House Resumes Debate Today

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators approved a multi-million dollar tax relief package 29-0 Thursday and then told the House they were ready to go home.

By a 16-10 vote, the Senate approved a resolution calling for final adjournment at 6 p.m. Tuesday and sent it to the House. The senators quit until 10:30 a.m. Monday.

Meanwhile, the House debated a package of constitution changes that started out being similar to the Senate package.

The House, in its second day of floor action on its package, recessed until today after six hours of debate without a final vote.

School District Repayment Debated

Representatives went through a series of close votes over whether to constitutionally require future legislatures to reimburse school districts for revenues lost due to homestead exemptions.

No final decision was made on that subject before the House recessed.

The deadline on the 30-day special session called by Gov. Dolph Briscoe is midnight Aug. 8 but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he and Speaker Bill Clayton had agreed to try to end it a week early.

The constitutional amendment approved unanimously by the Senate after two hours of debate Thursday would:

Clarify Household Goods Exemption

— Clarify the constitution to give the legislature power to exempt from taxation all household goods and personal effects not used for production of income.

— Tax farm, ranch and timber land on its productivity, not real estate value.

— Give all homeowners a $5,000 exemption in local school taxes, plus an other $10,000 for homeowners over 65. Property taxes for those over 65 would be frozen at the current level.

— Make sure that taxpayers have a chance to know about and protest any tax increases.

Hobby estimated that the Senate tax package, coupled with the utilities sales tax repeal and inheritance tax exemption bill already passed by both houses, would give Texas taxpayers savings of about $1 billion during the next three years.

Although there were 22 amendments offered to the Senate tax relief measure, only one was successful.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, attached a provision that he said would allow a tax break for up to two automobiles used only for family purposes. His amendment makes the tax exemption apply to "the personal property home-

Solon Lags In Car Tax Payments

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

STATE Rep. Froy Salinas, who is carrying legislation to ban local property taxes on the family car, owes nearly $300 in back taxes on automobiles.

According to records in the City of Lubbock-Lubbock Independent School District tax office, Salinas is delinquent on auto taxes from 1973 through 1976. The records indicate he owes $98 to the city and $127 to the school system.

Penalty and interest on that $225 sum now total about $50.

"My comment is the same as the last time you asked me. My wife takes care of that. If those are my bills, I don't know how they got by without being paid," said Salinas, who represents the city's eastside District 75-B.

The delinquent tax account in question matches the lawmaker's name (Froylan D. Salinas) and address (1306 49th St.).

Others In Arrears

Salinas was among about 20 public officials and candidates found to be in arrears on city-school personal property taxes in an Avalanche-Journal investigation five months ago.

A check Thursday indicated that nearly all of them have since settled their accounts. Salinas was found to be the only current office-holder still delinquent.

In the previous study, Salinas was listed as owing about $385 in taxes, plus $130 in penalty and interest, dating back to 1967. However, bills prior to 1973 apparently had since been removed from his file because the statute of limitations barred collection of that money.

Owes On Cadillac, Buick

According to the tax records, Salinas nevertheless still owes 1973 taxes on a 1968 Cadillac and a 1969 Buick; 1974 taxes on the same Buick and a 1972 Cadillac; 1975 taxes on both of those cars; and 1976 taxes on the 1972 Cadillac.

Salinas is sponsoring legislation he hopes would do away with ad valorem taxes on automobiles. Tuesday, he succeeded in getting the House to include in its omnibus tax-cut package an amendment to prohibit such taxation.

"It's a terribly unfair tax," Salinas said. "It's not administered uniformly.

"Some cities and school districts, like Lubbock, tax automobiles. Many others, like Houston and San Antonio, do not."

Salinas initially proposed that all "automobiles for personal family use" be exempt from local taxation. He later acquiesced to a substitute motion by Rep. Bill Sullivant of Gainesvill, limiting the exemption to one family car.

The motion was approved by voice vote, despite concern that some school

Gas Firm Gets Ultimatum

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE Lubbock City Council gave Pioneer Natural Gas Company an ultimatum Thursday: either present evidence on industrial rates the company charges or have those rates set by the council without input from the utility.

The gas company has until Aug. 10 to pre-file infomation on the industrial rates before an Aug. 24 hearing on the rate case.

Last November the council initiated an industrial rate case to determine whether such rates charged by PNG are fair and reasonable. A public hearing on the case was set for Feb. 8.

That hearing was delayed pending a new audit of the gas company and later rescheduled for mid-July.

That date came and went without response from PNG and during the interim the gas company has applied for an increase in the rates charged domestic users.

City rate analyst Ervin Looney gave the council three options Thursday:

•Schedule a hearing and if PNG representatives do not appear, set a rate with the best knowledge available.

•Make any rate set subject to accounting and refund so the company would not profit from the delay.

•Or, confer with gas company representatives and set a new hearing schedule for the case.

The council settled on a combination of the three suggestions. Mayor Dirk West will notify the utility of the new hearing date and, at their next meeting, council members will discuss making the rate retroactive.

"How do you tell the gas company we're not going to sit around and wait for them anymore," Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan asked.

"If the gas company does not have anything to hide, I don't see why they wouldn't come forward with the information," she said.

Domestic Data Compiled

Councilman Alan Henry noted the company had "plenty of time to work up information on a system-wide rate increase (for domestic users)."

Currently industrial gas users, including Lubbock Power and Light, pay a contract rate, usually set by the utility. If lower industrial rates result from the rate case, electric customers should notice a corresponding decrease in their bills.

Also at Thursday's meeting, councilmen attempted to decide how to pave future thoroughfares in outlying areas although the city has no funds for the paving.

City public works director Sam Wahl told the council he is receiving requests for paving of roads which in 10 to 15 years will be major thoroughfares, but are now just being developed.

Wahl said such paving costs the city $335,000 a mile to install the middle 50 feet of roadway. The 16 feet of paving on either side is funded by the developer, he said.

The developers are now putting their portion of the paving money into escrow, but the city has no prospect of funds to pave the streets, Wahl said.

County Request Considered

At one time county commissioners would strip-pave major thoroughfares in outlying parts of the city, and Wahl suggested approaching the commissioners about reinstituting the program since the city has a policy against strip-paving.

The council decided to seek help from the county, then possibly consider Wahl's second suggestion of using the money in escrow from the builders to "construct some kind of paving." The money would be returned to the account when the street was properly paved.

The council passed a resolution Thursday asking the state legislature to return an additional penny of the 5 percent sales tax to cities.

The city receives one cent of every five cents on the dollar collected in Lubbock. The resolutions asks that cities receive two cents on the dollar, leaving the state with the remaining three cents.

Sales tax is viewed as an acceptable alternative to property taxes because it is "better tied into people's ability to pay," Mrs. Jordan said.

Krueger Denies Demo Desertion By Farmers

By BOB CAMPBELL
and CURTIS BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SENATORIAL candidate Bob Krueger talked at length about the problems of agriculture Thursday in Lubbock but denied that disgruntled farmers might be turning away from the Democratic Party.

The New Braunfels Democrat, the 21st District congressman, said Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower, his November opponent, "has consistently voted against agriculture programs which, during election years, he claims to support."

He spoke and then answered questions in a 2:15 p.m. news conference at the Hilton Inn.

Krueger told more than 20 Mexican-Americans from the Lubbock area at a 5:30 p.m. meeting that "factual evidence clearly indicates that John Tower is against social justice, has not represented the Mexican-American community in Washington and has consistently insulted Texas Mexican-Americans."

He atended a steering committee meeting at the Lubbock Club in a effort to gain support from Mexican-Americans in Lubbock.

In noting that there are about 10,000 eligible but unregistered Mexican-American voters in Lubbock, Krueger said that "as I am attempting to reach those of you present, I hope you in turn will reach out into your community of potential voters for me."

Earlier, at the Hilton Inn, he said, "More Democrats than Republicans voted for the Flexible Parity Act," referring to a bill that was defeated in the House."I don't think they're (farmers) looking to back (former Agriculture Secretary) Earl Butz."

Increased Exports Urged

The candidate called for increased agricultural exports and more stringent inspection standards for imported meat.

"I have introduced legislation which requires stiffer inspection standards for imported meat so that our domestic meat raisers are not handicapped by having to satisfy regulations that are more strict than those that importers have to satisfy," he said.

Krueger hit hard at Tower as he has been doing recently across the state.

He said the senior senator voted for meat price controls at the request of "his friend Richard Nixon" and criticized Tower for his voting record on civil rights legislation.

"John Tower has voted against every piece of major civil rights legislation enacted in this country," he said.

Looks Back "In Shame"

Krueger, 42, told the Mexican-American group later at the Lubbock Club that he had lived two-thirds of his life when minorities had few rights, and said, "I look back in shame."

He said many of the indignities suffered by Mexican-Americans had been changed "by men unlike John Tower."

Krueger cited a number of bills and acts which affected minority groups that he said Tower voted against, including the Kennedy-Johnson Civil Rights Act of 1964, a bill permitting minorities to stay overnight in hotels or to eat in restaurants, the Fair Housing Act and the Voting Rights Act.

"In 1975 Tower voted against passage of the bill to extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965 for seven years and to expand its protection to Spanish-speaking Americans," Krueger said.

San Antonio Rebuffs Former Garbagemen

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — About 400 former garbagemen and their supporters rallied Thursday outside City Hall. But inside the building, most city council members and the mayor stood squarely behind the city manager who ordered the mass firings.

City Councilman Rudy Ortiz was spearheading a move Thursday to fire City Manager Tom Huebner, who dismissed more than 175 garbagemen, dog catchers and airport maintenance workers for walking off their jobs in a wage dispute.

But even Ortiz admitted he had only one other vote, Councilman Bernardo Eureste, among the 11 council members.

Mrs. Cockrell says the move by Ortiz is "absurd." Eight council members strongly support Huebner and had approved the mass firings in advance.

One other city councilman, Henry Cisneros, opposes the firings but he told the chanting, predominantly Mexican-American crowd that he would not vote to fire Huebner. "I do not believe that we have the votes or it is the time to fire the city manager. That is not the thing to do," he said.

The placard-bearing former workers, members of the San Antonio Refuse Collectors Association, their families and supporters peacefully marched about four miles Thursday from a southside service center to City Hall. Council members were meeting there on budget matters.

The march was peaceful and included children riding in wagons and baby carriages or balancing on roller skates. Marchers and police escorts exchanged pleasantries and cigarettes.

Speaking Spanish to the crowd, Eureste berated Huebner to enthusiastic cheers, while Cisneros, also speaking Spanish, was booed after telling the crowd he opposed firing Huebner.

City Councilman Joe Alderete, one of five Mexican-Americans on the council, was shouted down when he told the strikers they had broken state law preventing such strikes and beseeched them to seek reinstatement through a special review board.

The marchers carried signs that stated "Fire Racist Huebner" and chanted "SARCA Si, Huebner No" and "Viva La Huelga" — "Long Live the Strike."

Meanwhile, city garbage trucks — shadowed by 60 police cars — again peacefully rolled along more than half of the city's garbage collection routes. Sixty of the 124 routes were covered without incident Wednesday after Huebner ordered beefed up police protection in the face of sporadic violence Tuesday.

The trucks were manned by non-striking workers, some 85 replacement workers, 24 employees transferred from other departments and six striking garbagemen reinstated Wednesday by the board.

The review board, which continued hearing appeals Thursday, ruled that the reinstated workers had walked out because of threats from the strikers.

"We'll hold it at about half the routes for a while, since that's about all we can handle from a police standpoint," said Assistant City Manager Louis Fox. "We'll build on that. It could be maybe three weeks before its normal again. We'll keep the police protection indefinitely."

Postal Union Chiefs Reject Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of 280,000 postal workers rejected a proposed contract Thursday, but left it up to the rank-and-file to decide whether to accept the settlement and head off the possibility of a mail strike.

National officials of the American Postal Workers Union said they remained optimistic that the membership would approve the three-year accord despite the 29-15 rejection vote by the union's national bargaining advisory committee.

But some leaders of locals said the committee's vote would influence some members to vote against the contract. Ballots will be mailed, probably within a week.

The 2-1 margin of the committee's vote came as a surprise to APWU President Emmet Andrews, who had said the committee's sentiment was running "50-50."

The contract would provide a 19.5 percent wage increase — including cost-of-living adjustments — over three years and retain a guarantee against layoffs.

Postal workers in New Jersey and California had staged illegal walkouts in protest after the settlement was forged last Friday, but most of the workers returned.

Some union locals rejected the contract in informal votes. The New York Area Postal Union, the nation's largest and most militant local, has scheduled a strike vote for next Monday, and some other locals have indicated they would follow the New York local's decision.

Postal strikes are prohibited by federal law, which calls for fines and jail terms for violators. But in 1970 the New York local led a walkout that spread to 200,000 workers across the country.

Those strikers were not punished. This time, the Postal Service vows to enforce the law.

Main objections to the proposed contract are that the wage increase is inadequate and that work rules remain too rigid, such as mandatory overtime.

Andrews estimated that the contract would increase the average wage $3,100 over three years. About half of that would derive from cost-of-living boosts. The average annual wage now is almost $16,000.

After voting to reject the contract, the advisory committee voted 30 to 9 to let Andrews send the pact to the rank-and-file.

However, one committee member, John Richards, president of the Pittsburgh area local, charged that the committee's second vote violated the union's constitution. He threatend to seek a federal court injunction to block Andrews from sending the contract into the field.

Andrews said the union's constitution requires that the committee vote on the package but does not spell out that the panel's approval is required before the rank-and-file can vote.

Asked by reporters about ratification prospects, Andrews said: "All of these contracts have been opposed in the past by these people. But when the total picture came down, the membership ratified by three-to-one."

The APWU is the largest of four unions that bargained with the Postal Service on a new contract covering 554,000 workers, and is the only one that calls for an advisory committee vote.

All four unions hope to mail ballots

Ford Hits Policies Of Carter Administration

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford launched a broad attack Thursday on many of President Carter's policies and declared: "Don't count me out" in 1980.

Ford criticized Carter on both foreign and domestic issues, including attempts to curb inflation, a proposed national health program, tax policies and cancellation of the B-1 bomber and cutback in other military programs in the face of what he said was a growing Soviet threat.

On the possibility that he might seek to regain the White House in two years, Ford said in a strong voice: "Don't count me out and don't count me in. I'm healthy, I'll be around and I won't duck any responsibility."

That drew loud applause from his audience, a convention of the Independent Truckers Association. The truckers also applauded roundly when he added:

"Retirement isn't all that bad, and I would recommend it to President Carter at the earliest possible time."

Ford called inflation "America's public enemy No. 1," and said the Carter administration had failed to follow through on an anti-inflation program he had started in 1974 when he took office following the resignation of Richard M. Nixon.

"The soaring inflation makes people wonder what happened to the programs that we had which reduced the rate of inflation from over 13 percent in 1974 to 4.8 percent in 1976," he said. "The policies were on the books in January 1977, to reduce the cost of living for the American people.

"But somehow, something went wrong under this administration," the former president said. "The question is raised: Is the policy of the Carter administration adequate to face up?

"My observation would be it was tardy. The rhetoric was good, but unfortunately it doesn't point the finger at the worst villain: The federal government with its big spending policy, its significantly large annual federal deficit and its high tax policies," he stated.

Ford said he had this advice for Carter: Start vetoing extravagant appropriation bills sent to the Oval Office, and stop sending the Congress extravagant programs.

He listed Carter's proposed national health insurance plan as an example of a high-cost program that should be put aside.

Ford criticized Carter's tax cut proposals as inadequate, noting that the president had fluctuated on this issue. He said he favored, with minor modifications, the proposal by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., that would reduce taxes for the American people by $100 billion in three years.

"The tax revolt is brewing as shown by California's Proposition 13, and I wholeheartedly approve of the concept of the Kemp-Rotn proposal," Ford said. "We've got to have a cut in taxes combined with a restraint on federal spending."

He said he was "deeply concerned about our foreign policy and our military capability.

"We're approaching a very critical juncture in current world politics," Ford said. "The Soviet Union is getting stronger and stronger and more aggressive almost on a worldwide basis."

Therefore, he said he was "very greatly disturbed" by Carter's cancellation of the B-1 bomber, his slowdown in development of the MX ballistic missile and his "significant cutback in the program for strengthening and expanding our U.S. Navy."

Philadelphia Demos To Put On Gloves

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two local Democrats with a history of exchanging political punches say they are willing to settle their differences — with gloves on, in a boxing ring.

City Councilman Francis Rafferty offered the challenge to legislative candidate and housing activist Milton Street during a news conference Wednesday after a hot debate on Monday in the City Council chambers.

Rafferty and Street called each other names and had to be separated by plainclothes policemen.

"I'd rather take him on in the gym and kick him," said Rafferty, a former amateur boxer. "You name your favorite charity (for the proceeds of the match). I'll get a match with Milton Street at the Spectrum."

The challenge was relayed by a reporter, and Street, who has never fought in the ring, accepted.

"He'd better have George Fencl in the ring to hold onto my trunks," said Street, referring to the police inspector who heads the city's civil disobedience squad and who intervened in council chambers.

"If he didn't have Fencl holding onto my belt Monday, he wouldn't be around now to make the challenge," Street said.

J. Russell Peltz, the city's leading fight promoter, apparently thinks the match will draw.

He said he expected "no problem" in getting approval from Howard McCall, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, and even suggested a tentative date of Aug. 24 at the Spectrum.

He did note the contenders would have to pass a physical exam.

The Rafferty-Street match on Monday developed during a public hearing on a proposed city charter change that would extend the two-year term of the mayor and, perhaps, give Mayor Frank Rizzo another lease on the city's life.

The two, who have been on opposite sides of the Rizzo fence, nearly came to blows when Rafferty called Street a "faggot" and Street countered by calling him "racist."

Street testified against changing the charter.

Rafferty, 40, weighing 190 pounds, said he had about 15 amateur bouts in the Army and after his discharge.

Street, 37, weighing 210, was once hospitalized for multiple sclerosis, which he said is now under control. He said he doesn't drink or smoke and jogs every day.

"Tell Rafferty he's on," Street said to the go-between. "Bad health and all, I'll take him on."

"Let's do it right and not insult the people of Philadelphia in City Council," said Rafferty. "I guarantee he won't walk out of the ring. I'll let it go two rounds but only so the people will get their money's worth. Then I'll knock him out."

If nothing happens to change their minds, the two would debut on a card that already features middleweights Benny Briscoe and Marvin Hagler, Peltz said.

More Perfect Days Expected

That much-coveted hope of precipitation is noticeably absent from the National Weather Service forecast today, but South Plains residents have little to complain about with skies expected to be flawless and temperatures in the middle 90s.

Today's weather picture is a preview of things to come, the NWS says, with only the words "partly cloudy" expected to break up the monotony of the forecast for the weekend.

Weathermen do include the chance of thunderstorms during the first part of next week in the extended forecast.

Humidity levels are expected to vary widely again today, just as they did Thursday (84 to 23 percent). Evaporation is expected to be about .45 of an inch over the 24-hour period.

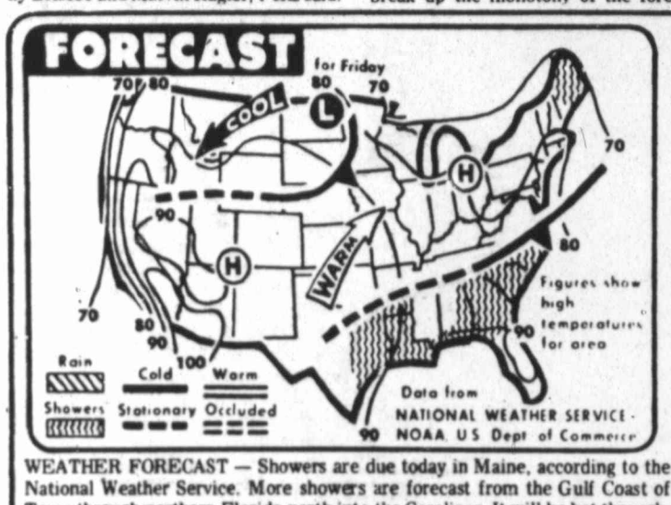
Rains in the northeastern corner of the state Thursday eased the worries of cattlemen to some extent.

The showers were precipitated by a cold front which cut a swath through the middle of the state. Some severe weather was expected north of Austin and in the Hill Country west of the capital.

Storms were more than severe in the upper Midwest late Wednesday and early Thursday as winds clocked at 80 mph swept over the Detroit River, capsizing two sailboats. As many as four persons may have drowned.

A man drowned in Wilmette, Ill., a Chicago suburb, after he ventured on Lake Michigan in a dinghy to retrieve his motorboat that ripped loose from its moorings.

Rain is expected to be scattered throughout the eastern third of the nation today, while hot weather is expected from the upper two thirds of the Missouri Valley to the Texas Panhandle.



WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are due today in Maine, according to the National Weather Service. More showers are forecast from the Gulf Coast of Texas through northern Florida north into the Carolinas. It will be hot throughout the nation, with highest temperatures in the Southwest. (AP Laserphoto)

Blame Fixed In Utah Jet Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cargo jet crash near Salt Lake City last December occurred because of issuance and acceptance of an "incomplete and ambiguous" holding pattern, coupled with the flight crew's failure to follow proper procedures, the National Transportation Safety Board said Thursday.

The board said the crew did not follow prescribed procedures for flying the holding pattern and for coping with radio problems.

Contributing to the accident, the board said, was the failure of one of the four primary electrical systems on the United Airlines DC-8 during its flight from San Francisco.

It said the cause of the electrical failure could not be determined, but added this alone was not responsible for the accident because the crew "should have been able to safely fly, navigate and land" the aircraft in spite of it.

The four-engine cargo plane crashed into snow-covered Ed's Peak in Baer Canyon 26 miles north of Salt Lake City, killing all three crew members. The crash occurred about 14 minutes after the pilot had discontinued an approach to Salt Lake City and asked for instructions for holding while the crew tried to solve a landing gear problem.

Safety board investigators said that because of the electrical system failure the crew did not have landing gear indicator lights and thus did not know whether the gear was operating properly.

The crew was using the plane's one one operative communications radio to discuss the electrical trouble with United Airlines maintenance personnel in San Francisco, the board report said.

Thus, when controllers noted the aircraft had strayed too far east, it was unable to contact the flight. When radio contact was resumed, the crew was given instructions to turn and climb. The jet was climbing, in clouds, when it hit the mountain.

Korea Agrees To U.S. Withdrawal of Troops

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Representatives of the Republic of Korea agreed Thursday to the phased withdrawal of U.S. ground troops still there 25 years after the end of the Korean war.

"I don't see any major or serious difficulties," Defense Minister Ro Jae Hyun said as a joint communique was issued ending talks with U.S. military officials.

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown appeared with Ro at a news conference and announced formation of a five-officer "Combined Forces Command" assigned to make certain the South Koreans are able to repel an invasion.

But Brown said invaders "cannot expect to win a victory." He said that although the 36,000 U.S. ground forces in the Republic of Korea would be withdrawn by 1982 "the military balance will not be endangered or jeopardized." President Carter had announced early in his administration that the U.S. ground forces would be pulled out of South Korea.

