WAR CLOUDS THREATEN SOUTH EUROPE

TURKEY WORRIED BY WAR RUMOR STARTS DEFENSE

MUSSOLINI'S THREAT IS CAUSE OF CALL TO
YOUNG MEN

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Apr. 19. —Turkey's new levy of army conscripts is causing general speculation and is regarded in various quarters as giving substance to recent rumors of contemplated Italian or Italo-Greek aggression at Turkey's expense.

Turkey is calling up the military classes of men of twenty-one to twenty-two years of age and all the reserve men from 23 to 26. The urgent action of the Turkish government is said to be caused by considerable nervousness among people of Turkey.

Smoke Indicates Fire

While there is nothing concrete on which to base fears of an attack on Turkey, in political circles the opinion is advanced that smoke indicates the presence of fire and Turkey's action in increasing the peace footing of her army consequently is considered highly suggestive of danger.

Premier Mussolini's recent speeches and his reference in February to Italy's "Napoleonic year" is being interpreted, not only in Turkey, as seriously aggressive and as suggesting an intention to achieve colonial expansion in Anatolia, which is declared to be the duke's aim.

From Ankara, the Turkish capital, come reports that everyone has been following closely Mussolini's voyage to Tripoli and the general political situation, and that Turkey has not failed to take note of the Italian's preparations. The Constantinople newspapers decline to believe that Italy would make an unprovoked attack on Turkey but nevertheless, they express satisfaction that the Turkish government is taking all necessary precautions.

Greece Is Drawn In

Recently London newspapers have printed rumors of an alleged design by Mussolini to enlist the support of Greece for his imperial ambitions. These rumors alleged that Greece through long credit contracts with Italy, would purchase rifles, tanks and other munitions which could be used against Turkey in Thrace while Mussolini was taking action in Asia-Minor.

Mussolini Scored By U. S. Senators

WASHINGTON, April 19. (AP)—The policies and aspirations of Premier Mussolini came under attack again today in the senate. Approval of the Italian war debt settlement, Senator Walsh, democrat, of Montana, declared, would "simply assist Mussolini, supreme dictator, to arrange his finances so that he may precipitate another war or bluster about until the fear of such purposes in general, strengthening his position at home through concessions wrung from feeble, war-worn neighbors that yield to the dread of a renewal of the carnage of which they have such ghastly memories."

"The Tripoli speech," the Montana senator continued, "bristles with belittling the Kaiser never rattled his sabre more ominously. He usually brandished his sword against imaginary enemies about to or yearning to invade the fatherland. Mussolini's bugle blast is a call to conquest, to attack, not defense."

Newspapermen Open New York Meeting

NEW YORK, April 19. (AP)—Newspaper publishers from all sections of the country were here today for the annual meetings of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. Members of the Associated Press held a preliminary meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria this afternoon. The regular annual session starts at 11 a. m. Tuesday. Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, will be the principal speaker at the annual luncheon at 1 o'clock Tuesday. The meetings of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association start Wednesday at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

A dozen people, including two women, have offered to sell him their legs. He expects to get money to pay for the new limb by selling movie rights to the operation.

UNION MEN HEAR TEXAS GOVERNOR

Lubbock Delegation, Composed Of Eleven Persons, Invite 1927 Meeting Here

With nine members of Lubbock unions present, the state Federation of Labor convention opened in Houston this morning. The delegation from this city went to the southeast Texas metropolis prepared to bring home with them the convention for next year, and, armed with statistics, messages of welcome from various civic organizations and the spirit of Lubbock, will bid fair to reach their objective, labor leaders here said today.

Chief among the events of the first day's program was an opening address, delivered by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, which follows below. Tomorrow the Daily Journal will print a special paper, giving Lubbock's official invitation to the labor leaders of Texas to meet here next year, and the special edition will be rushed to Houston by express, in time for the local representatives to pass copies to all those present.

