Comptroller: Strong Texas economy may slow

Despite oil and gas drilling, state budget officials say lean budget might be necessary

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Robust oil and gas drilling has the Texas economy humming, but state budget officials said Friday a slowdown is likely on the horizon for 2013. Top Republicans already are signaling that lawmakers will need to carve out another lean budget when they meet next year.

Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst said estimates of state spending were "sobering." The state will need to spend $9.4 billion more in the next two-year budget to keep pace with Texas' rising population and demand for services. Most of that money is needed to cover the escalating cost of education, Medicaid and prison health care.

"We'll see if we can cut taxes again in 2013, but it looks like it's going to be a challenge just to balance our budget," Dewhurst said.

Predictions of more cost-cutting coming during the next legislative session are nothing new. In June, the Legislative Budget Board told all state agencies to hold the line on spending for the next two years and to find ways to shave costs by another 10 percent. Those orders came despite growing tax revenues that had raised hopes of restoring public services and government jobs cut by lawmakers last year.

Tax revenues are still on the rise. Testifying before the state budget board, Associate Deputy Comptroller Mike Reissig handed Dewhurst and other lawmakers a report showing that tax revenues for the current fiscal year are up by nearly 14 percent.

Reissig said the state's rainy day fund also is likely to be stocked with an additional $2 billion, upping the balance to $8.1 billion. Budget officials did not project how much money lawmakers will have to spend in general revenue in 2014 and 2015. That number, called the biennial revenue estimate, will be released by the comptroller's office in January.

A thriving oil and gas industry are keeping the Texas economy and revenues strong. Reissig said that oil and gas accounted for 17 percent of the state's economy last year, "driving the positive revenue picture more than any other sector."

He cautioned, however, that Texas might start tapping the brakes next year. He said the national economy and the European debt crisis are likely to begin impacting Texas. Gross product growth is projected to fall from 3.1 percent this year to 2.8 percent in 2013.

Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst: Says balancing the state budget in 2013 will be a challenge.

Regional florist association event back in Midland

By Kathleen Petty
Staff Writer

For the first time in more than 30 years, the West Texas-New Mexico Florist Association will descend upon the Tall City this weekend.

The group of about 200 people will gather today and Sunday for continuing education classes, competitions and floral shows, said Chris Collum, co-convention chair and designer/consultant at Flowerland Midland.

"It's like anything else," he said. "Continuing education is so important, especially keeping up with the trends and to get some inspiration."

The association always holds an annual show but in the last several decades hasn't had Midland in its rotation. The last time it was held in Midland was in 1979.

When discussions began about two years ago for this year's convention, Collum said they decided to try something different and bring the event back to the Tall City.

Florists, designers and others in the business will travel from the Panhandle, various parts of New Mexico and from across the Permian Basin to attend, he said.

A trade show took place Friday evening that allowed participants to get a look at the newest products and to purchase items for their businesses.

Design competitions between florists will start at 8:30 a.m. today at the Midland Center.

Collum said the show isn't open to the public but there will be displays at Midland Center and at DoubleTree by Hilton for individuals to see.

Designing floral arrangements, whether with fresh or artificial flowers, is an art form, Collum said, so it's beneficial to have the opportunity to learn

More choose to camp out at Rock the Desert

By Audrie Palmer
Staff Writer

Those who are camping out at the annual Rock the Desert event said they are doing so because it's a tradition and not because of the lack of available and affordable hotel rooms in the area.

Bart and Patsy Reid, of Imperial, have camped out with their family for the past 10 years. They said when they attended the first year of the music festival they spent nearly an hour in traffic trying to leave the property.

"Since then, we've always just decided to camp out. It's part of the experience, really," Patsy Reid said.

The convenience of being only a few hundred feet from the stage and getting to bond with other churches and youth groups has enticed many to the free camping area.

The designated area, enclosed by a fence, provides one of the only green grassy fields on the property. Next to the tent area, Rock the Desert staff has enclosed an area to accommodate people with RVs or trailers.

Odessan John Walker purchased a motor home two weeks ago, and he and his family brought it to the event.

"We wanted to try it out," he said.

This is the second year the Walkers have attended the three-day Christian music festival, and even though they live nearby, they wanted to be close to the event and make it a family outing.

Those who wanted to pitch a tent or park an RV or trailer were requested to make reservations and pay a $25 deposit that was refunded upon arrival.

By Friday afternoon, more than 27 reservations for RV spaces had been made and more than 100 campers were out and about on the grounds, RTD staff said.

Youth pastor Ben Graves brought 10 youths from Elm Valley Community Church in Abilene.

He said the group had decided to camp out and didn't even research hotels in the area.

"We always wanted to do the camping thing. It's cheaper, and everybody likes doing it," he said.

Camping also is a tradition for four

Rock the Desert facts

- The forecast for today calls for a high near 102. There are plenty of water stations with free water and a medical tent for those who feel sick, said staff member Bill Yuhasz.
- More than 15,000 tickets have been sold in advance. Tickets still are available at the front gate.
- It's not just about music. There are jumpers available for the kids, a teen tent with speakers and a skate ramp for demonstrations by local skateboarders.

Texas high school graduation rate sets new record

Texas' on-time high school graduation rate has reached an all-time high, increasing 1.6 percent to 85.9 percent for the Class of 2011.

The Texas Education Agency said Friday that more than 92 percent of Class of 2011's 319,588 students graduated in four years or continued high school for a fifth year.

The previous four-year graduation rate record was the Class of 2010's 84.3 percent.

The agency said 2011 was the first graduating class required to take four years of math and science. Deputy director Todd Webster said students not only met that challenge but "raised the bar."

Graduation rates for whites increased 0.4 percent to 92 percent, while 2011 Hispanic graduation rates increased 3 percent to 81.8 percent.

Black student graduation rates rose to 80.9 percent from 78.8 percent in 2010.

Man gets life in prison in neighbor's death

A man has been sentenced to life in prison after pleading guilty to stabbing and beating his 97-year-old neighbor to death at her home in the Panhandle town of Borger.

The Amarillo Globe-News reported 48-year-old Gregorio Felan received life without parole after pleading guilty Thursday to capital murder in the April 2011 death of Lois Kimbrell.

According to the plea bargain, Felan waived his right to any future appeals in the case and prosecutor Mark Snider did not pursue the death penalty.

The autopsy showed that the victim died of stab wounds and blunt force trauma to the head.

Snider said prosecutors don't know Felan's motive, adding, "We'll probably never know."

State asks judge to stay voter registration order

The state of Texas wants a federal judge to stay his injunction blocking enforcement of parts of the state's new voter registration laws.

Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott asked U.S. District Judge Gregg Costa for the stay Friday in Galveston. Costa made no immediate ruling on the state's request.

On Thursday, Costa struck down five provisions of the voter registration law that the national non-partisan group Voting for America says make it harder to register people to vote.

The group complained that the new laws unconstitutionally restrict voter registration drives from gathering public voter information. The new laws also limit who can hand out voter registration cards and who can collect the completed registration forms.

GOP lawmakers say the new rules are necessary to prevent voter registration fraud.

HEMPSTEAD

Texas man gets life for deaths of parents, brother

A 23-year-old man will spend the rest of his life in prison after pleading guilty to capital murder for the fatal shootings of his parents and brother in their Southeast Texas home in March.

Trey Sesler was sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole at a court hearing Thursday in Hempstead.

Authorities said before his arrest, Sesler had been studying serial killers and mass shootings like the Columbine attack and had hoped to carry out some other act of public violence.

He was arrested after police found the bodies of his family members at their home in Waller, about 40 miles northwest of Houston.

DALLAS

Settlement reached in Texas shakedown lawsuit

Officials of a small East Texas town and the county where it's situated have agreed to steps aimed at ending racial profiling to settle a four-year-old class-action lawsuit.

Federal court filings late Friday show Tenaha and Shelby County have agreed to an "impartial policing policy" to better document and monitor traffic stops. The documents show defendants also have agreed to pay $520,000 in legal fees.

The lawsuit accused former officials of shaking down innocent motorists.

Former Shelby County District Attorney Lynda Kaye Russell and four other ex-law enforcement officials were named as defendants when the suit was filed.

The suit alleged that the officials forced motorists, most of them black, to forfeit their cash or face criminal charges.

Tenaha is a town of 1,160 residents near the Louisiana border.

Suspect fined again for having beard

A military judge has again held the Fort Hood shooting suspect in contempt of court for showing up to a pretrial hearing with a beard he had been told to shave.

Maj. Nidal Hasan was fined another $1,000 Friday. The judge, Col. Gregory Gross, said Hasan would watch the rest of the hearing on a closed-circuit television in a nearby trailer.

The Army doesn't allow beards. Hasan's attorneys say his is an expression of his Muslim faith.

Last week, the judge held Hasan in contempt and fined him $1,000. He said Hasan would be forcibly shaved before his Aug. 20 trial if he didn't shave.

Hasan is charged with 13 counts of premeditated murder and 32 counts of attempted premeditated murder in the attack on the Texas Army post.

Renowned pianist Ursuleasa dead at 33

Associated Press

BERLIN — Internationally renowned Romanian pianist Mihaela Ursuleasa has been found dead in her apartment in Vienna. She was 33.

Her agent, Andreea Butucariu, said in a statement from Berlin on Friday that Ursuleasa had died Thursday from the effects of a cerebral hemorrhage and asked for her family's privacy to be respected. Police in Vienna confirmed the cause of death.

Butucariu told Romanian media that Ursuleasa recently had cancelled two concerts in Bucharest on unspecified health grounds.

Ursuleasa began playing the piano at 5 years old under the guidance of her Gypsy jazz musician father in then-communist Romania. She obtained a grant to study in Vienna at 12, a year after communism collapsed.

She went on to play at New York's Carnegie Hall, with the Rundfunk-Sinfonieorchester in Berlin, with Orchestre National de France and also with the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

Romanian soprano Felicia Filip on Friday reminisced about Ursuleasa's debut. "In my mind's eye, I see the child lost in the immensity of the piano," she told Romanian news agency Mediafax, referring to one of the pianist's first public performances. "I recall a child who couldn't reach the piano pedals," she said.

"Mihaela was a huge pianistic talent with great musical instincts," said Bill Capone, managing director of Arts Management Group, who represented her. "Her untimely passing is very tragic and left those who knew her as an artist and person deeply saddened."

Ursuleasa is survived by a 5-year-old daughter. In a statement on the pianist's website, Butucariu asked that promoters "that had invited Mihaela for the next months" contribute towards an account for her daughter.

Dear friends, relatives, and past patrons:
We wish to thank all of you for your calls, cards, donations, flowers, and internet messages that have encouraged us with sincere words of respect, love, and comfort. Whether it be fixing things, cooking "Love's" famous food, coaching baseball, trap or skeet, we will always remember how Dad loved using his many talents to care for and help people unconditionally. Thank you for remembering him and taking the time to share your memories with us. Sincerely,
Gene Love's Family.