In answer to a question, Brown said the Carter administration has already compromised somewhat in the timetable for withdrawing forces. He said the administration is consulting with Congress and "our timetable is not inflexible."

The communique ending the 11th annual security meetings between the two countries said North Korea "has continued to increase its offensive military capabilities" and still is a serious threat to the U.S. ally. But it said the Republic of Korea will stay able to withstand any invasion.

The United States, it said, "will continue to deploy naval forces around the Korean peninsula." Brown said military equipment and aerial surveillance needed by the South Koreans will be provided but that now is the time to begin the pullout "at a time when the military balance is acceptable and tension is not high."

In the past 12 months there have been no major clashes along the 136-mile demilitarized zone across the strategic peninsula. Fifty-two Americans have died since the armistice was signed July 27, 1953, ending the three-year war.

Recruiter Alleges Violations

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A former Marine Corps recruiter says he was denied re-enlistment after he complained to members of Congress about recruiting violations in Ohio.

Robert Bletz, a former recruiter living in Mansfield, says forging documents, helping recruits cheat on tests and overlooking criminal records have been widespread recruiting practices in Ohio, according to a copyright story published Thursday by the Mansfield News-Journal.

Bletz told the News-Journal that while he was a recruiter in Akron and Columbus from December 1975 to last month, he and fellow recruiters felt constant pressure to meet quotas, causing many of them to resort to unethical practices.

Bletz, 27 and a 10-year Marine Corps veteran, said he was denied re-enlistment last month. He said one reason cited by his commanding officer was "lack of loyalty," which he said was a reference to letter he wrote last fall to members of Congress complaining about recruiting violations.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, began an investigation of recruiting after a recent suicide attempt by a Cleveland recruit. The senator has asked the U.S. Department of Defense and the Senate Select Armed Services Committee to start investigations as well.

Bletz said recruiters sometimes forged the name of high school guidance counselors on recruits' forms and sometimes accepted high school transcripts modified by applicants.

He said recruiters sometimes requested other officials to destroy juvenile criminal records so that the youths could enlist, or told prospective recruits not to mention on their applications that they had criminal records.

Recruiters sometimes gave applicants answers to armed services entrance tests to enable them to qualify for admission, Bletz said.

"We all broke the regulations, myself included," Bletz said. "I don't know of any that did not."

He said he usually resisted employing unethical practices and at times complained of the pressure to recruit, but was "chewed out" when he complained.

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Brush fires, believed started by honey hunters seeking to drive off bees, have swept through a major game preserve, charring hundreds of square miles of vegetation and killing large numbers of wildlife, the Daily Nation reported here this week.

Trustees Raid 'Cookie Jar'

WHILE THE newly organized public watchdogs were guarding the front door, Lubbock school trustees slipped into the back door of the local tax office this week and escaped with new padding for their already-bulging budget.

Trustees tentatively approved an 18-cent tax cut, but they did so by dipping into cash reserves rather than by cutting the budget. There'll be a public hearing before the action is final.

In fact, the trustees okayed especially generous teacher pay raises—widening the gap that local teachers enjoy above the state scale—and accepted other budget increases recommended by Supt. Ed Irons.

INTERESTINGLY, the Lubbock Property Owners Association, which has professed alarm over the smaller City of Lubbock property tax bite—demanding deeper cuts in the municipal budget—has not lifted its voice over the inflationary school budget.

Yet, the locally funded share of the proposed teacher pay raise alone is equal to about 6 cents on the local tax rate, the group's acknowledged immediate target.

This legerdemain was neatly camouflaged in the school board's budget discussions. Trustees propose to make a one-year raid on the district's cash balance, reducing it by $700,000, in order to grant teachers a $750,000 pay boost over and above the raises they'd get automatically.

This action will "build in" higher operating expenses for future years, setting the stage for future tax revenue requirements.

Some persons excuse this school extravagance by saying the state Legislature may mandate that the state take on a bigger share of the cost of education. Budgetary restraint, however—not a shifting of the burden to another portion of the taxpayer's back—is the real need.

LUBBOCK TEACHERS and other members of the schools' professional staff now get salary supplements totaling $1.4 million above the state scale. This supplement will be raised by 54 percent, to $2.1 million-plus, if next year's budget, as amended, is adopted.

Teachers now get local salary increments of from $500 to $1,000. These will be boosted to a range of $700 to $1,475. Teachers also get automatic pay increases for an additional year of experience, plus a state-mandated cost-of-living boost.

School employes also enjoy generous district-paid health insurance benefits. A teacher who was making $10,000 for an academic year in 1976-77 will be paid $11,945 in 1978-79.

SALARIES AND fringe benefits account for the major portions of state, city and school budget. True tax relief can not be obtained unless personnel costs are held in check.

Despite the 18-cent cut in the school tax rate, for example, the district's property tax "take" next year, due to valuation increases, will go up a projected $800,000.

Certainly, it would be false economy to make deep cuts in municipal services, programs and personnel on the one hand while, on the other, granting school personnel inflationary pay boosts that will widen the gap they already enjoy above the state salary schedule.

City and school taxes, after all, come out of the same pot.

A Plug For What's-His-Name

A FEW WEEKS ago, the White House added to its staff one Gerald Rafshoon, the man who helped make Jimmy "Who" a household word during his successful campaign for the presidency.

Now, Rafshoon is back, with another mission.

This time it is to resurrect either the old Jimmy or a new one, as well as "shape up" how the administration appears in public. It's no small order.

HOWEVER, THE ubiquitous Rafshoon is undaunted. It's all a big mistake, he tells anyone who will listen.

"It's a bum rap, this perception that he's not competent, not in control," Rafshoon says of Carter. "I've known him 13 years and competence is his long suit."

Whatever, the new White House "image-maker" says he will focus on Carter's plus points. He cites these as the President's work to reform the Civil Service, his efforts to cut the federal budget, tackle inflation and get a handle on East-West relations.

MOST PERSONS will agree that Rafshoon at least has hit on some of the big issues, although there are quite a few more waiting in the wings.

How he goes about the job may create more news than the newsmakers, however. Hardly had he got settled in his job than he came off as something of a "censor" as well as an image man.

Midge Constanza, the President's outspoken aide, was pulled off a morning talk show by Rafshoon because her appearance had not been cleared through his office. Domestic affairs adviser Stuart Eizenstat, who had been cleared, went on as scheduled and filled in for Midge.

THE INCIDENT caused a flap in the White House as well as in media circles. Was part of the image-making process one of shushing up comments except those monitored by Gerald Rafshoon?

If so, the effusive Mr. Rafshoon has one gigantic task in front of him, other than convincing the American people that Jimmy "Who" is Jimmy Somebody. And that is also convincing the whole world that Andrew Young isn't really running the show, instead of old What's-His-Name!

M. STANTON EVANS:

Postal Union Pay Scale Rewards 'Inefficiencies'

WASHINGTON—Mounting labor troubles and continued hikes in rates have served to focus public anger once more on the postal service.

The attention is overdue, but there is danger it will lead to mistaken policies that will make our postal problems worse instead of better.

Some in Congress think the trouble resides in the quasi-independent status of the postal system voted back in 1970, and that the solution lies in renewed political control.

The record, however, suggests the problem is just the other way around: The postal service is floundering because it remains a government monopoly, and suffers from the ills monopoly is heir to.

THE CRUCIAL fact about the postal service is that it is the only agency in America entitled by law to deliver first-class mail. It is thus protected from the discipline of competition.

Users of first-class mail in the vast majority of cases have no alternative (although some ways around this are beginning to develop), and simply have to grit their teeth and accept whatever level of service or prices the postal authorities decide to give them.

They are captives of the monopoly supplier.

The results of this relationship may be seen in the record of rising costs and declining service that has marked the post office in recent years.

With the latest hike in postal charges, first-class rates have risen 150 percent since 1971. Corresponding hikes have occurred for other classes of mail.

These rising rates have emphatically not been matched by increases in efficiency. In a five-year period after reorganization, first-class mail delivery slowed by 14 to 23 percent.

Air mail service for priority delivery has been phased out, while special delivery service between major cities, as this formerly frequent user can testify, has become virtually worthless.

In areas such as package delivery where private competition is permitted and comparisons are possible, private firms are uniformly quicker and cheaper—with lower damage rates—than is the postal service. (This explains the fact that 60 percent of parcel deliveries these days are made by private firms.)

BY FAR THE LARGEST component of postal costs is the wage bill, which accounts for roughly 85 percent of the department's outlays.

The postal union is a powerful one, and has succeeded in almost doubling the average annual wage (from $8,757 to $15,877) since reorganization.

From 1970 through 1975, hourly wages for non-supervisory postal personnel increased by 50.9 percent, compared to 40.2 percent in the private, non-farm economy.

Interestingly, as noted by Prof. Douglas Adie in a study for the American Enterprise Institute, the quit rate in the postal service is 75 percent below the rate for all manufacturing.

Even more significant, perhaps, is the fact that the postal service's pay scale rewards seniority rather than efficiency, with little cash incentive for learning new, more difficult tasks.

AS A RESULT, Adie observes, employes sometimes decline promotions to supervisory tasks.

It pays very well to be an unskilled or semiskilled postal worker, better, comparatively speaking, than to be a skilled one—which explains a lot about the functioning of the postal system.

Under competitive conditions, the postal service would not be able to survive such inefficiencies; but with competition stifled by law, it is able to function in this hapless manner and pass the costs along to the consumer who has been deprived of all effective options.

The answer to our postal woes, in short, is not to increase the level of political involvement, but to decrease it, by abolishing the monopoly.

Peace For A Price

EVANS

WASHINGTON—Behind-the-scenes scrutiny of Washington's fat economic aid program for Israel will almost surely result in a cut from the $800 million level of the past five years.

Although President Carter has repeatedly promised not to use U.S. military aid as a "lever" to pressure Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, no such promise covers economic help—known as security supporting assistance.

Officials refuse to speculate on how deep the reduction may be for fiscal year 1980—starting Oct. 1, 1979.

But Israeli leaders have been quietly led to believe that both the Carter administration and a Congress increasingly restive over Israel's resistance to U.S. Mideast peace proposals will go for a sizeable cut if the peace stalemate continues.

UNLIKE THE ANNUAL $1 billion military aid program, economic aid is loosely earmarked, giving Israel great leeway in its use.

Any reduction or new regulations governing its use would damage Israel's ailing economy and probably have a pronounced impact on its overall military strength.

If Israel's hard-line posture on a Mideast peace settlement softens and a comprehensive plan begins to emerge, aid cuts of any kind would be ruled out. The preliminary look now being given to cuts for the 1980 program shows how little optimism really exists inside the administration.

A MAJOR UNSEEN force behind President Carter's decision to slow oil technology transfers to the Soviet Union was Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger, intervening in a national security question for the second time in recent weeks.

Schlesinger argued that the sale of oil-drilling equipment to Moscow is so sensitive that the President's approval should be required for each transaction—opposing the State Department's position.

The former Republican secretary of defense earlier had opposed the State Department, contending that Soviet compliance with a proposed comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty could not be verified.

SCHLESINGER HAS been the only high-level administration official supporting national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski's tough line on technology transfer.

Surprisingly, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown sided with the State and Commerce Departments in opposing any curb on U.S.-Soviet trade.

A footnote: Secretary of State Cyrus Vance made a strong pitch to the President in Europe against limiting technology transfer.

"Cy is just opposed to economic warfare," one insider told us.

REP. BRUCE CAPUTO, who enraged Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill and the House Democratic establishment with his conduct in the Korean scandal investigation, could be the decisive factor in defeating Democratic Gov. Hugh Carey in New York.

A major reason why Caputo, 34, was named to the Republican ticket as lieutenant governor was a startling private poll in critically important Westchester County, giving Caputo only a 1 percent negative rating in his home county.

What's more, the poll indicates dramatic gains in Westchester for state assemblyman Perry Duryea, the Republican nominee for governor, when paired with Caputo—enough to give him a comfortable statewide lead over Carey.

AN EDICT FROM Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein for automatic execution of any Iraqi military officer found to have a connection with Iraq's Communist party marks a new plateau of Arab fear of Soviet political penetrations.

The secret order was circulated after 20 army officers, long held in military jails, were executed recently on charges of plotting with the small but tightly organized Iraqi Communist party.

That followed Soviet subversion and overthrow of the established neutralist government of Afghanistan and Soviet meddling in the Arab state of South Yemen.

The Iraqi move shows that no matter how many public encomiums are tossed Moscow's way by such militant Arab states as Iraq, way down deep they are far more worried over Soviet machinations than they let on.

TOM ELLIS, THE North Carolina Republican operative who saved Ronald Reagan's presidential candidacy in 1976, may desert Reagan for Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois in 1980.

Ellis managed Reagan's upset victory over President Ford in the crucial 1976 North Carolina primary which kept alive Reagan's challenge.

However, Ellis split with Reagan forces at the Kansas City convention over strategy and the platform and recently has sat in on preliminary planning sessions for the Crane campaign.

There is one caveat. Ellis is top political lieutenant to North Carolina's Sen. Jesse Helms who also may run for President if re-elected to the Senate this year. Helms would have first call on Ellis over Crane.

The Brighter Side

ANDREW TULLY:

Bourne To Lose

WASHINGTON—It was as if Genghis Khan, in his dying words, had expressed concern for the future of the civilized world.

"I fear for the future of the nation far more than I do for the future of your friend, Peter G. Bourne," was the way the President's chief adviser on health and drug abuse put it in his letter of resignation to Jimmy Carter.

Surely, nobody can demure if Dr. Bourne is moved to the head of the class in advanced effrontery. He had quit for writing a prescription for the potent drug quaalude to a fictitious person.

He said he intended the drug for use by Ellen Metsky, his administrative assistant, but used the fictitious name "Sarah Brown" to "protect" Miss Metsky from adverse publicity.

WHAT HE DID, of course, was illegal. Twenty-six-year-old Toby Long, a friend of Miss Metsky, found that out when she tried to get the prescription filled at a Virginia drugstore. Miss Long was arrested and is free on bond, charged with attempting to obtain a controlled substance "by the use of a false name"—a felony.

Bourne has been busy feeling sorry for himself as a martyr put to the wrack by "political enemies." He suggests that enforcement officials decided "not to turn it off for political reasons or ideological reasons with regard to drugs."

If so, it is irrelevant. Miss Metsky in all likelihood would not have become a household word had Bourne written the prescription in her name.

AND WHAT IF the physician-patient confidentiality had been breached? Miss Metsky, according to Bourne, was upset over a busted romance, and quaalude's use is perfectly legal as a sedative prescribed by a doctor in good standing.

Perhaps Bourne was concerned over the fact that the drug is in heavy demand in the illicit junk market by young people who believe it to be an aphrodisiac.

Bourne wrote of "a prescription written in good faith to a troubled person." He complained about "press and television reports of my problem." Did he expect the media to ignore a story involving a trusted adviser to the President?

Bourne claimed that it was all a plot to discredit Jimmy Carter. He referred to "constant and unrelenting attacks upon me by those who seek to hurt you through my disparagement."

BOURNE CAN'T BE blamed for hoping that "somehow the traditional system of justice will work toward my vindication." Everybody's entitled to due process. But one wonders about a man so swollen with self-importance that he can summon the presumption to warn others against entering government service.

"I know that you know that it is evermore difficult for people of good will to enter public service," he wrote the President. It is hardly an act of contrition for a man who did something sleazy to suggest that potentially able public servants will go about saying things like "If good old Peter Bourne was framed, what chance have I got?"

Where does Jimmy Carter find some of his little helpers? In Peter Bourne's case, I suspect, under a rock.

JAY HARRIS:

The Shah As Ruler

WHAT IS THE "real" story about Iran?

How deeply involved in the internal affairs of the nation is the U.S. government? The CIA? The world's major oil companies?

Just how much opposition is there to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, whose son and heir apparent is now taking jet training at Reese AFB?

What is the future for this rapidly emerging Third World nation, with its vast oil reserves and "Made in U.S.A." military machine? Will the Shah's so-called modernization plan help build a new industrial power in the area and will the people benefit?

There are no pat answers to those questions. But, suffice it to say that the fate of the U.S. and the West is inextricably tied up with whatever the answers are.

AS WE NOTED Thursday, Iran's geo-political role as the gateway from Europe, the Mideast and Russia to Asia, the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean makes it one of the most vital of all nations in that part of the world.

Because of that fact alone, the American role which has been large in the past, will continue. In the past 20 years alone, the U.S. has sold more than $18 billion worth of arms to Iran, and has helped organize and equip a vast security system which enforces the Shah's absolute rule.

As The New York Times reported recently, this has not been a one-way street. In return, the Shah has committed his nation to protect the routes out of the Persian Gulf which carry more than half the oil used by the West.

In addition, Iranian arms purchases, plus use of U.S. technology, has returned to the U.S. almost $2 for each $1 we have spent on oil, The Times says.

THE SHAH'S PATH has not been an easy one, even though he comes from a long line of rulers.

The 58-year-old Shah was installed in place of his father by the Allies in August 1941 after Iran became too friendly with the Axis. He assumed the throne Sept. 16 of that year.

After a series of events in which Iran's oil industry was nationalized, and later a deal worked out for major U.S. oil firms to operate the vast fields, the Shah was placed even more firmly in control.

It was during this period, in the early 1950s, that his opponents charge that the CIA engineered the downfall of Dr. Mohammed Mossagedh as prime minister and helped institute a reign of terror to solidify the Shah's rule.

AS THE SCION of a 2,500-year-old Persian dynasty, the Shah speaks easily and often of the "inevitable"—of Iran's destiny and fate.

The Shah has been depicted as seeing democracy as a poor substitute for "divine inspiration." The Shah himself says his public candor before his people is possible because he doesn't "fear and tremble before them" or "look at the polls to see if they're up or down two degrees."

The Iranian leader also has been painted as an amalgam of technocracy and royalty, who often is protrayed as being ruthless, yet religiously inspired. He once told an Italian journalist that "I believe in God, and that I've been chosen by God to perform a task."

But, as one critic observed, "If the Shah has been ordained by God, he has also received able assistance from the secular powers of the United States."

THE TRUTH OF the matter is that the U.S., and the West, need the Shah, Iran's oil and the nation's strategic role as a very hefty "balance" in a most volatile part of the world.

That relationship has sparked increasing demonstrations at home and abroad in recent months. This has been kept alive by dissident groups within Iran's borders, both from the left and the reactionary right, as well as the vociferous and at times militant Iranian Student Association abroad.

In a recent interview with U.S. News and World Report, the Shah blamed the demonstrations on "personal vengeance against me," opposition by some Moslem priests to his programs of modernization and Communists.

The handsome Iranian ruler says that in granting more personal freedom to the Iranian people, he is in effect opening the way for such protests.

But, on the other side of the coin, he claims that while "ten years ago most people were illiterate, today the figure is about 50 percent..." He also sees the people sharing more and more in land reform, and in the economy generated by the nation's oil wealth and industrialization.

FOES OF THE Shah claim that Iran's dreaded secret police, SAVAAK, and the Iran military have been ruthless in stamping out opposition.

Victims allege that torture methods have included flogging, pulling of finger and toe nails while the person hangs from their wrists, and putting naked prisoners on hot bedsprings...

On the other hand, the Shah and those who support him in the U.S., point to the constant pressure of Communism in stirring things up in that part of the world, and to the fact that Iran nor the Shah are alone in using primitive ways of crushing their enemies, from within or without.

The Iranian ruler sees himself as guarding not only his nation's vast supply of oil, but the Persian Gulf-Indian Ocean lifelines which bring it to the West. Quite candidly, he says the U.S. is not doing enough to combat Communist activity in that region of the world.

If nothing else, the Shah is his own man. He dissolved two marriages and wed a third time in search of a male heir. Today, that person, Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi has come to Lubbock, Texas, to take one more step in his own destiny, which in more ways than one is irretrievably linked with that of the U.S. It indeed is a small world...

Port Dispute Bars Namibia Change

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — South Africa held the key Thursday to whether the Carter administration could chalk up its first major foreign policy achievement in Africa, a peaceful transition to independence for Namibia.

Hours before a crucial Security Council debate on the Namibian issue, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said he had no firm word from South Africa's foreign minister, Roelof F. Botha, on the position that country would take on the plan for Namibian independence, which was backed by the United States and four other Western powers.

South Africa has controlled Namibia, also known as South-West Africa, for 63 years and its cooperation in the transition to nationhood was essential.

"I don't know yet. We'll find out this afternoon," Vance said when asked whether South Africa would accept the Western plan. He spoke on the telephone briefly Thursday with Botha.

Two resolutions were to be voted on — one endorsing the Western independence proposals, the other, denounced by the South Africans, saying the territory's only deepwater port should be handed over to the new Namibian nation.

The Western powers — the others were Britain, France, West Germany and Canada — hoped they could win South African cooperation with a joint statement of their own saying that their plan did not question South Africa's legal claim to the port, Walvis Bay, or require South Africa to turn it over immediately to Namibia.

The status of Walvis Bay had become the major stumbling block in the way of a settlement. Black African leaders insist it must belong to Namibia. South Africa insists that it has always held sovereignty over the port.

South African acceptance of the Western plan would be a major victory for Vance, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and the Carter administration. It would demonstrate that they can act as mediators to bring about peaceful transitions to majority rule in southern Africa, keeping out Soviet influence and Cuban troops in the process.

Failure would cast doubt upon their policy's potential for solving the vexing problems of white minority rule in Rhodesia and South Africa itself.

The Western plan for Namibia established a six-month schedule for the withdrawal of South African troops and holding free elections to form a Namibian government. A U.N. civilian and military peacekeeping force would oversee the transition.

That plan was accepted in April by South Africa. But the proposals at that time made no mention of the fate of the city of Walvis Bay.

Two weeks ago, at a meeting in Luanda, Angola, the Western powers agreed to a demand by the South-West Africa People's Organization and its African allies that the Security Council also adopt a resolution calling for the "reintegration" of Walvis Bay. South-West Africa guerrillas have been fighting a bush war for independence and black-majority rule in the territory.

South-West Africa was a German colony until South Africa seized it during World War I. In 1920, South Africa was given a mandate over the territory by the now-defunct League of Nations, a mandate voided by the U.N. General Assembly in 1966.

Walvis Bay originally was a British colonial enclave. South Africa contended that when it gained independence from Britain it assumed sovereignty over the port and that it is part of South Africa, not Namibia.

The South Africans objected that the Western agreement to back the "reintegration" resolution violated the agreement reached in April.

Alleged Murder Plot Against King Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House assassinations subcommittee began conducting closed hearings Thursday on a Missouri man's reported story that he turned down an offer of $50,000 to kill Dr. Martin Luther King.

The witnesses included Mrs. Beulah G. Kauffman. She is a widow of one of two businessmen whom Russell G. Byers of Rock Hill, Mo., says made the offer, according to the New York Times.

Mrs. Kauffman refused to make any comment after testifying to the subcommittee but the newspaper had quoted her as saying it was "absolutely impossible" that her husband had been involved in such a plot.

The newspaper quoted Byers as saying John R. Kauffman, a St. Louis acquaintance, in late 1966 or early 1967 introduced him to John H. Sutherland, a St. Louis patent lawyer, who told him a group of businessmen would pay $50,000 for King's assassination.

