Dormant Law May Be Enacted

Farmers Argue For Wind Erosion Protection Before Commissioners

By BOBBY TEMPLETON
Brand News Editor

Something besides the blowing dust has received the furor of Deaf Smith County farmers after the harsh winds plagued area agriculturalists.

It's the farming techniques employed by their neighbors in times of dust bowls. Certain methods are designed to cut down on wind erosion and one farmer gets edgy about another farmer's uncooperative effort to limit erosion.

Such was the case in the Dirty 30's and so it is again today with high winds and little moisture to settle top soil. This was the plight argued before the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court during a regular session held Monday at the courthouse.

About 10 individuals approached the commissioners court concerning a dormant law which, if resurrected, could allow a farmer to enter upon his neighbor's land and start plowing to cut any bad effects of wind erosion. It is the Deaf Smith County Wind Erosion Conservation District which was in activity, from about 1932-35 when the Panhandle was engulfed in dust.

Along with the enactment of the district authority, the commissioners approved two resolutions designed to combat farmers problems with one directly related to the drought. Commissioner Bruce Coleman received approval of his resolution to declare the county a drought disaster area in order to receive aid from the federal government. It will be directed to proper channels and allows the county judge to declare a disaster once the Farmers Home Administration receives permission to handle disaster cases.

The other resolution directs attention to financial situation faced by producers and it will be presented at an Odessa meeting of the West Texas County Commissioner's and Judges Association.

The wind erosion district legally enables the county judge to authorize a farmer's land to be plowed (chiseled) up with costs for it charged against the land like taxes.

Several farmers led by Donald Hicks, Carl Strafuss and Larry Harris wanted the court and county judge to act immediately to allow them to plow up a neighbor's land which is left unlisted and therefore open to the blowing wind. The dust then covers up neighboring lands destroying valuable crops and eroding the land.

County Judge Sam Morgan was unsure of the law's authority and immediate consultations began with Andy Shuval, criminal district attorney. Shuval confirmed that the law gave authority to the county judge but that he was not clear on the exact procedure by which he could act.

However, the farmers were poised waiting to plow up the land with their own tractors. At presstime, Shuval was still researching aspects of the law and what procedure needed to be followed.

A second step in the law provides for assessments against the landowner whose land is plowed. Shuval said this would not doubt involve a legal waiting period in which notice must be given for a hearing when both sides of the issue could be discussed and a decision made.

Farmers present were skeptical of the plowing land without compensation as well as the possible risk incurred when going on someone else' land without their cooperation.

Morgan, said that all procedures and information about the wind erosion conservation would be released when finalized. "I will act immediately when given authority but I won't be pushed into anything," he said.

In the 1930s when the law was more active, just the idea that the county could enforce laws requiring proper wind erosion conservation measures made farmers plow up their land. Back then, no much coercion was necessary.

Days Gone By

This gloomy scene may be more appropriate to years gone by but recent wind blown dust storms provide this setting for a deserted farm house south of Hereford. The sun is barely seen as a small ball in the sky through the hazy dust. Farmers, however, are attempting to cut down on possible sights like that above by forcing wind erosion measures which lessen the amount of top soil that could be blown into neighboring fields destroying crops and therefore the basis of the local economy. ANOTHER MISS HEREFORD Pageant went into the books Saturday night, and it must be classified as a tremendous success. The show moved smoothly and provided great entertainment before a full house While Pageant officials would have liked more entrants, the beauty and talent of the participants was great. Adding to the entertainment was the appearance of several former title holders. Hats off to the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce for a great job in staging the annual pageant!

THE OPEN LINE to the president drew a lot of comment from editors around the country, but the one we liked best was by James Roberts of The Andrews County News. We think he has a good idea for the president, and his letter makes good reading.

Dear President Carter:

We tried from 1 until 3 p.m. yesterday to dial your number at the White House but your service isn't any better than ours-we could never get thru!

The people-to-president open line is a great idea but seems like you're gonna have to hire another hand or two to handle our calls.

Anyway, we had a suggestion to make.

We were going to propose a simple method of handling the $50 rebate planned by you and Congress for all Americans earning under $30,000 a year.

Purpose of the rebate is supposedly to stimulate the economy. Personally, we feel it's so stimulated now, we can't keep up with our bills.

Since the proposed rebate will cost Uncle Sam in the neighborhood of $13 billion an amount that you don't have and will have to go into the capital market and borrow, we have a better suggestion.

Experts say we have just enough money in the kitty to run Social Security for another eight months. Instead of sendng all of us $50 in May, you keep the $50 you don't have and write one check payable to the Social Security fund for the $13 billion.

Then mail all of those people now receiving Social Security an extra $50 in May. It just might be enough to make a down payment for them on their gas bills.

At least in that manner, the nation would only have one hot check floating around the country instead of 20 million.

If we poured an additonal $13 billion into Social Security, those retired people would spend it faster than anyone else and consequently stimulate the economy as proposed.

And it just might be that if Social Security received a one-shot $13 billion it would not be necessary to go up again on Social Security rates next January.

Seems rather foolish to us to borrow money in order to send all of us $50, when come January you'll take an additonal

Richard Baker of Denton reported that a Johnson bar valued at $50 was stolen from his truck while it was parked at the Plains Motel here over the weekend.

A windshield on a vehicle owned by Edward Nino of Dimmitt was damaged Sunday night while the vehicle was parked at the Pizza Hut at 1304 West First.

A rock was apparently thrown through the windshield. No damage estimate was available.

A local convenience store reported the theft of some fuel Monday evening. Easy Way No. 1, at 910 East Park Ave. was the scene of the theft of some $9.60 worth of gasoline.

Hospital Board Calls Elections, Bids Farewell To Fellow Member

BY BOB NIGH
Brand Staff Writer

The Deaf Smith County Hospital Board of Directors said goodbye to one of its members Tuesday, and at the same time called for the election of three new board members to replace the trio of members whose terms expire next month.

Those members whose terms are expiring include Tommy Carnahan, Dr. Hap Caviness, and Isaias Gamez. Both Dr. Caviness and Gamez have filed for reelection.

In saying farewell Carnahan told the board that he "is proud of our hospital, our district, and our board". In turn hospital Administrator Ron Welty and board president L.J. Straufuss each praised Carnahan for his work with the board.

The board called for the election to fill the three soon to be vacant seats to be held on Saturday, April 2 in the Hereford Community Center.

Citizens will have from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. to vote in the election in which four persons are vying for the three seats.

Candidates include Gamez, Dr. Caviness, Dr. Gerald Payne, and Ed Reinaur, Jr. By virtue of a drawing held in the administrator's office on March 8, Gamez will be listed first on the ballot to be followed by Dr. Payne, Dr. Caviness, and Reinaur in order.

Absentee voting for the election began yesterday and will continue until March 27. Citizens may vote absentee from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. weekdays in the county clerk's office in the County Court House.

In other regular business the board heard a report from the medical staff by Chief of Staff Dr. A.T. Mims and an operating report for the month of February from Welty.

Dr. Mims reported that the staff conducted the regular reports and reviews, and that they are in the process of updating the staff bylaws and regulations.

"We have moved into the new surgical unit completely, and in spite of a few minor problems it certainly is going to be nice," the doctor also told the board.

Welty informed the board that the hospital's patient days total has improved, with the month of February in 1977 26 days better than the same month in 1976. The patient days for the year to date is still behind last year's figure, however, he added.

Ambulance Agreement Approved By County; New Court Discussed

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court approved a resolution on local ambulance operations, discussed the establishment of the new district court here, and decided to enforce the county policy concerning payments to rural fire departments during a regular session held Monday at the courthouse.

In other action the commissioners accepted a grant for the assistant juvenile probation officer, approved bids for pickups, approved a resolution for a regional alcohol and drug abuse treatment system, and considered repairs for the Bull Barn and courthouse.

CONTROVERSY arose recently on ambulance services when the Gililland and Watson Funeral Home decided to re-enter the field after leaving it last year. The newer Smith and Co. Funeral Home has been the only firm providing ambulances for emergencies and routine transfers.

The resolution gave authority to a policy already conducted by the Deaf Smith Sheriff's Department. It allows the sheriff's office dispatcher to receive the emergency calls and assign one of the funeral homes to send out an ambulance. This will be done on an alternating basis from calls received directly by the sheriff.

