2 Are Killed As Maniac Bombs Pittsburgh Bank

Demand for $2,000 Refused by Teller; He Kicks Satchel Holding Fatal Blast; Score Injured

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A man, believed to have been a maniac, who escaped from a city hospital several weeks ago, late today set off a bomb in the Farmers Deposit Savings bank, killing himself and a policeman and injuring a score of bank employes and pedestrians. The banking rooms were wrecked.

The bomber caused the explosion after he had threatened to blow up the bank if a demand for $2,000 was refused, and just as the policeman, who was killed, was about to arrest him. Late tonight the supposed maniac had not been identified but police were working on the theory that he was John T. Collins. Notations were found in a small book by the body which were believed to have been made by Collins before he was taken to the hospital for observation as to his sanity.

The blast came as special bank police hurried forward to arrest the blackmailer who had presented his demand in a note to a teller. The bomber calmly placed a small black handbag at his feet after making his threat and when the officers approached him he gave the satchel a violent kick. The ensuing explosion decapitated the bomber injured many others and wrecked the interior of the bank, which is a branch of, and occupies the same quarters as the Farmers National bank one of the city's leading financial institutions.

Pieces of marble, ripped from floors and ceilings and the windows on the first two floors of the 24-story building at Fifth avenue and Wood street, Pittsburgh's busiest intersection in the downtown district, were blown out into the streets engulfing pedestrians in a shower of glass and debris.

Crowds Jam Streets

Thousands of persons in nearby theatres and other buildings, as well as afternoon shoppers, rushed into the streets which were so jammed that fire apparatus and ambulances could not get through until police reserves from outlying districts had arrived. Injured pedestrians, men and women, lying on the streets were placed in police patrols and ambulances and sent to hospitals.

Within the bank, tellers and clerks bleeding from cuts, worked feverishly behind the wrecked cages, attempting to gather up thousands of dollars in currency which had been blown about. Beside a shattered window lay the bomber, his head blown off, and two special policemen, George Ortmann and Albert Anderson. Ortmann was standing within a foot of the bomb when it went off. His injuries, doctors said, were such that he had little chance for recovery.

Walter Miller for 25 years a messenger for the Pittsburgh stock exchange had arrived at the bank shortly after 3 p. m. The farmers National had closed, but the savings branch was open for business. Miller said that when he walked into the institution, he knew something was amiss for, he said, special officers had been stationed at points of vantage and the bank officials were hurriedly considering a letter. Miller said that was about 3:15 p. m., when the poorly dressed man appeared. Miller spoke to another messenger asking that he be permitted to see one of the bank officials. He said he was told to "stick around for a while, there will be something doing here." He waited and was watching the teller consider the blackmailer's note when the bomb was set off.

Handed to Teller

The demand for $2,000 bearing a threat to blow up the bank was handed to D. J. Jones, a teller. Jones turned it over to P. L. Adams, assistant cashier, who in turn called M. A. Kendall, vice president of the Farmers National, acting head of the bank in the absence of A. E. Braun, newspaper publisher and president of the institution.

The vice president called the two special officers and ordered them to arrest the blackmailer, but before they could overpower him he kicked the handbag and set off the death dealing blast.

Twenty-three persons including a number of bank employes were admitted to hospitals. Four were not expected to live. Many others cut by flying glass, were treated in nearby buildings and taken to their homes.

Justice Sid Williams was called to the county temple of justice to perform the ceremony. The license had been purchased and the bridegroom stood waiting to receive his bride. CONCRETE IS USED OVER A 3 MILE ROUTE

New Detour Opened Up; Additional Roadway Ready Sept. 1

TO HENRIETTA, DEC. 1

Automobile tourists rode on concrete in Clay county for the first time Tuesday when a new detour route was put into effect which made available for use 3 1-2 miles of new pavement just east of Jolly.

This detour will be in effect until about September 20 at which time traffic will be turned in on the new pavement at Fenen's Filling station about 1 1-2 miles east of the Wichita county line and 3 miles west of Jolly. By October 1 and in time for the Texas-Oklahoma fair, the new concrete road will be opened for use from the Wichita county line to a point 3 1-2 miles east of Jolly. From that point motorists will be allowed to use the prest dirt road bed of the highway to a point within 3 1-2 miles of Henrietta at which point a short detour will be put into effect, 2 1-2 miles of which will be gravel. The present detour leaves the concrete road in Wichita county at a point about 1500 feet west of the Wichita county line. The detour is well marked and is a fairly good dry weather road.

These announcements were made yesterday by County Engineer, W. A. Obenchain, who is in charge of this project and who conducted representatives of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce and the Henrietta chamber of commerce over the road and new detour

Bailing began early Saturday afternoon on the test, after a liner had been set at 2821 feet, ending up as a gusher with the strongest gas pressure of any well yet brought in within the field that is now entering its seventh week.

Wrigley Posts Big Check for Difficult Channel Swim.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Aug. 24.—(AP)—A prize of $25,000 awaits the first swimmer who successfully braves the denizens of the deep, which range from sharks and sword fish to whales and swims the San Pedro channel between Santa Catalina island and the mainland, it was announced today by William Wrigley Jr., who boosted the purse to that sum and threw competition open to all comers.

The feat is rated as exceptionally difficult by experts who point out that at no time of the day will the prevailing tides assist progress and a troublesome chop is kicked up by breezes sweeping down the channel.

Talk About The Circuses! Just Wait For This

(The effervescent treatise appearing below was composed by a prominent Texas legislator who will take a leading part in the three-ring circus he so humorously describes. He does not want his name mentioned, but that detracts but little from his story.) —Editor's Note.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 24.—'Bout September 13 every year the Barnum-Bailey-Ringling Brothers circus makes its appearance in Texas.

Ordinarily that is big news for Texas folks

But not this year.

This year the biggest show will make a 30-day stand in Austin.

And instead of showing under a "big top" it will be under the Capitol dome.

It is hard to state at this writing who will be the ring-master.

HOLD MAN IN GIRL'S DEATH

Cleveland Medical Student Questioned After His Sweetheart Dies

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Orders for the detention of Ermil "Frenchy" Balaneacu, medical student, following the discovery of poisoning in the stomach of Dorothy Elizabeth Kirk, his 21-year-old sweetheart who died mysteriously in a hospital Sunday were issued tonight by the county coroner and federal narcotic agents.

Coroner A. P. Hammond instructed police to hold Balaneacu for questioning by county authorities but no charge has been placed against him.

The tragic death of Miss Kirk, 21, demure country maiden who came here from her home at Canal-Fulton, Ohio, six years ago to work as a stenographer, may reveal that the girl innocently became the victime of a drug habit—a habit which ultimately cost her life.

She died Sunday morning in a hospital where Balaneacu brought her and today, city chemists, in an analysis of her stomach found it to be a "conglomorated mass of dope."

HONEST WORK IS BRALLEY'S FINAL PLEDGE

Candidate for Sheriff Tells Big Crowd His Ideas And Intentions

RALLY AT BELLEVUE

A promise of clean government in Wichita county for the next two years and an attack upon policies alleged to have prevailed during the past biennium, marked a W. G. Bralley for sheriff rally at Bellevue park Tuesday night. A large crowd, comparable in size to those that heard the gubernatorial candidates in their addresses in June attended the meeting, which was preceded by a short band concert by the municipal band. J. C. Mytinger, Wichita Falls business man and president of the chamber of commerce, presided.

"The question is not one of politics," he declared in introducing the first speaker. "It is a moral issue. I feel safe in making one promise to the people of this county in advocating the candidacy of Mr. Bralley for sheriff. That is, that if he is elected, between now and the time he takes office there will be more bootleggers, gamblers and thugs leave Wichita Falls than have been arrested and indicted during the entire two years before."

Panhandle Production Causing Congestion As Tank Facilities Fail

AUSTIN, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Congestion of oil due to large production in the Texas Panhandle field is still waiting solution but H. E. Bell, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division of the Texas railroad commission believes that the solution is near, he stated today, upon his return from an inspection of the field.

Production has passed 100,000 barrels a day, with some wells being shot and brought in and some being left on the sand, the chief supervisor said.

Judge Bell said that only half of the production is being disposed of and that unless production is curtailed that soon all the available tankage will be used, or the operators will violate the rule against open storage. Conservation of the gas in the upper sands is being carried on with success, but the Santa Fe railroad will not complete its branch line into the heart of the field as soon as expected and when it is completed, it will not be able to handle the production, Judge Bell said.

Judge Bell believes that operations will be reduced when the winter months come and the situation will be relieved then, but in the meantime methods to permit continued development are being worked out.

THE PETTER

READ THIS FIRST.

MERRY LOCKE, gay and pretty as her nickname, is a born flirt. From the time she was 16 years old she has had no ambition beyond love-making and a good time.

At 20 she fails in her stenographic course at business college, to the disgust of MOMS, her mother. When her father suddenly dies, she takes a job in LILLIE DALE'S beauty parlor. At that time she is having the first real love affair in her life. The man in the case is TONY GAINES, a sober-minded young lawyer who wants to marry her. One night in a fit of jealous rage, Merry goes out with DERRICK JONES, one of her old beaus, and lets him kiss her, just by way of "getting even" with Tony for a broken engagement. When she tells him about it he stops seeing her and weeks afterward she hears he has gone to Montana to live. She returns his engagement ring and tries to forget him.

CASSIE, the second oldest, marries MORLEY KAUFMAN, the wealthy broken for whom she worked, and Jinny, the youngest, takes Derrick Jones away from Merry under her very nose. They run away to be married, but cannot get a license because of Jinny's youth, so they return.

Merry has no matrimonial prospect on the horizon except BILL ERSKINE, a bachelor, whom she met through Morley Kaufman and Cassie. Bill gives Merry expensive presents, lends her the money to buy a share in the beauty shop, and teaches her to drink. Merry expects to marry him if no one more attractive comes along, although he never has spoken a word about marriage to her.

Moms rents one of her rooms to Mr. Heflinger, a traveling man, to help make both ends meet in the shabby little home. Then Lillie Dale comes to live there, too. She has Cassie's old bedroom. One night she comes into Merry's room and sees Bill Erskine's picture. "Why, how do you happen to know Tubby Erskine?" she asks in surprise.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX.

Merry picked up the snapshots of Bill Erskine and dropped them into the top drawer of the old dresser. She shut it on them with a smart little bang.

"Why, I've known Bill a long time," she answered sharply. "I met him through my sister Cassie. There's nothing so wonderful about my knowing him, is there? He's not the King of Siam or anybody I should not know, is he?"

Lillie laughed her rich, good-natured laugh that always sounded so comfortable and contented.

"No, I guess not," she said. "But it's funny just the same—your knowing him. Why, I haven't thought of Tubby Erskine for ten or twelve years! And then to find out that he's a friend of yours! The world is a pretty small place, after all, isn't it?"

She shook her head musingly, and went on. "I knew him one winter down in Palm Beach. I was giving permanent waves in one of the big hotels and he used to come in and try to make dates with me."

She arched her darkened eyebrows, knowingly.

"But he never got very far with ME!" she added: "I saw through him right from the word 'Go!' He was trying to marry some rich English girl in the hotel. But he didn't mind having a good time! I don't play second fiddle for anyone. Not if I know it!"

"What's all this you're talking about in there?" Moms asked loudly, trying the handle of the door.

Lillie had just time to throw her cigaret out of the window before she was in the room.

"Lillie was telling me about Bill Erskine. She knows him," said Merry. She knew that if she didn't tell her mother, Lillie would, anyway. Lillie was one of those annoying people who tell everything they know, and a little bit more.

"I was just telling Merry that he's something of a fortune hunter," she said, getting up and pulling her kimono around her plump shoulders. "At least he was when I knew him. But that was years ago. He may have changed."

"People don't change in this world. Once a bad egg, always a bad egg," Moms replied gloomily.

She settled herself down on the edge of Jinny's narrow bed for a comfortable gossip.

"But if he's out to marry money, I don't know what he bothers with Merry for, I'm sure," she said, "for we certainly haven't one cent to rub up against another. We're as poor as Job's turkey."

"He not after money. He has plenty of money of his own!" Merry defended him, indignantly. "He does not know what to do with all the money he makes! Why, just look at the things he sends me, every week of his life!"

Her big eyes swept the room. Every corner of it was filled with proofs of Bill's devotion to her. A piece of Chinese embroidery was tacked on the wall above her writing desk. A pair of befurred carriage boots that he had sent her from Montreal, stood on the floor of the clothes closet. The dresser was loaded with perfume in cutglass bottles, with boxes and boxes of powder, with a toilet set of genuine tortoise shell.

Moms scolded every time the mail brought these gifts. She didn't think it was proper for a man to give such intimate things as powder and perfume to a young girl, and she said so!

"Some time I'm going to tell him so, too!" she often threatened. "If he doesn't know what's proper, and what isn't proper, I'll teach him!"

Lillie was looking at herself in the mirror that belonged to the toilet set.

"Just gaze upon that double chin, will you!" she exclaimed. "Isn't that terrible! If I don't stop getting fat I'm going to look like a comic strip pretty soon. I'd better go on a skimmed-milk diet, I guess."

At the door she turned for a moment.

"You know," she said, with her wise head to one side, "You know all these hard-shell bachelors fall in love, sooner or later. And I suppose that's what's happened to Tubby Erskine, after all these years."

Cassie thought so, too.

"He's just wild about you Merry," she told her one afternoon, when she dropped in at the beauty shop. "You'd just better nab him the next time he comes to town. He has everything a girl wants—money, a nice disposition, good family. You couldn't do better for yourself than to marry Bill Erskine."

"But I don't love him. I know I don't," Merry said to herself, in the hushed stillness of her own dark bedroom that night.

The feeling she had for him was nothing like the feeling she had had for Tony Gaines, at any rate. She never wanted to laugh and to cry at the same time when she thought about Bill Erskine, as she had laughed and cried with happiness and pain over Tony, long ago.

She never wanted to put her cheek close to his, and just once wanted to hold Tony Gaines. The thought of Bill left her cold with a sort of stony coldness that settled around her heart like a chill.

And yet she liked Bill. She missed him when he was away, and she looked forward to his letters.

He wrote her almost every day and signed himself "Yours always, Bill" or "Yours for keeps, Bill."

Merry was sure that he was going to ask her to marry him the next time he came to town.

"I may as well take him, I suppose," she said to herself on a hot June afternoon, two or three days before her birthday. "I like him fine, and it would be nice to have a home of my own."

After all, it was tiresome having nothing to do but sit here in the shop all day, answering the telephone or straightening out Lillie's sloppy account books.

If she were married to Bill, she could live the way Cassie lived. Cassie could lie in bed until noon, having her breakfast there, propped against a stack of little lacy pillows with a lace cap on her head, and a satin bed jacket around her pretty shoulders.

