CAPTAIN AND TWO MEN LOST ON TACOMA

Lenine, Russian Bolshevik Leader, Dies Suddenly

AUTOPSY MADE; LARGE FUNERAL BEING ARRANGED

Death Came Unexpectedly and Reports Were Held Up, It Is Said

NATION "SADDENED"

Even Political Enemies Regret Death; Great Crowds In Moscow

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—Nickolai Lenine, Russia's great bolshevik leader, died suddenly last evening at his country villa in the village of Gorky, 20 miles from Moscow. The public announcement of the premier's death was withheld until the all-Russian soviet congress met this morning, and only tonight did the wires carry to all corners of the soviet federation word of the event, which even Lenine's political opponents declare saddens the nation.

In the interest of science an autopsy was performed this afternoon by eleven doctors including the German specialist, Prof. Foerster. It disclosed, according to the official bulletin, marked changes in the blood vessels of the brain and fresh ruptures of these vessels which were the direct cause of death.

The death certificate was signed by four professors, four doctors, and health commissioner Semashko.

Another official bulletin, not signed, but dated "The Kremaline" says the all-Russian congress of soviets "Will take steps in the near future to secure the work of the government without interruption, the soviet power standing firm guard over the conquests of the revolution."

Lenine's death, which the official announcement said was entirely unexpected, in view of recent improvement shown in his condition, comes at a time when party differences are being aired, and when the other soviet leader best known internationally, Leon Trotsky, is ill, and for reasons of health, out of state affairs temporarily.

The government is arranging for an impressive funeral at Moscow Saturday. Even before the public generally knew of the premier's death, all arrangements for a great ceremony were completed. There will be nation-wide mourning for the head of the bolsherist, and, meanwhile, party differences will be submerged.

All theatres and places of amusement in Moscow have been ordered closed until after Saturday, and tonight great crowds gathered in the neighborhood of the Pravda offices awaiting extra editions, which might give information regarding the passing of the premier and the political situation generally.

Crew Of U. S. Fighting Ship Rescued During Hurricane By Rebels

Message from Huerta Tells of Taking of Crew Off Tacoma Amid Storm.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The skeleton crew which had remained aboard the American cruiser Tacoma, wrecked on a reef outside Ver Cruz was rescued by the Mexican revolutionary forces during a hurricane today, Alvarez Castillo, personal representative of Adolfo de la Huerta, was informed by his chief tonight. The Tacoma, it was added, was now completely sunk.

The message which was received by wireless through New Orleans and was signed by De la Huerta, said:

"By orders of the supreme chief in the midst of a furious hurricane our small naval transport steamer out of the port to go to the aid of the Tacoma. Our vessels daringly plunged into the tempest, regardless of danger of their own loss, and succeeded in saving the remainder of the crew of the Tacoma, which is now completely sunk."

Last reports to the navy department said Captain Sparrow and 48 men were on the Tacoma, the remaining 278 men of the crew having been taken off by the cruiser Richmond, now off Tampico. The cruiser Omaha and six destroyers are due at Vera Cruz tomorrow from Panama waters and it is said that they will pick up the rescued.

The Tacoma, during a norther preceding the present storm, went aground broadside in an exposed position on a reef 16 miles outside Vera Cruz. Three naval tugs, which had been sent from American gulf ports to her assistance, were compelled yesterday by the present storm to seek refuge within the breakwater at the port, and it is assumed they are safe.

The names of the new cabinet ministers were published officially soon after Mr. MacDonald submitted them to the king.

Stanley Baldwin met his cabinet for the last time as prime minister this morning. He then proceeded to the palace for the last official audience. His final approach to the precincts of royalty was made, like his first, in a humble taxi.

He started to walk through the park, but had to hail a cab as a refuge from the people who pressed around him.

NO FEDERAL AID IS NOW THREAT

Those Counties Enjoining License Fee Lose Aid, States Fugler

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—Federal aid for construction and improvement of highways in the counties which have enjoined the payment of motor license fees to the state highway department will be withdrawn if the counties are successful in their court attack, the state highway commission decided today, according to V. D. Fugler, secretary of the commission. The decision followed an announcement by A. R. Losh, United States district engineer, that no application for aid on projects in counties where the state is enjoined from maintaining the highways would be approved by the federal government.

"This will mean," Mr. Fugler said, "that if the counties now enjoining the state highway department from collecting the license fees or from maintaining the state highways in such counties are successful that no federal aid projects will be approved in those counties by this commission."

Whether federal aid would be entirely withdrawn from the state in the event the law providing for state maintenance is declared invalid is not known. The pivotal element of federal aid is said to be maintenance, the federal government advancing its funds only where adequate maintenance is assured.

New Projects

The state will place under contract in the next twelve months highway projects of an estimated cost of $20,000,000, said R. M. Hibbard, chairman of the state highway commission. In addition, out of the increased license fees and gasoline tax the state highway department will have approximately $5,000,000 for maintenance for state roads and the counties will receive about $3,000,000 for maintenance of strictly county roads, Mr. Hubbard said. There is now under construction and contract, state and federal aid projects estimated at $26,000,000, he declared.

The state highway commission continued its sessions today, hearing requests from county representatives for aid and designation routes. The commission expects to complete its work for this meeting tomorrow.

DOME PROBE IS CONTINUED WITH OFFICERS THERE

Department of Justice Represented At Request of President

SUBPOENA FOR FALL

Any "Irregularities" to Be Watched For By Justice Officials

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—In the presence of law enforcement officers of the government, the senate Tea Pot Dome investigation committee took steps today to call again before it Albert B. Fall, formerly secretary of the interior, and Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of naval oil reserves in Wyoming.

A subpoena returnable next Friday was issued for Mr. Fall, who is in New Orleans, and about whose name sensational charges in connection with the lease have centered recently. The committee informed counsel for Mr. Sinclair it desired his appearance at the earliest possible date after his attorney had expressed willingness to cable Mr. Sinclair to return from Europe.

Watch "Irregularities."

The appearance of a representative of Attorney General Daugherty at the committee investigation was at the personal direction of President Coolidge, who has instructed the department of justice to take note of any irregularities or illegal actions on the part of any one which may develop in the course of the inquiry.

An announcement from the department stated law officers also were making investigations on their own account. The announcement added that while the department awaited the result or the recommendation, if any, of the committee, this did not mean that there would not be prior action if evidence was developed competent to lay before a grand jury or a court.

Besides that issued for Mr. Fall, a subpoena also went out for J. W. Zevely, personal friend and counsel for Mr. Sinclair, who is in New Orleans. He is expected to appear also on Friday and will be questioned about the loans or liberty bonds and stock which G. D. Whalberg, Sinclair's private secretary, testified yesterday had been made to him by the oil magnate.

Grattan T. Stanford, counsel for the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, testified today both Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Zevely had told him of this loan and that Mr. Zevely said he had used the proceeds to purchase a house on Long Island, Stanford added he knew the house had been bought for $100,000 and that it was not unusual for Mr. Sinclair to make such loans.

Stanford also testified one of the reasons for the organization by Mr. Sinclair of the Hyva corporation, the books of which the committee seeks, was that of "taxation."

BET REAL ROSCOE WAS SURPRISED

By The Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 22.—State officials and other officials in Missouri's capital city were chuckling tonight over a joke played by Joe Tall, a lawyer from Kahokia and St. Louis who brought a rotund man here today and introduced him as Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, ex-movie comedian. Tall told newspaper men he was here with Arbuckle to apply to the supreme court for a writ of prohibition to prevent discrimination against Arbuckle's films, while it developed late today that he and the bogus Arbuckle, who is stated to be Eugene Gebhardt of St. Louis, were here on a matter dealing with a St. Louis corporation.

The Day In Washington

The house military committee began hearing on the Muscle Shoals problem.

Albert B. Fall was subpoenaed to appear again before the senate Tea Pot Dome investigating committee and the committee also announced its desire to hear Harry F. Sinclair as soon as possible.

Edward Bok offered to duplicate his $100,000 peace prize offer for the best plan selected by the senate committee which questioned him, and Chairman Moses in reply criticized him for failing to answer certain questions.

President Coolidge gave his endorsement to the Norbeck-Burtness bill for government loans to northwestern farmers for livestock buying.

The White House indicated President Coolidge would regard surtax rates higher than those proposed in the Mellon bill as a basis for a veto.

Another sale of surplus war material to the Obregon government, it was learned, has been completed between the Mexican embassy and officials of the Washington government.

Revolt of Deaf Is Quelled After Much Damage

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Jan. 22.—A spirit of almost rebellion at the state school for the deaf here as a result of which windows are said to have been broken and much property destroyed, has been quelled by threats to send the offenders home, according to T. M. Scott, newly appointed superintendent of the school. A riot at the school a short time ago, followed by other depredations such as breaking furniture, Mr. Scott said, had brought about an intolerable condition. He has published an order that a second infraction of rules means the dismissal of the student from the school. Since this order became effective the discipline has greatly improved, he declared.

Only 9 Jurors So Far Picked In Walker Case

Special to The Record-News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Jan. 22.—With only nine jurors selected and with the special venire of 128 men exhausted, 30 more were called for the H. C. Walker case Wednesday morning in the ninety-second district court. Walker, who has been in jail without bond since October, is charged with the killing of G. W. Bishop at the Four Gable garage, one mile west of town, October 14, 1923.

The shooting is said to have arisen over a bad debt owed by Bishop, the only actual and the chief witness to the killing being the six-year-old son of Bishop, who sat beside his father on the wagon and who narrowly missed getting shot. There were others nearby, but due to obstructions they did not see all of the occurence. The case promises to be as interesting and as hard fought as the Robinson case.

Next Ruling In City's Plea Against Charge For Gas Is Doubtful

NEW ARMS SALE TO OBREGONISTS

Transaction Calls For Delivery of 5,000 Enfields Through El Paso

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Another sale of surplus army war materials to the Obregon government has been completed between the Mexican embassy here and officials of the Washington government.

The transaction involves the delivery to representatives of the Mexican federal government at El Paso, Texas, of 5,000 Enfield rifles and 2,500 army Colt .45 calibre automatic pistols.

A quantity of pistol ammunition also is included in the sale.

This brings the surplus war materials sold by the United States to Mexico to a total of 10,000 Enfield rifles, eight air planes, 5,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, and 2,500 revolvers or pistols. The Mexican government will pay slightly less than $700,000 for the entire lot.

The original request for arms made several weeks ago by President Obregon was for 10,000 rifles, but only 5,000 were delivered and the additional 5,000 made a part of the new sales, completes the number originally sought.

While the transaction just completed did not involve any request for ammunition for the additional rifles obtained, it is understood the Obregon government has purchased ammunition for the rifles from private sources in the United States.

The cruiser Richmond, off Tampico reported to the navy department today the gale prevailing in Mexican waters had delayed the cruiser Omaha and six destroyers which recently left Panama waters and that they would not reach Vera Cruz until tomorrow.

Moses to Submit New Bok Offer

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A proposal from Edward W. Bok that the senate committee investigating propaganda select from the 22,164 plans submitted in his American peace awards the one it regards best will be presented to the committee tomorrow, Mr. Bok was informed late today by Chairman Moses.

Senator Moses, wrote however, that the "suggestion is wholly beside the mark," adding that if the committee "wishes to have these documents it has the power to subpoena to procure them."

Mr. Bok in a letter to Senator Moses today in reply to one written him yesterday by the chairman, said he would be glad to give to the author of the plan selected by the committee $50,000 when "your committee has selected the better plan," and $50,000 additional "if, and when, the plan in substance and intent, is approved by the United States senate. He also offered to pay the cost of a national referendum on the committee's selection.

