Clements Orders Prisons Reopened

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has ordered the state Board of Corrections to end the prison admissions freeze he says has become embroiled in partisan politics.

The governor, in a letter sent to board chairman T.L. Austin, ordered the board Thursday to resume inmate admissions by Monday and to meet with him today in Dallas to discuss the issue.

Attorney General Mark White declined to say if Clements had the authority to order prisons reopened, and said through a spokeswoman that question required a legal opinion he could give only to a state agency.

The corrections board closed down the 19-unit system last Monday when it learned the prison population violated a federal court order against inmate crowding.

Clements said he also complained in his letter that the board did not consider any alternatives before taking the "shocking" action of closing the doors.

The closing left the Texas Department of Corrections and prison director James Estelle in a squeeze between two possible contempt of court actions — one if they resume admissions and overcrowd inmates, the other if they quit admitting prisoners.

U.S. District Judge

William Wayne Justice, who issued the sweeping prison reform order, scheduled a hearing in Houston to determine if Estelle could be held in contempt because prison officials turned away 68 Harris County inmates.

Clements insisted Thursday he would not embroil the issue in partisan politics as "some politicians" have done, but he shied away from suggestions it was a political move to embarrass him.

But he did raise the specter of political manipulation in his letter to Austin.

"As you are no doubt aware," Clements' letter said, "some politicians are using the Board of Corrections' action as a political issue. It is my unequivocal position that now is the time for cool heads, good judgment and a rational approach to the problem."

"We cannot, at this time, afford political demagoguery on the issue or any more surprises regarding our prison system."

White is Clements' Democratic opponent for governor. White had been critical of Clements for the governor's 1979 veto of prison construction money.

"I do not under any circumstances feel this is a partisan issue or a political issue," Clements said Thursday. "It's a Texas issue, and we all should be big enough that we can look at it in this light."

White, in a statement Thursday, said, "I have consistently advised the governor, the Board of Corrections and the Texas Department of Corrections that Texas prisons should remain open. In light of pending litigation, the only way this can be done is to provide additional housing for the prisoners."

During consideration of emergency prison construction funding last session, Clements said he had vetoed the $30.1 million in projects in 1979 because construction was not proceeding fast enough for the system to use the money during that spending period.

Clements said the prison system is already back in compliance with Justice's order through a speed up in paroles.

As for long-term solutions, Clements said a new 2,000-bed unit is scheduled for completion by mid-July and reorganizations at existing units would give the system over 5,000 new beds by Sept. 1.

But he pointed out that Texas is netting 500 new inmates monthly and directed the corrections board to develop a "master plan" for dealing with an expected continuation of the overcrowding problem "for the foreseeable future." He said he wanted a first draft of the plan by July 1.

Clements said he still has made no decision on whether to open up the special legislative session set for May 24 to considering emergency prison legislation.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on Wednesday asked Clements to expand the session agenda, which now is strictly limited to repeal of the state property tax.

Friday update

Wholesale Prices Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices reversed two months of declines and rose at a tiny annual rate of 0.9 percent in April, the government said today.

Rising prices for food largely offset record declines in energy costs in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods — the formal name for the wholesale price index.

Despite the overall gain in April, inflation at the wholesale level was running at an annual rate of 0.4 percent for the first four months of 1982. For all of 1981, the index rose 7 per cent.

Senate OKs Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's plan to resume production of chemical weapons for the first time in 13 years narrowly survived a challenge early today as the Senate completed action on a $177.9 billion defense bill.

A move led by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., to prevent the spending of $54 million for new binary chemical weapons was defeated 49-45 as Vice President George Bush stood by to break a tie vote if needed.

Before approving the bill 84-8, the Senate added an amendment putting a cap on the size of the U.S. chemical-weapon stockpile and saying that humans may not be used for experiments with the deadly weapons.

In a 20-hour session that began Thursday, senators also approved money for two new Nimitz-class nuclear-powered aircraft carriers but denied an administration request for $1 billion for interim basing of the MX missiles.

Klan Armed With Cameras

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Ku Klux Klansmen armed with infrared cameras will be seeking evidence but not looking for trouble in patrols aimed at catching Vietnamese fishermen violating a shrimping curfew this weekend.

Klan Grand Titan James Stanfield told the Galveston Daily News Thursday that approximately six boats, each carrying three or four men, would be in waters off the coast near here when shrimping season begins Saturday night.

He said the patrols were designed "to catch anyone who's not supposed to be there" but said they would break no laws and make no arrests. He said the Klansmen will carry infrared cameras and will act "just as witnesses so we can document the time and place of the boats we find."

No Fighting Reported

By The Associated Press

No fighting was reported around the Falkland Islands for more than 24 hours, but Britain's foreign secretary warned "military incidents may occur with increasing frequency" unless agreement is reached on a cease-fire and a framework for peace talks.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said negotiations at U.N. headquarters for such an agreement have moved into a crucial stage.

Contempt Hearing Set

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice summoned state officials to today's hearing on whether Texas' prison director can be held in contempt for turning 68 Harris County inmates away from a prison gate.

The hearing is the latest skirmish in a battle among county, state and federal agencies over the closing of the overcrowded state prisons.

The state attorney general's office asked for the hearing after State District Judge Ted Poe of Houston ordered TDC Director W.J. Estelle to show in court Monday why he should not be held in contempt.

The inmates were turned away Tuesday night and forced to return to the Harris County jail.

Thursday to be Mickey Love Baird Day at WTC. Cindy Maddox and several other members of the Student Senate were on hand to present a matted copy of the proclamation to the hard-working student activities director. (SDN Staff Photo)

Nuclear Arms...

Reagan Renews Call For Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressing the Soviet Union for a response, President Reagan has renewed his call for a new treaty to reverse the growth of "frightening" long-range nuclear missiles.

"Once launched, that's it, they're on their way and there's no preventing, or stopping them," Reagan said Thursday night in a news conference.

Calling land-based missiles with multiple warheads "most frightening to most people," Reagan urged Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev to agree to open negotiations by late June.

As an inducement, Reagan offered to put all nuclear weapons on the bargaining table. "Nothing is excluded," he said.

But he emphasized that the first cuts under the treaty would be in warheads on land and sea-based missiles.

"You start with first things first," Reagan said. "You can't bite it all off in one bite."

The proposed one-third reduction in nuclear warheads could trim the lead U.S. strategists claim the Soviets are acquiring in silo-busting missiles.

