Boosters Met Monday

The Booster Club meeting Monday night began with the introduction of all the football players (and the position each played) to a large crowd of club members.

Window decals (Eldorado Eagles) have arrived and sales began at the meeting. The price is only 75 cents and the decals are neat, so be sure your car, pickup or truck shows who you support.

Some one will be contacting you.

By the way, are you one of those who wonder why, or what, things happened in the game as they did —or didn't, as the case may be? If you make the meetings, you have the opportunity to put your question on paper and Coach Stephens will answer, or eplain the play or problem for you.

Door prizes were given Monday night with Helen Maness, Ted Short and Elmer Garlitz names being drawn.

Refreshments were furnished by several of the ladies and served to the football boys and boosters.

Thursday night will be Parent Recognition Evening for the Jr. High team as they meet Menard on Eagle Field and the 7th grade boys will play the Menard 7th graders in a game beginning at 5:00 p.m.

The Varsity team will be needing your support and enthusiasm Friday night when they mix it with the Mason Cowpunchers. Make next Monday night's Booster meeting— interesting things are popping up, thanks to the newly elected board of directors headed by Frances Peters. From now on, if you miss, you may miss something you might wish you'd been in on.

Boosters for the week are Elmer Garlitz and A. G. McCormack.

Winters Wins 28-13

The Winters Blizzards came in with the cold in Eldorado Friday night and racked up their third win of the season with a 2813 victory over the Eagles in non-district play.

Eldorado won the toss and chose to receive the ball. The first quarter was a quiet one as neither team saw any action in scoring.

Eldorado drew first blood in the second quarter when Hunter Henderson broke loose for a 69-yard scoring run. Ken Peters added the extra point to put the Eagles out front 7-0.

The Blizzards got busy before the half ended, scoring on a 75-yard run by Lee Choate. The two-point conversion was made by Jerry Jackson on a three-yard run.

With only 1:55 left in the first half, Ricky Mathes intercepted an Eldorado pass and took it back 52 yards for a second Winters touchdown. The extra point failed and the Blizzards had a 14-7 edge at halftime.

In the third quarter Choate climaxed a Winters' drive with a three-yard run for the third Winters touchdown. Jerry Jackson ran three yards for the extra 2 points and Winters held the lead, 22-7.

In the final period Eldorado came back and scored with Chris Pena taking the ball in from the one-yard line. The try for the extra two points failed, and the Eagles still trailed 22-13.

The Blizzards upped their margin before the game ended with their final touchdown run by Choate, this one for two yards. The attempt for the extra point failed, making the final score 28-13 for a victory for Winters. This gives the Blizzards a 3-1 season record and a 1-3 for the Eagle season record.

Len Mertz, Mort Mertz, and Chris Pena led the defense for the Eagles while Glen Hoppe, Ricky Mathis, and Ricky De La Crutz were Winters defense standouts.

The Eagle lineman of the week once again was Ronnie Rathbone. Ronnie did a better job on offense than last week and he had 11 tackles on defense.

The Eagle Back of the Week is Hunter Henderson. This talented Senior did a real good job as he had a total of 106 yards rushing in 19 carries.

Is now the time to buy land?

Acquiring that farm might seem more practical with financing through the Federal Land Bank. Land is easier to pay off when costs are amortized over extra years with a long-term Land Bank Loan. Your total cost of borrowing, too, can be less. Ask us for help: We know land values; we will inspect the property. We will then try to make a loan that meets your exact needs.

But My Car Is Still In Warranty . .

(From the office of Crawford C. Martin, Attorney General of Texas)

The best advice and protection concerning automobile warranties is to buy from a dealer whose reputation you know and trust. It does not take much effort to determine how auto dealers have handled warranty type work for your friends and acquaintances.

Many problems which arise concerning "warranty work" are caused because the automobile owner does not read the warranty he receives at the time of purchase. Until 1971 some automobile manufacturers gave a five year or 50,000 mile warranty on the power train. Now most manufacturers provide a warranty of 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first. How do you go about seeing that you get all that is coming to you under the warranty that came with your automobile?

First, you should be convinced that the work to be done is covered by the warranty. Assuming that it is covered by the warranty, it must be within the time period and amount of mileage specified in the warranty. Next, you should take your automobile to an authorized dealer. It should be remembered that most automobile warranties are valid only if the repairs are made by authorized dealers. Therefore, be sure that the repair facilities you have taken your car to are factory authorized.