Calls made directly to one of the funeral homes will naturally be handled by that firm after the sheriff's office has been notified. These calls will not affect the rotating system setup by the sheriff.

The resolution further states that the sheriff has the authority to call as many Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT's) to the scene of an emergency as needed, that funeral homes must meet state law on equipment standards and qualifications and that second ambulances may be called in for backup from the firm originally handling the call.

It was noted that the county does not have the right to authorize only one company to handle ambulance services despite requests to do so. The resolution has the backing of Hereford Police Chief Don Brush.

Wesley Gulley, 222nd state district court judge, asked the court to provide needed office space and equipment for the judge and his secretary and to work with him on setting up the new district court in general. The new district takes effect April after a bill split the Deaf Smith and Oldham counties (the new court) away from the existing 69th Judicial District Court.

A MEETING IS SCHEDULED for 2 p.m. March 29 in Channing between the officials of the two district to discuss possible ways to smoothly separate the two districts. It has been proposed that the two districts operate jointly through the end of the current fiscal year and then split although this would result in less revenues for the 222nd district.

Gulley, appointed by the governor, said he wanted to cooperate to the fullest with Deaf Smith and Oldham County commissioners. He said office space currently occupied by County Welfare offices would effectively suffice for the judge's office since it is near the courtroom. A small office adjacent to the district clerk's office tentatively has been designated the court reporter's office.

He said that Ray Quillan, presently court reporter of the 69th judicial district, has accepted the same job of the new court. Also, Harold Wheeler, 69th district adult probation officer, has been picked as the probation officer of the new court. According to the enabling legislation passed by the state legislature, both positions will mandate $15,000 annual salaries. Apparently, this was added to the bill after the Commissioners Court reviewed it, which was not to the liking of the court.

The Commissioners reaffirmed its policy to pay $50 for rural fire department answering calls of fires outside the city limits but within the county. If one department answers, a $100 payment is made.

A problem arose when the recent United Beef feedlot fire was answered by several departments including Dawn, Walcott, Simms, Hereford and others. Since the fire was located in Castro County, the commissioners decided to go ahead and pay the rural fire department bills and bill the neighboring County. The question was whether the county was

The Hereford Rotary Club Monday heard West Texas State University Head Football Coach Bill Yung concerning his aspirations for the coming year and his impression of the Panhandle.

At the noon luncheon, the Rotarians honored Tina White, the runner-up in the Miss Hereford Pageant, with a dozen roses. The club sponsored her in the event held Saturday night.

In other announcemtns, President Roger Ruland reminded members of the April 22-24 district conference in Midland, the June 5-9 National Convention in San Francisco, and the April 11 meeting at which a visiting representative of the English extension of Rotary International will be speaking.

Yung, who was hired recently from the Baylor University staff, expressed gratitude for the "fine welcome" received from the Panhandle, West Texas aea.

Following jokes about the diverse weather and lack of trees, he said that he challenges his WTSU playes to adjust to all kinds of situations, especially those on the playing field. He referred to the weather changes up here and said his team just learn to adapt to all of them to be successful since they will likely play in all kinds of conditions.

He extended an invitation to the club to attend the spring training which begins April 1. "If you're close enough, I'll either get you to coach or play--one or the other," he said.

Three priorities he placed on his team members were (1) Get a college degree, (2) Don't come back years later and blame the coach for anything (emphasis on personal initiative) and (3) Grow spiritually as comfortably as possible.

Part of his success has been due to the use of the Rotary four-way test. It is that you should consider the following things in anything you do, say or think: (1) Is it the truth? (2) Is it fair to all concerned? (3) Will it build good will and better friendships? and (4) Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

EAT for the Heart of It

by Janita Oswalt,
Nutrition Task Force Chairman
American Heart Association

Nowadays people are becoming more aware of their blood pressure, and wanting to know what their normal blood pressure should be. We are now more than ever concerned about high blood pressure.

In this article, I hope some of your questions about blood pressure and high blood pressure will be answered.

What is blood pressure? It is the force of the blood against the walls of the arteries. This force is generated by the heart as it pumps blood to all parts of the body.

How is blood pressure measured? A syphygmomanometer (pronounced sfig-mo-mah-nom-e-ter) is used. I has several parts. One part is a bandage-like cloth-a cuff-that will hold air. It is wrapped around your arm. A rubber tube connects the cuff to a pressure meter. The doctor uses a squeeze bulb to pump air into the cuff. He slowly releases the air and uses a stethoscope to listen to the blood in your arm. When he first hears the sound of the heart pumping, he reads the meter. He reads the meter again when the sound disappears.

What is a normal blood pressure? The normal reading when the heart pumps is 100 to 140. This is systolic pressure. When the heart rests, the normal reading is between 70 and 90. This is diastolic pressure. This would be written 140/80 which would be a normal b/p (blood pressure).

What is high blood pressure? In some people, blood pressure is nearly always higher than it should be because their arteries clamp down or shut off making it harder for the blood to pass through. This makes their blood pressure rise.

High blood pressure adds to the workload of the heart and the arteries. The heart must pump with more force, and the arteries must carry blood that is moving under greater pressue. If high blood pressure continues for a long time, the heart and the arteries may no function as well as they should and other body organs may also be affected. There is increased risk of stroke, heart failure, kidney failure and heart attack.

How do you know whether you have high blood pressure? Most people with high blood pressure have no symptoms at all! There are no specific warning signs. Although persistent headaches, dizziness, fatigue, tension, and shortness of the breath sometimes go with high blood pressure, they are also common in many people and may result from variety of causes. The only way to find out whether you have high blood pressure is to have your blood pressure checked. You must go to your doctor to have your blood pressure checked. You can also have it checked when the American Heart Association has a blood pressure clinic.

What can you do about high blood pressure? If a person has high blood pressure, he can be helped if he has his blood pressure checked periodically and stays under medical treatment. There are medications which can be used to reduce and control blood pressure, and a medical program can be found that is suited to individual needs. In addition, low-fat and low-salt diets are often prescribed. And changes in living habits, including rest and recreation, are sometimes recommended, depending upon the person's condition. The treatment plan is easier to follow than most people think. By following instructions, the patient has hope. He knows he is doing something to prolong his life and to reduce his risks of stoke, heart attack, kidney failure and heart failure.

REMEMBER YOU MUST...

1. Have your blood pressure checked to find out if you have high blood pressure.

2. If you do have high blood pressure, follow medical advice about taking medicine and changing your diet and health habits.

3. Keep taking your medicine as long as the doctor says, whether you feel well or not.

4. Cooperate. You and the medical team must work together in order to get your blood pressure under control.

These four things are up to you to help your doctor control your blood pressure.

In keeping with this week, and it being Saint Patrick's Day, here is a recipe I think you will enjoy.

THE HEREFORD BRAND

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

We were born just ten months apart, Queen Elizabeth and I -- which is probably why my mother has always paralleled our lives.

You'll probably find this hard to believe, but even as children we had very little in common. My mother refused to believe this. 'Why can't you be neat like Elizabeth? Look at her -- her little anklets folded down neatly, her ruffles standing up and her little hair ribbon nestled under her crown."

Later it was, "So, why don't you meet a nice, tall man like Elizabeth did and settle down? Look at him. He worships the Commonwealth that girl walks upon. You know your trouble? You stick to domestic brands. It would pay you to shop other countries instead of settling for those creeps who sit out front and lay on the horn."

Predictably, she pushed for children. "I see where Elizabeth has three children already and you have zilch. What are you waiting for? Trading stamps? Or are you going to get a friend to carry it around for you for nine months?"

When Elizabeth ascended to the throne in 1952, there was no living with Mother. "What I wouldn't give for you to have a steady job like that. So, you give up wearing teased hair the rest of your life. Is that so important? A crown is like a graduation cap. After awhile, you stop laughing at it."

Periodically, there have been reminders of "Elizabeth just raised her mother's allowance. It took an act of Parliament to do it, but she figures her mother is worth it."

The other day a headline caught both of our eyes. Elizabeth II is beginning her second 25 years on the throne and a biographer was granted a rare moment with her.

"People always say that when you're chunky, have prominent teeth, ordinary hair, and talk through your nose. It's like saying, 'The veins in your nose match your convertible.' It's reaching."

