A "Know Your Candidate" Forum is to be held Wednesday March 25, from 2 to 3:30 p. m. in the school cafeteria. The meeting, planned to acquaint voters with the candidates for school trustee election, is sponsored by women's clubs of Olton.

Purpose of the meeting is to determine qualifications of school board members and duties of a trustee.

"Who is a qualified voter?" is one question which will be answered. Olton Independent School District includes portions of Hale County and some persons are uncertain about their right to vote.

Candidates for the two posts to be filled will be present and will be given an opportunity to explain why they seek the office. They will also answer questions pertinent to the office.

Although sponsored by the women's clubs, the meeting is not just a woman's meeting. All men, especially fathers of school aged children, are urged to attend.

Suggested questions are invited. Boxes will be placed in various local stores where questions might be left. Questions may also be mailed to "Forum, Drawer E, Olton, Texas, 79064".

Questions will not be considered which are personal, derogatory or insulting. Questions should be those which would be of interest to other persons.

The meeting is non-partisan and is not aimed as a campaign promotion for any one candidate. It will begin and close promptly. A time keeper will insure that questions be given a sufficient time for answers but not drawn out excessively.

Citizens Of Year Named At Banquet

"One More Step For Olton" was the theme of the 13th Annual Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture Banquet Tuesday night when approximately 300 persons gathered to hear Lt. Governor Ben Barnes. Sharing the spotlight were Olton's new Outstanding Man and Woman; Fred Stockdale and Mrs. Owen Norfleet.

Master of Ceremonies was Doug Lawyer, minister of Main Street Church of Christ. Invocation was by Rev. Bill Burton. Dinner music was furnished by Harold Dean Carson. He also accompanied Mrs. Jean Craft who sang "Eidelweiss" and "The Kerry Dance."

Mrs. Garrett Eley was chairman of the decorations committee. Serving with her were Mmes. Robert Meinecke, Willie Green, Charlie Koontz, Fred Thompson, Elmer McGill, J. L. Snider and Elmer Moore. Decorations featured agricultural products grown in Lamb County with green foot prints carrying out the One Step theme.

Congratulatory telegrams were read from Congressman Bob Price and State Representative Billy Wayne Clayton.

Among the special guests attending were State Representative Ralph Wayne of Plainview and Senator Jack Hightower.

Officers and Directors were introduced. The 1970 executive board includes Earl Spruiell, president; Ken Burgess, vice-president; Elmer Moore, secretary-treasurer and Basil Sherman, West Texas Chamber of Commerce Director.

Eldon Franks serves as the capable manager of the Chamber. Billie Jean Wilkinson is secretary.

Mrs. Norfleet was recognized as the Woman of the Year by Mrs. Margie Slatten, last year's recipient. Accepting her plaque, Mrs. Norfleet said, "Thank you for being so -- my good friends and my town."

A native of Olton, she was cited for her interest in sports, especially volleyball and golf. She is president of Olton Women's Golf Association and is an active member of High Plains Golf Association.

She is a member of the Little Theatre and played Martha in "Arsenic and Old Lace" and Lizzie in "The Rainmaker". She was in numerous school and PTA sponsored plays in the past.

Active member of the First United Methodist Church, she is choir director and teaches senior high's Sunday School class. She is past president of Women's Society of Christian Service and holds the office of secretary of publications. Stockdale, band director for Olton schools, was introduced as Man of the Year by Truitt Sides, who was chosen for that honor in 1969.

"One of the younger men to have been chosen for this honor, our man tonight is ambitious. Moderate in his ambition for himself, he is not satisfied with mediocre accomplishments for those with whom he works."

"Not only is he looking forward to having a sweepstakes band, he expects an outstanding AA band and music in the lower grades".

Also a member of the First United Methodist Church, Stockdale teaches a young married Couple's Sunday School class.

Stockdale, who began his career here from 1956 until 1959, returned to Olton in 1968. In accepting his plaque, he said, "Olton is the kind of community that produces the kind of people that I want my family to be."

Lt. Gov. Barnes was introduced by Hightower as "a blazing star that stays". A native of De Leon, he is the youngest man in the State's history to serve as Lieutenant Governor.

