31 Killed, 34 Injured. . .

Aeromexico Jetliner Crashes, Burns

CUIDAD CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — Bodies of passengers were piled near the exits of an Aeromexico jetliner that crashed on the runway, reportedly killing 31 and injuring 34, a firefighter said today.

One person was reported missing, said Civil Aeronautics officials in Mexico City.

The DC-9, believed to be carrying 60 passengers and a crew of six, crashed Monday night, bursting into flames after striking the ground and rolling on its wheels for some distance, officials said.

A sudden shift in the wind is believed to have contributed to the crash.

"We didn't find any bodies outside the fuselage. They were trying to get out and were piled on top of each other," said firefighter Ernesto Alvarado, one of the first rescuers on the scene.

Most passengers, disoriented in the crash, fled toward the mountains away from the airport as they escaped the burning craft, Alvarado said today.

"I couldn't tell if there were any foreigners. They were all burned black."

Jose Basterra and Jaan Aldrecht, members of the Mexican Pilots Union, which helps in crash investigations, said today the wind had been coming from the east at six knots at the plane approached from the south.

"We think it was the wind here when the pilot was making a final approach," Basterra said, adding that a sudden wind shift apparently shoved the plane away from the runway.

"The normal position would be to make a go-around, that is, climb again and circle the airport," he said.

"But it happened so fast," Aldrecht said, "and it was so dramatic a wind shift that even if they attempted a go-around, they did not have time."

Both men said it was the worst crash at the Chihuahua airport.

Firefighter Alvarado said it took about an hour to put the flames out, using dry chemicals.

"It was a very disagreeable experience," he said. "I have never seen anything like it before."

Alvarado also said pieces of the airport roof were blown off by the same winds believed to have contributed to the crash.

The airport is surrounded on three sides by mountains and aircraft come over these mountains to land.

S&L Losses Are At Record Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — Savings losses at the nation's savings and loan associations climbed to a record $5.6 billion last month, the government says.

For an unprecedented fourth straight month, American savers withdrew more than they deposited in the approximately 4,000 federally insured savings and loans, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported Monday.

The bank board reported savings losses in May totaled $70 million, compared with $4.6 billion in April and $2.1 billion in March.

For the first six months of the year, withdrawals exceeded savings by $11 billion, compared with a gain of $2.4 billion for the same period in 1980.

June's losses were offset by $6.1 billion in interest that was credited to savers' accounts. That meant S&Ls had a net deposit gain of $476 million last month, the smallest for June since the early 1950s, the bank board said.

Due to June's savings picture, savings and loans "reduced their mortgage commitment and lending activity," the bank board said.

Moreover, S&Ls "borrowed heavily and reduced liquid assets holdings to obtain funds for mortgage lending," it said.

The net worth of the S&Ls declined $304 million in June to $30.7 billion, the bank board said. In May, savings and loans posted a record decline in net worth — assets over liabilities — of $399 million.

House Tax Cut Showdown. . .

Demos Think They Can Beat Reagan Wednesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders, accusing President Reagan of waging a "political trench fight," concede his nationally broadcast appeal may have swayed crucial votes for his tax cut but predict they will beat him anyway in Wednesday's showdown on the House floor.

Saying "this is not the time for political fun and games," Reagan sought Monday night to mobilize an army of Americans to lobby for his tax plan with "letters, telegrams and personal visits."

Some congressmen reported an immediate burst of telephone calls, but one Democrat who sided with Reagan on budget cuts earlier this year said he would vote against the president on taxes and at least two Democrats targeted by the White House lobbying drive remained undecided.

Reagan also tried to blunt Democratic criticism that he was sidestepping the politically sensitive issue of Social Security financing, telling his audience: "You have no reason to be frightened," that no one now dependent on benefits will have their monthly checks reduced.

He said he would talk about Social Security at length later but the overriding factor now is taxes.

The speech came less than 48 hours before the tax battle is to reach the floor of the Democratic-controlled House. The choice will be between Reagan's plan and a Democratic alternative the president branded as "just another empty promise."

Reagan's plan is for a 33-month, 25 percent cut in tax rates, starting Oct. 1, with everyone getting the same percentage reduction regardless of income. It includes automatic cuts each year starting in 1985 to offset inflation.

The rival bill pushed by Democrats is for a two-year, 15 percent cut, also effective Oct. 1, tilted to people earning less than $50,000 a year. A third-year, 10 percent cut would be allowed only if the administration meets its goals for lowering inflation, interest rates and the federal deficit.

"I must agree, he's a super salesman," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said after watching Reagan's speech on

Sparse Raindrops Help Cool Area

It tried to rain in Snyder Monday and early today, but with little success.

A few drops, along with promising clouds, did serve to hold the thermometer in check following the area's hottest week of summer so far.

The official gauge at the Snyder water treatment plant recorded .02 inch of moisture during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a. m. today. The high temperature Monday was 89 degrees, the first time it had failed to reach the 90s in some three weeks.

The cooling off spell came on the heels of heavy demands for water. The Colorado River Municipal Water district reported that its biggest surge in demand so far this season came during a three-day period the past week.

The draw by the three members cities for that span was 42,690,000 gallons for Odessa, $37,269,000 for Big Spring and $16,750,000 gallons for Snyder.

However, the CRMWD reported that the supply situation is much better this year than it was in the summer of 1980 when a series of 100-degree plus days sent water consumtpion soaring. Lake J. B. Thomas and Lake E. V. Spence have nearly twice as much water available as they did this time last year.

The SDN Column

We were reminded the other day that it had been some time since we encountered a good cat story. The reminder came when a feline mother moved seven young offspring into our back yard, apparently to protect them from other animals. We haven't had a cat around, or any other type of animal, since our 19½-year-old Cuban refugee died some four years ago and we are not anxious to acquire any. We haven't disturbed this mother cat, however, and hopefully her family will move on when they are able to shift for themselves.

Then, about the time we had decided against trying to do a cat story, Mrs. Robert Langford calls with one that we could not pass up. A few days ago, a solid black cat, obviously in an advanced stage of fatigue, turned up at the Langford place some 13 miles west of Snyder. It had sore feet, was hungry and wore a collar with tags.

Mrs. Langford had to clean mud and grime from the tags to read the lettering. The tags indicated that the cat belonged to Robert Pitts of Brownfield. So, Mrs. Langford called the phone number on the tag and asked Pitts if he was missing a black cat. And there began one of those stories you hear about happening somewhere else.

The Pitts family went on vacation recently, and the cat, named Magic, went along. They spent time in Ruidoso, N. M., and then went to Houston, visiting Astro World and other attractions. On the return trip from Houston, they had stopped to eat in Sweetwater, and when they returned to their car, Magic was gone. They searched the area thoroughly, but could not find their cat. So, they eventually went on to Brownfield. Pitts told Mrs. Langford that they had reconciled themselves that they would never see Magic again.

But they were wrong. Magic was on the way home, using that strange perception that seems to enable animals, especially cats and dogs, to find their way where they want to go.

It had been two weeks since the Pitts family had seen their cat in Sweetwater.

Arrangements were made for Pitts to meet the Langfords at Gail. As the Pitts van approached, the cat seemed to recognize it and tried to leap from the car, said Mrs. Langford. There was a happy reunion in Gail, especially for the Pitts' young daughter and Magic.

Tax Cut Lobbying

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the Oval Office to the Deep South, on radio and television and in newspapers, the Reagan White House is trying to enlist the support of the voters for the tax-cut battle on Capitol Hill.