"Why don't you like Elizabeth?"

"I've always like Elizabeth," I said irritably. "I voted for her twice."

"There you go. You're jealous because she has a daughter who is married."

"Mother! I'm also beginning my second 25 years on the throne. My husband is employed. My kids are well. The freezer is paid for. I had no cavities last month. The car is running. My checkbook balanced. The cat isn't pregnant."

"You've got nice skin," said Mother.

She never gives up.

Polio Victim Writes

DEAR ANN: I am writing this letter in an attempt to alert parents and hopefully spare their children years of struggle, agony and heartbreak. I just heard a report about the low percentage of children who have had vaccinations to protect them against polio.

I was a victim of polio in the early '50s before the vaccine was developed. I had to undergo two operations and years of special exercises to overcome a terrible complex. With the help of doctors, parents and friends, I mastered most difficulties and now live a normal life.

What happened to me was something nobody could help or prevent. But what would you say if someday your crippled child asked you, "Why didn't you protect me? Why didn't you get me the vaccination?"

Many parents are unaware of the danger because, thank God, there hasn't been a polio epidemic in a long time. I could happen again.--Hope Somebody Listens

DEAR HOPE: So do I. In the meantime, oral polio vaccines are available free of charge to any school-age child in Chicago and Cook County. Parents who are interested should call the Board of Health. They will be referred to the nearest clinic.

Parents in other cities should phone their own City or County Health Departments for information as to what is available in their area.

And while we're on the subject, hear this from Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano, Jr.:

"Sixteen million children under 14 years of age have not been vaccinated against polio. Of course these programs are expensive, but I will find the money to fund them."

Current recommendations for vaccinating children are as follows: Polio: Three shots at two, four and 18 months of age. At five years--a booster.

Diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus: Protection from all three diseases can be obtained in one shot. This shot should be given in four doses--the first at two months of age, again at four months, again at six months and finally at 10 months.

Measles: One shot at 15 months of age, unless an epidemic occurs, in which case the parents should consult a doctor about earlier vaccination.

Rubella or German measles: One shot at one year of age. (This may be changed soon and given along with measles shot.)

Mumps: One shot at one year of age. (May also be changed and combined with measles-rubella vaccine.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please send me, immediately, the name and address of the woman who claims she has "infallible ESP." I will send her a first class ticket to Trenton N.J. We will then go together to Las Vegas. From there I'll take her to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where the gaming tables are plentiful, and on to Monte Carlo. After that I'll buy her a seat on the New York Stock Exchange. I am serious.--Sig Whitfield by Request.

DEAR SIG.: If the woman could do what you think she can, what would she need YOU for?

Local 4-H Leaders Invited To Forum

The annual Texas 4-H Leader Forum will be held at the Texas 4-H Center, Lake Brownwood on April 15-17. This fun-filled and information-packed event is planned by Texas' 4-H Leaders and is sponsored by their 4-H Volunteer Leaders' Association.

"All 4-H club and project adult leaders in Deaf Smith County are invited to register for this Leader Forum," pointed out Garland Stewart and Sherry Harder, local County Extension Agents.

"Forum participants from throughout the state will hear Dr. Eddie Amend, assistant director for the Wyoming Agricultural Extension Service, and Fred McClure, student body president form Texas A&M University, discuss several topics including 'Leading for What?' and 'The Obstacle Course'," related Stewart and Mrs. Harder.

Forum participants also will receive 4-H tips from a youth panel, films, displays, group sessions and informal exchanges. "One of the recreation highlights will be a 'tacky costume' party on Friday evening," notes Stewart and Mrs. Harder.

Registration application forms for the Texas 4-H Leader Forum are available through the Deaf Smith County Extension office, located on the third floor of the Courthouse. "Interested 4-H leaders are encouraged to register early," said Stewart and Mrs. Harder, "because the Texas 4-H Center's space will accomodate only the first 200 leaders who apply."

Home Gardening To Be Discussed

Home gardeners are encouraged to attend an informative program today at 7:30 p.m. in the Southwestern Public Service Reddy Room. There will be no admission fee.

Sponsoring tonight's program is the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Extension Service. The program will cover all aspects of home vegetable production, as well as fertilization, mulching and watering of lawns and flower beds.

A special invitation is being extended to garden club members and vegetable growers.

A special invitation is being extended to garden club members and vegetable gardeners. Information will be provided for insect and disease control, cultural practices, varieties of plants and some suggestions for cooking home-grown vegetables.

Dr. Roland Roberts, vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAES), of Lubbock will be presenting the program. He will be available to answer questions concerning plant growth, whether it be in the outside garden or potted.

The program is of special benefit to home gardeners who require information on soil preparation, fertilization and irrigation.

Public Invited To Dawn Musical

The public is invited to the annual show presented by Dawn Music Club at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Dawn Community Center.

Admission will cost $1 per adult and 50 cents for children under 12.

This year's musical will be divided into three segments, beginning with "The Gingerbread Castel," based on the opera "Hansel and Gretel." This story of the two lost waifs will be performed by children of the Dawn community, who will sing, dance and recite dialogue.

Music club members and other individuals will be featured in "Thirty Minutes With Carmen" as arranged by Arthur Johnson and May Van Dyke. This scenario is based on the opera by George Blizet and relates the story of the gypsy girl who works in a cigarette factory and her flirtations with soldiers and the toreador "Escamillo."

The concluding segment of the evening's entertainment will be an old-fashioned melodrama entitled "The Miner's Daughter" or "Evil Reaps Its Just Rewards," by Schubert Fendrich. This comic presentation will enact the plight of miners being pursued by temperance workers. Events are climaxed by the return of daughter Clementine, who is armed with her own brand of comical philosophies.

Legionnaires Plan Zone Meeting Here

The monthly meeting of Zone 2, American Legion, will be combined with a celebration of the Legion's 58th birthday Thursday evening at the post home here in Veteran's Park.

Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. to Legion members from chapters in Zone #2, which is composed of Tulia, Happy, Hart, Nazareth, Dimmitt, Friona and Hereford. Special guests will be District Commander Francis Wilhelm of Nazareth and Stella Beard of Amarillo, district president of the Legion Auxiliary.

A program is planned during Thursday's assembly here and a specially-decorated cake will be served. The American Legion was founded in 1919.

Millions Invested In Artificial Heart Research

EDITOR'S NOTE— Replacing a fatally defective human heart with an artificial one has been a medical dream for decades. After much costly effort, a partial mechanical heart is nearing reality, and researchers are optimistic about the complete one. This is the first of three articles.

BY WARREN LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- On the heart beats of a small herd of calves scattered in research institutions across the country rest the hopes of a $100 million program to build a device that can take over when the human heart fails.

In the calves, at Boston Children's Hospital Center and elsewhere, the heart beats already are producted by an artificial heart. It's still a long distance from calf to human, but it's narrowing.

Some medical scientists long have held that the best way to replace a hopelessly damaged heart would be through a mechanical device rather than heart transplant. But so far, artificial hearts have worked only in calves, up to four months, while some transplants have done much better in human patients.

Still, after years of toil, with more than $100 million spent over the past decade and $13 million more to be spent this year, scientists are guardedly optimistic. Some believe a completely artificial heart is less than a generation away.

"I won't name any date, but I think it will be in our lifetime," says Dr. Michael G. DeBakey of Baylor University.

"We are making progress when you look back over the past 15 years," the noted Texas heart surgeon says. "We have a greater understanding of the problems and we have solved some of them."

While the complete artificial heart is the longer-range prospect, a partial one that can handle some of a damaged heart's functions may be reality within five years, researchers say.

Both devices are the goal of the Artificial Heart Program run by National Heart and Lung Institute since 1964. But for now the emphasis is on developing a "left ventricle assist device," or LVAD, according to Dr. Peter L. Frommer, the institute's associate director of cardiology.

The heart is divided into two main pumping chambers called ventricles. The right ventricle pumps blood into the lungs to pick up oxygen. The left pumps the oxygenated blood through the arteries to the body.

The left chamber does four-fifths of the heart's work and is damaged most often in heart attacks.

Frommer says an LVAD could temporarily take the pumping load off a damaged left ventricle to allow it to heal. If the chamber is hopelessly impaired, long-term LVAD might give permanent assistance or take over the ventricle's task completely.