However, Reagan's offer could eventually neutralize the edge the United States now has in strategic bombers and low-flying cruise missiles.

He did not refer to these weapons when he first outlined the proposed treaty Sunday at Eureka College in Illinois.

Brezhnev has not replied directly to Reagan's initiative, but the Soviet press has accused the United States of "attempts to secure for itself unilateral military advantage."

Turning to the economic situation at home, Reagan said unless high interest rates drop there will not be "any real improvement for anyone" in the foreseeable future.

At the same time, he acknowledged the economic recovery he had predicted for later in the year could be jeopardized by the high cost of credit.

Tornadoes, Floods...

Skies Clearing After Storms

By The Associated Press

Skies began clearing from the west across Texas today as a storm system that spawned tornadoes and flood producing rainfall moved eastward out of the state, leaving one dead and extensive flooding at Wichita Falls, Sherman and Austin in its wake.

V. Margaret Finney was killed Thursday when a tornado touched down about 10 miles south of Kirbyville, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety. Another tornado destroyed a mobile home and injured one person about eight miles south of Kirbyville.

Another tornado uprooted trees and damaged automobile in Atlanta in Cass County, but no injuries were reported.

Tornadoes earlier injured 29 persons in North Texas and West Texas Wednesday.

The National Weather Service said early today that although Holliday Creek at Wichita Falls remained well out of its banks today, the creek has stabilizing and the flood waters should begin to recede there later today.

Drenching rains produced extensive flooding at Wichita Falls where water ran as high as five feet deep in some streets and residential areas.

Law enforcement officers and volunteers used boats to rescue people from their homes and

In this vein, Reagan urged Congress to approve spending cuts and tax increases in the Senate Republican budget compromise he adopted last week.

"The acoustic analyses do not demonstrate that there was a grassy knoll shot and in particular there is no acoustic basis for the claim of a 95 percent probability of such a shot," said the panel of experts assembled by the academy.

The conclusions about a Dallas police recording conflict with those of acoustic experts who examined the evidence two years ago for the House Assassinations Committee.

"It happened so fast we didn't even have time to get anything upstairs," his roommate, Roy Schenk, said as he used a bucket to scoop water out of his home early Thursday morning.

The National Weather Service said more than five inches of rain fell during the night, sending Holliday Creek over its banks. About 250 people went to the emergency shelters set up by the Red Cross. Others forced from their homes stayed with friends or relatives.

At Austin, heavy rains flooded an area rebuilt after last year's Memorial Day flood that killed 13 people and caused extensive property damage.

Most of the flooding was along Shoal Creek where residents were evacuated from their homes early Thursday.

2nd Gunman

Not Revealed

In Recording

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sound recordings made when President Kennedy was assassinated in 1963 "do not support a conclusion that there was a second gunman," says a National Academy of Sciences report released today.

The study also said there is conclusive evidence that the controversial recording was made about one minute after the actual shooting.

"The acoustic analyses do not demonstrate that there was a grassy knoll shot and in particular there is no acoustic basis for the claim of a 95 percent probability of such a shot," said the panel of experts assembled by the academy.

He noted that it has been more than a year since John W. Hinckley Jr. shot President Ronald Reagan, and he is just now getting to trial. But since the day the president was shot in Washington, the pope has been wounded and his assailant has been tried, convicted and imprisoned.

County Political Conventions Set

Both major political parties have county conventions scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Scurry County Republicans will hold their convention at 2 p. m. Saturday at the West Elementary School, Roy Allen Baze, county chairman, has announced.

Scurry County Democrats will meet at 2:30 p. m. down the street in the junior high school auditorium, Tommie Mills, county chairman, has announced.

One of the major items on the agenda of both parties will be the election of delegates to attend their respective state conventions, late this summer.

Also, the county conventions are the sessions where resolutions to be forwarded to state conventions may be presented.

Delegates elected at precinct conventions May 1 may vote on issues at county conventions. The conventions are open to the public, but only the elected delegates may vote on matters that come before the conventions.

In Attack On Pope...

Traditionalist Arraigned

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A fanatic Catholic traditionalist enraged by church reforms launched by Pope John XXIII was to be arraigned today on charges of trying to kill Pope John Paul II.

After a day of interrogation, Lisbon police described the alleged attacker, Juan Fernandez Krohn, as a "determined, no-nonsense man who knew what he was doing."

But authorities said they believed the 32-year-old Spaniard's attack was "an isolated act without any conspiracy."

If convicted on the attempted homicide charge, he could be sentenced to 15 to 20 years imprisonment.

The police say the assailant, wearing a priest's cassock and with a 14½-inch bayonet in his hand, lunged at the pope from five or six yards away as the pontiff approached an outdoor altar during a ceremony Wednesday night at the Shrine of Fatima, 110 miles northeast of Lisbon.

Four security men overpowered the screaming man before he could reach the pontiff.

Portuguese church officials said the pope blessed his attacker and "forgave" him.

The pontiff returned to the scene of the attack Thursday to say Mass before more than 500,000 pilgrims and thank the Virgin Mary for protecting him from assassination by Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Aga in St. Peter's Square exactly one year ago. He made no reference to Wednesday's attack.

Reports from police and church officials said Fernandez Krohn was ordained as a priest several years ago by maverick Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre. His ordination apparently came after the right-wing traditionalist archbishop was stripped of his own priestly duties in 1976 for defying the Vatican.

Because of the Vatican action against Lefebvre, it was not clear whether Fernandez Krohn's ordination was recognized by the Roman Catholic Church. Lefebvre was punished by the church for continuing to use the traditional 16th century Tridentine Mass, which was shelved by the Vatican as one of the reforms enacted by the Second Vatican Council in 1962-65.

Fernandez Krohn quit Lefebvre's traditionalist movement two years ago, and a spokesman for the group said he once "violently insulted" the archbishop because he wasn't far enough to the right. The spokesman said the attack on the pope was an act of "blind fanaticism."

Sources close to Lefebvre's movement said Fernandez Krohn joined a radical church in France that does not recognize any pope after Pius XII and claims the papal throne has been vacant since his death in 1958. French police said Fernandez Krohn heads a small traditionalist church in the French city of Rouen.

Vatican spokesman Romeo Panciroli said he was standing nearby when

McAllen Gets The Contract

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has announced the awarding of an Economic Development Act grant to McAllen for the expansion of a foreign trade zone.

