Cabinet vote delays Israeli settlements

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Cabinet members opposed to the settling of Jews in Palestinian cities on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River are taking their case to Parliament after the Cabinet voted 8-6 against them. Three other members abstained.

The Sunday vote, calling initially for the establishment of two live-in Jewish schools in the fiercely Arab West Bank city of Hebron, elicited an expression of "bitter dismay" from Egypt and is likely to bring more criticism from the Carter administration.

The vote provoked angry comments from West Bank Palestinians and from Israeli peace advocates. But it was hailed by Israeli ultra-nationalists who consider Hebron and the rest of the West Bank part of God's biblical land grant to the Jewish patriarchs.

Because more than half the Cabinet refused to approve the go-ahead, Prime Minister Menachem Begin agreed to delay implementation of the controversial settlement plan while the opponents appealed to the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee of the Knesset, or Parliament.

The committee is not expected to take up the matter for several days. But political analysts of the government-run radio and television services were predicting the panel might reject it. It was not clear what the next step would be if that happened.

"The political implication of the decision was the main issue discussed" during the seven-hour debate, Cabinet spokesman Aryeh Naor told reporters. He said supporters of the plan wanted to make it "very clear and very direct" that Jews would not be barred from living on any West Bank lands.

Last month, after an Israeli religious student was shot and killed in the Hebron bazaar, the Cabinet declared that Jews have the right to settle anywhere in the biblical confines of "Greater Israel," including Hebron, a city of 50,000 revered by both Moslems and Jews as the burial place of the Hebrew patriarchs Abraham, Issac and Jacob.

It is a "very sad day" for Hebron, said Fahad Qawasmeh, mayor of the West Bank's second largest Palestinian city. "We can't accept this and we can't let it go quietly."

In Cairo, an Egyptian government spokesman voiced "bitter dismay" and called the plan "a new violation of the spirit" of the Camp David peace accords and the U.N. charter.

"I think the decision is an important and positive one," Begin told reporters. But Israeli peace advocates shouted: "Begin Resign, Begin Resign," as the prime minister spoke to correspondents after a meeting with U.S. envoy Sol Linowitz.

Linowitz arrived Sunday to prepare for a new round of Israeli-Egyptian negotiations on Palestinian autonomy beginning Wednesday in Alexandria, Egypt.

Begin said he discussed the Hebron decision with Linowitz and predicted it would not interfere with his meeting with President Carter next month.

Ailing shah arrives at Cairo hospital

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi arrived in Egypt today from Panama, escaping extradition proceedings and leaving behind a medical wrangle over his ailments. President Anwar Sadat said the deposed Iranian monarch would be staying in Egypt permanently.

Iranian officials reacted with outrage. Tehran Radio accused Sadat and President Carter of conspiring to "save the Hitler of our age," one official said it would cause "great difficulties" in resolving the crisis over the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran, and another revived Iran's threat to put the hostages on trial as spies.

A spokesman for the young Moslem militants holding the 50 American captives declined to comment. But he said their price for the release of the hostages — the return of the shah and his fortune to Iran — remains unchanged.

Today is the Americans' 142nd day in captivity.

Sadat met the shah at Cairo airport, and the two took a helicopter to Maadi military hospital on the outskirts of Cairo, where the shah is to undergo medical treatment.

There, Sadat was asked whether the shah would be staying in Egypt permanently. "Yes, yes, permanently," Sadat said in his booming voice.

The shah looked thin and very tired after his overnight flight. He declined to answer reporters' questions, saying, "After the operation we shall have ample time to speak with you."

The entire third floor of a Maadi hospital wing overlooking the Nile River was cleared for the shah, who is suffering from lymph cancer that is believed to have spread to the spleen.

The hospital's director, Dr. Sabri Ismael, was quoted as saying the shah could be operated on as early as today. But there were unconfirmed reports that the operation for removal of the spleen would be delayed until Dr. Michael DeBakey, the famed American surgeon, could arrive and perform the surgery.

The 60-year-old shah and his wife left Panama at midday Sunday in a chartered DC-8 belonging to Evergreen International Airlines of Oregon. The jetliner stopped to refuel at the U.S. Portuguese Lajes air base in the Azores islands, where Portuguese officials said it was guarded by U.S. troops during the two-hour layover.

The shah left Panama just a day before the deadline for Iran's lawyers to submit an official request for his extradition.

The Panamanian government barred DeBakey from operating on the shah because Panamanian doctors felt it would be an insult to them to have the surgery performed by a foreigner. White House adviser Hamilton Jordan flew to Panama over the weekend to try to get the shah to have the operation there, but the ex-monarch decided against it and left.

A Panamanian government spokesman said the shah, "having received a personal invitation from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, chose to move to Cairo," his first refuge after being driven from Iran in January 1979 by the revolution led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The shah and Empress Farah Diba spent six days in Egypt during their 1979 stop, then moved on to Morocco, the Bahamas, Mexico, the United States and Panama. Sadat has repeatedly offered them asylum in the past year as the doors were slammed on them elsewhere.

The shah's departure from Panama stymied extradition efforts by the Khomeini regime.

Midland High gets light penalty from UIL panel

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Midland High School received a warning — the lightest penalty possible — from the District 5-4A Executive Committee here today for off-season football workouts exceeding one hour in time limit.

The committee met in closed session in Big Spring High School to determine if Midland High had violated any of five allegations that were turned in to the University Interscholastic League early last month by two anonymous letters.

The committee decided that Midland High was only partially guilty of one of the five allegations, working past the one-hour time limit.

Lynn Hise, superintendent of the Big Spring schools, moved that MHS be issued a warning regarding the alleged violations and that it be fully understood that future violations could result in actions that would prevent the school from being eligible for district competition.

Hise said, "This motion is based on facts supportive of a violation of allegation No. 2 concerning off-season workouts exceeding one hour. Other alleged violations were not supported by facts and information revealed by the two investigations."

The executive committee and the Midland schools each conducted separate investigations of the allegations.

Bill Holm, superintendent of the Ector County schools and chairman of the executive committee, said, "Our evidence is of admission from Midland High School for the violation of working past one hour in their off-season program. However, immediate action was taken by Midland Athletic Director Gil Bartosh to stop that violation on Feb. 13 which was prior to our investigation. Lack of full understanding of the time limits and the time it takes for Midland High athletes to travel from school to their off-campus workouts was taken into consideration. It was a misinterpretation of the rule and we feel it stopped when notified by Bartosh."

"This shouldn't have any effect on the Midland High football program, but we want to stress that any violation subsequent to this hearing could result in very serious action," Holm continued. "We feel there is a difference between a warning and a probation since there was no intent involved to break a UIL rule. We understand that coach Pat Culpepper is from out of state and is a first-year high school coach. There was no intent on the part of Coach Culpepper to violate the rules. We also took into consideration that the source was anonymous and I don't mind telling you that we didn't like that. If it had come to my office, it would have gone into the trash."

Culpepper was naturally pleased with the decision, saying, "I'm certainly a Bill Holm fan. I think he stated things very well, and I believe the letter should have gone in the trash too.

"We admitted our error. I thought we had one hour to work out, instead of a bell to bell concept. We had been having problems with our kids getting tickets coming to our workouts from the Midland High campus, so I told our kids to take their time and we would begin working when they got dressed. Bartosh informed me on Feb. 13 that we had only one school hour in which to complete our workout. This means that we have only 40 minutes to work at the most. We are

Need for maintenance explained

election 80

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a three-part series examining the $3 million school bond issue for repairs and maintenance in the April 5 election.

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Midland High School will get some immediate attention should voters pass the $3 million repair and maintenance bond issue April 5.

However, Tall City citizens have questioned why the school district took so long to rejuvenate the high school — parts of which were built in 1928 — as well as other schools.

During the Objectives for Midland meeting in San Antonio, one of the suggestions stated "Improve, and provide in the annual budget for maintenance of all school facilities as they get older to ensure healthy and pleasant places for student learning."

A STATEMENT by Garland Chapman, assistant superintendent, explained why many classroom buildings constructed in the 1950s needed major maintenance.

During the 1970s, 70 percent of the classrooms reached "maturity" and were in need of major maintenance, Chapman said.

Unfortunately, inflation during the '70s coincided with the major maintenance demands of the schools, Chapman said, and the general public's attitude "called for holding the line on school budgets, and the administration was instructed to keep costs to approximately 10 percent."

Costs such as transportation, labor, utilities and materials were beyond the school district's control, the assistant superintendent said.

However, "maintenance was an area where conscious choices could control overall budgetary allocation," he said.

CHAPMAN NOTED the school district allocated about a quarter of a million dollars each year in the annual budget for maintenance.

However, "95 percent of our classroom facilities (are) more than 20 years old," Chapman said.

"Each year from 1975 forward brought increasing major maintenance needs," he added.

And the quarter of a million dollars budgeted could not handle all of the major maintenance needs, Chapman said. Therefore, only emergency maintenance could be done.

Should voters pass the $3 million bond issue, repairs to Midland schools could start immediately and could be completed within two years, the assistant superintendent predicted.

But, if the bond election is defeated, a series of priority items would be established and included in school budgets for the next three years, said Don Furgeson, business manager for the school district.

And Midland taxpayers could expect a 10-cent increase in the school tax rate, he noted.

CLASSROOM RENOVATION at Midland High School represents $425,600 of the $951,450 to be allocated in bonds for the high school, according to the school district's list of major repair and renovation items.

And, of the $425,600, $220,000 will be assigned to window and wall renovation of classrooms, the list noted.

"A lot of the metal work on the windows is deteriorating and rusting," Chapman said, "and some can not be closed too securely or are bolted."

The metal parts are exposed to the sunlight and start generating heat in the classrooms which makes it uncomfortable for students and teachers, he noted.

Current incandescent lighting in Midland High School would be replaced by flourescent lights, the assistant superintendent said.

"The wall, window and lighting renovations will save energy and de-

Midland man, 43, dies in accident near Tahoka

TAHOKA — A 43-year-old Midland man died in a one-car accident about 9:30 p.m. Saturday on U.S. Highway 87 near Tahoka, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Dead is Robert Frank Donley of North D Street in Midland.

According to a DPS spokesman, Donley was driving north on U.S. 87. As he approached the intersection with FM 400 in Lynn County, his vehicle went off the road on the right side and hit a guardrail. The car turned onto its side and slid along the guardrail and under the overpass at the intersection, reported the DPS.

Donley's car then hit two concrete support pillars, continued to slide past the overpass and finally overturned onto its top.

Donley was pronounced dead at the scene by Tahoka Justice of the Peace Ed Hamilton. The accident was investigated by Trooper Jerry Griffin.

Five hostages in Colombia may get their freedom today

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Colombian newspapers quoted government sources as saying five of the 32 hostages held by guerrillas in the embassy of the Dominican Republic would be freed after negotiations today.

The names of the five were not given, and there was no confirmation of the reports, which appeared in the newspapers Sunday.

The hostages include U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and 18 other foreign diplomats. The talks today will be the first direct negotiations between the government and the guerrillas in 11 days. Like the other five rounds, they will be held in a van parked outside the embassy, seized Feb. 27.

The major issue is the guerrilla demand that 28 political prisoners be released from Colombian jails. The government has taken the stand that there are no political prisoners in Colombia and the release of common criminals would be a violation of the constitution.

The participants were to be Deputy Foreign Ministers CaMilo Jimenez and Ramiro Zambrano. The same masked woman who has negotiated for the guerrillas in the first five rounds of talks was expected to bargain for her comrades, accompanied by Mexican Ambassador Ricardo Galan, who represents the hostages.

The government has publicly taken the stand that it will only offer the guerrillas safe conduct out of the country in exchange for the freedom of the hostages. It also has pledged not to resort to violence unless the lives of the hostages appear to be in immediate danger from their captors.

The last hostage to be freed by the guerrillas was Austrian Ambassador Edgar Selzer, who was released March 6 so he could be with his wife, who is seriously ill in Vienna.

Five non-diplomatic hostages were freed March 2, apparently because the guerrillas thought they were of no bargaining value.

crease utility costs," he noted.

RESTROOM RENOVATION at Midland High will be allotted $109,000 since most of those facilities are a part of the 1928 section of the school, Chapman said.

New restroom fixtures and lowering the ceiling will be included in the remodeling, he noted.

Windows in the school's auditorium would be filled making a solid wall inside that portion of the building, Chapman said, in addition to replacing faulty furniture.

Re-roofing the high school would cost the taxpayers $112,000, the list noted. However, most of the school buildings in the district would be included in the re-roofing process, he said.

Very little has changed in the high school's science laboratories, Chapman said, since most of the equipment is stationary and cannot be easily moved.

"A lot of the science equipment is 30 to 40 years old and needs to be replaced," he said.

Renovation of the swimming pool would include an automatic chemical feeder and replacement of filter tanks and boiler, Chapman said, since the pool is a major investment and needs to be maintained.

Cost of the pool renovation would be $52,250, he added.

Replacement of classroom furniture would cost the taxpayer $11,400, Chapman concluded.

Life expectancy of the completed repairs and renovations is unknown, the assistant superintendent said, because environmental conditions such as weather and normal depreciation have varying effects.

Tuesday: Other repair and maintenance items of the school district.

Chance of thundershowers in Midland weather forecast

Midlanders could see something other than sand in the sky Tuesday, the weatherman said.

Skies should become partly cloudy by tonight, and Tuesday has a 30 percent chance of thundershowers, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Low tonight should be near 40 with Tuesday's high in the upper 60s.

The area also may get a respite from the winds, as the weatherman is predicting relatively gentle southerly breezes at 5-10 mph tonight.

Sunday's high was 65, well below the record high for the date of 85 set in 1972. The overnight low was recorded at 30, only slightly above the record low for today of 28 degrees set in 1974.

If the weatherman's 30 percent longshot pays off, the thundershowers could up the monthly total from a mere trace and increase the annual accumulation of .78 inch.

Patchy fog was reported in extreme Southeast Texas today, and drivers had to take it easy on snow-covered streets and highways on the opposite end of the state, in the Texas Panhandle.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 20s over the northern Panhandle to the 30s over West Texas, the 40s and 50s over North and Central Texas and the 60s and low 70s over south and southeastern portions of the state.

Variable high clouds, especially along the gulf coast, kept nighttime temperatures on the warm side.

No precipitation was in today's forecast. Temperatures headed toward expected afternoon highs in the 80s in extreme South Texas and in the 60s and 70s for all of the rest of the state except for the Panhandle.

Investigation under way in fire in paper mill that killed seven

COVINGTON, Va. (AP) — Federal and state authorities were to interview witnesses today as they began an investigation of a fire inside a bleach tower at the Westvaco paper mill that killed seven persons.