Experimental LVAD's have been used successfully in animals for up to eight weeks, but human tests failed. All of nearly a dozen patients died within a few days after receiving the devices. Frommer said all were patients near death who wouldn't have survived in any case.

Dr. C. Grant LaFarge, senior associate in cardiology at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston where some of the human LVAD surgery was performed, says future operations should bring better results.

"In Phase One, we got the most difficult patients who were almost dead," he says. "We are moving into a phase where we'll get patients in better shape. Hopefully, we'll get the survivors we plan on."

LVAD's are, in effect, custommade in laboratories. One commonly used is built by Thermo Electron Corp., of Waltham, Mass., and is a single- chamber, J-shaped pump weighing one pound. It is externally powered by forcing air through a tube in its side.

"Assist devices could be clinically useful even before we build up to our goal of long-term reliability for years," Frommer notes. "They could be used to rest or aid the heart if they're good for two weeks, two months, or two years."

Frommer says advances in assist devices help the work on the total artificial heart because similar technology is used. Some research teams are pushing ahead to the total heart.

And laboratory experience with animals has been excellent with the complete hearts, Frommer notes. "It has been quit encouraging." Calves are used most commonly to test both LVAD's and complete hearts because their organs and body size are close to human proportions.

Patients awaiting heart transplants could be tided over with temporary devices. LaFarge, who with Dr. William F. Bernhard is working on the latest model LVAD, says a long-term assist device that can be left in the body would eliminate the need for many heart transplants by taking care of the heart's biggest problem area.

Researcher's agree that several hurdles must be overcome in both LVAD and total heart. One is to find a reliable material to withstand the strain of a device pumping 100,000 times a day, which your heart does while it's sound.

Material and pump have to be designed to prevent damage to blood cells or clotting, something that remains to be fully achieved. So far, a wide range of plastics, metals and metal alloys have been tried.

Researchers also still are working on power for devices. External power with wires into the body, internal power cells that can be charged through the skin and nuclear units are possibilities, but all have disadvantages ranging from likelihood of causing infection to radiation danger.

And for a patient to return to a normal, productive life, artificial heart devices must be miniaturized further to fit comfortably into the body.

"There's a lot to do, but I'm reasonably optimistic," says LaFarge. "Every one of these problems is technically solvable."

Closed Door Meeting On Teamster Case Planned

WASHINGTON (AP)- A wary Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall says he will tell a House subcommittee behind closed doors what's going on in the government's probe of a scandal- ridden teamster pension fund.

At public hearings Monday panel members bristled at thier inability to get an open accounting of the 18-month investigation of alleged ties with organized crime and questionable loan practices by the Central States, Southeast and Southwest Pension Fund.

An aide to Marshall said the secretary didn't want to testify in open hearings because of the probe and possible future court action.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Tex., ranking majority member on the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee, charged that Marshall's decision "makes a mockery of the open and responsive government which is the foundation of the promise of the Carter administration."

The subcommittee planned to hear today from a panel of pension experts and Internal Revenue Service officials before meeting with Marshall and Justice Department representatives.

Chairman Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., said he would explain to Marshall that he "can't guarantee executive secret sessions to anybody," under House rules. Panel members could vote for a closed session but Gibbons said he will let Marshall "take whatever chances he wants to take."

The hearings are probing the conduct of the departments of Labor, Justice and the IRS in their joint investigation of the Central States Fund, one of the nation's biggest private pension funds with assets of $1.4 billion.

The Labor Department announced Sunday that Teamsters' President Frank Fitzsimmons and three other officials have agreed to resign as trustees of the fund and relinquish control to outside experts.

The action is expected to avoid a goverment lawsuit against the trustees and assure the fund's tax-exempt status.

Daniel J. Shannon, the fund's executive director, told the congressional panel that once the agreement is carried out, "the trustees that remain will have no input at all over the assets."

He defended the fund's earning record since becoming its administrator in 1973 but said it could be short by about $3 billion to $4 billion in long-term benefit commitments if it were to shut down today with no further income.

A revised pension plan that is awaiting IRS approval will enable the fund to become financially sound but will cost employers at least $6 more per employe per week, Shannon said.

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., pressed Shannon to explain why the trustees agreed to quit if they didn't think the fund was guilty of wrong-doing. "Why didn't the Teamsters feel they could tell the government to go to hell?" he asked.

"There was much discussion on that very point," said Shannon. "In some meetings, that very statement was stated."

He added that although the government never gave specific reasons why Fitzsimmons and the others should quit, they individually decided to do so for the good of the fund and its members.

Not Really True

It is understandable that President Carter, eager to be identified as a "Take-hold President," asserted himself firmly in the recent cold-weather fuel shortage.

That this winter was a wicked one none can deny.

But the contention by some that "the world is about to exhaust its resources" is just not true.

A National Commission on Supplies and Shortages was created by the President and the Congress in 1974. Chaired by Don Rice of the Rand Corp., the commission included Bill Simon, Tom Rees, Nat Weinberg--and others.

The commission reports that all geologic, economic and emographic evidence indicates "no physical lack of resources will seriously strain our economic growth for the next quarter-century" and probably for generations thereafter.

Most reserves will "increase, not decrease."

This report does not deny the contribution of responsible conservationists in husbanding our resources-reusing certain metals.

But conservation itself is not a valid economic policy-certainly not one that will enhance our economy and advance our standard of living.

Advancement requires soundly based economic growth-using the world's resources prudently and developing additional ones.

Presently our government is discouraging development of coal, nuclear and even hydroelectric power because of excessive environmental concerns.

One example is worth many admonitions.

The town of Nottingham, N.H.--population 1,200--is now making money from the trash which it used to throw away.

With minimal investment, and maximal citizen co-operation that town is now producing paper, glass and metal for the recycled-materials market.

Most of the people of Nottingham used to take their trash to the town dump; now they take their compartmentalized trash cans to a recycling plant no larger than an auto service garage. A private trash collector serving the town also separates and delivers to the facility.

The pre-separated wastes are placed at windows marked GLASS and METAL with a large container for all else.

Lacking an expensive baler for newspapers, townspeople made one.

They were equally innovative in sorting colored glass and magnetic metals.

The Nottingham facility stockpiles salvaged materials, holding them until prices are most favorable.

Anybody interested is welcome to duplicate their inexpensively improvised equipment.

Americans, historically, are at their best when they have to be.

I keep remembering a fuel shortage in the 1860s which was so acute that a Boston newspaper was headlined, "Lights Will Go Out All Over the World."

Because of a shortage of whale oil.

That is why we started punching holes in Texas, we were running out of blubber!

Now, running low on certain other resources, no telling what we'll turn up.

Blue-Collar Workers May Give Advice On Boards

WASHINGTON (AP)- Alienated? Got the blue-collar blues? Fed up with the government? Well, Jimmy Carter may have a mission for you.

The President wants to put the disenchanted on some of the boards and commissions that offer the government advice on such issues as low-income housing, trading commodity futures and rural telephone service.

"Just because you work for a living does not mean you should't be heard," said Jim King, director of the White House personnel office.

King said that in the next six months, after he completes the Carter administration's talent hunt for new managers for the federal bureaucracy, he wants to tap working men and women on assembly lines, at construction sites or perhaps behind the wheel of a taxicab for the advisory boards and commissions.

Carter promised as much during his campaign, said King.

"I'm taking him at his word. He's aware of what I'm planning to do and he doesn't have any reservations about it. It's making government accessible," said King. "What I'd like to do is hit some of the people who feel most alienated from government."

Many of these boards are filled with high-paid business executives whose companies are willing to pay them when they take off to attend meetings in Washington periodically, King observed.

"We could approach a company and say we want your $500-a-day consultant and nobody would blink. But we can't get a $50-a-day worker," King lamented.

Among the problems he must solve before putting the plan into effect will be how to pay the new board members for their time and for their travel expenses, King noted.

The future of some commissions actually is in doubt because Carter has asked his Cabinet members to see which can be eliminated or curtailed. But many boards are likely to survive the weeding out.

King, a Bostonian who recalls fondly time spent in taverns drinking beer and listening to just the sort of people he would like to see on the panels, observed: "There's a hell of a talent bank that people don't hear."