Cassie could buy all the clothes she wanted. She could play bridge all afternoon if she wanted to, and dance half the night if she felt like it. She had no job waiting for her the next morning. No yelping alarm clock. Nothing but leisure, and a good time.

"And yet she doesn't look a bit happier now than she did before she was married," Merry was forced to admit to herself.

As a matter of fact, Cassie did not look nearly so happy these days as she had six months ago.

Her discontented-looking mouth turned down at the corners now, more than it ever had before. There was a guarded look in her green eyes.

She had a new way of snapping Morley up, sometimes, too.

"You told that one the other night," she would say sharply to him, if he repeated a joke he had heard. And it wasn't very funny to begin with!"

More than ever Merry wondered if Cassie cared for him—if she ever had cared for him.

Perhaps she had, but had gotten over it as people get over most things from measles to maladies of the romantic heart.

"People ask me if I'm en gaged and I don't know what to s ay to them," she said.

Perhaps this was what marriage did to people—made them stop caring for each other in the beautiful nonsensical way that sweethearts care for each other. Merry wondered.

Then, on the morning of her own birthday—her twenty-first birthday—a little thing happened that restored her faith in love and marriage and human happiness.

Helen's first baby was born that morning in the little house out on Wandsworth road. It was a little boy and it was born just as the six o'clock bells were ringing from the steeple of the Catholic church a mile away.

At seven Moms telephoned Merry and asked her to bring her a roll of flannel from a certain trunk in the attic of the house. Moms had been staying at Helen's house for the last week, waiting for the arrival of her first grandchild.

The screen door was not hooked, when Merry reached the little house on Wandsworth road. She went in and tiptoed up the stairs to Helen's room.

The door of it stood open, and Bill Hepworth was kneeling beside the bed where his wife and his brand-new son lay.

Merry had always thought of Bill Hepworth as a dull good-hearted sort of Babbitt—a fit mate for the stolid Helen.

They made her think of a team of heavy, slow, patient plough horse, plodding along side by side. Surely they had nothing of romance—that glamorous thing—in their uninteresting lives!

And so she was not at all prepared for the thing that happened, as she stood there on the threshold of the darkened room.

"Darling," Helen said to er husband, one of her hands in both of his. "Darling, I knew all along that he would be a boy, and that he would look like you, was as Moms says he does. If you wish hard enough for a thing, you always get it. I wished for you, all over again, and I've got you. I've got you."

Her free arm went around the tiny bundle beside her, that she said was "Bill all over again." And there was a kind of glory in her tired low voice as she said it.

There was a queer tight feeling around Merry's heart as she tiptoed down the stairs and a lump of unshed tears in her throat.

She could hear Moms moving around in the little kitchen. But she did not go near her. She laid her roll of flannel on the dining room table and fled out into the glare of Wandsworth road. She knew that if she so much as spoke to anyone she would burst into tears—and she didn't know why, either.

But that minute at the door of Helen's bedroom had settled one fact for her, forever and ever.

Love and beauty did not go out of life, when two people married. Not always, anyway. She knew she had left Paradise behind her in the modest little house that was like all its modest little neighbors.

That night Bill Erskine came.

He came without sending word that he was coming.

Merry was lying out in the hammock after supper, looking through the fascinating pages of a motion-picture magazine, when he came up behind her and kissed her full on the mouth.

She screamed.

"Did I frighten you?" he asked, coming around in front of her, and dropping his huge bulk down beside her.

"Frighten me?" she repeated! "I was just one-half inch from palsy! You frightened me—" He sealed her mouth with another kiss.

"Whew! I've been wanting to do that for a month of Sundays!" he said, smiling at her delightedly through the dusk that was gathering around them like a gray fog.

"Oh, Sister, you don't know how I've missed you this trip. I'll bet I've thought of you a hundred times a day every day I was gone! By Jove! I'm getting so I can't get along without you." There was no doubt that he meant what he said.

Merry flashed her entrancing smile at him. He was a dear, after all, she thought. If only he had a little less fat, and a little more hair—

"Bill," she said suddenly, putting one of her little slender hands on either side of his face, and looking at him solemnly, "Bill, do you like me—better than anyone?"

He nodded. "Anyone!" he exploded.

"Well, then," she went on, slowly, feeling her way, "I wish you'd tell me where we stand—you and I. You see, people ask me if I'm engaged to you and I—" She paused, and then went on with a shy sweetness—"I don't know what to tell them, Bill."

"Don't tell them anything!" Bill answered promptly. He put her hands down from his face. "It's none of their gol-darned business!"

He began to sputter. "None of their business, and you can tell 'em so for me!"

SEIZE REBEL TRUCK

Justice Agents Capture Equipment On Way to Mexico

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Department of justice agents here today seized a truck believed to be part of the equipment of a Mexican revolutionary movement said to have been headed by General Enrique Estrada who with a force of 150 men was arrested several days ago near the international boundary. The truck was fitted with numerous seats and in it were more than 100 pipe fittings which the officials believed were destined to be made into bombs for use by rebel forces.

Saffron Skin from Sour Bile

South Georgian Drives Out Enormous Quantity Sour Bile with Dodson's Liver Tone

After a long period of the worst form of weakness and the terrible feeling of sickness that comes from a system loaded with sour bile, Mr. Sam Puckett says: "When I kept getting those bilious attacks reckon I took enough calomel to kill a mule. Got worse all the time. Finally I turned saffron color all over. My wife hapened to read about Dodson's Liver Tone in the Weekly Constitution, so we drove to town and got a bottle. It was like magic. It drove quarts of sour bile out of me as black as ink. From that day I have felt as if I had a new liver, and whenever I begin to feel weary and bilious, with no appetite, a dose of Dodson's Liver Tone puts me right."

This wonderful quick-action, liver starter ought to be in every household, if for no other reason than to stop the use of dangerous calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is pleasant to take, even for children, and never makes you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.—Adv.

Rangel Barred To U. S. Entry Again

BROWNSVILLE, Aug. 24.—(AP) General Jesus M. Rangel, recently pardoned by Governor Ferguson, who crossed the Rio Grande here with five companions Sunday morning, cannot return to the United States, immigration officials at this port stated today. General Rangel was tried and convicted on a charge involving moral turpitude, and as he is a Mexican citizen, he cannot under the immigration regulations be again permitted to enter the United States. The fact he was pardoned by the governor, after serving several years of his sentence, does not in any way change the effect of the regulations, they state.

WORMS RUIN MUNDAY CROP

Cotton Production Will Be Cut One-Half By Insects

MUNDAY, Aug. 24.—Indications are now that the boll worm and leaf worm will cut the cotton crop abot one-half in the Munday trade territory. Apuproximately 50 per cent of the territory was hailed out during the last days of June, and the cotton replanted is where the boll and leaf worms are the wodst. Some farmers are using poison in various forms, hoping that conditions may be favorable now until September 15, after which time it will be too late to expect anything of a crop put on after that time. Cotton that was not hailed out or replanted is doing nicely with but little worm signs, however, it is possible that the worms may turn their attention to it after destroying all the later cotton. But there are a great many grown bolls on the early cotton, which will not likely be bothered by the boll worms. Should the old cotton make an average crop and the younger cotton nothing, about 50 per cent will be realized. Feed of all kinds is fine, and there will be no feed buying in this community next spring.

Coard O. K's. Plan to Free Man Held On Booze Charge.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Parole of Don Chafin, former sheriff of Logan county, West Virginia, was approved today by the department of justice.

Convicted in 1924 on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act, Chafin was sentenced to two years in Atlanta and fined $10,000. He was eligible for parole in June, but the justice department declined to act because another indictment against him was pending in West Virginia. This since has been quashed.

Crazed Mother Slays 4 Children as "Holy Ghost" Orders Deed

LAUREL, Miss., Aug. 24.—(AP) Mrs. Scott Allen, 35, wife of a farmer residing north of Moss, killed four of her children at their home early today with an axe. Annie Bell McCullem, negress, residing on the place, saved the life of the fifth child.

"The holy ghost told me to kill them," was the reason the mother gave Jasper county officers for the deed. "I killed them so as not to be sinning against the holy ghost," she said.

Mrs. Allen was taken to Bay Springs and lodged in jail.

Officers there believe she is insane.

The little victims ranged in age from 8 months to 7 years. They were playing about the yard at home when the tragedy took place. The 7-year-old child was first felled with a blow on the head and the three other children followed in quick succession, their skulls being crushed and death being instant.

As the crazed mother started for the fifth child, a boy past 8 years old, and the oldest in the family of five children, Annie Bell McCullem, the negro woman, arrived and prevented the fifth killing.

Mr. Allen was not at home at the time of the tragedy.

The detectives found half a bushel basket full of drugs under the student's bed. Some were of the most deadly poisons, they assert.

"From what we have already learned I would say he has the same slant on life as Loeb and Leopold," one of the detectives declared. "We believe we can lead him to make vital admissions in solving the case."

WHY NOT ROGERS

THE Thomas ranch of 22,000 acres in Calhoun county, Texas, has been subdivided for sale as farms. That is an immense tract of land. It was immense in the days of the old west, even when there were many much larger tracts. It is more than 34 square miles.

Verily, the old order changeth. Progress marches on. Thrones and empires totter. Cowboys come and go. A wilderness is made to blossom as the rose. A brief century and the great southwest has yielded up its Indian nomads and buffalo herds, tolerated the cowboy and longhorn and practically spewed them out again to clasp the dirt farmer to its breast.

Out of the west from the region of what now is Oklahoma—came a young Lochinvar and called himself Will Rogers. He came chewing and twirling a rawhide lariat, called in the parlance of old cowboy days a "lass rope," meaning lasso. He came as a cowboy and turend to be a comedian.

Rogers is not too mature to call himself a young man yet. When he was a boy he roamed the great open spaces. He rode bronchos. He roped steers. He herded cattle. He lived a plainsman's life.

Before he was a grown man the cutting up began. It has kept up and gone on a pace. There are still a few big ranches in the United States. And down in Mexico there is now and then what was a big ranch in the States, but became a hacienda across the Rio Grande.

But all are passing. The old order changes. Progress marches on. The picturesque west and southwest is almost gone. A few years more and there will be no cowboys—unless, perchance one may then be found in the Smithsonian institute. Perhaps that will be Will Rogers.

SOME PEDESTRIANS ESCAPE

OF the 850 persons killed in automobile accidents on the highways of New York in the first six months of this year 552 were pedestrians. The figures may indicate gross carlessness or the part of motorists and they may suggest an element of contributory negligence by people afoot. Seldom is there an accident which could not have been avoided by due care.

The lesson for the pedestrian in these melancholy statistics is plain enough. The only favorable circumstance he can take for granted is that no driver will run him down deliberately. He cannot safely expect any other concession. It is all that very well for the pedestrian to assert that he has as good a legal right on the highway as that of the motorist. In practice he is very much on the defensive. The motorist honks him off the way, he is expected to get out of the way as fast as a college sprinter and the slightest reluctance may be fatal.

Many motorists have some consideration for children who they are aware need special protection, but for adults the average driver hates to slow up. A walker of normal agility can, by keeping constantly alert, dodge destruction. Dogs do so. Even chickens which are even less regarded than pedestrians have learned to save their feathers. The pedestrian must accept the fact that his safety is about nine-tenths dependent on his own vigilance and act accordingly.

BILL HOME AGAIN

WILLIAM D. COWAN of San Saba county is home again. He is a veteran editor and publisher and prominent in politics of his section for many years. He followed the flag of the Fergusons for many years. He was a congressional nominee of the American party in 1920. He wandered away and came back in 1922.

Now he is whooping up the cause of the red headed attorney general in San Saba and doesn't care who knows it.

His friends call him Bill. He is a Kentuckian by birth. He calls himself a Jeffersonian democrat. He vows he never votes for a candidate who is not a Jeffersonian democrat.

Politics is a funny game and political life is a funny propositio[n].

APPRECIATION

A FEW days ago a motorcycle policeman in New York gave a summons to an automobilist who was speeding. The summons ordered him to appear in traffic court the next morning. The speeder was in court but the policeman was not.

The motorcycle policeman, after giving the "ticket" to the man at the wheel, rode on down the road and encountered a sedan loaded with a gang of men who did not look right. The policeman ordered them to stop and they opened fire on him and rode on leaving him dead by the roadside.

In the police court the man who had received the last summons the policeman would ever hand out paid a tribute to the dead officer. After being discharged for lack of prosecution he said to the judge, "If the policeman were here to press the complaint I should have been found guilty. I understand his family is destitute. I want to make a contribution to aid them."

He started a collection that amounted to a substantial sum. It was a touching incident and the speeder's acknowledgment of his guilt was proof that the policeman was faithful to the last.

THE LADY AGAIN

ALL biting mosquitoes are feminine, according to Maj. Edwin M. Skinner, directing mosquito abatement at Chicago for the Gorgas Memorial institute. This is as usual. It is the lady again who must be watched. She bites, she is poison. Presumably it is the man who pays and pays.

The major further says the mosquito should be permitted to gorge herself. There should be no swatting until she has drunk her fill. Of course there is no reason for killing the gentleman for he is inoffensive, harmless. And it is not true chivalry to swat a lady, not even when she is feeding off your hand. It is not done in polite society.

But the major hurries on to explain the reason for this advice. The mosquite injects an acid liquid into the skin to dilute the blood and add flavor to it. If you leave her alone, she will withdraw that acid along with the blood and there will be no itching.

Thus even the woman mosquito has learned the art of making it painless and pleasant when the victim does not interfere with her desires. Let the dear things enjoy themselves.

WHAT MIGHT BE?

ANCIENT buried cities are reported discovered in Mexico. America, too, has a history that goes back thousands of years, possibly as interesting as the wars and romances of Europe and Asia. But that history must be dug up, searched out, imagined and recorded. In it may be founnd the rise and fall of other civilizations, of peoples and religions, of powers and ambitions, of leaders and followers, of great loves and hates. Beneath us may be the bones of those who wrought and thrived before Europe flashed on the scene; of men and women who built and destroyed and smiled and read the sporting pages.

MURDER WILL OUT

MURDER will out, but frequently it is a long time making an exit. Several persons are named in connection with the Hall-Mills murder of four years ago. Joseph R. Roach, special investigator of the killing of Don R. Mellett, Canton, Ohio, publisher, says sufficient evidence has been gathered to be presented to the grand jury, that the guilty are known. He declares the underworld was aware of the murder plot for days, also some of the police. Slayings are becoming public events. Lots of people have knowledge of them, participate in the affairs. Only the victims are kept in the dark.

