THE score was 0 to 0, favoring Amarillo.

And the Amarillo High school Golden Sandstorm took a very important step toward its fourth consecutive Class A high school football championship of District 1, technically defeating the Lubbock High school Westerners on the Texas Tech gridiron yesterday. A crowd estimated at 7,500 fans, nearly a third of them coming from Amarillo, witnessed the game.

Sandies Awarded Victory

Although the score was tied, 0 to 0, the coaches acted upon a Texas Interscholastic League ruling which states that in case of a tie, some means be agreed upon by the coaches to decide the winner, and a few minutes before the game started Coaches Frnka and Cherry decided to award the victory to the team which pierced the 20 yard stripe of the opposing club the greatest number of times. First downs, yards gained from scrimmage, or 20 yard line penetrations were set forth by the state organization as means of deciding the victor of tie games. Lubbock's 20-yard line was penetrated 7 times by the Amarillo team, giving the Sandies the decision. The Westerners never got inside Amarillo's 20-yard marker.

Had first downs been the determining factor, Amarillo would have won by the narrow margin of one first down. When the game ended, first downs stood 15 to 14 in favor of the visitors. Likewise, plays from scrimmage netted the Sandies 241 yards, as compared to the 206 yards gained by Lubbock.

Teams Well Matched

Two of the best matched teams that have ever been seen in action against each other in this section met on the Tech field yesterday when Lubbock and Amarillo made a desperate stand for leadership in the league. As a result of the victory, technical though it may have been, Amarillo stands in the light of district champions, having come through five conference games with a clear slate, and only the tie of

Despite the fact that Coaches Frnka and Cherry called representatives of the press to the field and described the manner by which a decision would be made in case of a tie, M. H. Duncan, superintendent of Lubbock schools said shortly after the game that the coaches were not authorized to make such an agreement, and that the game was a tie, subject to action of the executive committee of District 1. It is highly probable, Mr. Duncan said, that a second game between Lubbock and Amarillo would be played to decide the victor as a result of the 0-0 tie between the teams yesterday.

Little Interest Shown In Texas Elections Tuesday

Sterling Appeals For Large Vote

HOUSTON, Tex. Nov. 1. (AP)—An appeal for a large vote on November 4, general election day, was made in a statement issued today by Ross S. Sterling, Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

His statement follows:

"It is earnestly to be desired and hoped that the voters of Texas will confirm their choice of candidates in the August primary on Tuesday, with a voting strength as great as that cast in the primary.

"A state, from the national standpoint, is often gauged by its voting strength. For this reason, every loyal Texan should exercise the right of a franchise, particularly in this election.

"During the recent gubernatorial campaign the Lone Star state was projected into national political prominence as it has seldom been before. There was a crisis to meet and Texans met it."

Republican Vote and Amendments In Spotlight

(By The Associated Press)

THE fate of the five proposed constitutional amendments, one congressional race, and the size of the Republican vote in state races will occupy the center of interest in the Texas election Tuesday.

There will be less interest in Tuesday's voting than in any other primary or general election the past three years. The camaplgn has been colorless. All of the statewide talking has been done by the Republicans on behelf of their gubernatorial entry, Col. William E. Talbot of Dallas. The Democrats, accustomed to unbroken victory for sixty years, haven't even bothered to reply.

Wurzbach Opposed

The situation is different in the fourteenth congressional district, which has been represented since 1920 by Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, the lone Texas Republican in the house. Henry B. Dielmann of San Antonio is the Democratic nominee and Senators Tom Connally and Morris Sheppard went into the district to help him. Observers predict a close race.

Many Democrats assert they do not believe Colonel Talbot will receive 100,000 votes, the number needed for the Republicans to be enabled to hold a primary in the next election year. The Republicans this year held their second primary in history.

The G. O. P. leaders have shown no letup in their last-minute campaigning. R. B. Creager, Republican national committeemen, will speak over radio station KTAT at Fort Worth at 3 p. m. today, with Waco and Dallas hookups. Col. Talbot will speak over the same network at 9 o'clock tonight.

Finale Is Planned

Colonel Talbot will speak at McKinney Monday afternoon and an elaborate radio hookup has been provided for the G. O. P. finale at Dallas from 9 to 10 o'clock Monday night. Speakers will be Maj. Ben Maloney of San Antonio, veteran of two wars, Capt. J. P. Lucey, campaign manager for Col. Talbot, and the nominee himself.

New Queen Takes Bouquets on Chin

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 1. (AP)—Bulgaria's youngest generation is a little disappointed in the lovely Gioanna whom King Boris has brought home to reign as queen.

For one thing, she didn't wear a crown and ermine roses today as she stood on a palace balcony beside the handsome Boris while 200,000 school children marched by, cheering and tossing bouquets at the royal pair.

She was more like a big sister, flashing a smile at the tiniest o fher subjects who came close to hand their flowers over the balcony, than like a queen whom one sees only in the movies.

But Gioana won the hearts of more mature Bulgars in this day's celebration. She smiled for two hours with the sun in her eyes. She refused to sit down, and she took ill-aimed bouquets on the chin like a veteran.

Robberies Are ThoughtSolved By Confession

Man Arrested at Big Spring Makes Admission of Crimes in Score of West Texas Cities; Escaped from Pen

(By The Associated Press)

BIG SPRING, Nov. 1.—Robberies in more than a dozen West Texas cities were being cleared up today, according to Big Spring and Crosbyton officers as a result of a lengthy statement made by a man who gave the name of J. K. Burn, who claimed to have escaped from Arkansas and Nebraska prisons.

An agent of the Arkansas penitentiary is en route to Crosbyton for Burn, who was wounded in the neck when arrested by Deputy Sheriff Hames there. Sheriff Elmer J. Reed of Crosby county said the prisoner would not be released to Arkansas.

Three Others Sought

A Big Spring man was held in custody here and three other men were sought as a result of Burn's statement, officers said.

The statement said Burn and his associates operated in Lamesa, Sterling City, Odessa, Big Spring, Miles, Redbarn, Barnhart, McCamey, Big Lake and other cities. Officers said the statement cleared up robberies involving the loss of several thousand dollars worth of merchandise.

"Fences" as far away as Chicago were said to have bought the stolen goods.

Among the robberies cleared were those of the Collins Brothers Drug store here, which lost $2,000 in merchandise; burglary of the local high school office and robberies of safes in Texas and Pacific stations at Westbrook and the Santa Fe station at Sterling City, officers said.

Working on the case for a week were Sherfiff Feed, Sheriff Jess Slaughter of Howard county, Sheriff Reeder Webb of Ector county, W. B. Jones and Dude Thompson, Texas and Pacific special agents, Deputy Sheriff Buck Bennett of Dawson county and Sheriff Van Davis of Sterling.

HELD AT AMARILLO

Murder Suspect to Be Taken Back to Colorado

AMARILLO, Nov. 1 —(AP)—Wanted by authorities at Springfield, Colo., on charges of murder, H. O. Jackson, 51, was held in jail here tonight awaiting the arrival of officers from Colorado to take him back. Officers here said he signified his willingness to return. He was charged with slaying a companion, who, with Jackson and a third man, had been deputized to keep order on Hallowe'en.

Mrs. Parks Freed From Sanitarium

Virtually recovered from bullet wounds and a consequent operation, Mrs. Orville Parks, pretty young widow whose husband committed suicide after shooting her, was dismissed from Lubbock sanitarium Saturday morning, hospital attaches reported.

Inability of Parks to effect reconciliation with his wife was believed to have led to the murder attempt and suicide. The shooting occurred at 1406 Avenue K, where Mrs. Parks was a roomer, late the afternoon of October 6.

Notes left by Parks indicated that he had planned to kill his wife and himself and asked that mothers of the two divide money from insurance policies.

After threatening others in the house with death if they interferred, Parks shot his wife in the right arm and wrist, bones of which were shattered, and in the side with a .38 caliber revolver. He then sent a bullet into his head, dying a few hours later in a hospital without regaining consciousness.

Convict Slain In Attempt to Escape Prison

Another Wounded and Third Is Gassed When 5 Armed Men Overpower Sing Sing Keeper and Flee; Two Are Missing

(By Associated Press)

OSSINING, N. Y., No. 1. Five convicts at Sing Sing prison, armed with three guns, overpowered a keeper tonight and escaped from a cell block into the prison yard. One was shot dead, another was wounded and a third was gassed. Guards scoured the prison grounds for the two still missing.

Prison authorities were convinced the two missing convicts could not have escaped from the ground, but persistent search failed to reveal their hiding place.

The keeper who was subdued by the armed convicts was locked in a cell by his assailants before they dashed into the open.

Three of the five convicts were cornered in the prison yard by a large force of guards and Ossining police armed with machine guns and tear gas guns.

Harry Gordon, reputed ring leader of the convict group, advanced and fired point blank at Keeper Howard Marguard, wounding him in the left shoulder. Marquard blazed away at Gordon and shot him through the head, killing him instantly.

New Balms for Unemployment Aches Offered

President's Emergency Committee Urges Unemployed of Nation to Buy Wisely; Plans Are Presented

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. — New balms for the aches of unemployment were proposed today to the president's emergency committee as a word of advice came from its chamber for prospective purchasers.

Scores of communications poured into the mail box of the committee telling of successful efforts by civic and welfare organizations and government dobies to provide work.

At the same time, Colonel Arthur Woods, chairman of the committee admonished those without income or savings to buy wisely, but encouraged those who could afford to make purchase without endangering their finances to do so. Not only would purchases now stimulate industry and employment, he said, but they would constitute wise economy in view of the generally low prices.

The chairman recommended to industry a study of the plan adopted by Procter and Gamble of Cincinnati to keep its 10,000 workers in plants in eight American and Canadian cities at work the year round without reduction in salaries. The company advised him today its monthly payroll amounted to $1,000,000 and assured 50,000 men, women and children of a comfortable living through the winter.

Meanwhile, the war department announced projects costing $3,074,721 had been put under way and the interior department said it would ask for bids for contracts totaling $3,000,000 November 15, on the Hoover dam project on the Colorado river in order to give employment.

Serious injuries were sustained by Walt Bierstedt, of Tulsa, Okla., an employe of Texas Utilities company, Saturday morning at Abernathy when a scaffold on a water tank under construction fell with him 40 feet to the ground.

Bierstedt suffered a fractured skull, severe lacerations on the forehead and face, fractures of the left arm and left leg, attendants at West Texas hospital reported.

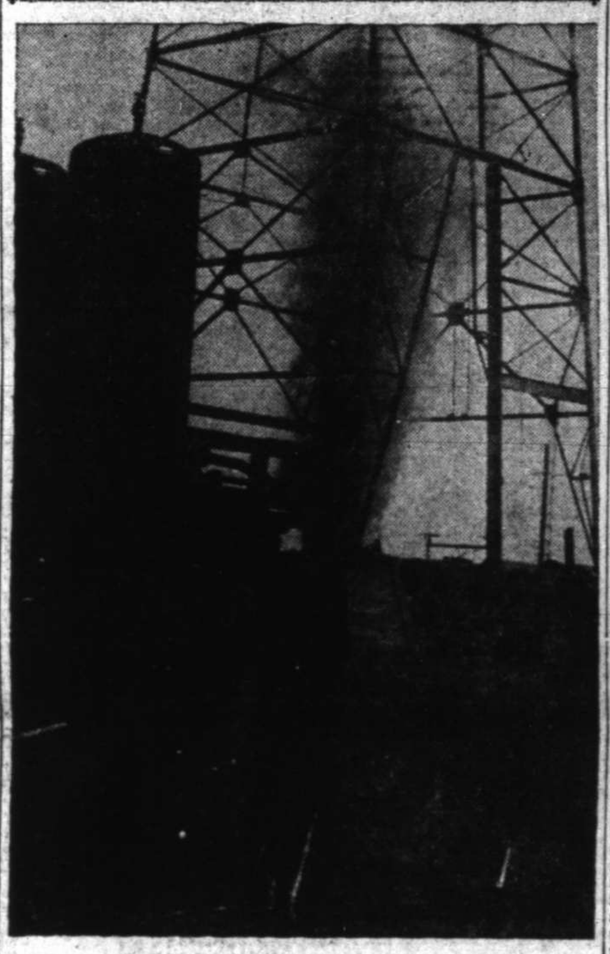

The attending physician said Bierstedt was expected to recover. He regained consciousness soon after the accident.

FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Fifty Square Miles Swept by Flames in California

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1. (AP)—Ventura and Los Angeles county brush fires, which swept upwards of 50 square miles of valuable watersheds this week, were either officially out or under such control as warranted withdrawal of many of the hundreds of fire fighters late today.

Wild Gusher Menaces Sooner Capital

Three hundred national guardsmen were hurriedly mobilized when C. E. Stout well, just outside wholesale district of Oklahoma City, ran wild. Many families were forced to move. Six schools were closed and fires were prohibited in houses for miles. Photo shows well a few minutes after it started throwing oil over derrick.

Ginnings Pass 20,000 Total

Gin Men, Farmers Estimate Between 55 and 60 Per Cent of Crop Gathered; Expect Near 40,000 Bale Peak

Cotton ginnings in Lubbock county went over the 20,000-bale mark during the past week, reports from the various gins over the country revealed. The total last night, with exact figures from 27 of the county's 32 gins, estimates being made on the others, stood at 21,598 bales.

Gin men, farmers and cotton men estimated that between 55 and 60 per cent of the crop had been gathered. This will make the county's total for the season run near the 40,000 bale figure.

Lubbock's gins climbed to over six thousand bales, exact figures from six of them showing 6,117 bales. The other refuses to report.

Shallowater continued in second place with 3,025 bales while Slaton was coming up closer with 2,128. Wolffarth reported 1,560 while Idalou turned in a total of 1,180. Monroe's two plants showed 1,001 bales ginned.

The various community gins over the county reported ginnings ranging from 225 to 1,000 bales. County Line reported the 1,000 bale total.

Wet weather continues to hamer both picking and ginning, gin men reporting that only a few days during the season had been operated at full capacity.

OUT OF HOSPITAL

Victim of Rattlesnake Bite Is Dismissed Saturday

A nine-year-old girl, Geraldine Skeeter, who October 25 was bitten by a 14-inch rattlesnake while playing in the yard of her home at Muleshoe, will be dismissed from Lubbock sanitarium today, hospital attaches said Saturday night.

The girl first thought a sharp stick had pricked a finger. Alarmed by the child's condition, the mother summoned the father, F. C. Skeeter, who later discovered the snake.

Sheriff Baker Dies Suddenly

Center of Bitter Political Strife in Rio Grande Valley Victim of Appoplexy at Edinburg Home Saturday

(By The Associated Press)

EDINBURG, Nov. 1.—A. Y. Baker Hidalgo county sheriff for 18 years and center of bitter political strife in the Rio Grande valley for the past decade died at his home here early today, 12 hours after he had been stricken with apoplexy.

Funeral services for the veteran peace officer and pioneer developer of his section, will be held in the First Methodist church tomorrow at 3 p. m., with burial here.

In 1896, shortly after reaching his majority, Baker joined the Texas rangers, much of his service being in the border country now embraced by the Rio Grande valley. In those days that section was without railroads, and thick underbrush covered the now highly developed citrus orchards and irrigated farms. By day Baker chaser cattle hustlers and by night, after he hitched his horse to a stake and laid his head on his saddle, he dreamed of the edvelopment that was not long in starting.

Taking advantage of opportunities and with an abiding faith in the future of that country, Baker was in the vanguard when projects were started to irrigate the rich lands and build railroads. He interested himself in many business enterprises, helped form banks, and amassed a fortune estimated in the millions in recent years.

Flames Sweep Grass Soaked By Wild Well

Blaze Quenched Mile and Half from Uncontrolled Volcano of Oil on Edge of City's Limits; Residents Flee

Guardsmen on Duty

Residential Section Cleared When News of Fire Spread; Report of Another Gusher Adds to Confusion

(By Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 1—Oklahoma City had a few brief moments of panic late today as fire swept through oil soaked grass at the southeast 'doorstep of the city,' a mile and a half from where an uncontrolled volcano of oil roared into the sky.

Scores of work-weary firemen, oil field workers and national guardsmen quenched the flames in less than an hour but not before panic had cleared residential districts in the danger zone near the wild No. 1 Stout well and word had swept through downtown crowds that "the wild well is on fire."

Another Scare Added

Adding to the scare came the report that another great gusher near the Stout was tearing loose as sand cut at its connections. After the confusion had subsided it was learned the Champlin Refining company's No. 1 Naden, six hundred feet south of the Stout, and one of five wells it was proposed to open in an effort to relieve gas pressure at the rampant gusher, had cut its top mastergate. It was shut in immediately and new connections installed. The lower connections were holding.

With no hope of taming the Stout before tomorrow noon, crews which had abandoned their arduous task at the first cry of fire returned to the well and prepared to move a great die nipple onto the derrick floor. The die nipple, when stabbed into place, should control the monster well, officials say.

Plans Abandoned

Bad luck at the Naden well caused virtual abandonment of announced plans to open five wells near the gusher. The No. 1 Mueller of Hall and Briscoe was opened for a time and later shut in. Opening of the wells shut in for proration, had been sanctioned earlier in the day by the state corporation commission in the belief lessening of gas pressure at the Stout would aid its taming.

Around 160 men—most of them on constant duty in the danger area, wielding shovels to beat out the blaze which ignited oil saturated grass along the Canadian river channel, a mile and a half northeast of the Stout well.

