Ordovician Well in Apco Pool Flows 747.50 Barrels Day

BY FRANK GARDNER.

Full 24-hour gauge of Childress Royalty Company of Joplin, Mo. No. 1-B J. S. Masterson, quarter-mile west extender of the Apco pool in northern Pecos county, showed output of 747.50 barrels of 36-gravity sweet oil, flowing through 3/4-inch choke on 2 1/2-inch tubing. Gas-oil ratio was 1,200-1, and casing pressure 50 pounds. The well topped the Ellenberger, lower Ordovician, at 4,653 feet and was acidized with 1,000 gallons with scant results while bottomed at 4,686 feet in dolomite. Deepening to total depth of 4,724 feet it found good increases in pay, especially in the bottom 14 feet, and was re-acidized with 2,000 gallons in that horizon. The well is in section 104, block 10, H.&G.N. survey.

French Are Left to Fight It Out Alone

LONDON, June 5 (AP)—British spokesmen said last night France must stand alone ,or virtually alone, against the German onslaughts until British industries can replace the vast quantities of guns, tanks, trucks and munitions abandoned by the British Expeditionary Force in the retreat from Flanders.

There are some British troops south of the Somme and the war office made it clear that others would be sent to France as soon as possible, but the fact remains that in the meantime, the French army stands almost alone across the channel.

After—

Screaming flights of bombers thundered their lethal cargoes into Dunkirk's transquility, the scene became overly real. Behind the smoke pall in this photo, lies what remains of the French city and its harbor. Attendance Heavy at First Annual Dairy Show Held by Local Group

More than 500 citizens of Midland and surrounding counties had attended the first annual Dairy Day show sponsored by the Midland Dairy Association and the Chamber of Commerce by noon today.

More than 100 head of registered and pure bred dairy cattle, with Jerseys leading in number by a wide margin, were entered and judging was underway early this afternoon. During the forenoon, judging of dairy products was completed and lectures were being conducted this afternoon to members of Midland county women's clubs by experts from the extension service.

Judging of cattle was by score card, giving blue, red, or white ribbons to animals measuring up to certain standard. E. R. Eudaly and G. G. Gibson were judges of the cattle. Jerseys, Holsteins and Milking Shorthorns, of various age and sex classifications, were exhibited by breeders and dairymen of Midland county and several other West Texas communities. Winners in the different classes will be listed in this paper Thursday.

Club Women's Activities

In conjunction with the cattle exhibit, women of the county home demonstration clubs, under direction of Miss Alpha Lynn, county home demonstration agent, held an exhibit of dairy products including various kinds of cheeses, sweet milk, cream, and butter.

Miss Jennie Camp, food specialist of the extension service, addressed the gathering this morning on general sanitation in the making of dairy products. Illustrating her talk, various recommended types of utensils for dairy work were shown, and also a display of various dairy foods, ranging from salad, desserts, and drinks to ice cream. Club girls served as exhibitors of the various products, carrying the foods and utensils across the auditorium in the sight of the audience.

The junior summer band of the Midland schools, directed by M. A. Armstrong ,played a group of half-a-dozen selections, including: "America, the Beautiful," "Jolly Trumpeters," "The Lone Scout," "World of Music March," "Polar Bear March," and "America."

Sandwiches, salads, cakes, and milk drinks were served by the home demonstration clubwomen at lunch time.

In the afternoon, W. V. Maddox, specialist in dairy food products manufacture, conducted a group judging, with products being scored according to score cards. Ribbons were awarded according to rating of the dairy food exhibits but the list of winners was not available at press time.

A judging contest, to be entered by anyone who wished, was also

Russia Reiterates Her Determination To Remain Neutral

LONDON, June 5 (AP)—Russian circles in London declared today the allies' interest in the Black sea and Eastern Mediterranean parallel Russia's, but emphasized Russian determination to remain neutral.

Somme-Aisne Front Scene Of Big Battle

Two Million Men Said Involved as March To Paris Started

PARIS, June 5 (AP).—Supported by heavy artillery and dive-bombing planes, Germany launched a great offensive against France's newly fortified Somme-Aisne front today.

The battle line extended 125 miles eastward from the English Channel. The attack began at 4:05 a. m.

Masses of infantry moved forward in the second phase of land fighting.

The heaviest attacks were launched in the region of Amiens and along the Ailette canal below the world war battle ground of Chemin des Dames.

Nearly 2,000,000 men were engaged in the battle. Fighting, military advices said, was (besides action in the Amiens region) centered in the rectangle formed by the cities of Gafere, Laon, Anizy-le-Chateau and Chauny.

Soon after the artillery and warplane attack started, German infantry swarmed into the assault.

Armored columns waited for an opening in French lines to start their characteristic lightning dashes deep behind the French front.

Simultaneous with the assault, German bombers raided the area in central France.

Premier Reynaud voiced confidence France "can hope for a favorable issue" of the new struggle.

"We will fight to the end with our British ally for the liberty of the world," he said.

Authorized sources said tonight the French were holding everywhere with the exception of a few points where "they may fall back to more favorable positions."

Quest for Faith

Without faith, life is a desert. He who has no faith has no strength. He is like a ship drifting with neither sail, rudder, nor anchor.

