Lawmaker pleads innocent

Rostenkowski enters plea on 17 felony counts

■ Judge releases former chairman of House Ways and Means Committee with no bail.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski pleaded innocent to a 17-count federal corruption indictment Friday and defiantly predicted, "I will be vindicated."

Rostenkowski entered his plea in U.S. District Court a few blocks from the Capitol where he has long reigned as one of the most powerful lawmakers in Congress.

The former chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee was released with no bail but ordered not to discuss the case with potential witnesses — including his own employees.

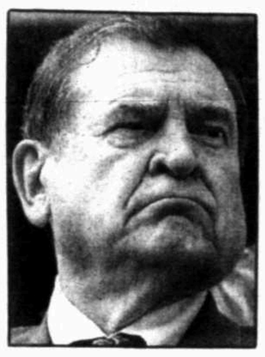

Asked if he agreed to abide by all the conditions, he replied in a low voice, "I do."

The Chicago Democrat, unaccustomed to a supporting role, stood quietly before Judge Norma Holloway Johnson during the 25-minute arraignment.

But outside the courtroom, he was not so passive.

"I entered these pleas because I am not guilty," he said, vigorously reading a prepared statement. "I will fight these false charges and will prevail. I will walk away from mud that has been splattered upon my reputation."

Sanctions threaten last lifeline for poor Haitians

By David Beard
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The 91-year-old retired judge held his head in his hands. He had been waiting in the stifling-hot bank building for hours on Friday, trying to get his monthly pension check of $27.

"I was in line. I cannot stand in line anymore," said Besson Bienaime, easing his slim frame onto a window ledge. "Now it looks like I can't get any money."

While the latest U.S. sanctions against Haiti are intended to target the nation's elite, it's the poorer Haitians like Bienaime who fear they'll be hit the hardest.

President Clinton announced Friday the United States would block Haiti from most transactions with U.S. banks. The new sanctions also include a ban on commercial air travel between the United States and Haiti, designed to ground wealthy Haitians who support the military junta.

An hour before the announcement in Washington, at least 400 government workers and retirees jammed Haiti's Central Bank, pushing and shoving to get to a window to cash their govern-

Jury sentences Thomas to nine years in prison

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Michael Scott Thomas — convicted Thursday of the robbery of Tommy Musick, who was murdered by a co-defendant in the case — was sentenced Friday to nine years in prison.

A 238th District Court jury deliberated about 1½ hours before assessing the punishment against 20-year-old Thomas. The sentence was then imposed by Judge John Hyde.

On Thursday, jurors decided that Thomas was not responsible for the murder of Musick on April 14, 1993. A co-defendant — 18-year-old Ramsey Blake Harrell — was convicted of the murder on Feb. 14 and sentenced to 12 years in prison.

Thomas will be eligible for parole in two years, three months; Harrell will be considered for parole in three years.

Their victim, 48-year-old Musick, was shot four times in the back of the head.

Harrell, who confessed to the murder, claimed during his trial that he shot Musick because he made sexual advances toward Thomas and that he was afraid.

Harrell's jury apparently bought that defense and did not find evidence of robbery, which would have meant a capital murder conviction instead of a murder conviction. Capital murder can be punishable by the death penalty.

The story was different at Thomas' trial. Thomas testified he didn't know why Musick was shot, but it wasn't because of any sexual advances.

Thomas' attorney argued for the jury to give Thomas probation. Thomas' mother, father and grandmother testified on Thomas' behalf in the punishment phase.

Initiative representative touts benefits of drug-free workplace

More than ever before, Texas employers are being asked to recognize the impact of drugs and alcohol in the workplace.

Gov. Ann Richards has sent members of the Texas Drug-Free Workplace Initiative across the state to tell employers about the program and discuss its benefits.

She also proclaimed the week of May 23-27 as Texas Drug-Free and Alcohol-Free Workplace Week.

Since the U.S. Department of Transportation earlier this year issued new regulations expanding drug and alcohol testing, more Texas businesses will be affected. By 1997, an estimated 45,000 Texas businesses will be affected.

Deadly bacteria, 'Class A strep' strikes in Ector County

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A virulent strain of streptococcal bacteria — associated with strep throat, scarlet fever and the impetigo skin infection — caused the death of an Odessa child after the bacteria entered the child's bloodstream apparently through a chicken-pox lesion.

"The condition that killed this little (2-year-old) girl was rare," said Toby Cross, administrator of the Ector County Health Department.

"What's rare about this particular case is that it entered into an individual's bloodstream and caused an invasive infection."

The streptococcal bacteria — which may enter the bloodstream through a wound — was found in the child's spinal fluid and inner-ear fluid.

The child died in mid-May at Medical Center Hospital.

Meanwhile, a 24-year-old Odessa man has been hospitalized with the same infection — necrotizing fasciitis — Cross said.

The disease — which kills body tissue — may be successfully treated with penicillin, he said.

However, in the case of the child, the "disease had progressed too far for penicillin therapy to do any good."

Cases of the virulent strain have been reported in England and the United States.

Streptococcal bacterial infections are treated everyday in hospitals and clinics, Cross said.

S. Korea prepares for possible war

■ Seoul also appeals to hard-line Communist north. U.S. to seek sanctions at U.N. next week.

Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — South Korea stepped up preparations for possible war with the North and appealed Friday to the hard-line Communist government to change its ways before it's too late.

The United States plans to ask the United Nations next week to level economic sanctions against North Korea for denying international inspectors full access to its main nuclear complex.

North Korea has said it would consider such a move an act of war, threatening both South Korea and nearby Japan with retribution. Both countries have joined the U.S. drive for punitive sanctions against the North.

South Korea's 650,000-member army and the North's 1.1 million-member force are on heightened alert.

The North insists its nuclear program is peaceful, but its refusal to comply with the inspections has deepened world suspicions it is producing nuclear weapons.

"It's time to move forward with the resolution," U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher said at a NATO meeting in Istanbul, Turkey.

Christopher also endorsed a Russian proposal to hold an international conference on North Korea's nuclear program. The timing depends on how quickly the U.N. Security Council acts on the sanctions resolution.

The International Atomic Energy Agency, the U.N.'s nuclear watchdog, voted Friday to suspend $250,000 in non-medical technical aid to North Korea. The move, the strongest action that the IAEA could take on its own, was the first formal slap against the North.

China, the North's only major ally, abstained from the vote, although Chinese leaders have gone on record against economic sanctions. The suspended aid consists mostly of training and nuclear-related programs in industry and agriculture.

Sources close to the debate, which was closed to reporters, said many of the 27 other governors would have been reluctant to approve the measure if China had opposed it outright. The sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

Following the vote, North Korean envoy Yun Ho Jin said his country would not allow any more IAEA inspections. He said the agency's two inspectors currently in North Korea would be asked to leave immediately.

The two inspectors have been allowed to observe refueling procedures, but not perform any tests.

Reflecting the growing sense of crisis, South Korea ordered a nationwide check of its 223,000 underground shelters and emergency water supplies to make sure they are up to par.

Also, Seoul's monthly civil air raid drills will be expanded nationwide beginning this month, said a Home Ministry official, speaking on condition of anonymity. During the 30-minute drill, held on the 15th of each month, streets are cleared, cars are stopped and people rush to underground shelters.

Police also stepped up a crackdown on labor activists accused of showing sympathy with the North's Communist government. Government critics denounced the searches and arrests as a political move meant to suppress dissent and legitimate labor movements.

Seoul responded coolly to plans by former President Jimmy Carter to visit the two Koreas. Carter said he is making the trip as a private citizen in hopes of discussing "important issues of the day" with leaders.

South Korean officials believe his trip to the North may adversely affect the push for sanctions over the North's nuclear program.

Despite protests, China explodes hydrogen bomb underground

BEIJING (NYT) — China exploded a hydrogen bomb Friday as part of a series of underground tests aimed at modernizing its nuclear forces before test ban negotiations are concluded by 1996.

The test appeared to Western diplomats to have been delayed so as not to antagonize the Clinton administration as it was deciding last month to cut the linkage between China's human rights record and trade relations with the United States.

In an icy response, the White House immediately issued a statement saying, "The United States deeply regrets this action." It called again on China to abandon its testing program.

Administration officials made clear privately that they had expected the test for some time, and said the United States did not intend to respond by resuming its own nuclear testing program.

China's preparations for the test were first observed by reconnaissance satellites in April and May.

A Chinese underground blast on Oct. 5, 1993, prompted President Clinton to order the Energy Department to prepare for a possible resumption of American underground testing.

The United States and other countries with nuclear weapons have been observing a self-imposed moratorium on testing as they prepare for negotiations on a comprehensive test ban treaty that could be concluded in 1995 or 1996.

Friday's test was first announced in a brief statement from the official New China News Agency.

"China conducted an underground nuclear test earlier today," a foreign ministry spokesman was quoted as saying. The test followed the October 1993 blast, two detonations in 1992 and two in 1990. It was China's 40th test since its first explosion of a 3,410-pound atomic bomb on Oct. 16, 1964.

The seismology department of the Dutch Meteorological Institute recorded tremors from the test in Xinjiang Province, at the Lop Nor test site.

In London, a foreign office statement expressed regret, saying the test had come "against a background of restraint on testing by the other nuclear powers."

In a later statement, the Chinese foreign ministry spokesman repeated Beijing's assertion that "China always stands for complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons and, within this contest, the realization of a comprehensive nuclear test ban."

U.S. does not intend to respond by resuming its own tests, officials say.

Western diplomats said China's current testing program was aimed at verifying the reliability of a new generation of miniaturized nuclear warheads and improving the yield, or explosive power, of smaller and lighter weapons.

The modernization program was forecast in the mid-1980s when the Central Intelligence Agency, in testimony to Congress, said, "We expect the size of China's nuclear arsenal to double in the next 10 years."

Quake relief effort begins to take shape

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Four days after an earthquake and landslide left thousands homeless, the government on Friday kicked its relief operations into high gear by building tent cities for the refugees.

The United States and other countries promised aid and private citizens pitched in.

"We are experiencing an avalanche of aid," Juan Manuel Uribe, assistant director of the National Disaster Office, declared jubilantly in an interview with The Associated Press.

There has been widespread criticism of the slowness of the aid effort in the mountainous region devastated by Monday's 6.4 magnitude earthquake and the ensuing landslide.

On Friday, the effort took on the air of a military operation.

Helicopters continually took off from a municipal airport in Neiva, the closest city to the disaster zone, 180 miles southwest of Bogota. The choppers brought food, water and clothing to survivors and returned with evacuees.

Private citizens and corporations, moved by televised images of frightened and weeping Indian families begging for help, donated money to a relief telethon and sent supplies.

"We must show our fellow countrymen in misfortune the solidarity of all Colombians," said President Cesar Gaviria, who donated $375 to start the marathon sponsored by himself, the national media, the Red Cross and the Bank of Bogota.

Radio stations urged Colombians to help "our brothers in Huila and Cauca," the two states hit by the disaster. Within four hours they had deposited $350,000 in a special disaster account set up for the marathon.

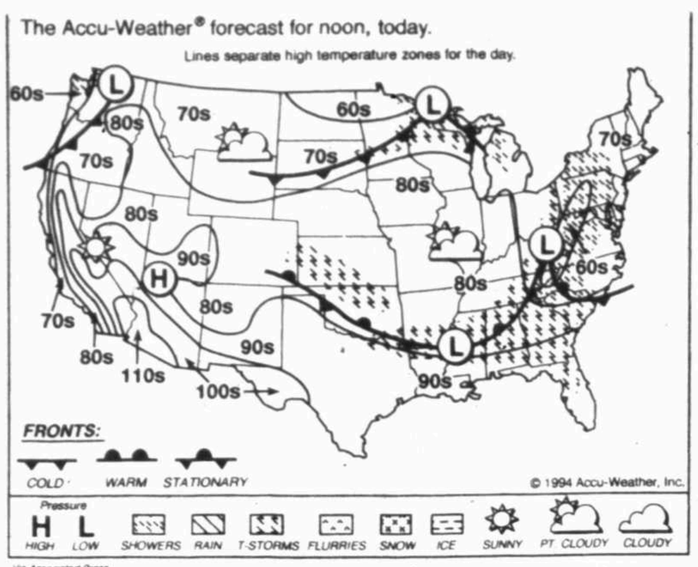

Uribe said Red Cross headquarters in Bogota was overflowing with clothing donations.

The U.S. Embassy said it would dispatch two troop-transport helicopters, a portable bridge, collapsible water containers and plastic sheeting that will help shelter more than 1,000 families.

The quake and the landslide that roared down the slopes of 18,975-foot Nevado del Huila volcano wiped out a dozen Indian villages, 16 bridges and severed the only roads that run through the region.

The number of dead confirmed by the disaster office is 269, with estimates of the final toll running as high as 1,000. However, Uribe said there was "immense confusion as to who is missing and who is not."

SINGER: Cowboy poet visits Permian Basin

Rodeo at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

The ranch rodeo resumes today at 9 a.m.

Today's events include judging of chuck-wagon vittles, noon; cowboy poetry and singing, 1 p.m.; and rodeo competition, 3:30 p.m. Sunday's events include a chuck-wagon breakfast at 8 a.m., and cowboy-church service at 9:30 a.m.

Steagall, whose childhood and youth were spent in the American West of the late 1930s, 1940s and 1950s, said he wants "America to be equality for all.

"But we want equality for all in a manner that we respect and protect individualism, integrity, honesty, family values — all of those things that made our country so great.

"And we are rapidly losing a lot of that, and it scares the fool out of us."

Steagall, 55, listened to cowboy music — including that of Bob Wills, Hank Thompson, and Tex Williams — during his youth in the Sanford community near Borger, ranching and petroleum-producing territory.

"I've said a hundred times that 'I was 25 years old before I knew there was anything in the world other than mesquite trees, buffalo grass, Phillips gasoline, barbed wire and Bob Wills.' "

Steagall said he "grew up listening to cowboys and my Daddy and everybody else I knew singing . . . all those great cowboy songs."

Steagall studied agriculture in college and has been a recording artist and songwriter for more than 20 years.

The Texas Legislature in 1991 named him the official "Cowboy Poet of Texas." His 1993 album, "Born To This Land," won the National Cowboy Hall of Fame's Western Heritage Award for original music. And his first book, "Ride for the Brand," was published last year by Texas Christian University Press.

His songs include "Here We Go Again," "Party Dolls and Wine," "Freckles Brown," and "Lone Star Beer and Bob Wills Music."

"Here We Go Again," which he and Don Lanier wrote in the mid-1960s, has been recorded about 60 times, by such performers as Ray Charles and George Strait.

That song "made us a bunch of money," Steagall said. "And, oh, I thought I was rich (and that) there never would be another poor day. I thought we'd write another one tomorrow. We never have written a follow-up to that, even though I have had lots of songs recorded. Never had another one like that."

In his performances, Steagall expresses his druthers, especially his patriotic slant on America.

"I am very passionate about protecting . . . the Texas I love and the America I love," Steagall said.

"I love America for what she stands for, and I love the idea of welcoming people from other countries with open arms. The diversity of cultures has made our country the greatest country in the world."

But he does not like abuses of America's generosity.

Steagall champions the cause of landowners' rights — including the rights of ranchers, whose property has been encroached upon by the federal government, which would "confiscate private lands for the public trust."

Steagall fears a trend toward socialism.

"And it's not just the acquisition of good rangelands. It's all the environmental groups that are stopping the logging in the Northwest," he said.

The causes "start out with a very valid program, and then they expand into fanatics to the point where it is strictly a socialistic movement."

An example of this is the Endangered Species Act, which while very valid, has "gotten out of control," he said.

And the federal government is "constantly hammering" at ranchers in "trying to take away their grazing rights on all that federal land."

Steagall also has a passion for rural Texas, in a state that is increasingly urban, and for West Texas and its towns, including Midland and Odessa.

"They (Midland and Odessa) still have the atmosphere of a town," he said. "You still respect your neighbor. You still help your neighbor when something's wrong. You still respect the things that made our country so great."

In large measure, Steagall credits his successful career to his youth when, at age 15, he was stricken by crippling polio.

"I lost the use of my upper left arm and I can't drive a nail in the ceiling, and I can't play football," he said. "But the three things that I really want to do is play a guitar, hit a golf ball, and rope a steer, and I can do all of those things."

Steagall said overcoming the handicap "gave me a direction.

"And even though I was different in that respect, I had to work a little bit harder to excel. And I know that it drove me in ways that I would not have been driven. The only things I can't do is drive nails in ceilings and play football."

PLEAD: Rostenkowski to fight 17-count indictment

(From 1A)

"Talk is cheap, allegations come easily," Rostenkowski declared. "I will be vindicated."

Johnson set July 8 for a hearing on the status of the case, but excused Rostenkowski from attending.

Webb said he may file motions asserting congressional immunity for his client — an action that could delay a trial.

Webb, a former U.S. attorney and prosecutor in the Iran-Contra case, suggested his first line of defense would be a constitutional challenge — on grounds that the executive branch cannot decide for Congress how it can spend its money.