Some "view government as an alien entity," he added. "We're going to have to go out and deal with people who feel government no longer cares about them."

Baptist Minister Arrested On Theft

JEFFERSON, Tex. (AP) - A Baptist minister has been charged here with theft over $200 in connection with the disappearance of an estimated $75,000 in paintings, rare books and other antiques from museums and shops in a three-state area.

The Rev. Craig Dwaine Lacy, 31, pastor at the First Baptist Church in Big Sandy in East Texas, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Johnny LeFeavers Thursday. Lacy was released after posting a $10,000 bond fixed by the judge.

LeFeavers said a warrant was issued for Lacy's arrest the same day he was arraigned.

Capt. David Britt of the Marion County Sheriffs department said at the time Lacy turned himself in, he also returned approximately $6,000 worth of books and paintings. Britt said the collectors' items had been taken from the Jefferson Historical Society and Museum over a three year period.

Britt said investigators have recovered about 3,000 paintings, rare books and other antiques and are in the process of calling other departments across the state to locate the rightful owners.

"He Lacy called back Chief James DeCuir or Big Sandy on Friday and said he had some more stuff he wanted to surrender," said Britt. "The chief called me Saturday morning and asked me to come over. He said Lacy said he had enough stuff to fill up the back of a van."

Mrs. Jack Bullard, curator of the Jefferson museum, said Lacy had been coming to the museum for the past three years. She said he indicated he was doing some research.

After some valuable books were missed last January, Mrs. Bullard said she sent out fliers requesting help in locating them. A Dallas bookstore owner told police she had taken two of the books on consignment.

BY DAVE KAYE
AP Sports Writer

Fame is fleeting.

Two weeks ago, the University of San Francisco was coasting along with a 29-0 record. Then along came Notre Dame and the Irish ended the Dons' skein, beating them 93-82. The loss dropped San Francisco from No. 1 in The Associated Press Top Twenty to No. 3 after the Dons had held the top position most of the season.

Last week, San Francisco went up against the Runnin' Rebels of Nevada- Las Vegas and lost again, 121-95, in the opening round of the NCAA tournament, and plummeted to eighth in the final poll of the season.

Michigan, 25-3, finished No. 1 with 893 points, garnerning 28 first-place votes in national balloting by a panel of 49 sportswriters and broadcasters. The Wolverines beat Holy Cross 92-81 in the first round of the NCAA tournament after edging Marquette 69-68 in their regular-season finale.

UCLA, 24-4, beat Louisville 87-79 in the NCAA tourney and held its No. 2 ranking with 836 points, receiving eight first-place votes. Kentucky, 25-3, was one of the big climbers in this week's poll, vaulting from sixth to No. 3 with 775 points and seven first-place votes after routing Princeton 72-58.

Nevada- Las Vegas, 26-2 beat San Francisco and rose one place from to fourth with 743 points and five No. 1 votes. North carolina's Tar Heels, 25-4, beat Purdue 69-66 but fell from fourth to No. 5 with 638 points and one first-place vote.

Syracuse's Orangemen, 26-3, upset Tennessee 93-88 in overtime in the NCAA and leaped from 10th to No. 6.

Marquette, 21-7, in addition to losing to Michigan, beat Cincinnati 66-61 in the NCAA and jumped from 16th to seventh.

After San Francisco, 29-2, came Wake Forest 23-6. The Deacons, unranked a week ago, defeated Arkansas 86-80 in the national tourney and leaped to No. 9. Notre Dame's Fighting Irish, 21-6, beat Hofstra 90-83 in the NCAA and moved from 15th to 10th, rounding out the top 10.

Alabama, 25-4, beat Memphis State 80-63 in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament and climbed one spot to 11th. Detroit, 25-3, beat Middle Tennessee 93-76 in an NCAA opening- round game and valued from 17th to 12th. Minnesota, 22-3, did not play, and remained 13th.

Utah, 22-6, beat St. John's N.Y. 72-68 in an NCAA game and rose from 19th to 14th. Tennessee, 29-9, finished 15th after losing to Syracuse.

Kansas State, 23-7, defeated Providence 87-80 in the NCAA tourney and wound up 16th in the poll. North Carolina-Chartolotte, 24-3, beat Central Michigan 91-86 in overtime in another NCAA game and moved from 18th to 17th.

Arkansas, 26-2 and No. 8 a week ago, plunged to 18th after losing to Wake Forest. Louisville, 21-7, lost to UCLA na and fell from 14th to 19th.

Rounding out the Top 20 was VMI, 26-3. The Keydets, who were unranked a week ago, beat Duquesne 73-66 in an NCAA contest.

Cincinnati, 25-5, Providence, 24-5, and Arizona, 21-6, all lost in the NCAA tournament and fell out of the final poll.

Expansion Jays Win Canadian Club Tilt

BY ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Toronto beat Montreal 3-2 Monday... but the sport was baseball, not hockey.

"It seems like we won the Stanley Cup, doesn't it?" asked Lloyd Allen in the jubilant Toronto lockerroom after the Blue Jays edged the Expos in the first meeting between Canada's two major league baseball teams. "We gave it just that little extra bit today."

The expansion Blue Jays are in the American League and the Expos are in the National, so the two clubs will not meet in regular season play. That added extra excitement to Monday's exhibition matchup.

The Expos twice took one-run leads on unearned runs, but Toronto came back and tied the score in the second and seventh innings, then pushed across the winning run in the eighth.

Steve Staggs beat out a bunt to open the eighth. The Blue Jays got runners on first and second when Montreal relief pitcher Will McEananey fielded Jim Mason's bunt and threw to second too late to get Staggs.

John Scott grounded to third baseman Pete Mackanin, who tagged Staggs and threw to first for a double play. But veteran Ron Fairly, a former Expos player, slapped a single to center, driving in Mason with the winning run.

Allen blanked the Expos on two hits over the last three innings in gaining the victory. He struck out four.

In other games:

The Seattle Mariners, the other American League expansion team, whipped the Chicago Cubs 10-5 as Dave Collins, Rupert Jones and Lee Stanton homered, keying a nine-run first inning.

Jerry Reuss and five relivers limited Philadelphia to one hit in pitching the Pittsburgh Pirates to an 11-0 victory over the Phils. Al Oliver, Willie Stargell, Omar Moreno and Dave Parker homered for the Pirates.

Home runs by Johnny Grubb, Boog Powell and Buddy Bell highlighted a 22-hit attack as the Cleveland Indians whipped the San Diego Padres 12-6.

The Cincinnati Reds blanked the Kansas City Royals 5-0 behind first-inning homers by Dave Concepcion and Dan Driessen. After the game, the Reds announced that Concepcion has signed a five-year contract, two years longer than any contract ever given out by the team.

Rookie Dennis Sherrill singled home the winning run in the 11th inning as the New York Yankees edged the Texas Rangers 4-3.

Dave Kingman's first-inning homer started the New York Mets to a 5-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jim Rice, George Scott and Butch Hobson homered, carrying the Boston Red Sox to an 8-7 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Sixto Lezcano singled home one run and scored the other in the Milwaukee Brewers' 2-0 decision over the Oakland A's as Bill Travers, Bryan Haas and Ken Sanders combined for a nine-hit shutout.

Dave Chalk's three hits led the California Angels past the San Francisco Giants 3-2.

Bob Forsch, Lerrin LaGrow, Ike Sutton and Tom Walker combined on a seven-hit shutout as the Detroit Tigers stopped the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0.

Larry Hisle singled and doubled, driving in three runs and leading the Minnesota Twins to an 8-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP)- The next time Huntington Advertiser sportswriter Bud Perry writes his bowling column, he probably will have to write about himself.

Perry realized the dream of all bowlers Monday night, rolling a sanctioned 300 game during the weekly Huntington Publishing Co. league. But that was not all.,

Perry, 32, just missed rolling a second perfect game earlier in the night when a 10-pin stand in the fifth frame gave him a 279. Coupled with a 235, with two splits, in his second game, Perry had a 279-235-300-819 series.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)- Philadelphia Flyers' winger Bill Barger will be sidelined at least 10 days with a torn ligament in his right knee, the club said Monday.

Barber will miss at least four National Hockey League games and will undergo examination of the knee in New York Wednesday.

