ACTRESS DIES — Rosalind Russell gives actor Cary Grant a kiss during ceremony at which he presented her with the Straw Hat Special Achievement Award for 1975 in New York City. Grant, who had introduced Miss Russell to the man who subsequently became her husband, said Sunday after learning of her death. "She was a great humanitarian and a wonderful, warm, human being."

Film capital mourns Roz

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollywood's greatest names mourned the death of Rosalind Russell, who became a star by playing career women and stylish eccentrics.

"She was a great humanitarian and a wonderful, warm human being," said actor Cary Grant after Miss Russell died Sunday at 63 of cancer complicated by arthritis.

Lucille Ball said, "Roz showed so much courage here that God must have needed her fighting spirit somewhere else."

She had seemed as vigorous as ever at a dinner party at her home recently, although her guests considered it a farewell appearance. Two months ago, Miss Russell underwent surgery in an unsuccessful effort to stem her cancer, then returned home to await death.

"Rosalind came to terms with her life and she gave of herself in every way. She met death with the same gallantry," said George Cukor, who directed her in "The Women" in 1939.

Dr. Martin J. Cline said the actress suffered from rheumatoid arthritis and cancer for more than 15 years. She underwent a radical mastectomy 15 years ago, he said, and suffered no more from the cancer until a year ago.

"It didn't bother her particularly and didn't bother her career. I don't think she believed she had it any more," Cline said.

A year ago, she began receiving chemotherapy and responded well to treatment for about eight months, he said. Only in the last two or three months did the battle become more difficult and painful.

When she died at the Beverly Hills home, her husband of 35 years, producer Frederick Brisson, was by her side, along with their son, Lance, and his wife, Patricia.

Although no sexpot, Miss Russell added dash and glamor to her roles. She played dramatic roles in such 1930s films as "China Seas," "Under Two Flags," "Night Must Fall" and "The Citadel."

During the 1940s, she played a series of career women, helping them demonstrate that their sex could succeed in business while they remained feminine.

She remained glamorous in her middle years, scoring as the bohemian guardian of a young boy in 1958's "Auntie Mame," one of four films for which she won Academy Award nominations.

Miss Russell was born in Waterbury, Conn., the fourth of seven children of a prosperous Yankee lawyer.

She started her family by leaving college as a sophomore to enroll at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York. After a few stage roles, she was signed to a Universal Studio contract. The film company was making mostly westerns and didn't know how to cast her.

Miss Russell talked her way out of the contract and signed with Metro Goldwyn Mayer, becoming a rival to Myrna Loy.

Besides "Auntie Mame," she won Oscar nominations for "My Sister Eileen" in 1942, "Sister Kenny" in 1946 and "Mourning Becomes Electra" in 1947.

After Turkey earthquake

Cold threatens survivors

CALDIRAN, Turkey (AP) — The government stepped up efforts to evacuate homeless survivors of the earthquake in eastern Turkey after a blizzard whipped the devastated area with heavy snow and icy winds.

"We are afraid that some mountain villagers who survived the quake may now freeze to death," the deputy governor of the province, Muzaffer Yuce, said Sunday.

"We consider this snowstorm, under the circumstances, as great a calamity as the quake itself," said Gov. Ahmet Tosun.

The governor ordered all men between the ages of 18 and 65 in Van, the provincial capital, to join rescue squads. He also ordered all private vehicles confiscated to bring in survivors from areas still isolated by the quake Wednesday.

The government rushed in snow moving equipment to clear roads.

Most residents of the area are farmers, and many were worried about their animals.

"Ten sheep are already frozen," said one. "Praise be to God if he can save our animals. They are our only riches."

"If the government cannot take care of this problem, then let us cross the border (into Iran)," one told the governor.

No casualty figures have been announced since Saturday, when more than 3,600 bodies had been recovered. Authorities feared the death toll would exceed 5,000.

On police officer killers

Court to review decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, which ruled last summer that state laws making the death penalty mandatory are unconstitutional, said today it will consider whether mandatory death sentences can be applied to murderers of police officers.

The decision appeared to be reopening the question of mandatory death sentences for specific crimes.

While upholding the death penalty laws of Georgia, Florida and Texas last July, the court struck down the capital punishment laws in North Carolina and Louisiana because they did not leave enough discretion to juries and judges.

Both North Carolina and Louisiana made the death penalty mandatory for certain crimes.

The justices said in their July ruling that mandatory sentences are unconstitutional.

In its order today, however, the court limited consideration in one death penalty case to "whether the imposition and carrying out of the sentence of death for the crime of first-degree murder of a police officer in Louisiana is constitutional.

The case involves Harry Roberts, sentenced to death in 1974 for the murder of a New Orleans policeman.

'Good kid' charged in family deaths

MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) — A freshman cadet at a military academy, described as "a good kid" by his minister, has been charged with killing his parents and two younger brothers while he was home for Thanksgiving.

Harry De La Roche Jr., 18, was to appear before Superior Court Judge Fred C. Galda in Municipal Court today for a bail hearing.

He was arraigned Sunday on four counts of first-degree murder in the shooting and bludgeoning deaths of his father, Harry, 46; his mother, Mary Jane, 50; and his brothers, Ronald, 15, and Eric, 12, at the family's $70,000 home in this affluent Bergen County community.

Medical examiner Lawrence Denson said Eric apparently "put up quite a struggle after he was shot."

The family were "good people who always seemed to get along. That's the irony of it," said the Rev. K. Ray Nilsen.

Harry Jr., home for the holiday weekend from The Citadel, a military college in Charleston, S.C., was stopped by police early Sunday after ignoring a stop sign, said Bergen County Prosecutor Joseph Woodcock.

"He said he had gone through the stop sign because he wanted to report that his family had been shot and killed," Woodcock said.

Police said young De La Roche told them he found the bodies of his parents and brothers when he returned at 4 a.m. Sunday from visiting a friend. Woodcock said the youth told them he didn't know who had done it.

Denson said the father and mother each had been shot twice in the head. Eric, found in his bed, was shot three times, then bludgeoned in the head.

Woodcock said the father, a Ford Motor Co. employee in Newark, N.J., was shot in his bed, then carried to Ronald's bed. Ronald's body was in a metal cabinet in the attic. Mrs. De La Roche was found on her bed.

Woodcock said investigators found the murder weapon, a 22-caliber handgun. "We have evidence that will link him (young De La Roche) to the murders, but I will not discuss a motive," he said.

Like the minister, friends of the youth were mystified by the accusation.

One friend, 17-year-old Vince Trojan, who had spent part of Saturday evening with young De La Roche, said: "He seemed to be in a real good mood. Nothing seemed to be bothering him."

Nixon's pleas to be heard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to hear arguments in former President Richard M. Nixon's bid for control of White House tape recordings and other records of his administration.

The justices agreed to review a decision of a three-judge federal court in Washington upholding the Presidential Materials and Recordings Preservation Act passed by Congress in 1974.

The act gives the General Services Administration control over an estimated 42 million pages of documents, including about 200,000 prepared or reviewed by Nixon, and 888 five-inch reels of tape.

The material is available to Nixon and to officers of the executive branch of government, subject to GSA regulations. Nixon contends that GSA control of the material violates his rights to privacy.

The act calls for the GSA to prepare regulations to govern public access to the material and submit them to Congress for approval. The first set of proposed regulations was rejected by the Senate last year, a second set was withdrawn by the GSA and a third was vetoed by the House on Sept. 14.

Record cold moves in Big Spring shivered through record-breaking cold this weekend, according to Bill Fryrear at the Experiment Station. A low of 11 degrees broke the previous record for Nov. 28, 17 degrees set in 1955.

The record for Nov. 29 is already 11 degrees, so it is unlikely that record will be broken as temperatures are expected to rise today and tomorrow.

But the weather is certainly different from last year when the city was basking in a 68 degree high and a 48 degree low.

Running true to form, Mother Nature seems to have sent Big Spring neither the best nor the worse of her weather. Cold as 11 degrees may seem, it's downright hot compared to the coldest temperature ever recorded in Big Spring, —6 degrees or February 8, 1933.

Another factor in the frigid temperatures is wind chill. According to a Navy table of wind chill effects, in a 10 m.p.h. breeze (just wind on your face) 15 degrees feel like —2 and 10 degrees feels like —9. At 20 m.p.h. (small branches shifting, dust blowing) 15 degrees is —7 and 10 degrees is —24. Brrr!

Offers pour in for loser

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Offers of help are pouring in for Eddie Lowman, the seemingly lost soul sent to the county House of Correction by a judge who said that was the only way Lowman would have a merry Christmas.

Lowman, described as "56 but looks like 70," had lived in the municipal Safety Building for most of two years, subsisting on sandwiches provided by sympathetic janitors and by rummaging through garbage cans for food and clothing.

He was arrested Thanksgiving eve when he refused to leave a stairwell where he had been sleeping, and Judge Ralph Gorenstein sentenced him to 90 days so he could "get a merry Christmas."

The attention this drew to Lowman produced dozens of calls to police, county officials and Gorenstein, all offering aid.

A former Wisconsin policeman wants Eddie to spend Christmas with his family. An Iowa farmer wants to give him a job. A man in New Jersey would like to give him a home.

"People have offered clothing and some have said they are taking up collections," Gorenstein said.

He said Lowman has children in Michigan, but doesn't want to take his troubles to them.

"Social workers told me they tried many agencies, and he would walk away," Gorenstein said. "He had refused help, and mandatory commitment was the only thing left."

"He needed medical help very badly — he had a foot infection. I told him that any time he wants to get out he can. But hopefully in 30 days, when we review the case, we'll be able to find somebody who can help him, and hopefully he'll accept the help."

The judge said all offers of assistance will be shown to Lowman.

Roberts' appeal to the court had not centered on the constitutionality of the mandatory death sentence but instead focused on tactics used by the prosecuting attorney.

In its opinion striking down North Carolina's death penalty law, the court said in a footnote that the case did not involve a mandatory death penalty statute "limited to an extremely narrow category of homicide such as murder by a prisoner serving a life sentence."

The footnote added: "We thus express no opinion regarding the constitutionality of such a statute."

Arguments in last summer's death penalty cases revealed that some 20 states provided for mandatory death sentences for specific crimes.

70 killed in crash

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet TU104 airliner crashed shortly after takeoff Sunday night on a flight from Moscow to Leningrad, killing 70 persons on board, Western airline sources said today.

A spokesman for the Soviet airline Aeroflot confirmed that there was a crash, but declined to say how many persons died, saying an investigation was under way.