Other guardsmen who invaded the hazardous territory yesterday afternoon ran through southeast city streets, blowing whistles and an evacuation command. Their efforts were needless, for already whole

All Nations Represented At Coronation Of New Emperor Haile Selassi 1 In Abyssinia Today

BY JAMES A. MILLS

ADDIS ARABA, Abyssinia, Nov. 1. (AP)—There was no sleep in the mud-thatched cottages of this amazing town tonight; none in the field of tents pitched around its edges, nor in the palace of Ras Tafari Makonnen, for when the dawn breaks tomorrow over the 8,000 foot mountains which hem in the capital of Abyssinia, Ras Tafari will be crowned Emperor Haile Selassi I.

Emperor Haile Selassie, Raz of Razzes, Lord King of Kings of Ethiopia, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, the Elect of God and the Light of the World. The little man whose luxuriant hair and coal black beard contrast so strangely with his frail frame is to bear those titles as descendant in the royal line from King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Americans have come 6,000 miles to bear the good wishes of their president; England has sent her Duke of Gloucester; all the kingdoms of the world have sent their representatives bearing costly gifts, and tens of thousands of native tribesmen have come out of the hills to take their part in the coronation of their emperor.

There was no sleep in the palace because Ras Tafari and his buxom wife, the Princess Waziru Menen, were on their knees in the church of St. George, where the coronation ceremony is to take place.

Addis Araba, sprawled across two mountains and surrounded by forests of eocaluptus trees, looks like an African Coney Island. Flags of a dozen nations wave in the sharp breese which comes with evening.

American motion pictures crews, "on location" wherever they turn, have been making pictures for a week in preparation for the bizarre ceremonies which will begin with the dawn.

Colorful Parade To Climax Armistice Day Observance

Legionnaires In Charge Of Day's Program

National Guard, High School Band, Veterans Of Other Wars, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls To March In Parade

THE colorful line of the Armistice day parade, which is being arranged by Allen Brothers post of the American Legion, will include the Legionnaires in a body, the two Lubbock national guard units, national guard and high school bands, veterans of other wars, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls and high school cadets.

Color bearers and color guards, martial music, horses and caissons of the national guard, automobiles carrying disabled soldiers, will contribute to the marching ensemble.

Assemble At Hall

Place of assembly for start of the parade, which probably will begin shortly after 10 o'clock, will be the Legion hall, immediately north of the city hall on Texas avenue. Route of march, time of assembly and other details are expected to be announced next Saturday by Capt. H. E. Killin, instructor in military science at Texas Technological college and a member of the committee planning the Armistice day march and flag ceremonies.

The parade will end at the flag pole on the college campus where flag ritual will be conducted. Salute will be fired by members of Battery C, 131st Field Artillery, Texas National Guard. Should weather interfere, the flag ceremonies will be held in the college gymnasium. Members of Allen Brothers post will conduct the rites.

Guard To Participate

Both national guard units will participate in the Armistice day program full strength and in uniform. Capt. H. H. Griffith, commander of Battery C, has begun preparation of ammunition for the salute.

Capt. B. F. Condray, commander of Service Battery, 131st Field Artillery, Texas, National Guard, has called a drill of the battery for Armistice day, including the band section.

Virtually two bands will be represented in the parade as most of the personnel of the Technological college and Service battery organizations is the same. The group parading will be the guard band, however, as a result of the drill order.

Lubbock High school Westerner band also will participate in the march and the Boy Scout drum-and-bugle corps may do so. The high schol cadet corps will parade in uniform. Captain Killin also directs the high school cadets.

To Dismiss Scouts

M. H. Duncan, superintendent of schools, has agreed to dismiss Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, high school cadets and the Westerner band, Legion officials announced.

There will be no holiday at Technological college, although classes will be dismissed for the flag ceremonies and the assembly which will follow in the gymnasium, attaches of the college indicated.

Speaker for the gathering has not been selected, although several prospective ones have been approached in that connection.

Color bearers in the parade and subsequent ceremonies will be Tom Carter and Riley F. Hule.

Color guards will be chosen Tuesday night following a competitive drill from 7:30 to 9 o'clock at the Legion hall.

Rehearsal for the flag ritual will be held next Friday or Saturday night, definite time to be announced later this week by Captain Killin.

Legionnaires will wear their blue caps, modeled after regulation trench caps, and some are expected to don uniforms.

A stag breakfast at the Lubbock hotel from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock the morning of Armistice day will precede the parade. Miss Kitty O'Connor, Lubbock dancer, and a student will appear on the breakfast program, which is being arranged by C. A. Sheffield. Mr. Sheffield also has promised "surprise numbers." Reservations for the breakfast should be made with Mr. Sheffield. There will be no definite menu, those present ordering what they wish.

A old time "chow line," dispensing typical army "slum," will be open to all ex-service men at the Legion hall at noon, or as soon after the program at the college as possible. A charge of 25 cents each will be made. Alex McDonald will serve as mess sergeant. "Corporal" Rupe, of El Paso, will be in charge of an impromptu program.

All ex-service men, whether or not legion members, and their ladies are invited to attend a dinner in the Legion hall the night of Armistice day. Reservations must be made at the City drug store at least 24 hours in advance.

A. M. Scott will be toastmaster. The program will consist principally of musical numbers. Decorations will be of a patriotic nature, according to N. L. Peters and N. B. Hilburn, decorations committee.

The Young Matrons circle of the First Christian church will serve the dinner.

Nothing has been arranged by the Legion for the afternoon.

Focus of interest probably will be the Texas Technological college-Abilene Christian college football game at Tech field.

Science Supplants "Slap On Back"

Dr. D. D. Cross, Lubbock Physician, Explains New Method Of Stimulating Breathing On New Born Baby

Inhalation treatment of the new born baby by use of carbon dioxide, supplanting the long-favored 'slap on the back' to begin deep breathing is a new application of an old principle, according to Dr. D. D. Cross, of the Lubbock clinic.

The new application, recently brought to the fore by Prof. Yandell Henderson, of Yale, has caused considerable comment in the medical world as well as from the laity.

Stimulates Breathing

Carbon dioxide stimulates the breathing centers in the brain. Deeper, fuller breathing results. Once stimulated, the body automatically assumes the task of inhaling and exhaling.

The use of carbon dioxide in inhalators and pullmotors as applied to persons who have undergone operations and accident victims is an old practice, said Doctor Cross.

Although pullmotors long have been used on new babies, utilization of carbon dioxide in that connection is new, the Lubbock doctor indicated. The carbon dioxide would be mixed with oxygen.

Believes Practice Sound

Doctor Cross believes the practice to be a sound one and conveyed the impression, probably unintentionally, that simplicity of the idea leads one to wonder why it has been so long in coming to light.

Shock is necessary to start a new youngster's breathing, Doctor Cross explained, and is the reaction sought by slapping the newborn on the back and other ancient methods designed to start the child breathing.

As the baby comes into the outside world, it enters a comparatively cool place, roughly analagous to a person stepping under a cold shower, the doctor explained.

Placing of the newborn in warm water and sprinkling cold water on the chest is another method used to agitate respiratory activity.

Some Breathe Earlier

Occasionally, a baby breathes before birth is complete. Deeper breathing following use of carbon dioxide will aid in forcing any mucous out of the baby's lungs, lessening possibility of pneumona or allied complications.

Knowledge of the value of breathing carbon dioxide has led to virtual elimination of pneumonia which once followed operations, Professor Henderson said in recommending use of carbon dioxide at births. It also is used in pullmotors applied to victims of carbon monoxide gas.

Professor Explains

In speaking before the New York Society of Anesthetists, the Yale professor, a foremost authority on poison gas, said:

"Within the last few months another field has opened. It is the inhalation treatment of asphyxiation, of failure of lungs to expand properly and pneumonia in newborn children during the first two or three weeks of life. It is a field in which it probably will be possible to save several lives that now are lost from each 100 children that are born."

Carbon dioxide has not been used in respirational treatment of new babies here so far as Doctor Cross knows, although he indicated that its use would be comparatively easy with equipment already owned by the city, hospitals and clinics.

Program Is Planned For Lamesa

LAMESA, Nov. 1—(Special)—At a special called meeting of the American Legion here, a program was arranged for Armistice Day. The general committee named to make the arrangements are J. D. Dyer, chairman; W. A. Wilson and Phillip Yonge.

he program arranged will consist of a parade, public flag ceremony and program, luncheon for all ex-service men and their families and an athletic night program. The program was so arranged as to not interfere with the football game which will be staged in the afternoon, but the legion will co-operate in furnishing transportation for the Slaton team and fans from the depot to the ball park.

S. Richardson, vice-commander, was appointed chairman of the parade committee. J. D. Dyer, post chapla'n, was appointed chairman of the flag ceremony. Mrs. C. Baldwin, president of the Auxiliary, was appointed chairman of the luncheon committee and Frank Robinson was appointed chairman of the athletic committee. The luncheon will be an old-fashioned lunch basket dinner, furnished by the wives of the ex-service men and a real social hour will be enjoyed.

Boy Scouts Plan Court Of Honor

Boy Scouts will hold their court of honor Monday night in the district court room with George Dupree, chairman, presiding, it was announced yesterday.

Just how many boys will receive merit badges and awards was not made known. It is expected there will be a large number, Mr. Dupree said.

Active members of the court include, besides Mr. Dupree, Rev. W. P. Jennings, Rev. Jack M. Lewis, F. A. White, J. T. Triggs and Rev. O. N. Baucon.

One of the features of the court will be a fire building contest between several of the Lubbock troops. There will be other troop contests.

Parents of the boys and the general public are invited to attend. The meeting was postponed from Friday night because of the high school pep meeting.

MEETING SCHEDULED

CORPUS CHRISTI, Nov. 1. (AP)—The fourth annual membership meeting of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce will be held in Laredo November 21, Ray Leeman, general manager of the organization announced today.

Levelland men raised $84 and Lamesa $29 to add its $125 already raised. Brownfield with $300 previously secured in the summer is starting a drive to complete its quota.

Hyde Attacked By James Reed In Demo Talk

Curtis, Mellon And Hyde Are Said Three Great Protogonists Of Hoover Administration By Former Solon

BENTON, Mo., Nov. 1. (AP)—The three great protagonists of the Hoover administration are Curtis, Mellon and Hyde, "but the loudest and most noisesome of these is Arthur," former Senator James A. Reed said in an address before a Democratic gathering here last night.

"Ordinarily," he said, "it would be a waste of time to take notice of his (Hyde's) meanderings. A debate of governmental policies with Hyde is necessarily fruitless. One gains nothing by a debate with an intellectual ulcer. But Hyde is a member of the cabinet and as the voice of the Hoover administration 'Crying in the wilderness' — hence not because of the man, but because of the master I invite your attention to a few Hydeisms.

"He was introduced the other night as the next president of the United States. That was not astonishing because Hoover may exclaim, as did Louis XV, 'After me the deluge.'"

Hyde, Reed said, is telling farmers how much corn and how much wheat they may raise.

"If it were possible," Reed continued, "to impose upon the American farmer the will of a man who never plowed a field in all his life and to allow that man to dictate to the farmer what he can raise and how he shall raise it, the farmer will be reduced to the condition of the Russian peasant under bolshevik rule, for that is exactly what they are trying to do in Russia; to regulate not only the farmer but all classes of labor; to put human beings under governmental control."

"Hyde's scheme," Reed said, "is utterly impractical."

City Plans Work On Parks During Winter Months

The city of Lubbock, through its park board, is preparing for the winter season by getting all its parks in good shape in anticipation of considerable new work in the spring.

Besides the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers in the parks next spring, the city plans to do some sodding or grass sowing, it has not decided just which. A program for this is being worked out and the question of which is best, to sow sed or buy sod, is to be settled soon.

"We wish some big hearted citizen or rather several would give us some sod for the parks," one city official said. "We would like to get some sod, if we can, for the parks as we want to beautify them and make them of service to the entire community."

McCrummen's park on 19th street is being landscaped. There will be other landscape work done also and grading so that the ground will be ready when spring rains come.

Harvesting Will Start In Earnest

Harvesting of Lubbock county's feed crop, consisting largely of maize, grain sorghums, red top cane and kindred grains, will be on in real earnest this week, it is expected.

Last week's cold spell, while not producing a killing frost, was sufficient to cause farmers to get busy with harvesting the grain. However, wet ground in some instances and also wet heads caused many farmers to stay out of the fields.

Western Lubbock county will have nearly a normal feed crop according to reports. The eastern part of the county was close to the drouth area and as a result the crops are badly spotted.

Warning has been issued by grain men against farmers attempting to ship their surplus sorghums and feeds in a wet state.

Some movement of fall grains is reported by E. A. Tusha, freight and passenger agent of the Santa Fe, but the big movement will not begin until the middle or latter part of December, Mr. Tusha said.

Hindenburg Towers Over Germany; Cologne Found To Be A Bustling Center

Young West Texans Find Many Things Of Interest In Germany; President's Leadership Is Impressive

Editor's Note: Below are two of a series of articles being written by Sutton Christian and Allan Carney, former members of the Avalanche-Journal editorial staff, who are on a two year's jaunt around the world. More of their articles are to continue in the Avalanche-Journal.

WURZBOURG, Germany—Popularity of President Von Hindenburg is easily conceivable to the person who stands before the towering personality of the warrior.

As he reviewed German troops at the recent Reichwehr manoeuvers here he was impressive with a leadership which is perhaps greater than that which characterized his life during the World war.

Is Singular Life

Hindenburg, after commanding the destiny of an army through four years of gruelling warfare, was called upon to lead a conquered soldiery through a multiplicity of revolutionary events and an impoverished field in time of peace. His is a singular life. It would have been enough for the venerable leader to ask for a consideration which would admit retirement, but he responded to duty.

How well he has succeeded in his task one might judge, in a visit through Germany. The nation, which he has established, honors him. Behind the welter of parties he gives cohesive influence with his nationally respected counsel.

Would See Us

Perhaps one of his greatest qualities is humility. He explained to his attendants that he would see us because "we had come so far".

He was non-committal on any question as to the national or international policy. A smile brightened his rugged face as he dismissed two questions without answer.

Eighty-three years old, Hindenburg maintains a sturdy physique in view of his fatiguing career. His face, however, is marked with the lines of a tired man whose energy is waning. Resolute and austere at times, he does not seem animated. He resembles a statue, symbolizing an unconquerable spirit.

Summoned from Retirement

Summoned from retirement in 1914, when he was 67, and rushed to the German eastern frontier to stem the tide of Russian invasion he did the job so well that he became the most popular figure in Germany and the leading character in literature, which sprang up, mushroom like, in the wake of his victories.

After defeat of the Central powers, Hindenburg retired to private life and seemed doomed to oblivion. Journalists traced steps to his door and soon he became the most popular figure in publicity.

Then, suddenly, at the age of 77, he was elected president of the German republic. Ever since his accession to the office the old warrior has worked laboriously to hold the balance true between Germany's rival parties and to be true to the oath of fealty which he swore to the new republic when he accepted the highest office within its gift.

COLOGNE, Germany—Seen and heard on the streets of Cologne: A bustling city with a cosmopolitan atmosphere . . . heavy traffic dominated by scores of tramcars, the favorite mode of getting about in German cities . . sternly-clad policemen, with their black helmets, reminescent of war-time days. . . hundreds of bareheaded youths wearing abbreviated pants and long socks and many with packs on their backs, hitch-hikers . . . women as well as men sporting canes, also boys in their teens . . . a street singer with his accordion accompanist, who immediately bursts out with strains of Al Jolson's "Sonny Boy" upon seeing two Americans approaching, no ruse is overlooked to claim a share of the coin spent abroad by the much-advertised American spendthrifts . . . groups here and there reading the latest editions of Cologne newspapers displayed in front of the publication offices.

A predomination of blonde German beauties with their incomparable blue eyes—at dusk numerous young suitors proceeding along a side-stret en route to the home of their beloved with bouquets of roses.

Close by the union station is a small restaurant where milk is advertised to be served either hot or cold. An enterprising photographer snaps pictures of pedestrians approaching him with massive Cologne Cathedral in the background, and some bite.

Travelers of many nationalities hurrying to and from trains . . . air of diminutive Japanese inside the huge station chattering over a time table in their native tongue . . . railway employes taking tickets from incoming passengers, others examining ducats at adjacent passageway as travelers file through to board outgoing trains.

Maimed World war veterans playing hand organs on street corners and receiving very few pfennigs from passersby . . . a gray-haired hotel solicitor proudly tells of two years spent in New York City . . . dozens of Rhinelanders with their heads smoothly shaved, some with brilliantly shining pates.

A good looking manicurist has a characteristic tale to relate concerning her romance with and subsequent engagement to an American doughboy during the time A. E. F. forces took a hand in the occupation of the Rhine. . . he supposedly owned a sugar plantation in Cuba and was "very nice" but "wanted me to go back to America with him but I wanted to stay in Germany" . . . thus the two lover strayed apart.

Peddlers everywhere displaying their wares in every known form of conveyance . . . a newsstand at every street intersection and some in between but comparatively few newsboys on the streets singing out their catchy headlines.

Delegates Return From O. E. S. Meet

Mesdames J. Speed Carroll, R. E. Nabors, Paul Hardwick, Lonnie Montgomery and A. B. Ellis have returned from San Angelo where they attended the 48th annual session of the Texas Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, which closed Thursday, following a three-day meeting.

The session was declared to be highly successful by Mrs. Hardwick, local worthy matron. The worthy grand matron, Mrs. Beulah Rawlings, of Johnson City, and the worthy grand patron, Captain Daniel O'Connell, were in attendance, as well as the most worthy grand matron of the general chapter, Mrs. Emma P. Chadwick, of Seattle, Wash.

