ANNUAL MEETING OF TEXAS GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 21, 1915.
County Judges.

Commissioners' Courts.

County Highway Engineers.

This is to notify you that the Texas Good Roads Association Division of the National Highway Association will hold its regular annual meeting in Austin, Texas, February 2nd, and 3rd.

As we find the school of instruction to be so popular with the commissioners' courts and the highway engineers, we expect to make this a special feature of the meeting and the entire afternoon of the first day and the forenoon of the second day will be devoted exclusively to this part of the program.
Mr. Geo. D. Marshall, of the Office of Public Roads, who has been spending the most of his time the past three years in Texas and who is now located in Texas under the Smith-Levy Bill, will have charge of this program. He is giving it considerable thought and expects to make it a very interesting and profitable meeting.

Mr. Marshall suggests that on the opening day of the school that every county judge, commissioner, highway engineer, road superintendent or anyone else directly interested in this work will be asked to write out one or more questions on road construction, maintenance especially or any part of the work that he is especially interested in, or any question that he desires to have answered and place
these in a box that will be prepared for the purpose, and when the school opens that afternoon these questions will be taken out of the box and read and then everyone present will have an opportunity to express his opinion.

We believe this will be the most effective plan of any ever suggested and by notifying everyone in advance, it will give all of those interested an opportunity to have the questions written out before leaving home so you will have nothing to do but place in the box
at the opening session on Tuesday, February 2nd. For the benefit of those who are unable to attend,
I would suggest that you mail me
your questions and I will have them discussed at the school. We expect to keep a complete report of the proceedings to be mailed out to all of the county officials, especially those that show interest in the work and in this way everyone can receive some benefit from this meeting whether present or not.

Hoping to have your hearty cooperation in this great work, we best to remain.

Yours truly,

Texas Good Roads Association.
D. E. COPE,
Assistant Secretary.

WAR TAX RULING

Letter and Ruling Received By
Hon. M. E. Blackburn

Editor Kimble County Citizen,
Junction, Texas.

Dear Sir:

I am enclosing herewith
copy of recent rulings of Judge
A. S. Walker, Internal Revenue Collector for the Third District of Texas, relative to the placing of Documentary stamps upon conveyances of real estate, transfers and releases of vendor lien notes
jurats of notaries public and certificates of acknowledgements, etc.
This ruling of Judge Walker is a construction of that part of Schedule A of the Federal Emergency Revenue Act of October 22, 1914,
relating to Documentary stamps
upon conveyances of real estate,
etc., and is at variance with the construction heretofore placed upon this portion of said Act by most of the lawyers, county clerks and recorders of the State.

Its importance consists in the fact that it affects so many people executing instruments of the character above indicated and the further fact that the county clerks and recorders of the State are by the provisions of said Act charged with the duty of passing upon the eligibility of said instruments for record. It being unlawful to file same for record unless same bear the required amount of Documentary Internal Revenue stamps.

Great confusion has heretofore prevailed as to the proper construction of this section of Federal Law,
and the collector of Internal Revenue welcomes the opportunity to give his rulings the widest publicity.

Very truly yours,

M. E. Blackburn,
Representative 115th District.

Office of Collector

Third District of Texas,

Austin, Texas, Jan. 16, 1915

Hon. M. E. Blackburn,

Austin, Texas.

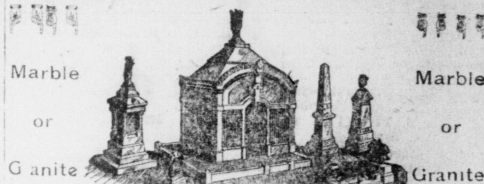

Dear Sir:

Referring to your personal call this day, you are informed that the ruling of this office is that a deed conveying land is taxable under the act of Oct. 22, 1914, only to the extent of the cash
consideration or its equivalent.
Where vendor lien notes are given in part payment, the lien
being of course, retained to secure them, these notes are taxable as promissory notes. To illustrate, if A conveys to B a piece of land for the consideration of $2,000, 1,000 in cash and $1,000 in vendor lien notes, A should stamp
the deed to the extent of $1.00

C. M. Nichols

I have taken over the monumental work which was formerly carried on by my father and will be pleased to figure with anyone in need of anything in this line. Having worked together with my father in this business I understand the work thoroughly and am sure that I can please you in every particular. I represent one of the best companies in the State—the company which my father represented for fifteen years, erecting monuments for hundreds of pleased customers in various parts of Texas. We have thousands of dollars worth of monuments erected in this and surrounding counties—and have the first dissatisfied customer to hear from.