The House subcommittee is investigating a number of such alleged plots, including two claims that FBI agents tried to hire assassins.

Members refused to comment on whether the subcommittee is taking the alleged St. Louis plot more seriously than the others but one said "it does seem to be more than run of the mill."

There are two elements that tend to give more substance to the alleged St. Louis plot although the Times said its own investigation could not establish whether it was an assassination plot or only a series of suggestive relationships.

One of the elements is that Byers' brother-in-law, John Spica, was a fellow inmate at the time of James Earl Ray, now convicted of King's assassination.

The second is that the House committee, in a report last year, quoted fellow inmates as saying Ray intended to look for a "businessmen's association" that he said was offering $100,000 for King's assassination.

Ray escaped from the Missouri penitentiary April 23, 1967. Dr. King was assassinated April 4, 1968, in Memphis.

The subcommittee investigating the civil rights leader's murder has been holding closed-door hearings for months.

It plans to hold a week of public hearings starting Aug. 14 with Ray among the witnesses.

Water Rehearing Set

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has set a rehearing for an application by Plains Weather Improvement Association, Inc., to engage in weather modification activities for 10 a.m. Tuesday.

That application was denied June 12 on grounds that area voters, including those in Hale County, had rejected such modification efforts in an election on the request last November.

The three-member commission held it no longer had jurisdiction in the matter because of that election, and issued an order denying PWIA's request and stating the TWC "has no authority" to issue the requested permit.

HOUSE FIRE KILLS THREE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Fire swept through a two-story home in northeast Grand Rapids on Thursday, killing a woman and her two daughters. Authorities said the bodies of Geraldine Glynn, 50, and her daughters, Cherie, 15, and Cathy, 25, were found on the second floor. One firefighter was overcome by smoke and required hospital treatment.

Test Tube Birth Poses Ethical Questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House health subcommittee chairman, Rep. Paul Rogers, will hold a hearing next week on ethical and legal problems surrounding the birth of the world's first known baby conceived from an egg fertilized in a laboratory test tube.

The hearing, set for Friday, Aug. 4, will consider creating a special commission to study ethical problems in medicine, including test tube conceptions.

"I do not see the procedure as being widespread for some years," said the Florida Democrat. "And in a way that is good because we have time to consider, and hopefully resolve, problems associated with it."

In England, a baby girl conceived in a laboratary was delivered to a couple, John and Lesley Brown, this week.

Metals Rise Via Fears Of Inflation

By The Associated Press

Fears about inflation and a continued speculative climate pushed gold futures higher Thursday on New York's Commodities Exchange while interest rate futures rose as well in Chicago.

Gold strengthened by $3.20 to $3.50 an ounce, and other metal futures showed across-the-board increases while medium-and long-term interest rate futures gained 16 to 22 points on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Analysts and traders were uncertain why, only one day after release of the most favorable U.S. trade deficit report in more than a year, gold prices continued to post gains.

Most agreed that a statement by Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller to a House committee in Washington, indicating that the Fed would not trigger recession by clamping down hard on inflation, was a bullish factor in the gold market.

One analyst added that panic among traders caught short in the market after a brief spate of selling Wednesday, when gold weakened slightly in the wake of the trade deficit report, also induced heavy buying in active trade Thursday.

"It triggered massive panic among shorts," the analyst said.

A volatile foreign currency situation encouraged gold purchases, said another analyst.

The Fed's apparent inclination not to tighten interest rates also encouraged interest rate futures in Chicago.

"I'm a little amazed at it, because gold is going through the roof. I would have thought they would not be as strong as they were," said an analyst.

But Miller's stance, combined with analysts' expectations that the Federal Reserve might report a slight decline in the nation's money supply, pushed government securities' futures prices higher. GNMAs — medium-term notes — were up 16 to 19 points and Treasury bonds — long-term notes — climbed 17 to 22 points.

Some strengthening of the dollar against European currencies and bullish statements by Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon about expected improvements in the U.S.-Japanese trade balance also aided the upswing.

News that the Treasury Department will sell $7 billion in notes and bonds next week in its quarterly refinancing came as forecast by analysts and had little effect on the market, an analyst said.

Silver futures benefited 6.6 cents across the board from the upswing in gold, from technical factors and from an unconfirmed report that Mexico is expected to use larger amounts of silver in its coins.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, cattle futures failed to sustain early gains on Wednesday's government livestock inventory showing cattle herds down 7 percent from last year.

Cattle prices closed mixed in a late-day spate of profit-taking and liquidation amid general feeling that the market was overrated.

SAYS BELL INTENDS TO DO WHAT'S RIGHT — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. attorney Jon Dee Lawrence, testifying before the Texas Public Utility Commission Thursday in Austin, says his company intends to do the right thing, whatever the facts may be. Bell officials underwent little questioning over their request to delete $174,160 from a $214.3 million rate hike request. (AP Laserphoto)

Bell Rate Plea Revision Seen

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of the Public Utility Commission said Thursday he would be "very surprised" if Southwestern Bell's request to delete $174,160 from its $214.3 million rate hike application were not approved.

Southwestern Bell asked that the amount be deleted because it has been linked to alleged improper equipment purchases and leases.

During a rate hearing Thursday, no new information was revealed about the federal investigation of a former Bell employee.

U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes allowed the U.S. attorney in Dallas to furnish Bell with limited information on the investigation, Bell attorney Ford Hall explained. The questionable purchases occurred during the period used to determine Bell's rate request.

Federal prosecutors have said that Bell was a "victim," not a beneficiary in the alleged fraud.

"We, of course, intend to respect Judge Hughes's order that we not delve into underlying facts which would in any way jeopardize the integrity of the ongoing grand jury investigation," Hall said.

"We, of course, do not know if an indictment, or indictments, will be returned, and we do not know if any wrongdoing will utimately be established," he added.

A final order in the case will be issued "early next week," commission chairman George Cowden said after the 20-minute hearing. The company had asked the commission to delay the order under further information was available on the federal investigation.

"I would be very surprised if it (the questionable figure) were not disallowed (from the rate hike request)," Cowden said. "No intervenors objected, but it would be up to the commissioners when we adopt an order."

Neither Bell nor the U.S. attorney has indicated which former employee is under investigation. However, the Dallas Times Herald has reported that the probe involves Ray Acker, 66, former head of the company's data systems.

Bell attorney Jon Dee Lawrence testified at the hearing that the company would provide the utility commission with any new figures provided by the U.S. attorney's office.

"The company intends to do the right thing, whatever the facts might be," he said. "If it turns out that a further reduction in rates is the thing to do, I'm sure the company would be proposing that."

Federal prosecutors have asked Bell not to conduct an independent investigation under the grand jury probe is complete.

"We have no independent information that shows that the figure is right, wrong, high, low or right on the money," Lawrence said. "It is what we have been advised" by the U.S. attorney.

Israeli Baby Exchange Recalls Biblical Crisis

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — Israel's Health Ministry is in a dilemma similar to one faced by King Solomon.

The ministry has ordered two women whose babies apparently were switched in a hospital mixup to exchange the infants. But the mothers have had the babies at home for a month and both refused.

King Solomon, according to the Bible, was asked to judge a dispute between two women claiming the same child, and he told them the infant could be cut in two with half going to each woman. When one woman tearfully withdrew, Solomon awarded the baby to her, saying her concern for the infant's life had proven her motherly love.

But the health ministry may have to rely on blood tests and footprints for its solution.

The problem began six weeks ago when both women gave birth to baby girls at a Haifa hospital. Just before the women left the hospital, officials there had them trade babies because the infants' identification tags had been misplaced and a blood test taken at the time supposedly confirmed the mistake.

Now, on the basis of a second blood test, the hospital says the first one was incorrect and the ministry has directed the two women to re-exchange babies.

But additional tests may be demanded before they switch again, said an attorney representing one of the families.

A hospital spokesman said there is no positive identification test, only a blood test that can prove that a child does not belong to a certain mother.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Q. Do you have an opinion about real estate investment tusts (REITs)? Some time ago, a bank bought 275 shares of an IT for my trust fund — at a cost of a little over $9,000. today, they are selling for around $2 a share. I hate to have is "junk" in my estate. Would I be wise to sell and take my loss? Or is there a possibility of a comeback?

A. There's always a possibility of recovery in the stock marrket. In this case, however, the possibility has to be counted remote. You have a loser you have been unhappy living with. At a total cost of "a little over $9,000," you paid out $32.75 a share. If you sell the 275 shares, you'll get $550 less brokerage commission. Ouch! No one enjoys taking a loss.

Yet, unless things change drastically, your money can be put to better use elsewhere — almost any place else. Yes, I do have an opinion about REITs. It's that most of them were terribly mismanaged. They were all the rage, back in the early 70s and were considered "hot items" in the stock le 7-10-78 market. When the recession came along, however, their bubbles burst. The national economy, of course, recovered. And real estate ices have skyrocketed. But most REITs have remained in the stock market's cat and dog category.

Q. I will have to begin cashing in my Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds, within a few years. Will there be a savings on the income tax I will have to pay, if I cash them in a little at a me, rather than cash them in all at once?

A. Yes, indeed. Assuming that you have not declared the interest that has built up on those E bonds, when you cash them you will have a federal — but not state — income tax ligation on the accrued interest. If you cash in all of your bonds in the same year, the bundle of accrued interest you receive could kick you into a higher federal income tax bracket. But, if you cash in just part the bonds annually, you'll receive smaller amounts of interest each year and, most likely, stay out of the higher tax brackets. With this in mind, many people never redeem their E bonds until after they retire and are in low tax brackets.

Q. We bought a prime one and a half acre suburban building at a cost of $10,-200, seven years ago. We have decided to sell but the best offer we have had is $17,-000 — a poor return, after real estate taxes, interest, commissions, closing costs and other expenses. We are considering having a house built on the lot and then selling it or keeping it as a rental investment. What do you advise?

A. Unless you have experience in residential construction real estate management, my advice is to keep trying to sell at property as it is. If the best you can get for it is 7,000, take the money. The average person — with no construction experience — simply can't have a house built at a price guaranteed to produce quick profit on resale. And rental investments require a great of time and personal attention.

Q. Do you believe that banks and savings and loan associations will be allowed to offer higher interest rates on four-and six-year savings certificates within the next six to eight months?

A. You're asking me to outguess the federal regulatory thorities which set those rates. Because the maximum interest on both short-term — six-month — and long-term — certificates were raised, effective June 1, it could be no surprise if rate hikes are allowed on medium-term certificates of from one to six years.

No surprise but no promise that it will happen.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Bermuda Triangle, a patch of Atlantic Ocean located off the eastern shore of the United States famous for ship and aircraft disasters, presents no special dangers to navigation, a Soviet scientist said Thursday. Reese Airman Beaten, Robbed

A 19-year-old Reese AFB airman told police that six men who attacked him in the 700-block of Main Street early Thursday took $46 from him before leaving in a dark Monte Carlo.

Monte D. Covington, who was treated at Reese AFB Hospital for facial cuts and a possible back injury, said he was sitting in his car at a lot outside a night club about 1:30 a.m. when the men approached the vehicle.

He said one of the suspects, a white man in his early 20s and with a heavy build, pulled him from the car and slammed him twice against the vehicle.

Covington told officers that when he tried to fight back, five other white men jumped him and, after knocking him to the ground, took the airman's money.

The suspects also reportedly backed their vehicle into Covington's car before leaving the parking lot.

Charles S. Morina said that whoever broke a window in the front of a clothing store at 1321 University Ave. took $1,800 worth of goods from the business, including clothing, a music system and $15 in change from the cash register.

Jimmy Douglas told police that someone took $350 worth of tools from a house at 3210 92nd St. where he was doing carpentry work.

Elvis Florence said whoever entered his 1307 46th St. residence via a kitchen window made off with $250 worth of property. Florence listed as missing a Home Box Office unit, $60 in change, a .22-caliber pistol and two rings.

Burglars who used an automobile jack to break a window at an appliance store at 2111 Ave. Q early Thursday took a $400 television, according to store owner Charles Evans. Evans said the broken glass also damaged three stereos and a dryer.

Trish Ann Pike reported a camera and a stereo, as well as $12 cash, missing from her 4501 51st St. home. Reports indicated entry came after the burglar pried the front door.

According to Sylvia Lavato, whoever kicked in the front door of her 2418 Colgate St., No. 11, residence, stole her television set.

Police Fear Foul Play In Death Of Contractor

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Lawmen fear foul play in the death of Bill R. Cupp, 47, whose body was found here Thursday in a parking lot.

A janitor discovered the body at 4:30 a.m. Thursday when he arrived for work at the Veterans of Foreign Wars post south of the city.

Capt. Richard Sims of the sheriff's office here said the man was apparently run over by a vehicle. There were tire tracks in the location and gravel "all over him," Sims said.

Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone, who was called to the scene, is withholding a ruling in the death pending results of an autopsy.

Services for Cupp will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Northside Baptist Church here with the Rev. Bruce Keller, pastor, officiating. Assisting him will be the Rev. Charles T. Jordan, retired Baptist minister from Pecos.

Burial will be in Plainview Memorial Park under the direction of Lemons Funeral Home.

Cupp, a native of Stillwater, Okla., moved to Earth in 1934 and was a graduate of Springlake-Earth High School. He received a B.B.A. from Texas Tech University in 1960. Cupp served in the U.S. Air Force from 1948 to 1952 and again from 1955 to 1956.

He lived in Lubbock from 1965 until 1971 when he moved to Plainview. Cupp was a home building contractor and a member of Flint Avenue Baptist Church in Lubbock.

Bill Tightens Controls On PCP

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate adopted legislation Wednesday aimed at cutting back on the illegal use of the drug PCP, or "angel dust," described by the bill's sponsor as "the most dangerous illicit drug in use today."

"This legislation will make it more difficult and more costly to manufacture this drug illegally, restricting its availability and cutting back on its abuse," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

The amendment sponsored by Bentsen was added to a pending drug control bill which then was adopted by voice vote.

The bill matches federal law with certain international agreements relating to drug abuse.

The Bentsen amendment would control the sale of piperidine, one of three key ingredients in PCP which has the full chemical name of phencyclidine hydrochloride.

Bentsen said only 500,000 pounds of piperidine is produced each year and that 93 percent of it is used in the curing of rubber.

Thus he said it can easily be traced and controlled.

"In spite of the horrible things that PCP can do to the mind, it is growing in popularity because it can be manufactured so easily — in a backroom or in the back of a van moving around town — and it sells so cheaply," Bentsen said.

He said medical researchers have found that PCP produces symptoms of psychoses which are nearly indistinguishable from schizophrenia.

"Police files report that one man under the influence of PCP was arrested while ... naked in a supermarket," he said.

"A young woman became so disoriented by PCP she drowned in four inches of water in a shower. "And a youth repeatedly attacked officers with a knife, refusing to drop it even after they hit him with nightsticks hard enough to break the bones in his hand and the handle of the knife."

The Bentsen amendment would increase the maximum penalty for a first offense of trafficking in PCP from five years in prison and a $15,000 fine to 10 years and a $25,000 fine.

Helicopter inventor Igor Sikorsky was born in 1889.

Man Killed Reclaiming Truck

By PAT CARLSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 35-year-old car lot owner was shot to death Thursday when he and a companion attempted to repossess a pickup at an East Lubbock residence.

William Tommy Wright of 1318 25th St. died at 9:50 a.m. at West Texas Hospital, an hour after gunfire erupted at an E. Bates Street house.

Wright and Rodney Peterson, 33, who reportedly lives at the 4406 Ave. H car lot, both were fired upon by an angry resident in the driveway of the home. Peterson was grazed on the inside left forearm, but was not hospitalized.

Police arrested a 33-year-old man at the scene.

According to police, Wright and Peterson backed their wrecker into the driveway and hooked onto the pickup. As the vehicle was being lifted, its owner came out of the house with a .22-caliber rifle and walked to the wrecker.

Peterson said that when he and Wright saw the weapon pointed at them, they stated they were not armed and told the resident they had papers from a Slaton bank to repossess the truck.

Faced with the firearm, Wright and Peterson reportedly then told the man they would lower the pickup back to the ground. Peterson got out of the wrecker and walked back to the hoist as Wright stayed behind the wheel.

Wright, sitting in the wrecker with both its doors open, reportedly told the disgruntled man that he was getting ready to lower the vehicle and slowly reached for the lever.

As he moved, the man fired a single shot, striking Wright in the chest, police said.

The assailant reportedly then reloaded the rifle and fired again, this time in the direction of Peterson, who was standing at the rear of the wrecker. The second shot, however, hit a piece of metal on the vehicle, wounding Peterson only with fragments.

Police said Wright fell from the wrecker, but managed to get up and run to a house across the street. Peterson ran past the armed resident to where Wright had fallen at the other house.

Officers, who arrived a short time later, arrested the suspect without incident.

EMS attendants labored over the victim near the front porch of the nearby residence and doctors at the hospital reportedly were able to revive him when his heart stopped a short time later. However, he was pronounced dead at 9:50 a.m.

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack, who ruled homicide in the death, said a partial autopsy would be performed later today to remove the bullet.

Cattle Poisonings Probed

Drought, Heat Creating Toxic Grasses

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — A lengthy drought combined with sustained high heat is turning grass in some of the state's cattle feeding pastures into a fatal poison, the Texas Veterinary Medical Association reported Thursday.

The association said a large number of cattle worth thousands of dollars had died from eating grass chemically altered by the heat and lack of moisture.

"We've seen cases in Navasota, Pleasanton, San Angelo, Decatur, Burnet and Ballinger, just to mention a few," said Dr. John Reagor at Texas A&M University. "It's a widespread problem."

Reagor, head diagnostic toxicologist at A&M's veterinary laboratory, said cattle grazing in drought-ridden pastures of johnson grass, sudan grasses or common sorghums run the risk of being poisoned by prussic acid, a type of cyanide.

He indicated the heat, lack of rain and the chemical composition of the grass combine to produce the poison.

"A rancher called me last week reporting 10 cows down," said Burleson veterinarian Dr. Harold Putnam. "I got there within 15 minutes and was able to save seven of the 10 but he lost a $2,500 investment within 30 minutes."

Reagor said the recent rains in some areas made the problem worse instead of better.

"The showers we've gotten in the last few days will only add to the problem," he said. "New growth will come on drought-stricken plants and cattlemen, eager to use every bit of forage available, may turn their cattle on it too soon.

"The prussic acid content of this new growth is extremely concentrated."

Reagor said cattlemen should wait two to three weeks before allowing cattle to graze on the new growth.

Another authority said the incidence of prussic acid this year was higher than in any recently. Dr. Ned Brown, director of the Diagostic Laboratory branch in Amarillo, said it was particularly bad in the Panhandle.

"Hot weather affects the respiratory system in cattle," he said. "Since they don't perspire, cattle breathe more rapidly to expell body heat. An older animal who has had respiratory problems in the past is more susceptible to prussic acid poisoning because the cyanide derivative of hemoglobin prevents the transport of oxygen by the blood."

Grain Sale Report Requirement Draws Bergland's Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Thursday he will fight a move to have commodities sales to foreign buyers reported to a second agency.

Any overseas sale of grain, for example, would be made public within 72 hours under an amendment to legislation reauthorizing the Commodity Futures Trading Commission for four years. The amendment was approved Wednesday.

The amendment would require exporters of any commodity traded on futures exchanges to tell the commission — within 48 hours of a sale — when the deal was made, how much was sold, the price, who bought it and what country will receive it.

The agency would have to make that information public the next day.

Then farmers and other traders will know "what's going on in the market" and the true demand for various crops from overseas buyers, argued Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, the sponsor.

Traders were able to buy surplus grain in 1972 at cheap prices through the futures markets without anyone knowing they had already sold it to Russian buyers, Smith said. Prices skyrocketed two months later but most farmers had already sold their wheat, he said.

Opponents said the Commodity Futures Trading Commission already has too much work and too small a staff to handle any more. Major sales already must be reported to the Agriculture Department, they noted.

The amendment was adopted by a 273-125 vote. The bill was passed later on a 401-6 vote. Differences between it and a Senate-passed bill must be resolved by conferees for the two houses.

Bergland told House Agriculture Committee leaders he will help keep the reporting rule out of the compromise version.

The commission, he said, "is supposed to regulate trading, not monitor the market."

Under present law, grain exporters must tell the Agriculture Department within 24 hours of any sale involving 100,000 metric tons or more.

The department announces the sales after markets close for the day but does not disclose the name of the exporter or the sale price.

The 4-year-old commission regulates the exchanges where contracts to buy or sell various commodities for future delivery are traded.

The legislation is designed to strengthen the powers of the agency and the states in combating fraud and other problems that have arisen in futures trading since 1974, sponsors said.

EXPORTS RECORD SHATTERED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of U.S. farm exports set a one-month record of more than $2.7 billion in May, says the Agriculture Department.

Insect Infestations Reported Light In Area's Feed Grains

Insect infestations on High Plains feed grain crops have been relatively light so far this season, Dr. Pat Morrison, area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said this week.

Greenbug populations on milo are increasing, he noted, but they are lighter than they have been for the past two years.

"If you planted greenbug resistant sorghum, give them a chance go show their stuff!" Morrison advised in a weekly insect report.

"If the field needs treating, then spray it," he said. "But if it doesn't, then don't."

Morrison said spider mites are present in some fields, while corn leaf aphids generally are declining as grain sorghum reaches the boot stage and begins to head. Some very high populations of beneficial lady beetles also have been noted, he added.

The entomologist said a few southwestern corn borers have been observed in sorghum. However, the occurrance is not unusual on the High Plains, he said.

In corn, meanwhile, second-generation southwestern corn borers continue to fly, said Morrison.

"We should be approaching the halfway point in the emergence of this generation of moths," he said. "Trap catches should continue to be reasonably high the rest of this month and then decline the first week in August."

If initial applications of insecticides for corn borer control have been made, Morrison suggested that fields be checked again to determine if new applications are necessary.

Heavy infestations of corn earworms have been reported, he said.

"It hasn't been unusual to find two or more eggs per ear during silking," said the extension spokesman. "But the silks are not attractive as an egg-laying site after they turn brown."

Morrison said that since corn earworms are "cannibalistic," only one per ear normally is found, although there can be more.

"Control in field corn usually is not recommended," he said.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MEMORY if not the first time ever, cotton entering the Commodity Credit Corp. loan program at High Plains warehouse points this year will have a higher rate than cotton "at average U. S. location."

The average location rate was announced last month at 48 cents per pound, effective Oct. 1. The rate for Lubbock area warehouses now has been set at 48.10 cents, or 48 cents per 480-pound net weight bale above the average.

In previous years, the Lubbock area rate has been from .03 to as much as .12 cents below the national average. No official explanation has been given for the 1978 turnaround, but it is presumed to be the result of changes in freight rates and volumes of production from the various sections of the Cotton Belt.

CALCULATIONS MADE BY THE PLAINS Cotton Growers, Inc. show that the combined effect of the higher 1978 base loan rate and a narrowing of quality differentials will be an increase from 1977 of about 3.65 cents per pound in the loan value for area producers.