Clements said Tuesday the EDS grant of $380,000 would be supplemented by $95,000 in Hidalgo County funds.

The money will be used to add 40 acres to the zone. The project will create 500 new jobs, according to Clements.

EDS grants are administered by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

the attack occurred and heard Fernandez Krohn shout in Spanish: "The present crisis in the church is the fault of Vatican II, of the pope, and of Casaroli," a reference to the Vatican secretary of state, Cardinal Agostino Casaroli.

Plaintiffs OK End To Busing

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A group of blacks and Hispanics who sued to integrate public schools says court-ordered busing has failed and suggests that enrichment programs at minority schools be tried instead.

The plaintiffs in the 14-year-old desegregation suit have proposed a settlement that would end court-ordered busing by 1986.

Under the plan announced Wednesday, a voluntary program would be introduced to attract students to schools with minority enrollments of 70 percent or more.

The plan must be approved by a U.S. district judge. The compromise was outlined at a meeting between school board members and the plaintiffs in the 1968 suit.

The plaintiffs were 26 black and Hispanic members of the United Steelworkers Union. U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals of Houston heard the trial of the class-action suit and ordered the district to desegregate and begin busing students in 1971.

At the time the suit was filed, the school district enrolled 47,000 students. However, "white flight" and other factors has reduced enrollment to 36,000.

U.S. District Judge Owen Cox of Corpus Christi, who since has retired, took over the case from Seals. Cox allowed the parties to try to work out a voluntary desegregation plan, but in 1976 he ordered a busing plan into effect.

Plaintiff Manuel Narvaez said court-ordered busing is not working.

"Minorities are being bused from one side of the community to another and not contributing to integration," he said.

"We didn't want forced busing to begin with," said John Anderson, another plaintiff. "We just wanted the school system to be desegregated."

About 4,200 of the district's students at 20 elementary and five junior high schools are involved in the existing desegregation program. More than 2,700 students are bused and another 1,200 participate in voluntary "majority-to-minority" transfer programs.

Superintendent Vance Littleton said transportation costs under the present program total $850,000 a year.

Narvaez said the special programs proposed at 10 elementary schools will held minorities more than court-ordered busing ever did.

Under the plan, the programs will provide tutoring in basic skills, enrichment activities in the basic skills and extended day program ending at 6 p.m. with snacks after school.

For W. Clement Stone this is birthday number 80 and counting.

Look up W. Clement Stone in Who's Who or in a biographical dictionary and you're impressed with credentials...

Insurance executive of fabulous wealth, author, adviser to presidents — that sort of thing.

But the Clem Stone I've been honored to know in his home and in my own —

Or when just the two of us were late hours in my light plane returning from a speaking engagement somewhere —

The other Clem Stone — When he is not moving corporate mountains or inspiring enormous audiences or charming a boardroom or ramrodding a charity.

That Clem Stone is much more remarkable than the other one.

Our nation has spawned many rich men.

Our generation has witnessed several billionaires —

But Howard Hughes decayed in his cloister...

H.L. Hunt sought immortality futilely tilting with windmills...

J. Paul Getty's succession of wives could never relieve his loneliness...

John MacArthur settled for a coffee-shop forum and left his wealth to be administered in ways he never would.

Our generation has witnessed a procession of billionaires and only one happy one.

I don't mean ours to sound like a buddy-buddy friendship; for better or worse busy men sacrifice that degree of fraternity.

But we have been close enough so that every day I parrot some of his wisdom without even meaning to.

The secret of Clem Stone's success is no secret. He shouts it from platforms and pulpits, delights in sharing it with the most casual passerby.

It's as new as now and as old as Scripture: "As a man believeth in his heart..."

THAT is what HE is.

Most anywhere I travel I meet somebody who credits his own success to something Clem Stone said or wrote.

Elected officials, corporate executives, very recently CEO of a prospering chain of restaurants.

I know Mr. Stone hears from many others — not counting the countless he never knew were paying attention.

Angel and I, previously committed, cannot be present for our friend's birthday celebration — but he would understand about commitments.

I'd like to be there to hear the Captains and the Kings pay their respects and join the toasts of family and friends.

I've sent this greeting this way only because I feared that in their toasts and tributes all he's done might eclipse all that he's been.

For he has been the leader of a social revolution.

In a climate where bigness was suspect he altered that climate with persistent integrity and decency...

In an era when rich men begat mostly resentment, this one earned respect, inspired emulation...

And when money motivated many to all manner of excesses...

Clem Stone's sustaining love for his childhood sweetheart, Jessie ... confounded the cynics.

Clem Stone — the newsboy who made of his newsstand — a skyscraper...

The young son of a widowed mother whose faith in his God, his country and himself — in that order — was the foundation for an empire.

Yet, every step of the way up — he was climbing with one hand — and holding out the other to anybody with a gumption to follow.

Clem Stone, cherished friend, lead on!

Terri Utley Is New Miss USA

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) —
Terri Utley of Arkansas has been crowned Miss USA, causing a stir in her hometown where the school board meeting was interrupted and the switchboard jangled at the seven-officer police department.

"It hasn't even set in yet that I was Miss Arkansas," the 20-year-old brunette said after Thursday night's nationally televised pageant finale.
She had held the state title only a month.

Miss Utley will represent the United States in the Miss Universe contest
July 26 in Lima, Peru.

She is the second Arkansas woman to win a national beauty title in nine months. Elizabeth Ward of Russellville was named
Miss America last September. The two pageants are not affiliated.

In Cabot, Ark., a town of 4,000 people, Almeda Elliott, the wife of the school superintendent said she interrupted the school board meeting to tell everyone that Miss Utley had won.

"I think it's fantastic," she said. "I'm just so proud of her. She's a sweet girl. She deserved it."

Cone Magie, publisher of the Cabot Star Herald, said he was already making plans to go to Peru for the Miss Universe pageant.

Tigers Sight In On Lamesa

LAMESA -- With one eye pointed towards Monday night, Snyder's Tigers set off today to battle the Golden Tornadoes. Game time is 4 o'clock.

The Tigers can ill afford to take the slumping Tornadoes lightly. A win here, coupled with one over Pecos on Monday, would wrap up yet another district baseball championship for Snyder.

The District 2-AAAA race was effectively limited to two teams yesterday as Pecos nipped Fort Stockton 4-3 in eight innings. That outcome lofts Pecos into a tie with the first-round champs (both 3-0), and all but ends the hopes of Fort Stockton, 3-1. In another 2-AAAA game played yesterday, Andrews defeated Monahans 8-6.