Call at Citizen office and see samples and designs—hundreds to select from—or we will be glad to bring these and call at your home.

All outstanding contracts made by my father
will be filled by me, when due, without delay.

C. M. NICHOLS.

Read This Carefully

and B should stamp the notes to the extent of 2c for each hundred dollars in each note.

You are further advised that in case of a simple release of vendor lien note, the stamp tax has no application. In case of a transfer of vendor lien notes, if the instrument contains a provision under which time of payment of the notes is extended, or under which other persons than the original makers of the notes assume their payment, the transfer
if made on or after Dec. 1st, 1914,
would be taxable on the same basis
as the notes transferred.

In case of a transfer either by endorsement on the note or by execution of a written instrument to that effect, if the attitude of the maker of the notes is not changed as a result of the transfer the stamp tax has no application.
The jurat of a Notary Public to an affidavit or his certificate of acknowledgment to an instrument
is not taxable under the Act of Oct.
22, 1914.

Respectfully,
A. S. Walker,
Collector.

MARY GREY'S LETTER

The merchandise now being put before this country for spring has the element of distinct novelty. This is a development which will be hailed with acclamation, tending as it does to make the winter styles look out of date.

The new feature is the marked change in the figure line, or silhouette. The wide skirt, the narrow shoulder, with fitted armhole, and the clearly outlined neck are essential elements of the new season garments.

Admits of Wide Variation.

Variation is obtained in the working out of these new figure lines from neck to hem. While the curve of the neck, shoulders and bust is usually shown and the skirt has ample fullness, the bodice may be fitted or semi-fitted and the waist line may be normal or exceedingly high. The sleeves, too, may be long and tight-fitting or may be puffed in varied forms.

The skirt may be circular and

BIG SINGING BILL PROMISED AT MAJESTIC

At the Majestic next week will be seen and heard one of the most remarkable men that this country has produced, a man whose talent has been made the basis for over three thousand lectures in this country and England; who delivered eighty-seven consecutive lectures in the public schools of Boston and Cambridge, who lectured to the assembled principals of the California schools and for the past three seasons has been the most notable headliner that the Orpheum has played.

Charles Kellogg, "The Nature Singer," known far and wide as the man with the bird voice, will demonstrate one of the most wonderful accomplishments, or rather gifts, with which a human being was ever endowed. After a lifetime in the woods, in close association with wild life, comes Mr. Kellogg with a voice possessing a range of twelve and a half octaves, a voice whose lowest note is higher than the highest note of Mme. Tetrazzini's and hers is the highest known soprano in the world with a range of three and a half octaves. Mr. Kellogg will demonstrate the power of extinguishing a flame by singing; a blaze of fire, indifferent to the ordinary speaking voice, instantly responds to his bird songs; he will show the use of the "divining rod," will show the marvelous act of producing fire by rubbing sticks, now almost obsolete, and will introduce to Majestic audiences a series of astounding novelties, adapting his bird singing to the most beautiful of our forms of melody, and rendering an entertainment the appeal of which is universal, and with a message of peace and good will that is welcome everywhere.

The feature act of the bill will be in the form of a musical interlude by the Six Kirksmith Sisters, who were headlined over this circuit three seasons ago. Since that time the girls have been abroad—have sung for royalty—have brought their act to even a higher artistic finish than when they were here. The Six Kirksmith Sisters are really sisters; they are a beautiful and accomplished sextette of real girls, and their act is the standard one to which all others of a similar type must measure in the vaudeville world. Instrumental and vocal offerings, ensemble and solo numbers, make up the program, chosen wisely from amongst the best of the popular and classic music.

full, or it may be straight pleated or it may be gathered. The length and fullness may continue to the edge of the hem or the skirt may be draped, or it may open over a foundation petticoat of considerably less width. The width of the skirt, therefore, may be greatest either at the hem or slightly above it. Again, the skirt fullness may be broken in tiers of flounces, either mounted on a foundation or attached one to the other in a succession of gathered corded bands.

