GIRL SCOUT COOKIES

The 15th annual cookie sale of the West Texas Council will be held from February 11 through the 19th. Three varieties will be sold this year—the usual assorted sandwich, and the chocolate mint cookies, with the addition of a new flavor—sugar and spice. All varieties are outstanding in quality and taste, as they were last year. The sales price will be the same, 50 cents a box (or 2 for $1.00), or $6.00 a case.

Only Junior, Cadette and Senior Scouts will participate as Brownies are not eligible to sell. The goal is 18 boxes per girl or 45,000 boxes for a Council goal. To eliminate competition among girls, no individual awards will be given in the sale.

A troop will receive 3 cents for each box sold by member of the troop. Each troop selling an average of 18 boxes per active, registered girl will be awarded a troop certificate. The remaining profit will go toward building and maintenance of Camp Boothe Oaks and other Council owned property. To be initiated this year, a portion will be set aside for assisting girls in attending national and international events.

Jr. High PE Holds Intramural Tournament

The sixth through eighth grade physical education classes are currently nearing the conclusion of a highly successful two week-long intramural basketball tournament.

PE classes were divided into four to five boys' teams and four girls' teams in each grade. They played other units in their age group to eventually decide the top two teams in the grade. The top two will play the championship game at night to allow the parents and others interested to attend.

Each game consists of four five minute quarters. John Ross Hale, high school basketball mentor and junior high teacher, and another teacher or student referee the contests. Opposing teams wear orange or white jerseys or sweatshirts. Boys and girls alternate playing daily.

Rather unique names were chosen for the teams. Eighth grade girls are the Hullahalooettes, Untouchables, Slimy Ones, and Sundowners; boys are the Sledge Hammers, Jack Hammers, Spike Hammers, and Claw Hammers. A seventh grade girl might belong to the Globe Trotters, Boy Watchers, Cardinals, or Shindiggers; the boys' teams are the Hammer Heads, Jack Hammers, Golden Hammers, and Spike Hammers. Sixth grade girls are the Jaguars, Mustangs, Stingrays, or Diamonds; and the sixth grade boys, with five teams, are known as the Little Hammers, Slam Hammers, Sledge Hammers, Small Hammers, and All-American Hammers.

The games, without exception, feature outstanding hustle and enthusiasm. Coach Hale commented, "The kids play their hearts out in the games." Girls awaiting their turns to play form impromptu cheering sections and lead organized yells.

Young Outlook Learns Student's Heroes

Hero worship is not only for the younger set; I found that many high school students have a person they look up to.

Freddie Ails, a senior, looks up to Y. A. Tittle, a coach of the Baltimore Colts.

Rebekah Crawford, a senior, idolizes President F. Kennedy.

Lois Tompkins, freshman, thinks of her brother James as her hero.

Heroes of two students are movie stars. Junior Larry Carver's is John Wayne; Sophomore Glenda Cornhus's is Clark Gable.

Raford Hargrove, senior, admires Captain Roger Donlan, the only person in Vietnam to get the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Monte McKinney, sophomore, wants to be a strong man like Samson or Hercules.

Naturally, "old married woman" Sandy Rivers' hero is Leroy Rivers.

Chris McCasland, junior, esteems Andrew Wyeth, his favorite American painter.

Larry Kelley, senior, idolizes Oscar Robertson, the great Negro basketball player.

A person, if he thinks long enough, can remember someone that he has idolized since childhood.

Janice Jefferson Studies In Hospital

Janice Jefferson, freshman student, has been ill for almost two months. In the past, a student who missed that much school would probably have lost a year in school, but Janice has enrolled in a special education class in the John Sealy Hospital of Galveston.

A special education teacher has sent for Janice's books and lesson assignments. The classes are approved by the Texas Education Agency and are provided by the Galveston Public Schools and the hospital.

Janice will finish the first semester's work and make up her semester tests. She will be almost caught up with her studies when she is released from the hospital.