Pecos hosts Odessa Ector tonight. Monahans is at Fort Stockton.

Rangers Take Charity As Toronto Bungles It

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The way the Texas Rangers have been playing this year, they're not above accepting charity. And that is exactly what they got against Toronto.

The Blue Jays committed six errors and a balk Thursday, giving the Rangers the game, 4-3, with an unearned run in the ninth inning.

Cubs Maul Houston, 5-0

HOUSTON (AP) - Chicago's Al Ripley needed some good luck on the 13th day of the month and he found it in the silent bats of the Houston Astros.

Ripley, who had been struggling in the bull pen with an 11.32 earned run average, got his first start of the season Thursday night and combined with Lee Smith for a 5-0 three-hit shutout victory over the Astros.

What Ripley did was retire the first 11 Astros and yield only a pair of hits to Ray Knight and Terry Puhl.

The Cubs supported their pitchers with two runs in the second off Astros starter Joe Niekro, 3-3, on run-scoring singles by Bump Wills and Keith Moreland. Ripley's single plated another run in the third, Leon Durham drove home a run in the fifth and in the seventh, Wills walked, stole second and third and scored the final run on Moreland's sacrifice fly.

It was also a banner day for the Cubs as a team. They won their 8,000th game, most of any club in professional sports, broke a 12-game Astrodome losing streak and extended their win streak to four in a row over the Astros.

Ripley made a good impression on Astros Manager Bill Virdon.

"Ripley had good control tonight and he mixed his pitches well," Virdon said. "We've been shut down like this more than I like this year. Ripley was throwing slow and then the contrast of Smith throwing extremely hard was apparently too much for our hitters."

"I have no pride," said Texas outfielder Billy Sample. "I'll take eight bloop hits anytime."

Three of Toronto's errors were by shortstop Alfredo Griffin. Two of those came in the ninth inning, including the one that decided the game.

"Once in awhile, Alfredo gets one of those nights," shrugged Sample.

"Those were some of the breaks we haven't been getting," added teammate George Wright, who scored the winning run. "When they (breaks) come, they come in bunches and you've got to take advantage of them."

Wright reached base on a fielder's choice in the ninth inning, stole second and went to third when Toronto catcher Ernie Whitt threw the ball into center field.

With two out, Sample dribbled a roller to Griffin for what should have been the final out of the inning. But Griffin's throw went wild.

Lamesa began the district season with a 3-0 start, its best in several years, but has since lost seven straight, including an 11-1 rout to the Tigers.

Senior hurler Lasaro Arredondo is expected to start today. Arredondo gave up 10 hits in the earlier meeting between the two teams. Tommy Gressett took the win for Snyder - he allowed just three hits - and is scheduled to mount the mound again today.

The Tors are 7-13 for the season; Snyder is 21-5.

As first-round champions, Snyder could tie for the second round and still represent 2-AAAA in bi-district playoff action. Should Pecos win the second half however, the two teams would meet again for the title - presumably in a best-of-three series. That playoff, if necessary, would have to be concluded by midnight, May 22 (Saturday).

John Wilson, 9-1, is slated against Pecos ace Bobby Rayos, 7-2, for 7:30 p.m. Monday game in Snyder.

Snyder closes out the regular season Tuesday, hosting Fort Stockton at 4 p.m.

Preakness Conditions Good For Laser Light

BALTIMORE (AP) - The way trainer Pat Kelly sees it, Saturday's 107th Preakness Stakes is set up for a victory by his colt, Laser Light, second-place finisher in the May 1 Kentucky Derby.

Laser Light, a late closer, hasn't been in the winner's circle since the

Sports In Brief

SHANKLE SIGNS AS FREE AGENT

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Middle linebacker Doug Shankle, who led the Texas Longhorns in tackles each of the last three seasons, has signed as a free agent with the Philadelphia Eagles.

The 230-pound Shankle, who holds a team record in weight lifting with a power clean of 360 pounds, said he chose the Eagles over three other clubs because they offered him the best hope of making the team.

TOP MILER GOES TO LONGHORNS

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Carlos Quinones of Killeen, the state's top schoolboy miler, has signed to run for the Texas Longhorns. Quinones has a best time of 4 minutes 11.9 seconds, but this season his fastest 1,600 meters is 4:15.4 because he usually runs the 3,200 meters first.

Remsen at Aqueduct Nov. 14, but the son of Majestic Light has been installed as the second choice at 7-2 in the early-line behind Linkage for the 13-16-mile Pimlico race, a sixteenth of a mile shorter than the Derby.

"We couldn't ask for anything better," Kelly said Thursday after seven colts and the filly Cupecoy's Joy were entered for the second leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

"There's plenty of speed in the race which means there'll be an honest pace. He's a come-from-behind horse and he should benefit from it."

"Another thing, he won't have 18 horses to get around like he did in the Derby. The problem was getting through the big field. Eddie (Maple) couldn't get into him until the last eighth of a mile."

In the Derby, Laser Light went off at 18-1 odds and charged through the stretch to finish 2½ lengths behind winner Gato Del Sol and a neck in front of Reinvested.

Laser Light, again with Maple in the saddle, won't have Gato Del Sol to contend with in the Preakness since the Derby winner is skipping the race to await the June 5 Belmont Stakes, third leg of the Triple Crown. Gato Del Sol is the first Derby winner to pass up the Preakness since Tomy Lee in 1969.

Laser Light drew the No.5 post position, with speed horses Linkage, Aloma's Ruler and Cupecoy's Joy leaving from posts six, seven and eight. Reinvested drew the No.1 post, followed by Cut Away, Water Bank and Bold Style.

Bowling Tourney

Awards were presented to five individuals in the Junior Bowlers Scholarship No-Tap Tournament, held at Snyder Lanes this week.

Proceeds from the tournament are used to fund a $200 scholarship certificate which is presented to a graduating Snyder High School senior.

Mike Dunham won first place high handicap series with a 750. Second was Lloyd Isabell with a 742, followed by Don Thames with a 729.

High handicap ladies' game was won by Melanie Lee, who rolled a 282. High handicap men's game was taken by Joel Loper, with a 277.

In a related activity, Louise York won the "door prize", a cake baked and donated by Lu Wolf.

COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARD—Peggy Vernon was named 1982 Woman of the Year, an honor presented to non-Beta Sigma Phi members by the sorority. Mrs. Vernon was cited for her community service with the Girl Scouts of America and received the award at

Beta Sigma Phi Enjoys Mother's Day Luncheon

Approximately fifty Beta Sigma Phi members and guests attended the sorority's annual Mother's Day Luncheon May 8 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Marie Boone presided at the registration table and a buffet lunch was served. The day's theme, "Our Special Roses," was carried out in table decorations. Wanda Early welcomed guests and presided at the installation of officers. Newly installed officers included Barbara Hamlett, president; Judy Smith, first vice president; Gloria Myers, second vice president; Jackie Buckland, treasurer; Dena Ellis, recording secretary; Margaret Corkran, corresponding secretary; and Betsy Griffin, extension officer. Outgoing officers presented the new officers with a silk flower in different colors signifying chapter ideals and goals.

Donna Fowler then revealed the identity of the 1982 Woman of the Year, an honor periodically bestowed upon a non-Beta Sigma Phi member to recognize community leadership and service. The recipient this year is Peggy Vernon. Donna cited Mrs. Vernon's untiring efforts for Girl Scouts of America and read a lengthy resume outlining her endeavors. She was presented with a certificate from the international office of Beta Sigma Phi in Kansas City, Missouri and given a plaque commemorating the occasion.

A program entitled "What Are Friends For?" followed, presented by Donna Fowler and her daughter, Lezli, and Amy Polk, daughter of Twila Polk. Scenes from a childhood friendship and musical selections were presented. Songs included "Side by Side," "Sunrise, Sunset," "My Favorite Things," "Getting to Know You," "Que Sera Sera," and others.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

A scientific pair of bidders would probably stop short of a slam. If they did bid the slam scientifically they would telegraph a diamond lead and the slam would be kaput.

Today's hand was played at New York's Regency

Whist Club. South was the late Kenneth Konstant. He was taking a day off from the world championships, which his British team was in the process of winning, to play a few rubbers.

The unsentimental bidding got Ken to six and he received the favorable lead of the nine of hearts. Dummy's jack was covered by East's queen and Ken's king. Ken was in and played his ace of trumps. East discarded the eight of clubs and Ken had to stop to regroup. Usually a very fast player, he thought for a full minute before figuring out the only winning play.

He took his ace of diamonds, led a trump to dummy's nine and cashed the king of diamonds to discard his losing club.

Then he led a small diamond from dummy and ruffed low.

West made the best defensive play he could. He discarded a club.

Now Ken cashed a high heart. West couldn't afford to ruff and discarded another club. Now Ken ruffed one low heart with the king of spades and discarded his last loser on a good diamond. West could take his trump any time, but the slam was home. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Safety pins were invented in 1849 by Walter Hunt and were first manufactured in New York.

DEAR ABBY: Re your "Secretaries' Prayer": A secretary needs her rights more than she needs a prayer. I submit the enclosed for your consideration.

EVE BERTON, ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT,
NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF WORKING WOMEN,
CLEVELAND, OHIO

The Bill of Rights for Women Office Workers

1. The right to respect as women and as office workers.
 2. The right to comprehensive, written job descriptions specifying the nature of all duties expected of the employee.
 3. The right to detailed descriptions specifying compensation, terms, conditions and benefits of employment.
 4. The right to compensation for overtime work and for work not included in our job descriptions.
 5. The right to choose whether to do the personal work of employers (typing personal letters, serving coffee, running out for lunch).
 6. The right to defined and regular salary reviews and cost-of-living increases.
 7. The right to comprehensive medical coverage for any temporary medical disability without jeopardizing our seniority, benefits or pensions.
 8. The right to maternity benefits and to having pregnancy and other gynecological conditions treated as temporary medical disabilities.

 11. The freedom to choose one's lifestyle and to participate in on-the-job organizing or outside activities that do not detract from the execution of assigned tasks.

 13. The right to written and systematic grievance procedures.

"9 TO 5"

DEAR ABBY: This is a "P.S." to the "Secretaries' Prayer":

"Let me be mindful that I could be out of a job overnight, with businesses failing and the economy in such a bind; let me look ahead and concentrate less on the everyday hang-ups and more on what the alternatives would be; let me thank my stars that I do have a job when others would do anything to trade places with me, and be grateful for the chance to 'type up three or four extra copies' for an 'inconsiderate' boss, while others are turning to soup kitchens; let me count my blessings and be thankful that I am not a statistic as yet!"

GLAD TO BE WORKING IN MICHIGAN

DEAR ABBY: The Saturday before last Mother's Day (at 5 p.m.) my husband handed me a $50 bill and said, "I didn't know what to get you for Mother's Day, so here's the cash; get yourself whatever you want."

I felt so bad I could hardly hold back the tears. Why are some men so cruel?

SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: Cruel? Your husband would qualify for "Husband of the Year" in some homes. Your man may not have much imagination, but at least he remembered you. If you never have a more serious problem, you will indeed be a lucky lady.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Diamond M...

Museum To Open Horse Exhibit

The current exhibit at the Diamond M Museum is "The Horse: Selections from the Diamond M Collection, Photographs from the Art Museum, University of New Mexico and the Scurry County Museum."

The exhibit shows, through paintings, sculpture and photographs, the many ways the horse has been depicted by the artist and the many roles the horse has played in the history of man.

The exhibit traces the development of strains of horses to pull heavy farm equipment and wagons, fast, light horses to carry a rider and harness and track horses for racing.

Paintings show the importance of the horse to the Indian, to the westward expansion of the white man, and to the cattle-raising culture that followed that expansion.

The horse is shown carrying the Indian into battle, pulling the settler's covered wagon, sharing the cowboy's work and standing by at his funeral.

Works from the Diamond M collection include bronze sculptures by Frederic Remington, James Earl Fraser, Pierre Mene, George Phippen and Grant Speed. Painters represented include Frederic Yohn, Gaspard Latoix, Julian Robles, Robert Loughheed, Wayne Baize, Fred Harman and Lajos Markos.

Three photographs from the "Animal Locomotion" series by Eadweard Muybridge are on loan from the Art Museum, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque. These historic photographs show a runner, a trotter and a jumper in motion.

On loan from the Scurry County Museum are photographs showing the importance of the horse to the early residents of this area. Horses are shown pulling cotton wagons to the gin, drawing carriages for families on outings, hauling freight over the caprock and carrying the first Snyder City Marshal on his appointed rounds.