"One of the good things in my life is getting to know other people in politics. I feel like I'm back among friends" said Barnes.

Barnes stressed the important role agriculture holds today. He pointed out the importance, also, of industry.

Texas is the third ranking agricultural state. One farmer today produces food enough for 41 persons as compared to five in 1900.

Referring to Stockdale's acceptance remarks, Barnes said, "Unfortunately all cities in Texas are not like this".

He went on to state that the crime rate stands at an all time high. In a twelve month period from January 1969 to January 1970, the crime rate has increased 52 percent.

The use of drugs has increased 360 percent. The expense of drugs, Barnes believes, is one of the big factors in the increase in crime.

"We need to re-evaluate our own lives" Barnes said.

Texans pay an average of $937 per capita per year in taxes. Of that amount, $470 is spent on national defense while only four dollars is spent for law enforcement.

"We must re-evaluate our own lives and make sure that we instill in our young - in home, church and school - a respect for the law.

"Eleven million in our state are going to turn this crime rate around."

"The 70's are going to be a great decade. There's not a single dream, hope or aspiration for children, fellowman, community, state or country that cannot become a reality."

"We cannot become so involved in our own lives that our decisions will not only find solutions to our own problems but will make our state and community a better place to live."

"Generations to follow us will be able to call themselves free men and live in a free country."

"Let us do what must be done."

Benediction was given by Rev. Tommy E. Nelson.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

How to curb inflation without creating a severe recession is the chief economic problem facing the Nixon administration. The problem is especially difficult because there is no immediately available means of inducing self-restraint on the part of elements that contribute to inflation.

Thus far, the administration has sought to cool the economy through tightening of credit and other monetary controls. But this already has produced something of a crisis in the home construction industry. The shortage of loan money is hitting home builders and suppliers. Many savings and loan banks are finding that depositors are withdrawing funds to put their money into federal notes that produce a high, short-term profit.

The cooling also has had hurtful effect on the automotive industry. One of the biggest auto manufacturers has had to order substantial layoffs at a number of plants. The demand for new automobiles appears to be down, with no sign of improvement in sight. The Nixon administration feels that some success has been achieved in slowing inflation, but the price of making gains is very high. And even the slowdowns and cutbacks in the economy don't seem to have any special effect on the wage spiral.

The country's economic problems may prove insoluble unless restraint is developed with respect to wage demands. One of the reasons many companies are feeling a pinch -- and are reluctant to expand facilities -- is that they have been faced with rapidly mounting wage costs in the last few years. Wages in the United States soared in the 1960s, but productivity did not keep pace. This is an ominous development.

Wage increases are acceptable when there is a rise in real productivity. For a time, productivity was moving upward rapidly, making possible higher wage scales. But the last few years have seen wage concessions obtained which have no sound relation to productivity per employee.

Americans should be deeply concerned about this, for the root cause of Britain's postwar economic deterioration was the gap between wages and productivity. British union members obtained frequent increases, with the support of the Laborite government, but the productivity of British workers was not on a par with the productivity of workers in Germany and Japan, for instance. Thus British goods have frequently failed to penetrate new markets or have lost acceptance in established markets -- all because they are overpriced.

American goods are vulnerable to the same danger, and not simply in overseas markets. The United States has a huge domestic market, but many goods seem to be losing ground in this vital market because they are overpriced through the operation of inflation.

High labor costs are a menace to America's economic future. The U. S. merchant marine is dying because American ship-owners can't afford to operate vessels at the rate of pay demanded by maritime unions. European automobile makers have a substantial part of the American car-buying market, and not because European designs are better -- but because European prices on many vehicles are more in line with what prospective car purchasers can afford. It is noteworthy that the wage scale in the automotive industry is above $5.00 an hour, whereas in West Germany it is $2.20.

Industrial workers in the United States are determined not to drop down to the scale in Germany, let us say. But they also had better start practicing self-restraint and bear in mind the need of withholding new demands at this time. Another round of wage demands in major U. S. industries could bring on a king-size recession in the United States.

