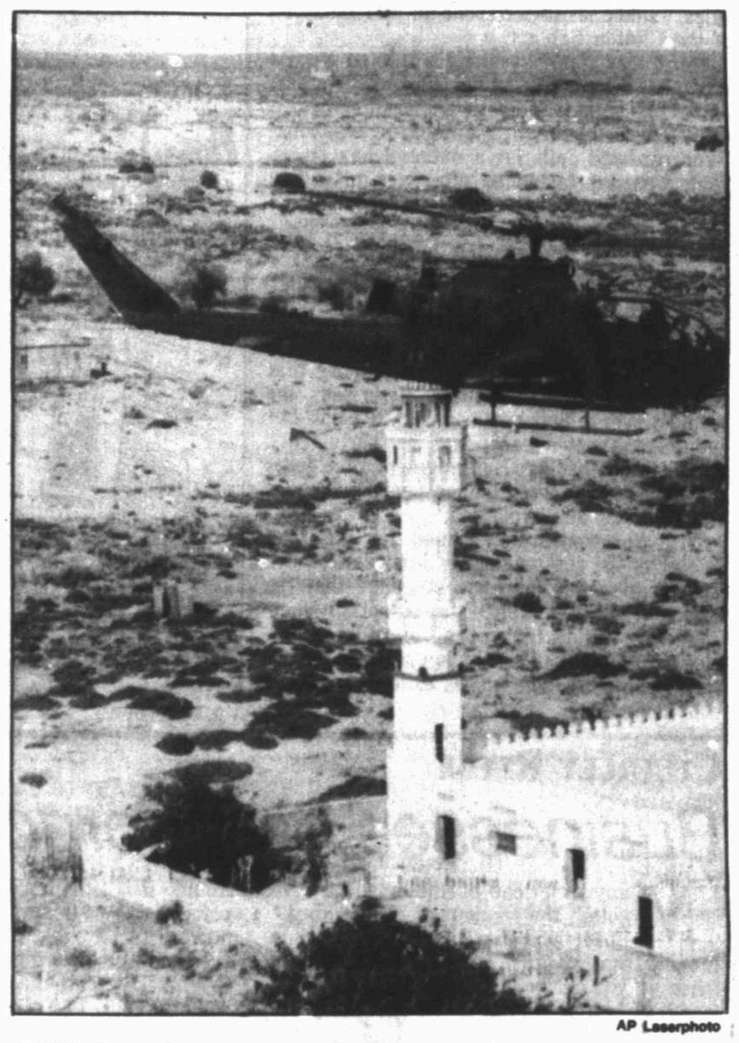

Balancing the joy at return and sadness of loss is tricky in places like Clarksville, population 70,000, and Hopkinsville, population 27,000, the two communities surrounding Fort Campbell.

Maj. Gen. John M. Keane, commander of the installation, said having a hero in Michael Durant was important because "it lets us take a burden off our shoulders and feel genuinely good about something."

But he said he had made it a point during the jubilation Saturday night to go speak to a widow of one of the soldiers who died in the fighting in which Durant was injured and "put my arms around her and tell her how much I respected her and her courage for being there."

There are more than 25,000 military personnel at Fort Campbell, which is the home of the 101st Air Assault Division, or the Screaming Eagles, as well as Durant's 160th Special Operations Regiment, many of whose missions are secret.

There are also 35,000 family members as well as 42,000 military retirees, said George Heath, a spokesman for Fort Campbell.

Survey: Social well-being hits 20-year low

N.Y. Times News Service

Increases in child abuse and child poverty have driven the nation's social well-being to its lowest point in two decades, according to a study being released today by social scientists at Fordham University.

The scientists also evaluated Americans' confidence in their quality of life, and they said it was strikingly low.

The seventh annual report, "The Index of Social Health," attempts to monitor the well-being of American society by examining statistics from reports by the Census Bureau on 16 major social problems, including teen-age suicide, unemployment, drug abuse, the high-school dropout rate and the lack of affordable housing.

Aided by a computer model, the researchers use the statistics from the 16 categories to reach a single figure between 0 and 100, which they call the index of social health.

The first year for which the scientists measured social health, 1970, had an index of 75, which the researchers said was above average. But in 1991, the most recent year for which complete data was available, the index was 36, down from 42 in 1990 and less than half the highest index rating of 79 in 1972.

The 1991 figure is "awful," said Dr. Marc L. Miringoff, the author of the study and the director of the Fordham University Institute for Innovation in Social Policy in Tarrytown, N.Y.

"These results reveal as much about what is happening to us as the economic indicators that we watch closely every day," he said.

Two major reasons for the drop, Miringoff said, are that child abuse reached its worst recorded level and that the number of children living in poverty reached its worst level since 1983.

Also eroding society's health was a decline in average weekly earnings, he said. "The decline in the economy has much to do with the decline in our social health," Miringoff said. "Especially the economic factors that affect the labor market. Simply, there are a lot fewer jobs now that people can depend on for stable long-term employment."

Two of the indicators used to calculate the social index did improve in 1991: infant mortality and food stamp coverage.

Maggie Thatcher isn't counting cost

Lady Margaret Thatcher has never been one to mince words nor to back away from a position once she has declared her stance. That characteristic was primarily responsible for her nickname during the 1980's while serving as prime minister — the "Iron Lady."

Now, it appears to be responsible for stirring the lukewarm blood of her successor John Major, her mild-mannered foreign secretary Geoffrey Howe, former defense minister Alan Clark, and others who served with her.

The "problem" appears to be that Lady Maggie has elected to do in her recently published memoirs what she was so good at doing in her years in government: Tell the truth as she sees it and let the chips fall where they may.

Among the revelations in "The Downing Street Years," she said plainly that she had reservations about Major, thought her treasury chief was foolish, and couldn't stand Howe. In a word, she laid it on the line and in so doing, she has given the readers of her book the opportunity to decide on the merits of her comments.

What's surprising, there are even some of Lady Thatcher's admirers who are subscribing to the "go along to get along" crowd and telling her to shut up.

While we understand fully how "political costs" are measured and appreciate the thoughts of those who are counseling Lady Thatcher to quit telling all she knows, it's refreshing to know that there still is someone around who has the guts to yell, "Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead."

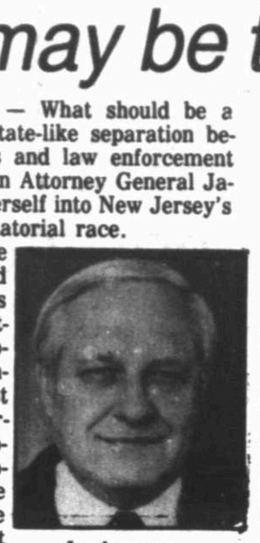

Thanks to Lady Thatcher's integrity and courage, the truth will still be known about "The Downing Street Years."

And they said there was no more truth or honor in politics!

Reno may be too close to partisan politics

WASHINGTON — What should be a church and state-like separation between politics and law enforcement was compromised when Attorney General Janet Reno interjected herself into New Jersey's hotly contested gubernatorial race.

Anderson

One high-level Justice Department official told us that career attorneys throughout the department were "visibly upset" in the wake of Reno's appearance last month with New Jersey's embattled Democratic Gov. James Florio. "This will take the bloom off the rose if she (Reno) continues to get involved in partisan politics," said one official about the star member of the Clinton Cabinet.

Florio was clearly seeking a ride on Reno's coattails. He showcased her around the state, and at one point posed with her standing near a table covered with semiautomatic weapons. Reno renewed calls for a national ban on assault weapons fashioned after a similar law Florio pushed through the New Jersey legislature in 1990, and lauded Florio's leadership.

Florio needs the help: He has been in deep political trouble since early in his term for unpopular tax hikes.

Reno's spokespersons have argued that the trip was inspired by her well-known concern about assault weapons, especially those that fall into the hands of youths. Reno says she would never allow partisanship to color her judgment about a case, and her early track record bears that out. But judgment often deals as much with perception as performance as Reno herself has explained.

With her appearance timed for the final stretch of the campaign, few Justice attorneys were buying her lawyerly language that the timing of her appearance was essentially a coincidence. "She's too smart," one Justice official said. "She's a smart lawyer and experienced politician. She knows exactly what she was doing."

Justice sources noted with irony that one of Reno's role models is Griffin Bell, who as Jimmy Carter's attorney general forged a reputation for remaining above the political fray. "He (Bell) never got involved in this sort of thing," remarked one official who served under Bell.

As the nation's top cop, Reno oversees public integrity, corruption and election fraud. Florio's Republican opponent, Christine Todd Whitman, criticized Reno on these grounds, noting that Justice has been investigating bond sales practices of people tied to the Florio administration.

Reno herself set some rigid rules in response to a hypothetical question from Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., during her confirmation hearings last spring. Asked what she would do if invited to a political event or fund-raising dinner for a candidate, Reno responded: "If Mr. Chairman asked me to do that, I'd say, 'Why don't you find something else for me to do and let me try to be the nation's lawyer and stay out of politics."

To avoid a repeat, Reno may also want to consult with a former deputy attorney general under Lyndon Johnson who once warned about politics creeping into the attorney general's office: "Our whole philosophy has been that you have to depoliticize this operation as much as possible. ... Once the Department becomes political, of course, the mission of justice must suffer."

That former Justice staffer was Warren Christopher, the current secretary of state and Reno's Cabinet colleague.

Need for money, insurance keeps one from retirement

"I have called this press conference to announce I am not going to retire."

"Why not?"

"I need a job."

"But there must be other reasons?"

Grizzard

"I don't have $46 million in the bank and I need the company health insurance are two that come to mind."

"But you have to sit around trying to think of column ideas all the time. That must really become a grind?"

"Sometimes. But I don't have to do any heavy lifting."

"But what about all the pressure?"

"What pressure? If I mess up, nobody dies."

"But what if you write a lousy column? All those readers see it."

"They can always read Abby."

"Aren't you being a little callous here?"

"Of course not. I'm just saying for 50 cents, how much insight do you expect to get? If Michael Jordan has a bad night, there's always Scottie Pippen."

"But what about your health?"

"Doctors say I can type all I want to."

"Let's talk about burn-out. You have been in the league for 16 years."

"That's nothing. My mother taught first-grade for over 30 years for a lot less than I'm making, and I don't have to convince 6-year-olds to sit down and shut up."

"But what about living in the spotlight? Your picture is in the paper. You're a celebrity."

"So I'll get a gun."

"You're referring, of course, to Atlanta Falcon receiver Andre Rison, who says he carries a gun because of his celebrity status as a pro football player."

"If I were Andre Rison, I would carry two guns. He's not only a celebrity, he also plays for the Falcons."

"But don't people often harass you in public for what you write?"

"Yo, I don't mind that as long as they don't challenge my manhood."

"Still, there must be other things you would like to accomplish. As they said about Michael Jordan, there's a lot more to him than just being a great basketball player."

"Yeah, like the 46 million in the bank."

"You wouldn't like to, say, go into teaching?"

"I can't convince my dog to sit down and shut up."

"How about television?"

"Too many have already tried to outdo Andy Rooney."

"What about acting? You did an episode of 'Designing Women.' "

"In one scene I had to hug Delta Burke. Like I said, heavy lifting isn't my bag."

"Some say Michael Jordan is retiring because he's already won three league championships and several Most Valuable Player awards. Is one of the reasons you're not retiring the fact you've never won a Pulitzer?"

"Winning the Pulitzer has never entered my mind."

"Oh come on. The Pulitzer is the highest prize in journalism. Surely you must covet such a prestigious award."

"Awards are nice, but I didn't get into the profession to win awards."

"What did you get into it for?"

"To get mentioned favorably on the Rush Limbaugh radio show. That was enough for me."

"Michael Jordan retired in his prime. You're telling us you don't think you reached your prime yet?"

"No. I just said I still need a steady job."

"That sounds like a cop-out. How much more money do you need before you feel secure enough to retire?"

"Forty-five million and change."

"One more question. What primary goal do you hope to attain before you finally do retire?"

"Outlast Beavis and Butt-head."

"How long might that take?"

"November 1996, if we're lucky."

Businesses have forgotten value of customer

Many American businessmen have forgotten the wisdom of Henry Ford.

Ford, who first mass-produced automobiles that could be sold for a reasonable price, recognized that mass-produced products required a mass market. Consequently, he was one of the first American industrialists to promote higher wages for workers.

Reese

Unfortunately, we seem to have forgotten the value of a customer. A customer is a person who (1) desires or needs your product or service; and (2) can afford to buy it. It's no good if the customer needs it or wants it if they can't buy it. They have to have the means.

In America, only a sliver of the population actually owns a business. The overwhelming majority of Americans depend on wages for their principal income. These people, however, are not only workers but also customers. An economy is an interwoven whole.

This is where the point of view of the investor, or the investor's mentality, can get you in trouble if it's too narrow. From an investor's point of view, it may make perfect sense to move a factory that makes cars overseas. By significantly lowering labor and other costs, the investor can theoretically earn a higher return.

But the people overseas who work at the car factory are not going to be customers of auto manufacturer's dealers back in the States.

Not only will the foreigners who now make the cars not be customers of the manufacturer's dealers in America, the Americans who used to make the cars and are now unemployed or underemployed will likewise not be customers of the dealers. They will not be customers of the other retail businesses either, and then those businesses in turn will not be customers.

One can see this process in a microcosm when a small town loses its single big employer. The whole economy dies. Stores close. People move away. Sometimes the town itself dies.

At some point, moving jobs overseas to make a higher profit on products to be shipped back to the U.S. and sold in America will eventually become a self-defeating proposition. So will automation beyond a certain point. Eventually, there will be no market in America, because if there are no good-paying jobs there will be no customers. Instead of the philosophy of Henry Ford, we seem to have reverted to the philosophy of the Vanderbilt who said, "The public be damned."

The unemployed and the underemployed make lousy customers. When a man can't afford to buy a house, the furniture store and hardware store lose sales. Ditto the utility company, the paint store, the lawn and garden store. As homes remain unsold and stores are abandoned, the tax roll declines and governments lose tax revenues. A whole economy, beginning with unemployment, can collapse like a row of dominoes.

The Japanese are smarter than we are. Their bedrock philosophy of business and industry is to keep Japanese employed.

Our philosophy, if you can call it that, seems to be let a few Wall Streeters earn the highest possible short-term returns on their investments. That philosophy says not only the public be damned, but the future be damned as well. It's not even good for the investors in the long run.

If you don't have any customers, it won't matter how good your legal counsel is, how sharp your accountants are, what good public relations you have.

Discrimination lawsuit should go before jury

First, I would like to thank Channel 7 and Reporter-Telegram staff writer Michael Kashgarian for their reports on the class action suit filed by Midland police officers. They asked tough questions and made us show evidence to back up our claims, but you reported it fairly.

Second, to all of the citizens of Midland that are angry about this suit — you should be! The suit was filed because we believe the City of Midland has violated state and federal anti-discrimination laws. The city believes they have not. The proper solution is to meet in the courtroom and allow a judge and jury to decide the merits of the case. We sought a temporary injunction to prevent irreparable harm being done to those affected by this "civilianization." Although this may have been inconvenient to the city, we felt it would be better to resolve the problem before any harm was done than to undo everything later should we prevail. But as is too often the case with governments, the city has a vast pool of tax dollars with which to hire expensive law firms to drag this case out and make it as expensive as possible. Meanwhile, the city threatens all of the involved officers with expensive sanctions, destroys my professional career, and cuts my pay — after Chief Czech promised on three separate occasions that our pay would not be cut. And all of this because I refused to resign after receiving a back injury during a strength test I was ordered by Chief Czech to perform, which was later dropped because the test was found to be "more likely to cause injuries."

Gentlemen, we have a serious dispute that needs to be settled. If your arguments are sound, why not save the taxpayers some money and take this case to a jury.

Clinton's health plan not good as it sounds

President Clinton's health plan sounds so good! The key word in that statement is sounds — but do we really want the federal government controlling our personal choices for health?

In Cuba in the 1950s, Fidel Castro also appeared to have the answers for apparent needed changes in that country.

Camera crews find people officials can't

I have a question! If the reporters and camera crews representing the Cable News Network, CNN, have no trouble finding Aidid in the streets and alleyways of Mogadishu, Somalia, and if the Red Cross can find him permission to talk to "detainees" without difficulty, then, please tell me, and the American people, why the United States Intelligence gathering community and Army Special Forces personnel cannot locate this critter.

I am reminded of an episode in Ohio where a local county and city police force could not find and arrest the leader of a local Ku Klux Klan Dragon after months of search when, from the beginning of their search, the man was in plain sight plowing his field abutting the right of way along an interstate highway, just two miles from the north city limits of the town. Calling this fact to the attention of the local sheriff's office had no effect — the man continued to plow his field until he finished his planting — and was never apprehended!

Could Aidid be "plowing his field" in plain sight, too? CNN seems to be able to find him at will! Why doesn't the intelligence (?) community follow the cameraman? The people would like to know.

DEAR ABBY

Minister full of preaching forgets to practice at home

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a fine Christian man who is a minister. We have three school-age children of whom we are very proud.

Van Buren

If you can find the column you wrote about five years ago signed "Submissive Wife," please run it again. I know a minister (my husband) who needs to read it. Please do not disclose my location. — HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I found it:

DEAR ABBY: Like many other women who write to you, I have a problem. My husband has a mistress. Her name is Television. If it isn't Television, it's her sister, Radio.

Television entertains him every night during our evening meal when our family should be sharing the day's events together. Don't suggest rescheduling dinner, because the news is on for an hour and a half, and my husband watches all of it.

He is a minister and prides himself on "saving people." He keeps the TV tuned to a religious channel when he isn't watching the news. I hear preaching morning, noon and night. Many evenings, I go to sleep while he's embracing his other mistress, Radio.

When I get into his car, the radio is always tuned to gospel music. We can't carry on a conversation because he listens with one ear. He never inquires about my day, my feelings, or anything concerning me or the children. I realize that he is serving the Lord and saving souls, but what about his family?

When I complain, he quotes the following Scripture: "Wives, submit yourselves unto you own husbands ..." (Colossians 3:18). What can I do? — SUBMISSIVE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You can also quote Scripture: "Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them" (Colossians 3:19).

Doctors sometimes need a doctor, and ministers sometimes need to be reminded to practice what they preach. You would both benefit from counseling. If he balks, go alone. What doth it profit a man if he saves souls, but loses his wife?

DEAR ABBY: I almost fell over laughing when I read the letter complaining about the friend who would never choose the restaurant — always allowing the writer to pick the spot to eat. I'm sure the writer was referring to me, but please let me say a word in my defense:

When I suggested Chinese food, you told me it gave you a headache. What about a deli? "The waiters are rude." How about that Italian place? "It's too expensive." Do you want to try the Mexican place? "We ate there last night."

So, hey! I give up. Better to enjoy a meal at the restaurant of your choice than to go to my favorite spot and listen to your whining. Sign me ... A GOOD LOSER

DEAR GOOD LOSER: If you want to settle the "where should we eat" question, ask your fussy friend to first give you a list of the acceptable choices, and you will pick the place.

DEAR ABBY: If, as Samuel Goldwyn said, "A verbal agreement isn't worth the paper it's written on," the following must be true:

"It goes without saying that an oral agreement is tacitly unsound." — JACK O. DAVIS, LEE'S SUMMIT, MO.

