Catania's Fall Believed Near

British Roll On In Edge Of Flaming, Shell-Pitted City

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17.—The British Eighth Army fought a stubborn German foe on the edge of flaming, shell-pitted Catania today, and the battle for that port prize half-way up the eastern Sicilian coast had entered the final stage.

On the southern Sicilian coast American troops occupied Agrigento, a key road junction and Axis troop concentration center. Agrigento represents a 12-mile gain from the last known American position, and is 25 miles northwest of the original beachhead at Licata. The town is three miles inland from Porto Empedocle.

Still another Italian general, erstwhile commander of a costal division was captured. His name was not announced immediately.

Nazis Beaten Into Retreat

Capturing Lentini, 15 miles below Catania, and Scordia, nine miles inland, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops broke the back of one German armored division and parts of another in one of the most decisive engagements yet fought in Sicily. Enemy remnants then retreated toward Catania in a last effort to prevent capture of that city, whose fall would give the Allies control of a great part of Sicily.

Southwest of the tank-strewn Catania plain Canadian troops captured Caltagirone, and farther west the Americans had penetrated 30 miles inland in the Allied invasion only a week old.

While the Eighth Army rolled up the Axis coastal flank the Canadians pushed on through Caltagirone to hit the enemy on the other side. Caltagirone's fall denied the Axis a vital east-west road needed for the mobilization of German-Italian strength around Catania.

American and Canadian troops to Montgomery's left struck deep into the heart of the enemy's defenses in central Sicily, pulling their line up abreast of the Eighth Army's.

City Taken Without Fight

The Canadians occupied Caltagirone, 28 miles due west of Lentini, without any fighting at all, an captured Grammichele, six miles east, after a minor fracas.

Yank Veterans Fight In Sicily

Four Divisions Saw Service In Africa

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17 (AP) — Four veteran divisions and a fifth that has never seen action in this war are fighting in Sicily in the new American Seventh Army under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr.

The 45th division, many of whose troops were drawn from Oklahoma and other areas of the southwest, got its baptism of fire when the invasion started. The division is commanded by Maj. Gen. Troy H. Middleton.

Allen's First Division

The most experienced American outfit rolling back the Axis flank is the first division of Maj. Gen. Terry Allen. It took severe losses in the Kasserine Pass battle in Tunisia in mid-February and came back again to score against the Germans at El Guetar and in the Bizerte drive.

"I am a First Division guy" used to be heard freqsently boasted at the soldiers' clubs in North Africa before the second European front opened.

The 82nd Airborne division under Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway furnished the elements whirh made the epir flight from Britain to North Africa on the first day of the Allieh attack in November. Its glider- b orne and transport-borne infantry are among the finest trained assault units in the world. Sicily Viewed As Invasion Pattern

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 17 — The imminent prospect of a clean-cut victory in Sicily has confirmed the Allied formula for an amphibious assault on western Europe and suggests strongly in the view of some observers that the same pattern will work against Adolf Hitler's Atlantic wall of western France.

There is no intention to imply, these sources pointed out, that the Germans are relying on mere scarecrow defenses. However, reports from the Mediterranean front of surprisingly low Allied casualties and rapid progress throw a clearer light on the Nazi theme of impregnability.

Ruinous Bombshelter

The ascendency of Allied air power leaves little doubt that the RAF and the Eighth U. S. Air force will be able to lay down the same ruinous preliminary bombshower and maintain the same efficient umbrella over an Allied landing on the French coast as over Italy's sorely-stubbed Sicilian toe.

To Major Gneral Leonard Townsend Gerow, former chief of the United States Army's staff war plans division and newly appointed commander of American forces in Britain, goes part of the task of preparing and executing any invasion move in this theater.

General Gerow, it was announced yesterday, replaces Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle who brought the

Reds Cut Down Thousands Of Germans In Advance On Orel

Parts Of Area Get Good Rain

A blanket of heavy clouds Saturday night held the threat of additional precipitation over the South Plains.

Spotted showers hit the area yesterday afternoon on the heels of some of the highest temperatures of the summer. Lubbock received a light fall about 4 o'clock.

A heavy rain was reported in the Lubbock Army Air field vicinity. At Shallowater about one-half inch fell, according to Mrs. C. C. Vance, operator of a hatchery there. A greater amount was believed to have hit Shallowater environs.

Heavy Northwest

A "big rain" fell Friday night in a section a bout five miles northwest of that community, farmers said.

One-third of an inch was received Saturday morning to hike Littlefield's total for the month to over five inches, the County-Wide News reported.

A Plainview drug store reported that no rain had fallen there Saturday, but that the area was visited by a shower the preceding night.

A "nice shower" fell in Levelland about 7:30 o'clock, information from there said.

New Chief Is Named At Internment Camp

GLADEWATER, July 17. (UP)—Maj. Walter L. Parker was named new commanding officer of the Camp Fannin internment camp today. Parker, who formerly was the executive officer at Camp Fannin, will take over his new duties Monday.

A former Knoxville, Tenn., lawyer, Parker is a veteran of 27 years in the Army and Navy.

Four More Towns Taken; Nazi Plane, Tank Losses Heavy

LONDON, Sunday, July 18 (AP) The Red Army smashed six to eight miles closer to the Nazi fortress of Orel yesterday, capturing four more villages and cutting down thousands of German reserves hastily hurled into the breach in a furious effort to halt the massive Soviet drive on that city, it was announced early today in Moscow.

Battlefront dispatches said Soviet heavy artillery now was within range of the vital communications hub seized by the Germans in the fall of 1941.

Reds Restore Positions

A special communique and a midnight bulletin also announced that Russian troops had "completely restored" their positions in the sector between Orel and Kursk to the south where the German offensive, begun July 5, had failed "with unprecedented losses in manpower and equipment."

The special communique issued late last night said that in Friday's fighting in the Orel-Kursk sectors, 168 German tanks were knocked out, and 106 planes shot down.

In Saturday's battles the later bulletin said that a total of 77 tanks were knocked out and 94 artillery and mortar batteries destroyed along with hundreds of enemy supply trucks.

At least 4,300 more Germans fell yesterday as the Russians swept on, beating down German reserves and gravely menacing Orel's defenses-in-depth and the railway behind the city running northwest to Bryansk.

Use Tanks As Pillboxes

German tank crews again were burying their machines and using them and their guns as immobile pillboxes, the Russians said.

The Red airforce was laying down a hail of fire to cover the advancing Russians who, admittedly, were meeting desperate re-

Equalizing Of Rationing Set

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP) — Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes announced tonight that he expects to equalize gasoline rationing in the area between the east coast and the Rocky mountains within the next 30 to 60 days.

Ickes said that completion on Monday of the "Big Inch" pipeline from Texas to the east coast will release a large number of railroad tank cars which can be used to divert gasoline from the midwest and southwest to the eastern seaboard, and thus make possible the equalization. No change was indicated for the west coast.

The discrepancy which Ickes said may soon be remedied now gives an eastern "A" book holder less than 1½ gallons per week, none of which can be used for pleasure driving, while a similar driver in the midwest or southwest has 4 gallons a week to use as he pleases.

May Cut Southwest

"How much gasoline the average motorist will get when this equalization is possible," Ickes added, "cannot be predicted now, but in all probability it will mean some increase in the east and a

Panic On Excursion Boat Fatal To Eight

EAST TAWAS, Mich., July 17. (AP)—Bodies of eight boys and girls, drowned last night when panic swept an excursion barge, had been recovered from Tawas Bay today as dragging operations continued for the body of a ninth listed as missing.

The young people leaped from the barge into the bay when they became panic stricken as the vessel started to ship water. Several others who also jumped were rescued.

Woman Who "Slept" For 33 Years Dies

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, July 17 (AP)—Anna Swanepoel, who "slept" for 33 years, died in a poorhouse here today at the age of 53.

She was 20 when a young farmer with whom she was in love killed himself, and hysterical cattalepsy, followed by complications, induced the long sleep from which she partly awoke, occasionally murmuring a few words but never referring to the tragedy.

Doctors here said they thought no other person ever has been similary afflicted for so long a time.

Bombers Down 50 Fighters In Scrap With 200

Clear-Cut Victory Scored As Others Pound Amsterdam

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, July 17— Tight-flying formations of U. S. heavy bombers, returning from northwest Germany unescorted, beat off more than 200 enemy fighters in one of the most clear-cut victories of the bomber-versus-fighter war over western Europe today while another group, with fighter escort, gave Amsterdam its first American bombing.

The Americans downed upwards of 50 enemy fighters againts a loss of two bombers in a running battle that lasted half an hour. Some crews reported between 50 and 75 Messerschmitt and Focke-Wulf attacks.

Score Nearly 100 To 10

Thus the Fortresses brought their lop-sided score for two conflicts in four days to almost 100 fighters downed against perhaps 10 bombers lost.

In the Amsterdam raid the Americans were escorted by Thunderbolt fighters and returning crews reported that few enemy planes got far enough through the protective screen even to be seen by the bombers.

The unusually large number of fighters encountered by the bombers indicated that "the enemy is apparently maintaining its strong defenses over northwest Germany despite demands from other fronts," air force headquarters said.

Major Virgil L. Emerson, 26, of Ames, Iowa, who led one group of Forts, said the Nazis were "as persistent as hell. It was obvious from the way they flew that they were not cadets."

In their latest previous raids—on Bastile Day over France—the bombers were credited with at least 45 of the 51 fighters shot down. Total Allied losses that day were Eight Fortresses and RAF medium bombers.

Only Part Of Show

The American communique today said the big bombers succeeded in hitting selected industrial targets. They were only part of massive formations of Allied bombers and fighter-intruders which paraded across the channel from sunrise to late afternoon, one series of formations in late afternoon stretching all the way from London to Folkestone on the coast.

They followed night forays in

Pressure Increases On Japs At Kiska

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — The North Pacific command, increasing its pressure on Japan's Kiska island outpost, threw heavy and medium bombers as well as warships into the most recently reported onslaughts against the enemy garrison there, the Navy disclosed today.

An American warship, probably a cruiser or destroyer, started the assault, which could be in the nature of softening up operatoins for a landing on Kiska, with an attack on Gertrude Cove, southwest of Kiska harbor, on Thursday. Enemy guns failed to return the fire—possibly a bit of playing dead by the Japanese for the purpose of concealing their key defense positions.

The attack by naval guns was followed up, today's communique revealed, by a force of Army Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers and Lightning fighters.

20 Dazzling Minutes Bring Great Victory In Solomons

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, July 18.—More than 200 United States bombers, dive bombers, heavy bombers and fighter planes—greatest force ever sent against Japan in the south and southwest Pacific—sank seven ships, including a cruiser and two destroyers, and downed 49 Japanese planes Saturday in 20 minutes of dazzling action in the northern Solomons.

The big force struck at the Buin-Faisi harbor—northern terminal of the "Tokyo express," those fast warships which the Japanese try to slip in at night to aid garrisons in danger of falling, such as their imperilled air base at Munda to the south of yesterday's brilliant action.

Nearly Half Of Convoy

Dauntless dive bombers, Avenger torpedo bombers, Liberator and Flying Fortress four-engined heavy bombers, Corsairs and Lightnings started great fires and destroyed nearly half of the warships and merchantmen in the harbor at Buin-Faisi, southern Bougainville.

In addition to the light cruiser—the communique said it was either that or a destroyer leader—and the two destroyers, a submarine chaser, a tanker and two cargo ships were blasted to the bottom of the anchorage.

The price the Americans paid for the big aerial victory was six planes.

A third cargo vessel was so badly damaged by the raiders that it had to be beached.

Support Jungle Fighters

Below Bougainville on New Georgia, Dauntless dive bombers supporting our jungle fighters moving south toward Munda attacked enemy positions in the Bairoko area.

There was no further report of ground action around Munda, where some of our advanced patrols have penetrated within less than two miles of the air base.

As the forerunner for the heavy assault on the Buin-Faisi shipping, a heavy force of Liberators and Flying Fortresses attacked the nearby Kahili airdrome, starting early in the evening of July 16. The series of attacks lasted nine hours, starting many fires and probably knocking out a number

Allies Win Full Mastery In Air

Ports And Bases Pounded At Will

By DANIEL De LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17.—Allied air units, which scored one of the war's most decisive aerial victories by virtually clearing the Mediterranean skies of Axis planes, closed out the first week of the Sicilian invasion with furious new attacks on enemy supply ports and air bases all along the southern coast of the Italian mainland.

While fighters and fighter-bombers continued their non-stop assault on Axis positions all over Sicily yesterday, heavy and medium bombers from North Africa and the Middle East battered San Giovanni, Vibo Valentia, Reggio Calabria and Bari in daylight attacks which carried the aerial onslaught again around the clock.

Hit Previous Night

San Giovanni, Vibo Valentina and Reggio Calabria also were hit the previous night along with an air field at Crotone, and an Allied headquarters communique said many bombs were seen to burst in the target areas, starting numerous fires.

San Giovanni, mainland ferry port directly across the strait from the vital Sicilian harbor of Messina and principal embarkation point in the Axis lifeline from Italy, was hit in daylight by American Flying Fortresses after RAF Wellingtons had pounded it by night.

Devastating loads of high explosives were dumped on docks, railroad sidings and the ferry line itself and aerial photographs showed at least 50 direct hits in the target area.

American Liberators from Middle East bases attacked the Bari airdrome, enemy fighter base high on the Italian boot, covering hangars, administration buildings, dispersal areas and runways with concentrations of bombs.

U. S. Guns Beat Germany's Best

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
Representing the Combined American Press Distributed by the Associated Press

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN SICILY, July 14 (Delayed) — American anti-tank guns can knock out the Germans' toughest and biggest tank—the Mark VI Tiger. Today I saw how it was done. I was not there to see the actual kill but reached the spot in time to feel the quivering sides of a dying tank, still hot and panting its last breath.

High on a hillside lay concealed a single American gun. Presently around a corner in a road came a Tiger, its huge snout sticking out blackly, its 27-inch caterpillar treads smoothly carrying its vast bulk over the asphalt. It presented its flank.

Move Proved Fatal

That was fatal. One shot penetrated one of its rubber tired "boogie" wheels which run upon its caterpillars. The tank stopped. Two more shots struck the turret and bounced back after penetrating three inches.

The tank began to burn. Evidently the first shot had reached the gasoline container. As smoke swirled up and flames burst from all its crevices the turret top flew open and the tank crew scrambled out. Two, three or four figures could be seen but smoke concealed their escape.

Now there is no weapon of the enemy which the Americans have not met and mastered.

Exposed Garbage Cans Here To Bring Charges On Owner

GARBAGE cans exposed to flies will bring filing of misdemeanor charges by the city health department, it was announced Saturday afternoon by Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer, who, empowered by ordinance, acted in another attempt to block the ravages of dread polio—infantile paralisis—which last week caused one death and diagnosis of five other cases in Lubbock.

Dr. Rollo, supported by all members of the medical fraternity, had asked during the week that "all logical resources cooperate toward the end that polio's occurrance in this area be shortened, if possible," said his warning was in interest of the greater number, and that it should not be taken lightly.

Only the day before, Nancy Carrol Jones, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mr. Tate Jone of Floydada, had died in a Lubbock hopital, approximately a week after she had contracted the diease. Admitted to treatment here, her chances were described as unfavorable from the beginning. Funeral services were read at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Floydada, by Rev. L .A. Doyle, pastor of the Floydada Baptist church.

Dr. Rollo further cited in support of his warning, suggestions made by other cities seeking to control the polio epidemic, among them a broadcast pamphlet from Fort Worth.

Pamphlet Is Quoted

The pamphlet so read:

"The city and county health departments want to bring the following facts with regard to poliomyelitis to your attention and to solicit your cooperation in the halting of the spread of this epidemic. Italians Told Remaining In War Is "Least Bad" Choice

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 17.—Stefani, official Italian news agency, declared tonight that the entire text of the Roosevelt-Churchill demand for Italy's surrender had been printed by the Fascist press, which answered it by reiterating Mussolini's word that it defeated the Italians would be "left only their eyes to weep with."

Swiss dispatches said the Rome correspondent of the Tribune De Geneve reported that the press had reminded the Italians of the presence of their Nazi allies and generally expressed the opinion that Italy now has only one choice—"not the best but the least bad."

That choice was said to be to try to stop the invasion, and if unable to do so then try to hold the Allied position on a determined line.

The most disastrous of Italy's possibilities, the newspaper said, would be an effort to step out of the conflict and make Italy the base of an attack on Europe with demands on it greater than those it must now meet.

"It is very improbable that the Germans on Italian soil would withdraw without resistance and Italy therefore would become a battlefield," the dispatch quoted the press as saying.

Swiss dispatches said the Journal De Geneve, commenting on the Roosevelt-Churchill message, declared there was no doubt that Italy is "tired of war" and that there were "millions" discontented but not a single organization in the country capable of uniting the opposition.

The message, the editorial said, seemed to forget that Italy is "not mistress of her own destiny, that she is bound by the reich; that even if the regime wished to end hostilities — which it does not dream—it is unable to stop them."

Texas Oilmen Set To Fill Big Inch

By BRACK CURRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Texas oil industry today was getting set to send crude oil sloshing into the Big Inch pipeline directly to the East coast while authoritative oil men predicted that the crude price issue had reached a critical point.

Meanwhile the Petroleum Administration for War directed the Texas industry to hike production 90,000 barrels a day in August. The new net daily allowable schedule issued Saturday set production at 1,817,937 barrels.

The new certification will inflate the daily flow of all oils to 1,817,937 barrels, some 200,000 barrels a day below the peak capacity estimated for the state.

Completion Due Monday

Monday at Phoenixville, Pa., government officials will oversee completion of the eastern leg of the 24-inch line that runs from Longview, Tex. to New York and Philadelphia refineries. Soon thereafter Texas wells will supply 100,000 barrels of oil daily to fill the new eastern section.

Pumping began at Norris City last Wednesday. Oil now is moving eastward at the rate of 33 and a third miles a day.

Conferences in Washington this week among top-ranking government officials prompted Texas oil circles to cautious optimism on the crude price issue.

Thompson Sees Consideration

Returning from Washington talks with Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson, Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson suggested that the oil producing ability of the nation is "at least getting real consideration at the hands of the responsibile heads of government."

Wirt Franklin, newly appointed special field assistant to the deputy petroleum administrator, announced he would advocate an early boost of "not less than an average of 35 cents a barrel" in the ceiling price of crude throughout the country.

Upon sweet crude producing fields the PAW shouldered 78,000 barrels of the 90,000 barrel daily production increase for next month. Many Gulf coast and southwest fields are flowing at capacity rates.

West Texas' Quota Raised

Though the federal directive did not allude to the flush reserves in the Permian basin of West Texas, the commission's order upped West Texas' allowable 12,000 barrels daily.

The August order set the Gulf coast district's allowable 90,000 barrels a day above July.

In a communication to the Railroad commission read at the statewide proration hearing Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies directed that the state's production increase be produced from sweet crude fields and made available to the Longview terminal of the Big Inch line.

Non-Sulphur Crudes Asked

The directive followed PAW's rigid policy of demanding nonsulphur bearing crudes for processing into aviation gasolines and other war products, though tests by government specialists have confirmed that by simple desulphurizing processes war by-products can be derived from sour crudes.

Higher allowables for West Texas await construction of pipelines to the middle west or to the West coast.

Though West Texas producers still wade in ample reserves of unmovable oil, events this week emphasized that the crest of transportation problems has passed.

To Release Tank Cars

With the opening of the last leg of the big inch line, hundreds of tank cars that have been ferrying crude from the Norris City terminal to the East will be released. By diverting these cars to the direct Texas-to-East coast route, the government can further release the flood of crude pouring from Texas wells.

New tankers are spilling from shipyards at a fast clip.

Completion of the 20-inch products line that parallels the Big Inch conduit from Texas to the East further will speed the movement of crude by releasing additional rail tank cars.

Tugboats Are En Route

En route from Boston to the Gulf coast to transport oil on the Texas-Louisiana intra-coastal canal are the first of 100 new tugboats.

That imposing future federal production increases upon Texas coastal fields will threaten the state's conservation program was foreshadowed by comments of leading oil men and by the Railroad commission's decision to probe for maximum production figures.

Commenting Saturday on the increased production ordered from sweet crude fields, Railroad Commissioner Ernest Thompson warned that "there is a limit to the amount of oil that can be produced from present wells."

"We are dangerously close to it now," he said.

Capt. Joe Bailey Jr. Dies Of Pneumonia

DALLAS, July 17. (AP)—Capt. Joseph Weldon Bailey, jr., son of the late Texas senator, died this morning in a hospital at Camp Howze, Gainesville, of pneumonia which developed after an auto wreck a week ago.

Captain Bailey suffered head injuries and remained unconscious after the wreck until his death. Stationed at Norman, Okla., with the Marine Corps, Captain Bailey was en route to Dallas to visit his wife and son, when his auto was involved in a three-car crash, near Gainesville.

Mrs. Bailey and her son, Joseph Weldon Bailey, III, were in Gainesville at the time of Captain Bailey's death.

Born in Gainesville, Dec. 15, 1892, Captain Bailey was the son of the late Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey, and Ellen Murray Bailey. After the death of his father, Captain Bailey took over the law firm founded by the senator, and practiced law here until the outbreak of the war.

Service Charge Added To Equipment Parts

WASHINGTON, July 17. (U.P.)—The Office of Price administration today provided measures by which manufacturers of farm equipment parts may add emergency service charges to their ceiling prices.

OPA said such charges are limited to the extra cost involved in making delivery of parts on a date which would not have been possible without these additional expenditures.

Cotton-Rayon Scrap Flares

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—Cotton versus rayon as a base for synthetic tires stirred a bristling argument today between the Senate's Truman committee investigating the war effort, and two high government officials directly concerned with rubber output.

The Truman group, in a report sharply critical of the War department, called for a halt to further expansion of facilities for making rayon cord as a substitute for cotton in tire manufacture. It said rayon had "displayed no superiority over cotton to warrant the great investment in critical materials which is now being made to produce facilities for rayon cord."

Said Rubber Director William Jeffers:

"So what?" The committee says there is no proof that rayon cord is better than cotton. Experts of the Army, the industry and my office disagree." He said he'd "string along" with the "experts."

Robert P. Patterson, acting secretary of war, chimed in:

"Large, heavy-duty tires with rayon cord are better and safer than with cotton cord. Our decision rests on field tests . . . is supported by practically all the tire industry, and it is to be borne in mind that the tire industry has a heavy investment in cotton mills."

Asserting it was "too late" to stop a current rayon expansion program equal to about one-third of the normal tire cord demand, the committee warned, however, that "a second program totalling 100,000,000 pounds is now starting, virtually to double this expansion."

The 68,000,000 pounds capacity, already approved, it asserted, will cost an estimated $22,000,000 while the 100,000,000 additional would probably cost $40,000,000.

"The committee considers many other competing programs more worth this great expenditure of dollars, men and materials," said the report.

Stating that "the effects of the War department predilection for rayon" would be "a disaster to the post-war economy of the south—loss of 10 per cent of the domestic cotton market," the committee contended:

1. The War department "originally relied on opinions primarily of the four big rubber companies, which had been selling rayon cord tires," that rayon would prove superior to cotton cord in synthetic tires.

2. "Certain officials" of the War department who have had much to do with the tests came from companies "which are among those which have for several years advocated the use of rayon tires," and the department's industry committee on these tires "is dominated by representatives of such companies."

Senator Proposes Bill To Pay Costs Of Federal Campaigns

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—Legislation under which the treasury would pay the cost of political campaigns for federal offices may be sponsored by Senator Hatch (D-NM).

Hatch, author of the act banning pernicious political activities by government officials and employes, said in an interview that he is attempting to draft such a measure. He is "not satisfied," he said, with the present limitations on contributions, adding that the only way to end abuses may lie in outlawing all private donations.

"The people pay the costs of these campaigns in one way or another, anyhow," he said, "and the financing might as well be done directly out of the treasury where regulations can be enforced and the amount of expenditures limited."

Limitations Ineffective

Hatch said he concurred in the view expressed by the senate committee, headed by Senator McFarland (D-Ariz), which investigated the 1942 campaigns, that "despite state and federal laws the limitations placed on expenditures for campaign purposes have been largely ineffective."

McFarland said it was his view that, since these provisions could not be enforced, it might be better to repeal them and place entire reliance on publicity.

"If the people find out a man is spending too much money in a campaign for office, they are not likely to elect him," McFarland declared.

Hatch said an obstacle to making the treasury liable for the expenditures of federal candidates is the difficulty of separating those outlays from the costs of state office aspirants, particularly in states where all spending is channeled through one organization working for the entire ticket.