Immigrants to pay $465 for temporary work permits

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The Obama administration said Friday it will begin charging $465 this month for temporary work permits for many young illegal immigrants, as it laid out details of one its signature new policies on immigration.

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services will begin accepting applications Aug. 15 for the permits that are subject to renewal for two years. It will consider a limited number of fee exemptions but expects costs to be shouldered by applicants, not taxpayers.

Under the program, which President Barack Obama announced in June, immigrants must have arrived in the U.S. before their 16th birthday, be 30 or younger, lived in the U.S. at least five years and be in school, graduated or served in the military.

They are ineligible if convicted of a felony, three misdemeanors or one "significant" misdemeanor.

Significant misdemeanors, as defined by Homeland Security, are any offenses that result in more than 90 days in jail, and some offenses regardless of the sentence, including domestic violence, burglary and gun and drug crimes.

Minor traffic offenses, including driving without a license, will not be counted at all against applicants. Driving offenses are an important point because all but three states — New Mexico, Utah and Washington — deny licenses to illegal immigrants.

Applicants, who must attend an appointment and submit to background checks, might have to wait several months for a ruling. The wait will depend on the backlog.

The agency said the number of applications will determine how many employees it hires, and it did not provide an estimate for the total cost of the program. The Associated Press reported last month that Homeland Security Department internal documents estimated hundreds of employees may be hired and that the total cost could top $585 million.

The internal documents estimated that the number of applicants might top 1 million in the first year, or more than 3,000 a day. It will cost between $467 million and $585 million to process applications in the first two years, with revenues from fees paid by immigrants estimated at $484 million.

Father: 'White Only' pool sign caused suffering

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Michael Gunn said he was so upset when he saw his landlord's poolside "White Only" sign that he believes was aimed at his black daughter that he could not remain living at the Cincinnati duplex.

Gunn testified Friday at an Ohio Civil Rights Commission hearing in Cincinnati that the sign at the duplex where he rented an apartment cost his family emotionally and financially. The hearing was held to consider penalties that could include punitive and compensatory damages against Gunn's former landlord.

The commission found on Sept. 29 that landlord Jamie Hein, who claimed that the 10-year-old girl's hair products clouded the pool, discriminated against the child. The commission ruled that Hein, who is white, violated the Ohio Civil Rights Act by posting the sign.

Hein did not attend Friday's hearing, and a recording said her voicemail was full. The state has said Hein gave up her right to challenge the discrimination ruling by failing to respond to earlier case filings.

A ruling from the administrative law judge who heard the case Friday is not expected for months.

Gunn said his daughter lives with her mother but often visits him and had gone swimming in the pool on Memorial Day weekend in 2011. He said Hein sent him a text message shortly afterward, accusing his daughter of clouding the pool and saying she would have to shower before entering it and wear a swim cap. A few days after that, Gunn said he went to the pool and saw the iron sign stating "Public Swimming Pool, White Only."

Gunn, who is white, said he was so angry his hands were shaking.

"It's something you're supposed to see in history books," Gunn said. "It's not something you're supposed to see posted at the building where you live."

He determined he had to move to protect his daughter and was not about to let her see the sign or risk having Hein upset her.

"I did not want her to think that there were people like this or have her think that just because she wasn't white, people would think less of her," he told the administrative law judge.

Gunn also testified that he incurred costs from moving, lost work time and higher rent in addition to the emotional stress, but said his primary concern was his daughter.

"She shouldn't have to think about the color of her skin in relation to what people think about her," he said.

Elizabeth Brown, executive director of Housing Opportunities Made Equal, also testified — mostly about the impact on the racially diverse community. The nonprofit fair housing agency in Cincinnati helped Gunn file his complaint.

"It's not just a personal issue," Brown said. "Cincinnati has had problems in the past and has worked hard to change its image into a welcoming and inclusive city. An outrageous action like this is another hit on the city's reputation."

Cincinnati was the scene of race riots in April 2001 when police and demonstrators clashed following the shooting of a black suspect by police.

Civil Rights Section Chief Lori Anthony with the Ohio Attorney General's Office told the judge that damages are being sought "to send a clear message that racial discrimination in housing will not be tolerated."

This June 9, 2011, photo provided by Michael Gunn, shows a "white only" sign posted on the gate to a swimming pool at a duplex in Cincinnati where Gunn lived. Gunn's daughter, who is black, was denied access to the pool by Jamie Hein, the duplex landlord. An Ohio Civil Rights Commission administrative judge heard arguments at a hearing in Cincinnati Friday and is weighing penalties against the landlord that could include punitive and compensatory damages.

NEW YORK

Ex-Mexican gov. guilty in NY money laundering case

A former state governor of Mexico has pleaded guilty in New York to conspiring to launder millions of dollars in cocaine bribe payments.

Manhattan U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara said Mario Ernesto Villanueva Madrid pleaded guilty to a money laundering conspiracy count Thursday in federal court. Authorities said Villanueva Madrid conspired to launder the money from the Juarez Cartel through bank accounts in the U.S. and other countries.

Bharara said Friday the Juarez Cartel is one of Mexico's most violent cocaine cartels.

Villanueva Madrid is the ex-governor of Quintana Roo, where Cancun is situated. He was extradited from Mexico in 2010 and initially pleaded not guilty to drug-related charges.

The 64-year-old faces up to 20 years in prison when sentenced Oct. 26.

Mexican army detains suspect in killings of 49

The Mexican army says it has detained a man suspected of taking part in the killings of 49 people whose mutilated bodies were found near the Texas border in May.

The army said in a statement released Friday that Jose Ricardo Barajas Leon was detained Tuesday in Nuevo Leon state, where the hacked-up bodies were found.

It said Barajas is among 37 alleged members of the Zetas drug cartel who broke out of a Nuevo Leon state prison in February.

youth groups from Burnet that traveled to Midland together.

The group of 29 said it's part of the adventure and that they've been camping for the last several years.

"It's a lot of fun for the kids," said youth pastor Chad Nelson. "It's a relaxed environment and they have good fellowship with other church groups."

Luke Bailey, a volunteer with the Burnet group, said fellowship with the other groups reinforces the reason the students are there and helps them focus more on God than on the music being performed.

Several of the youth said they look forward to the annual festival — the concert as well as the experience of bonding and having fellowship with other youth on the campgrounds.

"It's a sacrifice (camping out), but it's well worth it," said student Grace Walzel.

MPD: Man commits robbery, arson over $20 loan

By James Cannon
Online Editor

A Midland man was in custody Friday after he was arrested for allegedly setting a man's trailer on fire over an unpaid $20 loan.

Kenneth Stevan Payne, 35, of Midland, is in the Midland County Central Detention Center on a $75,000 bond for a first-degree felony charge of aggravated robbery and a first-degree felony charge for arson with intent to damage a habitation.

Midland police were dispatched to the 600 block of East Cuthbert Avenue in reference to terroristic threats. The alleged victim told officers he wanted to report an attempted robbery and intentional arson, according to Payne's arrest report.

The alleged victim told officers that he borrowed $20 from Payne and wasn't able to repay the loan in a timely manner. He said Payne was irritated at him over the delay of payment and that Payne believed he wasn't making an effort to repay the debt, reports state.

The alleged victim, who resides in a trailer in the backyard of the Cuthbert Avenue house, said Payne pulled a knife on him and tried to start a fight. In fear of his life, the alleged victim told authorities that he grabbed a large plank of wood and defended himself. Payne left after the confrontation. A witness corroborated the story.

A complaint was not filed from the first confrontation because the alleged victim told officers he didn't want to involve police in a matter that was on his father's property.

Several hours after the confrontation, the alleged victim said he was awakened by his dog barking and a distinct odor of smoke. He told officers he noticed a large flame north of his apartment and found a 40-ounce bottle lying where the fire began. He extinguished the blaze with water from a 5-gallon water container.

During the interview, the alleged victim pointed out the suspect he knew as "Shadow," who later was identified as Payne. The suspect was detained and transported to the Midland CDC for an interview. He allegedly waived his rights and then was interviewed by officers.

"(Payne) lied to me several times by contradicting his own statements," the lead investigator wrote. He continually denied any knowledge of the fire but eventually did admit to pulling a knife on the alleged victim, he wrote. Payne told investigators he returned to the residence to apologize for his actions — although he refused to specify what actions — and to retrieve his money, according to the report.

Officers said they had enough probable cause to book Payne on two first-degree felony charges due to witness statements and forensic evidence. If convicted, he could face between five and 99 years in prison for each count.

NC county to honor black Confederate Army veterans

Associated Press

MONROE, N.C. — A North Carolina county has finalized plans for a granite marker that will honor local slaves who served in the Confederate Army during the Civil War.

The Charlotte Observer reported the marker honoring 10 black men, including nine slaves, is believed to be one of the first in the country. The marker will go in a brick walkway at the Old County Courthouse in Monroe.

The county's historic preservation commission on Thursday unanimously approved the plan for a marker that reads, "In Memory of Union County's Confederate Pensioners of Color." It goes on to recognize all African Americans who served in "The War Between The States."

Historians say virtually no black men fought for the Confederacy and that it's difficult to say how many were forced into military service or followed their owners into battle.

One course being held will discuss wedding trends as they relate to the floral industry.

Another will focus on the different options for permanent botanicals, or artificial arrangements.

Another program will discuss "hot trends" in the industry.

The Midland Convention & Visitors Bureau estimates the event will bring $57,900 in direct visitor spending to Midland through hotel reservations, shopping and eating out, according to Brenda Kissko, tourism and public relations manager.

Collum said because they started planning two years ago for the convention, the group was able to secure enough hotel rooms for participants despite the increase in guests being experienced.

China warned against further moves in South China Sea

McClatchy Tribune

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration on Friday warned China against further moves to tighten control over a disputed section of the South China Sea, as tensions rose in the flash point region.

In a statement, the State Department cautioned China about its addition of a military garrison and civilian officials near the contested Scarborough Reef and its use of barriers to deny access to foreign ships.

These moves "run counter to collaborative diplomatic efforts to resolve differences and risk further escalating tensions in the region," said the statement, issued early Friday morning and attributed to Patrick Ventrell, the acting deputy spokesman.

Six countries have complex competing claims to the region's water and islands, which are rich in fish, oil and gas and other resources.

China's recent moves over the Scarborough Reef have ruffled feathers in several nations, including Vietnam, Japan and the Philippines. There also have been reports that China is preparing to invite oil company bids for energy exploration in the area.

Countries in the region have been trying to work out a method for peacefully arbitrating their claims through a leading regional body, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, and have urged states not to take any provocative actions.