Admission to the Diamond M Museum, 909 25th Street, is free. Hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Arrangements may be made with the museum office for tours or visits on Mondays and Tuesdays.

DOWN FROM THE PASS--"Down From the Pass" by Frank C. McCarthy, an oil painting completed in 1971, is currently on display at Diamond M Museum. It is part of a special horse art exhibit depicting how they contributed to this area.

BRONCO BUSTER--"Bronco Buster" a bronze statue by Frederic Remington, is part of a horse art exhibit currently on display at the Diamond M Museum.

Costa Rica To Move Its Embassy

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Costa Rica will move its embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, the Foreign Ministry announced.

A communique Wednesday said the decision was not a sign of hostility toward the Arab nations but was within the right of Costa Rica to decide where it wants its diplomatic seat.

Most of the world, including the United States and the Arab nations, do not recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital. The Costa Rican communique announcing the change identified Jerusalem as Israel's seat of government.

The Israeli Parliament last year claimed predominantly Arab East Jerusalem, occupied in the 1967 war, as part of its eternal capital. The formal annexation drew protests that prompted most other states to pull their embassies out of Jerusalem.

Minister Gets 10 Year Term

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A Methodist minister convicted of swindling two former parishioners of $88,600 in a land deal has been sentenced to 10 years in prison and ordered to make restitution.

The Rev. Dearing Estes Jones, 51, was convicted

Monday of felony theft. Visiting State Judge Van Stovall passed sentence Tuesday.

Prosecutors labeled Jones a "con man and a liar" and said he intended to defraud Ruth Cable and her sister, Marguerite Byrnes.

10 Years Ago...

Wallace Remembers Assassination Attempt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George Wallace figures he should have been a former president or vice president by now.

Instead, he's a three-term Alabama governor poised to campaign for an unprecedented fourth term. And, he says, he's not bitter about the assassination attempt, 10 years ago Saturday, that thwarted his presidential desires.

The fiery, 62-year-old politician was paralyzed below the waist when he was shot five times while campaigning for president in the parking lot of a Laurel, Md., shopping center on May 15, 1972.

Wallace's assailant, Arthur Bremer, is serving a 53-year prison sentence, but is eligible for parole in June 1988. Wallace says he bears no hatred toward Bremer.

"Justice was done, although when he gets out, he will be a free man and I'll still be sentenced to a wheelchair for the rest of my life. But I have no ill feelings about that. In fact, I've forgiven Bremer about shooting me a long time ago," Wallace said in an interview.

Wallace's presidential campaigns in 1964, 1968 and 1972 attracted violent demonstrations, and Wallace said, "I always thought there was a chance I'd be shot."

"I never visualized the fact I'd be shot in the spine and become a paraplegic," he said. "I always thought that if I were shot, it would be fatal."

Bremer stalked Wallace as he campaigned in several state primaries and worked as a Wallace volunteer in Wisconsin.

Bremer's 67-year-old mother, Sylvia, said recently she has never been able to answer the question of why the shooting occurred.

"People ask us that all the time. We don't like the question," she said recently. "Two of Artie's brothers changed their last names because they don't like the question. It's not that we won't answer the question. We don't know the answer."

In Laurel "there was a very friendly crowd as a whole," Wallace said. Supporters wanted to shake Wallace's hand, so the avid campaigner waded into the crowd.

"The next thing I knew, I heard five firecracker-sounding pops — pop, pop, pop, pop, pop," he said. "In my own mind, I knew this was it. I had been shot. I felt no shots, but I felt myself falling, and there I was on the ground."

"I attempted to move my legs and I knew immediately I was paralyzed. I also thought I would die."

Wallace said he prayed as an ambulance rushed him to a hospital. "All these years I had been thinking maybe that everything I did was because I was strong, but I suddenly realized it wasn't that at all," he said. "I suddenly realized how fragile life is and how uncertain it is and how one ought to always be prepared to go."

Wallace, despite his hospitalization, won primaries in Michigan and Maryland and placed second in the delegate race for the Democratic presidential nomination. But as Wallace's hospital stay stretched to 54 days, his campaign lost momentum.

If the shooting hadn't occurred, "I would have been on the ticket as either the presidential or vice presidential candidate and would have been elected in either spot," Wallace said.

When Wallace left the governor's office in January 1979, he appeared pale and weak. He had gone through a divorce from his second wife, Cornelia, and had a brief U.S. Senate campaign which he voluntarily aborted. He took an administrative job with the University of Alabama and adopted a quiet lifestyle.

"Everybody predicted Wallace would shrivel up and die," he said. but he didn't.

"I look better physically today than I did the year I came out of office," Wallace said. He attributes his renewed vigor and robust appearance to two things.

One is his new wife, Lisa. The other is a renewed interest in politics.

"The thought of being given the opportunity of being able to serve the people of Alabama again, that in itself is a stimulant," Wallace said.

The politician, who once captured the imagination of blue-collar workers with his rallying cry of "Stand Up for America," is not the same man who stood in the schoolhouse door 19 years ago to prevent the blacks from enrolling at the University of Alabama.

He still preaches against big government, but race is not mentioned. He's drawn support from Montgomery civil rights leader E.D. Nixon and Johnny Ford, mayor of Tuskegee, Ala., and president of the National Conference of Black Mayors.

Wallace recently told a group of Baptist ministers that he and others were wrong about segregation. "We thought it was in the best interests of all concerned. We were mistaken."

"The Old South is gone," Wallace said. But, he added, "the New South is still opposed to government regulation of our lives."

President Reagan Is Winning Battle Over Public Opinion

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan is winning the public opinion battle with Democrats in Congress over who is to blame for failure to enact a new federal budget.

The latest Associated Press-NBC News poll said 49 percent of the public blamed Democrats in Congress, 33 percent said they blamed the president and 18 percent were not sure.

The poll was a scientific random sampling of 1,599 adults across the country who were interviewed by telephone Monday and Tuesday.

A majority — 55 percent — said they think the failure to approve a budget will slow the nation's economic recovery.

Those and other responses in the latest poll indicate democratic congressional leaders are not persuading most Americans that President Reagan is responsible for the nation's economic downturn.

The 1983 budget proposed by the president in January died after Democratic congressional leaders said it carried too big a deficit, and the battle over the spending plan is still raging in Congress.

The Democrats said a large deficit could keep interest rates too high and prolong the nation's economic recession.