"This indictment raises some grave and serious constitutional concerns," Webb told a crowd of reporters with Rostenkowski standing by his side. "Who determines what are official expenditures? We will examine that."

The charges include accusations that Rostenkowski converted nearly $640,000 in federal money to personal and family use. He is also charged with hiring ghost employees, arranging for kickbacks, tampering with a witness and receiving illegal cash at the House Post Office.

Webb described that as a "kitchen sink indictment."

The arraignment came after Rostenkowski spurned a widely reported plea bargain agreement that had been negotiated with federal prosecutors by his previous attorney, Washington lawyer Robert Bennett. Rostenkowski and Bennett parted company shortly afterward.

Webb said the defense would show:

—"At no time" did Rostenkowski place anyone on his payroll "with the knowledge and intent" that the employee would perform no work. "There are no ghosts," he said.

—Congressional rules explicitly allow employees to voluntarily do personal work for a lawmaker on their own time.

—Nine of 14 individuals that the government calls "ghost" employees "are ancient history" because the statute of limitations has run out.

—"Every one" of the furniture and gift items Rostenkowski purchased from the House stationary store was related to official duties.

—At no time did the congressman ever misspent any congressional money.

ENDANGER: Sanctions could affect Haitians' lifeline

(From 1A)

ment checks.

For those who have no government checks, their biggest fear is of losing their only remaining lifeline — money sent from relatives in the United States.

The U.S. Embassy estimates that up to 15 percent of Haitians depend on money or goods sent from relatives overseas, primarily in the United States.

Cash remittances have taken on an even greater importance since the United Nations broadened an embargo against Haiti on May 21, stopping cargo flights and charters that carried many packages of goods from relatives abroad.

"We would have starved without this money; everything costs so much now," said Claude Berice, who relies on relatives in Miami and New York to help feed his family. He spoke in line outside one remittance office in the capital.

Washington is exempting wire transfers of under $50, once a month, for families such as the Berices. Such an amount seems insubstantial in a nation that has a per capita income of $350, but with 60 percent inflation and many goods available only on the black market, the money goes fast.

For example, $50 buys six gallons of gas on the black market.

The immediate cutoff of most financial transactions hits an economy that was already the poorest in the Western Hemisphere before the army's ouster of the first democratically elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in 1991.

Diplomats believe the financial move will only exacerbate a banking crisis caused by a shortage of gourdes, the national currency. Under Haitian law, only Parliament can order the printing of more money, but legislators, many fearful of the ruling military, have not managed to form a quorum for months.

Some people had been waiting at the Central Bank since Monday for gourdes. Joseph Antoine, 80, leaned on a younger colleague as he waited. If he didn't get the money Friday, the pensioner said, he would return Monday.

The scene symbolized the collapse of the Haitian economy. Since the 1991 army coup, the gross domestic product has shrunk more than 30 percent, and as many as 120,000 jobs have been lost. The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees says 55,000 Haitians have sought to escape the economic devastation.

IMPACT: Representative touts drug, alcohol program

(From 1A)

the problem of drugs and alcohol in the workplace. She spoke at a press conference Friday at UTPB's Center for Energy and Economic Diversification.

She began with some statistics:

- 10 percent of the workforce is under the influence of drugs or alcohol while on the job.
- 76 percent of drug users are employed.
- 65 percent of all accidents on the job are directly related to substance abuse.
- Each substance abuser costs their employer at least $9,600 a year in direct costs.
- Substance abusers are absent from work 16 times more often and use three times as many sickness benefits.

"Governor Richards recognizes the costs in lives and financially of alcohol and drug abuse in the workplace," Ms. Blake said.

She said the designated week and the program are designed to educate employers about the problem and inform them on how to get help for addicted employees.

She stressed that one of the most important things an employer can do is establish a drug- and alcohol-abuse policy and make sure employees understand it and follow it.

This protects both the employee and the employer if a lawsuit is filed by an employee who has been dismissed for substance abuse or filed by someone who is injured by an employee under the influence.

The program summarizes state and federal regulations, acts as a resource network, consults with businesses on developing programs, offers low-cost educational and training workshops and offers low-cost employee assistance programs.

The Texas Drug-Free Workplace Initiative is a joint program of the Workers Assistance Program and the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. It was formed in September 1990 and is funded through a state grant.

ROBBERY: Jury sentences Thomas to nine years

(From 1A)

Testifying for the prosecution were two sisters of the victim, and a longtime companion. They asked the jury to assess prison time.

The range of punishment facing Thomas was five to 99 years in prison, or probation.

"It (the sentence) is pretty much the way we expected," said Gerald Hon, who was Musick's companion for 20 years.

"I felt it wouldn't be fair if he got more time than the actual shooter, but he should be (held) responsible," he said.

Hon said he thought nine years was "adequate" in accordance with Harrell's sentence. But "if Ramsey Harrell had gotten life like he should have, I would have expected this guy to get 25 years," Hon said.

Glen Aaron, defense attorney for Thomas, said he and the Thomas family were "very disappointed" at the verdict since Thomas had no idea Harrell was going to shoot Musick.

Aaron said if he had used the afraid-of-being-sexually-molested defense as Harrell did, the outcome may have been different. But — as according to Thomas' testimony — that simply wasn't true, Aaron said.

Hon said he was convinced the crime was instigated by Harrell, who acted alone in the murder part of the crime.

If Thomas would have been tried first — in light of his conviction of aggravated robbery — then the verdict for Harrell would have been appropriately capital murder, Hon said.

DEADLY: Bacteria strikes Ector County

(From 1A)

"The organism itself is not rare," he said. But when it goes beyond the skin and into the bloodstream, it can cause lethal infections if not immediately treated.

The Odessa child was recovering from a case of chicken pox. Cross said the "Group A" streptococcal infection that killed her "apparently entered the body through infected chicken-pox sores."

Since the potentially deadly bacteria can enter the body though an open lesion or "through any kind of a wound or a scratch or a cut," it is essential that people with lesions or wounds not scratch the lesions or wounds, which "need to be washed thoroughly and kept clean," Cross said.

Missile crews get ready in S. Korea

■ U.S. Patriot battalion — with half dozen missile batteries and nearly 200 missiles — prepares for possible northern aggression.

By Laura King
Associated Press

OSAN AIR BASE, South Korea — The crew leaped into action, and in a matter of minutes, the missile launcher roared to life. Staff Sgt. Carlos Flanders stood back, arms folded.

"This is the part," he said, "where we'd be watching it go off."

It was only a practice drill Friday for the Patriot air and missile defense battery at this air base 50 miles south of Seoul.

But crews say they're ready for the real thing — despite lingering controversy over the Patriots' performance in the Gulf War.

"No system is foolproof, but I've got confidence in what we have here," said Capt. David Cole, commander of C Battery, 2nd Battalion of the 7th Air Defense Artillery, based at Fort Bliss in El Paso, Texas.

The Patriot battalion — with half a dozen missile batteries and nearly 200 missiles — was deployed in South Korea two months ago, after North Korea cut short an agreed-upon inspection of its nuclear facilities.

Since then, the dispute has escalated sharply over the North's refueling a reactor in a way that made it impossible for inspectors to determine whether it has diverted plutonium, possibly for nuclear weapons.

As a result, the United States and others are seeking punitive sanctions, which North Korea says would mean war.

The South Korean government Friday ordered a nationwide check of underground shelters and emergency water supplies. In Vienna, Austria, the International Atomic Energy Agency's governing body voted to suspend technical aid to North Korea for barring full inspections of its nuclear facilities.

"It's definitely gotten tenser since we got here," said Flanders, 28, a launch crew chief. "There's a lot of pressure for us to do well if anything happens."

Military officials refused Friday to say where in South Korea, other than Osan, the Patriots are deployed. But they've said previously that the system would defend military airfields and ports that would be used to funnel in reinforcements in the event of battle.

The battalion, though not all its members, saw action in Saudi Arabia during the Gulf War. One who did was Staff Sgt. Martin Wright, another crew chief, who was part of the Patriot contingent stationed in Israel in 1991.

"I'm not worried about how we'd do in combat here," said Wright, a tall, laconic 31-year-old from Corydon, Ind. "It's automatic, your whole body just pumps adrenaline, and you do just what you're trained to do."

The Army has defended Patriots against criticism they were far less successful in destroying Iraqi Scud missile warheads than the U.S. military initially claimed.

The battalion in South Korea is equipped with Patriots that have been modified to allow them to strike targets at higher altitudes and greater distances, officials said.

They have a feature called the "urban upturn," which is designed to make the missile disengage and self-destruct rather than following a target to too low an altitude and ending up inflicting more damage in populated areas.

Ties between NATO, Russia proceed slowly

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — NATO and Russia made little headway on Friday in sorting out their future ties despite an offer from the Western alliance to give Russia "special treatment" befitting a nuclear power.

Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev reiterated his country's intention to sign a Partnership for Peace agreement with NATO, which 18 of Moscow's former Cold War allies have signed.

But he said Russia wants to sign a detailed cooperation program. NATO, however, wants Russia to sign a basic framework first and define the precise areas of cooperation later.

"I don't want to mislead anyone. There are differences," U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher said at a joint press conference with Kozyrev.

In Moscow, Russian President Boris Yeltsin said he is determined to work out the problems so that Russia can join the Partnership for Peace.

The central difference is Russia's insistence it be treated by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as a nuclear superpower, and not on an "equal footing" with the new East European democracies.

The partnership agreements provide for political and military cooperation, including joint maneuvers, and hold out the possibility of eventual NATO membership for some East European nations.

Christopher and Kozyrev met for more than two hours on the sidelines of a meeting of NATO foreign ministers and their colleagues from across East Europe.

Lawmaker calls for action to curtail Rwanda genocide

N.Y. Times News Service

Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, has called on the United Nations to prosecute individuals responsible for genocide in Rwanda, where ethnic violence is reported to have killed several hundred thousand, mostly members of the minority Tutsi tribe.

In a letter to Madeleine Albright, U.S. ambassador to the U.N., Hall wrote that "I witnessed the consequences of genocide" in a visit to a camp for Rwandan refugees in Tanzania last week.

U.S. officials are avoiding calling the Rwandan killings "genocide" for fear they could be pressured to take military action to stop it.

In a Friday press conference, State Department spokeswoman Christine Shelly repeatedly distinguished between "acts of genocide" and "genocide" itself.

Hall, who chairs the Congressional Hunger Caucus, suggested that the mandate of the International Criminal Tribunal for Yugoslavia be expanded to Rwanda.

"The fundamental concern must be to take swift action before other members of the global community begin to duplicate acts of genocide," he wrote to Albright.

Hall aide Gerry Dyer said Friday that human rights organizations have identified individuals who have orchestrated the killings and can be punished under international law. Most are members of the majority Hutu tribe, he said.

Trooper denies inviting Jones to room for Clinton

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — An Arkansas state trooper denied in court papers Friday he had told Paula Jones then-Gov. Bill Clinton wanted to meet her in a hotel room. He also said she seemed far from upset after her encounter with Clinton three years ago.

Trooper Danny Ferguson, co-defendant with the president in a sexual harassment suit filed by Mrs. Jones, asserted that later in the day of her meeting with Clinton she said "she would be the governor's girl friend." And a week or two later she brought her phone number to the governor's office and suggested he call, the trooper said.

Ferguson denied in his response in U.S. District Court that he had given her a piece of paper with Clinton's room number, as she alleged in her lawsuit. But he said he did point out Clinton's room to her — an acknowledgement her lawyers said "confirms a critical contention" of hers.

Mrs. Jones' suit accuses Clinton of making unwanted sexual advances in 1991 while she was working at a conference at Little Rock's Excelsior Hotel, where Clinton delivered a speech. She also said that the encounter upset her and that, despite pay raises, she suffered retaliation on the job after rejecting Clinton's advances. She is seeking $700,000 in damages.

Clinton has denied the charges.

Later on the day in question, Ferguson's response says, Mrs. Jones "asked if the governor had a girl friend and Danny Ferguson answered negatively, and then she responded that she would be the governor's girl friend."

Her suit accuses Ferguson, a member of Clinton's security detail at the time, of intimidating her by displaying a gun and waiting outside the hotel room, and of conspiring with Clinton to entice her to a sexual encounter. She also accused Ferguson of defaming her by telling people that she had offered to be Clinton's girl friend and had willfully taken part in a sexual encounter with the governor.

In his response, Ferguson acknowledged making small talk with Mrs. Jones and a woman who was working with her at a conference registration desk.

Illegal gun trade thrives on border

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — The lack of gun shops in this border city doesn't seem to be keeping people from getting their hands on weapons when they want them.

Businessmen and homeowners who want to protect their families and property from criminals patronize flea markets and bars where they can find small-caliber guns that were bought or stolen across the border in El Paso, police say.

Automatic rifles, which are only supposed to be used by armed forces, are also in great demand, authorities say.

"Illegal weapons are for sale in all kinds of places: bars, hotels, flea markets — even at the Plaza de Armas (a downtown plaza), we hear," said Ernesto Garcia, spokesman for the Chihuahua State Judicial Police.

The weapons are only a fraction of the illegal guns that are thought to flow regularly from the United States into Mexico. Most, but not all, wind up in the Mexican interior.

In Ciudad Juarez, gun sellers usually obtain weapons from thieves who stole them in El Paso and from Mexican-Americans visiting relatives in Mexico, police said.

Authorities know there is a supply of illegal weapons, but they say they can do little about it because of manpower limitations and jurisdiction problems.

For example, state police will seize firearms from suspected criminals. But possessing firearms is a federal offense, so state authorities cannot prosecute people for that crime.

Dems push health bill in House committee

■ Package more generous than Clinton's 'smells as bad as dog's breath,' Republicans say.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democrats opened a drive in a second friendly congressional committee Friday for a health package with benefits more generous than President Clinton's. Republicans said the bill "smells as bad as dog's breath."

Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., the chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, said he had the votes to push through a bill providing health insurance for all, just as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's Senate Labor Committee did Thursday night.

Clinton called Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. James Jeffords of Vermont, his sole Republican supporter on health reform, to thank them and predict that more Republicans eventually will swing their way.

The White House took the rare step of releasing transcripts of the private conversations.

Clinton said he knew Republicans were "under a lot of pressure not to vote for anything," but told Jeffords that some of his GOP colleagues "will eventually put the interests of the country first, just as you have done."

The president told Kennedy, "The American people are deeply in your debt." Clinton added, "I hope this will eventually be like Social Security and Medicare, where a number of (Republicans) will finally come around in the end."

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine said he remains convinced "we're going to pass a good bill this year" with support from several Republican senators, including Jeffords, John Chafee of Rhode Island and Dave Durenberger of Minnesota.

Ford predicted it would take his panel "a couple of weeks" to approve both a Clinton-style plan requiring employers to buy private insurance and a second Canadian-style bill replacing premiums with payroll taxes and having the government pay all medical bills.

Republicans argued that the Labor panel, one of the House's most liberal, risked becoming irrelevant in Congress' attempt to find a workable compromise.

Rep. William Goodling, R-Pa., the top Republican, said Ford's bill had "no prospect of passing and is simply a cruel hoax on the American public." He urged the Democrats to reconsider and chart a bipartisan course when they take up amendments starting Tuesday.

Rep. Bill Barrett, R-Neb., derided it as "Clinton-chubby" and Rep. Randy Cunningham, R-Calif., called it "an ugly child . . . (that) smells as bad as dog's breath."

But Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., whose subcommittee produced the plan, predicted, "This will be the bill that the House of Representatives will work from." It offers discounts for small businesses, broader mental health and dental benefits, and improved coverage for women and children.

Ford, who is retiring at the end of this term after 30 years in Congress, shrugged off the attacks, saying the Republicans at least acknowledge that there are serious problems.

Pro-life lawyers argue against clinic law

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A pro-life group asked a federal judge Friday to invalidate a new law that bars protesters from blocking access to abortion clinics.

The suit by American Life League Inc. of Stafford, Va., is one of several challenges filed by abortion opponents, who say the law is biased, violates the right of free speech and is so vague that anyone could be arrested for simply speaking out against abortion.

U.S. District Judge Leonie M. Brinkema of Alexandria said she would rule early next week on the suit.

President Clinton signed the law May 26, saying it would help stop an alarming wave of violence directed against clinics that perform abortions.

During Friday's hearing, lawyers representing Attorney General Janet Reno, named as defendant in the suit, said the law is aimed at only those protesters who resort to violence.

"The law encompasses force, threat of force or physical obstruction," Justice Department Lawyer Neil Koslowe said. "There should be no problem for the plaintiffs to figure what they can do and what they can't."

Attorney Marion Edwyn Harrison, who represents American Life, argued that the law violates the First Amendment and unfairly singles out pro-life protesters. People protesting another issue would not be considered in violation of the law even if they performed the same acts, he said.

"This is conduct which the Supreme Court has said may be prohibited without violating the First Amendment," Koslowe replied.

Harrison also argued that the law endorses the abortion-rights viewpoint and discriminates against people who oppose abortion.