Faith in something, that is. It does not so much matter in what. Faith in religion, faith in science, faith in a political system, faith in eventually getting the jackpot in the corner slot machine, faith in something.

Our weakness today is not so much in the lack of planes and cannon, as in our lack of faith. It is here that Germany gained such an initial advantage over France and England. Hitler gave the Germans faith, often an unwilling faith, often a grudging, desperate faith, faith in things which to us are unworthy and desperate, but something to which to cling.

* * *

The British "bright young people" were thoroughly disillusioned after the World War. Everything was phony. Nothing mattered. France, too, was shot through with a spirit described by a French phrase best translated as "what-the-hell-ism." This spirit was prevalent in Germany, too, in the early twenties.

But the black pall of depression descended on Germany 10 years and more before it struck westward. Men had to grasp for new and strange faiths. Such as they were, they found them.

In the other countries: cynicism. The war? A conspiracy by the armament-makers! World organization for peace? A lot of professors and politicians! Religion? The opium of the people! Labor organization? A bunch of racketeers! Democracy? Politicians gypping the people! Morality? Don't be dull!

Well, there it is. But the fun is over, and now even the brightest of the bright young people of England know that all that time they had something infinitely worth defending, worth dying for if necessary. They know it now, and in the fires of Flanders new faith is being rapidly forged. Whether it is too late, no man can tell.

* * *

Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress and one of our greatest poets, is no mere rhymer, but a poet in the real and original sense of a seer, one who looks deeply and sees clearly. He said recently: "Unless we regain the conviction that there are final things for which democracy will fight, we can leave our planes unbuilt and our battleships on paper, for we shall not need them."

He is right. The lines of that faith are clearer now with every shattering bomb that falls in Flanders. It is when they are so gravely threatened that we see at last the precious worth of freedom and religion, and tolerance, and morality, and the whole panorama of our democratic way.

Our faith in, our devotion to, these things can be felt in these hours, hardening and tempering itself in the fires of adversity. What the hour requires, man brings forth.

● SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Warned by Coach Hurd to be careful of what he says about the Tollivars, Rossy moves in, finds his new home is unusually comfortable. Judy is deightful, and openly amused by the hill boy. Rossy awakes one day to hear a shrill voice downstairs. It is his sweetheart, Hannah Shrider, come from the hills to go to school.

CHAPTER III.

ROSSY McAFEE, listening to his sweetheart from the vantage of the dark head of the stairs, wanted to laugh and swear at the same time. He was shocked at sight of Hannah Shrider; he had never before thought of her as uncouth. Dr. Tollivar and Judy listened politely.

"Well, of course," Dr. Tollivar was saying, in his quiet way, "you no doubt can do as well as Rossy. But—"

"I know father!" Judy cried. "Mrs. Patterson said, just this afternoon, that the Kingsley girl who waited table in the dining hall had not come yet, and she heard indirectly she was married and wouldn't come back to school." Judy turned to Hannah. "You could wait table, couldn't you? You could then have the other girl's room and place. Otherwise I'm afraid we're filled."

"Don't Rossy stay here?" Hannah demanded.

"Y-yes, but—"

"Then how come I couldn't stay here too?"

"But this is not a boarding house. Father is president of the college."

Hannah turned to look Dr. Tollivar over. "Your name's Tollivar, ain't it?"

"Up in our parts we shoot Tollivers on sight."

Dr. Tollivar laughed heartily. "Well, this happens not to be up where you came from, and I suspect I am not the kind of Tolliver you are thinking about. But as Judy was telling you, we are filled but for the Kingsley girl, and if you want to enter school you had better take that vacancy if you can."

"Let me call Mrs. Patterson," Judy said, and went to the phone. She talked a moment and came back. "It's all right. Father will go with you across the campus to the girls' cottage where the head housekeeper lives, and your room will be."

"Can't I see Rossy McAfee?"

"I don't think he's come in yet. I'll tell him you're here and send him over to see you when he comes."

ROSSY, still shocked, and ashamed because he felt this way, slipped back along the hall. Instead of going into his room, he crept down the back stairs and out into the yard. He saw Dr. Tollivar and Hannah, two dark figures, going through the dusk of the campus. Then, as if coming in from the gym, he entered the front door. Judy, reading under the lamp, smiled at him.

"You had a caller."

"Who?"

"You'd never guess. Some one very dear to you."

"Maw?"

"Guess again."

"Cousin Steve Hogg?"

"Cold, cold as ice."

Rossy shook his head. "Couldn't guess then. Tell me."

"You're own sweetheart, Hannah Shrider, and she's pretty, too; and I'll bet she's smart as anything. She' coming to college. Dad's just taken her to the girls' cottage. Right after supper you're to go there and see her."

"Lands sakes!" Rossy said, feigning surprise the best he could. "What do you know about that!"

DR. TOLLIVAR, returning in a quarter of an hour, said Hannah was fixed up, and then sat down to supper. As soon afterward as possible Rossy walked through the dark to the cottage which housed the maids and waitresses. Hannah was waiting anxiously in the little parlor, and when Rossy entered she flung her arms around his neck and almost choked him with kisses.

"Rossy! I just had to come! I had to. I sold my calves and shotes and heifers and taken my canning club prize money, and here I am. If you can come to college, I can come too. Al right—say something nasty, and I'll smack your ears back!"