The U.S. statement appeared to be a sign to Southeast Asian countries that the administration continues its close watch on developments in the region. But one analyst cautioned that by singling out China at a time when several nations have been pushing claims, the Obama administration may confirm Chinese fears that it is strengthening security ties in Southeast Asia to limit the expansion of Chinese power.

"It's very likely that China will read this as unnecessary, and confirming its concerns that the U.S. is actively seeking to line up with Southeast Asia against it," said Kenneth Lieberthal, a China specialist at the Brookings Institution and a former Clinton administration official.

Administration officials announced last year that they were shifting their foreign policy attention more to East Asia and have announced a series of steps to reinforce security ties with Vietnam, the Philippines, Australia and other countries.

Wind-whipped Oklahoma wildfires destroy several homes

Associated Press

NOBLE, Okla. — A wildfire whipped by gusty, southerly winds swept through rural woodlands south of the Oklahoma City area Friday, burning several homes as firefighters struggled to contain it in 113-degree heat.

Oklahoma's emergency management officials said 25 structures had burned east of Noble, including a handful of homes. The sheriff's office directed residents of 75 to 100 houses to leave the area as flames spread through treetops. The evacuation area, south of Lake Thunderbird, is about 30 square miles.

The state Highway Patrol closed part of the main highway between Oklahoma City and Tulsa because of a fire that may have been deliberately set. Local deputies were looking into reports about passengers in a pickup who were seen throwing out newspapers that had been set on fire.

"I loaded the kids up, grabbed my dogs, and it didn't even look like I had time to load the livestock, so I just got out of there," said Bo Ireland, who lives a few miles from where the Noble-area fire started. "It looked to me that, if the wind shifted even a little bit, I would be in the path of that fire. It was just too close."

There were no immediate reports of injuries or livestock losses from the fires, which also charred the earth near Geary and Luther.

With the ongoing drought, high temperatures and gusty winds, it took little for fires to begin and spread — and there was little crews could do to fight them.

"It's difficult for the firefighters to get into the area because it's heavily wooded on either side of the smaller roads. When the winds are blowing 25 mph it just blows the embers and fireballs across the roads as if they weren't even there," said Jerry Lojka with the Oklahoma Department of Emergency Management.

At mid-afternoon Friday, the temperature at nearby Norman was 113. Winds were from the south and southwest at 14 mph, gusting to 24 mph.

"I can tell you the temperatures and the wind are not helping the situation at all. Some homes have been lost in the fire unfortunately, but we don't know how many," said Meghan McCormick, a spokeswoman for the Cleveland County Sheriff's office.

Russell Moore, 53, who lives in the Noble area, said he was outside in his yard when a sheriff's deputy drove down the road and told people to leave. He and his son went to a shelter set up at Noble City Hall, but planned to go to his daughter's home in Norman.

"About all we saw was smoke and a little bit of ash raining down from the sky," Moore said. "Everybody was piling into their vehicles and leaving as we were."

Lojka said an Oklahoma National Guard helicopter has been dispatched to a fast-moving blaze in Luther, northeast of Oklahoma City. He also said helicopters were helping ground crews with a fire near Mannford and Drumright in Creek County. Helicopters from the National Guard and the Bureau of Indian Affairs were fighting a fire in Creek County.

The Oklahoma County Sheriff's Office said it was investigating reports that someone in a black pickup near Luther was tossing out newspapers that had been set on fire. The blaze and smoke led the Oklahoma Highway Patrol to shut down part of the Turner Turnpike, which carries Interstate 44 between Oklahoma City and Tulsa. Traffic was rerouted onto old U.S. Route 66, the famed two-lane highway that crisscrosses Oklahoma.

HOUSTON

US rig count increases by 6 to 1,930

The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. rose by six this week to 1,930 from the previous week. The count had fallen for three consecutive weeks.

Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 1,429 rigs were exploring for oil and 498 were searching for gas. Three were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago, Baker Hughes listed 1,920 rigs.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Oklahoma gained six rigs, and Texas rose by five. New Mexico increased by three, and Alaska was up two. West Virginia jumped by one.

North Dakota lost four rigs, Pennsylvania dropped three and Colorado two. Arkansas, California and Louisiana each lost one rig. Wyoming was unchanged.

The rig count peaked at 4,530 in 1981 and bottomed out at 488 in 1999.

NEW YORK

Oil surges 5 percent on strong job growth

NEW YORK — The price of oil posted its biggest gain in more than a month, jumping nearly 5 percent, after the government reported a sharp rise in job growth for July.

Benchmark U.S. crude on Friday rose $4.27 to end the day at $91.40 per barrel in New York. Brent crude, which sets the price for oil imported into the U.S., climbed $3.04, or 2.9 percent, to $108.94 per barrel in London.

Prices climbed after the government said U.S. employers added 163,000 jobs in July. Last month's hiring was the best since February, though it wasn't enough to drive down the unemployment rate. Prices for oil and gasoline tend to rise on signs of strength in the economy, which increases energy demand.

Retail gasoline prices, meanwhile, rose 3.3 cents to a national average of $3.567 per gallon, according to auto club AAA, Wright Express and Oil Price Information Service. Gasoline prices have jumped by about 24 cents per gallon since the beginning of July.

In other futures trading, heating oil added 8.4 cents to finish at $2.926 per gallon while wholesale gasoline added 6.1 cents to finish at $2.931 per gallon. Natural gas was dropped 4.3 cents to finish at $2.877 per 1,000 cubic feet.

NEW MEXICO

Land Office generates $650M in past fiscal year

The New Mexico Land Office says it has earned more than $650 million from state trust lands in the most recent fiscal year.

State Land Commissioner Ray Powell attributed the record-setting revenue to higher oil prices and a thoughtful selection of tracts for lease. He said advances in technology have allowed larger volumes of oil to be produced from existing wells.

Renewable energy sources, such as wind and solar power, and commercial leases also contributed to the earnings.

Royalty earnings are paid into the Land Grant Permanent Fund for distribution to public schools and other beneficiaries.

Oil and gas lease sales are deposited into the Land Maintenance Fund, which pays for the office's operating expenses.

Controversial regulatory czar to depart White House

McClatchy Tribune

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration's top regulator is heading for the door.

The White House announced Friday that Cass Sunstein, the so-called regulatory czar, will be returning to his post at Harvard Law School.

As administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs for more than three years, Sunstein has overseen the administration's regulatory regime, including a much-touted initiative aimed at weeding out unnecessary and outdated regulations.

Sunstein was known as the chief advocate for rigorous cost-benefit analysis in drafting rules and challenging common assumptions about the effect of government intervention in business.

Announcing the departure, President Barack Obama said Sunstein's work "has shown that it is possible to support economic growth without sacrificing health, safety and the environment."

Sunstein's approach won him early kudos from the some on the right — including the Wall Street Journal editorial page, which praised Sunstein's 2009 nomination as a "promising sign." But it did not do much to blunt Republican attacks aimed at the Obama's administration "job-killing regulations."

And it did not endear him to many on the left, who often saw him as a roadblock in efforts to push the administration to be more aggressive when it came to regulatory matters.

"(In) the final analysis, Sunstein has continued the Bush administration's tradition of using the office to block needed health and safety protections disliked by big business and political contributors," said Rena Steinzor, president of the Center for Progressive Reform. "Worse, the narrative that Sunstein helped craft about the impact of regulations on American life — that regulatory safeguards are fundamentally suspect — was discordant with the rest of the president's agenda and the arguments he makes for his re-election."

Legislator: 'What's wrong with these chuckleheads'

A Republican congressman who's retiring in frustration over political gridlock says he hopes the institution doesn't have to hit "rock bottom" before people learn to work together.

Ohio's Steven LaTourette told MSNBC it's more difficult for a reasonable person to get re-elected to Congress because "the red districts are turning redder and the blue districts are turning bluer."

LaTourette said Friday that voters haven't demanded enough. He said when Congress failed to make a deal on budget cuts, "I didn't get one phone call. I didn't get one email."

He said people should have been saying, "What's wrong with these chuckleheads?"

SUN VALLEY — Clint Eastwood just made Mitt Romney's day.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The quarrelsome House couldn't even agree on whether to formally adjourn, but that didn't stop Congress from taking five weeks off.

Coming up are weeks of campaigning to keep their jobs, the Republican and Democratic presidential conventions and a return in September to face the same issues, some of real consequence to the nation's future, that they've left unresolved.

The difficulties of bridging the partisan gap were in evidence on their last day, when lawmakers were unable to agree on two pressing problems: how to help livestock producers suffering from widespread drought and how to protect critical industries from cyberattacks launched by terrorists or other enemies.

The GOP-led House narrowly approved a bill to revive expired disaster relief programs for cattle and sheep farmers who have seen the price of feed soar because of drought damage to corn and other crops. But the Senate, controlled by Democrats, sidestepped action on the bill, saying it was insufficient and that the House instead should consider a comprehensive five-year farm policy bill that the Senate passed in June.

The Senate also reached an impasse on legislation to bring the government and businesses together to protect the nation's infrastructure from cyberattacks. The main stumbling block was the role the Homeland Security Department and other federal agencies should play in protecting U.S. businesses.

Republicans blocked further consideration of the Senate bill, supported by the White House, saying it would lead to Washington imposing a heavy hand on the private sector without substantially reducing risks. Both parties said they were committed to approving a final bill when they return in September, although bridging differences in their approaches will not be easy.

On its final vote Thursday, the House capped off its summer of dysfunction by rejecting a procedural motion on adjournment. Every Democrat and a third of Republicans voted against it: Democrats, as they made their exits, said the House shouldn't leave without doing something about the looming tax cut showdown, while some Republicans are concerned that President Barack Obama will make recess appointments if Congress is officially not in session.

Before departing, lawmakers highlighted those differences on taxes that will dominate the congressional scene this fall. The Senate Finance Committee, on a bipartisan vote, approved a $200 billion-plus package to renew dozens of tax breaks for businesses such as biodiesel and wind energy producers. On the other side of the Capitol, the House voted mainly along party lines to pass legislation putting the House on record in support of tax reform that would lower the top income tax rate to 25 percent and end some of the types of special interest tax breaks included in the Senate measure.

Senate Finance Committee members defended their actions, saying they had succeeded in eliminating almost 20 existing tax breaks. Among those being allowed to expire was a tax credit for ethanol producers. The annual package of special interest tax credits had grown from 42 items in 1998 to 154 last year.

Taxes will take center stage this fall when Congress must decide how to handle the Bush-era tax cuts set to expire at the end of the year. The Senate has joined Obama in calling for the termination of those tax cuts for people earning more than $200,000 a year and couples making more than $250,000.

The House on Wednesday voted to fully renew the expiring tax cuts.