Investigators from the Virginia Department of Labor and Industry and the U.S. Department of Labor planned to talk to witnesses and company officials and inspect the mill in an effort to learn what happened early Saturday.

Inquiries also are planned by Westvaco; International Reinforced Plastics, a South Carolina-based company that employed the seven vicitms; and the safety committee of the United International Paperworkers Union Local 675, which represents many Westvaco workers.

Candidates 'not talking' about a lot

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan wasn't talking about parity, a key issue in the Midwest. He didn't know enough about it, he explained to farmers.

George Bush wasn't talking about opinion polls, especially one unfavorable to him. The "new me" only discusses issues, he said.

John Anderson wasn't talking to — or at least not replying to — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s debate challenge.

And Edward M. Kennedy was still not talking — despite the continued questions — about getting out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

All that "not talking" did not make for silence in politics, of course.

The candidates were headed into their last day today before crucial primaries in New York and Connecticut, and they had a busy weekend.

Carter swamped Kennedy in another round of caucuses, these in Virginia, and a new poll showed the president and Reagan would be running about neck and neck if they were nominated.

BUSH WAS TO deliver a major address at Yale University today. Reagan was headed for New York, where Kennedy was already campaigning. And Brown and Anderson were in Wisconsin, where Republican Anderson was not replying to the challenge the Democrat issued on the theory that both were appealing to the same moderate voters.

Voters are not bound by party registration in Wisconsin, and Anderson has appealed openly for Democrats and independents to cross over and vote in the Republican primary.

Brown said he wanted Anderson, who has participated in Republican debates, to defend his support of nuclear energy, the neutron bomb and his "negative labor record."

Reagan's surprising remark about parity came at an "agricultural day" held in Wichita, Kan., right in the Midwest's farm heartland.

Asked whether he favored 100 percent of parity, Reagan replied: "I wish I could answer the question for you that I know is a technical question, 100 percent of parity. I have to confess to you that I am not as familiar with some things as that."

FARMERS FAVOR 100 percent of parity, which with federal subsidies would put their purchasing power at the same level they had after World War I. Reagan told the group in Wichita that he would seek farm leaders' advice on the best way to end farmers' cost-price squeeze and "if it is 100 percent of parity, yes, I'd support that."

He later told reporters "maybe I know more about it than I indicated in there" and that 100 percent of party "could create ... an enormous government subsidy."

Asked why he hadn't said that to the farm audience, Reagan replied, "I said as much as I needed to say, that I didn't know enough about it to fully discuss it, and I'm saying that here."

As Reagan campaigned Sunday in Kansas and Oklahoma, Bush stumped Connecticut and was asked about a poll that showed him trailing the California governor in the state where Bush grew up and has family political ties.

BUSH DIDN'T want to talk about the poll, which showed Reagan with 24 percent, Bush with 17 percent, Anderson with 12 percent, but by far the largest number of Connecticut voters, 43 percent, undecided.

"I'm the new guy that's talking only about issues," he told reporters. "I don't care what it shows. I couldn't care less. It's the new me. I'm going to plug ahead in Connecticut, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania."

Kennedy, meanwhile, also seemed to be looking the other way from recent polls showing him running far behind Carter in New York, which will award 282 Democratic convention delegates in its primary Tuesday.

"I believe we're going to do well," Kennedy said Sunday. And asked what he'd do if he lost New York, he said: "I'm going to stay in the race."

CARTER CAPTURED 59 of Virginia's 62 convention delegates in caucuses Saturday. That gave the president 535.3 of the 1,666 he needs for the Democratic nomination, and Kennedy 189.1.

penalized for having an off-campus program."

Bartosh was pleased with the decision, adding, "I think this is the least they could have given us because there was a violation. But I think the committee understood the situation, and we are just really pleased with the outcome. There was no intent to break a rule, and we had already legislated ourselves. I think the committee understood that, and we take the decision as a positive step."

The anonymous letters sent to the Austin UIL office also alleged Midland High had violated UIL rules for using contact equipment, showing films and working out on Saturdays, showing a film past the one-hour time limit and using drills in excess of five-man techniques. None of those, however, had any basis in fact, according to the committee's findings.

The UIL office instructed the district committee to hold an investigation into the allegations.

Italian Consulate bombed

London police arrest Italian national

LONDON (AP) — An explosion early today "totally destroyed" the Italian Consulate in London's fashionable Belgravia district. Scotland Yard said an Italian national was arrested for questioning in connection with the blast.

No casualties were reported.

Contrary to earlier police reports, a Yard spokesman said forensic experts now believed no explosives were involved. But the blast may have resulted from ignition of the natural gas supply in the building, the spokesman said.

However, a spokesman for the local gas agency said it did not look like the blast was caused by a gas leak.

Amanda Rolt, a 19-year-old student who lives in a top floor apartment two doors away from the consulate, reported smelling gas shortly before the explosion.

"It was frightening, absolutely horrible," she told reporters. "My bed jumped and the whole building shook. I looked out of the window and smoke was just pouring into the street."

The Italian consul said the building was not occupied when the blast occurred and no casualties were reported among those living nearby, police said. Authorities evacuated more than 100 residents from the swank homes around the consulate. Several women turned out in mink coats over their night clothes.

Cmdr. Peter Duffy, of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad, said an Italian national was arrested at his home very soon after the blast.

The police spokesman declined to draw any links between the explosion and Italian terrorists.

Duffy, asked if the explosion may have been the result of a personal vendetta, replied: "It may well be."

A Scotland Yard spokeswoman said the explosion and ensuing fire "totally destroyed" the six-story building in Eaton Place.

Italian Ambassador Andrea Cagiati inspected the damage, picking his way over debris to look inside the shell of the consulate. He said he was "extremely surprised and upset about this dramatic event. The only positive thing is that nobody was injured and there have been no casualties."

"The roof is off and the front of the building has collapsed. All the floors have been damaged by fire," said a spokesman for the fire department.

It took more than 50 firemen to control the blaze that engulfed the building "from top to bottom."

Carter's Israeli stumble doesn't appear to give New York to Teddy

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration's stumble over Israeli policy does not seem to be turning the tide for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in heavily Jewish New York, with its high-stakes primary Tuesday.

When on March 1 the administration voted for a United Nations resolution condeming Israeli settlements on occupied land, it seemed almost a heaven-sent gift to Kennedy's faltering campaign.

Jews make up one-third of the New York primary vote, and Kennedy partisans began dreaming that the gaffe could help them score an upset in the New York primary, with its 282 Democratic convention delegates.

There is evidence of anger about the U.N. vote by Jewish voters. Vice President Walter Mondale, campaigning for the president here Sunday night, faced angry shouts and boos when he addressed a crowd of 1,200 at a dinner sponsored by Young Israel, an Orthodox group.

"We will stand by Israel forever," Mondale said.

"We don't believe you!" shouted a voice from the crowd.

But despite the anger and the heavy campaign attention paid the U.N. vote, it appears Kennedy has not gained enough from the administration's flip-flop.

The only published poll on the subject suggests that even though most Jews are angry with Carter, the majority will still vote for him. And some Jewish leaders agree that the anger over the vote will not turn into votes for Kennedy.

"To vote against Carter for that, you have to have somebody to turn to. But Kennedy just does not have credibility as president," says State Assemblyman Mark Siegel, a Manhattan Jew and a reform Democrat of the kind normally associated with Kennedy.

A Lou Harris poll of 800 Democrats statewide done for the New York Daily News last week found that by a margin of 79 percent to 20 percent, Jews give Carter a negative job rating. And by a 60-27 margin, they do not believe his explanation for the U.N. vote.

But the Jews counted in the poll nonetheless favored Carter over Kennedy by a 51-41 margin. That's closer than the 61-34 Carter lead for the voters as a whole, but suggests that Kennedy had a long way to go in turning the Jewish vote into an upset.

Why the lag between anger at Carter and support for Kennedy?

"People don't see Kennedy as the solution," says Malcolm Honlein, executive director of the Jewish Community Relations Council of New York. "You could say it is a matter of trust."

The Massachusetts Democrat has nonetheless been trying to make the most of the isssue.

He taped television commercials declaring that "never again" must a president make such a mistake. "Never again" is the motto by which Jews condemn the Nazi holocaust.

And Kennedy visited a Jewish neighborhood in Brooklyn and a synagogue in Manhattan on Sunday to hammer home the issue.

He declared that the U.N. resolution was "basically a broad-scale attack on the state of Israel. The U.S. should have no part of it."

One-armed gymnast has 'something extra'

RICHARSON, Texas (AP) — If gymnast Diana Anglin doesn't make it to the Olympics someday, it'll be because of her age, she says, not the fact that she was born without a right arm.

At 13, the agile blonde uses a special oval rubber pad on the end of her artificial arm for workouts at Gymnastics, Inc., in nearby Garland. It supports her for floor exercises, vaults and routines on the balance beam.

"I don't feel bad about my arm, but sometimes it makes things harder — like I can't do the bars," she said. "I only do beam, floor and vault."

A highly determined gymnast, Diana works out three to four hours a day preparing for state competition and striving to keep her place on the team, the Flippers.

In four years of competition, she always has qualified for the state meet. During her first two years, she placed 11th. In 1978 she was named Novice Gymnast of the Year, and last year she placed first in the floor exercise.

In competition this week, she's working for a score of 9 (out of possible 10) in an optional routine so she can qualify for a regional meet in Denver next month.

At birth, her right arm was developed only an inch below the elbow.

"At first, it just about drove me nuts with guilt, and I still have bad moments," said her mother, Karen. "But you have to accept what life gives you, because there is always something good.

"And I really believe Diana was given a little something extra, because she has always been so outgoing and so successful in the things she has done."

At six months, Diana got her first prosthesis — a rubber-tipped, mitten-shaped device that helped her learn to crawl. Eighteen months later, she began using a hook and, after special training, she was able to tie her shoes and grip a crayon.

She calls herself a "medium good" gymnast and wants to try the uneven parallel bars.

Richard Nonaker, a biomedical research graduate student at the University of Texas at Arlington, is working on a prosthesis design that would let Diana grip and release the bars.

"Sometimes I get frustrated with gymnastics and not being able to do some of the stuff," she said, "but not with my arm."

Plane's engines to be studied

Cause of fatal Houston crash sought

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal investigators plan to dismantle and examine piece-by-piece the engines of a commuter airliner that crashed Friday at Hobby Airport killing seven persons.

J.O. Johnson, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator, said a thorough examination of the rest of the aircraft turned up no mechanical malfunction.

He said the engines and propellers would be taken today to the Brownwood headquarters of Eagle Aviation, Inc., owner of the plane, for a complete inspection.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said details of the crash — the second at a Houston airport in five weeks — probably would be released next week.

The seven who died included the pilot, Walter J. Mathison, 33, of Goleta, Calif., and his assistant, Judson Roach, 32, of Hico, Texas. Roach originally was identified as the co-pilot, but Johnson said that was not correct.

Witnesses said the twin-engine Piper Navajo lost power during takeoff on a flight to Waco, Dallas and Brownwood, fell to the ground and struck a parked helicopter, a small plane and four parked cars before smashing into a hangar and bursting into flames.

Johnson said air traffic controllers saw the airplane make a right turn, then heard a radio call saying, "I've lost our right engine." Johnson said that call apparently was made by Mathison, and was followed by one from Roach, saying, "We are declaring an emergency."

Three persons survived the crash when airport workers pulled them from the wreckage before the plane burst into flames.

One of them, Willis Jackson, 31, of Houston, said the plane may have developed engine trouble before takeoff.

"Before we took off, the left engine wouldn't start. Finally they got it started and we took off," Jackson said.

"Just as it started there was a backfire like a car. Then it was two backfires. The next thing we knew the plane tilted to the left. He (the pilot) evened it out. It tilted over again. That's all I remember."

Dan McGee of San Antonio said the pilot and co-pilot had a frantic discussion just before the craft slammed into the ground.

"I remember hearing the pilot say 'What do I do?'" said McGee, a 22-year-old Baylor University student.

Four passengers died in the crash and fire. They were Rembert H. Woodridge, 56, of Waco; Ronald D. Hancock, 35, of Axtell, Texas; Peter C. Stenback, 24, of Houston; and Stanley M. Glassman, 54, of Hauppauge, N.Y.

Another passenger, Virgil Savoy, 47, of Brownwood, survived the impact but died of injuries two hours later at a Houston hospital. Savoy was a real estate investor and former banking official in San Angelo, Kerrville and Corpus Christi.

Jackson, McGee and Samir Foteh, 25, of Missouri City, remained hospitalized Sunday in fair to satisfactory condition.

On Feb. 14, four Corpus Christi residents died and one was injured when a twin-engine turbo plane crashed in heavy fog short of a runway at Houston Intercontinental Airport.

Final arguments expected in aliens' suit on schooling

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys predicted final arguments would begin Tuesday in the federal court challenge to Texas law prohibiting illegal alien children from attending state public schools free.

The state statute is being challenged before U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals in a suit brought by Hispanic parents whose children were either denied admission to public schools or were charged tuition.

For five weeks, attorneys for the Hispanic parents have attempted to show the law is inhumane, and to discredit the state's claim that neither enough money nor enough bilingual teachers are available to absorb the influx of school-age illegal aliens.

Many Texas school districts enroll the illegal alien children, provided they pay tuition, generally about $1,000 a semester. Other districts deny admission to any child without proper proof of residence.

The Texas attorney general's office has argued in the courtroom that should the children be admitted, thousand of youths whose parents are documented aliens would suffer in crowded classrooms with overworked teachers.

The state said a recent survey showed there were at least 111,000 illegal school-age children in Texas. Attorneys for the plaintiffs contend the count was inflated.

Cleveland solves school transportation problem, starts full-scale integration

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland was beginning full-scale integration of its junior high schools today, with the transportation problems of last week reported solved.

About 16,000 black and white students were riding buses, some for more than an hour, as part of the effort to desegregate Ohio's largest public school system.

The city has 22,700 junior high school students in 24 schools, and 11,300 of them were to begin riding buses today. In addition, 23,000 students at 33 of the district's 146 schools were integrated last fall and continue to attend integrated schools.

The school system said that it needed 233 buses to carry out the program. As of Saturday, 230 vehicles were available for use. Mechanics worked overtime on Sunday to make further repairs.

Under a schedule set by U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti, desegregation will be completed in September 1980 in the district, which has more than 90,000 pupils, two-thirds of whom are black.

Richard Knisely, the system's newly appointed transportation director, said on Sunday that "everything is go."

"What we have pure and simple is enough drivers and buses to do the job," Knisely said.