The intensive lobbying campaign has found President Reagan talking to the nation, Vice President George Bush and others touring Dixie and Republicans spending a half-million dollars on advertising.

The message is the same: Call your congressman and demand that he vote for Reagan's tax cut.

F-16 Decision Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will give its go-ahead for twice-delayed shipments of F-16 jets to Israel within two weeks if the cease-fire in Lebanon lasts, officials say.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Monday that a decision on ending the suspension will be made by Aug. 10, the next scheduled F-16 delivery date.

Another official, who asked not to be identified, had said earlier that if the cease-fire holds, Israel can expect a favorable decision.

Meanwhile, optimism was growing in the administration that the cease-fire would last.

Waters Nominated

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate subcommittee today recommended the approval of a Dallas homebuilder selected for the Texas Board of Corrections seat initially given to McAllen Mayor Othal Brand.

Lindsley Waters Jr. won 4-0 approval from the nominations subcommittee. Waters was selected by Gov. Bill Clements for the seat after Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, blocked Brand's appointiment.

Brand's nomination became controversial when videotapes of police brutality in McAllen were released.

Waters said he has toured some of the state prisons. He told the senators he is familiar with the federal lawsuit, which could force major changes in the state prisons.

Medfly Proclamation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements invoked his emergency powers and ordered agricultural inspectors to once again man roadblocks on the state's western border to prevent truckloads of California produce infested by the Mediterranean fruit fly from crossing the stateline.

The governor's order Monday came one week after U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham in Dallas issued a temporary restraining order that lifted a Texas quarantine on California produce not certified free of the destructive pest.

Good Viewer Response. . .

Reagan Tax Cut Speech Televised

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan had no sooner ended his nationally televised speech to the nation Monday night in behalf of his tax cut bill than the telephone began lighting up in the Capitol Hill office of Rep. Sam Hall, D-Texas.

Near the end of his 23-minute speech, the president urged Americans to "contact your senators and congressmen. Tell them of your support" for the Hance-Conable bipartisan tax cut bill.

"He got his point across to the people in my district," Hall said Monday night less than 15 minutes after Reagan concluded.

"I thought it was delivered very well, and put over in such a way that it was very understandable. I've had 10 phone calls from my district already. From everywhere — Paris, Texarkana, New Boston. It was just me by myself here, and I've been on the phone constantly. And all are in support of the bipartisan approach. It (the phone) is lighting up again as I talk to you."

Hall, a conservative from Marshall, is one of five Texas Democrats who is committed for the president's tax bill.

Other Texas congressmen said they encountered the same thing.

"You're not going to believe this," said Rep. Jack Fields, R-Humble. "Our phone has been ringing off the wall. So far 100 per cent of the calls somewhere over 20 right now, and this is in first hour — are saying back the president. I've never seen this type of response to a president."

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, and Rep. Jim Collins, R-Dallas, said their phones were busy also. They also watched the speech from their House offices. Like Hall and Fields, the callers were unanimous behind the president.

"How in the world did everybody know I'd be in my office this late at night, watching on television?" Collins asked. "My phone began ringing as soon as the president finished speaking."

During his talk, the president blasted Democratic leaders for their opposition to his bill.

Democrats, Reagan said, didn't want any tax cut at all initially, but had come around with their bill with so many changes that it was almost identical to his. He said the Democrats' only aim with their bill is to achieve a political victory.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said, "The bargaining process has moved each side much closer together on the tax cut issue.

"Each side is now trying to win a political victory. I've been trying to get a tax cut passed for over two years, and I think the American people are going to be the real winners, regardless of which tax cut is approved," he said.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, praised Reagan's speech and pledged his continued support.

"I am especially pleased with the president's support for reducing the tax imposed on our independent oil producers. This is an important step toward meeting our goal of energy sufficiency," Tower said.

"I applaud the president for his forthright statement on the necessity for a unified economic recovery program. I will continue to support the president in his basic tax cut program."

The president departed from his prepared speech to tell of a southern Democrat who was asked at a town hall meeting in his district about how he stood on the tax cut bill. The congressman gave a lengthy, well-thought-out answer but was interrupted by his questioner, a farmer:

"I didn't ask for an essay. What I want to know is, are you for the president or against him?"

The president suggested that listeners might get that same message across to the congressmen representing him.

The congressman Reagan was talking about was Hance, who is sponsoring the tax bill along with Rep. Barber Conable of New York, the ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee.

Somebody who had heard the story before asked Hance about it.

"I told the president about that, one day when we were having lunch in the cabinet room," Hance said Monday night, after the speech.

"He laughed and laughed and laughed and said he loved the story. Yesterday, at Camp David, he said, 'By the way, I'm going to use your story about the fellow who asked are you with him or agin'him," Hance said.

Hance said he got eight telephone calls in his office shortly after the president finished talking.

"I think the key is, the public has to let the members of Congress know where they stand, and what they want. This is a very critical vote. It may be one of the key 4 or 5 votes of the past two decades," Hance said.

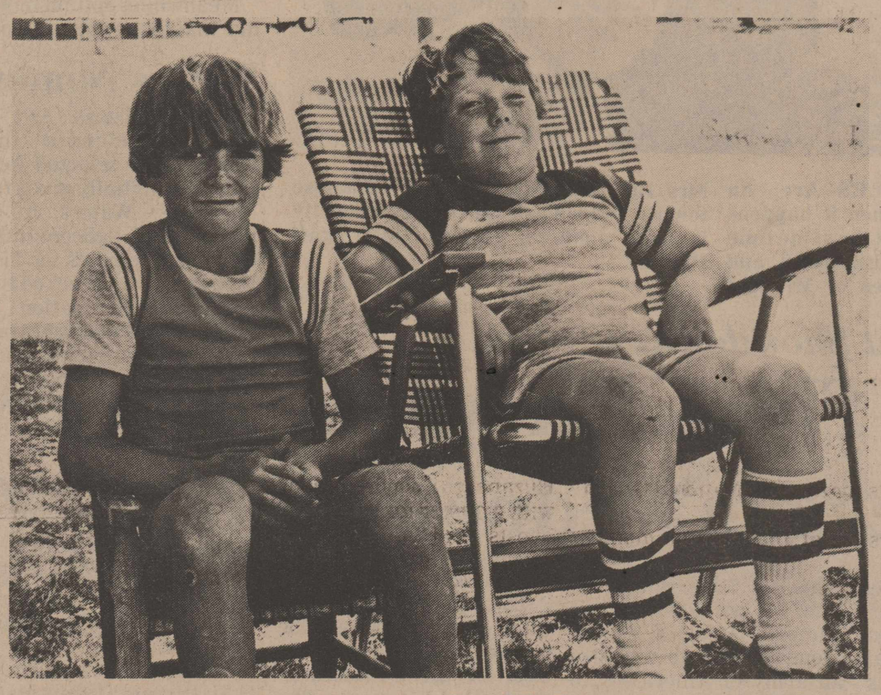

"It will mean a permanent tax cut, which will give government less to spend, spend, spend, versus only a two-year tax cut and then the same old business. This is part of an economic recovery program, and it's a long-range program because problems we face today did not come about overnight."

Collins and Fields were excited about the president's talk.

"I'll tell you. Reagan on television tells it just like he's sitting in the living room with you. Sincere and straight frrom the shoulder. I thought the best line was when he related what that farmer said: don't give me an essay. Just tell me are you for him or against him.' I'm for him," Collins said.

Fields said the president did just exactly what needed to be done in going directly to the American people.