Mr. Bok's new offer duplicates that to the author of the plan selected by the jury of award and which proposes American co-operation with the league of nations. There is the difference, however, from that in the case of the American peace award the second $50,000 is to be paid after the plan has been approved in a nation-wide referendum.

Referring to Moses' statement that he had refused to answer questions as to the amount of money spent in the conduct of the American peace award, Mr. Bok said he did not know definitely the sum spent or to be spent.

BIRD SEARCHERS REPORTED SAFE

By The Associated Press.

GALVESTON, Texas, Jan. 22.—A boat directed by A. B. Reiler, a member of a party who had come to Galveston Island Sunday, returned this afternoon at 4 o'clock with the small motor launch of Dr. A. A. Allen, of Ithaca, N. Y., professor of zoology at Cornell university and his companion, J. T. Lloyd, of Cincinnati. Dr. Allen and Mr. Lloyd had been on the small motor boat stranded by the low tides about 24 miles from Galveston. Reports had been turned into the coast guard stations here and on their failure after 24 hours' search to find the stranded boat, concern was felt here for their safety.

City's Attorney Says Surest Way to Win Suit is to Aid in Repeal of Cox Bill.

It is doubtful if the rail commission will repudiate its ruling made recently against the city of Wichita Falls in favor of the Municipal Gas company, allowing the latter to place a ready to serve charge on gas meters here, City Attorney W. E. George said today after his return from Austin, where Monday he and C. C. McDonald, special attorney for the city, presented the city's case in a second hearing before the commission.

The city attorney said the commission indicated a decision on the second hearing would be probably be given within a week or so. If the commission still stands by its original ruling against the city, the next move will be a trial in the district court of Travis county.

"The most sure way for the city to win in the suit is to assist in repealing the Cox bill, which puts the power in such matters before the rail commission. The legislature is not due to meet until January, 1925, and unless Governor Neff calls a special session an attack on the Cox bill can not be made until then, of course. It is rumored at Austin the governor will call another session of the legislature before he retires from office. Should he do this a vigorous attack on the Cox bill is promised," George said.

PLAN AMENDMENT ON HIGHWAY LAW

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Jan. 22—A constitutional amendment to give the state authority to construct highways is to be proposed by the Texas highway association, as the chief element of its program for the coming year, according to an announcement here today by William T. Wheeler of Fort Worth, secretary-treasurer of the association. The executive committee of the association is to meet here the third Monday in February to consider the matter. Other legislative proposals also will be framed at that time for presentation to the state convention in April. The state now has authority only to maintain roads. The roads are actually built by the counties.

Urges Resumption Of Trade Relations

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Resumption under proper guarantees of trade relations with Russia was urged in the senate today by Senator King, democrat, Utah, as a probable aid to the Russian people in their efforts to unseat the bolshevik regime. Both intellectuals and peasants, he declared, hold that the political and economic recovery of Russia would be materially aided by such an agreement with the United States.

The Utah senator estimated American claims against Russia at $767,000,000, the validity of which he insisted must be established before any agreement is considered.

Another condition on which he insisted was one which would protect the United States "against hostile propaganda within its borders by the bolshevik government and its agents and representatives, including the Third Internationale."

Upward of 350 cases are now in the department, either pending in court or awaiting preparation for trial. Among these are the important highway license fee injunction cases, the prison cotton cases, the oil company anti-trust suits and the state text book cases. To work out of the present accumulation will probably require years, it is said.

Empire Company Lays Pipe Line

Special to The Record News.

ARDMORE, Okla., Jan. 22.—Another purchaser has entered the Graham field with the laying of a four-inch line by the Empire Pipe Line company from its station in 34-2s-3w to section 30-2s-2w. Capacity is figured at 5,000 barrels daily. No connections have as yet been made to properties. There are three other lines in the district, including the Prairie, Magnolia and Healdton pipe line companies. The Westheimer-Daube people also have a line from Graham to Healdton, which they acquired with the purchase of the Ray State Refining company properties. The Atlantic Oil Producing company recently entered Graham as a purchaser, and is paying a 10-cent premium, using the Prairie line to run the crude which they buy.

REFINERIES AFTER OIL IN OKLAHOMA FIELDS

Special to The Record News.

ENID, Okla., Jan. 22.—A survey of western Oklahoma shows that very few refineries are operating at capacity. Even the 6,000-barrel plant of the Champion Refining company at Enid has been running only 1,500 barrels. The company terminated its contracts for Toukawa crude last year during the depression and is unable to renew them. Many other refiners are confronted by the same situation.

Marketers report a heavier fuel oil demand than ever before and a very small available supply in this territory because of the recent restricted or non-operation of refiners. Some of them last week found it impossible to buy fuel oil in western or southern Oklahoma. Railroad demands are increasing but not many refiners, under present price conditions, are willing to contract their fuel oil output to railroads. Some railroads are giving concessions to refiners in order to get both fuel and crude oils. Kerosene also is scarce in this state and some marketers are sold 15 days ahead.

SOUTH TEXAS AREA REGISTERS DECLINE

Special to The Record News.

HOUSTON, Jan. 22.—The South Texas fields of Luling, Laredo and Somerset showed a loss of 1,040 barrels, the grand total registering a decrease of 600 barrels. Luling declined 2030 barrels. Laredo 670 barrels. Somerset held steady. Because of better field conditions the Orange field came back into its own with an increase of 2,500 barrels. The other coastal salt dome fields remained approximately steady.

Problems In Oil

Paraffin, How to Prevent It.

Recognizing the cause and effect of paraffining as outlined the following methods have been used or suggested in order to eliminate the causes and to prevent or overcome their damaging effects. Probably the most common methods of preventing or retarding the paraffining of a sand in a pumping well is to tube the well high enough for the sand to always remain covered with oil. This prevents to some extent the chilling effect of expanding gas and it is believed that the solvent action of the oil helps to keep the face of the sand clean.

Should the well make water, it can be tubed with the working barrel a short distance from the top of the sand and the perforation set near the bottom of the hole with a flood nipple immediately under the working barrel. This enables the operator to pump down the water which collects each day and prevents him from pumping the well below the flood nipple. By this method the sand will always remain covered.

R. M. E. CO. OFFSETS MAER-STANIFORTH

The R. M. F. Oil company has made location for the drilling of a test in lot 14, block 27, L. F. Wilson lands, Archer county. The test will be an offset to the Maer-Staniforth Syndicate No. 3 well, which is making approximately 300 barrels from the 1,380 foot sand.

AMERICAN REFINING MAKES LOCATION

Duncan District Becoming Active

Special to The Record News.

DUNCAN, Okla., Jan. 22.—In the Empire field the Magnolia, Gypsy, Skelly and others have wells on or near the Magnolia found a few weeks ago. In the north field at least six wells are driving for the 2,200 foot producing strata. Throughout the entire western side of the district rigs are going up and preparations for drilling are being made.

Practically every workable rig in the district today is either busy and has contracts ahead, or is being put in shape for work.

Acreage is being blocked for deep tests in at least two directions from this city.

FIVE STATES HAVE NEW GAS SCHEDULE

By The Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 22.—An increase of two cents a gallon in retail gasoline prices in Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida was announced last night by the Standard Oil company of Kentucky.

The increase was the second two-cent raise made within a week and brings the filling station price here to 20 cents a gallon, including a one-cent state road tax.

The increase was credited to advance in crude oil prices and falling off of crude production in California and Oklahoma.

Shappel Company Starts Bailing

The Shappell Oil company's Jackson No. 2, south of the discovery well at Murphy's corner, was being bailed Tuesday. The Texhoma Oil and Refining company's Hamilton, et al, an offset to the Shappell No. 2, is coring into the sand.

RIGGING UP

By SUMMERS

Eastern refiners are becoming alarmed over prospects of making crude contracts sufficient to keep the large refineries running full capacity.

Those purchasing agencies who made contracts to furnish so many hundred thousands of barrels of crude at a price now below the market schedule are expected to take a heavy loss during the year.

Despite the cold weather the consumption of gasoline has been heavy throughout the new England district, according to reports issued recently.

In the Denver basin in Colorado more than 400,000 acres of wildcat territory has been leased. In the basin the Union Petroleum company has a wildcat gasser making upward of 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, and the Texas-Transcontinental company has a producer making 42 barrels an hour.

The American Drilling company's well in the Chickasha field, section 25-5n-8w is making 75,000,000 cubic feet of gas and water. For days the steady stream of water was being hurled against the crown block. During the recent cold weather the top of the derrick became almost solid with ice. The weight caused the derrick to fall to the ground. Casing had not been set in the well.

The Hamilton Brown Shoe company's subsidiary, the Hambro Oil company is starting a test in Jefferson county, Okla., just across Red river from the Nacona gas field. Four other tests are under way in the same locality.

Kansas and Oklahoma refiners are doing all possible to insure filling contracts. Crude oil is bringing a premium and they are searching for crude throughout the midcontinent fields. What a difference a few months make?

Burbank crude is said to make the best lubricating oil in America, and the Phillips Petroleum company is running most of their production into storage and selling the rest to the Vacuum Oil company.

The period of maximum consumption of gasoline will start by May 1. Many of the smaller refineries at the present time are not running full capacity due to their being unable to contract for enough crude. Gasoline prices are expected to be much higher during the summer months.

Rudy Arrives From Europe.

After being delayed for several days by storms at sea Rodolph Valentino arrived in New York last Tuesday prepared to begin work for Paramount in the near future. Mr. and Mrs. Valentino came in from Cherbourg on the Belgenland.

Under a new agreement with the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, Mr. Valentino is to start within a few days in "Monsieur Beaucaire" at the Long Island Studio under the direction of Sidney Olcott, producer of "Little Old New York" and "The Green Goddess" and "The Humming Bird." The scenario of "Monsieur Beaucaire" has been written by Forrest Halsey.

Tommy a Real Pied Piper.

If Thomas eMighan were a candidate for a public office he probably would not shake hands with more people than he did recently at the Paramount Long Island studio where he was making his latest picture, "Pied Piper Malone" an original story by Booth Tarkington. The hand-shakers were not voters, far from it. They were fifty youngsters, ranging from one year to ten years of age and every morning there was a regular procession of kiddies bringing greetings of the day to their favorite. Some shook hands but some were more fortunate and received a kiss on the cheek and a hug—especially the blue-eyed girls—from Mr. Meighan.

The children were just as big favorites with Mr. Meighan as he was with them. They followed him around the studio in complete adoration which he returned with equal enthusiasm. The popular star was literally a "Pied Piper."

"I am never so happy as when working with children," said Mr. Meighan one day as he tugged away from a group of his admirers. "They are so unassuming and so natural. They are a wonderful influence on everybody connected with the picture. We all work just like one big family and even if it is a little harder work we like it. Booth Tarkington has given us a wonderfully human story to make. It is packed with heart throbs, human interest and romance. There is certainly a joy in working in such a story."

Gloria Hostess to Celebrities.

To celebrate the completion of her new movable dressing room, the last word in studio comfort, Gloria Swanson last week entertained 100 of her friends at a "house warming" at the Paramount Studio at Long Island City. One corner of the great studio floor had been made into a reproduction of a garden with paths leading to the new "house" and her among real trees and flowers the star received her guests. One part of the garden was used as a dancing floor and the other was given over to refreshment tables.

Miss Swanson's new dressing room, the gift of the studio, is the most elaborate of its kind so far to be built for a popular star. Mounted on wheels so that it can be moved to any corner of the studio where she may be working, it is as complete as a de luxe cabin on an ocean liner.