DEAR JACK: Congratulations, you topped Goldwyn.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Labor experts, economists consider shorter workweek

By Peter T. Kilborn
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Union leaders and some economists are beginning to talk seriously about what once seemed a far-fetched remedy for disappearing high-pay jobs: a shorter workweek.

This may not sound like a particularly novel idea; millions of part-timers already work far fewer than 40 hours a week. But the unions would insist that regular full-time workers whose weeks are cut to 35 hours or so keep their 40-hour pay and benefits.

"There's no question that the long-term salvation of work lies in reducing working hours," said Thomas R. Donahue, secretary-treasurer of the 95-union American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations, which met here this week.

Promoting a shorter workweek may smack of economic snake oil. At a time when several thousand workers are still being laid off every week, asking businesses to take on the added costs of new employees might seem just another of labor's occasional pie-in-the-sky causes.

Certainly no one in Congress is offering legislation that would require a shorter week, and few unions are demanding it at the bargaining table.

But unions, despite the long decline of their membership and influence, still introduce many innovations in the workplace, particularly in manufacturing, where they are strongest. And a shorter week looms as a novel way to deal with the continuing loss of high-paying, often highly skilled jobs.

In a letter to the House and Senate Labor Committees released last week, William Proxmire, who was considered a leading advocate of labor's causes during his 32 years in the Senate, argued that a shorter workweek would cut unemployment.

It is not uncommon today in some industries for employees to work less than 40 hours. But few workplaces have crossed the 35-hour threshold. Postal carriers, telephone operators and press operators at some newspapers routinely work 35-hour weeks, and some construction workers have 32-hour weeks.

Some labor scholars are promoting shorter weeks, too, both to spread the available work and to relieve the stress of certain jobs.

The most visible scholar of employment practices, Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich, flatly spurned shorter weeks in an interview in February. But before addressing the convention on Tuesday he said, "I need to think about it more."

Predictably, business advocates show little enthusiasm for the shorter week if it means higher labor costs. Martin Lefkowitz, a labor relations expert at the National Chamber Foundation in Washington, equated the notion with "the tooth fairy."

But David Lewin, director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at the business school of the University of California at Los Angeles, called it "a legitimate proposition," adding, "I think the difficulty is not in the conception but in the implementation."

Currently, he said, many employers prefer to pay overtime wages of time and a half, because it is cheaper than taking on full-time permanent workers. Unions are fighting that trend by pressuring employers to pay double wages for overtime.

Another incentive for overtime — it incurs no additional health insurance costs — could change if President Clinton's health care plan is implemented.

Advocates also argue that many employers can accommodate shorter workweeks at current pay levels because technology and automation have helped raise workers' productivity, especially in industries like steel and telecommunications.

Last week's AFL-CIO convention was the first in decades at which a shorter workweek was on everybody's mind. "It's becoming a higher and higher item on the agenda as we watch this alleged economic recovery unfold without creating enough jobs," said Lynn Williams, president of the United Steelworkers of America.

One reason for the unions' interest is their view that the Clinton administration's answer to the decline in well-paid factory positions — retraining programs — usually leads to worse jobs or to no jobs at all.

"They talk about retraining, but retraining for what?" said Vincent R. Sombrotto, president of the letter carriers union. "As the population grows and we're squeezed out of manufacturing, we have to think about how to stretch jobs to more people."

Outside the labor movement, some economists and other scholars are urging shorter hours either to spread work or to relieve the strain of 40-hour and longer weeks on two-worker families.

Juliet B. Schor, an economist at Harvard, said the average American worked 1,924 hours in 1989 compared with 1,786 hours two decades earlier, an increase of 7.7 percent. After examining the effects of reductions in workers' hours, she concluded that "shrinking the 40-hour workweek by up to five hours leads to less absenteeism, less turnover, less personal business on company time and lower costs."

Dr. Schor added that given the dim outlook for economic growth, "reducing work time may now be the only feasible way to generate significant numbers of jobs."

Benjamin K. Hunnicutt, a professor of history at the University of Iowa and an editor of a newsletter for a group called the Society for the Reduction of Human Labor, said demand for shorter workweeks was strong in Europe, where high unemployment had proved intractable.

Whether the same happens in the United States, he said, depends on whether unemployment continues to rise. "I think the critical point is 10 or 12 percent," he said. In August the rate was 6.7 percent in the United States and about 10 percent in Europe. But here in California, the most populous state, the rate was 9 percent. The figures for September, announced Friday, showed the national rate flat at 6.7 percent but California's rate up, at 9.4 percent."

In addition to shorter workweeks, he said, workers can be offered extra time off in lieu of raises, vacations can be stretched to five or six weeks, the norm in Europe, and longer leaves can be granted for sickness and child bearing.

For years, unions have resisted temptations to resurrect demands for fewer hours because many of their members covet their right to time and a half for overtime, and many have come to depend on it.

What is more, the assumption that double pay for overtime would lead to more hiring has not faced a real test. Ronald G. Ehrenberg, a professor at the School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell, doubts that it would. Instead of hiring more workers, he said, companies that balked at paying double wages might well opt for increased automation, which would result in fewer jobs.

Smithsonian book: 'Dixie' authors may have been black, yankees

By Phillip Rawls
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — "Dixie," the anthem that was a fixture at political rallies "away down South' for 100 years, may have been written by a black family — and Yankees, no less.

A new book from Smithsonian Institution Press seeks to dispel the popular notion that the song was written by white minstrel performer Dan Emmett.

"Way Up North in Dixie: A Black Family's Claim to the Confederate Anthem" agrees with other history books that Emmett made "Dixie" a hit when he performed it on Broadway in 1859.

But authors Howard and Judith Sacks say Emmett learned the song from the Snowden family of black musicians in his hometown of Mount Vernon, Ohio.

If the research is correct, "it's a lesson in the irony of our history and the naivete of those who attach special meanings to a song," said William Ferris, co-editor of the "Encyclopedia of Southern Culture."

When the Civil War broke out, "Dixie" was played at Jefferson Davis' inauguration in Montgomery and was heard at Southern political rallies for the next 100 years. It started disappearing from the political landscape after white Democrats began courting black voters in the 1970s.

Sacks, chairman of the anthropology department at Kenyon College near Mount Vernon, said his quest for the origin of "Dixie" started after a friend found a cemetery marker for brothers Dan and Lew Snowden that said: "They taught 'Dixie' to Dan Emmett."

Research was difficult because the last member of the family died in 1923. But Sacks found the Snowden family home and next door was a woman whose grandfather administered the estates of the last family members. She had kept musical instruments, a family album and a box of correspondence that provided details of the Snowden family.

Sacks said the family lived across the street from a tavern and stagecoach stop and started entertaining travelers in 1850 with a style that later became parodied in minstrel shows.

"They were performers primarily for white audiences," Sacks said in a telephone interview. "White folks wrote to them constantly asking for songs they had heard them perform."

Emmett left Mount Vernon in the 1830s and founded the first black-faced minstrel troupe in 1843. But he returned to Mount Vernon often to visit relatives who lived next door to the Snowdens.

Sacks said the matriarch of the Snowden family, Ellen Cooper Snowden, was born a slave in Maryland in 1817. When she was 10, her owner freed her and sent her to Mount Vernon on the Ohio frontier to work for his cousins.

Historians who credit the song to Emmett agree it was rewritten many times to suit various causes. But through all of the rewrites, historians say the opening line and chorus have remained the same.

So why would a freed slave "wish I was in the land of cotton"?

The reason, Sacks said, is the paucity of other blacks in the area — none of Mrs. Snowden's seven children found marriage partners.

Phantom Ball benefits March of Dimes

By Linda Anderson
Staff writer

Vampires, werewolves and skeletons were at ClayDesta Atrium Saturday night — but so were Batman, Raggedy Ann and Andy, various football players and cheerleaders, a referee with a cane (the ref is always blind, after all), a few Coneheads, Edward Scissorhands, the Phantom of the Opera and even a couple of M&Ms.

The occasion was the Phantom Ball and Casino Party, a benefit for the March of Dimes. Included in the event were a silent auction, door prizes, costume contest, casino games including black jack, roulette and craps, and a raffle sponsored by American Airlines. A fajita buffet was provided by Bless Your Heart, and music for dancing was by Masterpeace from Lubbock, from Wemus Entertainment.

Tracy Shock (dressed as Raggedy Ann), Permian Basin division director, said that 300 to 400 people were expected to attend the event, and many of them got into the "spirit" of the event by dressing up in costume.

But as much fun as the benefit was, the cause it supports is a serious one. "The March of Dimes' mission is to prevent birth defects through research, education, advocacy and community service," Ms. Shock said. "In order to do this, we do fund raisers.

"I'd like to see at least $20,000 (raised) out of this evening."

The Permian Basin benefits from the work of the March of Dimes, she said. "Locally, we provide grants for local organizations," including Midland Health Care Clinic, which works with pregnant women who have gestational diabetes, and child birth education programs.

"The hospital recently purchased some equipment for their neonatal intensive care, level II," Ms. Shock said, "and a grant was funded in Alpine to update their newborn nursery."

Like many other charitable organizations, the March of Dimes relies on the work of volunteers. In fact, the work of the organization "couldn't be possible without the volunteers," Ms. Shock said.

Ellen and Lance Friday put on sweet costumes as a pair of M&M chocolate candies at Saturday night's Phantom Ball, a benefit for March of Dimes.

The decorations, which included gold pumpkins wearing masks and top hats, and black balloons, were provided by the volunteers, she added.

The silent auction items included jewelry and gem stones, gift certificates, dinners, a family portrait, autographed photos of several celebrities, golf items and scuba lessons.

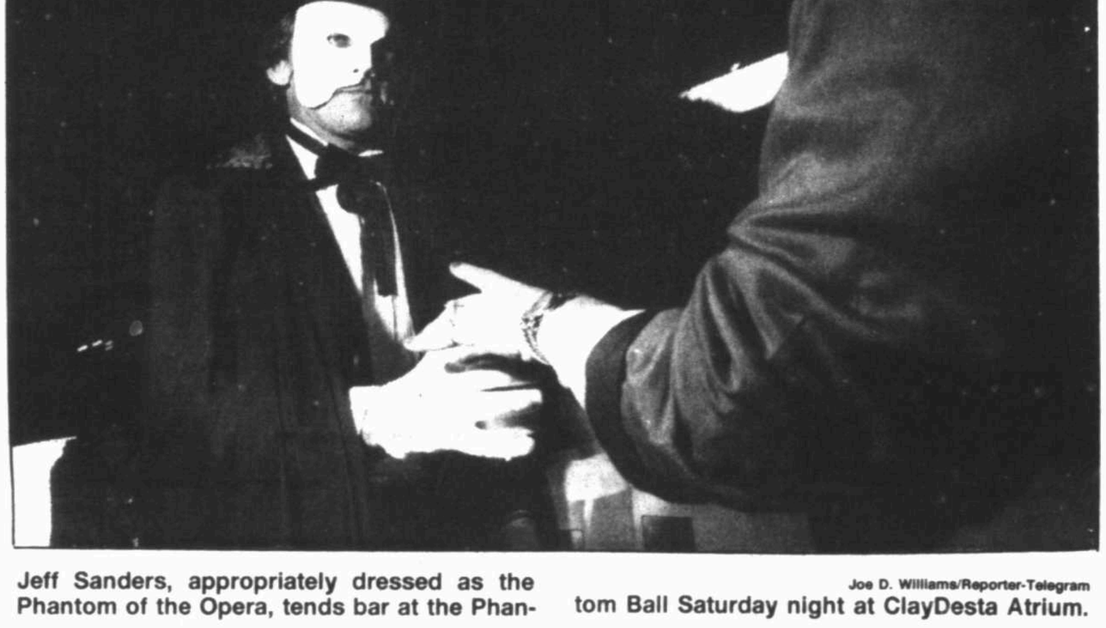

Sponsors included Basin Pure Ice Co.; ClayDesta Corp.; Permian Distributing Inc.; Newman Outdoor Advertising Inc.; Michael Courter, DDS; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ingram; Allega Travel; Ken's Rent-It center; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Long III; Too Tanked Taxi; Jim and Sandy Alsup; Virginia Berry; Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Craig Jr.; Lynn D. Durham; Marianne and Will Green; Niran and Polly Kellogg; Elizabeth Locker; Mr. and Mrs. R.O. Williams; Albertsons Inc. on Wadley and Midland Drive; Devin Alsup; City Transfer-Richard and Judy Shelburn; Lance Evans-Farmers Insurance; Laura Ingram-State Farm Insurance; KGEE FM 100; KNFM/KNMD Radio; KODM; Newnie Ellis Funeral Home; NewsWest 9; The Rock Reproduction; Texas Commerce Bank-Midland; and Wal-Mart Discount Cities.

Board members are Wendi Evans, Phantom Ball chairman; Robert Holton, chairman; Kathy Farned, secretary; Devin Alsup, Janet Carpenter, Lance Evans, Rhonda S. Martinez, Mitch Smith, Donna Walton, Cindy Belvedere, Loree Clay, Cary Griggs, Rita Pingel, Vonda Walker and Lee Wood, members; Ms. Shock, Permian Basin division director; and Kim King, Northwest Texas chapter director.

Battle bugs, but safely

Associated Press

There are many ways to fight the battle of the bugs, including organic and inorganic methods. If you choose to use pesticides, Garden, Deck & Landscape Planner magazine says to follow some general guidelines for the safety of you, your family and your yard.

- Choose the proper product. Read labels carefully before you buy. Most garden chemicals are safe and effective if used as directed. Buy only what you need and share leftovers with a friend rather than discard the chemicals.
- Store chemicals in their original containers with the labels intact and legible. If stored properly, most pest-control substances will be effective the following season, so you don't need to throw leftover chemicals away.
- Tighten lids on liquid containers. Paper bags and boxes containing dust, granules or wettable powders should be closed and resealed with tape. Dry products can also be stored, container and all, in a clean, sealable plastic bag.
- Lock pesticides in a cabinet or storage room. This area should be separate from food supplies and protected from freezing temperatures or extreme heat.
- Dispose of pesticides with damaged containers. Never save empty containers. Check to see if your area has an authorized method of pesticide disposal. Your refuse-disposal agency can guide you.
- Do not put empty containers in an outdoor trash receptacle unless you have a dependable pickup service. Make sure animals and kids can't get at containers.
- Carefully mutilate and puncture plastic and paper containers; puncture and crush empty metal containers, except aerosol containers, which could explode if burned or punctured. To dispose of an empty aerosol can, spray until the can is out of pressure, then throw it away.
- Wrap glass containers in several thick layers of newspaper, tie securely and place in a trash can.
- Do not burn any containers.

Investors expand

Americans' hot romance with foreign stock funds shows no sign of cooling off.

"The American investor has always had an interest in foreign funds, but it's been heightened," said John Horseman, investment manager of Global Asset Management's International Fund, in a telephone interview from his London office. "As we go into 1994, increasingly, that investor is looking around and putting bigger shares of money outside" the United States.

Witness the popularity of foreign and global stock funds this year. Funds that invest only abroad have taken in $12.3 billion through August, versus $4.1 billion in the comparable period last year, the Investment Company Institute, a trade group, said last week. The funds held $44.2 billion at the end of August, double their level a year earlier.

For global funds — which invest in the United States as well as abroad — the cash inflow more than quadrupled during the first eight months to $5.6 billion from $1.2 billion in the period a year earlier. The global funds' assets rose to $32.2 billion from $18.3 billion during the 12 months ended in August.

Analysts say ...

WASHINGTON (AP) — You see and hear the headlines all the time: Analysts say a company's stock is undervalued ... a company's earnings are disappointing ... a company's woes reflect an industry slump.

Analysts say buy! Analysts say sell!

Who are these guys?

Securities analysts are the men and women at brokerage houses, banks and mutual funds who scrutinize the financial statements of companies, monitor their ups and downs, track industry trends and recommend whether to invest.

Their opinions can impact the price of a company's stock, and that kind of power gives them a lot of influence. Companies often go to great lengths to woo analysts.

Many have advanced degrees in business or economics or have passed the arduous certified public accountant test, but there is no standard measure of competency.

The Association for Investment Management and Research hopes to change that.

The Charlottesville, Va., group, which has been awarding the certification Chartered Financial Analyst since 1963, wants to be the standard-setter for analysts and money managers.

To date, more than 18,500 have been awarded the CFA designation.

Portfolio

While some managers of international funds hang on the German central bank's every move and on the latest trade figures from Japan, J. Mark Mobius tracks a Turkish steelmaker, the telephone company that serves Rio de Janeiro and the Nigerian stock exchange.

Emerging markets are his game. And he's one of the hottest portfolio managers in an area where growth potential is enormous, yet economic and political turmoil is commonplace.

With an office in Hong Kong and a frenetic travel schedule, Mobius directs the Far East division for Templeton Funds and manages emerging markets portfolios, overseeing more than $2 billion.

Save now, not later

Financial future eased if action taken early

By Ribert Luke
N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — Do yourself a favor.

Don't be the one to lament: "If I'd only known then what I know now . . ."

How secure a retirement you'll have depends on decisions you make now on where to invest your hard-earned dollars in employer-sponsored 401(k) plans.

If you're like most people, about 25 percent of your retirement income will have to come from money you're saving and investing now, say experts at Standard & Poor's Corp. Some companies have hired S&P to help their workers decide where to distribute money within their 401(k) plans.

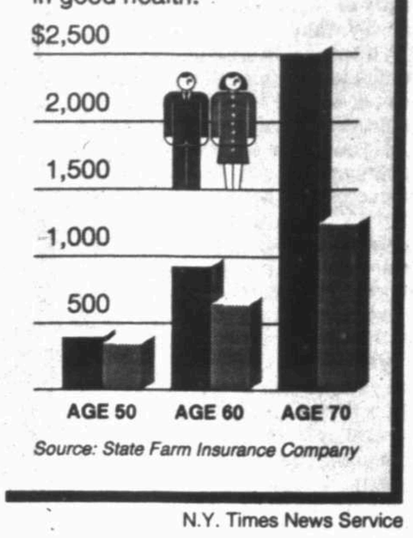

That review will have more relevance this year, because many companies are boosting their menu of investments to meet new Labor Department guidelines, which take effect Jan. 1.

"The new guidelines encourage plans to offer at least three distinct investment options," says W. Boyd Griffin, president of Retirement Advisors Inc. of New York. It publishes 401(k) Dimensions, a newsletter sent to workers to aid their decision-making.

One Atlanta-based company that's expanding its menu is Genuine Parts Co. It now offers only a guaranteed investment account, which pays a specific rate of return over a certain period.

HOW THEY DO IT

Deciding on a New Mortgage: 15 or 30 Years?

Randy Mazur, 35, owns a construction company, and his wife, Marlene, 33, a financial planning firm. They live on a Christmas tree farm in Colts Neck, N.J., with their three children, aged 8, 9 and 11.