WANTS NO PROFIT

AIR MAIL contracts with the government were cancelled recently between Chicago and St. Paul. They have not been paid. This system of overland communication is too new to be accepted in the regular course of business, and not enough of a novelty to attract profitable matter. The cost is higher, and is not much quicker for short distances than the present efficient mail service by train. If one is in a real hurry he telegraphs. Those facts probably account for the failure to date of air mail lines. But then Uncle Sam does not expect to make money through the post office. That is national service for the public. Why should it be different for airplanes?

SPEAKING OF OSTRICHES

By Frederick Arnold Kummer

"I'm afraid I'm going to be terribly lonely from now on," she continued, paying no attention to him. "No one wants to be bothered with a deaf person, do they? Most people, that is. But with you, Roy—" She paused, gazing soulfully into his eyes. "With you I felt it would be different."

In his bewilderment Mr. Baker failed to notice the gleam of mischief in Mary Ellen's eyes.

"Er—ah—exactly," he stammered, snatching a fountain pen from his pocket. In spite of his efforts, it refused to write. "Darn the thing, anyway!" With a snort of anger, he substituted a pencil, and scrawled for a moment on the back of an envelope. It was addressed in a feminine hand, Mary Ellen observed, as he hastily turned it over. "Can't write walking," she managed to make out. "Better go somewhere and sit down, if it's agreeable to you."

"There's the hotel," she suggested, and led him silently up the street. A certain depression enveloped her; she did not feel like talking, and her companions, for obvious reasons, could not.

At the hotel corner a young man came up who apparently did not intend to be ignored.

"Hello, Roy, you old string bean" he announced enthusiastically, inspecting Mary Ellen meanwhile with beaming glances. "How's everything?"

"So—so," Mr. Baker responded coldly, and attempted to pass on. His friend, however, was not to be denied. Such a vision of loveliness as Mary Ellen presented had not been seen in Planeville for many a day.

"Say," he remarked in a stage whisper, emphasizing his words with a vigorous nudge in the ribs. "Introduce a fellow, won't you?" temper broke.

"I can't, you boob," he muttered angrily, turning his back on Mary Ellen. "Unless I do it in writing. The girl's stone-deaf. Wish I could. I'd be only too glad to have somebody take her off my hands!"

Mary Ellen breathed a sigh as the young man faded from view. Roy—Jimmy—birds of a feather, it seemed. Hadn't she any real friends? She smiled faintly as they stopped at the door of the hotel.

"Sorry I can't ask you in, Roy," she said, extending her hand, "but I have another engagement."

"Have you?" Mr. Baker seized her fingers as he might have seized a life line. "Good-by." He quite forgot her affliction in his eagerness to get away. "I'll drop in and see you when I get a chance."

"So endeth the second lesson," Mary Ellen reflected as she watched him hurry down the street.

The lobby of the Sherman House was deserted, save for Mr. Raymond Hayes, the foppish young clerk, and a stoutish youth with rather a feeble face, who leaned against the counter smoking a cigaret. Mr. Hayes was manicuring his nails, while he exchanged quips of gossip with Mr. Sam Drummond of the Planeville Daily Budget. Suddenly the latter's eye fell upon Mary Ellen, standing with Roy Baker on the sidewalk outside.

"Who's the dame with the nifty scenery?" he asked, waving his cigaret.

Mr. Hayes glanced sidewise, yawned.

"I guess she's the party you're looking for. You said Harwood, didn't you? Probably Miss, though she wrote only Mary E. on the register. I figure she ain't likely to be hitched, being deaf as a barn door."

"Looks like Mamie at that," Mr. Drummond muttered, staring through the window. "Wish she'd turn around so I could see her face. Deaf, you say? That's darned funny. She was all right when I knew her. Thought of marrying her once." He grinned broadly. "Here she comes now. It is Mamie. Gee, but she's improved. Stunning!"

"How do you do, Sam," said Mary Ellen, giving Mr. Drummond a crinkling smile as she came up for her key.

"Hello, Mamie." He extended a pulpy hand. "Found your message waiting for me at the office, so I thought I'd come around—"

"You'll have to write it, Sam. Didn't they tell you at the desk?" She flashed a look in the direction of Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Drummond nodded, and taking her arm, led her to the writing room.

"I'm on the Budget now," he wrote on an ink-stained envelope. "How about an interview for the paper?"

Mary Ellen's eyes hardened. After three years all the greeting he had to offer was to ask for an interview for the paper! It was discouraging, to say the least. She had liked Sam in the past, and she could not forget that he had once told her he loved her better than anyone in the world.

"There's nothing to give an interview about, Sam," she said wearily. "My—my affliction wouldn't interest anybody. It came from a perfectly dreadful attack of influenza. But I mustn't allow it to spoil my life. My friends will stand by me, I know."

Mr. Drummond interrupted her by swinging sharply around to the desk.

"Back up," Mary Ellen heard him mutter as he drew a sheet of paper toward him. She read his message with a glittering smile. "You bet I'll stand by you," he declared. "Nothing can ever change our friendship. Got to go now. Do you mind if I put a paragraph about your illness in the paper?"

"Not a bit." Mary Ellen's tones were dangerously sweet. "It will make things easier for me to have people know." She rose. In the door stood Mr. Terence McCoy, a large manila envelope in his hand. As Mary Ellen took it she saw a note under the encircling rubber band.

"Mr. Willcox asked me to deliver these to you," the note read. "Will you take a drive with me tonight after dinner? I'll call about eight."

"I'd love to," she said, giving him a pleased smile. "Good-by, Sam. Tomorrow I may have some real news for you." Including them both in a farewell nod, she went gaily toward the elevator.

When she entered the parlor later that evening, Mary Ellen found that fiery-haired young man, McCoy, gazing pensively out of the window. He could not have heard her come in, it seemed, for instead of turning, he went on talking softly to himself.

"Charming, all right—an angel, with a bit of the devil in her, too, to make her more interesting. I wonder what she'd do if I kissed her?"

"Mr. McCoy," Mary Ellen remarked, her cheeks suddenly scarlet, "I'm waiting."

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Isn't it Strange? Most of Us Will Do Anything for Our Families and Friends Except Write to Them—Yet All of Us Delight to Receive Letter We Never Answer.

Concerning letter-writing, our sins are those both of omission. At any rate it is the more frequent. It is strange how most of us hate to put pen to paper and what an ordeal we consider writing a letter to be. Rather than do it we will be guilty of the grossest rudeness and unkindness. We will risk losing friends and alienating the affections of those who love us.

As long as our friends are within speaking distance of us we are quick to express our sympathy for their misfortunes and our hppiness in their good luck. But if we live to write a letter of our condolence it is another pair of sleeves. We are as silent as the grave, and they might have as many troubles as Job or break the bank at Monte Carlo without getting a line out of us.

Indeed, it may be said of most of us that we will do anything for our friends and families except write to them.

We will help nurse when they are sick. We will take care of their children when they go off on a trip. We will go miles out of our way to haul them around in our cars. We will put ourselves to no end of trouble to help make any of their undertakings a success. We will show our interest and love for them in any manner except by corresponding with them. If they move away where we have to communicate with them by mail that ends it all.

In the first spasm of being parted we may nerve ourselves up to the heroic of writing a letter or two, but our morale soon breaks down, and we certainly succumb to our old dread of the ink pot, in which is drowned many a friendship.

We salve our conscience by thinking that we will write to Mary or John or the Smiths or the Browns tomorrow, but we never do. Not just because we are not fond of Mary and John and the Smiths and the Browns as ever, and as eager for news of them, but because we can't get our courage up to writing to them.

If, as the proverb says, "Hell is paved with good intentions," then the land of lost friendship is covered over with the letters that were never written.

It is pitiful to think how much love is lost for the sake of a two-cent postage stamp. It is humorous to think that we will gladly spend hours in serving our friends when they are present, but we will not devote 10 minutes to writing to them when they are absent. And it is strange to think that we so hate to write letters and are so dilatory about writing them when we adore getting letters ourselves and are so appreciative of even a line that is sent us on some anniversary or a note of condolence or congratulation, while a long newsy letter when we are away from home makes us feel as if we had been presented with a diamond tiara and fills us with commensurate gratitudte.

The real criminal sinners among the nonletter writers, however, are the men who never write to their mothers. There are more men not otherwise cruel or callous who do not write to their mothers once a year. Some who never write. And strangely enough they do not seem to realize how heartless they are.

They are busy, absorbed in their own affairs, and somehow they do not remember that there are lonely old women in dull little villages or on isolated farms, whose chief interest in life are the boys they have sent out into the great world, and that these gray-haired old mothers watch day by day, week by week, with a hopefulness that never dies, for the letters that never come.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A COTTAGE.

A cottage is a splendid spot
To go in summer when it's hot;
It's fine to go a little while
Out in the woods at least a mile,
And cook with kerosene or wood,
And have a bed that's none too good,
And have a lamp that's none too light,
And nothing just exactly right.

It isn't just the birds and trees
And lakes and streams and things like these
That cheer the heart, refresh the soul:
It's coming back to gas and coal,
Electric lights, a spotless tub,
The church, the movie and the club;
A cottage, when you homeward come,
Is something fine to get home from.

A cottage is a splendid plan
To rather re-adjust a man,
To make a woman see how blest
She was with things she once possessed.
For arm-in-arm we go around,
And, oh, the treasures we have found
We always had and hardly knew—
The joys we have to come back to!

FATAL MEASLES

Every race in the world seems to have diseases that are "natural" to it, that is endemic and alway present among some members of the race, but not necessarily fatal. In fact as the weaker individuals are eliminated by death, the survivors tend to build up a race with considerable natural inmunity to local diseases. Negroes have considerable immunity to malaria, coming from Africa. The white have has built up an immunity to diseases that may once have been highly fatal, like chicken pox and measles, but have since become mild. Yet when Asiatic cholera got into Europe from Asia it had a 90 per cent mortality, and the Boubonic plague carried off half of Europe in the seventeenth century. In the same way smallpox, brought by white men, killed more Indians than all the wars, while measles, introduced among the Eskimos of Greenland, proved fotal to most who caught it.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Vulcanized rubber is rubber fired with sulphur.
2. The advantages of vulcanized rubber are hardness and durability.
3. Plantation rubber is that derived from trees cultivated in plantations, contrasted with the wild rubber trees.
4. The Indians were the first to discover the use of rubber; Columbus saw them playing with elastic balls.
5. Mackintoshes are so named from Mackintosh, who first produced water proof garments of rubber cloth.
6. The first use of rubber in Europe was for pencil erasers.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

VIRGO.

Today's planetary aspects are rather difficult to diagnose. On the whole, however, they are negative rather than positive. In the evening they cease to be nebulous and become exceedingly favorable, and conditions are considerably improved by the presence of stimulating vibrations. It would be polite not to attempt during the day any unaccustomed task, but confine and dedicate your whole attention to routine work and "put your better foot forward" and overcome, by concentration, the sense of lassitude that will be felt. The evening is particularly appropriate for lovers, and the telling of the old, yet ever new, story, will bring happiness to you and delight to the party of the other part."

Children born today will enjoy, during infancy, normal health and the few ailments from which they will suffer, will readily yield to ordinary treatment. Between, however, the period of adolescence and that of adulthood, the signs indicate that, outgrowing their strength, they will develop physical weakness unless this "slipping" process is caught in time. In temperament, they will, at an early age, display unmistakable evidences of industry and, although, not inherently clever, they will plod and persevere, and acquire a remarkable fund of useful information. Ambition will spur them on, and the omens speak well for their ultimate future.

If today is your birthday, your gifts are all rather mere superficial than fundamental. You know something about a variety of topics, but are not well-grounded in any one subject. You are fond of society, like to amuse and like to be amused. Your prediction for pleasure interferes, very materially, with your success along more serious lines of endeavor. You are careful of appearances and nothing, if not strictly conventional. You are terribly afraid of "Mrs. Grundy," and what she might say. Consistency is not one of your assets and you are erratic and liable to make sudden changes, both in plans and opinions. You are demonstrative in your affection to those who attract your fancy, just as you are bitter towards those whom you classify as enemies. If not already married, it would be politic to defer this until such time as experience has taught you the advantages of steadfastness and loyalty.

Successful people born this date are: Gardiner Greene Hubbard, lawyer; Samuel R. Franklin, naval officer; Francis Bret Harte, author; Edgar Wilson Nye, (Bill Nye), humorist; George P. Lathrope, author, and General William Weigel, general.

STILL THE BATTLE RAGES!
Sunny Falls Back on a Woman's Weapon

Dear Prince:
It really seems to me
That you could find a minute
To steal from work to think of me!
Come now! Why not begin it?
To prove the real depth of your love
Why not risk getting fired?
The world is full of lovely men—
You'd soon again be hired!

But let's suppose worst came to worst
And, spite of your ambition;
In spite of hunting far and wide,
You could find no position:
Do you suppose because you'd find
No office that would take you,
That I would prove a heartless jade,
I, also, would forsake you?

Ah, no, dear Prince! And here's the proof
That my love is the greater—
Since to our own best interests
I'd been the culprit job because
I foolishly did wheelde.
I would, through selling fancy work,
Support you with my needle!

I'M THE GINK

I am the "I-told-you-so" ginkette. That is my favorite phrase. I am always prophesying dire things for my neighbors' children. I just know Mr. Smith is interested in other women. Very few things I predict come true, but that doesn't matter. When something does happen I always say, "I told you so." Usually I haven't, but that doesn't matter. I am secretly disappointed in my own children and when other people's offspring don't measure up—"I told you so."

News of The Fields

OTHER TEXAS FIELDS

Magnolia Petroleum company No. 1 University, in Crane county, ran the swab at 3,015 feet and it made a 75-barrel flow immediately afterwards. There is little gas, but nevertheless it looks promising for a well.

Gulf Production company No. 2 McElroy, in section 204, Crane, had 2,000 feet of oil from 2,743 feet, with little gas, and prospects were not so bright for it being a well.

Skelly Oil company in No. 1 Matthews, in section 31, Eastern Texas railroad survey, and situated north of Alhang, and two and one-half miles east of the Cook pool, in Shackelford county, Central Texas, had 1,250,000 feet of gas in a stray sand from 655 to 720 feet.

E. R. Wilson in No. 1 Bauer, it section 90, Comar county school lands, Callahan county, had a 100-barrel well from 1,402 to 1,419 feet.

BRIDWELL AT AL, WIL'

Bridwell and Heydrick have abandoned as a dry hole their No. 4, Tad Wilson, located 150 feet from the north line and 674 feet from the east line of the north 40 acres of the south 120 acres of the west 276 acres of section 12, HTC survey, abstract 1243 north Archer county, at a depth 1710 feet. The test had sand at 1645 feet and also at 1657 feet which was tested but would not pay off. This test is on a 20 acres lease recently purchased by these operators and is south of the Monninger et al new well recently completed in that section.