"Who do you trust? Tip O'Neill and the Democratic leadership who traditionally have been big spenders and like to take big tax bites out of the American workers? Or a president who has already cut the level of government spending and is now attempting to keep his promise of letting American workers keep more of their paychecks," Fields said.

Astronauts Test Shuttle Systems

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts planning to ride the space shuttle Columbia on its second flight into space in September began testing the reusable aircraft today for flight and systems performance.

The twice-delayed, 20-hour test got under way as scheduled at midnight.

The rehearsal for the shuttle's second mission, conducted in Columbia's hangar at the Kennedy Space Center, included opening the craft's cargo doors and operating a remote-controlled arm.

Astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly and their backup crewmen, Thomas Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield, were to enter the cockpit this morning. The orbiter's computers were to be programmed into simulating a flight so the astronauts could carry out in abbreviated form all the duties they are to perform in space, officials said.

The two astronaut crews were to alternate at the controls.

Test procedures include checking out systems and simulating maneuvers in orbit to make sure there are no unpleasant surprises when the shuttle is launched on its second mission, scheduled for Sept. 30. The mock flight was to conclude tonight.

Wiring problems on the shuttle's huge mechanical arm were resolved Monday. Technicians ran into problems Friday on the "remote manipulation system," which is designed to retrieve satellites and other objects from space and put payloads into orbit.

Berry's World

"What does Prince Charles have that I haven't got?"

at wit's end

by erma bombeck

Tomorrow in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, the heir to the British throne will take a wife.

Most Americans caught up in the pageantry, the tradition, the romance of a prince marrying the beautiful girl next door will lose sight of the real history that is being made.

It will mark the first time a mother of a bridegroom did not see the wedding from the kitchen.

Have you any idea the virgin trails this woman has blazed? As a mother of sons, I know what I am talking about. Her precedents should not go unnoted.

We all know how the mothers of bridegrooms have always worn beige and kept their mouths shut. Prince Charles' mother has decreed she gets to choose a color for her dress that will be worn by no other person at the wedding. (She's opted to wear short, which is wise She can wear it again without having to cut it off.)

And how does the bridegoom's mother usually get to the church? Crammed in the VW of one of her son's friends, holding a box of iced tea spoons and a jar of Sanka for the reception which someone forgot. Charles' mother has taken it upon herself to not only decide the order of the coach procession but she gets pick of the livery.

And how many mothers of the bridegroom have entered church to see 15 guests on "his" side and 3,000 of the bride's dearest friends on the other side of the aisle? Charles' mother kept 300 tickets for her son's friends and gave the bride's parents only 100.

There is no question, Charles' mother has been an inspiration to mothers of sons everywhere. Who among us with a 33-year-old unmarried son who went to funerals for a living would not have panicked?

Be honest now. I have known mothers who have offered unprecedented finder's fees, and a few of us have actually followed up leads from the Welcome Wagon lady.

But Charles' mother, with her stubborn determination to serve tradition, announced, "The family put pressure on Charles to find a girl with no past and there aren't too many 20-year-old virgins available."

I salute Charles' mother for her courage and her vision. The only thing that would make the day complete would be to see the royal couple cut the 15 wedding cakes and see the bride's mother, Frances what's-her-name, running around with a bowl of ice water, dipping in the sword after each piece is cut.

Kerrville Teacher Is Indicted In Snakescam

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An undercover crackdown on black market trafficking in endangered reptiles, known as "Snakescam," has resulted in the indictment of a Kerrville high school science teacher.

Earl Turner, a well-known herpetologist who teaches chemistry and biology in Kerrville, was arraigned Monday in federal court here on charges he violated federal laws in shipping 33 snakes and three lizards to an undercover federal agent posing as a reptile dealer in Atlanta, Ga.

U.S. Magistrate Jamie Boyd set bond at $5,000 and Turner was released on his own recognizance.

A man identified only as Allen Hiser was indicted along with Turner.

The 12-count indictment returned in Atlanta on July 15 charges Turner with shipping the snakes and lizards to Georgia from last Dec. 5 to June 26.

Two ridge-nosed rattlesnakes shipped by Turner Dec. 5 were endangered wildlife, the indictment charged, and Turner violated federal law by shipping them across state lines.

In addition, the indictment charged that Turner transported the other snakes and lizards in interstate commerce in violation of Texas law and with failing to properly mark the crates containing the reptiles.

Turner's attorney, Paul Bartlett Jr. of Boerne, predicted Turner would be found innocent of all charges.

television.

The Massachusetts Democrat, who lost to Reagan on two earlier budget votes, said that as of Monday, "we have the votes to win" on taxes, but he said he couldn't say whether that margin would hold up in the face of the president's new lobbying offensive.

O'Neill said he counted 14 Democrats solidly against the Democratic bill with seven or eight still on the fence. He predicted an overall loss of 21 to 22 Democrats — which would give the Democrats a narrow victory assuming all 191 Republicans voted for the Reagan plan.

There are 435 House members.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, the Democratic chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said Reagan "has reduced the debate over a trillion-dollar tax cut to a political trench fight."

Reagan also stepped up his lobbying in the White House, meeting with 16 House members Monday and inviting more today.

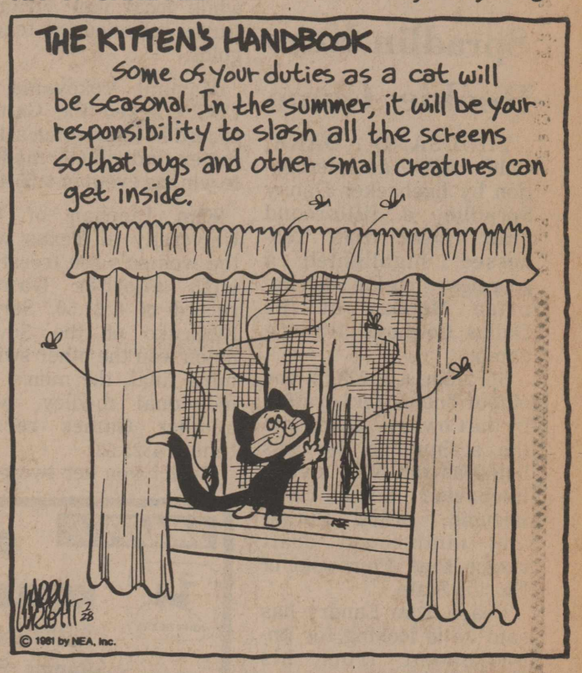

The thrust of the White House campaign, however, was to build public pressure on Congress, the same strategy Reagan used in winning approval of sweeping budget cuts.

"I urge you again to contact your senators and congressmen," Reagan said. "Once again, they need to hear from you. That doesn't give you much time, but a great deal is at stake."

White House aides acknowledged that the issue was in doubt but said momentum was with the president.

Five Texas congressmen who are committed to vote for Reagan's bill said their phones began lighting up almost as soon as the president finished speaking. And the White House said almost 800 telephone calls in the first 1¼ hours after the speech ran more than 5-1 in Reagan's favor.

Sweetwater, C-City Win First-Round Teen Titles

Sweetwater's Pirates and the Colorado City Colts overcame respective opponents to advance in the District I Junior Teenage League Baseball Tournament which began here at Moffett Field yesterday.

Sweetwater defeated host Snyder Oilers 9-4 and Colorado City topped the Clyde Braves 16-14 to advance in the winner's bracket of the double-elimination tournament.