Cleveland's school board met in a rare Saturday session and discussed putting off junior high school desegregation until September because of three days of mechanical problems and high absenteeism among drivers last week.

But school Superintendent Peter P. Carlin said that not only would lead to problems with Battisti, but also would dampen enthusiasm for the integration efforts.

TSTA may seek bargaining power

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Members of the Texas State Teachers Association may soon ask the state legislature for a collective bargaining bill that would include the right to strike.

Delegates told officers to draft the proposed bill at the conclusion of the TSTA's annual meeting here Saturday night, and left it up to them whether the proposal would include firm language on the right to strike and binding arbitration in contract negotiations.

"We consider the right to strike a last resort, but it is necessary," said Louise Daniel, chairman of the TSTA leigislative committee. "We need the right...as a provision for the bargaining."

The proposed bill will be presented to state legislators for consideration when the next regular session begins in January.

The teachers also voted on three other "priority" items for the 1981 legislative session — a teacher employment act to protect job security, a state-financed group health insurance plan for school employees, and a pay raise.

"Over 50 percent of our teachers are at the poverty level income," said TSTA President Checile Russell. "Under the 1979 legislation, a teacher with eight years of experience or less makes so little her children would qualify for a free or reduced price lunch."

Earlier Saturday, White House aide Sarah Weddington, a former Texas state representative, boasted to the teachers that Jimmy Carter was the "most pro-education president since Lyndon Johnson."

By comparison, she said, former President Richard Nixon was an "underachiever in the field of education" and called former President Gerald Ford a "downright dropout."

Ms. Weddington said the new Cabinet-level Department of Education will be inaugurated May 7 — a month ahead of schedule — in White House ceremonies.

Time to cry 'no more'

The sentencing of Soviet Jewish dissident Igor Guberman to five years at hard labor in Moscow not only reaffirms the belief that the Soviet state once again may be cracking down on outspoken dissidents, but also smacks of another assault against that nation's Jewish people.

Guberman, a writer for the underground Moscow journal "Jews" in the Soviet Union, was convicted of a charge of buying stolen sacred figures, according to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Patla, who lives in Israel.

"This was a trial against the whole Jewish movement," said Mrs. Patla.

That's exactly what it looks like from here, too.

According to her, the Soviet courtroom was packed with KGB agents who had conducted searches and interrogations of Guberman and other writers for the Jewish journal.

News accounts indicated that agents found a collection of antiques in Guberman's apartment, including keys, samovars, paintings and icons — the sacred figures.

Mrs. Patla claimed the Soviet criminal charge that Guberman bought stolen icons was intended only to avoid the embarrassment of an overtly political trial and that the sentence was intended to silence Guberman.

Her assessment probably is an accurate one, judging from past instances of treatment of Soviet dissidents.

But in this case it appears evident that Guberman's religious beliefs played a role in the case and the sentence against him.

He has two things going against him: First, he is a dissident and, second, he is a Jew.

President Jimmy Carter and his administration have spoken out against the treatment of Soviet dissidents. The administration has heralded human rights as one of its major causes.

Yet little has been done for the cause of Soviet dissidents on a worldwide scale. What little improvement has come about has resulted primarily because of the pressures brought to bear by the United States and a few other governments on the Soviet Union.

That pressure is an important factor. It should not be discounted. But there needs to be more.

Little can be accomplished in respect to dissidents or the Jews in the Soviet Union if action is not taken on a worldwide scope.

An outcry from the world community, like the one experienced following the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, would go a long way toward improving the situation for Soviet dissidents and Jews.

How many more dissidents must be silenced before that outcry is heard?

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, March 24, the 84th day of 1980. There are 282 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 24, 1882, German bacteriologist Robert Koch announced that he had isolated the tuberculosis germ.

On this date:

In 1603, the Crowns of England and Scotland were joined under James VI of Scotland, who reigned as James I.

In 1972, Britain took over direct control of Northern Ireland in an effort to restore peace.

In 1976, the military in Argentina overthrew and arrested President Isabel Peron, installing its own government.

In 1977, 81-year-old Morarji Desai was chosen as India's new prime minister, succeeding Indira Gandhi.

Ten years ago, President Nixon pledged to eliminate officially imposed school segregation, while holding off action on existing segregation until he got further guidance from the courts.

Five years ago, the advancing North Vietnamese captured two more provincial capitals in South Vietnam's central highlands, effectively cutting off the city of Da Nang.

Last year, Egypt's President Anwar Sadat left Cairo for the U.S., where he would sign a peace treaty with Israel.

CHARLEY REESE

Modern politicians need lesson from Jefferson

Charley Reese

Whenever the silliness of a modern political campaign begins to depress me, I run for my old worn copy of the writings of Thomas Jefferson and spend an evening with this giant.

Compared to Jefferson, most current politicians are mental and moral dwarfs. From time to time, modern propagandists masquerading as historians try to bring him down to their level, the gutter, but they can't succeed. Resurrecting political slanders from old presidential campaigns reveals more about the modern man than about Jefferson.

He gave us the perfect definition of good government. "...a wise and frugal government which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvements, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned."

Modern collectivists have gone to a lot of trouble to convince Americans that Jefferson is out of date and that what he stood for applies only to a small agrarian nation. This is patent nonsense. Principles do not go out of date. Gravity works exactly the same way today it did in the Stone Age. And so do the principles of freedom.

Our government is not a good government. It is not wise. It is not frugal. It does a poor job of restraining men from injuring one another. It takes the bread out of the mouth of labor.

The enemies of Jefferson are the same today as they were in his day and he foresaw that this would be the case.

"Men by their constitutions are naturally divided into two parties," Jefferson wrote in a letter to Henry Lee. "1. Those who fear and distrust the people and wish to draw all powers from them into the hands of the higher classes. 2. Those who identify themselves with the people, have confidence in them, cherish and consider them as the most honest and safe although not the most wise depository of public interests."

In his day, they were called federalists and republicans. In our time, they are called liberals and conservatives, which is further evidence of this age of propaganda that uses words to mean their opposites for the purpose of confusing the people.

Today's liberal is Jefferson's federalist — distrustful of the people and wishing to draw all powers from them into the hands of the higher classes. Listen to their speeches. If you hear the words, "liberty" or "freedom" in the context of man's freedom from government interference in the speeches of President Carter, Ted Kennedy, Jerry Brown, Jerry Ford, George Bush, or John Anderson, I'd like to know about it. All they debate are the details of government interference.

If Jefferson could come back to life, you'd find him in the company of Barry Goldwater, Ronald Reagan, Phil Crane and Jack Kemp, those men we today label conservatives; listen to their speeches and you won't have any trouble hearing the words "freedom" and "liberty."

Unfortunately, since the days of the New Deal, the federalists have generally won the field. It is they who have eroded our republican principles, stripping the state and local governments of their authority. It is they who have sought to put the power into the hands of an elite few. It is they who seek to erase state lines and establish federal regional government. It is they who even wish to erase our national borders and exchange our independence for the interdependence of some international organization.

All you have to do is throw away modern histories and go back and read the original writings of our forefathers. You will be struck instantly with enlightenment. Nothing has changed. The same conflict between the same philosophies that occupied their lives occupies our lives. The real issues are the same in 1980 as they were when Jefferson ran for president.

Jefferson even has a hint for us who are tired of big government and big lies. "And what country can preserve its liberties, if its rulers are not warned from time to time that this people preserve the spirit of resistance."

It's time to remember our own Revolution and what it was about.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

Hansen pushing for House investigation

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A stinging secret report to the House Intelligence Committee raises serious questions about Jimmy Carter's role in the Iranian hostage situation and suggests that only prompt and thorough congressional hearings can fix responsibility for the crisis and secure the hostages' release.

Among the most serious charges in the explosive report are these:

— President Carter himself provoked the seizure of our embassy in Tehran by letting the exiled Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlavi into the United States, despite clear and repeated warnings that such action could lead to the taking of American hostages.

— The banking community, particularly David Rockefeller of Chase Manhattan, played a key role in getting the shah admitted. The report suggests that Chase Manhattan deliberately set up the confrontation so that it could keep the Iranian government from withdrawing billions in oil revenue from its account at the bank.

— Former Secretary of State William Rogers may have violated federal conflict-of-interest laws by going to work for the shah's Pahlavi Foundation shortly after leaving the government.

— Negligence by the Carter administration allowed many highly sensitive U.S. documents to fall into the hands of the Iranians — and the Soviet Union — when the embassy was overrun.

— The hostages could have been released on at least four separate occasions "with no compromise of the U.S. position."

— Congress has shirked its duty by failing to hold hearings on the Iranian mess.

The detailed report was prepared by Rep. George Hansen, the maverick Idaho Republican who tried to resolve the hostage crisis by negotiating personally with the embassy captors in Tehran. Though Hansen's flamboyant attempt at one-man diplomacy was derided by the administration and his colleagues in Congress, he and a staff of three investigators have documented their allegations in detail.

In his report, sent to Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., chairman of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, Hansen chides the congressional leadership for its failure to look into the Iranian situation, when an investigation might free the hostages.

"Congress did not hesitate long to open inquiries into 'Watergate' and 'Koreagate,' " he reminded Boland. "Our government did not wait until the end of World War II to find who slept at the switch on Pearl Harbor ...

"I can personally attest to you with witnesses that such hearings could have brought the hostages home in November and may well be the key again ... Why should we sidestep the truth until the hostages are out when the truth can get them out?"

Hansen has compiled "massive information that cries out for responsible investigation," he wrote. Many of his allegations have already been verified by my associates Gary Cohn and Joe Spear. Many, in fact, were first reported in this column.

Chronicling the president's decision to admit the ex-shah for medical treatment last October, Hansen's report cites secret State Department cables that warn of retaliation against the American Embassy if the shah were admitted. An eyes-only document dated three months before the embassy takeover states explicitly: "The danger of hostages being taken in Iran will persist ... We should make no move toward admitting the shah until we have obtained and tested a new and substantially more effective guard force at the embassy."

Hansen suggests, from evidence of other documents, that admission of the shah was not the result of a medical emergency, as the administration claimed, but was probably long and carefully planned.

In discussing the pressure from Chase Manhattan and the Rockefellers' henchman, Henry Kissinger, the report notes that under the shah, Iran's oil revenues were deposited with Chase Manhattan to the tune of $20 billion a year. But the revolutionary Iranian government began to withdraw its funds — a potentially serious "run" on the bank.

While Hansen stops short of accusing Chase Manhattan of engineering the hostage situation, he does point out that Carter's response — freezing Iranian assets in U.S. banks — prevented further withdrawals from the Rockefeller bank and ultimately allowed Chase Manhattan to seize the Iranian funds.

And the report quotes an unnamed financial newsletter as stating flatly: "It is now apparent that the Iranian crisis was provoked by the Chase Manhattan Bank to save itself from possible bankruptcy."

All Hansen wants, he wrote Boland, is a full airing of the facts before Congress and the American people.

Congress, he said, must decide "whether to appear to suppress information from our own people or to air the matter of Iran fully," and adds: "It is my firm conviction that the American people would rather have the full truth. In fact, I am convinced that they are now beginning to suspect that the failure to disclose is motivated less by national security considerations than by the desire to cover up and protect the system."

INSIDE REPORT:

Presidential quest threatens careers of Kennedy, Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Sen. Edward's M. Kennedy's presidential campaign, spawned by popular demand brief months ago, is now taking on the slightly meanacing mien of a spoiler operation whose principal sometimes seems divorced from reality.

The emotional force now driving the senator, the loser in every contest with President Carter except in Massachusetts, derives from this Kennedy conviction: Sooner or later, Jimmy Carter can be had if Kennedy only maintains the fortitude, as he put it here, "to stay in the race for the full course."

Some Kennedy intimates are convinced his cocky, self-confident demeanor in the face of growing adversity is nothing but gossamer, concealing his real purpose of bowing out if he loses next Tuesday's New York Democratic presidential primary in yet another Carter triumph. If so, the performance now being put on by Kennedy commands respect for political gallantry above and beyond any call of duty.

But if Teddy Kennedy means what he seems to be saying, and continues a savage, rearguard action against Carter until the nominating convention next August in New York City, many Democrats, including anti-Carter Democrats, will judge him differently. They will view him as a political delinquent willing to plunder his party to prove his rectitude.

Evans

Novak

Such conduct by the brother of John and Robert Kennedy seemed unlikely, to put it mildly. But his escalating response to his loss in Illinois points hard in that direction, putting the senator in the position of seeking the political execution of Jimmy Carter, if not before the convention then in the general election.

Consider Kennedy's answer to a question about what happens when Carter reaches a "mathematical" majority of delegates. It was asked during one of his numerous interviews taped by TV and radio stations here (a guarantee of Kennedy getting good air time without his financially embarrassed campaign having to pay for it).

Kennedy's quick reply was that "mathematics" have nothing to do with the matter. Delegations legally bound for Carter could chose not to vote on the first or second ballot, thereby freeing themselves to vote against Carter and, presumably, for Kennedy in subsequent ballots.

That answer happens to be wrong. Pledged delegates who refuse to vote their pledge can be automatically replaced on the floor. But however wrong, Kennedy's answer exactly fit the brave face put on Illinois by the senator and his New York handlers, some of whom have been out of national politics since their successful battle for John and Robert many years ago.

Illinois, a disaster without mitigation, is being touted by Kennedy as proving that his campaign against Carter's handling of inflation is beginning to take hold. The implication: If Teddy Kennedy just keeps beating on Carter long enough, the voters will get the message. The dubious quality of this Kennedy hope, however, constantly intruded on the senator during his swing through upstate New York. He was besieged during his dozen or so separate TV and radio interviews with questions about his integrity, his trustworthiness and his reputation, all of which tended to diminish the effect of his attack on Carter economics.

Why, he was asked, is his "negative rating" so high? Kennedy's answer ended with a defense of his married life, noting almost jauntily that he and his wife Joan have been married for 22 years "and many people can't claim that."

This means that even in the liberal, industrial Empire State, the political wounds of Chappaquiddick and other vulnerable points in Kennedy's past are not yet being overlooked.

Any Democratic ward heeler could tell Kennedy that, unless those vulnerable points are exorcised, he is probably the only major Democratic figure in the nation powerless to exploit Carter's own political vulnerabilities, despite a highly-effective campaign style that is now smooth, confident and articulate.

Another defeat — in the New York primary — ought finally to drive that point home to Kennedy. If such occurs, but he then takes the path that he now is threatening to follow in a futile quest all the way to Madison Square Garden, he will risk ending the political future of both himself and Jimmy Carter and thereby change the face of American politics.

Swedes back completion of nuclear energy plan

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Nearly 60 percent of the Swedes voting in a referendum backed completion of the nation's ambitious nuclear energy program despite the Three Mile Island nuclear accident in the United States that prompted the national showdown vote.