The Western sources said the crash occurred at about 7 p.m. Moscow time, approximately 20 miles from the Moscow airport. The airliner began losing altitude immediately after takeoff, one source said.

The airport was closed down and ambulances with flashing lights were seen in the area at about the time of the crash.

The TU104 turbojet carries 100 passengers, though in the winter Soviet airlines often remove seats to make room for extra coats and winter clothing.

It became Aeroflot's main airliner in 1956, but has been replaced as the Soviet airline's workhorse by more advanced models.

As possible closures

No bases ruled out

The Office of the Secretary of the Air Force said Monday that none of the six bases identified as possible closures have yet been ruled out.

In a letter received in Big Spring Monday and signed by Col. Robert Hermann, deputy director of information for the secretary, the Air Force said:

"All of the alternatives offered in the draft environmental statement will be considered in the decision process. No alternative has been eliminated."

The statement came in response to questions by Big Spring citizens asking how several congressmen and senators have told their constituents that bases in their districts will not be closed, despite the fact that they have been identified as alternatives for closing in the Air Training Command impact statement.

Specifically, the Big Spring citizens questioned how Sen. John Stennis, D-Mississippi, could say that he had been assured by the Air Force that Columbus AFB would not be closed.

Columbus AFB is one of four alternatives listed to the Air Force's proposed closing of Webb AFB in Big Spring and Craig AFB in Selma, Ala.

The response from the Office of Secretary Thomas Reed did not refer specifically to the statement by Sen. Stennis on Columbus AFB.

The letter did say that the Air Force has consistently stated that all (six) bases are being considered as viable alternatives to the proposed closings, and that this situation has not changed.

"The Air Force will continue to adhere to both the letter and the spirit of the National Environmental Policy Act," Col. Hermann wrote.

The letter also contended that this year's drawdown at Webb AFB "is the result of a Dec. 24, 1975, decision to terminate U.S. Air Force Undergraduate Pilot Training at Webb AFB in order to bring the utilization of all UPT bases more in line with their stated capacities. This decision," Col. Hermann said, "did not presuppose the subsequent selection of Webb AFB as a closure candidate."

The letter did not make reference to the fact that Air Training Command had already prioritized Webb and Craig at the bottom of the ATC bases in November 1975 at a time when the command knew base cutbacks were inevitable.

"When you (the Big Spring delegation) met with Sec. Reed last March to discuss closure candidates," Col. Hermann wrote, "he said there would be no additional actions implemented to affect the manning at Webb and that the normal day-to-day business would continue, even if it involved the moving of personnel."

The colonel's letter said that all reductions in military personnel and flying operations at Webb had been the result of the "prior decision" to drop the American pilot training program at Webb.

"The manning situation throughout ATC," the letter said, "is a result of the overall action to level student loads in relation to base training capacities within the command. Again, this action was taken before Webb was identified as a candidate for closure."

"The flying hour performance of a particular base is an unreliable indicator of future flying hour trends at that base because of many variables, including weather. The training base capacities, student loads, and flying hours in ATC are all programmed to include weather factors for the entire year and any single month of unusual weather, good or bad, will result in some deviation from the program," Col. Hermann concluded.

Weather

By the Associated Press

Temperatures nosedived to record lows at one Texas point after another today as frigid weather propelled rain, sleet and snow all the way to the Gulf Coast while skies cleared in most other sections.

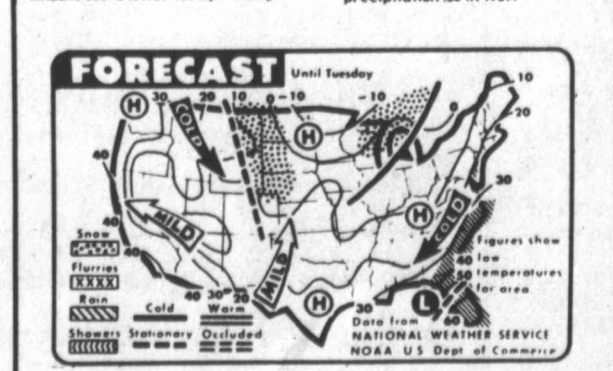

It was the second day of bitter cold in many areas in the wake of a storm that dumped as much as 7 inches of snow at El Paso in far West Texas, boosting its November total to a record 13 inches. Only a little less fell at some points in the Panhandle-Plains sector. Snow drifted four feet deep around Marfa in the West Texas mountains.

Thermometers plunged to 2 degrees below zero at Marfa before dawn, 1 above at Lubbock — also blanketed by snow, 2 above at El Paso, 3 above at Amarillo and 4 above at Dalhart — all new low marks for November or for this date. It was zero the day before in Amarillo. Records also topped at points far downstate, although they were much warmer by comparison.

Sleet and occasional snow were mixed with sometimes freezing rain in several counties around Galveston on the coast. Special travel warnings were posted there and across much of South Texas, where similar weather reached southward past Palacios and Victoria on the coast and Laredo on the Mexican border.

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is forecast Monday in the northern Great Lakes region as well as the northwestern Great Plains states. Rain is predicted for the southern Atlantic Coast region from Virginia to Florida. Cold temperatures are expected to prevail across much of the nation.

Land costs escalating in Plains

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Time was when a 125-by-420-foot plot of land here fetched about $5,000, a real estate agent says. But a Toronto man recently paid $22,500 for one that happens to face Jimmy Carter's home.

"He just wants to be across the street from a president," said agent James Dalton.

Land values here have soared since Carter was elected president and Plains became celebrated. Several residents are selling out — some to take advantage of the boom, others to avoid it.

Dalton said the house where Carter's father was born was recently sold for $58,000 — because its owners had come to Plains from Macon to escape urban life, "and that's what they ran into here, only it's worse." They had bought the house for $10,000 two years ago and spent $5,000 or $6,000 in repairs.

Real estate activity has reached new heights in Plains.

At least five houses and a 1,000-acre peanut farm are on the market. Some agents are working on private deals. Still others are assembling parcels of land for a motel and a Carter library. Some deals are brewing without the help of agents, with prospective purchasers going directly to landowners.

Insurance agent Ted Brown said, he doesn't believe the change in Plains is driving people out. But he also said he might leave "if the price is right."

He said he'd like to make a good deal on his house in Plains, then retire and move back to the north Georgia mountains where he was raised.

The peanut farm is owned by W.O. Cochran. According to an associate, he wants to move because "he doesn't like the changes going on. Plains is like an Air Force base or a traveling circus."

Bo Hendricks hospitalized

Beno (Bo) Hendricks, 22, of Gail Route, is in Cowper Hospital, suffering from injuries received in a one vehicle accident on the curve by the Luther Store on the Gail Road at 8 a.m. today.

The small car driven by Hendricks left the roadway on the curve after a float slid off a truck trailer headed north and went into the road. The vehicle driven by Hendricks went through a ditch and hit a tree dead center.

Hendricks is suffering from a fractured leg, with his right leg broken in two places and a severe gash on his head. He was rushed to Cowper Clinic by Alert Ambulance.

State Trooper David Jones was investigating officer at the accident.

SLOW TO WARM UP — The weather here this morning wasn't the only thing slow to warm up. Christmas decorations went up downtown over the weekend and the Yule shopping season officially got underway today but the frost-bitten shoppers were slow to respond to the challenge, judging from the amount of parking space in front of the courthouse shown in the above picture. The pace is due to pick up shortly, however.

Man gets $5,000 more

Salary gap has widened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average man working full-time in 1974 earned about $5,000 more than the average woman, the Labor Department says.

Furthermore, the gap between male and female incomes has increased drastically in the past two decades, the department reported Sunday.

In 1955, men were earning about 56.4 per cent more than women. By 1974, the gap had widened to 74.8 per cent.

In 1974, the median earnings of women were $6,772, compared with $11,835 for men — a difference of $5,063, or nearly $100 a week.

The report, based on Census Bureau data, blamed two primary factors for the widening gap: a continued concentration of women in low-skilled, low-paying jobs, and a sharp rise in the number of women entering the work force at beginners' level jobs.

Labor Department analysts said that even considering those factors and the shorter average lifetime work experience of women, "much of the male-female differential remains unexplained" and discrimination may be involved.

The report said that in constant dollars, taking inflation into account, the gap between the earnings of men and women rose from $1,911 in 1955 to $3,433 in 1974. Although women comprised 31.8 per cent of the full-time, year-round work force, they make up only 5.3 per cent of workers earning $15,000 or more in 1974.

More than 80 per cent of the regularly employed women earned less than $10,000, while only 38 per cent of men working regularly make under $10,000, the report said.

Thanksgiving violent death toll reaches 54

By the Associated Press

At least 54 persons died violently in Texas over the long Thanksgiving holiday that was plagued by wintry weather and a rash of gunfire.

The Associated Press tally, which ran from 6 p.m. Wednesday through midnight Sunday, showed that 34 of the deaths came on the state's roads and highways and 12 came in shootings. There were four stabbings and four died in other violence.

Some of the latest deaths: Edward Grumbeck, 18, and James Hunsuck, 19, were found shot to death Sunday night in their San Antonio apartment.

Kevin Johnson, 20, an airman stationed at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, was struck and killed by a car near the base. One of the shooting deaths was Patrolman Robert Wood, 27, who was killed in the line of duty early Sunday, the second Dallas officer slain in the last two weeks.

A head-on collision three miles south of Jasper on U.S. 96 resulted in the death of James R. Jackson, 22, of Port Arthur. The Department of Public Safety said 11 persons in a church van were injured in the wreck.

The manager of a drive-in restaurant in Dallas was shot to death early Sunday by a large caliber gun that had been placed at the back of his head. Donald Justice, 27, was alone at the store doing some cleanup work at about 2:15 a.m. when he was shot, police said.

Henry Sanders, about 40, died in Victoria when his small frame home burned down.

Police in Austin said 50-year-old Alice Raymond allegedly stabbed her husband, Earl, 52, to death Saturday, then stabbed herself to death.

A Friday car crash near Elgin in Central Texas left five dead. Authorities identified them as Taim Lele, about 26, a Cambodian who lived at Elgin; Sim Keo, another Cambodian, about 24, who lived in Austin; and three other Austin residents — Elizabeth Lucy Hernandez, 27, Janie Marie Roberts, 15, and Elena Roberts, 23.

