What Should Our Schools Accomplish?

During Public School Week, March 3-7, is a good time to review what our schools should accomplish.

First of all schools should provide all children with a knowledge of the traditionally accepted "fundamentals." These fundamentals were defined in the early elementary schools as reading, writing and arithmetic. As the pupil advances in school these three R's should be accomplished by a study of such courses as higher mathematics, science, history, and English.

Upon graduation from high school a student should have had specific training to do something—to go to work and be successful on a job—in the event he finds it impracticable to continue his education.

Looking at this provision from the standpoint of our own school are the students who graduate from it able to go to work successfully on a job. At least some of them are, especially in the field of agriculture, home-making and perhaps business. Good foundations are provided for a career in band and athletics as well as other fields.

The school should enable each child to develop the power to think constructively and critically, and to solve problems.

Other things the school should provide include citizenship education opportunities that emphasize the American heritage and include knowledge and acceptance of the responsibilities and privileges of citizenship; experiences for children and youth from which they learn self-direction and responsibility for their own behavior; assist in the development of moral and spiritual values, acceptable social skills and attitudes, and the ability to get along with others; assist each youth in his efforts to make a place for himself in the community; provide educational programs which take into account individual differences.

The above accomplishments are listed by the Texas Citizens Committee for Public School Week. Whether or not our school measures up to the yardstick is entirely up to our local people.

A representative from the Abilene Social Security Office will be in Loraine at the Lions Club building at 9:45 a. m. on Wednesday, March 19.

The representative will be in Loraine only a short time and those who wish to see him should be at the Lions building at 9:45.

Arrangement for the representative to stop in Loraine were in response to an invitation from the Lions Club presented by Dr. B. H. Johnson to Mr. Tulley, the district director.

Mr. Tulley told Dr. Johnson that Loraine will remain on the list of place where representatives will stop for interviews so long as people show up for the interviews on the day the representative is scheduled to be here.

If you have any questions concerning your social security be at the Lions Club on Wednesday, March 19, at 9:45 a. m.

E. B. Hale Grows Big Turnips

Mr. E. B. Hale, who farms north of Loraine, may not be the champion turnip grower in these parts but he surely would not miss it far. Saturday while the snow was coming down in big flakes Mr. Hale came in our office with a sack under his arm and said "Who said turnips couldn't be raised in West Texas?"

I said, "gosh, I don't know Mr. Hale but it wasn't me for I have been telling folks for nigh on 40 years that this country will raise just about anything we plant."

In that sack Mr. Hale had 3 turnips, each of which topped the scales at a little more than 5 pounds—a little big for selling purposes but mighty good for demonstrating what West Texas land, especially land around Loraine, will grow.

Have An Out of State Title To Your Car?

If title to your car is in some state other than Texas you had better see about getting your car tags right now—so says Tom Glover, tax collector.

Glover says sometimes it takes as long as a month for those who own a car with out-of-state title to get their car registered and new tags, which might be too long if you wait any longer to attend to the matter.

"One requirement before a car or truck owner with an out-of-state title can register his car," Glover says, "is to have an officer check his motor number against the number shown on the title to see if they correspond. If they do correspond you will have no trouble in registering your car, but if they don't correspond the car cannot be registered until the title is cleared in the state where it was issued."

Four year old Alan Buck, shown here with Douglas B. Marshall of Houston, chairman of the 1958 Texas Heart Fund, is one of scores of children and adults whose lives have been changed by open heart operations performed by Dallas and Houston surgeons in the past two years. Young Alan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Buck of Houston, now has a normal life expectancy after successfully undergoing heart surgery at the Texas Medical Center in Houston. More than 350 similar instances of open heart surgery in Dallas and Houston by Texas physicians in the past two years have restored heart victims to normal or near-normal lives, according to officials of the Texas Heart Association. Contributions made to the current monthlong Texas Heart Fund will be used to expand scientific research and professional education programs of the THTA and the American Heart Association, as well as by Heart Association chapters in Texas for their community heart programs. It was emphasized by Heart Fund Chairman Marshall.

Hints For Treating Rose Leaf Diseases

College Station, March 3—Black spot and powdery mildew are the most common leaf diseases of roses in Texas, says Extension Plant Pathologist Harlan Smith. He advises the use of control measures, dusting or spraying, as soon as the first new shoots begin to develop.

Black spot, he says, is the disease which causes the large roundish, black spots with irregular or frayed margins on the soft twigs and leaves. It will soon be making its appearance. One of the best preventative treatments, he says, is the use of a sulfur-copper dust mixture.

90 parts of sulfur and 10 parts of copper, applied weekly except during hot, dry weather. Applications made during such weather may cause burning.

During wet weather, the rose plants should be thoroughly dusted or sprayed. If the disease becomes established, Smith recommends a weekly spraying with captan, maneb or zineb.