He remarked also that some limitation on the amount to be spent would have to be worked out, possibly on a population basis.

Expenses Not Counted

The law now permits a Senate candidate to spend up to $25,000 and a House candidate up to $5'000. The money spent for filing fees, for the candidate's personal travel and subsistence, for stationery, postage, writing, printing (except on billboards and in newspapers), for distributing letters, circulars or posters or for telephone and telegraph bills is not counted.

The McFarland committee reported that in the 1942 campaign for 36 Senate seats 170 candidates had total expenditures of $800,390 in 33 states, of which $470,757 was spent in the primaries.

While the law now limits expenditures of national political committees to $3,000,000 a year, Hatch said that if campaigns were financed directly through the treasury this amount should be cut to $1,000,000. In any event, he said, the total cost of the plan would be relatively small when compared with other federal outlays.

Drafting Of Japs In U. S. Is Recommended

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—The Senate military affairs committee recommended today that Japanese be drafted "in the same manner as other residents of the United States."

In a report based on findings of a subcommittee headed by Senator Chandler (D-Ky), the committee quoted Army spokesmen as saying "we would like to use these people as soldiers." It also said the War department has satisfactory methods for "screening out the bad ones" and that already more than 7,500 Japanese are in the Army.

The committee also recommended:

1. That disloyal Japanese be placed in internment camps.

2. That loyal, able-bodied Japanese be allowed to work under proper supervision "in areas where they will be accepted, and where the Army and Navy authorities consider it safe for them to go."

Short Course Opens At Tech On July 26

The third annual livestock feeding short course will open Monday, July 26, at Texas Technological college, and continue through Wednesday, W. L. Stangel, head of the animal husbandry department, has announced.

Among the speakers who will appear during the program will be E. R. Eudaly, extension livestock specialist, A&M college; A. K. Mackey, manager Texas Livestock Marketing association, Fort Worth; D. Burns, manager Pitchfork ranch, Guthrie, Texas, and J. H. Jones, animal husbandryman, division of range animal husbandry, A&M college.

Members of the faculty in agricultural divisions at the college also will share the program.

Cut Is Seen In Induction Goals

WASHINGTON, July 17 (U.P.) — A press conference statement by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson in London was interpreted here today as supporting recent speculation that the armed services may cut back their personnel goals before they reach the originally scheduled total of 10,800,000 by Dec. 31.

Stimson told reporters in London that "now we have virtually finished recruiting and are engaged in training the largest and best-trained army the United States ever have sent beyond their waters."

The latest selective service inventory shows that 9,300,000 men and women are now in military service. Whether Stimson meant that the ultimate total will not greatly exceed this figure was not clear. Moreover, he was not speaking for the Navy.

Dads May Miss Draft

It appeared likely that on the basis of present calculations pre-Pearl Harbor fathers will not be drafted. Reliable sources here have indicated that probability.

There have been warnings in Congress and elsewhere that it would be unwise to expand the armed forces at the expense of the war production manpower pool.

American forces, however, are heavily engaged in Sicily and the Pacific and may see action soon elsewhere in Europe. Whether large numbers of new inductees will be required would appear to depend on what demand develops for replacements for the fighting fronts.

Thus far American casualties have been light—fewer than anticipated in Sicily—and the demand for replacements correspondingly so.

Massachusetts' first written constitution, ratified June 7, 1780, still governs the state.

Officials Continue Prison Labor Study

County commissioners court this morning made an inspection of the former Civilian Conservation corps barracks area of Panhandle-South Plains fairgrounds, seeking to estimate expenditures that might be required in case a plan went through to shunt into Lubbock county 500 or so Italian war prisoners to assist in gathering of fall crops.

The presumption was that, should the prisoners be sent here for such purpose, they would occupy the barracks area.

County Judge G. V. Pardue and the commissioners had committed themselves to no definite request for the prisoners nor to any construction in the barracks area. The estimate was made pending communication by farmers of their wishes in the matter . . . "against the possibility farmers might decide they want prisoners of war labor," Judge Pardue said. Construction in line with the numbers of prisoners that might be housed at the camp here would have to be made, in terms of international law, so that prisoners would be well cared for.

At the same time, Judge Pardue said the government had not said whether the prisoners of war would be available here, even though definite application for their services were filed.

Shansi province, in Japanese-held China, is twice the size of Indiana.

Shifts In Duties At SPAAF Announced

Several changes in officer duty assignments have been announced at South Plains Army Air field.

Capt. Harold I. Williams of Hutchinson, Kan., post adjutant, is now attending the adjutant generals school at Fort Washington, Md. In his absence, Lieut. James C. Eldredge of Whitesboro, N. Y., assistant adjutant, is handling the duties of adjutant.

Chief Warrant Officer Granville H. Bock of Lockhart, formerly secretary of the glider student pool, is now assistant adjutant.

Named assistant mess officer is Lieut. Charles V. Percival. Lieut. James F. Wood is now assistant engineering officer.

Five Senators Ready To Go Into Uniform

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — The Army is all set to put five United States senators into uniform, complete with "dog tags," shots in the arm and helmets, for a trip around the world battlefronts.

Just when the five senators officially assigned to investigate the war situation over a 30,000 mile itinerary will start on their trip is a military secret. The War department has about completed its routine for guiding the quintet composed of Senator Russell (D-Ga.), who will serve as spokesman for the group; Senators Lodge (R-Mass), Chandler (D-Ky), Mead (D-NY) and Brewster (R-Me).

They will represent both the Senate military affairs committee and the Truman committee, which has been inquiring into various domestic phases of the war effort.

Increase In Crude Output Authorized

AUSTIN, July 17. (AP)—The Railroad commission today authorized an increase of 89,801 barrels daily in production off all petroleum liquids in Texas for August.

The principal increases were in districts with outlets to the Big Inch pipeline terminal in East Texas, in accordance with the request of the Petroleum Administrator for War that increased production be from sweet crude oil fields.

The net daily allowable production of all petroleum liquids for August including crude oil, distillates and natural gasoline, will be 1,817,937 barrels compared with the net daily allowable of 1,728,136 barrels for July.

Thompson's Warning

The PAW certification called for 1,817,000 barrels daily.

Railroad Commissioner Ernest Ernest Thompson in a statement issued coincident with announcement of the August production schedule, warned "there is a limit to the amount of oil that can be produced from present wells."

"We are dangerously close to it now," he said. "We are also limited in pipe line outlets from West Texas fields. A pipeline is projected, but what we must have at once is new discoveries and only a prompt price increase will get them."

The gulf coast district received the greatest increase. The August order calls for net daily allowable production there of 491,460 barrels compared with 401,645 barrels daily in July. Railroad commission engineers explained that fields there have outlets to the big inch line at Longview.

District 8 Increase

District 8 in West Texas also was granted an increase, form 234,435 barrels daily in July to 246,589 barrels daily in August.

The order left unchanged the number of producing days for the East Texas field at 23. Operators in the area yesterday had asked the commission to cut the number of producing days to 20.

The order set 22 general producing days for August, unchanged from July.

Another exception to the general shutdown order stipulating producing days for the state as a whole was the Panhandle field, where 24 producing days were specified. This also was unchanged from July.

Allowables By Districts

Gross daily allowables for crude oil by districts for August, compared with July were: (August figures first):

1—19,663 and 19,431; 2—105,881 and 103,986; 3—491,460 and 401,645; 4—164,480 and 156,458; 5—28,801 and 28,707;6—104,956 and 104,189; East Texas—375,146 and 375,146; 7-B—29,036 and 28,590; 7-C—19,726 and 19,620; 8—246,564 and 234,435; 9—129,180 and 127,809; 10—98,552 and 98,705.

The gross crude allowable by district under the August order thus totalled 1,813,465 barrels daily. Loss by estimated underproduction was set at 6.15 per cent, or 111,528 barrels daily, bringing the net crude allowable daily to 1,701,937 barrels. Added to this to arrive at the final figure for net allowable production of all petroleum liquids (1,817,937 barrels daily) was 116,000 daily barrels of distillates and natural gasoline.

Marine Group To Stay Here Through Monday

Because of interest shown by Lubbock women, the procurement party for the women's reserve of the Marine corps will remain in Lubbock two additional days, it was announced Saturday.

Sgt. Mary E. Taylor, interviewer for the Women's reserve of the corps, will be on duty today and Monday at the Marine booth in Hilton hotel lobby. Appointments for interviews may be made by telephone or in person.

Many women who have called at the booth in the last two days indicated preference for duty at one of the Marine corps bases, which are located on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and Gulf of Mexico. Others have expressed preference for detached duty, available in cities where the corps maintains recruiting, procurement or administrative offices.

To qualify for the corps, women must be between ages of 20 to 26, either married or single but not married to a Marine, have no dependent children under 18, and must be at least five feet tall and 95 pounds in weight, in addition to being United States citizens.

Ideas Differ On Corn Marketing

CHICAGO, July 17. (AP)—Opinion in grain trade circles was pretty much divided today on whether or not corn would move to market in increasing volume now that Price Administrator Prentiss Brown has stated that no upward revision in present ceilings was contemplated.

Brown added that corn is moving to market now that the "uncertainty" concerning the prospect of higher maximums had been removed, but cash grain dealers said the movement, while slightly above the unprecedented small total of recent weeks, was still below normal and far under requirements.

Traders who were inclined to believe corn shipments would expand pointed out that the war food administration had pledged that if there was any increase in ceilings between now and Oct. 31, farmers would be compensated for the increase if they shipped corn to market between July 1 and Aug. 11.

Incentive To Hold Removed

Thus, some of the incentive to hold for higher prices had been removed, these traders reasoned, although admitting that if the farmers responded by selling corn there obviously would be no need to raise the ceilings in order to attract offerings.

Those who doubted that the movement would show any substantial expansion asserted it was still more profitable to feed corn to hogs and farmers were inclined to hold onto their grain until they have a better picture on the prospects of the 1943 crop, which was planted late and is late in developing.

There is no denying the fact that there is plenty of corn stored on farms. Stocks on July 1 totaled 812,692,000 bushels compared with 761,363,000 bushels a year ago and 10 year (1932-41) average of 550,754,000 bushels. Stocks this year were not far from the all-time high for July 1 established in 1940 at 853,233,000 bushels.

Texan Claims First Triumph After Nazi Pilot Is Rescued

ALLIED FORCES COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17. (AP)—It was good luck for both victor and victim when a Spitfire patrol chanced to spot a dinghy floating in the Mediterranean and sent for an air-sea rescue Walrus amphibian.

The action saved the German pilot and enabled Flight Officer Louis M. Weynandt, 24, of Louise, Texas, American Spitfire pilot, to claim his first triumph.

Weynandt and Lieut. Irwin Gottlieb, 27, of Brooklyn, engaged two Messerschmitt 109's at 26,000 fet while on a coastal patrol.

Gottlieb shot up one and saw it crash into the sea but Weynandt's guns jammed after he damaged the other and he was unable to claim a victim.

The next day, however, some of his fellow pilots spotted the dinghy and the German pilot's account of the action showed that he was Weynandt's opponent.

Weynandt and Gottlieb are members of a group led by Lieut. Col. James S. Coward of Knoxville, Tenn., which scored its 100th victory several weeks ago.

Massachusetts car owners are now permitted to collect fees for transporting "share-the-ride" passengers.

Cattle Marketing Turns Sharply Up

By WILLIAM FERRIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, July 17. — Cattle roaming the grass lands of the western states, putting on the last extra pounds which mean more steaks for the armed forces and civilians, will soon be herded into livestock markets in increasing numbers, meat packers predicted today.

The packers, as anxious to run across some roast beef as everyone else, asserted the low point in cattle marketings probably had passed, and from now until the end of the year the public's palate should get a taste of that red meat for which it has been hankering.

Already Showing Rise

There was some expansion in cattle receipts at major markets last week. Salable receipts for the week at 12 major markets were 174,000 head against 144,000 head the previous week and 153,000 head in the same week a year ago.

The receipts of last Monday—they were the largest for a July day since 1936 at Chicago—constituted a happy harbinger of what was to come, packers said, as the grass on the ranges dries up and ranchers begin to unload their stock before cold weather comes.

Most of last week's receipts came from feed-lots of the mid-west corn belt, and livestock observers thought they indicated the desire of producers to liquidate before the western grass cattle hit the market and possibly force prices lower.

An upturn in cattle receipts from mid-July on is a seasonal development, packers explained. Arrivals usually expand through August, September and October, reaching their peak in the last mentioned month. Then they turn downward to a low in February or March.

While livestock men did not doubt there would be more hamburger sizzing on grills over the next few months, they wondered what would happen next winter. Representatives of mid-west feeders (who ordinarily buy grass cattle and feed them to better quality) claimed choice cattle were not bringing high enough prices to warrant taking some of the grass types out of the market for feeding and re-sale later.

Community Canning Plant In Operation

L. K. Kinsey, superintendent of schools at Idalou, said Saturday the community canning center set up there had operated four days and 170 cans of corn and 67 quarts and 30 No. 2 size cans of string beans had been canned for seven families who had patronized the plant.

The plant at Becton, about 10 miles north of Idalou, also will be operating within a week, and it is expected that corn, beans, peas and tomatoes will be canned at both places through the month of August, Kinsey said. The plant at Idalou is under supervision of Mrs. L. E. Countess, and Mrs. Oscar Paden will be in charge at the Becton school plant.

The school cafeterias at both places are anxious to contact any grower who wishes to donate either vegetables or labor in canning for use by the schools after the terms open. The Idalou school will open either Aug. 9 or 16, Kinsey said, in order that a "cotton picking" recess may be declared at harvest peak, without loss of time.

Experts declare that at the present rate industrial workers will soon represent the largest musical audience in the country—listening to canned music while they work.

Tech Ships Calf To Dutch Guiana

A registered Holstein Friesian calf from the Texas Technological college herd was shipped by express Saturday to a mining firm in Dutch Guiana, near the equator, in South America, W. L. Stangel, head of the animal husbandry department, said.

The bull is 11 months old and weighs 500 pounds. It is of the fourth generation of the original Holstein producing herd, bought in 1926. The sale is the result, Stangel said, of a contact made by Wyatt C. Hedrick of Ft. Worth, Tech arhitect, with members of the South American fining firm and land developers.

The bull calf is Tech Piebe Alcatra, great grandson of one of the foundation cows at Tech, Flowerdale Fayne Alcatra, whose best yearly record of production among several at the college was 18,073 pounds of milk and 118 pounds of butter.

"This is the first time we have shipped a bull outside of the State asked if the sale was the first to a foreign country.

The animal was crated in an expensive appearing padded box, loaded on an express car at the Santa Fe depot last night, and shipped by express to Mobile. At the seaport the animal will be placed aboard a steamship and consigned to the Moengo works, a branch of the Surinaamachee Bauxite Maatschuappy interests. The bull was bought for breeding purposes, Stangel said.

The college is keeping a full brother, two years older than the calf that was sold, as its herd bull. This animal is Tech Sir Ormsby Pietertje.

The dam of the two bulls is Tech Inka Fayne Alcatra, and has completed six full production records and now is on the seventh. Stangel said when she completes the seventh she will have produced more than 100,000 pounds of milk and 660 pounds of butter. She was the largest calf ever dropped on the Tech campus, weighing 135 pounds at birth.

Stangel said the original cow, Flowerdale Fayne Alcatra, was bought from the Flowerdale herd in Dallas in 1926, and had a remarkable record for life. She was the great grandmother of the bull calf shipped yesterday. When Raymond C. Reed, manager in Slaton for the Ayers Grain Co., was a student at Tech he bought the cow for $400, and during the time he "went to college on the cow" she produced $1,900 worth of calves and milk. When Reed graduated in 1928, Stangel bought the cow back for $300, and kept her in production.

Director Criticizes Parents For Draft Evasion Efforts

AUSTIN, July 17. (AP)—Brig. Gen. J. Watt Page, state Selective Service director, today deplored the attitude of mothers and fathers who try to prevent their sons being inducted into the armed forces by reverting to "fantastic subterfuges."

"'Sudden farmers' and 'youthful ministers', among other deferable occupations, come to our attention daily," General Page said. "Every imaginable dodge and reason is presented by mothers and fathers whose approach to their son's induction into the armed forces is to 'let George do it.' They resort to the most fantastic subterfuges.

"Quite often it is the 'friend of the family' who presents the case.

"Almost over night young men of 18 and 20 years of age become farmers of wide experience, while, in most instances, investigation reveals that about the only time they actually spent on the farm, up to the time of impending induction, was the time they spent sleeping there at night."

General Page cited two examples. One concerned a young man, 19, who had been away from home three years at school. He was granted one deferment to permit his graduation. Later request was made to have the young man classed as a "necessary man," the officer related.

"Although the family had been doing without this young man for the past three years and he was barely 19 years of age, he suddenly became indispensable," the general said.

The other example was of a young man, 18, who was a licensed preacher. The family asked deferment because they thought the young man "'of more value to the country in his preaching than he would be in the army'," General Page said.

"Perhaps so," General Page said, "but I think there are reasonable grounds for doubt while there are hundreds of thousands of other young men of his age and physical condition fighting and dying on the many American battle-fronts abroad."

"This is a war of all of us—a war which demands the utmost in sacrifice and devotion of all of us—but it is the very young men of America who constitute the backbone of our military machine," General Page said. "There is a war to be won, now. Time is extremely valuable. All manpower must be trained and utilized quickly."

Mexio, U. S. Plan Economic Accord

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—Full economic cooperation between the United States and Mexico during and after the war "for the maximum development of both nations" was urged today by the Mexican - American Commission for Economic Cooperation.

A report to President Roosevelt and President Avila Camacho said:

"The days of exploitation or economic imperialism, whether by nations or by powerful private groups, are past—no future Mexican or United States government will condone or permit their reappearance."

Recommendations for Mexico included full development of food supply, immediate and long-range industrial projects, concentration on production of war materials, a program of public works projects, and expansion of transportation, communications, merchant marine and fisheries.

Named by the two governments after President Roosevelt and President Avila Camacho conferred in April, the commission seeks to correct Mexico's distribued international trade, thrown out of kilter by the war, and at the same time keep strategic materials flowing to the United States.

President Avila Camacho expressed "sincere satisfaction" with the commission's conclusions. President Roosevelt said the recommendations "are indeed in the spirit of friendliness and mutual understanding."

A joint statement released by the State department said "the governments of Mexico and the United States of America manifest their determination to take without delay the necessary steps to carry into effect the conclusions" in the report.

The report said Mexico's imports from the United States shrunk from $159,000,000 in 1941 to $147,000,000 in 1942, while her exports to the United States increased from $141,000,000 to $179,000,000. Her imports were $59,000,000 in the first four months this year and exports $73,000,000.

The increase in imports and "restricted availability" of important items Mexico desires to purchase, the report sand, contributed to her balance-of-payments problem.

Warning To Italy Highlight Of Week

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press War Analyst

As Allied forces drove ahead in the conquest of Sicily this week, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill served notice of doom on the Axis powers with a call to the Italian people to overthrow Mussolini and surrender, or face terrible consequences.

The enemy was on the defensive everywhere as the power of the United Nations began to get into its stride on all fronts. The German drive in Russia petered out and the Red army began a powerful offensive in the Orel region which made considerable gains in its early stages.

Aerial Assault Intensified

The aerial assault on western Europe and against Italy proper was intensified. In the Pacific, Allied forces closed in on the Japanese strong points of Munda and Salamaua at either end of the 750-mile island front.

Developments of the week included:

On Sunday, Allied forces in Sicily moved rapidly ahead against comparatively slight resistance and consolidated their beachheads with the capture of three air fields. British bombers made extensive raids on enemy communications in northwestern France. The Russians beat off German attacks on the Orel-Belgorod front and made advances of their own in counter-attacks at several points. American bombers hit at Munda in the Solomons and at Rabaul, the main Japanese base on New Britain.

Allies Took 10 Towns

On Monday, the Allies extended their holdings in Sicily with the capture of 10 more towns, including the valuable port of Syracuse. There was considerable air fighting in which 45 Axis planes were shot down with a loss of nine for the Allies. The German offensive in Russia, one week old, began to show signs of having spent its force. A second naval engagement occurred in Kula gulf in the Solomons, in which the Japanese lost four and perhaps six warships, while the Americans lost one destroyer.

On Tuesday, the Allies captured the port of Augusta in Sicily and pointed their main attack towards Catania, farther north on the coast. In the air the enemy lost 53 more planes. Turin in northern Italy was heavily bombed by planes from England. The Germans suffered further reverses on the Orel-Belgorod front. The Vichy-held island of Martinique in the West Indies swung over to the United Nations.

On Wednesday, Allied forces began moving onto the Catania plain in Sicily, where the Axis was rallying for a stand. The score in the air was 42 enemy planes to seven Allied. After a night raid on the rail center of Aachen in Germany, Allied fliers bombed German airfields in France, destroying 51 enemy planes. The Russians opened a counter-attack in the Belgorod sector and captured several villages.

Enemy Resistance Stiffens

On Thursday, the Allies gained several more towns in Sicily in the face of greatly increased enemy resistance. The key port of Messina was heavily damaged in a raid by more than 200 bombers. The Russians opened a strong offensive against Orel, and advanced as much as 28 miles in the first onrush. The Allies made an important land gain in New Guinea, capturing the Japanese outpost of Mubo, near Salamaua.

On Friday, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill addressed a manifesto to the Italian people, giving them the choice "to die for Hitler and Mussolini or live for Italy and civilization." The Allied forces made considerable gains on the Catania plain and in the area to the southwest. It was announced tht 20,000 Axis prisoners had been taken. The port of Naples was laid waste by a heavy air raid. There also were raids on northern Italy and over western Europe. The Germans threw considerable reinforcements into the Orel front in an effort to check the Russian drive, which continued unabated. In the Pacific, Allied planes made their biggest raid to date on Munda, apparently as a preliminary to storming the town by land.

Socials Arranged At Soldiers' Centers

Hostesses and refreshments will be furnished by Epsilon Sigma Alpha, business girls' sorority, for the weekly social in Lubbock Soldiers' center, 1211 Thirteenth street, from 3 until 6 o'clock this afternoon, according to Miss Leona Gelin, center supervisor.

Other events scheduled in the center include: Monday, 1:30 p. m., meeting of the Glider Pilots and flight students of Lubbock Army Air field; Tuesday, 8 p. m., meeting of the secretarial bloc of Hub-ettes; Wednesday, 1:30 p. m., meeting of the Flider Pilots Wives club of South Plains Army Air field.

At the negro center, 2101 East Avenue C, an I. Q. party is scheduled at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The weekly formal dance is planned next Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

A dance for negro soldiers is planned Monday night at 8:30 o'clock in SPAAF recreation hall. Members of the Vee-Bee club will be dancing partners. Transportation to and from the post is to be furnished the girls, Miss Gelin said. Buses will leave from Lubbock hotel terminal at 8 p. m.

Resolution Passed By Hospital Trustees

FORT WORTH, July 17. (AP) — As an emergency measure for the duration, Texas hospitals will be urged by the Texas Hospitals association trustees to render free obstetrical care to wives of service men under a new government plan of compensation.

A resolution passed at a trustees meeting here yesterday said the board would recommend cooperation.

Applications Reveal Some Funny Incidents

DALLAS, July 17. (AP) — Workers handling applications for ration book 3 may be uncovering some of the phenomena of nature.

One application from Zephyr in Brown county listed the husband's date of birth as 1806, his wife's 1803—just a couple centenarians, and how.

Another from a Waco family listed 15 children with the mother only 39 years old—and no twins or triplets.

"Buy A War Bond TODAY"

Threshers' Delay Laid To Customs

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—One hundred and fifty combine thresher units which had been halted at the international boundary in Montana and North Dakota by customs inspectors, missed the wheat harvest in the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma and Kansas, M. Lee Marshall, equipment director of the War Food administration (WFA) said today.

Marshall said harvest of the short U. S. wheat crop was endangered by customs regulations preventing use of offered Canadian farm machinery.

Officials Unaware Of Incident

Officials of the customs bureau in Washington said they had "no knowledge" of the specific incidents on the Canadian border, but that they were cooperating with the war program "within the limits of the law."

As Marshall sketched the picture, negotiations were concluded some time ago for reciprocal entry of Canadian and American harvesting equipment to assist in gathering crops on both sides of the border. The vanguard of Canadian threshers attempted entry when the harvest started in Texas nearly a month ago but were told, Marshall said he was informed, that they must park their flatbed trucks used to haul the combines between jobs at the border and employ American trucks while in this country.

HOUSTON WOMAN DROWNS

GALVESTON, July 17 (AP) —A woman who drowned off the beach here last night was identified by police today as Mrs. Charles C. Traham of Houston. Police said their investigation indicated the drowning was accidental.