BEAUTIFUL PROSPECTS — The Yellowhouse Canyon in Lubbock may look barren and weed-ridden now, but in future years visitors in the developing parkway can enjoy a vista of trees as the result of a Texas Tech University research project. Dr. Robert G. Stevens, left, and Max Robertson, Lubbock superintendent of parks, examine some of the 2,000 hardy survivors of approximately 2,800 trees planted throughout the canyon in the experiment supported by the Eisenhower Consortium for Western Environmental Forestry Research. The Texas Forest Service also has participated in the research.

Change due in landscape

LUBBOCK — Urban landscapes may be in for a change, with trees and shrubs giving shade and beauty in locations previously scarred by a faulty aim at progress.

Texas Tech University researchers, seeking ways to improve surroundings for urban dwellers, have been engaged in a project which has added almost 2,000 trees and shrubs to the Yellowhouse Canyon, which intersects the city of Lubbock.

Working on the study are Drs. Robert G. Stevens and B. L. Allen of the Department of Plant and Soil Science at Texas Tech and Robert Fewin of the Texas Forest Service. Cooperating with the researchers has been the city of Lubbock. The Eisenhower Consortium for Western Environmental Forestry Research supported the study with a $5,000 grant.

State Farm Bureau

meet includes youth

FORT WORTH — Young persons from across the state will compete in a Discussion Meet, Queen's Contest and Talent Find at the 43rd annual meeting of the Texas Farm Bureau, to be held Dec. 5-8 at the Tarrant County Convention Center here.

Winners will receive expenses to attend the American Farm Bureau Federation Convention in Hawaii, Jan. 9-12. At the AFBF convention, state Discussion Meet winners will compete for national-level awards, state Talent Find representatives will perform, and the state Farm Bureau queens will be presented.

Semi-finals of the Discussion Meet will be held at 2:30 p.m. on Dec. 5 in the Junior Ballroom of the Sheraton Hotel. Finals are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the hotel. Participants will be the 13 members of the Texas Farm Bureau Young Farmers and Ranchers Advisory Committee.

TFB's Talent Find Contest will begin at 9 p.m., Dec. 5 in the Convention Center Theater. Performing will be winners of TFB's county and district competition:

District 1 — a trio made up of Nanette Cluck, Tanya Harp and Lisa Nelson of Gruver, Hansford County; District 2 — a trio comprised of Mark Smith, Scott Smith, and Joe Smith of Plainview, Hale County; District 3 — Donnie McDermott of Seymour, Baylor County; District 4 — Ginny Hammack, Ferris, Ellis County; District 5 — a trio with Tommy Leverett, Dwayne Leverett, and Chuck Johnston, Clarksville, Red River County; and District 6 — Jennifer Miller of Justiceburg, Scurry County.

Other Talent Find competitors are: District 7 — Randy Ford, Ovalo, Taylor County; District 8 — Cheryl McCann, Lometa, Lampasas County; District 9 — Craig McNair, Dayton, Liberty County; District 11 — Beverly Parr, Needville, Ft. Bend County; District 12 — Cathy Menke, Kenedy, Karnes County; and District 13 — Chris Lockman, Orange Grove, Jim Wells County.

Selection of the 1976 Queen will begin at 7 p.m., Dec. 6 in the Convention Center Theater. Vying for the crown will be the 12 winners of county and district competition:

CIA sued by prof

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A University of Texas at Arlington professor has filed a $25 million damage claim against the Central Intelligence Agency for allegedly using the name of a Massachusetts aircraft company he headed, the Dallas Times Herald says.

The Times Herald reported in Sunday editions that the professor, Dr. Lynn Bollinger, says CIA agents illegally posed as representatives of Helio Aircraft Co. in the early 1970s.

Bollinger was chief executive officer of Helio's parent firm, General Aircraft Co., from 1954 to 1971.

The claim says the firm was negotiating with Congo authorities for an aircraft sale when that country's leaders discovered CIA operatives posing as company officials. The claim, filed with the CIA, has no legal status.

"Such cover was used by these agents to carry on illegal and immoral activities which resulted in the deaths of government officials in the Congo and the fall of the existing government," the claim said. "These activities came to the attention of the Congo government and immediately resulted in the expulsion of Helio and its legitimate employees from any further operations."

Ridin' fence

West Texas swamps?

with Marj Carpenter

Reporters very rarely look up to a public relations representative because we all know what type of job they hold.

We could have gone that route with decent hours, better pay, and dull subject matter.

However, when you talk to John Lango, public relations man for Nalco Chemical, who just opened a new Permian Basin Facility at Terminal, you're sure going to be looking up.

For one thing, the man is six feet, ten inches tall. I asked him if he ever played basketball, which I am sure is the first question most people ask him. He looked a little disgusted and went on talking about the $400 million in sales for Nalco in 1976. He told about how this particular division would work with industrial water treatment and told me about the many parts of the world where Nalco has business interests.

Then he grinned and finally admitted, "Yes, I played basketball at a college in Detroit that nobody ever heard of."

Then he went back to discussing the 21,000 square feet of the new facility. After all, this was the official open house, and public relations men are to talk Nalco. He turned on a video presentation on the company — which is certainly a noteworthy addition to the Permian Basin Industrial complex. We wish it were in Big Spring. It sounded so darn good.

I walked through the building and looked over the facilities since they had been gracious enough to send me an invitation to their open house. I met a lot of nice people that work for Nalco in such places as Terminal or Brownfield.

The district manager was showing me the new offices and I looked with interest at the selection of brand new paintings hung on the office walls.

I said, "Somebody who selected those paintings has spent some time in the Louisiana oilfields." Said R.J. (Bob) Seven, the manager, "Oh, didn't you notice the one of the buffalo hunter and the covered wagon?" "Oh yes," I admitted, "But I noticed an awful lot of cypress trees and pelicans standing around near the wharves."

He laughed and said, "I came here from Louisiana. I've never lived much of anywhere else" and he went to get his wife. She really enjoyed the fact that I could see through his two West Texas paintings to the display of Louisiana art.

"Don't worry about it," I laughed. "I really think they're pretty. I have lots of good friends in Louisiana and love to visit there, but it will never replace West Texas."

"Well," said his agreeable wife, "We've liked it better since we've been here than we did when we first took a look at it," and laughed.

But they're so proud of their brand new facility that they aren't worrying too much about things back "in the swamps."

And that's the way I found it at the new Nalco facility — last week, when I was out ridin' fence around the Permian Basin.

LSD, Yoko Ono not to blame

LONDON (AP) — Former Beatle John Lennon has criticized his ex-wife Cynthia for saying their marriage began to collapse after he took his first trip on LSD, according to a London newspaper.

A letter bearing Lennon's name and printed in today's Daily Express said the marriage was "long over before the advent of LSD or Yoko Ono," the Japanese artist who became Lennon's second wife. The Express said the letter was delivered to the offices of some British newspapers in New York, where the Lennons live.

Cynthia, who was recently quoted in a magazine interview, has remarried and now lives in Wales.

New York Times says...
"Hilton Inn is the best place to stay in Dallas."

In a special story on Dallas, The New York Times named three Dallas hotels and said, "Hilton Inn is the best place to stay in Dallas. It is centrally located and has two fine restaurants — Trader Vic's and the rooftop Harper's Corner. We invite you to enjoy Dallas Hilton Inn, too. We care."

and a common durable shrub, called skunk bush.

First day on the job and already he's got a bonus.

The company interviewed 18 people for the job and he got it.

Along with an office of his own.

And the opportunity to apply for Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage, no less.

His company could get other group health insurance at lower rates. But it knows that Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage returns more of its premiums in claim payments to policyholders than most other major insurance companies. And it doesn't set maximum dollar limits on most hospital services, including the intensive care unit.

It's only his first day on the job, but it's the beginning of a great future. And one way his company shows its confidence in him is by providing a chance to apply for Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage.

Does your company think enough of you to provide the best?

Burleson clarifies statement he made

Cong. Omar Burleson spoke to an Abilene service club on the Friday following Webb AFB's public hearing. In the Saturday, Nov. 6, edition of the Abilene Reporter-News, the Anson congressman was quoted as saying he was "afraid" that Webb would be closed.

SPECIFICALLY, HE was quoted as saying, "I'm afraid that the Air Force has its mind made up," and adding that what the Air Force wants, of course, would be a big factor in the decision.

Burleson also said that he doesn't feel that a city should keep a base just because it helps the economy. "If we used that argument," he was quoted as saying, "every town should have a base."

CONG. OMAR BURLESON

The article bothered a number of Big Spring people because they feared their friends in Abilene might have gotten the impression that this area had given up on Webb.

Big Spring also has been careful to argue for Webb mainly on its merits as a base and not for economic reasons, while the article might have left the wrong impression about that point too.

I felt certain that Cong. Burleson, who represents Big Spring in Washington, had not intended to convey any of these ideas, so I wrote him about the story. I received his reply last week, and I want to share it with the Herald's readers so they can more clearly understand what the congressman was saying. Burleson wrote:

"I can certainly understand your concern that the article projects an attitude of 'surrender,' which was not intended. As much work as we all have put into our effort to retain Webb Air Force Base, including my own efforts, I do not feel we have reached the point of surrender and, repeat, did not realize at all that any article would come out this way.

"There are some points on which we must be realistic but, certainly, this does not mean that a defeatist attitude was intended to be conveyed."

"I HAVE hopes that our pleas will be thoroughly considered, and hopefully the basis of a decision to retain Webb. We have presented some valid data, I feel, and I agree with you that we have not left any decision solely on the basis of the economic impact on the city."

A very good, perhaps an overwhelming argument can be made for Webb on its merits, and that's how both Cong. Burleson and the citizens of Big Spring have carried forth the fight to save the base.

Death of a mother

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The Mother of Parliaments, it isn't widely noticed, after many hundred years of doing pretty well, is slowly closing her door. Very little democratic business is being done these days, and it is by no means widely accepted that the breakdown is temporary. Those who hope there will be a true change for the better know that it will not come until things have further deteriorated.

ANTHONY LEJEUNE, the British journalist who for 25 years has faultlessly analyzed what has been going on writes now that the defeat of the present Labour Government is indispensable — "A necessary condition of there being any chance at all. Nothing could be more decisive to the national interest: so, if further shocks are needed to bring this government down, patriotic Englishmen — and Britain's friends abroad — must simply hope for the worst."

Symbols abound of the economic sluggishness that is bringing Britain to the poorhouse. But seldom do we see the odd mixture of politics and reactionary economics in quite the mix that has brought to its knees the film-processing firm located in London. It has been non-union forever, and a recent election reaffirmed the desire of the majority not to join the union. But the minority struck, never mind the law. And persuaded other unions to harass the plant.