'As It Looks From Here'

Omar Burleson, M. C.
17th District, Texas

Washington, D. C. — There is more to winning the Conflict in South Viet Nam than bombing and the hide-and-seek war in the jungles and rice paddies.

The greater of the 16 million people are predominantly rural and have sought to remain neutral in the struggle. They have little choice, since neither the Saigon Government nor the Viet Cong has been about to provide them with any degree of lasting security.

Both sides have occupied outlying villages and farm communities alternately for short periods of time, each imposing their will on the populace. This sort of situation makes neutrality a necessity for survival of many. The peasant farmer, to avoid trouble, "bends with the wind" to stay alive.

If it can be called a choice, he has three. He can keep his family on his little plot of ground near the grave of his ancestors and continue to live as long as he can in the midst of combat. They can leave their homes and move to areas under Government control. Approximately three quarters of a million people are now refugees under this choice.

The other choice is to leave their home and seek refuge in a Communist controlled area, joining the Viet Cong.

These conditions are growing sharper every day with the increased tempo of the fighting. The Vietnamese peasant will endure just about anything before he will leave his traditional home. To stay, he will dig a primitive shelter under his house for his wife and children and try to go on raising crops and avoiding South Vietnamese are beginning. To do this he is in between the anvil and the hammer.

According to General Edwin F. Black, Director of Internal Security Affairs for the Army, who has served two tours in Viet Nam, the rural South Vietnamese are beginning to realize that it is their own Government and that of the United States which will help him bind up his wounds and make an effort to give him food if his crop is confiscated by the Viet Cong or destroyed by military actions. He is finding that the promises of the Communist (Viet Cong) do not bring him security but force him to dig ditches at night across roads, afford him no medical supplies and no schools for his children. True, the report goes, the Communists have made some of these efforts for propaganda purposes, but they do not have the wherewithal, and the Vietnamese farmer is finding the Communist promises empty.

General Black reports that the Vietnamese people who live under the domination of the Viet Cong are beginning to recognize that as long as the struggle continues, the prospects for them grow more grim. The power of America's military might, only dimly realized before last fall, is becoming plain to them. Before our own forces arrived in great numbers, the Communist regulars and the South Vietnamese forces often avoided contact, and when contact was made, they made sure to leave open an escape route so that decisive battles did not result. This is changing. The South Vietnamese soldier is proving to be a good fighter.

In the final analysis, the war can only be really "won" against the Communist Viet Cong when the South Vietnamese people, individually and collectively, are sure that their own Government and the United States are determined to drive out the Viet Cong — when they decide for themselves that the safety of their families lies on the side of their own Government.

One of the weakest links of our efforts in Viet Nam has been intelligence — the simple proposition of knowing where the Communists are, how many and what they are doing. Too often this advantage has been on the other side. One of the greatest needs, except for destroying the North Vietnamese war-making capacity in the North by bombing is for the people of South Viet Nam provide necessary intelligence to find, fix, and destroy the Viet Cong.

The man who claims he can't live within his income should try to live without one for a while.

NEWS County Agricultural Agent Texas A & M. College Extension Service

The League Ranch, in Knox County, is taking advantage of a good silage program to put gain on stocker cattle for a feed cost of about 15-cents a pound.

The ranch got 32 tons per acre of sweet sorghum silage from two cuttings made in August and November of 1965.

The land was fertilized twice with 80-0-0 (in April and August) and irrigated as water was needed.

At the suggestion of Extension livestock specialist Dixon Hubbard, of Lubbock, 20 pounds of ground limestone were added to each ton of silage as it went into the silo.

The type of good feed-grade limestone recommended for silage costs 1/2 to 1 cent per pound.

Research reports indicate this small amount of limestone can increase feed efficiency and rate of gain about five percent each.

Studies also show that the limestone increases consumption about 10 percent, decreases odor and significantly reduces silage shrink.

The ranch figures the silage cost $6 a ton in the silo and about $8 a ton in the feedbunks.