A study of 1977 and 1978 premiums and discounts on grades and staples that normally make up more than 90 percent of the High Plains crop shows quality discounts from 25 points below those of last year to premiums reduced by 10 points. Also, low micronaire cottons will be discounted from five to 30 points less than in 1977.

The PCG cites as an example what often is referred to as the "average" High Plains quality, strict low middling light spot 31/32nds, 3.4 micronaire. Such cotton in 1978 will go into the loan at 41.90 cents per pound, compared with 38.25 last year.

THE REDUCTION IN DISCOUNTS for qualities below the base of strict low middling 1 1/16th inches is a first since 1972, PCG officials note, but this is the second year in a row that micronaire discounts have been reduced.

Initial loans on 1978 cotton, as in 1977, will expire 10 months from the first day of the month in which the loan is made. Then, unless in the 10th month the market price exceeds 130 percent of the previous 36-month market average, the loan can be extended another eight months.

Meanwhile, the USDA this week announced that the annual interest rate on cotton loans has been increased, effective immediately, to 7.75 percent from 6 percent.

The 6 percent rate has been in effect since April 1, 1977.

The interest rate on CCC loans for all other commodities was increased from 6 to 7 percent on June 13.

Cattle Futures Prices Plummet At Closing From Early Gains

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures broke in the final minutes to close off 77 points to up 40 points — with only distant October higher — Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Prices declined as much as 240 points from opening limit gains in all 1979 contracts. Sales were 31,820 cars.

Initial strength stemmed from the favorable trade reaction to Wednesday's cattle inventory report by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

However, floor sources felt the earlier advances were overdone and prices met resistance as local and commission house profit taking trimmed gains.

Wholesale beef was off one-half cent to one cent at 83 to 83 3/4 cents a pound. The six markets expect 3,450 head today.

Cash cattle were off 50 cents to $1, with the best top at $55 per hundredweight at Illinois direct. Slaughter was 138,000 head.

Feeder cattle futures came under pressure minutes before the close to finish in the lower end of wide trading ranges, off 45 to 77 points and up 67 points in distant January.

Prices slipped as much as 287 points in September from the opening limit gains across the board. Estimated volume was 3,781 contracts.

Traders said the market overreacted and was overbought after Wednesday's constructive tone to the cattle inventory report. Local and commission house liquidation followed the break in live cattle futures and erased gains in most contracts.

Grainmen Eye Court Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's wheat producers, who last year exported more than half of their crop, are poised to challenge in court a longshoremens proposed waterfront boycott of Soviet vessels.

A boycott "would violate existing labor laws and we would be forced to take vigorous legal action to protect the interests of our members," Glenn Moore, head of the National Association of Wheat Growers, warned Wednesday.

International Longshoremen's Association President Thomas Gleason, who has just returned from a European trip, did not respond to Moore's warning.

Wheat growers are dependent on wheat shipments to the Soviet Union, a third of which are to be moved by Soviet vessels under a five-year U.S.-Soviet wheat agreement.

Sales in the 1978-79 marketing year so far total 746,000 tons and 80 percent of the purchases remain to be shipped.

The union's executive council has authorized Gleason to begin a boycott of Soviet vessels by ILA members, which would interfere with Soviet grain trade at U.S. port locations.

The six markets expect 1,825 head today. Cash feeders were weak to up $2, with the best top at $77.25 at Oklahoma City.

Hog futures ended up 122 to 50 points, with October the strongest. The market opened sharply higher, following limit advances in pork belly and cattle futures, but came under pressure earlier from local selling and chart resistance. Estimated volume was 9,329 contracts.

Prices recovered late in the session, finishing near daily highs on local and commission house support. Strength in cash hams and hogs attracted support, traders said.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 2 1/2 cents at 81 1/2 to 83 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, a six-week high. The six markets expect 20,300 head today.

Cash hogs were steady to up $1, with the best top at $49. Slaughter was 267,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures finished up 177 to 15 points, off from the opening limit gain of 200 points across the board. Prices slipped as much as 302 points in nearby August earlier. Estimated volume was 9,329 contracts.

Strength was attributed to limit advances in cattle as well as sharply higher cash bellies. However, when cattle came off the limit, pork bellies met resistance under aggressive local liquidation but recovered near the close in most contracts.

Deliveries total 253 thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up two cents at 51 1/2 to 60 cents a pound, f.o.b. river, a 2 1/2-week low.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures closed mixed in slow trading Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Rain overnight in the corn and soybean belt and absence of the commercial buying that strengthened corn Wednesday left corn futures slightly weaker at the close and soybean futures mixed.

Favorable Midwest growing conditions continued to weigh on the market and trading was generally uncertain and directionless.

Reports of larger soybean meal crushings than a year ago and possible increases in meal exports by Brazil weakened the cash price for meal, but soybean oil purchases by professionals led to speculative trading.

A reported lack of demand for soybeans and lower cash prices for beans in parts of Illinois stimulated commercial and commission house selling. Price losses were restricted to more distant months and a late rally due to technical factors stabilized the market.

Favorable growing conditions and some commission house selling weighed heavily on corn prices Thursday, with a major exporter that bought grain Wednesday failing to reappear in the market. Speculative selling pushed corn prices still further downward.

Reports that Agriculture Secretary Bob Berglund may extend the deadline for the corn loan program in an effort to prop up sagging corn prices appeared to have little effect on the market.

Wheat prices held fairly steady in limited, mostly local trading.

Oat prices showed the only across-the-board increases with some commission house buying. Reports from commercial users that some new-crop oats are in poor condition had some effect.

At the close, soybeans were 1 cent lower to 2 cents higher, with August contracts quoted at $6.32½; wheat was 1 cent lower to ⅛ cent higher, September $3.15½; corn was 1½ to 2¾ cents lower, September $2.28¾; and oats were ½ cent higher across the board, September $1.23¾.

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was slow on Thursday. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy, but demand was light.

Growers sold mixed lots at 875 to 1,200 points over loan rates. Lowest grades and mikes brought the highest premiums over the loan.

Victims' Families Sue Coast Guard

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Two $1.5 million lawsuits have been filed against the U.S. Coast Guard by relatives of two of three persons killed when a rubber raft capsized in the Niagara River three years ago.

The suits were filed Wednesday by Mary Sawczyk of Niagara Falls, mother of Anthony J. Sawczyk, 25, and Althea G. Ross of Toronto, wife of David D. Ross, 37. Sawczyk, Ross, and Julia Martinez of Toronto were killed Aug. 29, 1975, when an inflatable rubber raft carrying 26 passengers capsized in the rapids between the Rainbow and Whirlpool bridges. The suits claim that the Coast Guard erroneously concluded that it had no jurisdiction to regulate the trips conducted by Niagara Gorge River Trips Inc.

U.S. Seeks Talks On Mideast Peace

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's only direct negotiating link with Egypt was severed Thursday while America's Mideast mediator moved to get the two countries talking face-to-face again about a Mideast peace settlement.

An Israeli military delegation, in Egypt since January, was ordered out of the country by President Anwar Sadat and flown back to Tel Aviv in an Egyptian jet liner.

Sadat, in a speech to university students in Alexandria, Egypt, said he had "deported" the Israeli group and, pounding on a podium, called the Arab territories occupied by Israel since the 1967 war "stolen land."

The Israeli Cabinet last Sunday rejected what it said was a proposal by Sadat that Israel return to Egypt two areas in the Sinai — the town of El Arish and Mount Sinai — as a goodwill gesture.

Sadat said he had told Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman at a recent meeting in Austria that El Arish would be a good place for peace talks, if Israel returned it to Egypt, and that he wanted to build a Jewish temple, a Moslem mosque and a Christian church on Mount Sinai as a symbol of peace. He said his statements were misinterpreted by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

"If I want to make an initiative, I make no secret about it," Sadat said. "There was no initiative."

He said the Israeli military delegation had relayed a message from Begin on the Cabinet decision, but he rejected the letter, sent it back unopened and expelled the 10-member Israeli delegation.

In Tel Aviv, Col. Yaacov Heychal, commander of the Israeli delegation that stayed in Egypt after peace talks broke down in January, said after arriving at Ben Gurion Airport; "This is not the end, only the beginning of a process." The Israeli delegation was said to be used occasionally to transmit peace feelers.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Thomas Reston said officials would have preferred that Israelis had not been expelled "because of the interpretation that may be placed on it."

Expects Negotiations

But Reston declined to interpret the Egyptian action, saying, "I don't believe it is going to be useful for me to characterize each development." He added he still expects new Israeli-Egyptian negotiations to be held next month.

Meanwhile, Arab foreign ministers said they have agreed on the basis for a possible Middle East peace platform after meeting at the conference of non-aligned nations in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Details of the proposal weren't disclosed, but it is the first joint Arab peace effort that includes Egypt since Sadat took his lone initiative to Jerusalem last year.

Progress Speculated

After the meeting, Atherton said there still is a chance to make progress in Mideast negotiations but declined to comment on Sadat's decision to kick the Israelis out of Egypt.

"There would be great utility in having further talks and the opportunity to make progress in these talks is still here," Atherton said.

The U.S. envoy, on the third stop of his current Mideast shuttle, said he brought no messages to Begin fom Saudi Araba or Jordan, where he held talks earlier this week. He is to go to Egypt today.

Washington hopes the mission will lead to a resumption of direct Israel-Egypt talks in about two weeks, when U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is to travel to the Middle East.

Meeting Hoped

The American aim is to get the foreign and defense ministers of both Israel and Egypt together with Vance as chairman, probably at a U.S. surveillance station in the Sinai Peninsula.

Begin dismissed the expulsion of the delegation as a minor matter.

"They don't have a central role," Begin said on television Wednesday night after the Egyptian decision was announced. But observers here and in Egypt saw the expulsion as a signal of Egyptian impatience for a change in Israel's negotiating position.

The conservative newspaper Maariv said the move was a sample of Sadat's "theatrical diplomacy."

"Shamefully Expelled"

The right-wing newspaper Yediot Ahronot said in an editorial that Israel should have withdrawn the delegation earlier, saying, "Now the delegation has been shamefully expelled, and Israel is swallowing the spif in the face happily."

In Amman, King Hussein of Jordan and Egyptan Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel met to review the latest developments in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Kamel said he delivered a message to Hussein from Sadat, apparently dealing with the deadlock in the peace dialogues.

Hardline Arab powers condemn Sadat's unilateral peace overtures toward Israel and insist on returning to the Geneva Mideast peace talks to arrange a comprehensive peace treaty under joint U.S.-Soviet sponsorship. Jordan reportedly favors the Geneva conference plan.

Farm, Minority Vote Sought By Candidate

natural gas prices and said Tower has eliminated the possibility of that kind of national support for his programs.

"Can you imagine him going to Ralph Metcalfe and saying, 'Ralph, I didn't vote for you to be able to eat in public restaurants, but I sure would like your help on natural gas'?" he asked.

He later told the Mexican-American steering committee he thought it very important that representatives of all minority groups be employed in all levels of employment and schools.

After acknowledging the recent Bakke decision, he said he still believed "that it is necessary to make adjustments and special considerations in placing minorities in schools and employement."

Krueger drew the analogy of instances he recalled when he was teacher that it was a known and unquestionable fact that "perhaps a seven-foot basketball player or 250-pound football player who was deficient in his grades continued to play because adjustments were made.

"The total spectrum of the individual as well as the position and circumstances must be considered," he said.

Krueger said that one-fourth of his staff is Mexican-American and he promised the same ratio on his Senate staff if elected.

At the Hilton Inn, Krueger said the United States has the lowest level of capital investment of any industrialized country and should reduce its capital gains tax from 50 percent at least to 35 percent to promote investment.

Saying American industry is no longer competitive in many fields, he remarked that most of the cassette recorders and television cameras in the room were Japanese-made.

The congressman was asked if, as Tower has claimed, he has too much union support and is not strongly in favor of the right-to-work law.

"I have always supported the right-to-work law, and if John Tower didn't know that, he does now," Krueger said.

"I don't believe in ruling people out because they're union members. The last thing we need in a senator is division.

"You can't satisfy everybody, but of course you can try to represent them."

He also said the public revolt against high taxes makes two statements to the national government: "No. 1 is, 'Look, government, you don't have to do everything for us'; and 2 is, 'You've been telling for years that you're going to reduce taxes, and now we're taking it into our own hands.'"

A woman supporter read a telegram of support for his candidacy from retiring U.S. Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock as the conference was ending.

"With his departure," the candidate said, "one wonders if the giants are leaving the land."

Tax Relief Package Advances

stead of a family or single adult" and defined that as meaning that personal property exempt from forced sale for debt.

"This means they can't tax your household goods and furnishings, two family automobiles and any of the tools you use to make a living," he said.

An amendment that would have the agricultural land exemption apply only to family farms lost 15-14.

Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, offered 14 amendments in an attempts to put tax limitations in the bill. Efforts to put a 5 or 10 percent limit on tax increases without a vote of the people failed 20-9. Efforts to let voters repeal a tax increase failed 18-11. Attempts to require that a tax increase must be approved by at least two-thirds of a governing body failed by the same margin.

Sen. Bob Price, R-Pampa, tried to exempt "agriculture livestock," assessed at about $286 million in 1977. He admitted this would include all cattle in feedlots, "and on the King Ranch and on Governor Briscoe's ranch." The move failed 17-12.

"Good Resolution"

"I think this is a good resolution," said Aikin, retiring dean of the Senate. "If we can submit it to the peple it will be at least some tax relief."

House debate over its version of the constitutional amendment included prolonged discussion of whether corporations should get the same tax break as family farmers.

Those favoring giving corporations a crack at productivity valuation, led by lawmakers from timber-growing areas of East Texas, finally prevailed, 94-49.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, said big timber and paper corporations that own tree farms in East Texas were "trying to piggyback" on a proposal designed to keep families on the farm.

Retaliation Feared

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, said if the timber companies are cut out, they might retaliate by financing a campaign in the big cities to defeat the whole tax relief package at the polls.

"I think they probably would try to defeat this if they are not allowed to piggyback it," Bryant said. "You may be intimidated by it, but I'm not."

"I know you are not intimidated by the tenor of your voice, that righteous indignation," Davis shot back.

Without objection, the House approved an amendment preserving the existing agricultural exemption for families that earn 51 percent of their income from farming or ranching.

Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, said while many farmers have not taken advantage of the present exemption, which taxes rural land on productivity, those in areas with soaring real estate values have.

Wilson's amendment also says timber lands cannot be taxed less than they are this year.

Heiress Must Pay Bill For Limousines

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton has been ordered to pay the remaining $12,000 of a $33,000 chauffeur's bill she ran up between Jan. 1, 1976, and Feb. 14, 1977.

Superior Court Judge Leo S. Rich issued the ruling Wednesday on behalf of the Ambassador Limousine Service, which had won an original ruling last year. The company said the 65-year-old heiress, also known as Princess Barbara Doahue d'Annam, failed to make her July payment.

House Panel Okays $16 Billion Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee approved on Thursday a $16.2 billion tax cut bill that includes a new tax break for persons who sell their homes and a sharp reduction in the tax on capital gains.

The bill bears little resemblance to the measure recommended by President Carter, who has vigorously opposed the capital gains cut.

The measure was approved on a 25-12 vote. A bare majority of the 25 committee Democrats joined all 12 Republicans in endorsing the compromise, which was written principally by Rep. James Jones, D-Okla.

House debate on the bill is expected the week of Aug. 7.

The Joint Committee on Taxation calculates that the bill would result in a $15 tax cut in 1979 for a typical single person who earns $10,000 a year and has itemized deductions of 23 percent of income.

A $15,000-a-year single person would get a $71 tax cut; a $25,000 single, a $160 cut. A couple with no children would average a $39 cut at the $10,000 level, $6 at the $15,000 level and $160 at the $25,000 level.

A couple with two children at the $10,000 level would get a $62 cut; $77 at the $15,000 level and $232 at $25,000.

Key parts of the bill would:

— Widen individual income-tax brackets to help offset the effects of inflation and reduce some individual tax rates.

— Increase the $2,200 standard deduction for single persons and the $3,200 standard deduction for joint returns to $2,300 and $3,400.

— Repeal the existing $35-per-person tax credit and raise the current $750-per-person exemption to $1,000.

— Repeal the current deduction allowed for state and local gasoline taxes and tighten the deduction allowed for medical expenses.

— Reduce taxes on corporate income by about $3.5 billion, by cutting tax rates and liberalizing the investment tax credit.

— Exempt from taxation the first $100,000 worth of profit that is realized when a person's principal home, owned and occupied for two years or more, is sold.

— Reduce from about 49.1 percent to about 35 percent the theoretical maximum tax on capital gains, which are profits from the sale of assets, such as land and stocks, that were owned for a year or more. Virtually all the $1.2 billion of benefits would go to high-income Americans.

— Create a new "alternative tax" aimed at ensuring that wealthy persons who realize large capital gains will pay at least some tax.

A person could take advantage of the new tax break for homeowners only once in a lifetime.

Two-thirds of the tax reduction, costing about $750 million a year, would go to persons with annual incomes of $15,000 to $50,000. Those earning $30,000 to $50,000 would get about one-third of the benefit. The remaining one-third would go to persons earning less than $15,000 or over $50,000.

The provision was approved as the committee sought to wrap up work on a tax cut bill that has been stymied by the panel's inability to agree on how much of a tax reduction to vote for capital gains.

In other action, the committee, reversing an earlier decision, defeated an amendment that would have allowed those who take the standard deduction on their income tax returns to deduct charitable contributions separately from taxable income. The vote was 22 to 15.

Reps. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., and Joseph Fisher, D-Va., offered the amendment as an incentive for more Americans to contribute to charity.

Plight Of Waterless City Area Pondered

ing building at the Lubbock International Airport and for parking and roadway improvements at the facility. The parking building is expected to cost about $1.6 million and the roadway improvements are about $606,000.

However, the council took no action on bids for airconditioning and heating the Godeke Library and for the purchase of tennis court lighting equipment.

Library service and parks and recreation are high on a priority list of potential budget cuts prepared by City Mgr. Larry Cunningham.

Also Thursday the council heard residents of the Yellowhouse Canyon addition southeast of Lubbock describe their lack of water for days and weeks at a time.

About 15 of the addition's residents presented a petition to the council containing 71 signatures asking to be annexed so they can receive city water.

Although council members were sympathetic to the plight of the waterless residents, any council action must go through channels and it looks like a long, hot summer before the water situation is resolved.

Robert L. Gibson of 4215 E. 61st St. told the council the lack of water from a private water system has "totally paralyzed the area with fear.

"Not having water has plagued the neighborhood the past two summers, and often there is no water in fire hydrants or in mains," Gibson said.

When there is no water, residents must "travel across town to take baths or to get water for sanitary purposes. We can't run our air conditioning or care for our yards or gardens," he said.

"It's reducing our lifestyle to primitive levels."

Willie Washington, director of the Lubbock County General Assistance Agency, described the water situation as "dangerous and critical."

Residents say they have not been able to learn who owns the private water company, and they also said there are rumors that one of two wells supplying water to the addition has gone dry.

The Planning and Zoning Commission, which must take up all annexation requests, will consider the Yellowhouse Canyon residents' plea to be added to the city as a "high priority item." The commission will then recommend action on the request to the City Council.

While the matter is under consideration, city officials will investigate the possibility of selling area residents emergency water. However, that action would require an agreement with a private system owner.

In other action Thursday, council members decided to give home builders a six-month trial period to bury electric cables directly underground rather than enclosed in a plastic conduit as required by city ordinance.

Henry Huneke, representing the West Texas Home Builders Association, said the conduit is too expensive and does not adequately protect the cable as it is supposed to do.

Under the agreement with the home builders, electric cable between alley and house would be buried three feet underground, rather than two feet as is presently required. Huneke also promised his organization would police cable burial to prevent future accidental service cutoffs.

The council postponed action on two appeals of Planning and Zoning Commission decisions denying zone changes to allow gasoline service at convenience stores in residential areas.

Currently such gas sales are permitted only in a C-3 general retail district but council members want the commission to look into allowing convenience store gas sales as a specific use in the C-2 zones.

Any action on the two zone case appeals will come after the recommended change in the zoning ordinance.

The council set two public hearings on Aug. 10. A proposed ordinance regulating substandard housing will be the subject of a 5 p.m. hearing and at 5:30 p.m. citizen comment will be accepted on a community development block grant program.

Postal Union Set To Vote within a week, and it will take at least another three weeks before results are known.

Asked what would happen if perhaps one of the unions did not ratify the contract, APWU spokesman Stan Allen said, "I don't know. It's never happened before."

The other unions are the National Association of Letter Carriers, Rural Letter Carrriers Association, and Mailhandlers division of Laborers' International.

Meanwhile, postal officials here said wildcat strikes by union members at bulk mail facilities serving New York and California were abating and operations were close to normal.

The Postal Service has sent letters of dismissal to 112 employees at the centers for participating in the walkouts, said David McLean, a Postal Service spokesman.

He said the centers do not handle first class mail.

New York Aid Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Thursday approved and sent to President Carter a compromise $1.65 billion loan guarantee package intended to save New York City from bankruptcy.

The president is expected to sign the bill soon. His administration lobbied hard for its passage.

The 58-35 Senate vote brought to a close the city's long, often uphill struggle in Congress for renewed federal aid.

Earlier this week, the House approved the final version of the legislation, produced by a House-Senate conference committee, by a 244-157 vote.

The legislation in effect provides insurance to New York's municipal pension funds so they will invest in the city. Fund managers had refused to invest unless their investment was protected.

The city's fiscal future grew even brighter later Thursday when representatives of the city and its unions and financial institutions announced conditional commitments to lend the city $2.55 billion. As part of the city's $4.5 billion, four-year financial plan, an additional $1.95 billion is to be raised by public sale of $1 billion of Municipal Assistance Corp. bonds and $950 million of city bonds.

New York has been unable to sell its bonds on the public market. Its last offering in November failed. The city thus has been unable to raise the cash it needs for long-term spending projects.

Solon Lags In Car Tax Payments

districts rely on auto taxes for as much as 30 percent of their local revenue.

The Senate has passed a proposed amendment that would provide a two-car exemption, Salinas said. After a compromise is worked out between the two chambers, the proposed constitutional amendment would go to voters.

Lubbock has an automobile tax roll of about $86 million. The roll is supposed to generate about $1.3 million for the school district and $1.2 million for the city a year. However, in any one year, the tax office typically collects only 50-60 percent of its auto tax levy because of taxpayer resistance.

The office says 20-30 percent more eventually is collected as delinquent.

John Brooks, city-school tax assessor-collector, said a one-car exemption would be an "administrative nightmare. If a family owns four cars, which one should be considered exempt? And which family members would you include as part of the family?"

Abolishment Favored

Rather than make exemptions, Brooks said he'd prefer that the legislature abolish the auto tax.

Salinas said that is exactly his goal.

"My hope is that because of the administrative problems in exempting one or two cars, all cities and school districts would see it in their wisdom to do away with this unfair tax altogether," he said.

Fingers Misprinted New Yellow Pages

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Fingers walked through the just-delivered Yellow Pages and found errors — so many that South Central Bell says 500,000 books will have to be reprinted.