"My heavens, Hannah!" Rossy said helplessly, and dropped on the couch. He examined Hannah. She had got out of her baggy coat and into a nice dress, and she looked comely enough. Her hair was honey, like taffy made with honey and thick maple syrup. She had the gaunt fashion of all hill folk — the spare body, the tempered muscles, of those who work.

Her air of humorous defiance gave a new fire to her hard blue eyes. She was waiting for him to say something uncomplimentary about her coming, and was ready for it.

"You ought not to of come here Hannah. I mean, without first looking after a room and board and things—why, they might not even let you in college after you got here!"

"Who's to keep me out, Rossy McAfee?"

"W-well, there's rules and regulations—"

"If they didn't keep you out, they wouldn't me. I know what's ailing you. You don't want me here. You're ashamed of me already."

"Now, Hannah—"

"Yah," she sneered, "I done heerd about you! I got it straight. You came on head of time. Put up at the big gun's place. With that Tolliver. Yes, I heerd all about it. They set you up among the high-and-mighties. They said that girl was good-looking, and she is. They said you'd be took in by their mealy-mouthed ways, and here it's less than a week and they were right—"

Already warm with anger, Rossy demanded, "Who's they? How come all this here palaver is already being toted back up to Hell'n-Damnation?" He was mystified, wondering how news of this sort could travel so far and so quickly.

"Yah!" his sweetheart sneered. "Wouldn't you like to know!"

"I think you've been in here snooping and telling lies to yourself. All right, you're here. You're a graduate of the same high school as me, and they'll take you in. But you've got to study here. I've found that out, talking with the seniors. You've got to fix yourself up, to, if you aim to stay—"

"How come I ain't fixed up all right? I'm fixed up as good as you. You ain't much else than a pop-up-foul ball, at that—"

"Ah, is that so?"

"Steve Hogg told me you was uppity and bigoted, and he was right to—"

"So it was Steve Hogg that told you all this! How come Steve knows so much?"

"He's been here, if you've got to know!"

"Steve Hogg been here? And didn't see me? How come? What's the idea? Is—is that hillbilly trying to spy on me? Coming down here and looking things over and going right back and stuffing your ear full! The low-down—"

Hannah began to pant with rage.

"You can call your blood kin low-down if you want, but you shore ain't paying a high compliment to your own self, Rossy McAfee!"

"Don't say 'shore' and don't say 'ain't'!"

HANNAH gulped. Her face took on beet color. "Well, of all things! Of all the bigoted ways! Listen here, Rossy McAfee! I'm on to you. It's a good thing somebody's looking after you, even if it's Cousin Steve, and you don't like him.

"Yes, he was down here. He come the next day after you got here. He looked around and seen—saw—and then he burnt the wind back up in Hell'n-Damnation and told me and your maw what he'd seen!"

"And that was plenty — more than plenty!"

"I'll say it was more than plenty! How you was rooming in the big house with this here Dr. Tollivar. Good and well you know he was the man that killed your paw! Good and well you know this ain't—isn't—nothing put a put-up job on you. Give you a scholarship here—make you sweep up like a girl — put you through college to play ball—"

Sh,hhhh!" Rossy cautioned. "Mr. Patterson will hear you—stop you durned yelling—"

"I'll yell all I want to, fool!" Hannah cried. "Cousin Steve Hogg has got sense even if you haven't, and he saw through it in half a minute. This here Dr. Tollivar is the same breed of dogs. He left out right after that ball game. Nobody never seen—saw—him again. He left the country. Stayed gone.

"Now here he is, running the school—come back to the edge of the hills but not in the hills, because he's a coward and a killer, and he knows it! And you stay in his house. Eat at his table, Make eyes at his gal—"

"Aah-hah, so that's it — you're jealous—"

"Its a lie. A dirty lie. I am jealous. I'm mad. I come down here to save you, that's what. You swore when you was a little boy that day you'd have an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth, and all the eye you have now is for that Judy Tollivar and all the tooth you have is for her cooking. Rossy McAfee, I hate you! I despise you!"

She spat at him, and suddenly she slapped him sprawling.

Mainland Shift Seen For Japanese Current

VANCOUVER, B. C. (UP) — Recent mild winters on the British Columbia coast are further evidence that the Japanese current is shifting closer to the mainland, according to David B. Levake, amateur meteorologist and oceanographer, and engineer on an American oil tanker playing Pacific waters.

For the last four years Levake has taken temperatures of Pacific waters as he has sailed up and down the coast.

"The temperatures from Cape Blanco north have become higher during the last two years," he said. "There is little difference in summer and winter, the average now being 60 degrees where it was previously 48 degrees.

"Off the California coast the temperature of the water has been dropping."

The Town Quack

It seems that most towns are finding instances of rumors and gossip which are embarassing citizens who have German names or who are of German ancestry. Charley Guy, "The Plainsman" in the Lubbock Avalanche, recalls how this malicious practice broke out during the World War I and advises against such hysteria again at this time. He proposes the following set-up for investigation of "fifth column" activities in the various communities:

"Every community of any size would do well to have within its confines an unpaid committee of persons whose duty it is to receive stories of subversive activities, ferret them out, and then pass the information along to constituted federal authorities.