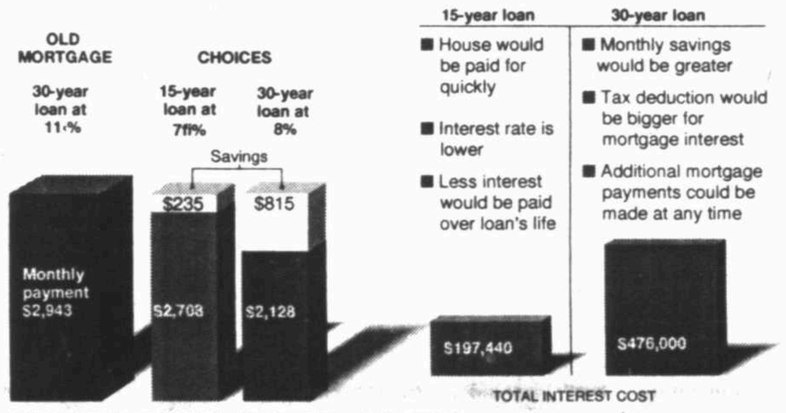

Until August, they were carrying a 30-year mortgage taken out in 1986 at an interest rate of a whopping 11⅜ percent. With today's low rates, it was time to refinance. The Mazurs decided to consider a 15-year loan, keeping in mind that they must plan for their children's future college costs.

THE HOUSE
4-bedroom ranch house on 15 acres that includes a Christmas tree farm, valued at $500,000

CONSIDERATIONS

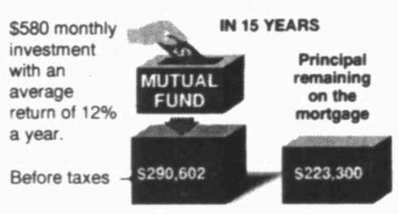

15-year loan	30-year loan
■ House would be paid for quickly	■ Monthly savings would be greater
■ Interest rate is lower	■ Tax deduction would be bigger for mortgage interest
■ Less interest would be paid over loan's life	■ Additional mortgage payments could be made at any time

Andrée Brooks and Newman Hu/ The New York Times; Photograph by Norman Lono

CONCLUSION
The Mazurs rejected the 15-year loan in favor of the 30-year loan. They are placing the $580 monthly difference between the two loan payments in a mutual fund to help pay for future college costs. And if they lose business or encounter some other emergency, they can draw on the savings easily.

"I'd rather have the liquid money available," Mrs. Mazur said. "And at today's rates you should be borrowing for as long as possible."

Identical names a problem

■ In credit card scams, having the same first and last names as someone else can create headaches.

By Sau Chan
Associated Press Writer

Consider this nightmare: You apply for credit to finance a house, a car, or even an education, but the bank rejects you because somebody went on a mega-shopping spree in your name.

That's what happened to Stephen J. Shaw of Washington and Steven M. Shaw of Brandon, Fla.

"I found out when I was applying for a low interest rate credit card. The processor said, 'You have a lot of loans out,' and asked, 'When did you move to Florida?' " Stephen J. Shaw, 39, said in a telephone interview.

When he got a copy of his credit history, he said it showed almost $100,000 worth of transactions he never enjoyed: auto loans, credit-card loans, personal bank loans, plane tickets, and tabs for home-entertainment systems, computers, clothes, furniture, cellular phones and a host of other goodies.

"I found out when I got a call from AT&T Universal MasterCard, saying I owed them about $10,000," Steven M. Shaw, 36, said from Florida.

He said his credit report showed a debt of almost $80,000. Like his namesake, he found the charges were made on about 30 credit card and checking accounts opened in his name.

Both were victims of a credit scam run by 35-year-old Steven Shaw, an Orlando, Fla., car salesman who used his company's computer to peruse the database of a credit-reporting agency. At his fingertips was personal information on just about anybody he chose: past addresses and employers, Social Security numbers, credit card numbers, mortgage information, bank accounts and any other data that normally appear on credit reports.

He called each man on the pretext of running a contest, got additional personal information and opened accounts in both men's names, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Turner of Orlando. Steven Shaw succeeded in his scams for almost three years, Turner said.

Gearing up for computerized trading

By Allen R. Myerson
N.Y. Times News Service

Computerized trading and research, long the domain of Wall Street money managers, has become democratic. A host of computer data services lets smaller investors join in.

Getting to know the services — Compuserve, Dow Jones, Prodigy, Genie and America On-Line — can be like scanning a large crowd at a party. Dizzying, but one or two are bound to make staying in touch worthwhile.

As in most friendships, a casual acquaintance with these services takes little commitment but provides few rewards. Most have reasonable monthly charges that cover things like simple stock quotes, but they offer more powerful features to those committing more time and money. In a ferociously competitive industry, many change their fee structures as often as airlines change their fares.

To get started, you will need a modest personal computer and a modem, which lets computers talk over the phone, or on-line. Many of these services also require free or relatively cheap software. The basic, DOS software versions are reviewed here. The Windows versions are easier on the user but demand a more muscular computer. A host of mutual fund groups and brokerage firms, including Fidelity and Schwab, have their own software and on-line services.

Most of the independent services offer electronic bulletin boards, computer games, shopping and other uses besides investing. Some are more like toys than tools. Compuserve and Prodigy can be fun but also business-like, while Dow Jones emphasizes investing. Genie and America On-Line are more like the handsome, nattily dressed party animals whose friends don't always look for intellectual stimulation or professional advantage.

Compuserve has enough financial offerings to fill a 362-page guide. The $8.95 fee for unlimited use at any hour covers only the basic services: stock quotes, mortgage calculations and mutual fund records and rankings.

Other resources, like investment forums or Associated Press business news, usually cost $8 an hour, plus surcharges for stock charts ($1 each) and news searches ($1.50 an article). Special software can help minimize hourly charges.

For stock trading, users can choose Quick & Reilly, a discount broker, or E-trade, which is incredibly cheap. Buying or selling 500 shares at $60 each through E-trade costs $35, compared with $128 on Quick & Reilly, $166 on Schwab and $457 through a live person at Merrill Lynch.

Dow Jones Market Monitor has no games, no splashy graphics, no electronic shopping mall. It's like the serious, sober person who can be fascinating if you share his business interests,

Widows and social security

Q. What is the earliest age at which a widow without minor children can begin collecting Social Security benefits based on her husband's earnings?
— ROBERTA CASPER, Commack, N.Y.

A. For a spouse to be eligible for widow's benefits on a deceased worker's record, certain conditions must be met. Among them: the deceased worker must have earned enough Social Security work credits to entitle the widow to monthly payments, and the widow must have been married to the deceased worker for at least nine months before his death.

If all the conditions are met, the earliest that monthly benefit payments can begin is age 60, or age 50 if the widow is disabled. A divorced widow can generally qualify for benefits if she was married to the deceased worker for 10 years before they were divorced.

"The amount of the monthly widow benefit is based on the level of earnings of the deceased worker and the age of the widow at the time monthly benefits are elected," said Lawrence H. Thompson, the Acting Commissioner of Social Security.

To collect these benefits, the widow must not be entitled to equal or higher retirement benefits through her own work record. She also cannot remarry until she turns 60, or age 50 if she is disabled.

Gifts to family members

Q. Can a tax-free gift of up to $10,000 be made to any family member or only to your children?
— BARBARA HURST, Whiting, N.J.

A. An annual gift of as much as $10,000 can be made to any person, family member or not, without paying a gift tax. Such a gift does not affect your lifetime $600,000 exemption for estate and gift tax purposes.

A husband and a wife can each give up to $10,000 a year to as many people as they want. And as a result of certain gift-splitting provisions in the Internal Revenue Code, the entire $20,000 can come from only one of them, instead of $10,000 gifts from each.

"Significant estate and gift tax savings can be made by making $10,000 annual gifts," said David Gerson, a partner of Ernst & Young. "But as each Dec. 31 passes, you lose the annual exclusion for that year."

Retirement money abroad

Q. Can I receive distributions from my 401(k) plan if I am living in a foreign country?
— Francesco F. Bartolomeo, Brooklyn

A. Yes. In fact, you may be able to begin distributions from your 401(k) account earlier than if you were a resident of the United States.

Distributions normally begin when someone reaches 59½, becomes disabled, leaves the company that established the plan or dies. But distributions may begin earlier in case of a hardship.

"Simply living abroad isn't considered a hardship, but the move might cause you to have an 'immediate and heavy' financial need without any other reasonably available resources," said John F. Woyke, a principal of Towers Perrin. "In this case, the plan could make a hardship distribution."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Selling your home

By Bill Doyle

Q: I lost my husband last year at age 52. I am all alone, very lonely and want to sell my home, which is too big for me. But I don't want to wait until I am 55 to sell in order to avoid paying tax.

Doyle

My home was appraised recently at $120,000. I want to buy a small Florida condominium unit for about $70,000. How much tax would I have to pay on a $40,000 capital gain?

A: If you have a $40,000 capital gain, you will owe the Internal Revenue Service $11,200, 28 percent of the capital gain. But that's a mighty big IF, as your letter does not indicate how you would have a $40,000 capital gain.

A capital gain is the profit from the sale of real estate, stock or any other "capital asset." When you sell your home, that profit is the difference between the proceeds from the sale and your house's basis -- cost for tax purposes.

To figure the sale proceeds, you subtract selling expenses, including real estate commission, from the price at which you sell. Your basis is the price at which you bought plus the cost of any additions and improvements.

You need to calculate your sale proceeds, your basis and the difference between those two numbers to arrive at the profit from the sale.

A long-term capital gain -- on a capital asset owned for more than one year -- is taxed at 28 percent if you are in a 28 percent or higher federal income tax bracket, as would be the case if you realize a $40,000 profit on the sale of your house.

By holding off on the sale until you reach age 55, you would be able to take the once-in-a-lifetime capital gains tax exclusion on up to $125,000 on the profit from the sale of the house, assuming you have owned and lived in it as your main home for at least three of the five years prior to the sale.

In your case, that would eliminate all capital gains tax liability.

From the tone of your letter, my advice is to sell and live happily in the condo you have your eye on.

Q: I am planning to marry. Both my future wife and I are widowed and older than 55.

She plans to sell her home before we marry and will take the $125,000 exclusion from capital gains tax on the sale. After we are married, at some future date, I may want to sell my home, which will be in my name only and where we will live.

Will I then be able to take the $125,000 exclusion?

A: No. Because you will be married when your home is sold, you will not be allowed to exclude the gain unless your spouse joins you in making that choice. The rules are firm on that point. Both spouses must join in the choice to take that exclusion.

And, since she would already have taken the once-in-a-lifetime exclusion, she won't be able to do it again -- even though the house is in your name alone.

For each of you to legitimately take the exclusion, you'd have to sell both houses before you wed.

Q: When partial prepayments are made on a mortgage, are the payments deducted from the front of the loan, when the unpaid balance is high, or the back of the loan, when the balance is nearing zero?

A: Prepayments are deducted from the mortgage principal -- the unpaid balance of the loan. Each prepayment lowers that balance and the interest that has to be paid on the balance that remains.

As a result, you can greatly reduce the total interest paid.

SAVE: Put back at least 5 percent of gross per year

(From 1B)

But next year, the 10,000 workers who participate in the company's plan also will be able to pick a balanced fund that invests in both stocks and bonds, and a growth stock fund.

The company will continue to match up to 20 percent of an employee's contribution in Genuine Parts stock.

Boosted by such company contributions, the amounts accumulating in 401(k) plans are staggering. By 2000, assets are expected to balloon to $1.25 trillion from $410 billion last year, according to Access Research Inc., which tracks the plans.

"Over the next decade, the discretionary and highly visible account balances in these plans will represent the largest single asset for many employees — even larger than their home equity value," Access Research predicts.

And how big a nest-egg you eventually accumulate will depend on choices you make now.

Standard & Poor's experts cite five common mistakes plan participants make:

- Contributing too little, too late.
- Investing too conservatively.
- Putting all your eggs in one basket.
- Switching funds often to chase the best returns.
- Withdrawing money prematurely.

Generally speaking, how much and where you invest depends on your age, investment goals, years to retirement, tolerance for risk and financial circumstances.

There's no magic formula. But if you're young — such as Laura Basti, a 25-year-old computer systems analyst at Southern Co. in Atlanta — you can afford to take more risk by emphasizing stocks.

Basti contributes 6 percent of her base pay into Southern Co.'s 401(k) plan because that's the maximum amount the company will match.

A third of her contributions go into a fixed-income fund that invests primarily in bonds and certificates of deposit. Another third is invested in stocks that comprise the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index. And the rest is invested in Southern Co. stock.

The company matches her contribution, which also is invested in Southern Co. stock.

"As far as risk, I wanted to spread it out," says Basti, who lives in Alpharetta with her husband, Jeff, a pharmaceutical sales representative.

Most 401(k) plan participants are very conservative, preferring only "safe," less volatile investments, such as money market funds and guaranteed investment accounts.

But in avoiding market risk, they assume another kind of risk: the loss of purchasing power because of inflation. Most conservative investments don't provide much of a cushion against inflation.

DEATHS

Gail Marlow

Services for Gail Marlow, 79, of Brady will be at 10 a.m. today in the Heritage Funeral Home Chapel with Norman Roe officiating. Burial and a graveside service will follow at 4:39 p.m. in Resthaven Memorial Park in Midland with Richard Evans officiating. Services are under the direction of Heritage Funeral Home of Brady.

Mrs. Marlow died Thursday in the Heart of Texas Memorial Hospital.

She was born Aug. 10, 1914, in Rotan. She was raised on the 6666 Ranch and married Pat Marlow on Dec. 1, 1934, in Paducah. She moved to McCulloch County in 1985. She was a former resident of Midland and Menard and was of the Methodist faith.

She was preceded in death by a son, Don Marlow, on Aug. 15, 1990; and a brother.

Survivors include her husband, Pat Marlow of Brady; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Horace Henderson

Services for Horace Edward "Babe" Henderson, 61, of Dimmitt will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Lakeside Baptist Church under the direction of Campbell Funeral Home in Spur. The Rev. Raymond Roberts will officiate. Burial will be in the Spur Memorial Cemetery.

Henderson died Wednesday in the Dimmitt hospital after a sudden illness.

He was born April 15, 1932, in Spur. He moved to Dimmitt in 1992 from Denver, Colo. He worked for Argo Oil Company for several years and was also an airport porter. He was of the Baptist faith.

Survivors include two sons, Cal Walker and Howard Walker, both of Spur; four daughters, Donna Wilson of Houston, Tasha Henderson of Dallas, Teressa Henderson of Fort Worth and Gloria Childers of Spur; a brother, Richard Henderson of Midland; four sisters, Lillie Mae Johnson of Odessa, Daphene Montgomery of Dimmitt, Ruth Sledge of Houston and Frances Robinson of Fort Worth; and several grandchildren.

Gilbert C. Brunson

Services for Gilbert Carroll Brunson, 96, of Smyer will be 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. Ronald Brunson of the New Covenant Church of Plainview, the Rev. Allen Brunson of Stephenville and the Rev. David Brunson of Artesia all will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery. Services are under the direction of Geo. C. Price Funeral Directors of Levelland. Local arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Sunday at his home in Smyer.

Brunson was born March 14, 1897, in Midland and moved to Smyer from Albuquerque, N.M., in Feburary 1991. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Albuquerque. He was married to Anna Holder on June 20, 1916, in Brown County. He was a retired farmer and rancher.

He was preceded in death by a son, Curtis Brunson in October 1989.

Survivors include his wife, Anna Brunson of Smyer; a son, Willis Brunson of Corona, N.M.; four daughters, Susie C. Mason and Dorothy Vest, both of Smyer, Bonnell Howell of Andrews and Darlene Hendricks of Lubbock; a brother, D.W. Brunson of Midland; 18 grandchildren; 28 great-grandchildren and 11 great-great-grandchildren.

His grandsons will serve as pallbearers.

Eduardo E. Ramirez

Services for Eduardo Estrada Ramirez Jr., 52, of Odessa will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Odessa with Miguel Rodriguez officating. Burial will be in the Rosehill Cemetery in Odessa.

Ramirez died Saturday in an Odessa hospital.

He was born March 14, 1941, in Ojinaga Chihuahua, Mexico. He had lived in Odessa for seven years moving there from Pecos. He was a truck driver for Sam's Trucking.

Survivors include a son, Cecil Ramirez of Tyler; a daughter, Tanya Ramirez of Tyler; four brothers, Jesus J. Hernandez of Presidio, Eduardo Ramirez of Midland, Lorenzo Baca and Gerardo Baca, both of Muleshoe; eight sisters, Irma Arsiaga, Martha Ramirez, Bertha Ramirez, Blanca Ramos, Mary Helen Galindo, all of Midland, and Jesusita Gutierrez, Frances Echegoyen and Hortencia Baca, all of El Paso.

Betty Earldean Smith

Graveside services for Betty Earldean Smith, 76, will be at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Resthaven Memorial Park with Dr. Jarrell Sharp of St. Luke's United Methodist Church officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Smith died Sunday morning in a local nursing home.

She was born May 6, 1917, in Rising Star, Texas, and grew up on a ranch in Comanche County. She attended schools there and graduated from Rising Star High School. She later attended Howard Payne University. She met and married E.F. Smith on May 16, 1937, in Rising Star. She was a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church of Abilene. She was a resident of Abilene from 1939-89. She and her husband moved to Midland in 1989.

Survivors include her husband, E.F. Smith of Midland; a daughter, Sherry O'Kelley of Midland; three brothers, Wayne Swift of Odessa, C.D. Smith of Comanche and Gaylor Swift of Rising Star; two grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; three nieces and one nephew.

Memorials may be sent to the Alzheimer Wing at Manor Park of Midland or to the donor's charity of choice.

Robert J. Ellis

Services for Robert J. Ellis will be at 11 a.m. today in Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Bob Porterfield of West Kentucky Baptist Church officiating. Burial will follow in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Friday at his home after a brief illness.

Officials: Gadgets alone won't protect schools

DALLAS (AP) — As school violence escalates, outraged parents have demanded increased security, including the use of guards, surveillance cameras and metal detectors.

But increasingly, educators, school security officials and students are calling that approach too narrow. They say over-reliance on high-tech security tactics won't keep schools safe in the long run.

"Surveillance cameras, lights, metal detectors, dope dogs running through the halls, gun-sniffing dogs running through the halls — all these things can be effective," said Capt. Chuck Brawner of the Spring Branch school district police department in suburban Houston.

"Armed police officers can be effective. But without other programs, what good are they?"

Since the 1993 school year began, a number of violent incidents have erupted at Texas schools.

In Houston, a food fight turned into a melee, with five teachers and several students hurt, 10 students arrested and a pair of brass knuckles confiscated. In Marshall, Texas, deputies nabbed a 17-year-old who paid $10 for the gun and 11 bullets he brought to school to retaliate against two teens who'd beaten him.

In Dallas, a 15-year-old was shot to death steps away from the school office; another high school student was stabbed in a campus hallway.

School officials say they know parents want quick action. Often that means buying something tangible.

"It's a field day right now for the alarm and metal detector people. Metal detectors are a very glitzy kind of thing, but they don't work" as a total solution, said Peter Blauvelt, head of school security in Prince George's County, Md., and chairman of the National Association of School Safety and Law Enforcement Officers.

Dallas Independent School District Superintendent Chad Woolery announced a plan last week to buy about 200 walk-through metal detectors at $2,300 apiece.

Nearly 50 school districts in Texas now have full-time police departments, and countless others use city officers on campus.

Despite the districts' show of force, educators and police say they know that a student intent on bringing something deadly to school can sneak it in through a side entrance or window.

The students know, too.

"Anyone can still get a gun in," said Sherida Thomas, a freshman at Kimball High in Dallas. She suggested that school officials search every student each time they enter a school, but acknowledged that it would be impossible.