Also on the agenda is what to do about $110 billion in automatic spending cuts to the Pentagon and domestic programs that will occur in January, the result of the failure of the congressional supercommittee commissioned last year to come up with a deficit-reduction plan. Economists worry that the inability of Congress to find common ground on the tax cuts and the automatic spending cuts could force the nation over a "fiscal cliff," driving the economy back into recession.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, meanwhile, approved a $604 billion defense spending plan for next year that is $29 billion less than current spending but reverses proposed Pentagon cuts in Air Force personnel and equipment. The committee rejected a Republican proposal that would have required defense contractors to send out notices of possible job layoffs related to the automatic cuts just before the November presidential election.

House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., were able to put off one impending disaster when they reached an agreement last week on extending federal programs for six months, averting a possible government shutdown when the fiscal year ends on Sept. 30.

House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va., issued a statement that, if the Senate was willing to go along, the House was prepared to bring up legislation in September to approve permanent normal trade relations with Russia.

2012 Property Tax Rates in Midland County

This notice concerns the 2012 property tax rates for Midland County. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual tax rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers start rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$23,582,824
Last year's debt taxes	$2,564,951
Last year's total taxes	$26,147,775
Last year's tax base	$13,192,155,171
Last year's total tax rate	$0.198207/$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$25,490,419
÷ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$15,770,306,240
=This year's effective tax rate	$0.161635/$100
(Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings.)
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate, and/or enhanced indigent healthcare expenditures)	$49,445,905
÷ This year's adjusted tax base	$15,770,306,240
=This year's effective operating rate	$0.313538/$100
x 1.08=this year's maximum operating rate	$0.338621/$100
+ This year's debt rate	$0.004773/$100
= This year's total rollback rate	$0.343394/$100
-Sales tax adjustment rate	$0.188144/$100
=Rollback tax rate	$0.155250/$100

Statement of Increase/Decrease

If Midland County adopts a 2012 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of $0.161635 per $100 of value, taxes would decrease compared to 2011 taxes by $-190,549.

Schedule A: Unencumbered Fund Balance

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
General Fund	56,000,000
Road and Bridge Fund	2,170,000
Debt Service Fund	524,700

Schedule B: General Fund - 2012 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid from Property Taxes	Interest to be Paid from Property Taxes	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
2004 Certificate of Obligation	460,000	306,608	0	766,608
2009 Certificate of Obligation	850,000	917,244	0	1,767,244

Total required for 2012 debt service	$2,533,852
- Amount (if any) paid from Schedule A	$1,767,244
- Amount (if any) paid from other resources	$0
- Excess collections last year	$0
= Total to be paid from taxes in 2012	$766,608
+ Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 100.00% of its taxes in 2012	$0
= Total debt levy	$766,608

Schedule C - Expected Revenue from Additional Sales Tax

In calculating its effective and rollback tax rates, the unit estimated that it will receive $24,000,000 in additional sales and use tax revenues. The county has excluded any amount that is or will be distributed for economic development grants from this amount of expected sales tax revenue.

Schedule F - Enhanced Indigent Health Care Expenditures

The Midland County spent $623,270 from July 1, 2011 to June 30, 2012 on enhanced indigent health care at the increased minimum eligibility standards, less the amount of state assistance. For the current tax year, the amount of increase above last year's enhanced indigent health care expenditures is $0.

This notice contains a summary of actual effective and rollback tax rates' calculations. You can inspect a copy of the full calculations at 2110 North, A street, Midland, TX 79702

'Hounds score 3 in 9th to tie, then win in 10 innings

By Jordan Mason
Sports Writer

The Midland RockHounds were down multiple runs for eight and a half innings Friday but never quite out of it against first-place Corpus Christi.

And after Corpus Christi stole a road win from the RockHounds a week earlier with four runs in the ninth, Midland gave its visitors a similar treatment, scoring four runs in the final two innings of a 10-inning 6-5 victory at Citibank Ballpark.

In an ending as eccentric as the Olympic-themed uniforms Midland was sporting, Leonardo Gil tied up a game that seemed all but over in the ninth with his first home run of the season — a three-run inside the park home run.

Matt Rizzotti then ended it in the tenth with his game-winning RBI single to score Anthony Aliotti.

RockHounds	6
Hooks	5 (10)

"It was great," Rizzotti said. "They walked us off at their place, so it felt good to kind of return the favor at our place."

Midland found itself in a hole from seemingly the first pitch as the Hooks wasted no time jumping on Midland starter Carlos Hernandez.

After a leadoff walk by Robbie Grossman to start the game, Jose Martinez followed with a single to left before Drew Locke drove in the first run of the game on an RBI single two batters later.

Then, after a Jon Singleton groundout, Bobby Borchering stroked a two-out, two-run single to left that put his team up 3-0.

The Hooks were back at it again in the fourth, which Borchering led off with a double to deep left center, later scoring on a 6-4-3 double play to push the lead to 4-0.

The RockHounds, meanwhile, were nearly unable to figure out Hooks starter Asher Wojciechowski, who took a perfect game into the fourth.

Midland finally got a hit in the fourth and Conner Crumbliss, who reached on a leadoff walk, advanced all the way to third, but he was left stranded there when Wojciechowski fanned Jeremy Barfield to end the inning. Wojciechowski went 5 1/3 innings in the game, allowing one run on two hits while walking two.

But the RockHounds remained poised in the face of adversity.

"That's all we did tonight (was) try to get good at-bats and make good swings," Gil said, "and you see the results."

57-year old takes advantage of course rotation to lead

By Len Hayward

It took one round to show that the change in course rotation for the SC Fuels Midland Men's City Championship was going to have an affect on the outcome this weekend.

This year tournament officials changed the rotation as the shorter Quail Course will be played on Friday and Sunday, and after the first round a few players were left scratching their heads while others were smiling after playing the shorter, more traditional, tree-lined course.

One of those players smiling was 57-year old Joe Hart, who shot a 3-under 67 and holds a two-stroke lead heading into today's second round at the Roadrunner Course.

Hart used a string of four straight birdies on the back nine to turn around his round and put him on top of the leaderboard when there were only three scores under 70 on Friday.

"You've got to keep it in play on the Quail side," said Hart, who said he's played in the tournament "forever." "I got it together on the back side and it was at the right time. It was nice. I think it does (even out on the field) because you can't blast it. They can't hit it very far unless you are very accurate."

The longer, links-style Roadrunner Course has usually given up plenty of

Church takes lead for strong safety position

By Tom Orsborn
San Antonio Express-News

OXNARD, Calif. — It's all starting to slow down for Barry Church.

Deprived by the lockout of a chance last offseason to fully grasp defensive coordinator Rob Ryan's complicated scheme, Church wasn't ready to challenge for a starting job in 2011. But nearly a week into training camp, the third-year pro is the frontrunner to land the strong safety job after using the spring and summer to master the playbook.

"The defense is starting to be a lot simpler, a lot easier," said Church, who has intercepted Tony Romo twice in practice.

"I'm hitting my stride. The (offseason practices) helped me a lot. Without them last year with the new system, it was hard. But it's becoming second nature now."

Abe Elam struggled at strong safety last season, so the Cowboys let him drift into free agency before signing seven-year veteran Brodney Pool to a one-year deal.

Only one problem: Pool failed his physical conditioning test last Sunday. After finally passing it, he practiced for the first time Friday, running second team behind Church.

Asked if he was worried, Pool said, "I've been in the league eight years. Competition is awfully good. Church has been doing a great job out there. I just have to step up."

It could be too late.

"I think he did (take advantage)," coach Jason Garrett said of Church, 24.

The 6-foot-2, 218-pound Church's evolution from an undrafted rookie out of Toledo to a potential starter included an apprenticeship as a special teams ace and as a linebacker in nickel and dime packages.

"Barry Church is one of those guys a lot of teams have," coach Jason Garrett said. "You bring him in as an undrafted free agent and

Phelps wins 17th gold, Franklin sets world record

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

LONDON — Seventh at the turn, an Olympic champion at the end.

Make it 17 gold medals for Michael Phelps.

What a way to go out in the final individual race of his career.

With those long arms whipping through the water, Phelps was next-to-last when he touched the wall at the far end of the pool in the 100-meter butterfly but in a familiar position when he made the touch that counted Friday — his name atop the leaderboard, a smile on his face, another gold medal around his neck.

"I'm just happy that the last one was a win," Phelps said. "That's all I really wanted coming into the night."

He claimed his third gold of the London Games and 17th of his career, adding to an already absurd record total that should be twice as much as anyone else by the time he swims the final race of his career, the 4x100 medley relay Saturday night.

Inside

See more Olympic coverage on Page 4B.

The Americans are huge favorites in a race they have never lost, and it's unfathomable to think the Phelps era could end with anything less than a performance that puts him atop the podium one last time.

In what might be viewed as a symbolic changing of the guard from America's greatest swimming star to the next big thing, 17-year-old Missy Franklin set a world record in the 200 backstroke, her third gold in London, just minutes before Phelps took center stage at the Olympic Aquatics Centre. Another American teen, 19-year-old Elizabeth Beisel, claimed the 200 back bronze.

"I can't believe what just happened," said Franklin, who had dedicated her Olympics to victims of the theater shooting not far from her Colorado home. "In that last 25, I knew I was giving it everything I had because I couldn't feel my arms and legs and I was just trying to get my hand to the wall as fast I could."

Right after Phelps was done, 15-year-old Katie Ledecky — the youngest member of the U.S. team — nearly broke the world record to win gold in the 800 freestyle, denying Britain's Rebecca Adlington a repeat before her home fans. Adlington settled for bronze in a race Ledecky dominated from start to finish, falling off record pace only in the last 15 meters.

But no one has dominated like Phelps, who increased his career overall medal total to 21.

"He's the king of the Olympics Games," said his butterfly rival, Serbia's Milorad Cavic.

Even though Phelps didn't go as fast in the final as he did in the semifinals, he actually won by a relatively comfortable margin compared to his two previous Olympic wins in the 100 fly — by four-hundredths of a second over Ian Crocker in 2004, then by one-hun-

UTPB women's basketball coach resigns

From staff reports

University of Texas of the Permian Basin women's basketball coach Adam Collins resigned from his position, the school announced on Thursday.

Collins is leaving UTPB to become the new women's basketball coach at the University of Charleston in Charleston, W.V. The University of Charleston is also a Division II school.

Collins spent four seasons guiding the Lady Falcons and compiled a 63-48 record in those years as he turned around a program that was 2-25 during the 2007-08 season, which was a season before he took over.

The Lady Falcons were 21-8 in 2010-11 and earned a Heartland Conference Tournament berth, and also the program's first NCAA Division II tournament berth.

UTPB Athletic Director Steve Aicinena said that the school will move "as rapidly as possible" to fill the position.

inning before mounting an unlikely rally in the sixth when Aliotti put them on the board with an RBI single to left.