Among Miss Swanson's guests were Rebecca West, the English novelist; Edward Knoblock, Frank Crowninshield, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Zukor, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Zukor, Rosa Ponselle, Carl Meichers, George Putnam, Marvyn Montgomery, Thomas Miles, Eleanor Wylie, William Benet, Stephen Benet, Richard Rix, Lois Wilson, William de Mille, Clara Beranger, Sydney B. Kent, Robert T. Kane, E. E. Shauer, Owen Johnson, Fanie Hurst, Forrest Halsey, Sydney Olcott, Charles Hanson Towne and John Farrar.

Apache Originator Appears.

Aurelio Coccia, originator of the Paris apache dance on the American stage, makes his motion picture debut with Gloria Swanson in her latest Paramount picture, "The Humming Bird," which Sidney Olcott has produced at the company's Long Island studio. Coccia plays the role of Bosque, an apache, and does the dance, which made him famous throughout the United States, with Miss Swanson in the picture.

Four years ago Coccia came to this country with his wife, Minnie Amato, and danced the apache, which was all the rage at the time. They appeared on Keith time and other vaudeville circuits in acts entitled "The Slums of Paris" and "The Apple of Paris." Mr. Coccia was born in Rome and played in the Argentina theatre there. He also appeared in the Eden theatre in Paris and while in the French capital he learned to dance the apache through personal research in the slums of the city.

Chamber of Commerce Aids Cruze.

So that he might obtain a true picture of southern life in the days before the Civil War the chamber of commerce and other organizations in Natchez, Mississippi, have co-operated with James Cruze in an unusual way.

Before taking his company to Natchez, Mr. Cruze corresponded with the Natchez civic organization regarding the possibility of getting a picture of "Natchez-Under-the-Hill" for his next Paramount picture, "Magnolia." Numerous photographs were made and sent to him. After these had been studied at the Paramount West Coast studio Mr. Cruze and his company visited the southern city and received the utmost co-operation.

The featured players in "Magnolia" which was adapted from the stage play of the same name by Booth Tarkington, are Ernest Torrence, Mary Astor, Cullen Landis, Noah Beery and Phyllis Haver.

PICTURE PARAGRAPHS

Ricardo Cortez, who went to New York to support Gloria Swanson in "A Society Scandal," her latest Paramount picture, has returned to Hollywood where he will immediately begin work in a new production at the Lasky studio.

Thomas Meighan and a company of Paramount players supporting him in "Write Your Own Ticket," his next Paramount picture, are at Palatka, Florida, making exterior scenes. Included in the party of thirty-six are Virginia Valli, who is playing the leading role; Laurance Wheat, Charles Dow Clark, David Higgins, James Lapsley, Victor Heerman, director; William J. Scully, assistant director, and Paul Sloane, who adapted the story for the screen.

During some of the coldest days recently Allan Dwan staged a scene representing the beach at Palm Beach at the Paramount Long Island studio for Gloria Swanson's next picture, "A Society Scandal." Several tons of beach sand, gay umbrellas and players in bathing suits made those in the studio forget winter.

After traveling across the continent Rod La Rocque was allowed one half hour recently to get from the Los Angeles station to begin work at the Lasky studio in Cecil B. DeMille's next production, "Triumph." Mr. La Rocque had been in the east making scenes in Gloria Swanson's next picture, "A Society Scandal."

The Federation of Women's clubs of California has placed Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount production, "The Ten Commandments," upon its "Specially Recommended" list. The picture has been similarly well received in New York, the only other state in which it has been shown.

"KEPT HER DRUNK." CHAUFFEUR CHARGED AS SAYING OF MABEL WHEN TAKEN NEW YEAR'S NIGHT

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—The liquor question trickled into the Greer-Dines shooting case hearing today to supply a motive for the wounding of Courtland S. Dines, Denver oil man at the hands of Horace A. Greer, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, film actress, New Year's night.

Two policemen from the witness stand jingled the glassware as a background for the pistol shots that suddenly ended the afternoon and evening party in Dines' apartment.

Kept Her "Dopped Up."

Police Officer Bain, describing Greers' visit to the police station to report the shooting, said that Greer declared he shot Dines because the latter "kept Mabel hopped up." Asked to particularize as to whether he meant narcotics or liquor, Greer, the policeman said, replied:

"Liquor, I guess."

Police Lieutenant L. G. Ammon, giving evidence in the same connection reported Greer as having said:

"The dirty rat has kept her drunk."

Judge Hanby, conducting the hearing, voiced his displeasure at the character of testimony that had preceded that given today by officers.

Can't Remember.

"I do not know," or "I do not remember," were ever recurring replies in the evidence of Edna Purviance, film actress, who was in the Dines apartment the night of the affray. Miss Normand, who also was there, and Dines, himself, at whose hospital beside a court session was held late yesterday.

"I am not all satisfied with the testimony that has been given in this case," Judge Hanby said. "There appears to be a conspiracy on the part of the witnesses who have already testified to keep from the court many things that the court should know about this case."

Mrs. Burns Absent.

Among other things that the court wanted to know today was why Mrs. Edith Burns, former companion of Miss Normand who was in the latter's home New Year's night when Greer started for the Dines' apartment, was not a witness at the hearing.

Her physicians said she was too ill to come but the judge insisted on a special examination and a report was made at a later afternoon session.

According to the doctor, Mrs. Burns is suffering with an injured spine that prevents her going to court.

Judge Hanby then wanted to know if there was anything that would prevent the court going to Mrs. Burns, as it did to Dines' bedside, and the reply was that it "would do no harm."

IN OLD PARIS

RAMON NOVARRO and ALICE TERRY in "SCARAMOUCHE"

Ramon Novarro and Alice Terry in the photoplay de luxe, "Scaramouche" which has delighted show crowds for two days at the Palace theatre where it is showing with a 20 piece orchestra. It is a bit of old France with its beautiful women, its love, its laughter, and it tells of the revolution when red riot ran wild in the streets and an aristocrats life was not worth the lace frill at his cuff.

Don't miss seeing this magnificent love story, this masterpiece of motion picture genius. "Scaramouche" will go down permanently in film history as one of the few really great offerings of screen art.

TO "LOOK INTO" BALLOT REFUSAL

By The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Jan. 22.—Federal Judge James C. Wilson, under whose jurisdiction ballot boxes used in the general election of 1922, have been held, today took unofficial cognizance of the refusal of Bexar county officials to turn the boxes over to teams now collecting them for use in the Peddy-Mayfield contest at Washington.

"We will have to look into that," Judge Wilson said when informed of the action of the officials at San Antonio.

Defendant So Violent Jury Goes to Cell

A trip to the cell of a man being tried in county court Tuesday afternoon on charges of insanity was made by the six jurors as the man was so wild Jailer Belcher would not risk bringing him to the court room.

The man on trial was the same one who Sunday night became so obstreperous seven officers at the city jail were called in to handle him. Monday afternoon he was transferred to the county jail. Jailer Belcher Tuesday morning tried to get the man to another cell. The prisoner became frenzied and fought the jailer and two deputies. Several negro trusties were finally called in to help subdue the man without doing him physical injury.

The facts in the case against the man were brought before the jury before Judge Sartin yesterday afternoon. When time came for the defendant to come before the jury, Jailer Belcher said the man was still in such a state of mind he did not believe the prisoner could be brought over except by sheer physical force. There remained nothing for the jury to do but to go in a body to the county jail and see the defendant.

The jury adjudged the defendant insane. Defendant is a former service man and was shell shocked while overseas. This is believed to be the cause of his present mental condition.

DOROTHY DIX'S LETTER BOX

The Anxious Brother Whose Sister Is In the Wrong Kind of Business Office—The Mother Whose Grown Son Refuses to Work—How Can She Break Up an Affair Between Her Husband and Her Best Friend.

Dear Miss Dix—When my mother died two years ago she said to me: "Son, you will have to look after Margie. She does so many foolish things, although she is such a good girl." I promised to look after my sister, but it is surely a man-sized job.

I am out among the fellows a lot, and hear them talk about this girl and that girl and the way they act in offices. I would hate to have them say such things about my sister, but she tells me about going out alone to lunch and other places with the man for whom she works, and how they sit and chatter in the office. It does not seem right to me, as he is a married man. Do you think I ought to tell her what I think, and urge her to get another job?

AN ANXIOUS BROTHER.

I certainly do. You are not An Anxious Brother without reason. Evidently the man for whom your sister works is more of a philanderer than he is a business man, or else he would not spend his time chatting with a pretty little girl. And certainly no girl can make a practice of going out to lunch and places of amusement with her employer without being talked about.

In the right sort of a business office a girl is as safe as she would be in a convent. Every one's time and attention and thoughts are absorbed by work. The men are chasing the almighty dollar, and not petticoats, and no hint of sex enters into the relationship between men and women. Brains, ability, skill, reliability are all that are considered.

But the wrong sort of a business office is the open door to perdition for a weak or silly girl. It offers every opportunity for an unscrupulous man to take advantage of a girl's lack of knowledge and experience of the world. In the intimacy in which they are thrown together he can flatter her, cajole her, win her heart by kindness or terrify her by thoughts of losing her job, and always plays safe because he is married, and she knows it.

Therefore, one thing is very certain. The minute a married man begins treating a girl employe differently from the way he would treat a boy employe, the time has come for her to grab her hat and leave.

And talk to your sister. Tell her what the men say about flirtatious girls in offices and what they think of girls who have affairs with their married employers. Girls do so many foolish, compromising things through sheer lack of knowledge of how they look to a censorious world.

Try to make her understand that a girl must not only be good, but look good, and that nobody can really take care of her but herself. She is a lucky girl who has a good brother to put her wise.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been married fourteen years, and have two children. Until the last year I have been very happy. Now I am worried, and my trouble has come about through my best woman friend. She is always caressing my husband, patting him on the arm holding his hand, smoothing his hair, perching on the arm of his chair. She will call him into another room, or go out on the porch on some pretext, and have a long tete-a-tete with him while I am busy with the household duties. At first my husband seemed embarrassed at these attentions, but lately I am afraid that he is changing and is beginning to like them. This woman is no better-looking than I am, no younger and is not at all intelligent, but she has nothing to do but primp and prattle. She has no excuse for poaching on my preserves, as she has a fine husband of her own. How can I break up an affair of this kind?

TROUBLED WIFE.

The intimate friend, whether male or female, is one of the greatest menaces to the home. Beware of them.

Any middle-aged man is flattered at having a woman indicate that she is falling in love with him, so your husband is merely human in that. In your case the treatment is plainly indicated. Give your husband an overdose of the society of the lady who primps and prattles. If you could go off on an automobile trip together, or anywhere that he would have to listen to her all day and every day for a week, the cure would be complete and lasting.

Marie Wins the Trophy!

"Billy, did you know that there is to be a prize given to the person who skates the best?" asked Betty during the ice carnival.

"Sure and I bet I can guess who's going to get it, too," Billy answered.

"Well," returned Betty, "if I were a judge, I know who I'd give it to! Marie is the most beautiful skater, though it would be just like the old committee to give the trophy to one of the Indians who turned flip-flops on their skates!"

For a wonder, the judges decided just as Billy and Betty had. When it was announced that the silver loving cup was to go to Marie, the Child Wonder, cheers broke forth. She came out to claim the prize in a gay little jester suit. She danced again on her toes, which was her way of thanking the people for their applause.

Make the patches on Marie's jacke yellow, her skirt yellow and lavender her hose and cap lavender. Mak the cup light gray like silver.

MELLON AND COUZENS

Andrew J. Mellon is a republican. He is secretary of the treasury. James A. Couzens is a republican. He is a United States senator. Mellon hails from Pennsylvania; Couzens hails from Michigan. Mellon is a man of great wealth; Couzens has thirty-three millions to keep the wolf from the door.