NRA advertisements target women in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The women's National Rifle Association has fired the first round in a national campaign that urges women to protect themselves from attack, but some are criticizing the group's efforts.

Houston, Miami and Washington, D.C., are test markets for the "Refuse to be a Victim" campaign that consists of TV and magazine advertisements.

The ads show a frightened woman towing a young girl through a darkened parking garage. "If you don't have a plan, you don't have a chance," the magazine ads warns.

The campaign, which continues through November, seems to have hit a nerve among some women.

"It's about time we had somewhere to go," said Sugar Land resident Valerie Griffith. "The damn criminals have always had a better chance than we did."

But critics charge that the NRA's campaign feeds women's fears with inadequate information and a disregard for the true nature of violence against them.

Last week, more than 25 women members of Congress urged the NRA to stop running the ad.

Rep. Nita Lowey, D-N.Y., said Friday the ad is "a veiled attempt by the NRA to add new members and promote gun ownership by preying on women's legitimate fears of violence. Women who fear crime must not be cynically exploited as an untapped market."

The NRA insists it is not telling women to get guns.

"Handguns are mentioned as an option," said Tanya Metaksa, chairwoman of the NRA's Women's Police Committee. "But we mention a lot of tools and devices and talk about the pros and cons of each one."

The campaign, aimed at getting more women into the NRA's fold, signals the first step in the group's image rehabilitation announced in September. The organization has been losing ground in Congress and has been battling public perception as a pro-violence lunatic fringe group.

Women who respond to the ads get a pamphlet in the mail and a chance to take a three-hour, $20 course given almost every weekend. The class discusses how women can protect themselves in everyday situations.

Texas courtroom focuses on California school system

AUSTIN (NYT) — As arguments swirled last week around money for schools and soaring property taxes, the eyes of a Texas courtroom focused warily on California.

Regardless of what side they were on, lawyers and witnesses in a school-finance trial agreed on one axiom: Texas schools should not end up like those in California.

Public school officials in that state acknowledge that their system, once a beacon for education in America, no longer has the libraries, art and music teachers, counselors, nurses, small classes and special courses that it boasted during the halcyon 1960s.

California schools are attempting to maintain high standards while struggling under the under the weight of a sour economy, a property-tax revolt, an increase in non-English speaking students and a school-finance law that limits spending on students. That limit was set to wipe out differences among rich and poor school districts.

A combination of those factors has caused many wealthy families to flee to private schools. In November, California voters will decide whether to grant a $2,600 voucher for every student to put toward tuition at a private school.

"The only difference between us and the Titanic," said Tod Likins, a California school superintendent, "is the Titanic had a band."

Texas, which also has experienced an economic downturn and increased immigration, has been debating unequal student spending for 25 years, just as long as California has.

The Texas high court has said that all students, regardless of the taxable property wealth in their communities, deserve equal access to a decent education.

But a solution has proved difficult to find in Texas, where the state has shifted more education costs to property taxes, which account for at least 52 percent of all school funding. The state's supreme court has struck down funding schemes three times since 1989. And now, rich and poor districts alike are suing the state over the new law, approved in May.

Seminole man dies in accident on Highway 18 near Monahans

MONAHANS — A Seminole man died early Sunday morning in a fatal one-vehicle accident when the pickup he was driving struck a guardrail and vaulted off a bridge, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesman.

Stephen Ray Bolding, 21, was pronounced dead on the scene at 7:15 a.m. by a justice of the peace.

The accident occurred at 5:30 a.m. 18 miles south of Monahans on state Highway 18 near the Pecos-Ward County Line.

Phantom Ball benefits March of Dimes

By Linda Anderson
Staff writer

Vampires, werewolves and skeletons were at ClayDesta Atrium Saturday night — but so were Batman, Raggedy Ann and Andy, various football players and cheerleaders, a referee with a cane (the ref is always blind, after all), a few Coneheads, Edward Scissorhands, the Phantom of the Opera and even a couple of M&Ms.

The occasion was the Phantom Ball and Casino Party, a benefit for the March of Dimes. Included in the event were a silent auction, door prizes, costume contest, casino games including black jack, roulette and craps, and a raffle sponsored by American Airlines. A fajita buffet was provided by Bless Your Heart, and music for dancing was by Masterpeace from Lubbock, from Wemus Entertainment.

Tracy Shock (dressed as Raggedy Ann), Permian Basin division director, said that 300 to 400 people were expected to attend the event, and many of them got into the "spirit" of the event by dressing up in costume.

But as much fun as the benefit was, the cause it supports is a serious one. "The March of Dimes' mission is to prevent birth defects through research, education, advocacy and community service," Ms. Shock said. "In order to do this, we do fund raisers.

"I'd like to see at least $20,000 (raised) out of this evening."

The Permian Basin benefits from the work of the March of Dimes, she said. "Locally, we provide grants for local organizations," including Midland Health Care Clinic, which works with pregnant women who have gestational diabetes, and child birth education programs.

"The hospital recently purchased some equipment for their neonatal intensive care, level II," Ms. Shock said, "and a grant was funded in Alpine to update their newborn nursery."

Like many other charitable organizations, the March of Dimes relies on the work of volunteers. In fact, the work of the organization "couldn't be possible without the volunteers," Ms. Shock said.

Ellen and Lance Friday put on sweet costumes as a pair of M&M chocolate candies at Saturday night's Phantom Ball, a benefit for March of Dimes.

The decorations, which included gold pumpkins wearing masks and top hats, and black balloons, were provided by the volunteers, she added.

The silent auction items included jewelry and gem stones, gift certificates, dinners, a family portrait, autographed photos of several celebrities, golf items and scuba lessons.

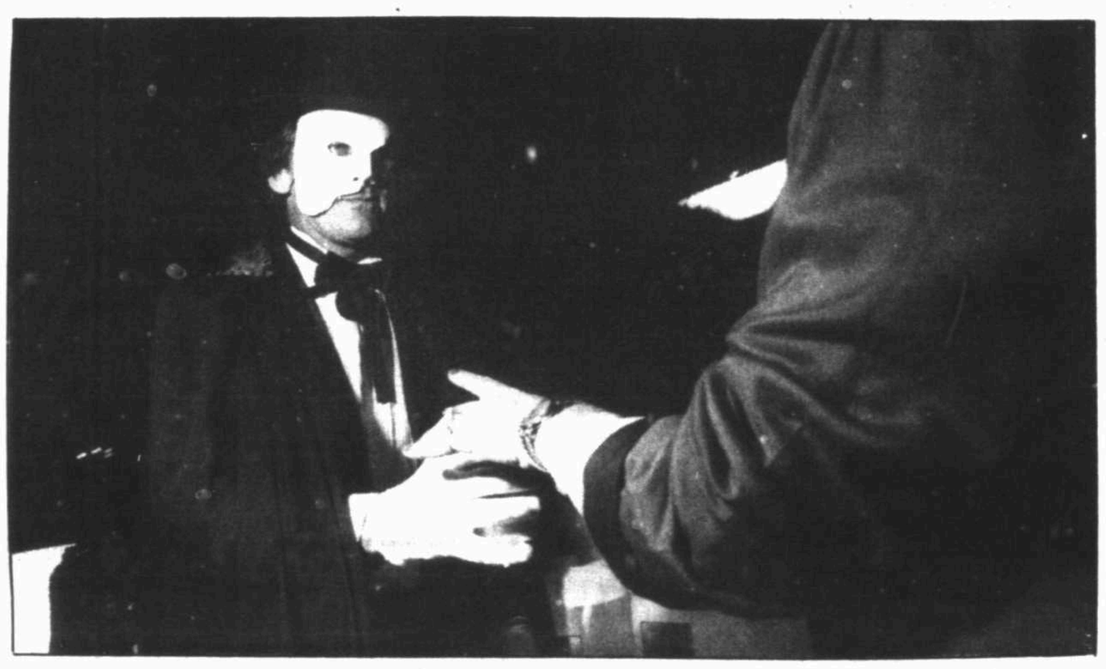

Sponsors included Basin Pure Ice Co.; ClayDesta Corp.; Permian Distributing Inc.; Newman Outdoor Advertising Inc.; Michael Courter, DDS; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ingram; Allega Travel; Ken's Rent-It center; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Long III; Too Tanked Taxi; Jim and Sandy Alsup; Virginia Berry; Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Craig Jr.; Lynn D. Durham; Marianne and Will Green; Niran and Polly Kellogg; Elizabeth Locker; Mr. and Mrs. R.O. Williams; Albertsons Inc. on Wadley and Midland Drive; Devin Alsup; City Transfer-Richard and Judy Shelburn; Lance Evans-Farmers Insurance; Laura Ingram-State Farm Insurance; KGEE FM 100; KNFM/KNMD Radio; KODM; Newnie Ellis Funeral Home; NewsWest 9; The Rock Reproduction; Texas Commerce Bank-Midland; and Wal-Mart Discount Cities.

Board members are Wendi Evans, Phantom Ball chairman; Robert Holton, chairman; Kathy Farned, secretary; Devin Alsup, Janet Carpenter, Lance Evans, Rhonda S. Martinez, Mitch Smith, Donna Walton, Cindy Belvedere, Loree Clay, Cary Griggs, Rita Pingel, Vonda Walker and Lee Wood, members; Ms. Shock, Permian Basin division director; and Kim King, Northwest Texas chapter director.

Battle bugs, but safely

Associated Press

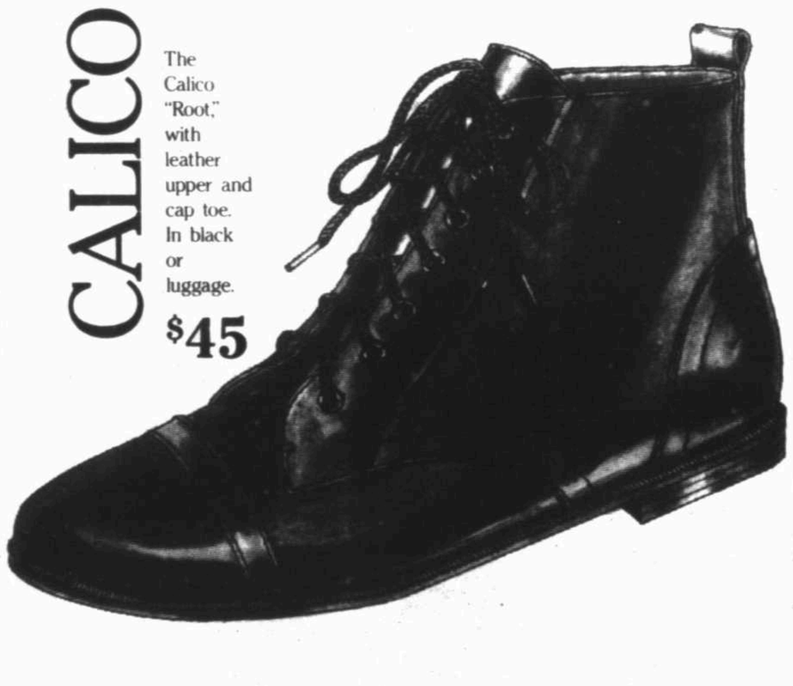

There are many ways to fight the battle of the bugs, including organic and inorganic methods. If you choose to use pesticides, Garden, Deck & Landscape Planner magazine says to follow some general guidelines for the safety of you, your family and your yard.

- Choose the proper product. Read labels carefully before you buy. Most garden chemicals are safe and effective if used as directed. Buy only what you need and share leftovers with a friend rather than discard the chemicals.
- Store chemicals in their original containers with the labels intact and legible. If stored properly, most pest-control substances will be effective the following season, so you don't need to throw leftover chemicals away.
- Tighten lids on liquid containers. Paper bags and boxes containing dust, granules or wettable powders should be closed and resealed with tape. Dry products can also be stored, container and all, in a clean, sealable plastic bag.
- Lock pesticides in a cabinet or storage room. This area should be separate from food supplies and protected from freezing temperatures or extreme heat.
- Dispose of pesticides with damaged containers. Never save empty containers. Check to see if your area has an authorized method of pesticide disposal. Your refuse-disposal agency can guide you.
- Do not put empty containers in an outdoor trash receptacle unless you have a dependable pickup service. Make sure animals and kids can't get at containers.
- Carefully mutilate and puncture plastic and paper containers; puncture and crush empty metal containers, except aerosol containers, which could explode if burned or punctured. To dispose of an empty aerosol can, spray until the can is out of pressure, then throw it away.
- Wrap glass containers in several thick layers of newspaper, tie securely and place in a trash can.
- Do not burn any containers.

Investors expand

Americans' hot romance with foreign stock funds shows no sign of cooling off.

"The American investor has always had an interest in foreign funds, but it's been heightened," said John Horseman, investment manager of Global Asset Management's International Fund, in a telephone interview from his London office. "As we go into 1994, increasingly, that investor is looking around and putting bigger shares of money outside" the United States.

Witness the popularity of foreign and global stock funds this year. Funds that invest only abroad have taken in $12.3 billion through August, versus $4.1 billion in the comparable period last year, the Investment Company Institute, a trade group, said last week. The funds held $44.2 billion at the end of August, double their level a year earlier.

For global funds — which invest in the United States as well as abroad — the cash inflow more than quadrupled during the first eight months to $5.6 billion from $1.2 billion in the period a year earlier. The global funds' assets rose to $32.2 billion from $18.3 billion during the 12 months ended in August.

Analysts say ...

WASHINGTON (AP) — You see and hear the headlines all the time: Analysts say a company's stock is undervalued ... a company's earnings are disappointing ... a company's woes reflect an industry slump.

Analysts say buy! Analysts say sell!

Who are these guys?

Securities analysts are the men and women at brokerage houses, banks and mutual funds who scrutinize the financial statements of companies, monitor their ups and downs, track industry trends and recommend whether to invest.

Their opinions can impact the price of a company's stock, and that kind of power gives them a lot of influence. Companies often go to great lengths to woo analysts.

Many have advanced degrees in business or economics or have passed the arduous certified public accountant test, but there is no standard measure of competency.

The Association for Investment Management and Research hopes to change that.

The Charlottesville, Va., group, which has been awarding the certification Chartered Financial Analyst since 1963, wants to be the standard-setter for analysts and money managers.

To date, more than 18,500 have been awarded the CFA designation.

Portfolio

While some managers of international funds hang on the German central bank's every move and on the latest trade figures from Japan, J. Mark Mobius tracks a Turkish steelmaker, the telephone company that serves Rio de Janeiro and the Nigerian stock exchange.

Emerging markets are his game. And he's one of the hottest portfolio managers in an area where growth potential is enormous, yet economic and political turmoil is commonplace.

With an office in Hong Kong and a frenetic travel schedule, Mobius directs the Far East division for Templeton Funds and manages emerging markets portfolios, overseeing more than $2 billion.

Save now, not later

Financial future eased if action taken early

By Ribert Luke
N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — Do yourself a favor.

Don't be the one to lament: "If I'd only known then what I know now . . ."

How secure a retirement you'll have depends on decisions you make now on where to invest your hard-earned dollars in employer-sponsored 401(k) plans.

If you're like most people, about 25 percent of your retirement income will have to come from money you're saving and investing now, say experts at Standard & Poor's Corp. Some companies have hired S&P to help their workers decide where to distribute money within their 401(k) plans.

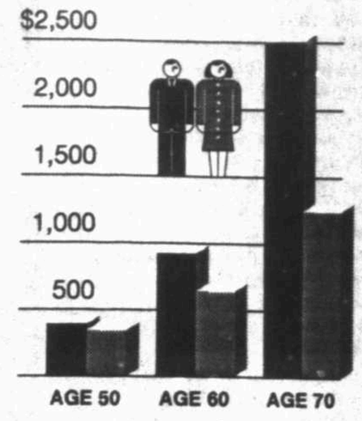

That review will have more relevance this year, because many companies are boosting their menu of investments to meet new Labor Department guidelines, which take effect Jan. 1.

"The new guidelines encourage plans to offer at least three distinct investment options," says W. Boyd Griffin, president of Retirement Advisors Inc. of New York. It publishes 401(k) Dimensions, a newsletter sent to workers to aid their decision-making.

One Atlanta-based company that's expanding its menu is Genuine Parts Co. It now offers only a guaranteed investment account, which pays a specific rate of return over a certain period.

HOW THEY DO IT

Deciding on a New Mortgage: 15 or 30 Years?

Randy Mazur, 35, owns a construction company, and his wife, Marlene, 33, a financial planning firm. They live on a Christmas tree farm in Colts Neck, N.J., with their three children, aged 8, 9 and 11.

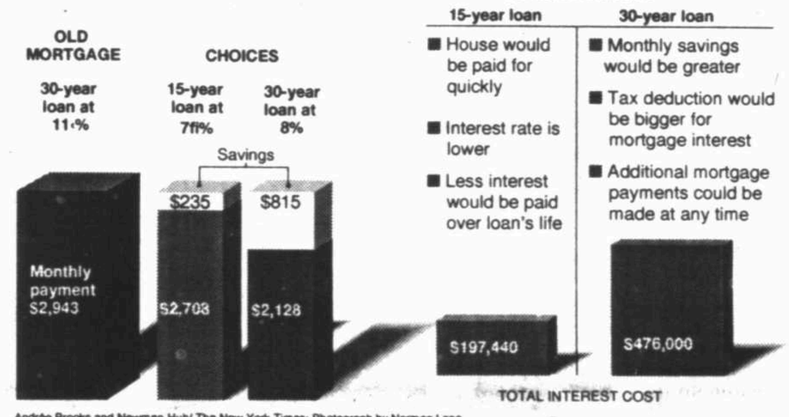

Until August, they were carrying a 30-year mortgage taken out in 1986 at an interest rate of a whopping 11⅜ percent. With today's low rates, it was time to refinance. The Mazurs decided to consider a 15-year loan, keeping in mind that they must plan for their children's future college costs.

THE HOUSE

CONSIDERATIONS

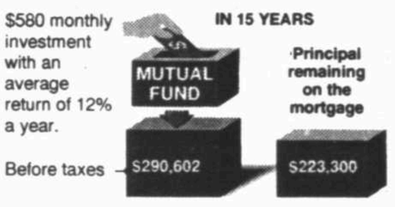

15-year loan	30-year loan
■ House would be paid for quickly	■ Monthly savings would be greater
■ Interest rate is lower	■ Tax deduction would be bigger for mortgage interest
■ Less interest would be paid over loan's life	■ Additional mortgage payments could be made at any time

Andrée Brooks and Newman Huh/ The New York Times; Photograph by Norman Lono

CONCLUSION
The Mazurs rejected the 15-year loan in favor of the 30-year loan. They are placing the $580 monthly difference between the two loan payments in a mutual fund to help pay for future college costs. And if they lose business or encounter some other emergency, they can draw on the savings easily.

"I'd rather have the liquid money available," Mrs. Mazur said. "And at today's rates you should be borrowing for as long as possible."

Identical names a problem

■ In credit card scams, having the same first and last names as someone else can create headaches.

By Sau Chan
Associated Press Writer

Consider this nightmare: You apply for credit to finance a house, a car, or even an education, but the bank rejects you because somebody went on a mega-shopping spree in your name.

That's what happened to Stephen J. Shaw of Washington and Steven M. Shaw of Brandon, Fla.

"I found out when I was applying for a low interest rate credit card. The processor said, 'You have a lot of loans out,' and asked, 'When did you move to Florida?' " Stephen J. Shaw, 39, said in a telephone interview.