Final returns from Sunday's vote had 2.72 million Swedes, 58 percent of those voting, endorsing a 1975 government plan to put six more nuclear power plants into operation, while 1.8 million, or 38.6 percent, voted to shut down the six nuclear generators already in operation within 10 years. Another 3.3 percent of the voters cast blank ballots.

A total of 74.3 percent of the nation's 6.3 million eligible voters cast ballots, far below the 90 percent who voted in the 1979 general elections.

The future of nuclear energy became something of a national obsession following the nuclear accident at the TMI reactor in Harrisburg, Pa., a year ago this week. Center Party Prime Minister Thorbjorn Falldin won office last year on an anti-nuclear ticket and campaigned hard to scrap nuclear power through the referendum. However, after the vote he promised he would abide by the national consensus.

"I don't think the other parties could ignore such a big opinion," he added.

The Communist Party and environmental groups, which joined Falldin's Centrists in a "peoples' campaign" against nuclear power, said they would continue to fight it despite the vote.

Hinting he, too, may not have given up the fight altogether, Falldin said he would continue to keep a close watch on nuclear plant safety, and raised doubts about the activation of two of the four additional reactors that have been completed.

Tough steel workers weep as plant closes for good

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — As 20 steam whistles blew and the last 7,800-pound ingot turned into steel bars, steelworkers wept as they left their jobs at U.S. Steel Corp.'s Ohio Works.

"I was one of many men who had wet eyes during that last 15 minutes," said Ron Dillon, the plant's last working turn foreman. "Those who didn't shed tears had lumps in their throats.

"It was amazing. The whistles blew and years of great experiences passed through your thoughts. Only the good things passed by, none of the bad.

Raymond Watkins pocketed three wooden control knobs as souvenirs to symbolize the years he and his father spent at the plant.

"My daddy, Dave, worked here 45 years, and when he retired in 1971, I got his job as transfer operator. These are the tools of our job." The last ingot was turned out Saturday at the 90-year-old Ohio Works, which is being shut down by U.S. Steel.

The shutdown came a day after U.S. District Judge Thomas D. Lambros rejected a bid by United Steelworkers union locals to block the closing of the mill and the company's nearby McDonald Works. At stake were 3,500 jobs.

Andy Berroteran, who helped roll the final ingot of steel, said, "I had a lump in my throat. It had to be the most emotional thing I have ever been through.

"I can remember 31 years ago when I started here, the old-timers would tell me about this or that happening. Now I have something to tell."

Lambros said he could find no basis in law for ordering the country's leading steelmaker to keep its Youngstown-area mills running but he ordered the facilities be kept in operable condition for 60 days to give workers a chance to try to buy them.

The federal government has been asked to put up $50 million in loan guarantees to back a worker-community takeover of the mills. Lambros withheld ruling on an antitrust complaint by steelworkers against U.S. Steel until after the 60-day period.

U.S. Steel Chairman David Roderick has said that he will not sell the plants to any federally subsidized competitor. "Since the plaintiffs (the Steelworkers) intend to obtain a federal subsidy ... Roderick's statements appear to be a refusal to deal," the judge said.

'Father' of interstate system dies at age 77

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former Rep. George H. Fallon, known as "the father of the interstate highway system" has died at the age of 77.

Fallon who represented Baltimore in Congress from 1944 to 1970, died Friday at Union Memorial Hospital where he was being treated for a lung ailment and related complications.

Fallon was first elected to the 79th Congress in 1944 and was re-elected 12 times. He was dean of the Maryland delegation at the time of his defeat in the 1970 primary.

Fallon was head of the powerful Public Works Committe and was known for the Fallon Act in the early 1950s, which authorized the multi-billion dollar interstate highway system.

At the time of his defeat at the polls, Fallon was the last member still sitting in Congress of the five representatives who were wounded when Puerto Rican radicals opened fire from the balcony onto the floor of the House of Representatives in 1954.

He was shot through the hip and hospitalized for 10 days.

Water-logged residents wait for Lake Elsinore to recede

LAKE ELSINORE, Calif. (AP) — While not letting down their guard, city officials and hundreds of homeowners are breathing a sigh of relief and looking toward restoring their water-logged community as Lake Elsinore continues to recede.

Nonetheless, the town's problems may be far from over. Because the lake is so swollen, federal emergency officials in the area already have warned residents that more flooding could occur next fall when the rainy season again rolls around.

Lake Elsinore's waters finally began receding over the weekend. It had bulged to twice its normal width by runoff from this winter's storms — including a nine-day series of storms and rain in February.

Private property damage from the floods had reached $25 million, Riverside County officials said.

Reaching a peak of 1,265.72 feet above sea level Friday, the lake dropped 0.04 of a foot Saturday and another 0.02 foot Sunday, or about three-quarters of an inch, Mayor Nap Harris said.

"We have crested, unless there is more rain or drastic snow," he said.

But, he added, "We're still a little bit nervous. We haven't let our guard down yet. We've been happy and thought we'd licked this before and been wrong."

Harris said that if snow in the San Jacinto Mountains melts too fast, the runoff could force opening of the Hemet Dam floodgates, sending water into Lake Elsinore's 770-square-mile watershed.

Still, the two consecutive days of receding water was the first good news in six weeks for residents of this rustic resort community 65 miles southeast of Los Angeles. Since Feb. 13, they had stood by helplessly as waters crept relentlessly to some 20 feet above the pre-storm level.

By last week lake waters were spread out over 7,000 acres, compared with about 3,500 acres before the storms. Some 650 homes were either damaged or, in the case of about 300 mobile homes, relocated.

More than 100 of the homes were inundated, including a number of residences along the pre-flood shoreline that were completely covered.

It will take a while for things to return to normal. The Army Corps of Engineers estimates it will be April 12 before the water level drops to the 1,265-foot mark, the threshold point for major flood damage.

State must assure residents that TMI cleanup efforts safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate nuclear regulation subcommittee said today it is Pennsylvania's responsibility to assure residents near the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant that cleanup operations will not "gas them to death"

"Why can't the Pennsylvania legislature appropriate $10,000 or $50,000 or $100,000 to hire nuclear experts... to look at this cubic yard of gas and tell people around there it's not going to hurt them?" Sen. Gary Hart asked.

Hart, D-Colo., said the job should not be viewed as a federal obligation. He suggested Pennsylvania officials were "not being responsible" in perceiving their own duty in helping to calm local fears arising from the March 28, 1979 plant accident.

Hart commented after Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials told his subcommittee today that they seem incapable of winning the trust of those living near the crippled reactor in central Pennsylvania.

Last week, NRC officials were bombarded by complaints, jeers and curses when they attempted to explain at a town meeting their plans for releasing into the environment some radioctive gas inside the reactor containment structure.

"There was anger, frustration, bitterness, fear, a complete mistrust of anyone who is in an official position," NRC Chairman John Ahearne testified.

He told Hart's subcommittee, a unit of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, that failure of local townspeople to believe the NRC was "the major obstacle" to the cleanup operation.

Hart replied: "Why can't the state of Pennsylvania find a few thousand dollars to find some local experts to assure the people there that you aren't going to gas them to death?"

Ahearne agreed that such a panel might be the answer, saying residents might find this kind of expert advice more convincing that reassurances they have been receiving from NRC and utility-company officials.

And NRC member Peter Bradford said a "locally chosen panel of experts" should have been selected in the first place.

Hart added, "I would think the state of Pennsylvania would have some responsibility. This is just once instance of where state goverments are not being responsible."

NRC officials have said that venting the amount of krypton gas in the reactor building would not pose a health threat to the area but is needed to allow workers into the sealed-off structure to repair and service equipment there.

Hugs, kisses and humor mark end of Kansas City's firefighter strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — "Welcome Home, Ex-Con," said one sign greeting the 71 firefighters pardoned by Gov. Joseph Teasdale and freed from jail as this Midwest city ended its second firefighters walkout in four months with hugs and kisses — and a touch of humor.

Cheering, singing songs and applauding speakers, some 200 firefighters, wives and children gathered at a rally near the Municipal Corrections Institution on Sunday as they awaited the men who were jailed last week for defying a no-strike order.

"We're very proud of them," said Lee Donnici, as her husband Gary was freed Sunday afternoon after the pardons paperwork was completed.

The jailing was "like someone put us all in the twilight zone," she said. "I was falling apart.

When the six-day strike ended Saturday, she tied yellow ribbons around an oak tree in the family's yard and bought two bottles of champagne. "It's not a wedding — but it's going to be a honeymoon," she said.

The pardon was part of a settlement between city officials and union leaders that also called for reinstating 42 firefighters dismissed during a 12-day work slowdown in December.

The nearly 900 members of Firefighters Local 42 walked off their jobs at 6 p.m. last Monday after City Manager Robert Kipp refused to reinstate the 42 men.

"I'd hate to go through another thing like this again" said firefighter Tom Chuning, after he emerged from jail. "But sure, I'd do it again, if it was a matter of getting the men back."

Firefighters began returning to work at the 11 p.m. shift Saturday after voting almost unanimously to approve the settlement worked out during day-long talks with the governor, mayor, city manager, city council and union leaders.

The council had asked the court to reinstate the fired workers on the condition that firefighters returned to work. Immediately after the vote, Jackson County Circuit Judge Donald L. Masoon ordered the reinstatement.

Kansas City firefighters, who had worked since May 1 without a contract, also agreed to a 15 percent salary increase over two years. Under the old contract, they were paid annual salaries of between $12,132 and $17,982.

As firefighters manned their stations, some 491 Missouri National Guardsmen and 128 Highway Patrol officers began phasing out their coverage.

Girl buried under rocks reunited with her family

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An 8-year-old girl who was buried alive under a pile of rocks on the beach has been returned to her family, and prosecutors today prepared formal charges against the man accused in her abduction.

The 21-year-old man, described by police as a "drifter," was arrested Friday. Police said they will seek charges of attempted capital murder and aggravated kidnapping in the case, but admit they are baffled as to the man's motive.

Police made the arrest after beach visitors reported seeing the girl walking with a man carrying a backpack. Prosecutors recommended $100,000 bond.

The girl, whose name is being withheld, disappeared Wednesday when she went to play on the beach, according to her father. Officer Rick Singleton and Canadian tourist Ronald Larmondin discovered the girl 13 hours later when they heard a whimpering sound coming from a pile of rocks.

"They (Picard and Larmondin) approached faint sounds ... At first they thought it was a seagull that had been hurt. Her body was completely covered with rocks. Only a few toes were sticking out," said Officer Jim Franks.

She was treated at John Sealy Hospital, suffering from exposure and bruises from the stones, some weighing as much as 40 pounds. However, she was released from the hospital Sunday and rejoined her family.

Slaying called hit man's work

NEW YORK (AP) — The slaying of Angelo Bruno outside his south Philadelphia rowhouse was the work of mob hit men, a New York newspaper said today.

Bruno, 69, reputed organized crime boss for Philadelphia and south Jersey, was killed because he was a threat to the mob's multi-million dollar investment in the Atlantic City gambling industry, the New York Daily News reported.

The report said the earlier slayings of reputed crime kingpins Carmine Galante of New York and Anthony Russo of New Jersey also were contract murders.

The paper said the slayings were approved by the mob's board of directors or "commission," of which Bruno was a senior member.

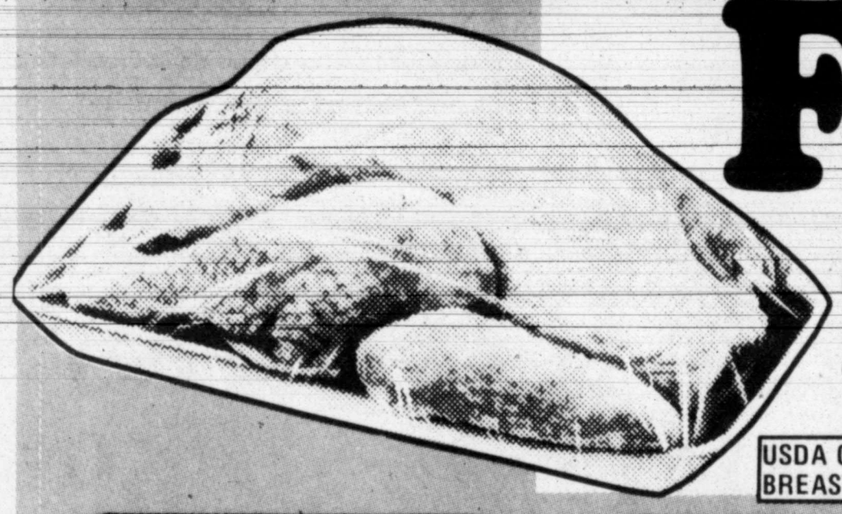

Bruno was shot in the back of the head Friday night with what investigators theorized might have a sawed-off, double-barreled shotgun.

Efforts to balance budget draw lobbyists to capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The growing political battle over balancing the 1981 federal budget is drawing legions of lobbyists to Washington with the same message to Congress: Let someone else sacrifice.

Lobbyists for cities, states and numerous special interests packed into the House Budget Committee room last week in largely unsuccessful efforts to restore money earmarked for elimination.

The lobbyists can also be expected to fill the halls of Congress in the next two weeks as the full House takes up the budget proposal for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

"They're hitting this town as fast as the airplanes an bring them here," remarked Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., the House Budget Committee chairman, as the panel considered the budget Thursday.

Giaimo said one governor, who was elected as a tough fiscal conservative, had already visited him to urge restoration of $1.7 billion for the state portion of revenue sharing. Giaimo did not identify the governor.

Debate over balancing the federal budget for the first time in 12 years was expected to dominate Congress this week, with a Senate vote scheduled on a proposal to limit federal spending to 21 percent of the Gross National Product.

Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., has obtained 44 signatures for his proposal to force federal spending down from its current share of about 22.5 percent of the combined value of the nation's goods and services.

However, last week, Democratic leaders developed an alternative proposal that calls on the Senate Budget Committee to recommend a balanced 1981 budget and report out an amendment containing enough cuts to meet Roth's proposed limit.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, the budget committee chairman, has said achieving the $45 billion in spending cuts needed to meet Roth's goal would "throw the country into havoc." The proposed list is presumably to demonstrate that point.

Meanwhile, the 1981 budget recommended by the House Budget Committee is expected to reach the floor Friday for the start of debate. A final vote is not anticipated until next week, however.

The committee-backed budget calls for $611.8 billion in spending and a $2 billion surplus. If approved by Congress, it would be the first balanced federal budget in 12 years.

The budget has produced a major split between Democratic liberals and moderates over where to cut spending. The current package hits social programs hard although it also recommends a $1.4 billion cut in President Carter's proposed level of defense spending.