If any authorized dealer or repair facility informs you that the repair is not covered by the warranty, ask why. If you don't receive a satisfactory reply, ask to speak to a factory representative. Don't be afraid to speak up. All automobile manufacturers have representatives in regional centers to receive and handle complaints from owners. These people are authorized to approve questionable warranty work. Many times this complaint to the factory representative is all that is needed to get the necessary repair work done under warranty.

It should be remembered that, on occasions, the dealer probably has experienced difficulty obtaining reimbursement from the manufacturer for previous warranty repairs. If there is any question in the dealer's mind as to whether the work to be done will be covered by the warranty and paid for by the manufacturer, he usually will insist that the work be approved by a representative of the manufacturer before commencing. If the factory representative and dealer both refuse to do the repairs under the terms of the warranty, ask for a written refusal setting forth the reasons the work will not be done.

Now is the time for a certified letter to the manufacturer's consumer relations department. Be specific and go into detail concerning your complaint. Give names and dates. Attach a copy of the written refusal by the dealer and factory representative. If you still do not get satisfaction, the 62nd Legislature passed an act creating the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission. The address of this agency is P. O. Box 13287, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711. They are equipped to look into matters such as this.

The Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act gives the Attorney General's office power only over false, misleading or deceptive acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce. We generally do not have authority to act in cases of breach of contract, poor workmanship or defective products. However, you should probably write our office so that we can look into the matter to determine if there has been a violation of our Act and if legal action against the dealer or manufacturer is indicated. You should send your complaint to Attorney General Crawford C. Martin, Attention: Consumer Protection Division, P. O. Box 12548, Capitol Station, Austin, Tex. 78711.

Either-Sex Hunting Of Deer Shows Merit

Austin, Tex.——An experimental deer management technique has involved a number of counties in the past two seasons and will be tried in Schleicher County this year, according to officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Landowners are allowed to determine the number of antlerless deer that will be removed from their property. The only restriction is that a special tag issued to the landowner must be attached to each harvested antlerless deer.

Results from post-season surveys show that this method of "either-sex" hunting has considerable merit. Little difference in harvest was indicated from past seasons when "doe permits" were issued to landowners on an acreage basis. The new method is less complicated than the old permit system and places more responsibility for deer herd management on the landowner.

In the past, biologists say, landowners rarely used more than 50% of the permits issued, being conservative in the harvest of does. This conservatism could be attributed to the economic value of deer, since the deer herd is a source of income to many ranchers. Where deer have reached the carrying capacity of the range, both sexes should be harvested to prevent the production of surplus fawns, and increased pressure on the food supply. The results of an overpopulation are a high browse line or "hedging" of brush, deer which show backbone and ribs, and losses from disease or malnutrition. An advantage to the hunter is that deer respond readily to artificial feeding and are not as wild as normal deer, since they are preoccupied with finding a meal.

Research on wildlife management areas throughout Texas has been the basis for establishing of the either-sex season. On the Kerr Wildlife Area, for example, either-sex hunts have been held since 1956. The result has been the establishment of a 50-50 buck-doe ratio and a reduction in the deer herd to the land's carrying capacity. Legal hunting pressure, although intense in some areas of the state, will not deplete a deer herd if habitat and food requirements are supplied. One advantage of either-sex hunting is to reduce some of the hunting pressure on the bucks, giving them an equal chance to survive and season and to reach maturity.

Increased knowledge of the habits and requirements of deer has led to the experimental use of the either-sex season in many Texas counties this year. Data will be collected in each county to determine the results of the season in every situation. Biologists are aware that factors such as habitat destruction, drought, or disease coupled with legal and illegal hunting can cause a severe decline in deer populations. Such declines will be monitored and wildlife officials will be prepared to enforce regulations to remove hunting pressure from the herd. The upward trend in most areas of the state is reflected by the 1971 harvest of an estimated 280,000 deer from a herd of over 3 million. The either-sex season may not prove to be workable in all areas of Texas, but will be a foundation for improved deer management techniques.

SAFETY SENSE

SEAT BELTS

It has been reported that if everyone wore safety belts when in a car, as many as 20,000 might be saved from death each year.

Recent hearings in the Senate Commerce Committee on the implementation of the 1966 Highway Safety Act disclosed how far we still must go to make American drivers and their cars safe on the highways.

One point of agreement did emerge during the questioning by Senators Hartke and Cook. Private industry and government officials testified that seat belts are still the most reliable and effective device for passenger protection.

