Warning Race Loses

Wrong Way Crash Brings Death

We were looking and thinking our lights. But he never looked. He just kept driving in the wrong lane until...

Then one was dead and two other persons were hospitalized. Mrs. Kent Womack told the Record Wednesday how she, her husband and another Colorado City couple, Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, tried to warn.

Saturday evening to prevent the fatal collision 1.3 miles west of Colorado City on traffic-lane Interstate 20 freeway.

Killed was Verbel Cole Goff, a Dallas salesman, traveling west in a 1970 Rambler sedan.

He wasn't weaving in the lane. George was the one who got out and went to the wreckage.

Investigation continued here Wednesday in connection with the highway death of Verbel Cole Goff.

County Attorney Frank Ginzler told the Record he had conferred with District Attorney Weldon Kirk concerning the investigation.

His companion, Evelyn Johnson, also of Dallas, was reported Wednesday in Root Memorial Hospital recovering from serious injuries.

George Lee was driving the car. He was the one who suggested that we try to stop him.

When it happened, she said, George was the one who got out and went to the wreckage.

Making additional checks into the circumstances of the accident was the State Highway Patrol.

One phase of the investigation, which relates to the circumstances of the two-car collision was traveling east in the west-bound traffic lane of Interstate 20.

It was Brown who witnesses said was driving the wrong way - east in the west-bound traffic lane of the freeway.

He didn't have his lights. He was driving real slow.

I don't recall whether the other car (the lone carrying Goff and Mrs. Johnson) had its driving lights on, or its parking lights.

Richard Johnson Brown, 46, of Albany is identified as the driver of the car traveling in wrong direction and he remained Wednesday in Root Memorial Hospital with injuries received in the wreck.

That was near Lake Colorado, west of an overpass separating the freeway from the lake bank.

They were riding west on the freeway, also when they met him.

They kept trying to get his attention, but he never looked up.

Impact between the two cars was head-on with the Brown automobile knocked slightly off course.

Also a patient in Root Memorial was Richard Jackson Brown of Albany, driver of a 1964 Ford.

We were on the north side of the freeway.

Police reported that the accident happened about 6:35 p.m. west of Morgan Creek Bridge.

Mrs. Womack and the Lees were riding west on the freeway, also when they met him.

Mrs. Womack said it was heading back east. Some cars had full lights and some did not.

They are Mrs. Pearl Rhodes and Mrs. Mildred Mann Boyd, both natives of the community and members of pioneer families, who seek the post now held by Mrs. Mary T. Hart, seeking re-election.

However, local political interests already had warmed with County Judge Elmer Martin being opposed in his re-election bid by Bill Carter and another triple-candidate race between Mrs. Marie Bassham, Henry G. Doss and Dennis Wadding for County Clerk.

"My sincere pledge," Mrs. Boyd said, "is that, if elected, I will carry out the duties of county treasurer to the very best of my ability and integrity."

I entered the race only after much consideration and a lot of encouragement from a number of friends," Mrs. Rhodes said.

CONVERSATION CORNER

THERE has long been a fallacy deep in the male bosom—believe it or not—that little women are brave, frisky cats.

Because women are usually smaller and not often so strong, generations of men have gone through life believing that women are delicate and need protecting.

That is a misconception of our Western culture. Women are not supposed to be brave. Plenty of them are!

Some of the bravest people who ever lived happened to be women. Matter of fact, the bravest person I ever knew personally, happened to be the second wife of a widowed Baptist preacher.

She was a beautiful woman, also widowed, and she said like an angel. Her wedding trousseau was a joy to behold—that first summer.

THING WAS, the heartless fiends who design women's clothes changed every style between June and January.

The long waist with girde-type belts at the hips got discarded by the fashion dictators as tight belts went up to the natural waistline, and skirts shot from just below the knee to just above the ankle.

The brave woman in the paragon wore her trousseau right through the second season just the same.

Call it sensible if must use that kind of reasoning. I still call it courage. . . mostly, because her husband was pastor of a big and prosperous church and she could have had a new wardrobe like the rest of the women had she been less than brave.

SOME fashion predictions insist that the mid-calf skirt, already the rage in Paris, will make the "mini-skirt" passe.

Phyllis Butler, for instance, told Johnny Carson the other night that "Every woman in America will soon just have a closet full of blouses."

Well, we shall see what we shall see. And, since like the song from "Oklahoma" says, "They've gone about as far as they can go," and there's nothing much left to see, maybe skirts are on their way down.

After that, it will be a brave girl or woman willing to show her knees, and foxy to fashion.

Women are brave, I insist, but few women are brave enough to tackle the trends in the hemline.

NEVER have thought of Zsa Zsa Gabor as a brave woman. Beautiful, yes. Brazen, too. But brave?

She must have a streak of bravery hidden under one of her wigs or in her diamond closet. Or maybe a streak of bravado.

Zsa Zsa is writing a book about men. She is telling us, quote, how to catch a man and how to hold a man, unquote, says an Associated Press feature story.

"The book will be like a dictionary. A woman decides what she wants to know and she can look it up," says the AP article.

Now anybody who needs to be told how to catch a man might do well to consult Zsa Zsa's dictionary. She oughta know. She's run through five rich husbands.

HOW to hold a man once he's "caught" is another matter. It's the tricky part.

Have the strangest feeling that Zsa Zsa is not exactly qualified in the holding department. She might fare better if she'd just sum up that part of her advice with a Joe Namath line saying "There ain't no way."