"For instance, suppose in Lubbock we had a committee composed of one district judge, the sheriff, the chief of police, two well known intelligent and conservative business men selected by the ex-service men's associations, and an able intelligent woman.

"To any of those committee people any citizen could go, present what he believed was information essential to the well-being of the nation and its defense.

"The committee, as a whole, would consider the information, have it run down by the police, the sheriff's department, or other official groups such as the rangers or the highway patrol, and then go over the information returned by the investigating officers.

"If the story were well founded the committee could then pass the case—together with all the information pertaining thereto—to the proper federal authorities who then would act as justified.

"But if the story were found to be idle gossip and rumor, the committee would merely close it out.

"Under this system, each community would be protected against the threat of espionage, subversive activities and "Fifth Column" shenanigans, yet at the same time bandying idle gossip and rumor would be held to the minimum."

Fruit Novelty Pudding Is Delicious

Desserts can be packed with nutritious value.

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

DRIED fruits are often more economical than fresh fruits. Yet they are rich in food value and can be served deliciously. For the woman who wants a dessert that is inexpensive yet packed with nutrition, this novelty pudding is a perfect answer. Serve it after a light spring supper to complete the nutrition requirements.

FRUIT NOVELTY PUDDING
(Serves six)

Two cups cooked prunes, 4 slices small white bread cubes (approximately 8 slices), 1 cup shredded cocoanut, 4 tablespoons malted milk (dry), 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1/2 cup chopped nut meats, whipped cream or soft custard.

Pit the prunes and cut into very small pieces. Combine with bread cubes, coconut, malted milk, spice and sugar, and stir unitl well blended. Form into a roll about 10 inches long and 2 inches thick. Roll in chopped nuts. Wrap in wax paper and chill thoroughly. Cut into medium-thin slices with a sharp knife. Serve with whipped cream or soft custard. May be kept for several days.

To give fresh fruit, either sliced or stewed, a more festive note, serve these delicate cookies, too.

COCONUT DROPS
(About 3 dozen medium cookies)

One-third cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 egg yolk, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract, 1 1/2 cups flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/8 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup milk, 1 cup shredded coconut.

Cream butter until light. Add sugar and continue creaming until white and fluffy. Beat in egg, egg yolk, and vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add alternately with milk to butter mixture, beating well between each addition. Mix in coconut and drop from spoon onto a well-greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for about 18 minutes or until a golden color. Remove immediately with a spatula and cool before serving.

MENU

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit juice, creamed codfish on toast, rolls, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Tuna and celery salad in lettuce cups, buttered toast, coconut drops, tea, milk.

DINNER: Fried fillet of haddock, parsley, potatoes, broiled tomatoes, mixed greens salad, fruit novelty pudding, coffee, milk.

FEMININE FANCIES

By Kathleen Eiland

We nominate as two additional "fifth columns" on which a sharp look-out should be kept: Mob-spirit and hysteria. Neither is a friend of democracy.

* * *

Something pleasingly different in the way of dishes was noticed yesterday. On a background with a distinctly yellowish color-tone, clusters of colored fruits made an attractive decorative design. The dishes, too, are distinctive in shape, particularly the cups and the saucers or small plates.

* * *

Our vote of commendation for a good flavor for ice cream is a combination of pineapple and grape such as is used by one drug store in town.

* * *

Despite all the arguments against it, there is something that gives a distinct lift to the spirits in a bright coat of nail polish applied after a period of looking at natural-colored fingernails. By bright, however, we don't mean that degree of flashiness which draws the attention of everyone within a radius of a city block to the aforesaid fingernails. We mean the softly bright hues which one see so often these days.

* * *

Add pet abominations: Purses which rub off on dresses; nail polish which chips easily; hair that is neither straight nor curly and flies out at unbecoming tangents when an attempt is made to comb it.

We, the Women

BY RUTH MILLETT

WOMEN as a group would really amount to something if intellectual women would improve their looks and feminine feather-brains would improve their minds.

Both could be done.

Just because a woman has an impressive I. Q. coupled with an enviable amount of knowledge, it is no reason for her to think she is superior to feminine fripperies and above cloaking her strength in softness.

IT WORKS OTHER WAY, TOO

AND just because a woman looks like what a man can't live without is no reason why she needs to be content with being a dummy.

The smart girls could lead the change. Right at the start they could throw away their sensible shoes, give up their easy-to-care-for hair-do's, stop wearing tweedy suits on all occasions, and pay more attention to their figures.

They could learn other tricks from the beautiful-but-dumb group of women, too. One would be to soften that sharp, piercing, questioning look that so often goes along with keen intelligence. Men can capitalize on it—but women can't. Another good idea would be to drop the "Nonsense!" reaction with which they meet all opposiing views.

And the women who get by on femininity, and never mind the brains could learn something from the feminine smarties. They could find out that it isn't so difficult to become fairly well-informed about current topics. And that they needn't lose any of their feminine appeal by giving up the "I-don't-know-anything-about-that" line.

THERE'S LOTS OF ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

WOMEN—both types of them—are changing a little. But they'll have to go a lot further before they can amount to much as a group.