JEFFERSON COUNTY

Near the southeast corner of Jefferson county, and not far from the Red river, the New England Oil and Pipe Line company at No. 1 Cassidy, in the southeast corner of the northeast of the northwest of 1-7s-4w, had a good show of gas from 1,774 to 1,784 feet, picking up water at that depth. The casing is being under-reamed through the water sand to deepen.

PANHANDLE WHITE

The Panhandle Refining company has set pipe and was to test Tuesday afternoon its No. 2 White, located 150 feet north of the south line and 1388 feet east of the west line of the W. B. White 60-acre tract in block 19, Denton county school land, survey No. 3, joining the townsite of Holiday to the southwest in North Archer county. Sand was found at 1770 feet on the test which is about 900 feet south of the same company's No. 1 well on the same fee which is making 15 barrels of oil daily from sand at 1775 to 1777 feet.

SIMMS ET AL, TURB

The Simms and Consolidated Oil companies have made location for their No. 2 Turbeville and are skidding the rig 300 feet south of their new wel. in the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of block 150 of the Carson survey in Archer county, and to the east of the American Refining company et al new producers in the same block.

Spindletop Oil Derricks In For Severe Buffeting

BEAUMONT, Aug. 24.—(AP)—R. C. Lomax, deputy of the state railroad commission oil and gas division has started oil companies in the new Spindletop field this morning to strengthen the derricks double their present strength to withstand to tropical storm scheduled to hit the coast probably early tomorrow morning or during the night. At 11 o'clock there had been no noticeable fall in the barometer readings of the United States weather bureau at Port Arthur, the reading being 29.96.

NIGGER CREEK

The southern end of the Nigger Creek pool, west of Mexia, in east central Texas, has apparently been determined by the Transcontinental Oil company failure at No. 1 Erskine, which cored sand from 2,818 to 2,826 feet, getting salt water at the latter depth. It also tends to reduce the future size of the pool somewhat.

TEXHOMA HAMILTON

On the W. B. Hamilton fee in the Murphy's corner area of north Archer county the Texhoma Oil and Refining company has placed their No. 15 well on the pump and it is making 100 barrels of oil from the sand at 1798 to 1806 feet. The same company has also put to pumping its No. E-10 Burnett in the T. & N. O. R. R. survey No. 2 in Wichita county and it is making 30 barrels from sand at 1574 to 1588 feet.

JAFFE MITCHELL

Harry Jaffe et al are setting pipe to test a sand from 1300 to 1314 feet on their No. 9 test on the Mitchell land and in the southeast corner of the west 50 acres of block 5, Patience Castleman survey, southwest of Iowa Park in Wichita county and offsetting to the west the new Ross Brothers well in the same survey. This last well is producing from a new horizon at 1878 to 1880 feet and Jaffe and associates were drilling for that sand when they ran into this sand at 1306 feet which looked too kood to pass up without testing.

KOURI, HASKELL CO.

S. S. Kouri of Wichita Falls is rigging up for his third cable tool test on the Ballard ranch, ten miles east of Maskell, in Haskell county. The test, on the J. Carmean survey, abstract 90, is approximately two and one-half miles southeast of the other tests which were carried to a depth of 3385 and 4017 feet respectively, and which had good showings in the neighborhood of 3000 feet.

TIDAL, TURB

The Tidal Oil company has abandoned as a dry hole at 1530 feet its test on the Turbeville land, located in the northwest corner of the southeast 58 acres of block 172, Carson survey, just south of the producers in the new Simms pool in Archer county. This test had six feet of sand at 1500 feet on which pipe was set but would not make a producer.

Rumor Credits Burleson With A Strike, In Reagan

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 24.—Rumor has credited Albert Sidney Burleson of Austin, postmaster general of the United States in the Wilson cabinet, with a notable conquest in Texas oil.

General Burleson, who owns land and oil interests in west Texas counties, in the vicinity of the Regan county field, is said to have found part of his holdings in the producing area where values have climbed to dizzy heights.

Modestly, the former postmaster general has declined to discuss the report. He has made several trips to west Texas, only recently spending several days in San Angelo, now a buzzing center of oil activity covering the fields of half a dozen nearby counties.

"It is a purely private matter," the man who through years in the president's cabinet proved he could "keep secrets," replied through a spokesman, when asked about the report that he had made a bonanza strike in the oil fields.

General Burleson was for years a member of congress before the democratic president called him to the inner councils of the war cabinet. Since his retirement from public office, he has returned to his home, one of the landmarks of Austin, living here in genial contentment, often visiting his long-time friends in the state house.

SUN, HYMAN

The Sun Oil company is swabbing its No. 1 Hyman, 800 feet west of the Hooser producers on the same fee in Cooke county and the well is swabbing 175 barrels from sand at 1164 feet to 1172 feet.

BRIDWELL ET AL, NETH'

Bridwell and Heydrick are moving in a rig for their No. 1 Netherton fee near the old Sunshine State pool in north Archer county and located 150 feet each way from the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section 1, SPRR survey.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads —Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.—Adv.

Texas 60 Cleans Out Surplus Gas Stocks In Area

The Texas company has cleaned up the surplus of 60-62, 400 endpoint gasoline in the Wichita Falls and other Mid-Continent areas. It bought 500,000 gallons for 11 1-2 cents, says Platt's Oilgram. This is the gravity of the new Texaco gasoline and some refiners are wondering if the success of that new motor fuel will mean the relegation to the rear of the 58-60, 37, U. S. motor as the general run of gasoline desired by the public.

The spot gasoline market continues easy, at from 10 5-8 to 11 cents for U. S. motor, but refiners are cheerful and look for better buying and higher prices.

The kerosene market continues strong with a number of large distributors in the area for fresh supplies. The 41-43 is held from 8 1-4 to 9 cents and 12-44 9 1-4 cents.

HUMBLE, FOARD CO.

The Humble Oil and Refining company and the Navarro Oil company are drilling at 3850 feet on their No. 1 Easley, located in the center of the southwest quarter of section 34, block L, S. P. R. R. survey in Foard county. This test encountered a gass sand at 3761 feet which made 4,000,000 cubic feet.

WOOD MEUSSE

G. C. Wood has spudded in his wildcat test on the Lizzie Cone Muesse land south of Margaret and northeast of Crowell in Foard county, located in the southwest quarter of section 352, the center of the northeast quarter of abstract 1034, H. & T. C. survey, block A.

HAMMOND SAUNDERS

The No. 1 well of L. P. (Pink) Hammond on the Saunders estate fee in the Sunshine Hill district of Wichita county and offsetting to the south the Clark-Waggoner discovery well in the deep sand in that area was being swabbed Tuesday afternoon and it was showing up for a nice well and the operators were taking more sand to increase the output. The sand, topped at 1850 feet and drilled to 1860 feet, was found higher than was the pay on the Clark well.

Gas Is Better

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(AP) The average motor gasoline marketed in the United States this summer has excelled in quality that sampled in any of the previous surveys conducted by chemists of the bureau of mines, the commerce department reported today.

The motor fuel was found apparently more violatile.

Spud Heavers Silence Dallas War Clubs and Cop 2nd Straight, 6-4

Jenkins, Lamb, Fitzgerald Pummel Tink Riviere at Crucial Stages For Easy Advantage

Getting to Tink Riviere in the opening couplet for three runs, pecking over another in the second and two more in the fourth, Wichita Falls amassed a lead on the home lot yesterday that was never overcome yesterday. The Spudders stopped the league-topping Dallas outfit in the second straight by a 6 to 4 score.

Lack of control in the second frame caused Manager Carl Williams to succeed Freddy Fussell, Spudder southpaw, on the hurling eminence. The Old Trojan turned back the slugging steers until the eighth when he, too wavered. A brace of runs were scored in the round. Joe Kiefer worked the ninth from the homelings without any thing of the extra-ordinary occurring.

Solid socks by Jenkins, Lamb and Fitzgerald paved the road for the Wichita Falls Tabulations.

Red on Another Rampage.

Umps Red Held parked Pete Lapan in the second stanza when the latter apparently objected to a series of balls called on Fussell, he, Lapan, evidently thinking they should have been counted as strikes. A warm argument of some sort ended, none of which could be heard in the press coop.

Fussell blanked the opposition in the first inning. LaFayette was cut down on a dirty drive at first by Swede Lind at the start of the Spud half of the round, but Turgeon, Jenkins and Lamb singled in succession. Benton bounded out to second. Turgeon came home and Fitzgerald bumped a bingle at first base, scoring Jenkins. Lamb checked in on the same play when Lind endeavoring to turn the hit into a putout threw poorly to Riviere who covered the bag. DeFate arched out to Brainard in center.

Miller opened the second chapter with a bombastic shove high over the port barricade. There was a heavy wind blowing in from left field Had it been a calm day, the drive no doubt almost would have landed in the circus field a quarter of a mile back of the fence. Fussell struck out O'Brien and walked Tate. Billings forced Tate at second, but Freddy passed Riviere and Morse, shoving in a run on what Lapan intimated the noble arbiter he thought to be clean cut strikes. Williams clambored atop the hillock at this juncture and polished Gross off with a hoist to Fitz in center.

Tut Does it Again.

Tink got the walking habit in the Spud portion of the second, passing Query and Turgeon. The inevitable Jenkins sank a single to right, scoring Query.

With one out in the fourth Riviere walked Turgeon who was forced at second by Jenkins. Lamb whipped a misjudgment double to right, sending Jenkins to third. Fitzgerald singled over second, chasing Lambie across. DeFate rocketed to left.

Bingles by Riley, Woeber and Rhino Williams followed by a walk and infield out sent two of the Herd cantering across the dish in the eighth.

DeFate and Turgeon fielded fluently, as usual. Lamb copped a long one off somebody's bat, narrowly avoiding butting his brains out against the right field wall.

Manager Conley rang 16 players into the game in a futile effort to win.

The Steers poled the huge total of six hits off the combined deliveries of Fussell and Williams and none off Kiefer. One of the blows charged against Williams was a bad hop single at third that many less liberal scorers would have labeled an error for Benton.

Dates Moved Up For Fight Cards

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The dates for three outdoor boxing shows were shifted today. Rain caused postponement until tomorrow night of the Queensboro A. C. card, featuring a featherweight tilt between Petie Mack of Jersey City and Babe Herman of California.

The state athletic commission approved the request of Promoter Humbert Fugazey to move from September 10 to September 15 his light heavyweight show at Ebbets Field, where the former champion, Paul Berlenbach is to engage an opponent as yet unnamed.

Rival Promoters Withdraw Kicks

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The path of Tex Rickard in promoting the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship fight in the sesqui-centennial stadium September 23 was made smoother today when local promoters withdrew opposition to the contest.

Herman Taylor and Robert Gunnis, who claimed to hold a contract for all boxing bouts in the stadium announced through their attorneys that matter had been adjusted and that they would lend every assistance to Rickard in making the championship battle a success.

POLS TAKE FIRST

PALESTINE, Texas, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The Pals took the first game of the play-off series from the Senators in a thrilling ten inning battle. Gene Walker twirled for the Pals and pitched a brilliant game. Humphries also pitched well but his wildness in late innings mixed with two timely singles by Bill Bean decided the game against him.

Santone Athlete Is Named Coach

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 24.—(AP)—William Sartain, San Antonio athlete, has been appointed coach of the athletic teams of St. Mary's academy. The announcement was made by Rev. Walter Galotka, principal of the academy, upon Sartain's signing a year's contract.

The new coach will take charge at once and will call out his football candidates about the first of September. Sartain, who is 25 was an athlete at Main Avenue high school, where he was graduated in 1919 and later played football in Dallas, at Texas A. and M. college, University of Virginia and Southestern university.

CRUSADER WINS

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—(AP)—Crusader, an 11 to 20 favorite with Jockey Earl Sande up, annexed the 24th running of the $5,000 Huron handicap for three-year-olds, the banner attraction of the Spa track today. Close on the heels of the Glen Riddle farm entry was Espinosa.

Those who like charades, key puzzles, how-old-is-Ann problems and such cares might spend a pleasant half hour trying to figure out why more players called through by the American league drift to the National than go the opposite direction—from the old league to the new.

About the only real star now in the American league who landed there after serving a lifetime in the National is Dutch Reuther, southpaw hurler now with the Washington club.

But look over the National league. Carl Mays and Wallie Pipp, stars of the Cinci team this year, are castoffs from the Yankees. Stuffy McInnis and Joe Bush wandered around the American league for years after Connie Mack decided they didn't fit in his scheme of things and then landed in the National after the young circuit moguls waived all claim to them.