The springing fullness of the skirt or of the coat may begin above the normal waistline or at the normal waistline, or even below it. Likewise the suit skirt may be of circular or gored cut, of straight or pleated form or in various styles of low hanging draperies.

With a limited number of imported models for the spring season so far available and with the Paris houses temporarily restricting their activities, American designers have not had the free choice of model-house productions to guide them and have been thrown on their own resources to an unprecedented extent. It is to their credit that our garment manufacturers have succeeded in bringing out so many smart garments embodying meritorious style features.

Sources of Style Ideas.

In line with the tendency in London, manufacturers of garments, millinery, trimmings, etc., as pointed out in these pages, have adopted military styles in greater or less degree. Among the new ideas are clever adaptations from the coats, caps and overcoats worn by the officers and men of the various European armies.

The costumes of the peasants in Holland and in various Slavic countries have also been drawn upon for style inspiration and Japanese and Chinese effects have also had adoption.

The quaint 1820-1830 styles, also recommended in our fashion number and which formed the basis of new models brought out in Paris last spring, though not accepted here until late in the fall, have a strong bearing on the fashions for the approaching season.

This wide variety in styles is not regarded as detrimental either by producers or by distributors. On the contrary, it is welcomed as a further factor of favorable character.

Features of New Figure.

In addition to the wide skirt, the new silhouette calls for a semi-fitted bodice, with high neck and long, close-fitting sleeves. As above suggested, however, the most important change is in the skirt. Measurements of from 2-1/2 to 5 yards are now being shown. The bodices are of simple fitted. There are also some fitted types, these showing the military and the 1820-1830 influence.

BIRDS MAKE

MODEL TENANTS

The model tenant who makes a place more attractive, pays the rent in advance, works continually and spreads good cheer throughout the neighborhood, has been found at last by the Liberty Bell Bird Club members who have been putting up bird houses this winter.

"If you want to experience the thrilling joy of being a successful and appreciated landlord to a host of grateful and happy renters, put up houses for the feathered folk on your premises and be a friend to the birds," urges this club.

It cautions us, however, before erecting bird homes to find out just what feathered prospects frequent our communities and how many occupants we can comfortably accommodate.

Then it advises a careful study of the location, for bird tenants, mind you have as decided notions about where they want to live as do human house-hunters, and if you want your bird houses occupied, you will have to put them where the birds prefer to stay.

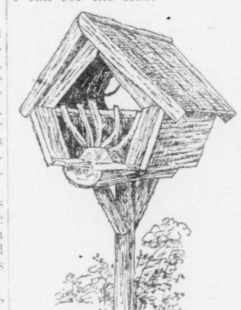

One thing is imperative: All houses to rent, if they have been occupied before, must be thoroughly cleaned and fumigated before offered to other tenants. The first families among the feathered folk prefer old, grey, lichen-covered mansions, so it is best to erect the new imitations in winter so they can become weather-stained. All houses should have the opening turned away from prevailing cold winds, and the posts or poles on which they rest should be sheathed with tin or galvanized iron to prevent cats from climbing up and wrecking the happy homes.

If you want the added joy of building your homes to rent, Uncle Sam will furnish you specifications and the Liberty Bell Bird Club has an educational pamphlet on how to build bird houses. Those who can't build can buy, and no place is too small for at least one bird home.

It will give you a new interest in life to help shelter the little wanderers that are being driven from their natural homes and destroyed by their enemies, and you will be doing a great service to human beings at the same time.

Help save those who cannot protect themselves by sending in your name as a member of the Liberty Bell Bird Club. There is no cost in belonging to this club. Its badge button will be sent free of charge when you send in the following pledge:

"I desire to become a member of the Liberty Bell Bird Club of Philadelphia, and I promise to study and protect all song and insectivorous birds and do what I can for the club."

THE OLD FASHIONED "SPELLING BEE" REVIVED.