Republicans provided key votes to get the spending package out of committee. They have already indicated they want deeper social program spending cuts, more defense money and a commitment on a $20 billion tax cut in exchange for their continued support.

Life under cover often 'harrowing'

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agent Joe Yablonsky and his wife had rehearsed the scene they were to play at dinner with a crook. He was portraying a shady character named Bob, and she was to be his girlfriend.

But the cover was almost blown during the drive to the restaurant when Mrs. Yablonsky, startled by an oncoming car, screamed, "Joe, watch out!"

Reacting quickly, Yablonsky yelled at her, "Don't you ever call me by your first husband's name again!"

The crook accepted the tiff as genuine, and Yablonsky's investigation was saved.

Yablonsky, now in charge of the FBI's Las Vegas office, tells the story as an illustration of the harrowing moments of life under cover.

As the bureau moves into undercover work in a major way, officials are discovering that the stress of leading a double life can exact a high toll on the agents and their families.

Officials are especially concerned and puzzled about the high rate of divorce and related family problems among undercover agents.

"The incidence of marital problems is higher with undercover agents than with other agents, but we don't know whether the undercover assignment contributes to that or whether the problems preceded the undercover role," said Oscar Revell, deputy assistant director of the bureau's criminal investigations division.

In interviews, Revell, Yablonsky and Howard Teten, a criminologist at the bureau's training academy, discusssed efforts to measure and find ways of easing the stresses affecting undercover agents and their families.

Of 7,800 agents, nearly 200 are working undercover, all volunteers who have been screened to determine whether they have the flexibility and the knack for fast thinking and glib talk the role may require.

Though some agents have encountered family strife, others "have found that their families became their greatest strength," Teten said.

The bureau moved into long-term undercover operations about two years ago, and officials as yet have no statistics on divorces and other emotional difficulties experienced by agents. But Teten said he and others are trying to gather such information in order to prepare agents more fully for the stress of a double life.

The officials said many undercover men and women speak of emotional conflicts as they work deeper into their roles and get to know all manner of crooks as three-dimensional human beings.

"This criminal you're trying to put in jail can be the worst guy in the world, but he still loves his mother and takes care of sick kids. There is a conflict between what you're doing and the good things you like about him, and this results in the stress of the guilt you feel about deceiving him," Yablonsky observed.

When agents come out from under cover, stress shows up in still other ways, the officials said.

"There are psychological readjustment problems because they have been used to operating on their own, making snap decisions, living by their wits," Revell said. "When they come back into the office, they face deadlines, procedure to follow, reports to write, and all of that can be frustrating."

Agents who have worked in deep cover for periods of several months or longer are sent to the training academy at Quantico, Va., "for decompression," he added. The transition period may include sessions with a psychologist.

As another means of easing the stress, the bureau assigns a contact agent to each man or woman working undercover. Revell said the contact acts as "the lifeline to the organization," on hand to provide help in case of danger but also to relay office gossip and restore the undercover agent's sense of identity with the FBI.

Yablonsky, an undercover pioneer who was carrying out such operations on a small scale even when J. Edgar Hoover was director and frowned on such tactics, estimates that no more than 1 percent of all law enforcement officials are capable of doing such work well.

It takes "a unique breed...with outstanding ability to think quickly and respond to shifting scenes and situations," he said.

More law inforcement officers killed in 1979, FBI reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI said today that 105 local, county, state and federal law enforcement officers were murdered in the line of duty in 1979, a 13 percent increase over 1978.

That year, 93 officers were killed in the United States and its territories.

FBI Director William H. Webster said preliminary 1979 figures show that firearms were used in 95 percent of the slayings.

Handguns were used to kill 77 officers; rifles, 17; and shotguns, six. Four were slain with knives or other cutting devices, and one was killed by a bomb.

The officers were killed in these situations:

—19 attempting to thwart robberies or pursuing robbery suspects.

—7 attempting to catch burglary suspects.

—7 attempting narcotics-related arrests.

—15 attempting arrests for crimes other than robbery or burglary or drug-related crimes.

—17 handling disturbance calls.

—13 enforcing traffic laws.

—11 in ambush situations.

—9 investigating suspicious persons.

—4 dealing with mentally deranged persons.

—3 handling or transporting prisoners.

Geographically, 48 officers were slain in the southern states, 23 in the western states, 16 in the north central states, 13 in the northeastern states, three in Puerto Rico and two in Guam.

The FBI said that law enforcement agencies have arrested and charged people in 98 of the 105 murders.

Parole board endorses change in procedure

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — The removal of the governor from the parole process was endorsed Sunday by four of the five members of the state Pardon and Parole Board.

During a break in their meeting here, all of the members of the board except Chairman Charles C. Chesnut took a stand in favor of the proposed change.

"It's an issue that should be left up to the governor, the Legislature and the people," said Chesnut, a Miami lawyer and a 25-year veteran of the board.

Parole officials said Oklahoma and Texas are the only two states in the U.S. that still require a governor's signature on all paroles.

Vice Chairman Robert H. Mitchell of Oklahoma City said the present system, which requires the governor's approval of board actions, is redundant and time-consuming.

...CASA DE AMIGOS is in need of a refrigerator for one of its senior citizens to replace one that has "died," a washing machine for a family of eight whose mom is working and that had large medical bills this winter (a dryer would help, too) and a double bed size mattress and box springs.

Needless to mention, these items need to be in working condition...

Also, the Casa can use good used clothing and other household items.

And it's never too late to be a tutor for a child who is really struggling to learn to read.

Casa was involved this past winter in trying to help alleviate the suffering experienced by people on low fixed incomes whose utility bills exceeded their rent or house payments. It kept the gas on in most homes where children and elderly were present. Casa also attempted to educate the low incomed concerning fuel conservation. Bobby Trimble, coordinator of Christmas in April, conducted a workshop in keeping out the cold, and Casa passed on their knowledge of conservation through teaching and tip sheets.

Christmas in April and Casa are making available materials for low-income people to use for repairs to lower fuel bills. Your donations to these two groups will be helpful...

He was one of three U.S. junior shooters to compete.

Robert recently was selected as a member of the 1980 Junior All-American Skeet Team. He also recently won four championships in the National Rifle Association's Zone 6 Championships and preliminary tryouts for the U.S. Olympic shooting squad.

Expert says children want acceptable conduct defined

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — "Set limits for your children. They need and want these limits defined for them," advises Dr. Stuart Kaplan, Director of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center.

To that first, essential rule, he also adds a couple of others: mother and father together must develop and agree on boundaries of acceptable behavior. Both parents must agree on disciplinary measures and must accept equal responsibility for imposing them.

"If there is a conflict within the marriage, husband and wife often express their anger at each other by disagreement over child-raising. This inevitably leads to inconsistencies that confuse and disturb the youngster," explains Kaplan.

DEAR ABBY

Not a prayer of a chance

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I would like to clear up a misconception that has appeared in your column from time to time. Animals are NOT less cruel within their species than people. Almost all animals fight fiercely for mates, territory and food, just like humans.

Ant colonies engage in warfare, often to the death, as do baboon tribes.

How often do we see a dog, unprovoked, viciously attacking another dog for no reason whatsoever?

No, Abby, civilization has brought a degree of civility over animals. — SAN DIEGO BIOLOGIST.

DEAR BIOLOGIST: And don't forget the praying mantis. Immediately upon mating, the female kills the male! How's that for a lovely thank-you?

DEAR ABBY; TROUBLED MOM wrote that her 8-year-old son will eat anything in sight, including dog food right out of the dog dish, as well as the stale bread thrown out for the birds. Your advice to get the boy to a physician will help—only if the physician knows that the child is suffering from a little-known, but not-so-rare disease called the "Prader-Willi Syndrome." It was first reported in Germany in 1956, but the first cases in this country were not diagnosed in the U.S. until the 1960s.

Victims of the Prader-Willi Syndrome will eat themselves to death if allowed to. They don't care what they eat, and have been known to gorge on rotten apples, sticks of butter, garbage and entire loaves of bread. They become extremely obese and literally eat themselves into an early grave because of their bizarre eating marathons.

A Prader-Willi child in a mental institution was caught in the kitchen finishing a three-gallon jar of jam. Later, to discourage her, an attendant laced one of the jars with a large amount of salt. The child disregarded the taste, and ate the whole jar anyhow, later dying from salt poisoning!

Another was in a cooking class that made a dozen pumpkin pies for Thanksgiving. On the pretext of staying behind to help clean up, the child ate all 12 pies!

Abby, you could save TROUBLED MOM years of frustrated visits to doctors and medical centers if you would alert her to the possibility that her child could be a victim of this disease.—THE MOTHER OF ONE.

DEAR MOTHER: I heard from many readers advising me that information about this malady can be obtained by writing to: Prader-Willi Syndrome Association, 1515 Malibu Drive, Edina, Minn. 55436.

It is a non-profit organization, so please enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

DEAR ABBY: About 16 years ago I asked you to repeat your advice to retired people, suggesting that they write one personal letter a day.

Having been retired for 20 years, I followed your advice, and I must say that it was worth more than I can say.

I am 86 and no longer drive, so the mail is very important to me. What fun it is to get something in the mail every day! And, of course, every letter is answered promptly.

In addition to my regular correspondence, my 140 Christmas cards (with a personal note on each one) brought me 120 replies. (I'll admit to four cards returned marked "Deceased," and five, "Address Unknown.")

It takes a little effort to write letters, but the rewards are beyond belief! My love, GEORGE KELLOGG, ATHENS, GA.

DEAR GEORGE: I'll underwrite that! Where would I be without letters?

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby in care of this newspaper.Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Local racing car owner to bring Tuesday Lunch Bunch program

Bobby Hillin of Midland, car racing enthusiast and owner of the Longhorn Racing Team, is scheduled to address the Tuesday Lunch Bunch crowd. He will inform the noon brown baggers of the progress of his aerodynamically designed car, tested Feb. 18. It was in its first race March 2 in Phoenix.

Lunch Bunch is at 206 S. Colorado Ave. each Tuesday through May 27 at 11:45 a.m. All Midlanders are invited to bring a lunch and coffee is provided. This is a service of the Friends of the Library, and library staff members provide creative bibliographies on the subject of the day. New schedules are available for April 1 through May 27.

An enthusiastic Lunch Bunch crowd listened intently last week to Marion Sell's program on the future of education. Using an overhead projector to display visuals, he explained the differences in yesterday's and today's teaching and learning processes.

Today's youth have grown up with "instant" education such as television and computers, said Sell, and "their learning processes are vastly different than a generation ago."

Spontaneous applause greeted his statement, "I'm an education elitist. I believe we should also have special programs for our more gifted students. They will be the ones who can help solve the problems of the future."

Painless assault?

MILAN, Italy (AP) — When Gregorio Reccia went to have a tooth pulled, his dentist assured him the operation would be painless, but he was wrong.

After the tooth was out, the patient leaped from the chair and punched the dentist in the eye, saying: "If your tooth-pulling doesn't hurt, then neither does that."

Reccia now is being sued for assault.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Not where, but how

"Please, sir," the woman said, "give me some of that water! Then I'll never be thirsty again and won't have to make this long trip out here every day."

"Go and get your husband," Jesus told her.

"But I'm not married," the woman replied.

"All too true!" Jesus said. "For you have had five husbands, and you aren't even married to the man you're living with now. [You couldn't have spoken a truer word!]"

"Sir," the woman said, "You must be a prophet.

But say, tell me, why is it that you Jews insist that Jerusalem is the only place of worship, while we Samaritans claim it is here [at Mount Gerazim], where our ancestors worshiped?"

Jesus replied, "The time is coming, Ma'am, when we will no longer be concerned about whether to worship the Father here or in Jerusalem. For it's not where we worship that counts, but how we worship—is our worship spiritual and real? Do we have the Holy Spirit's help? For God is Spirit, and we must have His help to worship as we should. The Father wants this kind of worship from us. But you Samaritans know so little about Him, worshiping blindly, while we Jews know all about Him, for salvation comes to the world through the Jews."

The woman said, "Well, at least I know that the Messiah will come—the one they call Christ—and when He does, He will explain everything to us."

Then Jesus told her, "I am the Messiah!"

Just then His disciples arrived. They were surprised to find Him talking to a woman, but none of them asked Him why, or what they had been discussing.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Counseling would not hurt, at least

Dear Dr. Solomon: The enthusiasm with which my son started college seems to have disappeared. In fact, he now talks of dropping out for a while after completing his first year. Do you think some form of professional counseling might help in this case? — Mrs. K.F.G.

Dear Mrs. G.: While I do not believe that every college student who fails to complete the course of study within the traditional four-year period is in need of counseling, I do not see that it would hurt. The important consideration is why your son wants to leave school.

If he never before lived away from home, if he is enrolled in a large, impersonal university where he feels more like a number than a person, or if he is feeling isolated and increasingly lonely, he may be able to profit from professional help. If the situation is as I describe, a visit to the school's health center could be very much in order.

Dr. Bruce Baldwin, clinical associate professor in the department of psychiatry at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine, says he encourages students to use the school's mental health facilities. He notes that while entering students come to school with hopes and in anticipation of a more meaningful life, some become overwhelmed by the reality of both being alone in a new environment, and of coping with a very heavy academic work load. Most students eventually adapt to college life, but some never make a satisfactory adjustment.

Professional counseling may reveal whether your son's desire to leave school reflects an inability to cope with a new situation, or whether it is simply a mature decision based upon an intelligent self-evaluation of the situation and his own needs and goals.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I married while in college and am now planning to start a family. While in school I smoked marijuana fairly regularly and have continued to do so to a slightly lesser extent since then. Would this be likely to have any effect on my pregnancy or the subsequent breast-feeding of my baby? — Mrs. P.R.

Dear Mrs. R.: If you are contemplating becoming pregnant, I would strongly urge you to abstain from smoking marijuana. It has been found that the active ingredient in marijuana has a number of undesirable effects of which you should be aware. Specifically, marijuana tends to alter the menstrual cycle as a result of hormonal changes. It also crosses the placenta, thereby reaching the fetus, and it is found in maternal milk. One study has shown that male offspring of rodents who were treated with cannabinoids (marijuana substance) for six days after their birth showed permanent endocrine and behavior alterations.

In brief, there is evidence that a woman considering starting a family should stay away from marijuana before she becomes pregnant, while she is pregnant, and during the time she is breast-feeding her child. As there are so many other ways in which to find enjoyment in life, why resort to unnecessary drugs that could potentially be harmful.

Smaller wine bottles considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is considering allowing wine to be sold in smaller size bottles, primarily for use on airliners and railroads.