Yet with one out and runners on second and third, and the momentum seeming to have finally left the visitors, the RockHounds were unable to pull closer as Alex Sogard retired the next two batters.

In the eighth, Corpus Christi pushed the lead back to four on a Singleton RBI single, yet, after walking Jacob Goebbert to load the bases, Jose Guzman retired the next two batters to prevent any further damage.

Midland seemed on the cusp of a rally again in the bottom of the frame, putting runners on the corners with one out. But Locke robbed Aliotti of a sure base hit with a diving catch in right that turned at least an RBI single into a sacrifice fly and the 'Hounds' second out.

But Corpus Christi was unable to put Midland away as reliever Jason Stoffel walked the first two batters he faced to start the ninth.

Two batters later, Gil laced an 0-1 pitch into the gap, just past a diving Locke, and hustled around the base paths before diving headfirst across home plate for a three-run inside the park home run, which tied it at 5.

"I thought he was going to catch it," Gil said, "so I was slowing down, (but) when I saw the crowd get excited I started running faster."

After Jonathan Ortiz retired the side in order in the 10th, Rizzotti followed a leadoff single by Aliotti with a rope to deep center to win it.

"I was either striking out or hitting the ball as hard as I could," Rizzotti said with a laugh.

Added Scarsone: "That ball's out of every other ballpark in this league, but it was plenty enough to get it in … that was a great cap to this night."

'HOUND BITES: Eliezer Mesa left the game in the top of the sixth inning after being hit in the head by a 1-1 pitch from Corpus Christi starter Asher Wojciechowski. Mesa laid on the ground momentarily without moving before rolling over and responding to a series of tests by trainer Justin Whitehouse. He eventually walked off the field under his own power. … In roster moves, pitcher James Simmons was promoted to Triple-A Sacramento while third baseman Miles Head was sent to the disabled list, retroactive Monday. Catcher David Freitas, acquired in a trade for Athletics catcher Kurt Suzuki, is expected to join the RockHounds on Sunday … Pitcher Dan Straily made his major league debut with the Oakland Athletics on Friday, joining A.J. Griffin as the second member of the RockHound's opening day rotation on the Oakland pitching staff.

TODAY'S PROBABLES: The RockHounds take on Corpus Christi in the second of a four-game series at 7 p.m. today at Citibank Ballpark. Southpaw Fabio Castro (1-3, 3.40) is expected to get the nod for Midland while fellow lefty Rob Rasmussen (2-2, 5.68) is expected to start for the Hooks.

Slumping Josh Hamilton clarifies cryptic comments

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Texas Rangers slugger Josh Hamilton has tried to clarify his recent cryptic comments about being disobedient.

Hamilton, who has been in a prolonged slump, talked about disobedience in a pregame interview with reporters last weekend. But Hamilton, whose past struggles with drugs and alcohol are well known, didn't get into specifics. He said then it was frustrating not to be able to share everything.

On Friday, Hamilton released a statement saying his issue has been discipline. The Christian player said professionally, it has been plate discipline and personally it's being obedient to the Lord in quitting chewing tobacco.

Hamilton is hitting .201 since June 1, dropping his average 84 points to .284 overall.

He said in late June that he was trying again to quit tobacco.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

AMERICAN LEAGUE
RANGERS 5, ROYALS 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Matt Harrison gave the beleaguered Texas pitching staff a strong start and Mitch Moreland hit a three-run homer.

The Rangers starters had allowed at least six runs in the previous four games, but Harrison (13-6) held the Royals to two runs and eight hits in 6 2-3 innings. Harrison, who went 1-3 in July, walked three and struck out three, departing after 109 pitches.

Moreland's home run in the seventh came off Royals lefty reliever Jose Mijares, who had not yielded a home run to a left-handed hitter this season.

Jeremy Guthrie (3-11) held the Rangers to three runs and six hits over six-plus innings. He is winless in three Kansas City starts since being acquired in a July 20 trade with Colorado.

Alexi Ogando worked a 1-2-3 ninth for his second save in five opportunities.

YANKEES 6, MARINERS 3

Jose Canseco signs with Rio Grande Valley

Associated Press

HARLINGEN — Jose Canseco has signed with the Rio Grande Valley WhiteWings of the North American Baseball League on Friday, and is expected to play Saturday night against McAllen.

The 48-year-old Canseco hit 462 home runs in 18 seasons in the majors and was the 1988 AL MVP. He later admitted using performance-enhancing drugs.

Earlier this season, Canseco played in 20 games for the Worcester Tornadoes in the Canadian-American Association. Last year, he hit .256 with eight home runs and 46 RBI as a player-manager for the North American Baseball League's Yuma Scorpions.

The signing comes three days after Canseco filed for bankruptcy protection in Nevada. The filing lists less than $21,000 in assets and almost $1.7 million in liabilities, including more than $500,000 owed to the Internal Revenue Service.

UCI tries to block USADA charges against Armstrong

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Cycling's international governing body is trying to block the case American anti-doping officials filed against Lance Armstrong, saying there may be a lack of due process and that witnesses were promised "advantages" in exchange for incriminating statements against the seven-time Tour de France winner.

The U.S. Anti-Doping Agency brought charges of performance-enhancing drug use against Armstrong in June, threatening to strip him of his victories. A federal grand jury investigation of the cyclist ended four months earlier without any indictments.

Armstrong repeatedly has proclaimed his innocence and sued in federal court in Austin, Texas, claiming USADA rules violate athletes' constitutional right to a fair trial.

In a testy exchange of letters made public Friday as part of the court case, the International Cycling Union (UCI) proposed that it appoint an independent panel to determine whether the charges against Armstrong have merit. The U.S. Anti-Doping Agency responded there should instead be a "Truth And Reconciliation Commission to clean up the sport of cycling once and for all."

Gold

dredth of a second — the closest race possible — against Cavic at the Beijing Games four years ago.

That was the victory that kept Phelps on course to win a historic eight gold medals in China.

This was about going out in style.

Phelps touched in 51.21 seconds to beat out the guy who edged him in the 200 fly, Chad le Clos. The South African touched in 51.44, tying for silver with Russia's Evgeny Korotyshkin. Cavic tied for fourth in 51.81, not even close to Phelps in their final meeting.

"I cannot be compared to Michael Phelps," said Cavic, who also plans to retire after the London Games. "I'm a one-trick pony."

France won its fourth gold at the pool, its best showing ever, as Florent Manaudou — younger brother of 2004 gold medalist Laure Manaudou — shocked defending Olympic champion and world-record holder Cesar Cielo of Brazil in the 50 freestyle.

Manaudou touched in 21.34 and pounded the water out in Lane 7, then got a big hug from his sister as soon as he climbed from the pool. Cullen Jones of the United States took silver in 21.54, while Cielo was left with bronze in 21.59. Anthony Ervin, the 2000 Olympic champion who came back from an eight-year retirement, finished fifth after getting off to a poor start.

"I'm tired," said Cielo, still only 25 but the world's top sprinter for the last four years. "Age takes its effect."

Linemen become the stars on Hall of Fame weekend

By Joe Kay
Associated Press

CANTON, Ohio — They blocked and tackled and got lost in those scrums at the line of scrimmage, overshadowed by the guys who handled the ball and soaked in the moments of glory.

It all changes in Canton this weekend, when a group of linemen become the stars of the NFL's most prestigious event.

Four linemen will be among the six players inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame on Saturday night — Chris Doleman, Cortez Kennedy, Willie Roaf and Dermontti Dawson. Running back Curtis Martin and cornerback Jack Butler will join them.

In several ways, it's fitting that the ones who protected the quarterbacks and tried to get them to the ground are the ones getting top billing.

"Any coach will tell you the backbone of your team is the offensive line and the defensive line, and it is appropriate that these guys go in together," former Pittsburgh Steelers coach Bill Cowher said.

For this group, it's about time.

"These guys like Willie Roaf and Jack Butler and Cortez Kennedy and Dermontti Dawson, how often do you hear their names called unless they're doing something that they shouldn't be doing?" said Doleman, who had 150 1/2 sacks. "These guys are awesome players who are so deserving of the Hall of Fame, and I'm so proud to be going in with them."

The six inductees are the centerpiece of a special weekend in the northern Ohio city, which had to do without one of its main events last year. The Hall of Fame game was called off because of the NFL lockout, costing the hall and the city a lot of money.

The game returns on Sunday night, with more than a little intrigue of its own. The New Orleans Saints, hit hard by their bounty scandal in the offseason, will open the preseason against the Arizona Cardinals. Labor issues still play a role, though — replacement officials will be used because the refs' union has been locked out.

It'll overshadow the preseason, at least for the first game.

"I know there'll be a lot of attention based on what happened with their offseason," Cardinals coach Ken Whisenhunt said.

Church

you think, 'Boy, he's a little better than we thought he was.' He makes an impact on special teams and then you say, 'He probably can do a lot on defense.'

"We put him in there (as a situational player) and he did a nice job. Then you give him the next thing and he kind of delivers over and over."

A positive attitude has had plenty to do with Church's rise.

"He has a great demeanor," Garrett said. "He loves to play football and always has a smile on his face. He communicates with the other guys and has a passion for preparation."

A separated shoulder in Week 14 last year ended Church's season, but he returned in what Garrett called "the best'shape of his life."

"His body changed a bit and he's a more mature guy," Garrett said. "He's seen NFL training camps before and he's seen NFL offenses before and he understands the scheme a little more. He really has taken advantage of the opportunity he's had so far."

One of the knocks against Church has been his lack of speed, but new secondary coach Jerome Henderson said he hasn't noticed.

"All I know," Henderson said, "is that watching him play and studying last year's tape, I like the player. I like everything abut him."

Besides, Henderson said, speed isn't necessarily something a safety needs to excel.

"I'm sure (Baltimore's) Ed Reed isn't the fastest safety in the league, but every year you look up at interceptions and he's right at the top of the list," Henderson said.

Speed or no speed, Church has improved in coverage.

"That was one of the concerns we had," Garrett said. "They have this expression, he's a box safety, a guy who plays down near the line of scrimmage. Good against the run, but you don't want him in space.

"That was his reputation coming in. But, at every turn, he has grown. He has grown to be a better space player and he's grown on the back end as well. It will never be his strong suit, but he has shown us he can do that.

"(Four days in), we don't want to over evaluate, but we like what we've seen."

Hart

From 1B

birdies and low scores through the years, and it's been the traditional course for Friday and Sunday.

Meanwhile, the shorter Quail Course with its doglegs and trees has usually not yielded as many low scores, and has been played by the Championship Flight on Saturday only.

Hart said playing the shorter Quail Course for two rounds could be an equalizer for some of the tournament's older players because he said scoring well on the Quail involves making putts and driving it accurately, negating some of the ability of the younger players to hit it long.