A report from the lodge will be made at the O. E. S. meeting Tuesday evening at the Masonic hall.

While the use of electricity is increasing steadily in the Union of South Africa, progress is slow in the sale of domestic appliances because of the ample supply of low-wage servants.

Christmas Mail Rush To Require Additional Men

A score of additional people will be used in handling the Christmas rush of mail through the Lubbock post office, Postmaster John L. Vaughan says.

"We will use all our regular employes," the postmaster said, "in addition we will use the substitutes and about 20.

"But the 20 will be taken from the list of persons eligible to appointment to substitute places. No outside help will be needed."

The local office has a large waiting list of persons who have passed the examinations and who are ready for appointment. There are 46 or 48 on the regular force.

Most of the eligibles will be used in handling parcel post delivery. It is not the policy to use untrained clerks in the general distribution of mail.

TO PROVIDE WORKERS

U. S. Employment Bureau To Aid Lubbock Farmers

Farmers who need men to help harvest grain sorghums and other feeds may secure them free through the U. S. employment bureau in the chamber of commerce office, F. N. Gooding, in charge, announces.

"If any one needs any farm help for harvesting grain sorghums or other feeds, I will be glad to get them the men," Mr. Gooding said. "We also are ready to help farmers secure cotton pickers."

Mr. Gooding expects to be located in Lubbock for about another month. He will not be moved, it is thought, until about December 1. There are several other special employment men from the U. S. department of labor, working in this territory. They include men at Vernon, Shamrock and Lamesa, all handling cotton pickers.

Some people have a habit of getting more for their money than others!

Not more value, perhaps, but something more attractive or with better taste. They are the people that do not wait until the last minute, nor do they rush in and buy the first thing a sales person shows them. They use care and thought in making decisions.

(That is the reason we are urging early shopping.)

You now have access to clean, large, fresh stocks and can display a great deal more discrimination in your selections. You will not be hurried nor harrassed by pushing crowds.

It will cost no more to shop early, because we will gladly "lay aside" any items you select in our store until you call for them.

Delivery Of Mail In Lubbock Is Speeded Up Saturday

Railway Mail Service Makes New Plan Here

Mail For Certain Firms, Downtown Office Buildings And Lock Boxes To Be Tied Out On Railroad Trains

DELIVERY of mail in Lubbock will be speeded up considerably as a result of a new plan effective November 1 when mail for certain firms, office buildings, down town streets and lock boxes will be tied out direct on railroad trains instead of being bundled up and left for sorting by local postoffice clerks, John L. Vaughan, postmaster, announces.

Under a plan worked out by the railway mail service, mail handled out of Fort Worth at night on Texas and Pacific No. 5 for Lubbock will be tied out direct. This work can be done between the time the mail is put on the train at Fort Worth and the time the train reaches Sweetwater. There it is transferred to the Santa Fe, due to leave at 4 o'clock and reaching Lubbock at 7 a. m.

Direct Triout

Forty firms or buildings where present volume of mail is large, will have the direct trieout. This means that mail for the larger hotels, the several office buildings, Texas Technological college, the banks and other concerns, will be separated on the trains and bundled together.

Mail for the lock boxes will be tied out in nine general groups for the 18 sections. Other general groups will include, rural routes, city routes, postage due, special delivery, residences, business, general delivery and postmaster.

"We have 10 city carriers, six rural carriers, 18 box sections and two general delivery groups," Postmaster Vaughan said. "Mail for these groups will thus be sorted and the distribution speeded up.

"Our heaviest mail generally arrives in the postoffice about 7:30 in the morning from the Santa Fe. We figure it takes two and a half to three hours to get it distributed to the patrons.

Will Save Time

"I will not attempt to say how much time we will save by this new method but I know it will be considerable."

Tleouts for the down town business sections will be by streets and will be as follows: Broadway, 801 to 1,450; Main, 600 to 1,350; Tenth street, 900 to 1,121; 13th, 900 to 1,200; Avenue G, 1,000 to 1,250; Avenue H, 1,000 to 1,250; Avenue I, 1,000 to 1,350; Avenue J, 1,000 to 1,350; Avenue K, 1,000 to 1,250; Avenue L, 1,000 to 1,250; Avenue M, 1,000 block.

In addition there is a list of 122 firms who, if their mail is in sufficient volume to warrant the extra work, will have separate triouts for their mail. An average of five to ten letters a day would probably be sufficient for this service.

Postmaster Vaughan in a letter sent to downtown patrons of the postoffice and to all lock box holders, explained the new service and asked that the patrons cooperate by having mail addressed to their boxes or street address.

'Dating' In Korea Is Different

Little Oriental Girl Tells of Customs of Her Native Country; Chaperoning Is Closely Watched

BY MARSHALL FORMBY
Tech Correspondent.

"Dating" in Korea certainly isn't like anything in Texas Tech.

So says Laura Song, Korean girl, attending college here.

This companionship of the sexes in the United States just isn't being done over in her native country, the little Orental informs her interviewer. If the boys and girls of Korea would follow the example of the American girls and boys who habitually "court" on the streets, in the class rooms or anywhere they meet, they would certainly be talked about. For in Korea, as in all countries, gossipers are hanging on every backyard fence.

Children Are Distant.

Boys and girls in Korea seldom know each other in their childhood which, until recently, ended in marriage at the age of 15 or 16 years. They go to seperate schools from the primary grades on through the colleges and when they go to a public gathering they have their seperate places. When asked how they ever got to know each other the pretty little Korean shrugged her shoulders and replied, "They just get together somehow."

Coming to America three years ago from the land of her birth, Miss Song attended the University of California during the past year. Her one desire is to finish school here and return to her native country to teach her friends some of the wonders of America. The 20-year-old Oriental has fast become familiar with the customs of this country, what with her coal black hair, her up-to-date American clothes and a winning smile is fast becoming popular among the girls of the college.

When asked about parties and dances in her country, she replied that in recent years young people are sometimes allowed to gather in a home for a party or dance. These parties are always well chaperoned, however.

Mothers Stay Near.

"Some times they let us invite boys to come to our homes and dance," states Miss Song, who speaks fairly pure English, but is difficult to understand due to the brogue in her speech. "But mothers stay near as chaperones."

According to the Oriental customs have changed in her native country during the last few years. Although the every-day privileges allowed the American youth are denied the Korean, American customs and habits are being adhered to rapidly. Certainly no courtship can be started in the schoolrooms, she points out.

Laura stays at Lovell Hall, private owned dormitory for Tech co-eds, and is popular with the other students in the hall. Her friends state that she is friendly and delights in talking with the girls, but appears rather shy in the presence of boys.

Vandalism on Hill 60, which has been fully acquired by the nations of the British Empire that fought there during the World war, has now been stopped.

Theft of Chickens Reported Saturday

Theft of 15 or 20 chickens some time Friday night was reported to Sheriff Wade Hardy by a farmer named Isaacs living north of town. The fowls stolen were Rhode Island reds and Mr. Isaacs was unable to state the exact number taken.

Notice was given to local poultry houses as well as to Slaton houses, of the theft. Description also was given of the missing fowls.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

With Collier Parris
Journal Sports Editor

An attempt to revive golfing interest among Lubbock players has resulted in plans for a tournament today at the Lubbock Country Club. Every golfer in town is invited to participate, club members being only part of the crowd. In keeping with the spirit of Hallowe'en, if not characteristic of the golf conditions and attitudes in Lubbock, the tournament will be a "tombstone tourney". We don't mean to say that golf is actually dead, but you can use your own judgment.

There has been no major tournament in Lubbock since early last spring. A city championship tournament, as well as others to decide best players in this vicinity, was planned for early this fall, but it failed to materialize. Lubbock, supporting three golf clubs, should be the center of the golfing interests of West Texas, and local golf ball pushers should take enough interest to see that enough competition be staged among the local adherents of the game to keep it alive.

But maybe things will liven up for a while Herbert Quinn chairman of the Country club tournament committee, who olsa signs the checks of laborers in this emporium, announces that today's tournament, starting at 2:30, will be the first of a series of Sunday tournaments which will be held as long as weather conditions permit, or as long as he has access to the club treasury and permission to purchase prizes. It's a good move, and we hope that athletic fandom will be divided between football and golf in Lubbock.

Sammy West, outfielder for the Washington Senators, American League runners up for first prize money in the late major league race, is a visitor in Lubbock this week-end. West is a west Texan, living at Ruie when not shagging passes in the Senator's outfield or slugging at the plate. He is here with his wife, formerly Miss Grace Cross, once an instructor in Lubbock public schools.

When Texas Tech goes in for athletics, it goes in big. Never was there such a growing interest in football, with Tech's two teams drawing a greater support at every succeeding contest. Basketball will start next Tuesday night, when Coach Crip Golightly issues the first call for varsity cagers. Polo and tennis, though not represented by a regular team yet, has been played by students and faculty members for several weeks. Dr. L. T. Patton, head of the department of geology, will start a fencing class shortly. Intramural football is likely to be started any way.

Tech has it over lots of schools when it comes to geographical area. Acres and acres of level ground, much of it sodded, makes it possible for many teams of all kinds to practice and play at the same time. Especially is this fact appreciated when intramural football is introduced. And there is not much better athletic training than intramural football. We hope to see lots of it this season.

We went over to Brownfield Friday to see the Fightin' Cubs play Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes. It was a good game—for Brownfield, who won by the top heavy score of 40 to 0. Before the game Lamesa was considered the best team, and did have a much heavier team. Passes, long passes, were too much for the Goldies, winners of bi-district honors in Class B circles last season, however, and were worked to perfection by an inspired Brownfield bunch. Marlin Hayhurst, former Tech quarterback, is coach of the Brownfield Cubs, and it is plain to see that he has done wonders with his material.

There are several players on the Brownfield team that will be much sought after by college clubs, or university alumni, if you please. Quarterback Huckabee is one of the smoothest workers we've seen in high school competition. He is head taller than any of his mates, and can run, pass, and kick with amazing accuracy. Then there's Goss, a little fellow, but full of fire and football temperament. If he can develop physically, he'll do somebody good in college. Goodpasture is another, tough as a boot, though diminutive. It was hard to tell just who was Lamesa's best player, or the one Lamesa Football Fan No. 2 has been raving about. It might have been Hill, a quarterback, who went out of the game early with a badly sprained shoulder. He was a star while he played, and is a hefty youngster. Fullback Treadway was a flash ing demon, but his small statute will make it hard to get by in college. He can pick holes and hit them but he is very light. Red Moore is another Lamesa back of promise. He has the size, and appears to know what it's all about.

It looks as if Brownfield and Spur will fight it out for district honors, for it is rather plain by now that they are the two outstanding clubs of the Class B outfit. If we were a crusader, we would start doing the best we could to match Spur and Brownfield in a championship game to be played in Lubbock. It would be a great drawing card, and would profit the teams, financially, more than a game at either of the home gridirons.

Buffaloes Win 6-0 Over Tech In Tight Game

Matadors Hold Offense for Most of First Half but Unable to Score Against Inspired Teachers

CANYON, Nov. 1. — A Bib husky brute of a freshman Saturday afternoon won everlasting fame in the eyes of hundreds of ex-students of the West Texas State Teachers college as he set a killing pace to lead the Buffaloes to a 6 to 0 gridiron victory over the Matadors of Texas Tech. There is no doubt that Cow Williams, he being the lad referred to above, will long be remembered for his share in the Buffalo victory. Not only did the 198 pounds of foot ball player score the winning touchdown by shagging a pass as second half opened, but did all his team's punting, heaved a few passes, blocked like a demon for other backs, backed up the line on the defense and intercepted two passes. His rams at the line were usually good for a gain, but his most brilliant work was in receiving passes and his terrific tackling.

The game had its other stars among whom were Moffat, Tech half, and Langford, left tackle. Moffat passed and toted the ball in a cool, calculating manner that at times almost wrecked the Buff defense. Langford was never successfully taken out of any play and his offensive work the best of the two lines for the day.

Powell Is Star

Powell little Buff quarter, was a star in his own right with his spectular return of punts and his desperate gallops around the enemy ends. He tried and tried hard to get away and never gave up. But he was a marked man, the Matadors apparently having heard of his ground gaining fame. McClendon, Buff center, played a stellar game especially on the defense, his outstanding stunt being his ability to snare enemy passes. He intercepted three heaves to berak up that many drives. The firs half was a listless affair with neither team showing much ginger. However with the opening of the second half and its resultant touchdown for the Buff's things began to happen and from then on out the coustomers got their money's worth. Cooper, Buff guard, fell on the ball after Tech kicked off to open the second half on his own 39 yard line. On the first play Pullback Clark chunked the ball to Williams for a gain of 32 yards. The effect on the fans of this startling completion was like magic and they went wild with joy, most of them being Buff supporters. This play put the ball on Tech's 29 yard line and on the first try Powell gained nothing. Then Clark again passed to Williams who reached high in the air pulled the leather down, shook off a pair of would be tacklers and hiked across the goal line. The Buff's try for punt from placement went wild.

From here on the game assumed all the aspects of the classic it was hearided to be and every time a pass was flung, the crowd rose to its feet and yelled. Thrills were plentiful until the final shot and once Tech threatened to tie things up.

The game started with Tech in possession of the oval on their own 20 yard line following the kickoff. One play gained one yard and Frans punted to Powell who returned 15. After Powell lost and gained 2 yards on two plays, Williams punted out of bounds on Tech's 45. Moffitt passed wildly as he was rushed on the first play and then he lost 1 yard at the line. He then heaved to Hodges for a nice 21 yard gain, but on three more plays the Matadors could gain but 2 yards and Frans soon punted to Clark who was downed on his own 2 yard line. Williams punted out of bounds to his 39. Westner was stopped at left end by Comer and two passes were incompleted.

Fumbles Prevent

After each side received five yard penalties, Franz fumbled on punt formation and lost 3 yards as the Buff line swarmed all over him. With the ball on their own 26, the Buffs made two plunges at the line which netted 12 yards. A 5 yard penalty and a loss of 10 yards by Powell forced the Buffs to punt and it was Tech's ball on her own 48. With Hodges and Moffitt toting the mail, the Matadors made two first downs and reached the Buffaloes 12 yard line. Moffitt made two hard plunges at the line but each time Williams stopped him for a listless gain and on the third down held him to no gain. Franz then attempted to drop kick a field goal but it was blocked and the Buffs retrieved the ball. Williams punted out of bounds on his own 20 as the quarter ended.

Tech Penalised

Second quarter. Frans punted on the first play to begin the second period. It was a dandy and went out of bounds on the Buffs' 6 yard line. But Tech was penalised 15 yards and Frans punted out of bounds on the Buff 29. Williams heaved a long pass down the field that was intercepted by Clendon on the Buff 46. Clark made things even by intercepting Moffitt's heave and racing 20 yards to Tech's 48 yard line. After an incomplete pass and two line plays failed, Williams punted 53 yards over the goal line. Franz booted it on the third play, a nifty 68 yarder to the Buffs' 13. Williams kicked right back and Tech made a first down on a line buck and a lateral pass. At this point both coaches sent in a horde of subs. Manning, Buff sub gard, messed up a couple of plays and Franz punted a beauty out of bounds on the Buff's 2 yard line. Then Williams rose to the sublime heights by punting exactly 70 yards down the turn to Franz who returned 19 to his 36. Then Franz kicked out of bounds on the Buffs' 46. West (Texas) Moffitt for inches of making a first down and Moffitt was thrown for 1 yard loss as the first half ended.

Canyon Scores

Third quarter: Tech kicked off and Cooper, Buff guard, downed the ball on his 39. Clark passed to Williams for 32. Powell made no gain. Clark passed to Williams and the big boy scored. Plate kick failed.

Williams took the kick off on his 11 yard line and plowed through a mass of Tech tacklers. His gallop ended on Tech's 39 yard line. This brought glee to the fans. A fumble and a 15 yard penalty was followed by a pass which fell into Moffitt's arms and it was Tech's ball on her own 43. Moffitt made 4, heaved wildly, tried again and McLendon intercepted it on his 48.

Powell Gains

Powell made 16 yards on two plays and then added 6 on a fake pass. A lateral gained 1 yard. And then Clark tossed to Williams for 17 on Tech's 15. Clark passed to Williams who got his fingers on the ball but it was knocked out of his hand over the goal line for a touchback. Then Wooldridge punted and Powell lost the ball on a fumble. Moffitt's 7 yard end run and Hodges' 3 made a first down on the Buffs' 10 yard line. Then the Buff line tightened and three plays gained but 3 yards. Doose, Tech hali, was hurt as Williams tackled him and time taken out. He stayed in. Moffitt was smothered on an end run and the ball went over. Williams punted 45 yards and Frans returned to the Buffs' 32. A lateral gained 12 yards and three plays later Wooldridge made 13 around left end. Moffiett gained one, Doose lost one and Williams broke through to dump Moffitt for a 6 yard loss. A pass, Moffitt to Teal gained nothing just as the quarter ended.

Score: Buffaloes 6, Matadors 0.

Fourth quarter. It was the Buffs' ball on their own 6 yard. Williams made 17 yards from punt formation. A line play and a pass were failures and Williams punted to Tech's 41. Burke, Buff end, rushed Moffitt on an attempted pass and he lost 10. Cooper knocked down another heave. Doose got through the line, but Williams stopped him. Wooldridge punted to Powell on his 18. He returned 10 yards to his 28. Following a 5 yard penalty and a pair of no account line plays, Williams punted 24 yards out of bounds to his own 49. On the first play Moffitt threw to Vinzant for 10 yards. Another was incomplete and the third heave was intercepted by McClendon and he galloped 22 yards to his own 49.