Both sides of the leaves should be coated with the spray material. Spraying, he adds, will give better results than dusting.

Powdery mildew causes a white powdery coating on the leaves, buds and young stems of the rose plant. The sulfur-copper mixture is recommended for early control and as a preventative treatment because it is cheaper than other chemicals.

However, Smith warns, if powdery mildew becomes established, then weekly sprayings with karathane or mildex are suggested.

If both diseases become established, a combination of chemicals may be used. In general, Smith points out that the yellow and white varieties are more susceptible to these diseases. Radiance and Red Radiance varieties are resistant to both.

The reason? When the dog's food is packaged, the manufacturer has one primary selling point to consider—the nutritive content of the product. The dog's owner and the dog care for nothing except good taste and good health in the dog's diet. In contrast, the food for the family "feels itself" in several ways into which food value is not too apt to enter.

The family food product attracts the housewife through its appearance and its advertised care in preparation is often as through its palatability—and much more often than through its nutrition-giving qualities.

As a result, America today is the land of plenty—plenty of sophisticated foods and, consequently, plenty of undernourished people. In fact, there are some 25 million Americans suffering from deficient diets. This in spite of the fact that food resources in our nation are unequaled in quality, available in abundance, and priced lower than in any other country in the world.

This false sense of values evidenced in family food selection is no one's personal fault. It is a reflection of the tension-packed, aspirin-eased world in which we live. We Americans are notorious among other nations for always being in a hurry. And this mania for getting things done in a hurry is reflected in our food habits.

We have become a nation of the "skipped breakfast," the "quick lunch," and the "pre-cooked supper," and the food industry has geared itself to the tenor of the times: emphasis on ease in preparation, at all costs. And the cost is high, both in lost nutrition, and in cash money as well.

As the housewife comes to rely on special services in food preparation, it is inevitable that her food costs will rise. In many cases, the various steps taken to process a staple food item from its original form to the "instant" product adds up to a cost 500 percent in excess of the food's original cost.

This leaves us with a paradox of the times—paying much more for food than we are likely to get less out of. Think of it the next time you go grocery shopping.

Farmers Can Save One Trip Over Field

College Station, March 3—You can save yourself one complete trip over the field at cotton planting time by following advice of researchers of the Texas A. and M. College System.

Lambert Wilkes, who specializes in mechanization problems in the Department of Agricultural Engineering, says a rubber-flap surface press-wheel used on the planter, in conjunction with a modified planting shoe, gave significantly higher numbers of plants in test areas during the past two or three years.

Most farmers now make a separate operation of the pressing process because most packing wheels clog with mud and don't give good results when used on the planter, Wilkes says.

Although Wilkes and others in the department made a special wooden wheel for their tests, he says the standard steel wheel also should take the rubber-flap modification with good results.

The scientists used 15-inch-long flaps wide enough to fit the wheel, which they cut from an old tractor inner-tube. These flaps are attached to the wheel for the first five inches, leaving 10 inches of the trailing end free to overlap the next flap, and to fall freely to the ground ahead of the rolling wheel.

They modified the planter shoe by lengthening it, squeezing it down to about one-inch outside width at the seed-chute, and adding a small piece of angle-iron between the cutting blade and the seed chute to give a more conventional V-shape to the seed trough.

Use of these two modifications, both of which can be performed easily in the farm shop, gave nearly-perfect stands in test areas of 100,000 plants per acre.

"Ain't it Wonderful!"

Once upon a time there was a farmer named Brown who raised corn. He had a neighbor named Smith who raised chickens, but no corn.

Now, Brown needed help on his farm, so he employed Smith one day each week, paying him $5 a day in cash. Smith then bought five bushels of corn at $1 a bushel from Brown for his egg-laying hens.

One day chicken-raiser Smith told corn-farmer Brown that the cost of everything was going up, so he'd have to get $6 a day for his work. Replied Brown: "Everything I use is costing more, so I'll have to get $6 for five bushels of corn."

After a while chicken-raiser Smith told farmer Brown that, with everything still going up, he'd have to get $7.50 for a day's work. Whereupon corn-raiser Brown allowed as how everything he used was costing more, so he'd just have to get $7.50 for five bushels of corn.

Both Brown and Smith were so pleased over the idea of $7.50 for a day's work and $7.50 for five bushels of corn that they both exclaimed: "Happy days are here again."

By and by, chicken-raiser Smith told corn-raiser Brown that everything had gone up still more, so he just couldn't hire out for less than $10 a day. Brown said that seemed fair to him, but since everything he used was going up too, he'd have to get $10 for five bushels of corn, which was agreeable with Smith.

Smith told his wife: "Ain't it wonderful... $10 for a day's work."

Brown told his wife: "Ain't it wonderful... $10 for five bushels of corn."

That's the way inflation works. It gives us the pleasant but dangerous feeling that everything's wonderful, while it eats away at our pocketbook and savings, our insurance and pensions... and everything else of value.