These eminent men are engaged in a newspaper scrap. Couzens criticized the Mellon plan of tax reductions. Mellon replied in kind saying that Couzens has many millions invested in tax exempt securities which escape taxation of any sort. Couzens made a sharp retort. He asked how much money Mellon had invested in breweries and distilleries. Couzens admitted that he had many millions invested in tax exempt securities but he insisted that he had many additional millions in buildings and lands and industrial concerns.

Then he challenged Mellon to a joint debate. How childish on the part of the senator? What the people demand is lower taxes. There is only one way to bring this about. Wealth that escapes taxation should bear its rightful share and waste and extravagance in government expenditures should be reduced to the minimum. It is not a question for bigoted political partisans to settle. A bigoted political partisan is at all times seeking to place the dominant party in the hole, so to speak, and to make the best possible showing for his own party but year by year the appropriations grow larger, taxes grow greater and the burden grows heavier all the time.

Mellon has a plan. It has been submitted to the congress and it has been given to the people who have the time to read as well as to those who have the time to think. If the democrats have a better plan than that submitted by Mellon then the national lawmakers should adopt it.

They demand that the little fellows shall be given relief; they don't care how hard hit the big fellows may be by the taxation laws to be enacted. Of course the ultimate consumer pays the tax. He may not know it but he pays it just the same.

FORT WORTH ON THE BRINK

Fort Worth is an important Texas city. Now the municipal government has an overdraft of a million dollars and the banks of the city refuse to carry on. An important body of citizens demand a change in the municipal program which will carry with it the city manager plan, the budget plan and the "pay-as-you-go" idea. They say that they are going to fight for the adoption of their program at the ballot box of course.

Mayor Egbert R. Cockrell was elected as a reformer. Before his elevation he had been a college professor and a student of civil government. At the ballot box he put Big Bill Davis, for years mayor of Fort Worth, out of the running. Now very many taxpayers of Fort Worth are just wild for a chance to put the Hon. Egbert out of the running. They say as a public debt creator he has Big Bill reduced to the piker class.

Fort Worth is not alone. Several of the important cities of Texas are conducted on a go as you please plan. When there is a deficit the officeholders call for a bond issue. After the bonds have been exhausted they call for another issue to tide them over. If a private corporation was operated as the affairs of the modern municipality is operated the finish would be a receivership and the liabilities would outnumber the assets fifty to one.

Fort Worth has a bonded debt of many millions of dollars; Fort Worth has a deficit of a million dollars; Fort Worth banks refuse to carry on.

Now, where should the blame be placed if not on the shoulders or at the door of practical politicians and their antiquated system of municipal government?

TWO DEMOCRATS GET JOBS

Edward N. Hurley of Illinois has been given a place on the debt funding commission by President Coolidge. George B. Christian, Jr., of Ohio, has been made a member of the federal trade commission by President Coolidge.

Hurley is a democrat all the time and began his active career as a locomotive foreman. Now he is a wealthy manufacturer. George B. Christian was the life-long friend of Warren G. Harding. He voted the straight democratic ticket until Harding offered for office. Then he voted for Harding and was proud of it.

These jobs pay $10,000 a year. A senator takes down $7,500 a year. Who would be a senator where there is an opportunity to hold a $10,000 a year job?

The New Doctor Takes Over the Case

Tarzan and the Golden Lion

But Flora, notwithstanding her greed, was a kind mistress, and the little black boy, who waited on her, tremblingly told her—on the very night that she and Luvini had set set for the attack on the Arabs—of the he man's counter-plot. Flora informed her white companions and planned their flight.

Darkness had fallen. Some of the blacks and Arabs were still eating, when suddenly the silence was shattered by the sharp staccato report of a rifle. An Arab sank silently to the earth.

Kraski, the Russian dancer, rose and grasped Flora by the arm. "Come!" he cried.

Followed by Deebles, Throck and Bluber, to whose feet fright had lent wings, they opened the gate and the five fled into the darkness of the jungle.

The outcome of the fight within the camp could not have been other than it was for so greatly did the blacks out number the Arabs, that eventually, notwithstanding their poor marksmanship, they succeeded in shooting down the last of the nomads of the north.

Then it was that Luvini turned his attention to the whites only to discover that they had fled the village. The black realized two things instantly. One was that some one had betrayed him, and the other, that the whites could not have gone far in the short time since they had left the camp.

Summoning his warriors, now with the rescued slaves numbering 200, he sent them flying after the fugitives, impressed with the necessity of overtaking them before they could reach a village—the nearest of which was a day's march distant—with word of his treachery.

When Jane Clayton reached the coast to take passage for London she found a wire stating that her father was nearly out of danger. She, therefore, commenced to retrace the steps of the long, hot, weary journey.

When, finally, she arrived at the bungalow she learned, to her consternation, that Tarzan of the Apes had not yet returned from his expedition to the city of Opar after the gold from the treasure vaults. She found Korak the Killer, their son, evidently much exercised, but unwilling to voice a doubt as to the ability of his father to care for himself.

It was the second day after her return that the Wasiri who had accompanied Tarzan returned without him. Then, indeed, was her heart filled with fear for her lord and master. She immediately announced that she would set out on the following day in search of him, commanding the Wasiri who had just returned to accompany her.

Jane Clayton and her Wasiri moving rapidly, picked up the spoor of Flora Hawkes's safari at the camp where the Wasiri had last seen Esteban, whom they still thought to have been Tarzan of the Apes. Following the plainly-marked trail, and moving much more rapidly than the Hawkes safari, Jane and the Wasiri made camp within a mile of the ivory-raiders only about a week after the Hawkes party had arrived.

CHAPTER XVII.
Victory.

But the Bolgani's primitive smoke bombs defeated their own ends, for under cover of the impenetrable clouds which soon filled the throne room and led by the old white man, Tarzan, La and the Gomangani fled, to find refuge in what their guide called the Tower of Diamonds.

Once inside a secret chamber, the old man lighted a cresset. Tarzan saw tier after tier of skin sacks. The old man opened one and spilled the contents into his hand.

"Diamonds!" he said. "Each sack contains five pounds of them, accumulated through countless ages. The Bolgani believe that some day the Atlantheans will return and they can sell the gems to them. He gave a sack each to Tarzan and La.

Soon the Bolgani, discovering their enemies' escape, traced them to the Tower of Diamonds, and the situation would have been desperate but for the timely arrival of more Gomangani from the forests.

The shouting, fighting and the blood which followed worked Jad-bal-ja into such a frenzy of excitement that Tarzan with difficulty restrained him from springing upon friend and foe alike.

So frantic were the Gomangani with the blood-lust of revenge, and so enthused by the first fruits of victory, that they went fully as mad as Jad-bal-ja himself. They neither gave nor asked quarter, and the fighting ended only when they could find no more Bolgani to slay.

The fighting over, Tarzan, with La and the old man, returned to the throne room, from which the fumes of the smoke bombs had now disappeared. To them they summoned the head-man of each Gomangani.

The few surviving Bolgani, who had taken refuge in various parts of the palace, were sought out and also brought to the throne room. Tarzan spared their lives on condition that they would fight to restore La to her place in Opar, and early the next morning Tarzan and La with 3,000 Gomangani and 100 Bolgani descended the rocky ravine to the city of Opar.

Tarzan stepped forward a little ahead of the others, and called:

"La, your high priestess and your queen, is here," he cried to the Oparians who gathered upon the wall. "Cadj is a traitor and an impostor. Open your gates and receive your queen. Give up the traitors to justice, and no harm will befall you; but refuse La entry to her city and we shall take by force and with bloodshed that which belongs to La rightfully."

In reply, a shower of missiles fell upon them, and then Tarzan called to his followers to charge.

Roaring and growling, the Bolgani and the Gomangani leaped forward to the attack. Cat-like they ran up the rough wall in the face of the menacing bludgeons above.

Tarzan, who had chosen Cadj as his objective, was among the first to reach the summit. A hairy, crooked warrior struck at him with a bludgeon, and hanging to the summit of the wall with one hand, Tarzan caught the weapon in the other and wrested it from his assailant. At the same time he saw Cadj disappear into the court yard beyond and sped in pursuit.

The high priest kept always just ahead of him, because Cadj knew his way through the labyrinthian mazes of the palace and temple and courtyards better than Tarzan, who put forth every effort to prevent Cadj from gaining the comparative safety of the underground passages.

But as he finally leaped through the doorway into the court, a noose, cunningly laid, closed about one of the Ape-man's ankles and he was hurled heavily to the ground.

When full consciousness returned to him, he lay bound upon the sacrificial altar of the inner court of the temple of the flaming god. Above him stood Cadj, the high priest, his cruel face contorted in a grimace of hate.

"At last!" gloated the creature of hate. "Now, Tarzan of the Apes, you shall know the fury of Cadj."

He swung the sacrificial knife high above his head. Beyond the point of the knife Tarzan of the Apes saw the summit of the courtyard wall, and just surmounting it the head and shoulders of a mighty, black maned lion.

"Jad-bal-ja!" he cried. "Kill! Kill!"

The golden lion with two mighty bounds was upon the high priest of Opar. The knife clattered to the floor and the great jaws closed upon the hotrid face.

An hour later the victorious forces of La were overrunning the ancient palace and temples of Opar. The priests and warriors who had not been killed had quickly surrendered and acknowledged La as their queen and high priestess.

She found and released Tarzan and the following morning he and Jad-bal-ja set forth upon their journey to the land of the Waziri and home.

CHAPTER XVIII.
The Torture of Fire.

Flora Hawkes and her four confederates, pursued by Luvini and his 200 warriors, stumbled through the darkness of the jungle night, completely lost, but suddenly they came upon the camp of Lady Greystoke, and boldly entered.

As the newcomers approached the camp fire Lady Greystoke gave an exclamation of surprise. "Flora!" she exclaimed in astonishment.

The girl, startled too, came to a full stop. "Lady Greystoke!" she ejaculated.

"I do not understand," continued Lady Greystoke. "I did not know that you were in Africa."

For a moment the girl Flora was overcome by consternation, but presently her native wit came to her assistance. "I am here with Mr. Bluber and his friends," she said, "who came to make scientific searches, and brought me along because I had been to Africa with you and Lord Greystoke and knew something of the country, and now our boys have turned against us and unless you can help us we are lost."

"Are they west coast boys?" asked Jane.

"Yes," replied Flora.

"I think my Waziri can handle them. How many of them are there?"

"About 200," said Kraski.

Lady Greystoke shook her head. "The odds are pretty heavy," she commented, and then she called to Usula, who was in charge. "There are 200 west coast boys coming after these people," she said: "We may have to fight to defend them."

"We are Waziri," replied Usula, simply, and a moment later the van of Luvini's forces broke into view at the outer rim of the campfire's rene

So Goes It

With the passing of old Dobbin, one of the worth while institutions of the country has disappeared forever. We refer to the horse-trader. Anyone who wanted a good afternoon's entertainment could get it by watching a pair of horse-traders swap horses. They knew human nature and they knew horse flesh. Anything was fair in a horse trade.

Fancy getting a thrill out of watching two men swap used cars.

The rule is that the best way for a man to test his popularity around the house is to spend a whole day at home. A week day, we mean. And if he wants to really know, he should choose wash day or ironing day. That is the acid test.

Dempsey may be a prize fighter but he likewise is something of a financier.

In our humble opinion, with all his fistic ability, he knows more about finances than he does about fighting.

"Beware of a cold that hangs on" reads an advertisement. How is a fellow going to beware of a thing that already has him by the throat?