Even so, the Grunwick Company went doggedly on. Then the unions thought of a heretofore unused weapon: Enlist the help of the Union of Post Office Workers. Now that Postal Union refuses to deliver mail to the truck plant. Since most of the business comes in, and goes out, by mail, the isolation is economically asphyxiating. This brought howls of outrage in the House of Commons — the whole thing is in the style of Indira Gandhi — but the government's spokesman in the House of Commons, while deploring the union's illegal act, said that after all there wasn't much the government could do about it. It was like Allende back in 1973, advising the Parliament that there wasn't anything he could do to obey the orders of the courts. Presumably that would be the same answer if, let us say, the Postal Union voted tomorrow to decline to circulate the anti-socialist views of the Daily Telegraph. What the Germans weren't able to do in England in 1940, the English are doing to themselves.

Occasionally, leaders of the Labour Party remonstrate. "For too long," said Mr. Callaghan at the annual Conference of the Labour Party, "this country has trodden the primrose path and borrowed money from abroad to maintain our standard of living. For too long Britain has lived on borrowed money, borrowed ideas, and borrowed time."

For this he was greeted with chill; and his colleague Mr. Healey, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was booed for similar sentiments. Perhaps to demonstrate an extra-forensic solidarity, Healey then went on to demand yet another loan from the International Monetary Fund, without which, he said, the economic consequences might be so grave there would be "rioting in the streets."

Now all this is being egged on by the militant socialists. "I would favor a siege economy cutting ourselves off from the rest of the world," Alan Fisher of the Public Employees' Union said. Tom Jackson, the leader of the Postal Workers' Union had a more highly elaborated tactical approach. We should tell the IMF: "Either bail us out or we go down, pulling half the developed world with us."

Zinc may help restore lost taste

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently recovered from a bout with the flu, but have found my sense of taste still lost. A friend told me she read a long while ago in your column about zinc sulfate helping in this. But my doctor has not heard of it. Can you tell me anything more about it? I never realized until now how much one depends on proper taste, not only for enjoyment of food, but for safety as with telling whether food is good, etc. — Mrs. T.G.

Loss of taste is still somewhat of a mystery to physicians. Recent studies, however, have indicated that such things as a respiratory infection can apparently lead to it. The reason is unclear, although it apparently has to do with changes in the taste buds that diminish their efficiency. The problem is far more common than thought.

Further studies have noted some relief from supplements of zinc sulfate. This was reported fairly recently in an issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Zinc is one of the "trace" metals that occur naturally in all foods. The average daily diet supplies from 10 to 15 milligrams of it. Most of it (about two-thirds) is lost in feces and urine, with the body using the rest. Meat protein is the richest source.

It should be noted, however, that zinc, like any metal, can be toxic if absorbed in excess by the body, so supplement use should be undertaken only with a doctor's supervision.

We do depend on our senses to tell us, from past experience, whether food is edible or not. And since taste is closely tied in with smell, a loss of taste may make it difficult to detect dangerous odors, as from escaping gas. In fact it is safer to depend on smell than taste in determining food safety — for obvious reasons.

I'm sure we can look for more research into this important problem, which has long puzzled practicing physicians.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 56 years old and have a bowel problem. Four years ago I had a lower GI (X-ray) series and my doctor said I had a spastic colon. He put me on a bland diet and it got better.

Now I have trouble again. I was in the hospital for another GI and the doctor tells me I have an atoma colon and I should stay on a bland diet the rest of my life.

Could you please tell me about atoma colon? — H.S.

First, spastic colon is one in which the normal rhythmic movement of the bowel walls (peristalsis) is lost. Instead, the colon walls work in spasms.

All of this is controlled by our nervous system without our being aware of it. But such spasms can occur in tense persons with a history of laxative abuse, irregular eating habits and a generally erratic lifestyle. It's a mighty unpleasant situation, with constipation and — or diarrhea, just two possible consequences.

I have not heard of an atoma colon — I feel sure your doctor said "atonic" colon.

This means that now your bowel has lost the muscle tone, probably as a result of its continuing spasm condition.

In any case a bland diet is essential, because now your bowel has lost even the partial ability it had for handling residue. I can't say whether your bland diet will be required for the rest of your life. Getting back muscle tone is difficult anywhere in the body, and more so in the bowel, so I suspect it will be for life. Time will tell.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would becoming pregnant cause more pain from a peptic ulcer? — P.J.

Not necessarily. A greater concern would be in insuring a proper diet for nourishment of the fetus. Be sure to mention this to your doctor.

For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have always heard that nail polishes and their removal can damage the nails. How so? The nails seem tough and non-porous. — Mrs. R.T.

According to Dr. Gerald A. Gelin, in a report in Skin and Allergy News, the nails are subject to injury and infection from excessive manicuring.

He notes that some chemicals used on nails can soak through the nail surface to the nail bed and cause inflammation. Dr. Gelin also notes that improper manicuring can allow bacterial infection to set in. He recommends that a sterile instrument be used to push back the cuticles. Even a dirty nail file may infect the nail.

As to nails being nonporous, notice how soggy they can become with long soaking.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Recently a friend showed me Revelation 13:18 in which the evil beast that comes near the end of the world is given a sort of code name, 666. She claimed that the numbers could somehow be related to the alphabet, and could be made to spell out the name of one of our high government officials. What about this? — G.B.

DEAR G.B.: There have been many ingenious attempts, sometimes seemingly plausible ones, to decipher the meaning of this term. Some scholars have suggested that it stood for the name of one of the Roman emperors. Many other suggestions have been made, and history has shown them to be wild speculations at best. The exact meaning intended by the author of Revelation is simply not clear to us today. I believe it is extremely dangerous, however, to assign the name dogmatically to any historical figure.

Some scholars also suggest that the number "666" was not intended to name a specific person, but instead was a symbol of the evil one who would come. In the ancient world, the number "7" was seen as a perfect number. Thus the number "666," according to this interpretation, simply underlines the incompleteness and imperfection of the evil one.

Whatever the meaning, those who know Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour are certain that not even the evil one "shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 8:39).

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

Time to clear out the old file drawer again with letters from you folks out there that have piled up over the weeks.

Dear Danny,
Do you let your mother-in-law see the filthy rotten stuff you write about the University of Texas? You have a real problem. What do you tell her? You're a sports editor? You know what you're talking about? Ha! I'm glad I'm not in your shoes. My mother is an Aggie. I can write anything I want to.

Dear Danny,

LISTEN GUY, I have you know I have quite a reputation in the entertainment field as a fun guy, at least as funny as Jim Baum, and you never mention me in your column. Let me show you some of my "A" (show biz talk for good) material. Just listen to this:

"Tommy Hart is a self-made man who is the worst example of unskilled labor you've ever seen." Hey! Huh? Like that one? How about this?

"Joe Frazier has a face that looks like it wore out six bodies." Yeah! Socko!

"If you kicked Howard Cosell in the heart, you'd break your toe." Ha! Ha! Well, how about it Danny? That's just a sample of my wares. Huh? How about it? Take my wife... please. Ha! Ha!

—Winnie the Pooh
Radioland, USA

(REPLY: Gee Winnie, I'd like to help you, but frankly, I've read funnier stuff on the back of baking soda cans.)

Dear Danny,
Hey! I'm over here!

—Judge Crater
Here, Miss.

Dear Danny,
Hi! It's me again. Did you hear the joke about the ceiling? No? Well, it was over your head anyway? Ha! Ha! Ha!

—Winnie
Insistent Ave.

(REPLY: Say Winnie, now that one was pretty good. Work up an act and call me back.)

Dear Danny,
I have this sensational sports article, "Earl Campbell's Absolute Fear of Darrell Royal sawing him in half as depicted in his half-time addresses." I've sent it to no telling how many sports magazine, but nobody's buying. If you can't use it, please send some spare change. All I need is carfare back to Oklahoma.

Dear Danny,

YOU DON'T know me, but you bumped into me the other day, and you didn't apologize, so I followed you home and got your name and family names, and pet's names, and I'm going to tell everyone you stink, because I hate insensitive people.

—Johnny Tomorrow

Dear Danny,

Now ya'll just done gone too damn far, talkin' about my pick-up. Shoot, I can take a joke just like everybody else, but putting down my "Betty June" was too much. You thank you've heard LOUD? Wait 'til tomorrow morning turkey!

Dear Danny,

If you don't give me equal time, I'm going to sic B.B. (you know who I mean) on you, and you'll never have another moments peace. Lord knows I haven't since the election. Hey, let's be friends, OK? Can you use this one:

"It was so hot yesterday, (now you ask 'How hot was it?') that I saw a bound dog chasing a rabbit and they were both walking." O-ho! Ha! Ha! Ha!

WASHINGTON — The Secret Service is upset with the FBI for failing to tell it about a suspect in the Legionnaires Disease case.

Unknown to the Secret Service, the suspect was at large when President Ford recently visited the Philadelphia hotel where 29 American Legion conventioners were stricken last July.

The breakdown in communications raised the hackles of Secret Service officials who recalled the FBI's failure to warn them about Lee Harvey Oswald before President John F. Kennedy's tragic visit to Dallas in November 1963.

A MYSTERIOUS affliction struck down the 29 unlucky legionnaires, all of whom had been, at Philadelphia's grand old Bellevue Stratford hotel. Meanwhile, we learned that a vague and ominous letter had been sent to Dr. William Sunderman Jr., the nation's leading expert in nickel poisoning. The letter hinted at nickel poisoning.

Since the anonymous letter reached Sunderman before most experts began to suspect nickel carbonyl may have been the lethal agent, Sunderman turned the letter over to the FBI in Hartford. Whoever wrote the letter, it appeared, might have inside knowledge of the calamity in Philadelphia.

Although the FBI received the letter by August 2, the Secret Service was never shown a copy. In the meantime, President Ford was cleared for a visit to the Bellevue Stratford on the evening of September 23.

The president visited some of the same spots where the dead legionnaires had been seen. Had the Secret Service known a suspect was still loose, with a knowledge of nickel poisoning, it's doubtful the president would have been permitted to visit the hotel.

BUT THE Secret Service didn't learn about the ominous letter until we wrote about it on October 28. We quoted from a confidential study by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., that the killer may have been a "paranoid" person with a knowledge of chemicals.

Alerted by our column, the Secret Service contacted Murphy and, with his help, located the letter. By use of sophisticated ink comparisons and other scientific tools, the Secret Service quickly located the letter writer.