It's still too easy to spot a brainy woman by her lack of feminine attractiveness. And it can still be assumed, in nine cases out of ten, that the girl who looks like a man wants a girl to look doesn't know anything about anything.

Women can't have much real say-so, until they learn to look pretty and feminine while having their say.

With the 4-H Club Girls

Joint Meeting.

Valley View 4-H club and Prairie Lee girls club met at the home of Mrs. J. T. Meissner Tuesday afternoon, with two sponsors present.

The girls reported on their chicken-raising projects.

Miss Alpha Lynn presented a talk on insects.

Eighteen girls were present.

It Pays to Answer Other People's Phones

LONGMEADOW, Mass (U.P.) — Answering other people's telephone calls can be turned into a profitable business.

Mrs. Helen S. Usher got the idea about two years ago, and with a battery of extension telephones at her home she handles after-hours calls for several Springfield fuel oil companies, acts as liaison agent for a Boston manufacturing concern and routs repair men in the middle of the night for emergency repair jobs.

This service, operated on a 24-hour basis, is growing rapidly, and Mrs. Usher plans to expand operations to incorporate the functions of waking tired business men by telephone and reminding forgetful patrons in advance of birthdays, wedding anniversaries and important business appointments.

Conn Takes Lesnevich in Stride While Pointing for Louis Match

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

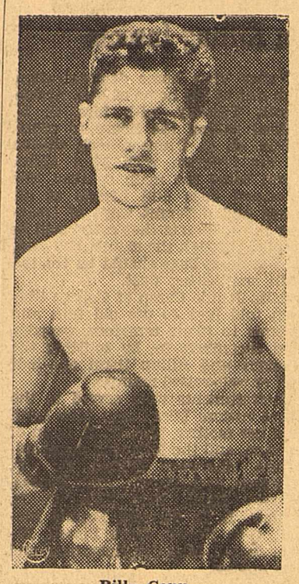

DETROIT.—Comrade Gus Lesnevich and his handlers tell you confidentially that the fate which befell Lou Ambers, Joey Archibald and Ceferino Garcia in recent weeks is in store for William Conn when the handsome Pittsburgh kid gets into the Olympic Stadium ring here for his twice postponed engagement with the Jersey Russian, tonight.

They talk as though Billy Conn had just tumbled out of a sick bed and hadn't fought for ages.

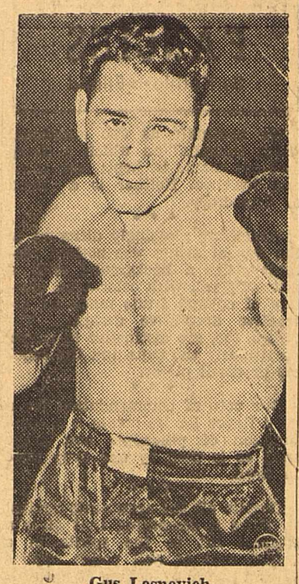

As a matter of fact, Conn has gone through two strenuous stretches of training since making a show of Henry Cooper, a tough heavyweight, at Madison Square Garden in January.

Each conditioning campaign was halted — in Miami in February, and in Detroit in early April—by an attack of boils. The Irish youth had 23 in all before he finally got them cleared up in Hot Springs.

With the boils out of his system Conn has looked better than ever in workouts at the Naval Armory here.

Billy Conn

Gus Lesnevich

CONN SHOULD REPEAT HIS VICTORY OVER LESNEVICH

SO I can't agree with Comrade Lesnevch and hs managers.

Conn won from Comrade Lesnevich rather handily in 15 rounds at the Garden last November, and should be able to repeat the performance here. The shorter-armed one-time Cliffsdale Park waiter is an earnest workman, but is more or less tailor-made for the stylist from the Smoky City.

Conn and Johnny Ray, the old lightweight who guides him, now view the crop of boils as a blessing inasmuch as the enforced layoff enabled the youngster to put on weight.

Conn and Ray have never gotten away from the main idea—to build the fighting end of the firm into a heavyweight.

That is why they would have been just as pleased to sacrifice a $2500 forfeit and vacate the light-heavyweight leadership had Conn been unable to get down to the class limit naturally.

For a time it appeared as though they would have to do just that, for Conn scaled as much as 181 a week before the match.

JACOBS OFFERED CONN $200,000 TO BOX LOUIS

RAY now is positive Conn will weigh close to 185 pounds in September, when he hopes to send him against Joe Louis. Conn has taken on 45 pounds in a little more than four years.

Mike Jacobs and Louis want a Conn-Louis match as badly as Conn.

Ray says Jacobs offers Conn a $200,000 guarantee to box Louis in the fall.

"Conn will be big enough and at the right age in September," asserts Ray. "He'll be 23 in October. "He could wait another year, but both Billy and myself believe he'll be as good this fall as he ever will be. Remember that he is in his fifth year of boxing and has grown through four divisions."

Billy Conn respects Gus Lesnevich, but is taking him in stride—with an eye on the main objective—a shot at Joe Louis.

Flying Cadets May Use '17-'18 Texas Fields

By RICHARD M. MOREHEAD
United Press Staff Correspondent.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP) — Ft. Worth citizens are speculating on the possibility that air bases here, at which Vernon Castle died during the World War training program, may be reopened under the nation's pilot-training program.