Today's games were to open with Colorado City taking on Merkel at 10. Snyder's Oilers, sponsored by Pool Well Service, were to meet the loser of that game in an elimination battle at 3. Tri-Cities and Sweetwater will square off at 6 tonight with the loser vying Clyde in the other elimination game at 9.

The four-day tournament continues through Thursday, with the eventual victor advancing to the state tournament.

Sweetwater broke a 4-4 tie with five fifth-inning runs to power past the Oilers, last year's district and state champions. The Pirates scored the first run of the game in the top inning, then added three more in the fourth to take a sizable lead. All of Sweetwater's runs in the stanza came on Oilers errors.

Snyder tied the game in the fifth with a series of singles, an error, and a two-run single from Bobby Velasquez. Three of the runs came with two outs in the inning.

Jason Reeves was the winning pitcher for the Pirates, relieving starter Donald Jones in the fifth. Charlie Bollinger, who came on in relief of William Cotton, took the loss for Snyder.

Hitting for the 14-1 Oilers were Jimmy Velasquez with three singles, Kyle Freeman with two and Cotton, Bollinger and Bob- by Velasquez with one apiece.

Reeves, Brad Young, Brian Taylor, Mike Alvarado and Blaze Herring rapped a single apiece for the Pirates of Sweetwater, now 11-2 on the season.

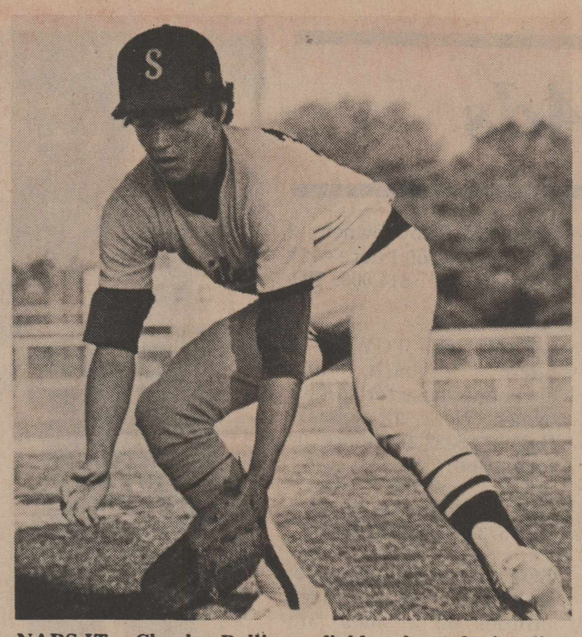

In the late game of the evening, the Colorado City Colts got three runs in the seventh inning to edge the Clyde Braves 16-14. Ismael Carrion took WP honors for the Colts, who got three singles from former Snyderite Doug Chitsey, two from Billy Jackson and one each from Ben Gonzales and Raymond Bassinger.

Clyde's Weldon Wilkerson rapped three singles and teammate Scott Gordon hit a double and a single. Wayne Baker and Frank Ramos hit a single each. Billy Jackson was the losing pitcher.

The Braves are 10-1 for the year; the Colts are 9-1.

Abilene Leads Playoff Series

Abilene Southern scored three fourth-inning runs here last night to break a tie and defeat Lubbock Western in area Little League action, 7-3.

The best-of-three playoff series resumes here at 8 tonight. Winner of the series advances to the state tournament in Waco.

Both teams scored two runs in the first inning and one in the third to lock at 1-1 and 3-3. But Abilene pitcher Kyle Doby and his teammates buckled down in the following innings to blank the Lubbockites the rest of the way. Meanwhile, Abilene scored three fourth-inning runs and added insurance in the fifth to take the victory.

Lubbock came out strong in the first inning as Terrell Gillespie slammed a two-run homer over the Snyder Little League Field fence. Abilene answered the call in the bottom of the stanza when, with two outs, Mark Redwine walked, Lance Deal singled to left and Lance Wilkerson hit an infield shot that scored one run. Deal also raced home on the play as Wilkerson attempted to steal second.

Abilene's big run was in the fourth when Wilkerson singled to left centerfield and Donald Campbell brought him in with a double off the right field fence. Next-up David Boline singled and both runners came home on hits by Jason Marshall and Kyle Doby.

Abilene put the lid on the contest when Redwine slapped a leadoff homer in the fifth inning.

Abilene notched nine hits for the contest; Lubbock had four.

Spradlin Keys Rookie Game

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - An interception by linebacker Danny Spradlin, a fifth-round draft choice from Tennessee, highlighted a scoreless rookie scrimmage Monday at the Dallas Cowboys' training camp.

Spradlin, 6-1, 228, is one of four linebackers drafted by the Cowboys. Going into the scrimmage, he was listed as the No.4 middle linebacker behind Bob Breunig, Bruce Huther and ninth-round draft choice Paul Piurowski of Florida State.

Coach Tom Landry has said he is looking for improvement from his reserve linebackers.

"Our backup linebackers all need to improve and continue to make strides if we're going to be a solid football team," he said.

U.S. Swimmers Take Two Golds At Games

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) - Americans took two of the three swimming gold medals at stake at the World University Games, while local idol Virginia Ruzici collected two tennis golds.

Mayumi Yokoyama of USC cracked the Games record in the women's 400-meter individual medley to win the event in 4:55.45.

Kim Linehan of the University of Texas won the women's 800 freestyle with another Games record of 8:37.50. Sergei Fessenko of the Soviet union won the other swimming final, the men's 400 individual medley, with another Games record time of 4:25.53.

Ruzici won her two gold medals by defeating compatriot Lucia Romanov 6-1, 6-1 in the women's singles final and then teaming with Florin Segarceanu to beat Sergei Leoniuk and Ludmila Makarova of the Soviet Union 6-3, 6-3 in the mixed doubles.

The American women won their basketball semifinal 74-64 against Romania to advance to today's final against the Soviet Union.

The U.S. water polo team clinched at least a silver medal by extending its unbeaten run to five matches with a 7-3 decision over Hungary. The Americans can win the gold with a win over Romania in its final match.

Seniors Drop Brownwood

MERKEL -- Snyder's Overton Transport team held off Brownwood to reach semi-final action of the District Senior Teenage League Baseball Tournament, being held here through Wednesday.

Information concerning the tournament was limited, but it was known Snyder was to play again at 5 p.m. today, presumably against Sweetwater.

Tommy Gressett picked up the win for the Tigers. Gressett took the mound for four innings, giving way to Monte Gambol in the top of the fifth.

Snyder jumped out to an 8-0 lead early in the ballgame, but Brownwood cut the margin to 8-5 midway through the contest. The advantage was trimmed to 9-8 and 10-9 on separate occassions before Snyder pulled out the victory.

John Wilson, Britt Vincent and Curtis Gafford all got hits for Overton Transport, a unit composed largely from the District 2-AAAA championship Snyder High School team.

Snyder managed four hits in the game, which encountered numerous walks and errors. Brownwood had three hits.

No other information was available.

Bouts Planned Here Friday

Negotiations Stopped For News Briefings

CHICAGO (AP) - Striking major league players and club owners will be meeting on opposite coasts Wednesday as the walkout that has canceled more than 25 percent of the 1981 baseball season continues through its seventh week.

Armed with a vote of confidence from the player representatives, Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, will hold the first in a series of regional meetings in Los Angeles. Miller said no further meetings had been scheduled.

At the same time, the 26 club owners will gather in New York for an update from the Player Relations Committee and their chief negotiator, Ray Grebey.

That means there can be no negotiations to end the strike probably before the weekend.