Prof. E. D. Shorter, State Chairman of the Interscholastic League announces the addition of spelling to other contests of the League. He says:

"The rules of the League now include county contests in spelling in addition to those in debate, declamation, and athletics. It is patent to all that the schools are turning out too many poor spellers; and whether or not the old way of drilling in oral spelling be pedagogically the best method, we think that such contests will at least serve the purpose of calling attention to much-needed reform."

"The State Executive Committee will prepare three graded lists of words which will be sent under seal to the Director General of the county, to be opened and used for the first tryout at the time of the county contests. If all contestants do not 'spell down' on these lists, which will contain a total of 300 words, resort will next be had to 'A General List of Words Commonly Misspelled,' commencing on page 45 of Payne's 'Learn to Spell.' One copy of this book will be sent free to each school belonging to the League. And in case this list is exhausted, words will be taken from Webster's old Blueback Speller."

"For a final resort, words may be selected from some other speller or from a dictionary. Webster's dictionary, either the New International or Collegiate, will be the final authority as to correct spelling."

"It is suggested that preliminary district contests within a county be held, whenever practicable. That is, divide the county into a certain number of districts, allowing each school to send not more than six contestants, who in a local contest have proved themselves to be the best spellers in such school, whether boys or girls. As a result of such preliminary district contests let each belonging to the league send to the county contest two contestants, either boys or girls. At the final county contests group the contestants together by schools and let them spell down. The last survivor, of course, will win the county championship. In case the last two or more spell down on the same word other words should be given to determine the winner."

The lists to be prepared by the State Executive Committee will not be sent out until just prior to the county contest; they must be opened by the County Chairman in the presence of the contestants, and must be returned to the State Chairman with a report of the contest. It does not seem advisable, at least for the present, to carry the spelling contests further than the county, although the district officers may arrange, if desired, to have a district contest in spelling among the winners in the counties comprising the district."

"Attention is again called to the fact that contests in spelling are open to girls as well as boys; also, that there are separate county and district contests in declamation for girls."

BIGGEST SNOW STORM IN QUARTER OF A CENTURY

Sunny Kimble Climes Gets the Surprise of a Lifetime

The closing days of last week brought to Sunny Kimble Climes the surprise of a lifetime in the form of the biggest snow received here in quarter of a century. Friday morning one of those said blue northers came whistling over the hills of the Llano river country and we shivered a little and felt sorry for our neighbors of the northern states. Friday night we were sweetly dreaming about being wedded to a millionaire's only daughter and taking an airplane honeymoon trip up among Elysian fields of the twinkling stars: it began to rain dollars which tinkled against our whizzoplanes; then fell upon our vast earthly estate; we were eating ice cream and trying to think of something else we would like to have—when, lo! the vision suddenly faded and we awoke to find our feet extended "two feet" from under the cover, and the raining dollars of a few moments before was sleet beating against the window panes. We couldn't sleep any more thinking about that dream. Don't know just exactly how many hundred degrees below zero it was when we awoke, but we know it was several. We were glad when the sleet quit falling, as it kept reminding us of the raining dollars in our sadly shattered dream. In the early morning hours the sleet softened and the snow began, and continued to fall steadily until near 11 o'clock Saturday night. It is conservatively estimated that six inches of snow was on the ground Sunday morning. Old timers tell us that by actual measurement this is the biggest snow which has fallen in Kimble in twenty-five years. About 1887 or 1888 a snow fell here which measured one foot deep on the level—it was a record-breaker. About sixteen or seventeen years ago we had a snow, which measured four inches. Before this month no snow to speak of has fallen here for the past several years. Last week's snow seems to have covered a wide area as heavy fall is reported from various parts of the state. People here seldom have opportunity to engage in the pleasures of a snow night, and all day Saturday and Sunday, big, little old and young made the most of their opportunity. Two broken windows in the bus iness section give evidence of the hilarity. One of the front plate glass windows in the Junction State Bank building and one of the show windows in the Melinger Bros. dry-goods establishment.

Precipitation resulting from the snow was four-fifths of an inch, and this together with the other snow of a week ago should be of great benefit to the ground, and especially to small grain which has been planted.

Rev. R. T. Deel left yesterday for Harper to attend Fifth Sunday Meeting.