But government lawyers disagreed, saying anyone can be arrested for violating the law, including abortion-rights supporters demonstrating outside a clinic that lobbies against abortion.

Brinkema denied a government request to dismiss the lawsuit and refused the plaintiff's request to declare the case a class-action suit, saying the class of people affected would be "too diffuse."

Japanese royals arrive in Atlanta for U.S. tour

By Michael A. Giarrusso
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko paid homage to civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. on Friday on the first leg of their goodwill tour of the United States.

The Japanese royal couple laid a wreath on King's grave at the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change and spoke with his widow, Coretta Scott King.

Mrs. King and Akihito talked as they walked around the wading pool surrounding King's tomb, while Michiko and King's eldest son, Martin Luther King III, strolled a couple of steps behind.

The couple bowed respectfully at the tomb, but one of King's contemporaries said the visit was hypocritical if Akihito does not address Japanese racism toward blacks.

"I found Japan to be the most racist nation in the world," said civil rights activist Hosea Williams, who visited Japan in 1983. "I hope this visit is the beginning of a new relationship between African-Americans and the Japanese."

Japanese politicians have made headlines for insulting remarks about blacks and other minorities, prompting protests and boycott threats from U.S. black leaders. In addition, Japanese firms operating in the United States have been accused of deliberately discriminating against blacks and Hispanics in their hiring policies.

The royal couple is on a 16-day tour designed to ease Japan's harsh image as America's toughest economic competitor. They plan to visit 11 U.S. cities.

The trip is "to promote friendship and goodwill between our two peoples," said Takakazu Kuriyama, Japan's ambassador to the United States.

It is the first time a Japanese emperor has visited the United States since Akihito's father, Hirohito, came in 1975. Akihito last visited the United States as crown prince in 1987.

Tiny satellite 'dishes' to compete with cable

WASHINGTON — Tiny rooftop antenna "dishes" will start receiving laser-sharp television signals in Mississippi next month, and a battle royal for viewers' business will begin.

The antennas, 18 inches in diameter and resembling a Chinese wok, are part of a kit that also includes a set-top box the size of a VCR and a universal remote control.

When installed and aimed at a geo-stationary satellite, the equipment will receive laser disc-quality pictures and compact disc-quality stereo sound at any home in America, regardless of whether it is served by a cable television system, promoters say.

The first kits will go on sale in retail stores for around $700 sometime in the next six weeks in Jackson, Miss., said Stanley Hubbard, president of United States Satellite Broadcasting Co. (USSB), the company that is operating the satellite.

The service is designed to compete with cable television systems, and Jackson was selected to introduce the system because of relatively low cable penetration in Mississippi, company officials said.

By fall, the kits will be available in consumer electronics stores nationwide, Hubbard said.

In addition to the purchase price of the kits, buyers must pay subscription fees of between $8 and $35 a month for the service.

Key to the new type of television service, Hubbard said, is a direct broadcast satellite developed by GM Hughes Electronics. By the end of this year, the satellite will be beaming down 150 channels of high-quality movie, sports, entertainment and news, he said.

The company refers to direct broadcast satellites as the "next great breakthrough in television programming and distribution."

Along with his company's partners, GM Hughes and DirecTV, a subsidiary of GM Hughes, Hubbard envisions millions of the antennas on rooftops around the country, all gazing at the satellite while homeowners pay for various combinations of news, sports or other television.

While the system will not receive local television channels, the universal remote will allow a user to switch between local broadcasts and the national satellite service.

"We're going to cause big problems for the cable industry," Hubbard said in an interview.

The view apparently is not shared by all industry analysts, who point to unknowns such as whether television consumers will be willing to shell out $700 for a unit — then pay monthly subscription fees for the right to use it.

Interest groups pay for lawmakers' vacations

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — From Israel to Istanbul, House members roamed the globe last year at the expense of interest groups, according to financial statements that offer fascinating glimpses into the lives of America's lawmakers.

Domestic destinations were favored as well, as scores of House members reported all-expense paid trips to such locations as Sun Valley, Idaho; Sea Island, Ga., and Palm Springs, Calif.

In a connection that sparks outrage from groups pressing for government reform, the journeys often dovetailed with lawmakers' legislative assignments.

Rep. Pat Roberts of Kansas, senior Republican on the House Agriculture Committee, reported eight all-expense paid trips in 1993. They included January travel to Marco Island, Fla., paid for by the National Pork Producers Council; and to Phoenix, courtesy of the National Cattlemen's Association.

Rep. Roy Rowland, D-Ga., a physician and member of a key health subcommittee, travelled at the expense of the Tobacco Institute (to Palm Springs, Calif; the American Medical Association (to Atlanta); and the lobbying firm of Campbell Raupe Inc. (to West Palm Beach, Fla.).

House members are required by law to file financial disclosure statements annually that show income — including a salary of $133,600 in 1993 — assets, liabilities, gifts and other material, listed by ranges rather than specific dollar amount.

They show the House has many millionaires, and that numerous lawmakers hold valuable stock portfolios. Others maintain business interests as diverse as the nation's economy. Among them: Rep. Elizabeth Furse, D-Ore., has holdings worth between $100,000 and $250,000 in a vineyard in her home state.

Other details nestled in the thousands of pages of forms and figures:

■ Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, arraigned during the day on 17 counts of federal corruption, collected $750,000 for his legal defense fund, much of it from groups with interests before the House Ways and Means Committee that he chaired before his indictment.

The donations included $5,000 from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co; $500 from the Hospital Corp. of America and $5,000 from the Tobacco Institute.

■ Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., reported that his ex-wife owes him $1 million from a divorce settlement in 1987.

■ Rep. Walter Tucker, D-Calif., received a $200 love offering after delivering a sermon at the Bread of Life Church, and another at the Antioch Missionary Baptist Church. Tucker also owed $15,000 to $50,000 on a Small Business Administration loan for "unpaid bills, equipment and losses due to the '92 LA riots."

Siamese twins case raises questions about medical ethics

By Ted Anthony
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — The costs, human and monetary, were staggering by any estimation: two dead children, a shattered family and more than $1 million in medical expenses.

Last year, Amy Lakeberg was sacrificed so her conjoined sister, Angela, might live. Angela did — for 10 months, all in a hospital ward, most of the time hooked to a ventilator.

Her doctors say the risky surgery was worth it. Others have doubts.

"It's not just an ethical question; it's a societal question. It seems strange to perform high-risk, long-shot, high-tech operations when we can't get basic care out there," said Arthur Caplan, director of the Center for Bioethics at the University of Pennsylvania.

"It's time for public policy to get beyond the sight of two small conjoined babies and realize that there are 10,000 babies anywhere else who are at risk."

Angela's doctors say the surgery provided information that will benefit others. Her use of an updated, plastic lung machine, they say, represents progress in helping children breathe. Even the way Angela died, doctors hope, will reveal ways to avoid similar pitfalls.

"Whether the eventual outcome is good or bad, you always learn something," said Dr. James A. O'Neill Jr., who headed Angela's surgical team.

The case was controversial from the outset. Doctors at Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood, Ill., where the twins were born June 29, opposed separation, saying there was no reason to put the twins through an ordeal that would kill one and give the other less than a 1 percent chance of surviving.

Without the operation, both were certain to die, and Kenneth and Reitha Lakeberg decided to proceed. Doctors at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia performed the operation Aug. 20, giving Angela the twins' shared liver tissue and malformed heart.

Angela died in the hospital Thursday. Her mother last visited at Christmastime and her father hadn't seen Angela since last fall, before he spent six months in prison for violating probation he received for slashing his cousin.

The cost Angela's medical care has topped $1 million, Children's Hospital says. Public assistance programs in Indiana, the Lakebergs' home state, have agreed to pay about $600,000.

A fund set up to help the twins was drained when Kenneth Lakeberg used about $1,300 in donations on a three-day cocaine binge and other items around the time of the separation surgery.

Another fund has about $5,800, which will be used for burials costs and medical expenses, said attorney Straley Thorpe, who represents the fund.

The hospital will absorb the rest. "We do not stop care because someone can't pay for it," spokeswoman Sarah Jarvis said.

She said money from a hospital foundation will help defray costs.

Children's performed $27 million in uncompensated care last year, she said.

Search continues for 'Worst Boss of 1994'

By Larry McShane
Associated Press

NEW YORK — There's The Tyrant. The Adulterer. The Weasel. The Barbarian.

They're all nominees, but only one can emerge as the winner: The King of Incompetence, the Potentate of Poor Management, The Worst Boss of 1994. The nationwide search for office ineptitude and lack of leadership was mounted by Jim Miller, an expert on managerial techniques.

The contest opened last month, and already Miller can spin more horror stories than Stephen King. Who needs "Carrie" or "The Stand" when there are bosses like these around?

■ The Barbarian: "My worst boss was a descendant of Attila the Hun — from the mean side of the family," wrote one disgusted underling.

■ And The Weasel: Another entrant detailed how his boss once delivered a motivational speech to his sales staff: "It's 9:30, you (expletives). You're still in here lounging on your butts, drinking coffee. What are ya, crippled?"

■ Ladies and gentlemen, The Tyrant: His idol was late FBI head J. Edgar Hoover. This leader went crazy when a female employee informed him she would need time off to have a baby. When she hurried back to work, he summoned her to his office "and told me what a rotten mother I was," she wrote.

Not to mention the boss whose "personality consisted of three moods: Angry, angrier and angriest." Mused another writer, "Best or worst boss? I suppose that depends on whether or not you prefer someone who is nosy, prejudiced and inconsistent."

It's the second year that Miller, the founder and CEO of Miller Business Systems in Arlington, Texas, has left no stone unturned in the competition.

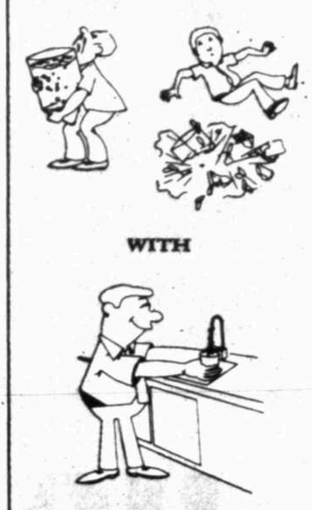

Last year, they found a winner under one of those rocks: A man who demanded that workers taking time for a funeral return with an obituary.

The winning (?) entrant — like all this year's entrants — submitted his description anonymously. There are factors both legal and personal involved; the 1993 winner was still employed by that boss, who remains blissfully unaware of his honor.

For his troubles, the winner received an all-expenses-paid one-week trip to Hawaii. The prize this year is $6,000 cash; the contest runs through June 30.

Miller, whose book "The Corporate Coach" offers tips on successful management, is also interested in finding America's best boss. The winner in that competition will receive the same prize, although those entries lack the punch of the bad-boss folks.

Police find prominent athletes' names on prostitution ring's list

HOUSTON (NYT) — Police investigators say the names of prominent athletes are included on a "trick list" seized from a sophisticated prostitution ring.

Houston police spokesman John Leggio said some of those on the list may be subpoenaed and indicted.

The ring employed as many as 10 prostitutes and was "very sophisticated," Leggio said.

"You couldn't just call these people," he said. "You have to be referred by someone else."

Police on Thursday night arrested two women, including the reputed ringleader, Ann Marie Menke Fucaloro, 35, was charged with aggravated promotion of prostitution, prostitution and possession of a controlled substance. Holly Haines, whose age was unavailable, was charged with prostitution.

Women call themselves 'The Salad Sisters' because they supply food as well as other favors, police say.

Investigators say the women called themselves "The Salad Sisters" because they supplied food as well as other favors.

The investigation began with a tip about two weeks ago.

Fires scorch Texas, N.M. national forests

PINE SPRINGS (AP) — A fire that has singed thousands of acres at the Guadalupe Mountains National Park continued to spread Friday, but firefighters seemed to be gaining at least a small edge.

The fire, which was likely caused by a lightning strike Tuesday, had charred about 5,000 acres of brush and woods at the West Texas park as of Friday afternoon.

Most of the blaze remained uncontained, although fire lines were secured on its northeast side, according to the National Park Service.

About 300 firefighters from the park service, U.S. Bureau of Land Management, U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs and others were battling the blaze along with the aid of three air tankers and two helicopters.

The fire crews were continuing to direct their efforts toward keeping the blaze out of the heavily wooded McKittrick Canyon and Bowl areas.

Guadalupe Mountains National Park's McKittrick Canyon, Dog Canyon, back trails remain closed due to spreading inferno. Residents of Timberon, N.M. evacuate as another fire destroys 5,190 acres of Lincoln National Forest.

McKittrick Canyon, Dog Canyon — one of the most heavily threatened areas early on — and the park's back country trails remained closed Friday. The visitor center and campground at Pine Springs were open.

The national park is located about 150 miles southwest of Midland.

North, in Timberon, New Mexico, a forest fire that has consumed 5,190 acres of the Lincoln National Forest kept residents of the tiny mountain town away from their homes Friday for a third day.

Firefighters were hoping to contain the blaze Friday, but officials didn't know when residents would be allowed back into Timberon.

The blaze, one of several lightning-caused fires that have burned more than 16,000 acres in New Mexico's mountains, remained about 2½ miles away from Timberon.

"Yesterday, we didn't experience the erratic winds we had Wednesday, so that helped our efforts," Denise Ottaviano of the U.S. Forest Service supervisor's office in Alamogordo said Friday.

"It's still 2½ miles away, and residents are still being kept out and roadblocks are still out," she said.

The blaze was on the northwest side of the Circle Cross Ranch, which was about all that stood between the fire and the town.

School district weighs lessons in morality

IRVING (AP) — Reading, writing, arithmetic. Right and wrong.

The latter may not be traditional icons of public education, but with juvenile crime on the rise and the call for "family values" still ringing, a debate is stirring in this Dallas suburb over whether schools should be teaching morality along with basic subjects.

The Irving Independent School District is considering a resolution to direct teachers to reinforce "basic traditional moral values" throughout the curriculum from prekindergarten through 12th grade.

The proposal describes the values to be taught as determining right from wrong, honesty, integrity, loyalty, accountability, discipline, sexual purity, self-restraint and the value of human life and property.

Board trustees have endorsed the resolution 6-1 and are scheduled for a final vote at their June 20 meeting.

School board President Joan Sears said the resolution is meant to give teachers the ability to buttress what students should be learning at home.

"It's nothing new, it's just reinforcing what I was taught when I grew up and what we try to teach in our homes," Mrs. Sears said. "When they're in our charge during the day, a teacher has got to have children who respect authority, and the kids have got to learn these things."

Gary Bauer, president of the Washington, D.C.-based Family Research Council, hailed the Irving resolution.

"Polls are showing people think America is in the midst of a serious moral decline," Bauer said. "This is one of the first responses around the country."

But opponents say so-called values education oversteps the boundaries of schools and takes the responsibility of parenting away from parents.

Capriati goes home

MIAMI — Jennifer Capriati checked out of a substance abuse clinic Friday, accompanied by her mother and apparently uncertain about her future.

Capriati

Capriati spent 23 days at Mount Sinai Medical Center following her arrest May 16 for marijuana possession. It's not known whether she'll remain in Florida.

"That's something the family is dealing with now," said Capriati's agent, Barbara Perry. "There haven't been any definite plans made."

Capriati's father, Stefano, recently said she would be released from the hospital next Thursday. Perry said she didn't know whether Capriati left the treatment program earlier than planned.

"I'd prefer not to speculate on that," Perry said. "I really don't know."

The hospital declined to say whether Capriati completed her program before departing. The 18-year-old tennis star left the Miami Beach hospital at mid-morning and climbed into a black Volvo.

Her father recently told the Italian sports daily La Gazzetta that she would rejoin the family and leave Florida forever, perhaps moving to Italy.

Capriati, who turned pro just before her 14th birthday, left the WTA tour last year after losing in the first round of the U.S. Open. Her father said she'll return to tennis, but there's been no indication when.

Kidd pleads innocent

OAKLAND, Calif. — Probable NBA lottery draft pick Jason Kidd pleaded innocent Friday to a misdemeanor charge of hit and run and a speeding infraction stemming from a car accident last month.

Kidd, who played for the University of California until he announced earlier this year he was leaving school to apply for the June 29 NBA draft, did not appear at the arraignment in Oakland Municipal Court.

The accident occurred in the early morning hours of May 22 on the connector ramp between Interstate 80 and Interstate 580 in Oakland. No one was injured.

Tigers stifle Steers, 4-0

By Mike Butts
Staff Writer

AUSTIN — Pitcher Frankie Martinez might go down in Big Spring baseball lore as the starter who didn't start. And after Friday's 4-0 Class 4A state championship win over the Steers, Belton Tiger Brock Rumfield might go down as the starter who wouldn't stop.

Martinez, Big Spring's number one man on the hill for most of the regular season, threw five innings of shut out relief Friday in the Steer title defeat at Disch-Falk Field. Rumfield threw ten innings in two days and became the first pitcher to hold the Steers without a run in Big Spring coach Bobby Doe's three seasons.