"Willkie Is Joke In Illinois"--McCormick

NEW YORK, July 17. (AP)—Colonel Robert R. McCormick, Chicago Tribune publisher, in commenting here today on Wendell Willkie's challenge to him to enter Illinois' presidential preference primary next year, declared "anybody can beat Willkie in Illinois. He's a joke out there."

Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential nominee, had said he would enter the Illinois preferential primary next April and stump the state if Colonel McCormick ran.

Willkie said he had nothing to say on Colonel McCormick's comments.

McCormick has not said or even indicated he would run in the primary. He has been asked to permit his name to be entered by resolution of the Republican nationalist revival committee, recently organized with an announced aim to help maintain the Republican party as the "nationalist party" in American politics. At the same time the committee stated its opposition to Willkie.

Operation Of Labor Camps Given To WFA

McALLEN, July 17 (AP)—Operation of eight Texas migratory labor camps has been transferred to the War Food administration (WFA) from the Farm Security administration, (FSA) managers of some of the camps in the valley have announced.

The transfer was made, they said, because Congress recently reduced funds available to the FSA. The WFA, like the FSA, is an agency of the department of agriculture. The camps are located at or near McAllen, Harlingen, Weslaco, Raymondville, Robstown, Sinton, Lamesa and Robesville.

Fourth Term Defeat Predicted For FDR

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — Two outspoken U. S. senators — a Republican and a Democrat — voiced belief today President Roosevelt might not seek or accept nomination for a fourth term.

Senator Nye (R-ND) asserted that if the President "finds there's a large chance of his being whipped," he will step aside.

"And," Nye told a reporter, "if he looks around enough, he'll find just that."

Senator Smith (D-SC) declared in another interview that "Roosevelt won't win the nomination even if he should seek it, and by convention time, I think he'll be convinced of that."

"If he should be able to swing the nomination," Smith declared, "he'd be beaten for re-election, regardless of whether the war is in progress."

Life In Germany Is Said Form Of Slavery

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY In Sicily, July 15 (Delayed)—(AP)—"Life in Germany today is the most modern form of slavery."

Those words are not by President Roosevelt or Winston Churchill. They came from a young German prisoner who surrendered to Americans fighting to deepen the bridgehead on Sicily.

There is evidence that the youth of Germany—at least the youth fighting on the island of Sicily—do not like the way of life Adolf Hitler has forced on the fatherland.

And students of psychology among the Army officers interpret this as a definite sign of a crack growing in the German home front.

The Inside Story of Synthetic Rubber

The public has been led to believe that plenty of new tires and tubes made of synthetic rubber will be available very soon—BUT THAT IS NOT THE CASE

HERE are the facts—and every patriotic American should know them.

After Pearl Harbor, we had in this country a huge government-owned stockpile of natural rubber. It had to take care of all tire needs—both military and civilian—of this country and of a large share of our allies' needs as well.

Military demands alone were tremendous—and 20 million essential cars and trucks had to be kept rolling.

This stockpile could not be maintained or replaced. Our very freedom depended on it—it was precious beyond belief.

It was absolutely essential that if we were to win the war we should produce our own synthetic rubber—in huge volume—and at once.

But the whole synthetic rubber situation was utterly upset and confused. There was bickering—and arguing. Everybody had a different idea.

Then the Baruch committee was appointed. It did a fine job—quickly. It clarified the problem, pointed out the fact that this country was in a desperate position—and then prescribed the remedy.

Following the Baruch Report, Mr. Jeffers was appointed Rubber Director. He and his staff, ably aided by the petroleum, chemical and rubber industries, have done what, at the time, looked like an impossible job.

Almost overnight they have built a new multi-million dollar industry in this country which, by next year, will have a producing capacity of 800,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually—more total rubber tonnage than this country has yet used in any normal year!

Most authorities agree that with these new government-owned synthetic plants in full operation, ALL tire manufacturers will have plenty of raw synthetic rubber by the Spring of 1944... BUT NOT NECESSARILY PLENTY OF TIRES.

In the meantime millions of tires on the road are wearing perilously thin.

The stockpile of natural rubber is now so low that the government has ordered ALL passenger tires and tubes—both civilian and military—made entirely of synthetic! This tremendous job of conversion must be completed by the Fall of 1943.

That puts the rubber industry in a tough spot—and here's why—

Even though rubber chemists have been experimenting with synthetics for several years, most of the so-called synthetic rubber tires developed to date were only partly synthetic. They all contained some natural rubber.

But the making of tires from 100% synthetic rubber is quite another problem. The term "synthetic" really is a misnomer. Synthetic rubber is not natural rubber made by an artificial method, but is, in fact, a totally different material which might more accurately be called a "soft plastic".

The best brains in the rubber industry have been working on the problem for many months. We and other tire manufacturers are pooling our experimental information, pooling our methods and efforts in the hope of getting good tires of synthetic rubber in volume—before the old tires on millions of cars and trucks wear out.

And it's a tough job. It took the industry 40 years to build natural rubber tires up to the fine point of quality, safety and service that we had before the war.

Yet we are trying to equal those standards in a few months' time, with tires made entirely of a synthetic material that takes longer to process than natural rubber—takes more machinery—and more labor.

It is a situation that all of us must look squarely in the face. And here are the straight facts.

1. No one tire manufacturer has any more knowledge in building all-synthetic tires than any other. The research chemists and engineers of the industry are working day and night in unison to lick the unsolved problems that now confront the industry. ALL INFORMATION IS AVAILABLE TO ALL MANUFACTURERS.
2. The processing of synthetic tires is slower than for natural rubber tires—takes more manpower at a time when a majority of the industry's skilled rubber workers are already committed to the production of vital war materiel.
3. The first all-synthetic passenger car tires to be built on a production basis are only just now coming off the lines in limited quantities.
4. No satisfactory all-synthetic truck tires have been built as yet by anyone.
5. No satisfactory all-synthetic tubes have been built as yet by anyone.
6. There will be very, very few new tires of all-synthetic rubber this year.
7. It will probably be the middle of next year before civilians can get the new tires they need—even though there will be plenty of raw synthetic rubber.
8. As the Baruch Report stated in no uncertain terms—the last half of '43 and the first part of '44 is the critical period—and I mean critical!
9. Many old tires are wearing out—and unless proper precautions are taken, thousands and thousands of cars and trucks will have to be laid up.

So I say to every patriotic American—"Take extra care of your present tires".

Drive slowly—not over thirty-five miles an hour (very important in hot summer weather).

Drive carefully. Avoid ruts, car-tracks, stones and rough roads.

See that air pressure is checked once a week.

Don't scrape your tires against the curb.

Don't make jack-rabbit starts or quick stops. Take curves and corners slowly.

Have your tire dealer check your tires regularly for cuts and abrasions, and repair them before they go too far.

Get your tires recapped before they get too smooth.

Even when the critical period is past and the industry is in full production of synthetic tires, military tires and other military rubber goods will still come first.

But by the end of next year, synthetic tires will be available for civilians in sufficient quantity to keep all essential cars and trucks on the road.

Meanwhile, those of you who are privileged to buy new tires of synthetic rubber will find the name Seiberling on these tires just as reliable a mark of quality as it has always been on tires of natural rubber.

Keep in touch with your Seiberling dealer. He is an expert in rubber, too, and can help you save your tires.

Axis In Sicily Still A Respected Foe

EDITOR'S NOTE: We have the following report from Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press, who arrived in North Africa by air from London a week ahead of the invasion of Sicily. It is at Baillie's own request that he is described in the by-line as United Press staff writer.)

BY HUGH BAILLIE
United Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, July 17.—The Axis in Sicily is in the attitude of a defensive boxer with a potentially dangerous counter-punch. He back pedals slowly, covering up and waiting for his opponent to make a mistake. He jabs and feints and goes into his shell.

This is the position after a week of fighting as indicated by reports coming into this headquarters. The Allies are following up the Axis warily. They know from experience that any slip against such a shifty, crafty enemy may have the worst possible result and cause a long delay in the operations.

In the earlier stages of the African campaigning our attempt to take Tunisia by a quick, audacious thrust fell short and it took months instead of days to rectify the situation.

Not A Blitz

There is no desire to repeat that experience. The Sicilian campaign is not a blitz. It is not fought over terrain suitable to blitz warfare, and all the Allied commanders are cagey. They won't be mouse-trapped if they can help it. But, like Grant, they will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer, which it probably won't.

It is difficult to see how the Axis expects to rescue its army from Sicily even if a prolonged rear-guard action is fought. The enemy hardly can escape through the Messina bottle-neck to the Italian mainland. Therefore, if the Axis started with a large army in Sicily, it looks as though the Allies' boa-constrictor squeeze inevitably will produce another fold-up such as occurred in Tunisia. The Tunisian surrender came, of course, only after the enemy suffered a terrific mauling, after much fierce fighting, the toughness of which was rather obscured by the magnitude of the final victory.

Some heavy slugging must lie ahead in Sicily when the enemy reaches the line on which he intends to stand. It can be safely assumed that there has been some defensive strategy which as yet has been unrevealed.

Landing No Surprise

The Allied landing should not have been a surprise to the enemy commanders since you can't hide convoys of transports and armadas of warships in waters which are so open to enemy observation as the Mediterranean. Yet, the enemy didn't put up the sort of fight on the beaches that might have been expected.

The transportation of our armies direct to the Sicilian battlefields was one of the biggest enterprises of its kind in the history of warfare. For a week before the attack ports swarmed with ships and men and the air barrage against Sicily was going full blast.

Headquarters City Booming

This headquarters city now resembles a combination of a world's fair and a national political convention city. When parades were held on July 14 to celebrate Bastille day, the city even had the flavor of an American Legian convention with glittering trumpets flashing in the sunlight and bands playing stirring marches. Now all that has vanished. The grim, implacable shove of a giant war machine, with no music or snappy uniforms, constitutes the dominant motive.

Some war correspondents are back from the front preparing dispatches for this transmission center. Others are just "going up." Hotels are bursting. Famous liners, now blackly anonymous, appear and disappear in various Allied ports. You see troops raring to go. One of the most interesting spectacles on this strange coast are the occasional acres of prisoners sitting on the ground, docile and obedient, with their belongings in bundles. They are waiting to be told what is next for them. Once they were the enemy. Now they are the survivors and they look like just that.

Priests Reported To Be Taking Over Jobs

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 16. (Delayed). (AP) — Parish priests in Sicily are taking the place of Fascist municipal officials in small towns and villages captured by the Allied armies, frontline dispatches said today.

The Fascist officials were said to be deserting almost en masse.

FURNITURE REPORT ASKED

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — The Office of Price administration asked the furniture industry today to report on its financial condition as a basis for deciding whether higher prices are needed on furniture.

City Is Building In Spite Of War

Not even the paralysis of war has put as complete a standstill to buildings in Lubbock as did the depression.

This fact was revealed Saturday in the city's building permit records.

They disclosed that, although construction values have totaled no more than a small fraction of those of normal years, they still are running ahead of those of the two worst depression years. They reveal also that just about all the building that can be done under war restrictions is being done in this city.

Boom Headed Off

It is the consensus of officials and others who should know that building would be booming in Lubbock, as was usual for more than six years prior to the emergency, if federal regulations would permit. For the most part, however, these officials and observers are glad that conditions won't permit such a boom.

Building permit records, up to Saturday, showed that construction valued at $93,867 has been authorized here since Jan. 1. This total has accumulated almost entirely from a mass of permits for small amounts—for construction costing $200 and less.

The average of slightly more than $13,000 in permits per month has been maintained at a close level, and should be maintained—perhaps increased—through the remainder of the year..

In addition, officials know of at least two permits for relatively substantial amounts which are sure to come in. One of these is for the remodeling of centers for white and negro soldiers. Another is for water department expansion.

Total To Exceed 1932

Thus, it is certain that the final total for 1943 will exceed the $122,204 in 1932, which was the low point for building permits in Lubbock during the past 20 years for which records are available.

The final total also is almost sure to exceed the $163,954 of 1933, which was the second lowest recorded here. In 1934, the total climbed to $705,042, due almost entirely to municipal and Texas Technological college construction. Then, in 1935, permits dropped to $217,748, a figure which is not likely to be beaten this year.

After 1935, Lubbock's building rebound was spectacular, and increased steadily from year to year until war restrictions were put into effect.

The building permit records which follow show what happened: 1936, $1,088,730; 1937, $2,046,268; 1938, $3,559,736, which set a new all-time record; 1939, $3,612,253, setting a new record; 1940, $4,442,766, the present all-time record; 1941, $3,547,465; and 1942, $2,068,875.

Restrictions Felt In 1941

First effects of restrictions were felt here about the middle of 1941. Construction from that time was braked by ever-tightening restrictions until it was brought almost to a standstill by mid-1942.

Incidentally, the records do not include the costs of the construction at Lubbock and South Plains Army Flying schools. If those figures had been added, along with some other defense projects, permit totals would have been increased by substantially more than $10,000,000.

Officials don't pretend to know how long the present paralysis may continue. They see some signs that the process of relaxing some of the restrictions may already have begun.

But it is their unanimous conviction that, if restrictions were removed, Lubbock building would pick up right where it left off when the war intervened.

Engineers Corps Doing Fast Work On Airports

AN AMERICAN MEDIUM BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, July 17. (AP)—The Eighth Air Force support command which yesterday delivered its first blow against the Axis with a medium bomber raid on Abbeville, France, today formally accepted the third airport to have been taken over from the U. S. engineer corps within three days.

This base, started Aug. 20, 1942, and whose estimated value is $8,000,000, was the fastest piece of work yet done by the engineers in their whirlwind campaign of building American military airfield throughout the British Isles. Materials were supplied by the British.

Fearless Deer Lick Sheriff Winning Fame For Himself And Author, Tech Professor

BY OPAL McMAHON
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

Fearless Jess Roden is developing such fame as Deer Lick county sheriff and solver of crimes that it looks as if he is in office to stay.

To put it in the words of the publishers, Roden, leading character in mystery novels written by Dr. A. B. Cunningham of Lubbock, is becoming "a definite personality."

Several years ago Roden was introduced to the mystery reading field in "Murder at Deer Lick," the first mystery novel written by Dr. Cunningham, professor of English at Texas Technological college.

Had Written Other Material

Prior to that time Dr. Cunningham had written several non-mystery novels and short stories and had no plans to continue in mystery writing. "Murder at Deer Lick" met with such success, however, that the publishers asked for a contract for three more novels featuring Sheriff Roden.

Dr. Cunningham complied by writing "Murder at the School House," "The Strange Death of Manny Square" and "Death at 'the Bottoms.'" Almost 60,000 copies each of "Murder at the School House" and "Death at 'the Botoms'" were sold, definitely establishing Roden as a favorite fictional detective, and bringing a contract to Dr. Cunningham for three additional novels. The author produced "The Bancock Murder Case," "The Affair at the Boat Landing" and "The Great Yant Mystery."

"Medium-Sized And Tough"

Thus Roden continues to come before the mystery readers as a shrewd detective, medium-sized and tough, with discerning ideas, a way of grinning when thinking, a love of dogs, dislike of women and skill in shooting.

Dr. Cunningham now is writing another in the series—and has in mind a plot for the next one, which is to be written in answer to suggestion from the publishers, E. P. Dutton & Co., that the author's backgrounds and characters are sufficiently unusual "to provide a very picturesque movie situation."

The author is thinking of casting Roden as a director of a K-9 camp, as the Army training camps for dogs are known.

Tried Other Fields

Smilingly referring to two attempts to change from the mystery writing field in the last few years, Dr. Cunningham says, "I just can't shake old Jess." Once he wrote a western novel and once a serious romantic novel, only to receive requests from the publishers for more Roden stories.

This Sheriff Roden has become such a real character with Dr. Cunningham himself that after days and days of writing the author has to be careful lest he use Roden's manner of speaking—the abbreviation and contractions of words and leaving off the final "g's".

A knotty pine lined den in the basement of the Cunningham home at 2601 Twenty-first street serves as Dr. Cunningham's work room. That room was built to allow all the concentration needed to write authentic stories of mysteries and their solution. A soundproofed ceiling prevents noise from upstairs. There are no stairs down which sounds may come from the house. The only entrance is an outside one.

Writes In Longhand

There the author goes at 7:15 o'clock each morning his class schedule at the college will permit. In fine longhand he writes page after page, seldom rewriting or changing any of his manuscript, except in the final chapter in which the solutions must be presented to all puzzles created earlier in a novel. After writing the script in longhand he must retype it himself, because, as he says with a grin, "No one can read my writing."

He frequently consults a Lubbock doctor and lawyer in order to guarantee authentic mystery situations. In one of his novels the victim met death through strangulation with a sweater cord wound around the neck and fastened with bobby pins. One of the readers wrote that he had experimented and found a person couldn't be strangled in that manner.

Woodworking Is Sideline

When he comes across a particularly knotty problem he sometimes stops writing for a few minutes and goes into the woodworking shop adjoining his den. The answer usually comes to him after he has worked for a while fashioning some piece of furniture.

A telephone downstairs goes unheeded while he works. It is there for use of he and his wife when they use the den as a sitting room on winter evenings. Furnished in an unusual manner, with an open fireplace and several ancient guns hanging above, with Dr. Cunningham's walking cane collection against one wall, a red leather-covered couch, a desk and coffee tabled fashioned by the author, the den serves as a stimulating scene for writing.

Prior to beginning the Roden mystery series, Dr. Cunningham had written "The Manse at Barron Rocks," "The Chronicle of an Old Town," "Singing Mountains," "Old Black Bass" and "Animal Tales of the Rockies."

FBI Head Says Home Front Is Kept Secure

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) declared today that "not a single successful act of foreign-directed sabotage has occurred to hinder our war efforts."

Addressing the graduating class of the FBI national police academy, Hoover said the coordinated efforts of federal, state and local law enforcement agencies have curbed activities of foreign espionage agents "before they could accomplish their fiendish aims."

"We have, by planning and coordination, avoided the hysteria which prevailed in World War 1, when innocent persons were persecuted and harmed as the result of ill-advised vigilante activities," he said. "We have kept the home front secure."

Bucs Beat Cardinals Twice; Yanks Win Again, Beat A's

Scores 7-3; 3-2; Pirates In Three Games Of Dodgers

PITTSBURGH, July 17. (AP) — Those unpredictable Pittsburgh Pirates, who have alternately surprised and dismayed the rest of the National league all season, pounced on the champion St. Louis Cardinals for a pair of wins this afternoon to climb within three games of the second place Brooklyns.

The scores were 7-3 and 3-2.

Scores On Pop Fly

A crowd of only 11,362 was on hand to watch the Bucs make it four straight over the league leaders, and at the same time pare the Cards' lead over the Dodgers, who beat Boston today, to 3½ games.

A three-run burst in the seventh inning clinched the opener for the Pirates and Max Butcher; and Johnny Barrett's long double, plus a combination of unusual circumstances decided the nightcap in the last of the eighth in favor of Wally Hebert.

Barrett was sitting on second with two out when Bob Elliott lifted a high pop fly above the infield in the finale when the count was tied at 2-2. Barrett raced for home, while Danny Litwhiler and Marty Marion wached Elliott's fly drop to the turf between them.

Hebert Effective

Butcher gave up three runs in the second inning of the opener to give the Cards their early lead, but his mates rallied behind him to take a 4-3 lead in the sixth with a two-run spurt after tallying one each in the second and fifth.

Three base hits by Elliott, Russell and Van Robays and a double by Vince DiMaggio contributed to the total of five runs in the sixth and seventh innings of the opener to sew up the game.

Hebert handcuffed the champions for almost six innings in the nightcap while the Pirates scored one each in the second and third, but let St. Louis bunch hits, including Marion's double, for a run in the sixth and the typing marker in the eighth.

The teams will close their six-game series here tomorrow with another doubleheader.

New York Extends Winning Rampage To Six Straight

NEW YORK, July 17. (AP) — Sparked by Roy Weatherly's third home run of the year, the Yankees put on a two-run ninth inning splurge today to whip the Athletics 5 to 4 and run their winning streak to six straight—their longest of the season.

Charley Keller, with three-for-three and three runs batted in, and A's Jojo White, with four-for-four, including a double and his first homer of the campaign, were the heaviest fence-busters, but Weatherly's wallop and, a few moments later, a long fly by Gordon with the bases loaded, were the blows that broke up the ball game.

For eight innings it was anybody's ball game. The A's opened with two runs in the first on four hits, including White's two bagger. The Yanks came right back in their half to tie it up when Keller hit the right center field wall with a 407-foot triple that sent a pair of mates home. The Yanks got another in the third, with Keller again driving the tally in, and the A's tied it up again in the fifth on White's round-tripper.

Leading off the ninth, Don Black, who went the route for Connie Mack's cellar dwellers, sent the Athletics out in front by singling and coming around on hits by White and Elmer Valo.

Black seemed to injure his foot in scoring the tally, but that didn't hurt nearly as much as Weatherly's homer which led off the Yankee ninth. A single and two walks then loaded the bags, and Gordon produced the crusher with his long fly. Milkman Jim Turner, who took over from Hank Borowy in the ninth, was the winning hurler.

A native of Columbus, Ind., Lt. Taylor starred in prep basketball there and then immediately jumped to professional fame with the old Buffalo Germans and the New York Celtics.

Bobo Newsom To Play With Browns Against Tribe Today

ST. LOUIS, July 17. (AP)—Louis (Bobo) Newsom will appear with the St. Louis Browns in Sunday afternoon's double header with the Cleveland Indians, Browns President Don Barnes said today.

Barnes disclosed he talked with Newsom last night for a second time in several hours and the big right-hander said he would leave New York city by train today. He told Barnes he wanted to work in one of Sunday's games.

Increase Not Revealed

Since his addition to the Browns roster Wednesday in a trade which sent Southpaw Pitchers Fred Ostermueller and Archie McKain to the Brooklyn Dodgers, Newsom maintained he would never put on another Brownie uniform.

Barnes said he would not say whether he had offered Newsom an increase in salary.

Earlier in the day, Friday, Newsom in a telephone conversation offered to buy his release but Barnes refused.

Other Half Rebels

The other half of the transaction also rebelled today. Ostermueller and McKain demanded more pay to meet increased living costs in the East before reporting to Brooklyn.

The veteran hurlers, traded by the St. Louis Browns to the Dodgers for Bucky Buck, were supposed to leave for the East last night, but Ostermueller said they would remain here until they conferred with Branch Rickey by telephone.

"And if he doesn't give us a salary increase, why, I guess we'll just go home," Ostermueller added.

The 10 letter word that can be written on one row of keys on the typewriter is "typewriter."

Fools Medics, Hitters Chisox $1-A-Year Pitching Star Is Also Proud Slugger

By ARNOLD DERLITZKI
Associated Press Features

CHICAGO, July 17—For a fellow who was told last July that he might never pitch again, young Orval Grove is having himself quite a time in the majors.

The 23-year-old product of the Chicago White Sox farm system has won seven straight games without suffering a defeat in what may be his first full season of big league pitching. And he seems to get better as he goes along. On his last outing he came within one out of a no-hitter. Joe Gordon spoiled his masterpiece with a double after two men had been retired in the ninth, but Grove went on to win, 1-0.

Thwarted By Knee Injury

The big right hander made his major league debut last year, but it was cut short in mid season after he won 4 games and lost 6. A recurrence of an old knee injury involving torn cartlege caused the interruption. An operation followed and he was told by doctors it was unlikely he ever would be able to pitch again.

But all six feet and 195 pounds of the young and handsome Grove can be very stubborn, as 1943 American League batsmen are fast discovering.

"I like all sports and I love baseball," he said, "so I decided to risk another operation. I had it in December. There were no immediate indications that the results would be favorable. I took long walks to strengthen the knee, finished out the year working in a war plant and reported for Spring training with the Sox."

Groves Spring conditioning was gradual and without incident, he related, but Manager Pimmy Dykes refrained from assigning him muck work even after the season was well under way. In fact the Sox were so dubious about his possibilities that he was signed to one of those $1 a year contracts.

Was On Relief

In the first month and a half of the campaign he appeared in four games, all as a relief hurler, and only once did he work as long as two innings. Two more relief jobs followed, one of which he converted to victory, and on June 6 Dykes let him start his first game.

The fast baller pitched eight impressive innings against Boston and led 3-1 going into the ninth before weakening.

Thereafter Grove started seven games, finishing all but one. Two of the wins were shutouts and in two other games the opposition got but one run. In his last three games he has allowed but nine hits and only two runs.

"I'm doing nothing greatly different from last year," Grove says. "It's just that I can come down on my left leg now knowing that my weight and movement are not likely to bring pain.