Pass Intercepted

Tech intercepted a wild heave by Williams and on the Matadors' third play Clark intercepted a Moffitt pass. O'Donald, Buff sub at half, made 11 yards on three plays. The Tech wall held and Williams kicked out on Tech's 36. Frans punted on the third down to Powell on the Buffs' 38. O'Donald carried the ball twice for seven yards. Williams punted high and gained but 16 yards out on Tech's 44. Frans' pass was knocked down. He heaved another and Williams intercepted it and went 15 yards to Tech's 40. On the first play Powell fumbled and Tech players smothered it. Frans passed but it was incomplete. Undaunted he hurled the ball again and McClendon intercepted and went to Tech's 48.

Nobody in the Buff backfield seemed to know who was to receive the ball and it was fumbled and recovered and the game ended.

Play-by-Play Report of Thrilling Amarillo-Lubbock High Contest.

Amarillo won the toss and chose to receive, defending the south goal. Watkins kicked to Bufkin who returned 25 yards to the Amarillo 40-yard line. Bufkin went out of bounds for no gain. Fowler punted out of bounds on Lubbock's 27-yard line. Lawson lost nearly a yard at the line. Watkins tore through center for 6 yards. Smith picked up 2 yards at right tackle. Yale, Dartmouth In Scoreless Tie; One Touchdown Illegal

YALE BOWL, New Haven, Conn., Nov. 1. (AP)—Two high-powered offensives—two superbly courageous defensive barriers banged into each other today and the result was a scoreless, but peculiar deadlock between football forces of Yale and Dartmouth.

Albie Booth, Yale's diminutive quarterback, returned to action in such good health, so well recovered from the bumps he received in the Army contest, that he led the Eli's throughout the game and came close to winning.

Bomth, on a dazzling 32-yard end run, scampered across the Dartmouth goal early in the second period, after leading a series of big Blue drives. The uproar subsided and the effort was wasted when Referee E. J. O'Brien detected holding in the Yale ranks. This was the closest Yale came to scoring.

Dartmouth on the attack throughout the last half, four times was within striking distance of the Eli goal, due to the sensational balllugging of Bill Morton and Wild Bill McCall but the Blue defense, while considerably battered, was equal to the emergencies.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 1. (AP)—Alabama battered another Southern conference foe into oblivion here today, defeating the University of Kentucky, 19 to 0, and continuing the raging wash of the Crimson Tide toward another Dixie championship.

John Henry "Flash" Suther speared a 44-yard pass in the first period and stepped five more yards for the Tide's first touchdown.

"Shipwreck" Kelly, one of the great backs of the conference, could not get started because his cohorts couldn't keep the onrushing Tidesmen from his shoe tops.

Houston Crew Tears Out in Old Time Way

Wallace and Mueller Scamper About to Get Loose in Final Period for Counts; Owl Backs Powerful

(By Associated Press)

RICE FIELD, HOUSTON, Nov. 1 —Using the old-time method of grabbing the ball and tearing out, Rice Institute's big young eleven threshed the Sewanee Tigers 12 to 0 this afternoon.

Two of the Owls choice backs, Wallace and Mueller, who did not start the game, got loose in the fourth period for touchdowns, Wallace squirming through eight yards to put it across and Mueller plunging erect 25 yards to take his six points. The same back, Jamerson, missed both tries for goal.

Sewanne made a gallant attempt in the same quarter, loosing a long and chance-taking passing attack, getting as close as the Rice 15-yard line, but drew a five yard penalty for two incomplete passes and was forced to allow the spark to die with the ball 20 yards from a score.

The institute failed to complete a single pass, but the power of the Owl backfield made them unnecessary.

The first downs perhaps gave a fair representation of the comparative strength, Rice making 17 and Sewanne 8.

Wuescher, a 156-pound back for the Tennesseans, made the greatest showing among the visitors. He was the receiving ace in the Tigers' air offensive, which netted them 112 yards from seven completed, and played an able defensive game. He did not start, but was rushed in when the going got thick.

How About Those Gold Footballs For The Westerners? Let's Buy Them for the Boys Who Fought!

How many of the 24 fans who pledged gold footballs to the Westerners and their coaches are willing to 'kick in,' even if the boys didn't win by scores?

The Plainsman, Lubbock Daily Journal columnist and leader of the gold football campaign, believes 15 of the 24 will come through with six bucks apiece to buy the balls.

The Plainsman will buy the one he pledged and Herb Quinn says his offer still holds good. Spencer Wells joins in and that leaves a dozen to go. Who wants to fill in?

The offer was based on "if Lubbock wins from Amarillo" and those who pledged needn't buy the balls unless they want to. Only 13 Westerners played in the game—the coaches, Frnka and Keeling, make up the other two.

If you want to 'kick in' call or write the Avalanche-Journal to 'count on me.' The Plainsman will be out of town on Sunday and Monday but the word may be left at the office.

Brownfield-Lamesa Clash Big Upset Of Class B Race Past Week; Slaton Tigers Show Form; Spur Is Powerful

Featuring the big upset and accompanying overwhelming victory at Brownfield where Coach Marlin Hayhurst's Fightin' Cubs swamped the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes, Class B football in District 2 carried on in a more or less sensational manner last week-end. Going from one passing formation to another, the Cubs took a 40 to 0 victory Friday when the Lamesa High school club, touted as probable winners of district honors, showed a weak secondary defense and insufficient offensive power to crash into Brownfield territory.

At Slaton, the Tigers of Coach Paul Wright showed great form to snatch a 34 to 0 victory over the Tahoka Bulldogs of Coach Wier Washam. Slaton was doped to win, but the score was predicted as being considerably closer. The Spur High team showed usual winning ability when it defeated Crosbyton, 26 to 0. Friday. The Ralls High Jackrabbits took the big end of a listless game with Lorenzo, 7 to 0, and Levelland continued its winning streak by taking a 20 to 13 victory over Littlefield. Floydada's Whirlwinds were impressive in a 25 to 6 win over Canyon Hight.

Levelland Steps Up

Levelland took an important step toward winning championship honors of sub-district 1 in District 2 when Littlefield was defeated. Amharst, Olton, and Spring Lake are the other teams of the subdivision. Floydada's victory over Canyon gave the Whirlwinds a good chance to cop honors in the second division, and Spur has settled things in subdistrict 3. Ralls, Post, and Crosbyton are the other teams of the division. Brownfield and Slaton loom as the strongest teams in the fourth quarter of the district, though Brownfield has cinched the district title already, and are potential candidates for the championship of the district. Lamesa, O'Donnell, and Tahoka are the other members of sub-district 4.

This week will find few teams in action, most of the games being saved for November 11, when the race for sub-district honors will be settled. Brownfield probably will be without a game on that date, The Cubs were formerly scheduled for Idalou, but the latter team has been disorganized. Spur will meet Lorenzo next Friday, and will play Post on Armistice Day. Floydada will tangle with Lockney on November 11, and Ralls will meet Crosbyton. Tahoka is matched with Littlefield on Armistice day at Tahoka in one of the more interesting contests. Slaton and Lamesa will meet at Lamesa for the celebration, and will vie with Tahoka and Littlefield for the greatest interest.

Slaton Preparing for Tilt with Tornadoes

SLATON, Nov. 1. (Special.) —After defeating the Tahoka High Bulldogs, 34 to 0, here Friday afternoon, the Slaton High Tigers are pointing for their tilt with Lamesa on Armistice Day, at Lamesa. It is the next game on the Tiger schedule. Plans for a special train to carry a large delegation of Slaton fans to the Dawson county city are already under way.

Slaton's victory over Tahoka was larger than Lamesa's recently when they defeated the Lynn County eleven, 19 to 6.

Lockney Triumphs Over Paducah, 46 to 0

LOCKNEY, Nov. 1. (Special.) — Lockney High school advanced a step nearer district honors today by defeating the Paducah high school here 46 to 0. The game was played almost entirely in Paducah territory, Lockney making 16 first downs to the visitors 2.

Two forty-yard passes Spence to Dollar and a forty, a sixty and a seventy-yard run for touchdowns by Duncan were features of the game, Spence, Phillips, Flournoy, and Dollar, carried the offensive power while Crump, starred in all phases of the game for the losers.

Texas League's Dates Scheduled

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1. (AP)—The 1931 Texas league race will open Wednesday, April 15, and close Sunday, Sept. 15, club owners agreed here today as their annual fall meeting opened.

The opening and closing is a week later than in 1930, and although there will be the same number of playing days, 152, there will be 160 games instead of 154, six double headers being scheduled in addition to the usual ones played on the Fourth of July and Labor Day.

The Fort Worth-Dallas opening combination which has endured for many years, will be broken next season. The magnates voted to instruct the schedule maker to arrange a card, whereby both the Cats and Steers will play at home April 15, having Wichita Falls and Shreveport as their opponents. After one or two games, the Spudders and Sports will have their home openings with Fort Worth and Dallas as the visiting teams.

Waco probably will open in San Antonio and Beaumont in Houston.

Nothing was done about pooling the receipts of the first games.

For a change, the northern teams will invade the southern end of the circuit before Houston, San Antonio, Waco and Beaumont come north.

Texas Longhorns Stampede Over S.M.U. Eleven, 25-7

Dexter Shelley Leads Team To an Overwhelming Victory Over Ponies in Every Phase

Steers Unleash Terrific Offense to Completely Inundate Old Time Rivals; Pony Passes Beaten

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Austin, Nov. 1. (AP)—Unleashing as terrific an offense as the southwest conference has been in recent years and throwing up a defense their opponents could not fathom until the closing minutes of play, the powerful University of Texas Longhorns upset Southern Methodist University, 25 to 7 here today.

A crowd estimated at more than 20,000 saw the favored Mustangs crushed and hopelessly beaten almost from the start by an Orange machine that at times bordered on greatness. Led by Dexter Shelley, captain and halfback, the Longhorns pounded and passed the wily Methodists into what approached complete submission at times.

Most Decisive Since 1927

Today's defeat was the most decisive sustained by the Ponies since 1927, when they went down before the Texas Aggies, 39 to 13. It was the first victory scored by the Longhorns over the Red and Blue tricksters since 1920. It was scored, moreover, over a Mustang eleven that had been mighty well thought of.

Beaten at their own passing game and their running attack squelched from the start, the Ponies never had a chance against the Steers' battering offense. Shelley, Koy, Stafford, Perkins and Elkins carried the ball through and past Southern Methodist's shakey defense all afternoon, and when their running attack was slowed up the Longhorns turned to the air to gain almost as they pleased. What a team the state school had today.

Was Shelley Triumph

The victory amounted almost to a personal triumph for Shelley, the belabored leader of the Longhorns. After having been only a very ordinary football player since midseason of 1929, Shelley was transformed today into a star of the first magnitude, displaying all the ability that at one time ranked him as one of the conference's outstanding backs. Two of the winners passes resulted from his accurate passes to Harrison Stafford, sophomore halfback, and he plunged across six yards for a third. In addition he carried the ball as of old and played a whale of a defensive game. Only Ernie Koy, his sophomore running mate, was able to match his brilliance today.

Steer Forwards Wild

While the Longhorn offensive department, directed by shrewd little "Posey" Elkins, was wrecking the Mustang defense, its forwards played as an almost matchless unit. From end to end and through the middle, the Steer forwards simply fought thier opponents off their feet. They opened gaping holes for their heavy secondary to charge through and tackled viciously they tackled with such force that not once during the game did a Pony back get loose once he had been hit.

Texas took charge of the melee almost from the opening kickoff. Twice recovering Mustang fumbles deep in the invaders' territory, they tried for two field goals before the opening period was well under way, but "Ox" Blanton missed both by a healthy margin. The Ponies finally collected themselves and kicked out to midfield, but the Longhorns were not to be denied.

Shelley Whips Pass

Standing on the 50-yard line Shelley whipped a pass across the line of scrimmage to Stafford, who knocked off both Mason and Long and romped over the goal line. Blanton missed the point and there the count remained, 6 to 0, until late in the second quarter, when the Steers suddenly struck twice again. Again it was Shelley to Stafford, this time the Longhorn captain passing from the 30-yard mark and his receiver getting it on his fingertips just over the goal line. This time Shelley booted the point. Another score followed almost immediately when Elkins tagged a wild heave by Gilbert and ran 35 yards over the Methodist goal without being touched.

Peterson, Orange end, made the fourth and last touchdown past midway of the third quarter, when he broke through to block Gilbert's kick and recover on the Ponies' 6-yard stripe. It took Shelley only one try to crash off tackle and over. Trailing 25 to 0 and with only a few minutes to play, the Mustangs opened up a long range aerial attack that saved them the ignominy of a whitewashing. They started from their own 20-yard mark and, with Gilbert passing to Hamiter and Koontz, paraded down into their opponents' territory. Finally, after attaining a first down on Texas' 33-yard line, Gilbert dropped back and looped a perfect throw to Koontz who snared it over the line. Neely added the point.

Ponies Near Once

Outside of their final flourish, the nearest the Mustangs came to scoring was in the second quarter when they reached the Longhorns' 16-yard line. Mostly, they were scraping their collective backs against their own goal posts. "Speedy" Mason, who was expected to carry the Mustang running attack, could never get away nor could Kattman, Travis, Hearon and the rest. They didn't have a chance.

The Longhorns attempted 21 passes and completed 8 for a gain of 151 yards while the Ponies completed 15 out of 31 attempted for 124 yards. Texas compiled 16 first downs, three of them on passes, while the Mustangs made 9.

White Machine Appears Ready For Big Grind

Cy Leland Gets Into Action and Scores Two Counters by Long Runs; Spearman Makes 85-Yard Sprint

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1.—Texas Christian University showed it is ready to start its final drive for another southwest conference championship today when it smashed Abilene Christian College, 62 to 0 here.

The Frogs displayed great running power and an effective passing game as they rolled as they pleased over the Wildcats from West Texas.

To Meet 'Big Boys'

Next week the Frogs meet Rice at Houston and then on successive Saturdays the University of Texas, Baylor and Southern Methodist University will be engaged. If the big White machine can show the class and skill it displayed today there is little reason to believe it will fail to win its second consecutive championship.

Cy Leland got under way against the Wildcats. He played only a little while but made two touchdowns in the first quarter, one on a 81-yard run.

Spearman Does Sprint

Blanrad Spearman returned a kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown and Woolwine passed impressively.

It was the first game of the season in which the Cats failed to score. They made only four first downs and came no nearer than 12 yards of the Frog's goal. Black, however, got away for one pretty 32-yard run and Pippen passed to Wortham for one 22-yard gain.

T. C. U. scored in every period. Five touchdowns were chased across in the first fifteen minutes. After that they continued—one in the second quarter, two in the third and one in the fourth. Only one of the nine attempts for extra point failed.

Aggies of Kansas Nose Out Missouri

MANHATTAN, Kans., Nov. 1. (AP)—Forward passes flew all over Memorial stadium here today and when the last one had been tossed the Kansas Aggies emerged the victor over Missouri in a big six conference game, 20 to 13.

As far as line play and a running attack was concerned, the Aggies had a wide margin over Missouri but in the matter of forward passes the Tigers were equal, if not better, than the Kansas Aggie Wildcats who by winning today marked up their first conference victory in three attempts. In was Missouris first titular game.

The Aggies led at the end of the first period 7 to 0. At half time Missouri was ahead 13 to 7. The fourth period started with the Aggies again ahead, 14 to 13 and just before the final gun another Aggie touchdown was scored.

Races Begin At Arlington Downs

In the center of the above layout is W. T. Waggoner, multimillionaire rancher-oilman who has spent over $3,000,000 in the building of Arlington Downs for the purpose of encouraging Texans in the breeding of fine horses. This is the first posed photograph he has permitted to be made in 20 years. In the upper left are a few Texas horses working out on the track in preparation for the big races. The upper right shows Pansy Walker of Mr. Waggoner's Three D. stables. She is considered the foremost three year old filly of the country today. The lower left shows a close finish and the lower right is an airplane view of the downs. Three hundred blooded horses from all parts of this country and Canada are in the visiting stables.

Jarring Jim Bausch Fails to Get Going Against Big Penn Team; Score Doesn't Indicate Closeness

(By The Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—Pennsylvania's rugged but erratic eleven rose today to fulfill the promise of power it has shown all season and beat back with splashes of brilliance the beef and drive of the Jayhawkers of Kansas.

Penn pulled out of the struggle 21 to 6 but the score gave little indication of the closeness of the bitter duel that thrilled 62,000 in the big horseshoe of Franklin Field. It was a battle of individual brilliance in the pinches against sustained power that finally got to rolling, and the pinch hitters of Penn, bolstered by a line that rose staunchly in the crises, staggered down the stretch to the victory.

Bausch Stopped

Seven times in the second half, after being completely outplayed in the first two periods of Penn smothered their highly publicized halfback ace, Jarring Jim Bausch, the Kansans had opportunities to score touchdowns.

Out of those seven chances the Kansans salvaged one score and were halted by the final whistle with the ball on Pennsylvania's six yard line. Yet in those same two final periods the Quakers had but one chance to score and they promptly turned it into a touchdown.

WESLEY BEATS LON MORRIS

GREENVILLE, Nov. 1. (AP)—The Wesley college Panthers halted the Lon Morris college grid team's race for the Texas junior college championship here today by defeating them 18 to 0. The plunging of Quinn, Wesley fullback, tore the opposing line to shreds, scoring two touchdowns.