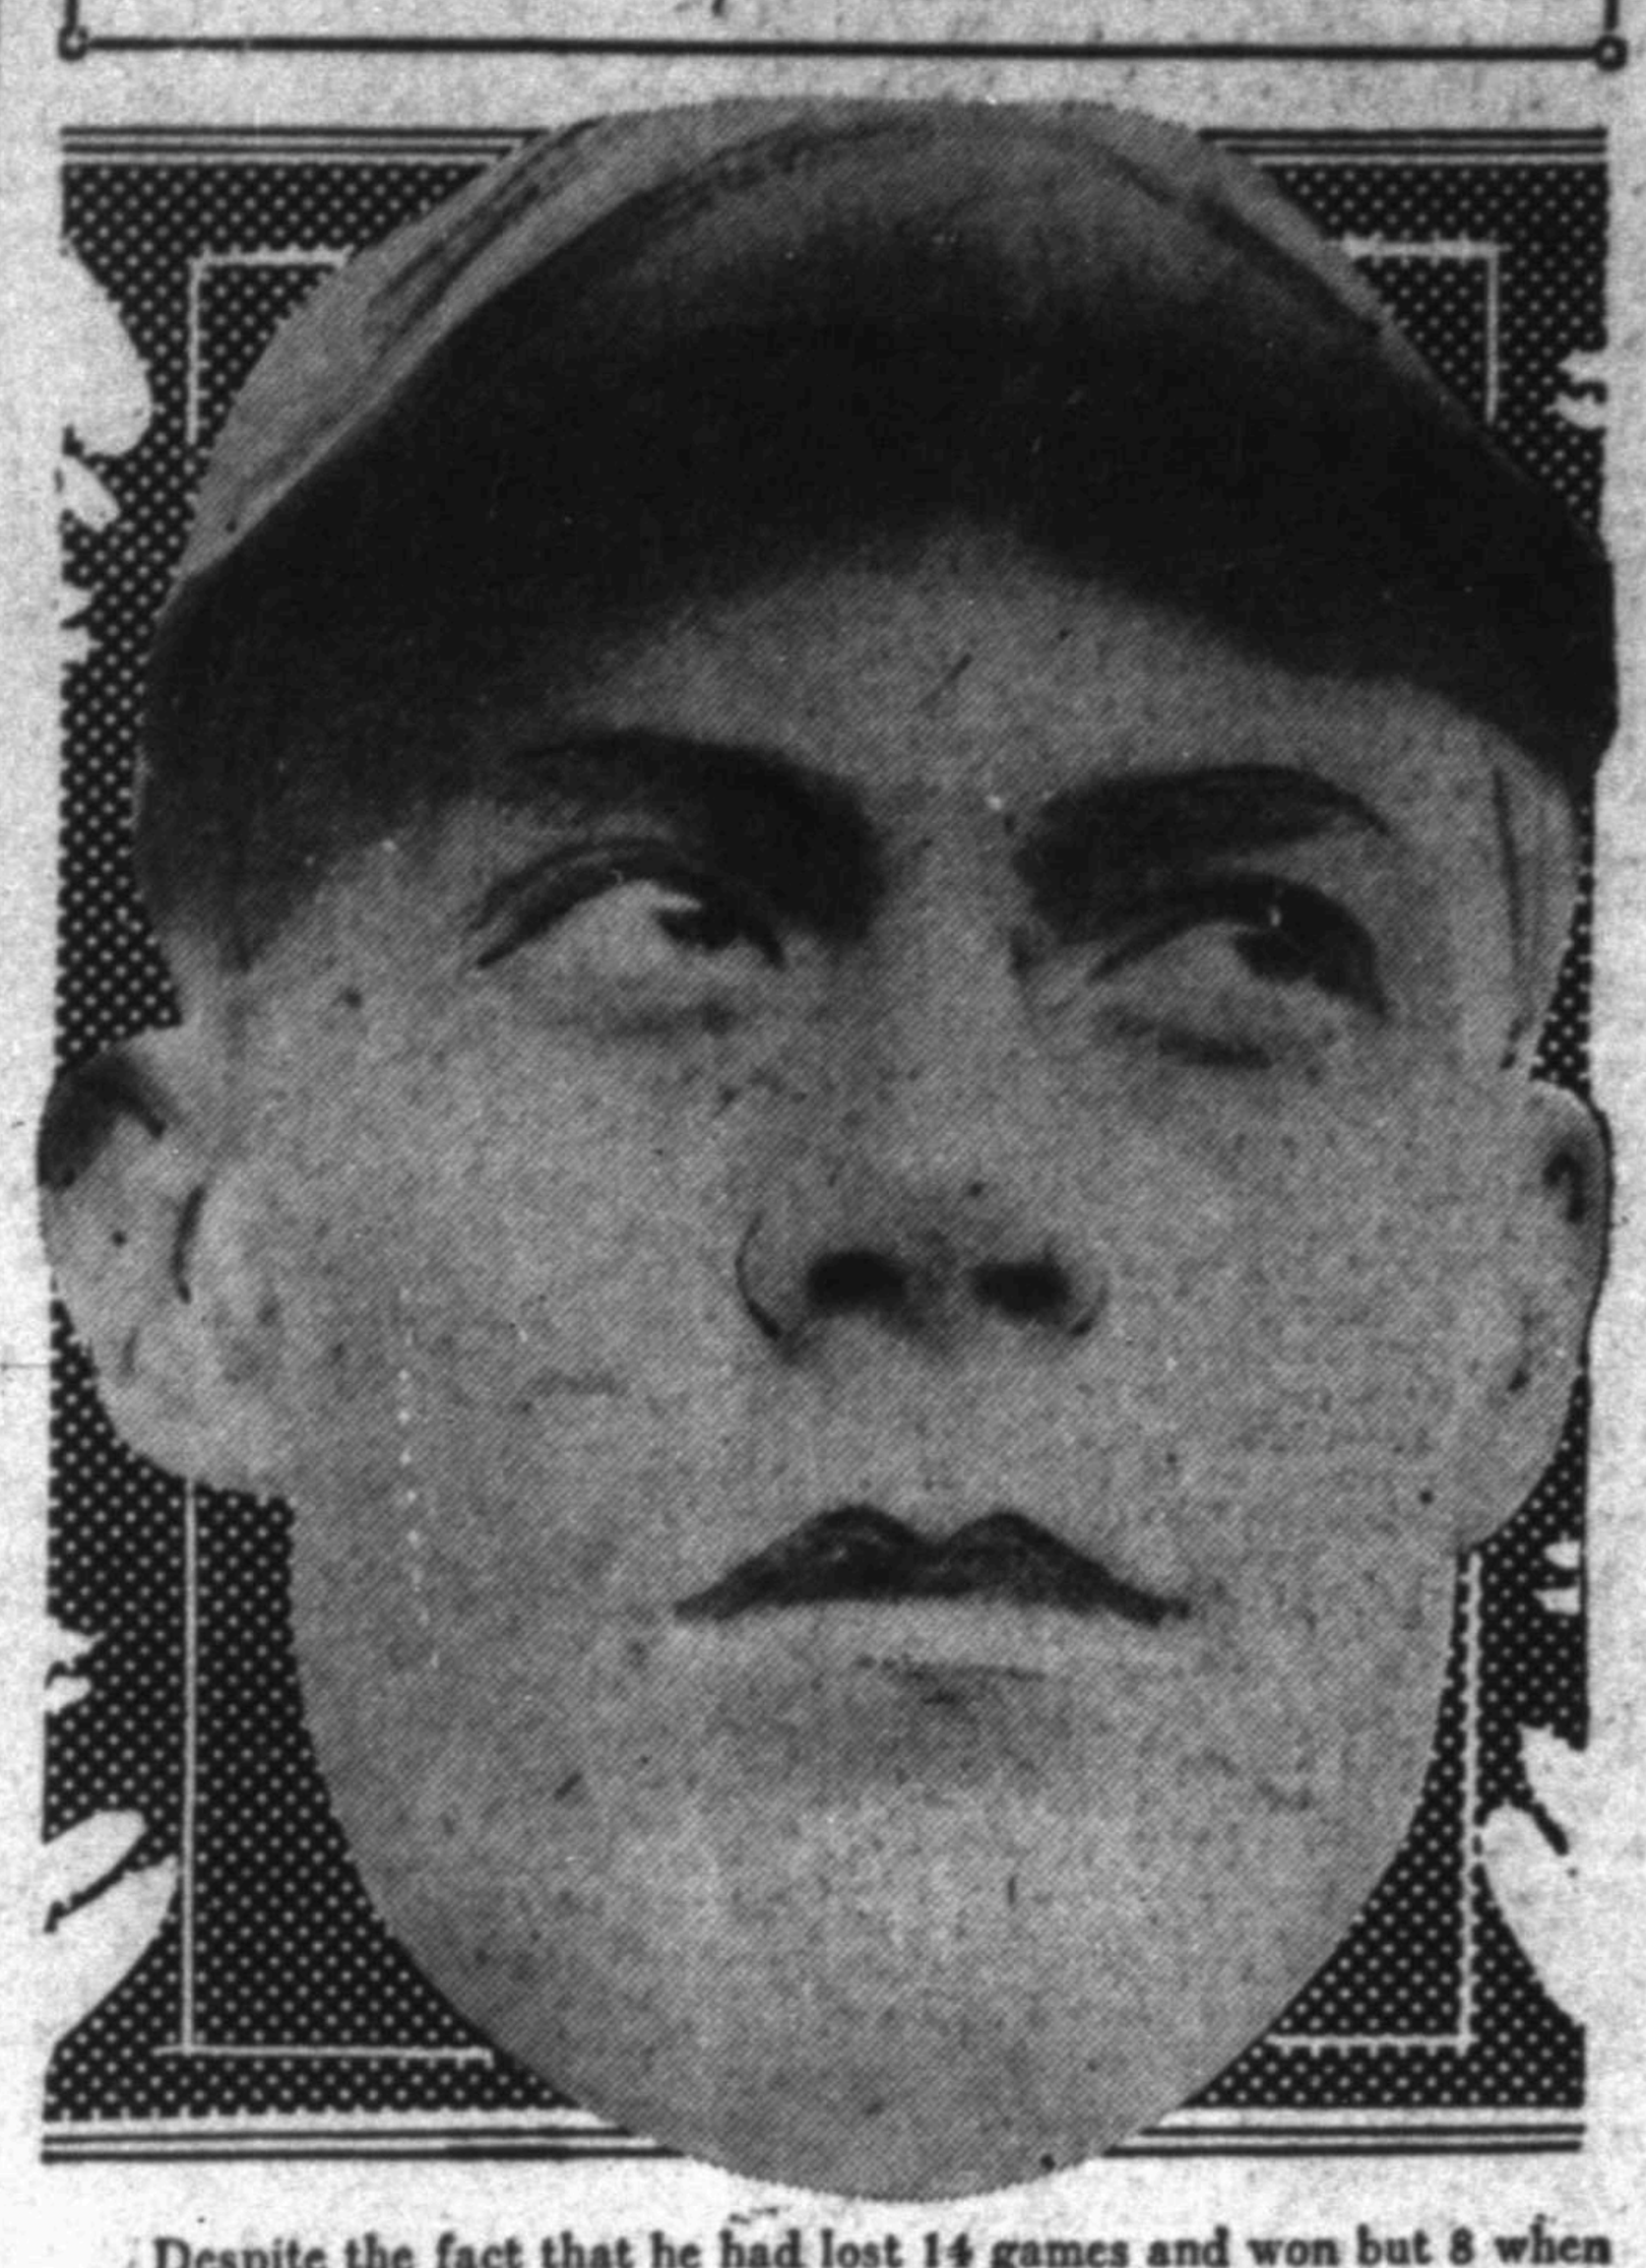

Whitey Witt, another Athletic castoff who starred at times with the Yanks, is now with the Brooklyn Dodgers and playing regularly. So is Chick Fewster, former Yank and Indian infielder. Chick never landed a regular berth in the A. L. but started off on both feet for Manager Robinson this year.

And Everett Scott, turned loose by the White Sox when his legs gave out and Bill Hunnefield's began to flash so brilliantly, was taken on by the Giants.

This condition may mean several things—or nothing.

It may mean that the wise old bosses in the National league hold the opinion that they can get a bit more out of the oldtimers. It may mean a constant dearth of material in the old circuit. It may mean that the American league does business on a colder basis of play 'em, and forget 'em and wastes little time with the old boys when it becomes evident they have started on the long road.

Losing Pitcher But Winner

Despite the fact that he had lost 14 games and won but 8 when the deal was closed the Pittsburg Pirates have just paid a fancy price for Roy Mahaffey, fast ball hurler of the Columbia, S. C., team of the South Atlantic Association. The team's a tail-ender, Mahaffey is 21 and pitching his second season in organized ball.

Trudy's Channel Feat One to Live Through Ages As a Water Epic

Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English channel, performed a feat of daring and endurance not excelled in all the records of sport. Incidentally Miss Ederle, an American girl of 19, bested by two hours the fastest time made by any of the five men who have accomplished the swim. Her time, 14 1-2 hours, was remarkable when the difficulties are considered. It is 21 miles across the channel but the swift changing tides make it necessary to swim about double this distance. The water of the channel is always cold and in streaks it is so cold as to paralyze the ordinary swimmer. The water at the start of Miss Ederle's swim registered 61 degrees Fahrenheit. The channel is notoriously rough. Because of the terrific tides any wind blowing against the currents raises a short chop that makes navigation dangerous even for sea going boats. Miss Ederle finished her record-breaking swim in a choppy sea. She was chilled and the swimming conditions were so bad that her trainer tried repeatedly to cross the channel last year she determined to make it this time or swim until she actually collapsed. It takes a grim courage to do a thing like that, even with an accompanying tug, with friends offering encouragement, with stimulants to offset the intense cold. In these channel attempts the swimmer is always greased to keep out the cold. Miss Ederle was covered with a thick coating of lanoline and grease before she entered the water, and even her light swimming suit was dipped in grease. But it was no winter overcoat at that.

Record Likely to Stand for Long Time.

Scores of men and a few women have made heroic attempts to swim the English channel. Miss Barrett of New Rochelle came near success only a few days before Miss Ederle's swim, when she reached a point within two miles of the English coast after being swept along by adverse tides and heavy seas, in a fog, covering some forty miles of actual distance in twenty-one hours and forty-five minutes. Miss Barrett eclipsed the performance of all European and Australian women swimmers who tried the channel. Annette Killerman failed three times, and some failed half a dozen. The cold and the swift tides and rough seas were too great a handicap. The most famous men swimmers for many years past have tried to cross the channel, nearly always without success. It is claimed that women are better adapted than men to endure long exposure to cold. Miss Ederle seems to have proved it. Her record is likely to tsand for many years—perhaps until channel swimming is no longer a popular test of courage and endurance.

Gertrude Ederle, who became a professional last winter after breaking amateur records and winning amateur swimming championships until there was no novelty in it, is no novice at long distance swimming. She holds the record for swimming from the Battery, Nek York, to Sandy Hook, a distance of twenty-one miles, with the tide, covered in seven hours, eleven and a half minutes. It was this swim that made her ambitious to cross the channel that no woman swimmer had ever crossed before.

Swimming long distances in rough water has been considered a test of strength and courage for many centuries. Perhaps in ancient days some strong swimmer crossed the English channel alone and unaided, and no doubt many have died in the attempt. Homesick French or English prisoners must have tried it, with the chalk cliffs of Dover or Calais visible far across the dividing sea. There has been a tradition that one French prisoner did swim across and live to tell of it, but that is merely tradition, not history.

Tradition tells of the great Caesar swimming the Rubicon, in armor. Something of a feat even if the Rubicon was only a large canal compared with the English channel. Leander swam the Hellespont, and centuries later Lord Byron, who was as good a swimmer as he was a poet, dpulicated that stunt. Twenty-five years ago Sidney Cavil of Australia created a sensation in the west by swimming the Golden Gate—a treacherous two miles of roaring tide water, icy cold, that slices in and out between the rocky hills that bound the entrance to San Francisco bay. But that was noting to be compared with the channel swim. In these days San Francisco Swimming clubs hold before-breakfast swims across the Gate, and paddle across in parties. But I remember that when I and two others rowed across in a boat, following Cavil, his swim seemed a mighty feat. It was rather ticklish business even in a boat with the tide turning and sweeping out toward the breaking bar.

Courage of Golfer Misapplied Term.