He turned out to fit Murphy's description of the possible killer. He was eccentric and possessed some knowledge of chemicals. But after surveillance and investigation, the Secret Service determined that the man had not been in Philadelphia at the right time to have caused the legionnaires' deaths.

"Your column alerted us to the potential suspect," said a spokesman. "We did a thorough investigation. We talked to him. We do not now regard him as a protective interest." In other words, he looked like a possible suspect but has now been ruled out.

Footnote: Officially, both the FBI and Secret Service declined to comment on the breakdown in liaison. But not for attribution, Secret Service sources confirmed they were "deeply concerned" over the FBI's failure to forward a copy of the letter to them at once. In fairness, it should be added that communication between the two agencies usually has been excellent since President Kennedy's assassination.

HMMMM CONTROVERSY: A controversy is boiling inside the National Education Assn. over an employee's right to say "Hmmm" to his superiors.

We inadvertently touched off the great "Hmmm" debate by accusing the National Institute of Education of recklessness with the taxpayers' money. Our story was read with special interest at the NEA, which works closely with the federal institute.

A STAFF aide, named Don McComb, reproduced the column, wrote "Hmmm" at the bottom and circulated it among his fellow employees. He questioned whether the NEA might be involved in the NIE hanky-panky.

This infuriated his boss, John Sullivan, who fired off an angry memo, charging that McComb sought to "undermine" the NEA and threatening "to discharge him for insubordination" if he persisted.

Now the union which represents NEA employees has stepped into the controversy. The union contends that McComb was exercising his freedom of speech when he added the accusatory "Hmmm" to the bottom of our column.

Footnote: Sullivan told us his memo was merely a warning of what would happen if McComb repeated his pamphleteering, without evidence to back it up.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Federal Aviation Administration is losing at least $12.6 million a year because 20 per cent of its trainees are washing out before they complete their instruction.

Now, Rep. William Randall, D-Mo., is pressuring Administrator John McLucas to employ "radar simulators" at the FAA training academy to save the taxpayers' money.

In a private letter to McLucas, Randall pointed out that much of the $12.6 million loss occurs when trainees flunk on-the-job radar tests. If the trainees were tested with radar simulators before they reached on-the-job, two or more years of costly controller instruction could be saved by weeding out those unable to do the precision radar work.

Fumed Randall: The failure to use the simulators "creates the inescapable impression of an agency which has suffered from disorganization and a lack of strong, central leadership."

Househunting One of few bright spots try Osceola

OSCEOLA, Minn. (AP) — Househunting? The government has 27 single-family homes for sale, many on a wooded cul-de-sac.

But you'll have to buy them all — along with 30 other buildings, including heating and sewage treatment plants, plus recreation fields and courts, radar towers and an old airplane.

The General Services Administration is selling the one-time U.S. Air Force Radar Station 40 miles northeast of St. Paul. The base once had 294 men. Improvements in radar technology have eliminated the need for the base, built in 1951.

The base is being sold as a unit, for cash only. Bids close Jan. 13.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home buying this year is providing one of the few bright spots in the nation's economic picture despite studies showing the average American family cannot afford a median-priced house.

Sales of new and existing homes are certain to surpass the old record of three million set in 1975, industry and government figures show. And home buying is booming despite a 61 per cent jump in the price of a new home over the past four years.

In fact, analysts say, people are so determined to buy their own little rose-covered cottage that both spouses are holding down jobs and some may be digging deeper into their budget to swing it.

"Under the old ratios, many buyers would have been priced out, but by having two incomes and stretching even further, they're managing to keep up," said Kenneth J. Karin, chief economist of the National Association of Realtors.

Mortgage rates — a key factor in home costs — have dropped, and some families apparently are cashing in on the equity in their former homes which have risen in value.

For example, a median-priced existing home purchased four years ago for $27,000, with $2,700 down and carrying a 25-year, 7.5-per-cent mortgage, would yield the owner $15,955 in cash toward another home if sold for today's median price of $38,700.

Whatever the reason, according to the National Association of Realtors, sales of existing homes are expected to hit three million this year, up from last year's record 2.45 million, and the Census Bureau says sales of new homes totaled 492,000 over the first nine months of the year.

The record for sales of new homes in a year was 718,000 set in 1972.

The Census Bureau reported the median price of a new home in September was $45,200, up from $39,700 in the same month a year ago and $28,000 in 1972.

Cream layer is popular

FOWLerville, Mich. (AP) — Putting the rich, foamy cream layer back on the top of bottled milk has turned a family-run dairy in central Michigan into a thriving business.

Harry Kreeger said his dairy business was flourishing a year ago. Then the Kreegers brought back the "cream line" by giving customers everything that comes from the cow, with no additions or subtractions.

Now, the Kreegers sell 500 gallons of the milk in returnable glass bottles every day out of stores here, in Williamston and Howell. Their slogan is "Direct from Moo to You."

Every bottle of Kreeger milk bears a label that the milk is only pasteurized, not homogenized, so the cream floats on top.

Early retirement is investigated

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (Special to The Herald) — The growing number of air traffic controllers "retiring" on up to 75 per cent pay has prompted an FBI investigation of possible fraud.

This was revealed in a copyrighted article appearing in an aviation magazine. The investigation is being conducted by the Atlanta, Georgia office of the FBI, according to the Pilot magazine. The Pilot is published by Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, a 195,000-member organization.

In the past two years, the article states, 109 controllers in just the Southeast region of the Federal Aviation Administration were certified as medically unfit to control traffic. One doctor alone certified 64 of these, the magazine says.

The magazine reports controllers from other states have come to this one doctor.

These and other "drop out" controllers are costing taxpayers some $40 million a year and that figure is expected to climb.

As things now stand, the magazine says, a controller with five years on the job needs only to have his personal physical physician or psychiatrist certify that the individual should not be handling air traffic. The controller most likely will be taken off his job, receive up to two years training for a new profession while collecting his full pay, and retire.

13-year-old found safe

VAN HORN, Tex. (AP) — A 13-year-old Monahans youth and an El Paso man survived long hours in a winter snow storm near the Guadalupe Mountains in Culberson County with no ill effects over the weekend.

Steve Fine and Manuel Moya, 45, were separated from their two deer hunting groups Saturday.

Fine spent about 17 hours in the snow-covered wilderness before being found Sunday morning by Reeves County deputies.

He said he lay down in a hole and covered himself with a blanket to keep warm. "I wasn't worried because I knew how to take care of myself," the youth said.

Moya had been missing for 24 hours on a Culberson County ranch and was found Sunday evening west of his camp by sheriff's officers.

Three women honored with birthdays

Nannie Adkins, 92, was honored along with Sarah Griffith and Minnie Unger on their birthdays during November. Mrs. Adkins was given a money tree from the Rebekah Lodge No. 284.

Several members, along with those from the John A. Kee Lodge, attended the past Saturday Night Social where a supper was served followed by music and a cake auction in Snyder.

Earl Wilson reported that Mr. and Mrs. John Lambert are now the house parents for the Corsicana Children's Home. The children themselves have moved recently into new cottages in Corsicana.

The Past Noble Grand Club met at the home of Lucille Petty. Maudie Jones presented all her officers with gifts for helping during her term as noble grand.

Ora Martin was presented with her fifty-year pin. A cake was served in her honor for her years of service with the Rebekah's.

The club also had the honor of having Mr. and Mrs. Jess Angel of Stanton with them from the Stanton Lodge.

Inflation becoming incredible

Inflation rate over past two years has averaged 9 percent. If that rate were to continue, by the year 2000 prices would be unbelievable on the basis of current standards: $622,000 for a house; $45,500 for a year at college; hospital care, $290 per day; a haircut, $20.50. Looking back, however, today's prices seem unbelievable by yesterday's standards. Twenty-five years ago, a house cost $12,000; college expenses were about $1,000 per year; hospital care was $11 per day. Today, the average house is $40,000 plus; college runs $3,800 per year; and hospital care averages $75 per day and up.

Swinging single a grandpa groupie

DEAR ABBY: I know a 52-year-old divorcee who hangs around with senior citizens, pretending to be their age. She plays up to all the men (especially the rich ones) in hopes of snagging herself a husband. Isn't this unfair competition to the women who are 65 and older who are also in the market for husbands?

She doesn't tell her age, but goes to all these senior citizen affairs and just eats up the compliments when people tell her how "young" she looks.

I and a lot of women here in St. Petersburg, Fla., would appreciate your comments. SIXTY-SIX AND LOOKS IT

DEAR SIXTY-SIX: Sorry, but age has never entered the ground rules in the mating game. All is fair in love and war, from St. Petersburg to St. Peter!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is hung up on self-hypnosis and reaching the subconscious mind through sleep suggestion. He is now determined to play a tape to our 12-year-old son (only child) every night for an hour, shortly after he has fallen asleep.

My husband has cut that tape, using his voice, transcribing informational and soothing words of encouragement. He believes that it will help our son develop his intellectual capacities.

I think that while there is much to be said about sleep suggestion, and it may be the answer for some people, a child's God-given sleep should be undisturbed.

Our son is a very good student, and he's active in sports. He somewhat fears his father, and I don't believe my husband should assail the boy's mind night and day.

What are your thoughts? NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: If the boy is emotionally secure, a good student and active in sports, I'm for leaving his subconscious mind alone. It's not the taped suggestions per se that can harm the boy, but rather your husband's determination to impose his influence on his son night and day.

DEAR ABBY: ON THE SPOT wrote in to say she works with women who ask her where she bought her dress, shoes, etc., and then how much they cost. I have the perfect answer. When people I know ask me a similar question, I tell them it was either the Salvation Army or Goodwill, but I'm not sure which.

They usually chuckle and ask me again, but the answer is always the same. Finally they realize that I am not going to tell them, and they quit asking me.

Meanwhile I chuckle to myself because when I was young, most of my clothes did come from the Goodwill Resale Shop, and people were always complimenting me on my wardrobe.

Couple in trouble over license plate motto

CLAREMONT, N.H. (AP) — The case of a husband and wife who have refused to display New Hampshire's motto "Live Free or Die" on their license plates reaches the nation's highest court today.

"We feel life is more precious than freedom," say George and Maxine Maynard.

A panel of three federal judges ruled in February that the Maynards acted within the law when they taped over the motto on their plates. New Hampshire has appealed that judgment, and arguments were to be presented to the U.S. Supreme Court today in Washington.

Maynard, a 42-year-old printer, had gone to jail for refusing to pay a fine imposed for obliterating the motto. The Maynards, who are Jehovah's Witnesses, said the motto violates their religious beliefs.