W. T. Waggoner Sees Own Pony Win First Race

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1.—Another chapter was begun in Texas horse racing history today. It was started at Arlington Downs before 10,000 fans gathered for the second renewal of racing in Texas by the Texas Jockey club.

W. T. Waggoner, owner of Arlington Downs was one who watched the thoroughbreds flash across the finish line.

Peering out of his box in the grandstand, Waggoner saw a member of his own Three-D stable flash across the wire the winner in the opening race of the day. Winning Hand, 2-year-old filly, carried the red, white and blue colors across the tape in the opening event, a five furlong race for maiden 2-year-olds for a purse of $400.

Another Nearly Won

Waggoner almost saw another member of his Three-D stable win the feature race of the day in a sensational finish. It was the fourth race on the program, a six-furlong sprint for all ages with $600 as the purse. Double Heart was the Waggoner hopeful but old Kickapoo, winner several times here last year, won the race. The six-year-old bay gelding of O. L. Foster of Bridgeport, Texas, got away to a lead at the start and held this advantage through a driving finish.

Taking an early lead, Duke Pohl outlasted Golden Laura to win the third race $400 for three-year olds and older at seven furlongs. Critic grabbed third money, a length and one-half behind Golden Laura.

Speedwell simply "stole" the fifth race. He raced into the stretch just behind Bud Elder and outgamed the leader for the victory.

The last race of the day, one mile and one sixteenth for three year olds and up, brought another thrilling finish with El Monte besting Mascara, the favorite by a half length.

Old Time Rivals Clash in Bitter Battle at Shreveport; Louisianans Pass to Victory; Game Is Rough

(By The Associated Press)

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 1.—Louisiat State University played a near-perfect passing game here this afternoon to take a 27 to 12 victory over the University of Arkansas in the 25th annual renewal of their football feature at the state fair.

With rivalry traditionally keen, it was a rough and tumble affair throughout, resulting in the ejection of a couple of the opposing linemen and drastic penalties in the final quarter. The Louisianians outplayed and outfought their ancient rivals in every department to break a long string of Arkansas victories at the fair.

Pass In Pinches

L. S. U. Passed in the pinches and made them count. Of five aerial heaves, four were completed for a total gain of 48 yards, and in additional three of Arkansas' passes were intercepted. Arkansas tried eleven passes, completing only two for a gain of 23 yards.

Arkansas tallied first by recovering the fumbled initial kickoff, Ledbetter, the right half, crashing the line for a touchdown after Kyle, the left half, had shown the way down the field with a series of sweeping end runs.

Fumble Is Costly

L. S. U. retaliated immediately by taking an Arkansas fumble and completing a pass from Almokary, half, to Luker, end, for a score. The Tigers scored again a few minutes later to take the lead when Powell, Tiger tackle, blocked Uptmoor's punt and recovered deep in Arkansas territory. Captain Reeves crashed the Arkansas line for the touchdown.

Arkansas scored again in the second quarter by virture of its two good passes of the day in which Holmes, Uptmoor and Captain Creighton figured 13 to 12 in favor of the Louisianaians. The Tigers came back in the last two quarters to score twice again.

TULANE TEAM RUNS WILD

Mississippi Aggies Crushed by Score of 53 to 0

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1. (AP)—Red Cagle's Mississippi A. & M.'s were bowled over like duck pins by the rushing Green Wave of Tulane here today as shown by the lopsided score of 53 to 0.

Outweighed, outclassed and outplayed, the Mississippians fought back with stout hearts but their efforts appeared puny beside the rhythmetic machine of Tulane.

The tough little player, Quarterback Merrington rallied his teammates by his brilliant play in the face of certain defeat. He carried the ball time after time in succession and was tackled and pounded until he was groggy on his feet and had to be taken out in the last quarter to the lusty cheers of the Tulane stands for a plucky player.

Interest in Aviation Is On Increase

Four Planes Now Housed at Municipal Port; Three Local Men Make Solo Flights Only Recently

Four planes are now being housed in the hangar at the municipal airport north of Lubbock and by the time the port is formally dedicated, some time in the spring, it is probable that there will be two or three times that number of planes located here.

While there is but one licensed pilot located in Lubbock, Ben Branson, pilot for the South Plains Transport company and instructor, there are a dozen or so budding pilots and several of them will take their examinations before the first of the new year.

Business Picking Up

These are some of the indications that Lubbock and the South Plains is becoming interested in aviation. The local transport company has a pretty fair business built up in carrying passengers on long trips and the airport is becoming known among aviators who are stopping here.

Hal Bradley, manager of the field, reports a good increase in attendance at the port as people are becoming acquainted with its workings. Nearly every afternoon there are from four to a dozen or more automobiles at a time parked at the field while the owners are discussing aviation or taking instructions.

Training Ship Used

The Waco model F, training ship is the property of the transport company and Branson uses it for his training of students. In addition a 4-passenger Stinson plane for cross country trips is the property of the company.

"The Spirit of Llano Estacado" is a blue Stinson, property of A. B. Brown, first private owner to purchase a ship after the port was begun.

Lindell and Smith, two automobile men of Lubbock, own a monocoupe that at present is dismantled for some repairs.

Has Half Dozen

Branson has five or six regular students who are taking instruction, and about as many who come when they can. He spends three or four hours a day in his class work when not engaged in cross country trips.

Manager Bradley is gradually increasing the shop equipment to take care of needed repairs to machines. It is now possible when ships from other towns spend the night at the port, to have them overhauled and tuned up.

Three Make Solos

Within the past ten days three Lubbock men have made their solo flights and they are now preparing to complete ten hours in the air so they can take their examinations before a U. S. department of commerce examiner. The examiner is expected to be in Lubbock about November 10 although the date has not been announced.

Bud Roberds, George Field and J. A. McCelvey were the three men who made their solo flights recently. Jimmie Cole local pilot also is expected to take the examination.

There is still work to be done on the hangar, including the installation of the beacon light and other lights. "So many changes are being made in lighting systems that types installed only a few months ago are now almost obsolete," City Manager J. Bryan Miller explained. "Prices are down now and I believe we could save several hundred dollars at present prices over what they were six months ago."

Delay has been occasioned in installation of the gasoline pumps because of the tardiness of the company man to install the machinery.

Arrangements have been made for the opening of a lunch counter for those who are at the field where sandwiches, coffee and light lunches may be had.

Gradually Manager Bradley is putting the field in better shape all the time. "The field is on a level with the seventh floor of the Lubbock Hotel," he said. "It is in good shape now but I am not satisfied. I have a lot of work yet to do, especially around the edges. (I want to get the sod in better shape than it now is. Pilots who land here tell me this is the best field they have encountered in the entire Southwest."

Texas-Arkansas Row Arises with Arrest of Four Duck Shooters Who Thought They Were on Lone Star Land

(By The Associated Press)

TEXARKANA, Nov. 1.—A fortnight's truce in the Red river Texas-Arkansas dispute which arose when six duck shooters who believed they were hunting on Lone Star state soil were arrested by an Arkansas game warden, was declared today, when cases against the sportsmen were called in justice court at Ashdown, Ark.

The proceedings were halted to allow the game and fish commissions of the two states to work out reciprocity agreements. John J. Dulaney of Little River county, Ark., asked a continuance, with the hope, he said, a costly test case apparently headed for the United States supreme court, could be avoided.

Ownership In Dispute

The dispute hinges on whether Applewhite cut-off lake and a private hunting preserve lying south of Red river belongs to Texas or Arkansas, and apparently will be settled by a question of fact as to whether the lake once lay in the "original" channel of the stream or was created by a temporary and comparatively recent diversion.

Should the boundary be established on the south bank of the cut-off it was pointed out, there may be similar stretches of "over the river" territory belonging to both states in which a reciprocity agreement might be mutually beneficial.

Meanwhile, the defendants—David Arnold, R. R. Creekmore, W. M. McClain, J. H. Young, Sam Milazzo, jr., and Bryant Holmes—as well as other members of the Applewhite Hunting club, are classified as "tenants of both states," and have been assured they will receive no further visits from Arkansas game wardens during the next two weeks at least. The Arkansas duck hunting season began Saturday, but questions of state licenses and other regulations still remain.

Fire Panic

families, most of them negroes, were sweeping tiny children or scanty belongings into their arms and dashing from their little homes. The wildest confusion reigned.

Trains Forbidden

Cause of the fire was not known tonight, although there was an earlier report it had started from an locomotive spark. Trains have been forbidden to enter the danger area without "dousing" boiler fires.

The rolling smoke clouds from the burning grass were visible for miles and the city's skyscraper tops, about a mile from the monster itself, bristled with frightened office workers.

With fire equipment standing ready in the area surrounding the Stout, 1,900 feet of hose strung along the Rock Island right of way oil racks and every available man on duty, fire department officials were ready for any emergency tonight.

As night fell attempts to control the Stout were abandoned until daybreak. Night work is impossible with the fire and light ban in force.

Guardsmen on Duty

Down in the streets where the gusher's roar and nauseaous fumes crept into homes, the well's human neighbors ate uncooked suppers under the watchful eye of national guards patrols, commanded to prevent fires of any sort. Others who feared to remain were cared for at nearby state fair grounds. Arrangements were made to provide for the needy and sick.

Hope of every one concerned, the die nipple constructed for the Morgan Petroleum company, well owners, is similar to the great tool used to control "Wild Mary" Sudik, whose 11 day rampage stands as a record in the city edge field. The connection consists of a nipple, in which thread dies are set, to fit over the top of the six inch casing from which the oil is roaring. Above the nipple are two master gate connections to which flow lines may be connected. The whole connection is about 45 feet long. It will be swung into place over the casing head with blocks and tackles and as it is lowered the oil flow will circulate through it until it is screwed into place and anchored. Once it is in place the "gates" will be swung slowly shut.

Vargas Is To Assume Duties As President

Commander of Revolutionists in Brazil to Take Office as Provisional Head of the Country Monday Afternoon

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 1. (AP)—Dr. Getulio Vargas, commander in chief of Brazil's successful revolutionists, announced this evening he would take office as provisional president of the country Monday afternoon, November 3.

His first official act will be to dissolve congress. He said that owing to the present political situation in the country he would assume the presidency "with discretionary power."

To Abolish Junta

His announcement followed consultations with the northern insurgent military leader, Captain Juarez Tavora, and officers of the military Junta in the capital. The Junta probably will be abolished within 48 hours.

More rebel troops reached Rio today from Minas Geraes, Soa Paulo and Rio Grande Do Sul. The police here have been active against communists, who are charged with being responsible for the police revolt and street fighting October 27.

It was understood tonight all banks would resume exchange operation Monday. A rate for the milries lower than the 9.3 to the dollar was forecast. This figure has been the official quotation at the Banco de Brasil for the past two weeks.

Plans Reform

Financial reform, comprising a vast economic program, is one of the principal planks in the platform of Dr. Vargas.

This was made known today after Dr. Vargas had spent the day conferring with various political leaders of the future of Brazil.

Texas Election

numerous, supporters of the five proposed changes in the state constiution, have been louder than their opponents. The legislative steering committee has enedavored to explain to the voters the need for each of the amendments.

Two of the amendments would double the length of biennial legislative sessions, from 60 to 120 days, and would increase the lawmakers' pay from $5 to $10 a day. The allowance for mileage would be cut in half. Proponents have contended that the resulting elimination of special sessions and the mileage cut would offset the salary increase. The amendment would fi- certain periods of the legislative session for certain steps in the process of making laws.

Deal With Oil Land

Two amendments deal with the University of Texas and its great tracts of oil lands. One would enable wider latitude in the investment of the revenues of these lands. Another would make the state pay county taxes in the counties where the land is located. The University regents claim that their income from interest will suffer unless their investment field is broadened. Seventeen West Texas counties contend that they are unjustly burdened with the untaxed University of Texas lands. Opponents of the first amendment claim it goes too far and will dissipate the university's permanent fund. Those who are fighting the second say the tax should be paid by the university rather than the state.

The fifth amendment would eliminate the enforced three months' vacation for the supreme court. This proposal is a successor to one voted down which would have accomplished that objective and at the same time have increased the court's membership from three to nine.

General Apathy Marks Coming Election Here

General apathy is heading politics in Lubbock county with prospects of a relatively small vote being cast Tuesday in the general election.

Dr. I. E. Barr, county chairman of the Republicans, will not hazard a guess as to the vote in the county for the G. O. P. state ticket. "We will get an unusually good showing on account of our candidate and our platform," Dr. Barr said. "But to guess how many votes Colonel Talbot will get or the ticket will get, will be a wild guess.

Expect Good Vote

"I am looking for W. D. Girand, Lubbock's candidate for judge of the criminal court of appeals to get a good vote on the South Plains."

Similar predictions were made by John L. Vaughan, postmaster, who keeps a close touch on conditions over the state. The postmaster predicts a small vote.

"I don't believe that there will be over 450,000 votes cast in Texas Tuesday," he said. "There are normally 100,000 Republicans in the state. I believe from what I have heard about our campaign, with a speaker's bureau busy and a campaign in every county and smaller towns, that we will get around 100,000 Democratic votes."

W. D. Girand, sr., candidate for judge of the court of criminal appeals, the only Lubbock man on the ticket, said he had made no especial campaign for the office, leaving the work to the state committee. He and his friends expect a good vote over the South Plains.

Following are the candidates to be voted for in the county election: Durwood H. Bradley, district attorney; Amos H. Howard for county clerk; A. B. Ellis for assessor; J. A. Clark for tax collector; Miss Ann Ford for treasurer; Charles B. Metcalfe for district clerk; Wade Hardy for sheriff; Miss Mae Murfee for county superintendent of schools; Claude Burrus for commissioner, precinct 1; J. T. Pinkston for commissioner, precinct 2; W. L. Brashear for commissioner precinct 3 and L. C. Denton for commissioner, precinct 4; H. K. Porter for justice peace, place 1; W. S. Clark for justice of the peace, place 2; J. B. Roberts for constable.

Successor To Hunt Problem For McMurry

Rev. W. M. Pearce and Rev. E. E. White Mentioned As Most Likely; Regret Expressed At Hunt's Act

(By The Associated Press)

ABILENE, Nov. 1—While the board of trustees, student body, church people, and the citizenship generally of this and surrounding cities, are expressing regret at the apparently final decision of Dr. J. W. Hunt, one of West Texas' foremost educational leaders and ministers, to vacate the presidency of McMurry college, senior Methodist institution here, speculation has turned to his probable successor.

The board of trustees is expected to meet before the annual Northwest Texas Conference opens at Sweetwater November 12 to act formally on the request of Dr. Hunt that he be relieved of his college duties to permit him to return to active ministry "where I feel I am best suited."

Rev. Pearce Mentioned

The name of Rev. W. M. Pearce, former pastor, who is now closing out his quadrenium as presiding elder of the Amarillo district and must, under rules of the church, be assigned to other work, is foremost in discussions to fill the vacancy, if Dr. Hunt is permitted to have his wish.

The Rev. Mr. Pearce, former president of Seth Ward Methodist Junior college at Plainview, which was closed several years ago, is a graduate of Southwestern university of Georgetown.

Rev. E. E. White, presiding elder of the Abilene district, has also been mentioned.

Dr. Hunt announced his plans during his seventh year as president of the college, which largely through his efforts, was founded in 1921, and opened its doors to students in September, 1923. The first year 126 were enrolled, and the sixth year enrollment had reached 450. The college owns a 40-acre campus and several buildings, all debt-free and has $110,000 in interest-bearing securities toward a half-million dollar endowment fund.

Westerners and Amarillo Sandstorm Battle to Scoreless Tie Here Saturday

yesterday mars an otherwise perfect record.

Once it appeared that Lubbock had scored a touchdown, when, about the middle of the second quarter, Malcomb Martin took Moody Smith's short pass and sailed down the field 30 yards and across the goal line. From all appearances it was a touchdown, but the play was called back, officials ruling the pass incomplete because a player ineligible to receive passes touched the ball before Martin finally grasped it and ran for the apparent touchdown. Quite an argument on the sidelines and between coaches and officials ensued after the play.

Lubbock Line Has Edge

Two evenly matched lines battered each other all over the field with the Westerner line holding an edge over the Amarillo forward wall. Even with Mike Montgomery, line captain and main event of the Sandie line, in the game despite leg injuries, the Westerners put up the greatest fight at the scrimmage line on defense, and with Archie Brawley at one tackle and Milton McGehee at guard on the other side of the line opening up holes in the Amarillo line for a lighter and less powerful backfield to charge through the game, on the ground, was played on even terms.

Neither team tried the aerial game extensively, being content to stay on earth, though Lubbock's passing attack shone brilliantly on several plays. A double pass, Lawson to Smith to Watkins, resulted in a long gain once that might have proved the turning point of the game, but the play was called back by a stern official. In all, Lubbock passed 11 times, many of them short lateral affairs, and completed 6 for a total of 70 yards. Several other times the Westerners passed, but as fate would have it, some player of either team would be charged with an off side violation and the plays called back. Amarillo tried 8 and completed 4 passes for 47 yards.

Bufkin Leads Sandies

Burl Bufkin, backfield captain and fullback for Amarillo, played a wonderful offensive game, crashing the powerful Lubbock wall for more consistent gains than any other Amarillo player. Fowler, doing the kicking and part of the passing for the Sandies, played near-sensational football. Hancock, starting halfback for Amarillo, carried the ball once during the game, the second time of the season, for a gain of 6 yards, and otherwise played a good game on the offense and in the Amarillo secondary defense. In the Sandstorm line, Montgomery was a power, but happened to be facing Archie Brawley, who held the star Sandie nearly every time at the line of scrimmage.