When the United States entered the World War, three large bases weer hastily constructed on the flat farmlands outside this city. Canadians trained in 1917 at Taliaferro Field, which was renamed Hicks Field when the army took it over. Sixteen squadrons of 250 men each were based at the field, in addition to cadets in training.

Land Used for Grazing.

Barron and Carruthers Fields each served eight squadrons and fledgling cadets. Hicks and Barron fields still could be made quickly into suitable airports, although they have been used since the war for grazing and the remaining hangars have esrved as barns for livestock of the owners.

Carruthers Field has been bisected by a road, and a few buildings have been constructed on the edge of the former landing area.

It was at Carruthers that young Vernon Castle, who with his wife, Irene, formed the dancing team that set styles for the western world in that era, died. Castle, a captain in the Canadian air force, was an instructor. On a flight with a student, the plane was preparing to land when another cadet's ship appeared directly in the path of Castle's.

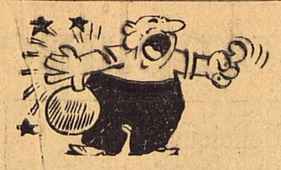

The famous teacher pulled his ship up sharply, but it lacked the power to prevent a crash, and Castle was dying when he was pulled from the wreckage.

Accidents Were Frequent.

Accidents were frequent at the three fields, because the planes were flimsy and the training hasty. Pilots were guided by railroad tracks and their principal worry was not the enemy, but whether they could nurse their ships back home without losing the motor or a wing.

Rep. Fritz G. Lanham of Fort Worth said that the army was considering re-commissioning one or more of the fields under the primary training program which purposes to train 50,000 civilians a year. Randolph and Kelly Fields, the army's main training schools, are at San Antonio and the navy is preparing to build a huge naval air base at Corpus Christi.

Fliers have pointed out that Texas is particularly suited for pilot-training, in that the terrain is not difficult and the weather is temperate enough to give a maximum of good training conditions.

COWBOYS DROP 14-9 DECISION TO CLOVIS

To Meet League Leaders Next Three Nights

CLOVIS, June 5. (Special). — In a wild battle of hits, runs and errors, the Clovis Pioneers evened the series with the Midland Cowboys here last night by capturing a 14-9 decision.

Bob Johnson, a brother of Midland's Rankin Johnson, started on the mound for the Cowboys and the Pioneers got to him for five runs in the first frame. The Cowboys picked up three in their half of the first. Bob Mitchell relieved Johnson in the fourth but the game was already lost.

The Cowboys pecked away at Roscoe Hunt for 13 hits, the same number acquired by the Pioneers, but could not bunch them as effectively.

The Midland team will be in Amarillo for the next three nights, playing two games Thursday night.

Score by innings:

Midland	310	203	000—	9	13	3

MUSTANG BOYS' CLUB COLUMN

A Chinese mystery must be solved tonight by the Mustang "XYZ" gang. All boys will be needed to unravel this Oriental mystery. This promises to be an interesting "Detective Derby." "The Yellow Mole," whom the Mustangs helped to catch last summer has escaped from San Quentin and is headed in this direction.

The Big Trip to Big Spring Saturday. Over 100 boys have qualified for this trip. A gang of about 150 Big Spring boys have invited the Musty Mustangs to be their guests for a day at the Big Spring park. These boys are providing the food, entertainment and fun for the Musties. The big cattle truck leaves the Mustang club at 7:30 this coming Saturday. All you need to bring is a broad smile and a good appetite. Also bring your swimming trunks and 15 cents if you wish to swim. Two swims for 15 cents. The ball players should bring their Mustang shirts and gloves as there will be a ball game in the afternoon. You will get all the dope on this trip tonight.

The boys from Crane wil play the Mustangs in a game of hard ball either Tuesday or Thursday morning of next week.

Quite a few boys have started earning the free trip to the mountains. One boy made 50 points the first day. That is almost enough points for the trip. Herschel Parkis broke the Mustang knot tying record yesterday by tying 10 standard knots in 35 2/5 seconds. This alone gave him 15 points. A number of boys are bringing handicraft and a lot of them are getting points in safety. Several have taken the Bicycle Safety Test but will have to be examined again after getting their brakes fixed, a horn, a rear reflector, a front light and copy the Bicycle safety rules. Some are picking up all the glass and nails in their yard as a Home Safety requirement. Points on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday mornings.

Don't forget those swims Wednesday and Friday mornings for 5 cents.

Farm Surplus In U. S. Hands At New Peak

WASHINGTON. (UP). — The evernormal granary reserve supply of surplus agricultural products has reached record levels and is expected to be materially increased this year, according to Department of Agriculture reports.

The reserve supply of these products held fy the Commodity Credit Corporation under loan to producers, or woned by the corporation, is valued at nearly $1,000,000,000, according to latest reports by the corporation.

The corporation disclosed that it has taken over products valued at $471,633,000 in default of loans to growers. tI has loans outstanding on products having a book value of $$478,761,000. Both groups are comprised chiefly of cotton, corn, wheat and tobacco.

Loans 300 Millions.

Last year the corporations made loans to producers on 12 commodities. These were: cotton, corn, wheat, rye, tobacco, peanuts, figs, butter, wool, mohair, turpentine and resin. These loans totaled approximately $300,000,000.