Douglas Toms, who heads the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration which has been promoting air bags, or passive restraints, affirmed that seat belts would be an important continuing element in vehicle safety systems. Allstate Insurance Company's testimony, centering on its experiments with air bags, made it clear that seat belts most certainly should be required in conjunction with air bags.

It is by now clear, future technology apart, that the American people have at their fingertips an effective and proven life-saver in their seat belts. Toms has said that if seat belt use increased to 75 percent or more, air bags probably wouldn't be needed at all.

Taking into account the estimated $300 air bag add-on to new car price tags on top of the cost of government-mandated emission controls, and experts believe these are necessary, you're talking about a significant consumer pocketbook issue as well as (your own) survival in an accident.

The few seconds you take to buckle up before driving are a small investment in your life and the safety of others in your car.

Joe Rivero Garcia Buried Last Week

Funeral services were held here last Wednesday morning in Guadalupe Catholic Church for Joe Rivero Garcia, 42, of 114 W. 27th, San Angelo. Burial was in the Eldorado cemetery under direction of Johnson's Funeral Home.

Mr. Garcia died at 4:15 p.m. the preceding Monday in St. John's Hospital in San Angelo after an illness.

He was born March 19, 1930, in Eldorado and had lived in San Angelo for 15 years. He was married to Lupe Espinoza in Eldorado in 1951. He was employed by a San Angelo communications company.

Survivors include his wife; four daughters, Mrs. Sandie Aguilar, Sylvia Garcia, Sally Garcia and Selma Garcia, all of San Angelo; three sons, Raymond Garcia, Robert Garcia and Roy Garcia, all of San Angelo; his mother, Jesusita Garcia of San Angelo; two sisters, Mrs. Angelita Martinez of Midland and Mrs. Jane Chavez of Sonora; six brothers, Tony Garcia of Midland, Martin Garcia and Eulojio Garcia of Eldorado, Sam Garcia and Matilde Garcia of San Angelo and Guadalupe Garcia of Killeen and one grandchild.

Weed Control Pays

College Station, Tex.— Spraying herbicides today may help control weeds for many years to come, according to Dr. Rupert Palmer, weed control specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The effects of weed control may be much more far-reaching than might be imagined," says Palmer. "Just as important as eliminating weeds at the present time is keeping them under control in the future."

The Texas A&M University specialist recently made a study of a stand of junglerice or barnyard grass in a rice field. He found 125 plants per square foot, which totals 5,445,000 plants per acre. Each plant had an average of 60 seeds so this meant about 326.7 million seeds per acre.

Assuming that all the seeds remained viable and germinated each year as they did this year, it would take 60 years to deplete this year's seed crop, notes the specialist.

"Herbicides sprayed to control this stand of grass before seed production cost about $8 per acre. The one treatment probably prevented the need for yearly control for 60 years," contends Palmer.

In addition to rice, barnyardgrass also infests cotton, grain sorghum, corn, peanuts and vegetable crops.

William Sauer of Van Horn visited here with relatives last week.

Turkey Marketings Are Up For This Year

College Station, Texas.—Turkey might head lists for the supermarket this week as the new crop marketings are up 9% from a year ago.

According to Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, heavy supplies of turkeys will result in special prices from time to time.

Also in the poultry section of stores, chickens are hard to beat considering versatility and economy.

"The volume of fryers will supply the demand at reasonable prices," the Texas A&M University specialist noted.

"Eggs are always a good choice when considering food value, uses and cost. Grade A large-size eggs generally offer the best value this week."

With the mixture of summer and fall season vegetables coming to market, excellent choices are available at moderate prices, Mrs. Clyatt said.

Included are potatoes, carrots, green peppers, corn, tomatoes, hard shell squash, rutabagas, sweet potatoes, dry yellow onions and cucumbers.

"Consider filling the fruit bowl this week with fruits in good supply including Bartlett pears, Tokay and Thompson seedless grapes, bananas, prunes and apples."

To take advantage of the best buys at the meat counter, one must keep in mind that the economy of a cut depends on the amount of cooked lean meat at provides as well as its prices per pound, the specialist explained.

"Often the cut with a low price per pound is not the best buy in servings of meat provided.

"Check at the market for best buys on chuck roast and steaks, ground beef, round steaks and roasts. Pork values include ham, picnics, shoulder roasts and steaks, end cut loin roasts and chops.