E. O. Bodé and Aug. Bruns were among the Coparas community ranchmen in our busy city after supplies yesterday.

AMERICA'S PURSE HAS OPENED WIDE TO PEOPLE OF WARRING NATIONS

Reports from some forty correspondents in as many cities and towns throughout the country indicate that within a period of four months $200,000,000 has been raised in the United States and is possessions for relief purposes in war-ravaged Europe.

Included in this total are: Nearly $9,000,000 in cash for food for Belgian relief; approximately $3,500,000 for German needs; approximately $400,000 for the suffering Jews; $50,000 for Dollar Christmas Fund; $1,125,000 for Red Cross work; $250,000 for the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris; about $250,000 raised by French societies, including $50,000 to the fund for relief of women and children in France; $200,000 raised by various British committees, including the Prince of Wales fund.

The remainder is made up of the Christmas ship, contributions of missionary bodies of every denomination, funds collected by newspapers and forwarded direct to France or Belgium, the combined totals of nearly a dozen minor relief bodies and of as many fraternal associations. The grand total given does not include totals of reports of sums aggregate approximately $300,000 withdrawn from savings banks in the west and sent by Austrians, Germans, Alsations, Hungarians, Slovaks and Servians to relatives at home whose breadwinners are at the front.

THE SWINE BREEDER AND THE EXPERIMENT STA- TION.

(B. Youngblood, Director Texas Experiment Station, College Station, Texas, before Texas Swine Breeders' Association, at Cleburne, Texas, January 20, 1915.)

If the swine breeder were in position to solve all the problems which he runs into, he would, of course, have little need of an experiment station. But in practice he has found that there are many problems which are to him too perplexing and too expensive for him to solve alone. The matter of how to solve problems which the farmer cannot solve for himself has been carefully considered for many years by farmers and statesmen alike, and it has long since been decided that the only practical means of solving farm problems is to maintain an agency manned and equipped for the purpose. This agency is known as the experiment station. A given problem, once solved by the experiment station, is solved for everybody, whereas, if an individual were to make the discovery, he would be inclined to patent his secret and either keep it to himself or sell it to other individuals at exorbitant prices.

There are a great many things which the farmer has discovered for himself—a great many things in particular. First of all he knows what his problems are. He is in position, therefore, to make suggestions of value to the experiment station in planning its investigations. Knowing his problems, he is also capable of asking some intensely practical questions, and these are the kind experiment station work should tend to answer. He wants information which he can put into harness and make a paying proposition on his own farm. The experiment station which does not furnish him that information is, to that extent, failing of its purpose.

The swine breeder knows a great deal in general about hog cholera, for instance, but when his hogs get sick he wants a doctor, and the more the doctor knows the better. The doctor knows more and is accordingly more serviceable in proportion as he has investigated or has at hand the results of investigation pertaining to hog cholera, or any other given disease. The swine breeder knows there is a remedy for hog cholera, but sick hogs make him wish for a better and more effective one. He wonders if it is not possible for some veterinary investigator to some day go deeper into the study and discover facts which will make the total elimination of hog cholera possible, or at least its control more simple.

Every swine breeder knows that grazing makes cheaper pork, but not all of them have at hand all the information necessary when it comes to getting the grazing. Some things that perplex him are the kind of crops to grow for grazing in his locality; when and how to plant them in order that there may be continuous grazing on the farm, and so forth. In many sections there is an apparent inadequacy of crops, which the experiment station system is overcoming by plant introduction and adaptation work.

The Texas experiment station, though mindful of the swine breeder's problems, has not until recently been in position to take them up for solution in a logical manner. It may be interesting to the swine breeders, however, to know that swine work has at last begun. During the past year we have established an experimental drove on the feeding and breeding substitution farm. With these we have begun a series of experiments which are destined to throw considerable light on the problems of hog raising and pork production. The work has been carefully planned, in accordance with the needs of the hog raiser. Complete records will be kept from year to year upon every phase of the enterprise. How raising in dry lots will be compared with different methods of hog raising wherein grazing plays a part. The influence of the different methods upon the hogs themselves will be studied. Exact figures as to cost of production of pork by the different methods will be obtained. In addition to this work the feeding values of different Texas-grown hog feeds will be determined. Information as to the economy of hog raising on the dairy farm will be obtained. It may be of interest, also, to the swine breeders, to know that on this same farm we have established a series of dairy experiments. This makes it possible to determine the feeding value of skim milk in combination with other feeding stuffs, and grazing.