The U. S. Public has no taste for government-decreed wage restraints. But the only substitute is voluntary restraint. Industry, of course, is restrained in its profits demands by the realities of the market. Businessmen know that prices can't be hiked because the market won't bear an increase. But this realism hasn't seeped into the minds of union leaders. They are still thinking they can tack on new costs.

The great need, therefore, is a clearer public understanding and stronger, outspoken leadership by office holders with respect to the restraint of labor costs. Unless there is a new measure of discipline in this area, the American economy is headed for serious trouble in the seventies.

Soybean Production Pays Dividends For High Plains

The foresight some ten years ago of a few outstanding farmers who were looking for new and practical crops for this area is paying dividends for soybean growers today. Soybeans were a good money crop on the High Plains again in 1969. In Hale County where an estimated 60,000 soybean acres averaged 35 bushels per acre the value to the farmer was estimated to be over 4.6 million dollars by Dr. Douglas Owen, Agronomist at the High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway. According to Owen the 42 county area of the irrigated High Plains had over 200,000 acres in soybeans in 1969. Assuming average yields the crop value was estimated to be over 10 million dollars to High Plains farmers.

Extensive research on irrigation, fertilization, and cultural practices on soybeans at the High Plains Research well in the 1969 trials and could be recommended for limited field plantings in 1970. The Kent variety produced 52 bushels per acre last year and had averaged 49 bushels per acre for the last three years. Kent performs best where Clark 63 is adapted and would be recommended as an early maturing variety similar to Patterson and HP-963. "It's best area of adaptation is probably on the Northern Plains," Owen said.

The High Plains Research Foundation has been at the front of soybean research since it began an extensive breeding program in 1960 and developed the Hinn, Patterson and HP-963 varieties for the High Plains region. Tests in cooperation with the USDA have provided essential data leading to the release of the Hill and Clark 63 varieties for this area.

According to Dr. Owen several new varieties performed creased yields and reduced costs for farmers throughout the area. "Many factors are responsible for the growth and popularity of the crop but much credit is due to development of new and improved varieties for the High Plains," Owen said.

New and improved varieties continue to be developed and tested at the High Plains Research Foundation under Dr. Owen's supervision. The latest results are published in the Annual report to be released this month.

Lubbock Man Tells Story Of Children With Drugs

David Aycock, Lubbock narcotics division officer, and a teacher of teenage class at the Southside Church of Christ spoke to the Main Street Church of Christ Sunday night following regular worship services on the dangers of drug abuse.

Aycock, who has worked as a detective, juvenile officer and in other areas of police work, brought his words to reality, as he presented actual evidence that had been taken from persons arrested for drug abuse.

A crumpled paper bag, which resembled a candy sack, was shown to the audience. In it was glue rather than candy. And it was taken from a seven year old boy, whose brain has been damaged to the point that he cannot progress in school properly.

He showed actual marijuana which was taken from some teenagers, along with speed, bennies and other samples of drugs and narcotics.

Aycock stated that in Lubbock alone this past year that over 5000 juveniles (those from 10 to 17) had been picked up for drug violation.

He teaches a teenage class Wednesday night at the Southside Church of Christ and he told of members of his class confiding in him that some of their school chums were pressuring them to try speed or dope in some form.

He asked for a show of hands from the youth here as to whether they had been asked to experiment with drugs and none held their hands up.

But, Aycock said that we could be sure that it is in Olton. "It's everywhere, but Olton would have it on such a much smaller scale than Lubbock", he said.

He explained the danger of trying marijuana, stating that it usually leads to the use of "hard drugs", such as heroin. "And once you've TRIED heroin...you're sunk."

"There is absolutely nothing to get you off it. And you become addicted at once."

LSD is a dangerous thing for youth to experiment with also, Aycock stated, because just one "trip" from LSD may last you a lifetime. Although you may try it only once, years later, something may start you off on another "trip", one from which you may never return.

Aycock said that all cases were not booked. Some first offenders would be sent to a doctor or perhaps a psychiatrist.

Those breaking the liquor laws are released to their parents usually, he said.

He said that he felt that it was the duty of a friend, when he knows that his friend is taking dope, to report him to the proper officials so that he might get the proper help...And to keep others from getting "on it."