Mrs. Ferguson's speech to the convention follows:

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Apr. 19. —The purpose of organized labor always has been, is now and is declared to be for the future, to benefit men, women and children, make better their present conditions and brighter their promises for the future. Governor Ferguson told the opening session of the State Federation of Labor in convention here today. She said the outstanding accomplishment of organized labor in the last 25 years has been to commit the government, states and individuals to the eight hour law for those who work. The chief benefit from the law, she said, is that it enables the laboring man to read and study and think and cultivate his mind.

NATIVE PRAYERS FAIL TO DIVERT COURSE OF LAVA

MAUNO LOA ERUPTS WITH GREAT DAMAGE; THE
"GODS" HELPLESS

(By The Associated Press)
HILLO, T. H. Apr. 19. —Leaving a village buried in its wake, a stream of lava continued to shoot forth from the volcano, Mauno Loa yesterday, leaving a fiery path from the 8,000 foot level of the crater down to the sea.

Engulfed under 50 feet of lava, the community of Hoonoia was covered by the molten mass. Fifteen buildings were destroyed. Then the racing mass boomed its path to the sea sending forth a charge of steam as it struck the water. As the lava continued to pour into the sea the ocean started boiling until it was building several hundred feet out from land.

Prayers Are Useless

The rampaging volcano turned a deadly in the groves of old Hawaiian kahuna who imported Pele, a Hawaiian goddess associated with the volcano. Kilauea, not to destroy their homes.

The volcano, situated in the Hawaiian national park, belched forth a fiery stream which in four days made the sea level.

From the sea, the air and the land, thousands viewed the colorful display. Army aeroplanes arrived a few hours after the village was wiped out but the view from the air was obscured by the dense steam and smoke. The heat, at an elevation of 3,000 feet was described as "intense," but the air men succeeded in obtaining some pictures.

Stream Covers Wide Area

Fuge clouds of steam hung over the sea rising to a height of several hundred feet. As the lava struck the water tremendous rockets of steam would shoot into the air showering the entire region about the bay.

Last night this great highway of fire was coursing its way along the southern coast of the island into the sea churning the blue waters of the calm Pacific into searers of steam and gradually creating a new peninsula which will go down into the permanent history of the record of Mauno Loa's 1926 eruption.

Last night of a steamer anchored in the bay, the Hawaiian was converted that the heavens had opened and like some colossal super inferno to spill a channel of molten rock down the slopes of a great mountain into the sea.

Journal News Reel

Mauna Loa, Hawaiian volcano, buries village as streams of lava rolls from hills to coast. Europe excited as result of war rumor and alleged coalition between Greece and Italy against Turkey. Eight killed and 19 injured in series of fires in Chicago. Bishop James Cannon, Jr., head of the Methodist Church South, appears as first witness for drys in Prohibition hearing at Washington. Nine Lubbock union leaders on hand in Houston as Labor convention gets under way and indications are that Lubbock will secure 1927 convention. Miss Frances Harris and E. E. Fogelson, Saturday night auto crash victims, both pass very day and hope is held for Miss Harris' recovery. Tommy Thompson, friend of both Miss Harris and Mr. Fogelson, a Tulsa oil man, arrives here today by airplane. I. C. C. meet here O. K'ed for May third. Eight Lubbock doctors and one nurse attend national medical convention in Dallas.

NEW YORK—James M. Cox, who is up here from Miami, thinks we are a nation of hypocrites. The Catholic case for instance. He is glad he is out of notes. "The mass who out of public life is the most fortunate person, for the reason that it is a era of intellectual dishonesty and hypocrisy."

TIGHTEN UP ON RUM SMUGGLING

Great Britain's Aid In Plan
To Stop Booze Running To Be Help To America

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 19.—Coinciding with the renewal of discussion of further agreements with Great Britain for curbing rum smuggling, another administration measure was drawn up today to tighten the effectiveness of the present coast defense against contraband liquor.

The measure is the second piece of legislation sent to the capital this month with the endorsement of Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of enforcement, the other having been a proposal to revise the Volstead act to permit stricter administration.