Under the metric bottle size rules which have been in effect for over a year, the smallest size allowed for wine is 100 milliliters, which amounts to 3.2 ounces.

The transportation industry has indicated a need for a bottle half that size, 50 milliliters, for single servings of port and sherry wines. Without these smaller bottles, officials said, the industry has indicated that it may stop serving sherry and port.

Persons who want to comment on this proposed rule change have until May 13 to do so. Write to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, P.O. Box 385, Washington, D.C., 20044, Attention: Chief, Regulations and Procedures Division.

Model car ads due to be changed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The maker of MPC model car kits has agreed to make some changes in its advertising at the request of the national advertising board of the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

The bureau was concerned over ads in comic books which did not clearly indicate the size of the model and did not state that paint and glue are not included in the kit.

CPG Products Corp., makers of the kits, responded that the ads were directed to previous kit buyers who were already familiar with the size and scale of the models. It also pointed out that the kit package clearly states and paint and cement must be purchased separately.

Nevertheless, the firm agreed to include these points in future adverising.

HOPE LUTHERAN CHURCH
North A at Scharbauer

Mickey Cappadonna, longtime trustee for the Midland Memorial Hospital, says in endorsement of Martin Allday, candidate for Mayor of Midland, "Martin Allday has the courage to tell folks when he disagrees, even with friends. I recall, several years ago, when we on the hospital board were trying to raise $10 million from private donations for hospital expansion. I made our plea to the past presidents of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. At the end of my 30 minute speech, Martin stood up and said, 'Mickey, you folks have worked yourselves to the bone trying to raise money for the hospital. It's time we all helped. What this county needs is a hospital district.' You know the rest of the story. Martin Allday was one of the people most responsible for the formation of our present Midland County Hospital District. Martin Allday is a thinker and a doer. He will make a good mayor."

Two die in offshore explosion

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An offshore drilling platform exploded in flames early today in the Gulf of Mexico, killing at least two persons and leaving five others missing and feared dead, an oil company official said. He said nine men were injured.

All 42 crew members who had been aboard the platform were taken by boat to another drilling platform five miles away, where they were met by two helicopters carrying medical teams. One was sent by the Coast Guard, the other by Pennzoil, the company that operated the platform.

Authorities said the cause of the explosion was under investigation.

The Coast Guard helicopter trying to transport the most seriously injured to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston had to be tied to the platform to keep from being blown overboard into the Gulf.

About 7:15 a.m., seven hours after the explosion, the helicopter risked the turbulence and safely got off the platform.

"We're moving the four most seriously injured first; and we're leaving five more that we'll go back after," a Coast Guard official in Galveston said.

The drilling platform was operated by Pennzoil for a group of several owners and was about 100 miles southeast of Galveston.

Of the 42 aboard the platform at the time of the explosion, only one was a Pennzoil employee. The others were contract workers from Pool Offshore Co., headquartered in Harvey, La., said Bob Harper, a public information officer for Pennzoil who reported the deaths and injuries.

"We really have no idea what caused the blowout," Harper said. "There were 42 on the platform at the time of the blowout."

The dead, the injured and the 26 who escaped injury got off the platform via two "evacuation capsules," which Harper said "look a lot like flying saucers."

"Our boats picked them out of the capsules," he said. "We had a 185-foot-long work boat and a 90-foot-long standby boat at the rig. That's standard procedure."

The capsules, which Harper said can hold 28 persons each, are completely sealed and have a small power unit aboard that allow persons inside to lower the unit into the water and then to move at relatively slow speeds through the water.

Harper said the drilling bits were about 2,500 feet deep when the blowout occurred, he said.

Wild Ixtoc in Gulf area now capped

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Engineers finally managed to cap Ixtoc I, the runaway oil well offshore in the Gulf of Mexico that spewed more than 3.1 million gallons of crude oil since it blew up June 3 and fouled beaches in southern Texas, a spokesman for the Mexican petroleum monopoly said today.

In another development, a drilling platform off Galveston, Texas in the Gulf of Mexico exploded in flames early today, killing at least two persons and leaving five others missing and feared dead, an oil company official said. He said nine men were injured.

The Pemex spokesman said a third and final cement plug was successfully introduced into the well 50 miles out at sea shortly before midnight Sunday, shutting off the flow of crude oil and natural gas.

The spokesman said the first plug consisting of approximately 200 sacks of cement was inserted at a depth of 5,140 feet at 4 p.m. Sunday, and a second plug was dropped in a few hours later at a depth of 4,923 feet. The third plug went down to 4,431 feet.

"Thus ended the life of the test well that permitted discovery of one of the richest offshore oil deposits," a statement read by the Pemex spokesman said. Ixtoc I exploded and went out of control at a depth of 6,207 feet below the seabed, uncovering a deposit in the Bay of Campeche that Pemex estimated contains at least 800 million barrels of crude oil

In the offshore explosion, the dead and the survivors among the 42 crew members who had been aboard the platform were taken by boat to another drilling platform five miles away, where they were met by two helicopters carrying medical teams. One was sent by the Coast Guard, the other by Pennzoil, the company that operated the platform.

Authorities said the cause of the explosion was under investigation.

The drilling platform was operated by Pennzoil for a group of several owners and was about 100 miles southeast of Galveston.

UCLA, Louisville in finals tonight

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — UCLA, the Cinderella surprise of the NCAA basketball tournament, has one All-American hurdle to clear before it can go to the ball: Darrell Griffith.

"Griffith is a super player, one you look to in games like this," said UCLA Coach Larry Brown, who sends his unranked but undaunted Bruins after the school's 11th national championship in tonight's NCAA final against No.2-rated Louisville. Tipoff is set for 8 p.m. on KMID Channel 3.

"Griffith reminds me so much of David Thompson, " added Brown, comparing Louisville's 6-foot-4 All-American to the star guard he coached in the pro ranks. "He's gonna score, I don't think anyone can stop him. But I hope he's gonna have to work for his points."

THE CHALLENGE of an opponent with an All-American in its lineup is nothing new for the Bruins, who have clawed their way from an 8-6 start to within one win of their first NCAA title since 1975, when they won the last of their 10 championships under Coach John Wooden.

They limited Player of the Year Mark Aguirre to 19 points on 8-for-18 shooting in beating top-ranked DePaul 77-71 in the West Regional, and they held 7-foot-1 center Joe Barry Carroll to 17 points and eight rebounds and forced him into six turnovers in defeating Purdue 67-62 Saturday in the semifinals.

Brown told a news conference Sunday that he was unsure who he'd match against Griffith in UCLA's aggressive man-to-man defense. "I wouldn't be surprised if everyone got a chance to play him," said UCLA's first-year coach.

Griffith was awesome in Louisville's 80-72 semifinal victory over Iowa in Saturday's opener, scoring 34 points on 14-for-21 shooting. He was equally effective inside and out, hitting high-arching jumpers from 20 feet and soaring over taller opponents with his 48-inch vertical jump to score from in close.

"You stop Darrell Griffith by getting two balls-and-chains and hooking them onto both legs, because I don't think one would be enough," suggested Iowa Coach Lute Olson. "He is one great player."

How would Griffith guard Griffith?

"That's a tough one," replied the senior and team captain, who has dedicated this tournament to a boyhood friend, Jerry Stringer, who is stricken with cancer. "I guess I'd have to say don't let me get the ball, because once I get it, you've got to respect me."

GRIFFITH'S PLAY has earned more than respect. He's Louisville's all-time leading scorer and a sure-fire pro first-round draft choice.

"He's the best college player in the nation, and he's going to make some pro coach awfully happy," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "If it were not for Darrell, we would not be here. We start three sophomores and a freshmen, but Darrell has been our stabilizer. He plays with so much confidence, it rubs off on everyone else

"Everyone knows he can shoot and score, but he's also unselfish. That's the mark of a great player."

UCLA starts 6-1 Rod Foster and 6-3 Michael Holton in the backcourt, with 6-7 Darren Daye in reserve. All three are freshman. Holton and Daye might take turns guarding Griffith, or 6-7 senior James Wilkes, a forward who is UCLA's top defensive player, may draw the assignment.

UCLA'S SCORING leader is Kiki Vandeweghe, who averaged 19.5 per game during the regular season and had 24 in the victory over Purdue, including four clutch free throws in the final minute. "I wish Kiki would look in the mirror one day and see how talented he really is," Brown said of the 6-8 senior.

The Bruins' other starter is 6-6 sophomore Mike Sanders, whose insertion into the pivot slot in midseason was one of the keys to UCLA's turnaround. Since then the Bruins have won 14 of 17.

For Louisville, Griffith starts in the backcourt alongside sophomore playmaker Jerry Eaves. The forwards are a pair of sophomores, Derek Smith and Wiley Brown. Freshman Rodney McCray is the starting center, a job he's had since his brother Scooter was injured in the third game of the season.

This is Louisville's third trip to the Final Four in Crum's nine seasons, but it's first time as a finalist. Ironically, the Cardinals lost both previous times to UCLA — 96-77 in 1972 and 75-74 in overtime in 1975.

If UCLA, 22-9, wins, it will be the losingest champion in the NCAA's 42-year history, surpassing the 25-7 mark of the 1977 Marquette team. If Louisville, 32-3, wins, it will be the second winningest champion ever, behind only the 1948 Kentucky team that went 36-3.

UCLA, which finished fourth in the Pacific-10 Conference and got an NCAA bid only because the field was expanded to 48 teams this year and the rules changed to permit bids to more than two teams from a conference, has beaten Old Dominion, DePaul, Ohio State, Clemson and Purdue on the road to the final.

Olympic athletes have simple plan for Summer Games

WASHINGTON (AP) — The athletes' plan is simple — they would compete in the Olympic Games in Moscow this summer but protest the Soviet military presence in Afghanistan by not taking part in the any of the ceremonies.

They would not participate in the opening and closing ceremonies and would show up to accept any medals they win. They would arrive in Moscow just before they compete and leave immediately after, remaining in the Olympic Village or the training facilities during their time on Soviet soil. They would do no sightseeing or engage in any other tourist activities.

The plan was approved Saturday night by the Athletes Advisory Council of the United States Olympic Committee and sent immediately to the White House for consideration.

There was no word how President Carter feels about the plan.

Carter told the athletes emphatically at a White House meeting Friday that the United States would not particpate in the Summer Games.

"I say that not with any equivocation," he said. "The decision has been made."

Nevertheless, the Council adopted the plan iniatiated by Andy I. Toro of El Cerrito, Calif., who competed in two Olympics for his native Hungary and two for the United States during his 26 years in canoeing.

"A boycott is an effective tool," said Toros, who was 16 when the Soviets invaded Hungary in 1956, "but what we are proposing would be more effective. Demonstrating in the homeland is more effective than doing it elsewhere.

"Every time a Russian gets a bronze medal, there would be two other empty places because the other two didn't show up," he said. "How are they going to explain it. We would be able to hit them every day, 24 hours a day, for two weeks. Even the poor peasants will be able to see that and ask what's happening."

Anita DeFrantz of Princeton, N.J., a rower who was named spokesperson of the 47-member Council, said she did not expect a response from the White House until today or Tuesday.

DeFrantz said: "We hope they will take a good look at it so when we come to discuss it, they will understand what we want to do."

She said no meeting has been planned but the Council, an eight-year old organization which advises the USOC on viewpoints of Olympic-participating athletes, has formed a five-member committee prepared to talk with White House officials.

With DeFrance as head of the panel, the others are Toro; Fred Newhouse of Baton Rouge, La., a 1976 Olympic gold medal winner in track; Larry Hough of Vienna, Va., a 1968 Olympic silver medal winner in rowing, and Peter Snugg of Orinda, Calif., a water polo competitor.

The USOC, which has said it would support the president, has until May 24 to enter a team in the Summer Games. A decision may be made during a meeting of the USOC House of Delegates April 11-13 in Colorado Springs, Colo.

McCovey still going

Paces 6-5 Giant win over Padres

By The Associated Press

Willie McCovey is going great guns, and he says he is shooting for another year at first base with the San Francisco Giants.

"I feel great, as good as ever," said the 42-year-old slugger, who raised his preseason batting average to .294 Sunday with three singles, including the game-winner in the Giants' 6-5 victory over San Diego.

"It's about time that we start going all out," McCovey said. "The opener is just a couple of weeks away (April 10 for the Giants), so you're starting to see the guys play a little harder."

McCovey's game-winning hit came in the fifth inning when he drove in Bill North. North singled, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch by John Curtis. McCovey also triggered a three-run second-inning rally with a single.

So far in preseason, McCovey has 34 at-bats in 11 games while Mike Ivie, the Giants' regular first baseman last year, has been sitting down, first with a cut hand and now with a sprained ankle.

"You know me," McCovey said. "I come to camp every year expecting to be the first baseman. No one has told me I'm not."

Left-hander Vida Blue went six innings for the victory, helping himself with a run-scoring single in the second. The Giants added two more runs in the third on triples by North and Jack Clark. Ozzie Smith batted 4-for-4 for the Padres, scoring three runs.

A couple of other pitchers also were rounding into form. Right-handers Bob Stanley of Boston and Bob Forsch of St. Louis each went seven strong innings.

Stanley scattered seven hits and yielded just one run in the Red Sox's 4-2 victory over the New York Mets, who have lost eight in a row. Gary Allenson provided the firepower with a two-run homer in the seventh.

(See linescores, Page 2C)

"He could have gone nine the way it looked," Manager Don Zimmer said of Stanley. "He's got the arm and is young. The more he pitches, the better he is going to get."

Forsch scattered six hits in his stint as the Cards clobbered the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1. Ken Reitz drove in three runs with a two-run single and a sacrifice fly.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, meanwhile, saw a couple of expensive arms get shelled. Dave Goltz, a free agent acquisition from Minnesota, yielded five runs in five innings, and Don Stanhouse, formerly of Baltimore, yielded three runs in the eighth inning as Montreal clipped the Dodgers 9-7. Rookie Tim Wallach and Ellis Valentine homered for the Expos.

Sixto Lezcano cracked a two-run homer, and Mike Caldwell went six innings as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the California Angels 5-2. Dwight Bernard threw two innings of scoreless relief, and Dan Boitano shut out the Angels in the ninth.

Catcher Jamie Quirk drove in three runs as Kansas City downed the Texas Rangers' B team 6-4. Quirk is filling in for All-Star Darrell Porter, who checked into an alcoholic rehabilitation program and is not due out until mid-April. The Rangers' A team defeated Atlanta 6-4 behind the hitting and pitching of Don Kainer. Kainer yielded one run in three innings and clouted a two-run double in the Rangers' three-run fifth inning.