WILL TAKE TIME

U. S. Representative Joe L. Evins from Tennessee remarked: "Congress has acted in good faith but the accumulated problems of many years cannot be solved overnight and they cannot be solved alone by Congress. The problems are massive and their solution will take time, as well as a spirit of tolerance and cooperation between all people--all levels of government--and our great free enterprise system. Together we can move ahead for progress."

Apply Terraclor Super-X and only the first time you plant cotton.

Think for a minute what it costs to replant an acre of cotton that doesn't make a stand. There's the cost of seed, fertilizer, herbicides, insecticides, equipment, operators, and the precious time. Multiply that by the number of acres you could lose to seed and seedling disease.

Now think about Terraclor Super-X Soil Fungicide. It could very well eliminate replanting. Here's why: Terraclor Super-X is a combination of two Olin discoveries that effectively control the fungi that cause cotton seedling disease.

How important is this to you? The regional Cotton Disease Council reports that losses average $60,000,000 a year to seedling diseases alone.

Terraclor Super-X is applied while you plant. Your cotton seed is surrounded by protection in the furrow, where it counts. As the seed germinates and the seedling emerges, the fungi that kill unprotected plants are held off by Terraclor Super-X. You get a healthy, vigorous stand from only one planting.

About seed treatments: They are great... as far as they go. But seed treatment protection lasts only until the seed coat opens and the seedling grows into untreated soil. That's when you need Terraclor Super-X in the furrow.

Terraclor Super-X is available from your Olin dealer in three formulations: granular, liquid and dust. A special formulation is available with a quality soil systemic insecticide impregnated in the granules for combination fungus and insect control.

If you don't know your local Olin dealer, write to Terraclor Super-X, P. O. Box 991, Little Rock, Ark. 72203 for his name.

You ought to get to know him. He can help you get a good stand from only one planting. That's one good reason he is known as the rare bird in the business.

Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Aigaki. The family, including her older sister and brother, moved to Olton when she was not quite three years old. Mary, her sister, is in nursing school at Galveston. David is a student at West Texas State University.

After graduation, Barbara plans to enroll in West Texas State and get most of her pre-vet courses out of the way. She will transfer to Texas A&M or Colorado University for vet school.

She has always loved animals and especially enjoys raising rabbits. She has dreamed of becoming a veterinarian for a long while.

New Appliance Reduces Trash

A new appliance may solve the home's never ending collection of boxes, cans, bags and paper that fill garbage cans too full too fast.

One manufacturer has developed an appliance that squeezes a week's accumulation of trash into a specially designed plastic-lined bag, reports Doris Myers, Extension home management specialist at Texas A&M University.

Under 2,000 pounds of pressure, trash such as bottles, tins, cartons and aerosol cans is reduced four and a half times in less than 60 seconds.

The refuse bag is lined with polyethylene plastic for odor, moisture and germ resistance, Mrs. Myers says.

U. S. sanitation departments haul away half a million tons of rubbish a day so the appliance is sure to make a hit in the home and with the trash collector, the specialist notes.

SENIOR CITIZENS

Senior citizens spend little time complaining about the "Evils" of old age. Minnie Bell, Extension specialist for aging, reports on a recent gerontology study. Life is about what the seniors expect. They say that "complaining just doesn't do much good." They listed their favorite leisure activities as visiting, reading, playing games, listening to radio, watching television, going to church and working around the house.

HAIR STYLES

What is the difference between a man's haircut and hair-styling? Proper hair-styling can do as much for a man's looks as for a woman's, according to Hazel Roberts, Extension clothing specialist at Texas A&M University. The male head, with proper hair cutting and shaping, can be made to look shorter, longer or wider. A slanting forehead can be made to look straight, or a thick neck made to look slim with a properly-cut neckline.

Origin Of Words

By Mrs. Blanton Martin

Have you wondered about the term, "He isn't worth his salt"? In past times I related the saying to the fact that salt is such an inexpensive item on our grocery list. I reasoned that an employee who is not worth his salt is useless indeed. There is more, however, to the story of the origin of this saying.