Malcolm Martin and Bill Ed Watson at ends and McGehee and Grigg at guards played close football, and seldom was it that gains were made at either place. Bob Crawford outclassed his opponent, Glass, at center all the way through. Glass played off form, getting off numerous bad passes from center that resulted in losses for Amarillo. Moody Smith, playing his last season, went out of the game in the fourth quarter with an injury, after making a brave demonstration on the field in an effort to convince his coach that he was able to play. Allen Johnson went in to take his place, but lacked the driving power and the ability to shake off tacklers that Smith had. Only two substitutes were made by Coach Frnka. Scoggin started the game and was relieved by Teal in the second quarter, though Scoggin saw more service in the Westerner backfield in the second half. Fullback and Co-captain Mina Watkins played a sweet game in the Westerner backfield, carrying the ball more than in any previous game, and for considerable gains. His kicking was up to standard, and at backing up the line on the defense, his equal would have been hard to find.

NOT JUST

"Castles in the Air—"

But— A Real Investment

Our association is organized on a new basis. Colonial contracts pay one ($1.00) dollar per member, with a maximum of $250.00 at three months. We need only 250 active members to pay a 90 day claim in full. Compare this plan with the old quarter pay plan, which requires a minimum of one thousand members to pay a claim in full. Don't you think our plan is the best and most likely to be fulfilled?

We realize that our type of investment has received a lot of criticism in the past—mainly because of the dishonesty of other people, but do you think that we should carry the blame for this? In an effort to erase the blots on this type of business we stand ready to give anyone a membership in this association, if they have ever lost a penny in a similar investment. Why not WRITE, WIRE or CALL TODAY? . . . and let us prove our sincerety.

Wanted Men and Women

Don't you think you could sell this contract? The commission is the highest paid, and we present each agent with a membership. Write or call for yours today.

HAS LAND PATENTS

Documents Signed By Presidents Framed Here

Three patents to land in Mississippi, granted to his grandfather, Hosea Davis and all signed by the then president of the United States, have been framed and are hanging on the walls of the office of Charles M. Davis, district manager of the Texas Cotton Coopeative association.

One of the patents is for 158 acres of land in Washington county, Miss., and was signed by John Quincy Adams, then president, in 1827. The other was signed by President Franklin Pierce in 1854 and the third by President James Buchanan in the early part of 1860. The former is for 38 acres and the latter for 194 acres.

The elder Davis died several yers ago and in his effects Mr. Davis found the papers. He decided to keep them as a memento of his grandfather and had them framed. The certificates are signed in ink that is showing a little the better for wear and tear of time. However, the signatures are all written with firm hands and letters are large.

Cotton Rallies Follow Further Declines — Livestock Light Supply Make Up Unchanged Ma — Grain Slow Trading Mark Close of Market

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. (AP)—A further decline of some 8 or 10 points in cotton today was followed by moderate rallies on trade buying and week-end covering. March contracts after selling off to 11.42 rallied to 11.54 but failed to fully maintain the improvement, closing at 11.50 compared with 11.52 of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 2 to 3 points.

Southern selling was less active than yesterday and after the initial offerings had been absorbed prices steadied up on covering. The trade was credited with having taken a good part of the early selling, and the market became comparatively bare of contracts when the demand developed.

Liverpool cables said hedging there had been taken by trade calling on the decline and reported a fair turnover in cotton cloths for the continent. The amount of cotton shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 207,000 bales against 226,000 last year.

Weekend Covering Checks Extension On Week's Decline of Stock Trading

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Week-end covering in the last quarter hour of today's stock market checked an extension of the decline which had been in progress since Tuesday.

Early losses of a fraction to 5 points in motion picture, utility and specialty issues were quickly regained on the late rally and the market closed moderately higher. Sales totaled 1,001,920 shares.

Bearish operations were held somewhat in check by the resistance in the industrial leaders, such as U. S. Steel, General Electric, Westinghouse, General Motors and Radio, which moved narrowly and showed a tendency to work higher, while other shares were sagging.

General Motors' earnings statement for the third quarter figured prominently in the day's news. The corporation failed to make its dividend, but showed $2.85 for the first nine months of the year, which is taken as assurance that the full $3 will be covered, although probably by a rather narrow margin.

Grains were steady. Wheat was virtually unchanged on final quotations, influenced by a firmer Liverpool market. Corn was slightly lower on larger country offerings and expectations of bearish private crop reports. Cotton sagged 2 to 3 points in very narrow trading.

The usual Saturday dullness prevailed in the foreign exchanges. The Spanish peseta firmed after yesterday's reaction.

FORT WORTH PRICES

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1. (AP)—A light supply of common cattle and calves made up today's offering and they sold about in line with Friday's close.

Bulls sold from 2.25 down. Canner cows sold around $2 with a few cutters at 2.75 and packages of butcher cows at 3.50.

Common calves went to the scales on bids from 4.50 down, or about the same as Friday's trading.

Practically all of the hogs listed for the day were directs to local packers. A few truck butchers sold to small packers at 9.15 or about 15 to 20c under Friday's levels.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 1. (AP)—Increased receipts of hogs around the eleven market circuit resulted in prices declining to levels of 40to@60 under a week ago. Medium and heavy butchers command a slight premium over light and underweights. Chicago had a late top of 9.25 on 260 pound butchers. Offerings were around 504,700.

Fat lambs are firm to higher with a week ago. Chicago showing an advance of 50. Matured killing classes of sheep registered no material change. Choice native lambs in Chicago realized 8.50, while 8.60 was obtained for choice rangers. The supply approximated 462,000.

Killing classes of cattle closed the week very slow with finished yearlings the only class to meet a reliable outlet. With the exception of steady prices on choice yearlings, losses of 25 to 1.00 were enforced on slaughter cattle. Beef steers with weight were especially difficult to move late in the week and current quotations on weight averages 1,200 lbs. and up are about as low as any time this season. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 311,700.

Grain

FORT WORTH PRICES

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1. (AP) — Slow trading marked the close of the week on the cash grain market here. Limited offerings were hard selling and heavier receipts might have gone begging. Basis last sales number 1 hard wheat was worth, nominally, $5@86c, carloads delivered Texas common points.

Estimated receipts: Wheat, 4 cars; corn, 8; oats, 3; barley, 1, and sorghums, 8.

Bids and offers on coarse grains, bas is carloads delivered Texas common points, ranged nominally as follows:

Corn, No. 2 mixed 85@86c; No. 1 white or yellow 87@88c.

Oats, No. 2 red, according to desirability for seed, 40@50c. No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 43 1-2@44c, to which add 1c for delivery group three.

Barley, No. 2, 62@64c.

Sorghums, No. 2 milo per 100 pounds 1.50@1.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 1. (AP)—Rapid shifting of the carrier of Argentine wheat crop advices chiefly governed the course of wheat values today with the market here scoring a late upturn. Final reports current were that one-third of the wheat acreage of Argentina was affected by rust, and that crop complaints were increasing. Earlier, wheat prices tended downward, influenced by word that Argentine rust danger was diminishing, and that with a fortnight of favorable weather the damage from rust in Argentine would be negligible.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8c higher. Corn closed 1-8 to 5-8c off; oats 3-8 to 1 1-8c down, and provisions varying from a shade decline to a rise of 3c.

Fazed by enlarging receipts of corn, and by favorable weather, the feed grains displayed lack of power to rally with wheat. Primary arrivals of corn today were 868,000 bushels, against 884,000 bu. a week ago and 458,000 at this time last year. All deliveries of oats touched a new low price record for the season.

Provisions averaged lower in price most of the day, responsive to downturns of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Dec. 75 3-8@3-4, 77 1-8@78; Mar. 80 1-8@82 1-2; May 81 7-8@84 7-8; 84 1-4@3-8. Corn—Dec. 71 1-2@73 3-4; Mar. (bids) 75 1-8; May 77 3-4@80.

SLEDDING STARTED

Farmers Over Section Begin To Sled Cotton

Farmers the past week began to sled cotton, F. N. Gooding, U. S. department of labor representative here, reports.

Mr. Gooding said last week he saw a number of sleds in operation between Lubbock and Abernathy, mostly around Monroe. Cotton there is pretty thin, he said.

He also reported seeing some west of Lubbock towards Brownfield.

It is still a little early for sledding, as frost has not hurt cotton and the hulls and leaves are still on the stalks.

'Mary And Gene' Forget Differences As Amarillo Prepares For Recital

Editor Honors Prima Donna With Tea At Home Today

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

AMARILLO, Nov. 1—Something in the nature of a love-fest, and at the same time a courtesy to a world renowned figure will feature here this evening when Mary Garden, famous star of opera will be tendered a tea by Gene Howe, editor and columnist of the Amarillo Globe-News. The names of Mr. Howe and Miss Garden were first linked together in bitter controversy following Miss Garden's appearance here several years ago, when the editor, in his column, 'The Tactless Texan', criticized Miss Garden's performance in an operatic presentation.

Mary Garden

Words flew thick and fast between the two, papers throughout the nation publishing every scrap of the controversy they could gather together. Since that time, however, the singer and the editor have buried the hatchet and lavish plans have been laid for the star's visit to this city.

Gene Howe

Miss Garden will arrive in Amarillo Sunday morning, accompanied by her manager, Charles L. Wagner and her assisting artist, J. H. Dansereau, pianist. The prima donna will be entertained at a tea on Sunday afternoon by Mr. Howe and during the day it is expected that Miss Garden will visit the airport at English Field and, if there is time, go to the movies here. She is a motion picture and radio fan.

Flowers Arranged

Hotel accommodations have been arranged by Mayor Ernest Thompson for Miss Garden, and the prima donna's suite at a local hotel will be a bower of roses and flowers when she arrives. The flowers are from admirers and from Messrs. Howe and Thompson.

W. C. Hawk has laid away five hundred tickets so as to take care of the out of town patrons. He is in charge of the attraction here.

There is little doubt but that Miss Garden will draw one of the largest audiences ever assembled at the auditorium in Amarillo. Demands for the tickets at the City Drug Store and the orders received by Mr. Hawk at his office at the News-Globe indicate that never before has such a keen interest been evidenced in an attraction in Amarillo and in all the Plains country as has been in Miss Garden's recital next Monday.

PLAN DEMONSTRATION

Plans for a meat curing demonstration some time this month are being prepared by D. F. Eaton, county agent.

Time for the demonstration has not been definitely settled. Farmers and meat packers will handle the work and the instruction will be of a popular nature to give instruction to farmers and housewives on the curing of meats on the farms.

Lubbock Barbers To Be Examined

An examination for barbers in this district will be conducted by examiners from the state barber board at the Ira S. Doak barber shop, Broadway and Avenue K, Monday and Tuesday.

John W. Johnston, Austin, president of the board, with J. B. Robinson, Dallas, vice president, will conduct the examination. H. G. Brock, Lubock, district examiner for the South Plains territory also will be present.

Since the original period of the operation of the barber act there have been about 75 applications for registration as barbers of beauty parlor operators filed from this district. It is not known whether all of these will be here for the examination or not.

Hilton Hotel Scene Of DFD Society Fete

Gay Week-End Occasion For College People Here Is A Dance Sponsored By DFD Co-Ed Society

GAYEST among affairs given by co-eds of Texas Technological college this week-end was the Hallowe'en dance Friday evening at the Hilton hotel in the Matador ballroom, sponsored by members of the D. F. D. club.

The mezzanine floor was fenced off with pickets intertwined with orange and black streamers, and cats in miniature perched on the railings at intervals.

The lights were shaded in the same colors and streamers were hung from chandelier to chandelier.

Unique Entrance

Guests entered the ballroom through the mouth of an enormous black cat in art with zig-zag teeth and gleaming eyes. The ballroom was decorated in black cats and lighted jack-o'lanterns, were placed along the walls. These lanterns furnished light for an Alpha Delta Pi Sweetheart dance during the evening. A D. F. D. sign was placed near the orchestra platform.

At 10 o'clock intermission, Miss Sophie Sproule was presented in costume dance. She wore a black costume, brightened with orange pompoms.

Light refreshments were served at 11 o'clock and the final dance was to the strains of the Matador fight song.

Cooking Lessons Conducted Here Draw Big Attendance

An annual cooking school, conducted last week at the Uptown Dance Palace under the sponsorship of the Avalanche and Journal, drew attendance of women from over the South Plains section, as well as from Lubbock.

During the last seven years this school has been an occasion to which women of the section have been invited and each year there have been hundreds in attendance daily during the school. Each fall some nationally known home economist is invited to conduct the school, lecturing on cooking and home management, and bringing to her hearers new recipes.

The preparation of the usual vegetables and meats consumed in every household have been considered; fancy desserts and salads and unusual combinations of foods have been discussed; breads and pastries, candies, cakes and other foods have formed topics for discussions in these schools, each of which has carried its unusual features.

Economy Stressed

This year Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig was brought to Lubbock to conduct the school and economy was the keynote of her demonstrations on the first four days of last week. In addition to dictating her recipes, she demonstrated the preparation.

Beginning today, recipes used by Mrs. Ihrig are to be published in the

Matrons Have Party Series For Week-End

Many Social Occasions Are Enjoyed In Addition To Club Parties During Last Three Days

IN addition to the gaieties of the children in celebrating the Hallowe'en season, during this week-end, there were numerous parties among the adults, including several large bridge and forty-two parties given by matrons in the city, and two large dances attended by collegians.

The last three afternoons and evenings have been devoted to social occasions more than during any previous week-end of the mid-season. Several club affairs shared attention with parties of an entirely social nature.

Use Autumn Motif

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. A. H. Leidigh and Mrs. E. L. Reed entertained with a bridge party in Mrs. Leidigh's home at 2101 17th street. Autumn flowers and colors were used in appointments and nine tables were arranged for games in the entertaining rooms.

Congenial club members and several guests played bridge on Thursday afternoon as guests of Mrs. Tom J. Foster in her home at 1706 10th street. There were twenty in attendance at this party. Bridge favors were presented to Mrs. H. L. Allen and Miss Mary Moss.

A delightful affair of Friday afternoon was a twenty-table bridge party given on the mezzanine floor of the Hilton Hotel for Lubbock matrons. Hostesses on this occasion were Mesdames A. T. Biggers, J. Milton Jones and Carl Slaton.

Mrs. R. E. Garlin received first prize in the games and Mrs. Murray Jones was high in a general cut.

Large baskets of yellow flowers, placed at intervals about the room created an attractive color scheme for this occasion.

Twice Hostesses

Mesdames J. G. Hardgrave and O. V. Adams were twice party hostesses on Thursday, entertaining in Mrs. Adams' home at 2420 20th street. A bridge party in the afternoon was attended by 28 guests and this was followed by an evening bridge affair at which there were 24 guests.

Among the Hallowe'en parties of the week-end was one given Thursday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Winn, 1505 30th street, by members of the 1928 Bridge club for their husbands.

Seasonal appointments were used throughout the house and on the bridge tables. High scores in the games were made by Mrs. Winn and E. L. Pitts.

Those who attended were Messrs. and Mesdames Fred Childress, Ray Dickey, Leo Edwards, J. A. Phipps, jr., E. L. Pitts, L. B. Sloneker, W. A. Sylvester, O. A. Terry, M. N. Hale, W. B. Hearrell, Mike Brennan, Dr. and Mrs. S. S. McKay, W. E. Schmith, C. E. McFarland, Mrs. Newma Roberts and Hugh Dryer.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Moreman, 2421 19th street, were hosts in their home Thursday evening to members of the Pastime club and their husbands.

The Hallowe'en theme was used in decorations and tallies.

Following several games of forty-two and Hallowe'en pranks, a refreshment course was passed.

Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames W. J. Spikes, J. L. Murfee, Marvin Stovall, J. D. Reese, Joe Baldridge, O. W. Ribble, Albert Fryar and A. L. Stewart. Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Cowart were guests.

Canvasses Of Mrs. Hubbard Are Hung

A showing of the pictures of Mrs. Chester Hubbard is to be opened Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Home Decorators studio at 1906 13th street.

Mrs. J. E. Vickers and Mrs. Earl Hunt are sponsoring the showing. The studio will be open from 3 until 6 today and will be open during the remainder of the week.

Mrs. Hubbard will show her canvasses, including the portrait which recently won first place in that division at the State Fair in Dallas.

Music Federation Meets In Quanah

Musicians from over this section of the state met yesterday in an annual session of the seventh district, Texas Federation of Music Clubs. Mrs. C. F. Smith, of Amarillo, who is president of the district, presided.

A business session was conducted this morning, following a board meeting last night, and the program this afternoon was devoted to fine arts.

Mrs. Richard L. Douglas, president of the Lubbock Music club, sang two numbers yesterday afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Mamie I. Neal, who was the delegate from the Lubbock club. Mrs. Charles Hilburn, of this city, also attended the meeting.

Hallowe'en Occasions Merrymaking Among Lubbock Children

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

HERE'S my little six-year-old candy vendor still making his rounds. I didn't buy any candy today, so he tried some salestalk. "I guarantee it," he stated. I could tell he was disappointed in me. But I wanted to know about this guarantee. "Well, I eat it!" was his explanation.

SOME MORE HELP

MY friends are still offering assistance following my request for some help in gaining weight. A woman came up to me the other day at cooking school—I don't know her name—

"I've been wanting to tell you," she started out. "Eat yeast, it will make you gain. I started that when I weighed only 117 pounds and now—," but someone interrupted and I didn't learn of her present weight.

And this morning some one called to tell me to drink cod liver oil. "I've gained 25 pounds during the last year drinking it," she explained. I know who she was but she asked me not to print her name. However, I'm sure she will let me use her as a private reference, for those who want to try this method out with me.