The federal judges said that under the First

Clubhouse Gage Lloyd is speaker

R. Gage Lloyd was the speaker for the Altrusa Club Thanksgiving meeting at Coker's on Tuesday, Nov. 22. He was introduced by Frances Hendrick, chairman of the community service program.

He reminded us that our blessings are many and that we should thank God for all material blessings. We should also be thankful for the things that do not happen such as when we fall and are not hurt.

God's blessings, he said, come fresh every morning. He reminded us to re-read the 103rd Psalm. It reminds us that God satisfies all our needs, that He forgives our iniquities, that He redeems us from destruction, that He gives us kindness and mercy and that He executes righteousness and judgement for all of the oppressed.

People can be unconscious of their blessings because they often have so much, he said. "But it's really not how much we have but how we feel about what we have," he added.

Floyd repeated a fable from Aesop and reminded us of two little-known laws from the Books of Leviticus and Exodus that we would do well to remember and live by.

He ended his talk with the reminder that to truly give thanks, we must have a thankful heart. "Oh that men the world over would give thanks for what they have," he finished.

A report was given on the members who are sick. It was decided that a donation would be taken at the Christmas party for the State Hospital. The Christmas party will be at the Country Club on Friday, Dec. 10, 1976.

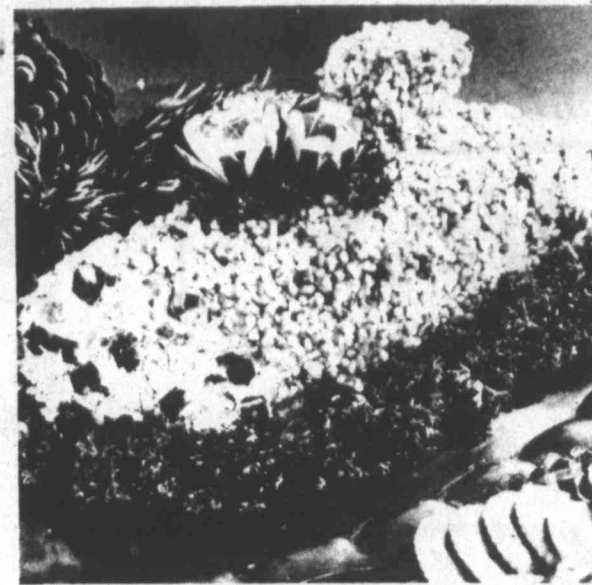

The meeting adjourned with all members repeating the Altrusa benediction.

28th annual tea given

The A. B. Dement Civic and Art Club had their 28th annual tea Sunday evening Nov. 28 in the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Attendance was good. Cake and coffee were served to members.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. M. N. Chaney, on Dec. 14.

Liversausage pate Yule Log

Plan edible loaf for centerpiece

PLAN AN EDIBLE CENTERPIECE

The Yule log has become a traditional symbol of the holidays worldwide, dating back to the Norsemen who honored Thor, their god of war, by burning specially cut timbers. To set the mood of your holiday table, make a liver sausage pate Yule log, with surprise bites of salami, bologna or your favorite sausage tucked inside.

PATE YULE LOG

Pate:
1 pound liver sausage
¾ pound cream cheese
Inside Ingredients:
¼ pound bologna (¼-inch cubes)
¼ pound salami (¼-inch cubes)
¼ pound blood and tongue sausage or your favorite sausage (¼-inch cubes)

Garnish: Chopped parsley, chopped nuts and crushed potato chips

Blend liver sausage and cream cheese which have been prepared at room temperature.

Add cubed bologna, salami, blood and tongue sausage and mix with pate. Shape pate mixture into a log form, measuring about 8 to 10 inches long. Wrap in wax paper and chill. Remove wax paper. Cut each end of log at an angle to resemble a cut log. Roll log in chopped parsley, chopped nuts or crushed potato chips. If desired, trimming can be used to shape a small "branch" on the log. Garnish with a cluster of radish roses or cherry tomatoes and sprigs of parsley. Serve with cocktail rye, or a cracker assortment.

Out-of-town guests noted

Mrs. Vera Trantham had out-of-town guests for a traditional turkey dinner last weekend.

Included were her daughter's family, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Smith of Kaufman, Miss Diane Trantham and Mrs. Theodore Smith. Also Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Buford of Brownwood, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Osburn, Vanessa Trantham, Troy Trantham and Mrs. Otis Grafa.

Mrs. Grace Warren honored with birthday celebration

A 90th birthday party was given to Mrs. Grace Warren Nov. 27 in the Kentwood Older Adult Center by her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Karen Hughes and Marilyn Montgomery co-hosted the celebration. Mrs. Warren's children include, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Warren, Mrs. Estelene Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Erickson of Michigan, Leta Metcalf, Billy Ray Warren, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Warren.

Seventy-five family members and friends were present. Mrs. Warren thanked all the people who contributed to her gift of a money tree.

Mrs. Warren, who lives at 605 E. 15th, moved to Big Spring in 1921. She is a member of the Temple Baptist Church. Her husband, a farmer, died in 1967. They were the first couple, her children say, to move to the community of Richland, which has since dissolved. Mrs. Erickson explained that there is only one person, to her knowledge, still residing in the old community of Richland.

Chosen Woman of the Year at the Temple Baptist Church years ago, Mrs. Warren has been a housewife all her life. She still lives alone taking care of herself at 90.

"I've never seen anyone so happy in their life," said Mrs. Erickson of her mother Saturday.

GRINDING FOR A GAIN — Pittsburgh Steelers running back Franco Harris (32) grinds ahead for a gain with Cincinnati Bengals defenders Glenn Cameron, left, and Bob Brown hanging on in the second half of a game in Cincinnati Sunday. Harris gained 87 yards during the game, including the Steelers' only touchdown, as Pittsburgh won the game, 7-3, in a heavy snow storm.

"Touchdown Tony" to take Heisman?

Championship up for grabs

By The Associated Press

College football's national championship, still up for grabs, takes a back seat for the next month or so. The next order of business is the Heisman Trophy and No. 1-ranked Pitt's Tony Dorsett is expected to run away with it Tuesday.

"Touchdown Tony" wound up the regular season with a scintillating 224-yard display in Pitt's 24-7 triumph over 16th-ranked Penn State. That boosted his season yardage to 1,948, an all-time NCAA record, and also made him the first 6,000-yard runner in history.

Dorsett has 6,082 career yards, which figures out to almost 3 1/2 miles. But right now he has other things besides records and yardage on his mind.

"I had all the records I really wanted going into this game," he said. "A national championship, that's my No. 1 goal now."

However, at least four other teams also have that as their objective and Pitt must face one of them — fourth-ranked Georgia — in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day. The Bulldogs eked out a 13-10 victory over Georgia Tech on Allan Leavitt's 33-yard field goal with just five seconds to play.

The other challengers are second-ranked Michigan, bound for the Rose Bowl against third-ranked Southern California, a 17-13 winner over No. 13 Notre Dame, and fifth-ranked Maryland, which meets No. 7 Houston in the Cotton Bowl. And the national championship race will go right down to the wire — i.e., the New Year's Day bowl games.

Besides Pitt and Maryland, the only unbeaten-untied team in the country is No. 17 Rutgers, a 17-9 winner over Colgate but scorned by the bowls because of its unattractive schedule.

In other games involving The Associated Press Top Twenty on the final big weekend of the regular season:

—Amazing Houston made it to the Cotton Bowl in its first season of Southwest Conference competition by routing Rice 42-20.

—Eighth-ranked Oklahoma scored twice in the final period and bumped off No. 10 Nebraska 20-17. The Sooners thus tied for the Big Eight championship with Colorado and Oklahoma State; but Colorado will go to the Orange Bowl to meet 12th-ranked Ohio State while Nebraska trudges to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl against ninth-ranked Texas Tech, a 30-7 winner over Arkansas.

—Texas A&M, ranked 11th and bound for the Sun Bowl against Florida, whipped Texas Tech 27-3 while unranked Florida held off Miami of Florida 19-10.

—Oklahoma State, tied for 14th with Colorado, trimmed Texas-El Paso 42-13 and No. 18 Alabama walloped Auburn 38-7.

Besides Michigan, Maryland, Ohio State and Colorado, other Top Twenty teams which completed their regular seasons earlier were UCLA, No. 6, and Mississippi State and North Carolina, tied for 19th.

The other bowl pairings look like this:

Gator — Notre Dame vs. Penn State; Fiesta — Oklahoma vs. Wyoming; Liberty — UCLA vs. Alabama; Tangerine — Oklahoma State vs. Brigham Young; Peach — North Carolina vs. Kentucky; Independence — McNeese State vs. Tulsa.

The regular season actually winds up with five games next Saturday — Miami, Fla. at Houston, Baylor at Texas Tech, Nebraska at Hawaii, Arkansas at Texas and Northeast Louisiana at Southwestern Louisiana.

Ricky Bell of Southern Cal made it a two-man Heisman race for a while by gaining more than 1,000 yards in his first five games, only the second college player to accomplish that feat. But in the next four games, he missed one with an injury and was below par in three others.

He rebounded with a superb performance in the Pacific-8 showdown against UCLA but moved from tailback to fullback for much of Saturday's game against Notre Dame and was held to 75 yards on 21 carries.

Dorsett, however, romped for 224 yards on 38 carries against Penn State, including a six-yard run in the second period and a tie-breaking 40-yard scamper in the third quarter.

"Dorsett really deserves the Heisman Trophy," Bell said. "I can't beat his performance this season, but I gave him a run for the money to the fifth game."

Local gridders get honorable mention

Five Steer gridders received honorable mention in the annual 5-A football all-district selections.

End Kenneth Coffey and quarterback Bubba Stripling made honorable mention for offense, while linebacker Tony Mann and backs Tommy Churchwell and Billy Hayes ranked in defense.

Darrell Shepard, Odessa High's do-everything quarterback, was named the league's Most Valuable Back. Permian tight end-defensive end Rinny Johnson was voted Most Valuable Lineman.

Odessa High coach Dick Winder, who led the Bronchos to an 8-2 record after being picked to finish in the depths of 5-A, was named Coach of the Year.

Bi-district champ, Midland Lee, placed five athletes on the annual team, four on defense. Seven Permian players made the first team.

The team is selected each year by the eight coaches in the district and the five newspapers who cover the competition.