There is something in human nature that measures an exploit by the stress and danger of it. They often talk about the "courage" of some noted golfer. A misapplied term. Playing expert golf under tournament conditions requires steady nerves, well controlled impulses, but not courage. There is no danger in golf. No chance of fatal consequences in losing a championship by a stroke or two. Tennis and kindred games don't require courage. But courage is essential in any of the rough sports where the contest is carried out to the last ounce of physical endurance. Football, for instance, where a player is supposed to give his best to the game until he is actually disabled and carried off the field. Fighting in the ring takes courage—unlimited courage in some long fights where a nearly beaten boxer fights desperately where there is apparently no possible chance for him to win. No one will deny that Tom Sharkey showed courage when he rushed fouriously at the giant Jeffries round after round until the fight stopped at the end of the twenty-fifth, when it was known that three of Sharkey's ribs were broken. I saw Tommy West fight a somewhat heroic battle with Joe Wolcott in the National Sporting club of London, after Wolcott had broken two of Tommy's ribs over the heart, in the first round.

No Yale or Princeton man will ever forget the courage of Ted Coy in that Yale-Princeton football game many years ago, when Yale seemed hopelessly beaten, and Coy "ran wild" near the end of the second half, tore the Tiger team to tatters with his furious plunges, and scored two winning touchdowns. Coy never weakened while the play was on. He was taken off the field delirious and still fighting, and they had to sit on him and hold him down in the dressing room until he was able to realize that the game was over and Yale had not been beaten.

There is the kind of courage that makes the professional "daredevil" and "stunt artist." The "Human Fly" used to startle New York by crawling up the corners of tall buildings, or climbing from window ledge to window ledge hundreds of feet above ground. He fell, eventually. There have been innumerable feats of courage in aviation, and the first flight of the Wrights in their primitive plane was about as great an exhibition of courage of Miss Ederle's channel swim, although lacking its element of physical endurance and grim grit.

Marathon running is a tremendous test of stamina and courage. The original Marathon runner ran from the battlefield of Marathon, 26 miles and more into Athens, and fell dead after delivering his message of victory. In 1896, at the first renewal of the Greek Olympic games, in Athens, a Greek peasant beat the fastest distance runers of the world to win his country's classic event. Loues, that was—a name to remember. A hot, dusty, stony road, men falling all along the way ahead of him, beside him, and at last behind him, and Loues never faltered.

In the past these feats of strength and courage have been considered a monopoly of the male. But no longer. Gertrude Ederle has smashed tradition as well as the channel record.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Behind the steady pitching of Ray Kremer, Pittsburgh subdued Brooklyn 10 to 1 today. The Pirates collected 13 safeties off four opposing twirlers, while Kremer yielded but five hits. Burleigh Grimes was touched for five runs in the third inning and retired under fire of another five-run rally in the succeeding frame.

Mantell Will Be Forced To Spring New Tricks If He Beats Yaqui Joe

Indian Gave Dutch His Toughest Match In Amarillo, But Lost When Blinded By Eye Gouges

Just what the uncouth Dutch Mantell has in store for the popular Yaqui Joe in their finish embroglio at the Eleventh and Ohio arena Thursday night is highly problematical.

First, Dutch isn't liable to get away with very much of his "submarine sock" stuff, his kicking to the midriff with the Indian. At least, Yaqui check-mated the wild one at this style of milling when they tangled up in Amarillo several months ago.

Ringsiders agree that Mantell was given away and by far his toughest match by Joe ever staged in the Panhandle city. They fought and tore at each other savagely for two hours and five minutes. Dutch won after he had practically blinded the Redskin by slugging and gouging him in the eyes, something Matchmaker Alec Ross declares Mantell will not be allowed to do in Wichita Falls. "The Dutchman has promised me he will not resort to such tactics as gouging in this match. Furthermore, I expect to have a referee who will see to it that he keeps his promise," said Ross.

So, if Mantell really can't accomplish much trying to kick Yaqui and won't be allowed to blind the Indian, he's going to be forced to dig down into his bag of tricks for something other than he has displayed in Wichita Falls to date if he expects to beat his swarthy opponent.

Both Mantell and the Indian will arrive in Wichita Falls today, said Ross. Mantell returns from Amarillo. The Indian has been in San Angelo training with Matty Matsuda who in recent weeks has improved his protege fully 100 per cent over his form shown in the other match with Mantell.

REDS WIN, 4-3

CINCINNATI, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Cincinnati made it two straight from New York by winning today's game 4 to 3, principally through timely hitting. Luque allowed nine hits while Scott gave up only six. McGraw shifted his lineup by sending Ott to left field, Kelly to second and Terry to first base. Score:

CORBETT TO BOX TRAMEL

Kansas City Miller Sure He Can Tag It On Favorite

Pat Corbett, Kansas City welterweight, meets the ever-popular Duke Tramel, Fort Worth's heavy-hitting midget, Monday night in the ten-round feature of the American Legion weekly fight show, it was announced yesterday.

Tramel, who is more or less a favorite with Wichita Falls fans, returns to the local ring after nearly two months' absence. He has been training hard and fighting regularly in other cities, it was said.

Corbett has fought Tramel before. A year or so ago he won a decision over the Fort Worth walloper in an Oklahoma City bout. A few weeks later he met Duke in Dallas and an unpopular shade decision was given the Cowtown youth.

Since those two battles, Corbett has improved greatly. Ever a clever fighter defensively and a flash with a left-handed offense, Corbett has developed more steam in his punches and has learned to use his right better.

Corbett declared confidence Friday that he will put it all over the favorite. Having fought Tramel twice he realizes just about what he has to go up against and feels sure he will take Duke to a decisive lacing.

Dempsey Moore and Herschel Dean, light-heavyweights who waged a terrific mill here Monday night to a referee's draw verdict have been rematched for next Monday, said Matchmaker Don M. Wofford.

Philly Answers Sunday Ball Plea

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Sunday professional baseball was called a 'breach of the peace' and a "disturbance" by the city today in its answer to the Philadelphia American league baseball club's petition for a permanent injunction to prevent police interference with games on the Sabbath.

The city's answer, signed by Mayor Kendrick, was filed in common pleas court where Judge Frank Smith last Saturday granted a temporary injunction allowing the first Sunday game to be played here the following day between the Athletics and the Chicago White Sox.

The mayor in the answer insists upon his right to send police to prevent Sunday games, but says it was not his intention to order the arrest of players unless they offer resistance to the police.

The answer denies that the ball club will suffer damage and irreparable injury by being "prevented from doing the unlawful act proposed."

CONGRATULATIONS

In the latter years of his life Mark Twain turned hostile to interviewers. He complained that whenever he went anywhere the local newspaper would send its brightest young man to call upon him and ask questions of him, and that when the youth would return to the office and either misquote what Twain had said or slip his own efforts at humor into the story and credit them to Twain.

So eventually he declined to see any journalists excepting by appointment and with the understanding that what was written must be submitted to him before it went into type, in order that he might correct what was wrong. But when he went on a visit to his boyhood home in Missouri and a reporter came around the great man broke the rule.

A callow-looking youngster was ushered into his presence. Twain, lying in bed, glanced from under his bushy eyebrows at the caller and said:

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

Somewhat nervous the youngster consulted his notes.

"Mr. Clemens," he began, "what was the most interesting event you ever witnessed in your life?"

"The funeral of Aaron Burr," answered the humorist instantly.

The reporter knit his brows.

"E—excuse me, sir," he stammered, "but didn't he die a good many years before you was born?"

"Young man," exclaimed Twain, "come over and let me clasp your hand! You're the first newspaperman I've seen in years that discovered a mistake before he printed it."

COTTON DROPS 300,000 BALES IN 3 WELLS

Whitaker Finds Damage From Boll Worm and Weather Heavy

COVERS ENTIRE STATE

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Aug. 23.—The cotton crop of west Texas has deteriorated 300,000 bales in the past three weeks, according to a statement issued by B. M. Whiteker, agricultural manager of the west Texas chamber of commerce, who has just returned from a trip of 3,000 miles which carried him through the entire cotton section of west Texas north of the T. & P. Railway and southwest through the irrigated section to the Big Bend country. Whitcker made a careful study of the cotton situation throughout his trip. He went into and examined the fields at regular intervals and studied the forms of insects that are infesting the crop throughout the area.

Unfavorable Weather

Unfavorable weather conditions and insect damage were ascribed by him as cause for deterioration. From Hamlin westward to the New Mexico line he found dry weather causing great damage. The old cotton is suffering worse than the later planted crops, he found, and cotton is heading badly wher recent rainfalls brought relief to spots. Young cotton is standing up fairly well because the drier weather prevailing caused the plants to send down long tap roots. The old cotton, due to so much wet weather in the early season, has grown a large stalk but has meager root development, causing it to suffer more from dry weather, he said. In many sections rainfall will bring little benefit because the lateness of the season precludes the cotton putting on a new crop after shedding.

In the eastern section of the territory, Whiteker found insect damage greater because of weather conditions. The boll weevil has done comparatively small damage. The boll worm has appeared in some sections and constitutes a threat while the cotton leaf worm is creating havoc with the crop in many sections. Some sections of Central West Texas still have flattering prospects and the plants have matured heavy crops of bolls already. Only unusually heavy boll worm infestatinos can cause heavy damage in these sections, but such sections are spotted. On some of the South Plains sections he found flattering prospects in spots, but very poor prospects in others.

Will Make Fair Crop

Whiteker stated that west Texas will make a fair crop this year but nohting like the bumper crop that was promised a month ago.

The west Texas chamber of commerce is becoming alarmed over the cotton leaf worm situation. A service letter has been sent by the organization to all chambers of commerce in its territory urging the local chambers to wage an active fight on the pest before its spread becomes too great. Shortage of calcium arsenate has been reported in many places. However the organization has found a surplus of the poison in other places. However the organization has found a surplus of the poison in other places. The facilities of the west Texas chamber of commerce have been extended to the cotton section making the west Texas chamber a clearing house through which communities reporting a lack of cotton poison are put in touch with the centers reporting a surplus and during the past week a great amount of the surplus poison has been transferred from places where it has not been needed to a point where a need was reported.

manager of the Wichita Falls chamber. "I am convinced that Mr. Obenchain has arranged the detours in the most practical way possible under the conditions, and I feel that the people of Wichita and Clay counties are fortunate in having him in charge of this project. This road is being finished in a remarkably short time under his direction.

"The old detour which has been very bad during the recent wet weather has now been abandoned and the new routing is as good as could be arranged in that section. The state highway department is maintaining the detour road and has scrapers at work now putting them in good condition. The traffic is so heavy that it is impossible to keep the dirt roads in smooth condition. The Nocona oil field traffic adds greatly to the difficulty of keeping these detours in good shape."

With reference to the progress of the work Mr. Obenchain said: "From Henrietta south to the Montague county line the detour being used at the present time will be abandoned about September 15, at which time about seven miles of new concrete road will be available for use. No further difficulties will be encountered from this time on in detours other than the inconvenience of using the old dirt road on the east side of the Fort Worth and Denver."

Two Mixers At Work.

"Two concrete mixers are at work on the project, one at Dick Worsham's, seven miles south of Henrietta, the other mixer is at work today opposite George Keith's home and will complete pouring concrete up to Fenen's Filling station by Thursday night at which time it will be moved to the Wichita county line to begin work closing the gap of 1 1-2 miles between the Wichita county paving and the new Clay county paving.

"The present plans call for the completion of the highway between Wichita Falls and Henrietta by December 1 of this year. From Henrietta to the Montague county line will be completed, with the exception of about five miles. On this five miles provision will be made to take care of all traffic on either the main highway or a good detour."

Motorists who had an opportunity yesterday to use and view the new Clay county pavement were delighted with its smooth riding qualities. It has a much smoother finish than other paved roads in this section.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Bullish views of coming crops prospects were promoted by unfavorable weather reports in the cotton market totday, but after selling up to 17.97 for December contracts to 28 pointts new higher and 189 points above the recent low level prices reacted under realizing. December closed at 17.73, the general market closing barely steady, net unchanged to four ponits higher.

There was considerable realizing at the start, and after opening steady at an advance of three points to a decline of two points, active months sold about one to nine points net lower in the first few minutes. Bullish sentiment created by yesterday's crop figures was apparent by increased buying on the settback, however, and the market soon firmed up again, although it met considerable realizing on the advances.

Trade buying together with a broadening commission house demand became rather more active on the showing of the detailed weather reports indicating further rains at many points in Texas and Oklahoma, while these also was considerable anxiety over the tropical storm situation. This was reported in the gulf with a probability that it would reach the gulf coast between Burrwood, La., and Galveston tate tonight or early tomorrow and no doubht contributed to the advance which carried October contracts up to 17.94 and January to 18.03, net advances of 25 to 29 points on active positions and new high ground for the movement.

Realizing became heavier around the 18-cent level and final quotations showed reactions of 24 to 26 points from the best.

The opinion in some quarters here that owing to the high barometer in the west the course of the gulf storm might change and that it would pass through Lousiana rather than extend into the interior of Texas.

Wall Street was a seller late in the afternoon and the inclination to take profits on long contracts in cotton probably was increased by the late weakness of the stock market.

Private cables reported covering and trade buying in Liverpool.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The market developed a fair degree of activity today and although the tendency was towards reaction on the ground that the recent advance had been too rapid and that the technical position needed readjustment through some reaction, price were advanced to new high levels by fears that the tropical disturbance now in the gulf would strike the Louisiana or Texas coasts and lead to heavy rains. After opening 10 to 13 points higher prices eased off 18 to 21 points on the reaction theory, but soon rallied sharply to levels 21 to 27 points above the previous close on storm fears and on an estimate by a prominent spot firm of a crop of 13,400,000 bales. After mid-session fears of the storm lost force and most of the earlier rally was lost. The close showed net gains of four to nine points on active months except October which showed a net decline of one point.

Although Liverpool was lower than due at the opening here the local market opened here the local market opened eight to 10 points up and soon advanced to 17.85 for October and 17.81 for December, or 11 to 13 points above the previous close. Prices soon turned reactionary and October declined to 17.64, December to 17.63 or 18 tto 21 points down from the early highs.

This late rally on the storm news carried October up to 17.95 and December also to 17.95 or 31 to 32 points up from the lows and 21 to 27 points above the previous close, but most of this gain was lost in the afternoon.

Exports for the day totaled 5,932 bales.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Acute weakness developed in today's stock market when bear traders renewed their selling attacks against the Standard industrials. The decline followed an earlier period of strength during which operators for the rise tried ineffectually to revive bullish enthusiasm by bidding up a selected list of rails and specialties. Net losses ranged from one to 11 points.

Uneasiness over the money and loan situation resulting from the federal reserve bank's report showing another increase of $22,000,000 in brokers' loans for the week ended August 18, and the temporary withdrawal of several large operators from the market are believed to have been the primary factors in the selling movement. Despite the sharp decline in many popular issues last week the public has been slow in re-entering the market leading to a widespread speculative belief that a further downward revision of quoted values was necessary before a broad buying movement could be set in motion.