"My biggest trouble last year was wildness, probably because of my knee, but that has cleared up, too."

Grove doesn't give all the credit for his 1943 success to the operation.

Mudy The Spotter

"That Muddy Ruel (White Sox) coach and pitching diagnostician extraordinary) is a wonder," Grove said. "He's straightened me out plenty.

"Something very simple can throw a pitcher off, just like a golfer at his game. But just tell Ruel. . . . He'll watch you and in a couple of minutes, he'll spot it."

"Ruel calls Grove a pitcher "with good technical knowledge" and unlimited possibilities."

Can Mix 'Em Up

"He doesn't have the fast ball of Bob Feller nor the curve of Tommy Bridges," Ruel avers, "but he does have a well rounded selection of pitches and he doesn't have to stick to one delivery."

Dykes opined: "He's got the makings of a great pitcher. In fact, I'll go so far as to say he'll be a great pitcher."

Grove, single but rejected for military service recently because of his knee, says he is having considerable success this year with his "sinker" ball. As evidence of the way batters are driving this pitch into the dirt, he points to five double plays the Sox turned in behind him in a game against St. Louis. In his very next start, the Sox executed three more double plays.

Paradoxically, it was a "sinker" that Gordon slapped down the third base line the night of July 8 to keep Grove from baseball's Hall of Fame.

"It was a sinker, in on him," Grove said. "If I got it away from him, he wouldn't have pulled it and it might have been different. But it was a good pitch. I wanted it low and it was. After all, you don't get these good hitters out all night."

Grove says his baseball has been full of exciting moments, but his near no hitter is tops. Incidentally, he is quite proud of the fact, too, that in 22 times at bat he has batted in seven runs and scored six, all on five hits; also of a bunt against New York that squeezed in not one, but two runs.

This is Grove's sixth year in pro ball. The Sox picked him up after he pitched a no-hitter for Proviso High School of Maywood, Ill., a Chicago suburb. He started with Longview of the East Texas League in 1938, played two seasons with Oklahoma City and most of 1941 with Shreveport where he won 17 games and lost 7. His first part of 1941 was spent with the pale hose and last year he came up to stay.

Flores' Cooling Off On Mound Explained; Has Chipped Elbow

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 17.—They're already calling Jesse Flores a "morning glory" pitcher—a flinger who blossoms briefly and then fades — and pride has prevented the Mexican moundsman from explaining his descent from rookie greatness to mediocrity.

Flores, stocky, right-handed pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, was the "hottest" flinger in the majors on May 30, when he had registered seven victories against one lone defeat. At that time the Mexican's screwball, delivered with the rare finger spin instead of the Hubbell wrist snap, was mowing the batsmen down. And the Athletics—guided by 80-year-old Connie Mack—were in third place, just two games behind the leading Yankees.

Have Tumbled Since

But since that May 30, the Athletics have tumbled to last place in the American league standings, and Flores has won only one game in seven. He now has a record of eight victories and seven defeats, —the best record on the A's, but nothing to inspire text books on pitching proficiency.

What happened to the Flores of May 30?

We asked Flores after yesterday's game with the Yanks, in which Flores opened on the mound and was nicked for a home run by Nick Etten with two mates aboard in the first inning. Flores was removed after the second inning as the A's lost to the Yanks, 6-5.

Bothered By A Cold

Flores said: "I have been bothered by a cold for the past two weeks. Sometimes that cold hits me in the back or head and sometimes in the chest. Just a summer cold—"

But Connie Mack, ancient manager of the Athletics, said: "Flores has developed elbow trouble—chips in the elbow—according to X-rays taken last Monday. We are waiting now for physicians to decide if he should have an operation on the elbow. Yes—unquestionably—throwing the screwball contributed to his arm ailment."

But, if Flores was afflicted with an elbow ailment, how come he opened yesterday's game against the Yanks?

Asked For "Flores Day"

Connie Mack said: "I'm glad you asked that question. You see, I had planned to rest Flores until something definite was decided about his elbow. But a Latin-American society of New York had written me, asking to have yesterday made a 'Flores Day' at Yankee stadium. I replied that it was okay. Accordingly I started Flores yesterday, but the Latin-Americans apparently had forgotten about it. No Latins showed up with their promised trophy. So I took Flores out of the game after the second inning.

"Flores was not only naturally disappointed but also off form," Connie added.

To Be Used In Relief

Mack emphasized that 25-year-old Flores would be all right when he got his elbow fixed. Meanwhile he will use the rookie only for relief pitching.

Flores, who was born at Guadalajara, Mexico, but moved to the orange and lemon groves of La Habra, Calif., when he was 6, promised to do better when he recovers from his "cold" and gets more experience in pitching to American league batters.

Flores never even intimated that his toboggan from the 7-1 altitude to 8-7 mediocrity resulted from a chipped elbow. Perhaps he feared such admission might end his once-glorified stay in the majors.

Jezrahel Wins In Arlington

Grey Victor Over Stablemate Occupy

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, July 17. (AP)—The entries of John Marsch, Chicago contractor, ran one-two in the $60,050 Arlington futurity at Washington park today, but it wasn't Occupy, two-year-old brother of Occupation, that triumphed.

The winner was Jezrahel, one of a trio of juveniles Marsch sent to the post in an attempt to make a clean sweep.

Alorter Is Third

This little grey gelding, the son of Pharmond II-Jezebel, plowed through the muddy stretch with tremendous strides to overhaul Occupy in the last 50 yards to win by half a length. Alorter, owned by A. C. Ernest of Cleveland, was third, two and a half lengths behind Occupy and a head in front of Mrs. Helen Miller's Ogham.

The Marsch entry went to the post even money favorite and returned $4.20, $3.60 and $2.60. Alorter paid $4.60 to show.

Jezrahel, ridden by Jockey Otto Grohs, ran the six furlongs in 1:16 1-5 over the heavy track.

$54,650 Is Purse

The thrilling race was witnessed by a crowd of 18,000.

The rest of the 12 starters in this the richest 2-year-old race thus far in 1943 trailed in this order: Abe Hirschberg's Black Badge, Mrs. Al Sabath's civil liberty, John Marsch's Broadcloth, Hal Price Headly's Megogo, W. E. Boeing's Freezout, Lt. Col. C. T. Whitney's Pukka Gin, Joe W. Brown's Ravenala and A. C. Ernst's Albuldo.

Owner Marsch accepted a $54,650 check for his triumph.

Jezrahel, winning his second straight race in three starts, picked up a purse of $48,650. Occupy added $6,000 to the Marsch strongbox.

In the singles finals yesterday, he lost to fifth-ranked Gene Garrett of San Diego, Calif., 2-6, 4-6, 3-6.

After a brief rest, Ray teamed up with John Hiihiluoman of Bermuda to beat Garret and Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., in the doubles finals, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-8, 6-3.

College Pennants Are Going Into Battle Too

EVANSTON, Ill., July 17. (AP)—College pennants are going to war, too.

Northwestern university has sent one to Capt. A. E. J. Miller of the Royal artillery stationed with the British forces in Persia and Iraq.

The 24-year old captain, who attended Des Plaines, (Ill.) high school before moving to England with his parents, said he always had been a Northwestern football fan and wanted to fly the penant from the radio aerial of his tank.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons were the only members of the Athletics to play in all 154 games during the 1932 season. Foxx won the league's Most Valuable Player award, beating Lou Gehrig by nine tallies. Simmons did not get a vote.

Haegg Breaks No Record But Wins

Roundup Of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, July 17—A couple of weeks ago Branch Rickey was defending the Giants' failure to buy certain ball players by saying that during the winter bartering season they were interested only in the kind of athletes who could help win a pennant . . . The Giants, he added, might change their attitude and show some interest in candidates for a sixth or seventh-place team . . . Wonder if he had Ducky Medwick in mind all the time? . . . But somehow we can't see the Newsom and Medwick deals helping the Dodgers along toward the flag—not this year.

MORE BROOKLYN

The Brooklyn bubble hadn't busted when Shag Shaughnessy, the International league president, was talking about managers the other day, but his comments seem appropriate in view of some of the names suggested by writers who figure Leo Durocher won't be back on the job next year . . . A major league player can't step into a major league manager's job these days without getting some experience piloting in the minors, Shag maintained, because they never have had to do their own thinking . . . And, escaping the obvious comment, Shaughnessy added, "Not that there's been much thinking done in the past ten years."

Pfc. William C. Jost, former New York High school and Huntington, N. Y., semi-pro footballer who is a Marine M. P. somewhere in the south Pacific, has been beaten only once in four contests in which he matches his long-distance football passing against the drop kicking of local athletes. It took an 85-yard dropkick with the wind to do that, as Jost's passes have averaged 70 yards . . . Sgt. Clayton Heafner, who obtained a ten-day furlough to play in the Tam O'Shanter open golf tourney, recently fired a 66 at Spartanburg, S. C., although he hasn't had any competitive practice since he joined the Army.

CLEANING THE CUFF

Tillie, the bird dog that walked from South Carolina to Kentucky after being lost on a hunting trip, apparently wasn't thinking about getting home all the time during her journey. John McGill, jr., now reports that Tillie is expecting a blessed several events soon . . . Joe Lynch, promoter of the Henry Armstrong-Willie Joyce rematch at Hollywood July 24, predicts a $65,000 gate at $11.50 tops . . . Roland Van Harrington, Syracuse second sacker, is stealing bases at a faster clip than Snuffy Etirnweiss did last year when he set an International league record of 63 thefts . . . Who says umps ain't popular? When Hank Soar, ex-Providence college and N. Y. Giants footballer, made his farewell appearance as a New England Victory league ump before joining the Army, more than 3,000 fans joined in the sendoff.

Announcer Diz Dean To Take Army Exam

ST. LOUIS, July 17. (AP)—Radio Announcer Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, former pitching ace of the St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago Cubs, left tonight for Lancaster, Texas, where he will take a physical examination to determine his acceptability to the armed forces.

Dean, married but childless, recently was reclassified 1-A by his selective service board. He has not yet been called for induction but is arranging an examination before the call.

Swede Raps Dodds Third Time, Leads Student 30 Yards

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17. (AP)—Gunder Haegg, great Swedish runner, failed to set a new world's one-mile record here today but won that event in a benefit track meet, while a crowd of 15,000 cheered him on. Gil Dodds, of Boston, national 1500-meter champion, trailed Haegg by more than 10 yards at the finish, after leading the Swede for 2 1-3 laps. Haegg's time was 4:12.3.

Setting his own pace, Haegg won the race as he pleased. It was the third time on his American tour that he had defeated Dodds, previously showing the way to the American in two-mile races in Chicago and Los Angeles.

Haegg Looks Back

Dodds jumped into the lead shortly after the start. He set a brisk pace for the first half-mile with Haegg trailing by about two yards.

They maintained the same positions when they swung into the third lap. At the head of the back stretch Haegg took the lead and from then on the Swede was out in front. He glanced back occasionally, meanwhile increasing his lead.

At the finish, Haegg was far out in front with Dodds some hundred yards ahead of the third-place man.

Davis Slows Up

Harold Davis of the University of California, fastest sprinter in the nation, won the 100-yard dash in 9.7 seconds and the 220-yard event in 21.3. Davis' 100-yard time was his slowest of the season. He has equalled the world record of 9.4 and has been consistent in 1943 at 9.6.

Southern California's Cliff Bourland, leading quarter-miler of the country, won his favorite event in 49.8.

Track Contests Scheduled Today

First track and field competition of the year for aviation cadets and enlisted men at Lubbock Army Air field will be held on the LAAF track this afternoon, Lt. Anthony Ferri of the athletic and recreation department announced Saturday.

On the basis of their showings in Sunday's event, outstanding competitors will be picked as LAAF's entrants in meets with other air bases later in the summer. Preliminary try-outs have been held by the enlisted men's squadrons and the cadet detachment, and a number of speed merchants from college and high school squads have been uncovered.

Events Are Carded

Events carded for the meet are the 50, 100 and 220-yard dashes, 440 and 880 yard relays, high jump and broad jump, centipede novelty race, Paul Revere novelty race, softball throw, and a race over the obstacle course.

Upper class cadets will tangle with the lower class of potential airmen in a tug-of-war. Squadrons pitted against each other in the tug-of-war event are 355th vs. 84th, 498th vs. 71st, and 72nd vs. 495th. A 75-yard handicap race for squadron first sergeants will be another feature.

"What's wrong with it?" Mrs. Koontz asked.

"I want a different girl on it. The last one's mother had too much to say about it."

The bureau issued him a new license.

Rip Sewell's "Dipsy Doodle" Getting Into Hitters' Hair

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There was that tune out of the Tin Pan Alley a while back about "the dipsy doodle that gets in your hair," and National league batters who've been breaking their backs on Rip Sewell's new Sunday pitch this season, tell you the guy who wrote this little number didn't know the half of it.

The way they tell it, this is probably the funniest dipsy-doo slant since Wes Ferrell presented his nuthin' ball. It's a laugh to everybody but the hitters. It's a little thing Sewell cooked up in his spare time, and since he discovered the "dodo," the Pittsburgh Pirates' twirler has become the leading elbower in the National league. At the moment, he's sporting a slate of 13 wins, including a 9-5 job over the St. Louis cardinals yesterday.

One batter described the new toss as a cross between a parachute jump and a yo-yo, which gives you a rough idea. It's a kind of crosseyed curve that breaks up and down instead of side to side. Rip throws it without any more steam than you'll find in a bowl of mush.

The clan that gathered there in Philly early this week cut up quite a few touches about Rip's new dipsy-doo. They told about the time he served it up to Dom Dallessandro, the short Chicago gardener who is built something like a fire hydrant. Dom had two strikes on him and watched this thing coming up overhead, figuring it was a pitch that got away from Rip. It hovered up there for a moment, then dropped over and the umps had to call strike three. Needless to say, Dom called it something else.

Increase Indicated In Texas Harvest

AUSTIN, July 17 (AP)—Favored by weather that permitted maximum use of limited labor and equipment, Texas farmers this year are expected to bring in an increase of about five per cent in harvested crops over last year, the Bureau of Agricultural economics of the Department of Agriculture said today.

In its general crop report on prospects as of July 1, the department said the most significant indicated increases were in grain, sorghums, wheat, oats, rice, peanuts, potatoes and sweet potatoes.

Prospective production of most crops, with the exception of cotton, deciduous fruits and cowpeas, was considerably above the 1932-41 average.

Grain Acreage Increased

By crops, the outlook was:

The acreage of feed grain crops (corn, grain sorghums, oats, barley, and rye) was increased almost 16 per cent, the total for these crops being 12,838,000 acres this year compared with 11,030,000 acres last year.

Hay and roughage crop acreages, including sweet sorghums, appear to be about 31 per cent smaller than last year's.

The food crop group (Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, rice and wheat) shows substantial increases with a total of 3,720,000 acres for harvest this year, compared with 3,346,000 acres harvested in 1942.

Total planted acreage of the special oil crops (peanuts, soybeans, and flax) was estimated to be 1,204,000 acres, compared with 1,061,000 acres grown last year.

Cotton in cultivation July 1, 1943, was 8,050,000 acres or 5 per cent below the 8,430,000 acres planted a year earlier and was the smallest cotton acreage in Texas since 1905.

Corn to be harvested was estimated at 5,418,000 acres, which was the same as that harvested last year and about 500,000 acres more than the 1932-41 average. Production based on conditions as of July 1 was 92,106,000 bushels compared with 78,561,000 bushels last year.

Wheat Harvest Well Along

Wheat harvest was well advanced in the high plains and a state crop of 33,170,000 bushels or the same as that indicated a month earlier was in prospect. his production is somewhat below the 47,438,000 bushels harvested in 1942 but 25 per cent above the 26,434,000 bushels average.

Fall oats were severely damaged by January freeze and spring oats by dry weather and the early March freeze. The acreage harvested was estimated at 826,000 acres, considerably above the very small acreage of 590,000 harvested a year ago, but about half as large as the acreage harvested in 1941. Oat production was estiamted at 15,894,000 bushels compared with 11,210,000 bushels last year and 36,472,000 bushels average.

Sorghum acreage was estimated at 7,195,000 acres, an increase of 1,000,000 acres over the 6,195,000 acres last year. From indications now available, it is probable that the acreage to be harvested for grain will be the largest of record, while the sweet sorghum acreage will be even below last year's reduced acreage. Estimates of sorghum production are not made until later in the season.

Rice production was forecast at 20,592,000 bushels compared with 13,498,000 bushels last year and 11,324,000 bushels average.

Editor Encouraged By Visit To Russia

LONDON, July 17. (AP)—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of the New York Times, said today he had returned from a 3-week visit to Soviet Russia greatly encouraged by what he had seen of that country's determination to continue in close collaboration with Britain and the United States until Hitler is defeated, as well as Russia's readiness to take its full part in a system of collective security after the war.

"The Russians refer to themselves and the Allies constantly as 'freedom-loving' people, and my contention is that if that is so, then we can work with them through the war and afterward regardless of differences in our languages and economic systems," he said.

The funeral will be held here under Masonic auspices, probably Monday.

Withholding Taxes From County Payroll To Be $1,000 Monthly

Withholding taxes from the payroll of Lubbock county will total approximately $1,000 a month, based on figures found Saturday in the office of Joe Y. Boyd, county auditor.

The estimate was on basis of 94 empoyes for the payroll period beginning July 1, but the payroll usually has from 10 to 15 more names listed, Boyd said.

The auditor's figures showed family status for employes as:

Singles persons, 15; married persons with no dependents, 40; married with one dependent, 17; married with two dependents, 10; married with three dependents, 2; married with four dependents, 3; married with five dependents, 1; head of a family with no dependents, 1; head of a family with one dependent, 4; head of a family with three dependents,1.

July Tax To Be $973.23

The July payroll withholding tax will be $973.23, exclusive of casual or day workers commissioners might employe before the end of the month for road work.

As compared with withholding taxes under the Victory tax plan, the system earlier followed, present withholding basis will approximate two and one-half times as much.

Victory tax withholdings had amounted to $1,200 a quarter year the last two quarters. The county's employes will pay more than $2,900 a quarter under pay-as-you-go tax plans.

Some To Pay Less

However, some individuals on the county payroll will pay less in taxes than before institution of the pay-as-you-go plan. This is due to more liberal exemption for family status. Under the Victory tax plan, the exemption for each paycheck a month was $52. Now, under the changed system, there is a $104 exemption monthly for the married man with no dependents, with $26 a month exemption added for each dependent.

It is provided, however, that where the pay-as-you-go tax does not run so high as the 3 per cent Victory tax that can be assessed as alternative, then the 3 per cent will be charged.

Russian Press Again Asks Second Front

MOSCOW, July 17. (AP)—Russian press comment today on the Allied invasion of Sicily took an optimistic view of developments but again talked of a second front in western Europe.

"The Allies now have every possibility to take Sicily and not only turn Sicily into a theater of hostilities but also to cut off Italian troops in the Balkans and annihilate them," the Moscow News said.

"The events of the first few days have already clearly revealed that the Germans have left Italy to shift for herself. This shows that as before the Germans attach the greatest and decisive significance to the Soviet-German front. They would unquestionably attach the same significance to the second front in western Europe."

Second Plane Crash Victim Identified

DALLAS, July 17 (AP) — The second man to die in the crash of an Army plane near the Houston municipal airport was identified today as Corp. Kenneth L. Halstead, 24, a paratrooper from Los Angeles.

A few hours after the crash Thursday officials of the fifth ferrying group, air transport command, in Dallas identified the pilot of the plane as Lt. D. A. Dutton, 22, of Arcola, Ill.

Identification of Halstead was made by a brother, E. T. Halstead of Dallas. The corporal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Halstead, live in Los Angeles, and his wife, Mrs. Betty Halstead, also lives in that city.

Cotton Crop Cut In 18 Counties

Eighteen counties in the high plains cotton section of West Texas have 192,994 less acres of cotton growing than last year, when the acreage was 1,311,190 according to another survey just completed with county agents and AAA administrators furnishing the authentic figures.

Of the 18 counties surveyed, Dawson has an increased acreage of five per cent, from 126,099 acres last year, to 132,404 this year, and Hockley, with 123,384 acres last year, has the same acreage.

Parmer, with 24,405 acres last year; and Gaines with 23,121 acres, have cut acreages 50 per cent.

Others Reduced

Bailey, with 73,114; Cochran, with 49,846; and Swisher, with 14,556 acres last year, have reduced by 35 per cent.

Castro, with 16,430 acres last year, and Hale with 81,630, have made a 30 per cent cut.

Briscoe Cuts 20 Per Cent

Briscoe county had 26,099 acres in cotton last year, and has reduced by 20 per cent. Floyd county had 53,609 acres, and has reduced by 15 per cent.

Crosby, with 90,710 acres; Lamb, 136,526; Lubbock, 175,075; Lynn, 147,326 acres, each has reduced 10 per cent.

Garza had 37,775 acres last year, with an acreage this year totaling 35,869, or five per cent smaller.

Weather Cuts Crop

Hail, flooding rains, replanting three and four times with scarcities of labor, seed, and machinery, and blowing sand and drouth in the western edge of the Plains cotton area all are blamed for the smaller crop. Acreages that were lost have mostly been planted to feed.

K. N. Clapp of the Anderson, Clayton Co., estimates this year's yield in the 18 counties at 400,000 bales as compared with 579,000 in the same counties last year. He estimates that 80 per cent of the cotton acreage now is in good growing and fruiting condition, but many fields are weedy and this can cause rapid deterioration.

Disgruntled Prisoner Decides He's Alright

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 16. (AP) (Delayed)—A German soldier with perhaps the lowest morale in the north African-Sicilian campaign was captured the first day of the invasion.

An anti-aircraft gunner, he had returned recently from leave in the much-bombed city of Essen in Germany. While he was there one of his family was killed in an air raid which also inflicted particularly heavy damage to the Krupp works. Manufacture of munitions stopped immediately, he said, so that all available workmen could clear up the debris.

After a furlough he was sent to Sicily where he found that many of his friends had been sent to Tunisia and subsequently captured.

The situation thoroughly disheartened him, he said, particularly because the Italians had neither the skill nor desire to progress. But he was back only two days when he was captured by the British and said that as far as he was concerned he'd just as soon have it that way.

Sixteen Billion To Be Asked In Drive

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—The treasury will ask the people of the United States for $16,000,000,000 when the third war loan drive begins in September, it was learned today.

This will be about $5,000,000,000 more than was borrowed in the second war loan in April. Subscriptions to the April loan totaled $16,500,000,000 but $5,000,000,000 was loaned by commercial banks who will not participate in the September drive.

The CHIROPRACTOR—and You

No. 9 of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of Chiropractic.

CASE HISTORY No. 555. For fifteen years this woman suffered with rheumatism and was in a crippled state. Pain in the joints was so severe it became necessary to take tablets each night in order to secure some sleep. Many remedies, diets and treatments were tried but recovery seemed impossible. When eventually a friend suggested that she try Chiropractic, she at first objected, having heard that Chiropractic adjustments would hurt a person in her condition. But finally she consented. X-rays were taken and the site of nerve interference located. Then adjustments were commenced to remove this interference. In the patient's own words, "I was not hurt in any way, and within a few weeks the pain had left my joints. I could sleep without taking tablets. In a short time the swelling in the joints started to disappear and in four months' time I was again well."

CASE HISTORY No. 229. For twelve years this middle-aged woman had suffered with high blood pressure and associated symptoms of headache and dizziness. She was unable to do housework unassisted and life was miserable for her. Many treatments were tried without permanent relief. As a final hope, she derided to try Chiropractic and a series of spinal adjustments was commenced. After the first adjustment the headache was considerably relieved, and at the conclusion of the adjustments, blood pressure had returned to normal and headaches and dizziness had completely disappeared. Today this patient is able to do her housework without help.

THE CAUSE OF DIS-EASE. Chiropractors have found that illness and dis-ease are most often caused by pressure upon the nerves which carry vital nerve force from the brain to various parts of the body. The nervous system radiates from the spinal column, and it is here that even slight pressure from a displaced segment of the spine can impede the flow of nerve force from the brain, thus interfering with the function of one or more parts of the body. This nerve interference can be located accurately by the Chiropractic technique. The Chiropractor can then remove the pressure by a simple adjustment with his hands only. Drugs and surgery are not employed. Once the cause of the illness is removed, Nature itself restores the affected part to normal.

German And Italian Relations Strained

LONDON, July 17. (U.P.) — Constant bickering over lack of Nazi aid for Sicily has strained relations between Italian and German officers, Madrid dispatches said today as the Italians were reported hastily withdrawing troops from France, presumbably for home defense.

Madrid said the Roosevelt-Churchill message had made a deep impression in Italy.