In recent races at Tia Juana, "Too much" finished first and "Not Enough" was second. It often works out that way.

Cal Coolidge is reported to be gaining in weight. Probably because he hasn't wasted his energy in fruitless conversation.

We do not agree that our language is becoming more expressive. "Isn't that the cat's ankle?" doesn't mean anything to us. If that's expressive, language ain't what she used to be.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

An Arithmetic Aid

One Mother Says:

My little girl finds her problems in arithmetic difficult to master. I have found she understands them best if we make a game of it with toothpicks, working out the problems like puzzles. I show her how to make one-half, one-fourth, etc., and leave her to try to get the solutions, going back with her over the steps she has taken, if she fails to get the correct answer.

Democracy: Soak the rich.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

NO HOPE

'Twas ever thus, since childhood's hour
I never had a joy,
That some malign, superior power
Did not, ere long destroy.
Though smoking brought me peace of mind
And soothed my weary brain,
I speedily was doomed to find
That it drives men insane.

I like to eat. I find in food
A myriad fund of thrills,
But every gourmand's path is strewed
With numerous fatal ills.
I like—but why defy the law?
I stick today to tea,
For early in my life I saw
Strong drink was not for me.

I like to sleep, I like to stay
In bed till half past ten
And shortly after close of day
To go to bed again.
This seemed an innocent pursuit,
But that fond dream is gone,
A man, I learn, becomes a brute
Who does not rise at dawn.

I still may live, nobody yet
Has ventured to appear
And sternly tell me what I'll get
By lingering on this sphere.
To gain some joy from this I try,
Though life is hard and rough,
Yet I suppose that I shall die
If I live long enough!

QUITE ACCEPTABLE

Even the fundamentalists will not object to a revised version of the tax law.

GOING UP

Nobody whose business is to hire campaign orators believes that talk is cheap.

QUITE A SURPRISE

Now that the British labor party is in power it will be put to the necessity of going to work.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

"FRANCE MOST DOMINANT POWER IN EUROPE SINCE PETER THE GREAT."

"France is the most dominant power in Europe since Peter the Great," Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under Woodrow Wilson, declared in an address recently.

"With millions of black troops which they can draw from Morocco, the French are formidable. I don't know that I blame them. Were I a Frenchman, with the memories they have been reared on, I probably would be wholly in sympathy with their policy."

Baker said the objection of the French to the limitation of airships and submarines was because both were essential in bring troops from Morocco to France in time of war.

"Battleships are useless," Mr. Baker said. "France objected to the only two limitations that seem essential. France is superior in the air to any power in Europe. Germany, at her best, could drop only 220 tons of high explosive in 24 hours. France today can drop 2,000 tons in the same period. I might be accused of betraying military secrets—but they're not my secrets."

Doubles National Debt.

The most prodigious financial fact in the modern world is that since armistice France has doubled her national debt," Mr. Baker said.

"Much of this money has been used to support the armies of Roumania and Cecho-Slovakia" he said. "I can't prove it, but I believe the separatist movement in Bavaria was instigated by the French. Because of her debt, France has no sale for national bonds outside her own country. French banks, backed by French financiers, must take the bonds. The franc is dropping in value along with the mark. The population will stand for no further taxation.

"There are but three things that can save France: First, more taxation or a cut in the size of the army; second, continental security, and third, the use of her army while it is at its best. There is danger in the knowledge that the army is at its best today.

"If, true to traditions, the countries she is aiding financially come next year and find empty coffers they will say, Oh, well, if France can't help us we had better make friends with some one who can appreciate our needs. The result will be a formation of new alliances."

Speaking of conditions in other countries of Europe, he declared the condition of the world as a whole is worse today than it has ever been.

"In Germany 4,000,000 men will be out of work by spring," he said. "Twenty thousand will starve—but not in silence. Hunger leads in turn to madness and crime.

"The Turks readmitted to Europe threaten the peace of the Balkans. Italy is overcrowded. Four-fifths of the countries of Europe are governed by dictators and the people are losing faith in 'stuffed with straw' men and institutions."

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, The Record News:

This is the last call to the voters of Wichita Falls and Wichita county to qualify as voters for 1924. They must pay a poll tax or have an exemption certificate if they wish to vote. Some are of the opinion that they do not need but one exemption certificate and that it is good for all years, but this is an error, if they live in a city of ten thousand population, they are required to get one every year or otherwise they are disqualified to vote.

The year 1924 will be an important year, politically speaking, we will be called upon to elect those who will serve us for the next two years and if we get a bad egg and we do not do our duty by going to the polls and vote, we should not complain about our officers not doing their duty.

We will elect our representatives to the thirty-ninth legislature this year. This is a very important position, not from a financial standpoint, but from a point of responsibility; the better qualified then we send to make our laws, the better laws we may expect of them.

We should, in my opinion, ask for the repeal of the Cox bill known as house bill No. 11 passed by the thirty-sixth legislature, by which the gas company of Wichita Falls hopes to extract from the pockets of the highest to lowest, and from the richest to the poorest an amount which will exceed three thousand dollars per month or thirty-six thousand per year without rendering any service therefor. I repeat that this is one time in the history of Wichita Falls that we need to send men to the legislature who will blot out such infamous laws as the Cox law. We are capable of making a legal contract with the gas company and do not need any one at Austin to act as our guardian.

We also need some changes in our tax laws; some contend that we need a new system of such laws, and they may be correct, but I doubt if the time has come when the public is ready for a wholesale change, therefore we had better get such as is available at the present.

The courts have held, and justly so, I think, that the custom heretofore adopted by the state to add the delinquent taxes on personal property to the delinquent lands, is illegal, and as a result of this decision, the state, county and schools are losing a large amount of taxes, not to say anything of the amount heretofore lost on the same class of property when placed upon the insolvent roll.

Another important change in the law, in my opinion, would be to relieve the tax collector of the duty of levying upon and sale of the personal property for delinquent taxes as now required by law and make it the duty of the sheriff, which is in line with his class of duty and allow him the regular fees for such work, in this way we would reduce the loss from this source of our tax system, which amounts to an enormous amount, taking the state as a whole.

It seems from the source of information, which I have, that one of the greatest troubles with the legislature, is the inexperience of those who have charge of the legislature pertaining to taxation, that is that class above referred to. Upon one occasion Senator Underwood said that congress had never passed a perfect law. I am sure the senator was correct; imperfect men are not capable of passing perfect laws and it may be possible that the same may be correctly said of our legislature, however we should not surrender and say that we can not improve upon our laws by being careful about who we select to make them.

There are many other small changes we can make to our tax laws and get better results, such as a law to equalize the values between the counties of the state, as well as between the individual tax payer.

The writer has had many years experience in assessing and collecting taxes and can speaking very largely from that experience.

My next article will deal with the question of cooperation, coordination and simplicition of our tax system, with as few amendments as possible from my point of view.

Yours truly,

W. R. ANDERSON.

Charge Big Combine Controlling Boxing

NATIONAL BOXING MEMBERS SAY RINGLING AND RICKARD KEEPING BIG BOUTS IN N. Y.

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 22.—Charges that boxing in America is dominated by a powerful combine, consisting of Tex Rickard, John Ringling, the circus king, and the Sports Alliance and as long as this combination fastens its grip on the sport few championship bouts ever will be staged outside New York, were made by members of the National Boxing association, in annual session here today.

Officials of the association late in the day were trying to determine if any of these interests had a spy at the present meeting and were said to hold the opinion that one member of the delegates present was acting as an observer for these men.

E. A. McAuley, Michigan boxing commissioner, has been leading the opposition to the appointment of William Muldoon, former New York boxing commissioner, as dictator of boxing. The Detroit delegate charged Mr. Muldoon alone stood in the way of New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts joining the National Boxing association.

Mr. McAuley also charged the Rickard-Ringling faction with having sent paid agents to Shelby to ridicule and discredit the Dempsey-Gibbons fight because they did not want to see a world's championship fight held outside of New York.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

SCHWAB.

Harry A. Schwab is the new addition to the Spudder infield, bought from Pittsburgh recently. Scheduled to pastime around the initial sack the coming season for the Wichita Falls club, Schwab may be recognized when he steps out in the spangles for spring training by the following personal and professional characteristics:

Age 21 years; height, six feet; weight, 175 pounds; throws from the right side; bats from the left side.

Schwab played last year with Williamsport in the New York-Pennsylvania league, a class B circuit. With that club he was reputed a hard-hitting guy, poling 'em out to the grand percentage total of .322. This record was amassed in 119 games. His hits went for a count of 152, for a total of 245 bases. Out of these 152 hits, 24 were doubles, eight were triples, and 14 were homers. Incidentally, Schwab anexed 23 stolen bases off the boys at the same time.

In the field, the new Spudder first baseman ran 'em ragged with a fielding average of .982, which is considered not so bad in some parts.

The Spudder management seems pleased with Schwab, and believes he will make himself known in the Texas league. His big recommendation centers around his batting proclivities, where he is expected to continue to wield a malicious maul.

In the field Schwab may be pictured as corresponding pretty closely to the ideal specifications generally accepted for a first sacker. He is long and rangy and has enough behind it to hold down the bag which holds the vindicative favor of all portside batters.

BONNELL IS MADE FRENCH CHAMP

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Jan. 22.—The French boxing federation today officially designated Andre Bonnell light heavyweight champion of France. Bonnell will meet representatives of other European countries before April 1 to determine the European champion who will meet the American title holder for the world's title, vacated by Battling Siki. Bonnell was designated owing to the refusal of Georges Carpentier to meet him in a contest to decide the French championship.

ARE PLAYING OFF FOR CHAMP GAMES

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—Interscholastic basketball games are now being played off between the schools in the various counties of the state, preparatory to championship matches later, according to Roy B. Henderson of the Interscholastic League of the University of Texas.

The league has charge of arranging and promoting contest games between schools all over the state, and there are now more than 800 schools which belong to the organization. The state is divided into 32 districts, each of these districts made up of several counties. The champion team for each county must be decided by February 1.

Between February 1 and February 16, the district championships will be played off. From then until March 7 and 8, at which time the championship will be decided.

The league has just closed a football season, in which Abilene High school was victorious. In 1921 El Paso high school won the basketball championship. The winner of the tournament in 1922 was later disqualified by the league. Last year Oak Cliff high school of Dallas held the championship.

An Amphibious Golf Pro

Among all the animals, both wild and tame, who inhabit the mountain slopes and rockbound coast of Catalina island, by far the most interesting is the squirrel. "Squirrel" de Arce, sometimes known as the Sheik of Avalon, is as much an institution on the island as fishing and bathing. Those who have visited Mr. Wrigley's playground know all about Squirrel. To those who haven't been so lucky, let it be known that De Arce is:

1.—A young man who is equally at home in or out of the water, and who dives to a depth of 40 feet just like it was easy, and picks up abalone shells and tourists' false teeth.

2.—A life guard who has pulled many floundering humans from the smooth waters of the bay.

3.—A golfer extraordinary who shoots his home course in less than 70 regularly and who has acted as golf pro to clubs around Los Angeles.

4.—A ball player of parts who has often pitched against and fanned out the Cubs during their spring training on the island.

5.—A boxer, oarsman, fisherman, and inventor of the Catalina beach hats. Vive le Squirrel!

REBELS PREPARE ATTACK ON CITY

By The Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 22. A large force of rebels, in possession of Ramos Arispe, the railroad junction 12 miles north of Saltillo, Mexico, were loading troop trains preparatory to attacking Saltillo, according to American passengers who arrived here from Mexico City today. Virtually all federal troops have been moved south from Saltillo to San Luis Potosi, they reported.