Search Is Provided

The new proposals would give coast guard officers the right to search American vessels beyond the four league limit; permit exchange of 150 Liberty motors held by the treasury for a new flotilla of speed boats; authorize customs officers to refuse permits for small boats, evidently equipped for smuggling; provide for summary condemnation of liquor boats; permit government to employ retired military officers and men in enforcement work and effect a reciprocal arrangement forbidding importation of merchandise into this country which is regarded as contraband.

Beyond saying that a move is to be made shortly for a further agreement to stop the flow of liquor from England and her nearby possessions, government officials today would not discuss the international phase of the rum situation.

Five Indictments Returned Here Today

Five more indictments, bringing the total of the term to nineteen to date, were returned by the Lubbock county grand jury which opened its third session with law violations in the city and county for the April term of district court, Monday morning.

Four of today's indictments charged forgery, and the other charged removal of mortgaged property. Forgery apparently is playing a big part in proceedings of the inquisitorial body, for the bulk of the findings are in connection with alleged forgery.

METHODIST HEAD OF ANTISALOON LEAGUE SPEAKER

BISHOP CANNON, LEADER
OF M. E. S., CALLED TO TESTIFY

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Apr. 19. —Drys opened their first full week of hearings before the senate prohibition committee today by putting on the stand Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, who is chairman of the legislative committee of the Anti-Saloon league.

Tabulating the result of a questionnaire here sent to every minister and lay reader in his church, Bishop Cannon said there were few of the 112 thousand replies that did not insist upon more effective government control.

"The suggestions made to secure more effective enforcement of the law are 'naturally varied,' he said, 'but there are very few of the entire number who do not insist upon certain things.'

"Workers Must Believe In Law"

"First that to secure effective enforcement, the work must be committed to those who believe that the prohibition law is a good law, that it can and should be enforced as effectively as other laws of a similar nature, such as the narcotic drug act."

"Second, it is also insisted that, adequate salaries should be paid to secure such men as are qualified to enforce so important and difficult a law."

"Third, that whatever number of men are necessary to properly enforce the law in any section of the country, should be provided for that section."

"Fourth, that the government should appropriate whatever amount of money may be necessary to enforce the law."

"Fifth, that more stringent penalties should be inflicted upon violators of the law."

Speaks For Large Group

Bishop Cannon told the committee that he spoke for the third largest protestant denomination in the country, with a membership of over 2,600,000, with over 2,300,000 Sunday school pupils, and about 300,000 members of young peoples societies.

He gave it as his opinion that the law should be enforced in the wet sectors of the country at no matter what cost in men or money.

"To those opponents of prohibition, who are denouncing it because of corruption and graft in connection with the bootlegging traffic," he said, "we would commend a study of the horrible conditions in the pre-war prohibition days."

Saloon Is Scored

"In these days the saloon was the rendezvous, the harboring place, the recruiting station of vice and crime. Its allies were the gambling houses and the brothels. Its back parlors and its wine rooms were the avenues to debauchery and ruin of multiplied thousands of women and girls."

"The number of girls and boys ruined today by hip-pocket flasks are few indeed compared to the slaughter of the innocents in those days. The immorality of the present day arises."

Fire Damages Plant Of Amarillo Paper

AMARILLO, April 19. (AP)—Fire, resulting from a gas explosion in the basement, today caused damage estimated at $10,000 to the plant of the Amarillo News-Globe and suspended operations in the building for several hours. The press was put out of commission for the day, and today's issue of The Globe and tomorrow morning's issue of The News will be printed on a press in the old Globe building, used before the consolidation of the two papers. The two issues will be cut to eight pages each. The Associated Press operator was forced to receive today's news reports in the telephone exchange building.

LITTLE GIRLS' KNEES

Two little girls of 9 and 11 were sent home from their school in northern Ohio because they were socks.

The most well-meaning teacher explained the situation amiably enough and to her complete satisfaction: "Children never have worn socks out here. The older boys notice such things. A good teacher must think of moral effects upon her entire school."

Thus once more are children in infamy taught by a teacher, a civic leader, that the human body is a shameful thing.

Thus will two little girls, whose chubby knees always meant simply meant that to them and nothing more, become skirt tuggers and blush with self-consciousness when a knowing adult eye surveys their nether limbs.