In the first reaction from Rome, a Stefani news agency dispatch said the Italians would resist to the end but then complained of lack of weapons to allow them to fight with "still more bitterness." A Berlin broadcast said the message was merely another note in the nerve war.

Italians Shout At Germans

Madrid said reports from Italy by way of France told of the Italians in northern cities openly shouting at German soldiers: "What are you doing here? Why don't you go to Sicily to fight? You got us into this war."

The straits of Messina practically are blocked, Madrid said, and three Fascist divisions intended for the island still were at mainland ports.

MESSAGES REPORTED DROPPED OVER TOWNS

LONDON, July 17. (U.P.)—A Rome dispatch to the German DNG news agency reported today that the Rome evening press published the full text of the Roosevelt-Churchill "surrender or die" message to the Italian people, under a headline reading:

"Roosevelt and Churchill ask Italians to be cowardly and dishonest."

The dispatch said copies of the message were dropped over Rome and other Italian towns last night from Allied planes.

ROME INTIMATES ITALY CAN'T TURN BACK NOW

LONDON, July 17. (AP)—In the first direct reply to the Roosevelt-Churchill surrender demand, the Rome radio intimated today that Italy had strung along with Adolf Hitler too long to turn back now.

"Even if Italy surrendered," it said, it would not mean she would have found peace once again. If, as the British and Americans say, their goal is Berlin, then their way to it is Italy.

"The Italian people would still be in the war; they would be asked by the invaders to turn their weapon against Germany.

"Italians know full well that for them this war is one of life or death."

of grounded Japanese planes.

At 9:20 a. m. yesterday, Dauntless, Avenger and Liberator bombers in great force, escorted by fighters, moved in for the attack.

Zero Floaters Give Battle

Zero float planes—land planes equipped with pontoons for alighting in the water—rose to meet them and the battle was on.

The bombers steadily pressed toward the target of 15 warships and merchantmen our reconnaissance planes had reported earlier were in the harbor.

Our bombers must have made almost every bomb count because they sank 7 out of 15 and caused an eighth to be beached. What also is important is they bagged their principal target, the light cruiser or destroyer leader.

In the New Guinea sector of the Pacific offensive, 30-tons of bombs were dropped by Allied planes on Salamaua and Lae, Japanese air bases on the Huon Gulf.

In the absence of official reports observers here believe that heavy rains have slowed the land attack through the jungles toward the big central Solomons airdrome of Munda. American troops were reported less than two miles away several days ago.

No Details Announced

Several engagements have been reported since then but the communique from the headquarters of General Douglas MacArthur, while referring to small advances, have made no mention of the actual distances gained.

In the meantime American bombers have continued making raids to soften the defenses about Munda. The Saturday communique reported that 82 tons of bombs were dropped on the Japanese Friday in the strongest attack in the area since the American offensive started on June 30. More than 100 planes took part in this low-level raid.

Since July 30 more than 300 tons of bombs have been dropped on the airdrome, the airfield and the Lambeti plantation positions of the enemy two miles to the east. The area also has been bombarded by naval units.

Yanks In Sicily

ion began is yet to be told.

These air attack soldiers, along with the rangers, had the most desperate fighting of any units of the Seventh Army.

The Second Armored division under Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Gaffey furnished the steel fist for smashing Axis resistance in Sicily's interior highlands. This division participated in the Casablanca landings in November but afterward remained in the training areas of the Fifth Army until it was shipped across the Mediterranean.

All American tanks engaged in the Tunisian campaign were from the First Armored division, which was not among the units identified officially in Sicily.

The Third Infantry division under Maj. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr., whose Fifteenth Regiment was once commanded by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, got its first taste of fighting alongside the Second Armored division in the Casablanca operations last winter.

ways. This virus or 'germ' cannot be seen by use of the most powerful microscope and for this reason it is difficult to prove conclusively means by which the disease may be spread. However, most medical authorities believe that the spread is through one of the following means:

"1. Direct contact with the secretions of the nose and throat of a person with the disease or a carrier of the disease, by way of the respiratory tract.

Through Food Or Drink

"2. Through food or drink contaminated with the virus by means of the gastro-intestinal tract; that is, mouth, stomach, and intestines, or by transferring to the mouth the virus on hands or on soiled objects.

"It is thought that probably one of the principal means of spreading the disease is by transmitting infective material on the feet or in the body by the house fly to food or other objects placed in the mouth of the susceptible individual.

"Most medical authorities believe that there are many more cases of poliomyelitis which do not show any signs of paralysis that there are paralytic cases, and only those individuals showing evidence of paralysis or involvement of the nervous system are definitely diagnosed as poliomyelitis. It is very probable that those persons who become ill, showing various early signs of the disease, and do not become paralyzed are capable of spreading infantile paralysis. These are known as non-paralytic cases.

Here Are Ways To Help

"You may aid in bringing this epidemic to an end by doing the following:

"1. Watch the members of your household for early signs of illness and at the first indication of illness isolate until diagnosis is made. Pay especial attention to fever, headache, upset stomach or bowel disturbances, stiffness of the neck and back or other evidence of acute illness.

"2. Keep from your own premises and adjacent property, so far as you are able, all unsanitary conditions, including the daily cleaning of all pans, yards and places where stock, chickens, rabbits and various pets are kept, and use lime freely. Kill all flies and eliminate all breeding places of flies and mosquitoes.

"3. Place all garbage in securely covered garbage can having first wrapped any wet garbage in paper.

"4. Under no circumstance, allow food to be eaten out of doors or in a place which is not adequatelyly protected from flies.

"5. Keep all children under teen age from all public gatherings and provide well sponsored outdoor recreation for small groups of children in the neighborhood. Do not allow children to play in the sun during the hottest part of the day, that is between 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. Avoid fatigue.

"6. Help pass the information on to all friends and acquaintances.

"7. Cooperate by giving all the information that has been requested for the use of medical authorities in stamping out infantile paralysis."

Six Reported Killed In Canadian Wreck

THE PAS, Manitoba, July 17 (AP) — Six persons were reported killed and nine injured when two Canadian National railways work trains collided head-on two miles north of Cranberry Portage today.

Cranberry Portage is near the Mantoba-Saskatchewan border about 55 miles north of The Pas.

Tax-Free Sales Of Cigarets Hit

AUSTIN, July 17. (U.P.) — State Comptroller George Sheppard said today he had requested the attorney general to take legal action to prevent sale of cigarets free of state tax to civilians employed at Army, Navy or Marine bases, camps and posts.

Sheppard said that the state is losing between $3,000 and $4,000 a day as a result of about 150,000 civil service employes being allowed to buy cigarets tax free, the same as men and women in the armed services.

The War department appropriation act authorizes post exchanges to "sell articles of small personal needs" to civilians employed at the posts. It does not specifically mention articles free of state tax.

An act of the last Texas legislature forbids sale of tax free cigarets by post exchanges to civilian workers, but accords the privilege to men and women in the services.

Sales Are Highest

Cigaret tax collections in Texas are now highest in the state's history, last month passing $1,000,000. During May Texas distributors sold more than 300,000,000 cigarets to post exchanges and similar agencies to be sold free of state tax. Taxes on them would have amounted to $450,000 had they been levied, Sheppard said.

Sheppard said that the Eighth Service command had been very co-operative in trying to limit sales to civilians, but could not prohibit such sales because of federal law. They have, however, limited civilians' purchases to two packages a day.

State Revenue Lost

"I do not believe Congress intended to authorize civilians on posts or bases to buy cigarets without paying the state tax," Sheppard said. "Civilian workers' purchases not only mean a loss of state retailers. It would not be a burden on post exchanges in any way if they sold civilians stamped cigarets."

Recently Sheppard warned that civilians who buy tax-free cigarets from out-of-state mail order concerns are subject to the tax and also a heavy penalty. Since the announcement, he said, many citizens have written offering to pay the tax.

Those who volunteered to pay the tax before accepting delivery of cigarets were allowed to pay without penalties, said M. A. Smith, director of the comptroller's cigaret tax division.

Sicilian Front

was reported to have struck far north and west of Caltagirone, reaching a distance of about 30 miles from the sea, and probably was emerging from the screen of hills fringing its beachheads.*

No definite objectives taken by the Americans were announced, however.

(The Italian high command, in its communique broadcast from Rome, indicated the Americans were putting on a powerful drive to broaden their base on the south coast by announcing that hard fighting was in progress in the Agrigento area.

(Agrigento is about 12 miles west of Naro, which the Americans have captured.

(A BBC reporter in a broadcast from Algiers, said the Eighth Army was only six miles from Catania).

Naval Bombardment

Strong Allied naval forces were paving the way for Montgomery by throwing shells into Axis defenses at will.

Again Allied motor gunboats ventured into the two-mile wide Messina strait in their war to cut the island's communications with the mainland and routed a formation of Italian motor torpedo boats, sinking one and damaging two others.

For the same purpose cloud-darkening fleets of Allied bombers —Fortresses, Mitchells, Marauders and blockbuster-toting Wellingtons—again shook up the already smoking targets on the ferry line between Sicily and Italy.

Around the clock the air fleets hammered at such targets as San Giovanni, Reggio Calabria and Vibo Valentia on the mainland side of the strait and Crotone on the Gulf of Taranto, battering airfields, docks, sidings and ferry terminals, while the Middle Eastern Liberators covered with bomb bursts the big air base of Bari on the upper part of the Italian heel.

Still Favorable For Defense

Randazzo, a big enemy concentration center across smoking Mt. Etna from Catania, also came in for a major air blow.

The Catanian plain into which Montgomery emerged was still favorable to Axis defense, criss-crossed as it is by many waterways, including three large rivers which run at right angles to the line of his advance.

The Canadians, by their swift advance to Caltagirone and Grammichele, had made the deepest penetration of any of the Allied forces.

They had sliced into the heart of Axis defenses in central Sicily, and now controlled a strategic east-west highway and river valley which facilitated communications between the Allied left and right wings.

Possession of these towns forced the Axis to fall back for 30 miles to find a new line of lateral communications.

It appeared obvious to Allied military observers that the force of 60,000 Germans reported in Sicily was not equal to the job cut out for it.

In addition to these troops, which included the two armored divisions and line of communication troops forced into combat duties, it was estimated that Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, the Italian commander, had no more than 250,000 Italians at his disposal when the invasion started.

Of these seven Italian divisions it seemed likely that at least three already had been put out of action.

Axis prisoners already totaled 20,000.

Against this enemy force, it was disclosed that the American Seventh Army alone includes five divisions: The First Infantry commanded by Maj. Gen. Terry Allen, Third Infantry under Maj. Gen Lucian K. Truscott, 45th Infantry under Maj. Gen. Troy H. Middleton, Second Armored under Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Gaffey, and 82nd Airborne under Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

fighters, pounded the air fields at Reggio Calabria and Vibo Valentia after formations of Wellingtons had bombed the same targets the previous night.

163 Axis Planes Downed

In the past seven days, American, British, Canadian and South African fliers shot 163 Axis planes out of the air and knocked out hundreds of others before they had a chance to leave the ground. The cost to the Allies was 69 planes, nearly half of them on the first day of the invasion.

In the seven days they have won complete mastery of the Sicilian skies—air supremacy as great or greater than that held by the Nazis when they operated over Poland, Greece and Crete.

During the first week our airmen had three objectives: to hunt out and destroy the enemy's force, to provide cover and support for Allied land forces, and to hit the enemy's reinforcements in bunches before they could reach the front. Their present ability to range over the island at will is a yardstick of their success.

first American troops to Europe at the start of the present war. Hartle's new assignment was not disclosed.

British Bases Close

British bases are closer to the west wall than the Allied Mediterranean bases are to Sicily. Although the German air force in the west is undoubtedly superior to that in Sicily the Allies have proved repeatedly that they can control the skies over France.

A simple fact illustrated by Sicily sems to be that the Axis for all its reserves, can not maintain an adequate front against the Russian Army and still man the whole rim of the continent to fight a concentrated attack at beachheads of Allied choosing, the observers here said.

Big Air Victory

which the RAF again winged across the Alps to strike at northern Italy and Munich in southwestern Germany.

The air ministry said British heavy bomber attacks on electrical nerve centers — transformer and switching stations—in Italy were closely connected with the Allied operations in Sicily. They were aimed at breaking the flow of current from Alps generators which keep traffic moving on the Axis railways.

Food Shortages Laid To Maldistribution

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—The American Institute of Food Distribution said today that despite prospects for production approaching the 1942 record "there is a chance that the nation will face shortages more serious than any experienced so far" because of maldistribution.

The distributive system, the institute said, has been upset by war-time demands.

decrease in the middle west and southwest."

The standardized "A" coupon was expected, as a result, to be between 2 and 3 gallons.

No statement was available from the Office of Price administration, which actually handles the mechanics of rationing based on recommendations from Ickes' office, but the Ickes announcement was cleared with OPA before its release to the press, and the announcement coincided with views expressed by OPA Chief Prentiss M. Brown earlier in the week.

Ickes said the announcement also was made "with the knowledge and full support of the oil industry."

Can Release Tank Cars

He added, "with the completion Monday of our 'Big Inch' pipeline from Texas to New York and Philadelphia, railway tankcars can soon be released for assignment to other areas. This offers the transportation flexibility for which we have been working for many months.

"We are recommending that much of this transportation, so made available, be assigned by the Office of Defense transportation to the moving of additional oil out of the middle west, thus continuing to take advantage of the shorter haul for that region, as compared with the haul from the southwest."

"The steadily increasing oil movement out of the middle west and southwest is operating to equalize oil inventories as between those sections and the east," Ickes said. "As soon as this balance can be established, it will be possible to equalize the burden of rationing as between the east coast and the middle west and southwest.

"What the effect of the uniform restrictions upon civilian gasoline consumption will be can then be determined in the light of the full facts as to inventories on hand and new supply currently available. Only on such a basis can policy be determined. It would be faithless to our armed forces to do otherwise, merely as a bow to pressure."

Fighting also broke out in the Caucasus where Russian troops recaptured a "height of great strategical importance; northeast of Novorossisk, the bulletin said. More than 600 Germans were killed, some prisoners were taken, and 35 mortars and machineguns were destroyed, it added.

The new gains around Orel on the fifth day of the great Russian counteroffensive were in addition to advances of 12 to 28 miles made in the first three days and gains of six to 10 miles made yesterday. Strong German opposition was beaten down by an avalanche of Soviet machines, including stury American-made Sherman tanks.

Clarence Saunders Is Up And At 'Em Again

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 17. (AP)—Clarence Saunders, grocery store wizard who made and lost two fortunes, is up and at 'em again—this time with kiddie cars.

'It's just a stop-gap while the war's going on," explained the former head of the $100,000,000 Piggly Wiggly chain, surveying today his newest enterprise. "After the war it's back to the grocery business for me, back to the top for one last time."

The place was an old bowling alley out on the edge of Memphis. Machines whirred. Sawdust filled the air. Saunders himself was in the thick of it—coatless, sweaty, greasy.

"Doesn't look like much, does it?" the 61-year-old dynamo asked. "Well, sir, pretty soon this will be an assembly line in full production, turning out around 1,000 wooden wagons and baby carts a day."

"But I'm not as young as I was. I intend to get to the top again and this time stay there—with my 'Keedoozle'."

The "Keedozzle" is a robot grocery store which Saunders conceived in 1937 during his third comeback attempt.

Former Commandant Faces Trial Tuesday

DETROIT, July 17. (U.P.)—A general court-martial will convene at the Selfridge field arms air base Tuesday to try Col. William T. Colman, former Selfridge commandant, and other post personnel on charges of violating the articles of war, it was disclosed today.

Col. William B. Wright, present post commandant, disclosed only Colman's name as among those accused in an investigation of alleged irregularities in administration at the air base. He did not reveal the number of other defendants in the trials.

Colman was arrested last May 5 in connection with the shooting of a negro soldier, Pvt. William McRae, and was taken to the Percy Jones general hospital at Battle Creek, Mich., for "observation." He later was returned to Selfridge field where he has been held in custody.

An immediate investigation was begun by the inspector general's office, which sent a corps of officers under Lieut. Col. John Harlan Amen, Brooklyn prosecutor, to the air base. Amen's staff was here from May 11 to June 11.

Microfilm photography of 1,500,000 life insurance record cards recently resulted in a 69 per cent saving of storage space.

O. T. Ryan, assistant teacher-trainer of agricultural education at Texas Technological college, announces the annual area No. 1 conference of vocational agriculture teachers here July 26-28. The meetings will be conducted at Lubbock hotel. Allied Military Regime In Sicily

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17. (AP)—The first combined American-British military government of its kind accompanied the Allied invasion army to govern Sicily, it was announced today.

Hundreds of American and British officers and men, who were trained secretly for months to govern occupied enemy territory, quickly established headquarters.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower designated Gen. Sir Harold Alexander as military governor with supreme authority in Sicily.

The Allied military government organization itself is headed by Maj. Gen. Lord Rennell of Rodd as chief civil affairs officer. Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry, of the United States is deputy chief.

No Political Implications

It was officially declared that establishment of the Allied military government has "no political implications of any kind."

The action was authorized by Washington and London through a directive from the combined chiefs of staff in Washington to Gen. Eisenhower.

"Amgot"—Allied military government organization—officers are responsible for the obedience of Sicilian civilians to proclamations of the military governor.

Although the administration of Sicily is to "be benevolent so far as the civilian population is concerned, the influence of Fascism will be destroyed," it was officially stated.

To Abolish Fascist Party

"The Fascist party will be abolished and the ringleaders of Fascism will be removed from office. Fascist militia and so-called Fascist youth organizations will be abolished. No political activity of any kind will be permitted by Amgot.

"There will be no negotiations with exiles or refugees.

"No local politicians will be given preferential treatment.

"Amgot will attempt to govern the people of occupied provinces and cities through their own officials who are not active members of the fascist party.

"Rationing will be supervised by Amgot."

Restrictions Lifted To Speed Beef Supply

WASHINGTON, July 17. (U.P.)—To speed the increasing beef and veal supplies to clamoring consumers, OPA today took the following actions:

1. Removed wholesalers' quantity discounts on less-than-carloads.

2. Reduced carload discounts from 75 cents to 25 cents per hundred pounds.

3. Raised the wholesalers' margins from 37 1-2 cents to 75 cents per hundred pounds.

With a "squeeze" on retailers considered likely OPA softened the order by stiuplating: "If it is found that retailers margins cannot absorb the slight wholesale increase, adjustments will be made by revising the wholesale prices downward."

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, July 17 (AP)—Grains were firm today as hedging pressure against wheat slackened and moderate short-covering brought a gain of about a cent at times in rye. Support was attributed mainly to technical considerations in view of the extended decline this week. As usual on Saturday, trading was light.

At the close wheat was unchanged to 1-4 higher, July $1.44 1-2, September $1.44 3-4-1-2, oats were 1-2-3-4 lower, July 70 1-4 and rye was unchanged to 1-2 higher, July $1.01.

Judge Grants OPA Restraint

DALLAS, July 17. (U.P.)—While criticizing the rent control act as inefficient and bungling at times, with such inefficiency being a "harvest of bureaucracy," Federal Judge William H. Atwell today upheld the constitutionality of the act in granting the Office of Price administration a restraining order against a defendant it had charged with levying excessive rents.

The venerable jurist also called the inefficiency a fortune of government and said that it was a result of temporary authority. He offered the advice that if bureau agents and officials would use a generosity of feeling, wholesome tolerance and careful observance of the citizen's rights, much that is distasteful about bureaucracy "can be removed and only the necessary left to harass."

8 Violations Charged

The judge's ruling was in a case styled Prentiss M. Brown as OPA administrator, vs. Mildred Douglass, a Dallas property owner, in which the plaintiff alleges eight counts of rent violations in a suit to restrain the defendant from alleged violation of the rent control act.

The defendant denied categorically the charges and pleaded that repairs, improvements and rehabilitations were just cause for rents charged in excess of the OPA ceiling.

The defendant also charged the rental agency with playing favorites, discrimination between property owners, and charged that the suit was based on prejudice as well as being unconstitutional in violation of acts 1 and 2 of the constitution.

In granting the restraint, Judge Atwell found that an OPA inspector and rent director were prejudiced against the defendant, but "I find no untrue fact as a result of such mental dislike."

Sloppy Joe's Tavern Gives Soldiers Taste Of Nazi Booby Traps

CAMP CHAFFEE, Ark., July 17 (AP)—You wouldn't like Sloppy Joe's tavern.

It gives Camp Chaffee soldiers a Nazi hotfoot.

The devil's own imps play hopscotch up and down the spine.

It's the booby trap school, and a visit via the front door is the first phase of Chaffee's course teaching soldiers that curiosity kills the cat.

Doorstep, latch and hinges are fitted with firing devices that make giant firecrackers explode. Inside, a radio on the bar goes bombish when the tuning knob is spun. Lift an empty beer bottle and it lifts you.

Pretzel Bowl Wired

Even the pretzel bowl is wired for noise.

Move a window, raise a chair, open a door, place a foot on the brass rail and other explosions occur.

In Naziland, they might be fatal explosions. At Chaffee, only forceful reminders.

A soldier needs the caginess of an Indian scout and the man from Missouri's skepticism to survice Axis traps, Eighth Service command officials declare.

Ingenious employment of booby traps by the enemy has necessitated establishing Army schools to teach American soldiers to locate and destroy such devices—then set up a few of their own.

Navy Creates Office For Air Operations

WASHINGTON, July 17. (U.P.)—The Navy has raised the dignity of its air arm and further recognized its problems and importance by creating a deputy chief of naval operations for air.

The new office, which was approved by President Roosevelt, will be filled by Vice Admiral John Sidney McCain, who has been chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics for several months. It will operate as a part of the office of the chief of naval operations and, it is believed, may take away many of the arrangements put forth by the proponents of a separate air arm.

McCain's job will be to correlate all military aspects of naval aviation, while the Bureau of Aeronautics will continue to deal with the design, procurement and maintenance of aircraft.

McCain will be succeeded as chief of aeronautics by Rear Admiral D. C. Ramsey, who is at present a task force commander in the south Pacific.

'D. C. Speaker's' Role Explained

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—In the spots where there is news along the Potomac, an observer has appeared from time to time during the last month representing something new in the news.

He is "D. C. Speaker," authentic, elusive District of Columbia spokesman for all those Washington officials who are willing and even anxious to discuss news, but who, because of their official positions, are either not allowed or will not allow making their names public in connection with what they disclose.

The use of "Speaker" has gone far toward deleting from the Washington news report of the Associated Press the repetitions references to sources which, since the appearance of anonymous Washington authorities, were identified by such cumbersome phrases as "a Washington official who refused to permit use of his name," "a usually reliable authority," etc. Such phrases and others, oft repeated offered stumbling blocks to reader conception as to the real identity of the sources.

Began As Experiment

"D. C. Speaker" began as an experiment a month ago. Roaming the city, he has come up with a score of stories, about half of which were news beats, later confirmed. Only one was definitely "off the beam"—and the irony about that one was that "Speaker" swore he missed on it only because an official who was quitting his job did not know he was quitting. Chester Davis, food administrator, was the official in question. A week before Davis resigned, Speaker said: "You should not count Davis out yet."

Things like that happen in Washington.

One of the best beats that "Speaker" turned in, later confirmed, was his prediction that the Truman committee would blast all concerned for the continued production of allegedly obsolete planes. Two others were his predictions of the postponements of father drafting and the Federal Bureau of Investigation's belief that the recent race riots were not inspired by the Axis. He has been a busy man.

One Of World's Top Wildcatters Observes His 74th Birthday

PITTSBURGH, July 17. (AP) — Michael Late Benedum, one of the world's greatest wildcat oil operators, celebrated his 74th birthday in his office today and at a luncheon with 35 friends.

Reminiscing by decades, "Mike" as he is affectionately known, recalled himself as a boy of ten, plodding barefooted de[illegible] road in Brideport, Harrisburg, W. Va., and seeing th[illegible] boys drive by in a bu[illegible] two horses.

That buggy and team of horses became the thing he wanted most.

At 20, Mike had been working in a flour mill for first $25 and then $50 a month. Part of the salary was a barrel of flour monthly for his mother. In three years Mike saved $500, which he put in the Lowndes Savings bank in Clarksburg. It remains there today and interest has boosted the total to more than $2,000.

Chance Meeting Responsible

A chance meeting with John W. Worthington, in charge of leasing operations for the South Penn Oil company, resulted in Mike entering the oil business. As a man of 30 he was well established in oil, having found a dozen or more rich pools in West Virginia. At 40 Mike and his partner, Joe Trees, had taken a slice of the famous Cesey field in Illinois. Then, risking everything, the two sunk their money into Caddo field near Oil City, La. It proved to be one of the richest ever developed.