The rebels have cut rail communication between Tampico and the interior by burning several bridges on the Tampico-San Luis Potosi line, the passengers said, and no train was operated west from Monterey during the past two days. The line was cut to prevent federal reinforcements from reaching Tampico, it was stated.

Coyotes Get Away To Win In Ragged Game With Burkburnett Hi

Playing their first high school game of the year on their home lot, Wichita Falls Hi Coyote cagers hung a second straight defeat on the Burkburnett Hi five at Maskat Temple last night winning by the score of 30 to 11.

It was a slow game, particularly the first half, when both teams seemed unable to get away with anything like real basket ball. Burkburnett held the lead during the first two periods, showing considerably more team work than the Coyotes. At that, the play was hectic and far below the usual standard.

The second half saw the Coyotes come out of their lethargy and some amount of fight was introduced into game. The Crimson and Black went steadily ahead, Burkburnett adding only four points the entire half.

Some explanation of the slow playing may be attributed to the condition of the floor, which was slippery to the extent that passing went hard. That fact might account for the ragged playing done by both teams.

Both teams were minus the services of regular men, which accounted in some measure for the slow game, Critez, star forward for the Coyotes, and listed to start, was reported sick just before the game. For Burkburnett, West, regular guard, was sick and unable to play, while Underwood and Hendricks were handicaped by injuries.

Captain Baldwin of the Coyotes was high point man of the game, ringing five field goals and four free pitches. Hendricks, Burkburnett forward, was second with three field goals, one of which was looped over half the court. Mackechney and Tyson did good work for the Coyotes, Sides and Pace playing a hard game at guard for Burkburnett.

Bobby Waugh To Star With Duke Trammel in Legion's Next Card

Bobby Waugh, the well known mauler who put Fort Worth on the map, as far as the manly art of boxing is concerned, announces that he will make good his promise and be with the boys here Saturday night, stated Doc Wofford of the American Legion boxing management last night.

Waugh will be matched in the final ten round affair with Duke Trammell, fellow Panther City product. These two gents of the glove weigh around 138 pounds apiece, and are rated to give fans here one of the treats of the game.

For some time Waugh has been traveling over the country engaging in legal fistic encounters, and lets fall the remark that he is fit and willing to proceed in winning back some of his forgotten laurels in the Lone Star state according to report. Time was when he was primed and headed for the bright lights and the big show, and it is evident that he sees himself far from out and still on his way.

Trammell has developed into a smart boxer for a youth of 18, since his first appearance in the local ring He packs a very promising right, and only recently has shown that his left is comparatively as good. All this will be his hope when he tangles with the crafty and experienced Bobby. There is every indication that the main go will be an interesting one, as Trammell is too tough to go under easy, should it turn that way, and Bobby should be too clever to try to stop his young friend's right.

Red Wells, who, to hear him tell it, was formally introduced to his first k-o last Saturday night here by Battling Jennings of Henrietta, will be matched with Mickey Savage in the semi-final, eight round stepper. Wells, boxing instructor at the First Baptist church, Fort Worth, evidently is a boxer of some cleverness, and should have learned by now not to put too much trust in good looks. Savage is a Sapulpa, Oklahoma boy, and bears quite a reputation with him.

The card will be filled out within the next few days, Wofford said last night. Legion hall will again be the scene of the exhibition.

Budget Estimates Sent To Council

Budget estimates for the various departments of the city government which includes police, fire, public utilities, finance, health, street, parks and the like have been sent to the members of the city council by W. E. McBroome, city secretary.

The council members on receipt of the statements will have before them every item of expense made in each department the past year. With these estimates, the five aldermen will make out their budgets for 1924.

The budget estimates must all be in by next March 1, at which time appropriations for another year will be made. City officials say there will be very few changes made in the budget for the next fiscal year which begins next April 1. Every department is now running on the lowest possible estimate in the effort of the present administration to run down the city debt.

One department, the police, is expected to have its appropriation increased. How much this will be is not estimated by those at the city hall. It is known that the local police department has been exceedingly short of men and equipment the past year and the city council has indicated the new fiscal year will see this department given all the aid possible, financially.

Butler, his chauffeur, were charged with murder in connection with the death yesterday of John Cybert, 9, who was killed when he was struck by Albert's car. Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over

RHEUMATISM

Has Proven Remarkably Successful in Severe Cases of Rheumatic Neuritis.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

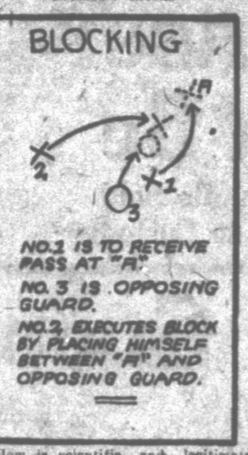

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed the Palace Drug Co. and Central Drug Co. to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery, he will gladly return your money without comment.—Adv.

How is scientific and legitimate blocking accomplished?

Answered by

"CHUCK" CARNEY

University of Illinois star and captain of the all-Western conference team, 1921-22. High point scorer for Western Conference, scoring 173 points, greatest number ever scored by a player in a single collegiate season.

* * *

It should always be remembered that blocking which involves bodily contact with the opponent is not legitimate and results in a foul being called. Scientific blocking calls for the placing of your body between your opponent and the point at which the man he is guarding is to receive the pass. It is mental rather than physical blocking. It is not necessary to rush a man in blocking. Take your position and let your opponent run into you as this accomplishes the same result. Avoid facing the man you are attempting to block, if possible, but rather take your position at the point at which the block is to be executed and give the impression that you expect to receive a pass. This often results in taking two men out of the opposing defense as one will invariably follow you and if your block is successful, you will take the man you are attempting to block out of the play.

Coyotes Lining For Series Of Practice Tilts

After some three weeks preliminary workout, the Wichita Falls Coyotes under Coach "Bud" McCallum are lining themselves up for a series of practice tilts, having won their first two starts by wide margins.

Thursday night the Coyotes will go to Petrolia for a game, to make their second for the week. The third is already matched with Iowa Park, when the new gymnasium there will be dedicated. A fourth game is desired for Friday night, stated Coach McCallum last night, although up until that time the date was still open.

So far the Coyotes have played good and bad basket ball. Their first high school game, at Burkburnett last Saturday night, was fast, well played affair, while their second meeting with that team last night here was not so pleasing.

The crimson and black will no doubt have all the opportunity desired to find out how they stand when they take on Petrolia and Iowa Park. Petrolia has been playing for some time this season, and boasts a fair winning quint. Iowa Park will do their best to take the first game with the Coyotes and on their new court, and have the team to put up a battle. Iowa Park Hi five has been playing a fast brand of basket ball in the city league here, of which it is a member.

There is much promise for the Coyotes, for they have some good men out for the team. In Mackechney and Critez, they boast two excellent and fighting forwards. Gordon is another forward who has been showing good stuff. At guards, Tyson and Powell should be a good pair, for both know and play the game hard. Captain Baldwin will find few men to play him at center, once his stride is reached. In the two games played thus far, the rangy leader has shown that he can play basket ball this year, not counting the fact that last year he was picked for a mythical basket ball berth. Shaw is another promising man, who came out for practice this week.

A Penny a Day

The Week of THRIFT

A penny a day seems such a trifling amount. Hardly anyone thinks the penny amounts to much; it seems to have so little purchasing power that scant attention is paid by average purchasers when they go shopping as to whether the price is a penny more or a penny less.

As they, without thought, spend a penny here and a penny there, it is doubtful if they realize how just a penny a day spent for electricity will perform all of the following tasks in the home:

Run a sewing machine approximately 15 minutes. Run a vacuum cleaner for approximately 15 minutes. Operate a washer for approximately 20 minutes. All for a penny.

M'DONALD GIVES TALK ON MEXICO

University Club Hears Conditions That Started Present Rebellion

John T. McDonald, general sales manager for the Wichita Motors Co., in a very well presented talk at the University club luncheon Tuesday noon at the Kemp hotel, explained in interesting detail the angles of the Mexican situation, and the reason for the present upheavals and revolutionary disturbances in Mexico today.

In a short sketch of the past history of Mexico, Mr. McDonald stated that at the beginning of the revolutions, ten to fifteen years ago, the country was composed of only two classes of people, the extremely rich, and the extremely poor, or peon class, which was kept in the worst sort of ignorance and slavery under the great haciendas of the aristocrats. For a time, the people lived this way without complaint, until the peons in small revolts, found that they could point a rifle as straight as federal troops, and that they could steal what they wanted far more easily than they could slave and work hopelessly for it.

As time went on, he stated, the peons gradually gained knowledge and education, and the foundation for the great middle class of Mexicans who are now engaged in industry and business in the country, was formed.

Mr. McDonald, who has traveled extensively in Mexico, and is acknowledged as an authority on Mexican affairs, because of his keen insight into the lives and interests of the people and his understanding of their manners and customs, stated further that President Obregon had as two of his men in first authority in affairs of government, Calles and De la Huerta who worked together in all harmony at affairs of state until Obregon announced his plan of retiring from public life because of poor health.

Calles, he said, was the champion of the lower classes in Mexico, a bolshevist in spirit, a communist who favored radical socialistic measures in the administration. De la Huerta, the speaker stated was backed by the conservative middle classes ,the business men of Mexico.

At Obregon's relaxing on the reins of government, Mr. McDonald said, the two men split forces and became enemies, fighting for the presidential chair of Mexico. De la Huerta, seeing the state in which this would throw the nation suggested that both parties withdraw, but President Obregon had already sanctioned Calles plan for the presidency and his hot-blooded followers were determined to place Calles at the leadership of the country, the speaker said.

De la Huerta's supporters then revolted against Obregon, the government, and Calles and the fight was on, Mr. McDonald said.

When asked what chance he thought the rebels had of winning, Mr. McDonald explained that although they had control and possession of the richest towns, and some of Mexico's industries, as well as the backing of the most able of Mexico's population, the federalists have the backing in arms and ammunition of the American government, and their chances of winning are small.

"If De la Huerta did win," Mr. McDonald continued, "it would only be a matter of time until a counter revolution was started against him; the thing to do is to support the federal government of Mexico that is now in power and repress the revolutionary ideas of throwing over a government that the Mexican people possess."

Mr. McDonald mentioned a proposed plan of sending 50,000 Americans into Mexico to be distributed through the country, to settle and clean up affairs. "Mexico citizens would resent such a move, just as we in this country would resent such an action on the part of France or England in America," he said. "Leave Mexico alone and she will clean up her own troubles in time, without outside interference. If she needs aid, she is plenty able to call for it," the speaker said in closing.

The Reverend Leslie Miller sang two negro songs, "Exhortation" in the form of a humorous sermon, and Sidney Homer's "Uncle Rome."

Miss Margaret Blackburn gave a group of three readings.

At a short business meeting John P. Marrs read several suggested changes in the constitution of the club which are to be deliberated on by members. A motion was carried to support the Women's Junior college club in their work of raising funds for their work of helping to furnish and decorate the Junior college building.

R. E. Shepherd brought before the club the matter of organizing a Speakers' Training club among the members of the University club.

Rev. C. M. Simpson, chairman of the library committee appointed by the club to furnish the library for the new Junior college read a resolution expressing the appreciation of the club of the gift of a library to the college given by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Snider. The resolution was unanimously adopted and the chairman requested to send copies to Mr. and Mrs. Snider and to spread same on the pages of the club records.