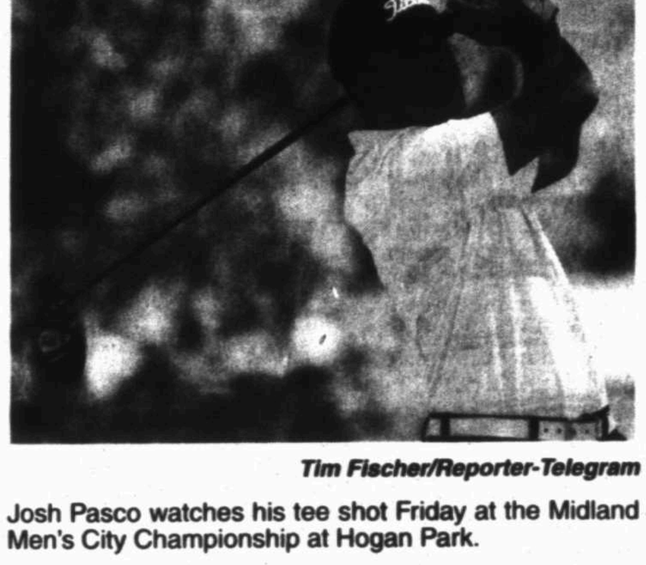
"There are lots of trees that have grown up and you've got to hit it down the middle, hit the green and make a putt," Hart said.

Along with Hart's 67, Josh Pasco, a recent Midland High grad, and two-time city champ Rick Houston shot 1-under 69s and are two strokes behind Hart.

Houston, who is a member at Midland Country Club, said one of the hardest things about playing Quail is that it's tough to know where to hit it off the tee if you don't play it regularly.

He said he gave himself some chances for a few more birdies but had some struggles with his putter but was happy with shooting 1-under on Friday.

"It's hard to come play (Quail) without experience because there are several holes you just have to know how far you can it because you can hit it too far if it looks like a good line," Houston said. "It's not a hard course once you get it down there on the fairway but getting it down there on the fairway is not easy."



Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Josh Pasco watches his tee shot Friday at the Midland Men's City Championship at Hogan Park.

Pasco, who is playing in his second city tournament but first in seven years, had a string of three straight birdies on the back nine to help him secure his round. He said it's easier to gain momentum on the Roadrunner course because of the number of par-5s compared to Quail. But he added that there is still plenty of golf remaining.

"It's three days, and there's a lot of golf and you definitely don't want to shoot your way out of it," Pasco said. "In three days, anything can happen and if you are around pretty close you've got a chance."

Four players are tied for fourth after shooting even par 70 on Friday as Ryan Fioretti, Chris Hubbard, Cecil Adams and Jason Hewett all came home with even par rounds.

PGA

BRIDGESTONE INVITATIONAL: At Akron, Ohio, Jim Furyk and Tiger Woods each carried momentum into the second round of the Bridgestone Invitational. That meant the best 36-hole score for Furyk in his PGA Tour career, and the worst start for Woods in nearly fourth months.

Furyk had another good day with the putter, making a few birdies early and saving par from the bunker four times on the back nine at Firestone for a 4-under 66 and a two-shot lead over Rafa Cabrera-Bello of Spain.

Champions

3M CHAMPIONSHIP: At Blaine, Minn., 65-year-old Gil Morgan shot his age for a share of the first-round lead in the Champions Tour's 3M Championship.

Chien Soon Lu, Steve Pate and Peter Senior also shot 7-under 65 at the TPC Twin Cities.

Junior PGA

JUNIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP: At Fort Wayne, Ind., Thailand's Ariya Jutanugarn successfully defended her title in the Junior PGA Championship, and Robby Shelton of Wilmer, Ala., won the boys' division.

New Zealand's Ria Percival, left, fights for the ball with the United States' Abby Wambach during their quarterfinal women's soccer match Friday at the St James' Park in Newcastle, England.

US Olympic women's soccer team tops New Zealand

By Joseph White
Associated Press

NEWCASTLE, England — These were perhaps going to be the Hope Solo Olympics for the U.S. women's soccer team. Or maybe the Alex Morgan Games. Instead, they belong so far to the old reliable, Abby Wambach, who has scored in every match to lead the Americans into the semifinals.

The 32-year-old striker slid onto the ball in the 27th minute Friday to knock home her fourth goal of the tournament and then led a celebration of cartwheels — a tribute to the gymnastics team — in the United States' 2-0 win over New Zealand in the quarterfinals of the Olympic tournament.

"Everything she does on and off the field, she leads this team," U.S. coach Pia Sundhage said. "She's in a good place, that's for sure."

Sydney Leroux added an insurance goal in the 87th minute for the two-time defending Olympic champion Americans, who will play Canada in Manchester on Monday. The Americans beat the Canadians 4-0 in Olympic qualifying in January.

United States	2
New Zealand	0

Wambach extended her U.S. record with her eighth career Olympic goal — a mark she holds despite missing the Beijing Games with a broken leg — and pushed her international tally to 142, only 16 behind Mia Hamm's world record. For most of the year, she has yielded much of the scoring load to youngster Morgan while using both holistic and traditional treatments to treat the nagging Achilles tendinitis that has bothered her for some three years.

"I don't know if it's the adrenaline, I'm not quite sure exactly what the reason is, but I'm not going to ask questions at this point," Wambach said. "I'm just playing pain-free for the first time in a long time."

New Zealand coach Tony Readings called Wambach "a nightmare," and the sight of the 5-foot-11 veteran battling multiple defenders and picking herself up off the ground has become so commonplace that her teammates hardly notice.

"Oh, we turn a blind eye to all of her bumps and bruises," goalkeeper Solo said. "She hits the floor, she hits the ground, it doesn't even faze us any more because she's tough. She might be hurting, but she's mentally tough. She has more of a lion and a passion inside that nothing will stop her, and she'll find a way to win. It rubs off on everybody.

"But maybe we should probably go up to her and say, 'Abby, you OK?'" Solo added with a laugh. "But we just ignore it."

Wambach's scoring spurt is remarkable given all the attention she draws from the opposition. Even though her speed isn't what it used to be, she's still one of the strongest players in the game and is unmatched in the air — yet three of her four goals at the Olympics have come with her feet.

On Friday, she supplied the finishing touch to some hard work from Morgan, who took a long ball from Rachel Buehler, juked one defender and threaded the ball through two others toward the net. Morgan said it was a shot, but it turned into her third assist of the tournament — finding Wambach's sliding right foot at the far post.

Federer edges del Potro in marathon match

By Steven Wine
Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — Roger Federer leaned on the net, exhausted but exhilarated after winning the final set, 19-17, to earn his first Olympic singles medal.

"It has been a long time coming," he said.

The wait included an Olympic marathon Friday, when Federer played for four hours, 26 minutes to beat Juan Martin del Potro of Argentina 3-6, 7-6 (5), 19-17. It was the longest three-set men's match of the Open era.

"I definitely got a sense that it was something special," the top-seeded Federer said. "The deeper we went into the match, the more I thought, 'Wow, this is so cool to be part of a match like this.'"

Federer converted only two of 13 break-point chances, the second coming in the next-to-last game, and had several nervous moments. But he held serve 12 times in the final set to stay in the match.

With the comeback victory, the four-time Olympian is assured at least a silver. On Sunday he'll play in the final against No. 3 Andy Murray of Britain, who beat No. 2 Novak Djokovic of Serbia 7-5, 7-5.

Federer and Swiss teammate Stanislas Wawrinka won the gold in doubles in 2008. But Federer had been 0 for 3 in Olympic singles, the biggest blemish on a resume that includes a record 17 Grand Slam championships.

His latest title came at Wimbledon a month ago against Murray, who relishes the shot at a rematch on the same court.

"I hope it's a great match," Murray said, "because the way the matches went today, I think the tournament deserves a great final. I hope we can provide that."

Serena Williams also clinched her first Olympic singles medal, beating No. 1-seeded Victoria Azarenka 6-1, 6-2. On Saturday, the No. 4-seeded Williams will face first-time Olympian Maria Sharapova, who beat Russian teammate Maria Kirilenko 6-2, 6-3.

Williams teamed with sister Venus to win the gold in doubles in 2000 and 2008. They have a chance to clinch at least a silver in the semifinals Saturday.

Americans Bob and Mike Bryan are assured at least a silver after beating Julien Benneteau and Richard Gasquet of France 6-4, 6-4 in the semifinals of men's doubles. Mike Bryan and Lisa Raymond advanced to the first Olympics mixed doubles final since 1924 by beating Del Potro and Gisela Dulko 6-2, 7-5.

OLYMPIC ROUNDUP

1 US BOXER STILL FIGHTING AFTER OVERTURNED RESULTS

LONDON — Nine straight defeats appeared to finish off the American men — until a late-night reprieve kept one U.S. fighter alive.

Losses for Rau'shee Warren and Errol Spence appeared to send the Americans home without a medal for the first time in Olympic history.

But about five hours after Indian welterweight Krishan Vikas appeared to clutch and grab his way to a 13-11 win over Spence, AIBA overturned the result of the bout, saying Vikas had committed nine holding fouls in the third round and intentionally spit out his mouthpiece in the second.

Spence advanced to face Russia's Andrey Zamkovoy on Tuesday after the second overturned decision of the Olympics, following the reversal of an Azerbaijani boxer's apparent victory over a Japanese opponent earlier in the week. Spence needs one more win to keep the American team from leaving an Olympics without a boxing medal for the first time.

US WOMEN'S BASKETBALL BEATS CZECHS

WIMBLEDON, England — Diana Taurasi scored 18 points and Tina Charles finished with a double-double to lead the U.S. women's Olympic basketball team to an 88-61 win over the Czech Republic on Friday.

The Americans (4-0) have now won 37 straight games in the Olympics, including four straight gold medals.

Charles finished with 16 points and 14 rebounds for the U.S., which was coming off its first day off since getting together on July 14.

The Czechs jumped out to a quick 10-0 advantage and led 26-24 after the first quarter before the Americans took over.

The Americans (4-0) had rolled through their first three opponents, winning by 36 points a game. They continued the onslaught against the Czechs (1-3), who will need to win their final game Sunday to possibly advance to the quarterfinals.

The game was a rematch of the 2010 world championship title game which the Americans won by 20 points.

VICTORIA PENDLETON WINS OLYMPIC KEIRIN GOLD

LONDON — Victoria Pendleton of Britain washed away the disappointment of her disqualification in the team sprint by claiming the gold medal in the keirin on Friday at the Olympics.

Pendleton, who will retire after the London Games, won her second Olympic. She won the individual sprint in Beijing four years ago.

Jeter leads quick women's 100 heats at Olympics

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press

LONDON — Well, that sure was fast.