Mike and Joe bought the $1,000,000 office building in which Mike still maintains his office, where his partner, Joe, collapsed and died suddenly a few weeks ago.

Brought In Permian Basin

When he was 50, Benedum had opened fields in Mexico, Columbia, South America and Rumania. The depression struck when Benedum reached 60, but he had brought in the Permian Basin field in West Texas, which since has produced more than a billion barrels.

At 70, he had developed six pools on the Gulf coast in Texas.

"And there will be more to tell when I'm 80," he chuckled.

Tide Of Attack On Axis Is Mounting

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Events of earth—shaking significance trod on each other's heels as another critical week of the global war ended.

From the jungles of New Guinea to the orange groves of Sicily, from the rich plains of central Russia to the far islands of the North and South Pacific the tide of United Nations attack upon the Axis march of conquest is mounting in fury and power. On the ground and over it, on all the seven seas, the pattern of victory is being wrought in a manner to buoy the belief of free men everywhere that the end is certain and perhaps nearer than any have dared believe.

SIMPSON

That was embodied in the stern joint warning by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to the war-sick people of Italy to surrender now, before they feel the full havoc of destruction which their ill-omened fellowship with Hitlerized Germany has invited. And it was strikingly implicit in the President's abrupt rebuke of two high ranking war aides for wrangling in public over policy.

Striking Pronouncement

The matters in public debate between them, Mr. Roosevelt told Vice President Wallace and Commerce Secretary Jones, "are now academic so far as winning the war is presently concerned."

Against the background of what has happened and still is happening to the Axis on every active war front, that was a striking pronouncement. A survey of the week's events on battle fronts half the world apart tends to bear out that interpretation of the President's words. Presidential impatience with ill-timed and acrimonious disputes among his home front lieutenants speaks of knowledge they may not possess of impending events designed to smash the foe and shorten the war.

The revealed elements of that pattern of victory as the war news set them out this week are dramatic enough. First among them in significance and glowing possibilities stands the Russian counter attack on a stalled Nazi foe, carving savagely at the Orel salient that is the keystone of the German war arch in Russia.

Nazi Plans Failed

That transcends even the continuing swift forward rush of American, Canadian and British forces in Sicily to set all Italy tottering. It means that the massive Nazi offensive, whatever its purpose or objective, had failed even to delay Red Army preparations for attack.

It was halted without detriment to the offensive deployment of Russian armies ringing the Orel salient for concerted thrusts at the communication lifeline of the whole center and south sectors of the Nazi front in Russia, the Vitebsk-Smolensk-Bryansk - Orel rail network. The Orel outwork and the Bryansk main bastion of that vital feeder system are in peril. If they fall to Russian arms, a Nazi retreat in Russia behind the Dnieper river line from Vitebsk to the Black Sea, a withdrawal on a front a thousand miles or so in length, would seem inevtiable. It could mean ultimate disaster in Russia for Hitler.

With the launching of that Russian offensive grave apprehension in highest Anglo-American military circles was eased. The Russian blow definitely ended uneasy doubts whether Russia intended to sustain the Allied demands for unconditional surrender of the common foe.

Same As If Mapped

The effect is the same as if the Russian thrust had been mapped also at strategic council tables in Casablance or in Washington. It nips the Axis in a continent-wide, three-pronged pincer attack, makes multi-fronted war a reality for Hitler.

Nor can he look to Japan for aid. MacArthur's men are surging forward to stamp out the last Nipponese footholds on New Guinea, and American ships and planes are taking an ever-rising and disproportionate toll of enemy surface and air craft in the Solomons theater. Sooner or later the Nipponese enemy must send his main fleet into action, with all its risks, or fall back and leave a fatal dent in the southeast perimeter of his conquest zone.

And anytime now another Japanese island foothold in the Aleutians, Kiska, may go the way of Attu.

The steady and now undenied waning of Nazi U-boat menace in Atlantic sealanes is another and dominant factor in the brightening war scene. All in all, there is some justification for those who hope that less than another twelve-month will see the end of Hitler in Europe and a beginning made on massed and over-powering Anglo-American attack upon Japan.

Copra is the principal item of commerce among the South Sea island natives.

Texas-Trained 45th In Sicily

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 17 (AP)—A silence of several weeks on whereabouts of the Texas-trained 45th infantry division, once composed of National Guardsmen from Oklahoma, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico, was broken today with official announcement that it formed part of the Seventh U. S. Army spearheading the invasion of Sicily.

The last official release about the 45th came early in May from its then headquarters at Camp Pickett, Va. It told sccinctly of the transformation of the one-time exclusively National Guard outfit into a combat outfit composed of men from nearly every state in the union. Forty-seven of states were represented in its personnel at that time, along with the District of Columbia and Canada.

Oklahoma Leads

Oklahoma still led, however, in strength within the division with New York second, Colorado third and Massachusetts fourth.

The original division marched away to Fort Sill, Okla., for training in September, 1940. Since then hundreds of the original members have gone to officer candidate schools, to armored units, the air forces, paratroops and other specialized units.

Maj. Gen. Wm. S. Key, commander of the 45th, left it for important duties in Europe last fall. He is now commander of the American Army forces in Iceland. Key was succeeded by Maj. Gen. Middleton, now commanding the 45th in Sicily.

One of the first national guard organizations called into federal service in the year of preparation before war broke out, the 45th got its early training at Camp Barkeley, Tex., (Abilene); Fort Devens, Mass.; Prince Camp, N. Y., before going to Camp Pickett and abroad.

Jeffers Warns Of Tire Crisis

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 17. (U.P.)—Motorists today had another warning from William L. Jeffers, rubber administrator, that the next few months will be critical ones in the tire situation.

Jeffers predicted, however, that there will be plenty of synthetic rubber by the first of the year.

The rubber administrator flew here yesterday in an Army transport plane and conferred with OPA officials and rationing board members. He urged that they do "everything possible to tide the country over the coming months."

"Going To Have Rubber"

"I want you to understand we're going to have the rubber," he said. "The next problem is to get it made into tires. We'll have plenty of rubber by the end of the year and then it will be a question of getting the tires made.

"Folks are going to have to do everything to get by through the emergency. We've just about scraped the bottom of the barrel in our tire supply. Every tire that has any mileage in it must be used. If we do that, we'll get by."

He said that by next year things would change and by next spring "you can forget that rubber is a problem in this country."

Old Gag Still Gets 'Em; Service Station Man Drops $8,500

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—First you take a dollar bill, wash it in acid and stick it in this machine—out comes a $100 bill.

That sweet swindler music, oldest line in the business, still gets 'em, it seems, for today a Washington gasoline station operator is $8,500 short, he says, because he listened too long.

For those who hear new ways to beat the U. S. Bureau of Engraving, the mint, and the counterfeit squad, here is some advice from Detective Sergeant Elwood Groves who handled the complaint of James D. Price, 31. Said the sergeant:

Price got into a conversation with a man, self-identified as "Doc Jackson," who was apparently pretty good at telling the tale. It was about a sure thing for a smart investor. So they went to "Doc's" hotel room, where the usual introduction to a mysterious friend followed.

Century Notes Slid Out

Doc took a buck from his pocket, washed it in acid, dropped it, bleached white, into a fabulous machine. Presto! Two century notes slid out the other end, without the usual deduction for pay-as-you-go.

Price hustled to the bank, withdrew $8,500 in hundreds and fifties, and dashed back to the chance-of-a-lifetime machine. Then, in came a couple of "policemen" muttering dire things about counterfeiting, grabbed Doc and company, allowed Price to get away with the machine in which he thought his $8,500 was reposing. When he got home, he pried it apart, found two fives and a bunch of damp napkins.

Genuine cops picked up Doc at a card game where he was accused of flipping 'em off the bottom, $1,700 ahead, and everybody else very angry. Doc, under another name, is up against a larceny by trick charge, but Price hasn't his dough back . . . yet.

SCATTERINGS

MAYBE you can name something better sister, but we can think of nothing better than a week away from work in a cool, mountain retreat with plenty of good books, nourishing food and a comfortable cabin . . . It's "Goodby" to sloppy, baggy sweaters, grimy saddle shoes, anklets and other rah-rah trimmings of the fast-disappearing Betty Co-Ed . . . You don't realize there has been such a "fruit basket turn over" game among residents until you try to get in touch with them and discover there are many new addresses being given these days. For instance: The J. C. Andersons bought the Millard F. Swart home at 3720 Twenty-fourth street and the Swarts have moved to the home formerly occupied by the Bennie Rhodeses at 1717 Twenty-eighth street. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davis bought the C. C. Crenshaw home, 1901 Twenty-ninth street, and the Crenshaws and daughter, Ann, will move to Miss Hadena Hester's apartments on Tenth street Aug. 1. Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Martin have moved in the home formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Fain, 1718 Thirty-third street, and the Fains have moved back to their former address, 2622 Twenty-first street. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Edwards sold their home at 2307 Broadway and moved to the home they bought from Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Leftwich, 3213 Twentieth street, and the Leftwiches bought the rock house at the corner of Fifteenth street and Avenue U from the A. A. McInroes.

A Lubbock young man in service, stationed in the south, wrote recently of a thought dropped by a Navy chaplain which he said he will remember throughout his life. We should all memorize it: "Faith crossed the threshold to the door where Fear was knocking but lo, when Faith opened the door, Fear had fled." R. A. Mills and his Tech Artists course committee members are planning another super duper program for next season, including the Don Cossack chorus . . . There is a new mending tape on the market which is pressed on with a hot iron and will mend any kind of fabric that can stand a hot iron.

THERE are so many tense, strained faces on the streets nowadays. If you are feeling that way breathe deeply ten or fifteen times and feel your facial and neck muscles relax . . . Several new residents, especially brides, are complaining about the havoc wrought by the dry winds and harsh water on their delicate faces. If your skin tends to be dry you may aid it by patting a rich oil into it, then taking a hot bath. Steam from the hot water aids the oil in lubricating the skin . . . With Mrs. Aetna Christie as its president, we are expecting the Lubbock Business and Professional Woman's club to set a record for achievements this year.

A soldier friend wrote recently of being on a train loaded with air corps cadets that stopped at a Texas border city alongside a train carrying Italian prisoners of war. One of the American boys jumped off of the train, thrust his chin high and facing the group of Italians gave a Nazi salute. Immediately one of the Italians shook his head, smiled and gave the V sign, a la Churchill. And as our young friend remarked in his letter, "Those guys learn fast!"

A LUBBOCK girl, an Army nurse stationed 80 miles southwest of London and fifty miles from the English channel, writes of an interesting, conducted tour she made of the place recently. Others (Americans) in her group thought some of the legends sounded like pretty tall tales and they could not help but laugh at them. As she wrote, "we have found the British take themselves and their country seriously, especially in regard to antiquity, as if that was any credit to them. England is wonderful for the English people, I am sure, but I cannot help remembering I an American, first, last and always."

Luncheon Is Held At Post For Sixteen

THE tables were turned at South Plains Army Air field Thursday and as a result a group of Lubbock girls who have been giving generously of their time to attend dances and entertain soldiers were honored at a luncheon.

Col. and Mrs. Norman B. Olsen were hosts to the girls as a complement to the young women for their cooperation at dances and especially in the recent musical comedy which was presented at the field, "Spaafies of 1943."

The young women had not expected the thrill that was in store for them.

They journeyed out to the flying line on what they thought would be a routine exhibition of Uncle Sam's gliders. They soon found themselves in a reviewing party which included Brig. Gen. Aubrey Hornsby, commanding general of the 32nd Flying Training Wing with headquarters at Perrin Field.

Watch "Winged Commandos"

With flight officers acting as guides, the young ladies stood with mouths open as "Winged Commandos" of the big glider training center put their big ships through all types of maneuvers, giving the visitors an opportunity to see the same type weapon which helped make the invasion of Sicily a success. This possibly marked the first time that the glider has been reviewed with "ohs" and "ahs" and it was obvious that military personnel received as much "kick" out of the show as did the girls.

Those who were present at the luncheon included Misses Barbara Hale, Mary Jo Ryan, Betty Caldwell, Temple McAfee, Virginia Bondurant, Jo Ribble, Martha Sue Shelly, Amelia Pryor, Jo Rae Watson, Jean Newman, Joe Ann Bailey Patricia Hogan, Norman Murray, Beverly Giles, Xen Harris and Mrs. Brunette Harper.

Naturalness Is Characteristic Of Clement Attractive Yard

BY MAXINE BEASLEY
Of The Woman's Staff

"IT HAD it's beginning in July, six years ago, when I cut switches from neighboring trees and rooted them at the corners of the yard," Mrs. W. P. Clement told us when we visited her home on 2606 Twentieth street. Other shrubs and flowers were not set out until a year later, but her yard is now one of the most attractive sights in Lubbock. It is obvious that Mrs. Clement is a great lover of her flowers and shrubs, for she knows each and every one by name, the time of its blooming, as well as the scientific name.

None of the plants are imported from other places, but were purchased from the seed boxes in Lubbock stores, nurseries, and some were given to Mrs. Clement.

Appearance of the front yard prepares one for the beauty of the side and back of the house, for marigolds, oxales and pyracantha hedges adorn the front.

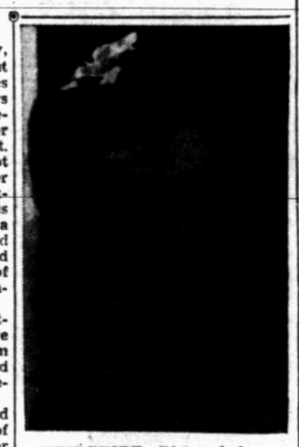

Flanking a rock terrace east of the house is a wild garden, bearing elder, poke stalk, mullien, ground ivy, white wood violets, goldenbells, verbenas, and a buck brush, known to some as the coral berry. Mrs. Clement told us that the latter grows wild at her childhood home in Missouri.

Framing the screened porch at the back are red and blue morning glories against the white house, which Mrs. Clement describes as her patriotic motif. "Sometimes I think it's a plane," she said, when referring to the humming birds which frequent the crimson climber which frames the back door.

The complete back yard is a croquet court, with a bird bath, trees and a rise in the ground as hazards. Clemetis vines cover the fence on either side, and in August will form a white bank over it. A bed of flowers, bunch beans, and tomatoes are bordered with a row of carrots. Tomatoes, marigolds and egg plant now complete a bed where lettuce and spinach grew earlier. Mrs. Clement canned a number of beans from her garden, and has gathered over a half bushel of onions. When she started to plant her fall garden, she left the flowers that bloom almost the year around, and planted vegetables in the place of those dug up.

DURING World War I, every aviator planned to go to the South Pacific and spend the rest of his life in the quietude of a tropical island and every sailor always plans to have a chicken ranch on the California coast at the end of each cruise.

Familiarity with the islands has probably changed the minds of the airmen and the California chicken ranch was more the dream of the regular Navy man than the reservist in the war. The Woman's Angle wonders what is the favorite rendezvous with life being talked in the war at this time.

In the first World war, it was always something far removed from the scene or suggestion of conflict. Probably this time the favorite after-war plan will center around South America. There, are countries likely to be untouched by war; countries with cities glamorous enough for the fighter who is tired of jungles;

Greetings Friends:

Nosey III just skipped out on his vocation this week, so we girls up here at the Studio thought we would put in our bit of news for the week to keep you people in the light about what's doing down our way.

Things have been coming in by the wholesale during the past week. . . . New crystal, imported pieces, and the hugest barrel of Spode china you ever saw, but that's only the beginning according to Fredda who just got back from New York and Chicago last Friday, 5:30 A.M. Among the many other things, are some more pieces done by Peter Hunt. Remember Nosey told you about the coffee table last week. Well, these things are done by the same person, and in case you didn't get to see the table (it was sold almost before we could put it out to show), there'll be plenty more things for you to see soon. Peter Hunt is called "America's most Imaginative Furniture Magician," and you'll find a lot of interesting things about this Magician in the August issue of House Beautiful.

From the work-room comes word that they've got more than they can possibly do within the near future. All three of our seamsters are working every minute and yet they can't catch up, Fredda came in with a new job, took one peek in the work-room, and then began to figure how in the world this last job will ever be completed—but it will be!

People up at the market place are buying like mad this year—just as if they never would have another chance. AND there are plenty of things to buy as long as you have the money to buy exquisite and expensive things, but the less expensive items have been sold out, and there will probably be no more material for making them until after the war. This, of course, is of interest to those of you who plan to completely redecorate, but we still have oodles and gobs of things, inexpensive things, with which you can add color and grace to your home, so come on down to see us.

Until next week when Nosey III will be back with you,

So long, from the Girls.

P. S. Our straw boss, Kaye forgot to put in her word for the week, that is about seeing her other Bob off on the train the other night. He's taking a little trip to Fort Worth, but he'll be back next week. She thinks, too, that her Aunt Todda must be getting a wee bit absent minded when she sends cards written to friends at home back to Lubbock to be mailed. Think nothing of that though, 'cause we've about all gone half crazy up here, it seems.

AFTER FIVE this dress-up version of the coat dress is new and effective. It's rayon tissue faille, with cap sleeves, round neckline and fabric buttons.

'Emergency' Teaching Certificates Issued

AUSTIN, July 17. (U.P.) — Turnover of school teachers in Texas this year will more than triple that of normal years, Dean B. F. Pittinger of the University of Texas education department estimated today.

Dr. Pittenger said teachers are seeking better-paying positions. To relieve the shortage the state has authorized "emergency" teaching certificates and retired teachers are being recalled.

Yank Receives Quick Reply From Prisoner

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST On North Africa, July 17. (AP) — A train loaded with Italian soldiers captured in Sicily rolled slowly through the African tableland and a Yank riding along an adjacent highway in a jeep couldn't restrain himself.

"Hey, where you fellows been?" he called.

Back came the reply in perfect English:

"We've been packed and waiting three weeks ago. Where have you been?"

Soldiers Transferred From Lubbock Are Writing LSO, "Home Away From Home"

Mail from boys formerly stationed in Lubbock or boys who formerly attended Tech took the spotlight this week in news from Lubbock Service organization.

A most unusual description of Alaska came from Cpl. Julien Szten, formerly of Lubbock Army Air field, whom you will remember for his performance in "Anything Can Happen." Julien wrote, "I can't describe Alaska in one sentence, but I can in one word —dull!"

And from M/Sgt. George Caviness, now of Liberal, Kans., comes this quote from a letter, "You know, I think I'll never be so lucky as to be stationed near a town like Lubbock. Of course one has to leave the place before he can appreciate it fully."

Missed around the center these days is Sgt. Bill Berlin of SPAAF, but he'll be back before long, and on an 8 by 10 inch post card to the center, from northern Minnesota, he hastily penned these words, "Fun, fishing, food and scenery as swell as the people at the LSO, and all unrationed in this great wilderness." You really can't appreciate that unless you know Bill personally.

In a letter to J. O. Ellsworth at the college, a former Techsan, Cpl. Raymond R. McWilliams, told the meaning of the USO to a boy away from home. The letter was sent to the hostess at the center, and consequently on to us. "I want to tell you what great work the USO is doing. To me it is nearly another home. It has done more for the man in service than any other organization I know. So pass the world on to your staff and friends about the grand work USO is accomplishing." Raymond is now stationed at Keesler field, Miss.

Visitors at the center are not minus celebrities — Friday morning we were fortunate enough to hear John Springer give piano renditions of all the current popular songs, including waltzes, boogie woogie, and anything else requested. John hails from Malakoff, Texas, and was piano player with Phil Harris and other famous bands before entering the armed forces. He was only on his way through Lubbock, but we couldn't help wishfully thinking what an addition he'd be to one of the local bands! And his singing ability is not surpassed by his playing, for he posseses a Frank Sinatra touch that's really tops! And while he was playing, he had the fullest cooperation of his buddies, for one stood on either side waving a fan—in perfect unison with each other, if not with the music.

Esther Boren of Snyder, with the Recreation of War Service Department of Texas Federated Women's clubs, provided amusement for men in service this week when she sent to the center a group of scrapbooks made by the club. Some were in the form of cartoon magazines, others contained famous stories from well known magazines. All were in complete form, having been removed from the books and bound in a separate scrapbook. This is only an example of the splendid work the department is doing, one of the hostesses told us.

Remember several weeks ago when we told of Sgt. Charles F. Zeola, who was confined to post just when he needed to make necessary arrangements for his marriage? He was in the center this week, and finding his favorite hostess gone, he left the following note, "Wanted you to meet the most wonderful person, my wife, for after talking as much as I did last month, the living proof would substantiate my descriptions and ravings."

Six boys visited Lubbock Service organization several days ago on 24-hour leave from Clovis, N. M. One was Edward Urspinger, of the first motion picture unit at Culver City, Cal. He hails from Salt Lake City, Utah.

And from LAAF comes word that Harvey Hays, jr., of Abilene, is the youngest 32nd Degree Mason in Texas. Harvey is 21 years old, and is with the Hq. and Hq. Air Base squadron.

Never let it be said that happenings of unique character cannot happen at usually quiet (?) center. Several nights ago, a prankster told one of the hostesses a white chicken was trying to get in at the front door. But good-naturedly she investigated, and sure enough, there was the hen! Pete Lombardelli took the chicken inside, and when Cpl. A. Houser of SPAAF came in armed with the wit he usually posseses, he squinted a little and asked "Is that a chicken I see over in the corner?" Not to be outdone, the hostess and others at the center pretended they saw no hen at all, and accused him of various and sundry things. Cpl. Houser walked to the corner, nonchalantly picked up the hen, the egg, and went to a drug store to have—no, not fried chicken, but an egg milk shake, and some lucky people took the ill-fated hen home for chicken and dressing.

Llano Estacado Camp and Hospital council's campaign to furnish dayrooms and hospital ward rooms for the fwo Lubbock air fields is progressing and the bareness of the rooms is beginning to disappear.

Mrs. Robt. Allen has consented to be chairman of women's fraternal organizations in the campaign and they will be given an opportunity to aid in the work.

Things are beginning to hum in dayrooms 414 and 415 at SPAAF and as soon as they are sealed and painted, the clubs will furnish them.

The painters and carpenters unions are to send men to repair and paint the Red Cross production room. Some articles need repairing before next Thursday.

Those persons who have articles to donate in the council's campaign are urged to take them to the Red Cross production center, in the old Christian church annex, Sixteenth and Avenue J, any morning from 9 to 12. Anyone having an article or donation that has not been reported is asked to call 6466.

"BUY a WAR Bond TODAY!"

From Lou To Louella

DEAR LOUELLA: Billy Trice, whom most of you will remember for his ever-smiling countenance and winning personality, is to marry Ethel Preston Williams of Baton Rouge, La., Thursday, and from what we hear, she's really beautiful. . . . And while on the subject of wedding bells, Jo Nell Cox and Weldon Christian are to exchange vows July 24. . . . Major Elmer Tarbox, somewhere in China, was married to a Pennsylvania - born Army nurse on foreign duty some three months ago, but as yet we haven't received the details, nor the name of the girl. As soon as we hear, we'll let you know. . . . Harold "Smitty" Farrar, ex-Techsan, is in San Diego, Cal., another wearer of the Navy blue. Eddyle Hill, his steady, is one of those few girls who is being true while the boy friend is in the service. Smitty writes that the Navy is tough, but he really likes it. . . . "Did you ever see Ruth Hereford look prettier?" This question was asked by several last Sunday. The reason is a huge ring adorning that third finger, left hand, and she was accompanied to church by the bridegroom-to-be, Lt. Harry Lewis.

In The Mail

Dear Lou: Basil Moss was working on a ranch in New Mexico when he received his call for the Navy Medical corps recently. Never let it be said that Uncle Sam isn't efficiency personified! A station wagon was sent to the ranch for Basil, and he's now on his way to Lafayette, La.

MARY LOU METCALF, "Dodo" Bizzell, Fran Crouthers, and Mary Jo Turner have secured the title of "most beautiful girls on Tech campus," according to their own simple confession! . . . The "racket" emitting from 2324 Twenty-sixth street recently was nothing less than J. C. Powell throwing his roommate into a bath of ice water. . . . To report to Columbia university August 2 to enter Navy training is John Keffer, who was in Lubbock this week. . . . How would you like to get your daily soft drink free of charge? No, this isn't an ad, but Margaret Cammack does it, why can't you? She sees to it that a member of the male sex is around about relaxation time every day. . . . "You'd think they'd die of inactivity! They don't dance, bowl, play golf, or anything else!" Thus Pvt. Burl Hubbard writes from Hattiesburg, Miss., offering his description of those Mississippi gals. "It takes them three hours to say 'Where youall been, where youall going, and where youall from!," writes Burl. . . . Martha Price, who recently performed at a social club rush party, has been dating Wrangler rushees a lot lately. Could she be breaking up the Centaur-Las Chaparritas combination?