Miller spent more than five hours Monday night briefing the executive board of the union on the negotiations, which broke down last Thursday in Washington. The two sides had bargained for four days with a news blackout and Miller said he thought the players needed an update on the status of their strike.

Why has the cost of electricity increased so much?

Mainly, fuel. Mainly, natural gas. We still have to use it to make more than half your electricity. Our fuel bill in 1980 was $198,900,000*; our estimate for 1981 is $450,000,000.

As the graph shows, Texas Electric's customers paid much lower fuel costs on their electric bills throughout the '70s. But now our biggest contract for low-cost gas has expired, and we have to pay the going rate.

Our lignite-fueled generating plants (and our nuclear plant in the future) will help protect our customers from rising gas prices.

You can help hold down your electric bill by conserving at home; learn how at one of our free Tighten-Up workshops, or request our conservation tips booklets.

* The amount we have to pay for fuel to make electricity is the exact amount we charge our customers for fuel.

Queen Elizabeth Is A Very Lucky Royal Mum

LONDON (AP) — To tears she's entitled as her son Charles walks down the aisle of St. Paul's with the former Diana Spencer on his arm, but Queen Elizabeth II can consider herself a very lucky royal Mum.

Marrying off the Prince of Wales to an acceptable life partner has not always been the easiest thing under the sun in the British Empire. Long before Charles' great uncle, King Edward VIII, renounced his throne for the woman he loved, American divorcee Wallis Simpson, the long walk down the connubial aisle had turned out more often than not to be a royal pain rather than royal occasion.

Queen Victoria's son, the future Edward VII, was the last Prince of Wales to get married. That was in 1863. At the wedding reception his 4-year-old nephew, the future Kaiser Wilhelm II, crawled under the table and bit the Duke of Connaught, who was in kilts, on the leg.

The Queen definitely was not amused. She was not even there. Still in excessive, eccentric mourning for her Prince Consort, already dead two years, she had passed up the reception to find consolation at his mausoleum. Her son's wedding to the lovely Princess Alexandra of Schleswig-Holstein took place in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, a place for burying kings, because the Queen in her grief "would not hear of Westminster Abbey."

The queen watched the ceremony from a gallery behind the main altar until Jenny Lind intoned an oratorio composed by her dear departed Albert, which caused her to retire in tears.

George III, at his wedding, only had eyes for Lady Sarah Lennox, one of the bridesmaids, while his bride, Princess Charlotte of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, suddenly went topless as a heavy ermine mantle dragged the velvet wedding gown from her shoulders.

George III's oldest son, George Prince of Wales, was drunk at his own wedding. Teetering precariously, the future Prince Regent and George IV was held upright between two royal dukes. The marriage to Caroline of Brunswick was held in the chapel of St. James's Palace.

They had hated each other from the start. He had married Caroline only because the king promised to settle his enormous gambling debts if he settled down.

Sent to Brunswick to request Caroline's hand, Lord Malmesbury found her "reasonably pretty for 27, good teeth but going, fair hair, fine bust." His sensitive nostrils informed him "she did not bathe often" and advised her "a long toilette was necessary."

The first time the Prince set eyes on her, he gasped. "Harris, I am not well. Pray, get me a glass of brandy." He never forgave Malmesbury for not warning him.

Caroline didn't regard him as any bargain either. He looked nothing like his picture, she wailed. At 17 stone, 238 pounds, he had to be lowered onto his horse by a hoist. Thus began one of history's more inconvenient marriages of convenience.

Registered Nurse Races Motorcycles

WOODBURY, Conn. (AP) — Karen Hornbecker is living out a dream that would terrify many but which brings her nothing but pleasure.

The 35-year-old registered nurse is racing motorcycles as a member of the Association of American Motorcycle Road Racers, a club composed of amateur racers.

As a member of the Thomaston Honda team, she takes her 400-cc motorcycle to the track each weekend. And after only one year of competition, she is rated an expert in the Production A Class.

The bikes used in that class are similar to those used on the streets, with a few minor changes and different tires. It's what she calls "the cheapest way to race."

Miss Hornbecker says it's "fairly unusual" for anyone her age to begin racing bikes, but she downplays the achievement, saying, "I'm in a small class," A class, in which she happens to be the only woman competing.

"It's great," she said. "The men treat me really well. They sometimes get miffed at themselves when I beat them."

When on the track, she said, all bikers are treated equally.

"They don't let me go by just because I'm a woman," she said. "When we're at the track, we're all the same — racers."

Her racing season runs from April to October, with competition at Bryar Motorsport Park in Loudon, N.H., Bridgehampton, N.Y., and Summit Point, W.Va.

While she has a sponsor, Miss Hornbecker finances most of her own racing, estimating it costs her an average of $100 a weekend to participate in a race.

That doesn't include an initial investment for a motorcycle, a helmet and the special leather attire required for all racers.

For their expense, the bikers get to race around a paved, curve-filled track for about 20 minutes. Participants are given points for their efforts as they vie for a trophy awarded at season's end.

Miss Hornbecker has been riding motorcycles since 1974, and continues to drive a motorcycle daily to Waterbury Hospital, where she is an operating room nurse.

Her medical skills occasionally come in handy at the track, but she said "90 percent of the accidents are minor."

She has been involved in a minor accident at the track, and concedes the thought of another accident is "always in the back of your mind."

Still, she said, "Most crashes look terrible, but we usually get up and walk away."

She credits equipment and bikers' knowledge of safe driving for the low casualty numbers.

In fact, she said she became interested in her motorcycle club to "promote it as a good sport."

She has already fulfilled the goal she set when she first took up the sport — "to reach the expert level."

She will keep racing, "until it isn't fun any more."

Approximately 98 percent of all American homes owned at least one television set in 1979, according to a Nielsen estimate reported in the World Almanac for 1981.

Six spades is a rather normal contract for North and South. Some optimists might even get to seven and only real underbidders would stop below some slam.

Of course, this pair were helped by their opponents preempting against them.

The play at any spade contract is interesting. South sees two certain losers. One in each minor suit. It is a book situation. He must cash out his diamond and club winners and then throw one opponent in. If that player has no remaining card in the other minor suit he will have to lead a heart and give declarer a ruff and discard.

The particular South we watched made his contract by playing two rounds of trumps, cashing dummy's king of diamonds and ace of clubs, continuing by cashing his diamond ace and club king.

South noted that East discarded on the second club. Then South counted the hand. East had shown seven hearts by his opening three bid. He had one card in each black suit which left him exactly four diamonds. West held three and there was no point throwing West in with a club so he led his small diamond.

East had to win and give South the ruff and discard.

Note that East could have beaten the slam by dropping two of his high diamonds on the ace and king, but East had overlooked that play.

Greek Saga Lacks Lively Characters

THE SACRIFICE. By Pamela Ferguson. Atheneum. 370 Pages. $13.95.

Long family sagas are enjoying something of a vogue in popular fiction these days.

When done properly by such writers as, say, Gerald Green or Irwin Shaw, they are most enjoyable, good escape reading. When not done properly they are boring and a chore to plod through.

Pamela Ferguson's "The Sacrifice" belongs to the latter group. Granted, Miss Ferguson has done her homework. Her detailing of life among Greek immigrants to the United States in the early years of this century rings with truth as does her recapitulation of life during the Prohibition years.

But the book lacks life. Her characters are one-dimensional beings who seem to exist only as a means for the author to string together her knowledge of the minutiae of recent history.