Rails were in brisk demand in the early trading on the publication of a series of ments, but they yielded with the intuments, but they yielded with the industrials in the late wave of selling although the losses were not as large.

Wide and erratic fluctuations again took place in General Motors common stock. It opened 1⅝ points higher at 212, advanced to 214¾, broke to 206 and rallied to 207 where it was off 3⅛ on the day. U. S. Steel common was under pressure most of the day, closing 3⅝ points lower at 149¼, after fluctuating between 148⅝ and 153. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe broke 13 points to 211 and then rallied to 213, selling of this issue being influenced in part by reports that German pipe manufacturers were making large shipments of their product to this country. DuPont dropped eight points to 300.

Heavy realizing sales checked the advance in the General Asphalt issues, the common showing a net loss of 5¼ points at 85, while the preferred broke 9½ points to 127½. Private reports tof another sharp increase in crude oil production last week had a depressing influence on the other oils. Copper, equipment, merchandising and food shares all showed points of weakness. New 1926 peak prices were established in the early trading by Butterick Publishing, Collins and Aikman preferred, Howe Sound, Shell Union Oil and Warner Brothers Pictures A.

The early demand for the rails centered in the southern and northwestern carriers, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred and Rock Island all breaking through to new high prices for the year. "Big Four" jumped 25 points to a new record high at 275 on one sale.

Call money was again quoted at 4½ per cent all day, which rate has prevailed since August 10. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

The reported removal of the "peg" on German marks which immediately rose 2½ points to 23.82½ cents featured the mixed foreign exchange market. Heavy buying orders for the Germany currency made their appearance from Berlin and Amsterdam. The other active European exchanges drifted lower, demand sterling ruling around $4.85¼ and French francs being quoted just below 3.85 cents. Great exchange was firm despite reports of revolutionary distutrbances in that country.

opening of the funeral parlor doors to the public more than 12,000 persons were gathered on the damp streets outside.

Shortly before the doors were to open a large plate glass window of the funeral parlor was crashed by the onsurging ranks. Three women were cut when they were shoved through the gap of jagged glass and another woman was injured under the hoofs of a policeman's horse and several fainted in the scrambling mass of humanity. Three policemen were cut in trying to prevent serious injuries to the people who were forced toward the broken plate glass.

Many other persons were injured in the rush that marked the opening of the doors. Some of them were taken to hospitals, but most of them suffered only minor injuries and were given emergency treatment.

Before the doors of the funeral parlors were opened all pieces of statuary, paintings and bric-a-brac were removed from the lower floors of the establishment. Valentino alive never drew such a crowd as Valentino dead. Some of the women wept as they waited hours in the streets.

While the crowd stood outside the actor's body was placed in a simple sliver bronzed casket in the ornate gold room of the funeral parlors. The coffin was surrounded by yellow gladiolas and surmounted by a single red rose. The body was dressed in formal evening attire.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—(AP)— Better weather northwest with indications that Europe is awaiting the Canadian crop movement did much to give a downward trend to wheat values today. The wheat market here closed heavy, ¾ to 1¼c net lower, corn ½ to 1⅝c off, oats ¼ to ⅝c down, and provisions varying from 17c decline to 5c advance.

Corn and oats sagged with wheat. Weather conditions for corn as well as for wheat were more favorable

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in the value of hog, but later met with profit taking.

TEXAS COTTON 39 PCT. SHORT

Government Estimate Is Dubious Concerning Outlook

HOUSTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The condition of the Texas cotton crop as of August 16 is estimated at 61 per cent of normal compared with 73 per cent August 1, 1926, and 46 per cent August 16, 1925, H. S. Schutz, government statisticiam said in a report here Tuesday. It added that "should activities of the leaf worm, boll worm and weevil increase or weather conditions prove more than usual unfavorable the production will be decreased in all probability, but on the other hand favorable conditions may readily produce an increase over early indications on the tremendous acreage planted this year.

"Owing to the very unusual conditions affecting the Texas crop this season," the report continued, "it is extremely difficult to state with any degree of certainty just what the final out turn will be. There are fields and localities where the yield promises as much as a bale per acre, but there are also a great many which are in altogether too many instances it has little or no fruit on it. Leaf worm and boll worm injuries is unusually severe, while weevil and root-rot in some sections have taken a heavy toll. There are at least 111 counties where leaf worm damage is being done, 133 with weevil and 88 with boll worm. The cotton hopper is no longer active except in a few sections.

"Local showers at frequent intervals and scarcity of poison have made it both unsatisfactory as well as very expensive to combat the insect pests. Bolls which in ordinary years might be considered as safe are even at this late date still subject to destruction. Improvement in crop is noted in various secttions, but generally the first ten days of August witnessed rapid deterioration.

HONEST WORK

ciency in the administration of duties, and honesty in the econduct of the affairs of office were mentioned by Mr. Bralley as planks in the platform on which he based his candidacy.

"There is one man I think is lower than a bootlegger, he stated, "lower than the gambler, the burglar, the high-jacker. It is a man wearing the star of an officer, the badge of authority, who offers the protection of his office to crime in return for a hand-out, the bribe-taker, and his ilk. I make my promise here that there will be no such employed under me if I am elected."

"A prisoner that the courts have turned over to me as a convict to await commitment to the penitentiary will stay in jail until the penitentiary officials come after him," he declared. "I have all the sympathy in the world for the man or woman that violates the law, for the high-jacker, the burglar, the murderer. But my sympathy won't lead me to turning him loose on the public that elected me to prey upon it at their pleasure.

A considerable portion of Mr. Bralley's address was devoted to a discussion of his recent encounter with Fred K. Smith, his opponent in the race and incumbent in the sheriff's office, following which he was charged with aggravated assault.

"I started this campaign with clean hands and kept them clean until the end," he stated. "On July 24 I polled within 500 or so of a majority of all the votes cast in the county, this despite the fact that I had three candidates opposing me. Fred Smith, second man, received 1,328 fewer votes than I. That was the first thing that bothered Smith: the word went out then that I had to be beat. I didn't see how they were going to do it at first but within a day or so after the election I found out."

Bralley then read an affidavit made to him by a Wichita Falls man purporting to relate a conversation he had with Smith shortly after the first primary in which it was told him that he, Smith, had the "dope on Bralley." The affidavit as read certified to remarks Smith was alleged to have made about Bralley and further set forth that Smith intended to take steps to bring about Bralley's arrest.

"I quit campaigning for a few minutes then," Bralley declared. "I figured that my name, the name of my family and of my children was worth more than the emoluments of the sheriff's office, and I called Fred Smith to account for what I had been told he said about me. As a result of our encounter they filed a charge of aggravated assault against me. I asked for an immediate trial, and they told me they would give it. Then they dismissed the aggravated assault charge and filed another charge to the effect that in addition to assaulting Fred Smith I had disturbed the peace. Well, friends, I was guilty of disturbing his peace, and I told the court so. I was not guilty of assault and that charge was dismissed."

"If a man is true to himself he cannot be false to others" he concluded. "I promise you a faithful and efficient administration of the sheriff's office if I am elected. And over and above all I promise you honesty in its conduct."

Joe B. Hatchett, Wichita Falls attorney, was the first speaker on the night's program. He charged that Smith had violated a promise made to him two years ago, that if elected he would not hire certain men that had been employed as deputies in the previous administration.

"That itself" he stated "would decide my vote."

He also stated that at the beginning of the run-off campaign Ferguson had revived the ghost of the ku klux klan as a political issue, and charged that political opponents of Bralley had done the same. "Most of you know my ku klux record," he declared. "If I didn't know that W. G. Bralley had not a breath of patience in his body for that organization I wouldn't be here tonight."

Roy J. Daniel spoke next, mentioning a statement that had been made to him recently while in Montague county, Mr. Bralley's old home. "They told me there that if they in Montague county could vote, Mr. Bralley would sure be elected," he stated. "What a man's old home folks think of him often is a good standard by which to judge him," Daniel said.

H. F. Weldon was the next speaker. He told of knowing Mr. Bralley for the last 23 years, and stated that he had made a faithful and efficient peace officer in Montague county, both as deputy sheriff and sheriff for over ten years. "He served every process that was ever handed him if the man was in the county," he stated. "I've seen him bring in the worst of them without ever pulling a gun."

Weldon declared that although he had known Bralley for 23 years he had never heard of him getting mad or pulling a gun on anybody until three weeks ago. "He is a gentleman," he stated, "a man of character and high purpose."

Mrs. Luther Hoffman made a short address for Mr. Bralley in behalf of the women voters of the city. The real danger to his candidacy, she stated, was the probable laxity of interest in the second primary which might lead some to neglect to vote. She urged that everyone make it a point to vote on August 28.

Bathing Beach Is Planned By Ft. Worth Council

FORT WORTH, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A bathing beach at Lake Worth, designed to be entirely separate from the lake where Fort Worth gets its water supply is under consideration by the city, it became known yesterday.

South Side residents are reported to have registered opposition to the plans for a bathing beach under supervision of the amusement company which is seeking a contract with the city for an amusement part at the resort, and the city probably will demand that the company put in a sanitary sand bar filter, which will make the beach for bathing nothing more or less than a pool, with a purification system similar to that of the city's filtration plant.

BIG GASSER COMES IN.

EDNA, Texas, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Another big gasser was added to the Jackson county field Tuesday, when the Lee Well came in. Well posted gas men who were present when the well came in, estimated the flow between 75,000,000 and 80,000,000 cubic feet per day. It promises to be the largest well in this section. The well belongs to Wright brothers and is on the land of Dr. Lee.

TALK ABOUT

and Speaker Lee Satterwhite are billed to direct the two end-rings.

The question is who will take the tickets at the main entrance.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson has billed the show to start promptly September 13—Rain or Shine, and in her call she intimates that she wants the artists to give the people of Texas a complete show in September.

However, many of the artists are going to perform kinder half-hearted in September—but promise to really strut their stuff at a return engagement beginning the second Tuesday in January, the regular 40th appearance.

It twill not be a silent drum, but will be a road show: every actor will have a speaking part.

* * *

THERE will be no need for installing loud speakers. Every artist knows his part and will make himself heard in all parts of the house.

Some of the best known bareback riders will appear; for many years they have demonstrated their ability to change horses going in opposite directions at break-neck speed, without losing their equilibrium.

Just before the main show there will be a mammoth $100,000,000 pageant entitled, "Validating the Bonds." Sponsors from 500 road districts will be there and each sponsor will be named Bill.

In order to distinguish the Bills they will be given numbers like football players.

There is to be a battle between the Oil Interests and the Tobacco Trusts to see who will act as Santa Claus for the school children of Texas. In order to make it more difficult, the governor has promised to strew their paths with tacks, but many members are determined that it would not be fair to put any more tax in their paths as they had already been stuck enough.

SEVERAL of the artists who will appear in September will retire before the January engagement, and while it may not be their last public appearance—they may stage a come-back—anyway until the curtain drops on the Sine Die scene they will be in the center of the stage, taking their cue from Old Man Texas himself who is the actual owner of the show and pays all the bills.

Extra! Extra! It is rumored that James E. Ferguson will attempt to walk a wire stretched from one balcony of the senate to the other and on his shoulders will stand three members of the highway commission, five members of the Textbook commission and one member of the board of control—but the writer won't believe this until two-thirds of the senate confirm it.

This great show will be unlike other attractions. There will be plenty of headliners, but they will get no more pay than the most obscure members. Every member will get $5 a day and no more.

There will be no "Don't Feed the Performers," signs display. Eating is one of the best things they do.

It is perhaps the most democratic crowd in existence. If you don't believe it, ask any of them to go to lunch with you; and they will even let you name the place, the time, and some often are so anxious to be agreeable they will even let you pay for it.

LYNCH URGES A HEAVY VOTE

Davidson Voices Warning Against Feeling Of Apathy

DALLAS, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Lynch Davidson, candidate for governor in the July 24 primary, here today warned his followers and the voters in general that there was danger in an apethetic attitude toward the run-off primary.

He scored Governor Ferguson's statement on Monday that it would cost $10,000,000 to relocate, centralize and reorganize the penitentiary and urged the voters "to finish the job next Saturday.

"Political hoakum," is the way he described the Ferguson statement on the penitentiary, declaring the prison system could be relocated "out of the system's present assets and still put a million back into the state treasury."

No Candidate Again

"A repeatedly stated during the campaign," said Mr. Davidson. "I never expect again to be a candidate for office, put as far as my limited rights permit, I shall do my part and express my views without regard to political effects.

"When the Fergusons vetoed the penitentiary re-location bill, the most constructive work of the 39th legislature was destroyed. Relocation, centraliztaion and reorganization of the system is one of Texas most vital pressing needs. Reformation and restoration to better citizenship is what ought to be accomplished with the inmate sof the penitentiary system instead of which more criminal, more brutality and more murder per captia occur in connections with the system than takes place in daily civil life and that has been otoriously true under the Ferguson administration.

Financial Failure

"The sysem has been a greater financial failure than any other known institution of equal manpower and opportunity. It has run true to form in the respect under the Ferguson administration. The Fergusons brag of having vetoed the penitentiary relocation bill which alone ought to damn them politically.

"The state should reserve the oil and mineral rights and such of the buildings as are suitable for its needs and convert the balance of the property now owned by the penitentiary system into cash or negotiable securities. The proceeds would be ample to relocate and build a new central prison system 300 per cent better than the present one and put back in the treasury a large sum. Instead of an additional burden on the taxpayers, it would substantially relieve them.

CONFERENCE CALLED

EL PASO, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Welfare of Mexican and Spanish speaking peoples in the United States is the object of a conference of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America (Northern) to be held here December 11-16. The sessions probably will be held in the Presbyterian Mexican church here.

(CITATION BY PUBLICATION.
The State of Texas. To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County: Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Marnie Snyman by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 78th District court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the 1st Monday in September A. D. 1926 the same being the 6th day of September A. D. 1926. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 7th day of August A. D. 1926 in a suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 18715-B wherein Mrs. Eleanor Snyman is plaintiff and Marnie Snyman 's defendant and said petition alleging, that plaintiff and defendant were married on September 4th, 1917, at Albuquerque, N. M., and lived together until Jan. 6, 1926, plaintiff prays for divorce upon the grounds of cruel treatment, that he abused her and used toward her rough and unseemly language which injured and wounded her feelings and rendered life miserable for her. That he frequently applied to her without cause of provocation vile language and opprobious epithets. That the defendant is a South African by birth, and a man who has no refinement by nature, but was rough and unthoughtful. That just a day or two before Christmas, 1925 without any cause or provocation whatsoever the defendant struck plaintiff and inflicted upon her personal violence, and on that occasion as well as on many others he violently abused her.