Mostly Khaki

More than one person hated to see F/O Allen Todd, of Fort Worth and SPAAF, leave Lubbock. He knew how to make friends and keep them, and made an instant hit with everyone he met. Said one girl, after double-dating with Allen, "Gee, he just won my heart!" . . . Joe Jackson, Billy Sims, Forrest Daniels, Leroy Scott, Joe Cardwell, Jim Crow, Billy Carr and Charles Goodwin, all former Techsans, are now stationed at Sheppard field, (the Alcatraz of the Air Forces) Wichita Falls. . . Ben Oglesby and Roy Williams are with the Navy in Pittsburg, Kans. . . . We heard this week that 1st/Sgt. "Pat" Patterson and M/Sgt. Earl Smith are now somewhere in England. The last we heard, both were stationed in Pueblo, Colo., and prior to that, at LAAF. . . . Glider Pilot Gene A. Kelly, who was to have graduated with the class of 43-12 at SPAAF, will receive his wings, be commissioned as flight officer in the near future, in time to join the rest of his class at their Kentucky base. Gene was awaiting papers on a change of name, and his graduation was slightly delayed.

WE TOLD of the engagement of one of Lubbock's more attractive young girls in a recent column. She told us the other day of receiving a dozen American Beauty roses for her second anniversary. We must have had a bewildered expression, for she said, "Oh, I've known him two months today!" Any more home like him?. . . . Lou has kept this priceless secret to herself long enough! It's a fact that Mary Dell Butler recently exchanged vows with "Pinky" Ellis. We're sure this isn't known generally, especially by former Toreador editor Bill Latson. Details of the ceremony aren't known, but after this edition, I'm betting my bottom dollar something will break!

Love,

Lou.

Who Said "Shortage"?

Walk into many stores today, and notice the great space between the hangers . . . that old "empty" look. As a reason for it, you will be told that merchandise is "hard to get" that "there's a shortage" of good looking clothes.

Walk into the Jo Ann Sho . . . why there's barely room t walk in there! Rack after rack crowded with good looking, cool and comfortable summer frocks; booth after booth of gorgeous new Coats and Suits and Dresses for Fall; stacks and stacks of "made to live in" Slacks and Play clothes.

And, you'll find, very much NOT to your surprise, that the Jo Ann Shop is about the busiest store you've ever seen. Why? Because it is natural for the Lady going shopping to want the greatest selection in West Texas in beautiful Nationally advertised Clothes.

Then, too, Jo Ann Guaranteed Lower Prices are making more loyal customers for The Jo Ann Shop every day. Courteous service, greatest selection, lower prices, prettier styles . . . those are a lot of advantages, don't you think? And never have Jo Ann Stocks been Greater!

WHO SAID "SHORTAGE?"

Offers Pour In After Plea Is Published

DALLAS, July 17 (AP)—"Everyone's been so nice today," Mrs. Tommy J. White said happily.

She wasn't happy yesterday. Then her sailor husband, who had been wounded, had phoned that he would arrive this week-end to begin his sick leave, and she had no place for him to stay.

When she learned he was coming back for the first time since the war began she paid $1,000 for a house, but the tenants decided to remain. After he called she tried to rent an apartment; said she almost succeeded twice until owners found a sailor was involved.

A newspaper (the Dallas News) told her story. This morning the phone began to ring. Dozens of Dallas landlords and private families called to offer Mr. and Mrs. White a place to stay during his 30-day leave .The offers ranged from a place in a swank apartment hotel to a ranch house.

Most of the offers came from mothers and wives of men in service, and from veterans of the last war.

Young Girl Wants To Donate Blood To Bank

SHERMAN, July 17 — Shirley Ann Ewing called the chamber of commerce and inquired about the age and amount of blood each donor could give in the collection to be taken July 29 for a blood plasma bank.

She was informed that one pint is the amount and that each donor must be between 18 and 65.

"Well, I'm nine; can I give a half pint?" she asked.

WHERE IS ROMMEL?

LONDON, June 17. (AP) — The Algiers radio, which said it was quoting a reliable Swiss source, reported today that Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel hurriedly left Aix Les Bains, France, for Lyons the night of the Allied landings in Sicily and that since then no news has been received of his whereabouts.

Real United States money cannot be used in motion pictures, since the government prohibits photographing of its currency.

Gideons Officers To Be Elected

Lubbock Camp of the Gideons will elect new officers at its regular monthly meeting Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Hotel Lubbock, with James T. Kier, State Gideon Field representative, in charge of the election.

Latest reports show that the Gideons have shipped more than 5,000,000 new testaments with Psalms for the use of men and women in all branches of the armed forces. Shipments have averaged a total of more than 154,000 testaments a month, instead of the 25,000 per month quota for which they were originally asked.

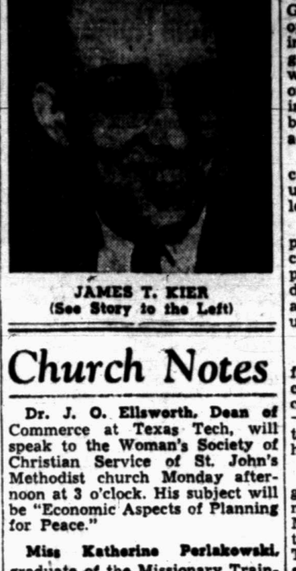

All testaments distributed by the Gideons are paid for with the free-will contributions of Christian people. Although funds are urgently needed, no high-pressure campaigns are employed to raise them. Members rest on the conviction that "the Lord's people should support the Lord's work voluntarily."

Temporary Officers Serving

Temporary officers of the Lubbock Camp, whose successors will be chosen Sunday, are; F. B. Malone, president; H. R. Fluke, vice-president; Ross E. Garrett, secretary; L. C. Ellis, treasurer; W. L. Hester, Bible secretary; and J. B. Rhodes, Chaplain.

Other members include Bill Mead, C. H. Campbell, Andy L. King, Preston James, L. H. Holley, George P. Kuykendall, Roy L. Hooten, Walter J. Harris, J. W. Hendrix, A. E. Quest, W. H. Trice, T. T. Associate members are C. C. Crenshaw and Dr. C. E. Hereford.

Regular membership is open to any man who is a member in good standing of some evangelical church, and who holds sales or managerial responsibility in some business. Professional men who are eligible as church members, but who have no business responsibility may be associate members, but may not vote or hold office.

Larry Rankin of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church in practical Christian work and interdenominational work. Miss Laverne Terrell of Lubbock will also assist. The interdenominational work has been recently given to the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Lubbock.

Having more than five hundred cases of juvenile delinquency come before him, County Judge G. V. Pardue will discuss this problem at the Calvary Baptist church at 8 p. m. Sunday. These cases extend over a period of two and one half years.

The subject of this morning's program is "The All - Sufficient Christ" and the message is especially for fathers and mothers who have sons on the fighting front and need the comfort of the scriptures.

Mann Gives Ruling On Loan Shark Law

AUSTIN, July 17. (AP)—Attorney General Gerald Mann said in an opinion today that the loan shark injunction law passed at the last general session of the legislature would not apply to the collection of usurious interest on outstanding loans made by a firm quitting business before Aug. 10, when the act becomes effective.

A firm in business after Aug. 10 can be enjoined from collecting ururious interest on outstanding loans, however, the opinion added.

The opinion also said any expenses over $1 on a $50 loan incurred in making a loan must be proved, and that the legislature did not contemplate permitting any service charge unless the actual expense was incurred.

The Aztecs used chocolate beans for money, and only the upper classes were permitted to drink chocolate.

YOUR HOME

LET the sun shine—on your home, while you get it ready for winter: and when cold weather comes, your heat-tight home will be as comfortable as on sunny days in July! Every home must be conditioned so as not to waste fuel: heavy equipment must be put in good repair: to help Uncle Sam help our boys to Victory!

Your Government wants you to save fuel for victory. It's not only a good idea for the duration, but it's good business for your own pocketbook. Proper insulation of your home will give you substantial savings year after year.

If you have a well insulated home your fuel bills through the coldest winter will be much less than they ever were. You'll marvel, then, at the economy of clean, automatic gas central heating.

Cooperation Of Allies Praised

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Divers elements go to make up the victory which the United Nations are forging from white-hot steel, and the masterful manner in which the Sicilian stronghold has been invaded emphasizes again that unprecedentedly unselfish Allied cooperation is the ranking reason for success.

Now please don't start writing to tell me of war theaters where Americans and British look down their noses at each other. I know about that from first-hand observation, and think it's too bad. But those cases seem to me to be exceptions to the rule, although I'm not so naive as to think all the spots of bother between our two countries have been rubbed out.

Taking it by and large, there exists between the Allies a cordiality—and in many cases a real comradery—which wasn't even dreamed of in World war one.

We are swapping our resources and our hospitality. There's no limit to the exchange; the lid is off. On the battlefronts it's share and share alike, and the greatest soldiers of one country are happy to subordinate themselves to the command of a colleague from another nation—if that's best for the cause.

The reason for this remarkable change? Well, let's not get sentimental but just call it a horse-sense truce.

Perhaps the most potent factor in drawing us together was the mortal danger the Allies were in. We found ourselves fighting for our very survival against a barbaric enemy who had the initial advantage. Then, too, we have been smart enough to profit by the mistakes and bickerings of the last war.

Never before has there been such Allied cooperation, and consequent coordinatios of effort, in major military and naval operations. Not only is there coordination of the three fighting arms—air, land and sea—among the forces of the individual nations, but this coordination extends to the combined Allied forces. That is to say, all the services of each country in a given theatre are at the call of the commander-in-chief, to intermingle as he chooses. It's one for all and all for one.

It was that willing unity which gave the Allies their victory in north Africa. It's the mainspring of that greatest of all amphibious operations which is being carried out in Sicily.

The fair progeny of this cooperation are many. One of the most striking developments of the war is the specialized training of the various branches like the commandos and paratroops—in many cases a joint effort. History never has seen such well-prepared forces go into battle as now are taking the field.

Many of the American, English, Canadian and French soldiers who fought their way up the beaches of Sicily from the landing barges, underwent months—and some of them years—of terrific training which was far more strenuous than the actual battle experiences. They not only are physically perfect, but they know their jobs the way a pianist knows his keys. Thousands of these specialists received their training in an Allied camp.

The antithesis of this cooperation and coordination is the Axis imbroglio in Sicily. There Italians in some places are surrendering rather than fight for the hated Boche, and the Nazis are reported shooting their own allies.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED

Plan For Federal Aid To Schools Endorsed

AUSTIN, July 17. (AP) — Teachers and college instructors today endorsed proposed federal legislation which would extend $18,000,000 to Texas communities whose schools are overloaded as a result of war industries and military camps.

The educators adopted at a professional relations institute here a resolution favoring bills in Congress appropriating $300,000,000 aid to schools in this category with Texas' share at $18,000,000

The institute program will be extended to include summer meetings in teachers' colleges and fall meetings in larger cities.

Also adopted was a resolution urging a system of education "commensurate with our world obligations in post war reorganization."

Hog Market To Open In Levelland July 21

LEVELLAND, July 17 (Special)—Levelland now has a hog market. Formal opening of the local project will be held Wednesday, July 21, when Eugene Wilson of the Lubbock hog market has promised to assist in its launching.

Pens, scales, and other equipment have been procured. Buying Hockley hogs in Levelland will mean a saving of time to farmers, a saving in long hauls to other towns, and the saving of losses in shrinkage, besides a good local market will provide good prices.

The market location is alongside the railroad tracks, near the compress. H. W. Wright, who completed arrangements for the market, said hogs in any quantity, from one up, will be bought and paid for on the spot.

Steeplejack Trade Has Shortage, Too

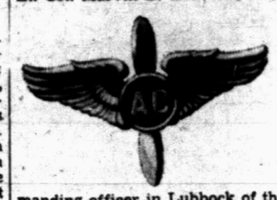

AUSTIN, July 17. (AP) — The Manpower shortage evidently extends to the steeplejack trade, city purchasing agent Roy Barbisch concluded.

As a result, Old Glory will not fly from its city hall staff because the hoisting chain broke and no volunteers have appeared.

Youths In Air Corps Reserve To Get Badge

Young men of 17, who volunteer and are accepted for enlistment in the Air Corps reserve, will be presented with an official Air Corps lapel button to be worn with civilian dress while they are on an inactive status, it is announced by Lt. Col. Marvin B. Durrette, commanding officer in Lubbock of the Army recruiting and induction district office. The badge is silver finished with a blue enamel center.

"Youthful, capable manpower is needed for bomber and fighter craft now roaring off our assembly lines," Col. Durrette said, "but the training program of the Army Air forces looks beyond victory. The young men who are fighting in the skies today must cover them tomorrow commercially," he said. The peace-time opportunities make this pre-flight training doubly valuable to young men who now enlist in the Army Air Corps reserve, Col. Durrette added.

The men will receive college training second to none in equipping them for the demanding career of a fighter pilot. The course is designed to make them the finest fighting men in the world, Col. Durette said.

JOINS UP, TOO

NEW YORK, July 17. (AP) — Sixty-year-old managing editor John C. Sheridan of the Johnston (Pa.) Democrat, who watched 12 of his staff of 15 join the armed forces, is following them to war as second mate aboard an American merchantman.

The superstition regarding the number "13" is said to have prevailed since the time of the ancient Hindus.

Director Decrees 'No Dogs'; Veronica Finally Buys One

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, July 17—It all started when Marsha Hunt showed up on the set of "Cry Havoc" at M-G-M with her two Bedlington terrier puppies. Next day Ann Sothern brought along her pet poodle. Then Margaret Sullavan arrived for work with her dog and Joan Blondell barged in with an airedale. Next day Dorothy Morris, Frances Gifford and Diana Lewis brought along their pet poochies. The set began to look like a kennel and usually-calm Director Richard Thorpe thundered forth a decree—No More Dogs! Unhappy dogs. The set simulates a Bataan jungle and has 162 trees. . . . And speaking of dogs, ever since she clicked on the screen Veronica Lake's friends unsuccessfully have been trying to kid her into buying an eye-hiding sheep dog. Now that her hair is up for the duration, Veronica has acquired a sheep dog on the theory, I guess, that somebody in the family has to keep one eye hidden . . .

Nominated for one of the year's funniest film scenes: Joan Davis grabs an Australian soldier whom she doesn't know and introduces him to Kay Kyser in RKO's "Around the World."

"Meet my fiance," says Joan. Kyser turns around to acknowledge the introduction and faces, not the soldier, who has disappeared, but a midget who has taken his place near Joan. Joan does a double take when she sees the midget instead of the soldier and yells, "I've been short-changed."

Andrew Tombs, veteran comedian of stage and screen, is one of those naturally funny fellows whose bald, bespectacled appearance and ministerial manner contribute to his humor. EMBARRASSING MOMENT

Marketing Of Lighter Hogs Planned By WFA

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP) — Because of the feed shortage, the War Food administration (WFA) is planning to appeal to farmers to start marketing hogs at weights averaging between 30 and 40 pounds lighter than usual, beginning September 1.

The WFA has concluded that the best way to bring reduced feed supplies into line with the livestock demand is to send hogs to markets at weights averaging about 220 pounds. Now the average is between 250 and 260. In a year, several hundred million bushels of corn could thus be diverted from hogs to other livestock.

"Happy Go Lucky," Cure For Summer Blues, Is Week's Headliner At Lindsey Theater

A PICTURE designed to combat summer blues is Paramount's newest musical comedy, "Happy Go Lucky," which comes to the Lindsey today for a three-day run. The film offers five popular players — Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken and Rudy Vallee.

"Happy Go Lucky" takes place on a tropical island, a resort playground in which verdant scenery and beautiful husband-hunters abound. Among the husband-hunters is Miss Martin, who sets her cap for millionaire Rudy Vallee.

Powell and Bracken play a couple of happy-go-lucky beach boys with an allergy to work and Miss Hutton is Mary Martin's pal and Bracken's "nemesis."

Vallee is once again the same character he portrayed in "Palm Beach Story"—a shy, pince-sized, peculiar individual with too much money for one lone man.

Others Are Specialists

The picture's other personalities include Mabel Paige, Eric Blore, Clem Bevans, specialty dancer Rita Christiana and Sir Lancelot and his Calypso songs. Lancelot sings, in his unique style, two Calypso songs, "Ugly Woman" and "Sing a Tropical Song."

Two currently popular songs are handled in fine style, "Let's Get Lost" and "The Fuddy Duddy Watchmaker."

"The Pride of the Yankees," which tells the story of the late Lou Gehrig's life, will be shown by the Tower today through Tuesday.

The film authentically covers the highlights of the famous athlete's life from boyhood to the peak of his career on the memorable "Lou Gehrig Day" at the Yankee stadium in 1939 when he said goodbye to baseball forever. Gehrig's romance with pretty Eleanor Twitchell of Chicago, a romance that soon blossomed into their marriage, motivates the action of the story, which deals far more with the man himself than with his diamond achievements.

Those popular screen loonies, Abbott and Costello, appear in Damon Runyon's "It Ain't Hay" today through Tuesday at the Broadway.

Two Horses Principal

Some of Runyon's most famous Broadway characters are portrayed in the story in which Bud and Lou become embroiled in a case of mistaken identity. Two horses, however, are principals in the error, one a nag and the other a handicap favorite. When the comics are suspected of substituting one steed for the other, the fun starts in earnest.

Also in the cast are Grace McDonald, Cecil Kellaway, Eugene Pallette, Patsy O'Connor, Richard Lane and Leighton Noble and his orchestra.

Twin Bill At Lyric

Two widely divergent films, "Desert Victory" and "My Friend Flicka," but each a foil for the other, show today through Tuesday at the Lyric. "Desert Victory" forcefully depicts the rout of Field Marshall Rommel's forces by General Montgomery's Eighth

Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Mary Martin, Eddie Bracken and Rudy Vallee are stars of "Happy Go Lucky," technicolor musical showing today through Tuesday at the Lindsey theater.

Palace Offers Two Screen Vets, Chester Morris, Richard Arlen, In "Aerial Gunner"

THE dramatic and spectacular part the aerial gunner has in the war is revealed in "Aerial Gunner," offered today through Tuesday at the Palace. Featured are Chester Morris, Richard Arlen and Lita Ward.

Arlen and Morris are gunners with chips on their shoulders. To complicate matters they're also pitted against each other for the affections of Miss Ward. Much of the action takes place in gunnery school where Morris as Arlen's instructor makes things hot for him.

Air Battle Re-Enacted

Adding to the picture's suspense is the air battle with five attacking Zeros, with Arlen at the bomber's controls, and Morris handling the rear guns.

Another episode which will stick in the memory takes place when the bomber flown by Arlen,

Irene Dunne And Cary Grant In "Penny Serenade" Is Today's Offering At Tech

A TENDER, warm and unforgettable love story is told in "Penny Serenade," the Tech's attraction today through Tuesday. It teams two of the screen's most popular stars, Irene Dunne and Cary Grant.

Grant is a casual newspaper man who one day wanders into a music store to purchase a record, "Penny Serenade." Miss Dunne is the young woman who waits upon him. Their whirlwind, laugh- filled courtship, their sudden marriage and Grant's lonely departure for Japan are charming and thrilling preludes to the drama which follows.

Follows Him To Japan

When they have saved enough money, Miss Dunne follows her irresponsible husband to Japan. Their honeymoon is cut short by an earthquake; the child they have been anticipating is born dead, both are discouraged and disillusioned. But out of the wreckage of their romance grows something firmer, Grant's willingness to settle down and to build for the future.

They buy a country newspaper, struggle through one difficulty after another and then, to complete their new-found happiness, they adopt an infant girl. The baby brings them closer than ever, but a fatal illness almost destroys them completely. Grant reverts to his old self, turns to drink.

Cary Grant and Irene Dunne, one of the most popular romantic teams in Hollywood, are reunited in "Penny Serenade," showing at the Tech theater today through Tuesday.

Milk Shortage Is Impending

CHICAGO, July 17. (AP)—The nation's dairy production is declining and a shortage of milk supplies impends, the national cooperative milk producers' federation said today, declaring that the administration's wartime program "has been creating scarcity rather than abundance of dairy products."

The federation's board of directors at the close of a two-day special meeting yesterday in a resolution declared that centralized government price control and subsidy policies "are destroying the national balance and normal function of economic forces."

"The administration has allowed prices of dairy products to lag behind the prices of such alternative products as hog and beef cattle," the resolution said. "As a result, the income of dairy people is much lower than the income of those other groups. The greater the trend in certain sections toward specialization in the production of milk, the smaller has been farm income.

Production Increasing

"When to this situation has been added the scarcity of feeds and other increased costs, it will be understood why production of pork and beef is increasing."

A program of restoring equity of income, putting dairy prices on competitive relation with hogs and beef cattle, would require an increase of income to dairy farmers of approximately $700,000,000 annually, the federation said.

"This increase may be attained if total milk production is to be sustained and public health assured."

"Ball Of Fire" With Barbara Stanwyck And Gary Cooper Is Attraction At Midway

ROWDY and riotous comedy is to be seen in "Ball of Fire," a Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper vehicle slated at the Midway today through Tuesday.

With seven other professors and funds provided by a foundation, Cooper is writing an encyclopedia. In his search for material for a chapter on slang, he meets Miss Stanwyck, night club "boogie-woogie" singer.

Mannerisms Upset Citadel

Miss Stanwyck's association with Dana Andrews, gangster, makes her subject of a police search and compels her to hide out at the professors' headquarters. Her modern mannerisms upset the citadel of the staid profesors, but they grow to like her. Cooper falls in love with her.

When Andrews decides the time is ripe for her to leave and marry him, he conspires with Miss Stanwyck to have the old men and Cooper accompany her on the pretext that Miss Stanwyck and Cooper are on their way to be married. Cooper learns the truth and breaks with the singer, but she soon realizes that she loves him, and the two are reunited.

OLD BUDDIES TOGETHER

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, (Delayed)—A few years ago Bill Powell, 1520 Fourteenth street, Lubbock, Texas, worked for the Furr Food stores. Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Leasure, moved to Sioux City, Iowa, and the friendship was interrupted. Last October Leasure enlisted in the Marine Corps. Two months later Powell did likewise. But their paths never crossed until the other day. William C. Powell was ladling out a stew concoction in the mess hall. Cpl. Frank Leassure, tray in hand, stood on the receiving end. If approved, Lubbock will be placed on perhaps the most important of all air transcontinental routes, with direct service to Los Angeles and San Diego on the West coast and to Oklahoma City, Tulsa, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, New York, Washington, Boston and other cities east of here.

Dispute Raging On Gas Problem

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—Something like 30,000 barrels of gasoline a day are fueling one of the nation's hottest wartime controversies—whether the ban on pleasure driving in the East should be lifted.

At the base of the dispute, which finds Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes and Price Administrator Prentiss Brown at odds and Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes serving as referee, is the question of whether the 30,000 barrels saved daily by the pleasure-driving ban can safely be spared.

The answer depends principally on how much the military services must draw out of the oil supplies moved into the East by railroad, pipeline and barge.

Brown Under Pressure

Brown, constantly under pressure to ease up on his rationing restrictions, contends the 30,000 gallons could be spared without hurting the war effort. He says the A-card driver should be allowed to use his small allotment as he pleases.

Ickes, mindful that he's responsible for supplying the oil needs of the armed forces and industry and with building up stocks currently down to 34 per cent of pre-rationing normal so oil-burning homes will be warm this winter, says flatly nothing can be spared for non-essential purposes.

Brown and Ickes agree only that more petroleum should and will be brought East from the midwest as soon as there's a way to move it, even if it means tightening up restrictions on midwestern motorists—an even Ickes has indicated strongly is just around the corner.

Ickes Argues For Reserves

Ickes argues he must have large stocks on hand because the armed forces sometimes call on him for immediate delivery of huge amounts of oil, dropping their demands "like a bomb and without advance notice."

Brown finds large stocks add to his headache, because the clamor of motorists for greater allowances rises in proportion to the rise in stored supplies in their localities.

Tied into their tug-of-war is another knotty problem: Declining oil production, which Ickes says can be remedied only by a price ceiling increase—which Brown refuses to grant—to stimulate output and exploration for new reserves.

Ickes contends the production decline is bringing on a shortage that alone will be sufficient cause to curb non-essential use of gasoline through the country.

The petroleum industry war council, composed of leading industry representatives who serve as advisors to Ickes, are with Ickes on prices but with Brown on relaxing the pleasure-driving ban.

Mine Owners Distrust Political Management; Maxon Sounds A Serious Warning

People Must Guard Rights

Theorists Seek To Control U. S.