Weekend football action

Three inevitable, one miracle

By The Associated Press

The Baltimore Colts, Los Angeles Rams and New England Patriots are another step closer today toward what seems to be the inevitable. And the Pittsburgh Steelers are another step closer to what might well be called a miracle.

The Colts devoured the New York Jets 33-16 and the Rams gobbled up the New Orleans Saints 33-14 in National Football League play Sunday and edged within a step of clinching division titles, while the Patriots crushed the Denver Broncos 38-14 and moved within a victory of clinching an American Conference playoff berth.

And the Steelers, playing on the brink of disaster, pulled out a 7-3 victory over Cincinnati in a snowstorm, keeping alive their hopes of returning to the Super Bowl which they have won the past two years.

In Sunday's other NFL games, it was Washington 24, Philadelphia 0; Oakland 49, Tampa Bay 16; the New York Giants 28, Seattle 16; Cleveland 17, Miami 13; Chicago 16, Green Bay 10; Houston 20, Atlanta 14, and Kansas City 23, San Diego 20. Last Thursday, it was Dallas 19, St. Louis 14, and Detroit 27, Buffalo 14. Tonight it is Minnesota at San Francisco. If the 49ers lose, the Rams will become the National Conference West champions.

Cincinnati had a chance to shoot down Pittsburgh's chances of getting into Super Bowl XI and the games which lead to it. Instead, the Bengals have a gun pointed at themselves — and they could get shot down a week from tonight.

By beating Pittsburgh, the Bengals would have clinched the American Conference's Central title and killed the Steelers' chances of making the playoffs. Now, though, Cincinnati leads the division by one game with two to go.

And while Pittsburgh plays relatively easy foes in Tampa Bay and Houston, Cincinnati has to face the Raiders, the winningest team in the league, next Monday night at Oakland before closing the season in New York against the Jets. A two-team tie would give the division title to the Steelers, who beat the Bengals twice.

Franco Harris scored the game's only touchdown on a four-yard run late in the third quarter after the Steelers had recovered a Boobie Clark fumble at the Cincinnati 24. The Bengals' points came on Chris Bahr's 40-yard field goal in the first period.

Colts 33, Jets 16
Bert Jones tore up the Je's with three touchdown passes in a 24-point second quarter, covering 14 yards to Lydell Mitchell, five yards to Don McCauley and 31 yards to Roger Carr, keeping the Colts one game ahead of New England in the AFC East.

Rams 33, Saints 14
Rookie Pat Haden passed for two touchdowns — a two-yarder to Lawrence McCutcheon and a four-yarder to Bob Klein — and ran seven yards for a TD in the Rams' romp over New Orleans.

Patriots 38, Broncos 14
Steve Grogan of New England also did his pass-and-run thing, throwing three yards to Al Chandler and bulging in from the one for a pair of TDs. Don Calhoun amassed 177 yards on the ground and rookie Mike Haynes returned a punt 62 yards for a touchdown, ending Denver's hopes of making the playoffs.

Redskins 24, Eagles 0
"Every time the Eagles made a mistake, we capitalized," said Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer, who threw three touchdown passes, the first following a 45-yard punt return by Eddie Brown, the next two after fumble recoveries by Dennis Johnson.

Raiders 49, Buccaneers 16
Oakland got a pair of one-yard touchdown plunges by Mark van Eeghen and a pair of scoring passes by Ken Stabler — nine yards to Warren Bankston and 25 to Cliff Branch — in remaining the league's winningest team at 11-1 and further solidifying Tampa Bay's chance of becoming the first NFL team to finish at 0-14.

Giants 28, Seahawks 16
Seattle, the other expansion team, jumped to a 9-0 first-quarter lead on Sherman Smith's two-yard touchdown run and John Leybold's 45-yard field goal. But by halftime, the Giants were on top and they finished that way as Craig Morton threw for two touchdowns and Gordon Bell ran for two.

Browns 17, Dolphins 13
Brian Sipe threw for two touchdowns and Don Cockroft kicked a late field goal in a sudden snowstorm for Cleveland's points — but it was the defense that really beat Miami by holding off the Dolphins in the final seconds.

Bears 16, Packers 10
Bob Avellini teamed with James Scott on a 49-yard touchdown pass play in the first period, then Bob Thomas kicked field goals of 40, 25 and 22 yards, lifting the Bears past the Packers. Walter Payton rushed for 110 yards for Chicago.

Oilers 20, Falcons 14
Houston got helping hands from quarterback John Hadl and linebacker Robert Brazile in beating Atlanta. First, Hadl unleashed a 40-yard touchdown pass to Billy Johnson, then Brazile batted down Kim McQuilken's fourth-down pass from the Houston six into the Oilers' end zone with about a minute to play.

Chiefs 23, Chargers 20
Running back Ed Podolak, out of action for five weeks with a groin injury, returned with a vengeance, rolling up 127 yards and scoring two touchdowns, including one on a five-yard run with five minutes to play, boosting Kansas City past the Chargers.

TENNIS
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Brigitte Cuypers, the No. 6 seed from South Africa, defeated Laura Dupont of Charlotte, N.C., 6-7, 6-4, 6-1 and won the South African Open tennis title.

TOKYO — Spaniard Manuel Orantes won the men's title and Chris Evert captured the women's crown in the Gunze World Tennis Tournament

Steers host Lamesa, last game for month

The Big Spring Steers basketball quintet, "Griffin's Group", entertain the Lamesa Golden Tors round-ballers Tuesday night at 8 p.m.

The Bovines, coming off a sensational come-from-behind win over Plainview Saturday night, will be trying to win their fourth game in five starts, one of the best beginning a local squad has had in years.

Head Coach James Griffin, JV coach Ed Henry and Sophomore coach Don Childs were grateful to the people who came out in the cold Saturday to back all three teams to victory.

Tomorrow's game will be the last home game for the team until the conference opener Jan. 4, against Abilene High. The Steers go on a month-long road trip that includes play in three different tournaments.

Griffin and his group are hoping to see as many people out for the game as jammed the insides of Steer Gym for the home-opener.

A sophomore and junior varsity game will precede the varsity match.

Hoosiers back at it

By the Associated Press

The Indiana Hoosiers spent last season beating everybody's brains out and they've picked up this year right where they left off.

Bullying underprivileged South Dakota, the defending NCAA champions opened their college basketball season Saturday with an authoritative 110-64 victory.

"They pounded us on the boards," said South Dakota Coach Jack Doyle after the beating from the nation's fifth-ranked team. "It's tough to play a team the caliber of Indiana when you realize we're a Division II school and they're the national champions."

Bobby Knight, whose Hoosiers added onto their 32-game victory string of last year, looked at the opener as more of a tuneup than a test. His club is minus four starters from last year's team.

"We played with a number of combinations and did some things very well, but you have to put it in perspective," he said. "We played against a team that was totally outmanned."

In other top college basketball games Saturday, No. 1-ranked Michigan opened its season with a 94-70 victory over Western Kentucky; No. 3 North Carolina was shocked by Wake Forest 97-96 in overtime in the finals of the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro, N.C. after Duke upset No. 15 North Carolina State 84-82 in the consolation game; No. 4 UCLA trimmed No. 18 DePaul 76-69; sixth-ranked Kentucky turned back Wisconsin 72-64; No. 14 Notre Dame upset No. 8 Maryland 80-79 in overtime; No. 11 San Francisco defeated UC-Santa Barbara 92-85 in overtime; 16th-ranked Tennessee hammered South Florida 94-64 and No. 19 North Carolina-Charlotte walloped Georgia College 111-63.

Besides the Big Four Tournament, several other championships were resolved Saturday night.

St. John's won the Lapchick Tournament in New York by beating Fairfield 87-65; Richmond edged George Washington 64-62 to take the Spider Classic in Richmond, Va.; West Virginia won the Hall of Fame tourney in Springfield, Mass., with an 83-78 decision over Syracuse; Virginia beat VMI 55-50 for the Virginia Tip-Off championship; New Orleans won its own New Orleans Tip-Off with a 91-73 triumph over Illinois State and Clemson defeated Florida State 108-92 to win the IP-TAY tournament in Clemson, S.C.

Center Kent Benson, the only starter from last year's national championship team, and guard Wayne Radford combined for 35 points to pace Indiana's victory.

A combined 47-point performance by sophomore Phil Hubbard and Rickey Green led Michigan over Western Kentucky. Hubbard, who missed most of the first half due to foul trouble, came back and scored 18 of his 22 points after intermission. Green scored 11 of his 17 first-half points in the last five minutes, when the Wolverines shot into a 49-35 halftime advantage.

North Carolina was beaten by Larry Harrison's tip-in and Skip Brown's clutch foul shots in the closing seconds of overtime. The victory gave the Demon Deacons their third straight Big Four championship. Tate Armstrong's 23 points powered Duke over North Carolina State, handing the highly-regarded Wolfpack its second loss in two nights. Marques Johnson's 18 points and 16-point performances by sophomores David Greenwood and Roy Hamilton helped UCLA hold off DePaul.

Rick Robey led five players in double figures with 13 points as Kentucky's Wildcats opened their giant new Civic Center with a victory over Wisconsin. "Duck" Williams' 18-footer with 18 seconds remaining gave Notre Dame its victory over Maryland before 14,053 roaring fans at the Cole Field House in College Park and a national television audience.

James Hardy's 23-point, 14-rebound performance paced San Francisco over UC-Santa Barbara. The Gauchos had the opportunity to upset the Dons, but failed to get a shot off in the last 20 seconds and the game went into overtime tied at 81.