Lou Piniella had four hits and three RBI, including the game-winner in the ninth inning, to power the New York Yankees to a 5-4 victory over the

Denny Crum does pre-game disco shuffle

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Louisville's Coach Denny Crum did a little disco shuffle in the lockerroom before the Cardinals' semifinal game against Iowa in the NCAA basketball championship.

The guys thought it was hilarious. It broke the tension. But Jerry Eaves, the team's sophomore guard, as an honest critic, advised, "He ought'n'ed do it any more."

UCLA's Coach Larry Brown, analyzing Monday's title game, made a public announcement that he didn't trust guys who wear white shoes in the winter, who pour ketchup on eggs and put their socks and sneakers on before their pants.

Eaves and Louisville's star senior guard, Darrell Griffith, confessed that they confuse the opposition by using "Pig Latin" on the floor. It's an old Southern gimmick of dropping the first consonant of a word and attaching it to the end with an "ay," viz., "Ixnay" for "Nix," "Immegay the allbay" for "Gimme the ball."

It's good to see fun returning to sports.

America got a taste of it when those uninhibited kids of the U.S. Olympic hockey team swept past the Russians to the gold medal at Lake Placid.

Now they're getting another dose of it in the NCAA basketball championships at the Market Square Arena in this hotbed of the sport that sprang from the head of Professor James A. Naismith.

The event, televised nationally, reached a high point of interest a year ago with those two gifted yet contrasting personalities — Larry "I-Want-To-Be-Alone" Bird of Indiana State and Earvin "Magic" Johnson of Michigan State.

This year it hit boom proportions when a trio of outsiders — UCLA, Purdue and Iowa, each with eight to nine losses — bowled past some glamor favorites, along with second-ranked Louisville, into the Final Four.

Louisville, which has lived in the shadow of the University of Kentucky, and UCLA, a giant under John Wooden but a nine-game loser this season, play for the college title tonight. Purdue and Iowa clash in the consolation.

More than 500 members of the media converged on this Speedway City for the showdown. NBC reported TV interest at its highest level. More than 400 stations subscribed to the radio network. The event has taken on World Series and Super Bowl stature.

"The greatest single college sports event in the country," says Wayne Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten and tournament chairman. "It ranks with the Super Bowl and World Series as one of the country's top spectacles."

Sports fans have become jaded by the pro explosion, with attendant commercial aspects, expansions, exorbitant salaries, legal shenanigans and greed on the part of both owners and competitors.

They are ripe for something new and fresh. The hockey team gave it to them. So does NCAA basketball — fast-paced, exciting, colorful, with eager kids scrapping like tigers. Even without the 24-second clock, they play a game that is strictly "run and gun."

The college kids have it all over the pros in the intensity of the action and fierceness of play. There's none of the professional "ho hum just-another-night's-work" complacency.

In the Louisville-UCLA final, spectators will see two of the quickest and most superbly disciplined units in the country. Both teams play aggressive yet highly sophisticated basketball at a feverish tempo.

The scene is not without its heroes. Griffith, the 6-foot-4, 190 pound guard, is a symphony of movement. He leaps like a ballet artist, turns and twists with the flair of a Linda Fratianne and shoots baskets off either ear.

He is a wonder.

UCLA can counter with a big (6-8 and 220 pounds) senior forward named Kiki Vandeweghe, son of the ex-pro Dr. Ernie Vandeweghe, and a band of fearless youngsters, three of them freshmen.

It ought to be a corker. And the pom pom girls are an added attraction — free of charge.

Trevino captures Players crown

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The pressure was applied immediately by two of the greatest players in the history of golf.

It was just what Lee Trevino needed.

"Jack (Nicklaus) and Gary (Player) both biried the first hole and I'm thinking 'hey, they're coming at me in a hurry'," Trevino said.

"That's what I need to play good. I like smoke. I've always liked pressure."

And, in one of the most pressure-packed tournaments in recent history — with most of the great names in the game taking a run at him at one time or another — the swaggering Trevino fired a front-running 70 that provided him with the title in the Tournament Players Championship Sunday.

At one point, Nicklaus, Player, Tom Watson, Hubert Green, Ben Crenshaw and British Open champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain all shared second place, hot on Trevino's heels.

"With great players like that all bunched up, anybody could have won," said Trevino, who played in the last group on the course with Nicklaus and Player, a Hall of Fame three-some that owns more than 200 world-wide victories.

In the end, Trevino was the survivor. He was asked if he was surprised to outlast such an aggregation.

His eyebrows shot up.

"Hey, man, I'm one of the big boys, too. I'm not cotton candy sitting over here," he said.

He proved to be the toughest of them all in the ambitious event that is billed as the annual championship of golf's touring pros. He started the final round with a one-shot lead and, though tied at one time or another, was never headed.

He finished with a 278 total, 10 shots under par on a Sawgrass layout tamer than usual. His total was a course record by five shots.

The victory, Trevino's 23rd on the American tour, was worth $72,000 from the total purse of $440,000 — the biggest in United States. And it marked the 13th consecutive season in which Trevino has won at least once.

Crenshaw, playing well in front of Trevino and company, eventually took second — a position with which he is becoming unhappily familiar. It was his sixth runnerup placing in less than 12 months.

There may have been some consolation in the $43,200 check, however. It made Crenshaw the game's 25th man to reach $1 million in career earnings.

He made it close with a 6-under-par 66 and a 279 total, but a birdie putt that would have tied him with Trevino refused to fall on the final hole and sent Ben off shaking his head.

Watson and Ballesteros were another stroke back and tied for third at 280. Watson, the game's outstanding golfer for the past three years and the only two-time winner this season, shot a closing 68.

Ballesteros, completing a three-tournament swing on the American circuit, had a closing 69.

At 282 were John Mahaffey, Mike Reid and Peter Jacobsen. Reid closed with a 68, Mahaffey a 69 and Jacobsen a 71.

Green and Player were among those at 283. Green took himself out of the running with three bogeys in a five-hole stretch immediately after the turn and finished with a 74. Player's last hope died when the little South African hit one out of bounds and made a double bogey in the 16th. He had a closing 73.

Nicklaus was in the thick of it until he bogeyed the 16th, missing the green. "After that I just kind of lost interest. I couldn't get my mind on what I was doing," Nicklaus said. He bogeyed out and finished well back with a 73-284 and still in search of the victory he said he needs to complete his comeback.

Trevino virtually clinched the title with an 18-foot birdie putt on the 15th. That gave him a two-shot lead with three to play. He gave one back in a brief lapse on the 17th but went to the final hole needing par five to win.

He got it easily.

"Somebody has to win," he said. "It was just my time."

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Stan Smith swept to a pair of title and earned $34,750 in the $175,000 Frankfurt Tennis Tournament Sunday.

In singles, the onetime Wimbledon champion relied on his experience to rally late in the match and beat South African Johan Kriek 2-6, 7-6, 6-2.

Only half an hour later, the 33-year-old Smith teamed with Indian Vijay Amritraj to beat Butch Walts and Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Western goes undefeated

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — It was way back before Christmas that Western Texas won its first basketball game of the season.

And it was Saturday night that the Westerners from Snyder won their last one with an 85-72 victory over Jefferson State of Alabama to claim the Men's National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Western Texas, — which also won 35 games in between while losing none — rode 20 points from Greg Stewart and 19 from David Brown to lock up the national title.

Trailing at the half 38-31, Western Texas finally took the lead at 55-54 with about 8½ minutes to go.

But it was a technical foul on Jefferson State Coach Bill Lankford that put the Westerners back in command.

Western Texas was ahead by four points when Jefferson State guard MikeAnderson was called for a foul. Lankford protested, and was whistled for a technical, sending Westerner guard Phil Spradling to the line to hit four straight free throws.

Brown then scored a bucket, and the Westerners were coasting again with a 10-point lead.

Detroit Tigers. Garry Smith singled home the tying run in the ninth, and Piniella followed with his hit that enable the Yankees to snap a three-game losing streak.

Phil Garner drove in three runs with three hits, and Willie Stargell had two RBI with three hits to lead Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Chicago took a 2-0 lead before the Pirates responded with three runs in the fifth.

Rookie Charlie Liebrant threw five scoreless innings, and Ray Knight doubled and tripled as the Cincinnati Reds' B team blanked Houston 4-0. The Reds' A team dropped a 5-4 decision to Minnesota when Twins designated hitter Ken Landreaux drove in the winning run with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth.

Tippy Martinez walked John Mayberry with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to drive in the winning run, and two more runs scored when Baltimore second baseman Rich Dauer dropped a pop fly as Toronto downed the Orioles 7-4.

Scot Thompson chopped a bases-loaded single into center field to bring home the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning in the Chicago Cubs' 6-5 victory over Oakland.

Cleveland exploded for seven runs in the second inning, highlighted by Jorge Orta's two-run double, to defeat the Seattle Mariners 10-4. The Indians strung together six consecutive singles before Orta's double. End Adv

Old Dominion wins title again

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — Having won it three times on the floor and twice from the bench, you'd think Marianne Stanley might be a tiring of the national women's college basketball championships.

No way, says the young coach who guided Old Dominion to its second straight Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women crown Sunday.

"I've been here before as a player and a coach, but personally, it's a big thrill for me," the 25-year-old former Immaculata All-American said.

So much so she plans to win it again next year, despite the loss of graduating stars Nancy Lieberman and Inge Nissen.

"We've got a great nucleus of players coming back," Stanley said following Old Dominion's 68-53 title romp over Tennessee. "We feel like we're going to be very good. We'd love to defend our championship."

Lieberman, the Lady Monarchs' razzle-dazzle point guard, scored 12, grabbed nine rebounds and had six assists.

Tennessee All-American Jill Rankin, also a senior, led the losers with 17 points — playing most of the second half with four fouls.

The Lady Volunteers were even with Old Dominion only briefly early in the game. They shot just 33 percent from the floor and 56 percent from the foul line.

The Lady Monarchs, 37-1, ended their season on a 27-game winning streak. Tennessee closed out at 33-5.

Bowling Green players in wreck

MIAMI (AP) — Two Bowling Green baseball players were hospitalized in stable and satisfactory condition this morning after a van carrying 13 players and an assistant coach hit a car and overturned on a Miami expressway.

A spokeswoman at Palmetto General Hospital said pitcher Chris Dill and outfielder Chuck Heddington were kept for observation after the rest of the players were treated and released Sunday.

Dill had a concussion, Coach Don Purvis said. The nature of Heddington's injuries wasn't known.

"He (Dill) had no recollection of what happened or even that we had played a game the other night," Purvis said.

Among the parents and friends who rushed to the hospital was Miami Coach Ron Fraser, whose team was awaiting the Bowling Green club at Mark Light Field Sunday afternoon for a college game when the accident occurred.

Bowling Green Athletic Director Jim Lessig said an assistant coach, Rob Fornasiere, was driving the van. Lessig said officials believed the van hit a car changing lanes, flipped and skidded along the road before coming to rest upside-down.

East topples West, 88-79

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Throughout his collegiate career, Mike O'Koren worked hard for the honors he received.

The North Carolina star added yet another award to his collection Sunday, but he says this one came a little easier than the rest.

"In a game like this, it's hard to do anything wrong," O'Koren said after being named the most valuable player in the annual National Basketball Coaches Association All-Star game.

"When your have such great teammates, you're bound to look good. I'm pleased to get the award, but I was happy just to be able to play in the game."

O'Koren scored 16 points to help the East beat the West 88-79 in the 21st annual game. He hit seven of nine shots, handed out five assists and shared team scoring honors with James Ray of Jacksonville.

Indiana's Mike Woodson added 12 points for the East and Michael Brooks of LaSalle contributed 10, plus six assists.

The game was a reunion for O'Koren, Brooks, Woodson and John Duren of Georgetown. All were members of the United States team that won the gold medal at the 1979 Pan-American Games.

The contest also matched the coaches of last year's NCAA finals — Bill Hodges of Indiana State and Jud Heathcote of Michigan State.

Because his team had only an hour to practice — and O'Koren didn't arrive in time for that session — Hodges said he tried to get the players to think about passing before scoring.

Seek finances

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The financially troubled American Soccer League expansion Phoenix Fire has "a ray of hope" and three more days to reorganize, one of its owner says.

The league, postponing the team's scheduled Saturday regular-season opener with San Francisco, gave the club until Thursday to find new financial footing.

Meanwhile, the team staged an exhibition match Saturday — and won it 5-0 over an Arizona amateur all-star team — to raise funds for its players who hadn't been paid since March 1.

Reportedly at the edge of collapse last week with debts said to total as much as $100,000, owners scrambled for additional funds as the scheduled opener approached.

Californians win

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) — Bob Rodine of San Marcos, Calif., and Dennis Keefe of Lancaster, Calif., were the official overall winners of the four-wheel competition in the third annual Mexicali 250 Off-Road Race.

Young finally fulfills dream

LAS VEGAS Nev. (AP) — A nine-year-old dream has come true for Donna Caponi Young.

Young fired a 2-under-par 70 Sunday to earn a one-shot victory over Nancy Lopez Melton in the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at the Desert Inn Country Club.

Young had been wanting to win here, and wanting it badly, a 1971 tournament at the Desert Inn.

In that event, Young watched Sandra Palmer holed a shot from a sand trap on the 18th hole for an eagle. The amazing shot gave Palmer a one-stroke victory over Young.

"Because of what happened, I was determined to win here," said the 35-year-old veteran. "I wanted to play well today and I wanted very much to win."

Play well she did. Young finished the 72-hole tournament with a score of 286 on rounds of 71, 74, 71 and her final round 70 over the over 6,237-yard, par 36-36—72 layout. She earned $30,000.

Lopez Melton, the LPGA's top money winner the past two years and a winner of 17 tournaments over that period of time but still looking for her first win of 1980, just missed. She had a 69 Sunday to finish at 287 and earned $19,600.

First round leader Jo Ann Washam and second-round leader Hollis Stacy tied with scores of 288. Washam had a 68 Sunday while Stacy finished with a 72. Each collected $12,000.

Tied at 289 were third round leader Judy Rankin of Midland, Tex., who faded to a 74 Sunday, and Amy Alcott, who finished with a 70. Each earned $7,500.

Young, Lopez Melton and Rankin were tied for the lead with two holes left.

On the 352-yard, par-4 17th hole, Rankin drove into a divot on the fairway, her approach shot sailed into a trap and she eventually wound up with a bogey.

Lopez Melton's approach shot went over the green and she also finished with a bogey. Young, meanwhile, sank an 18-foot putt for a birdie to take command.

Rankin double-bogeyed the par 4 18th hole after hooking her drive out-of-bounds; Lopez Melton had a routine par and Young bogeyed, but still had enough of a margin for her victory.