Herd Baseballers Test Palo Duro

The Hereford Whiteface baseball team plays its final tuneup today before opening play in the Deaf Smith County C of C Tournament Thursday as they travel to Amarillo to meet the Palo Duro Dons.

Hereford is 1-3 on the year after dropping a 17-3 decision to Caprock last Thursday, while the Dons are coming off 10-6 and 5-4 losses to Plainview Saturday.

Outfielder Donald Johnson has wielded the heavy stick for the 'Faces thus far this season. Johnson has a .300 average with a double, a triple, and the sole Herd homerun to his credit.

Catcher-Infielder Greg Hennington tops the squad in hitting with a .375 average (3-8), while pitcher Chris Hill is close behind with a .364 mark (4-11).

Other top hitters for the Herd include Mitchell George (.333), and Kent Herring (.300).

As a team the 'Faces are faring somewhat poorer with an .198 standard (19-96), and they have been outscored 30-15 in the four games.

Herd coach Rick Stewart plans to use Jim Lawson against the Dons today, and will start Hill against Dumas in the opening round of the tournament Thursday.

Everything Right For Cougars In 91-90 Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - It was the right time, the right place and the right player for the Houston Cougars.

"With about 12 seconds to go, I turned to my assistant coach and told him Otis would win it for us," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis, talking about Otis Birdsong, the Cougars' shooting star who averages 30 points per game.

Lewis did not have to wait long to see his prophecy come true. Six seconds later, Birdsong stole a pass, raced downcourt and put in a jump shot, giving the Cougars a 91-90 overtime victory over Illinois State in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation Tournament Monday night.

The victory advanced Houston to Thursday night's semifinals against Alabama, which earlier Monday beat Virginia Tech 79-72. The remaining semifinalists will be decided tonight when Villanova meets Massachusetts and Oregon plays St. Bonaventure.

Before Birdsong scored the winning basket, Illinois State had made it a breath-taking contest in the second half. Trailing by 14 points at intermission, the Redbirds rallied behind brawny Jeff Wilkins and finally caught up with Houston on Ron Jones' two free throws with one second left in regulation time.

That tied the score 81-81 and set up a pulsating overtime period during which the teams never were more than four points apart. Joe Galvin's field goal with 15 seconds left provided Illinois State with a 90-89 edge before Birdsong scored his game-winner. His 30 points matched his season's average.

Birdsong was not the only Houston hero. Cecile Rose scored 26 points for the Cougars, including eight of their 10 in overtime.

Wilkins wound up with 28 points for the Redbirds before fouling out with three minutes left in regulation time.

The Alabama-Virginia Tech game was almost as exciting. The Crimson Tide, which had beaten the Gobblers by 30 points earlier in the season, had a more difficult time putting them away this time. In fact, Alabama trailed by 10 points at one juncture and was losing 45-40 at intermission.

GREAT MOM -- Everybody is always talking about Henry Winkler on Happy Days. Well, I'm a fan of the show, too, but I think the one performer who holds it all together is Marion Ross, Mrs. C. She never gets the spotlight, but her humor and style always show through, and she works especially well with Winkler, so the kids can be thankful for her there, too. Does she have any of her own kids; and where can I write to her to thank her? Marge Minella, Garland, Kan.

I'm sure Marion (Mrs. C.) Ross would be delighted to hear from such an avid fan. You can write in care of the show, Paramount Pictures, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. She has two children, Jim, 17, and Ellen, 14.

MONEY MATTERS -- I heard that Farrah Fawcett and Jaclyn Smith on Charlie's Angels receive a salary of $5,000 per show and Kate Jackson receives $10,000 per show. If this is true, why? M.W., Waterbury, Conn.

Part of it is true. Farrah Fawcett-Majors gets $5,000 per episode, but Kate Jackson makes $7,500 and Jaclyn Smith gets $3,500. The reason for the seeming inequity is the show was originally designed, in part by, and for Kate Jackson, and due to her former experience on The Rookies she could command a higher salary. Then Farrah had more acting experience and exposure than Jaclyn and again was able to negotiate a higher salary. I'm sure by next contract-signing time there will be some re-shuffling of those figures, though.

SCHELL GAME -- Please, could you tell me how I could write Catherine Schell, who plays Maya on Space 1999? Thanks. Tito Abeleda, Jr., Shelbyville, Ind.

You can write to the charming and lovely Ms. Schell in care of Space 1999, Independent Television Corp. 555 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. Ask them to forward the letter.

DOUBLE VISION -- I just saw "The Parallax View" on TV and have a couple of questions. First, what does the title mean and second, the picture seemed to resemble "All the President's Men" with a little bit of "Three Days of the Condor" thrown in. Was there any connection? Jim Buntline, Cooperstown, N.D.

Parallax refers to the difference in direction of an object as measured from two different points. What that means in simple English in reference to the film is the way something is viewed differently when seen from different angles -- take the assasinations. I'm not sure that makes sense, so maybe you should ask a photographer or surveyor. There is something of a connection between "The Parallax View" and "All the President's Men." Both were directed by Alan J. Pakula and photographed by Gordon Willis. In fact, it's said "Parallax View" inspired Robert Redford to seek the producer's spot for "All the President's Men."

COUPLES -- There's a movie coming out soon (I know this isn't a TV question but maybe you can answer it) called "Nasty Habits." A friend of mine says a lot of the actors and actresses in it are marreid. I know Anne Meara and Jerry Stiller are, but who else? Toni Beaumont, Winston, Pa.

There are a couple of more couples besides Stiller and Meara. Geraldine Page and Rip Torn are married, as are Anne Jackson and Eli Wallach.

Eustace Likes Town Without Federal Funds, Doctor, Blacks

EUSTACE, Tex. (AP)-Eustace: population 491. No doctor, no drugstore, no federal meddling. And no blacks.

"You bring in government money and you bring in coloreds. They go together," says former Mayor Homer Kirkwood. "There's never been a colored living in Eustace, and there's not going to be as long as I can do something about it."

Kirkwood, of course, does not speak for everyone in this East Texas hamlet southeast of Dallas. But he played no small role in a campaign a few months ago to spurn thousands of dollars in federal money. Some citizens now have second thoughts.

The Eustace episode began several months ago when word got out that the Federal Housing Authority might make available funds to build some apartment houses here.

Since several new plants were moving into the area, and rentals were at a premium, advocates viewed the apartment plan as an economic stimulant.

Eustace has no doctor, no drug store and no appreciable affluence.

Before the plan got rolling, opponents signed a petition to keep the government money out at all costs.

"Well," said Kirkwood, the proprietor of an automobile body shop, "I'm the one who got up the petition to keep the money out. And it's the best thing that could have happened to us."

Some citizens now say that Kirkwood and his supporters spread the word that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development was trying to build in Eustace.

"The rumors were pretty heavy that HUD was going to bring all kinds of undesirable people into town and force them on us," explains Mayor Herbert Smith.

A committee was appointed to dispel various rumors but, says Smith, "Before the committee could meet, a petition had been signed with enough signatures to cancel out anything the committee might have done."

The town, he said, "wanted nothing to do with the money."

Not so, some now say.

"What that money would have done is make it possible for some new people to move to town," says barber Henry Adams. "Now this doesn't mean hundreds of people...But it would have brought in some new blood with new money.

"We need that or this town is going to die on the vine.

responsible for out-of-county fires.

County Judge Sam Morgan was authorized to seek cooperative arrangements with Parmer, Castro and Oldham counties.

THE YEARLY FIRE REPORT showed that Deaf Smith County paid $31,922 for 129 county fires from February, 1976, through January, 1977. The number of city fires was 149 with the total cost to both city and county of $69,395. The Hereford fire department set a monthly record by answering 41 fires in February of 1976.

The assistant juvenile probation officer's position will continue with the acceptance of a $10,000 grant through the criminal justice division of the Panahndle Regional Planning Commission.

Pickup bids were approved for Precincts one and three. They were awarded to John Orsborn Buick-Pontaic for two GMC half-ton trucks. Trade-ins are included.

The resolution on the regional alcohol and drug abuse system is through the Panhandle County Judges Association for treatment of the problem cases here and throughout the area.

Briefly, the commissioners discussed need for repairs at the Bull Barn caused by recent high winds and the replacement of the door on the west end of the courthouse to protect it against continual winds.