When he got a copy of his credit history, he said it showed almost $100,000 worth of transactions he never enjoyed: auto loans, credit-card loans, personal bank loans, plane tickets, and tabs for home-entertainment systems, computers, clothes, furniture, cellular phones and a host of other goodies.

"I found out when I got a call from AT&T Universal MasterCard, saying I owed them about $10,000," Steven M. Shaw, 36, said from Florida.

He said his credit report showed a debt of almost $80,000. Like his namesake, he found the charges were made on about 30 credit card and checking accounts opened in his name.

Both were victims of a credit scam run by 35-year-old Steven Shaw, an Orlando, Fla., car salesman who used his company's computer to peruse the database of a credit-reporting agency. At his fingertips was personal information on just about anybody he chose: past addresses and employers, Social Security numbers, credit card numbers, mortgage information, bank accounts and any other data that normally appear on credit reports.

He called each man on the pretext of running a contest, got additional personal information and opened accounts in both men's names, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Turner of Orlando. Steven Shaw succeeded in his scams for almost three years, Turner said.

Gearing up for computerized trading

By Allen R. Myerson
N.Y. Times News Service

Computerized trading and research, long the domain of Wall Street money managers, has become democratic. A host of computer data services lets smaller investors join in.

Getting to know the services — Compuserve, Dow Jones, Prodigy, Genie and America On-Line — can be like scanning a large crowd at a party. Dizzying, but one or two are bound to make staying in touch worthwhile.

As in most friendships, a casual acquaintance with these services takes little commitment but provides few rewards. Most have reasonable monthly charges that cover things like simple stock quotes, but they offer more powerful features to those committing more time and money. In a ferociously competitive industry, many change their fee structures as often as airlines change their fares.

To get started, you will need a modest personal computer and a modem, which lets computers talk over the phone, or on-line. Many of these services also require free or relatively cheap software. The basic, DOS software versions are reviewed here. The Windows versions are easier on the user but demand a more muscular computer. A host of mutual fund groups and brokerage firms, including Fidelity and Schwab, have their own software and on-line services.

Most of the independent services offer electronic bulletin boards, computer games, shopping and other uses besides investing. Some are more like toys than tools. Compuserve and Prodigy can be fun but also business-like, while Dow Jones emphasizes investing. Genie and America On-Line are more like the handsome, nattily dressed party animals whose friends don't always look for intellectual stimulation or professional advantage.

Compuserve has enough financial offerings to fill a 362-page guide. The $8.95 fee for unlimited use at any hour covers only the basic services: stock quotes, mortgage calculations and mutual fund records and rankings.

Other resources, like investment forums or Associated Press business news, usually cost $8 an hour, plus surcharges for stock charts ($1 each) and news searches ($1.50 an article). Special software can help minimize hourly charges.

For stock trading, users can choose Quick & Reilly, a discount broker, or E-trade, which is incredibly cheap. Buying or selling 500 shares at $60 each through E-trade costs $35, compared with $128 on Quick & Reilly, $166 on Schwab and $457 through a live person at Merrill Lynch.

Dow Jones Market Monitor has no games, no splashy graphics, no electronic shopping mall. It's like the serious, sober person who can be fascinating if you share his business interests,

Widows and social security

Q. What is the earliest age at which a widow without minor children can begin collecting Social Security benefits based on her husband's earnings?
— ROBERTA CASPER, Commack, N.Y.

A. For a spouse to be eligible for widow's benefits on a deceased worker's record, certain conditions must be met. Among them: the deceased worker must have earned enough Social Security work credits to entitle the widow to monthly payments, and the widow must have been married to the deceased worker for at least nine months before his death.

If all the conditions are met, the earliest that monthly benefit payments can begin is age 60, or age 50 if the widow is disabled. A divorced widow can generally qualify for benefits if she was married to the deceased worker for 10 years before they were divorced.

"The amount of the monthly widow benefit is based on the level of earnings of the deceased worker and the age of the widow at the time monthly benefits are elected," said Lawrence H. Thompson, the Acting Commissioner of Social Security.

To collect these benefits, the widow must not be entitled to equal or higher retirement benefits through her own work record. She also cannot remarry until she turns 60, or age 50 if she is disabled.

Gifts to family members

Q. Can a tax-free gift of up to $10,000 be made to any family member or only to your children?
— BARBARA HURST, Whiting, N.J.

A. An annual gift of as much as $10,000 can be made to any person, family member or not, without paying a gift tax. Such a gift does not affect your lifetime $600,000 exemption for estate and gift tax purposes.

A husband and a wife can each give up to $10,000 a year to as many people as they want. And as a result of certain gift-splitting provisions in the Internal Revenue Code, the entire $20,000 can come from only one of them, instead of $10,000 gifts from each.

"Significant estate and gift tax savings can be made by making $10,000 annual gifts," said David Gerson, a partner of Ernst & Young. "But as each Dec. 31 passes, you lose the annual exclusion for that year."

Retirement money abroad

Q. Can I receive distributions from my 401(k) plan if I am living in a foreign country?
— Francesco F. Bartolomeo, Brooklyn

A. Yes. In fact, you may be able to begin distributions from your 401(k) account earlier than if you were a resident of the United States.

Distributions normally begin when someone reaches 59½, becomes disabled, leaves the company that established the plan or dies. But distributions may begin earlier in case of a hardship.

"Simply living abroad isn't considered a hardship, but the move might cause you to have an 'immediate and heavy' financial need without any other reasonably available resources," said John F. Woyke, a principal of Towers Perrin. "In this case, the plan could make a hardship distribution."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Selling your home

By Bill Doyle

Q: I lost my husband last year at age 52. I am all alone, very lonely and want to sell my home, which is too big for me. But I don't want to wait until I am 55 to sell in order to avoid paying tax.

Doyle

My home was appraised recently at $120,000. I want to buy a small Florida condominium unit for about $70,000. How much tax would I have to pay on a $40,000 capital gain?

A: If you have a $40,000 capital gain, you will owe the Internal Revenue Service $11,200, 28 percent of the capital gain. But that's a mighty big IF, as your letter does not indicate how you would have a $40,000 capital gain.

A capital gain is the profit from the sale of real estate, stock or any other "capital asset." When you sell your home, that profit is the difference between the proceeds from the sale and your house's basis -- cost for tax purposes.

To figure the sale proceeds, you subtract selling expenses, including real estate commission, from the price at which you sell. Your basis is the price at which you bought plus the cost of any additions and improvements.

You need to calculate your sale proceeds, your basis and the difference between those two numbers to arrive at the profit from the sale.

A long-term capital gain -- on a capital asset owned for more than one year -- is taxed at 28 percent if you are in a 28 percent or higher federal income tax bracket, as would be the case if you realize a $40,000 profit on the sale of your house.

By holding off on the sale until you reach age 55, you would be able to take the once-in-a-lifetime capital gains tax exclusion on up to $125,000 on the profit from the sale of the house, assuming you have owned and lived in it as your main home for at least three of the five years prior to the sale.

In your case, that would eliminate all capital gains tax liability.

From the tone of your letter, my advice is to sell and live happily in the condo you have your eye on.

Q: I am planning to marry. Both my future wife and I are widowed and older than 55.

She plans to sell her home before we marry and will take the $125,000 exclusion from capital gains tax on the sale. After we are married, at some future date, I may want to sell my home, which will be in my name only and where we will live.

Will I then be able to take the $125,000 exclusion?

A: No. Because you will be married when your home is sold, you will not be allowed to exclude the gain unless your spouse joins you in making that choice. The rules are firm on that point. Both spouses must join in the choice to take that exclusion.

And, since she would already have taken the once-in-a-lifetime exclusion, she won't be able to do it again -- even though the house is in your name alone.

For each of you to legitimately take the exclusion, you'd have to sell both houses before you wed.

Q: When partial prepayments are made on a mortgage, are the payments deducted from the front of the loan, when the unpaid balance is high, or the back of the loan, when the balance is nearing zero?

A: Prepayments are deducted from the mortgage principal -- the unpaid balance of the loan. Each prepayment lowers that balance and the interest that has to be paid on the balance that remains.

As a result, you can greatly reduce the total interest paid.

SAVE: Put back at least 5 percent of gross per year

(From 1B)

But next year, the 10,000 workers who participate in the company's plan also will be able to pick a balanced fund that invests in both stocks and bonds, and a growth stock fund.

The company will continue to match up to 20 percent of an employee's contribution in Genuine Parts stock.

Boosted by such company contributions, the amounts accumulating in 401(k) plans are staggering. By 2000, assets are expected to balloon to $1.25 trillion from $410 billion last year, according to Access Research Inc., which tracks the plans.

"Over the next decade, the discretionary and highly visible account balances in these plans will represent the largest single asset for many employees — even larger than their home equity value," Access Research predicts.

And how big a nest-egg you eventually accumulate will depend on choices you make now.

Standard & Poor's experts cite five common mistakes plan participants make:

- Contributing too little, too late.
- Investing too conservatively.
- Putting all your eggs in one basket.
- Switching funds often to chase the best returns.
- Withdrawing money prematurely.

Generally speaking, how much and where you invest depends on your age, investment goals, years to retirement, tolerance for risk and financial circumstances.

There's no magic formula. But if you're young — such as Laura Basti, a 25-year-old computer systems analyst at Southern Co. in Atlanta — you can afford to take more risk by emphasizing stocks.

Basti contributes 6 percent of her base pay into Southern Co.'s 401(k) plan because that's the maximum amount the company will match.

A third of her contributions go into a fixed-income fund that invests primarily in bonds and certificates of deposit. Another third is invested in stocks that comprise the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index. And the rest is invested in Southern Co. stock.

The company matches her contribution, which also is invested in Southern Co. stock.

"As far as risk, I wanted to spread it out," says Basti, who lives in Alpharetta with her husband, Jeff, a pharmaceutical sales representative.

Most 401(k) plan participants are very conservative, preferring only "safe," less volatile investments, such as money market funds and guaranteed investment accounts.

But in avoiding market risk, they assume another kind of risk: the loss of purchasing power because of inflation. Most conservative investments don't provide much of a cushion against inflation.

TRADE: Basic fee will bring breaking news

(From 1B)

Computerized trading and research, long the domain of Wall Street money managers, has become democratic. A host of computer data services lets smaller investors join in.

Getting to know the services — Compuserve, Dow Jones, Prodigy, Genie and America On-Line — can be like scanning a large crowd at a party. Dizzying, but one or two are bound to make staying in touch worthwhile.

As in most friendships, a casual acquaintance with these services takes little commitment but provides few rewards. Most have reasonable monthly charges that cover things like simple stock quotes, but they offer more powerful features to those committing more time and money. In a ferociously competitive industry, many change their fee structures as often as airlines change their fares.

To get started, you will need a modest personal computer and a modem, which lets computers talk over the phone, or on-line. Many of these services also require free or relatively cheap software.

Officials: Gadgets alone won't protect schools

DALLAS (AP) — As school violence escalates, outraged parents have demanded increased security, including the use of guards, surveillance cameras and metal detectors.

But increasingly, educators, school security officials and students are calling that approach too narrow. They say over-reliance on high-tech security tactics won't keep schools safe in the long run.

"Surveillance cameras, lights, metal detectors, dope dogs running through the halls, gun-sniffing dogs running through the halls — all these things can be effective," said Capt. Chuck Brawner of the Spring Branch school district police department in suburban Houston.

"Armed police officers can be effective. But without other programs, what good are they?"

Since the 1993 school year began, a number of violent incidents have erupted at Texas schools.

In Houston, a food fight turned into a melee, with five teachers and several students hurt, 10 students arrested and a pair of brass knuckles confiscated. In Marshall, Texas, deputies nabbed a 17-year-old who paid $10 for the gun and 11 bullets he brought to school to retaliate against two teens who'd beaten him.

In Dallas, a 15-year-old was shot to death steps away from the school office; another high school student was stabbed in a campus hallway.

School officials say they know parents want quick action. Often that means buying something tangible.

"It's a field day right now for the alarm and metal detector people. Metal detectors are a very glitzy kind of thing, but they don't work" as a total solution, said Peter Blauvelt, head of school security in Prince George's County, Md., and chairman of the National Association of School Safety and Law Enforcement Officers.

Dallas Independent School District Superintendent Chad Woolery announced a plan last week to buy about 200 walk-through metal detectors at $2,300 apiece.

Nearly 50 school districts in Texas now have full-time police departments, and countless others use city officers on campus.

Despite the districts' show of force, educators and police say they know that a student intent on bringing something deadly to school can sneak it in through a side entrance or window.

The students know, too.

"Anyone can still get a gun in," said Sherida Thomas, a freshman at Kimball High in Dallas. She suggested that school officials search every student each time they enter a school, but acknowledged that it would be impossible.

NRA advertisements target women in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The women's National Rifle Association has fired the first round in a national campaign that urges women to protect themselves from attack, but some are criticizing the group's efforts.

Houston, Miami and Washington, D.C., are test markets for the "Refuse to be a Victim" campaign that consists of TV and magazine advertisements.

The ads show a frightened woman towing a young girl through a darkened parking garage. "If you don't have a plan, you don't have a chance," the magazine ads warns.

The campaign, which continues through November, seems to have hit a nerve among some women.

"It's about time we had somewhere to go," said Sugar Land resident Valerie Griffith. "The damn criminals have always had a better chance than we did."

But critics charge that the NRA's campaign feeds women's fears with inadequate information and a disregard for the true nature of violence against them.

Last week, more than 25 women members of Congress urged the NRA to stop running the ad.

Rep. Nita Lowey, D-N.Y., said Friday the ad is "a veiled attempt by the NRA to add new members and promote gun ownership by preying on women's legitimate fears of violence. Women who fear crime must not be cynically exploited as an untapped market."

The NRA insists it is not telling women to get guns.

"Handguns are mentioned as an option," said Tanya Metaksa, chairwoman of the NRA's Women's Police Committee. "But we mention a lot of tools and devices and talk about the pros and cons of each one."

The campaign, aimed at getting more women into the NRA's fold, signals the first step in the group's image rehabilitation announced in September. The organization has been losing ground in Congress and has been battling public perception as a pro-violence lunatic fringe group.

Women who respond to the ads get a pamphlet in the mail and a chance to take a three-hour, $20 course given almost every weekend. The class discusses how women can protect themselves in everyday situations.

Texas courtroom focuses on California school system

AUSTIN (NYT) — As arguments swirled last week around money for schools and soaring property taxes, the eyes of a Texas courtroom focused warily on California.

Regardless of what side they were on, lawyers and witnesses in a school-finance trial agreed on one axiom: Texas schools should not end up like those in California.

Public school officials in that state acknowledge that their system, once a beacon for education in America, no longer has the libraries, art and music teachers, counselors, nurses, small classes and special courses that it boasted during the halcyon 1960s.

California schools are attempting to maintain high standards while struggling under the under the weight of a sour economy, a property-tax revolt, an increase in non-English speaking students and a school-finance law that limits spending on students. That limit was set to wipe out differences among rich and poor school districts.

A combination of those factors has caused many wealthy families to flee to private schools. In November, California voters will decide whether to grant a $2,600 voucher for every student to put toward tuition at a private school.

"The only difference between us and the Titanic," said Tod Likins, a California school superintendent, "is the Titanic had a band."

Texas, which also has experienced an economic downturn and increased immigration, has been debating unequal student spending for 25 years, just as long as California has.

The Texas high court has said that all students, regardless of the taxable property wealth in their communities, deserve equal access to a decent education.

But a solution has proved difficult to find in Texas, where the state has shifted more education costs to property taxes, which account for at least 52 percent of all school funding. The state's supreme court has struck down funding schemes three times since 1989. And now, rich and poor districts alike are suing the state over the new law, approved in May.

Seminole man dies in accident on Highway 18 near Monahans

MONAHANS — A Seminole man died early Sunday morning in a fatal one-vehicle accident when the pickup he was driving struck a guardrail and vaulted off a bridge, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesman.

Stephen Ray Bolding, 21, was pronounced dead on the scene at 7:15 a.m. by a justice of the peace.

The accident occurred at 5:30 a.m. 18 miles south of Monahans on state Highway 18 near the Pecos-Ward County Line.

Jurors assemble for retrial in case of paid assassin

HOUSTON (AP) — The capital murder retrial of Allen Wayne Janecka, a pipefitter who allegedly had a profitable sideline as a paid assassin, is scheduled to begin this week.

Twelve jurors and an alternate have been picked and about 40 defense motions have been heard during the past several weeks in State District Judge Woody Densen's court. The trial is set to begin today.

The latest motion, rejected Friday, sought to abort the trial on grounds of double jeopardy — that Janecka is being prosecuted twice for the same offense. Defense attorney Doug Pettit said Janecka will plead innocent based soley on the double jeopardy issue.

Janecka, 43, is charged in the 1979 slaying of 14-month-old Kevin Wanstrath. He spent 13 years on death row before his 1980 conviction and death sentence were overturned because of a defective indictment.

Janecka won his appeal because the original indictment failed to say who paid him to kill the young boy. He is only being tried for Kevin Wanstrath's murder.

Just before being executed June 29, the infant's uncle, Markham Duff-Smith, admitted to being the "low sinner of sinners" who sponsored that murder — along with those of his sister, Diana Wanstrath, and her husband, John.

Duff-Smith said Janecka also had been hired to carry out the 1975 strangling of his mother, Gertrude Duff-Smith Zabolio, 60.

The motive for all the killings was Duff-Smith's hope of increasing his inheritance.

Mattox plans Senate race, supporters say

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has told some longtime supporters he plans to run next year for the U.S. Senate seat held by Kay Bailey Hutchison.

Mattox, who has not publicly announced his intentions, longed to enter the special Senate election Mrs. Hutchison won last June. But he backed out after Democratic Party leaders spurned him to support Bob Krueger, Gov. Ann Richards' appointee.

Last week in Austin, Mattox gathered a group of supporters to discuss his political plans.

"This is the real thing," one backer told The Houston Post in Sunday's editions. "He's in it to win it."

Mattox, who lost to Richards in a bitter 1990 Democratic runoff, has refused to make a public announcement. But he has said he is shutting down his Austin law practice.

If he won the March 8 primary, Mattox would top a November Democratic ticket including Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and five other major state officeholders.

"There doesn't look to me to be any stumbling blocks," Mattox said.

"I'm moving ahead, feeling comfortable about where I am. It seems to me the grassroots leaders want a strong Democrat to make the race with a statewide constituency, who has the capability to run a statewide campaign. They're looking to me," he said.

The incumbent, meanwhile, faces a Nov. 29 trial. Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, was indicted by a Travis County grand jury Sept. 27 for allegedly using state employees and equipment for personal and political purposes and then covering up evidence of misdeeds during her tenure as state treasurer.

Head-on train collision injures two, derails cars

DUMAS (AP) — Two trains collided head-on in fog and drizzle early Sunday leaving two men injured, and 19 cars derailed.

The two Burlington Northern trains, each with more than 100 cars, collided about 9:45 a.m. about 55 miles north of Amarillo near Dumas, according to a spokeswoman for the Department of Public Safety.

One of the trains had entered the side rail to allow passage of the other train. According to a DPS report, there was insufficient time to throw the switch back after the first train entered the side rail, causing the second train to enter on the same rail.

The first train had four engines and 109 empty coal cars, and the second had four engines and 117 loaded coal cars.