Company spokesman J. Mac Jones said a computer malfunction caused at least 200 misprints in the business advertising section of the Greater Birmingham telephone directory.

He said the company is writing all customers who advertised in the Yellow Pages asking them to check their listings. Errors, he said, should be reported by Aug. 15.

Only the Yellow Pages will be reprinted. Jones said the regular white pages, which have been handled by computers for years, appear to be accurate.

Measure Approved For Public Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Thursday passed legislation authorizing $2.1 billion for federal public lands programs over the next four years.

The spending ceilings set under the bill would govern Bureau of Land Management programs concerning mineral leasing, range improvements and soil, water and wildlife conservation.

Ex-Garbagemen Protest Firings In San Antonio

tions of southside routes Tuesday, smashing the windshields and slightly injuring two workers. The threats also escalated Tuesday, prompting the added police protection and a 10-day, temporary restraining order against the ex-workers.

Residents of the relatively affluent north side, some of whom have been forced for five days to take their bundles of trash to trucks at city parks, enjoyed a second day of partial trash collection Thursday.

The North Loop Service Center, which serves the north side, is a SARCA stronghold.

More than half of San Antonio's 313 garbagemen walked off the job Saturday after the city council approved a 6 percent wage hike for all city employees. SARCA had sought a 9.3 percent hike for its members.

Huebner fired 106 strikers within hours of the Saturday walkout. He fired about 35 others on Monday when they refused to work, saying they feared for their safety.

Twenty-two dog catchers and 15 airport maintenance workers were fired Tuesday.

SARCA members had staged a two-day walkout in May over wages and working conditions. It ended when the city promised to ease the conditions and give the garbagemen priority on the city budget.

San Antonio garbagemen now earn an average of $759 per month. The starting salary is $3.15 per hour for trash collectors and $3.28 per hour for drivers.

Residents of this city of 800,000 pay $1.50 per month for thrice-weekly garbage pickup. The council voted last week to double the fee.

Surviving Siamese Twin 'Critical But Stable'

DALLAS (AP) — A 3-week-old girl, whose Siamese twin died Wednesday night after a seven-hour operation to separate them, was "in critical but stable" condition Thursday in Children's Medical Center in Dallas.

The two girls were joined through the lower chest, through some abdominal organs and at one leg. They shared a liver, intestinal tract, bladder and leg.

"It's about the worst connection you could have," said Dr. William Dammert, a surgeon who assisted in the operation.

The twin who died, identified by hospital personnel as "Baby B," died of "severe respiratory insufficiency, plus multiple birth defects," a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

In the operation, the liver and intestine were separated, and baby A received the bladder while B was fitted with a medical "appliance." The shared leg was used only for skin covering, leaving each child with only one leg.

Dr. Ted Votteler, a pediatric surgeon, headed a team of about 40 doctors, nurses and others who assisted in the operation. Votteler said until infant B died, the operation appeared to be the first successful one of its kind in Dallas.

Hospital officials said separation of Siamese twins normally is delayed until the children are 1 or 2. The operation was attempted in this case when the infants were only 3 weeks old because infant B was having problems that were causing deterioration of the condition of infant A, Votteler said.

He had said after the operation the chances of survival were slim for infant B.

"In this circumstance, we'd be very pleased to have one baby survive," Votteler said shortly after the operation. Infant B died at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Siamese twins occur about once in every 60,000 births, Votteler said, with the majority stillborn.

Hospital officials declined to disclose the parents' names. They said the mother is about 25 and a Texan.

Top theatrical motion pictures, and more than 75 hours of mini-series and World Premiere movies will fill the NBC-TV 1978-'79 schedule.

Even Beauty Queens Need Padding, Too

CHICAGO (AP) — Beneath their one-piece swimsuits, many beauty queens have less than meets the eye, says a man who has fit suits for dozens of Miss America contestants.

"Eighty percent of those I've fitted don't have enough top and need help — the bosoms are faked up a little bit," says Morris Greenblatt, who can make a good body look great in doctored bathing suits.

Greenblatt, a small, graying man of 68 who owns Fashionette Swimsuit World, has 10,000 swimming suits in about 200 varieties in stock at his store. Many are of his own design.

He has been in the business since 1938 and fits state winners from Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan for swimsuit competition in the Miss America contest, a separate class of judging.

"I've had three winners in that class of judging in the last five years," he said.

"But in all my years, I've only seen six girls with what I would call perfect bodies and none of them were contestants. They just came in off the street to buy a swimsuit. A perfect body to me is one that fits into any swimsuit."

Greenblatt has suits with halters, "T" backs, criss-crosses and high backs. Color schemes and designs are rampant. All are meshed by Greenblatt to bring out the best and diminish the worst of a body.

There also are foam rubber breast "shells" and angle pads and built-in fiber fillers to create cleavage.

"For the last two years these have been legal to wear in Miss America contests," says Greenblatt, who is divorced. "A good bosom is the first thing needed for a contestant to balance herself. When she comes to me I ask her height, weight and cup size — and from that I know from experience the swim- suit for her. Usually, the first one she tries on is it.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible.

Mark 10:41-52, 11:1-6, The Living Bible

41 When the other disciples discovered what James and John had asked, they were very indignant.
42 So Jesus called them to Him and said, "As you know, the kings and great men of the earth lord it over the people;
43 But among you it is different. Whoever wants to be great among you must be your servant.
44 And whoever wants to be greatest of all must be the slave of all.
45 For even I, the Man from Heaven, am not here to be served, but to help others, and to give My life as a ransom for many."
46 And so they reached Jericho. Later, as they left town, a great crowd was following. Now it happened that a blind beggar named Bartimaeus (the son of Timaeus) was sitting beside the road as Jesus was going by.
47 When Bartimaeus heard that Jesus from Nazareth was near, he began to shout out, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"
48 "Shut up!" some of the people yelled at him. But he only shouted the louder, again and again, "O Son of David, have mercy on me!"
49 When Jesus heard him He stopped there in the road and said, "Tell him to come here." So they called the blind man. "You lucky fellow," they said, "come on, He's calling you!"
50 Bartimaeus yanked off his old coat and flung it aside, jumped up and came to Jesus.
51 "What do you want Me to do for you?" Jesus asked. "O Teacher," the blind man said, "I want to see!"
52 And Jesus said to him, "All right, it's done. Your faith has healed you." And instantly the blind man could see, and followed Jesus down the road!

CHAPTER 11

1 As they neared Bethphage and Bethany on the outskirts of Jerusalem and came to the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two of His disciples on ahead.
2 "Go into that village over there," He told them, "and just as you enter you will see a colt tied up that has never been ridden. Untie him and bring him here.
3 And if anyone asks you what you are doing, just say, 'Our Master needs him and will return him soon.'"
4,5 Off went the two men and found the colt standing in the street, tied outside a house. As they were untying it, some who were standing there demanded, "What are you doing, untying that colt?"
6 So they said what Jesus had told them to, and then the men agreed.

Man Gives Away Silver Dollars—One At A Time

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "God, I loved it. I just loved it," sighed millionaire Percy Ross as he collapsed into the back seat of a convertible after throwing away $16,500 in silver dollars.

Ross distributed the money as he rode in the Minneapolis Aquatennial torchlight parade Wednesday night. Sitting atop the car trunk, he flung the dollars to screaming youngsters in the crowd.

A dozen security guards made sure that no unsavory types tried to rush the car and make off with the money Ross was distributing. Thousands of children ran alongside the car shouting, "Percy, Percy, over here. Please, Mr. Ross!"

The suburban Edina man said it was so much fun "I wish we could turn around and do it again."

An admitted egomaniac, Ross gives lavish parties for friends and business associates. And last Christmas Eve, he played host to 1,000 disadvantaged children and gave each of them a new bicycle.

After that party, friends nicknamed Ross "the Jewish Santa Claus." He also was dubbed "honorary Swede of the year" and invited to ride in the Aquatennial parade. The parade is part an annual celebration of summer held in Minneapolis.

"Even though I'm not Swedish that's the nicest honor I've ever gotten," he said.

Partly in appreciation for the honor and also because he likes children, Ross decided to give away silver dollars at the night parade. He first planned to give away $15,000 but later bagged more for good measure. It would be sad to run out during the parade, he reasoned.

Ross made every effort to throw the money so it could be recovered by children, but there was no effort made to keep adults away.

The son of an immigrant who failed at several businesses, Ross himself failed at several ventures in his early years. But in 1958 he bought a floundering plastics company. Ross and his son made the business prosper and, before long, they sold out for $8 million. From then on, Ross has been a wheeler and dealer. He now heads Ross Investment Co. in suburban Bloomington.

"John D. Rockefeller Sr. used to give out dimes during the Depression," Ross said. "They'd be worth a dollar today."

AGROUND BUT NOT GROUNDED — The largest cargo ship ever to visit the Port of Corpus Christi attracted crowds of onlookers curious to see if the 994-foot Resolute could be successfully pivoted in the 1,000-foot-wide turning basin. With bow lowered and stern raised, the ship's bulbous bow nosed into mud at the edge of the water as the ship was turned lengthwise across the turning basin. The turn was quickly completed with the aid of four tugboats. (AP Laserphoto)

Lebanon Exodus Urged

BEIRUT (AP) — The United States advised Americans in Lebanon Thursday to leave the war-ravaged country unless they have pressing business that requires their presence.

In the first such move since the 1975-76 civil war, the U.S. Embassy also said it is sending home its diplomatic dependents.

An embassy spokesman said there are no plans at this time to order an evacuation of all American citizens and their dependents.

At the height of the civil war between Christian Lebanese and an alliance of left-wing Lebanese Moslems and Palestinians in the summer of 1976, The embassy spokesman said there are between 1,500 and 2,000 Americans in Lebanon, including 150 diplomatic personnel and their dependents, and businessmen, teachers, students and journalists.

Six remaining families of embassy employees will leave by commercial aircraft within the week, the spokesman said.

The Lebanese government is known to have feared the prospect of such a move by any government, believing it would create a chain reaction of panic in the already shrunken foreign community.

There was no initial reaction from the Lebanese government of President Elias Sarkis. Reliable sources said the U.S. government had not yet informed Lebanese officials of the advisory.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Ken Brown said: "In view of the fighting in Beirut we have decided it would be prudent to reduce our embassy staff and send out dependents.

"On such occasions, it's customary to inform the American community .... It was our feeling that it was a reasonable precaution to take in view of the recent fighting. It is not a response to any particular development but to an accumulation of factors over the preceding months."

News of the American advisory, the first by a foreign government since the civil war, came during an uneasy lull in clashes between Syrian army troops and right-wing Christian militias in the southeastern Beirut suburb of Hadass.

Syrian guns fell silent Wednesday after five nights of heavy bombardment of rightist positions in Hadass, a hilltop town of 17,000 Christians.

The latest clash on the outskirts of the city was the fourth between Syrians and Christians this year. The Syrian government has vowed to bring the "criminal gangs" — its characterization of the right-wing parties and their militias — to their knees.

Right-wing Phalangist and National Liberal parties have said they would continue to resist domination by the Syrians, who make up the bulk of a pan-Arab peacekeeping army of 30,000 troops.

The most recent clashes, which began early this month, have killed an estimated 214 Lebanese in East Beirut and Hadass and wounded 665, according to the police. Most were civilian victims of Syrian rocket and artillery fire, but scores of Lebanese reportedly have been killed by sniper fire.

Thousands of East Beirut residents have fled to the mountains in the north or left the country, and in recent weeks, the American and other Western embassies have had long lines of Lebanese trying to get visas.

Loss Of Support Ousts Portugal Prime Minister

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Antonio Ramalho Eanes removed Socialist Prime Minister Mario Soares Thursday after Soares lost the support of his coalition's conservatives.

"I have been dismissed," Soares told reporters at the president's pink stucco palace in Belem outside Lisbon. "I and my government shall cease our functions immediately. I shall never be prime minister again."

Soares was a key figure in Portugal's return to democracy after 36 years of rightist dictatorship.

The 53-year-old leader of the Portugese Socialist Party said he would not continue as caretaker prime minister although legal experts said he was obliged to do so. "Tomorrow I shall return to Belem only in my capacity as Socialist leader," Soares said.

One hour after Soares spoke to reporters, presidential spokesman Henrique Granadeiro said Soares would continue until a new government could be formed. Granadeiro, reading a statement to reporters, said Eanes would begin consultations Friday for a new government. There was no word on who might be chosen as Soares' successor.

The spokesman made no reference to Soares's stated refusal to serve as a caretaker — a refusal that could push Portugal into a constitutional crisis.

Soares' government crumbled after its junior coalition partner, the conservative Social Democratic Center Party, withdrew support in a dispute over farm policy.

Loss of the conservatives' 41 seats in the unicameral Legislative Assembly sliced away Soares' coalition majority in the 263-seat chamber. His socialists hold 102 seats won in elections in June 1976.

Soares had given the conservatives three cabinet seats in exchange for their support. The conservative ministers of foreign affairs, trade and tourism, and administrative reform quit last weekend, touching off the latest political crisis.

"I have tried to do the best for my country always," Soares said about the failure of his second government.

It came to power in January, nearly two months after the fall of Soares' minority Socialist administration. The minority government was defeated by an alliance of conservatives, pro-Soviet Communists and center-right Social Democrats in a parliamentary vote of confidence.

The latest government was the eighth since a revolution ended 36 years of dictatorship under Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

Soares had said he planned to resign after the three conservatives quit his Cabinet, but his party's policymakers had urged him to continue.

The crisis expanded over the weekend. It followed repeated conservative claims that Soares' government was delaying return of lands seized by peasants in the months following the revolution. The conservatives demanded Soares replace Agriculture Minister Luis Saias, who they claimed was collaborating secretly with the Communists to stall return of the farmland to its legal owners.

Soares said he would not give in to "blackmail," and accused the conservatives of trying to wreck democracy in Portugal.

The Social Democratic Center Party, led by law professor Diogo Freitas do Amaral, 37, was formed in July 1974. It won 16 percent of the vote in the 1976 assembly elections, narrowly beating the Communists for third place. The Socialists won 35 percent and the Popular Democratic Party, a center-right group, placed second with 24 percent.

'Growth Recession' Possible

PARIS (AP) — The major Western nations face a period of "growth recession" unless they fulfill promises made at the recent Bonn summit conference, an authoritative economic study warned Thursday.

John Fay, economic chief of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, defined "growth recession" as continued increases in economic growth but not at a pace fast enough to offset rising unemployment in the industrialized West.

Fay and the OECD secretariat here set forth this bleak assessment as the 24-nation policy group released its semi-annual survey of the world economy.

The survey was prepared before the Bonn summit, where President Carter assured America's European economic partners he would press for significant cutbacks in domestic energy consumption. Japan promised to reduce its trade surplus, and West Germany said it would speed up its economy, measures advocated by American economists.

Fay said that if the Bonn decisions, and those taken at an OECD ministers meeting in June, were broadly and quickly implemented, world economic growth could increase more than the 3.25 percent the OECD predicts for the first half of 1979.

"It is clear that we need measures to stimulate domestic demand faster than we had anticipated," Fay said.

Regarding the United States, the OECD report praised the recent reduction in U.S. unemployment but expressed concern about inflation, which it said could accelerate to 7.5 percent in the first six months of next year.

"The danger that inflation in the U.S. may be increasing without ever having been brought down to the rates achieved by the more successful countries is particularly disturbing," the report said.

The survey said that in the OECD area as a whole, inflation will remain at a high level by historical standards, with price growth slowing to an annual rate of 7 percent in the first half of next year, compared with 7.25 percent in the whole of 1978.

"What we are experiencing now is strikingly familiar to the situation in 1976 and 1977 when a short-lived pick-up tailed off as the effects of government stimulus faded before private investment took over," Fay said.

The recent revival in demand in Japan and West Germany was likely to peter out with the conclusion of those countries' attempts at fiscal stimulation, the OECD said.

"The deceleration in demand at present forecast in the first half of 1979 may be considered appropriate for the U.S. but not in most other cases," the survey said.

Fay said an OECD computer simulation showed that with quick implementation of the Bonn proposals, growth for the whole OECD area could attain an "ideal" annual rate of 4.5 percent in the first half of 1979, Fay said. This rate would permit stabilization or even a decline in unemployment.

But the survey said that "on balance, given the policies in place at the end of June, growth is more likely to fall short of the present forecasts than to exceed them."

The OECD predicted that, due to some further trade gains, the OECD area's external current account deficit appears likely to be almost halved from around $32 billion last year to $17 billion in 1978, and to continue at much the same rate over the first half of 1979.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Think out how to improve your position in life and get good results. Don't argue with loved ones. Handle credit matters well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good time to gain a favor from a good friend. Enjoy quiet pleasure. Not a good day or evening for group meetings.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure you handle outside affairs wisely and early or you could be the loser. Handle that credit affair wisely and better your position in life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Off early to the interests that appeal to you and get much done, even though later you may be tired and not feel so enthused.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An early start at your work and cooperating with others makes this a banner day for you. Make good plans with loved one early.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make that plan that will meet with the approval of partners and then carry through enthusiastically. A situation arises that does not please you, but take care of it enthusiastically.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Schedule activities early so that you accomplish the most in a minimum of time, and with less effort. Co-workers are not in a good mood. Ignore them and keep working.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make amusement plans early and then concentrate on work before you. Show loyalty for your closest tie.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find the best way to have harmony with those at home and be kind and understanding. Not a good day for inviting outsiders into your home. Take it easy this evening and rest.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care of errands early. You can make improvements to daily routines tomorrow, but not now, when you cannot understand the errors.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will quickly understand anything that is of a practical nature, so make sure to send to the right schools. A good family person here, and one who will love children.

Hobos Fly To Annual Convention Site

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Gone are the Depresssion-era days when adventurous tramps with bandanna knapsacks camped along America's railroad tracks and hopped freight trains. Now, they drive — or even fly.

This year, they're coming in "flying boxcars" to the 70th annual Knights of the Road, Air and Seven Seas convention in Anchorage.

King-emperor Gordon "Bud" Filer and Queen-empress Garnette Hamilton are presiding.

"I had a hard time getting connections out of Chicago," Filer said. "It takes so long to get up here.

"At first, we worried that people wouldn't come; but they're coming in from all over — Pennsylvania, Ohio, Alabama."

They plan a Hobo Ball Friday night and a luncheon Saturday, featuring, of course, Mulligan stew.

The event has been held every year since the first hobo king-emperor, Jeff Davis, organized the " knights of the road" in 1908. He wrote 30 years later: "What is a hobo? Well, believe it or not, a hobo is neither a tramp nor a bum... In search of opportunity, he travels from place to place hoping to fit in somewhere."

Miss Hamilton adds: "A hobo really is a transient worker, but he will work. A bum doesn't want to work and won't work."

She said Davis had left home at the age of 12 and spent most of his life "traveling."

"He met some guys on the road," she said. "They liked each other and agreed to meet the next Christmas in Miami. Eight of them showed up. The next year there were several hundred."

Filer said the organization expanded to more than 300,000 during the Depression.

"That's when it started up," he said. "More people were on the road."

That is a prerequisite to becoming a member of the hobo organization; you have to have riden the railroads and have become known to the other "bo's." Filer said more than 1 million people have been card-carrying hoboes. But he said the number now is down to a few thousand. And it's a tight-knit group.

The hoboes held a registration session Wednesday at room 218 of the Anchorage Holiday Inn. They all look older than 50 and could be mistaken for any Alaska tourist group.

Perhaps the most colorful was Frisco Joe, gray at the temples and wearing a red bandanna held together at the neck with a clasp that says "Southern Pacific Lines." He looks out the window at the azure blue waters of Cook Inlet.

"This place is rough," he says. "The price of beer and whiskey is way up here. I hope somebody brought a case of something or other."

Mansion Crumbling

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The terra cotta balustrades of Rosecliff, where scenes from the movie "The Great Gatsby" were filmed, are crumbling and causing concern for the owners of the historic mansion.

John G. Winslow, president of the Preservation Society of Newport County, said architects have been brought to Newport to inspect the mansion and estimate the cost of repairs. "Apparently it will cost close to a $1 million figure," said a preservation society spokeswoman. "People don't realize how much money you have to spend to keep these up."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please give me some information about P.A.T. My son, who is 22, has it and is under a doctor's care. But I was wondering how he can take care of himself with this. How much activity can he do? He was told to keep doing everything as usual, but we are still worried. — Mrs. V.F.

"P.A.T." stands for "paroxysmal atrial tachycardia," which sounds ominous, but really isn't. Tachycardia is a "run" of rapid beats. Paroxysmal runs are those that come on abruptly and end abruptly. The atrium is the heart chamber (upper) where your son's originates.

They can occur at any age, and in an otherwise normal heart they can be little more than a nuisance. They can be scary, though. If he hasn't done so already, your son should ask his doctor about certain breathing techniques he might use to stop them once they come on.

The "P.A.T.s" may disappear as he gets older. The problem is often found in tense individuals. Stimulants — coffee, tea, and tobacco — seem to prompt episodes. An overactive thyroid gland can be a cause, and it is wise to check this out by tests. The situation should not disable your son. The attacks are brief, and there is no serious or lasting effect on the heart.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a massive stroke four years ago and now is in a wheelchair. He is 74. He was told before the stroke that he was a mild diabetic and was given Orinase to take. So he took one a day for about a year. Now we have read that Orinase can cause strokes. He dropped the pills, eats everything now, and feels fine. Please comment on this situation. — Mrs. E.C.

It is not unusual for mild diabetics your husband's age to have vascular accidents, as stroke or heart attack. Orinase (tolbutamide), an oral diabetic medicine, is commonly used for such mild "maturity onset" diabetes as his. It works by causing the pancreas to secrete insulin, which is what is lacking in the blood in diabetes.

What you heard about the drug as a cause of stroke or heart attack is highly controversial and by no means conclusive. Perhaps his former use of it was sufficient to cause the mild diabetes to subside. But this is no more than speculation. He should get a followup check of his blood sugar.

Discontinuing controls, whether medicine or diet, can be risky for any diabetic, mild or otherwise. Diet and drug therapy go hand in hand with diabetes. If he's eating everything in sight, as you imply, he is courting further trouble by gaining weight and aggravating his diabetic situation. He may eventually pay a past due bill for this.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Some 45 years ago the late Norman Bonney of Bosten reached three notrump on the simple bidding shown in the box.

In other words, he bid it. West was allowed to hold the first trick with his queen of hearts, but Norman had to put his ace on East's king when the suit was continued. He cashed his ace of diamonds, entered dummy with the king of clubs and lost the diamond finesse to West's doubleton queen. Three more hearts left him one trick short.

The hand was dealt in the finals of the Ressinger team of four.

The bidding at the other table was long, arduous, optimistic and unsound with South eventually landing at six notrump against that same heart lead.

South looked over the dummy unhappily, but finally saw that there was a chance to make his silly slam. He ducked the first heart and won the second. Then he cashed the ace and king of diamonds and saw the queen dropping from the West hand. Now South entered dummy with the nine of diamonds, took a successful spade finesse, went back to dummy with the king of clubs, took another spade finesse and had his slam.

Ask the Experts

A Missouri reader wants to know if any hand with as many as 25 high-card points should be opened with a forcing bid.