We suggest that teachers who worry about the effect of bare knees upon "growing boys" spend their time and energy in teaching the boys to divert their minds into worthy channels.

But when a teacher assumes that little girls' knees are harbingers of evil, what can we expect from an adult citizenry which grows from boys and girls who go to school to such a viewpoint?

WISE—OR NOT?

Harold Seigelman of Chicago was such a good Charleston dancer that he quit high school to go into the dance business professionally.

Now, wait a minute before you pass judgment. He started right out and earned $150 a week. He has already cleaned up $2200, of which he has saved $1500. Now you can go ahead and say that education is worth more than money, perhaps, but.

He's using his money to help put his brother through dental college. Now tackle the task of deciding whether his move was a wise one or not.

SEEKING GOD

A certain Kansas jurist was found in his office the other day reading the Bible.

"Judge, what are you doing?" the caller asked, according to the Fort Scott correspondent of the Kansas City Star.

"I am hunting God," the jurist replied.

One wonders if some of the doubters and agnostics have sought God. "Seek, and ye shall find!"

OUR 90,000 BONFIRES

American forest week ought to be every week in this country. We are a prodigal nation, but the most enormous waste of all lies in the wanton destruction of our trees.

We write beautiful poems about trees, and then go out and leave a picnic fire burning in a forest. Fifty thousand forest fires rage annually.

The peak year of America's favorite outdoor sport of burning trees was in 1924, when 90,000 bonfires roared in the forests. Can you imagine 26,000,000 acres of burned out trees, their blackened limbs dark against the sky?

A burned out forest is the "abomination of desolation." What was so vast and beautiful, changed by carelessness into a charred skeleton!

Compared to the careless match of the 16 million people who seek recreation annually under the giant green shade, the fire and sword of the Tar-tar were a myth.

Journal Jabs

The joy that comes to a poor man who has unexpectedly inherited a large fortune, and the satisfaction which a man feels who has done some heroic and self-sacrificing deed of kindness, are distinctly different. The first dreams of the luxuries and pleasures which the money will buy, and of how he will get even with the snobs who slighted him in his days of poverty. His thoughts are of revenge. Not so the one whose deeds have transformed sad hearts into happy ones and wreathed in smiles the face of care. His joy is serene and silent.

A man should practice what he preaches and the average congregation of a country church make sure that the minister and his family shall practice economy.

It is queer how quickly a man's solicitude for the welfare of his country subsides when he is defeated for office.

Now Colonel Mitchell has another strong conviction about the air service.—Virginia-Pilot.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

ALL IS OUT OF JOINT TO THE EYES OF MENCKEN

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service-Writer.

WASHINGTON — "Free speech is safe; it pays," H. L. Mencken told me in a talk I had with him, at his home in Baltimore.

Indications are that he's going to have a chance to test this theory thoroughly. He's won the first round of his "Hatrack" fight but there may prove to be more to come.

The Postoffice Department has barred his "American Mercury" from the mails. Now, the postoffice department is different from a court or law, state or federal. It's pretty much a law unto itself.

Mencken, personally, is just like his magazine. He's a nice chap to meet, he's extremely interesting and he's hospitable and polite, but his conversation is one uninterrupted roar of the entire universe—not a single good thing in it, according to H. L.

If he ever does say a good word for anything, it invariably is preliminary to some qualification which makes it the reverse.

To illustrate: In this interview he gave to me, this country, he observed, is the most wonderful place on earth for making plenty of money easily. Sounds complimentary to the country, what? well, wait.

"Mind you," he added, "I think all this prosperity will blow up presently, but it will last my time."

The trouble with our music is it originates in New York where every one is in such a hurry.

Practice makes perfect. It takes quite a bit of practice to kiss like an amateur.

Accidents will happen. That's why there are so many different kinds of salads.

We don't know who will get the credit for cutting taxes. And we don't know who will get the cash.

Lots of bad things happen. But there are so many more bad things that don't happen.