The corporation's plans to expand 1940 loans were indicated in it request to Congress for authorization to increase its almost exhausted borrowing power from 900,000,000 to $1,400,000,000.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace has authorized the corporation to make loans averaging 64 cents a bushel on 1940 wheat, about 35 cents a bushel on rye and 30 cents a bushel on barley. This is the first time that a barley loan has been authorized.

Loans are considered virtually certain on 1940 cotton and corn, as well as most, if not all, other commodities on which 1939 loans were made The cotton loan is expected to be around 9 cents a pound and corn at between 57 and 62 cents a bushel.

The corporation now owns approximately 6,600,000 bales of cotton valued at $375,000,000 and has loans outstanding on 2,700,000 bales valued at about $132,000,000. All except 22,000 bales of that total was produced prior to 1939.

Corn Holding Huge.

Since the first loan program in 1933 the corporation has made loans to farmers on 857,268,000 bushels of corn. It now either owns or has loans outstanding on 514,000,000 bushels of that total valued at $307,150,000.

Loans were made in 1938 and 1939 on 350,000,000 bushel of wheat. Of that amount the corporation either owns or has loans outstanding on 106,000,000 bushels valued at $75,000,000 under the loan rate of 60 cents a bushel in 1938 and 70 cents a bushel in 1939.

Tobacco loans have been made on 253,311,000 pounds, of which 178,000,000 pounds was from the 1939 crop. Loans are outstanding on 194,000,000 pounds, valued at $39,807,000, according to latest reports by the corporation.

Most Destructive Battle of History Ended at Dunkerque

BERLIN, June 5. (AP). — Adolf Hitler's high command announced last night the conclusion of "the greatest destructive battle of all times," with the capture of hard-held Dunkerque along with 40,000 prisoners, and then threatened the French and British with "total destruction."

It told the German people that they could be certain "that final victory is ours," now that Flanders is won.

Suggestion that a big offensive might thus be in the making in the south toward Paris were accompanied by a jubilant rceapitulation in which the high command said that English, French, Belgian and Dutch prisoners numbered 1,200,000 since May 10, exclusive of an undetermined number killed and wounded.

The message from the front—a message which was read over all German radio stations after the public had for an hour been told repeatedly to listen in, thus directly challenged the Allies:

"Inasmuch as the enemy still spurns peace, the fight will be carried on to his total destruction!"

In a preview of the western campaign, the high command asserted equipment for from 75 to 80 divisions had been captured from the enemy; that from May 10 through yesterday the nazis had shot down 1,841 enemy planes in air battle and with anti-aircraft, and that an additional 1,600 to 1,700 had been destroyed on the ground.

As to the sea operations, it was delared that in the battle of Flanders the British navy lost five cruisers, seven destroyers, three submarines, nine other warships, 66 transports and commercial ships.

All these vessels, the high command said, were sunk by bombs.

In addition, light German naval units reported the sinking of six destroyers, two submarines, one transport, one auxiliary cruiser and one other war vessel.

The high command's report added that bombs also seriously damaged 10 cruisers, 24 destroyers, three torpedo boats, 22 other war vessels, 117 transports and commercial vessels in the Flanders action — "one of the greatest catastrophes of history."

German lives lost in the Flanders battle were put at 10,252 with 8,463 missing and 45,523 wounded.

It was acknowledge that 432 German planes were lost, but it wts declared that the German navy lost no ships whatever.

The announcement of the fall of Dunkeque—the last Allied stronghold in the north and the channel port through which their fleeing armies had streamed for days in the historic retreat from Flanders—was accompanied by the jubilant observation that now the entire French and Belgian channel coast down to the Somme Estuary was in German control.

Louisiana's Demos Are Uninstructed

BATON ROUGE, June 5. (AP).—Louisiana's delegates will go to the national democratic convention uninstructed.

Last night the state convention refused to approve a third term for President Roosevelt, although it did adopt a resolution warmly praising the president as a contributor to democracy and social reform.

It directed the state's 20 votes be cast as a unit at Chicago.

Defense Tax Bill Of Over Billion Cited by Senate

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—The extraordinary defense tax bill was boosted to around $1,000,000,000 a year Tuesday, while the administration pressed forward with its arms program, including the controversial request for authority for President Roosevelt to mobilize the national guard in an emergency.

The tax measure, originally intended to raise about $656,000,000 a year, was revamped by the House Ways and Means Committee in view of recent additions to the defense program. The committee also approved a plan to raise the national debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000. The new ceiling would be $1,000,000,000 higher than has been contemplated up to now.

A high official asserted that President Roosevelt's request for power to call out the guard was based upon a possibility that the militiamen might be needed, at short notice, to relieve regular army units who might be sent to emergency trouble spots.

If called to peace-time service, it was said emphatically, the plan was that the guard would be on duty within the United States, while the regulars proceeded to the Panama Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, or wherever a threat to American security might arise.

Mr. Roosevelt's proposal, sent to Congress in his second special defense message last week, had aroused a considerable controversy, and encountered opposition of apparently formidable proportions. It was virtually the only item of the defense program to be so received at the capitol.