In the poll, more Americans said they blame Congress most for continuing high interest rates; 27 percent said Congress, 19 percent said the Federal Reserve Board, 17 percent said the Reagan administration, 16 percent said the private financial community and 21 percent were not sure.

Sixty-three percent said they think the nation's economy has gotten worse during the past year, while 12 percent said it has gotten better and 25 percent said either the economy has stayed the same or most of those who said the economy has gotten better said it was because of President Reagan's economic program, while

Eight People Are Treated

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Eight people have been treated for minor injuries after the explosion of a container holding a toxic chemical filled a college laboratory with poisonous fumes.

The explosion during an experiment in Lewis Hall forced a half-hour evacuation of about 200 people from the building, said University of California spokesman Ray Colvig.

Colvig identified the chemical as silicon tetrafluoride.

Help for severe depression

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About three years ago my husband had a severe depression. We took him to a well-known doctor in a psychiatric clinic. He was given 14 electroconvulsive treatments (ECT) and placed on medicine. He got along very well and seemed to be in very good health. Recently the depression has returned and he is in the hospital again. They plan to give him three more ECTs.

He is 66 years old. He did drink some until he got sick. He has not drunk a drop of alcohol since, during the past three-and-a-half years. I do not understand depression. I am told it is a chemical imbalance. If this is true can't the chemical that he has too much of be identified and something be done to correct it? I did not expect this condition to return. Can you help me understand the condition better?

DEAR READER — Your letter is an example of the right things to do about severe depressions. Such individuals do need professional help. And the more than three years of freedom of illness is an example of what can be done with modern management.

Yes, they do tend to recur. And, yes, they may be related to chemical changes but we don't know enough about these to correct them simply as yet. And there may be associated inherited tendencies. Just how environmental stress, inherited tendencies and brain chemistry work together is still under research. But as your husband's case exemplifies, much can be done to help people with such a problem.

It is dangerous to neglect such problems or try a do-it-yourself approach. Professional assistance is mandatory.

At lesser degrees we all have mild depressive reactions, mood swings. Depressive reactions occur in response to change in life. Disappointments may usher in a depression. Loss of a love relationship may be a cause. Young people are subject to depression because of changes in life. These depressions are part of personality growth, and are not all bad.

To help you understand the spectrum of depression better I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 26-year-old woman with a lump in my groin area about the size of a child's marble. I know of course about lumps in the breast but what about the groin? I've had it for about five years and lately it seems to have gotten a little larger. Out of stupidity I gave it a good squeeze and experienced a tremendous amount of pain. It did partially flatten out but eventually returned.

DEAR READER — Everyone should know that if you have a lump anywhere — breast, armpit, groin or wherever — and don't know what it is you should have your doctor check it. A lump anywhere can be cancer. In many instances it is necessary to biopsy it or cut it out to see what it is. Doctors always say, check it if it gets larger. But since we are usually not born with lumps it is clear that any lump must have gotten larger sometime — starting from nothing to become a recognizable lump.

You may have an enlarged lymph gland. It may be a small hernia or a fatty tumor. Let your doctor decide. Never squeeze a lump. If that is a small hernia, squeezing a loop of bowel is not too swift.

Braniff Airlines...

Dream Lost To No Time & Funds

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Braniff International tried to become the prototype airline for the 1980s and break new ground in labor-management relations but ran out of time and money.

The now-idle airline has ducked behind federal bankruptcy laws, leaving owners of its billion-dollar debt wondering when they will ever receive compensation.

In a midnight meeting at the home of a U.S. bankruptcy judge in Fort Worth, officials of the debt-riddled airline filed under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws, seeking protection from creditors while they try to reorganize the company.

Twelve hours later, at a Thursday news conference, Braniff Chairman Howard Putnam said the bankruptcy petition was the only way to save the airline from its creditors. Braniff also fired some 8,500 employees Wednesday, Putnam said, his voice cracking with emotion.

"What we had to do last night was very difficult," said Putnam. "We're trying to provide a basis for a future for this airline."

Braniff's stock dropped more than 50 percent Thursday after news of the bankruptcy petition, but stock prices of other major airlines rose sharply.

An accounting of the company's financial status has begun, under supervision of U.S. bankruptcy trustee Scott Bush, and total debt could exceed $1 billion, said company vice president Sam Coats.

"We have incurred net losses of more than $300 million during the three years ended Dec. 31, 1981 and during the first quarter of 1982 we have lost over $43 million," Coats said. "As a result, our ability to remain an active competitor in a deregulated airline environment has been severely impacted."

President Reagan said Thursday that the federal government has no place helping companies threatened with bankruptcy.

"I don't see where government can put itself in the business of suddenly bailing out at taxpayer expense companies that go bankrupt," he said.

Braniff shut down its operations, without warning, abruptly at 5 p.m. Wednesday after making sure all its airplanes were on, or headed for, Braniff property to guard against seizure by creditors.

Neither employees nor passengers were warned of the shutdown ahead of time, causing mass confusion at the company's sprawling, 24-gate terminal at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport. Arriving travelers found their connecting flights cancelled, the ticket counters closed and most of the baggage handlers gone.

"We're sorry for the inconvenience we have caused ... we saw no other alternative," Putnam said, insisting the company's assets — specifically, its airplanes — could not have been protected if the moves had been known in advance.

The airline's cash squeeze was so tight that employee paychecks issued earlier in the week are worthless, he said.

"There is no payroll. The checks that are out there will not go through. There is no cash to meet them," said Putnam, who had hoped the airline could survive until the peak summer travel months. "The passenger load factor and the cash situation just declined precipitously. We were in a race for the summertime and we lost."

Braniff, he said, tried to pave a new road in employee relations, convincing its workers last year to accept a 10 percent pay reduction and an increased workload for the good of the company.

"We think the formula was right, but we tried to take a 1950s airline and turn it into a 1980s airline. It didn't work. We ran out of time."

Putnam said it was cash flow, not pressure from creditors, that forced Braniff's hand.

"We couldn't generate the revenue. We couldn't get the cash in the till."

"Nobody pulled the plug. The lender group has acted admirably," he said.

Papers filed with U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers gave only a partial listing of Braniff's creditors. Flowers gave the company 30 days to complete its filings.

The largest unsecured debt listed in the papers on file is $84 million owed The Boeing Co. of Renton, Wash., the world's biggest passenger airplane manufacturer.