Course there is a way—many ways—known to unsung heroines who don't have time to write a book about it. It takes bravery. Heck, let's face it. It takes guts.

As least that Baptist preacher's wife mentioned a few paragraphs back knew the ways. But then, she was the bravest woman I ever knew!

HAD the fun of reading a big book about brave men this week, too. Through thoughtfulness of Mrs. John Womack got to share her husband's Christmas present, "Cow Country," written by Tanner Laine and published in Hereford.

The book is rich with pictures titled "Face of a Cowboy." Those pictures include a full-page one of our Otto Jones, one of Cal Wright, one of George Mahon, NOT a cowboy but a West Texas U.S. congressman.

There is a sketch of Frank Norfleet, early-day foreman of Spade Ranch, later known as "Little Tiger of Hale County," still remembered for a famous manhunt and capture of a gang of swindlers.

Pictures of other pioneer cowboys remembered by Mr. Womack are of Johnny Sartin, Weldon Johnson of Snyder, Jess Koonsman, Whit Thompson, Harrie Winston, Clarence Scharbauer of Midland, Jack McReynolds, C. B. Bradley, Foy and Leonard Procter of Midland, Charlie Creighton, Clyde Miller of Gail, Buster Caudle of Big Spring.

FAVORITE portion of the colorful book comes with page 146 and a short history of Colorado City, Mother City of West Texas.

Did you know C-City is the oldest town on the Texas and Pacific line between Weatherford and El Paso? That its first settlement was by Texas Rangers who established a camp here in 1877? That lumber, drygoods, food, and barbed wire were shipped here by train, then taken by long wagon trains all over the Caprock area back in the early 80's?

Another good place to start if you don't know your Colorado City history is the biography of D. W. Wallace, "80 John," written by his daughter Hettie Wallace Branch, book which is one our library shelves.

UNLESS you read the Amarillo Daily News sports pages you might not know what Don Maynard, modern C-City hero, had to say about his hometown, Colorado City.

Maynard was speaker at a recent YMCA membership kickoff meeting in Amarillo. Note from Helen May Ledgerwood of Amarillo enclosed a clipping quoting him.

"The word love is a four letter word you can spell 27 different ways but it still means the same," said the ex-star of CHS Wolves who is now the wide receiver for New York Jets.

"I went back to Colorado City last year. They had a day for me. . . They're the kind of people I like, the plain down-to-earth folks," Don told Amarillo. Sports article says he will have a book on fundamentals of catching a football due off the press in June, and that next year he will write his football life autobiography.

Maynard's book on how to catch a football will, in all probability, attract more readers in our "Cow Country" than Gabor's how to catch a man, wouldn't you think?

HELEN LEDGERWOOD, CHS grad with degree from WTSU, is daughter of Alida May and her husband the late Bob May. She teaches at Horace Mann Junior High in Amarillo.

"Normally," she writes, "I just glance at the sports page so that I won't be completely illiterate when my ninth grade boys refer to a game. . . I was delightfully surprised to see Don Maynard's heart-warming comments about our home town!"

HOME TOWN faces seen lately include those of George Hudson, . . . Bill Morris, son of Katherine and Arlene, . . . Leonard Henderson, . . . J. O. Dockrey, Jr.

Scientific Prayer

Before men could fly the first airplane, they had to do more than want to fly, they had to learn the laws of flight to set them free from the earth.

Similarly, when men pray and seem to receive no answer, can it be that they have something first to learn about prayer, and about the benevolent laws of God?

Hear Harold Rogers, C. S., of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, speak on "Scientific Prayer."

Mr. Rogers is formerly art and entertainment editor and music critic of Christian Science Monitor. You and your friends are most welcome to this free lecture.

Presenting the program will be Mrs. L. J. Watson, conservation and home life departments. Mrs. Lynn Halbert, Wrinkles are a vicious cycle.

In some dryers the heat that dries your clothes also bakes wrinkles into permanent press.

But you can buy a new gas dryer with a permanent press cool-down cycle that turns off the heat and cools off your clothes.

That means modern gas dryers won't add wrinkles to your wash and extra ironing to your work load. Because they have a cycle that keeps wrinkles from becoming vicious.

back by the impact. Both cars were totally demolished.

Eight hours later another wrong-way accident sent a trucker, William P. Tatum, to Root Memorial Hospital with severe head cuts.

Tatum, of Chattanooga, Tenn., was driving a truck tractor and semi-trailer and leaving Interstate 20 by an exit just east of Truck Town Cafe. As he drove onto the exit, he was met by a car entering the freeway wrong-way, to the exit route.

Tatum's truck jackknifed as he evaded the car.

Relief driver on the truck,
Henry Green, also of Chattanooga, was not injured.

State Highway Patrolman
Jim Mauldin said the same car moments later drove under truck off Interstate 20 as a wreck was being avoided.

Last report of the car
described as a 1967 four-door Chevrolet - was that it was moving east in westbound lane
east of Colorado City.

DIAL

residents will dial only eight digits - "1" and the seven-digit number. The 915 Area Code will not be required.

DDD calls will be billed automatically, Gilliland pointed out.
The equipment currently being installed will identify the calling number, the called number,
the time the call ends answers and the time the call is terminated.

All this information is punched into paper tape. The tape in turn is put through a computer which compiles all information on the calls for billing purposes, Gilliland said.