In connection with the steer feeding experiments which are also being conducted on this farm, some information is being secured as to the amount saved by having hogs follow the steers.

All the swine work so far begun has been provided for out of our general appropriation. To date the funds available have been sufficient only for getting ready and starting the work. The forthcoming legislature is being asked to appropriate four thousand dollars per annum for hog work. Certainly this is the smallest amount the people of Texas could expect us to use to advantage. I think they will agree with me that the swine industry is of vast importance to this state. They expect the experiment station to be of material service to the swine breeder, and all the station asks is a chance.

The Experiment Station is always glad to hear from the swine breeders concerning their problems, and in return the station is anxious to be of marked service to the industry.

DIVERSIFY AND PROSPER.

Address delivered by G. A. Kirkpatrick before San Antonio Chamber of Commerce last week.

In the building of a city and the building of a community and in the building of a state, three great factors stand out as essentials in wealth and character making.

1st. A thorough and comprehensive analysis of your surrounding agricultural resources.

2nd. A complete survey of your industrial advantages.

3rd. A comprehensive analysis of your civic conditions.

The first two relate to the wealth making possibilities of your community and the last to the making of a comfortable and pleasant home.

In making an analysis of the agricultural resources, it will be easily determined whether your land is producing wealth, or is an idle factor for your community. A thorough census should be taken to discern whether this land is permanently increasing in a wealth making way or is wearing out. Judge A. E. Chamberlain of Professor P. G. Holden's staff gives the following six reasons against a one crop system, which many of your farmers of Texas have been pursuing for many, many years.

1st. The soil will wear out. Even in the rich black lands of Texas where cotton has been raised for years, the farmers are now securing less than one-third of a bale of cotton per acre. This means in its finality, unless this system is changed this rich soil will be handed over to posterity in a greatly weakened condition and thus rob coming civilization of a profitable means of livelihood.

2nd. Insects will destroy any one crop, which is continuously planted on the same soil. In the north and in many places in Texas, the chinch bug and the Hessian fly caused the one crop wheat farmer to fail. Where corn is continuously grown, the corn root worm finally brings about failure. In cotton, it is the cotton worm, the boll weevil, etc.

3rd. Weather conditions are very frequently wrong for the farmer, who raises any single crop. It will be too wet or too dry and hence a failure, or only partial crop.

The above are three of nature's reasons against the one crop idea. Man has already devised and discovered three equally important reasons.

1st. The price is very frequently wrong when the one crop farmer is ready to market his single crop. He spends 11 months in making his crop and has only about a month in which to market it and has to accept the prevailing price, which is often low.

2nd. There is no single crop that will furnish continuous employment for man or animal for 365 days in the year. As a matter of fact government tests have shown that the cotton crop can be easily produced and harvested within 100 days of actual work for man and animal. The corn crop can be made in 80 days and yet we must feed our horses and mules and ourselves for the full 365 days of the year.

3rd. The one crop farmer almost invariably makes his single crop on a credit and this, it seems to me is the greatest curse of the one crop system. The crop is mortgaged before it is produced and the landlord, the banker or the supply merchant are in position to dictate when and how it shall be sold. If the farmer on the contrary would diversify and have something to sell every week or every month during the year, it will soon make him economically independent.

The important essentials of diversified farming are being propagated in the Texas farming campaign in Central Texas, covering Bell, McLennan, Falls, Johnson, Hays, Bexar and Harris counties. Professor P. G. Holden, who is at the head of the agricultural extension department of the International Harvester company, is assisting the state and local forces in this campaign with 15 agricultural lecturers. Instead of calling the farmer into town, the lecturers go out to the country with the business men of the town and talk with the farmer on his own farm, in the country school house and in towns, an effort to be of some actual service to him in solving his own problems on the farm. This group is divided up into teams of two each and each crew holds three or four meetings each day and thus forty or fifty meetings can be held in a county in one day.