The lead character is Dmitri Mitsidis. The reader meets Dmitri at age 85. Drawing apart from a family gathering, Dmitri begins to mentally count the beads of his past and quick as you can turn a page the time is 1907 and Dmitri is a child attending a wedding on the Greek island of his birth. The child of a desperately poor widow, Dmitri, his brother and their cousin are "sold" to a Greek who had immigrated early to the United States and established some businesses there. He takes the boys to America and puts them to work in his shoeshine parlor and taverna, but not for long.

Dmitri is a bright boy and as he grows older he shoulders his way up the established order, starting small but eventually establishing and controlling a multinational liquor empire.

Dmitri's rise to power is logical, his story rings with historical authenticity, but it isn't very interesting.

British Prepare For Wedding Of Century

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The flash of fireworks and sound of music fill the London skies tonight, heralding the "wedding of the century," and early birds were already camping before the great dome of St. Paul's Cathedral to get a good view of the royal bride and groom Wednesday.

As dedicated royalty lovers staked out choice places beneath the bunting and balloons festooning the procession route from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral, Lady Diana Spencer, clasping Prince Charles' hand, made one of her last public appearances before becoming princess of Wales and the future queen of England.

In a final rehearsal Monday at Sir Christopher Wren's 300-year-old cathedral atop Ludgate Hill, the bride and groom met before Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie to practice the ceremony that will be televised to an expected 750 million viewers in 55 nations.

Diana, whose pre-wedding jitters caused her to flee a weekend polo match in tears when confronted by a barrage of cameras, was whisked into the cathedral through an underground parking lot.

After the hour-long rehearsal, however, she faced an enthusiastic throng of 3,000 people. Charles took her hand as they descended the cathedral's 24 front steps to their limousine.

Several hours later the young couple were on view again at Buckingham Palace, where Queen Elizabeth II honored them with a dinner for 90 special guests and a "private" reception attended by 1,500.

"One and a half thousand people may seem a lot for a private party, but they have a very wide circle," said a palace spokesman. "There was no protocol about it. It was purely a party for friends and friends of friends.

President Reagan's wife, Nancy, the official American representative at the wedding, was among the dinner guests. The Three Degrees, the American soul singers who are favorites of Charles, were reported at the reception.

Charles tonight lights the first of a nationwide chain of 101 royal wedding beacons during a $125,000 fireworks display in Hyde Park. The 18-minute finale will use 2½ tons of explosives in a 170-foot catherine wheel as the bands of the House Guards and the Household Cavalry accompany massed choirs and guns boom in celebration.

Meanwhile, police dogs sniffed for bombs under manhole covers and in drains, security forces made sweeps of the wedding procession's two-mile route, and police marksmen got their final briefings.

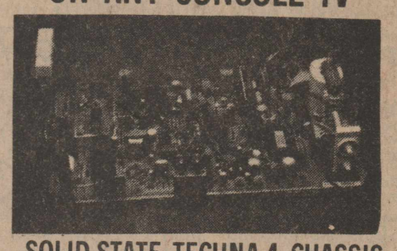

The 255-pound wedding cake, baked by Royal Navy cooks, was unveiled Monday. The five-foot, five-tier fruit cake was decorated with royal and naval insignia, family crests and replicas of St. Paul's, Buckingham Palace and Highgrove, the prince's country estate and the couple's future home.

As thousands of gifts piled up at the palace, what was declared the world's largest wedding card arrived with the signatures of 25,000 western Australians. Their diplomatic representative in London, Les Slade, noted that the 32-foot-wide greeting "is obviously too big to go on the mantelpiece."

Golden Gate In San Francisco. . .

Bridge Is Favorite Suicide Spot

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — By anyone's reckoning, the Golden Gate Bridge is one of the wonders of the modern world — a monument to function and beauty, a landmark recognized as among man's greatest engineering achievements.

But the graceful span that guards the entrance to San Francisco Bay holds another, darker, claim to fame. It is without doubt the nation's favorite spot for suicide.

Since its opening in 1937, the Golden Gate has served as the final stop for at least 708 souls. The rate is better than one suicide per month.

The California Highway Patrol, which keeps the morbid statistics, lists another 285 "possibles" — cases where notes or abandoned vehicles were found but where no one was seen and no body was recovered.

An additional 720 people have been stopped before they could jump the low railing and fall 220 feet to the cold, choppy bay.

The search is almost always the same. A 41-foot Coast Guard utility boat churns out, sometimes beneath blue skies, sometimes in the gray-white fog that blankets the gate.

"We search as long as we can, but there are very heavy tide rips and turbulence," Coast Guardsman Dave Cipra said. "Many times we can't find the person even if we saw them jump."

At the Marin County Suicide Prevention Center north of San Francisco, counselors deal with people threatening to jump.

"It's become a symbol," center coordinator David Nolan said. "People look at the bridge in a very romantic way, and they see suicide there as romantic. They describe it to us in almost positive terms."

Indeed, survivors — there have been barely a dozen — report euphoric sensations as they hurtle through the air.

"I felt like eternity, like flying through the air like an angel," said Thomas Baker, who lived after a 1969 jump.

"I felt absolutely at peace with myself for the first time in my life," said another survivor. "I had the feeling that I would vanish from the face of the earth and be with God."

Another man who lived said, "The hardest thing was stepping over the rail. Once I pushed off, it was different. I really remember the air. I was flying. You see people fall in the movies, and you hear that godawful scream. There was none of that fear."

For most, however, death is quick. It takes about three seconds to fall to the water. Speed at impact is 75 miles per hour.

Those who survive are just lucky. Last summer German stuntman Wolfgang Hans Gunther Kopke tried to set a world high diving record by jumping off the bridge into the bay. He wore protective clothing--a wet suit wrestling shoes and a life preserver — and he tried to land on his feet.

But the wind flipped him on his back and he died impact.

Most people jump out ot desperation. Lost love, illness and financial troubles are the common reasons. But there are exceptions. Last summer a Coast Guard seaman left a note saying he preferred death to serving Ronald Reagan.

In its efforts to prevent bridge suicides, the Highway Patrol looks for people who stand at the railing too long and don't appear to be there for the spectacular view.

"Even if we feel there is a remote possibility of a suicide we have authority to take a person into protective custody," said officer Richard Myers, who has talked many people out of jumping.

Sometimes, he said, he'll go up to a person, "and introduce myself and maybe inquire how things are going. I've had people turn around and look at me and just burst into tears.

"Then I know I have struck gold," he said. "If I can stop that person before they take their own life."

He isn't always successful.

"Not too long ago there was this fellow over the rail standing on the girder. He was emotionally distraught over illness, lack of employment, and he thought it would be best for him not to be a liability for his family. He was 54.

"I was able to get his wife and daughter and brother to the bridge. But in front of everybody, he just jumped."

Can bridge suicides be stopped? In 1971, a committee proposed a barrier be erected along the rails. It was stymied for esthetic and financial reasons.

"We tried to build one that would do the job and still be aesthetically pleasing, but we couldn't do it," said Golden Gate Bridge District engineer Harry Reilich.

Meanwhile, about every four weeks, another obituary is published. The circumstances are almost always the same. A witness, a body. Only the names change.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb,M.D.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been having some mild discomfort in the lower part of my chest, near the end of the breastbone. It comes and goes. It isn't severe but I wonder if I am having heart trouble. You hear so much these days about people having heart attacks that it has me worried. How can I tell if it is caused by my heart or whether it is important or not?