Doe had surprised some observers by throwing Luis Bustamante against Brenham in Thursday's semifinal win. Friday he went with senior righty Todd Parrish instead of Martinez. The Tigers ruffled Parrish (9-3) for all four of their runs on five hits in two innings.

"People are going to second guess with me (not) going with Frankie," Doe said. "(But) Todd got us through the playoffs and the only way to go is go with the guy that got you there."

But Friday Martinez flourished where Parrish perished. The senior eligible right-hander mowed down the side in his first inning of relief on five pitches. He retired the first 11 Tigers he faced and give up only two singles in his five frames.

"It's hard to tell (whether Martinez starting would have made a difference)," Tiger coach David Tidwell said. "You never know. You're so excited in the first two innings of a championship game. Actually as it turned out I'm glad they didn't (start Martinez)."

But Rumfield's play made second-guessing Doe irrelevent.

Knicks take home souvenirs, Game 2

■ New York shoots over 50 percent from the field to take the home court advantage back to the Big Apple.

By Howard Ulman
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — The revived Knicks are bringing two souvenirs back to New York — the homecourt advantage in the NBA Finals and the shooting touch they misplaced temporarily.

With their best shooting performance of the playoffs following one of their worst, they beat the Houston Rockets 91-83 Friday night to gain a split of the first two games and salvage what seemed like a wasted trip just two days earlier.

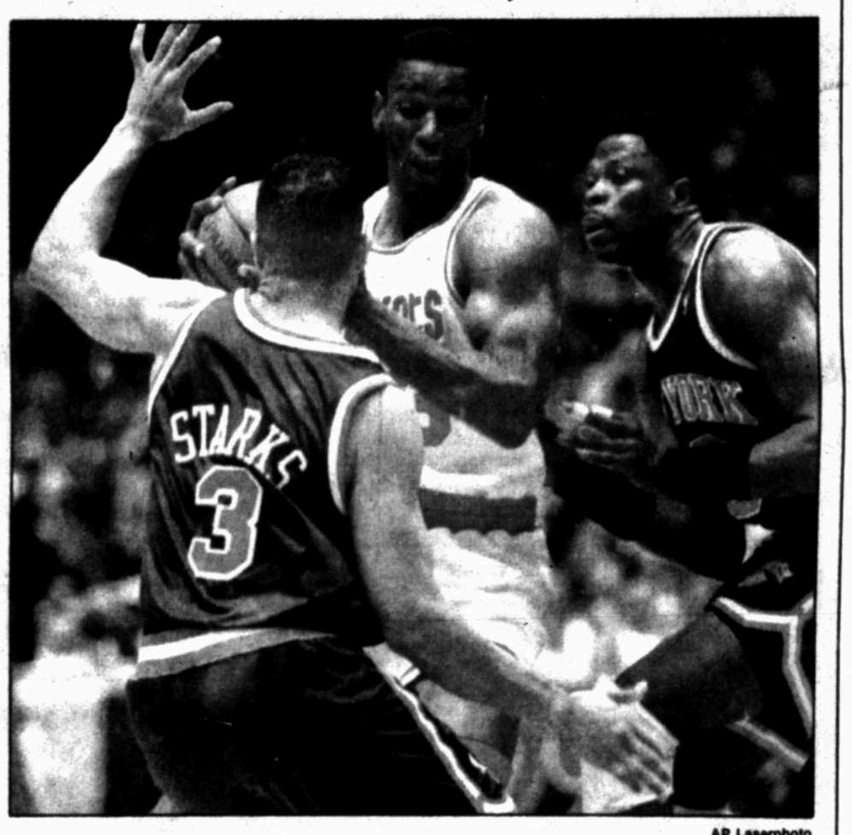

The Knicks still kept up their trademark defense as the Rockets did not have a field goal over the final 6½ minutes.

After making just 34 percent of their shots in an 85-78 opening loss, the Knicks connected on 52.2 percent in Game 2, only the fourth time in 20 playoff games they shot better than 50 percent.

They were outstanding from 3-point territory, going 7-for-11 after a horrid 4-for-15 opening night.

"The playoffs really don't start and get interesting until the home

MC takes second at tourney

■ Three Chaps earn all-American honors as team takes second place.

Staff Report

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Midland College made a move on the final day of the NJCAA National Golf Tournament here Friday at the McCormick Ranch Golf Resort to move up from third place to second.

The Chaparral golf team, composed of Chad Campbell, Lance McCullough, Shawn Savage, Jason Brooks and Jason Garduno, had its best team round of the tournament with a 288 on Friday for a final four-day stroke total of 1,168, 14 strokes behind first place Scottsdale Community College, which nailed down its second consecutive national title with a 290-1,154.

Campbell finished fourth in the medalist race at 2-over-par 290, four strokes back of winner Hunter Harris of Wallace College. With his finish, Campbell was named to the first-team all-American list.

Shawn Savage and Jason Brooks were named to the second-team all-American squad after finishing tied for 10th with a five-over-par 293 total. Sophomore Lance McCullough and freshman Jason Garduno of Monahans finished at 299. It marks the first time in school history that all five players finished below 300 for 72 holes.

"I am extremely happy with the way our young men played here this week," said Midland College coach Delnor Poss, who celebrated his 60th birthday on Friday. "Scottsdale had an extreme advantage playing on their home course and they played well. We didn't play as well as we have been, but I am extremely proud of the way we played."

It was a wire-to-wire win for Scottsdale, which made the most of the home course for the second year in a row.

But it was a nice finish for the Chaps, who continue to ride high among the national junior college powers in the nation. It was the fifth consecutive year that Midland College has placed third or better in the national tournament and the second time in the school's his-

Trainer hopes to add Belmont to mantle

By Ed Schuyler Jr.

NEW YORK — If anyone is wondering, 81-year-old trainer Charlie Whittingham has space for the trophy signifying victory in the Belmont Stakes.

He also has in Strodes Creek a colt who could get it for him.

■ Belmont Stakes

If Strodes Creek wins, it would be Whittingham's first Belmont victory, but the 640th stakes triumph of his career. No trainer ever has come close to that figure.

"I gave some of my trophies away," Whittingham said Friday. "I sent a bunch to the museum."

Among the trophies he sent to the National Museum of Racing at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., were those he got as a winning owner of Sunday Silence in the 1989 Kentucky Derby and Preakness. He also trained the colt, who finished second in the Belmont.

Whittingham also owns Strodes Creek, along with Bob

El Paso's pitching cools off Angels, 8-0

■ Last-minute Diablo starter Greg Bicknell and reliever Kurt Archer combine for an eight-hit shutout over Midland.

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

Will the real El Paso Diablo pitching staff please stand up?

After going through five pitchers in a loss Thursday night including a stint on the mound by starting catcher Bob Kappesser, the El Paso hurlers found stability Friday night to handcuff the Midland Angels 8-0 at Christensen Stadium.

Greg Bicknell, who was bumped ahead one night to allow Sid Roberson rest for the upcoming Tex-Mex All-Star game, pitched the first five innings and gave up five hits for his second win of the season (2-3). Kurt Archer then pitched the final four and continued Bicknell's method of operation, giving up only three hits for his sixth save.

This strong performance on the mound comes after the Diablos had allowed 41 hits and 33 runs in the last four games versus Midland. This time the Diablos did give up the hits, but the Angels left 11 men stranded, including two in the second and three in the third. Meanwhile, the Diablos kept up the pace at the plate, pounding out 14 hits, including three doubles and a triple.

And one of the main reasons for El Paso's success in Midland has been Danny Perez, the Diablos native El Pasoan leftfielder. Perez, a graduate of El Paso Hanks High School, had high praise for the pitching staff.

"Really, in the whole series, our pitching staff has been getting knocks against it," Perez said. "...But they did a heck of a job tonight."

Both starters — Korey Keling (6-4) got the loss for Midland — pitched well in the first three innings. Keling gave up two hits while holding a shutout through three and Bicknell allowed four hits. But in the fourth, the Diablos teed off on Keling.

Perez led off the inning with a double to rightfield and Keling walked the next two batters to load the bases. Mike Harris then drove in three runs with a double to deep left center. After that, the Diablos scored in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Perez, who is currently hitting .500 against the Angels in 10 games, went 3-for-4 Friday with one RBI and scored twice. A participant with Hanks in two Tournament of Champions high school classics in Midland, Perez could almost consider Midland his second home. It's as close as he'll get to playing at home while El Paso is on the road.

Sandate no-hits Hooks in 3A title game

■ Houston Bellaire captures the 5A championship with 2-1 win over Corpus Christi Moody.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Relief pitcher Danny Morales retired the only batter he faced with two outs and the bases loaded in the top of the seventh inning as Houston Bellaire hung on to defeat Corpus Christi Moody 2-1 Friday for the Class 5A state championship.

Bellaire (36-3) went through three pitchers in the top of the seventh before settling on Morales with the crowd noise swelling and Moody (29-6) clinging to hopes of a comeback.

But with the count at three balls and two strikes, Moody's Aaron Gonzalez, who had fouled off several pitches, hit a fly ball to center field, where Bubba Crosby made the grab and sealed the victory.

Sandate's stifling pitching and an offense led by Paul Gonzales' two hits and three RBIs helped Orange Grove (22-3) win the game by the 10-run rule in the fifth inning and claim the 3A crown in its first trip to the state tournament.

Hooks, which defeated Alpine 4-2 on Thursday to reach the state finals, finished the season 20-12 after making its third trip to the state tourney.

Sandate (10-1) became only the second player from Class 3A to throw a no-hitter in the state tournament. Junior Espinosa of Freer beat Abilene Wylie 2-0 without giving up a hit over seven innings in 1990.

Class 2A

East Bernard 5, Pineland West Sabine 0

AUSTIN — Shane Lechler gave up only four hits and struck out nine as East Bernard defeated Pineland West Sabine.

East Bernard (26-2) took advantage of critical errors by West Sabine (21-8) to win the 2A crown in its first appearance at the state tournament.

West Sabine pitcher Dwight Hamilton (7-6) gave up only five hits, but the Tigers struggled defensively, allowing all five of East Bernard's runs to come across unearned.

West Sabine's best scoring threat came in the top of the seventh with runners at second and third, but Lechler struck out Bryan Williams to end the game.

Jody Domel had two hits and an RBI to lead East Bernard's offensive attack.

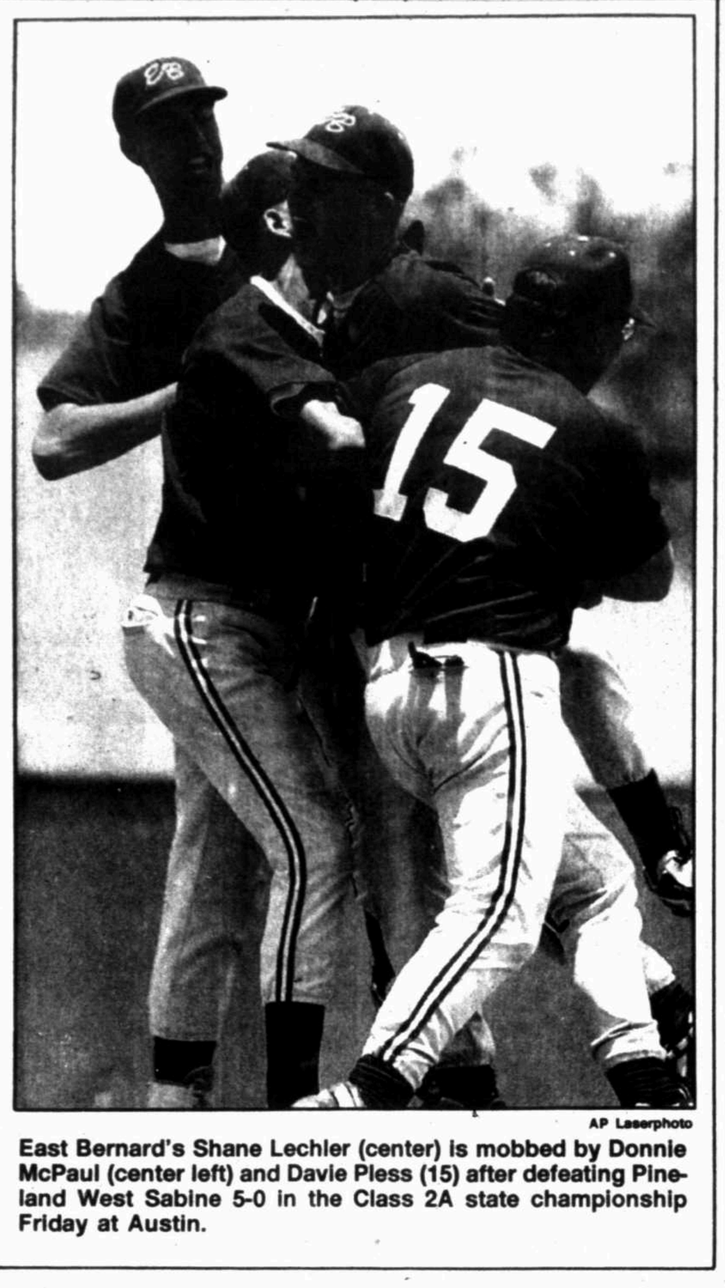

Class 1A

Gunter 9, Trinidad 4

AUSTIN — Joe Westman scored three runs and drove in four others as Gunter defeated Trinidad.

Gunter (24-2) won the title in its first appearance at the state tournament.

Westman's clutch hitting and the three-hit pitching of Don Mercado (16-1), who collected his second win of the tournament, were simply too much for Trinidad, which finished the season 26-5.

STEERS: Belton shuts down Big Spring hitters

(From 1B)

Tidwell downplayed the Tiger starter's tireless performance. But the Rumfield helped his team win the state championship the hard way: in 100 degree weather, under state championship pressure, and after having thrown three relief innings the day before.

Rumfield and Jason Regan were virtually the only two pitchers Belton (35-6) used all year.

"Throughout the playoffs we've been playing two out of three (game series) and coming in and out," said Rumfield of himself and Regan.

Rumfield (12-3) got both Belton wins in the tournament. He was drafted by the Los Angeles Dodgers this spring. Regan scored twice and had two hits Friday.

"(Rumfield) only threw 49 pitches yesterday and we throw that many in practice," Tidwell said. "That was just a warmup."

Belton got a run in the first when Rumfield got a ground-rule double to plate Regan. In the second Darren Brinkley's two-out single up the middle scored two more and made it 4-0. Before Brinkley's hit Parrish had faced 10 batters, allowing four hits and walking one.

Big Spring put several dents in Rumfield's armor but couldn't put together a rally. The Steers had hits in all but two innings and base runners in all but one, but never had more than one hit in an inning.

"Maybe that's what messed us up," Martinez said. "We saw that slow pitch yesterday and he (Rumfield) threw hard."

Martinez walked to open the fifth. Michael Sizenbach later tripled, but Brandon Hamblin preceeded the three-bagger by hitting into a double play to clear the bases.

The Steers end their best year ever at 27-8.

Big Spring s has now been to the state tournament twice in three seasons without bringing home a title. But the Steer baseball program, which had not even advanced in the playoffs before 1992, has certainly set a new standard.

ANGELS: Diablos take shutout win

(From 1B)

"I don't want to call it a zone," he said of his hitting at Christensen Stadium. "I'm just seeing the ball really well right now. For some reason I'm hitting the ball off the Angels. Not that they're a bad pitching staff."

Perez, who was drafted out of high school by the Brewers before playing three years with Oklahoma State, said he and his teammates need little motivation to beat the Angels despite already clinching the playoffs.

"There are a lot of guys on this team that just hate to lose," he said.

The Angels, who have four players who are batting over .300, just couldn't get the work done with runners on base. Shortstop Tim Harkrider had a two hits to lead off the first and third innings. His double in the third, however, was all but nullified when he was thrown out at third trying to stretch the hit.

Midland loaded the bases in the third — all on walks or hit by pitch — but were already down two outs. Mike Wolff grounded out to the shortstop to end the inning.

In the first, Midland got two on with singles each from Chris Smith and Emmitt Cohick, but again with two outs. Jose Monzon flied out to left to end the threat.

ANGEL NOTES: The Diablos lead the series 10-5 with the final game tonight at 7 p.m. They only lead Midland 6-4, however, in Christensen Stadium...J.D. Ramirez continues to slump at the plate for Midland. After hitting in 21 of 23 games, Perez is batting 1-of-15...Kyle Sebach, recently called up from Single-A Lae Elsinore, could start as early as today. The lefthander is 7-4 with a 3.07 era.

'Jackets, Sooners meet for elusive baseball title

■ See related story/4B

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Calm and relaxed, Georgia Tech and Oklahoma acted as if playing for the College World Series title was a frequent occurence. It isn't.

"I don't look at it as any pressure and I don't think our guys are looking at it as any pressure," Georgia Tech coach Danny Hall said Friday. "We're looking it as another game, which just happens to be for the national championship.

"If we play better than them, we'll win. If not, we'll get beat."

Georgia Tech, the second-seeded team, is in the World Series for the first time. Only Minnesota, in 1956, won the title in its first trip to the finals.