The critical world situation may make it necessary for our government to increase annual defense spending by several billion dollars, which would add to the inflationary spiral.

But we can help check this inflation if, individually and collectively, we cease demanding federal aid, assistance and benefits for OUR special projects and programs. We can urge our government to economize, not to spend and spend and spend.

You and I should write our Senators, Congressmen and the President of the United States and say:

"Appropriate and spend whatever's necessary for the defense of our country, but let's cut out non-essential appropriations and expenditures... including the special aids, benefits and services for MY group and MY community."

If each of us did that, we could in truth and in fact then say:

"Ain't It Wonderful!"

Questions and Answers

Q. I understand VA benefit checks now can be forwarded by the Post Office. Is this automatic, or do veterans still have to give some sort of notice if they move?

A. Veterans still must give notice. They must file a regular change-of-address form with their local Post Office. And they still should notify VA, so the agency may keep its records current.

Q. I had a World War 2 GI term insurance policy which lapsed in 1946. Is it too late to reinstate or renew it?

A. Yes. Application for reinstatement of GI term insurance must have been made within the policy's term period. Since your term insurance expired, it is too late to reinstate it.

Q. I am eligible for both VA compensation and pension. I chose compensation because the payments would be higher. If conditions should change so it would be more advantageous to receive pension payments, will

VA make the switch automatically?

A. No. VA may not make such changes automatically. You must request the change.

Q. I am eligible for War Orphans schooling, but as a Korea veteran I previously took training under the Korean GI Bill. May I still receive the full amount of 36 months of War Orphans education?

A. No. Your entitlement will have to be reduced by the amount of training you received under the Korean GI Bill.

Dear Friend:

A sad old story was told once more in the announcement that the cost of living hit another new high last month. Living costs advanced six-tenths of one per cent above the December figure and three and one-half per cent above January, 1957.

This is the nineteenth increase in twenty-one months. It is the biggest monthly jump since the middle of 1956.

In terms of purchasing power during the period covered by the years 1947-49, the dollar is now worth only 81.7 cents.

This latest rise in the cost of living comes at a time when the country is in a general business slump—when between four and one-half million people and five million who want jobs and can't get them. It hurts even more than previous increases.

Unemployment in Texas is now estimated at approximately 210,000, which is close to six and a half per cent of the total working force. That is a far cry from the 14 per cent unemployment figure that Texas knew in the worst of the depression. But the man who is out of work today cannot find much comfort in the knowledge that many more men were jobless during the depression.

The major part of the unemployment is in small businesses, on farms and in small towns. The bad farm picture—with a year of floods following eight years of drought—has driven many farm owners and farm workers into town, looking for work.

Small business enterprises are failing at a disturbing rate. In Texas last year, there were 466 small business failures—which is 44 per cent above the 1956 figures and close to twice the number of such failures in 1954.

These are facts. It would be foolish to ignore them. They do not in my considered opinion, call for pessimism about the future. They do call for careful, prudent study and for positive, soundly conceived action to prevent our nation from sliding down into really hard times.

Congress is aware of the problem. To recognize the problem and to take steps to meet it is not to express any loss of confidence in the future of the country. On the contrary, when we make investments in projects that will produce wealth in the future and also provide needed jobs in the present, we are showing a very realistic faith that the American people will go upward to new heights of prosperity and progress.

That is the faith I have, and I believe it is the faith that the overwhelming majority of Americans have. We can assure the future by tackling head-on the problems of the present. That is what Americans have always done. It is a procedure that has always worked out successfully. We have every reason to feel confident it will work again.

Reduce Delinquency

VI

LEARNING CRIME?

(A distinguished Texas judge offers pointers on combating our rapidly increasing juvenile delinquency problem.)

By JUDGE SARAH T. HUGHES

JUDGE HUGHES

Gatesville, as you know, is the state school for delinquent boys. Only the worst offenders should be committed there, but unfortunately many counties do not have facilities for handling boys who cannot be rehabilitated on probation. Many others do not have probation officers, paid or voluntary.

The result is that in some instances small boys 10 to 13 are sent to Gatesville simply because the county doesn't know what else to do with them. They may have committed only minor offenses and have no home.

Too Young
Such boys are really dependent and neglected rather than delinquent. They should never have been sent to Gatesville and it is not good that they are there.

These 40 to 50 younger boys sleep in a separate cottage. But otherwise—at meals, in school, and at play—they mix with older boys who have longer and more serious criminal careers and are good instructors in the ways of crime.

Too Little Remedy
The last regular session of the Legislature did not provide a separate school for younger boys but did remedy the situation IN PART. Dormitory and eating space were provided away from the main campus.

In many activities, however, the younger boys WILL CONTINUE TO MIX WITH THE MORE HARDENED OLDER BOYS, and only when the schools are entirely separate can the facilities be considered adequate.