ONE EXPLANATION IS THAT MY WIFE YANKED OUT THE MOST OF IT LIKE THIS! — TEE-HEE! — AND THE REST OF IT SHE TALKED OUT!!!

THESE WOMEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Who They Are:
HARRY MORTON, handsome, middle-aged, unmarried, attractive to women, who has lived in Peoria for 15 years without the women leaving either his past or his business. He has maintained an expensive apartment also in Chicago.
AUDREY MORTON, his adopted daughter, who is wildly in love with him.
NONA, a Chicago girl, who also is in love with him.
JOHN PARRISH, Morton's secretary.
Stricken and jealous because she sees Morton at a wild party, Audrey runs away from home. After a vain search, Morton gets word from Nona that she has news of Audrey. After midnight Morton and Parrish go to Nona's apartment, where she hands Morton a letter from the missing girl.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XIX
Parrish moved away as Morton pulled the letter from his envelope. "Nona," it began, "I have gone away from Mr. Morton's home. I am writing this because I believe I can trust you, even though you love him, too. Maybe it is to your advantage that I should be away, but Nona, I must ask you something. I asked you on the train the other night, but when I think it over, I do not believe you answered me. But I have seen Mr. Morton with you, and seen him other places, and I must know—I must! Please write to me here, Nona, and tell me truthfully—what are his relations with you? Are they the same as with his other women friends? I know this is a terrible thing for me to ask—but Nona, my heart is breaking! I can trust you never to say anything about this; I do not want him to know where I am, nor anything about me—now, anyway." Morton turned to Parrish.

A clatter of earthenware sounded kitchen and sit down," she said, dimpling.

The two men entered and were provided with kitchen chairs. They leaned against the wall and Morton idly talked to the servant, who, it appeared, was cook to the establishment.

Parrish said nothing but listened intently to the idle words his employer dropped. He looked at him wonderingly.

"Aren't you worried about Miss

Morton?" he whispered, as the girl left the room for a moment.

"Aren't you hungry?" returned Morton. "Well, we'll have breakfast before the regular time."

His prophecy proved to be correct.

The girl, returning, brought with her a box of eggs and a large slice of ham.

"It'll be an hour before regular breakfast," she said, "but I'll bet you are hungry. I'll just fry these eggs for you and make you some coffee and cook this ham and you can settle up with the missus when she comes downstairs."

Morton looked significantly at Parrish, who nodded. His own experience with women was limited, and he represented the easy familiarity of Morton toward the girl. However, he attendedly when the ham and eggs were set before him, and he drank three cups of the coffee that the girl had brewed.

Apparently she was not aware of his existence, other than that he was a man to be fed. She hovered over

Morton, though, provided him with fresh toast at the moment he had consumed his previous supply, and herself put sugar in his coffee cup.

She showed disappointment when he refused cream.

"This is the missus' special cream," she explained.

"I never take it—but you drink it for me," suggested Morton.

"Lord, she'd kill me!" the girl protested.

She seemed pleased, however, and stood watching Morton with eager attention as he consumed his leisurely breakfast.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, April 19. (P)—Foreign exchange irregular: Great Britain demand 4.85%; cables 4.86 3-16; 60 day bills on banks 4.81%; France demand 2.32%; cables 2.33. Italy demand 4.62; Belgium 3.65%; Germany 2.79; Tokyo 4.93%; Montreal 100.55%.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, April 19. (P)—Stock prices headed upward as trading was resumed today, with stock buying developing in a number of high priced issues such as General Electric, Woolworth, Allied Chemical and Texas Gulf Sulphur. Short covering continued to lift the motor shares but selling pressure was renewed against some of the oil, including the Standards of New Jersey and California.

Further strength was injected into the market by the buoyancy of the leading industrials for which short interests were eager bidders. With confidence partially restored, pool operations also were cautiously resumed in a few ordinarily inactive shares where special developments could be capitalized. Unusually heavy buying orders were executed in such specialties as Wright Aeronautical and Commercial Solvents "B". Meanwhile, United States Steel moved up a point and early gains of one to three points were registered by Woolworth, American Can, United States Distributing, Allied Chemical, Coca Cola, Baldwin and Pierce-Arrow preferred. United States Rubber and Armour "A" were among the isolated heavy spots. Foreign exchanges were steady with sterling quoted at $4.85 and 19-16 and French francs at 3.35 cents.