That twenty-five pounds appealed to me. The Plainsman was accusing me of having corners where I should have curves the other day in his column and I think I could cover up a lot of these so-called corners with 25 pounds of flesh!

I WONDER, TOO

HERE is someone else wondering about something that has bothered me for years. It is Sue Vinson, who writes Us Women for the Childress Index.

"After attending a few programs lately, a mystery that has troubled me for years has intensified," she avers. "I want to know why soloists, both vocal and instrumental, always announce the name of their selection, but never so the audience can understand it.

"They always start out quite distinctly with 'my next number will be . . .' Then they get stage fright or something, and mumble the rest hurriedly on a falling inflection, while they tuck their violin under the chin or shuffle the sheet music.

"Perhaps they want the audience to guess what they are rendering, or know that their hearers couldn't understand the Italian name of their selection anyway. Which is true enough, but I never liked having things kept from me. And I intend to speak to somebody about it."

* * *

If she really gets this world problem solved for us, I'll let everyone know and will let her have some of my problems to solve.

A REMINDER

LET'S suggest that the green in the grass on the court house lawn be chosen for a spring costume color," a neighboring stenographer suggests, pausing at my desk. "It is such a pretty green," she continues and reminds me that it is almost time for that spring dress and I haven't worn my winter one a half-dozen times yet.

But I usually skip a season or so each year. Sometimes I have winter all year and wear a jersey dress and other years I pretend that it's summer and wear my light silk for 12 months.

THESE FAMILIES

AND the topic of clothes reminds me of another business girl whom I heard wailing the other day that "Mother wants to make over another of my dresses for Helen.

"After I've worn it for three years, I don't want to see it on any more members of the family," she continues, and another big sister was bewailing the make-up of her younger sister of high school age.

"She plucks her eyebrows until she has none left and paints her lips into a pseudo-bow until she has a positively startled expression," she cries.

Aren't families a lot of fun? They always seem to leave so much room for improvement, if we could just make them over according to our own ways of thinking. I always did think it would be nice to have some nice rich parents and then be able to have or discard brothers and sisters, as the occasion demanded.

HAM WITH VEGETABLES

Today's recipe is for a cold day. It is for boiled ham with vegetables. Here it is:

One ham end, four carrots, 4 potatoes of medium size, one rutabaga of medium size, one onion and one small cabbage.

If the ham is very salty, soak in cold water for 3 or 4 hours; then drain and scrape or trim off any blemishes. Boil from one to two hours or until it begins to be tender. Clean the vegetables. Cut rutabagas into fourths and carrots into halves, slice the onion, and put them all into the boiling stock. Let the mixture cook 20 minutes. Then put in the potatoes and cabbage. If cabbage is old, put it in with the other vegetables. Cut it in large pieces and lay it on the top. When the vegetables are tender, arrange them about the meat on a platter.

BIRD GARDEN

As winter comes on, you should make a little window garden for your bird. Plant just a few grass seeds in a square box so that you can put the cage down over it when it grows and let your bird hop about on real ground.

One of the most powerful fertilizers is furnished by the flesh and bone of the whale.

School Classes Entertained During Week-End; Costumes Are Worn For Many Parties

Fur Trimmed Coat

BY MME. LISBETH

THIS LOVELY fur trimmed coat from the house of Jean Patou is called Opaline rose from the delicate tea rose pink which he adopted for his spring shade.

The wrap is for formal afternoon wear.

Soft woolen fabrics in rainbow hues are cited as probable favorites for southern resort wear th's season.

Black coats are almost universally chosen even by the women who have several wraps, because they may be worn with black and also with bright hued frocks, affording striking contrast.

In Embroidery

BY MME. LISBETH

SHEER chambray fashions this pretty little frock, which is particularly suitable for the afternoon or evening party.

It is a charming maize color with the all-over eyelet embroidery in brown. The panel effect ornamented with buttons, down the center of the back, and ending in a narrow ruffle, is a pretty touch, the ruffles being repeated in the trimming fabric, on the short sleeves, also the button trim.

The skirt also uses tiered ruffles for its styling.

What A Rexall One-Cent Sale Is

It is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price, then another item of the same kind for one cent. As an illustration: The standard price of Klenzo Dental Creme is 50c, you buy a tube at this price and by paying 1 cent more, or 51 cents, you get two tubes. Every article in this sale is a high class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as is sold every day at the regular price.

This sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full size package of high standard merchandise for 1 cent. It costs money to get new customers, but the sacrifice in profit is justified, knowing the goods will please you.

NOTICE—It is not the intention of The Avalanche-Journal to cast reflection upon the character of anyone knowingly and if through error we should, the management will appreciate having our attention called to same, and will gladly correct any erroneous statement made.

The Avalanche-Journal is an independent Democratic newspaper, supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those questions which it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics) publishing the news fairly and impartially at all times.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets,

Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds.—Hebrews i, 1, 2.

THE RELIGION OF YOUTH

ON another page of today's paper will be found an article dealing with the religious and church activities of the young people of Lubbock. This article, prepared by Miss Margaret Turner, of The Avalanche-Journal staff, should be good tonic for those who would otherwise believe that the much maligned 'younger generation' is headed for the proverbial bow-wows.

To defend the young people against barbed criticisms of those who have not delved into action figures and conditions, and to tickle the curiosity of the reader of this editorial, we quote herein a few statistics on this hitherto ignored endeavor.

The First Baptist church, alone, has 21 BYPU (the letters stand for Baptist Young People's Union) organizations, composed of 300 persons. First Presbyterian church has three similar organizations embracing 175 young people; First Methodist has two, with a total of 250 enrolled while West End Baptist church has five organizations with 65 members. In addition, practically every church in the city sponsors one or more such groups and Lubbock's total of 37 organizations embraces 1,060 people, generally speaking, between the ages of 15 and 25 years.

Augmenting the local young people in work of this type are scores of Tech students. The young people's organizations embrace every classification imaginable in this good work.

In addition to the study of the Bible and of application to problems distinctly religious in their character, these young people have opened to them an avenue for education which cannot be minimized. They discuss current events problems of the timems. They band together in clean, wholesome fun and social activities. The scope of these organizations is thus made almost boundless.

We have heard, all of us, in recent years that our young people are not as devout—not as interested in religious activities as they might be and as their fathers and mothers were before them. Perhaps they are not, in actual numbers for the Avalanche-Journal has no statistics to which to turn and the world offers much more in the way of interest and amusement today than it did a score of years ago.

But if you ask us, the figures compiled for her story by Miss Turner, do not indicate that the younger generation, as represented in Lubbock, is headed for damnation. We think the figures are wholesome and reassuring—something in which we may take pride as well as comfort in perilous times.

DISUNION

Senator Brookhart beseeches the South and West to combine their political force on the score that they both love the Anti-Saloon League and hate Wall Street.

In Pennsylvania former Governor Gifford Pinchot is seeking to make himself governor again by turning the country against the city, by preaching hatred and disunion.

For years the United States has been divided against itself because unscrupulous, dishonest and self-advancing politicians have made a political weapon of sectional hatreds and jealousies and have seen to it that these dangerous fires never died.

Self-styled patriots who rant of world amity are breathing national and state enmity. They would destroy the Union if in so doing they would advance their personal political fortunes. Than these modern Brutuses national good will and singleness of purpose have no greater enemy.

Nations as vast and civilizations as complex as ours have enough natural causes for discord and cross purposes without power-hungry office-seekers firing emotional winds with artificial seeds of distrust.

We have seen the upper chamber of our national legislative body deteriorate into a bull ring in which the bulk of national problems is ignored while the matadors and picadors attack each other with flimsy foils of sectional greed, hatred and suspicion. Small wonder legislation of importance to the whole country ags or dies.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

NEW ENGLAND POLITICS GIVE MINIATURE VIEW OF U. S. BATTLEFRONT

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—New England is a kind of a political Tom Thumb golf course.

It duplicates the big national links in miniature.

Quite as the whole country varies on a large scale, that little patch of six states varies in its own small way.

It has its diversity of interests, its wet areas and its dry areas, its congested districts and its great open spaces (away up north), its jealousies between city folk and country folk—all reproduced in a territory about a forty-fifth the size of our entire republic of such magnificent distances.

NEW ENGLAND'S pewee proportions give a peculiar effect to news of its handful of congressional and gubernatorial fights, just drawing to a close in its corner of the United States.

From one bailiwick come reports of a perfect ferment of pre-election excitement and activity; from another, maybe only 20 minutes' automobile ride away, come reports of no interest at all. Thinking nationally, we are surprised at so much political difference in bailiwicks so close together. However, we must remember that the interval separating them needs to be multiplied by 45, in order to get the right focus—making a hiatus comparable to the jump from Broadway's speakeasies to western Kansas.

This makes it look more natural.

IF MASSACHUSETTS be accepted as a criterion, the wind-up of the current fall's New England campaign unquestionably is a corker. That is, the Massachusetts contest is hot enough to raise the average for the entire group of states.

Rhode Island's temperature also is high.

Contrariwise, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Vermont hardly show signs of any fever whatever. Maine's early election of course has disposed of her already.

AS FOR Massachusetts—

If the Democrats cannot beat William M. Butler, a dry in so obviously wet a state; handicapped by hard times and unemployment; opposed by union labor; denounced by the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's daughter for treating her aged father, so she says, "like a dog" at the 1924 G. O. P. convention; outvoted, between them, by his two primary opponents; accused of huge expenditures in that same primary; bolted, among others, by his chief nomination rival, as an "impossible candidate to support—"

If the Massachusetts Democrats cannot beat Butler for the senate with the wet Marcus A. Coolidge, after their state's Al Smith majority in 1928, they evidently feel that they cannot beat anyone.

THAT IT IS a mean campaign may be judged from the nature of the slurs, mentioned above, directed against ex-Senator Butler.

They sound pretty personal, some of them.

The duel between Republican Gov. Frank G. Allen to hang onto his job and Democratic Candidate Joseph B. Ely to take it away from him is not so ugly—but it is no mere scrap with blunted rapiers, either.

To give both sides their dues.

The Democrats are not as sure of Ely as they are of Coolidge, nor are the Republicans so badly worried concerning Allen's fate as they are concerning Butler's.

THE RHODE ISLAND muss is comparatively gentlemanly—hard fought but punctuated by no gouging or biting.

Little Rhody evidently must be as wet as New York or New Jersey.

Anyway, Senator Jesse H. Metcalf, who seeks to retain his Republican seat in Washington, always has rated as a wet, and ex-Senator Peter G. Gerry, trying to stage a comeback as a Democrat, is an avowed wet, likewise.

What sets them in opposing camps, in addition to the difference in their party labels, is their adherence to contrasting schools of thought on all issues susceptible to favorable interpretation liberally versus conservatively. Gerry is the liberal—only moderately so, but it is necessary to be only very, very moderately liberal in order to be more liberal than Metcalf.

NEW ENGLAND Democrats are counting on picking up some representatives as well as senators' seats this year on wet grounds, especially in Massachusetts.

However, several Massachusetts Republican drys are not as irreconcilably dry now as they used to be, in spite of William M. Butler's example.

In Boston, for instance, Representative George Holden Tinkham, seeking Republican re-election, never was a dry—has been one of the wettest members of the congress, in fact. If wetness is the test in his district, he can qualify and considerably over.

In ex-President Coolidge's Northampton district, likewise, where William J. Granfield, 100 per cent wet and a Democrat, beat a straddling dry Republican in the last election (the first time in its history that that district ever gave a Democratic majority), the Republicans did not repeat the former mistake this year. If Granfield wins again, he will win on account of something besides his wetness, because Joshua L. Brooks, his G. O. P. rival, is as wet, they say, as he is.

THE NEW RENAISSANCE

Those who follow the book advertisements and reviews are aware that erudition albeit somewhat diluted, is now so easily available that he who runs has little excuse if he does not also read. What with "stories" of philosophy and religion and science, what with anthologies of the poetry of the entire world, and, histories that seek to cover the time-span of civilization, at least a smattering of learning may be had by any and all.

Some are disposed to quarrel with such scattering of learning in predigested form. But there is much to be said for it. In some of its features, this modern movement seems kin with the European Renaissance, the starting point of modern literature.

The renaissance received its great impetus in the sudden availability to scholars of the literature of classical antiquity. Translators set about transmuting the ancient gold in the coin of current speech. Many of these enthusiasts were none too learned; and few of them had great literary gift.

The interesting thing is the similarity between that movement to bring treasures of a bygone age to a later age and the present effort to offer to as many readers as possible information and wisdom not before available to them. They were not available to the many before because relatively few people had the time, patience and desire to wade through their old and voluminous forms.

A TEST FOR FOOTBALL

College football seems to be having sporadic bits of trouble again this fall. An eastern football star, confessing that he is sick of the game, is ordered to hand in his uniform. Six players at another eastern university ask for higher wages and are dropped. A western university is dropped by an athletic conference because it has subsidized and recruited prominent stars.

It would not do, of course, to pounce on these incidents and declare, because of them, that college football is all wrong. Is is a fine game, and it provides enjoyment of many thousands of people. But there is one fair test you can apply in any given situation.

If football at any college exists primarily to provide the players with wholesome and enjoyable athletic recreation, then it is on a sound basis, no matter how much money comes in at the gate. If it exists for any other primary reason it is on an unsound basis and needs doctoring very badly.

Last Quarter, Two Minutes to Play, and—!

Heart Hungry

AUTHOR OF "RASH ROMANCE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore for a home in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROGERS, her mother, divorced Mitchell and remarried and is now a widow. BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to his love. She is lonely in her new home.

Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons considers Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections and agrees. She invites the girl to her Long Island home for a week-end.

TOD JORDAN, fascinating but with a dubious reputation, is attentive to Celia and Mrs. Parsons encourages the match. When the other guests leave Celia continues her visit.

LISI DUNCAN, socially prominent, invites her to attend a swimming party. Celia narrowly escapes drowning and is rescued by Jordan. Her father hears of the affair and insists the girl must return home. The same evening Jordan calls and in a romantic scene tells Celia he loves her. She returns to New York next day and receives a telephone call.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

"WHO is it?" Celia demanded eagerly. She held the French telephone close to her ear.

The "gentleman" at the other end of the line was a butler explaining that Miss Lisi Duncan wished to speak to Miss Mitchell. A moment later Celia heard Lisi's gay voice.

"That you, Celia?" she asked. "Evelyn told me you'd gone home. I telephoned her a few minutes ago. Listen, how're you feeling today?"

"Oh, I'm all right!" Surely, Celia thought to herself, she must have said that a thousand times in the last 24 hours.

"Fine! Honey, I want you to have lunch with me tomorrow. I'm going to drive in and I'll pick you up about 1:30. That O. K.?"

Celia thought it would be. It cheered her immensely to think Lisi wanted to be friendly. She promised to be ready.

"That's settled then. By-by, honey!"

After Celia put down the telephone she wondered if her grandmother could object. It would be horrible to have to call off the engagement. She decided to wait until her father arrived home before mentioning the luncheon party.

He came shortly after four, asking immediately for his daughter. The girl was reading.

"Home again!" Mitchell called as he entered the library. "Well, Celia, let's hear all about this casualty of yours."

"Oh, father, I can't understand how it happened. One minute I was swimming along and the next the wave came over me and I thought I was sinking—"

Mitchell sat down beside her, asked questions. He wanted to know the name of the young man who had saved her. Celia, with trembling eagerness, told him. She explained she had met Jordan at Evelyn Parsons'.

"Oh, yes? Well, I wouldn't stand on a little point of etiquette if I were drowning!" he said dryly.

Celia laughed. She explained she wasn't referring to social proprieties, but thought Mitchell might remember seeing Jordan.

Her father shook his head.

"Can't say I do," he said. Then he wrote down the name. "Well—I'll look after this young man—"

"But I'm sure he wouldn't—I mean I don't think he'd accept money or anything like that!" she protested.

Mitchell put the memorandum book back into his pocket.

"Never mind about that," he said. "Celia, I had a pretty uncomfortable half hour last night before I knew you were safe." There was emotion in his voice that surprised the girl. Mitchell put out a hand and took Celia's and for a moment there was understanding silence between them.

"I MUST run upstairs and dress," the girl said, rising. She was afraid to show how deeply she had been touched. Before she reached the door Celia remembered Lisi and the luncheon engagement. She told her father about it.

"That's all right," he said. "I want you to have plenty of young friends. I'll speak to your grandmother."

She thanked him and went on out of the room.

There was a letter from Celia's mother next morning. It was not the first the girl had received from Mrs. Rogers since arriving in New York, but coming at this particular time, its effect was profound. Celia was at her dressing table lazily polishing her nails when Martha knocked on the door and gave her the letter.

The girl greeted the familiar handwriting with delight. Then she ran to the chaise lounge, sank down and tore open the envelope.

"My darling child," was the salutation. Celia read on quickly. There was little news. Mrs. Rogers wrote that she was feeling well and very busy. It was the vacation season and two of the fitters at Margot's were away. Of course it was the slack season, but still she and Tillie Dennison had their hands full. It had been very warm, but today they were having a cool spell.

Margaret Rogers said that Barney had come to see her. He was working hard. The people next door in the apartment had a new radio. There was nothing of importance in the letter, but Celia read it all eagerly. This was news from home.

"I hope you are very happy with your new friends," the last paragraph read, "but remember, above all else, to take care of yourself. Write soon. Oh, my darling, how I love you. Your Mother."