CITY GOES DARK BECAUSE OF VALVE

Wires were calling to husbands away from home and being told to get the gun and crawl under the bed business operations in general were suspended, folks began to knock their shins on furniture while feeling around for the old oil lamp, and children were enjoying the new turn of affairs along with the mice and highjackers when the light power went off for several minutes last night. And last but far from least, radio bugs were at last given the opportunity to try out their instruments while no live electric wires could hamper their tuning in with Hawaii and Strassenhoffen.

According to Manager P. A. Rogers of the Wichita Falls Electric company, the short plunge into darkness taken by the city last night, which occurred at 10:20 o'clock, was due to an emergency trip valve working out of turn. The valve was adjusted and the current set going with little difficulty, he stated.

Deputy Marshall Gone To Explain Missing Alcohol

The summons made at Dallas yesterday upon John Seay, deputy United States marshal here, by Federal Judge Wm. H. Atwell to appear there and answer contempt proceedings because of an alleged shortage of six gallons of alcohol consigned from here, resulted in the deputy leaving yesterday afternoon for Fort Worth.

Deputy Seay is also cited with A. R. Eldredge of Fort Worth, United States marshal for the northern district of Texas. Before leaving Seay made no statement to the charge that six gallons of the consignment recently ordered sent to Dallas by Judge Atwell are reported missing. According to those in his office, Seay received a telephone call from Dallas Monday and was questioned concerning the liquor consignment.

It is believed Seay joined Eldredge at Fort Worth yesterday evening and that both will appear before Judge Atwell this morning to answer the contempt charge. It is well known the place at the court house where the marshal kept the liquor caught in various raids by prohibition men is not very private.

The office of the marshal adjoins the thirtieth district court room and it is here the liquor supply is supposed to be kept. The office is used by other officials at the court house and many are said to have keys to it. It is the belief here the alcohol was stolen after the marshal had made his report as to the amount of liquor on hand.

The alcohol that was checked up missing in Dallas is said to have been taken in a hotel raid here about a year ago.

PRAISES SOILS OF THIS COUNTY

Well Known Scientist Says It Is Very Fertile If Well Handled

"Practically all the soils in the Wichita valley will prove highly fertile if properly handled," said W. T. Carter, well known scientist in soil survey of the United States department of agriculture, in an address made to the Technical club at the Wichita club rooms last night.

In discussing the soils in Wichita valley, Carter urged caution in the use of water to be used in irrigation. Very little alkali has been found in these lands, stated the speaker, and that largely common table salt, which is not at all dangerous to farm crops unless in excess.

Some soils have been discovered and classified here that were unknown before, although over a third of the arable lands of the United States had been classified by the soil survey, Carter said.

In the portion of his speech having to do with soils in general and the work of the soil survey, Carter told how the bureau classifies soils and how soil survey reports are used by business men. Bankers take these surveys for much of their data in basing their values made on farm lands, he said. The farmer uses the information in selecting the proper crops for his lands. Numerous other occasions for the use of the survey were pointed out by the speaker.

W. B. Hamilton, newly elected president of the club, presided at the meeting. A committee was appointed to see if the soils survey report of Wichita valley lands may not be published immediately without its having to wait several years for the government publication.

Did She Really Do It, Or Just Imagine It All?

"Come to a certain cafe on Seventh street quick a woman has taken carbolic acid."

This was the request over the telephone last night about 11:30 received at the police station.

Officer Griffin rushed to the cafe. Three women were in there. "Which one of you has been drinking carbolic acid?" Griffin inquired.

"Carbolic acid? Guess it must be me," one of the women said.

"Well let's get to a doctor quick," the officer said as he had the woman get in a car.

On the way to the home of Dr. Meredith, city physician, the woman said she took the carbolic acid yesterday afternoon. She said she was washing her teeth and drank some of the poison by mistake. She said she then drank some sweet milk and was very sick for awhile.

She said she went to a dance last night and kept getting sicker and came back to the city where the officers were notified.

The doctor ordered the woman sent to the hospital.

It is the belief of officers the woman was getting over a drunk and only imagined she had been drinking carbolic acid.

Citizen Takes 5 Shots At Prowler

Five shots were taken at a "peeper" by a resident at 2122 Princeton street last night who discovered the prowler at the back door of his residence about midnight.

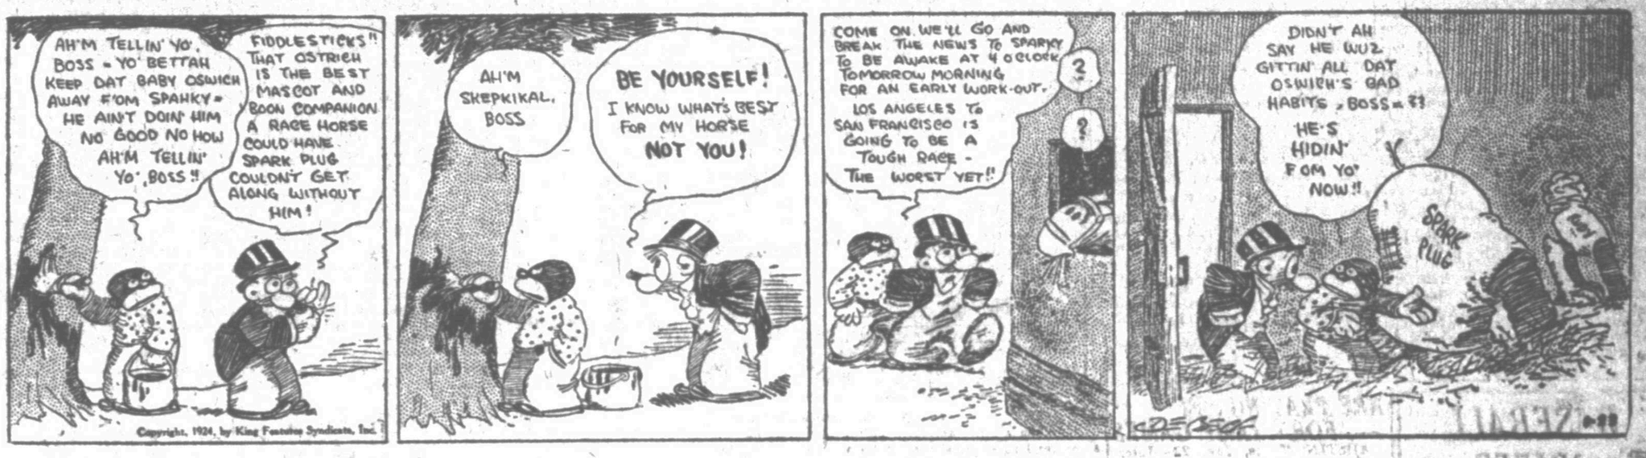

The owner of the house had gone to his garage to drain his car and saw the prowler. He had his gun with him and opened fire. The prowler began to run and the man with the gun didn't know whether the shots had found their mark or not.

The police were notified and Officers Griffin and Blocker answered the call. No traces of the prowler could be found. The resident owner said he believed the prowler was a white man and said several attempts had been made to break into his home.

STOCK MARKET IS REACTIONARY

Sinclair Sales Heavy; Some of List Develops Buoyancy

Market Features.

Total stocks sales 972,000 shares. Twenty industrials averaged 97.44; net gain .16.

High 1923, 105.38; low 85.76.

Twenty railroads averaged 83.55; net loss .06.

High 1923, 90.51; low 79.53.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Reactionary price movements prevailed in today's active stock market which was featured by heavy speculative selling of Sinclair Oil, apparently influenced by the testimony given before the senate committee investigating Tea Pot Dome. Sinclair broke more than three points to 22 3-4 and then rallied to 23 3-4, the day's sales exceeding 8,000 shares, or about one-twelfth of the volume of business.

Marked buoyancy again developed, however, in some of the high priced specialties. General Electric continued its rapid advance, touching 217, a new high since 1902, and then easing to 214, where it was up three points on the day. Corn products also touched a record top at 172, but it slipped back to 169 1-2, off 3-4, on profit taking. National Lead hit 145 1-4 and then sagged to 144, up 1.

Fresh buying came into the domestic oil group on the announcement of higher prices for California and Wyoming crude products and another series of gasoline advances in various sections of the country, but the early gains were not maintained. Producers and refiners was pushed up to 43 1-2 and then slid back to 41 3-4, up 1 1-4, while Standard Oil of California fell from 65 3-8 to 64 3-4, where it was up 1-2.

Pan American issues, which have been adversely affected by the Mexican revolution and the senate investigation of oil leases, continued to lose ground, the A stock dropping 1 5-8 and the B two.

Reports of higher pig iron and scrap prices at Chicago were responsible for a temporary display of strength by the steel shares, but they sagged with the rest of the list in the late trading. U. S. Steel common went to 101 3-8, but closed below par.

Brooklyn-Manhattan transit preferred established a record high at 53 in speculative expectation of an early inauguration of dividends.

Revival of a demand for the Erie and Southern railroad issues all of which closed fractionally higher, featured the railroad group.

Foreign exchange rates made quick recoveries from recent heaviness. Demand sterling advanced more than two cents to $4.22 3-8 and French francs jumped more than ten points to 4.54 1-4 cents. Other European rates improved in sympathy. Japanese yen broke sixty points to 45.05 cents.

MONEY At Work

The pessimist of today is calling attention to the upward trend of wages and the falling trend of commodities. Can we still be prosperous?

Over a period of years the trend of wages is upward and the trend of commodity prices is downward. The result is a higher standard of living. The common laborer today has more comforts than a so-called "rich man" of a century ago.

The effect of rising wages and declining prices would seem to lead to diminishing profits. Yet these trends have been going on for many decades, and our country is still prosperous.

The answer, of course, is the increasing volume of production together with added economies in manufacturing costs. In the past, machinery has always been invented in time of need, which has enabled the nation to keep up its volume of production. They say necessity is the mother of invention. If she will have some more children, there will be no need to worry.

GRAIN MARKET HAS UP-TREND

Corn Has Material Advance Affecting Wheat and Oats

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Corn scored a material new advance in price today, and gave strength to wheat and oats. Predictions of another cold wave had a bullish effect, and so too did brisk speculative demand for corn, as well as smallness of receipts both of corn and wheat. Corn closed strong, half to 1⅛ cent net higher, May 79¼ cents, with wheat firm, ⅝ to ⅞ cent up, oats ¼ to 3-4 cent gain, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

Provisions averaged higher in line with the hog market. Houses that have foreign connections were moderate buyers.

Chicago Livestock.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Cattle: Receipts 13,000; steady; top yearlings 11.75; best weighty steers 11.25; handyweight 10.75; short fed steers 8.00@9.25; bulls and stockers and feeders easy; veal calves unevenly higher; largely 25 to 50 cents up to packers; bull veal calves to packers 10.00@10.50; outsiders upward to 13.00.

Pigs: Receipts 45,000; fairly active; butchers 7.30@7.35; medium 7.10@7.25; light 6.95@7.05; packing sows 6.65@6.80; slaughter pigs 6.00@6.50; estimated holdover 13.00.

Sheep: Receipts 18,000; steady; fat wooled lambs 13.60@13.90; top 14.00; clipped 11.50; handyweight clipped wethers 8.75; choice handyweight fat ewes 8.25; feeding lambs 13.25.

Fort Worth Livestock.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 22.—Generally steady prices prevailed in the cattle yards Tuesday, but there was an exception in the case of yearlings which had to be peddled on bids that were unevenly lower. Steers, cows and calves were called steady. The quality average was rather inferior. Receipts amounted to 1,800 head of cattle and 700 calves.

Steers of good quality from South Texas sold at 6.75. Most of the receipts cleared at a range of 5.00@5.75. Some bids on cows were 50 cents to $1.00 under last week's close. Bulls were unchanged. Medium to moderately good calves sold around 5.00@5.75.