Expectations that the London Olympics track meet would be filled with good times were quickly confirmed on Day 1, with seven sprinters running women's 100-meter heats in 11 seconds or better Friday night, led by the 10.83 turned in by world champion Carmelita Jeter of the U.S.

That came hours after Britain's Jessica Ennis got things started in front of a rowdy crowd at the morning session with the fastest 100-meter hurdles ever run in the heptathlon.

Jeter was joined in Saturday's 100 semifinals by Americans Allyson Felix and Tianna Madison. Defending Olympic gold medalist Shelly-Ann Fraser-Pryce won her heat in 11 flat; her Jamaican teammates Veronica Campbell-Brown and Kerron Stewart also advanced.

Entering the semifinals of the women's 100 in Beijing four years ago, there was a grand total of one dash of 11 seconds or better — Stewart's 10.98.

"This is way fast. I literally ran zero to 60, shut it down and then ran (10.99)," said Murielle Ahoure of the Ivory Coast, who set a national record while finishing ahead of Stewart in Friday's last 100 heat. "I can't believe it. Whoa. Fast track."

Imagine, then, what world-record holder Usain Bolt and his training partner, world champion Yohan Blake, might do when they get their first chance to race in 80,000-seat Olympic Stadium as the men's 100 heats begin Saturday.

The first gold medal of track and field came Friday night in the men's shot put, and Tomasz Majewski of Poland talked a little trash about American foes after successfully defending his title — but only barely — with a top throw of 71 feet, 10 inches (21.89 meters).

World champion David Storl of Germany earned the silver with 71-8 3/4 (21.86), and Reese Hoffa of Augusta, Ga., gave the U.S. the bronze with 69-8 (21.23). Hoffa had hoped to win the first U.S. gold in the men's shot put since Randy Barnes in 1996 at Atlanta; the two other Americans were fourth and ninth in Friday's final.

"Americans got a bit of a problem for the Olympics the last 20 years," Majewski said. "They've got great guys, great athletes, but they can't win gold in the Olympics. Sorry."

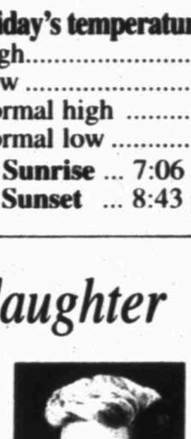
Diary opens dialogue between mother and daughter



DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl who accidentally left my diary on the counter and my mother read it. When she told me, I was disappointed and hurt. To me, a diary is a place I can escape to and feel comfortable just being me. She now knows I struggle with depression and have done things I'm not proud of. I was angry and expected an apology because it was a violation of my privacy.

She claims she had the right to read it because I left it on the counter, and if I didn't want her to see it, I shouldn't have left it there. Regardless of where my diary was, I don't feel she had the right to go through it because it's not hers.

I told her I want an apology and I am willing to rebuild that trust. My mom said there is no reason to rebuild it or to apologize, and she did nothing wrong. Am I wrong for wanting an apology and a better explanation for why she did it? — DISAPPOINTED DAUGHTER

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Your mother read your diary because it was out in the open and she was curious. Does she owe you an apology? Perhaps. However, if her level of communication with you is so poor that you live under the same roof and she hasn't noticed your struggle with depression — whether situational or chronic — and offered to help you find help for it, then what happened may have been a blessing. What you need with her is a closer relationship, not a combative one. Her job as a parent is to help you, and that includes teaching you to make the right choices.

DEAR ABBY: A bridal tea is being held for my niece soon. The invitation says, "Hats and dresses, please." I was also told verbally by the mother of the bride (my sister) that they want everyone attending to wear hats. I told her I'm very uncomfortable wearing a hat, but would put flowers in my hair to "jazz it up" a bit.

Last night, my brother-in-law called asking what I was wearing to the tea. My first reaction was that he was joking — so I asked if he thought that it was even worth a conversation. He said if I don't wear a dress and hat, to not bother coming. I was so shocked that I said OK and hung up.

I am very sad that I would not be welcomed without the hat — something so superficial. If appearances are more important than having me there, then I really don't want to attend. I would, however, send a note and gift and also attend the regular shower being planned if invited. I don't want to alienate the family.

How do you think I should handle this? I am lost for words — although you wouldn't know it by my rambling on. Thanks for your advice. — RAMBLING AUNTIE

DEAR RAMBLING AUNTIE: Obviously, your sister and her daughter are more concerned with the fantasy of how things will look at this tea than the feelings of those who will attend. People like that are easily offended/alienated and carry grudges.

Because you don't want to cause a rift, buy a cheap hat and go to the tea. While sending a note and gift in lieu of attending is more than what most people would do under the circumstances — and I don't blame you for considering it — to keep peace in the family, put in an appearance.

P.S. With relatives like this, you have my sympathy.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 4, 2012:

You often feel as if you have too much on your plate. A key person, or persons, in your life will be there to pitch in. Clearly you are not by yourself. If you are single, you will long for a relationship that has meaning. You are likely to meet this person through a friend. If you are attached, the two of you bond more tightly together. You have each other's backs and show immense caring. Make sure you have an old-fashioned date every so often. PISCES has more imagination than you, if that is possible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ You have a lot to consider before you take off to make a purchase. When you're with others, make sure to keep much of this process to yourself. A neighbor or family member wants to catch up on your news. You may be at a party before you know it. Tonight: Hang out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ Join your friends as soon as possible. Much is going on around you. Wherever you are, make sure you are with people. Do not make a big deal about spending; just let go. A friend comes up with an inspirational idea. Tonight: Your treat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Your optimism and upbeat attitude help others get past a problem. Still, you might need to take the lead in a key situation. Be honest if you feel you just do not want to handle things anymore. An older friend or relative plays into your plans. Tonight: Try not to go to extremes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ You could be pushed to your limit with so many thoughts and so much to do. Once you detach, you will understand exactly what is needed and how to do it. Evaluate the pros and cons of this particular situation. Tonight: You might need a break from the here-and-now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Others want you to join them. Whether watching a sport or participating in one, you'll enjoy yourself. Nevertheless, a close friend or loved one wants to spend some time with you. Why not bring everyone together? Tonight: Having fun wherever you are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ Others seem to want to lure you away from whatever you are doing. Handle your responsibilities before you touch base with an older relative, friend or boss. Take a stand in a heated discussion if you can avoid someone's anger. Tonight: Sort through invitations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ It seems important to handle a project or complete a task around your home before you take off. Whether you're on a picnic or taking a drive to a favorite area, you lose yourself outside your normal setting and come back invigorated. Tonight: Make it different.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Allow your creativity to emerge when dealing with a fun project involving a partner. Together, you'll come up with a unique concept that delights many people. Your ideas might only relate to a birthday or making a birthday party more fun. Tonight: Let your hair down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ You might feel pressured to set aside your plans in order to do something for a partner or a close family member. You could be taken aback by how much your company is desired. As a result, you probably will decide to join in. Tonight: Having a ball.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ You speak your mind even when you're just chatting with a casual acquaintance. You have a way of presenting your ideas so that the other person receives the full, blunt meaning. Check in with neighbors and those you rarely have time for. Tonight: Till the wee hours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ You cannot seem to find any reason not to go to extremes and overindulge a bit. You are full of spirit and get-up-and-go. A new friend, loved one or child cheers you on. Your independence often breeds mischief. Such is the case today. Tonight: Whatever suits your pleasure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You might be pushing the line with family members or roommates without realizing it. Not everyone is as clear as you are. Don't count on someone's smiling nod to continue if you know what you are doing could irritate him or her. Still, go for what you want. Tonight: Your call.

COOLING OFF in Corpus

Hurricane Alley washes into Corpus

Helen Anders
Austin American-Statesman (MCT)

Finally, there's a water park in Corpus Christi and not a moment too soon. The summer's relentless heat, coupled with humidity as thick as peanut butter, makes the idea of sliding through twisty tubes into a cool pool of water highly compelling.

Hurricane Alley, plopped between Whataburger Field (where the Corpus Christi Hooks pays baseball) and the Harbor Bridge, is not a huge water park, but it has something for everybody. The convoluted, six-story Cat 5 slide looks like something Darth Vader might enjoy. It's for big folks (48 inches and taller).

The three-story, serpentine Momentum slide is more appropriate for 42-inch kids, but still exciting. A four-lane racer slide is for speed freaks, and for the little ones, there's a splash area featuring a replica aircraft carrier and coast guard craft to honor the area's military presence.

Of course, you'll also find a lazy river and wave pool. The swim-up bar is a favorite with adults. Cabanas are in the works and should be available for rental ($150 a day) by the time you read this.

Try to go on a Tuesday so you can enjoy Movie Night, when the park stays open until 10 p.m. and movies such as "Jaws" are projected on a big screen near the wave pool. On these nights after 6 p.m., you get one free admission per paid admission, and the entire water park is open. What's more, you'll see the Harbor Bridge light up at dusk. It's all very pretty, and, of course, not as toasty as daytime.

Food offerings includes fish tacos, along with many frozen treats. You can rent a locker, and the restrooms are large and fresh-smelling (not always a given at these parks). Tubes are provided for the slide rides, but you have to rent one for $5 to use in the lazy river and wave pool. The charge has caused a bit of visitor growling, but at least when you turn the rented tube back in, you do get free ice cream.

Parking across the street from Hurricane Alley is $5. You can't Galveston's Pleasure Pier sweeps kids off their feet

Helen Anders
Austin American-Statesman (MCT)

GALVESTON — The new Pleasure Pier's sparkling lights create a tempting beacon at night, and night is the best time to be there. The temperature drops a few degrees, and the multi-colored lights add to the festive atmosphere that quickly has made this new pier at 25th Street and the Sea Wall Boulevard a hit with many islanders and visitors.

My daughters' families and I visited on a recent weekend, thoroughly exhausting (in a good way) a grinning 5-year-old and a 3-year-old, who declared the kiddie bumper cars and the Frog Hopper (a vertical ride that provides the gentlest of drops) their favorites. They also liked the corny dogs and ice cream sundaes when we were finally able to tear them away from the rides.

The wristband admission method ($26.99 adult, $21.99 child) works well, allowing everyone to line up and ride as many times as they'd like. On our Saturday night visit, the longest lines were 30 minutes. Both the 5-year-old and his mom

Kemah boardwalk home to one of state's remaining wooden coasters

From staff reports

The Kemah Boardwalk is now home to one of two wooden roller coasters in Texas.

The most recent census by the Roller Coaster DataBase showed the United States had 113 wooden coasters and 509 steel coasters.