Even though game is not guaranteed you want to be there. But, with a balanced 25 or 26 high-card points, you should open three notrump rather than with a forcing bid.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

We are living in an age of temperance.

You can't go to a gathering anymore without coming face to face with a group of reformed smokers, sanctimonious joggers, committed dieters, or born-again drinkers.

I sit through entire evenings with people who have given up watching TV and want to tell me why, who no longer baste themselves in the sun and give me their reasons for abstinence, who have made a decision not to have children and insist on stating their case.

Everyone listens. After all, people have their own personal reasons for doing things. No one gets too uptight about a stand.

Until the other night.

The conversation around the dinner table was about 86 decibels when the hostess placed on my plate a meringue shell, filled with ice cream, topped with butterscotch sauce, whipped cream, and a maraschino cherry on top.

"No thank you," I whispered as she placed the dish in front of me, "I don't eat dessert."

The entire room fell into silence. The host gasped. Forks poised in midair. Jaws stopped chewing. The hostess stopped breathing. Every eye in the room was on me.

"What do you mean you don't eat dessert?" asked my table partner.

"Do you mean to tell me you are going to pass up Helen's dessert — Future Blimp — which she has worked on all day long?"

"It's stubborn and it's spiteful."

"I suppose you're too big for desserts anymore."

"Are you saying that just this once you couldn't make an exception?" asked a woman across from me.

"I've never seen anything so rude," came a muffled voice at the end of the table.

Dinner continued, but a pall had settled over the entire group as I sipped at my coffee.

Yesterday, I was shopping in the supermarket when I met a couple who had been at the party. "You remember her, George. She's the one who refused Helen's dessert."

It's funny. I could discover a cure for boredom, run for governor, or give birth while running the Boston Marathon, but I will always be remembered for refusing to succumb to meringue and butterscotch.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree strongly with your answer to "U R Wrong." You say advice from relatives is seldom appreciated. Well, advice from teachers to parents about what is wrong with their children is not appreciated either.

Trying to maintain order in the classroom these days is a job in itself. Many parents who went to school 15 and 20 years ago and have never been back to visit a classroom wouldn't believe the change. Also, attitudes are different. The older teachers who have tried to discuss a child's problem are told to mind their own business — or the parents go on the attack and insist the teacher has it in for Junior or Nancy.

The smart teacher learns early that it doesn't pay to make waves. The safest way to avoid a head-on collision is to do your job, MYOB, and stay out of the family and emotional problems of students. — Seen Too Much

Dear Seen: It is apparent you are far more interested in avoiding controversy than in helping a student. Sticking one's neck out is always dangerous.

I know what many school rooms are like today because I have been in them. I also get plenty of mail from dedicated teachers who are struggling with the problem of undisciplined kids whose parents give them no guidance, no parameters and set no examples.

The only chance these kids have is if their teachers have enough courage to "make waves" and at least attempt to help parents understand the child's needs. An enlightened, caring teacher can be a major influence in the life of a student. It's worth the trouble, take my word for it. And in too many cases, it's the only chance a child has.

Dear Ann Landers: So now someone from Berkeley, Calf., wants to nominate that fair city as "The Rudeness Capital of the World." I am from Washington, D.C., and have spent four years in Berkeley, as a student at the University of California. I have not encountered an unusual degree of discourtesy. Quite the contrary.

I have found salespeople, bank clerks, taxi drivers, office workers and just about everyone polite, if not friendly. The occasional impolite one usually softened after a smile, a kind word or a less-than-hostile reaction. Some even apologized.

I believe my father was right when he said, "Kindness begets kindness evermore." Yes, I know he borrows this from Sophocles, but since the old philosopher has been dead for more than 2,300 years I doubt that he would mind. — I Like People

Dear Friend: People who like people are invariably liked by people and this is the basis for your pleasant experiences wherever you've lived.

Most folks can figure on liking "the new town" just as much (or as little) as the town they left. I don't know Berkeley well, but I love Washington, D.C. It is, I believe, the most beautiful city in the United States.

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a friend who telephones me and then says, "Wait a minute," and leaves me dangling for as long as 10 minutes? (It seems her kids or husband need her immediate attention constantly.) Please put your brain to work on this one. I'm — Stumped

Dear S: The next time "friend" says, "Wait a minute," reply, "Apparently this isn't a convenient time to talk. Ring me back." THEN HANG UP. If you do this two or three times you won't be left hanging any more.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

'My House' Needlepoint Gives Casual Look To Many Areas

Amusing needlepoint calls a place home in the My House sampler pictured above. White lettering against a bright orange background — with tan, brown, and green highlights to draw in the homestead — will put you in your own backyard. This lighthearted decorating piece can't miss and will start a casual corner almost anyplace in your home.

The most endearing and creative American sampler work was made in cross-stitch and dates to the 19th century. More often than not, young girls used home sewing projects to display their domestic talents. Complete alphabets, letter perfect and personally designed in a wide range of cursive and block styles, were often stitched onto the top half of the cloth. Family names and dates, as well as favorite mottoes and slogans, were then worked out underneath the alphabet.

For those who prefer, needlepoint is an alternative to cross-stitch and bears some resemblance to it, since the stitch used throughout is half of a complete cross-stitch. My House is available in a complete kit containing a 12-mesh mono canvas, Persian wool yarn, a needle, plus full instructions and color-coded design graph (the design is not printed). Your work will finish to 5⅛" x 10½" and fits the solid oak frame shown.

Order My House No. 00978 for $9.49 plus $1.45 postage and handling. Order Kit and Frame No. 00979 for $15.49 plus $1.95 postage and handling.

Postal Service Displays Tribute To Photography

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

Anyone recently receiving mail or buying postage is now undoubtedly aware that photography has just received a first-class honor from the U.S. government, a distinction that is greatly sought after and comparatively rare.

The United States has just issued the first commemorative stamp acknowledging the contributions of photography to our world — not a specific facet of photography or a particular photographer — but photography itself.

Ceremonies marking the issuance of the first first-class stamp with the new 15-cent denomination took place at a luncheon in New York City and at the annual convention of the Professional Photographers of America at Las Vegas on the first day of issue.

Postmaster Gen. William F. Bolger showed the New York audience an album containing a sheet of the new photography stamps that was to be presented to President Carter at the White House. At the same time he acknowledged that though he has the honor of being in office with the stamp's issuance, the credit for its appearance must go to Benjamin Bailar, previous postmaster general.

"Ben Bailar's interest, encouragement and approval of this stamp concept never wavered," Bolger said, "and he even worked personally with the designer, photographer Ben Somoroff, to assure an image that would appropriately express our tribute. These stamps — 160 million of them — will symbolize internationally our national recognition of photography's increasingly significant role in medicine, law, science, earth and extraterrestial explorations, as well as world communication and understanding."

Also present were leading executives of the photographic industry who fought for years for thrgnition now being applauded. They were introduced by James (Jimmy) Chung, president of the International Photographic Council, the group which spearheaded the stamp drive that resulted in official acceptance. Chung, an executive with Fuji Photo Film U.S.A., noted the international makeuof the committee members and how they had united for the single purpose of honoring photography and had adopted the slogan, "Photography: The Universal Language."

Robert Coppenrath, chairman, read a New York Times excerpt that summed up photography's role: "The stamp is being issued in recognition of the role of photography as a vital tool of science and industry; a basic component of communication; an art form of ever-expanding dimension; an integral element in shaping the American way of life; a hobby that has given pleasure to millions; and a visual record of history and of the joys and trials of living."

Professor Dr. Erik Suy, under-secretary-general of the United Nations and principal speaker at the luncheon, noted the common bond shared by the U.N. and world of photography.

"Although we represent different fields of endeavor," Suy said, "we deal in a common philosophy: the universality of communication."

He came as an avid amateur photographer who owns three cameras and six lenses.

Photography, we are aware, is quite different from spoken language. "The understanding of photographic language," Suy said, "makes the use of interpreters superfluous. The only interpreters are common sense and open-mindedness."

He quoted again from Feininger: "In contrast to the spoken and written word, a picture can be understood anywhere in the world. It can bridge the chasm created by the differences of language and alphabet. It is a means of universal communication. And never before has there been a greater need for universal language."

Photographs have proven their ability to have enormous impact on people everywhere, and it is tremendously important that pictures be used wisely.

"Intelligently used," Suy quoted again from Feininger, "the picture language of photography can play a small but vital role in promoting universal understanding and averting global disaster."

Suy felt that, thanks to photography, international peace and security had come closer to realization.

"I sincerely hope," he said, "that the technique of remote sensing of our earthly activities via satellite photography will contribute to the establishment of a more peaceful society than the one we have been living in.

"Now I will go back to my work at the U.N. and, as to photography, I will continue to push the button," he concluded, "confident that you experts will do the rest."

Suggestions Given For Cleaning Wood

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — About four years ago, I used walnut paneling for the two rooms I finished in our attic. It has always looked beautiful, but recently has taken on a kind of dingy appearance. The paneling was finished when I bought it, and I have never done anything to it. I have hesitated to wash it, even though I am sure that it needs nothing but a cleaning, because I do not want to spoil the wood. What do you suggest?

A. — Use one of the products specially formulated to remove grease, grime, smudges and finger-marks and at the same time bring out the natural beauty of the wood. This undoubtedly is all that will be required. Read the label on the product container to be sure that it has a cleaning action as well as a wood-conditioning formula.

Q. — I have read many times about different ways to remove white rings caused by wet glasses on table tops. I have a dark mahogany table that had such a condition recently. I spread some petroleum jelly on the marred areas and didn't touch it for more than a day. I then wiped off the jelly, rubbed a little and presto — no more white rings. I thought your readers might like to know about this.

A. — Thanks.

Q. — I finished a table recently with varnish. When the varnish had set, I noticed a lot of little bubbles in the surface. I have sanded them down, but before I redo the table I want to know what caused the bubbles so it doesn't happen again. Can you help me?

A. — It sounds very much as though you stirred the varnish or otherwise disturbed it just before using it.

Q. — I recently saw a ranch house plan (in a newspaper) which I like. Before I send for the blueprints, I want to find out whether the builder can construct the house on a concrete slab instead of with a basement, as shown in the paper?

A. — Impossible to answer precisely. However, most ranch designs can be built either with a basement or on a concrete slab. And most builders can make the change when necessary. You may find that the blueprints available from the architect have drawings applicable to either method of construction. In any case, if you have the name of the architect: write to him and ask exactly what the situation is for that particular house. He won't charge for answering your question.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

(Do-it-yourselfers will find valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Window Shades Conserve Energy

By The Associated Press

Nearly everything these days is tied in somehow with the saving of energy.

New product or old, its manufacturer is beating the drums to assure us that its usage means a huge saving in the consumption of energy and, consequently, a substantial decrease in heating and cooling costs.

Some of it is wholly true, some partly and some not at all. It is surprising, though, how many ways there are to save energy and dollars by the proper use of household items we have known for years. One of these is the ordinary window shade.

Researchers at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago discovered after extensive tests that the common variety of window shade can make a significant contribution to cutting indoor heat loss and heat gain in hot weather.

The tests were conducted under conditions simulating a well-insulated home. Outside temperatures ranged between 20 degrees and 50 degrees Fahrenheit in the winter and 85 and 95 degrees Fahrenheit in the summer. Because windows are excellent conductors of heat, they are poor insulators. This explains why so much more summer heat can enter through a window than through the walls surrounding it and then, in the winter, so much furnace heat can make its getaway through those same windows. The study showed that shades act as barriers against both heat loss and heat buildup.

Here is what the researchers recommend to get the most protection from your shades. Pull them down on winter evenings, when the outside air is coldest. This will cause a substantial portion of the heat usually lost through windows to "bounce" off the shades and remain inside. Raise the shades during sunny daylight hours to bring some winter warmth into the house. To take much of the summer scorch out of the house, lower the shades on hot, sunny afternoons. This will let cool air come in and make your house that much more comfortable.

The Illinois Tech study also found that the shade-hanging arrangement and the room air-flow pattern play important roles in the ability of the shades to reduce heat flow in and out of windows. The pulled-down roller shades tested were mounted within the window frame, had only a quarter-inch clearance at their sides and just touched the sill.

If even more thermal efficiency is desired, shades can be laminated with aluminum foil or other materials or treated with pigmented vinyls and other plastics and resins. Often bought solely for decorative and privacy purposes, window shades appear to be taking on a new dimension by lowering energy consumption.

YMCA, Anthem Honored On New Israeli Stamps

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Four new issues from Israel should arouse the interest of philatelists far and wide.

One stamp is a special tribute to the 100th anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association in Jerusalem. Another set of two honors a pair of prominent people in Israel's modern history. A third adhesive is dedicated to the centenary of the national anthem. The fourth features a town in its landscape series.

One hundred years ago, a handwritten constitution of the YMCA was signed in Jerusalem and with this simple document the institution was founded in Israel. The YMCA-Jerusalem Centennial stamp design highlights an impression of the YMCA building in Jerusalem.

Dr. Theodor Herzl and Dr. Chaim Weizmann are the latest additions to the series which features "Prominent Figures in Israel's Modern History." Herzl was the founder of the Zionist movement, and Weizmann was the first president of the modern State of Israel.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the Jewish national anthem, "Hatikva." It was written by Hebrew scholar Naftali Herz Imber and was published for the first time in Jerusalem in 1878 under the title of "Tikvatenu" ("Our Hope"). The stamp depicts the first verse.

The fourth new stamp is the latest in the definitive series "Landscapes of Israel" and is devoted to Rosh Pinna, earliest of the agricultural settlements in Upper Galilee. The stamp illustrates a picturesque view of the town from a local road. Rosh Pinna was founded 100 years ago.

All of these new stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department, according to the Israel Philatelic Aency in America.

If you are keeping close tabs on new U.S. issues, the U.S. Postal Service announced that a single commemorative stamp saluting the Viking missions to the planet Mars was issued July 20 at Hampton, Va., the site of NASA's Langley Research Center. July 20 is the second anniversary of the landing of Viking I on Mars in 1976.

On Aug. 11, a 28-cent regular stamp in the Americana Series will be issued at Tacoma, Wash. The design reproduces the reconstructed blockhouse at Fort Nisqually, Wash., founded in 1833.

The previously announced block of four stamps featuring American Owls will be issued at Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 26. The owls depicted are the Great Gray Owl, the Saw Whet Owl, the Barred Owl and the Great Horned Owl. All are indigenous to North America.

The Molly Pitcher 10-cent 1978 commemorative postal card will be issued Sept. 8 at Freehold, N.J. It is the first issue in a new series which honors heroes of the American Revolution.

Government Supply Agency Vows To Fight Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Services Administration moved to fight theft, fraud and abuse in the agency's self-service stores with the announcement Thursday of new rules and regulations.

The new procedures for the 75 GSA stores, which are a source of office supplies and similar items for other government agencies, are the first in a series of moves by GSA administrator Jay Solomon to try to clean up the problem-riddled operations of the $5 billion-a-year agency.

Probes by law enforcement agencies, a congressional subcommittee and an internal GSA task force have turned up evidence of corruption, fraud, bribery, extortion and theft in the operations of the agency.

The new rules were announced as GSA officials declined comment on reports that the agency's No. 2 administrator would be dismissed.

Robert T. Griffin, assistant GSA administrator, will be asked to resign by Solomon, the Washington Post quoted sources as saying.

Government employees are authorized to "shop" in the GSA self-service stores, using credit cards from their agency. The stores, which do an annual business of $73.4 million, were instituted to simplify purchases of supplies by government agencies.

But there have been few controls over the stores prior to Solomon's announcement.

There have been allegations that government employees used their agency credit cards to buy items such as auto tires, camera film and briefcases, which the employees then keep for their own use or resell.

One incident cited by investigators involved the purchase of more than $100,000 worth of film by a drug addict who resold the material to support his habit.

Another problem area being probed by a federal grand jury in Baltimore are allegations that store managers took pay-offs in the form of color television sets, stereos and clothing from wholesalers who supply the government stores.

The new rules will try to curb some of the abuses.

They will require annual audits, unannounced inspections of stores and development of a manual for store managers.

Under the rules, store managers will lose their authority to add new items to the store's inventory. Items that can easily be converted to personal use — such as film, tires and briefcases — will be removed from the stores in some cases. In other stores, such purchases will be called to the attention of the purchasing agency.

The Washington Post reported Thursday that Solomon received President Carter's approval to oust Griffin, who is a close friend of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. O'Neill had pushed Griffin, a longtime employee of the agency, for the top GSA job before Carter named Solomon, a real estate executive, to the post.

The paper said Solomon complained that his efforts to clean up the agency had been hampered by confusion in some parts of the GSA over who was really in charge.

Griffin was originally in charge of the investigation into allegations of corruption and abuse at the agency, but Solomon brought in former federal prosecutor Vincent Alto as special counsel to push the probes.

Carter released a memo to Solomon on Wednesday in which the president gave his full support to Solomon's efforts to clean up the agency. The memo specifically mentioned Carter's support for whatever personnel changes and procedural improvements are needed for a solution.

Richard Q. Vawter, a GSA spokesman, said there would be no comment on the Post report.

Solomon was out of town Thursday and all attempts to reach Griffin were referred to Vawter.

Lions Club TV Auction Takes Place Saturday

The Lubbock Lions Club will auction more than $25,000 in new, valuable merchandise which was donated by about 400 merchants and solicited by 350 Lions during its 14th annual TV Auction on KLBK-TV, Channel 13, from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday.

The auction raises funds for more than a dozen charitable organizations financially assisted by the club. Advanced bids can be made in person from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center banquet hall.

The Lubbock Lions, the largest Lions Club in the nation with more than 500 members, has raised about $73,000 through the auction which began in 1965 through former club president Ford Robertson.

The first auction collected $4,556 from about 100 items. During the past 13 years the KLBK-TV auction has been held, almost 3,000 firms have donated items totaling a retail value of approximately a quarter of a million dollars.

Proceeds have gone toward the Lions Crippled Childrens Camp at Kerrville, Camp Fire Girls, eyeglasses for needy children, Texas Little League Baseball, Girlstown, USA, the Big Brother/Big Sister Program, Texas Boys Ranch, and a number of other organizations.

The 1977 auction netted $11,632.36. Bill Wade is auction chairman and Ron Betenbough is current president of the District 2-T2 Club.

Nolte Portrays Powerful Role In Heroin Adventure

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It has been more than two years since Nick Nolte electrified the nation's television viewers with his portrayal of Tom Jordache in the miniseries "Rich Man, Poor Man." At last he is fulfilling that promise.

He is starring this summer in a new movie, "Who'll Stop The Rain," directed by Karel Reiz ("Isadora," "The Gambler") for United Artists. It is not an easy movie to like. The plot concerns three non-criminals who somehow become involved in the smuggling of two kilos of heroin into the United States.

Michael Moriarty is the Marine-turned-reporter who sets the fated adventure into motion. Tuesday Weld is his horrified wife. The accomplice is Nolte, a seaman and former Marine, at first relucatant, then willing to battle the fearsome forces who want to appropriate his heroin. It is a dominant role, one that allows him to command the screen as he did as Tom Jordache.

The muscular 37-year-old actor talked about "Who'll Stop The Rain" and his career in the corner of a posh Beverly Hills cafe. Nursing a beer, he seemed uncomfortable in the surroundings.

The original title of the film was taken from the Robert Stone novel "Dog Soldiers." "Who'll Stop The Rain" seems deceptively frivolous for such a serious-minded movie.

"At first I didn't agree with the change," Nolte admitted. "But then I saw the finished film and I could see how the Creedence Clearwater music fits the times (1969-70) and works well with the story.

"'Dog Soldiers' was taken from an American Indian myth; they were warriors who were not obligated to follow the traditional morality of the tribe and who were also required to give up their lives if the need arose.

"United Artists tested the title, and people either thought the picture was about war or dogs or maybe war dogs. So they changed to 'Who'll Stop The Rain.' I think it sort of fits the Vietnam mentality; a lot of people were asking in despair, 'Who'll turn off the war?'"

Nolte believes so much in the film that he makes appearances on TV talk shows. That's something he didn't do for "Rich Man, Poor Man.' "—"the whole cast was asked to go on Merv Griffin's show while it was on TV, but I thought it was a mistake to destroy the illusion of our characters by appearing as ourselves." Nor would he hype "The Deep" — "it was already pre-sold."

"The Deep" proved disappointing to many of those who were enthralled by Nolte's Jordache. The actor seemed to be loser to Jacqueline Bisset's damp T-shirt, Robert Shaw's bluster and various underwater perils.

Nick Nolte admitted that "The Deep" was a no-win situation as far as his acting was concerned:

"Artistically, I was not totally enamoured with the idea of doing this film. I thought more could have been done with the characters and the story, but there was no chance. I was prepared to live with it and put it in perspective.

"After all, I hadn't worked for a year after 'Rich Man, Poor Man.' 'The Deep' was the only choice I had. Producers considered me a television product, and no one was willing to take a chance on me. I hadn't operated with important directors; I had only made one feature, 'Return to Macon County Line.'

"What I was offered was in the genre of 'Damnation Alley.' There were three films I wanted to be in: 'Apocalypse Now,' 'The Sorcerer' and 'Slapshot.' I couldn't get them.

Survivors Recall Sea Ordeal

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A shark trailed the four survivors of a pleasure boat explosion while other sharks tore at the nearby body of a woman who drowned when the boat sank in the Atlantic, the boat's owner said Thursday.

"It bumped my foot one time, and I kicked out at it," said the owner of the boat, Sam Boger, 39, of Summerville. "It was about 12 feet long and hung around us at least two hours."

Boger said his 15-year-old son, Earl, was with him. "I told him nothing was the matter — but he said later he knew what was wrong."

The Bogers, Larry Coyle, 65, of Charleston, and Jay Johnson, 12, also of Summerville, were picked up by a Coast Guard vessel Wednesday morning after spending about 12 hours in the ocean as lightning snapped around them. A Coast Guard helicopter crew recovered the shark-mutilated body of Barbara Ann Woodham, 58, of Charleston, about 250 yards from the survivors.

Coyle said he and the others prayed during their all-night ordeal. "There are no atheists in lifejackets," he said in a telephone interview.

Boger said Mrs. Woodham was thrown into the water by the explosion which destroyed his 28-foot boat. He said he and the other survivors, after tying themselves together with lifejackets and flotation cushions, kept the woman's body with them for about two hours until rough seas forced them to let her go.

"We knew she was dead but we thought we would try to bring her with us," he said.

Charleston County Coroner Ray Shokes said Mrs. Woodham died of drowning.

The five left from Edisto Island, south of Charleston, Tuesday morning on a fishing trip to the Gulf Stream area 50 miles offshore. The explosion occurred on the return trip shortly before 8 p.m. about five miles off the beach.

Edisto Island residents saw the flash and the smoke. The Coast Guard sent two surface vessels and helicopters to the area but the survivors were not spotted until shortly after daylight Wednesday.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Continuing Violence Seen By Somoza

MANAGUA (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza says Nicaraguans will have to get used to "a certain level of violence" for the next three years because he will not bow to opposition demands that he resign before his term ends in 1981.