Hijacker Collects Money Child; Flight Continues

TURIN, Italy (AP)- An armed Italian mechanic who hijacked a Spanish jetliner to the Ivory Coast, picked up his 3-year-old daughter and $140,000, then flew to Turin to try to get custody of his 5-year-old daughter took off again today without the second child.

Airport sources said the plane was headed for Zurich, Switzerland.

The hijacker, 36-year-old Luciano Porcari, released seven of the 29 other passengers about two hours after the Iberia Airlines Boeing 727 landed in Turin.

Porcari said he would release more hostages in exchange for his daughter and the refueling of the plane. But his enstranged Italian wife refused to let him have the child.

Also aboard the plane were seven crew members. All 29 of the remaining hostages were reported unhurt.

The passengers released included two children, their mother, two old people, and a man and a woman.

Several hundred police surrounded the jetliner as officials tried to talk the hijacker into surrendering.

Armed with a pistol and a rifle, Porcari took control of the plane Monday shortly after it took off from Barcelona on a 25-minute flight to Palma de Mallorca, in the Balearic islands.

The pilot flew first to Algiers to refuel and then to Abidjan, on the under side of the West African bulge.

Porcaci and his wife, Bella Zavoli, had lived there, and it was there that she left him in 1972. When she and their child went to the airport to leave the country, he followed her with a rifle, got into a gunfight with troops at the field, and Mrs. Porcari and two soldiers were wounded.

$200 away from all of us.

When a pump needs priming, it doesn't matter which end is primed--the working end or the retired end--one will spend it as fast as the other. And the retirees certainly need it moreso than others especially after the coldest winter on record.

It's just a suggestion and probably far too simple for it to appeal too Congress. But $50 placed in Social Security for immediate distribution makes more sense than $50 in the hands of those better able to cope with rising prices and inflation than those on fixed income.

But keep up the open ear and maybe one of these days we'll get an open line and really tell you what most Texans think of the federal government.

Solar Energy Said Cheapest New Way to Heat Water

WASHINGTON (AP) - Solar energy will be the cheapest way to warm homes and heat water in many parts of the nation by 1980, a study prepared for a congressional committee concluded Saturday.

And the study said that solar heat will be economically more practical in colder northern portions of the United States before it is in the sun-belt states.

Prepared by a computer research team at the University of New Mexico and released by the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee, the study said that solar heating will be cheaper than either gas or oil by 1980 in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Wisconsin, New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine.

By 1985, it will be the cheapest form of home heating in Idaho, Utah, California, Colorado, Nebraska, New Mexico, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia and Maryland, the study added.

The study assumed that Congress will act to remove federal price limits on natural gas, now the nation's cheapest fuel, and that both gas and oil prices will continue to rise with inflation.

It said that in more than half the states, solar heat is already cheaper for new homes than electric heat.

The study said that it now costs about $1,350 to install a solar space heating system in the average new home and about $4,200 to equip the average old home for solar heat.

The study results were based on a computer analysis of the various forms of heating and their associated fuel costs.

"Solar feasibility begins in the northern tier of states and with very few exceptions systematically moves southward," the study said.

It listed two main reasons:

--Heating requirements in the South are less than in the North, so it will take longer for a solar heating system, with its high installation cost, to pay for itself, despite abundant amounts of sunshine in many southern areas.

Conventional fuels are generally more expensive in the North than in the South, where they are produced. This will be especially true if Congress lifts the federal price limits than now apply to natural gas shipped in interstate pipe lines the study noted.

President Carter is expected to recommend some form of gas price deregulation in the energy plan he submits to Congress on April 20.

"If natural gas prices remain controlled near current levels, homeowners who can obtain natural gas will have no incentive to substitute solar energy which will invariably cost more," the study said.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., vice chairman of the joint committee, said the University of New Mexico analysis has "convinced me that the federal government should temporarily subsidize the installation of solar energy equipment in homes and offices."

Humphrey, a leading congressional backer of solar energy, said a good first step would be for Congress to approve his proposal for a $2,000 tax credit for homeowners who install solar heating devices.

Sugar Importation Limit Recommended

WASHINGTON (AP)- The International Trade Commission has recommended that President Carter limit imports of sugar to 4,275,000 tons a year for a five-year period.

Sugar imports last year totaled about 4.7 million tons.

The commission suggested Monday restricting cheaper imports to protect domestic producers from prices they say have fallen below production costs.

A group of sugar refiners opposed to the quotas contend that an annual quota of 4.2 million tons could increase the retail price of refined sugar to at least $16 per U.S. family a year.

They said the total impact on the economy would be more than $1 billion.

U.S. sugar prices climbed to more than 64 cents a pound in 1974, but have now fallen off to less than 11 cents a pound.

Sugar growers sayd they need between 13 and 15 cents a pound for raw sugar just to break even.

The President has 60 days to act on the recommendations. If he does not act, they go into effect automatically.

Fast Ship

The oceanliner The United States, which set the Atlantic crossing record in 1952, was the fastest ever placed in service. The ship frequently cruised faster than 36 knots. Designed for conversion to a troopship, the 817-foot vessel could steam at 40 knots, or 48 land miles an hour. Removed from service in 1970, the ship is berthed at Norfolk.

FEATURE HOMES

© By W. D. FARMER

Reminiscent of country living, this plan is designed with modern features and old style.

The wide separate foyer has open rail stair up, coat closet, and access to activity room or central hall. Stairs to basement are from rear hall.

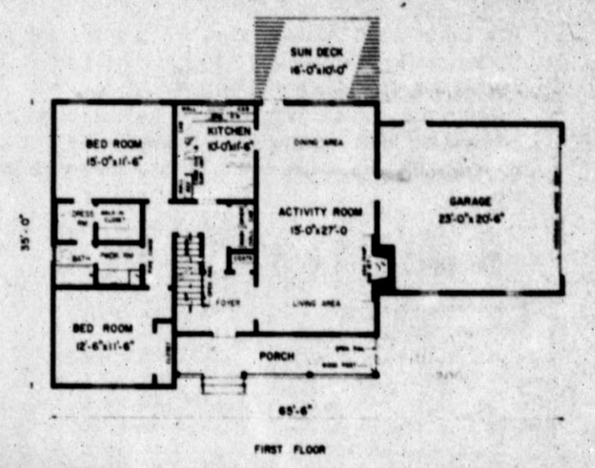

The large dual country living area can be utilized to your requirements. Even spread large family dinner from end to end. A country fireplace is included and access is provided to rear sun deck or side entry double garage.

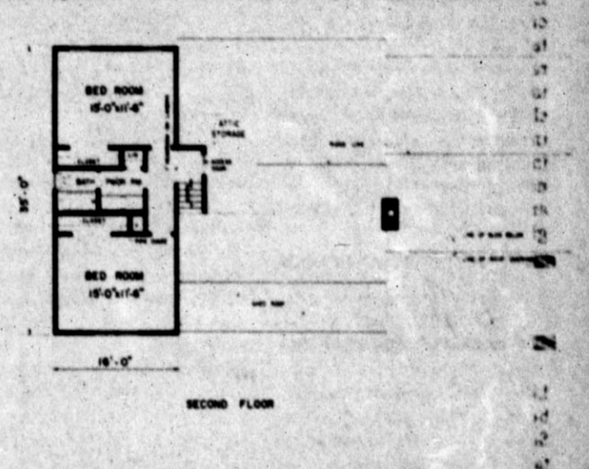

The kitchen is L-shape and includes modern built-in appliances, plenty of cabinets and work area, plus breakfast area.

Laundry facilities are central from hall that leads to two large bedrooms and compartment bath (2 powder room areas with lavatory) and separate tub and commode compartment. Closets are large and rooms include plenty of wall space. The upstairs almost duplicates this area with extra closets and one powder room and bath area central from hall.

Exterior country farm style is accented by real front porch for sitting with cross rail and shed roof. Horizontal siding is combined with shuttered multi-lite windows and steep gable roof.

The plan is Number 871A. It includes 1,876 square feet. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P.O. Box 49463, Atlanta, Ga. 30359.

Can replace heart valves

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please write a column on bad heart valves (aorta etc.) for those of us who have them? Everything I read about all the new wonderful things that can be done for heart patients refers to the coronary arteries.