In a 30-day campaign in Arkansas, beginning on November

9th, more than 1600 meetings were held on the farm and in the country school house and in the towns and the lecturers spoke to more than 130,000 people and covered 44 counties in that state.

The slogan of the campaign in Texas is, "Texas Will Feed Herself and Keep $200,000,000 at Home." This amount of money is annually sent out to northern markets for the simple food products for man and feeds for animals, which can be grown in this state cheaper than they are grown in other states, from which we are buying these foods and feeds.

The campaign in Hays and Bexar Counties will be conducted on the 19th and 20th of January.

The Making and Feeding of Silage

(This is part of a series of articles on silos and silage, prepared by T. E. Woodward, of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry. The articles deal with making and feeding of silage, silage for horses, silage for beef and dairy cattle, silage for sheep. It will be found profitable to clip and paste these articles as they appear, for future reference.)

SILAGE FOR BEEF CATTLE

There is no roughage which is of more importance to the producer of beef cattle than silage. The value of silage to the beef producer varies considerably and is dependent upon a large number of other factors. If rough fodders are scarce or are high priced, if the grain is high priced, or if the grains are not near a good market that much of it can be readily sold, silage will have a greater value than if the opposite conditions exist. It is a great saver of grain regardless of whether it is to be fed to stock cattle or fattening cattle. It will lessen the grain feeding by practically the same amount as is contained in the silage. The value will also depend somewhat upon the kind of cattle to which it is to be fed. If there is an abundance of rough fodders which can not be marketed, silage will not be so valuable. But in a case of this kind the silage would prove more valuable if used for the calves and pregnant cows and the coarse fodders used for the other stock.

Silage for the Breeding Herd.
For wintering the entire breeding herd there is no roughage better than silage. All of the animals will relish a ration containing it and it will create a good appetite for all other feeds. Cows that are fed all of the silage they will consume along with clover hay will go through the winter in fine shape and make small gains. If the amount of silage is limited, a more economical method of wintering them will be to reduce the silage to a half ration, letting them have the run of a straw stack and feeding about two pounds of cotton seed meal or oil meal per day. Some dry, coarse fodder or straw should always be kept before animals getting silage, as it reduces the amount of silage consumed and prevents the bowels from becoming too loose. The succulent feed will cause the breeding cows to give a good flow of milk even though the calf be born in midwinter, and if the silage is free from mold or rotten spots there will be no danger in feeding it to breeding cows.

Silage for Stockers.
Each farmer will have to plan the rations for his cattle according to the amount of the various feeds he has on hand. Stockers can be wintered on silage and some good hay, fodder, or straw, but his may not always be the most profitable. When hay is high priced and grain is reasonably cheap or plenty of silage is available, it may be more economical to omit the hay altogether. A ration of corn silage alone has often been profitable for thin cattle. Stockers which have been fed liberally all winter and made to put on good gains usually do not make as large daily gains when put on grass as do steers which have not been quite so well fed. The time the cattle are to be finished for market and the degree of fattness to be attained should govern to a large extent the method to be followed during the winter. When steers are expected to sell high in early summer and the steers are to be finished for market at that time, a heavy roughage ration with a small amount of grain should be fed during the winter months.

Silage for Fattening Animals.
Silage stands first in rank of all the roughages for fattening cattle. Formerly, during the era of cheap corn and other concentrates little attention was given to the roughage, as it was usually considered merely a "filler" and of very little economic value in feeding. No especial care was taken in selecting any particular kind, nor was the quality of it seriously considered. As the prices of the concentrated feed stuffs advanced, the feeder looked about for methods of cheapening the cost of producing beef, and soon found this could be accomplished by using judgment in selecting his roughage with respect to the grain fed. This has continued until at the present time the roughage receives as much attention as the concentrated feed, and has been made to take the place of a large amount of the latter. The feeding of silage came into general use with the advent of expensive grain and is becoming more popular each year. With the present prices of feed stuffs there is hardly a ration used for feeding cattle which can not be cheapened by the use of this succulent feed. By combining it with other feeds the efficiency of the ration is increased to such an extent that the amount of the daily gains is invariably greater and the cost of producing a pound of grain is lessened. The heaviest daily gains are usually made during the first stage of the feeding period, and silage can then be used to advantage in large quantities with a small amount of grain, but as the feeding progresses the amount of silage should be lessened and the grain increased. In some places the price of hay and stover is so high that the greater the proportion of silage used in the ration the more profitable is the feeding.