The collision derailed six engines and 13 cars, and three of the engines caught fire after the collision, the spokeswoman said.

David Gearhart of Swink, Colo., 58, suffered neck injuries and was taken to the hospital by helicopter, the spokeswoman said.

He was listed in serious condition, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Stewart H. Trout of La Junta, Colo., was treated and released at Dumas Memorial Hospital Sunday.

Most of Sunday, traffic was diverted away from Highway 287.

UTEP fires Lee

EL PASO — David Lee, his team coming off a fifth straight loss, was fired Sunday as football coach at Texas-El Paso and replaced by defensive coordinator Charlie Bailey

The Miners dropped to 1-6 after a 45-29 defeat Saturday night to Utah. Their record last year was 1-10.

Athletic director John Thompson said Lee will be assigned to other duties in the athletic department.

Lee had a record of 11-41-1 in five seasons at UTEP, his best year coming in 1991 at 4-7-1.

"He's a very good recruiter and a hard worker," said Eddie Mullens, UTEP sports information director. "He just didn't get it turned around, unfortunately."

Weber signs

OAKLAND, Calif. — Chris Webber, the No. 1 choice in the NBA draft who is recovering from an appendectomy, signed a long-term contract with the Golden State Warriors.

The team said the contract was signed Saturday night in Detroit. No terms were announced, but the 6-foot-10 power forward was said to be seeking an eight-year, $50 million deal.

"We are very pleased to have reached an agreement with Chris and look forward to helping him have a long and productive career in a Warriors' uniform," team president Dan Finnane said.

Webber, a former Michigan All-American, was traveling with his family to the San Francisco Bay area Sunday and is to attend a news conference Monday at the Oakland Coliseum.

Phillies even series at 1-1

■ The Philadelphia Phillies got home runs from Jim Eisenreich and Lenny Dykstra to tie their World Series with Toronto at one game apiece.

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

TORONTO — The plan paid off.

The Philadelphia Phillies were determined to make Dave Stewart throw a lot of pitches, to make him throw strikes and to hit them when he did. It all worked to perfection Sunday night.

Jim Eisenreich hit a three-run homer after a pair of walks and Lenny Dykstra later homered in leading the Phillies past the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4 to even the World Series at one game each.

A boneheaded play by the Blue Jays on the bases in the eighth inning helped the Phillies salvage a split and sent the series to Veterans Stadium, where they could have a big edge starting Tuesday night when Danny Jackson faces Toronto's Pat Hentgen.

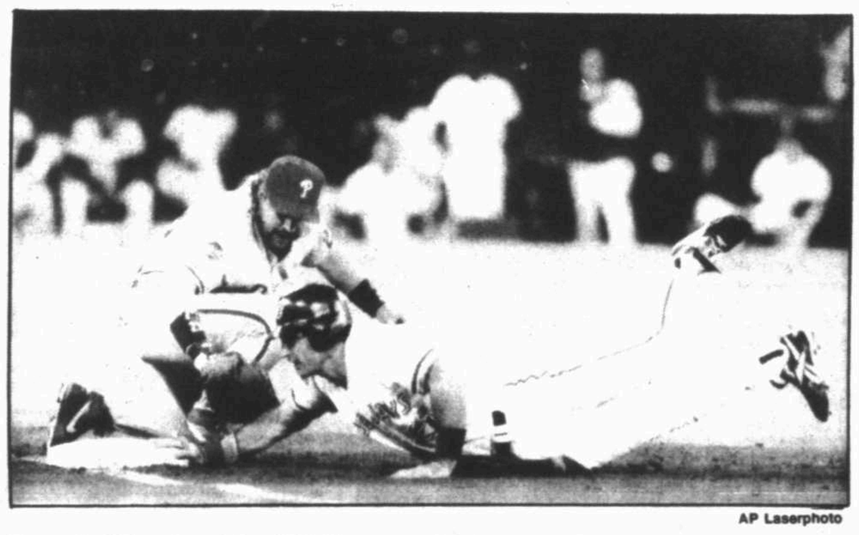

The Blue Jays lose their designated hitter for the next three games, meaning Paul Molitor must either be moved — perhaps sending AL batting champion John Olerud to the bench — or become a pinch hitter.

"It was just a big win," Dykstra said. "Toronto is a great ball club. This team over here in Philadelphia has all the heart and all the character you could ask for."

Terry Mulholland, coming off a loss in his lone start in the NL playoffs, held off the Blue Jays for 5 2-3 innings. He survived a two-run homer by Joe Carter, and relievers Roger Mason and Mitch Williams finished held the lead.

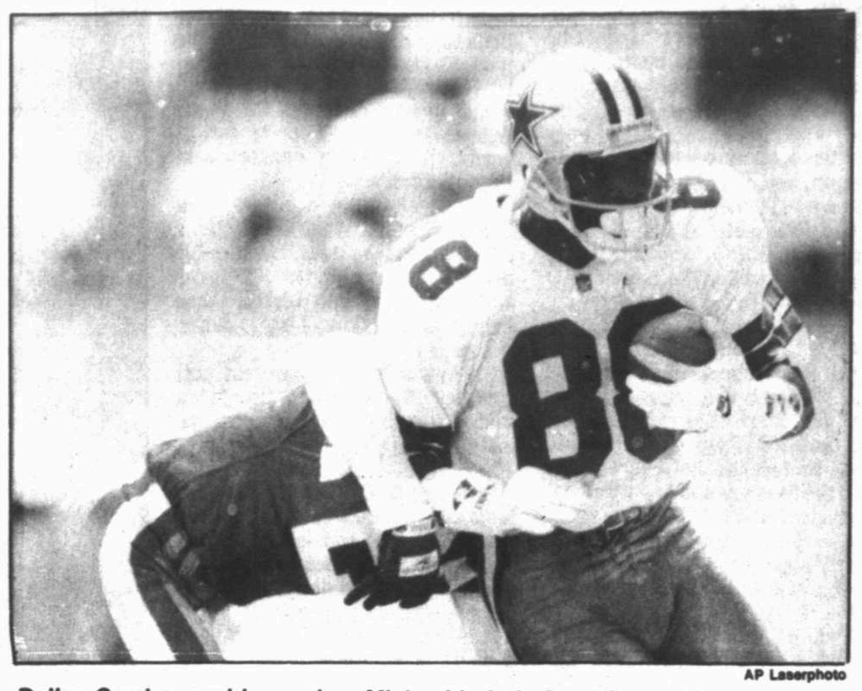

Williams had two wins in the playoffs and pitched 1 2-3 innings for a save. The biggest out he got came without a pitch when Roberto Alomar broke off second base early with two out for whatever reason and was easily thrown out by Williams. As usual, Williams and the Phillies made it tough on themselves in

Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Michael Irvin is forced out of bounds in the second quarter by San Francisco 49ers cornerback Michael McGruder after picking up 16 yards on a pass play Sunday in Texas

Irvin's big day catches 49ers

IRVING — Nine months after the NFC title game between the Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers, nothing has changed.

The Cowboys, who beat the 49ers 30-20 last January and then won the Super Bowl, made the big plays in the second half Sunday for a 26-17 victory over San Francisco.

Michael Irvin caught a career-high 12 passes for 168 yards, including a 36-yard scoring pass from Troy Aikman, and Eddie Murray kicked four field goals as Dallas advanced to 4-2. The 49ers dropped to 3-3.

"It was as big a game as they get," Irvin said. "We were in a hole with two early losses. We had to win it.

"When Troy is on, it's like pitch and catch."

Dallas broke open the NFC title game in Candlestick Park with 13 points in the fourth period and dominated the last 15 minutes on Sunday against the 49ers.

"I figured the game would be won in the fourth quarter," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "We came from behind three times. It says something about our team."

Moon leaves bench to guide Houston

■ Warren Moon follows an NFL trend and comes off the bench to toss two touchdowns to Webster Slaughter as the Oilers get a much-needed win.

By Howard Ulman
AP Sports Writer

FOXBORO, Mass. — Don't pencil the Houston Oilers into the playoffs just because Warren Moon is back at quarterback and their three-game losing streak is over.

The mood was one of relief rather than jubilation after Houston won 28-14 Sunday over a weak New England Patriots team that suffered four sacks, three interceptions and a blocked field goal.

"We didn't shovel any more dirt on top of us," Houston defensive end Sean Jones said. "We were happy that we won the game but obviously it was a game that we had to win ... and a game that we should win."

Moon, benched as the starter for the first time in his 10 NFL seasons, replaced injured Cody Carlson late in the first half and threw two touchdown passes to Webster Slaughter. Carlson said he didn't think he'd be ready for next Sunday's game against Cincinnati.

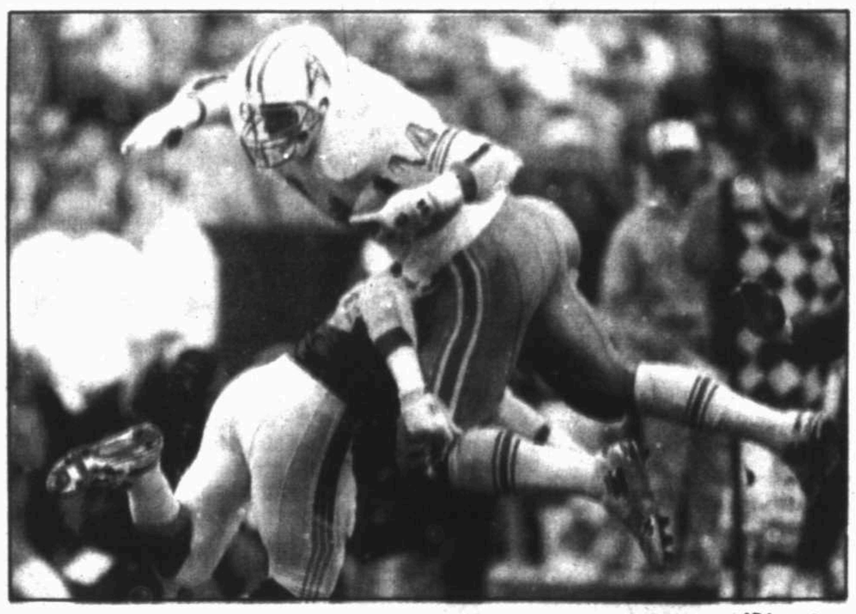

"There are still a lot of things swirling around in my head," Moon said. "I'm still unsure of a lot of things going on around here, but I know we won the game."

Houston (2-4), off to its worst start in seven years, led 14-0 at halftime and 28-7 in the fourth quarter. New England (1-5), which broke a nine-game slide a week earlier, failed with Scott Secules starting his first pro game at quarterback in place of the injured Drew Bledsoe.

Houston wide receiver Haywood Jeffires, who glared and pointed at offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride after being removed on Houston's last series of the first half, had his streak snapped of 53 games with at least one catch.

"It was just a misunderstanding,"

American team wins Dunhill Cup

By Robert Millward
AP Sports Writer

ST ANDREWS, Scotland — After winning the Ryder Cup for nothing, the United States triumphed three weeks later in another team golf tournament. This time the payoff was $450,000.

The American trio of John Daly, Fred Couples and Payne Stewart edged defending champion England on Sunday to win the $1.5 million Dunhill Cup.

Although Stewart shot a 74 to lose by four shots to Mark James, Couples carded a 68 to edge Nick Faldo by a stroke. Daly beat Peter Baker 70-73.

"I'm extremely proud of my team," said Stewart, the United States' captain, who lost both his games in the semifinal and final. "I didn't play that well and I'm thankful I had John Daly and Fred Couples on my team.

"I'm excited about having the United States' name on the trophy again."

In the nine years of the Dunhill Cup, the Americans had won only once previously, when Mark Calcavecchia, Tom Kite and Curtis Strange beat Japan in 1989.

This time Couples tied Calcavec-

Florida State and Notre Dame are heading toward a 1-2 showdown in college football.

■ AP Top 25

Thanks to Alabama's 17-17 tie with Tennessee, Notre Dame moved up to No. 2 in Sunday's Associated Press media poll. The Fighting Irish meet No. 1 Florida State in South Bend, Ind., on Nov. 13.

If they maintain their rankings until then, it will be the first regular-season matchup between the top two teams since No. 2 Miami beat No. 1 Florida State 17-16 on Nov. 16, 1991. Second-ranked Alabama defeated No. 1 Miami 34-13 in the 1993 Sugar Bowl.

Pittsburgh embarrasses Saints

Associated Press

■ NFL Roundup

Undaunted and undefeated heading into Pittsburgh, the New Orleans Saints left Three Rivers Stadium bewildered and beaten.

How could the NFL's last team without a loss look so awful Sunday? The Steelers, digging back into the gloried past of the Steel Curtain, held the Saints to 49 yards rushing — 110 below their average — had five sacks and three interceptions in a 37-14 wipeout. It was the worst loss for the Saints (5-1) since 1990.

"If we're not the NFL's best defense, we're right there," Pittsburgh cornerback Rod Woodson said. "The NFC is supposed to be the black-and-blue conference, and the AFC is supposed to be a finesse conference, but I dare you to play the Steelers and say we're not a physical team."

Elsewhere, it was: Dallas 26, San Francisco 17; Phoenix 36, Washington 6; Kansas City 17, San Diego 14; the New York Giants 21, Philadelphia 10; Cleveland 28, Cincinnati 17; Houston 28, New England 14; and Detroit 30, Seattle 10.

On Monday night the Los Angeles Raiders are at Denver.

Teams with byes this weekend were Buffalo, Miami, Indianapolis, the New York Jets, Tampa Bay, Chicago, Green Bay and Minnesota.

Last Thursday night, Atlanta beat the Los Angeles Rams 30-24.

Steelers 37, Saints 14

Pittsburgh (4-2) won its fourth in a row as its defense never let New Orleans get going. Woodson returned the first of his two interceptions 63 yards for a score to set the tone. Kevin Greene had two sacks.

"We were in his face all day," Woodson said of Saints QB Wade Wilson, who was 6-for-23 for 85 yards. "If I were a quarterback, I'd be intimidated."

The Steelers got two TDs from Barry Foster, who left with a bruised right shoulder. Backup Leroy Thompson ran for 101 yards and Gary Anderson kicked three field goals, making him 11-for-11 this year.

"It was a total 100 percent butt kicking," Saints coach Jim Mora said. "No alibis, no excuses, we just got whipped."

Chiefs 17, Chargers 14

At San Diego, oldtimers Joe Montana and Marcus Allen lifted the Chiefs (5-1) to their best start in 22 years. Montana directed a nine-play, 80-yard drive that Allen capped with a 1-yard run with 1:57 left. Allen also scored on a 15-yard pass from Montana, who was 21-for-39 for 284 yards.

"When your leader doesn't show any signs of concern, why should you?" Allen said.

San Diego (2-4), losers of three in a row and seven straight to Kansas City, went ahead 14-10 on John Friesz's 4-yard pass to Anthony Miller, set up by rookie Darrien Gordon's 54-yard punt return.

Cardinals 36, Redskins 6

Washington (1-5) lost its fifth straight, and for the second time this season to Phoenix (2-4). Defensive lineman Eric Swann set up three scores with key plays as the Cardinals had five sacks, forced four fumbles and recovered three. Swann tackled Reggie Brooks in the end zone for a safety, stripped the ball from QB Mark Rypien and recovered it to set up a field goal, then forced a punt when he got to Rypien again for a sack.

Cardinals running back Garrison Hearst sprained a knee ligament and will be out two to three weeks.

Giants 21, Eagles 10

New York (5-1) took sole possession of first in the NFC East and ended a five-game slide against Philadelphia. Lewis Tillman rushed for a career-high 169 yards subbing for injured Rodney Hampton. It was the most yards for a Giants back in seven years.

"At the beginning of the season, we said we wanted to be in a good position to challenge in the second half of the season," Giants coach Dan Reeves said. "This win put us in that position."

Philadelphia (4-2), which lost quarterback Randall Cunningham to a broken leg in a game at the Meadowlands two weeks ago, saw his backup, Bubby Brister, sprain his right ankle. The Eagles have been ravaged by injuries the last three games.

"We are at the point right now where we are decimated," linebacker Seth Joyner said. "We can't get the job done if you don't have the horses."

Browns 28, Bengals 17

At Cincinnati, Vinny Testaverde made sure his first start as a Brown won't be his last. Replacing the benched Bernie Kosar, Testaverde matched his career high with three touchdown passes. He had only 11 completions.

"Everybody knew he was a little nervous," said receiver Mark Carrier, who played with Testaverde at Tampa. "After that first drive, he was the Vinny of old that I knew."

Testaverde led an 80-yard drive with the opening kickoff and Tommy Vardell scored his first NFL touchdown on a 28-yard screen pass. Then Testaverde found Randy Baldwin for a 5-yard TD and connected with Brian Kinchen for a 1-yard score.

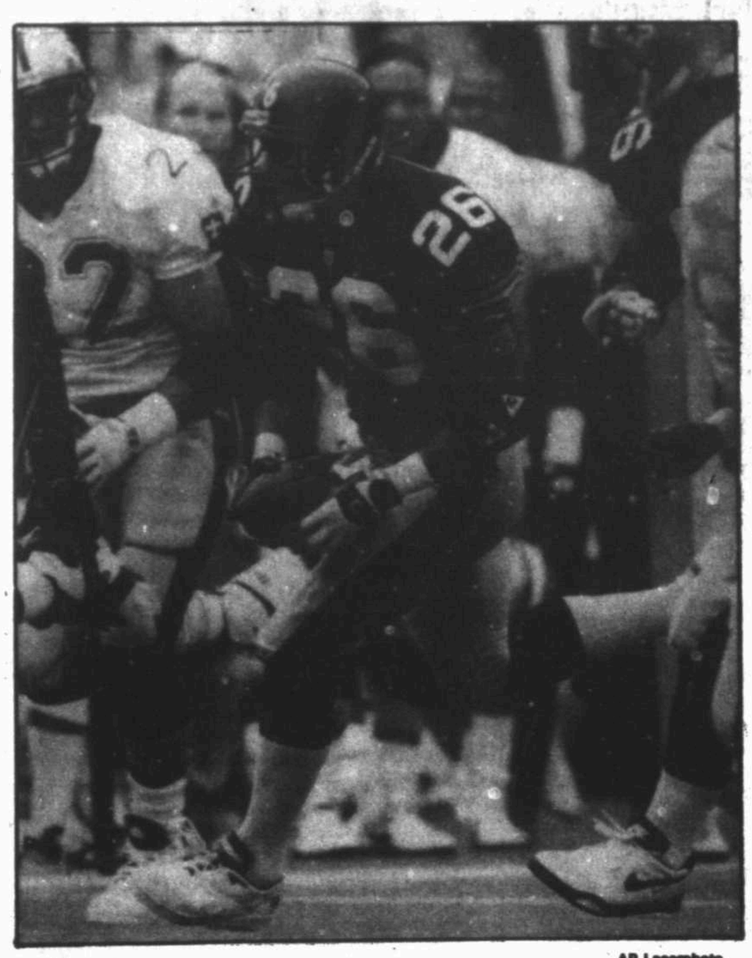

The Browns (4-2) got their first victory at Riverfront Stadium in six years. Cincinnati (0-6) lost quarterback David Klingler with a bruised lower back.