"The opposition hasn't shown yet that they represent the majority," the embattled general told The Associated Press in an interview in his fortress-like presidential headquarters, nicknamed "The Bunker" by locals.

"That they think I would step down now just shows how ignorant they are. I have rights, too," he said.

Since the assassination early this year of a publisher who was a leading opposition figure, this Central American nation has been rocked by anti-Somoza violence that has left more than 75 persons dead and 500 injured.

The most daring attack came last week, when rockets were fired at Somoza's headquarters from a nearby hotel. He was not injured, but authorities said two civilians were killed and four were wounded. The leftist Sandinista National Liberation Front, which has been waging a small-scale guerrilla war, claimed responsibility.

Somoza, whose family has held tight control over this country for four decades, is denounced by his Nicaraguan foes and international critics as a major violator of human rights. The political opposition has grown more vocal in recent months, and representatives from a broad spectrum of Nicaraguan society joined last month in an "Open Front" against Somoza.

They are skeptical that he will give up real control in 1981 and demand that he resign immediately. Somozas have promised to step down before, only to appoint a front man to rule the country temporarily while they retained control of the all-important national guard.

The 53-year-old, West Point-educated president, who spoke in fluent English during the interview, said he considered stepping down on two occasions in the past year — after a near-fatal heart attack last July and after a general strike in February protesting the killing of opposition publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro.

But now he is determined to stay in for the rest of his term, he said.

"All those people said they wanted me to get out. But I looked around and said, Who is ready to take the cake? Certainly not the (opposition) Conservative party. They only drew 45,000 votes in the last municipal election.

"What about the clandestine Sandinista National Liberation Front? I don't know them but they have maybe 1,000 to 2,000 activists. Could they handle it? No.

"Now what about the Liberal party?... they elected me. When I finished that analysis — bingo. That was it. I figured I better stay right where I am until my term of office expires in 1981."

The general, who also heads the national guard, Nicaragua's combined police-army, said civil war would break out in this nation of 2.3 million people if he left office ahead of schedule.

He said recent terrorist attacks had only deepened his resolve to stay, and that the forces now opposed to him may sometime soon have to unite to fight the Sandinistas, a group named after a Nicaraguan rebel leader of the early 20th century.

Somoza, deeply tanned and trim, said he would respect the constitutional provision that bars him from running for office again. He also said he would retire from the National Guard when he leaves the presidency.

In the meantime, he said, Nicaraguans "must learn to live with a certain level of violence. You can't stamp it out as long as world powers are behind it. You just try to neutralize it."

Somoza claimed that Cuba is directing the Sandinista guerrillas, and he bristled with anger when asked for evidence to support the charges.

"We have killed over 25 men who were trained in Cuba These people get orders every day from Radio Havana. The orders aren't even coded."

"Yesterday Radio Havana told the Sandinistas to join the Open Front," he said.

"Someday, if this is allowed to continue, you will be fighting these people in the streets of the United States," Somoza said.

He also contended that his government "has avoided massive repression" since the major anti-Somoza disturbances began. The government has "shown itself to be benign and capable of dealing with violence without jeopardizing the liberty of its citizens," he said.

The Nicaraguan Permanent Commission on Human Rights says it has documented 700 cases of persons who have disappeared since 1974 after being arrested by the national guard. Spokesmen say the total number could easily be 2,000.

Somoza said he will stay on in Nicaragua as a private citizen after 1981. "Who is going to prevent me from doing that?"

The general also said he has been victimized by the international news media.

"I'm a duly elected president and they call me a dictator. I have a Congress and a Senate and a Supreme Court, and they call me a dictator.

"I have the freest marketplace in the Western Hemisphere and I allow every ideology to flounder around in Nicaragua and they call me a dictator," he said.

Renewal Proposed For Accreditation

The Texas Education Agency has recommended continued accreditation of the Lubbock Independent School District. The recommendation now goes to the State Commission on School Accreditation.

In a letter to Superintendent Ed Irons, the agency lauded the district's "Five-Year Priorities Plan," a blueprint for improving reading and math instruction and upgrading facilities in Lubbock public schools.

"Everyone connected with the development of the priorities plan is to be congratulated," Water Howard, director of planning and approvals in the agency's school accreditation division, said.

Thieves Take Bath And Building, Too

CHICAGO (AP) — It seems that the robbers weren't satisfied with a used furnace and five bathtubs taken from a garage. So after the theives made off with those items, they came back and stole the brick building, too.

Two men were arrested and five were sought after a break-in Wednesday night that baffled police.

Sgt. Daniel Benoit said a truck carrying seven men pulled up to a garage on the city's West Side. They broke in and took the furnace and bathtubs, then left.

But they returned, he said, dismantled the garage, and loaded the bricks onto the truck and drove away. They later sold the 1,400 bricks to a brickyard, Benoit added.

Property Owners To Meet

Association spokesman Gene Medley said the meeting will be primarily informational. "We haven't had a real meeting for some time and the members don't know what's really going on," he said.

Various members will present reports to the membership and make recommendations to "get them thinking about areas where they want to go about approaching the city," he said.

"Some areas may be costing us more than they are worth," Medley said, referring to city services.

He said questions also may be raised concerning the city's list of potential service cuts which officials say would be necessary if all the association's demands are met.

The group has asked the city to cut the tax rate by 25 percent, remove the property tax on automobiles and raise the homestead exemption for the elderly to $10,000.

City officials said cuts of that magnitude would require budget cuts of $5.5 million.

Medley denied Friday's meeting would be a "pep rally" to stir up the group's members prior to Monday's preliminary public hearing on the city budget.

Women Protest Federal Funds Use In Missouri

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some women's organizations are protesting the use of federal money to pay part of the cost of a lawsuit by the state of Missouri against a boycott by supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Missouri is receiving $250,000 from the federal government as part of a $10 million annual national program to augment state antitrust enforcement.

Don Hiskey, a spokesman for the Missouri attorney general's office, said some of the funds are being used to pay lawyers and other legal costs in a suit filed by the state challenging a boycott by the National Organization for Women.

The women's activist group is sponsoring a campaign to boycott states that have not ratified the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, which would assure legal equality of the sexes.

Mildred Jeffrey, head of the national woman's political caucus, said the organization has protested the use of federal funds to pay for the antitrust suit in Missouri.

She said, "when the Congress set aside funds to establish antitrust divisions in the states, we don't think they intended for the money to be used to inhibit First Amendment rights of individuals or organizations. We believe the Missouri suit is an attempt by those opposed to ERA to block an effectively constitutional lobbying tool. Federal funds should not be used to harass individuals or organizations that are exercising their constitutional rights."

In addition, the women's group is planning to file federal civil rights lawsuits to protect its right to sponsor the boycott campaign. The lawsuits will be aimed at the states of Missouri and Nevada and at a private tourism organization in Louisiana.

The pro-ERA boycott has been backed by some 120 organizations and reportedly has cost the 15 states affected approximately $100 million in convention business.

Justice Department officials said they had no authority to review the way states spend federal antitrust funds.

Ky P. Ewing, a deputy assistant attorney general in the department's antitrust division, said the department "scrupulously avoids any involvement with cases that states choose to bring or not to bring. What the states do with the funds is the states' business."

The suit by Missouri against the National Organization for Women was filed in February and is due to come to trial in October.

Hiskey said three lawyers are assigned to the case but none is working on it full time. He said he was unable to estimate how much of the $250,000 in federal funds has been spent on the boycott suit.

The Washington Star reported that a Missouri official said the amount was "probably very minimal. We're not anywhere near the high thousands figures."

The federal law setting up the antitrust grant program provides a total of $30 million over three years. All but six states have applied for the funds.

Nevada, which has also filed suit against the National Organization for Women, is seeking a federal grant under the antitrust program.

The ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex, has been approved by 35 states. It must be ratified by 38 states by next March 22 to become part of the Constitution. Four of the 35 states that have ratified the measure have since rescinded approval, but the validity of that move still is in question and the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide. The states that have rescinded approval are Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska. Kentucky's action was vetoed, however.

There has been no previous request for a time extension on ratification of a constitutional amendment. And until some amendments earlier in this century, Congress put no time limit on the ratification process, although the Constitution gives Congress the power to set such a limit.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We are moving to another city and will take our wall-to-wall carpeting with us. It has been down for five years and should be cleaned before I re-lay it in my new home.

Some of my friends have said not to have it cleaned in a plant because it will shrink.

Is this true? Or should I have it cleaned after it has been laid in my new home? — Hannah Erickson

DEAR HANNAH:

By all means, I would advise you to have your carpet cleaned professionally by either method.

Some believe that plant cleaning and rinsing of the carpet is best. It is possible that occasionally certain kinds of carpeting could shrink.

Professional plant cleaners usually know how to control the shrinkage and you would be getting very thorough cleaning and rinsing.

However, on-location cleaning will also give you excellent results and can be done when your old home is vacant before you move or when it is reinstalled in your new home before the furniture is moved in. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a way I have discovered for one or two persons to use up a stalk of celery without having part of it go to waste.

Lay the stalk across your cutting board and cut off a portion about two inches long from the leaf end. Put it in a sieve for washing. Wrap the remainder and return it to the fridge.

Next time it is needed, do the same thing. The celery keeps crisp all the way to the end. — Elsie Davis

DEAR HELOISE:

Even though I had removed all traces of dirt, mildew, etc. from my tiled bathroom floor with a bleach and water solution, the grouting still was not as white as I would like.

So I took about a half cup of white latex wall paint and thinned it with water. Brushed it onto the grouting.

The paint settled in the groves and rubbed over each section with a Turkish towel to remove the paint that had gotten on the tiles.

Came out fresh and beautiful and has stayed that way for over a year.

Just do a section of about two feet at a time, dry off, and continue until you have gone over the entire floor.

This also works well when the grout discolors in the shower. — Mrs. H.

DEAR HELOISE

We live in a college community. Recently, a young man ahead of me in the line at the supermarket had a box of a powdered detergent that has been advertised for its ability to clean and whiten clothes.

The young man plunked it down and very determinedly said, "Maybe this will do it!"

The woman clerk asked him if he was sorting his clothes. There was a look of amazement, then he said, "Sorting?"

He didn't realize that clothes are to be sorted before laundering.

We parents have quite a time teaching young people everything they should know before they leave home. I'd like to give some common guides for laundering.

There are two general ways to sort clothes. One is to sort whites and maybe some pastel (light-colored, that won't fade) clothes in one pile; medium-colored clothes in another pile; dark clothes in another pile. Each pile should be laundered separately.

Another way is to sort clothes that can be bleached with chlorine bleach separate from those that would be harmed by chlorine bleach. Cottons can be bleached with the chlorine bleach but artificial fibers and wools should not.

Regardless of sorting methods there are some problems that should be taken care of before laundering. Some colors such as reds and some blues bleed or run, coloring other clothes they are washed with. Fuzzy clothes often lose fibers while laundering, thus leaving those fibers on other clothes.

This is quite noticeable if the other clothes are a lot lighter or darker.

Blood needs to be removed before putting in either warm or hot water. (Hot water will set the stain.) Cold water and soap or detergent and a dry bleach will remove this. Other protein and chocolate stains should be removed or loosened before laundering in warm or hot water.

Heavily soiled clothes should have a pre-rinse in warm water or be washed separately. I used to put our baby's and small children's clothes through a pre-rinse of cold water and detergent.

A good pre-wash spray will also help remove most stains (if used according to directions on the clothing before laundering).

Maybe single people could do laundry together so that these guides would be more feasible because, as this student has found out, dumping them all in at once doesn't give the desired effect. — Lilly Lund

You told them very well, Lilly, and I know when college students head back to the campus, many mothers will pack a copy of this column in with their child's luggage or laundry bag... Hugs — Heloise

Rose Drawing Media's Full Attention

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds had the day off Thursday, but third baseman Pete Rose took batting practice anyway to keep himself ready to continue his hitting streak which has reached 39 consecutive games.

"I want to keep the adrenalin going," said Rose, who usually takes batting practice on Reds' off-days.

"When my streak gets to 45 or 46 games, then you'll see those writers who were here for the press conferences the last two days, but aren't around now, back here again," Rose said.

Rose was surrounded by reporters during the Reds' series last weekend with the New York Mets, when he tied and passed Tommy Holmes National League 37-game hitting streak.

The major league mark is 56 consecutive games held by Joe DiMaggio.

He could tie Ty Cobb's 40-game streak by hitting safely in the first game of the Reds' twi-night doubleheader against Philadelphia today and then can tie George Sisler's 41-game mark by getting a hit in the second game.

"I'm glad those guys are there," said Rose referring to Cobb, Sisler, and Willie Keeler, who hit in 44 consecutive games. "If I had to go from 37 games to 56 without three guys in between, it would be a long stretch."

Rose will be facing Steve Carlton in the opening game of today's doubleheader.

"I'm 0-for-11 against him this year, but I can hit him. I've hit him in the past," Rose said.

Ironically, in the 32nd game of the streak, Rose failed to get a hit off Carlton. In his fifth at-bat, of the night, facing reliever Ron Reed, with two outs, he bunted for a hit.

The Reds announced that Rose will be trying to continue his streak today before a sell-out crowd of more than 51,000 persons. Tickets are also selling well for the games Saturday and Sunday, said a Reds official.

"People ought to be revved up Friday," Rose said. "I haven't hit Carlton, and games with the Phillies are more fun than games with the Dodgers."

. . .Of Predictions And Problems

WHEN TIME AND space run short. . . It'll likely be a linebacker spot for Monterey's Ron Reeves Saturday night in the annual coaching school all-star game at Houston. He's ticketed for a starting spot there, alongside another Tech recruit, C.M. Pier of Plano. But, once Reeves gets to the Tech campus in another month, it'll be the other side of the line. Raider boss Rex Dockery has said he is thinking only of quarterback for the Monterey ex. Even at the all-star game, "I don't think linebacker is a consolation (position)," said Reeves. "We're running an option offense, and I'm more of a passing quarterback. Besides," he added, "the South has all its big guys on defense, so I don't have to play against them." . .

And did you hear what Arkansas' Lou Holtz had to say about all his bouncing back and forth across the nation after being named college football's Coach of the Year? "I was in so many airport lobbies, I was run over three times by O.J." . . . Coaches at the clinic in Houston have tabbed Palo Duro, Monterey, and Abilene Cooper as the favorites in Class AAAA districts 1 through 3. In AAA, it'll be Dumas; Pecos, and Snyder in Class AAA. But here's the shocker in AAA: They're picking Vernon in 4-AAA. But —fooled you—Brownwood has been shifted (to 11-AAA). Class B? They went for Wheeler, Valley and Jayton through these parts. . . Hear what Tony Mason, the Arizona coach, said in counseling his peers? "Don't take your problems home. Do you know of any surgeons who go home and say, 'Well, honey, I lost another one today'?" . . .

ALTHOUGH THERE HAVE been delays which will shove the completion date for the new Jones Stadium lettermen's lounge-business office back well into the winter, this is not what concerns Raider business manager John Conley as much as just the south facade. That facing must be prepared and a scoreboard installed for use at the grid games, starting the night of Sept. 23. Unlike the south scoreboard—the big one in the shape of a Double-T—the north one will be elongated and mounted along the upper facing of the lettermen's building. . . Cover of the Aggie football press guide for this fall shows a model of the future Kyle Field, three-decked on both sides, seating more than 70,000 and to be under construction at the end of the fall season. . .

THOSE GIRLS BIDDING for Miss America in Atlantic City every summer aren't the only ones under close scrutiny and well chaperoned. Seems that members of the coaching school all-star teams aren't allowed out of the Houston dorm unless one of the team coaches goes with them. And, as one young man was overhear to say, "I thought it would be a holiday down here." . . . It's difficult to realize, but although the Washington Bullets won the NBA championship earlier this summer, the team did not play to a sellout crowd at home during the regular season. . .

Someone asked Boston Red Sox manager Don Zimmer about Yankee ace Ron Guidry's pickoff move to first. "I don't know; nobody every gets on." . . . All Arkansas did was not offer a scholarship to Emanuel Tolbert, the Little Rock youngster who went to SMU and and is the top returning receiver in the nation. Well, he got even: He caught 14 passes against the Razorbacks in last year's game. . . Don't pity the country's top pass-catchers; the top five all will be working withe the same 1977 chunkers. . .

HERE'S ONE OF those promises in reverse. Gerald Myers and OU courted Abilene's David Little heavily, before the 6-6 forward chose Tech. Now, "Sure, I would

...And Seaver Glad

Cincinnati Reds pitcher Tom Seaver knows what it's like to work in a goldfish bowl of publicity, and he's delighted to be on the outside looking in on the multitudes who are following the progress of teammate Pete Rose's 39-game hitting streak.

For once, he is not the center of attention by the media, who once flocked only to his locker after a ball game.

"I love it," said Seaver. "It's lovely.

"It's a relief now. I enjoy talking pitching and when I pitch I don't mind being interviewed. But there are days when you go to the park and guys come up and ask you questions that, quite frankly, don't make much sense."

Seaver believes that the Cincinnati Reds captain is doing a great job of handling the attention which has grown up around his streak.

"He's done a great job of it," Seaver said. "Unbelievable, really. The press is lucky it's him that's doing this.

"He's had the patience of a saint. It isn't easy. Not day after day, people shoving microphones in your face. That is not the fun part of the game."

Seaver knows what Rose is going through. He got the same treatment just before he was traded from the New York Mets last season.

Larry Holmes Set For First Title Defense

EASTCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Larry Holmes has signed to make the first defense of his World Boxing Association title against Alfio Righetti of Italy, Don King announced Thursday.

King also announced that he will be co-promoting fights with Madison Square Garden.

The date and site of the Holmes-Righetti fight is uncertain, although the fight was signed under the new Garden-King partnership That could be a stormy pairing because of the presence of Garden boxing president Teddy Brenner, a long-time rival of King.

King said the Holmes-Righetti fight would be part of a championship quadruple header which he had hoped to hold Sept. 8. That date is now very much in doubt. The hoped-for site, Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., definitely is out.

Both King and Sonny Werblin, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., said that the Meadowlands would not be available because of commitments to the New York Giants' football team. King mentioned other possible sites — Rutgers University, Shea Stadium and Yankee Stadium — saying, "We would like to put it in the New York metropolitan area."

In announcing the arrangement with King, Werblin called it "a non-exclusive agreement to promote fights at the Garden and with the Garden, there and in other places."

Werblin said it was planned for the Garden and King to promote one fight a month. King said the first joint venture would be a World Boxing Council junior welterweight title fight between champion Sansaak Muansurin of Thailand and Esteban de Jesus of Puerto Rico Oct. 6.

The announcement of that fight was an indication that there might be trouble in the new Garden-King venture.

When asked if he foresaw any problems having Brenner work with King, Werblin said, "I hope he will if he's president of Madison Square Garden boxing.

"Teddy Brenner will have absolutely nothing to do with anything I put on in the Garden," said King. "Teddy Brenner doesn't like me. He's going to try feverishly to knock me out. He has for five years."

Funseth Fails To Grab Lead Despite Mark

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Even Rod Funseth's record-tying front nine 29 could not withstand the charge of two young golfers — Phil Hancock and Larry Nelson — at the $210,000 Sammy Davis Junior-Greater Hartford Open Thursday.

Funseth, who came in at 6-under-par 65 was one stroke behind Nelson and Hancock in the tourney at the Wethersfield Country Club. Nelson had five birdies and an eagle to offset a bogey while Hancock played steady golf, dropping five birdies in six holes at one point.

Hancock said his 64 was the lowest round he has shot as a professional. His best finish this year was a fourth-place tie at the Western Open.

Nelson, who has been in the money in 16 of the 24 tourneys he has entered this year, had his best showing at the Sea Pines Heritage Classic where he tied for third.

More Sports Pages 6-7, Sec. D

"I really enjoy Hartford," Nelson said. "This is my fifth year here and the worst I've ever finished was 19th."

Funseth carded six birdies on the front nine in his course record-tying 29. The 45-year-old Funseth ended the first round at 65, 6-under par.

"This is the first time in a month that I've played," Funseth said, explaining he was building a barn on some land he owns in Napa, Calif. "I'm still not hitting the ball well but I putted super on the front nine."

Schoolboy 'Stars' Vie Tonight

HOUSTON (Special)— It will be the North's size and inside game against the fast-breaking Southerners in the annual basketball all-star game at the Texas High School Coaches Association clinic.

When the North lines up at 7:30 p.m. in the University of Houston's Hofheinz Pavilion, it will have a decided height advantage. And Permian coach Al Oglesby,who is directing the North, plans to use that height.

Oglesby has a pair of 6-11 all-Americas in Anthony Lee of Tyler High and James Griffin of Fort Worth Dunbar, and he will use them on a double-post offense.

Pettigrew of Whitehouse on the wings and 6-0 Billy Allen of Highland Park at guard.

And for backups, Oglesby has 6-10 Eddy Kerr of Lamesa and 6-7 Jackie Vaughn of Silverton. One of the North guard reserves will be 5-10 Rocky Rawls of Dimmitt.

The South doesn't have a man standing taller than 6-6. However, 6-5 Jerry Davis of West Oso could be the best leaper on the team.

However, part of that movement will be altered if 6-4 Terry Teagle of Broaddus is unable to play. Teagle, one of the state's top college prospects (signed by Baylor), has been bothered by an ankle injury and may not be at full speed by tonight.

HALLIBURTON IS LOOKING FOR THE UNCOMMON INDIVIDUAL— COULD IT BE YOU?

Halliburton Services is looking for ambitious individuals with these qualifications: 21 or over, in good health, high school education or the equivalent, some mechanical aptitude and the desire to get ahead in life.

We are the world's largest oil field service organization and recently the demand for our services has come close to exceeding the supply.

So we've set up a training program lasting about eight months to train capable people to work as oil well cementers, one of the basic oil field services required by oil and gas producers. When you complete this training, you are assigned to Halliburton locations either in the U.S. or foreign countries.

During the classroom training you receive excellent pay as well as all lodging, meals and transportation. After completing training and starting as a cementer, you'll get a salary increase and moving costs to your new location.

If you go abroad, you'll also get living and family housing allowances and a differential pay increase. There are important tax advantages, too.

Researcher May Have Precursor To Nielsens

NEW YORK (AP) — Just a little brain work might save the networks millions of dollars in television's annual race for new program ratings, a neurophysiologist says.

"Some years the networks find that 65 percent of their new shows fail," says Dr. Edward Schaefer of the University of California at San Francisco. "Their methods for previewing the programs leave too much to chance."

Schaefer, 42, who has spent most of his 13 professional years studying brain activity, says that's where the future lies in TV prognosticating.

Schaefer recently concluded four year of experiments which he says show that a researcher can predict A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings by reading changes in brain activity patterns of television viewers.

Predicting the Nielsens has been no better than a 50-50 proposition over the years, Schaefer says. And in televsion, failure is measured in six or seven figures.

With Schaefer's technique, electrodes from a computerized recording device are pasted to the viewer's scalp. As he or she watches a program, it gets interrupted at random intervals for periods so short that the viewer hardly notices.

If the viewer likes what he's watching, his brain waves remain steady. But if he isn't enthralled by the fare, he is distracted and it shows in changing brain activity.