Conditions in general are such that any given ration will not suit a large number of farmers, nor will it be so profitable for some as it will be for others, so each farmer must determine for himself just what combination of feeds will be most profitable for his use. However, to give a general idea of some of the rations adapted to different localities and which may prove satisfactory for a 1000-pound steer, some examples are given below:

RATIONS.
Ration 1.	Pounds
Corn silage	25
Corn stover	6
Cottonseed meal or oil meal	3
Shelled corn	14
Ration 2.	Pounds
Corn silage	25
Clover hay	7
Shelled corn	15
Ration 3.	Pounds
Corn silage	25
Cowpea hay	8
Cottonseed meal or oil meal	7
Ration 4.	Pounds
Corn silage	30
Cotton seed hulls	12
Cotton seed meal	7

It should be understood that the above rations are not necessarily to be fed up the exact quantities given above, but should be modified to suit local conditions or the actual conditions on each farm. They are given to show approximately the average amounts and character of feed that would be consumed daily by a 1000-pound steer during the feeding period.

MOUSE'S NEST IN SKULL

The mystery of the cheeping noises in the Chamber of Commerce of El Centro, Cal., has been solved. In the display room is a graphic exhibit. There is a skull of an unknown man found on the Colorado desert. Beside it is a stalk of cotton raised in green Imperial Valley. The cotton was raised where the skull was found.

For several days queer noises were heard in the room, but the cause baffled Secretary Place and other officers. Finally W. H. Compton, a director and lecturer for the exposition at San Francisco, decided upon a minute search, and in the skull he found a mouse. It had taken some of the cotton and started a nest.

"That man probably did not have rats in the garret, but he certainly has now," commented a man just from Iowa, who was in the room.

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES

One day after New Year's day the writer walked into a mercantile store to collect an advertising bill, which was my duty the first day of each month. In stepping in the door the boss greeted me with, "A Happy and Prosperous New Year." Of course, I saluted, after which I presented my statement for the month's advertising, he gave me the proper amount and I marked his bill "paid." We talked on one subject and another and finally I requested that he give me a copy of the ad he would like to run for the new year, as the old ad had been published several months without changing, and this is what he said to me in reply to my request: "I have decided to cut expenses this year, as money matters are very depressing, so I will not advertise to the amount of one cent."

And in reply to this I told him this: "My friend, pardon me for butting in to your arrangements or business, but you are doing the thing that you should not do by any means; you should advertise now more than ever before; advertising now means money to you in the near future, because when people had plenty of money they traded where they pleased, but now they must read the advertising columns of their local paper to find out where their hard earned dollar will do them the most good. In other words, make that dollar last longer. Advertising is the secret of success."

But do you know that the road to success is "Advertise now and advertise all the time."

with me at all? So I did not have time to argue the subject any further with him and was soon on my way to the next place.

Now, this firm has turned off the bookkeeper and one clerk, as their business is getting smaller all the time and customers are getting fewer with them, which I am sure was caused by not advertising any more. And I am sure that the boss will change his mind and plans in a few months.

However, we moved from that place and he will have to rock along the rugged shore the best he can.

The editor of a local newspaper can control the trade of most any establishment, and I know from experience, as I have sent customers to the firm that however, at the same time try to divide the trade as much as possible among my customers, as I feel it my duty to do so.

Whatever you may do in cutting down expenses, do not begin at the local newspaper first, let it be last; do you remember the words you spoke to some close friends, "I am glad that we have a newspaper?" And in cutting down your unnecessary expenses you forget these words and begin to order your ads out of the paper.

Now, my friend, the editor depends upon your support to keep his family alive, as well as himself, and he is like you when it comes to expenses, he has the expenses of his plant and a large expense it is, too, if he publishes a decent paper. Let the ad be the last thing that comes to your mind when cutting your expenses; if you let it be the first, the first thing you know your community will be without a newspaper and your business on the decline. The road to success is "Advertise now and advertise all the time."