Oklahoma, the fourth seed, won over Tennessee in 1951. But these players weren't born then. Some of their parents may not have been, either.

"Just to get to the final game of the regional, just to give us a chance to come here, that was where we wanted to be," Georgia Tech catcher Jason Varitek said. "Now that we're here, we took it one game at a time and now we're in the finals."

Hall would become the first first-year coach to win the College World Series if his Yellow Jackets should succeed. Georgia Tech also would be the first top, second or third seed to be victorious in the seven-year history of the current seeding of the eight tournament teams.

"To me, it's exciting and it is fun. It's a reward to be playing at this time of year and now, tomorrow, to be playing for the national championship," Hall said. "There's no losers in that. Only one team's going to win, but we're excited about just the opportunity to play in that game."

Oklahoma's Larry Cochell is the only coach to bring three schools to the College World Series, but his former Oral Roberts or Fullerton State teams didn't get him this far.

"This is my 28th year and I've never had as many kids on a team that have been so focused," Cochell said. "I think that's one of the secrets as to why this club is here.

"They knew what it was going to take to get us there and were mentally tough enough in some adverse situations to get it done."

The coaches and the players indicated that the pressure of the one-game final wasn't likely to undo them.

The two teams had met in a California tournament in February with Oklahoma outlasting the Yellow Jackets 8-6.

ADOPT-A-GOLFER

HELP! Forty golfers are going to risk total exhaustion, sunstroke and a possible coronary to help make a difference in the lives of our young people. You too can help these kids by sponsoring a golfer in Birdies, Bunkers & Bogeys -- the Second Annual Midland Boys and Girls Club Golf Marathon.

Each golfer's goal will be to play 100 holes of golf or more on June 27, 1994. Will you sponsor one golfer at 50 cents, $1.00, $2.00, or even $5.00 a hole? Just indicate the amount you would like to pledge on the slip below.

As the Boys & Girls Club continues to grow, so do our needs. Community support is a primary factor in providing club members with the equipment, programs, facilities and staff necessary to make a positive impact on these young people. What these kids need is your help!

For further information call Jon Farr at 683-5297. Proceeds from Birdies, Bunkers & Bogeys will benefit the Midland Boys & Girls Club in their continued efforts to provide a "Positive Place for Kids."

The Midland Boys & Girls Club is a participating member agency of the United Way.

Justice prevails as Braves beat Astros

Associated Press

HOUSTON — David Justice hit a three-run homer Friday night, sending John Smoltz and the Atlanta Braves past the Houston Astros 5-2.

Smoltz (4-6) pitched three-hit ball for seven innings. He struck out seven and walked two. Greg McMichael pitched the ninth for his 14th save.

Justice connected with two outs in the fifth inning off Doug Drabek (8-3) for his eighth home run and a 5-0 lead. Drabek began the game with a 2.28 ERA.

Dodgers 2, Cubs 1

CHICAGO — Kevin Gross pitched a seven-hitter and Tim Wallach homered as Los Angeles handed Chicago its 10th straight loss.

It is the Cubs' longest losing streak since 1985, when they lost a club record-tying 13 consecutive games. The defeat also was the Cubs' seventh straight at Wrigley Field, where they are 9-21 this season.

Cardinals 4, Phillies 3

PHILADELPHIA — Pinch-hitter Luis Alicea hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning and St. Louis defeated Philadelphia.

The Cardinals had lost eight in a row at Veterans Stadium, including all six last season.

St. Louis trailed 3-1 when Tom Pagnozzi drew a one-out walk from Mike Williams (2-3) in the seventh. Jose Oquendo singled and Alicea, batting for pitcher Rick Sutcliffe (3-2), hit his second home run of the season.

Pirates 5, Marlins 4

PITTSBURGH — Brian Hunter broke Pittsburgh out of an extended offensive slump with a homer and three RBIs and Pirates pitchers worked out of a series of jams to beat Florida.

Pittsburgh, batting .195 in its previous 10 games, had 10 hits by the third inning against Chris Hammond (4-4) — the Pirates' first double-digit hit game since May 29 — to win its third in a row and fifth in seven games.

Reds 10, Rockies 4

CINCINNATI — Colorado remains winless at Riverfront Stadium and hapless against Cincinnati's John Roper, who pitched 7 1-3 innings for a victory over the Rockies.

Colorado is 0-9 at Riverfront — its worst mark at any ballpark — and 0-4 against Roper, who has never beaten another National League team. Roper (2-0) has a 3.07 ERA against the Rockies, but is 0-5 with a 6.04 ERA against the rest of the league.

Expos 6, Mets 4

NEW YORK — Moises Alou homered for the fifth time in five games and Montreal beat New York for its eighth win in 11 games.

Alou, who homered twice and drove in five runs Thursday night against the Mets, hit a two-run homer and an RBI single.

Padres 5, Giants 2

SAN FRANCISCO — Rookie Joey Hamilton stopped San Francisco for eight innings and San Diego beat the Giants.

Tony Gwynn drove in three runs and scored twice. He went 2-for-4.

■ NL Roundup

Rangers stay hot with 3-2 win

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Doug Strange's two-out RBI single brought in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning and the Texas Rangers won their fourth straight game Friday night, 3-2 over the Kansas City Royals.

■ AL Roundup

In the seventh, Will Clark drew a leadoff walk against Kevin Appier (5-6) and Juan Gonzalez singled. With two outs, Strange hit a soft liner off Stan Belinda to score Clark.

Kevin Brown (5-7) allowed two runs and five hits in eight innings. He walked four and struck out six.

Rick Honeycutt gave up a leadoff single in the ninth before Cris Carpenter came on for his fifth save.

The Rangers have won 10 of their last 12 while the Royals lost for the fourth time in five games.

Appier allowed three runs and seven hits in 6 1-3 innings. He walked five and struck out six.

Texas took a 2-0 lead in the fourth on RBI singles by David Hulse and Oddibe McDowell.

Bob Hamelin's two-run, two-out double in the fifth tied it 2-2.

NOTES: Jose Canseco was scratched just before the game with soreness in his right leg. Canseco had been the only Rangers player to appear in all of the Rangers games. ... Clark has reached base in 35 consecutive games. He went 0-for-2 with three walks to snap his 14-game hitting streak. ... Friday's crowd of 46,379 was the eighth sellout this season and a club record 13th gate of 40,000 or more. ... Strange extended his hitting streak to a career-high eight games.

Blue Jays 7, Yankees 2

TORONTO — Todd Stottlemyre pitched a six-hitter and John Olerud hit a three-run homer, leading Toronto past New York.

Stottlemyre (5-3), who has allowed only two earned runs in his last three starts, collected his second shutout and complete game this season. He struck out five and walked three.

The Yankees have lost four straight and 10 of their last 12.

Olerud became the first left-handed batter to homer off Jim Abbott (6-5) since 1991 with his three-run homer in the third.

Roberto Alomar led off with a double and Paul Molitor walked. One out later, Olerud lined his fifth homer to right-center to give the Blue Jays a 4-0 lead.

Abbott (6-5) lost his third straight start, giving up six runs and nine hits in six innings.

Don Mattingly went 3-for-4 with an RBI for the Yankees.

Twins 8, White Sox 6, 10 innings

MINNEAPOLIS — Alex Cole hit a two-run homer in the 10th inning after Minnesota rallied for five runs in the ninth as the Twins defeated Chicago.

Shane Mack hit a three-run homer to cap Minnesota's five-run ninth.

In the 10th, Jeff Reboulet singled with out out off Kirk McCaskill (0-1). One out later, Cole hit his third career homer over the right-field fence. All of Cole's homers have come this season.

Dave Stevens (1-1) pitched 1 1-3 innings for the win.

Jack McDowell had limited the Twins to two hits and the White Sox held a 6-1 lead entering the ninth. Chip Hale's pinch-hit double and an RBI single by Chuck Knoblauch chased McDowell, who was replaced by Roberto Hernandez.

Frank Thomas went 4-for-5 for the White Sox.

Orioles 10, Red Sox 7

BOSTON — Chris Sabo, making his first appearance in eight days, hit a two-run homer as Baltimore rallied for three runs in the eighth inning and a win over Boston.

Brady Anderson tied the game with a run-scoring double, and Sabo followed with his third homer into the Red Sox bullpen in right field.

Sabo, unhappy at his lack of playing time after losing his third base spot to Leo Gomez, made his first major league appearance as an outfielder. He played left field and got an assist, throwing Scott Cooper out at the plate in the seventh.

Baltimore had 20 hits, including four by Mark McLemore and three each by Anderson and Cal Ripken. Every Orioles starter had at least one hit.

Mike Oquist (2-1) allowed one run in 3 2-3 innings for the Orioles, who moved into a second-place tie with Boston in the AL East. Both teams are two games behind the New York Yankees.

Lee Smith struck out the side in the ninth for his major-league leading 24th save.

Andre Dawson, making his first appearance since left knee surgery on May 26, doubled in the third for his 1,000 extra-base hit and doubled again in the sixth. He is 21st on the all-time list, three extra-base hits behind Honus Wagner and eight behind Ernie Banks.

Neither starter was effective. Jamie Moyer allowed six runs and eight hits in 3 1-3 innings for Baltimore and Danny Darwin allowed six runs and 10 hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Brewers 7, Indians 6

MILWAUKEE — B.J. Surhoff hit a two-run double to cap Milwaukee's three-run rally in the ninth as the Brewers beat Cleveland.

Jody Reed singled to open the ninth off Jose Mesa (5-3) and Billy Spiers followed with a single. John Jaha hit into a fielder's choice, but third baseman Rene Gonzales threw the ball away allowing Spiers to score.

Greg Vaughn hit an infield single, and Surfhoff hit a liner to left, scoring Jaha and Vaughn. It was the second straight game that the Brewers rallied in the ninth to defeat Cleveland.

Mike Fetters (1-3) got two outs in the ninth for the win.

Eddie Murray moved past Babe Ruth on the career hits list with a two-run double for the Indians.

Tigers 8, Angels 4

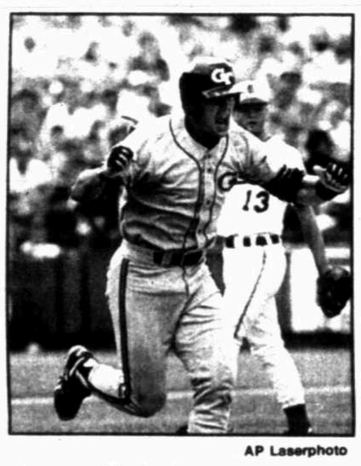

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Mike Moore allowed five hits in seven innings and Travis Fryman and Mickey Tettleton homered, leading Detroit to a victory over the California Angels.

Moore (7-4) won his third straight game, surviving homers by Chad Curtis and Chili Davis. The right-hander struck out four and walked four.

Rookie Chris Gomez, who drove in Detroit's first two runs in the second inning, led off the fifth with a single before Fryman hit his ninth homer on a 3-0 pitch to give the Tigers a 4-2 lead.

Joe Magrane (2-3), coming off his first complete-game victory since 1990, gave up four runs and seven hits in five innings.

Varitek gives up big bucks for championship shot

AP Laserphoto

Jason Varitek gave up a $400,00 offer from Minnesota last season to play for the Yellow Jackets this year. Earlier he was named college baseball's player of the year.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The gamble for Georgia Tech catcher Jason Varitek seems to have paid off.

The senior turned down a reported $400,000 to sign with the Minnesota Twins, who picked him in the first round of the major league draft a year ago. He elected to return to Georgia Tech, hopefully to lead the Yellow Jackets to a College World Series berth, continue his education and take aim at being a No. 1 draft pick again.

It has all come true for the switch-hitting slugger, who slept in his car last fall while awaiting scholarship help for one more year as a Yellow Jacket. He was a consensus All-American, player of the year as selected by the American Baseball Coaches Association and Baseball America, and the Seattle Mariners made him their No. 1 draft pick the day before the College World Series.

Saturday, Varitek and his Tech teammates take on Oklahoma for the College World Series championship in Georgia Tech's first-ever appearance in Omaha.

There were some who scratched their heads over the gamble Varitek took to return to college.

"It gave me a chance to further my education," he said. "That was the main thing. Things just weren't ready at the time and things didn't work out with Minnesota.

"It makes it that much easier of a gamble for us to be here, but if you say it's the wrong thing to come back, I'd like to know what's wrong about it."

Coach Danny Hall — who came to the school from Kent State in December to take over for Jim Morris, who went to Miami — said the transition to a new team was made easier because of Varitek's presence.

Wallace stays on roll with fastest GM 500 time

Associated Press

LONG POND, Pa. — Rusty Wallace knows how to emphasize a point.

The 1989 NASCAR Winston Cup champion has been telling anyone who would listen that his Penske South Racing team has found the right combination and is ready to make a run at series leaders Ernie Irvan and Dale Earnhardt.

■ Auto Racing

Last Sunday, he outdueled Irvan to win at Dover, Del. On Friday, he added to the evidence, setting a Pocono International Raceway qualifying record while winning the pole for Sunday's UAW-GM Teamwork 500.

Wallace, giving Ford its 12th pole in 13 events this season, turned a lap of 164.558 mph to earn his second pole of the season and 17th of his career.

The fast lap on the 2.5-mile tri-oval buried the previous record of 162.934, set last July by Ken Schrader.

In fact, the top seven drivers broke Schrader's mark, including runner-up Ricky Rudd at 164.102, Mark Martin, 163.800, Jeff Gordon, 163.529, Schrader, 163.330, Brett Bodine, 163.126 and Irvan, 162.981. Earnhardt, who trails Irvan by 163 points and is 166 ahead of Wallace, was 19th at 161.667.

In the last seven races, Wallace has two of his three season victories and finished worse than seventh only once — 33rd at Talladega, where he crashed. In the three races since Talladega, Wallace has jumped from seventh to third in the points with a fifth, second and the win at Dover.

It is only the second time Wallace has won a pole at Pocono. The other came in this event in 1989, coincidentally the year he won his only Winston Cup title.

Among the drivers who failed to make the top 20 on Friday were John Andretti, Dale Jarrett, Harry Gant, Morgan Shepherd, Jimmy Spencer, Geoff Bodine and Rick Mast. They will have the choice of standing on their time or trying again on Saturday in the second and final round of time trials.

Detroit GP

DETROIT — Three of the top four qualifying laps Friday for the ITT Automotive Detroit Grand Prix were turned in the Penske racing team, which continues to dominate Indy-car racing.

Emerson Fittipaldi turned in the fastest lap, pushing his Penske Ilmor Indy V8 around the 2.1-mile, 14-turn course on Belle Isle at an average speed of 106.261 mph.

Teammate Paul Tracy was second at 105.845; Nigel Mansell, in a Lola-Ford Cosworth XB, was third at 105.823 and Al Unser Jr., the other Penske driver, was fourth at 105.665.

If nobody tops his speed on Saturday, Fittipaldi will be on the pole for the first time this season.

Last year, Tracy turned in the fastest time during provisional qualifying, but lost it to Mansell on Saturday. Danny Sullivan, who started 10th, won the 1993 race.

But it will take a major effort to keep one of the Penske cars out of the victory circle this time.

Since the first race, which they somehow let slip away, Roger Penske's trio of drivers has so dominated the PPG IndyCar World Series that the big question each week seems to be which Penske car will win.

Since Michael Andretti made his successful return from Formula One with a season-opening victory in Australia, it has been all Penske.

Tracy won the pole, and Fittipaldi the race at Phoenix. Tracy again won the pole and Unser the race at Long Beach. Unser won from the pole at Indianapolis.

Last Sunday, at the Milwaukee Mile, Raul Boesel broke the Penske domination by winning the pole. But Unser led Fittipaldi and Tracy across the finish line in a convincing sweep of the 200-mile race.

That left Unser with a commanding 79-54 lead over Fittipaldi going into Sunday's race, the sixth of 16 this season.

Friday's run was made under clear skies with temperatures in the low 80's.

More Sports/8B

The same was forecast for Saturday, with a possibility of scattered thundershowers.

Canadian GP

MONTREAL — Jean Alesi gave himself an early birthday present on Friday, just in case he doesn't get the gift he really wants.

Alesi, 30 on Saturday, put a Ferrari on the provisional pole for the Canadian Grand Prix, securing the position when the Benetton of Michael Schumacher blew its Ford engine near the end of the qualifying session Friday.

"When I wake up, it will be the first time that I start the day on the pole," Alesi said. "Of course, I hope to celebrate the day itself by staying in first place" in the second and last qualifying session for Sunday's race.

On his fast lap, Alesi toured the 15-turn, 2.753-mile Circuit Gilles Villeneuve in 1 minute, 26.277 seconds, a speed of 114.872 mph.

Troy Henry took top honors at the Blowout by being named tournament MVP. He scored 10 goals. Other MVP honors went to Kyle King, midfielder MVP; Matt Lackey, defensive MVP; and Henry, offensive MVP. Black Magic defeated Blast '81, Fighting Irish, Odessa Flames '80, Excaliber and Abilene Dragons.