"Remember to include liver and other variety meats for a bonus of food values," Mrs. Clyatt concluded.

THE HISTORY OF HALLOWEEN

More than 2,000 years ago, before Christianity came to Ireland, people used to build huge bonfires on October 31, the last day of the old pagan calendar and the day on which the souls of the dead were thought to revisit the earth. Legend had it that Samhain, god of the dead, sat by the fire to catch the approaching souls and turn them into animal form. Most wicked of the ghosts were metamorphosed into black cats.

In later time, to scare away spooks, people began hollowing out turnips and pumpkins and placed lighted candles inside to scare evil spirits from the house. Why was the result called a Jack O' Lantern? Tradition says that an Irishman named Jack, too wicked for heaven and expelled from hell for playing practical jokes on the devil, was condemned to walk the earth with a lantern forevermore.

Few people realize that trick-or-treating was originally an adult custom. English country folks went "a-souling" on Halloween, begging for "soul cakes" door to door. In Ireland, hundreds of years ago, groups of farmers went from house to house soliciting food for the village Halloween festivities, promising good luck to cheerful givers and threatening tightwads with evil fortune.

But it was the kids who originated Halloween customs after all. It was the custom in some regions for children to dress up in each other's clothes (boys donning girls' outfits and vice versa) and go out to play tricks and collect loot.

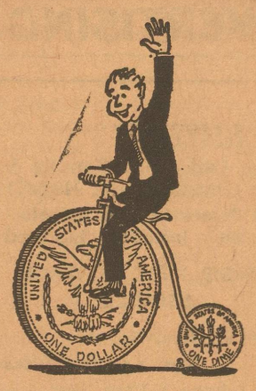

Our Halloween celebrations today keep many of these early customs unchanged. Young and old still gather to hunt nuts and duck for apples bobbing in a tub of water. Grinning pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns, restling cornstalks, and white-sheeted figures create an air of mystery, and black paper witches and cats are used for party decorations.

Other Halloween traditions are much newer, and one of the most beneficial is the tradition of helping UNICEF at this time of year. In 1971, millions of American students participated in the "Treat of Life" for UNICEF drive, aiding disadvantaged youngsters throughout the world. Their efforts provided UNICEF with more than $135,000 in new funds.

This year the makers of seven popular products have agreed to contribute money to UNICEF when their box-tops, labels and wrappers are redeemed by groups and individuals at any time from October 1 through December 15. These brands are Cap'n Crunch cereals, Clark and Smile gums, Kool—Aid, Royal Desserts, Swift's Premium Franks, Welch jam, jelly and preserves, and Willy Wonka's Super Skrunch and Peanut Butter OOmpas candies.

Consumers will learn of the program in an eight-page section in the October issue of The Reader's Digest. The promotion is known as the "Treat of Life" program. It's a new kind of Halloween spirit.

HELEN CARLMAN
Memorial Chmn. Schleicher County

Austin, Tex.—Senate rejection of Secretary of State Bob Bullock to the State Insurance Board amid the special session's bitterest infighting opened new speculation as to who may get the job.

Sources close to Gov. Preston Smith oppeared to be deliberately encouraging rumors that former U. S. Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough would be the Governor's next choice for the Insurance Board.

Yarborough himself said he had never been offered the post by the Governor or even felt out on his availability by intermediaries. AFL-CIO President Roy Evans and State Sen. Oscar Mauzy formally urged Smith to designate Yarborough, and Mauzy predicted the former senator could get state senate confirmation where Bullock and Larry Teaver failed.

Would he take the job if offered? Said Yarborough: "That's entirely too 'iffy' a question."

Senators voted 19-11 (with one abstaining) for the Bullock confirmation. Eleven opposition votes can block any appointment.

Bullock promptly blamed Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and the insurance industry lobby for his defeat.

Smith chastised the Senate, charging the body "apparently will not permit a person who is committed to protecting the insurance consumer serve on the State Board of Insurance."

Bullock foes claimed the Governor had used some persuasive tactics of his own, dangling the prospect of submitting pet home district projects to the Legislature for senators who would support Bullock.

The Secretary of State said he now intends to remain in his present job through the Smith administration.

Session Success Doubted

Some legislators are doubting if the special legislative session really is going to come up with a competitive rating bill, the subject Smith called them to work on.

Senator Mauzy of Dallas, one of the bill sponsors in the Senate, says he doesn't think a competitive rate bill can be agreed on because of House opposition. Mauzy charged the House committee hearing the rate measure is lobby dominated.