In ancient times a portion of the wages paid to the Roman soldiers was an allowance with which to buy salt, a very necessary part of one's diet then as now. Eventually the Latin word, "salarium," meaning salt, came to apply to wages in general, and so we have our word "salary".

Hence when someone tells you that his employee is not worth his salt, he could mean that the worker's output is as insignificant as the cost of salt in our diet; more than likely, however, your friend means that his employee is not worth as much as he is being paid.

This train of thought reminds us of "moneo", a word coming from the Latin "moneo", to warn. In Roman mythology Juno Regina was supposed to be the wife of Jupiter and queen of the heavens. She had many responsibilities; she was the war-goddess, the moon-goddess, and most important of all, the goddess of warning.

Out of gratitude to Juno for having warned them of various dangers, the Romans built a temple to her. Sometime later when coinage was devised, they set their mint in her temple; and Juno Moneta, another name by which she was known, became guardian of the finances. The name "Moneta" was derived from "moneo," meaning "to warn."

Volunteer firemen remind residents that the regular fire alarm, a steady wail, should not be confused with a tornado warning when sounded during stormy weather.

This information should be clipped and saved. Parents should explain the warning signals to their young children so that they might be aware of what each signal means and not become frightened each time they hear the alarm.

National Lawn And Garden Week

The second annual observance of National Lawn and Garden Week has been planned to include the whole of Spring 1970 - March 20 to June 20 - with March 20, the first day of spring, being the day for initial events, proclamations by mayors and governors, and announcement of clean up and improvement plans in cities and towns throughout the United States.

Although the week of March 20-26 will be formally proclaimed National Lawn and Garden Week, to achieve better lawns and gardens and improve the appearance of our homes, neighborhoods and communities will take much longer than one week - hence the inclusion of all spring after the National Lawn and Garden Week actually starts to work.

For complete information and material on this national clean up and improvement effort, contact Harold R. Lewis, Director of Information, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

By DAVE LLEWELLYN

Take it or leave it. It's discipleship or nothing—if you want to have Christ with you now.

Jesus presents a clear four-step proposal, starting with the basic decision—whether or not you want to be one of His own. "If anyone wishes to come after Me—

"Let him deny himself—
"And take up his cross—
"And follow Me."

First, you must decide whether you want to be a real Christian. If this decision is negative, you can stop there, for your destiny is settled.

God wants to bless us, but many of us make this impossible by refusing to live by the governing principles which He has established.

God promises blessings to those who will walk in His way. He warns of the consequences of turning away from Him.

Many have defiantly determined to walk in their own ways—only to find, in the end, that they have walked the paths that lead to the lake of fire. They made their choice when they turned away from Christ.

The Good Choice

But for the one who has decided to walk through this life with the Lord, there is the second step—"Let him deny himself."

This is actually impossible for the unbeliever. But for the believer—who has a second self, imparted by Christ through the radical change which Jesus described as the new birth—it is a real possibility.

If you have taken Christ as your Savior, you are now ready to choose the second self and deny—say "No" to—your old self.

This is not a matter of keeping your embarrassingly active old self in line through a rigid set of rules. It is, rather, a matter of saying "No" to the old self and, instead, choosing to be your new self—a new person in Christ.

The apostle Paul tells us, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creation."

The Cross

The next step is to take up the cross. What is the cross? Well, it isn't the turmoil of making up your mind about following Christ.

It isn't the anxiety of controlling your old self.

It isn't just anything which obstructs the following of Christ.

When Jesus took up His cross and went to Calvary, he did it as a sacrifice which He willingly made for you. You, then, must be willing to give yourself a sacrifice to Him. If you are not willing to do this, you cannot be a disciple of Christ.

Finally, Jesus said, "Follow Me."

"But," someone may say, "I can't do that. I know I should step out and acknowledge my sins and take Christ as my Savior and Lord, but I can't. I don't have the strength to take that step. Something seems to be holding me back."

But, remember, when Jesus speaks, the impossible becomes possible for you.

The Vital Choice

Really, the choice is simple—either you deny yourself or you deny Christ.

Either you follow Him along the sometimes difficult pathway of life eternal—or you walk in the way that leads only downward.

Which way have you chosen? "If anyone wishes to come after Me," Jesus says, "let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me."