I never hear of anyone who has a valve, especially the aortic, being replaced. From what I have seen on TV the valve replacement doesn't help much.

DEAR READER — Your letter reminded me how much things have changed. Only 10 years ago surgery on the coronary arteries was just beginning. The operations that were popular then for coronary artery disease are not even used today, having been outmoded by the popular coronary bypass operation — bypassing the obstructed coronary.

Ten years ago most heart surgery was for valve replacement or correction of birth defects. Valve replacement was usually necessary because of heart valve damage from rheumatic heart disease. We have so few cases of rheumatic heart disease today that surgery for these problems has greatly decreased. So it is that you hear about operations for coronary artery disease and very little about valve replacement.

When the heart valve needs to be replaced the surgery is often very beneficial, contrary to the impression you seem to have gotten. The aortic valve is located at the outlet of the left ventricle, the heavy pumping chamber that pumps blood to most of your body. The normal valve is composed of two tissue flaps, somewhat like the sails on a sailboat. They float open as the heart contracts and ejects blood into the large artery (aorta). When the contraction is over, the pressure in the aorta causes them to swing back together closing the gate to the ventricle and preventing the blood from flowing backward into the heart.

When this valve is severely damaged the valve may not close effectively and allows the blood to leak backward into the heart. Obviously the more blood that leaks backward the less effective the heartbeat is in pumping blood to the rest of your body. Or the valve may become so obstructed from disease that it impedes the outflow of blood. In either case, when the valve damage is severe the valve can be and is replaced in selected cases.

The common valve used is nothing more than a ball trapped in a wire basket. The opening of the basket is sutured into the opening of the aorta where the old valve was located. The basket is in the aorta. As the blood rushes out of the heart it forces the ball away from the opening rim of the basket. The basket catches the ball so it can't go very far.

When the contraction is over and the heart chamber begins to relax, the blood starts to rush back into the heart. This causes the ball in the basket to slam down over the rim of the open basket and closes the opening. This way it prevents the backward leak of blood while the heart is relaxing and filling for the next contraction. The process is repeated with each heartbeat. Such opertions have added many years of useful life to many patients.

Chances To Live To Ripe Old Age Better Here Now Than Ever Before

The chances of living to a ripe old age are better than they have ever been for the average resident of Deaf Smith County.

Because of the advances made in the fields of medicine and public health in the past decade, a child born in the local area at the present time has a life expectancy of 72.4 years, which is a new high.

By way of comparison, it is about four years more than its parents could look forward to when they were born. Going back still further, to 1930, when grandfather was born, life expectancy then was only 59.7 years.

The development of the so-called miracle drugs around that time, and the resultant conquering of the infectious diseases, led to dramatic gains, in longevity, according to the National Center for Health Statistics.

Today, a 35-year-old person in Deaf Smith County has the likelihood of another 41 years or so of life whereas, 10 years ago, the outlook would have been only 39 years for someone that age.

The added life expectancy, at every stage along the way, has produced a big increase in the number of men and women over 65.

The extent of the change is indicated in data compiled by the U.S. Census Bureau. At the turn of the century, it reports, only 1 out of every 24 persons in the country was 65 or over.

By 1970, because of the greater life span, about 1 out of 10 were in that age bracket. Currently it is 1 out of 9.

In Deaf Smith County, the figures show, some 1,350 persons, representing 6.6 per cent of the population, are 65 or more.

As for local men who have just reached 65, they have the probability of living another 13 years, according to the life tables. Women reaching that age have the prospect of 17 additional years.

Does the possibility exist that science has within its long-term reach the capacity to prevent or control human disease? Whether or not that is a wild dream, it was forecast some months ago by the President's Biomedical Research Panel.

Claiming that there no longer appear to be any diseases that are "impenetrable or incomprehensible," it calls its forecast a "realistic, practical appraisal" of the future.

Cigarette Leads To Death Of 6 In Mobile Home Fire

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP)- A cigarette may have been the cause of an early morning blaze in which six persons were killed at a mobile home, a fire department spokesman says.

Assistant Nocogdoches fire marshal Jeff Gaston said, "...from all appearances, they were doing some partying. It looks as if a cigarette could have started the fire."

Justice of the Peace Ocie Westmoreland identified five of the dead as Simon Venegas, 36, and four of his children, Gregoria, 2, Maria, 9, Manuel, 6, and Lanada, 1. The sixth victim was later identified as Refugio Sandoval, who had a Social Security card officials said was issued in Mission, Tex.

The Venegas family was from Corpus Christi but reports conflicted as to whether they were Mexican nationals or Mexican- Americans.

Venegas' wife, Maria, 26, and a daughter, Candida, 9, survived the blaze and were transported to Woodland Heights Hospital in Lufkin. The little girl was transferred later Monday to a burn center in Galveston.

"They all had Social Security cards," said Nacogdoches County sheriff's investigator Don Griffin. "And it appears they were here in the United States legally."

A neighbor, Mrs. E.L. Luna, said she spoke with Mrs. Venegas at the hospital.

"She told me she woke up and the trailer was on fire," said Mrs. Luna. "She had to run out through the flames and that's how she got burned. Her husband ran out behind her but he went back inside for the children, and he didn't come back out."

Gaston said Venegas' body was found beneath his dead children and Sandoval's body was found in the living area, near where several beer and wine bottles were discovered.

Both Gaston and Griffin agree there is no reason to suspect foul play.

Venegas was employed at the Cherokee Lumber Co. south of here on U.S. 59. Lloyd Gillespie, co-owner of the company, said Venegas had worked for him about six months and had given Corpus Christi as the family's last address.

Mrs. Venegas told a nurse Monday afternoon the family was originally from Mexico.

Lighter Marijuana Statutes Wanted

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Carter administration wants to abolish federal penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana, but it says states should decide for themselves whether to decriminalize their own marijuana laws.

Dr. Peter G. Bourne, Carter's choice to direct the Office of Drug Abuse Policy, said Monday the administration "will continue to discourage marijuana use, but we feel criminal penalties that brand otherwise law-abiding people for life are neither an effective nor an appropriate deterrent."

Bourne testified Monday before the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control, which continued hearings today on the issue.

The administration feels the federal government "should not seek in any way to influence" states' decisions on decriminalizing laws against possessing small amounts of marijuana, he said.

The existing federal law on simple possession is now "rarely enforced" and should be dropped along the lines suggested in the bill recently submitted to the Congress, he said.

Los Angeles Police Chief Edward Davis attacked the administration's stand, arguing that no one "from the President down through the lowest bureaucrat should in any way attempt to act as a huckster for the decriminalization of marijuana...."

The outspoken police chief called arguments in favor of decriminalization "poppycock," "claptrap" and "hypocrisy."

Present federal law provides a fine of up to $15,000 and a maximum of five years' imprisonment for possession of marijuana by first offenders, with double that for second offenders. The bill pending in Congress would substitute a civil fine with no criminal record for possession for personal use.

Asked whether the administration was considering a similar recommendation on cocaine, Bourne said his offce was "in the process now of very carefully re-examining our position on that issue."

Cocaine, a drug sometimes prescribed by physicians, is regarded as nonaddictive, like marijuana.

Students Make STSU Honor Roll

SAN MARCOS--Five residents from Deaf Smith County were among the 3,377 Southwest Texas State University students whose fall semester grades earned them placed on the Dean's Honor Roll and Superior Honor Roll lists.

To make the regular Honor Roll, a student must be enrolled for a minimum of 12 semester hours of coursework, excluding physical education activities, and achieve at least an overall "B" average.

To make the Superior Honor Roll requires grades of "A" in at least 12 of the required 15 semester hours of coursework and no lower than a "B" in the other three-hour course. This translates into a 3.8 grade-point average on the 4.0 scale for honor.

Undergradute courses only are considered in the tabulated list.

Incomplete, or "I", grades earned during the fall semester, disqualifies students from the Honor Rolls.

Local students whose scholastic averages placed them on the Honor Roll include the following: From Deaf Smith County are: Maria D. Abalos, 506 Sycamore; Robert R. Barber, 512 Ave. G.; Kim P. Miller, 101 Westhaven; Michael L. Miller, 101 Westhaven; Henry K. Stringer, Ave. A.