Texas, Arkansas agree to square off early

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time, one of college football's traditional big games has been switched to the start of the season to kick off ABC's television package.

The network announced Sunday that Arkansas and Texas, perennial Southwest Conference contenders, have agreed to move their game from Oct.18 to Monday night, Sept.1, for a prime time national telecast (8 p.m. CDT). The game will be played in Austin, Texas.

ABC also announced three regional telecasts for Saturday, Sept.6, including Purdue at Notre Dame, and disclosed that Notre Dame and Southern Cal have agreed to switch their traditional intersectional classic from Nov. 29 to Dec. 6 so it can be televised nationally from the Los Angeles Coliseum.

In the past, major games have been switched to the start of the season for TV purposes (two years ago, Nebraska-Alabama moved from late November to Sept.2), but this marks the first such early season move for one of the sport's annual classic confrontations.

"I'd rather move the site of the game than the date," said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz. "Anything but play it in Austin. But it gets us away from playing Texas and Houston back-to-back, while switching dates means that they don't have to play Oklahoma the week before us."

Texas' meeting with archrival Oklahoma is scheduled for Oct. 11 while Arkansas is down to meet Houston on Oct. 25. Houston and Arkansas shared the SWC crown last season.

"The chance to open a new decade for college football is a plus," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "I generally don't care when we play Arkansas, except I didn't want to move it to a later date after the regular season like we've done before. That's carrying the season a little too far and it interrupts their time for school."

Let's get right down to brass tacks and bury those cliches

By HUGH A MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beat the drum slowly and play the fife lowly as we carry them cliches off for burial in the boneyard of boring banality.

Yank the life supports from trendy but trite words and phrases like "bottom line" and "supportive" that arguably have outlived their usefulness.

There is no argument that "arguably," as in "Reggie Jackson is arguably the best (or the worst) rightfielder in the American League," is one of the most overworked words in medialand these days and should be accorded a quiet burial.

And, please, out of respect for a dead phrase, let's not hear again on TV that Reggie or anyone is "some kind of ballplayer."

What kind, for instance?

But let's not wait until "the ball is in his court" to find out.

I am indebted to Maggie Maurice, Lifestyles editor of the Burlington

Mulligan's Stew

Free Press, for calling my attention to a list of words "whose retirement is long overdue" that appeared in a recent issue of Glamor magazine.

Among those whom the Glamor editors would like to see pensioned off are: hype, off the wall, mentor, know where you're at, flip out, freak out, pig out, gross, bummer, nitty, gritty and funky.

"And a few phrases we'd never miss if we never heard them," the Glamor grammarians added:

Getting your head on straight.

Spaced out.

Heavy.

Raising your consciousness.

Women's libber.

They also cited for contempt of the listener's patience sentences beginning:

"If we can put a man on the moon, why can't we...?

"If we can have Three Mile Island, we can also have..."

But this is only the tip of the iceberg, which is one iceberg that should be towed off to the Saudi Arabian coast for a benevolent meltdown.

When the hearse for hackneyed words backs up to the curb, please see that the surrogate is placed therein by the pallbearers of peaked, worn-out prose.

Jimmy Carter, if you recall, didn't send Vice President Mondale to campaign for him in the New Hampshire primary. He sent his surrogate, who also happened to be named Walter Mondale. And the surrogate, of course, was very supportive.

Most candidates, by the way, prophesied what the Iranian situation or the cost of foreign oil imports or the energy crisis would entail "down the road," which fortunately happens to be where the word graveyard is located.

Few politicians these days "point with pride" or "view with alarm" anymore, which shows that even in the political arena, where hats are still tossed into a ring, death occasionally does come to a well worn phrase and never too soon.

The "let me say this about that" school of election year elocution, fathered by Richard Nixon, still thrives on the Sunday talk shows, where all sorts of ideas are being constantly "recycled," while the economy is being "bolstered" to offset a "downswing."

The next time a car is "totaled" out on the interstate, I hope the same fate befalls that ersatz verb.

I am weary unto death of the talk show starlet who is tired of being regarded by the critics as a mere sex object because in reality she is a very private person who is extremely vulnerable but having a meaningful relationship with a super guy.

The trouble is, though, he's doing his own thing because he needs his own space.

Presidential candidates intent on "turning this country around" should be advised that San Francisco and San Jose perversely prefer to remain on the West Coast, although Newark and Jersey City might welcome a change of scene.

If suicide be their aim, those intent on taking "a quantum leap" are welcome to use our handy nearby lake, providing they take that pretentious phrase with them.

Those who know "where they're coming from" and "where it's at," be it "way out," "far out" or "out of sight," should be advised that jazzy phrases like that were being carted off to the graveyard when Louie Armstrong was tooting his trumpet in funeral bands along Rampart Street.

Finally, the final buzzer should be buzzed for buzz words from computerland like "readout," "feedback" and "input" before we are all obliterated from history's memory cycle.

Well, there it is.

Have a nice day.

Preppy look staging comeback for spring

By BETTIJANE LEVINE
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The original preppies had a look that money couldn't buy. Preppy seemed to be in their genes, along with light eyes, fine pale hair, "good bones."

They were short, unpolished fingernails; hair done in a simple, tailored style, lips and cheeks touched with soft pink color. Nothing harsh, you understand. And certainly nothing fashionable.

To look preppy was to purposely ignore fashion trends to maintain the quiet, timeless attitude that linked a family's generatons, past and future. It was an "old" look. Old money, old family name, old school ties.

Now it's being talked of as the new look for spring, and it's not elitist any more.

Today's preppy look is uncomplicated and wholesome, perhaps a sign of less narcissim in the 1980s. It's a clean look, not dependent on showy makeup.

But it's also a polished refined look, which means that cosmetics are vitally involved.

Preppy is quite a departure for a disco generation that's never bothered much with daytime makeup, but has been going out at night with glittered lids and cheeks. The early Grace Kelly would never have danced around town like that, and she is probably the best physical image of what the preppy look is all about.

Even for older women, preppy is a flashback, and maybe a flash forward. Although some cosmetics companies talk of brighter, more aggressive makeup looks for mature women in the coming seasons, others understand that perhaps a less strident, but more all-American look is the appropriate way to go.

This same theory applies to clothes. While some New York designers talk of unaffordable Technicolor taffetas hand painted with brilliant doodles, most of the world seems to acknowledge that we are entering an "era of limits." Designer Ralph Lauren, who started the simple prep-school trend, is now one of the most copied designers in the country.

Makeup artist Wayne Massarelli believes the look is applicable to women of all ages and skin colors. It's nothing rigid in format, he explains. Preppy is a mood, a way for woman to project themselves softly and simply through hairdo and makeup. To get the preppy look, he suggests women learn exactly what their natural skin tones are, and use makeup in those colors. People's eyelids, he says, all have shades of brown and mauve in them. So to give depth and beauty to the eyes, without artifice, he advises that use of brown and mauve eyeshadow from lashline to brow. Black women might want to use deeper shades of mauve and purple, he suggests, depending on the color of their eyelids without makeup.

For preppy makeups, Massarelli uses brown or charcoal eyeliner for blondes and brunettes; black liner for black women. The lids are lined at top and bottom, close to the lashline, and then smudged with a sponge applicator to soften the liner. In this kind of makeup, he explains, eyeliner should not ring the eye with color. It should be used subtly, to separate the eyes from the skin around them, and to make the whites look even whiter.

The preppy look is also America's ageless "country-club conservative look," a style adopted by many females too old to remember their debutante balls. Massarelli says many older women who try to achieve this fresh-faced simplicity wind up using white or off-white creams to cover circles and lines under their eyes. He does not approve. The best shade of concealer for under the eyes, he says, is one that is a single shade lighter than your natural skin tone. The best foundation makeup for this look, he adds, is one that's exactly the same shade as your skin tone. Foundation is meant to even the color, not change it.

Preppy lips can be outlined with one of the mauve eyeliner pencils already in your cabinet and filled with pink, fuchsia or mauve lipcolor.

Makeup for this preppy face is a very simple process, Massarelli believes. It's a matter of control and understatement. And the exact same theory applies to hair.

On Her Own

Polly Holliday stars as Flo, the swinging waitress who leaves Mel's Diner to become the owner of a rundown roadside cafe in her hometown of Cowtown, Texas, in "Flo," staring Monday, March 24, on CBS. The new place is known, appropriately, as Flo's Yellow Rose.

Miss Holliday, a native of Jasper, Ala., grew up in Childersberg, Ala. (she studied classical piano at Alabama State College for Women), and she drew on that background for such touches as Flo's full name — Florence Jean Castleberry — and the catchphrase, "Kiss my grits." (PREMIERE)

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1980 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1 – Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A7 ♡AQJ8 ◇J8 ♣AJ763
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What action do you take?
A. – Up to now, both you and your partner have made minimum bids at each turn. Nevertheless, partner could have quite a decent hand for his preference to two clubs and you are looking at the equivalent of a no trump opener. You must make some effort to get to game, and our choice would be two no trump to show your semi-balanced hand and spade stopper. If partner returns to three clubs, pass.

Q.2 – Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q1072 ♡KJ854 ◇93 ♣74
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ◇	Dble.	?

What action do you take?
A. – There's a school which believes that with this type of hand it is best to pass and hope that your opponents get overboard in one of your suits. In real life this seldom occurs. What is more likely to happen if you stay out of the auction is that the opponents will uncover their club fit and prevent you from competing with any degree of safety. Bid one heart now to tell partner that you are not completely broke.

Q.3 – As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ106 ♡K84 ◇KQ65 ♣A8
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass

What do you bid now?
A. – Because of your prime controls, you judged your hand (correctly) to be too strong for an opening bid of one no trump. Now you have to choose between an underbid to leave room to get out at three no trump, or a jump raise that bypasses the no trump game. Your controls make your hand eminently suited to slam, so jump to four diamonds.

Q.4 – Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠7 ♡A1082 ◇AKQ85 ♣AQ6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass

What do you bid now?
A. – Take a demerit if you raised to four hearts – this hand is far too strong for that action. The best way to announce your slam ambitions is to jump shift to three clubs and then raise hearts. Partner will now get the message that you are short in spades, which will enable him to better evaluate his holdings.

Q.5 – Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q10763 ♡AK82 ♣AK74
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇	Pass	3 ◇

What action do you take?
A. – Despite the fact that you are void in the opponents' suit, don't make the error of cue-bidding – your hand isn't strong enough to insist on game. However, you should make every effort to compete, and a double is the recommended procedure. Since partner has not yet bid, the double is for takeout. However, it does leave him the option of passing for penalties, and if he does, that is likely to be your best result.

Q.6 – Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠765 ♡J10 ◇A842 ♣KQJ9
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A. – First, North's bid is 100 percent forcing. With a poor hand, he might simply have passed three diamonds – certainly he can't be trying to improve the contract when you have already shown your preference for diamonds. In all likelihood, he has a good hand with six hearts and four diamonds. Since ten tricks should prove easier to collect than eleven, we would raise to four hearts.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" ANNEXATION-WHY?? HOW MUCH $$

THE ITEMS THAT SHOULD BE STRESSED FROM THE CITIZEN'S STAND POINT, MAINLY HAVE TO DO WITH THE COST OF THE ANNEXATION TO THE TAXPAYER.

There will be an immediate need for three additional police officers and according to Wayne Gideon," in order to have three you must hire four." In keeping with the present policy, if the city hires additional police officers, then that also means additional units. Three permanent officers is three more units. If the area continues to develop at the present rate, the Police Department will need an additional size patrol officers which means six additional units. If in fact the ratio holds that if Chief Gideon must hire four to have three, then he will have to hire eight to have six. The city recently purchased additional vehicles at a cost in excess of six thousand dollars per unit. This does not include the additional special equipment, such as radios, light bars, etc... I am not certain what a police officer's salary is but it is somewhere in the neighborhood of twelve thousand dollars a year.

The Fire Chief stated in his report regarding the response time on fire calls. "We prefer to be able to respond to any area within the city in three minutes and maximum of five minutes. As you know, the farthest point in the addition proposed for annexation is approximately four and one half miles from the nearest fire station, so you can see this is stretching our capability to the limit."

"IF more property was annexed it would become almost necessary to build another suburban fire station quite a distance north of F.M. 868, and this would pose a need for nine to twelve new employees and a new fire truck."

The public works director reported that generally service could be provided to all of the areas except area "E". Only a portion of area "E" would have water and sewer lines. But the director failed to state which portion. His overall estimate of cost for service would be seven hundred thousand dollars and the money would be provided through revenue bonds. What is the cost in manpower to provide service for these areas when the manpower is needed to provide the services in areas already annexed?

There has been no estimate made for cost of additional garbage trucks, dumpsters and the additional manpower needed to service the area from a garbage standpoint.

Regarding the annexation itself, area "D" should be incorporated if in fact any annexation takes place. Richard Hennessey has never been able to justify the fact there would be a gap there. The argument for including the Green Tree Country Club in the annexation was that it was surrounded by housing with "Fingers" of houses in the golf course area. When he was asked why they could not just zone the housing area and not incorporate the golf course he stated, "it would not be wise to have irregular annexation." If you will look at the attached map with spereference to the location of the "A" in the Green Tree Country Club Estates area and compare that area with the polo filed in area "G". The polo field and adjoining residences are not being recommended for annexation. If an area such as the polo area can be left, the same principle could apply to The Green Tree Country Club Estate area.

Mr. Hennessey has failed to justify his reasoning for the gap immediately North of area "F". He has stated that it is not wise to have a city limits line along a road because of the inequities you have with the people on one side of the road being in the city limits and people on other side of the road being out of the city limits. For this reason, he extends the city limits 660 feet into the area North of Mockingbird. Why is the line not continued across? When Mr. Hennessy was asked this question he state that there is no road there. When it was pointed out that the road has been surveyed, he said, "well then it's up to the county to provide that road and they are anticipating dedication of the road. If in fact the area is annexed then the city would request a dedication for a road." And yet the gap would exist. The question should be asked of the council, are there any members present on the council that have any interest in that area? Either through sole ownership, corporation or a limited partnership. The area north of area "I" certainly should be included.

An additional item that should be pointed out: This regards the 660 feet of annexation that is proposed along Billy Evan's property, immediately North of area "E", and east of area A & B. Mr. Evan's is a cattle rancher and his property is primarily a cattle ranch, which appropiately has cattle. Any adjustment to the animal and fowl code for the city of Midland will limit the number of horses and bovine for a given area. Since Mr. Evan's is operating a cattle ranch, will e be expected to limit the number of cattle that are grazing in the 660 foot area? If he is not expected to limit the numbers that would be within the city limits, then why should anyone else in the area be governed by the limitation? If he is expected to limit the numbers of animals in the area, then who is going to enforce the limitation?