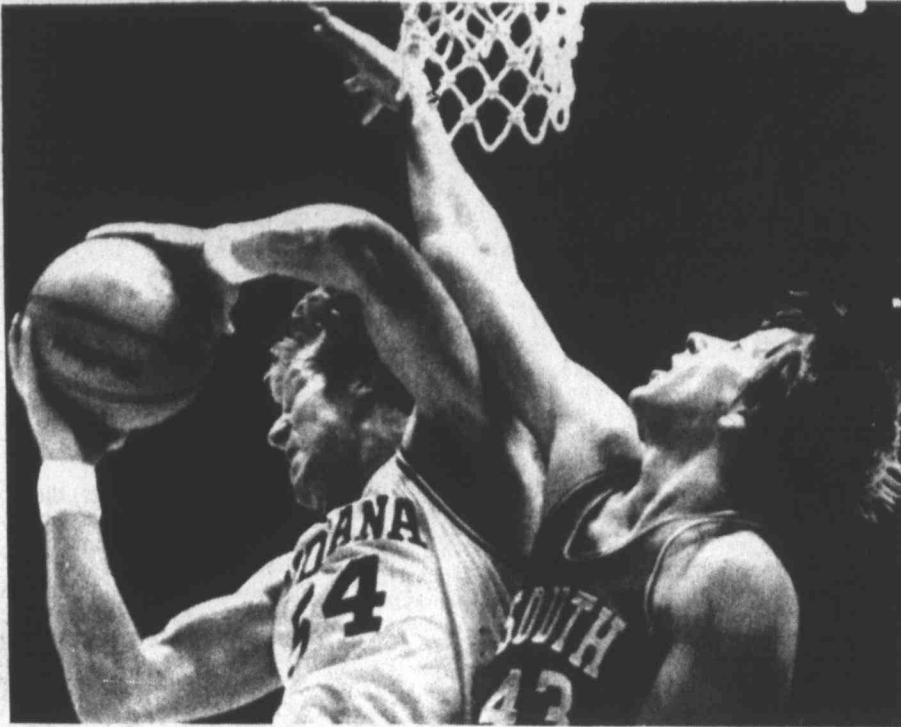

Tennessee beat South Florida behind Ernie Grunfeld's 37 points.

Banquet tickets are now on sale

Tickets are on sale for the annual Fall Sports Banquet to be held in the high school cafeteria Dec. 9 honoring the football and volleyball teams at the high school.

Tickets are $3.50 and may be purchased from Jerry Forestry, Hays Stripling, Coach Don Robbins or at First Federal Savings and Loan.

The booster club honors the members of the two teams at the event. Fay Odell, an outstanding speaker, will be on hand for the occasion. Booster club members urge fans to get their tickets early to help assure the success of the event.

Jackson comes home to New York Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle and now ... Reggie Jackson. After eight years of light rain, the thunder and lightning finally will be returning to the New York Yankees' outfield.

Jackson, the American League's third leading active home run hitter and a fine defensive outfielder, will be sized for Yankee pinstripes today and should fit in nicely with the legends that roamed the Yankee outfield for so many years.

The Associated Press learned that Jackson will sign a $3 million five-year package with the Yankees today.

"Having him in the outfield will be in keeping with the old Yankee tradition of Ruth, DiMaggio and Mantle," said a jubilant Mayor Abe Beame. "It's nice to know he'll be hitting for New York."

Beame's joy reflected the outpouring of emotion Jackson felt last Monday when Yankee owner George Steinbrenner took him on a walking and wooing tour around New York. And in the final analysis, it was the energy of New York, its streets, its people, its media and its hunger for a winner that tipped the scales toward the Yankees.

Why is Jackson going to accept the Yankees' offer of $3 million today when he could have taken a "king's ransom" of slightly less than $4 million from Montreal?

"Probably because of New York and probably because of George Steinbrenner," said a source close to the negotiations. "He found the Yankees to be fair gentlemen to deal with."

Jackson was due here today with the Yankees set to give him the red-carpet treatment with a scheduled mid-afternoon news conference.

Public can help problem

Mail crush to worsen

Postal officials say they are managing — so far — to cope with the crush of packages clogging the mails because of a 15-state strike against United Parcel Service. But the situation may get worse as Christmas gets closer.

The first negotiations in more than a week are scheduled for today. And one postmaster, in Springfield, Mass., said, "Even a strike settlement will not end our problem, so much is already in the pipeline."

Whether your holiday parcel is delayed is largely up to you. And to the millions of other Americans sending gift packages during December.

Authorities say they can handle the extra volume if consumers mail early — parcels by Friday, Dec. 3, and cards by Friday, Dec. 10.

(Note: Christmas cards are not directly affected by the strike, but postal officials are trying to even out the workload, just in case manpower shifts are needed later on. "We're trying to spread out the peaks and valleys," said one spokesman.)

The strike at UPS — the nation's largest private carrier of packages — has more than doubled the amount of bulk mail handled by the U.S. Postal Service in the East, and a sudden surge of last-minute business could cause severe problems. The walkout also has boosted shipping costs for firms which normally receive stock and fill orders via UPS.

Arthur B. Morin supervises the regional bulk mail center which handles most parcels shipped to western New England. "We tried to prepare for a small landslide, but it turned out to be an avalanche."

Other officials said things were going smoothly. Oscar B. Sloan, the postmaster in Charlotte, N.C., said volume was up by 300 per cent. "But we are handling it... without any difficulty," he added.

James Donovan, the postmaster in Albany, N.Y., agreed. "Our people have done a terrific job," he said. "But it could get a little sticky later on when people start mailing their Christmas packages."

The Teamsters Union strike began Sept. 15, and talks have been stalemated, with virtually no hope of a settlement in time for the pre-Christmas rush. The walkout involves several issues — including job security — and has idled 17,000 employees of the delivery service from Maine to South Carolina. UPS workers in other areas have settled with the company, but the strike affects anyone who is sending a package to, or getting one from, the East.

A spokesman for the Postal Service in Washington said the government had hired 9,069 extra employees and set up 29 auxiliary processing operations in the East to handle the added business.

Most delays reported thus far have been relatively minor — only a day or two. None of the businesses contacted in an Associated Press spot check indicated that the strike was preventing it from complying with a new federal regulation requiring companies to deliver mail orders within 30 days or offer customers a full refund.

Another Military officer slain

DALLAS (AP) — One of four Indians on the Dallas police force has become the second officer slain in the line of duty within 15 days, the briefest interim between officer killings in the department's history.

Robert W. Wood, 27, died of five gunshot wounds early Sunday after stopping an automobile during a routine traffic investigation.

Wood, a Choctaw Indian, had been on the police force for two years.

Wood's partner, Teresa A. Turko, 24, said she fired five shots into the rear of the automobile before it sped away. She could provide no description of the driver.

A Dallas police spokesman said the fatal shooting took place just eight blocks from where officer Alvin Moore, 26, was slain two weeks ago. Moore was shot to death while answering a disturbance call at a West Dallas housing project.

A week ago, a state trooper was shot to death in the line of duty on a highway near Rankin.

Police said Moore and his partner were at a hamburger stand when they saw a blue Chevrolet Vega go by with only parking lights on. The officers turned on their vehicle's red flashing lights and the auto pulled over two blocks down the street.

The two-officer squad failed to radio the car's license number and description to headquarters as provided by department regulations.

Ms. Turko said Wood approached the car from the left while she went to the right rear of the vehicle. She said as Wood reached the driver's window, the driver began firing.

The assailant, apparently using a .22 caliber pistol, shot Wood in the hand, chest and head and then twice in the back after he was spun around.

Funeral services for Wood, an Irving resident who is survived by his widow, are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in Bonham.

Medal of Honor winner to address SATP class

Guest speaker for the Security Assistance Training Program Class 77-02 graduation Dec. 3 at Webb Air Force Base will be Col. Merlyn H. Dethlefsen, deputy commander for operations of the Strategic Air Command's 96th Bombardment Wing, Dyess AFB. The ceremonies are scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in Withycombe Hall auditorium.

Col. Dethlefsen was awarded the Medal of Honor for his action while flying a "Wild Weasel" mission over North Vietnam. He was then assigned to the 354th Tactical Fighter Squadron at Takhli Royal Thai AFB, Thailand.

Then Maj. Dethlefsen performed a feat of great skill while destroying a heavily defended North Vietnam surface-to-air missile (SAM) site. The citation said Major Dethlefsen "... ignored the enemy's overwhelming firepower and the damage to his aircraft and pressed his attack. Despite a continuing hail of anti-aircraft fire, deadly surface-to-air missiles, and counter-attacks by MIG interceptors, Major Dethlefsen flew repeated close-range strikes to silence the enemy defensive positions with bombs and cannonfire." He returned home only when it appeared he could inflict no more damage on the enemy. He had shown courageous heroism, superior flying skill, and fierce determination to eliminate a key SAM site and enable U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers to safely strike their target in this area.

Major Dethlefsen was the third airman to be awarded the Medal of Honor for conspicuous gallantry in Vietnam. The presentation was made to him by President Johnson, Feb. 1, 1968, at the White House.

He wore the wings of a navigator from '55 to '59 then completed pilot training. On another overseas tour at Spangdahlem, Germany, he flew the F-100 and F-105 in the early 60s.

Colonel Dethlefsen has a master's degree in personnel counseling from Troy State University in Alabama. He also completed the Air War College at Maxwell AFB, Ala., and served as director of long-range studies, Air Force systems and strategic studies at the U.S. Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

His wife, Jorja, is expected to accompany him to Webb.

New concept for weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon scientists are exploring a new concept for a rapid-firing tank cannon that could revolutionize armor warfare late in this century.

Scientists and engineers of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency are working on such a lightweight gun for the tank generation beyond the new XM1 tank now being developed. Years of work lie ahead before the concept can be translated into combat hardware, they say.

This long-range project shows that Pentagon specialists believe the tank still will be a potent weapon 20 years from now, despite the growth and increased sophistication of antitank weaponry.

Pentagon specialists say an automatic cannon would give the tank a huge increase in combat effectiveness because it would enable gunners to get in many shots in the decisive first few moments of a battle when, according to historical analysis, many tank "kills" are scored.

Century Club plans Webb party Dec. 8

The Big Spring Century Club's annual appreciation night for company grade officers, Webb AFB students and their spouses or dates is scheduled Dec. 8. The event this year will be at the Dora Roberts Community Center beginning at 7 p.m.

This makes the fourth year the Century Club has sponsored such an event as part of the local community's way of showing their hospitality and friendship to the members of Webb. "It is also an excellent opportunity for our people to meet with the members of the community and return their friendship," said Col. Harry A. Spannaus, wing commander, as he was urging all base units to promote the party.

A reception featuring hors d'oeuvres and refreshments leads off the evening followed by free bingo games with "outstanding" prizes donated by Big Spring merchants going to the winners.

Merit Cigarette Sets New Taste Standard.

'Enriched Flavor'TM breakthrough brings unprecedented taste to low tar smoking.

Today there's a way to get real taste from a cigarette without high tar.

That's the report on a new taste discovery called 'Enriched Flavor.' A way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into tobacco without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The cigarette packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco is remarkable new MERIT.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Tests Verify Taste

In tests involving thousands of smokers of filter cigarettes, the majority reported

9 mg. "tar," 0.7 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined
That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

MERIT delivered more taste than five current leading low tar cigarettes having all the way up to 60% more tar.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, MERIT MENTHOL was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette. MERIT.

Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.

One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.