Conflicting testimony was heard on advantages vs. disadvantages of free competition in rating during week-long testimony by out-of-state experts.

At the end of the period, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes acknowledged:

"I have never been so much in the dark on legislation. People want to vote for a bill, but proponents have not done a good enough job convincing people competitive rates would be beneficial."

Agenda Broadened

A special session that started off confined to insurance and broadening the governor's fiscal powers has three times been expanded.

Smith earlier submitted trailer-brake-light exemptions, school disannexation, exempting aviation schools from the proprietary school act, and reimbursement of medical schools for $13.5 million in funds "borrowed" to avert a 1970 welfare crisis.

Last week, he asked the Legislature to define the state's role and responsibility in developing deep draft offshore port facilities.

The next day, he proposed an appropriation to the governor for emergency use, authority for the chief executive to meet certain fiscal emergencies from the fund, a $365,000 supplemental appropriation to finance this year's primary elections and permanent statutory establishment of the Texas Film Commission as a division of the governor's office.

Newspaper Grocery Ads

Make the most of your food budget money—read and compare the newspaper grocery ads. Stores spend time and money on advertisements. Why is this? The grocery business is very competitive and each store wants you for a customer.

This competition among stores brings the consumer several benefits. An observant shopper can compare not only prices, but often brands, cuts, quality, grades and sizes. This can aid in reducing the amount spent on food items and affect future purchases.

Advertising also brings variety into diets by introducing new products. Many families are willing to try new foods once informed about them. In addition, family favorites and satisfactions can be repeated through brand name identification. For instance, your family may like a product preyared a certain way by one company but be indifferent about the same product from another company.

Here are a few things to remember when studying ads and purchasing food. For your family's sake, consider which foods are nutritious. Also, your family's taste preferences are important in determining what to buy. And certainly keep in mind how much you can spend on food.

For more economical shopping, make mental menus for the coming week. This can help reduce the possibility of costly impulse buying at the store. Food ads serve a dual purpose for both you and the store. A good advertisement aims to inform you and help you buy more intelligently. The consumer should fully utilize ads. Because she pays for them she should get her money's worth.

Compact Laundry Appliances

Compact washers and dryers offer a solution to a problem common to many homes—a need for laundry equipment yet lack of space for conventional appliances. Compacts are a separate class of smaller-than-average appliances designed to occupy small spaces. For this reason, the washers are sometimes called "mini-washers." Compact washers and dryers are for small families with small loads. These small loads, however, require more time to dry in compact dryers due to only 110 volt wiring.

Almost every American appliance firm offers one or more models of compact laundry equipment. Along with the foreign offerings, there are some 25 different brand names now available.

Sizes and capacities of these compacts vary. Mini-wishers may hold from about four to eight lbs. of clothes, and the dryers will hold about the same.

Newsletters Out At 'Taxpayers' Expense'

Republican Congressional candidate Doug Harlan has charged in San Antonio that his Democratic opponent, Rep. O. C. Fisher, is mailing out political material at taxpayer expense.

In a news conference held last week, Harlan stated that Fisher "sends out, according to his own estimate, 100,000 copies of his 'newsletter' each week."

Since filing for re-election, Fisher has sent out at least 32 weekly newsletters—at a cost of $8,000 per week for postage and $800 per week for envelopes——or a total expense of $281.600, Harlan said.

"I often agree with the positions he (Fisher) takes," Harlan noted, "but the fact that I . . . agree with the views expressed does not alter the fact that political material is being paid for by tax dollars."

Fisher has denied the charges, stating that he pays for the "stationery" and also saying he mails out only 800 newsletters a week.

Although the newsletters themselves may be printed at Fisher's own expense, Harlan admits, the envelopes they are sent in carry the inscription "Official Business" and are mailed at taxpayer expense.

"If taxpayers should not pay for the printing of political material, why should they pay for the mailing of it?" the Republican candidate asked.

As for Fisher's assertion that he mails only 800 newsletters weekly, Harlan noted that the Congressman stated on the floor of the House on June 21, that 100,000 copies of his annual questionnaire were mailed out, presumably to those people on the newsletter mailing list.

"Whatever the number mailed each week," Harlan said, "it is clear that Mr. Fisher has mailed at least 32 weekly newsletters since he filed for re-election.

"The number of copies mailed each week is incidental to the kep issue—why is political material mailed at taxpayers' expense?"