Black Magic went undefeated in the San Angelo Sunkist Tournament with outstanding defensive play coming from Shane Fisher, Casey Barnett, King, Josh Harrow, Lackey and Cody Brown.

The team was unscored upon to the championship game when Lackey scored the winning goal after overtime play tied at 0-0 in the semifinals. Black Magic defeated San Angelo Borncos 4-1 with Barnett scoring off an assist from Henry. Henry scored three goals with an assist from West Boyle.

Black Magic was defeated twice by the University of Mexico for third place in the Cinco De Mayo tournament. The team tied or beat the Amarillo Destroyers and the Odessa Americas.

The team is coached by Alvin Alexander.

BELMONT: 2 horses favored in race

(From 1B)

McNair and breeder Arthur Hancock III, also a co-owner of Sunday Silence.

Although Strodes Creek, unraced as a 2-year-old, has not won a stakes in five starts, he is the 5-2 early second choice behind 9-5 Kentucky Derby winner Go for Gin.

"He's knocking on the door," Nick Zito, Go for Gin's trainer, said of Strodes Creek.

The strapping, one-run colt, who has won twice, was third behind Brocco and Tabasco Cat in the Santa Anita Derby and second — beaten by two lengths — last month in the Kentucky Derby. Strodes Creek did not race three weeks ago in the Preakness.

He will be ridden by Jerry Bailey, called by Whittingham "the best mile-and-a-half jockey in the race."

Bailey won the race with Hansel in 1991. Eddie Delahoussaye, who rode the colt in the Kentucky Derby, has been ill.

At 3-1 in the early line are Tabasco Cat, seventh the Kentucky Derby, but the winner of the Preakness by three-quarters of a length over Go for Gin; and Brocco, fourth in the Kentucky Derby in his last start.

Belmont Odds

By Associated Press

The field for today's 126th Belmont Stakes, with post position, horse's name, jockey's name and odds:

1. Go for Gin	McCarron	9-5
2. Tabasco Cat	Day	3-1
3. Signal Tap	Santos	20-1
4. Amathos	Smith	15-1
5. Ulises	Perret	30-1
6. Strodes Creek	Bailey	5-2
7. Brocco	Stevens	3-1

Trainers (by post position): 1, Nick Zito. 2, D. Wayne Lukas. 3, Scotty Schulhofer. 4, William Mott. 5, Alfredo Callejas. 6, Charles Whittingham. 7, Randy Winick.

Owners (by post position): 1, William Condren and Joseph Cornacchia. 2, David Reynolds and Overbrook Farm. 3, Centennial Farms. 4, Al Maktoum Mohammed. 5, Robert Perez. 6, Arthur Hancock III, Rose Hill Stable and Charles Whittingham. 7, Mr. & Mrs. Albert Broccoli.

Weights: Each 126 pounds. Distance: 1½ miles. Purse: $658,800. First place: $395,280. Second place: $144,936. Third place: $79,056. Fourth place: $39,528. Post time: 5:30 p.m. EDT.

Completing the field for the smallest Belmont since Risen Star beat five rivals in 1988 are Ulises, last in the Kentucky Derby, and two newcomers to Triple Crown competition — Signal Tap and Amathos.

Signal Tap is owned by Donald V. Little and trained by Scotty Schulhofer, who teamed up with jockey Julie Krone to win the 1993 Belmont with Colonial Affair. Jose Santos rides Signal Tap.

Should either Signal Tap or Amathos prevail, he would be the 10th Belmont winner in 16 years not to have started in the first two Triple Crown races. It also would be the third straight year and the ninth time since 1980 that the Triple Crown has been split three ways.

Paradise Creek, winner of the Early Times Turf Classic at Churchill Downs, and the Early Times Dixie at Pimlico, would not get a $1 milliion bonus for a sweep, however, because there were fewer than six starters in the Dixie.

In another race on the Belmont card, Paradise Creek will try to sweep the Early Times Triple Turf by beating seven rivals in the 1¼-mile Manhattan.

The Whittingham-trained Numerous, fifth in the Preakness, will oppose five other 3-year-olds in the 1⅛-mile Colin.

Edberg stays in slump, Sampras wins

Associated Press

■ Tennis Roundup

LONDON — Todd Martin upset Stefan Edberg 6-3, 6-4 in the quarterfinals of the Queen's Club grass-court tournament.

Edberg, in a monthlong slump, double-faulted four times in the final game.

He was seeded No. 3, two higher than Martin.

Top-seeded Pete Sampras surged forward with a 6-1, 6-4 victory over eighth-seeded South African Wayne Ferreira, easily the best performance this week by the American.

Unseeded Jan Apell and Christo van Rensburg continued their surprising runs. Apell beat local favorite Jeremy Bates 6-3, 7-5, while South African qualifier van Rensburg downed No. 15 seed Jamie Morgan of Australia 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Sampras struggled early with his serve — he had to save four break points in his first two service games — but was otherwise satisfied with his 70-minute victory over Ferreira, who won the Queen's title two years ago.

Birmingham Women

BIRMINGHAM, England — Brenda Shultz served 22 aces — the most by a woman in a single match — and moved into the semifinals of the Birmingham women's grass-court tournament.

Shultz, the No. 5 seed from the Netherlands, served her way to a 6-4, 5-7, 6-0 victory over No. 3 Iva Majoli. The 22 aces topped her own record of 16, set at Wimbledon in 1989 against Monica Seles.

Shultz will face defending champion and No. 2 seed Lori McNeil in the semifinals. McNeil defeated No. 14 Joanette Kruger of South Africa 6-3, 6-4.

The other semifinal will be between top-seeded Zina Garrison-Jackson and No. 4 Nathalie Tauziat.

Report: Gridders enroll in cash-for-class scheme

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Several former UNLV football players — citing a scheme they say was orchestrated by former coach Jim Strong — signed up for summer school classes to receive tuition refund checks then by design dropped the courses, according to a published report.

The allegations, outlined in a copyright story in today's Las Vegas Review-Journal, have prompted an internal investigation into possible NCAA violations.

Several former football players alleged during a lengthy Review-Journal investigation that the scheme was carried out under the direction of Strong, UNLV's head coach from 1990 to 1994.

Strong, in a statement issued through his attorney, John H. Mowbray, said he never advised student-athletes to drop classes in order to receive refund money. Strong said he welcomes any NCAA inquiry.

"The administration of the summer school program for the UNLV football players was conducted under the direction of athletic director Jim Weaver," Strong's statement said.

Els' bogey-free round leads Buick

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

HARRISON, N.Y. — South African Ernie Els shot a bogey-free 66 Friday to take his first tournament lead ever in the United States, a one-shot advantage midway through the Buick Classic.

Els' two-round total of 134, 8-under on the par-71 west course at Westchester Country Club, was a stroke ahead of first-round leader Mike Reid, who shot 70.

Japan's Joe Ozaki had 67 and was tied for third at 136 with John Wilson, who shot 68.

Reid hung tough, even though he has spent virtually no time at the top of a leader board since injuring a tendon in his wrist while playing pingpong late in 1992. He missed virtually all of 1993 due to the injury.

Fred Couples, playing in his first tournament in three months due to back problems, shot 69 and was at 139. Greg Norman had a 67 and was among those at 140 midway through the tournament. Tom Watson (71) and Hale Irwin (72) were in a large group at even-par, and Seve Ballesteros was at 144 following a 73.

The winner of the $1.2 million Buick Classic, which concludes Sunday, will earn $216,000.

Minnesota LPGA Classic

BROOKLYN PARK, Minn. — Jane Geddes and Nanci Bowen shot 5-under-par 67s Friday to share the first-round lead at the 1994 Minnesota LPGA Classic, while Beth Daniel, seeking her third victory in as many weeks, was three strokes back.

Liselotte Neumann, Noelle Daghe and Lenore Rittenhouse were at 68 and Dottie Mochrie, fifth on 1994's money list, headed a group of six at 69.

Daniel, winner of 29 LPGA events — one short of qualifying for the LPGA Hall of Fame, — finished at 70 with eight others.

A mid-afternoon thunderstorm caused a 35-minute delay.

Defending champion Hiromi Kobayashi of Japan finished five strokes off the pace at par 72

Neumann, of Sweden, entered the tournament ranked 12th on the LPGA money list.

Play continues through Sunday in the $500,000 tournament, with $75,000 going to the winner.

Nationwide Seniors

ALPHARETTA, Ga. — Gibby Gilbert shot a 7-under-par 65 in what he called his first good round of the year and took a one-shot lead after the opening round of the PGA Senior Tour Nationwide Championship.

Bruce Devlin and Jim Albus each posted 66s, with Devlin missing a share of the lead when he three-putted the final hole from 15 feet for a bogey.

Tom Shaw also had a chance to share the lead, but he took a double-bogey 6 on the 433-yard finishing hole after sending his tee shot out of bounds. Shaw was tied with four others at 67—Graham Marsh, Bob Murphy, Dave Stockton and Larry Gilbert.

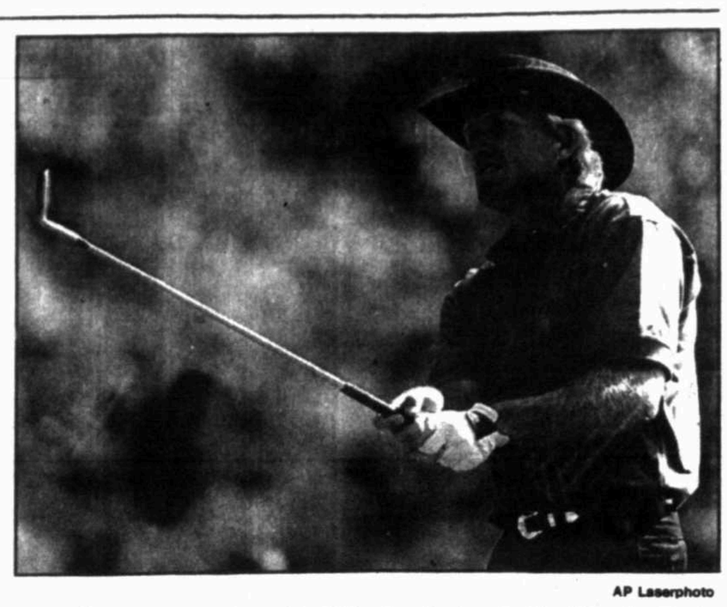

Left-hander Bob Charles was alone at 68 and there was a three-way tie at 69 among Bill Hall, DeWitt Weaver and John Paul Cain.

Leading money-winner and defending champion Lee Trevino was grouped with five others at 70, a list that also included Dale Douglass and former amateur standout Jay Sigel.

Jim Dent, who won last week at Birmingham, shot 72.

Honda Open

ALVESLOHE, Germany — Australian Rodger Davis opened a four-stroke in the Honda Open by firing a 4-under-par 68 for a two-round total of 134.

Greg Norman is at 2-under 140, six strokes behind leader Ernie Els after two rounds at the Buick Classic.

tory to place second.

It was also an improvement over the third-place finish the Chaps had last year. MC placed third in 1990 and in 1993. MC has now placed second in 1991 and 1994. The Chaps won the national championship in 1992. It's an impressive run.

Going into Friday's final round, MC was in third place, two strokes behind Central Alabama Community College. Central Alabama, however, skidded to a 299 round on Friday to fall from second place to fourth as the Chaps moved into second place.

Wallace State Community College went from fourth to third place Friday with a final round 284, the best round of the entire tournament. Still, Wallace State fell one stroke short of tying MC for second place.

Odessa College fell from sixth to seventh place on the last day with a final round 295 for a final total of 1,187, six strokes behind sixth place Wallace State of Hanesville, Ala.

Early slump yields summer recovery

Disney's "The Lion King" is due out June 24.

Theaters suffer through worst spring in 7 years

By John Horn
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — Business at movie theaters this spring was the worst in seven years.

There was no "Indecent Proposal" or "Basic Instinct" — hits from the last two springs. The season's most profitable film wasn't even from a major studio — it was Gramercy's "Four Weddings and a Funeral."

The dismal returns have placed an unusually strong emphasis on the summer season, in which more than 40 percent of the year's tickets are sold.

Here is a studio-by-studio scorecard as we approach the halfway point in the 1994 movie campaign:

COLUMBIA: Bob Hope has better legs than Columbia Pictures' movies. Columbia has released only two bombs this year. Unfortunately, that's the studio's total output — two movies. Both "I'll Do Anything" and "My Girl 2" flopped.

Fully three of Columbia's summer movies — "City Slickers 2," "Little Big League" and "North" — were made by independent producer Castle Rock Entertainment. Columbia's big summer title is Jack Nicholson and Michelle Pfeiffer in the much rewritten and delayed "Wolf." It also has "Karate Kid 4" and "Blankman."

Score: F. Summer potential: B.

DISNEY: Disney has nothing but bad movies, but at least it has a lot of them. Several of its spring titles — "The Inkwell" and "White Fang 2" among them — fared poorly both with critics and ticket buyers. What Disney lacked in quality it made up for with quantity, and with relentless marketing squeezed millions out of "D2 The Mighty Ducks"

The return of Slick Billy

■ Jack Palance heightens comedy level of likable sequel.

By Michael H. Price
N.Y. Times News Service

Getting Jack Palance back in harness for a "City Slickers" sequel is the big salvation of this follow-through comedy-western adventure. Welcome as Billy Crystal's return is, it is Palance who propels the movie to an unexpected near-brilliance — and who also prevents the overbearing antics of two other supporting characters from hogging the show.

■ "City Slickers II" is playing at the UA Cine 4.

And yes, we all know that Palance's rough-riding cowboy character died in the 1991 "City Slickers," a male-bonding redemption fable that sold almost $125 million worth of auditorium seats.

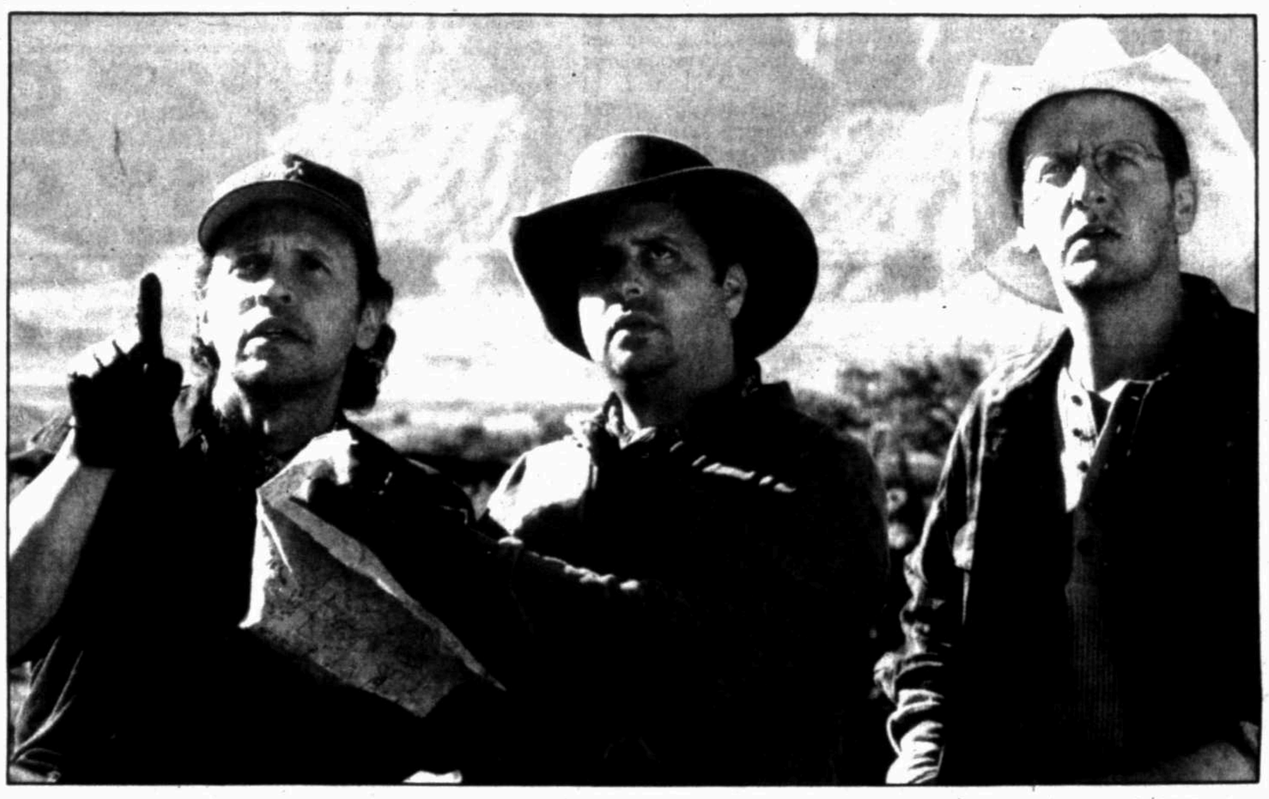

The matter of Palance's return in "City Slickers II: The Legend of Curly's Gold" is a mystery that the film must be allowed to unveil in its own good time. Suffice to say that the big guy reappears first as a ghostly image who may or may not be a figment of Crystal's imagination.