Cotton Markets

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, La. April 19. (P)—The cotton market opened easier owing to unfavorable Liverpool cables. First trades showed losses of four to eight points which was less than warranted by the course of Liverpool. The market soon became steady owing to the weather map showing signs of unsettled weather and after trading at 12.50 for May, 12.37 for July and 12.25 for October, rallied three to four points. The market was quiet and steady at the end of the first hour.

The market ruled steadier during the afternoon owing to predictions of frost for the eastern belt overnight and fears of unexpected weather in the morning. Prices while recovering 3 to 4 points from the low, remained within the earlier range and close to the final levels of Saturday.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 19. (P)—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 1 to 2 points under selling promoted by east Liverpool cables, talk of probable increased southern mill curtailment and a more favorable view of weather conditions.

Some sellers of last week, however, were disappointed at the weather situation, owing to continuation of low temperatures and while the outlook was for generally fair weather over the belt, there was covering and trade buying in new crop months. This steadied prices around 17.04 for October, with rallies of five or six points from the lowest. May selling at 15.56 and December at 15.74 at the end of the first hour, or about net unchanged to four points lower.

The detailed weather report showed higher maximum temperatures over the week-end than expected and tended to check the buying movement in the early afternoon. No selling pressure of consequence developed, however, and the market was dull but steady around 3 o'clock with May at 15.51 and October at 17.14 or net three points lower to one point higher.

The early demand for July around 17 cents, improved the tone of the market and later prices held steady. Low temperatures and reports in the south evidently disappointed sellers of late last week, and prices worked up a few points on covering. May selling around 15.61 and October 17.17 at midday, or one to five points net higher.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, April 19. (P)—Wheat scored a sharp early advance in price today after a wavering start. The advance resulted from reports of big European buying at Winnipeg both for immediate shipment as well as future delivery. The opening, 1/4c off to 1/2c up, May (new) $1.67 1/2 to $1.68 1/2 and July $1.44 to $1.44 1/2 was followed by a further setback in some cases and then by a general rise that carried May to $1.70 1/2 and July to $1.46 1/2.

Better weather tended to ease corn and oats. After opening 1/2c to 3/4c up, May 74 1/2, corn receded to below Saturday's finish. Oats started a shade to half cent higher, May 42 1/2 to 43 cents. Later the gains were wiped out. Provisions developed firmness, notwithstanding lower quotations on hogs.

Tech Matadors Open Here Today For Three Games With McMurry College Indians; Schedule Given

With prevailing weather conditions not the most conducive to the best effort of athletes Monday due to low ranging clouds and a cool wind that threatened rain most any time, the Tech College Matadors were in readiness early this afternoon to enter the field of battle against the McMurry College Indians in probably the first and only appearance of the Abilene team here this season.

The Indians will be cocked and primed for a real battle in an effort to draw revenge from the two game defeat which they drew at the hands of the Matadors last week on their own lot. The Indians are admittedly weak pitching, but call to make up this shortage on fielding performance and hitting. The Indians constitute a hustling ball club, and will be here for three games, one each today, tomorrow, and Wednesday.

Washington recorded six. Tech is playing .333 for the season, having lost only one game, and in the opinion of coaches and followers of the team, this game was lost only due to the forced absence of pitcher Hill. The game was lost to Canyon on the local diamond. Five wins out of six have been registered, four of these on Abilene soil during the road trip to Brownwood and Abilene.

The schedule of the Matadors for the balance of the season, including the three games against the Indians shows a total of fourteen games, nine of which are to be played on Tech field. There is a probability that two more games will be added to this schedule, and if so these will be played at Lubbock also. Daniel Baker, at Brownwood is due Tech a pair of return games, but the signing up of these hinges on whether or not the Billies can line up two more games in the canyon, for they do not feel justified in coming this far for only two games.