Lions 30, Seahawks 10

Mel Gray, whose fumble set up visiting Seattle's touchdown in the first quarter, had a 95-yard kickoff return and a 35-yard punt runback. Rodney Peete, reinserted as the No. 1 quarterback, completed 14 of 26 passes for 157 yards and TD passes of 13 and 11 yards to Herman Moore for Detroit (4-2). Jason Hanson kicked field goals of 34, 32 and 35 yards for Detroit and Barry Sanders rushed for 101 yards.

"Anytime you can get in a situation like that, where a big return can change the whole excitement of the game, it's great," Gray said. "The whole morale of the ballclub changed on that play. It seemed like our whole intensity got higher."

Seattle (3-3) got 11 tackles and a sack from Rod Stephens.

Haas wins playoff to take Texas Open

■ Golf Roundup

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jay Haas, who birdied the last hole of regulation to force a playoff, sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the second extra hole Sunday to beat Bob Lohr and win the $1 million Texas Open.

Haas birdied both playoff holes for his ninth victory during 17 seasons on the PGA Tour.

"On this course and the way we were playing, I thought I was going to have to birdie 'til dark to win," Haas said.

Haas, who won this tournament in 1982, earned $180,000. That pushed his winnings for the year to $383,832, just about clinching a spot in the season-ending Tour Championship.

Haas and Lohr each had a 7-under-par 64 over the final round, completing 72 holes at Oak Hill Country Club at 21-under 263.

Haas, playing behind Lohr, broke a tie for the lead with a nearly 50-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole. But the lead lasted only seconds. Lohr, playing the 17th at the same time, holed an 85-yard sand wedge shot for an eagle-2 and and jumped ahead.

He parred the last hole and Haas came to the 18th needing a birdie to keep playing. He hit a 6-iron tee shot on the 198-yard par-3 hole to within 20 feet. Haas got a good read off Tom Lehman's longer putt from the same line, then ran in his putt to force extra holes.

Senior Gold Rush

RANCHO MURIETA, Calif. — George Archer birdied the 18th hole to break a three-way tie and win the $600,000 Raley's Senior Gold Rush.

Archer's 3-foot putt gave him a 4-under-par 68 and moved him to 14-under 202 for the 54-hole tournament, one stroke better than Bob Charles and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Archer earned $90,000 with the victory, his third on the Senior PGA Tour this year and his third Gold Rush title. Charles, who had a final-round 68, and Rodriguez, 67, finished at 203 and earned $48,000 each.

Bob Betley came up with a 68 and finished in a four-way tie at 209 with Tom Wargo, 70, and Walter Morgan, 72. Larry Gilbert, J.C. Snead and Larry Ziegler all were at 208.

Playing in the final threesome, Archer, Rodriguez and Charles battled throughout the final round on the 6,685-yard north course at Rancho Murieta Country Club.

Rodriguez, who began the day two strokes behind second-round leader Archer, forged a three-way tie when he made a 5-foot birdie putt on the par-4 17th.

Women's World Championship

NAPLES, Fla. — Dottie Mochrie shot par-72 and took advantage of a final-hole mistake by Donna Andrews for a two-shot victory in the World Championship of Women's Golf.

It was the first victory of the year for Mochrie, who won four times in 1992 and was named LPGA Player of the Year.

Mochrie's four-day total of 5-under-par 283 at the Naples National Golf Club earned her $102,000.

Two strokes back were Andrews, Michelle McGann, Sherri Steinhauer and Meg Mallon, each earning $31,600.

Nancy Lopez finished sixth, followed by Lauri Merten, Betsy King and Brandie Burton.

Nike Tour

CORNELIUS, Ore. — David Duval birdied the last two holes and had a hole in one en route to a 3-under-par 68 to win the $200,000 Nike Tour Championship.

Duval of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., finished at 7-under 277 in the four-day tournament.

Hill comes back to become NHRA champion

ENNIS, Texas — Eddie Hill lost in the first round Sunday but stuck around long enough to become the 1993 NHRA Winston Top Fuel world champion.

Hill, the 57-year-old from Wichita Falls, Texas, was beaten in the first round of the Chief Auto Parts Nationals at the Texas Motorplex. But Scott Kalitta's loss to Mike Dunn in the finals nixed his bid to catch Hill.

"I can't tell you how good it feels," Hill said of his first NHRA Winston Drag Racing Series championship.

"You have to be 57 to know my feelings right now. This is something we've worked for all our adult lives.

Bown breaks streak

■ Advance 500

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Chuck Bown and Steve Grissom snapped out of their losing ways in Sunday's Advance Auto Parts 500. David Green just plain snapped.

Bown broke a 65-race winless streak by holding off Grissom to capture the 300-lap Busch Grand National portion of the double-header at Martinsville Speedway.

With his second-place finish, Grissom once again increased his edge in the 1993 driver standings. Grissom, who had seen his lead over Green dwindle from 167 points to 45 in the previous four races, pushed it to 65 with three events remaining.

Green was fuming after his sixth-place finish. He was running second when he tangled with Grissom on lap 274 and spun out. Green contended Grissom wrecked him. NASCAR officials agreed with Grissom that the incident was nothing more than typical racing on Martinsville's .526-mile, low-banked oval.

Green showed his displeasure on the cool-down lap, when he charged to the front of the pack and rear-ended Grissom's Chevrolet several times.

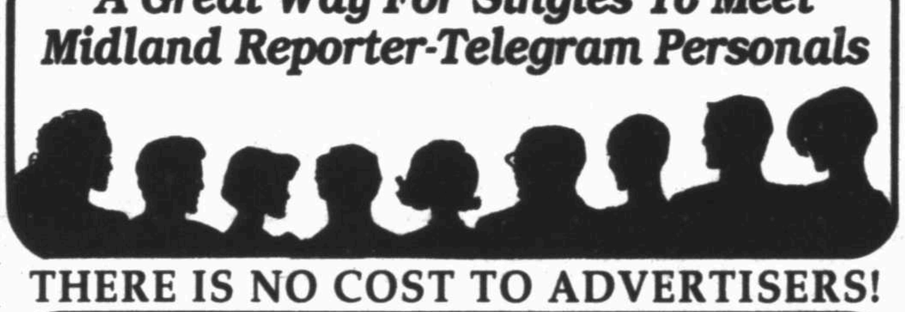

In the day's second event, a 200-lap race for Late Model Stock cars, Mike Buffkin of Yorktown, Va., pulled away over the final 50 laps to win by 3.2 seconds.

Bown, the 1990 Grand National champion, won $17,080 for his 11th career victory, and his first since July 1991.

"We've been having some tough times the last year and a half," he said, "but I think we're getting things back together."

Bown went ahead on lap 256 by taking the low line and edging his Pontiac ahead of Todd Bodine's Chevrolet as the two exited the second turn.

Lendl wins all-U.S. Seiko Super final

TOKYO (AP) — Defending champion Ivan Lendl, avoiding lapses of concentration, overwhelmed Todd Martin in an all-American final Sunday to win the Seiko Super tennis tournament for the fifth time.

It was Lendl's second title in a season during which he has lost nine times in first-round matches.

"You can never relax," Lendl said after a 6-4, 6-4 victory. "You are never in control. You never know when he (Martin) might come back.

Lendl — at 33 the oldest player in the tournament and at ninth the highest seed left after the quarterfinals — earned $143,500 from a purse of $1 million.

Martin said his left leg, wrapped with tape, hampered him.

"If your leg is not 100 percent, it not easy to get in position," said Martin, injured in Saturday's semifinal victory over Canadian Greg Rusedski.

■ Tennis Roundup

Porsche GP

FILDERSTADT, Germany — Mary Pierce paid attention throughout — something she admits was not always easy — and used a power game to rout a subpar Natalia Zvereva of Belarus and win the Porsche Grand Prix.

Pierce, whose problems of harassment by her father — he has been banned by tennis authorities from her tournaments — have been well chronicled, beat Zvereva 6-3, 6-3. The Canadian-born Pierce, who now lives in France, lost only two service points in the first set en route to her seventh career title, but first this year.

Bolzano ATP

BOLZANO, Italy — Using a dominating serve, American Jonathan Stark won for the first time ever in an ATP event, upsetting Cedric Pioline of France in the Bolzano tournament.

Stark's performance should put him in the top 50 in the ATP world rankings, to be released Monday. He beat Pioline 6-3, 6-2 to take the top prize in the $315,000 event.

CUP: Couples shines in Dunhill Cup play

chia's record for the lowest total score in the tournament, a 15-under-par 345. Couples, who has had a shaky season at home, was easily the most consistent player of the tournament with rounds of 71, 70, 69, 67 and 68.

"It was a great week for me," he said. "I got back to knowing when I went out on the tee that I was going to get a good score."

Daly, who went 40 holes in a row Saturday and Sunday before making a bogey at 12, was pleased with his first week's play at St Andrews.

"I feel great to play as consistently as I did," the sometimes-erratic former PGA champion said. "In the first three days I three-putted 13 times, but I didn't have any today.

"I think today was the most consistent I have played this year. It's just great to come here to St. Andrews and play on the winning team."

Stewart fell behind at the start, when James birdied, and was three down at the turn. But Couples and Daly were models of consistency in their games.

Couples birdied the holes 3, 5 and 7, and killed off Faldo's challenge at the 14th — the longest hole at 567 yards. The American, just one stroke ahead by that stage, birdied while Faldo missed from 5 feet to lose a shot.

From that point, Couples played parred out, withstanding a late birdie by Faldo.

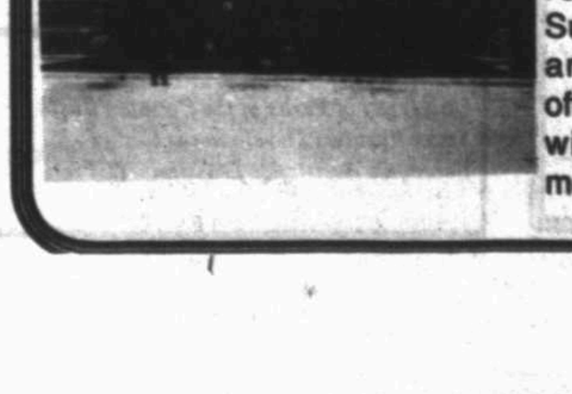

Baker saw a 5-foot putt lip the hole at the 14th and wound up with a bogey six to fall two behind. Daly had a problem when he pulled his tee shot at the 17th into rough on the left, but his recovery shot ensured he made par to preserve his lead.

He also birdied his final hole to make up for his lone bogey.

Earlier Sunday, the American trio beat Sweden in the semifinal and again came from a game down after Stewart lost to Jesper Parnevik by two shots.

SERIES: Championship is even the ninth. Williams walked the leadoff batter and defensive replacement Kim Batiste, who made two errors in the playoffs, almost threw away another grounder.

Stewart, MVP of the AL playoffs, had his worst game ever in 17 postseason starts. Actually, it was only one bad inning, but five runs in the third cost him.

This was the second time in his career that the Phillies have given Stewart rude treatment. They abruptly released him in early 1986, a move that made Stewart consider another line of work before the Oakland Athletics signed him two weeks later.

Stewart predicted that the Phillies' plan of patience would work to his advantage because he throws strikes. Instead, Philadelphia, which walked five times in an 8-5 loss in Game 1, made him pay.

Dykstra and Mariano Duncan began the third with walks on full-count pitches, and they set up RBI singles by John Kruk and Dave Hollins.

With one out, up stepped Eisenreich, the Phillies' hitter most familiar with Stewart. Eisenreich, who faced Stewart for six years in the AL, fell behind 0-2 before homering over the right-field fence for a 5-0 lead.

It was Eisenreich's third homer and 11th hit in 32 career at-bats against Stewart. Eisenreich batted .318 this season, his first with the Phillies, as a platoon right fielder. He was just 2-for-15 in the NL playoffs.

The loss was Stewart's third straight in the World Series, a streak that started with two defeats in 1990 for Oakland against Cincinnati. Stewart's record of 8-0 makes him the best playoff pitcher in history, although he is only 2-4 in the World Series.

IRVIN: Murray's kicks lift Dallas

(From 1C)

Owner Jerry Jones said it best about Irvin after the game, "Michael is the kind of guy you want with you in a back alley."

Murray kicked field goals of 48, 39, and 29 yards as Dallas took a 16-10 lead at halftime.

Irvin made a juggling catch of Aikman's pass for the touchdown after the 49ers took a 17-16 lead in the third period on a 12-yard pass from Steve Young to Brent Jones to cap a five-play, 80-yard drive.

Irvin said offensive coordinator Norv Turner "is a genius. The game he called was something. We just kept throwing the short passes and taking what the 49ers gave us. We didn't get frustrated."

Young said before the game: "We want to reclaim what we lost in January," and if not or the Cowboys' big-play artists, they might have.

But they botched a field goal attempt when Ralph Tamm's snap was mishandled by holder Klaus Wilmsmeyer. The Cowboys then produced Murray's fourth field goal, an 18-yarder to put the game away.

"That was a game we let get away from us," said Young. "We go from almost getting a touchdown to no field goal, then losing the game. We've got to fight our way out of it somehow. We still have a good team."

Tony Casillas recovered Marc Logan's fumble at the 49ers' 39 to position Dallas for the Aikman-to-Irvin touchdown pass.

"That's how you win games," Casillas said."You make big defensive plays."

"We made some big mistakes," said 49ers coach George Seifert. "But I'll say that Dallas is all it's publicized to be.

"Irvin is a heck of a player. We couldn't double him all the time, because it would open it up for other players."

The 49ers tried to rally in the fourth period, but consecutive sacks by Charles Haley and Jimmie Jones gave the ball to Dallas on downs to spoil one drive.

"We made some bad plays happen for them and it paid off big for us," said defensive tackle Russell Maryland.

The 49ers drove to the Dallas 19 in the final seconds, but failed to score as time ran out.

The 49ers struck early for the first touchdown when Emmitt Smith fumbled and Eric Davis returned it 47 yards for a touchdown. John Johnson made the hit.

Dallas got a gift in the second period when Haley blindsided Young, who fumbled to linebacker Darrin Smith at the 49ers' 18.

"You can say what you want to about how Haley acts off the field, but on the field he's a heck of a player," said Young.

An 11-yard Aikman-to-Irvin pass positioned the Cowboys for Smith's 1-yard scoring run.

San Francisco's Mike Cofer kicked a 25-yard field goal for the 49ers' other first-half points.

Young hit 24 of 33 passes for 267 yards and Aikman completed 21 of 35 for 243 yards. San Francisco's Jerry Rice caught seven passes for 82 yards.

Smith rushed 27 times for 92 yards, while Logan had eight for 67 yards.

Johnson said the Cowboys "are one of the better teams, but until we are on top, we're nothing special."

Irvin took it another step, saying, "I feel we're the best team in the NFL right now."

and he shook hands with Gilbride at halftime, Jeffires said. "Right now, I'm happy with some things."

New England coach Bill Parcells was a little unhappy himself.

"What this team does to itself is a shame," he said. "We had at least a half a dozen opportunities to get in this game. Each time we came up short."

"Scott came in and did a good enough job," running back Leonard Russell said. "He made some mistakes, I made some mistakes, we all made some mistakes."

Last Monday night, Moon was replaced by Carlson after throwing three interceptions in a 35-7 loss to Buffalo. On Sunday, Carlson started his 13th game in seven seasons.

But Carlson suffered a sprained groin on his 10-yard touchdown run that broke a scoreless tie in the second quarter. He played the first three plays of Houston's next series, then left after a 12-yard completion to Lorenzo White to the Patriots 33-yard line.

Moon completed his first four passes, missed one, then hit Slaughter for a 7-yard touchdown with 15 seconds left in the half for a 14-0 halftime lead.

"I wasn't really focused to play because I wasn't expecting to," Moon said. "That's what I learned today. You have to be ready at any time."

Secules, a six-year veteran who had thrown just 90 passes before Sunday, hit Kevin Turner with a 7-yard scoring pass on the Patriots' first series of the second half.

Then Moon led a masterful 16-play, 85-yard drive lasting 9:38 and ending with his 2-yard pass to Slaughter with 25 seconds left in the third quarter. Moon was 8-for-10 for 63 yards on the drive and finished with 16 completions in 21 attempts for 102 yards.

"He responded like the true professional that he is," Houston coach Jack Pardee said.

POLL: Fla. St. unanimous No. 1

(From 1C)

Florida State has been No. 1 all season, but the Seminoles were a unanimous pick for the first time Sunday. They received all 62 first-place votes after downing previously unbeaten Virginia 40-14.

Notre Dame rose one spot after beating BYU 45-20, and Ohio State climbed two places to No. 3 following a 28-21 victory over Michigan State.

Alabama fell from No. 2 to No. 4 after Tennessee halted the Tide's 28-game winning streak. Nebraska rose one notch to No. 5 after beating Kansas State 45-28, idle Miami jumped two spots to No. 6, and Arizona moved up four places to No. 7 with a 27-24 win over Stanford.

Tennessee went from No. 10 to No. 8, and Florida fell five places to No. 9 after losing 38-35 to Auburn, which jumped nine spots to No. 10.

Texas A&M is 11th, followed by North Carolina, Michigan, Penn State, Wisconsin, Colorado, Oklahoma, West Virginia, UCLA, Louisville, Virginia, Washington, Syracuse, Michigan State and Washington State.

Maggie Webster, 10, practices the Pu-ili using bamboo sticks, with Katherine Case, 12. The girls are members of the Alohas, a local group that performs Polynesian dance.

The Alohas perform at Septemberfest.

Leonore Amano, originally from Maui, and Denise Kepple pay special attention to their hand movements during a recent rehearsal. The hands tell a story, while the rest of the body keeps time with the music.

Two of the Alohas perform a dance they have renamed the Cowboy Tahitian at Septemberfest, with traditional Hawaiian Poi balls.

From the Islands to the Desert

Polynesian customs have crossed the ocean from the tropical islands that make up Hawaii to the flatlands of West Texas in the form of dance.

The Alohas — a Midland-based dance organization that performs a variety of Polynesian dances — provide a look into other cultures through entertainment.

Formed in 1981 as Leilani's Birds of Paradise, the group changed its name to the Alohas to distinguish itself from another dance organization that performs both Polynesian dance and belly dancing.

Diane Faulkner is the humu, which means teacher, of the group. Ms. Faulkner said the Alohas consist of anywhere from 12 to 18 members at each rehearsal. Ages of the members vary from 8 to 45, she said.

Ms. Faulkner has been involved in Polynesian dance for 25 years now, getting her start as a youngster. She said it started when she saw a performance and expressed interest. Her mother enrolled her and a sister in a class and she fell in love with the art form and has continued since then.

Each student studying the Polynesian dance is given a Hawaiian name once she has achieved a certain point in her training, Ms. Faulkner said. The name she was given is Leilani.

The Alohas perform several types of Polynesian dancing including Hawaiian, Tahitian, Somoan and Moari as well as some New Zealand styles.

Ms. Faulkner said her partner in the Alohas is Denise Kepple, who learned about the dancing while she lived in Germany, so the group has two distinctive styles.

The dance styles vary from a fast-paced hip-shaking dance to slow hand movements that tell a tale.

Ms. Faulkner said the hula tells a story with the hands and the Tahitian dances tell stories with the hips. She also said various accessories are used to tell stories such as the Pu-ili sticks — which are made out of bamboo — to the use of gourds and rocks.

Ms. Faulkner said the dancing is a form of therapy after a hard day.