Schaefer's experiments have run from the very exotic and even sexy to the simple and mundane. He began leaning more toward the mundane, he says, when a scholarly paper he wrote was turned down by a journal because editors feared that the sexual aspect fogged his results.

That experiment involved showing viewers two 20-minute video tapes of a young couple. In one tape, the couple discussed classical music, and the brain-wave-measuring needles stayed predictably still. The other tape showed the same couple making love. Needles started jumping.

"The journal editors felt the method may have been measuring sexual arousal and not television viewer interest," Schaefer says.

Eventually, Schaefer developed the more mundane method, in which a viewer listed his 20 favorite shows in order of preference. Then he would watch his favorite and least favorite shows. The brain activity was always least for the top shows and most for the disliked ones.

Schaefer then showed viewers programs from what he describes as television's "disaster year," 1975, when the average new show could be considered successful if it lasted through Christmas.

Some of the experimental viewers watched two of 1975's new situation comedies, "Big Eddy" and "Phyllis." "Big Eddy" flopped and "Phyllis" was a success. The brain waves bore that out.

"If the producers of 'Big Eddy' had been able to measure viewer interest in this way, the show never would have been produced," Schaefer says.

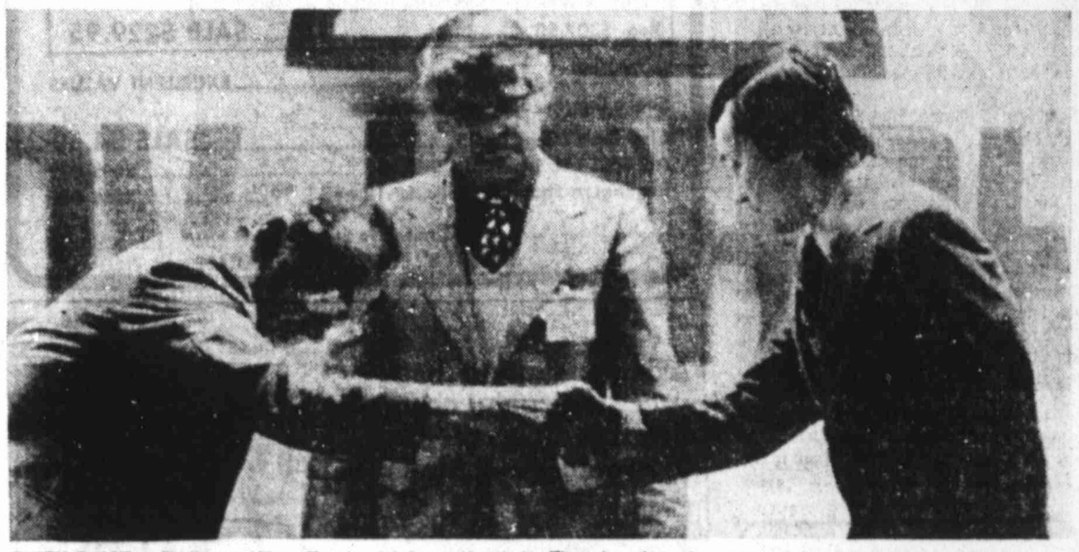
Schaefer has conducted several other similar experiments and says he is now talking with a television consulting firm about using the method next season.

Schaefer, who has conducted some experiments of a similar nature on retarded children at Sonoma State Hospital in California, says he hopes the technique will be used someday to measure the perception of mentally retarded patients and children with vision or hearing disabilities.

Korchnoi May Score First Win With Fifth Game

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — The fifth game in the world chess championship was adjourned Thursday night with challenger Viktor Korchnoi in a strong position to score the first win in his match against Soviet champion Anatoly Karpov.

The experts were in unanimous agreement that Korchnoi had a good chance for a victory Friday, the second anniversary of his defection from the Soviet Union. The first four games ended in draws.



FIFTH GAME — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi, left, a self-exiled Soviet dissident, and Anatoly Karpov, world chess champion from the Soviet Union, prepare to sit down after shaking hands in Baguio, Philippines. The two adjourned their fifth game Thursday after 42 moves and five hours of play. Most experts agree that Korchnoi is now in position to score the first victory of the tournament. Their first four games ended in draws. (AP Laserphoto)

When chief arbiter Lothar Schmid sounded the gong after five hours of play, Karpov was still debating his 42nd move. The 27-year-old Soviet champion sealed the move in a large white envelope, which will be opened when play resumes Friday.

Heavy rains from Typhoon Wendy pelted the roof of the $3.5 million convention center and caused a one-minute blackout during the game — but nothing seemed to deter Korchnoi in his aggressive quest for a victory.

Korchnoi, playing white, used the same opening he did in the first and third games — queen's bishop pawn to queen's bishop pawn four. Karpov responded with the Nimzo Indian Defense, which he also played in the third game.

The challenger gained a subtle advantage on the 14th move with a new play he and his seconds had analyzed only Wednesday, pawn to king's bishop three.

Korchnoi's 19th move, pawn to king's rook four, signaled the attack. After it was played, Argentine grandmaster Miguel Najdorf said: "Now is no more draw." Several grandmasters analyzing the game with him in the press room agreed.

The absence of a dark-squared bishop for Karpov allowed Korchnoi to penetrate deep into the enemy camp on the 29th move with knight to queen six. After the challenger's 30th move, knight takes bishop, he enjoyed the advantage of two active bishops against Karpov's two passive knights.

Korchnoi kept pursuing Karpov relentlessly and when play was adjourned, Najdorf said: "Korchnoi has a very good chance for a win."

Two years ago, Korchnoi defected from the Soviet Union after a tournament in the Netherlands, claiming the Russians weren't letting him play good chess. He accused the Soviet chess federation of openly favoring Karpov in their last match in 1974 which Korchnoi lost by one game.

It was Karpov's victory in that match which gave him the world championship in 1975 when American champion Bobby Fischer refused to defend his crown.

Chess experts here said it would be ironic if the first victory in this championship battle came on the anniversary of Korchnoi's defection.

The great yogurt debate appeared to have ended when a waiter quietly delivered a glass of violet yogurt to Karpov after two hours and 15 minutes of play while he was debating his 23rd move. The champion studied the move for another half hour, then picked up the glass and took it to his offstage resting room to drink.

Meanwhile, Korchnoi sat in an easy chair onstage munching something to eat and drinking tea from a Thermos. Korchnoi had complained that delivery of yogurt to Karpov from the Soviet delegation could be a prearranged signal to make a particular move.

Schmid ruled Tuesday that violet yogurt could be delivered at a fixed time, but that any other flavor or color would have to be cleared in advance with the arbiter.

Under new tournament rules, the first player to win six games takes home the richest purse in chess history, $350,000. The loser gets $200,000. Draws do not count in the point scoring.

New Mexico Said To Be Shortchanged On Energy

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico Energy Secretary Nick Franklin said Thursday more energy is used in California to heat swimming pools than is used for all purposes in New Mexico.

And a lot of the California energy is New Mexico natural gas exported from the state at a price much lower than what New Mexicans pay for the same gas, he said.

Salesman Convicted In Schnitzer Case

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court jury found an optical salesman guilty Thursday of conspiring to kidnap a son of the wealthy majority owner of the National Basketball Association's Houston Rockets.

Earl Gorel could draw a life sentence for the conviction. The jury found him innocent on a charge of conspiring to send a threatening ransom note through the mail in the unsuccessful Feb. 14 attempt to kidnap Douglas Schnitzer, 21.

Schnitzer is a son of Kenneth Schnitzer, a Houston builder and developer.

Three men were arrested Feb. 14 outside young Schnitzer's apartment in Tucson, Ariz., where he was a student at the University of Arizona. Gorel was arrested later in Houston.

Gorel denied the charges but acknowledged he had supplied young Schnitzer's Arizona address to Raymond Puscedu, a seaman and longtime friend who was the government's key witness in the trial.

Puscedu originally said he planned the kidnapping but later testified it had been masterminded by Gorel.

Puscedu entered a guilty plea to one charge in the case and agreed to be a witness in the Gorel trial in exchange for three counts against him being dismissed.

Ford Car, Truck Recall Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group is renewing its demand for a safety recall involving 9 million automatic transmission-equipped Ford cars and trucks manufactured since 1973.

The Center for Auto Safety urged action in a letter to Administrator Joan Claybrook of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration that was made public Thursday. The center alleged that the transmissions "jump from park into reverse with deadly results."

"Every day that goes by without some form of NHTSA public action exposes millions of unknowing consumers to possible death and injury," Clarence Ditlow, executive director of the auto safety group, said.

If the recall is ordered, it would be the largest ever.

The Fords involved were manufactured with either the C-6 or FMX automatic transmission and include practically all cars with 300-cubic-inch engines or larger and light trucks with engines of 350 cubic inches or larger.

Ford has maintained that the accidents might be due in large part to driver carelessness in putting the shift lever into park. The company says there are no flaws in the transmissions.

A spokesman for the federal safety agency, Hal Parris, responding to a Washington Post report that a decision on whether to recall the vehicles is expected next week, said:

"We're trying to get some conclusion as soon as possible, but I don't expect any preliminary finding for at least two or three weeks. We haven't made a determination yet one way or another on what should be done."

He said an agency inquiry opened last November involves model years 1973 through 1978. That inquiry began after the consumer group said 100 accidents and 12 deaths were caused by the transmission failures.

Even if a preliminary finding of a defect is made, Ford would have a chance to challenge it at a hearing before any final action could be taken, Parris said.

The center, founded with the help of consumer activist Ralph Nader but now independent of his organization, noted that its first request came in July 1977.

"To delay a defect finding any longer will only lead to more deaths and serious injuries in these vehicles. If NHTSA had ordered a recall earlier this year, then Adrian Barker of Bernardsville, N.J., would not have died when his 1972 Ford Galaxie jumped from park into reverse running up on his chest, literally suffocating him," Ditlow said in the letter to Mrs. Claybrook.

Ditlow said the center has received 12 other reports of such accidents since December 1977, including five of serious injuries.

NINE DIE IN RIOTING

The riots, which were sparked by an incident Sunday between a Hindu grocer and a girl, reportedly left more than 100 persons injured and 500 homes destroyed.

Singer's African Tour A Hit

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pop singer Dobie Gray, who recently returned from a five-week concert tour of South Africa, says despite racial problems in the country, "they all understand music."

Gray, best known for hits like "Loving Arms," "In Crowd," "Drift Away" and "Look at Me," was among the first black entertainers to tour South Africa after the recent opening of theaters to racially mixed audiences.

"It would be good for most artists to go there," Gray said in an interview. "We don't realize how starved for good entertainment they are or how big American artists are over there. And the money was so good, I couldn't pass it up. It was a terrific experience."

Accompanied by a three-piece white band, Gray said he performed 50 shows before audiences totaling 125,000, with 45 of the shows sold out. His concerts were in Cape Town, Johannesburg, East London, Port Elizabeth and Durban.

"I sympathize with the situation there," Gray said. "It's very complicated and more than just white and black."

Gray, who also toured the country in 1976, noted a different atmosphere this time.

"People seemed to be more in a hurry now," he said. "There was more tension in the air than last time. But still, they boogie and have a good time. Maybe it's because of the pressures of outside aggression."

He described his audiences as equally mixed between blacks and whites, most of them "common people."

"They are super people. They just couldn't do enough for me. I don't believe I bought over two meals. Plus the people just heaped presents on me — flowers, cakes, meats ... I understand all American artists get treated well there."

It's been four years since Gray's last hit, "Loving Arms." But he said he has been busy with other things.

He took a year off to write the screenplay for the movie "The Collection," and also toured Australia and England.

He's currently without a record label, but said he expects to sign a contract soon.

"I recorded five cuts in May and I need to finalize them. They are a little more 'today' than I've been before — a little more oriented to the dancer but not without good lyrics and treatment," he said.

"I'm not unhappy at all," he said. "I'm groovin' with life."

New Rules For CBers Easy To Understand

WASHINGTON (AP) — New CB rules going into effect Tuesday are best known for banishing government gobbledygook in favor of plain, simple English. But they also contain several major changes in the way you must operate your radio.

Most noticeable is the change in the station identification requirement. Under the old rules, CBers had to use their Federal Communications Commission call signs at the beginning and then again at the end of each transmission.

No longer. Now you are required to identify your station only at the end of your call.

"This change is proposed with the hope that voluntary compliance with the identification rule will increase if the demands are slightly reduced," said Ericka Zielbarth and Greg Jones when they recommended the rule change last year.

But remember, your communications still are limited to no more than five minutes with a one-minute standby period required before keying the microphone again.

The new rules also simplify the restrictions on base station antenna heights. The old rules required different heights for omnidirectional and beam antennas and were difficult to understand.

Not any more. The new rules apply to both types of antennas and say simply that they must meet one of the following requirements:

—"The highest point must not be more than 6.10 meters (20 feet) higher than the highest point of the building or tree on which it is mounted; or,

—"The highest point must not be more than 18.3 meters (60 feet) above the ground."

The old rules used only frequencies to identify the individual channels.

No longer. The new rules identify each frequency with channel numbers that long have been used informally by CBers. Thus, 27.405 megahertz now is identified as Channel 40 — the same way it's marked on your radio.

The old rules also authorized you to use only five radios with your CB license.

Not now. You now may operate as many as 25 radios.

Another change may be of interest to those intrigued by skip, or long-distance transmissions. The old rules limited CB communications to no more than 150 miles.

The new rules permit you to transmit up to 155.3 miles. That won't make much difference to CBers legally using their low-powered radios with normal ranges far less than that.

But the change was made in converting miles into round metric figures — 250 kilometers in this case.

Jackson Stars, Hunter Falters As Yankees Split

By The Associated Press

Controversial Reggie Jackson returned to the New York lineup for the first time in 10 days with a pair of of run-scoring singles and a solo home run Thursday as the Yankees crushed the Cleveland Indians 11-0 in the opener of a doubleheader.

Cleveland scored nine runs in the first inning and won the nightcap 17-5 as Catfish Hunter failed to retire a batter for the first time in his career and Duane Kuiper drove in six runs with a pair of triples off Bob Kammeyer.

U.S. Keeping Options Open About Games

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The first National Sports Festival, aimed at an improvement of America's Olympic forces, opened Thursday after a paradoxical warning from the U.S. Olympic Committee that the United States is keeping open its options on participating in the 1980 Games in Moscow.

"In tne event the IOC (International Olympic Committee) failed to follow its own rules and regulations (in the area of human rights), we would have to determine if the Games were, in fact, Olympic Games," said Robert Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, the sponsoring organization for the Sports Festival.

"If we determined they were non-Olympic Games, then we would have to question our authority to spend the money necessary to send a team to a non-Olympic competition."

Thh statement was made at a morning news conference before some 2,100 athletes began four days of competition in 26 sports in a massive, expensive, ambitious venture directed toward a broad-based improvement of America's Olympic teams.

Kane and Don Miller, executive director of the USOC, said the comment was a re-statement of USOC policy that forced the inclusion of Taiwan in the 1976 Games at Montreal over the objection of Canadian Premier Trudeau.

It came in the wake of what Kane called "false rumors" that Russia was attempting to exclude Isreal from the 1980 Games.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, Kane said, has told Isreal it "will stand staunchly by their side if anything happens." Kane, however, negated the possibility of an incident of that nature.

He also noted recent moves by American political figures to use the USOC, this country's Olympic forces and United States participation in the Olympics as weapons in the human rights struggle in Russia.

"One of whe fundamental principles of the Olympic movement is based on human rights, guaranteeing the right of equal participation of all athletes ... without interference from any political or private body," Kane said.

"We view the current issue on human rights as one of a political nature, not one of sports. As such it is far apart from sports and the Olympic Games and should be settled at the national level. However, I pledge that the U.S. Olympic Committee will continue to support the prinicple of human rights as it applies to the Olympic Games."

As an aside, he added:

"I'm sure Mr. Vance (Secretary of State Cyrus Vance) doesn't want the U.S. Olympic Committee conducting affairs of State."

He restated the USOC position opposing "any organization injecting politics into the Olympic movement" but noted that "politics can never be completely eliminated from the Games. There is too much tension in the world. The Games are a perfect vehicle for the crazies of the world to try to make their point. I don't say we will have no problems. But we are not clairvoyant. We don't know what those problems may be."

Kane also said he has a meeting scheduled Sunday in Colorado Springs with Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley in an attempt to work out problems involved in Los Angeles' potential role as host city for the 1984 Games. "As a personal opinion, I think the chances are pretty good" the problems can be resolved, Kane said.

Only a handful of final events were scheduled Thursday at the various Sports Festival venues scattered around the Pikes Peak area. Track and field competition opens Friday. Swimming is an AAU regional event only.

Most team competition, between teams representing the East, West, South and Midwest, were preliminaries.

Padres Sweep Series From Bucs

By The Associated Press

Ozzie Smith collected three hits and drove in a run to lead the San Diego Padres to a 6-3 victory over Pittsburgh and a sweep of their three-game series with the Pirates.

The Padres broke open a 3-3 tie in the seventh by scoring two runs off three Pirate pitchers. With one out, Bill Almon walked and advanced to third on Jerry Turner's pinch-hit single. Gene Richards' sacrifice fly scored Almon and advanced Turner to second, who then came home on Smith's third single of the contest.

Bob Shirley, 6-11, the third Padres pitcher, got the win and Rollie Fingers picked up his league-leading 22nd save.

Pirate reliever Ed Whitson, 3-4, took the loss.

The Padres jumped on Pittsburgh starter Jim Bibby for three runs and four hits in the first inning, including a two-run single by Dave Winfield. Whitson then took over for Bibby.

The Pirates came back in the third when catcher Ed Ott and third baseman Phil Garner drilled consecutive home runs to lead off the inning. Bill Robinson tied the game in the fourth by slugging his seventh homer of the season into the left field bleachers.

Rookie Tom Hausman, 2-1, surrendered Houston's first six runs and was tagged with the loss.

First-innning triples by Terry Puhl and Dave Bergman keyed a three-run Houston uprising as the Astros took their seventh consecutive home game. Enos Cabell's run-scoring single and Art Howe's sacrifice fly accounted for the inning's other two runs.

Irons Inks Pact

SAN JOSE, Calif. (Special)—Dan Irons, an All-American offensive guard from Texas Tech, has come to terms with the San Francisco 49ers, signing a series of one-year contracts for four years.

The 6-7, 270-pound graduate of Monterey High School suffered a knee surgery last March and will spend the upcoming season in rehabilitation. Team officials are hoping Irons will be ready for the 1979 season.

Broad Gain For Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly Thursday, recording its third straight gain despite mild bouts of selling early in the session and just before the close.

Brokers said the market continued to benefit from strong second-quarter earnings and speculation that upward pressure on interest rates might be easing.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off a fraction at noontime and up more than five points at its mid-afternoon peak, closed with a 3.38 gain at 850.57.

That brought the average's advance over the past three trading days to 18.97 points and put it at its highest level since it finished at 854.56 on June 14.

New York Stock Exchange volume remained active at 33.99 million shares, against 36.83 million Wednesday.

Analysts have attributed the market's recent strength in large measure to enthusiasm over the exceptionally strong second quarter earnings being reported by many companies.

They also said buying seemed to have been encouraged by hopes for favorable news on the money supply. Those hopes were fulfilled when weekly data from the Federal Reserve, released at the close, showed a $2.8 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Pentagon Devises Plan To Fight Drug Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Defense Department official Thursday spelled out a 12-point plan to combat drug abuse in the military — abuse he called serious but not of epidemic proportions.

The statement of Charles W. Duncan Jr., deputy secretary of defense, was the Pentagon's first overall response to repeated inquiries from a House committee as to what the military intended to do about drug abuse.

The House Select Committee on Narcotics Control and Abuse previously had heard from officials of the various services about steps already being taken.

The committee also had criticized the Pentagon for failure to come up with hard figures as to how prevalent drug abuse is in the military. It also has expressed concern that no one knew whether drug abuse might be affecting military readiness.

Duncan said the first step in the military's response would be to conduct a large-scale survey of military personnel in an effort to find out the frequency of drug abuse, the types of drugs used, the amount of individual dependency on drugs and the individual's assessment of the effects of drug use on his or her military job performance.

Other steps which he said would be taken included:

— Redesigning the drug reporting system so that uniform data can be gathered.

— Accelerated testing of portable urinalysis equipment. Testing with this equipment can show whether an individual has been using opiates such as heroin.

— Determining how widespread drug abuse might be among military dependents.

— Beefing up law enforcement efforts, both by increasing military drug enforcement efforts and by following up on cases turned over to civilian officials to ensure that the cases are adequately investigated.

— Establishment of a special task force to focus on the problems of drug abuse in the Berlin area. Duncan said a January survey of the 9,000 U.S. troops in Europe found that 1.5 percent tested positive for opiate use. In contrast, a recent commander-directed test of the 3,255 members of the Berlin Brigade found that 4.2 percent tested positive for opiate use.

Heartline

(HEARTLINE is a service for senior citizens of all ages. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. Senior citizens will receive prompt replies, but a stamped, self-addressed envelope must be included with the request. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: A few weeks ago, I had a fall and broke my leg. When the cast comes off next month, my doctor says I'll need therapy. He said I'll be an outpatient. Will Medicare cover this? — P.M.

After the $60 deductible has been met, Medicare takes care of the reasonable charges for all covered outpatient hospital services you receive. The hospital will apply for the Medicare payment and will charge you for any part of the deductible you have not met plus 20 percent of the remaining reasonable charges for the outpatient services.

If the charge is $60 or less and the hospital cannot determine how much of the deductible you have met, it may ask you to pay the entire bill. If you do, any Medicare payments due will be paid directly to you. Except in unusual circumstances, the hospital will prepare the Medicare claim for you. If you ever need help with your claim, get in touch with your Social Security office.

When you pay an outpatient bill of $60 or less, here is what happens:

— If you have already met the deductible, Medicare will pay you 80 percent of the reasonable charges for the outpatient services.

— If you have not met the deductible, Medicare will credit you with the amount you paid. If that amount plus any part of the deductible you have previously met for the year adds up to more than $60, Medicare's Medical Insurance will pay you 80 percent of the reasonable charges above the deductible.

Heartline has developed a book that covers the entire Medicare question and it can help you with almost any problem. To order, send $1.75 to Heartline's Guide to Medicare, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: I have been employed under Civil Service for eight years. I recently had an automobile accident and my injuries may keep me from working again. Can you tell me how I can qualify for a disability annuity? — D.S.

For a person working under Civil Service to be eligible for disability benefits, he or she must have worked at least five years under Civil Service. Also, the employee must be disabled enough to prevent him or her from efficiently performing the duties of the position occupied or the duties of a similar position. It need not be shown that the applicant is disabled for all kinds of jobs.

HEARTLINE: My wife will be 62 years old next year and she would like to start drawing her Social Security benefits. She has worked at many different places and does not have any idea how many quarters she has earned. Is there any way she can find this information? — P.F.

Your wife needs Social Security Form OAR-7004, "Request Statement of Earnings." Heartline feels that people working under a Social Security-covered job should fill one of these forms out every year to insure that their record has been given the proper credit. These forms are available at your local Social Security office, or by writing to Heartline. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to "Heartline — OAR," 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.