And hats off to producer-screenwriter Billy Crystal (with co-scenarists Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel) for understanding Palance's importance to the yarn.

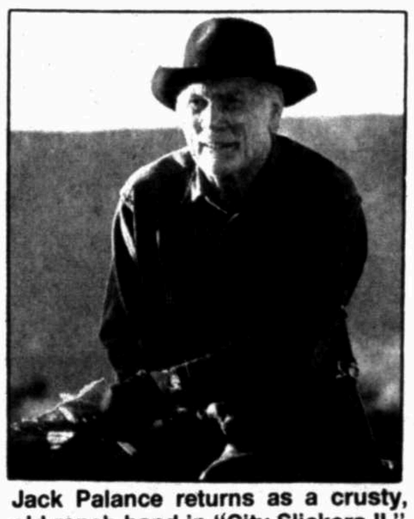

Crystal is, as always, the most generous of nice-guy star players, sublimating his bittersweet comic artistry to allow the co-stars to shine through. Daniel Stern reprises his old-pal character to rather disappointing effect, overdoing the put-upon and pitiable qualities, while newcomer Jon Lovitz reaches unnecessarily far over the top as Crystal's obnoxious brother.

It is Lovitz' arrival, however, that precipitates the domestic crisis that re-

Jack Palance returns as a crusty, old ranch hand in "City Slickers II."

It's Crystal clear: This guy's a big star

By Bruce Newman
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Billy Crystal is not happy. If there had been any doubt of this, it is quickly dispelled by Crystal's publicist, Arnold Lipsman. "Billy," says the publicist, who floats in endless orbit around the star like a human thought balloon, "is not happy."

Crystal is dressed like a Mississippi riverboat gambler so he can have his picture taken for a magazine cover, but the effect is somehow more Old Testament than Old West. He had arrived at the photographer's studio with his own idea about how the photo session would go, and it did not involve dressing up like Shecky Maverick of the Sageborscht Belt.

It also did not involve helping to promote any movie other than the one upon which Crystal has so much riding, "City Slickers: The Legend of Curly's Gold," which opened Friday. Clearly miserable, and surrounded on four sides by dance-hall girls in rose-colored dresses, Crystal knows it is up to him to bring this conceptual hothouse flower to life.

His face looks drawn, the mouth small and tight beneath a silt-thick layer of makeup that Crystal refers to as his "Eddie Munster look." At 47, he has permanent laugh lines around his eyes, the tributarial streams that — on a good day — would send ideas racing in a torrent across the vast emotional flood plain of his face and on through the broad crescent of his mouth.

On this morning, however, nothing. Crystal stands impassively on his mark, his face a blank. And yet, when his cue is given and the camera begins its relentless advance, Crystal's face undergoes a startling series of transformations. With each flash a new face emerges, each one modulated to say "funny" in a slightly different way from the one before. It is like watching "Mr. Sardonicus" on a Kinetoscope.

When the photo session is over, the light flickers out in Crystal's eyes, and the thought balloon drifts by once again, hovering for a moment. "If you tell Billy you loved his movie," Lipsman promises, "he'll be your friend for life."

When Billy Crystal was 4 or 5, he would put on overcoats that visiting aunts and uncles had thrown on his bed, climb up on the coffee table and do imitations of each coat's owner. If he was a hit, his relatives gave him dimes, which he then proceeded to stick to his forehead.

In a lot of ways, Crystal is still up on that table, working as hard as he can to be liked, then listening for the telltale rattle of pocket change. After two decades of chasing stardom in comedy clubs, he was propelled suddenly into the front rank of Hollywood's leading men by his work in two profitable comedies, "When Harry Met Sally ... " and "City Slickers."

When he took over as host of the Academy Awards show in 1990, he as-

Artistically, Black, Jackson lead pack

It's been five years now since everything changed in the world of country music.

It was 1989. The musical format was moving along in a slight creative rut when all of a sudden Garth Brooks and Clint Black popped on the scene, forever altering the landscape and future of country.

Patterson

The two biggies of that year have done quite nicely for themselves financially, and they have left an indelible mark in their chosen field. If they both quit today, their contributions would be remembered forever.

But how have they — and others who jumped on the bandwagon at about the same time — fared from an artistic standpoint?

How about some grades for artistic achievement as they pertain to traditionalism ...

Garth Brooks. Love him or hate him, he is nothing if not innovative and imaginative. He has taken country music to new levels, stretching the bounds of what makes a country song. Brooks has also made it possible for other fringe country artists to succeed from out of nowhere. His music has both stuck to tradition as well as shunned it, and his debut album remains one of the finest country albums you'll ever hear. Grade: B-plus.

Clint Black. He emerged just prior to Brooks, but was also quickly overshadowed by him. He can teach Brooks a thing or to about sticking to one's roots. His debut album, like Brooks', is a fine country work, and his fourth album shows that he still knows how to mix tradition with some first class production for what traditional music is supposed to sound like today. Grade: A.

Vince Gill. His "When I Call Your Name" is a country standard, and was even voted the No. 2 all-time country song by Entertainment Weekly, which may be overdoing it just a little. All his other songs, though, have begun to run together and it's sometimes difficult to immediately tell which one's which when the first few notes pour through the speaker. Sad that he has chosen to stay the course instead of branching out a wee bit. Grade: C-plus.

Alan Jackson. Like Black, he has stuck to traditionalism and stands to continue to reap bigtime recognition. His songwriting ability is above par and his stage presence is laid back, just like the good old days. "Don't Rock the Jukebox" is the grandest of achievements, and an upcoming release should instantly go to No. 1. The first song off the new album, "Summertime Blues," could be the biggest hit of the cended to the lofty title conferred upon him by David Letterman: Mr. Show Business.

CRYSTAL: Actor has ascended to lofty title of Mr. Show Business

(From 1C)

Given the box-office clout to make almost any movie he wanted after the success of "City Slickers" in 1991, Crystal chose the story of an embittered old Jewish comic named Buddy Young Jr., a character he had been doing in his stand-up act for 10 years.

It came as no surprise to Rob Reiner, Crystal's longtime friend and the director of three of his movies, that the comic was thinking about growing old, a recurring theme in his work.

"He has a tremendous affinity for older people," Reiner says. "I think he views himself that way, as an old soul. Of course, it tends to put a crimp into your enjoyment of life when you always think you're going to be dead soon."

"Mr. Saturday Night," it turned out, was seven decades of Kvetch a Rising Star, and seemed every minute of it. The world stayed home.

"I can't imagine working any harder or loving anything more than I loved making that movie," he says. "The pain I felt when it didn't do well I'm just getting over now. Coming off two movies that each made about $100 million, it was stunning to me when this one didn't — because I felt that it was better than those were."

The reviews were mixed, but the rejection was almost total, and if Crystal took it personally, he had every right to. He had co-written the movie, produced it, directed it and starred in it. And far from making $100 million, he walked away from "Mr. Saturday Night" with only dimes stuck to his forehead.

"I think the audience's feeling was, where's the cow, where's the horse?" Crystal says. "And I got a little mad. Do they only want to see me do one thing? I think what I felt was that they didn't trust me. I took a gigantic leap, so why can't they take a chance?"

The new "City Slickers" has the appearance of a retreat to the safe ground of self-actualizing trail rides, another gunfight at the I'm O.K., You're O.K. Corral. But if the instruction to Crystal's character, Mitch Robbins, in the original movie was to "go find your smile," in the sequel it is to go find millions in gold so you never have to do another honest day's work for the rest of your life.

A sort of Iron John meets Auric Goldfinger. It may be the first movie to express a distinct nostalgia for the 80s.

"I know he likes to have success," Reiner says. "I think he's very aware of that, and maybe it had something to do with his reason for doing the movie. I think even now he's always afraid the next picture is not going to be a success, that it's all going to be taken away from him."

Crystal says: "I was not looking to do a sequel because if I did, knowing me, I would have done 'Mr. Sunday Morning': bitter Jewish comic blows up Midwestern theaters. The studio wanted one very badly, but I felt it would have to be a really provocative idea. Then one day I came in with the 'Treasure of the Sierre Madre' notion, and it just felt fresh."

The John Huston classic about gold prospectors brought to ruin by greed was released in 1948, the year Crystal was born.

Intent on exercising full control over the second "City Slickers" without actually directing it, Crystal produced the film, was its co-writer and chose Paul Weiland, an Englishman known primarily for making television commercials, to direct.

There was never any doubt, at least in Crystal's mind, who was in charge. "I found myself struggling to get all the pieces I thought were right for the movie, whether Paul agreed with them or not sometimes," he says. "I just felt that I wanted certain moments, and I knew that by having final cut of the picture, I would get everything I needed."

Speaking from his London office, Weiland said: "You're trying to find out whether I was really on this movie, aren't you? Well, Billy Crystal never told me to move a camera, and I ended up with the movie I wanted. If Billy wants to give the impression that he did everything, there's not a lot I can do about it."

For Crystal, it was important to erase the failure he had with "Mr. Saturday Night," if only from his own mind. "It was a fairly intense shoot," said Weiland. "Obviously 'Mr. Saturday Night' not being a sucessful venture, it was hugely important to him that this one be a success."

SLICKERS: Direction out West brings memories of older style

awakens city boy Crystal's old desire to play cowboy. Palance figures in early, too, although he does not emerge as a full-blown character until somewhat later. The triggering gimmick is a map that tells of a buried fortune, quicker than you can say "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre."

Director Paul Weiland does little to enliven the city-folks business at the beginning, but once the scene changes to 'way-out-West his approach becomes more stylistically reminiscent of our better frontier directors, from John Ford to Walter Hill: If "Slickers II" didn't have to be a comedy, Weiland would probably make it a bona fide western.

Although Crystal's is the least showy performance, it also is the film's binding tie to the combination of uproariousness and poignance that defines classic-manner Hollywood comedy. Crystal allows himself some rich moments of anxiety, but devotes his greater energies to making sure that his fellow players get a generous showcase.

Especially Jack Palance — who transforms what would be merely a genial fish-out-of-water story into something nearer a mythic frontier picture.

PATTERSON: Ketchum a breath of fresh air

(From 1C)

hot months ahead. The Georgie-born singer, too, has done throw away songs ("Mercury Blues," and the overrated "Chattahoochee") but who hasn't? Grade: A.

Reba McEntire. She was around long before 1989's resurgence. And she was much better in the dark ages of the early- and mid-80s. Her trademark hiccup has turned her into almost a charicature of herself at times, but still she cranks out above-average stuff — with the exception of "Take it Back" and "Why Haven't I Heard from You," two songs that are essentially identical. Grade: B-plus.

Mary-Chapin Carpenter. She is not, first of all, the most traditional country recording artist around, but her mix of folk with her own type of country makes her somewhat irresistable. With six or seven cuts off her 1991 album "Come On, Come On" she should only grow in stature, and that's something we should all be able to live with. Grade: A.

Travis Tritt. Started with a bit of an artistic whimper, but has grown by leaps and bounds over the last three years and is now one of the biggest names in the business. Southern-fried country and one of the most distinctive voices in the field make Tritt a big name. But do we really need an autobiography from him? I mean, what is there to say? Grade: B-plus.

Shenandoah. Their songs were all starting to run together until the clever back-to-back "Love Slave" and "If Bubba Can Dance." Still, their stuff is mostly cookie-cutter and largely forgettable. Grade: C.

Hal Ketchum. Formerly based in Austin, Ketchum has yet to break out big, but from "Small Town Saturday Night" to his latest release "Tonight We Just Might Fall In Love Again," his recordings have been a breath of fresh air. Grade: A-minus.

Billy Dean. Who let this guy in the door? Grade: F.

Mark Chesnutt. Another Texas-based artist appreciative of his country roots, his upcoming duet with Waylon Jennings on Waymore's '70's hit "Rainy Day Woman" is much anticipated. Grade: A-minus.

Brooks & Dunn. Since the success of their largely average debut album, these guys have teetered on the brink of letting success go to their heads. They do manage to put out music that stays somewhat true to tradition, though. As big a hit as it was, "Hard Workin' Man" was a blatant example of capitalizing on their fame by attempting to appeal to the working class, something they're not a part of. Grade: B-minus.

Pam Tillis. A bright spot in the women's catgory, she continues to get better and better with each release. She has "major star" written all over her. Now if only everyone else would see the light. Grade: A-minus.

STUDIOS: Disney should have successful summer

(From 1C)

and "Blank Check."

Disney should enjoy a busy summer, thanks mostly to its new animated film, "The Lion King." The impact of this movie cannot be measured at the box office alone: Like "Aladdin," "The Lion King" should generate millions of profits from merchandise and the soundtrack album. Producer Joe Roth, who flopped with "Angie," will return with "I Love Trouble," starring Julia Roberts and Nick Nolte. Disney also is releasing Roth's remake of "Angels in the Outfield" starring Danny Glover; Bruce Willis in the steamy "Color of Night"; and Danny De Vito in "Renaissance Man," which made $5.6 million in its debut over the weekend.

Score: B-. Summer potential: A.

MGM: In the midst of a top-to-bottom overhaul, MGM is almost finished releasing movies produced by previous management. It's just as well, since few of these holdovers have performed. Both "Clean Slate" and "That's Entertainment III" disappeared quickly this spring.

MGM has stepped up production and will release three movies this summer: Macaulay Culkin in "Getting Even With Dad," Jeff Bridges and Tommy Lee Jones in "Blown Away" and Charles Grodin in "It Runs in the Family." "Blown Away" faces formidable competition as an action film, but MGM is confident.

Score: F. Summer potential: C.

PARAMOUNT: Virtually silent through the spring, Paramount released "Naked Gun 33 1/3" with some returns and bombed with "Jimmy Hollywood." Its first summer film, "Beverly Hills Cop 3," opened weakly, and may not last long.

Before new owner Viacom starts panicking, however, Paramount has a solid summer lineup. It is anchored by Tom Hanks in "Forrest Gump," Harrison Ford in "Clear and Present Danger" and the seal story "Andre." The crapshoot is a movie version of "Lassie."

Score: D. Summer potential: A-.

TRISTAR: "Guarding Tess" is TriStar's most successful film — and it's hardly a leader. It's made a mild $26.6 million to date. Everything else pretty much fizzled: "Threesome," "Cops and Robbersons" and "3 Ninjas Kick Back."

TriStar's summer lineup is thin with some potential. Andrew Bergman, who directed "Honeymoon in Vegas," returns with the comedy "It Could Happen to You." With "Wagons East," TriStar's challenge is selling a comedy whose star — John Candy — died making it.

Score: D. Potential: D+.

20TH CENTURY FOX: Fox is betting heavily on Keanu Reeves — and fortunately for Fox he's not playing Buddha in their movie. Reeves' action film, "Speed," moved up two months because Fox executives like it so much, could be a summer hit. Fox also has the $100 million-plus "True Lies," the latest from the "Terminator" actor-director team of Arnold Schwarzenegger and James Cameron.

Later this summer, Fox has "Airheads," described as a "Dog Day Afternoon" in a heavy metal radio station.

Fox needs a good summer season. Its early 1994 releases — including "Sugar Hill," "Bad Girls," "PCU" and "Ghost in the Machine" — have failed miserably.

Score: F. Potential: B+.

UNIVERSAL: The media may never give "The Flintstones" the credit it deserves, but the film did kick off the summer season with a huge opening of $37.2 million and had earned $62.5 million in just two weeks.

Universal needed it, too: The studio's spring release "The Paper" made $35.1 million but underperformed. Director Spike Lee, who made "Crooklyn," is better embarrassing himself at basketball games than making money at the box office. "Crooklyn" has brought in a lifeless $10.2 million.

Universal has three releases this summer: Woody Harrelson's "The Cowboy Way," which made $5 million in its debut over the weekend, Alec Baldwin as "The Shadow" and a remake of the old Hal Roach movie series "Little Rascals." A fourth planned summer film, Meryl Streep's action film "The River Wild," has been pushed back until the fall. It's either bold scheduling or panic.

Score: C. Potential: B+.

WARNER BROS.: Consistently Hollywood's top studio, Warners had an uneven spring: Michael Jordan had more baseball hits than "Being Human" had paying customers. But "Ace Ventura: Pet Detective" did gross more than $71 million, and "Maverick" is playing very well with $55.5 million in ticket sales in three weeks.

The big problem at the Burbank studio is trying to guess which of its summer films will be the most popular: Kevin Costner in the Western "Wyatt Earp," Susan Sarandon in "The Client" or the horse film "Black Beauty."

Score: B-. Potential: A-.

TRAILERS: Oscar-like chocolates served at a pre-Oscar party thrown by Columbia TriStar Motion Picture chairman Mark Canton have drawn the ire of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The academy has sued the candy maker who supplied Canton with the favors, claiming copyright infringement.

'Speed' a savvy, breathless film

By Janet Maslin
N.Y. Times News Service

At the time of year when Hollywood traditionally bludgeons its audience back into the Stone Age (sobering statistic: the witless "Flintstones" made as much money in its first weekend as "Four Weddings and a Funeral" has earned in the United States in three months), you can still pick your poison.