"Its a freedom," Ms. Faulkner said. "I can come home from a day of work — a bad day of work — and I can take myself away to an island paradise or a beach."

"It is something from within. It is relaxing and it's an enjoyment and it's really beautiful when you're telling a story," she said. "This is the kind of dancing you have to want to do from within . . . it's not fun if you don't want to do it."

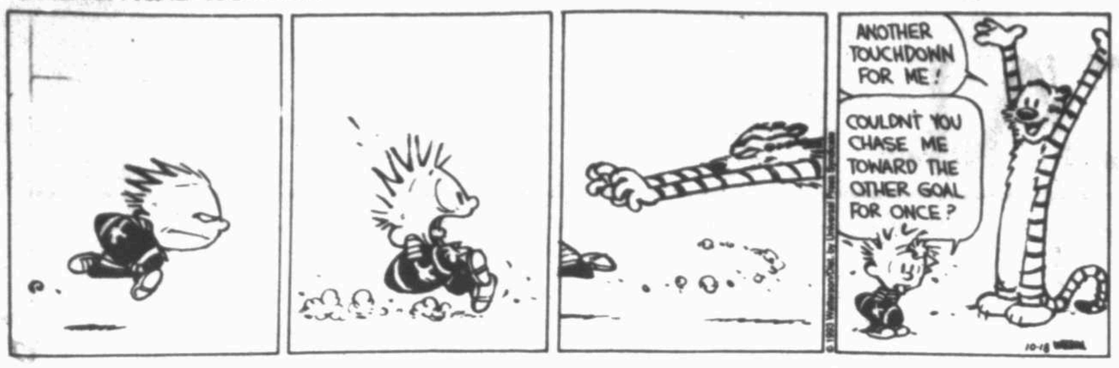

The Alohas perform regularly at community functions as well as for private parties, Ms. Faulkner said.

They perform at schools to teach students about cultures of other peoples while entertaining students at the same time.

The Alohas rehearse once a week for an hour or more unless they are scheduled to perform, then they practice about three times.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Family life takes precedence over everything else. Spend some money to make your home more comfortable. In December, partners draw closer together and enjoy new rapport. Early in 1994, singles could develop an urge to settle down. Follow your heart. New personal and financial gains accrue by early next summer. Plan a vacation for late July or early August.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Pam Dawber, football coach Mike Ditka, singer Chuck Berry, boxer Tommy Hearns.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spend more time on details and figures. Students find that financial aid is available but that they must fill out endless forms. Persist. Diligence impresses those who count.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You could attract some unusual companions now. Stick to a conventional approach in business or romance. A long-time conflict will abate if you take the first step.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A financial problem that has created marital discord comes to an end. Profit-sharing plans bring new security. Be punctual. Romance puts you in a joyful mood.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A promising start could peter out unless you tackle a financial question. Be more realistic about your spending. A love relationship is more rewarding than in the past.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Unexpected rewards, bonuses and scholarships are featured. Couples have good luck with their commitments. Family concerns lead you to re-evaluate the benefits of your work. Romance deepens. Go slow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tried-and-true friends will be the most satisfying companions now. New information means changing your approach in business or romance. Joint financial concerns require further discussion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Shared financial ventures are favored. Some important decisions will have to be made. Gather all the facts and figures you can, then consult your partner. Lend a sympathetic ear to parents or children.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not despair if those in authority will not listen to your ideas. Increase your earning power by taking special seminars or enrolling in night school. Discuss your dreams without embarrassment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The emphasis today is on security measures. Check for fire hazards. Taking a more compassionate approach will help you solve a family conflict. Be supportive of a youngster who shares a secret.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Travel, literature and socializing brighten your day. A long-standing dispute can be resolved to your satisfaction. A search for spiritual enlightenment will be rewarding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Concentrate on one thing at a time and productivity will rise. Taxes, insurance matters and investments require special attention. Turning over a new leaf will promote marital harmony. Admit past mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotional satisfaction comes from pushing ahead with a favorite work endeavor. New financial rewards are likely. Do not be afraid to share your thoughts with loved ones.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K109 ♡A972 ◇Q85 ♣K94
Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?
A.—Normally, you would show a major suit in response to partner's minor-suit opening. Here, however, the queen in partner's suit should be upgraded and the good intermediates make this hand worth more than the 12 points it counts. Since the hand lacks a ruffing value, bid two no trump.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠98542 ♡6 ◇K6 ♣AJ762
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—This hand has all the hallmarks of a classic misfit. Three clubs would be a game force and two no trump would be invitational, and you are not strong enough for either action. You can't rebid two spades with such a shabby five-card suit, so the only sensible action, however ugly it may be, is to pass.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J1065 ♡AK987 ◇A83 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Once partner has issued an invitation, you should be delighted to accept. With four-card support, an unbalanced hand and all prime cards on the side, you want to play in the major suit, so bid four spades—three spades might get passed.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠94 ♡J9762 ◇A1085 ♣K7
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—A new suit by responder creates a one-round force, so rule out two diamonds—you are about a king short for that action. That leaves just one choice—one no trump. Without another bid from partner, this hand is going nowhere.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K10875 ♡Void ◇K984 ♣Q863
Partner's three-heart preemptive opening bid gets passed to you. What action do you take?
A.—Partner has shown a seven-card heart suit and little else, so there's no reason to suppose there's a better spot. Any attempt to improve the contract is almost certain to result in a disaster. Pass.

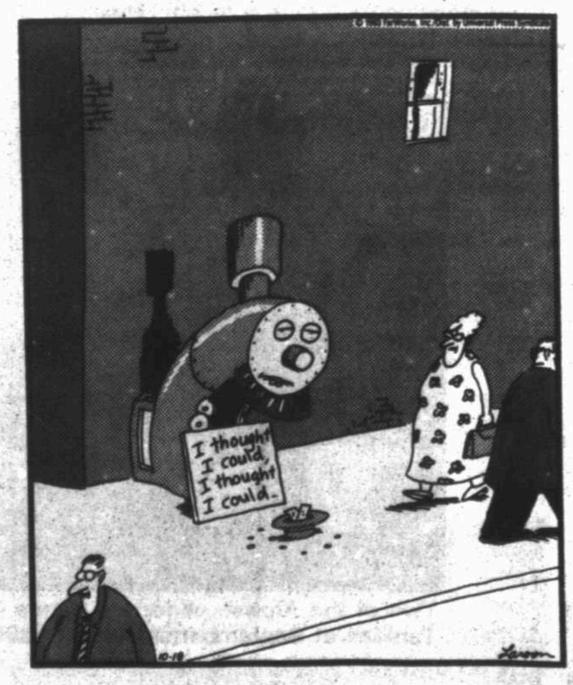

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K10875 ♡Void ◇K984 ♣Q863
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
3 ♡	Dbl	?

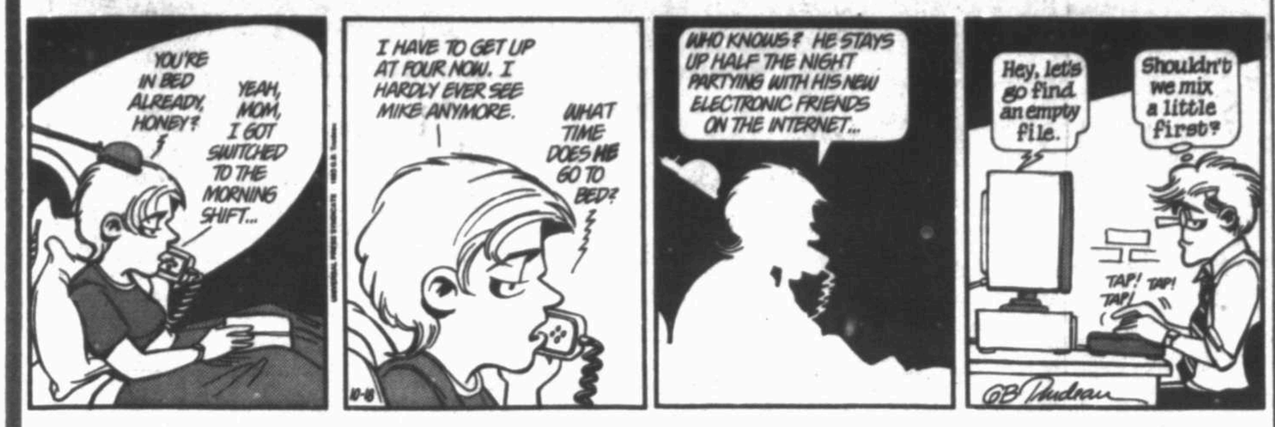

What action do you take?
A.—Pass, for the reasons set out above. Hope that West takes out the double, because you have reasonable defensive prospects or, if the double is left in, your bits and pieces may limit the damage.

Mr. Blackwell gives thumbs up to Gumbel, Dunaway 'threads'

RADNOR, Pa. — Looking good: "Today" anchorman Bryant Gumbel and actress Faye Dunaway. Looking not so good: talk-show host Sally Jessy Raphael and acerbic comedian Don Rickles.

Gumbel

That's this year's verdict from Mr. Blackwell, the self-appointed, sharp-tongued fashion maven of the rich, famous and well-watched.

"The Titan of 'Today' grabs the overall best-dressed gold in a masterful mix of beautifully cut blazers, striking suits, stylish sportswear, and understated accessories," Mr. Blackwell said of NBC's Gumbel.

Mr. Blackwell judged the wardrobes that the personalities — or the characters they play — wear on the tube for the Oct. 23 issue of TV Guide, based in Radnor.

Dunaway, of the new comedy "It Had To be You," has "done away with that dreary designer dreck that sabotaged your image in years past and refined your look for television to electric effect."

But he said Raphael "continues her reign as the Queen of Jurassic Park in fossilized fashion only a color-blind brontosaurus could love."

And Rickles, he said, wears a "catastrophic collection of Archie Bunker bombs, Early Mafia markdowns, and Old Mold mishaps. Tired, tacky, and totally tasteless!"

HYDE PARK, N.Y. — She taught America to cook with a French flair and a sense of humor. Now Julia Child is the first woman inducted into the Culinary Institute of America's hall of fame.

"She has led a culinary renaissance throughout this country, championing the pleasures of dining and influencing millions of food enthusiasts and professional chefs along the way," institute President Ferdinand E. Metz said at a ceremony Saturday.

She began her series of cooking shows on PBS in 1963 and has written seven cookbooks.

The 81-year-old Child joined five other recipients of the institute's hall of fame award, established in 1985 to recognize outstanding people who have been a source of inspiration to the food service and hospitality industry.

TORONTO — Aretha Franklin has plenty of R-E-S-P-E-C-T for the SkyDome.

"I love it," she said Saturday before belting out the U.S. national anthem to open the World Series. "The structure is mammoth."

So is her presence, enough to draw a few of the Philadelphia Phillies out of the clubhouse hours before game time just to meet her.

She described herself as an "off-and-on" baseball fan and said she follows her hometown Detroit Tigers, but she had never been to a World Series before.

She wouldn't side with either team in the Series. "They're both pretty good, obviously, or they wouldn't be here," she said.

HUNTINGTON, Ind. — Dan Quayle is catching up with his past.

The former vice president returned to Huntington to dedicate the Dan Quayle Center and Museum, dropping hints along the way about a presidential campaign.

More than 6,700 people have visited the museum, in a Classical-style renovated Christian Science Church, since it opened June 17. But Quayle now lives in Carmel and works at the Hudson Institute, a conservative Indianapolis think tank, and he and his wife Marilyn made their first visits to the museum Friday.

Many people remember Quayle for his shortcomings as a speller and his spat over family values with television character "Murphy Brown." But residents of the modest, working-class town appreciate his dedication to his roots.

"I've lived in this town my whole life, and I'm just proud to be associated with Dan Quayle," said Carl Harrison, whose only real link to Quayle is that they once shared a zip code.

ROME — Roman Polanski is relying on his basic instincts to cast Sharon Stone in a future project.

The director wants her to star in a remake of Luis Bunuel's "Belle de Jour," a 1967 film that starred Catherine Deneuve.

"Stone is a great actress and has a perfect body for film. She is perfect for the remake of that movie," Polanski told the Milan daily Corriere della Sera on Saturday. He said no work has begun but he has spoken to Stone about the proposed project.

Stone, the star of "Basic Instinct" and "Sliver," drew attention last week with her walk down a Paris fashion runway in a Valentino outfit.

Dallas secures hold on NFC

IRVING (NYT) — Piece by piece, chip by chip, the Dallas Cowboys kept chiseling away at the San Francisco 49ers until by game's end, the 49ers had unraveled.

Up by 17-16 with 2 minutes 32 seconds left in the third quarter, the 49ers gave away a fumble that would lead to a Dallas touchdown, botched a snap on a short field-goal attempt midway through the final quarter that could have cut the Dallas lead to 3 points and then committed successive unsportsmanlike-conduct penalties that helped lead to a Dallas field goal.

The result was a 26-17 Dallas victory — and probably more.

The Cowboys — on the heels of their 30-20 victory at San Francisco in last season's National Football Conference championship game — now appear to have the 49ers right where they want them: Looking squarely up at the Cowboys as the new and true bullies on the NFC block.

Last season, the 49er players thought Dallas caught them by complete surprise in the title match. This rematch would be different, the 49ers said.

But there was nothing sneaky about this Dallas victory before 65,099 fans at Texas Stadium. Dallas made sure that if San Francisco failed to get the message last season, the 49ers got it this time: "This is the 90s, not the 80s. This is our decade."

It was like two ships passing late in the night, one full of steam, the other furiously tossing the coals onto the fire just trying to keep it burning. Dallas improved to 4-2; San Francisco slipped to 3-3.

"You had a lot of great players on the field and they performed," Dallas Coach Jimmy Johnson said. "I'm proud that our playmakers made plays. We've won four games and we still trail the Giants by one game.

"We've got an open date next week and then three straight games in our division against Philadelphia, the Giants and Phoenix. We'll know a lot more about where we stand after that."

Dallas led by 16-10 at halftime, but the 49ers quickly countered with an 80-yard drive that took only five plays and was finished by Steve Young's 12-yard pass to Brent Jones. And then the bottom fell completely out for the 49ers.

Russell Maryland's solid hit on fullback Marc Logan resulted in a fumble at the San Francisco 36 with 46 seconds left in the third quarter. Two plays later, Michael Irvin had beaten cornerback Michael McGruder in man coverage down the left sideline for a 36-yard score and a 23-17 Dallas lead.

With 9:32 to play, San Francisco attempted a 23-yard field goal. The snap bounced off holder Klaus Wilmsmeyer's hands and Dallas recovered all the way back near midfield. Successive unsportsmanlike-conduct penalties on the 49ers helped lead to the game's final points, Eddie Murray's 18-yard field goal.

Irvin, with 11 catches, produced the best day of his career; Troy Aikman continued his hot hand, the Dallas running game produced, the defense was steady and the special teams were admirable.

San Francisco could not find a running game until late in the second half, but once it did, the 49ers spoiled their chances against the young and still hungry Cowboys.

Dallas shook off a scary start — a fumble by Emmitt Smith that was returned for a touchdown only four minutes into the game — and established early superiority in the running game en route to its 6-point halftime lead.

Dallas took the opening kickoff and then pieced together a beautiful drive — an Aikman 8-yard pass to Irvin, a 12-yarder to Smith and nifty runs in between.

With the ball at the Dallas 44, Smith ran around right end and 49ers linebacker John Johnson offered a crunching hit. The ball popped out of Smith's hands. It simply bounced at the Dallas 47 and into cornerback Eric Davis' hands. Davis sprinted down the left sideline, untouched, for a score.

Dallas started over and this time got a 48-yard Murray field goal that cut the lead to 7-3. San Francisco answered with a 73-yard, 12-play drive that took 5:40 and was capped by Mike Cofer's 25-yard field goal.

On that drive, on third-and-4 from the Dallas 7, Young rifled a pass into the end zone that split three defenders but bounced off Jones' hands. The 49ers were forced to settle for the field goal and a 10-3 lead.

A Dallas drive that took 5:38 midway through the second quarter resulted in Murray's 39-yarder, and that made it San Francisco 10, Dallas 6. And then the 49ers returned a gift to Dallas, fumbling at the San Francisco 18 with 8:59 left in the half.

Young had dropped deep into the pocket to pass and former 49er Charles Haley came strong from right defensive end. Haley's hit on and dive for Young and the follow through of his leg whipping around in traffic got him a sack and helped him free the ball.

Linebacker Darrin Smith recovered, and three plays later, Smith was running wide right and free into the end zone for a 13-10 Dallas lead. With 7 seconds left, Murray provided the final points of the half with a 29-yard field goal.

Football dad tried to put end to 'institution'

TROUP, Texas (AP) — David Myers took on the most powerful institution in Texas — and nearly won.

Myers opened last Monday's Troup School Board meeting with a motion to drop contact sports. After board trustee Linda Smith seconded the motion, the board voted 3-3, which blocked the action.

"Mr. Myers would like to stop high school football in Troup and all over the state, really," said Dr. Gene Whitsell, Troup Independent School District superintendent.

The motion had been brewing since Myers' son, Sam, suffered a brain hemorrhage before a Troup football game last season. Support for his argument has been stirred by an accident five weeks ago in which senior Michael Conway broke his neck.

Sam Myers has major deficits with vision, vocal and motor skills and is in rehabilitation at the Transitional Learning Community in Galveston. Conway is paralyzed from the waist down and is at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas awaiting more surgery.

Although David Myers acknowledges this is a deeply emotional issue for him, he says for the 12 years he has served on the school board, safety measures have been lacking.

He argues that his son's hemorrhage stemmed from another injury the week before in which Sam's helmet was broken and his nose fractured. David Myers argues that although two doctors cleared Sam to play the next Friday, pressure from coaches and students may have been given more weight than his son's health.

"I like sports," David Myers said. "I don't have any problems with sports. But they are not played responsibly. The Texas Education Agency is one of the biggest hypocrites as far as the welfare of children. Year after year, they continue to support and promote sports and continue to expose minors to injuries ... and think they don't have to answer to anybody.

"For 12 years I've been on the school board, and I've said either do it responsibly or don't do it. ... If we can't be responsible, the only thing I know to do is just forget about (football)."

Whitsell said no one other than David Myers knew the board would be voting on such a drastic measure before the meeting. Whitsell estimated there was an audience of "eight to 10" people when the vote was called.

"The agenda item was called 'Student Safety in Athletics.' Nobody had any way to know (the future of the football team) was going to be voted on," Whitsell said.

"... We probably could have filled the auditorium if people had known about it."

The motion was made three days after the Tigers moved to 6-0 by beating previously undefeated Bullard, the defending District 20-AA champion, 42-21.

Troup coach Kevin Stanley was not in attendance at the meeting.

"I had no idea," Stanley said. "My athletic director called me that night after the board meeting. It was a shock. I mean, that's my job. If somebody comes and tells you, 'We voted within one vote of you not having a job,' wouldn't that make you angry? Especially after the season we've had.

"I don't guess angry is the word, though. I guess it was more disbelief.

"All we want to do is play football," Stanley said. "We're trying to keep it low-key. ... We're definitely ready to let it lie and go on."

David Myers said he was surprised when fellow trustees Linda Smith and Tom Gay voted to drop football.

"To tell the truth, I was surprised when my motion got seconded," he said.

310 General Help Wanted

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:

- ★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
- ★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
- ★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- ★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just wa ! to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?