The schedule as announced by Head Coach Freeland Monday is as follows: April 19, 20 and 21—McMurry College at Lubbock. May 3 and 4—Canyon Normal at Canyon. May 5 and 6—Clarendon College at Clarendon. May 10 and 11—Abilene Christian College at Lubbock. May 17 to 20, Coach Freeland is planning a road trip to Abilene on which he feels sure of four games, with the possibility of six, but the exact schedule has not yet been arranged.

The Daily Express says a secret treaty the allies signed in London in 1915 conditionally promised Italy a just share of the region adjacent to Adalia (a seaport of Asia-Minor in the Vilayet of Konieh) and this agreement has not been fulfilled. The Express adds: "Italian munitions firms, motor firms and industrial firms are working day and night to provide Greece with tanks and armored cars and artillery and other arms and munitions, which are now pouring into Greece, where the disastrous defeat by the Turks in 1912 still rankles. President Pangalos of Greece is modeling himself into a Mussolini."

ATHENS, April 19. (AP)—Foreign Minister Roupies today denied the report of the existence of an agreement between Italy and Greece against Turkey.

Enforcement of prohibition in the wet centers is essential, the witness declared. "In order that the rest of the country may be protected from the contamination from the lawless, outlawed, defiant liquor traffic and its patrons, high or low, just as one section of the country is protected from the foot and mouth disease among cattle, or cholera and smallpox among persons which may be prevalent in another section."

"I am not here to declare that the Eighteenth amendment and the provisions of the Volstead act are either observed or enforced universally. No laws of any kind in any territory, not even the ten commandments, are universally obeyed."

Pleads For Law Observance
WASHINGTON, April 19. (AP)—A plea for prohibition observance was made by Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, retiring president-general, at the opening session today of the 26th continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Urges Bible Reading

In addition to her appeal for prohibition, Mrs. Cook, in her annual message, urged daily reading of the Bible, without sectarian comment, in public schools, vigilance lest proponents of radical theories succeed "in their attempts to make our schools and textbooks of history read by the school children of the country vehicles for propaganda in support of their political theories," and support of preparedness for national defense.

The retiring president-general also had a good word to say for the youth of today, in whom, "notwithstanding the pessimistic viewpoint of certain of their elders," she found "finer possibilities than ever before."

Says Young Folks All Right

"Rather than continually searching out what's wrong with our young people," she declared, "might it not be wiser to pay our investigators to inquire what's right with the young folks and what's wrong with the elders? What help and guidance are we giving them? Vain caviling and querulous nagging—or inspiration-leadership? Too much, quite, of the former and nearly enough of the latter, I suspect."

Harrell 'Kidd' Reed

WASHINGTON, April 19. (AP)—Chairman Harrell of the senate prohibition committee took a look at the liquor question today through the spectacles of Senator Reed of Missouri, the committee's wet prosecutor, and as a result the committee's hearings were completely disrupted for a quarter of an hour.

Reed discovered he didn't have his glasses when he undertook to read a dry document put into evidence. He called a halt, ransacked the papers on the committee table and searched the floor.

"Are these your glasses?" finally asked Senator Harrell, a dry, as he took off a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles.

"Yes," replied Reed. "If I'd known there was a dry behind me I'd known where to look for them."

"I just wanted to see what a dry looked like through your glasses," Harrell replied as the crowd laughed.

"If you'd wear 'em all the time," returned Reed, "you could see the truth."

UNION MEN HEAR TEXAS GOVERNOR

Her address begins with "Ladies and gentlemen of the State Federation of Labor" and reads:

"I am glad to be with you today on this recurring official meeting of your various organizations. Glad not that it might afford me an opportunity and an occasion to indulge in platitudes and to say pleasant things to you for the purpose of making you feel at least temporarily good."