That there has been born to said marriage two children, a girl, Dorothy Snyman, about 7 years of age, and a boy, Jack Snyman, about 5 years of age. That about Jan. 5, 1926, the defendant took said children and fled with them from the State of Texas to some place unknown to plantiff, and that she has not since seen or heard from her said children. That said conduct on the part of the defendant has resulted in the greatest suffering to her and since she does not know and can not find out where her children are she has suffered great agony.

Herein fail not, but have before said court at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 7th day of August A. D. 1926.
(Seal) EUNICE JACKSON

Teachers Institute for Year Postponed Until Christmas Week

WEATHER IS ONE FACTOR

Instructors From Five Counties Will Be Here In December

The Teachers Institute, which has been an item of much importance to the opening of the school term in Wichita Falls, and which has brought more than a thousand teachers here every September, has been postponed this year until the week just before Christmas, instead of the first week in September, County Superintendent Burl Bryant announced Tuesday. The institute has always been held here the week before opening of school, but it was considered best to hold the institute just before Christmas this year on account of the warm weather.

A number of rural schools will open September 6, but the Wichita Falls schools will open September 13, and this discrepency in opening dates had something to do with the postponement of the institute.

There will not be as many teachers this year at the institute as in former years as Wilbarger and Foard counties will hold a joint institute of their own, but Wichita, Clay, Archer, Baylor and Hardeman county teachers will meet here as usual.

Summer Months of '26 Ideal Despite Sultry Spells Now and Then

Notwithstanding the seemingly sultry days of the past few weeks this summer has been one of ideal weather conditions, and even the month of August has not been without periods of relief in the way of rainy spells. Four periods of rainy weather are registered in the weather bureau at the Wichita Electric company, which register a total of 1.95 inches of rain for the month.

On August 12th there was a light shower of .2 of an inch; four days later .48 of an inch, the next day .76 of an inch and on the 23rd .51 of an inch. Tuesday the weather was correspondingly cooler with a maximum temperature of 90, and a minimum temperature of 70. On the same day last year there was also a cool spell with a maximum temperature of 96.

An unusually heavy rainfall for the year is also registered and the forecast for the next half of the year is favorable to heavy rains. Almost as much rain has already fallen this year that fell during the entire year of 1925. A total of 24.11 inches to date is divided up in the months as follows: January 2.06, February .04, March 3.57, April 3.55, May 2.34, June 5.50, July 5.10, August 1.95.

He Wanted a Good Time, And He Got Too Good a One

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 24.—(AP) Taken to a notorious house south of the city where a taxi driver promised he would have a "good time," a San Antonio visitor who declined to give his name, was severely beaten and robbed of $90 by the taxi driver and two pretty women companions just before dawn Tuesday.

The visitor hailed a taxi soon after midnight and requested the driver to take him to some place of gaiety where he could forget his lonesomeness.

When the visitor arrived at the establishment he was met by the two pretty women confederates of the chauffeur.

"They immediately took me into custody and soon I was paying bills right and left. The size of my roll must have appealed to one of the young ladies for she "lifted it off of me," he told officers.

"When I attempted to get it back the two women and the taxi driver attacked me and ran before an officer arrived."

Do Bare Knees These Days Mean Brazen Exposure

EL PASO, Aug. 24.—(AP)—When a 12-year-old girl shows her knees is it "indecent exposure?" Patrolman H. J. Kahl saw a pair of white knees in nature's garments, the skirt inches above the hose. He arrested the owner of the exposed parts on a charge of "indecent exposure," but the young lady turned out to be, not a woman, but only a girl of 12. Kahl was indefinitely suspended for "incompetency."

He says at most the charge against him had been a mistake in judgment, since one can't tell how old they are now days. He has 10 days in which to file application for trial before the civil service commission.

Police Chief Tom Armstrong, who suspended Kahl, said that 20 years ago there might have been some excuse for such an arrest, but "today it's nonsense."

M. P. Lays Plans For Improvements

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Important improvements and outlays of money in San Antonio and along the San Antonio Southern lines will begin as soon as permission is granted by the interstate commerce commission for the Missouri Pacific to take over the smaller line, H. R. Safford, executive vice president of the Missouri Pacific announced Tuesday.

Mr. Safford, with W. G. Choate, general manager and L. A. David, general superintendent of the Gulf Coast Lines, is on an inspection tour of the system.

"Regarding the rumors that this is a Missouri-Pacific-Katy fight, I see no reason why it should be so," said Mr. Safford. "The San Antonio Southern extension is a logical one for the Missouri-Pacific to take over and as the Katy has never expressed an intention of taking it over, it seems that San Antonio, will benefit more if both lines co-operate."

STATE FIGHTS T. P. MOTION

Wants Dismissal of Move Regarding M. & W. Railway

AUSTIN, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Motion to dismiss the suit brought by the Texas and Pacific railway company with reference to rehabilitation of the Midland and Northwestern railroad will be filed by him in the federal district court here before August 29, Ernest May, assistant attorney general said Tuesday.

August 9, the Texas and Pacific filed a petition asking that the railroad commission, Attorney General Dan Moody, and Mr. May be restrained from taking any action to compel it to rehabilitate and operate the Midland and Northwestern, unless and until the interstate commerce commission enters such an order.

The suit will likely go to trial in September.

The Texas railroad commisison November 10, 1924, ordered the T. and P. to repair and operate within 90 days the Midland and Northwestern, which runs 65 miles from Midland to Seminole. The railroad has never complied with this order, but twice has sought unsuccessfully permission of the interstate commerce commission to abandon the Midland and Northwestern.

Following the ignoring of the commission's order, the attorney general filed suit in the Travis county district court asking for a receiver for the Texas and Pacific and for a court order compelling it to rehabilitate and operate the Midland and Northwestern.

Mr. May said his motion would set forth granting of the T. and P. petition would violate section 265 of the judicial code, which provides no court of the United States can enjoin proceedings of a state court, except in bankruptcy. His motion also will contend a suit against the T. and P. is being prosecuted with diligence in the Travis county district and will come to trial in October.

Mrs. Thurber was arrested last Friday at a meeting of the Kansas City stockholders.

MAN ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GUN

Frank D. Cotterly Is Instantly Killed Late Monday

Frank D. Cotterly, aged 26, died Monday night at 10:45 o'clock as the result of a self-inflicted bullet wound, according to a verdict awarded by Judge R. V. Guinn, justice of the peace, who held the inquest at midnight.

The deceased had been making his home with his brother, Ernest Cotterly of Iowa Park road near the Iowa Park Junction.

Despondency over ill health and lack of regular employment are assigned as reasons for the act. He was formerly employed by the Wichita Falls Electric company and the Postal Telegraph company as lineman.

Besides the brother with whom he made his home, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cotterly of Payne, Ohio; two brothers, Harry R. and John H. Cotterly of Payne, Ohio, and a sister, Mrs. Frank Diehls of Craigville, Ind.

The body is being held pending word from the parents.

Shep Explains Plans For 1926 Tex.-Okla., Fair

A detailed and interesting plan for the Texas-Oklahoma fair to be held in October, was given by Mayor R. E. Shepherd, secretary of the fair association at the Ad Men's club weekly luncheon Tuesday.

The mayor gave a brief history of the fair beginning with its organization in 1922 by a few local citizens and gave facts and figures of the progress of the undertaking up to the present time. A panoramic sketch of the 1926 exhibition was also interestingly given.

The chief event and change in this year's program will be the rodeo to be staged by "Foghorn" Clancy, nationally known rodeo man, the speaker said.

The inadvisability of staging football games and horse races during the fair was discussed, the reason for eliminating them being given as the difficulty of realizing financial profits for them. Two days of automobile racing will be scheduled, according to the mayor.

Hal Worth has been engaged as director of the "Pageant of Progress" which will be staged on the opening night of the fair Saturday, October 2. Mr. Worth has been in charge of Worth's show pageants for several years and is said to be an outstanding promoter and producer of pageants. This exhibition will end in the crowning of the queen.

Following the mayor's address, W. S. Abbott, the president, named T. A. Bradley, Don Ross and R. C. Priebe, as a committee to co-operate with fair executives in local advertising. Miss Josephine Fisk, advertising club secretary, was also asked to prepare a letter to be sent to members of the club urging them to back the fair in every way possible.

Alvin Willgus received the prize given by the City National bank, $2.50 on a savings account, and R. E. Shepherd received the donation of the Palace Tailoring shop. J. W. Pyland, J. L. Eggleston and Miss Fisk were named by the president on the membership committee, and Alvin Willgus, Jacob Price and Don Ross were named members of the program committee.

T. A. Bradley and V. N. Armstrong were appointed as the by-laws committe and the president exhibited a large map, the courtesy of the New York Sun, showing how manufacturers reach New York.

HOOF WAR ON

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—A war of hoofs is on. The superintendent of Mr. Ford's terpsichorean department is here with two dulcimers, a horn and fiddle to show a convention of dancing masters the beauties of the quadrille and Virginia reel, and there are reports that Mr. and Mrs. Henry are coming themselves. But Ned Wayburn, who turns out stage dancers like Henry does flivvers, is producing a few jazz steps that are making the convention take notice.

Friends Believe Rangel to Live At His Old Home

That Gen. Jose Manuel Rangel Mexican revolutionary leader pardoned Friday by Mrs. Ferguson after 12 years in the penitentiary at Huntsville, and denied the opportunity of living in the United States because the crime of which he was convicted involves "moral turpitude" will make his home in Guanajuato, state of Guanajuato, Mexico, is the opinion expressed by Wichita Falls friends of the aged warrior.

Rangel is a native of Guanajuato, being born at La Casa de los Rangeles, a hacienda formerly belonging to his family there. He is a graduate of the normal school at that city, which is located west of the cities of Queretero and San Luis Potosi in a mountainous section of the country.

The ruling Tuesday of the United States immigration authorities will deprive him of what friends say was his fondest wish, returning to Texas and spending the remainder of his days with his daughter, Consuelo Rangle, a student in a Dallas law office. A married daughter lives with her two little girls, Gloria and Maria de la Rosa at Fort Worth, a son is a soldier in the United States army at San Antonio, and another son, Arturo is employed at Fort Worth.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 24.—(AP)—A. A. Silverman, 45, for ten years night editor of the Associated Press in Cleveland, died today. He was taken ill last Thursday with a heart attack. He came to Cleveland from Louisville. He was born in Miles City, Mont., and is survived by his widow and two children. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

SAM CAN SAVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Colonel Sam Park of Beaumont, Texas, saves all his salary. He gets $1 a year as American vice consul at Biarritz, whither he goes often to loaf. He is enabled to hoard all that Uncle Sam pays him because his oil and lumber interests provide quite enough to cover his golf and sundry other expenses.

PROBABLY A REAL BARGAIN.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Arthur Durand sold his wife to a neighbor for twenty francs, which is considerable less number than an American dollar will buy now. Then he regretted the bargain and ordered her to return to his home. She refused, the neighbor insisted the bargain was binding and forced his argument by shooting Durand who is in a serious condition.

SWIM CLASS HOUR CHANGED

Westmoreland Pool Lessons To Be Given In Morning

On account of the evening hours proving more convenient for those wishing to learn to swim, than the morning hours, it has been decided by the local Red Cross chapter, who is conducting the "Learn to Swim Week" at Westmoreland, that lessons will be given each evening from 5 to 7 o'clock, making two hours in the evening instead of the one hour in the morning, first announced.

The lessons are being given by H. Hart, head life guard at the pool and by O. A. Anderson, life guard and Red Cross examiner, and are entirely free to all who attend. Local Sunday school classes are especially invited to take advantage of this opportunity, according to Mrs. T. B. Smith, local Red Cross secretary.

The only charge made will be for going into the water and locker service at the pool. Classes for the swimming lessons were begun Monday morning with a good attendance, Mrs. Smith said.

208 Votes Cast With County Clerk

A total of 208 votes were cast through Tuesday afternoon under the provisions of the Texas absentee voting law with Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk. A few more will be received through the mail today and tomorrow, she states but not enough, it is believed, to total much more than half of the number cast for the first primary.

Tuesday was the last day for appearing in person and voting under the absentee provisions, she stated.

Burglary Charge Filed On Intruder

Charges of burglary were filed Tuesday naming E. C. Fleming, arrested Monday night by city officers inside the Catholic church after a report had been turned into them that someone had been seen entering the church through a window. When Fleming was arrested he was reported to have had in his possession between leg and trousers a 14-inch hacksaw blade.

He was remanded to the county jail in default of bond.

Fay Boyd to Become Bride of Joe Carrigan In Sept. 8 Wedding

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Fay Boyd and Joe Carrigan, the wedding to take place September 8, was made at a prettily appointed informal luncheon given at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Boyd on Eleventh street Tuesday.

Individual tables were arranged for the guests and the house was prettily decorated for the affair in cut flowers and greenery. The announcement of the approaching nuptials was made in a unique manner by two of Miss Boyd's intimate friends, Misses Donna Mitcham and Bernice Martin, who occupied a table and told the story in a clever gossipy conversation.

Five tables were arranged for the guests. Both young people are members of prominent Wichita Falls families and popular in the younger set.

DANIEL WILL SPEAK

Representative Roy Daniel will speak to the Wichita county school trustees Friday afternoon at a meeting to be held in the auditorium of the Iowa Park high school. His subject will be "what the next legislature should do for our schools."

The morning session will begin at 10 a. m. and at noon the trustees will be the guests of the Business Men's Luncheon club.

She Kicks When Hubby Beats Her With Auto Jack

An automobile jack is not the proper weapon to chastise your wife, a woman so maltreated alleges in a divorce petition filed Tuesday with the district clerk. She was married to him from 1919 to July 1926, she alleges and stood continual "harsh nd cruel treatment" When he beat her over the head with an automobile jack he laid on the straw that broke the camel's back, so to speak. The alleged action is quoted as a specific instance of cruelty in asking the divorce.

Four divorce petitions were filed Tuesday, two alleging cruelty, one desertion and one infidelity.

But two marraige licenses were issued by the county clerk Tuesday, these going to Al C. Mongling and Mrs. Vera Kendall; and to E. L. Rymdall and Mrs. Hattie Fuller.

Cold Facts About Refrigeration
DO YOU KNOW—
Mechanical refrigeration means that the housewife must do the work; coils to be defrosted (and the meltage cared for, in a manner as with ice). Water to be kept in ice trays and the little bit of ice made must be thawed out when needed, the trays refilled with water. This in addition to the care of the machine, such as lubrication, keeping the system charged with refrigerant and the attendant attention which goes with the operation of a complicated mechanical device.
Ice produces efficient refrigeration and does it in perfect SILENCE, is unheard and unnoticed. NO NOISE TO IRRITATE even the most sensitive nerves.