Mr. Roosevelt elaborated upon last week's message with a letter to Speaker Bankhead requesting appropriations and contract authorizations of $1,277,741,170, with which to start work on 68 new warships, build large numbers of military aircraft, build new and improve old army and navy air bases, and buy guns, munitions and many other items.

The sum pushed the cost of regular and emergency defense items to $4,600,000,000, and as the cost grew a marked inclination displayed itself to increase the wield of the emergency defense tax bill. Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference the more that could be raised, and paid as the program progresses, the better it would be.

Later in the day, the House approved a compromise $1,492,542,750 naval appropriation bill for the coming fiscal year and forwarded it to the Senate for ratification of House changes after rejecting a Republican attempt to earmark specifically a $68,000,000 fund which is to be spent in the President's descretion.

By a roll-call vote of 234 to 165, the House beat down the amendment by Rep. Plumley, (R-Vt). The Chief Executive had asked that he be allowed to use his own discretion in spending certain sums but said he intended to use it chiefly to accelerate construction of equipment.

At his press conference, meanwhile, Mr. Roosevelt announced the previously expected resignation of Charles Edison as Secretary of the Navy, and said that he expected to institute savings in numerous branches of the government in the next fiscal year which would return some $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 of appropriations to the Treasury.

Band Will Present Concert Tomorrow Night at Courthouse

The Senior Band will make its first public appearance downtown tomorrow evening at 7:30 on the south court house lawn. The band is not large in numbers but is composed of hard-working musicians who meet at the band hall three times each week for rehearsals. Several ex-band students will be playing in this program. They are: Fred Gordon Middleton, clarinetist, Robert Blalock and Jimmy Pickering, bass horn player, and E. J. Ragsdale and Forest Hunter, drummers. Other players are invited and urged to rehearse and play in concerts with this band.

Fred Middleton will soon return to college or make a trip to Chicago with his music teacher. All indications show that he is making a big success in all phases of college work. He continues to "steal the show" in entertainments of various kinds that the college sponsors, M. A. Armstrong said. Forest Hunter has been attending the state University and has not forgotten his "stick technique" with his drumming. He plans to play in the band during the summer. Blalock and Pickering are fine bass horn players. Blalock is also a fine bass horn and cymbal player. Pickering received a medal for a second place in the state bass horn solo contest. Ragsdale may not be present tomorrow evening but his principal instrument is the drum.

George Walker rehearsed with the band Monday evening but expressed regret that he would be unable to play tomorrow as he is making a trip with the Cowboy Band at Abilene to play for a rodeo. He plans to play the summer band here and has been appointed by Armstrong as assistant director. He is a specialist on the flute and piccolo and is studying several other instruments.

Following are the numbers on the program: "Ma, He's Making Eyes At Me," "The Woodpecker Song," "The Little Red Fox," "Flag of Freedom," "Liberty Bell." (This is a patriotic march with words, recently accorded nation-wide acclaim when featured on a broadcasting program by Meredith Willson and his orchest), and the "University of Dayton."

This will be a free program and the public is invited.

TO MY FRIENDS IN MIDLAND:

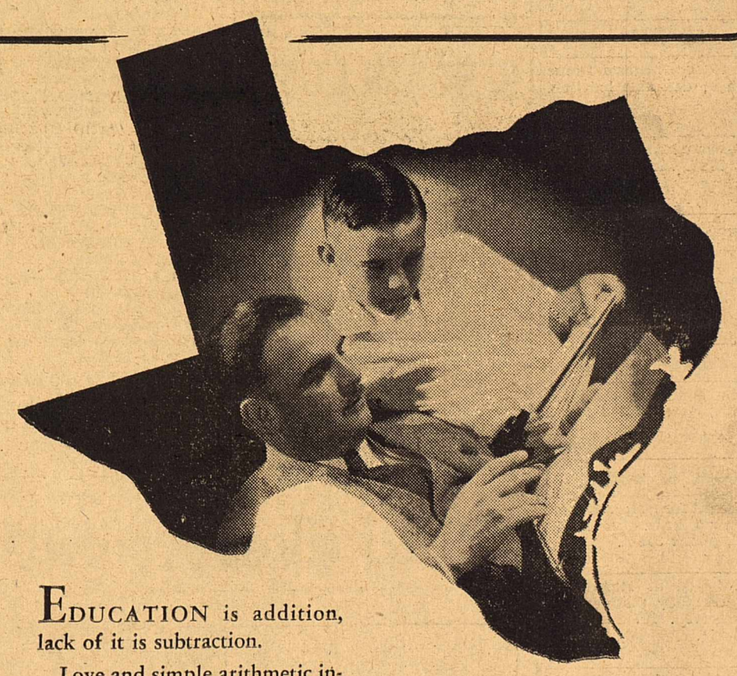

Recently during my illness a petition for help for me was circulated among Midland people and some funds were collected. I wish to state that this petition was circulated and funds collected without my knowledge, and while I deeply appreciate the kindly response, wish to say that same was entirely unnecessary and consequently, most embarrassing.

I would appreciate it if those who contributed to this fund would inform me the amount of their contributions in order that I may reimburse them.

I feel it my duty to my family and myself to make this statement.

Respectfully,
G. E. (Eldred) Jones