Hogs sold with more freedom and the market was steady to 5 cents higher. Wagon hogs sold at 7.10@7.20, but the best in carlots stopped at 7.15. Bulk sales made a range of 6.75@7.10. Receipts were estimated at 600 head. Packers secured the entire supply. On pigs the market was about steady, the best selling at 5.00 with most deals at 4.00@4.50.

New Orleans Cotton.

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—Higher prices in cotton today resulted mainly from a more cheerful report of English conditions. Continued cold weather over the belt caused more or less buying and reports of somewhat larger turnover in some of the American cloth markets helped to increase the demand. Highest prices came before noon, March rising to 33.25 and October to 27.54 cents a pound. In the second half of the session, scattered selling caused small recessions and this selling appeared to be based on ginning expectations. The close was 7 to 35 points net higher on the day, the last sale of March being at 33.14 and of October at 27.33.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The cotton market just about recovered yesterday's losses during today's trading. March contracts which had sold off to 32.60 on the decline of the previous day and close at 32.72, advanced to 33.20 during today's trading, or 48 points net higher. March closed at 33.07, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 32 to 41 points on present crop positions and net unchanged to 17 points higher on later deliveries.

The market opened firm at an advance of 20 to 34 points on relatively steady Liverpool cables, early advances in foreign exchange rates, and bullish over-night spot advices from the south. Realizing was sufficient to cause some irregularity during the early trading but offerings were comparatively light, and the market developed increasing firmness during the middle of the day on continued bullish southern spot advices and the talk of a firm technical position in futures. May sold up to 33.42 and July to 32.35, making net advances of about 47 to 50 points net higher on these positions, while October sold at 28.06, or 31 points net higher. Rumors that Carolina mills were about to curtail operations and that it was not so easy to sell spot cotton caused a flurry of realizing during the early afternoon and moderate reactions but the market was steady in the late trading, and closed within 10 or 15 points of the best.

Exports today were 4,619 bales, making 3,744,205 so far this season. Port receipts 26,835. U. S. port stocks 940,674.

YOUTH CHANGING READING TASTES

Books That Used to Appeal Now Little Read By New Generation

For two or three generations, girls have been reading the Elsie books, the Little Colonel stories, the Betty books, and a series of others, until, like Little Bo Peep, they have left their tales behind them.

Such books are no longer very popular with the girls, according to statements made by Miss Lucia Powell, librarian of the Kemp Public library, Tuesday. The librarian stated that the Little Colonel series of stories are banned in many libraries over the country, and they are not carried in the local library. Several reasons are given for not carrying the books. The home of The Little Colonel was unhappy, and she is portrayed as a girl with an almost ungovernable temper. Events in her life happened just as she liked for them to happen, and the picture is more or less unreal.

The Elsie books sound very tame to the little girls of today who do not weep over the trivial things, or shed tears as copiously as little Elsie did. Many of the former popular stories for girls are banned by libraries. Some of the boys books too are passing a censorship according to the librarian. The Rover Boys series deal with the impossible things, and are just thrilling tales, and preference is given to stories true to life.

"Animal stories are popular and will always be popular," Miss Powell stated. 'Calls for books of adventure are numerous, too. Then, there are children who like to read the fairy stories, like 'Adventures of a Brownie' and that book is still in demand.

"The book, 'Little Women,' by Alcott is still fascinating too and is read by many girls. 'Black Beauty' and 'Beautiful Joe' are read by many boys and girls, and now that the books are in new editions, they are called for every day."

Other books that are not exactly new, yet are still being read are Little Pepper series. "Children like books in a series," stated the librarian. "They read one, and they like to read the others to see what happens. 'Helen's Babies,' 'Miss Minerva and William Green Hill,' and 'Water Babies' are frequently loaned."

Girls as well as boys like books of adventure, and both call for them. Some of the newer books that are appealing to the real girl before she gets to the love-story fiction, and those that appeal to the boy are: "Don Strong," and "Ill Benton," by Hyde. Among the animal stories is one by Hugh Lofting who was awarded the Newberry medal for the best juvenile book in 1923. He goes on the theory that animals can talk, and his interpretation is very clever. One of the few girl's stories for 1923 now in the library is "The Turned About Girl" by Beulah May Dix.

"Children's National Book week has done much to direct the reading of boys and girls," Miss Powell said. "Attention has been given to the type of reading matter for children and growing boys and girls. Miss Annie Carroll Moore, supervisor of the children's work of the New York Public library, has done much in bringing about a change in the literature for children. Franklin K. Matthews, Boy Scout librarian, New York City, has also devoted much time to the right kind of reading matter for them. Miss Marian Humble, head of the children's book week committee, with headquarters at New York, has also done much in the directing of reading for children.

"Parents are also guiding the reading of their children, teachers interest their pupils in the right kind of reading, magazines give reading lists for the children, showing the books that are suitable for them. Public reading hours in which chapters are read to children, and they finish the reading from their own initiative."

The library now has on its shelves many books of interest to boys and girls, stories of adventure, history and many other things of value to them. Among the volumes are:

"Wild Animals I Have Known"—Ernest Thompson-Seton.

"Scouting With Daniel Boone," "Four Boys in the Yosemite," "Four Boys on Pike's Peak," "Four Boys in the Land of Cotton," "Four Boys and a Fortune," by Tomlinson.

"Buffalo Bill and the Overland Trail," "Opening the Iron Trail," "On the Plains with Custer," (Boy Scout Books) by Sabin.

"Arkansas Bear," "College Years," by R. D. Paine.

1924 Has Started Unusually Cold

January has been cold this year. With the exception of January 9 and January 15, freezing weather has been noted for each one of the other days. The lowest temperature for the month was Sunday, January 13, when the thermometer registered a minimum of 13 degrees. The second coldest day was the first day of the year with a minimum temperature of 14 degrees.

Wednesday, January 9, was the warmest day of 1924 registering a maximum of 69 degrees and a minimum of 49, showing a range of 20 degrees throughout the day.

According to the local weather observations, the barometer has stood around 28 and 29 during the month. The normal gage for the barometer is 30, and the lowest the barometer has droped was on the warm day, January 9, when it stood at 28.64. The highest point at which the barometer stood was 29.93 on January 3.

Two days in succession the barometer stood at the same point, those days were January 2 and 3, the minimum being 24 and 21.

MUST FIGHT COX BILL, HE STATES

Mayor Collier Believes a United Front By Cities Necessary

Wichita Falls, along with many other city governments of Texas, should begin now for a united fight against the Cox bill and see that it be repealed at the next session of the legislature, was the opinion of Mayor Frank Collier yesterday in discussing the situation now between the city and the Municipal Gas company.

Mayor Collier says the Cox bill, which gives a public utility corporation the right to appeal to the rail commission, may in the future affect many Texas cities as it does Wichita Falls now.

"The repeal of the Cox bill is the only salvation of Wichita Falls now to take it out from the mercies of the gas company or any other public utility corporation that sees fit to raise its rates. Many Texas cities that do not use gas may feel the effect of the Cox bill in some other form for a gas company is not the only utility that can ask for a rate increase. As long as the Cox bill is on the statute books city governments of Texas will be in for some kind of grief sooner or later," Mayor Collier explained.

The mayor said an effort should be made, now to organize a movement among cities all over Texas to present a solid municipal front in opposition to the Cox bill at the next session of the legislature.

"As the matter now stands the gas company can make extensions for three miles out from the city in every direction. Though the city may not grow to that extent at all and will reap no benefit from it, the company can go before the commission, point out the extension, and ask for a raise in rates. The city is absolutely helpless and must take whatever ruling is given," Collier commented.

The mayor explained another way in which the Cox bill may hurt the city again. "The utility corporation can go before the rail commission and say that Wichita Falls is one of the wealthiest cities in the state. They will then argue they must have protection against the city or the city will vote bonds and build its own utility. The commission would probably agree and grant an increase on this ground.

"The fact in such an instance is the city could not vote at the present time more than $30,000 for any purpose. This would lack much of being enough to even start any kind of utility. The fact the city is in debt and is just like other Texas cities in the matter of finances, would not. In all probability, keep the commission from believing what the utility attorneys might tell it."

The way the Cox bill is now, according to Mayor Collier, it is so arranged as to be of every benefit to utility corporations and against the cities. "In case of an appeal from the decision of the rail commission, the matter goes into the courts. The rail commission being a part of the state government, means its defense will be made by the attorney general's department. This makes the city have to prove its case over the efforts of the attorney general and his department."

The fact that the chamber of commerce and the city council here are ready to carry the gas fights on into the courts and before the legislature will mean, if a victory, much for the rest of Texas as well as for Wichita Falls, the mayor believes.

SOILS AND SOIL PHYSICS.
Soil Solutions.

Yesterday we talked about some of the differences that exist between a chemical compound, a solution and a mixture.

Today we will take up the matter of solutions in the soil. All the foods that plants take up are in solution. This solution is simply water with various minerals and elements dissolved in it.

The water in the soil is constantly at work dissolving from the soil grains such minerals as may be soluble. It takes up and absorbs plant foods from dead matter such as decayed roots and the soluble parts of fertilizers such as the nitrates in manure. Through capillary action or the force of gravity these foods are carried in the water to the plant roots.

However, even if water did not move from place to place in the soil, these soluble plant foods would move. To illustrate the point: If a lump of salt is placed in a basin of water after a time it will dissolve. It then will be found that the water is equally salty from top to bottom and on all sides.

This shows that a dissolved mineral in water tends to travel in all directions until it has thoroughly penetrated the whole mass of water available uniformly.

Therefore even if soil waters did not move as they do, still the dissolved mineral matter in its does. This gives a double assurance that plant foods held in solution will reach the plant rootlets waiting to absord them.

People who have been embarrassed repeatedly on account of disfigured skin on their face, neck, arm and hands, caused by eczema, tetter, rash, boils, pimples, etc., are nearly always sensitive about these things to the point of feeling that everybody is watching them and talking about how bad they look.

They even hesitate to ask anyone's advice about getting rid of these awful things, and for this reason the wonderful Black and White Ointment is making friends by the thousands because they can get it from their nearest dealer without a lot of explanations, and use it quickly gets rid of all those skin ruiners.

The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have it.—Adv.

RADIO FANS HEAR WHISTLING BOY

Radio fans were delighted last night with the whistling of Charley Huey, 10-year old son of L. C. Huey of Wichita Falls. The boy whistled in Oklahoma City and the solos were broadcasted by the radio station from the Daily Oklahoman. The little boy has whistled several times over radio, and has appeared in public and has given several recitals. He is regarded as an unusual and remarkable whistler for one of his age. Musicians of Oklahoma City have called him "God's Special Boy."

Newspapers Now Are Essential

That newspapers are coming more and more essential in the curriculum of public schools of the country is evidenced by the manner in which school officials are urging their use, a report from State Superintendent of Schools S. M. N. Marrs, just received by County Superintendent Bryant shows.

According to the state superintendent, newspaper reading should be encouraged in all grades. "I advocate a reading table with daily newspapers, weekly and monthly periodicals, and all worth while current event publications in all our schools. We can not stress too much the value of such reading among the pupils," is part of the letter from the state superintendent.

"I thoroughly agree with Mr. Marrs in the matter. In fact I think every rural school and city school in Wichita county should be taking at least one daily paper," was the comment of Bryant.

"Many rural schools are now taking weekly news digests and using them in their history courses. I think it an excellent idea and should be sponsored by all school officials," was the remark of J. W. McDaniel, superintendent of Clay county schools, who was in the city yesterday.