The Bible Is God's Temple And Man's Remedy

When we take up the Bible we enter in spirit a temple built not out of stone and marble, but with human words, yet enshrining within it, for the comfort and warning, the correction and encouragement of every human soul, no other and no less than the holy and eternal spirit. Of that temple the Old Testament is the nave, with its side aisles of psalm and prophecy; and the Gospels are the choir—the last Gospel, perhaps, the very sanctuary; while around and behind are the apostolic epistles and the Apocalypse, each a gem of beauty, each supplying an indispensable feature to the majestic whole. With what joy should we daily enter that temple? Let the answer be found in the remedy for man and his every day ills. Let us call this Temple of God's word, Man's survival Temple.

Use the selected scriptures for daily emergencies. These are God's words to man to help him in his hour of need.

When you are worried, or worry; read Matthew 6:19-34. Psalm 43.

When you are lonely or fearful, read Psalm 23; Luke 15.

When you want courage, read Joshua 1:1-19.

When in trouble or sorrow, read John 14: Psalm 46.

When God seems far away, read Psalm 139. When Men fail you, read Psalm 27. When you have sinned, read Psalm 51. When in sickness, read Psalm 41. Before church service, read Psalm 84. When you are in danger, read Psalm 91. When you have the blues, read Psalm 34. When you are discouraged, read Isaiah 40. When you forget your blessings, read Psalm 103. When your faith seems failing, read Hebrews 11. When the world seems bigger than God, read Psalm 90. When you want rest and peace, read Matthew 11:25-30.

When you want Christian assurance, read Romans 8. When looking for happiness, read Collosians 3. If you are not a Christian read Matthew 10:32-33; 25:31-46; John 3:16; Romans 10:9. When you leave home for travel, read Psalm 121. When you grow bitter or critical, read 1 Corinthians 13. When you think of investments, read Mark 10:1731. Read some rules of conduct in Romans 12; and Matthew 5:1-12. There is a warning against selfishness in James 2.

We have taken only a very quick glance into the temple of God's word. This brief look into the temple leaves us at the threshold. Should we use this much of God's word, we should do it with profound reverence. Because God is real and His word is for real. Let no one be afraid or ashamed to use God's word, The Bible. As we have seen it is a help in the whole of life. Full entry into this Temple, can truly be God's remedy.

Schwobel Serving As Head UT Cheerleader

Doing a back flip at forthcoming football games may pose difficulties for University of Texas head cheerleader, Charles Schwobel. He is sporting a new cast on one foot.

"My gymnastic ability is somewhat limited," admits the 22-year-old graduate student. He adds, more optimistically, "I can still do most of the stunts with my partner."

Schwobel was rushing to class one day recently, turned his foot, and a small bone snapped. He will have it in a cast a couple of weeks.

Schwobel, who was a cheerleader at McCallum High School his senior year there ,is the only varsity cheerleader with previous experience at UT and his nine partners selected him to be the leader. He is the son of Jewel Budd and grandson of Emma Davis of Austin and the late Buck Davis of this place.

Clean Up Important To Reduce Pecan Scab

Pecan producers and homeowners who have serious infestations of scab in their pecan trees can take measures this fall to reduce losses from the costly diseases next year.

It is suggested that producers begin a sanitation program after this year's crop is harvested. This includes removing all old shucks and plant debris. Disking, plowing or harrowing under fallen leaves and shucks also helps reduce scab infection next spring.

Pecan scab is a fungus that overwinters on infected shoots, old shucks and leaves on pecan trees. In spring the fungus begins to grow and produces spores that are carried by wind and rain to new growth on the trees.

In the spring when the disease first appears, a fungicide can be applied to protect tender leaves, nuts and shoots. However, once the disease becomes well established, control is difficult.

Fungicides that are effective in controlling scab include zineb (Dithane Z78 or Parzate), dodine (Cyprex 65-W), Duter and Polyram.

Many pecan varieties in Texas are susceptible to scab damage. Thus it's important to clean up around the trees after harvest to keep the scab fungus from overwintering. Preventing pecan scab is so much more efficient than trying to control the disease atfer it has infested trees next spring.

Horse Hoof Care Important

Trim horse's hooves early in life to prevent feet and leg problems. The younger a horse is when proper trimming is started, the better the chances of encouraging straight and sound growth. Once the horse is two years old or more the chance for correction of problems is much less.