The ranch buys 300 to 375 pound stockers and runs them on stalk fields and available small grain pastures before putting them in the lot.

The cattle get a ration of silage, protein and two-to-four pounds of ground grain sorghum in the lot. This ration produces gains at a feed cost of about 15-cents a pound.

"How should fertilize in 1966?" This important question will be asked frequently by Texas farmers during the next few weeks, says Dr. C. D. Welch, Extension soil chemist, Texas A&M University.

Two factors must be considered when answering the question. First, the level of fertility already in the soil, and second, the desired yield.

A soil test is the best way to determine fertility already in the soil, he said. Results of a soil test indicate the level of all major plant nutrients. Results are expressed in one of five levels: very low, low, medium, high, and very high.

When evaluating fertility level of a soil it's important to consider nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium separately. For example, a soil may be deficient in N, while having adequate P and K, or it may be deficient in P and K and have adequate N.

In arriving at an expected yield figure, production, management and climatic factors should be evaluated. Moisture already in the soil, irrigation possibilities, and estimated rainfall will need careful attention.

Past yields and management practices should receive due consideration in arriving at a realistic yield goal.

When deciding how to fertilize in 1966, consider the fact that the cost of fertilizer has increased about 6 percent during the past 15 years, while the cost of other production items has increased over 50 percent.

If you have not had your soil tested, come by the county extension office for more information.

In planning your home landscape program, don't overlook the native Yaupon, Ilex vomitoria, for use in areas requiring a medium-sized evergreen shrub. It can be trained as a small tree by proper pruning. It responds to shearing and makes an excellent formal hedge or it can be allowed to develop naturally into a dense informal hedge. While native to Central and East Texas, it will grow well under most Texas conditions. It will withstand drought and high temperatures better than any other Holly.

Dwarf selections of Yaupon are available from nurserymen. These are excellent compact plants and are the best evergreen plants available for the exterior planter box.

Through The Bible In A Year

The Rotan Church of the Nazarene is reading through the Bible this year as a church. The plan calls for the reading of three chapters in the Old Testament for six days and five chapter in the New Testament on the seventh day. Unless the Lord leads otherwise, the pastor's messages are taken from the scripture read that week.
This coming Sunday, February 13, 1966 has been designated as "Family Bible Sunday." Each family will bring their family Bible to Church. The Slogan for this Sunday is, "Bring your family Bible, and bring your family." Each family will sit together and a portion of scripture will be read in unison from the Bible.
You are cordially invited to worship with us Sunday. Bring your family Bible and your family and join with us. Through having a Bible-centered church, we hope to build God-centered homes, a God-centered community, and a God-centered nation.

Diplomacy is the art of convincing people you really don't want something you know you can't get.

Some Saturday Postal Service May Be Back

President Johnson has directed Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brian to seek service improvement funds from Congress for the purpose of restoring service cuts that were made in May 1964 as an economy measure.

These service cuts at this office were mainly the discontinuing of box rents and money orders on Saturdays. If funds are provided by Congress these services will be restored here and in some other other 15,000 post offices throughout the country.

Postmaster General O'Brian said that the service improvements would be a meaningful step in the President's program to improve service.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Whitefield, Tommy and Tammy visited Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hunter and girls in Merkel.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hartsfield of Buffalo Gap and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Poer, Lynna, and Dana of Lubbock visited here with relatives.

Doris Tomlinson and a friend of Texas Tech visited Saturday and Sunday with J. M. Cobb and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Weatherman and children.

This related statement in Science and Health also will be considered: "From Love and from the light and harmony, which are the abode of Spirit, only reflections of good can come."

A move to worship GOD in His HOUSE is a

MOVE in the RIGHT DIRECTION

To attend Church is the first step in finding God.
To attend regularly is to continue in the right direction, and gives one an opportunity to understand God's will in his life. Now is the time to make your move. Choose the way that will lead you to God.

Attend Church Sunday.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