DEAR READER — Don't try to guess about it yourself. Go see your doctor and let him take a careful complete history and decide then what to do. There are many variations of heart pain. Actually about a third of all heart attacks occur with no pain warning at all. We call these silent heart attacks.

The pain from a heart attack may be a mild, dull, aching pain or pressure sensation, as opposed to a sharp pain. Sharp pains are seldom an indication of heart trouble.

If the discomfort is of short duration, less than 10 minutes, it is usually angina pectoris. This usually means insufficient blood supply to the heart muscle but not heart muscle damage. Heart attacks that cause heart muscle damage are usually associated with pain that lasts 30 minutes or more.

The discomfort can be in the center of the chest, at the lower end of your breastbone, in the pit of the stomach, right or left shoulder; it may radiate into the arms, the back or even into the jaw. The pain of a heart attack may occur at rest but angina pain more often occurs with exercise.

Some people with a heart attack have indigestion and vomiting as the primary feature of discomfort. To give you a more complete idea of the indications of a heart attack I am sending you The Health Letter number 17-10, What You Need To Know About Heart Attacks. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Often the onset of discomfort from an acute attack is the first warning a person has that he has heart disease.

Considering the diverse nature of heart pain it is difficult for an untrained person to be sure what is happening. The first few hours of a heart attack are critical to the outcome. So it is important for anyone who has any reason to suspect a heart attack to contact their doctor at once.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a man age 80. I have an indirect inguinal reducible hernia on the right side. For a year I have worn a soft foam rubber truss, no gouging. The hernia doesn't bother me and I don't need the truss at night. I am normal and healthy in other ways.

I have read that wearing a truss only delays matters, causing weakening and scarring of muscles, making hernia surgery more difficult. What is your opinion? I am trying to avoid surgery and run my time out with a truss.

DEAR READER — I don't think anyone should wear a truss for a hernia without an examination and approval by their doctor. Many small hernias do not require immediate treatment. But no one wants a truss that might make matters worse.

If your hernia is mild as you describe and indirect, it is unlikely that it would ever strangulate so it is unlikely that you would need surgery. The intestinal loop tends to slide back into the abdomen when you are lying down so you wouldn't have a hernia at night. If you are in good health you would probably tolerate the surgery very well if you should need it at some future date.

Dear Abby

Boy Wants Girl As Friend, Not as Family

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: For two years I have been dating a man who must be ashamed to take me home to meet his mother. Although he has never told me this in so many words, I am sure it's true.

He didn't take me to his niece's graduation ceremony earlier this year. Also, his cousin got married and he didn't invite me to the reception with him. Recently his brother's girlfriend had a big birthday party for his brother, and he went alone and told me about it afterward. These things hurt me, but I didn't say anything.

When we first started dating, I introduced him to my parents and invited him to all our family gatherings so he could meet my relatives.

I'm not a bad-looking girl. In fact, I'm considered good-looking by quite a few. I have a nice figure (34-22-35) and I'm very polite. Sometimes I think he's ashamed of me because I'm raising a son from a previous relationship and I've never been married. Please put me on the right track.

WONDER WHY

DEAR WONDER: Quit wondering and ask him. However, the reason he's ashamed of you is less important than the fact that he is. And unless he overcomes that "shame," the "track" for you is the one that leads out of his life.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I are in total disagreement, and here's why:

My brother and I are both married, and we each have two young children. My mother bought my brother's kids beautiful outfits for their birthdays, but for my kids, she bought a couple of yards of material and told me to make them outfits!

I thought this was very unfair and I told her so. She said it wasn't unfair because my brother's wife doesn't sew and I do. I'll leave it up to you and your readers, Abby. Do you think this was fair? I like to sew, but not that much.

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: It wasn't fair, and your disappointment was justified. Youngsters look forward to receiving birthday gifts, and a couple of yards of material isn't nearly as much fun to unwrap as a new outfit.

DEAR ABBY: There is a question I have been wanting to ask you for a long time.

What do you say when some idiot comes up to you, just stands there and says, "Where have I seen you before?"

BUGGED IN BUTTE

DEAR BUGGED: I reply, "I don't know. Where have you been?"

DEAR ABBY: In response to FUNNY NAVEL: I am a 22-year-old woman who also has an "outie" (a belly button that sticks out). Mine is due to an umbilical hernia, which I was born with. I used to be embarrassed to wear bikinis and midriff tops because of people's rude comments, until I came up with a good line to shut them up.

When someone asks about my navel, I tell him I was born in Germany (I was), and they tie the cord off differently over there, so that everyone born in Germany has a belly button like mine. I call mine a "German Outie." (You'd be surprised at how many people want to go for a ride in it.)

Actually, I'm glad to have a unique belly button. You've heard of the Navel Academy, haven't you? Well, mine dropped out!

Nancy Reagan To Show Dress Before Wedding

LONDON (AP) — Nancy Reagan is giving the press a preview of her outfit for the royal wedding the day before the event because "she doesn't want to compete with the bride," her press secretary Sheila Tate says.

Mrs. Tate was to release pictures today of the costume America's first lady will wear to St. Paul's Cathedral Wednesday for the marrige of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

The Washington Post reported Sunday that Mrs. Reagan would wear a salmon satin coatdress by her favorite California designer, James Galanos, and a broadbrimmed hat. The Post said Mrs. Tate, when asked to confirm its report, replied, "How did you find out?"

Lady Diana has three spare wedding gowns in reserve in case hers is revealed before the wedding. But "Mrs. Reagan has only one dress ready for the wedding," Mrs. Tate said.

The Washington Post said she bought it some time ago and saved it "for a special occasion."

Mrs. Reagan went to Buckingham Palace Monday night for a gala dinner and reception given by Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip for their son and future daughter-in-law.

The 90 dinner guests included King Olav V of Norway, Queen Margrethe II of Denmark and other heads of state attending the wedding. The 1,500 reception guests were friends of the royal family and "friends of friends," a palace spokesman said.

The president's wife got a big cheer when the large crowd outside the palace gates spotted her limousine driving through.

Before going to the palace, Mrs. Reagan visited the Royal Opera House to take in the first act of a performance by the Dance Theater of Harlem and went back stage to talk to the New York dance troupe.

"I'm sorry I can't stay for the whole ballet, but I have to go to the palace," she told the dancers. "I hope you understand."

The dancers murmured "yes" and nodded their heads.

The Reagan's son, Ron, is a ballet dancer with Joffrey II, another New York troupe.

Mrs. Reagan's schedule today included a visit to the Spastics Society, a 13-year-old training and educational facility for cerebral palsy victims. She had asked to view such a training center during her visit.

Sr. Center Has New Secretary

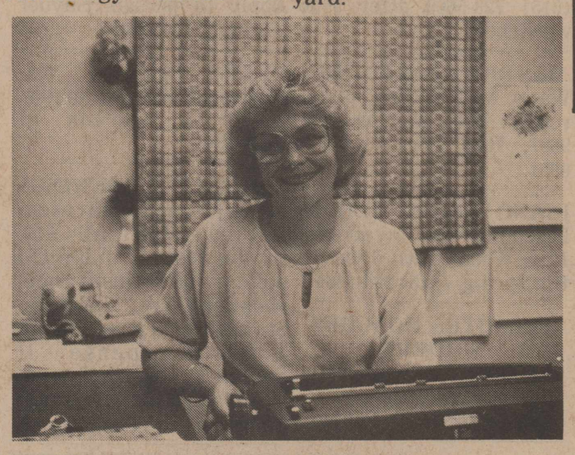

The Scurry County Senior Center has a new secretary.