Start handling a foal's feet early and begin trimming them at four to six months of age. Trimming may be started earlier if a problem occurs. Start by standing the foal up solidly on all four legs and viewing fro mthe front, side and rear. If no defects are visible, trimming the feet every four weeks should suffice.

Corrective trimming should be done gradually in order to avoid excessive strain on the tendons and ligaments of the foot. This prevents soreness in the hoof. If the feet toe out, trim the hoof shorter on the outer wall. This causes a greater pull on the inside half of the toe as the foal walks, resulting in a pull back toward center.

Other problems caused by improperly or not trimming foal's feet are uneven wear and hooves which are long at the heel or at the toe. When hooves are long at the heel or broken forward, trim the heel in as a corrective measure. Shorten the toe in order to correct one which is broken backward or too long. Not all defects of the foal's feet may be corrected, but many less severe problems can be avoided by proper trimming.

Control of Next Year's Boll Weevils

The early maturity of cotton in Schleicher county gives producers an opportunity to harvest early and at the same time reduce the number of boll weevils that will overwinter and attack next year's crop. The addition of 0.5 lb. methyl parathion or 0.25 lb. Guthion to phosphate type defoliants or arsenic acid will kill boll weevils present in the field and the harvest-aid chemicals will destroy the weevil's food source.

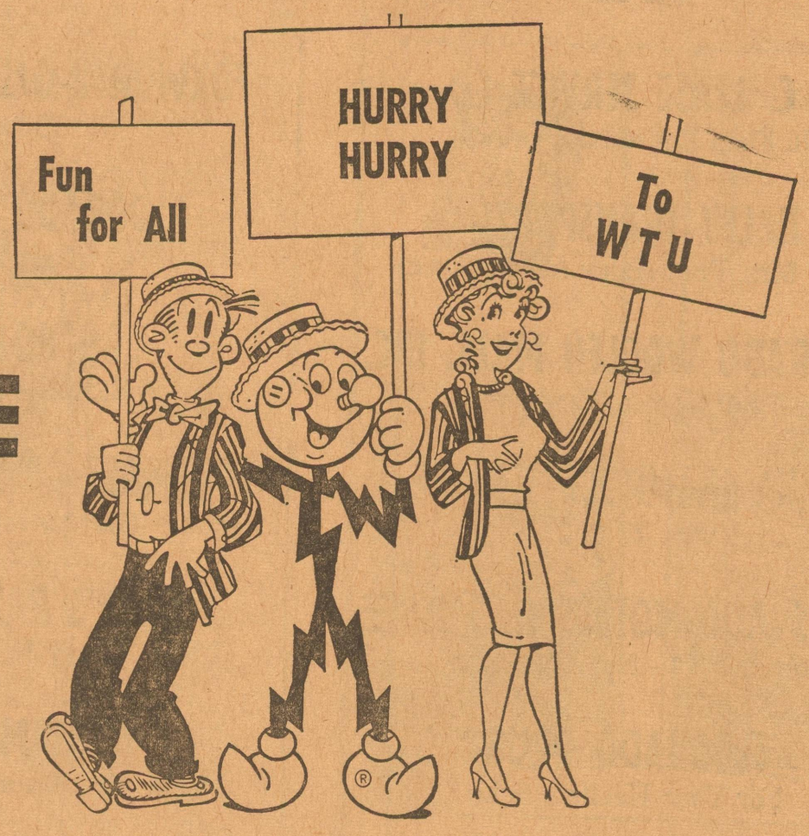

The use of harvest-aid chemicals in combination with these insecticides is very important in areas where a diapause boll weevil program is being carried out. This effectively prevents the boll weevil from building up fat reserves necessary to sustain it through the winter. Without the use of harvest-aid chemicals in combination with insecticides, boll weevils would be allowed to either feed until frost or several insecticide applications would be required at 10 to 14 day intervals.

The use of harvest-aid chemicals in combination with an insecticide is most effective when carried out by all of the producers in an area. This is true because one heavily infested field in which boll weevils are not controlled can produce large enough numbers of potential overwintering boll weevils to infest neighboring fields the following year.

Care should be taken when using methyl parathion or Guthion in combination with phosphate type defoliants since the combination may pose a greater toxicity hazard to humans than either compound used alone. The combination of these insecticides with sodium chlorate type defoliants creates an extreme fire hazard.

Further information on the use of combinations of insecticides and harvest-aid chemicals is available at your county extension agent's office.