The western-themed Boardwalk Bullet Roller Coaster, according to Boardwalk officials, is 3,300-linear-feet of fast paced, twisting and turning, unrelenting action. Rated by coaster enthusiasts as one of the top 10 wooden roller coasters in the world, its tight foot print causes the coaster to crossover its own tracks 42 times, more than any roller coaster in the world. The 96-foot-high structure, constructed of Georgia pine tracks and supports, is one of the Kemah Boardwalk's signature thrill rides.

"We're pleased to offer our guests the only wooden roller coaster situated on the Texas Gulf Coast," said Mark Kane, director of the theme park division for Landry's. "Kemah Boardwalk takes pride in offering top-quality attractions and unique experiences to our guests."

Visitors are invited to "bite the bullet" and experience an exhilarating 96-foot-drop while traveling at speeds of more than 50 mph and cruising within feet of the Galveston Bay.

There's more than one way to relax in Corpus Christi

Joshua Trudell
San Antonio Express-News

I stepped gingerly through the narrow passages that were lighted only by a flashlight and the occasional glowing red dial.

Cobwebbed pipes jutted from the walls in a tangled maze. As I ducked and twisted through the labyrinth, my hardhat clanged against pipes more than once. The hugeness of the USS Lexington seemed to loom all around us as we saw the engines and turbines that powered the battleship to victory after victory in World War II.

Less than a mile away, my wife enjoyed a massage and a glass of wine.

There's more than one way to relax in Corpus Christi.

Cruising the bay: We hopped on the Japonica for an evening cruise around the bay, enjoying the breeze. Surprise sprays occasionally leapt over the bow and splashed us, but the warm water was welcome.

As the sky darkened, the candy-cane colors of lights on the Harbor Bridge lit up that part of the bay and the looming hulk of the Lexington. Tours depart at 1 p.m., 2:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. daily. Closed Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. $5-$10. http://book.visitcorpuschristitx.org/3980_attraction-tickets_a911.html

Waterpark fun: Hurricane Alley, which opened this spring next to Whataburger Field, would be dwarfed by Schlitterbahn or Sea World San Antonio, but it's a good size for families with small children and still includes two big waterslides. Roaring down the Cat 5 waterslide in a two-person tube, we swung and spun to the edge of tipping over before recovering and shooting into the recovery pool.

10 a.m.-6 p.m. daily until Labor Day, then weekends until Sept. 30. $19.99-$24.99; children 2 and younger free. www.hurricanealleycc.com

Exploring the ship: A hardhat tour of the USS Lexington is like a World War II history lesson. From the miles of cables that passed signals from one end of the ship to the other to the Japanese markings still in place from when the ship was used during the 2001 film "Pearl Harbor," every step and sign was an education.

The confines of the aircraft carrier are not for someone with claustrophobia or mobility issues. It includes narrow passages, stairs and ladders.

9 a.m.-6 p.m. daily Memorial Day through Labor Day, then until 5 p.m. daily. $8.95-$13.95; children 3 and younger free. www.usslexington.com

Good eats: It's hard to miss the signage for the Republic of Texas. It takes up no small amount of space billing itself as the only four-diamond restaurant in South Texas. Settling in to a thick, perfectly done steak and an oaky Amontillado as the sun set through the restaurant's huge windows at the top of the Omni Bayfront, I didn't begrudge the sign an inch.

Tiny turtles: Before the sun rose the next morning, I was at the Padre Island National Seashore for a South Texas tradition — watching the latest Kemp's ridley sea turtle hatchlings take their first trip into the ocean.

About 500 people crowded around, watching the Oreo-sized turtles drag themselves across the sand to the ocean. The hum of the crowd increased, then exploded into cheers as the first turtle tumbled into the waves.

Next time: I'll catch the Corpus Christi Hooks at Whataburger Field and spend more time on one of the beaches.

WATER PARK

From 1C

bring in coolers, but there are covered picnic tables just outside the park where you can eat your own food, if you like. (Get your hand stamped for re-entry.)

Admission to the park is $24.99 unless you're shorter than 48 inches or 55 or older, in which case it's $19.99. Because the park is right next to the ballpark, look for combination tickets from time to time.

Find any current promotions plus updates on hours at hurricanealleycc.com.

Some Corpus Christi hotels have packages that include tickets to the park.

For example, the Hurricane Alley family package through Sept. 30 at Omni Bayfront (900 N. Shoreline Blvd.) includes your room, breakfast for two adults and two children, Hurricane Alley admission for two adults and two children, an Omni backpack with a surprise inside, milk and cookies the night of arrival and self-parking for rates starting at $207 per night.

Add up all that's included, and you'll see it's a good deal at this hotel, which is the closest to the water park (but not close enough to make walking a good idea). Book or learn more at bit.ly/N8xpCm.

PIER

loved the glittery Rock N Roll ride in cars that roared forward, then backward, on a round platform.

Pirate's Plunge, the flume, is guaranteed to soak riders, and it also can drench you while you're walking past it — not an awful thing in summer; just watch your camera. The 5-year-old, tall for his age, was excited about riding this one, but it proved a bit intense. Tears were shed.

The big people in our party said their favorite rides were the Iron Shark vertical coaster ("short, but awesome") and the Cyclone, which spins you upside down. A few of the rides, including the huge Ferris wheel, weren't open yet but should be by the time you read this.

My daughters muttered that the name Pleasure Pier hints of adult gratification. Yeah, it does. But the name is historic — the same name the pier had in the '40s when it also held an amusement park.

The main visitor complaint I heard was the $10 charged just to walk on the pier, but the fee does help keep the pier's crowd under control, both in numbers and in character — for the most part. One expletive-flinging father was angry he had to buy a ride ticket to accompany his daughter on the carousel.

The amiable staff handled that one well (a ticket-holding adult rode with the child), as they did other little crises, such as toddlers peeing on the rides. (Workers have disinfectant at the ready.)

Parking across the street from the pier costs $10 for three hours and $2 an hour after that. We booked rooms at the Holiday Inn Resort on the Beach (5002 Sea Wall Blvd.; summer rates start at $179 on galveston.com). Because it's a Landry's hotel and Landry's owns the pier, our hotel offered a free shuttle to the pier. That's huge because the aforementioned lot fills quickly, and Sea Wall parking is highly competitive. The shuttle also handles people from other Landry's hotels, the San Luis Resort (5222 Sea Wall Blvd., rooms start at $199) and the Hilton (starting at $229). The shuttle departs from the parking lot behind the San Luis roughly every half hour, and you're given bottled water while traveling both directions.

Other Galveston hotels offer summer rates starting at about $70 on galveston.com. A few, such as the Hotel Galvez (starts at $199) and Country Inn and Suites (http://bit.ly/LZ9jur, $159), are within walking distance of the pier. For more information on the pier as well as updates on hours and information, go to pleasure?pier.com.

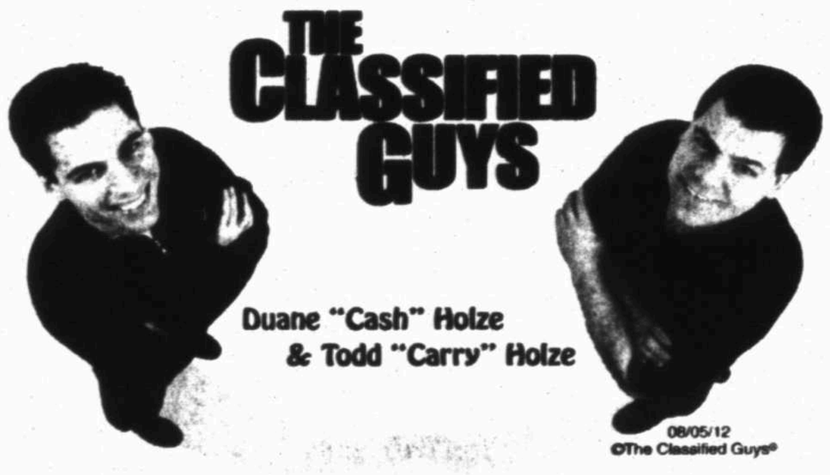
Ask the Guys



Dear Classified Guys, Jealous. Jealous. Jealous. That's what I am. After losing one of our office staff, my boss narrowed down the search for a replacement to two applicants and asked me to recommend the final one. Little did I know that the one I chose lives only six blocks away from my boss. Now they're carpooling together every day and being quite chummy. They even have their favorite place for lattes in the morning. I could probably handle that except now we are both up for the same promotion. I think I can be pretty sure whom my boss is going to pick. I never would have recommended her if I knew she was going to ruin my chances for advancement. I have to do something. Any thoughts on a plan of attack?

Cash: First, you could ask them to bring you a latte in the morning as well!

Carry: When you have to commute with someone daily, it's common to become friendly and converse. After all, many people enjoy company during a trip.

Cash: However before you get too riled up over the situation, you may want to step back and look at it objectively. Although your colleague and your boss do share a ride, their relationship may just be one that helps pass the time.

Carry: If your new colleague were getting special treatment, such as a selection of better projects or more leniencies with sick days or vacation, then you could say that your boss was playing favorites. However, it seems they simply share a ride and a passion for morning lattes.

Cash: Now there are some things you can do to improve your chances for the promotion. For starters, project confidence in your abilities throughout the day in the office. People are always watching.

Carry: Remember, your boss did ask you to interview the two candidates and select the one best suited for the job. That shows that she already has confidence in your abilities and intuition.

Cash: Although office politics can always come into play when promotions are at stake, you need to stop worrying and focus on your own relationships with coworkers in the office. If you demonstrate that you're a strong professional who gets the job done, then the decision of who to promote should be an easy one.

Carry: Of course, it probably never hurts to have a latte at coffee break!

Fast Facts

Going the Distance

Are you a "stretch commuter"? The average person travels about 39 miles a day according to the Bureau of Transportation Statistics. However, "stretch commuters", a term coined by the Bureau, travel much longer distances to get to work. Eight out of ten travel between 50 and 99 miles each way, usually at least four days a week. The balancé trek even farther, some up to 200 miles one way. That's a lot of traveling every year.

Green Commuting

Ride share programs offer many benefits to everyone involved. Employers often receive business tax deductions for employees involved in the program. Towns and cities have less congestion, reduced air pollutants and need to build fewer parking lots. However, employees receive the most benefit. They can avoid dealing with the rush hour traffic and drastically reduce their costs of commuting to work. In addition, by logging fewer miles on the odometer, they help maintain the resale value of their vehicle.

Invested

As a secretary for a HR director, I recognize he has a tough job. All of the employee complaints fall on his desk, but fortunately he always has an answer.

Last week we had a company-wide meeting where the department managers gave a quick presentation and fielded questions from the 300 employees. When it was my boss's turn, he presented information on our 401K and fielded a comment from an unhappy employee.

The gentleman raised his hand and shouted, "Our 401K is horrible. I haven't made any money with it."

My boss remained calm and replied, "I appreciate your input, but you should know it probably works better when you put some money in it first!"