She is Jackie Buckland, who began work at the center Monday.

Mrs. Buckland and her husband, Buck, moved to Snyder June 29 from Abilene. She was personnel assistant for the City of Abilene before moving here. Buckland will be enrolled in the golf course operation and landscape technology course at Western Texas College and will also be employed part time there.

"I'm looking forward to getting acquainted with everyone at the center," Mrs. Buckland said. "I can already tell there are lots of things going on here and the people I have already met are so friendly that I'm sure this will be a pleasant job."

In her spare time, Mrs. Buckland enloys playing golf and working in her yard.

Shop Early For Fall

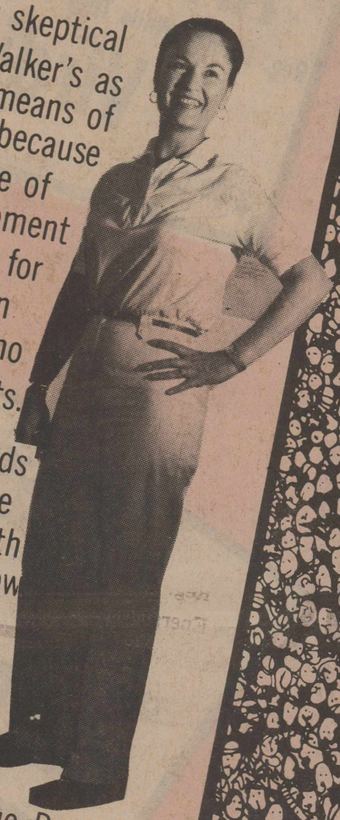

LA CASA DE BLANCO bridal shop is owned by Jan Johnson and Gloria Romo. Located on the north side of the square, it has everything to make that wedding complete, from formal wear to invitations.

Sue Parham says,

"I was very skeptical about Pat Walker's as an effective means of losing weight because there was none of the usual equipment and procedures for weight reduction and I was given no forbidden food lists. Watching the pounds and inches go while still eating meals with my family, I now know that Pat Walker's program works and should aid me in controlling my weight in the future."

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

Reptiles eat little in relation to their body weight. They get most of the heat they need from outside their bodies — basking in the sun, for instance.

INTERIOR DESIGNER Lynda Cox displays one of the approximately 25 room settings that you can see at Hoyt Furniture Showroom, located at 2112 25th St. Drop by to see the remodeled store and have a cup of coffee. (SDN Staff Photo)

Hoyt Furniture Remodels And Expands For Better Service

At last the remodeling crews are finished at Hoyt Furniture, and the change is really hard to describe unless you see it.

Hoyt Dillard has added approximately 25 room settings to his building so that the customer can really visualize what a piece of furniture or group will look like in his home. The settings, complete with carpet and wall accessories make shopping for furniture an adventure rather than a chore.

Also, by adding the room settings on the first floor, Hoyt was able to expand his second floor facilities by adding approximately 10,000 additional square feet. This gives room for an even greater selection in the huge store.

Hoyt Furniture Showroom has a friendly and knowledgable staff to help you with your selections. In addition to Hoyt is interior designer Lynda Cox. Lynda can help you plan the effect you want your furniture to achieve. Also ready to help you are Louise Ball and Fern Culberson.

Hoyt has always carried the widest selection in the area, and now the choices are even greater. New items include brass accessories, oil paintings, limited edition prints and grandfather and grandmother clocks.

Hoyt Furniture has been serving the area since 1966-which makes them "old hands" at pleasing people. So go by and see the new building. You'll enjoy the pleasant atmosphere and friendly people.

VERSATILE STRUCTURE—This red metal barn was built by Wadleigh Construction Co., Inc., of Snyder for use as a business building in Odessa. It is a Star Steel Building.

Wadleigh Construction Builds Attractive Steel Structures

Wadleigh Construction built four of the barns shown in the accompanying picture for the same owner as a chain of convenience stores in Odessa.

Even though Star designed the building for a horse barn, or for general farm use, it can be used for many purposes, such as eating establishments, stores, antique shops, etc. Their use is versatile. They are eye-catching for any building need, and a loft may be attached if wanted.

Star steel buildings have many designs to choose from. All are of sturdy, 26-gauge steel. The exterior metal can be finished with brick or stone. Many colors are also available. The best is their 20-year guaranteed fade-proof, chip-proof, baked-on color. Several years ago colored buildings often faded, but today a vast improvement had been made in the colored metels. They are virtually maintenance-free.

All materials going into Wadleigh Star Buildings have a UL flame spread of 25 or less This makes fire insurance rates in Texas extremely low in cost. This is a real savings to metal building owners.

The class of 90 roof highly recommended because this design feature is referred to as "Wind Resistive" by Texas insurance companies. This is also an insurance saving.

Jim Wadleigh has been in the construction field for 45 years. Since 1955, most of his work has been in metal building erecting in Snyder and the surrounding areas. His sons have worked with him for many years. The grandsons also help him during the summer months. He has a number of qualified employees.

Come by and see their competent staff at College Ave. and U. S. Highway 84 bypass. Phone 573-6381 or write Wadleigh Contruction Co., Inc., at P. O. Drawer 189, Snyder, TX. 79549. Their branch office is in Odessa.

Remember, if it's Wadleigh Built, it is Well Built. If it is a Star Steel Building it is a quality building.

Singer Still Feels Weak

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Folk singer Arlo Guthrie says he's still feeling a little weak after a brief hospital stay for treatment of an inflamed pancreas. But he said he's looking forward to returning to his concert tour.

Guthrie, reached at a motel Sunday after his release, said he was feeling generally well.

With a population of 96,000 and a land area of 270 square miles, the Kingdom of Tonga in the South Pacific is smaller than New York City. The chief contribution to its economy is tourism and chief crops are coconuts and bananas. Tonga is a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

THE BABY CRIB FLOTATION UNIT BY MARINA MARINE

With so many attributes attached to waterbeds, it was only natural and inevitable that a waterbed manufacturer would produce a flotation bed for babies and infants: a waterbed crib. In hospital testing, doctors and nurses have seen infants placed on waterbeds eat better, are more active and grow and gain weight substantially faster than those put on a firm mattress. Flat and narrow heads, commonly resulting from a baby lying still on a flat surface, are virtually nonexistent.

Doesn't it make sense that if babies experience these benefits while in hospitals, they will enjoy the same benefits at home?

The Baby Crib Conversion Unit by Marina Marine is a complete infant flotation unit that fits all standard six-year baby cribs without any modification necessary. The unit consists of: a frame base of a ½" plywood and 4" thick foam, safety liner, watermattress, ½" foam pad, covered by a protective cover completely enclosing the entire frame. Two polywash mattress pads, a faucet converter,

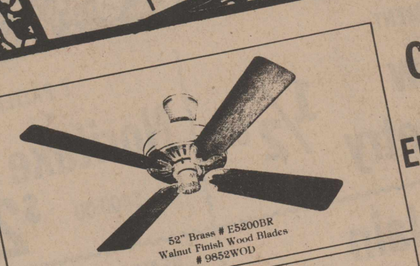

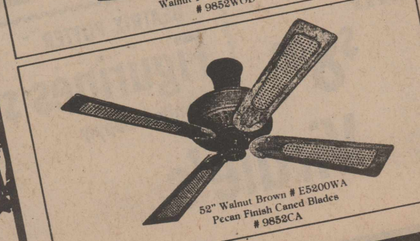

Marina Marine's crib conversion unit turns any six-year crib into a waterbed crib.