Next is U T Credit Corp., of Hartford, Conn., owed approximately $7 million.

Braniff's 39 major creditors — 26 banks, 11 insurance companies and two aircraft suppliers — agreed earlier this year to defer all payments on the airline's $591 million long-term debt until Oct. 1. Braniff has made no payments on its long-term debt since March 1981.

"We're trying to gather up the pieces ... take stock and, in the next few weeks, begin formulating operating plans and see where we'll go," said

Coats.

The airline urged people holding Braniff reservations to make other arrangements. The company's 8,500 employees, down from 11,500 before layoffs began last summer, were told not to report to work Thursday without specific instructions.

A default protection plan approved earlier this year means about 130 airlines will honor tickets for Braniff flights. The agreement only covers tickets bought from travel agents but industry officials said many airlines probably would honor tickets sold by Braniff.

Your Birthday

May 15, 1982

Rather than make work or career changes this coming year, strive to make the most of the field in which you are already familiar. Conditions will begin to improve for you as each month passes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Where your ambitions are concerned today, co-workers and associates will be supportive only up to a point. Don't overstep your boundaries. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If playing competitive games with friends today, play for the fun of it. Don't make the play a measure of who is the better person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're a good starter today, but you might not be a strong finisher. If you undertake something, stick to it until it is completed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Seek companions today who enjoy the same types of activities that you do. Inviting one in who is out of sync might spoil the fun for all.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You should get along quite well with business associates or those with whom you deal commercially today. However, you might not handle your social involvements as smoothly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) When operating in familiar fields you should be able to get the types of results for which you hope today. An excursion into untried areas could be a bummer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are capable of handling difficult situations well today, provided you are free from outside interference. When others butt in, all could go awry.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Business and pleasure aren't apt to mix too well today, so try to keep the two separate. When the lines cross, complications are likely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Cool and practical tactics will work well for you today in matters relating to your career or finances. Warmth must be added, however, when dealing with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Good plans and ideas will count for little today if you fail to execute them as outlined. Be sure your actions do not deviate from your blueprint.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you must be very selective as to whom you reveal confidential matters. Certain people may not treat the information as sincerely as you do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful in activities with friends today where each is required to pick up an equal share of the cost. Unless it is calculated in advance, complications are likely.

API SCHOOL—Project Chairman Hood Jones and Jerry Beard, director of continuing education at Western Texas College are busy making plans for a Cementing Calculation school to be held at WTC May 18-19. Hinckley Vowed To Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — A brooding John W. Hinckley Jr., a bottle of peach brandy his only companion on New Year's Eve, chastised himself for being a "coward" and vowed to win actress Jodie Foster's love in 1981, a psychiatrist says.

Three months later, Hinckley shot a president. Dr. William T. Carpenter, testifying Thursday in Hinckley's federal trial, painted a grim picture of the defendant's "carefully guarded inner world" in the months before March 30, 1981 when President Reagan and three other men were wounded.

Carpenter, called by the defense to make its case that Hinckley was insane at the time of the shooting, was to take the witness stand again today. Hinckley has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The doctor, who spent a total of 45 hours interviewing Hinckley after the shooting, said the defendant was despondent over his one-sided love affair with Miss Foster, and the murder of his idol, John Lennon. He also had lost his nerve to follow through on a plan to kill former President Carter.

Hinckley's "mind was filled with thoughts of homicide, suicide, death and the end of his world," said Carpenter, who is associated with the University of Maryland.

While sitting alone with his brandy bottle at his parents' Evergreen, Colo., home on Dec. 31, 1980, the 26-year-old Hinckley tape recorded a "New Year's Message to the World."

"Anything that I might do in 1981 would be solely for Jodie Foster's sake," he said in the recording, which was played for the jury.

"I want to make some kind of statement or something on her behalf. I don't want to hurt her or anything. I can't hurt anybody really. I'm such a coward really."

As the tape was played, Hinckley took off his red tie and handed it to a U.S. marshal in back of him. Use Snyder Daily News Classified Ads 573-5486

API Schedules Special School

The Snyder Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute will be sponsoring a Cementing Calculation School in conjunction with the department of continuing education at Western Texas College May 18-19.

Former Snyder resident and senior instructor at the Halliburton Energy Institute in Duncan, Oklahoma, Bert English will serve as instructor for the two day school. English has worked in all phases of cementing operations since joining Halliburton in 1946.

He is currently responsible for client services for the company and serves as instructor for Conoco, Superior Oil and Amoco among others. English was instrumental in organizing the successful Squeeze Cementing Symposium held in Snyder last year.

The course will cover orientation to cementing tables, basic cementing calculations, casing hydraulics (force, pressure and area) and basic cementing with frac gradient on Tuesday. Wednesday's session will cover balanced plugs and squeeze cementing.

English will be available for private consultation at 7:30 p.m. following the Tuesday session.

Prerequisites for the course include some familiarity with concepts of hydrostatic pressure and differential pressure. According to Hood Jones, project chairman for the local API chapter, this course is designed to benefit those persons involved in squeeze cementing, drilling and production operations.

Participants in the school could bring a small calculator and extra batteries. A notebook and an engineering handbook will be furnished for each student.

Instructional sessions will begin at 8 a.m. and conclude at 5 p.m. each day. The registration fee for the course includes each day's lunch.

Fees for the school will be $30 for API members (any chapter) and $40 for non-members. API memberships are available for $6.

Registration will begin at 7:15 a.m. May 18 and be limited to the first 100 applicants. Pre-registration is encouraged and may be mailed to the Snyder Chapter API at P. O. Box 810, Snyder, Texas 79549.

API is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the petroleum industry and community betterment. Past projects have benefited the Humble Smith School, West Texas Rehabilitation Center and the Snyder Goodfellows. The organization also provides scholarships for students in petroleum related fields as well as providing educational opportunities for persons already in the petroleum industry.

According to Neely Wright, chairman of the Snyder chapter, API's next local project will be the annual API Golf Tournament at the Snyder Country Club June 12.

Diamonds were first discovered in India. Today they are found in many areas of the world, but the leading diamond supplier is Africa. The only U.S. diamond mine is in Arkansas.

PRESIDENTIAL RECOGNITION—Jerry Vestal, treasurer of the Scurry County United Way, presented Brenda Hedges with a plaque recognizing her two year's service as president of the organization. Also on hand for the presentation was newly elected United Way president Dr. Ed Barkowsky. (SDN Staff Photo)