The summertime no-brainer needn't be entirely without brains. It can be as savvy as "Speed," the runaway-bus movie that delivers wall-to-wall action, a feat that's never as easy as it seems. This film's dialogue isn't much more literate than a bus schedule, but its plotting is smart and breathless enough to make up for that.

■ 'Speed' is playing at the UA Cine 4.

"Speed" presents a falling elevator, a hijacked subway train, the above-mentioned bus and Jack Traven (Keanu Reeves), the Los Angeles Police Department trouble-shooter whose business is solving such problems.

This role, for Reeves, is less an acting challenge than a rite of passage. It's a means of proving that he's ready to play the tough guy in suitably grim, purposeful style.

Better known for comic nonchalance than for killer machismo, the newly bulked-up Reeves still furrows his brow manfully and winds up doing a terrific job. Blank as he sometimes seems, he has still become an actor of real charisma, even when he's treated as a found object ("Little Buddha") or given a career-torpedoing role ("Even Cowgirls Get the Blues").

As directed with no-frills efficiency by Jan De Bont, the cinematographer on films including "Die Hard," "Basic Instinct" and "Black Rain," "Speed" takes its cue from its title.

This film's sole objective is to keep moving, preferably at a pace that keeps the viewer from asking questions. Action is everything, as when Traven makes his first entrance in a police car that seems to leap through the air.

Once the car stops, the camera circles excitedly around Traven and his partner, Harry Temple (Jeff Daniels), who have screeched up to a high-rise to settle that elevator situation. Fast, kinetic shots like these are the cinematic equivalent of junk food, which is not to say that their empty calories are unsatisfying.

Dennis Hopper, playing the first mad bomber of the summer, is Howard Payne, who stabs an innocent security guard ("Nothing personal!") in the film's opening moments. Howard has cut the elevator's cables and wired the car to explode on cue, hoping to extort money in exchange for the passengers' safety.

Graham Yost's screenplay pays more attention to ingenious trickery than to giving each bus passenger more than, say, one distinguishing characteristic. But that suits a story whose overriding lesson, in the words of the LAPD, is as simple as this: "Don't get dead." "Speed" is rated R (Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian). It includes profanity, violence and (under the circumstances) relatively little gore.

WW 2: Far from funny

N.Y. Times News Service

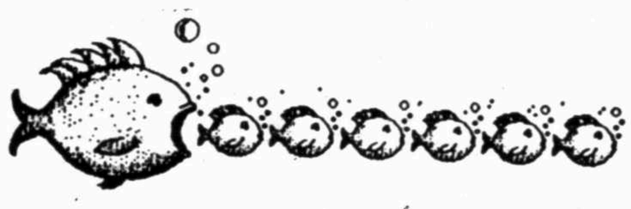

"Wayne's World 2" was not worthy of the first "Wayne's World."

But then I had problems with the first feature-length go-around with Wayne Campbell and Garth Algar, those mindless twin souls who are living proof of the dumbing of America.

■ Home Video

On Saturday Night Live, Wayne (Mike Myers) and Garth (Dana Carvey) were tolerable as working-class ingrates. You knew they'd only be on for a short skit and then be off with no harm done. More or less.

Ministers of comedy leave them laughing for the Lord

By David Briggs
AP religion writer

Take 60 dour-faced Presbyterians, then have them touch their knees and toes together, stick their tongues out and sway back and forth, all the while warbling "Singing in the Rain."

It's all in a day's fun — er, work — for Sister Mary Christelle McAluso, who earlier this month inducted 4,000 people into the so-called Order of the Fun Nun at a national conference of religious educators.

Their initiation was to recite "Mary Had A Little Lamb" with their right index fingers on the nose of the person to their right and their left index fingers on the nose of the person on the other side.

As you might guess from her tactics, religious comics like McAluso, who bills herself as "The Fun Nun," are a different breed. They eschew the staples of some contemporary comedians — cruelty, profanity and cynicism — in favor of a brand of humor that enourages people to find joy in the human condition, laughing along with and not at each other.

What they strive for, whether by leading the faithful in bunny hops across church basements or in humorous newsletters, is a view of life featuring laughter as a form of salvation.

Religious comedy is not their job: It is a vocation.

In McAluso's theological world view, God is unfathomable love. When she helps another person feel better, she says, she receives a joy beyond human understanding.

It doesn't matter if it's 60 people at a small church or 4,000 people at the national conference in Anaheim, Calif., says McAluso, a Sister of Mercy at the College of St. Mary in Omaha.

"If I've been able to make one other human being smile," she says, "my life on this Earth has been well-rewarded."

Liz Curtis Higgs slept with more men than she could count, and used alcohol and drugs with abandon during her "lost decade," starting at age 17, before she made a commitment to Christianity.

Since that day in 1982, coffee has been her strongest stimulant and she is happily married with two children.

That she changed her life around wasn't the surprising part. What she didn't realize, she says, is that being religious could be so much fun.

"I think the Lord gave me a sense of joy again, and a purpose, and that helped me laugh more," says Higgs, a comic writer and speaker based in Louisville, Ky. "When you clean out a lot of areas of your life, your laughter can be a lot more genuine, and not a cover-up."

In her frank book "One Size Fits All and Other Fables," Higgs holds little back as she talks about the dieting roller coaster she climbed onto at age 10 and the related problems of self-esteem that led her to seek affirmation in casual sex and alcohol abuse.

"I really felt like I lost my sense of humor. Life wasn't fun for me. I really began to get depressed," she says.

Religious comics are a different breed, favor humor that encourages joy, laughter rather than profanity, cynicism.

Today, the comedian from the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) is an unapologetic size 22 who bills herself as "a big, beautiful woman in a narrow, nervous world."

In her act, she tosses off one-liners such as: "My body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, and he just started a building program that got out of hand."

Higgs says she discovered that as her self-confidence grew, so did her ability to laugh at herself and the world around her.

When she speaks to churches around the country in programs that are half comedy and half inspirational, her topics range from heroic women of faith to the beauty God sees in each person.

Her comedy — like her life — is not "Pollyannish," but it does convey a sense of hope for the future, Higgs says.

With her belief in the resurrection of Jesus, Higgs says she takes her attitude toward life from the 31st chapter of the Book of Proverbs: "Strength and dignity are her clothing, and she laughs at the time to come."

A sense of humor has never been more critical for clergy, says the Rev. Ronald Weinelt, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church in Rincon, Ga.

Low pay and long hours are two traditions churches have clung to when other barriers fell. Now, have come the added indignities of being broadly tarred with the brush of sex-abuse scandals and being placed under greater pressure to attract new members in a weak economy.

Add the natural tendency of clergy to sacrifice their lives for others, and of congregations and denominational leaders to encourage workaholism, and being a minister has turned into a "brutal occupation," Weinelt says.

"Instead of getting strokes," he says, "we're getting kicked in the you-know-what for trying so hard."

The son of an alcoholic, Weinelt says he had to make a choice whether to rage in self-pity at the extraordinary demands placed on clergy or "look at myself and say how silly and funny it is."

His response was to form the Association of Battered Clergy, a support group that offers broad doses of humor to help the healers help themselves.

The association's newsletter, The Parish Chute, dispenses advice on topics ranging from the politically correct way to refer to a eunuch — "gonadically impaired person" — to ecclesiastical oxymorons such as "yuppie pastor."

If some of the humor has a hard edge ... well, that's life, he says. And it helps relieve the stress.

"There's no way I would be able to survive it," Weinelt says, "if I wasn't able to laugh at what happens."

Merrilyn Belgum spent 41 years in social work before changing careers nine years ago after a tryout in a comedy club. One thousand performances later, the 69-year-old "Swedish Lutheran feminist" comic believes she made the right decision.

"It's a truly divine gift, probably the only really divine gift that we have," Belgum says. "To really live, you have to breathe in the humor of your life situation."

Those are not declarations she makes lightly.

Methodists adopt health-care resolution

Staff Report

The 85th session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church voted to adopt a resolution supporting a call for health-care reform, but decided against endorsing any specific plan.

In a discussion that resembled the debate over health-care in the United States, delegates pointed out many of the pros and cons of supporting a specific plan or in adopting any resolutions. However, the majority of delegates felt it was necessary to go on record in supporting a health-care reform resolution in principle.

The resolution called for a national health-care system that provides universal coverage; provides persons with comprehensive benefits — including preventive services and health promotion, primary and acute care, extended care and rehabilitation, and mental health care; has financial support drawn from the broadest possible resource base based on the ability to pay; significantly curbs the rapid inflation in the costs of providing medical services; and guarantees access to care to rural and inner city areas of the nation.

"The concern of the United Methodist Church for health care is rooted in our biblical understanding that salvation embraces wholeness of mind, body and spirit," the resolution said.

"(Methodist founder) John Wesley was always deeply concerned about health care, providing medical services at no cost to the poor in London and emphasizing preventive care."

Also at the conference, 15 persons were ordained.

Future world conflicts may be cultural

By Peter Steinfels
N.Y. Times News Service

In tomorrow's world politics, the fundamental conflicts will not be ideological or economic but cultural. The battle lines of the future will be drawn not primarily between states but between civilizations, those broad cultural entities defined by history, language, ethnicity and, above all, by religion.

That is the thesis of Samuel P. Huntington, professor of political science and director of the John M. Olin Institute for Strategic Studies at Harvard. It was published in an article titled "The Clash of Civilizations?" in last summer's issue of Foreign Affairs, and the thesis has been lauded and debated for almost a year.

Huntington is in search of a framework that will capture the next phase of world politics just as the concept of the Cold War did for the last half-century.

He describes seven or eight contending civilizations — Western, Confucian, Japanese, Islamic, Hindu, Slavic-Orthodox, Latin American and (he isn't quite sure) possibly African.

They are each marked, he says, by different understandings not only of the relations between God and humankind but of those between parents and children, citizens and state and freedom and authority.

Contrary to the belief that growing interaction among these civilizations should reduce these differences, he believes that it often stirs awareness of them, reviving and exacerbating old animosities.

Modern economic and social disruption is weakening the nation state as a source of people's identity, he notes, and "religion has moved in to fill this gap."

Unable to mobilize support behind now-exhausted ideologies, rulers and their rivals increasingly appeal to ethnic and religious identities, and "even more than ethnicity," he writes, "religion discriminates sharply and exclusively among people."

The West is in an especially vulnerable position, he says. Western products and popular culture fascinate the world's masses but often repel the elites. Anti-Western fundamentalism flourishes not among the most backward but among the young, educated and technologically sophisticated.

On the basis of this analysis, Huntington sketches a map of future conflicts. The fault line between Western Catholic and Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Christianity, for instance, runs through Bosnia.

Other fault lines divide the Orthodox and Islamic civilizations in the Caucasus and Central Asia, the Christian and Muslim sections of Africa, Muslims and Hindus in the Asian subcontinent.

Last fall, Foreign Affairs published replies to this thesis, and some were very blunt.

"Huntington is wrong," declared Fouad Ajami, the well-known political analyst and professor of Middle Eastern studies at Johns Hopkins University. Modernity, secularism, Westernization, the nation-state system and balance-of-power politics are advanced and irreversible, he said.

Nations are scrambling for market shares, not "civilizational ties," Ajami said.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your fate will be linked to the partners you choose. Select business associates with extra care. In the fall, an older person will offer financial backing for your ideas. Recognize that there will be certain strings attached! An end-of-the-year vacation gives you a new lease on life. When mortgage rates are low in 1995, do everything you can to purchase a home. Next spring, business success will come from venturing into new territories. An unusual job assignment brings prestige and perks.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: marine biologist Dr. Jacques Cousteau, actress Adrienne Barbeau, quarterback great Joe Montana, opera's Rise Stevens.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will be moving around more than usual today. A work matter may take you to a distant location. Expect the unexpected! Although change appeals to you now, it can still cause some pain. Be strong.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Confusion could reign early today. Give top priority to essential tasks, revising your schedule to fit your needs. Family members are unusually understanding if you must cancel certain social plans.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Deal with financial matters in an organized manner. Hang on to any extra cash. If you must work or study at home today, seek a quiet, out-of-the-way place. Romance beckons tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Use any spare time constructively instead of frittering it away. Listen carefully to the problems of a teenager before expressing your views.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Expect some disagreements with family members over finances. Your mate may feel that you are overly extravagant. Now is not the time to spend jointly-owned funds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Changes are needed at home. Disregard the advice of friends and follow your heart. Share household chores with family members. Giving school-age children a weekly allowance will help them learn addition and subtraction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take care of important errands or chores before mid-day. After lunch, your helpers could pull a disappearing act! Family expenses are on the rise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have a tendency to follow others' advice without checking facts or figures. Avoid taking financial risks. Find things out for yourself! Loved ones will respect you more.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family members are difficult to figure out today. They may say one thing and mean another. Pursue solo endeavors. Joint activities could prove unsatisfying.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You need to take more time when making financial and personal decisions. Curb an urge to splurge. Trying to buy someone's affections is always a mistake. Have more faith in your charms.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take advantage of an opportunity to right a wrong connected to family life. You will feel much better about yourself! Do everything possible to mend a broken relationship; it is more important than ever.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Try a fresh approach with people you have been unable to contact. Picking up the threads of the past serves a useful purpose. An investment shows new signs of life!

TODAY'S CHILDREN are intelligent, industrious and restless. Although they are risk-takers, often bouncing from one job to another, these Gemini always seem to find well-paid employment.

Spielberg agrees to develop children's computer software

LOS ANGELES — Steven Spielberg is turning his attention from the big screen to the computer screen.

The Oscar-winning director has agreed to help Knowledge Adventure Inc. develop educational computer software for children. Terms of the deal were not released.

Spielberg said he was impressed with the company's founder and chairman, Bill Gross.

"Our sons are about the same age, and we are both devoting our energies to creating great experiences for them," Spielberg said in a statement. "I'm anxious to participate in innovative, enriching educational software."

Spielberg's movies often have relied on sophisticated technology. Some of the dinosaurs in "Jurassic Park" were computer-generated.

DALLAS — Paul Simon came homeward bound to raise money for AIDS research.

Paul Simon to headline benefit show today for AIDS.

Simon was scheduled to headline a benefit show today in Dallas, the hometown of his wife, singer Edie Brickell.

"People have a responsibility to contribute to the community they live in ... especially if you have the ability to have some kind of impact," Simon said at a news conference Thursday. "I think that's a responsibility you carry with you."

Tickets for the sold-out show went for as much as $25,000. The show has so far raised $900,000.

Simon said the trip was also a good opportunity to "get the grandparents to babysit." He and Brickell have a 17-month-old son.

BRANSON, Mo. — Take my gig. Please. That's comedian David Brenner's newest line, and it's no joke.

Brenner canceled his three-month stint in Branson after only about a dozen performances.

"He's a city guy. He got to a point where he thought this wasn't the place for him," said Kent Emmons, owner of the Ozark Theatre. "I think the people here were too slow for him."

Ticket sales were slow, too. The theater holds 1,300 people, but the largest crowd for Brenner's "Super Summer Spectacular" — which also includes a magician, motorcycle stunts and a Hula Hoop champion — was about 400 people.

Brenner's radio show on the Mutual-Westwood One network was scheduled to debut Monday in Branson. The show will debut from New York instead, Westwood One spokeswoman Lori Peters said.

MINNEAPOLIS — The entertainer formerly known as Prince has bought a 107-year-old building formerly known as a porn palace.

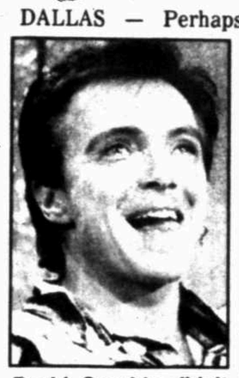

The rock star — who changed his name to an unpronounceable symbol — paid $185,000 for the four-story building, but there's no word yet on what he plans to do with it.

"I think everybody thinks we're hiding something," said Kim Carlson, a consultant to Paisley Park Enterprises. "But we're not. We just don't have any immediate plans."

Carlson said the newly purchased building "lends itself to the kind of creativity that Paisley Park is known for."

DALLAS — Perhaps David Cassidy should title his next book, "C'mon, Get Lost."

David Cassidy didn't let anyone get too close at recent book signing.

A few hundred middle-aged fans came to Cassidy's book-signing Thursday, but the former Patridge family member didn't let anyone get too close.

He refused to sign anything but copies of his new book, "C'mon Get Happy." He wouldn't permit anyone behind his table to pose for photographs. And he insisted that autograph-seekers have their names written on Post-it notes so that he could copy them down.

Teams of thieves showed up outside Jacqueline Onassis' apartment last month, says the New York Observer, and stole camera equipment amassed there by TV crews on the job.

A ring of camera thieves has been operating for months in New York and Washington, says the Observer. CNN News Source photographer Chris Cram said cameras stolen from CNN offices were resold by the thieves "to groups making pornographic movies."

On the scene of a news story, said Cram, the photographer is prey. "You have to keep your eye on your equipment."

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:
- ★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
- ★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
- ★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- ★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?

A small deposit is required.