"I am glad rather, because it affords me an opportunity to talk to you about practical matters. The purpose of organized labor always has been, is now and is to be hereafter, to secure and to be secured to be for the future to benefit men, women and children, make better their present conditions and brighter their promise for the future. There has never been any question from any source that this purpose could be realized. It is proper now for us to take a retrospective and see if you have carried out that purpose. If organized labor has discharged her obligations to herself, to the public and to those who are to come after us. It is my individual opinion that organized labor has contributed more to the benefit and blessing mankind and to lighten the labors of those who toil than any other agency of modern times. It is not proper to recall something that you have done. The outstanding accomplishment of organized labor in the last twenty-five years has been to commit the government, states and individuals to the eight hour law for those who work. The eight hour law is no longer a proposition, but it is a principle in our government which will never hereafter be challenged by any one. The benefits flowing therefrom are too obvious and too manifold to challenge discussion."

Benefits Are Stressed

"To my mind the chief benefit derived from the eight hour law is that it enables the laboring man to read and study and think and cultivate his mind. With our libraries teeming with books, the press of the country issuing its magazines and daily papers, there is no reason why the laboring man should not attain that high degree of culture that has been enjoyed by the more prosperous."

"A man can be a cultivated gentleman in any line of labor just as easily as he can in any other line if he will apply himself and use the benefits of time available under the eight hour law and the opportunities offered by the age in which he lives. Labor realizes this and has contributed more to the progress and advancement of public education than any other agency. She has provided liberal taxation for the payment of teachers. She fostered and passed the free text book law and the compulsory education law in this state, and for these two laws alone generations yet unborn should be grateful to her."

"The law has always required that the employer provide a safe and healthy place in which labor had to work. But it took the efforts of organized labor to make this law a living thing by providing safety devices and the slogan of 'Safety First' is properly labor's slogan."

"She was a pioneer in the passage of sanitary laws. She was responsible for the living wage laws that are on our books, for the Workmen's Compensation Law which we have and numerous other safety, sanitary and wholesome laws. She is responsible for the just and living wages payable and paid to the various branches of organized labor throughout this state, and in this connection I am glad to say that white Houston, Texas, is outstripping all the other Southern cities in permanent and substantial development, the statistics show that in 1925 she paid the highest average wage paid to labor of any city in the world."

Prosperity Is Keynote

"Wherever you have a people who pay high wages you necessarily have a prosperous people, because it is out of the wage of those who toil and the fruits of their industry that the world prospers or starves. This is something which you have accomplished. These things give evidence of what you may accomplish. With a consciousness then of your capacity evidenced by what you have done, I have a perfect confidence that you will meet life's duties as they arise and discharge its obligations as they come on, and with this thought in mind I bid you God speed in the day's labor that is set before you and ask that in the future as in the past your purpose be to be blessed, brighten and make happier the condition of man."

Lubbock Delegation Given

Lubbock representatives at the convention included the following men: Felix O. Kelly, president of the Central Labor union; Roy Burke of the plumbers union; C. H. McCarthy of the Central Labor union; J. J. Chambers, of the same organization; B. O. Lockhart, of the Harbors union; Joe Stroud, representing the cooks and waiters; H. S. Conkle, of the Painters union; J. E. Wright, of the Plumbers union; and Shirley Bloys, of the Brick Masons union.

FRANCES HARRIS CLINGS TO LIFE

Early Sunday morning as a result of injuries received in the accident, was shipped to Waco, home of his people Sunday night by the Rix Undertaking company, and burial probably will be made there tomorrow. Edwards was conscious fully eight hours following the accident, and was firm in his belief throughout this time that he would recover. This belief was repeatedly expressed to friends who visited him. He was pinned under the wreckage of the heavy Chrysler Imperial roadster, and his body completely crushed, his ribs being driven into his heart and lungs. Physicians at no time held out any hope for his recovery. Edwards was driving the car which belonged to Foreman when he lost control of the machine on a slippery stretch of highway ten miles north of Post.

Blindness Fear Quelled

It was feared by physicians for a time that even though Miss Harris recovers from her injuries that she would be blinded by blindness, as the blow that crushed her nose affected her eyes, but this fear was dispelled somewhat Monday morning when it was discovered that sight remained in one eye. Her other eye is still closed, and the condition of this member is yet unknown.

NOTICE TO VOTERS