AMONG the serious charges made by Lou R. Maxon, Detroit advertising executive, when he resigned the other day as deputy administrator in the Office of Price Administration, none was more interesting or of more possible significance than those pertaining to certain specific OPA practices.

Those charges, grouped here more closely than in his letter of resignation, ran in this fashion: that "a strong clique" in OPA believes "the government should manufacture and distribute all commodities" and is "using the war as a means of furthering their reform ideas;" and that this clique is the most vigorous advocate of the "grade labelling" plan under which the labels of private enterprises would be forbidden. Instead, some sort of government produced or approved label would be used on everything.

Thus, the possible motive behind the vigorous effort in behalf of grade labelling has become clearer. Obviously, government manufacture and distribution of everything would become less difficult if the bureaucratic theorists could destroy the identities of private enterprises. And their identities will be destroyed if the time ever comes when they are forbidden to use their own labels on their products.

If Mr. Maxon's letter of resignation serves no other purpose, it has emphasized and clarified in detail a danger to be guarded against.

Treaties By "Directive"

CERTAIN questions asked in the British House of Commons the other day have helped to emphasize that the Atlantic Charter, compounded by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt at their historic mid-ocean meeting, does not have official and binding effect upon the nations affected.

The document is not a treaty, as acknowledged by Mr. Churchill in his response to questions. It does no more than give expression to ideas and aims of the two men who conceived it.

This fact does not minimize in any degree any historic importance the charter may have. It does not criticize the procedure followed in designing the document. It recognizes fully the importance of the men, and their positions, who drafted it.

But the fact still remains that it does not represent a contract that is binding upon the affeced nations. This could not be the case in nations pretending to be democracies. They cannot allow themselves to get into the position of allowing any two men or any group of men, regardless of whom they might be, to get together and commit their nations to any courses of action without the consultation and approval of the peoples affected.

It is doubtful whether Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt fully recognize these restraints upon them. It is possible, if not probable, that in the time to come they will attempt to insist that provisions of the charter are binding upon the nations. They may contend that certain courses of action must be followed because they are contained in the charter. It is not improbable that Mr. Roosevelt, and perhaps Mr. Churchill, will attempt to act without further consultation with the people and the democratic governing bodies of their nations. In acknowledging that the charter is not a treaty, Mr. Churchill did not acknowledge that it is without the binding effects of a treaty.

But the very fact that questions were asked in the House of Commons has helped to clear the atmosphere for the future. Those questions gave notice that international policies of the future are not predetermined because of anything that may be contained in the charter.

Certainly, provisions of the charter will be given full consideration. They will carry great weight because they are contained in the charter. But the charter merely proposes. The nations themselves, through their democratic governing bodies, will do the disposing at the proper time.

Let's Win The War First, Then Let History Bestow Laurels

Today's World .... By S. Burton Heath

A REPORTER on a midwestern newspaper asked 30 men and women, interviewed essentially at random, which United Nation has has made the greatest contribution toward winning this war. Two said Russia, one China and 27 the United States.

HEATH

Such a question and the answers made an excellent feature, but the results of the poll prove only one thing, which is the willingness of almost everybody to express a firm opinion on matters about which he knows very little.

To such a question there are at least six answers which can be argued with considerable logic — Britain, China, Russia or the United States, Germany by her errors, or our own favorite — that the war hasn't been won yet, which is not really a quibble.

We should not be in position to dream of winning the war, eventually, if the British Isles had not weathered the crisis that followed Dunkirk. England might not have survived but for the weapons and other aid we contributed. But that aid would have been futile if the British had not used it with a courage and optimism unparalleled in military history.

THE best we could hope for would be a stalemate if Russia had not amazed the world by the bravery and skill of her battered armies, and by possession of material resources of which none of us dreamed. But without British and American aid, Russia probably would not have been able to turn back the Nazi tide.

Without American materiel or without British sea and military manpower, the victory of North Africa could not have been won nor, for that matter, would it have been won if much of Hitler's strength had not been tied up in Russia.

IT IS utterly impossible to sort out the combined contribution of any one country and say that it was greatest. Common sense tells us that any one of these nations produced a balance of power without which at best we would have been forced to an indecisive armistice.

And if Germany had invaded England immediately after Dunkirk, or had refrained from attacking Russia, we should have lost one or other of those invaluable allies.

Let's go ahead and win the war, and leave it to history to decide whether it matters greatly who made the greatest contribution.

TRAILING ALONG

THE OPA, the WPB and the PAW have decided now that in New York City every building owner except those of private homes will be required to burn coal next winter rather than oil. But so far as can be determined no similar ruling has been made as to New England or other northeastern areas.

The decision, so far as it goes, seems wise. Unless something of the sort is done a bitter winter lies ahead for easterners in the cold-winter area. But why only New York City? And will conversion equipment and manpower be made available? And why was the decision delayed so long? Canada adopted a similar rule a year ago.

TAPERING OFF

AMBASSADOR WINANT, in London, reveals that two million Americans have been sent to fighting zones in 18 months—a lot, but no more than we transported overseas in a similar period in World War I. Then our men under arms did not reach 5,000,000; now they surpass 8,000,000.

This might have something to do with Secretary Stimson's concession that the War Department is studying the desirability of tapering off the induction of new trainees. If we can't use them in uniform, we surely need them on farms and in factories.

MINE REPORT

THE American Rolling Mill company informs shareholders of experience in its Nellis, W. Va., mine, where 256 United Mine Workers are employed. During the month of April only 106 of these troubled to work full time, in spite of the company's efforts to get out a maximum of black diamonds.

Of 127 lower-paid men, 41 who troubled to work full time averaged $211.42 for the month, but 86, who did not, averaged only $140.39.

After so-called occupational deductions averaging $1.94 a month, and after union dues, rent, fuel, electricity, medical and hospital costs, Victory and social security taxes and purchase installments, the men received 80 per cent of their wages in cash.

RELATIVE PAY SCALES

REPRESENTATIVE ENGEL of Michigan found a way to make some of the war work pay scales appear at their worst. As, for example, when he pointed out that machine gun assemblers made up to $8500 a year, the base pay of Lieut.-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, who has responsibility for every phase of American participation in this war except the actual fighting.

The Michigan solon cites numerous comparisons almost as startling. There is, for example, the former 5-and-10-cent store ribbon clerk with a few weeks' experience in industry, who makes as much as an army major.

Looking At Life --- By Erich Brandeis

I had a very peculiar experience this week. I am telling it to you because the same thing may happen to you.

It was beastly hot for more than two weeks at a stretch. I didn't pay much attention to it, kept on with my work the same as usual.

Sunday I did a lot of chores in the garden, staking up tomatoes, pulling weeds, thinning beets and whatnot.

Monday morning I went to the office.

From then on I remember nothing until I found myself at home early in the afternoon, my friend John Donald sitting in the chair next to me in my living room.

"What on earth are we doing here this time of the day?" I asked, "and how did we get out here?"

He told me. I acted very funny in the office, gave rather silly answers to sensible questions.

I asked 50 times: "Is it hot today?"

So finally John took me to my doctor who told him I had a bad heat stroke.

He ordered me taken home immediately, put to bed; put on a diet, and kept absolutely quiet fo ra week. He prescribed some pills that would keep me dopy but would settle my nerves. No work of any kind.

Now here's the funny thing about it: My head is absolutely clear again. I remember everything back to my early childhood. Only a couple of hours ago a friend whom I haven't seen in twenty years phoned and we exchanged reminiscences right down to the most unimportant details.

I remember everything that happened since John got me home.

YET that entire day up to then is completely out of my life. I don't remember having been taken to the doctor. I don't remember my visit with him. I have no recollection of the trip home, of stopping at the drugstore for medicine, of being taken home from the drugstore in a taxi.

Yet everything before and after that episode is normal.

Can you explain it? I can't.

Has it ever happened to you? I'd like to know.

I can tell you this, however? Your mind apparently is not a possession that you may take for granted.

There is a power that may take it away from you if it so chooses.

Better take care of it!

Theorists Are In The Saddle

(The National Whirligig)

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

APPALACHIAN operators have sent polite regrets to John L. Lewis that they did not settle with him directly instead of entrusting their fortunes to President Roosevelt and the National War Labor board. They figure belatedly that they may lose more at the administration's hands than by making peace with the United Mine Workers.

The owners' least worry is the realization that they will not receive profits and pay out dividends until their property is returned. What they fear is that the United States Bureau of Mines, staffed by many unsuccessful managers, technicians and theorists, will use their holdings as a laboratory for all sorts of radical experiments.

This agency is serving as Harold L. Ickes' advisory and controlling group. Its key men have long yearned to play around on a large scale. They are the bituminous brain trusters and may be expected to behave accordingly. For years they have advanced schemes for safety devices and regulations requiring a tremendous money expenditure.

Bureau head is Dr. R. R. Sayers, a physician with little business experience in this field. He was promoted to his present post solely because of his long service and a desire to recognize the really valuable work he had performed in the study of occupational disease in the pits.

The owners are even more irate because they were given to understand by White House spokesmen that FDR was protecting them against their ancient foe, John L. It was on the advice of James Byrnes and Harry Hopkins that they threw the dispute into the NWLB by refusing to negotiate with the Welshman.

Now they wonder whether they were not "robbed," especially as the shadow of possible nationalization of the coal industry looms in the murky background.

VOTES: The most realistic factor behind the operators' concern is their suspicion that rambunctious Ickes may smash several profitable "rackets" which they have pursued as sidelines to their management of the coal shafts. These enterprises are perfectly legal, but the Secretary of the Interior may not regard them as legitimate.

Proprietors of numerous bituminous corporations formed subsidiaries which supply materials for use in their mines. In some instances they place relatives or close friends in charge of the minor firms. In others they themselves act as officials of both organiations. They sell to themselves and, since they can fix prices, do not drive too hard a bargain.

They have also set up companies for handling resale of the fuel. They act as middlemen for their own black nuggets and reap the intermediate profits. Very often they earn more from these secondary undertakings than from what appears to be their major activity.

Ickes and FDR would make a hit with the consumer if they eliminated these practices and passed the savings on to the eventual buyer. It would also be possible to increase diggers' wages by cutting them in on the "kitty."

Since the estimate is that these intra-company maneuvers add about thirty cents to the retail costs of each ton, Harold and FDR obviously have a chance to ingratiate themselves with two groups which muster more votes than do the owners. Few here believe that the pair will miss such an opportunity.

CAPTURE: President Roosevelt may utilize the summer recess of Congress to demonstrate that he is still more popular with the people than are the members of the legislative body. Behind prospective fireside chats and "inspection trips" lies his desire to build fences for the 1944 presidential contest and to insure the re-election of a Democratic Senate for the period of peace negotiations.

FDR's advisers do not believe that he has slipped so badly with the masses as he apparently has on Capitol Hill. They have informed the Chief Executive that the House-Senate mood did not reflect the average American's feeling for him. Now that United States arms are advancing on every front, they think that he should capitalize on these events.

Intimates warn him that he cannot wait until next winter to undertake a political campaign. They concede that the electorate is irritated by rationing, price increases, hesitation and bungling in Washington, but they maintain that he can overcome these handicaps in personal appearances and radio talks. And the time to start, they say, is now when hostile lawmakers are scattered.

The President's principal care, if he should win again, would be Republican capture of the Senate, which must ratify any treaty he might arrange with other members of the United Nations. It is not at all impossible for the GOP to gain so many seats that, together with real Democrats, it would be able to wreck his schemes as a similar combination destroyed Woodrow Wilson's dreams almost 25 years ago. In any nation-wide tour, FDR would cast his influence for sympathetic Democratic and Republican internationalist candidates.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

DONOLD NELSON'S account of his stewardship makes clear that despite slow-ups in a few cases, the tide of production is still rising beyond all world records. Until now military secrecy has hidden from the public an equally brilliant feat: Our salvage experts behind the lines are converting the wreckage on the battlefield into useful weapons.

We are reputed to be a nation of wasters, but so skilled in frugality are our North African repair men, that the British and French staffs asked permission to place their technicians beside Yanks so they too may learn how to restore damaged equipment.

In one improvised factory more than 1,000 barefooted Arabs, supervised by Army Service Forces mechanics, toil in three eight-hour shifts to assemble parts dragged from the front. The rebuilt motors operate as smoothly as new ones.

Ordnance officers report that out of 20,000 tires 18,000 are reclaimed, thus saving vessel space. Shoes once torn by shrapnel and machine gun slugs are placed on back-area trucks and jeeps so that rubber newly arrived from America can be rushed to the Sicilian combat.

In other shops broken optical instruments, range finders, sights, watches, big howitzers and heavy artillery are put together again.

TIMBER: A German dive bomber sank a freighter off the Tunisian coast loaded with replacement auto engines. The cargo was urgently needed to bolster the material earmarked for the landing in Sicily. Divers were hurried to the scene of the calamity and recovered the submerged articles. Spark plugs, carburetors, distributors, etc., ruined by salt water, were junked and uninjured sections stripped from casualties in action were substituted.

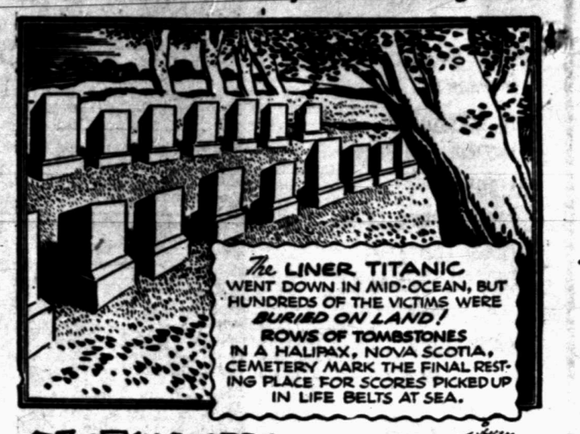

Soap, one of the scarcest commodities in the fighting zone, is rigidly rationed to troops. But Africa has an abundance of palm and peanut oil, ingredients of bathing and laundry suds, although no caustic soda of which 13 tons are necessary for every 100 tons of the cleaner.

Rather than squander transportation facilities by bringing bars from America, the Quartermaster corps imports the chemical to mix with the vegetable fats, thereby releasing for other purposes 87 per cent of the tonnage required for the American finished product.

The Signal corps wanted thousands of telephone poles but the French insisted that no timber was available. "The local wood won't last 10 years," explained Giraud's engineers.

"That doesn't worry us," replied the Yanks, "we don't expect to take that long to run the Axis out of the Mediterranean." Arab lumberjacks are cutting 300 posts a day, enough to string all the wires . . . and without occupying a single cubic foot of precious shipping space.

"Western Star" Is Narrative Poem Of U. S.

Stephen Vincent Benet's Last Poem Is July Book-Of-Month

WHEN Stephen Vincent Benet died a short time ago, he was just putting the finishing touches to a long narrative poem called "Western Star." In this poem, he told the exciting story — as only he could tell it — of the early colonization of what we know today as the United States—particularly the founding of the Jamestown and Provincetown colonies.

BENET

The poem was shown to the judges of the Book-of-the-Month club while it was still in manuscript form, and they immediately selected it for distribution as one of the July choices. Rarely, the judges say, have they come across anything as thrilling as Benet's last poem.

They had the same reaction back in 1927, when they selected Benet's narrative poem of the American Civil War — "John Brown's Body." The following year "John Brown's Body" was awarded the Pulitzer Prize, and since Stephen Vincent Benet has been recognized as one of our greatest poets.

Long before Pearl Harbor, Benet in his poetry warned us of the menace of fascism and tried to prepare us spiritually for the war to come. Then when we entered the war, he threw all his energies into writing poems and radio plays to inspire the American people for the great task on hand.

That Stephen Vincent Benet died when he did, in the full tide of his powers, was an inestimable loss to American literature. That he was able to finish his epic "Western Star" is something we can all be grateful for.

"EATING AND DRINKING"

A HINT for welcoming visiting celebrities: Richardson Wright in "The Bed-Book of Eating and Drinking" tells of a state visit which Louis XIV made to Rheims. At the gates of the city he was met by the city fathers, who addressed him thus: "Sire, we offer you our wine, our pears, our gingerbread, our biscuits and our hearts."

Mr. Wright's book, aside from containing many valuable hints about the preparation of food, contains scores of amusing anecdotes. Such as the one about the cook of a friend of his who gave notice. What was the trouble? Wasn't the wages satisfactory, the bedroom, the time off? Yes, all these were. Then why was she leaving? "Because, Ma'am, there's too much shiftin' of the dishes for the fewness of the food."

MISUNDERSTOOD 'V'

WHEN Winston Churchill arrived in Moscow for his visit to Stalin, relates Henry Cassidy in "Moscow Dateline," he greeted the Russian guard by raising his hand in his famous "V for Victory" salute. The Russians did not know what he meant—the word for "victory" in Russian is "pobeda." They speculated among themselves and finally decided that by raising his two fingers Mr. Churchill was promising them a quick Second Front.

A MESSAGE FOR YOU....FROM 1953

(Today, John Jones is just an average American, wrestling with all the doubts and worries and problems that beset every one of us right now. But let's skip ahead 10 years. Let's look at John Jones then—and listen to him . . .)

"SOMETIMES I feel so good it almost scares me.

"This house—I wouldn't swap a shingle off its roof for any other house on earth. This little valley, with the pond down in the hollow at the back, is the spot I like best in all the world.

"And they're mine. I own 'em. Nobody can take 'em away from me.

"I've got a little money coming in, regularly. Not much—but enough. And I tell you, when you can go to bed every night with nothing on your mind except the fun you're going to have tomorrow—that's as near Heaven as a man gets on this earth!

"It wasn't always so

"Back in '43—that was our second year of war, when we were really getting into it—I needed cash. Taxes were tough, and then Ellen got sick. Like most everybody else, I was buying War Bonds through the Payroll Plan—and I figured on cashing some of them in. But sick as she was, it was Ellen who talked me out of it.

"'Don't do it, John!' she said. 'Please don't! For the first time in our lives, we're really saving money. It's wonderful to know that every single payday we have more money put aside! John, if we can only keep up this saving, think what in can mean!

Maybe someday you won't have to work. Maybe we can own a home. And oh, how good it would feel to know that we need never worry about money when we're old!'

"Well, even after she got better, I stayed away from the weekly poker game—quit dropping a little cash at the hot spots now and then—gave up some of the things a man feels he has a right to. We made clothes do—cut out fancy foods. We didn't have as much fun for awhile but we paid our taxes and the doctor and—we didn't touch the War Bonds.

"We didn't touch the War Bonds then, or any other time. And I know this: The world wouldn't be such a swell place today if we had!"

Music Has Important Role In Army Life, So Life Is Busy For SPAAF Band Members

There is one group of men at South Plains Army Air field which is always tooting its horns for somebody else.

Throughout the ages, in war and in peace, music has played a prominent role in the lives of all people. This is particularly true in wartime.

Being a member of a musical organization in the Army isn't the happy-go-lucky life many might be led to believe. Proof of this may be found in a visit with the SPAAF band under the direction of Warrant Officer Harry Dunham.

Ordinary Conditions

The band personnel must live under the same conditions and regulations as other military personnel of the field. Their work day is as long and often longer. For instance, Warrant Officer Dunham usually schedules at least three hours of group rehearsal each day. In addition, the dance band must have rehearsals throughout the week and individual members must keep up their time with several hours work with their particular instruments each week.

Because such an organization naturally is limited, duties must be shared. This means that the job of keeping the records for the band, keeping the barracks, orderly room and other routine duties up is left to the members. In their spare time there is a lawn to be kept and other essentials to be taken care of.

The SPAAF band, like all other such musical organizations in the Army, must play for concerts, reviews, dances, radio broadcasts, special recruiting drives, bond sales and other such events. That is over here. Over there, it might well be guarding munitions and supplies, aiding the medical detachments, playing for the soldiers or in this war where bombs aren't particular where they fall, fighting alongside the men they help entertain.

Experienced Musicians

Most of the members of the SPAAF band are experienced musicians. Several of them taught music before entering the service, others were in college and high school bands. Warrant Officer Dunham was a band instructor in Mount Vernon, Ill., school system before he entered service.

The group at SPAAF has earned itself a reputation over West Texas for its efficiency and versatility.

Last night, the SPAAF band was honored by being chosen to play for the opening of the new officers club at Marfa Army Air field. The band, with Warrant Officer Dunham in charge, flew down for the occasion, thus adding a new touch to flying musicians. Already this summer the band has appeared at Marfa, Alpine and Odessa on special recruiting drives and played for the opening of the Lamesa Liaison Flying school at Lamesa.

Wallace Is Said Out Politically

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — Some members of Congress, commenting on President Roosevelt's reorganization of the economic warfare set-up, were ready today to write off Vice President Wallace as a 1944 political factor whether or not Mr. Roosevelt should agree to seek a fourth term.

"Henry Wallace was already dead politically," Senator Smith (D-SC) told reporters, "but this thing buries him."

Senator Nye (R-ND) commented, "it looks to me like the end of Wallace's plan for milk routes all over the world."

Nye also said he regarded the appointment of Leo Crowley, the alien property custodian, to head a newly-created Office of Economic Warfare as tantamount to a victory for Secretary of Commerce Jones in the latter's dispute with Wallace over purchases of foreign war materials.

Crowley Is Conservative

"To my way of thinking," Nye said, "Crowley represents the more conservative element in the administration, the same element that Jones represents."

In creating the Office of Economic Warfare, Mr. Roosevelt abolished the Board of Economic Warfare (BEW), headed by Wallace, and also placed under Crowley's new agency a group of subsidiaries of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, supervised by Jones, which have been concerned with foreign purchases.

On second reading today of Mr. Roosevelts order, many at the capitol and in the government were impressed with the grant of power it gave to James F. Byrnes, the war mobilization director.

Byrnes Gains Power

A spokesman for the now-abolished BEW, unwilling to be quoted by name, said it appeared to him, in fact, that Byrnes would have most of the powers formerly exercised by Wallace and that Crowley would be in about the position formerly occupied by Milo Perkins, right-hand man to Wallace.

The new grant of authority to Byrnes, who already has been dubbed the "assistant president" because of his powers in domestic matters, brought fresh talk in political circles that he might be the second man on a Roosevelt fourth-term ticket, although Byrnes said recently that he had no political ambitions. Another mentioned, on the presumption that Wallace is not to be considered, was Speaker Rayburn.

Hockley County Farm Labor Plan Hits Snag

LEVELLAND, July 17. (Special)—County Extension Agent Harvie D. Pool has advised that Hockley county will not be able to obtain Italian war prisoner labor from the Hereford internment camp in time to supply the farmers' needs for hoe hands. Application for establishment of a camp requires 30 days to process through Washington, and by that time, he said, farmers here will not need hoe hands.

Plans already had been worked out for bringing in a company of 255 men. Word came from Hereford this week, just as county commissioners and the county agent were preparing to go to the camp to complete arrangements with the commanding officer, that nothing can be done further until permission arrives from the War department in Washington.

Pool said the plan would have been a fine thing, and a big saving to farmers who need hoe hands, as the Italian prisoner labor could be had for about $1.45 a day, the prisoners each getting 80 cents and the government 65 cents for maintenance.

Congress Flayed For Ambiguity

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—President Roosevelt took Congress to task today for passing laws so ambiguous, he said, that their meaning is uncertain. He signed a bill extending the life of the Commodity Credit corporation (CCC), but with the expressed understanding that it means what he thinks it does—

That the Office of Price administration can set standards for a commodity where it is essential to an effective price fixing.

The President's perplexity arose from the fact that Congress dealt with OPA fixing of standards not only in the CCC measure, but also in another bill.

Price Administrator Prentiss Brown in his own interpretation had said earlier that, as he understood, Congress had outlawed grade labeling of hosiery, which OPA once planned to order, but had not closed the door to price-fixing by grades on such things as lumber and meat.

The President in a formal statement said the language in the measure relating to restrictions in the use of standards in maximum price regulations was so ambiguous that he felt it necessary to give his own interpretation of it to prevent further misconceptions.

He said another bill appropriating funds for the OPA had been construed as prohibiting the administrator from making use of standards in any case regardless of how essential they were to price control, unless such standards had been previously established by industry acceptance or by government action.

"Such a construction," he said, "would cripple price control because trade standards are frequently lacking or, as in the case of the grades of meat, incompletely established.

Lamb County Applies For Prisoner Labor

LITTLEFIELD, July 17. (Special).—Lamb county commissioners officially have made application to the War department for 500 Italian war prisoners in camp near Hereford, the men to be brought here and employed by farmers.

The application went forward by mail to the commanding officer of the camp and stated the men would be employed on farms to help take care of this year's crops.