After the girl had finished reading it she sat for a long time looking down at the letter. It brought back sharply everything in the life she had left. Mother, Barney—she saw them through different eyes. She was glad she had written both of them Monday. She should have done so earlier. Somehow, there seemed little time to write. There was so much else to do. Her precious mother! Celia thought of her mother going to work, bending over her sewing through hot days. Was she really well? A wave of revulsion swept over the girl as she thought of Margaret Rogers long toil and privations and the luxury with which she herself was surrounded.

Finally she folded the letter and put it under a pile of lingerie in a drawer of the dressing table.

Lisi was late. It was nearly two o'clock when she drove up to the Mitchell home and sounded the French horn of her coupe. Celia hurried out of the house to stop the uproar before it reached her grandmother's ears.

"Hullo!" Lisi greeted her brightly. "Am I late? It's the precious traffic. Red lights all the way! I swear, crossing the bridge—"

She babbled on as Celia stepped into the car. Then they circled the square and headed up-town.

Lisi was looking particularly well in a green and white printed frock and small green hat that seemed to minimize her freckles.

"How's my hat?" she demanded. "It's Kate's, and she'd have 47 cat fits if she knew I had it. Have I got it on right?"

Diet and Health

DR. CLENDENING ADVISES FAT FOLKS TO ENLIST CO-OPERATION OF HOME

The organization of the overweight person's home is the most important part of the reduction cure.

Dr. Clendening

I am not going to set down a list of menus because I know what you will do. You will pounce on them, and start to try them out. You will neglect all the other things which make for success. And then if you are not sylph-like at the end of a week you will blame me.

Everybody in the household must be in sympathy with the victim, especially the cook. This is not always easy to arrange for the good old reason that "nobody loves a fat man."

Then the mental attitude of the "patient" must be right. You are going on a diet "not for an hour, not for a day," but so long as ye both shall live.

Diet is the main part of the active treatment.

First, no alcohol. You are not just taking a ride on the water wagon. You are up to stay. Alcohol spares fat. It yields seven calories per teaspoonful, and is burned more readily than foodstuffs, thus saving them to be turned into fat.

Second, the sweets. Carbohydrates are probably not as active in forming fat as was once supposed, but they must be eliminated from the diet in part, just the same. The easiest place to do this is sweets. Cut out desserts, cake, sugar in your coffee, candy, ice cream sodas, maple syrup, etc. One slice of bread at a meal is enough. Saccharine is a substance without food value, which is sweeter than sugar. You can put a pellet of that in your coffee.

Fats! They are your worst enemy. My eminent rival, in advising the public on health matters, Mr. Samuel Blythe, informed the readers of a well-known magazine a short time ago that the old ideas about the influence of starches on fat formation were all wrong, and that fat makes fat. I agree with him.

The elimination of fat is hard, because it includes all the sauces and dressings which give so much flavor and gusto to the food. But once done, it yields great results. "Flavor and gusto" are your enemies, anyhow.

No salad dressing. There are 500 calories in an ordinary serving of French dressing or mayonnaise.

No gravy. Little or no butter. Little or no cream.

Just eliminating sweets and fats will go a long way towards keeping your weight down. But think what a lot of good things to eat remain for you.

Fruits, eggs, fish, toast and coffee for breakfast.

Clear soup or broth, a serving of meat, choice of spinach, asparagus, sauerkraut, onions, green beans, cabbage, artichokes, broccoli, rhubarb, celery, lettuce and tomato for lunch.

The same or green beans, turnips, string beans, beets or green peas with a piece of toast and an orange, slice of pineapple, some berries or a peach for dessert, with black coffee for dinner.

Shippers Here Prepare For South Plains Turkey Crop

No Indication Yet on Prices Of Birds; Various Estimates Are Placed on Yield of Year

1930 Crop to Range from 92 to 75 Per Cent of 1929, Say Buyers; Rush to Be on by Last of This Week

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

ONE hundred forty carloads of turkeys, most of them dressed, were shipped out of the Lubbock area by the three poultry packing plants here during the 1929 season.

Approximately 90 of these cars were shipped out of Lubbock proper, the others coming from as far away as Clovis, Spur and Floydada.

There is a difference of opinion on the turkey crop of this year. One man estimates it to be 90 to 92 percent of last year, while another sets it as low as 75 to 80 percent.

Season of shipping will begin about November 6, according to local dealers. Thanksgiving is Thursday, November 27 and all birds must be at the markets not later than Monday or Tuesday of Thanksgiving week, in order to insure sale by retail dealers.

Price has not been set by local buyers. It may be several days before the price is decided upon, but the delay is being made to get an idea of the probable eastern market.

These are some of the facts given by Lubbock poultry men in discussing the coming season.

Humphreys Makes Guess

R. F. Humphreys, manager of Swift and company, estimates the crop will be around 75 to 80 percent of last year. "We will begin shipping after the sixth of November," he said. "We plan to start buying November 6. All of our cars must be shipped out of Lubbock by the night of November 16 or not later than the morning of November 17.

"Our company has the policy of having turkeys on the market by Monday or Tuesday before Thanksgiving. That gives time for produce dealers to get their birds sold. We ship our turkeys dressed."

Mr. Humphreys said that he did not know what the price would be for birds this year. That matter has been discussed but no decision made.

Go To New England

"Our birds are shipped to New England," He said. "We send them to Boston, as a good distributing point."

Swift and company last year dressed trukeys in Lubbock and Plainview. It is expected that they will dress in both towns this year.

The Titman Egg corporation, connected with Borden and company, last year shipped from Plainview, Lubbock and Littlefield. This year they will not use the latter point, W. T. Johnston, manager said.

"My estimate is that the South Plains or rather the Lubbock territory, will have about 90 to 92 percent of last year's crop," Mr. Johnston said. "In the south and central parts of Texas the crop is about normal.

"We plan to start buying turkeys on November 7 and to dress out by the Sunday following, the 9th. Our last shipment from here will be November 16. It takes about seven days to get a car of turkeys to the seaboard."

The Titman shipments included cars to New York City, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Newark, N. J., Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Boston, Bridgeport, Conn., Chicago and Fort Wayne, Ind. Last year they also sent a car to Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mr. Johnston said he had received word a few days ago that the first five cars of turkeys from Texas brought 28.5 cents per pound at New York. "That is on a basis of live turkeys at about 17 cents a pound," he explained.

Keeping Price Quiet

"We are not announcing our price until later because we want to wait and see which way the market is likely to jump," he continued. "We want to set a price to the farmer that will be maintained throughout the season. It is often the case that prices fluctuate so much that farmers do not know whether it is best to sell or not. We want to avoid that if we can."

The Lubbock Poultry and Egg company handled about the largest shipments of the entire area last year. They shipped from Spur, Lamesa, Clovis, Slaton, Amarillo and Floydada, as well as Lubbock, establishing dressing stations in those towns.

Approximately half of the entire area shipments were by this company. The other half is divided between Swift and Titman.

Refrigerator cars are used for shipping of turkeys. The birds are dressed and then cooled and placed in the iced cars.

Most of the cars are handled in fast freight trains, generally known as "red ball" freights in the west and "p. g." trains in the east. They are run on express train schedules.

Last year's prices were from 15 to 20 cents a pound to the farmers. It is believed that the price this year will range about the same.

D. F. Eaton, county agent, declares there is not as large a supply of turkeys this year as last year. Most of the birds come from Terry, Gaines, Hockley, Dickens, Lynn, and Hale counties as well as Lubbock. Lamb county also supplies some turkeys.

"Prices last year to the farmers were from 15 to 17 cents," Mr. Eaton said. "I have not heard about the prices this year but I hope that they will be better than last year.

Cotton Picking Will Be Resumed

Resumption in full force of cotton picking is scheduled for this week, with prospects of the work being brought to a close before the first of December.

In several of the light crop areas it was reported that the work was at least 75 per cent completed.

It is believed that here is probably 45 or 50 per cent of the crop picked in some sections.

Sledding will start as soon as cold weather and frost comes to stop growth of boils. Frost will cause the leaves to fall and this will speed up sledding.

Wet ground and wet cotton the past two weeks almost stopped picking until the middle of last week. Ginners warned against wet cotton.

Pierre Brugnon, master of ceremonies for WABC Evening in Paris broadcasts, sang principal roles in opera here and in Europe.

Poultry Market Here Has Higher Offerings, Seen

The poultry market in Lubbock is higher than that in towns off the caprock according to W. T. Johnston, manager of the Titman Egg corporation, who attended the recent turkey grading school at San Angelo with several of his men.

In driving back to Lubbock he came by way of Sweetwater and Snyder, he said.

"Down below the caprock," he said, "I noticed prices of poultry. The quotations were: light hens, seven cents; heavy hens, 11 cents; Leghorn and dark springs, nine cents and colored springs, 12 cents.

"Here in Lubbock, when I got back, prices quoted were: light hens, eight cents; heavy hens, 12 cents; dark springs, 11 cents and colored springs 14 cents.

"That indicates a better market on the South Plains than below the caprock," he concluded.

MULESHOE, Nov. 1—(Special)—V. E. Bromley, entomologist from the U. S. department of agriculture, has made investigations in Bailey county as to the advisability of growing sugar beets in this county. Evidences were discovered of the presence in the county of the curly leaf blight, caused by an insect from the southwestern portion of Texas.

South Plains Poultry Show Adds to List

"County Flock Contest" to Be Held at Slaton; Best Show in West Texas Expected to Be Feature of Year

Addition of a new contest for the South Plains poultry show, to be held in Slaton December 10, 11 and 12, is announced by show officials.

The new contest is to be known as the "County Flock Contest" and a large number of the 54 counties that will participate in the show will enter, according to D. F. Eaton, county agent.

Three counties must enter the contest before it can become a part of the show, officials decided. A minimum of five flocks from each county is required, thus insuring not less than 15 flocks as a minimum.

Prizes Are Generous

"Fifty dollars in prizes will be offered," Mr. Eaton said. "There will be three places, with probably $25 for first, $15 for second and $10 for third place."

Dr. D. H. Read, head of the animal husbandry department of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, will be asked to judge the county flock contest. Dr. Read is to judge production flocks at the show.

Judging is to be on the basis of external body characteristics rather than on the regular judging work, Mr. Eaton said.

"We hope to be able to make this county flock contest a big factor in the South Plains Poultry show." Mr. Eaton said. "Of course this is our first year, but from reports received from the 54 counties in the district, I am of the opinion we will have one of the best shows ever held in West Texas."

Nature Plays Queer Prank on Duck Near Seattle; It's Really a Potato

No, it isn't a duck that little Buddy Harvison holds. It's one of nature's freak tricks played on an unsuspecting potato from the patch of W. R. Sedgwick, Seattle, Wash. It has the bill, head and body of a duck. Tufts of cotton were added for a tail and feathers.

She also has 40 pounds of dried beans, a bushel of onions and two bushels of sweet potatoes.

Inspiration at Floydada Show Causes Mrs. Christian's Rise To Leading Raiser of Turkeys

South Plains Resident Takes Prizes Now at International Shows; Only Part of Section of Land Used for Birds

FLOYDADA, Nov. 1—(Special)—Encouragement from the fact that she won two firsts in the first poultry show she entered her big bronze turkeys here in Floydado, started Mrs. J. D. Christian on what is said here to be one of the largest and best known turkey farms in Texas and the Southwest.

Some years ago, Mrs. Christian, who had just bought several Giant Gold Bank Bronze turkeys, entered three birds in the first Floydada show. She won two firsts and decided that it was a money making business to raise high grade turkeys. The grand championship also went to her flock.

Buys Another Pair

Later Mrs. Christian purchased a tom and one hen of the Gold Bank strain, paying $500 for the pair. From these she has in recent years raised a flock that has furnished a large number of prize winners at national shows.

Last year Mrs. Christian entered four birds at the International Poultry show in Chicago. She won first on both her yearling tom and hen and was the only entrant to win two first places.

So far this ear she has won 18 first places in two international shows. She expects to win several more prizes.

Have Section of Land

Mr. and Mrs. Christian live ten miles southwest of Floydada. They have a section of land, but devote only a part of it to the turkey business. The couple have a flock of White Leghorn chickens, a Jersey dairy herd and raise their own feed.

Modern buildings for the flocks have been built, with every convenience possible to insure satisfactory raising of birds. Special attention is paid to methods of feeding and breeding the turkeys.

All f the turkeys they can dispose of are sold easily by Mr. and Mrs. Christian. They have a demand for eggs and turkeys from all parts of the state.

In New York

Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—A couple of years ago, when Chinese restaurants began to overrun Broadway, I facetiously christened that thoroughfare "Chow Mein Street."

Today chop suey has replaced ham and eggs and corned beef and cabbage as the Manhattan national dish. It's made by the gallon, the ton and the carload. It's shoveled into the drug store and lunch counter resorts where the stenographers and clerks stand in line, fighting for an opportunity of tossing down food.

The Chow Meineries have doubled their number in the Broadway belt, and blatant loud-speakers screech the echoes of upstairs music into the highway. Night clubs find it an extremely profitable dish, since it can be turned out for relatively little cost.

One chain of drug stores uses umpty-hundred cauldrons a day. Over on Second avenue where Yiddish, Austrian, Russian and Hungarian eating places flourish, the bright lights now offer "chop suey and chow mein." People from the old worlds, nourished for generations on goulash and frigeroy, may be found tampering with chopsticks.

The Chinese food invasion means two millions a year to one concern alone. This chow-meinery, appearing under the familiar name of Chin and Lee, turn it out by the ton. They were the bright young men who sold the drug stores on the idea of using it as a lunch-time dish. Last year their business ran over a million, and is growing.

Church socials and high school parties now order it instead of ice cream and beans.

And the funny part of it is—or at least so I was once informed in San Francisco—that China never heard of such dishes as chop suey or chow mein, both having presumably been invented in San Francisco's Chinatown.

By the way, if you must eat Chow Mein, take an old-timer's advice and order Chun Far Chow Mein, even if its costs a few dimes more.

And while speaking of food, as who doesn't three times a day, the humble artichoke is coming into its own. Years ago, when I drove my Lizzie over the hills of Half Moon Bay, Calif., it was possible to drop suddenly out of a maze of cluttered hills into a seaside valley cluttered with plants strangely resembling the cactus. Here the artichoke was the chief industry, and the Italians were the leading customers. But now, I learn, it's possible to find 'em on the best tables.

Which brings me around to jotting down a few spots where the eating is recommended, if and when you're in New York:

Sardi's (W. 44th street) for almost anything on the menu. . . . The Blue Ribbon (W. 44th) for German cooking. . . . The Royal (Second avenue) for Hungarian dishes. . . . Henry's (36th street) for elegant hors d'oeuvres. . . Luchow's (14th street, near Union Square) for old-fashioned atmosphere and German food. . . Monetta's (just back of Chinatown on Mulberry street) for some of the best Italian cooking to be found hereabouts. . . El Chico for Spanish food that isn't chili con carne (on Sheridan Square in the Village). . . . Chili Vikla (W. 49th street) if you like your dishes hot. Miyako (58the street) if you like to try Japanese food. . . Mme. Moscowitz and Horowitz, on Second avenue) for Rumanian and Hungarian dishes, as well as for Yiddish chants that are not to oe sneezed at, and The Original Moscowitz, on the same street, for similar food, plus cymbalon music.

Dave's Blue Room, Reuben's or Lindy's for a look at the Broadway mob, as well as for "straight" food. . . The Kritchma or the Kapitchock for Russian dishes. . . Also the Russian Arts, if you want a little night club and college mixed in—to say nothing of Sadko's, if you want your entertainment to be superior. All of which we'll continue some day.

You're Missing A Lot Of Entertainment And Education If You Haven't One Of The Latest Model Radios At Home

Inventor Claims He Can Easily Triple Radio Channels

English Scientist in U. S. to Show His Findings; Awaits Patents Before Describing Apparatus in Detail

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—Good program reception on a channel one-third the width o fthe present broadcasting channel of 10 kilocycles is claimed by Dr. James Robinson of London, inventor of the Stenode radiostat.

The British inventor, who is demonstrating his system of reception to American radio engineers, says he can narrow the paths of transmission so as to triple unabls space in the ether and thus speed development of television which requires wide channels.

Made Demonstration

In a demonstration of his system before radio scientists here, Dr. Robinson used a standard receiver of high selectivity. He introduced a beat note which was audible as an annoying whistle in a program being received from a Washington station. He then hooked up the receiver with his radiostat and the program came in clrearly, with the whistle eliminated.

He says the purpose of his visit to America is to show "what we already have been able to prove to the satisfaction of European scientists, namely, that super-selectivity can be accomplished with complete retention of all tones."

Dr. Robinson declines to describe his apparatus in detail because of "pending patents."

RADIO DRAMATICS

Demand or radio dramatics in the northwest has caused KSTP, St. Paul, to establish a department devoted solely to the development of such plays. It is under the direction of Thomas D. Rishworth, former leader of dramatics at the University of Minnesota.

The second act of the opera "Tannhauser" will open the fourth year of the Chicago Civic opera broadcasts over NBC's chain, Saturday evening, November 1. Each Saturday night, for 13 weeks, well known operatic selections will be put on the air.

Radio Engineer Explains Methods Of Synchronization; Problems are Overcome by Ether Men of Science

By CHAS. W. HORN
General Engineer, National Broadcasting Company

The method of synchronizing which we have developed requires connecting lines which supply all stations with a fundamental frequency or tone. This frequency is used to control the frequency of each transmitter on the system and therefore insures absolute operation on the exact frequency.

This was not the greatest problem to be overcome. Such operation was possible over a period of years. The big problem was to prevent distortion due to interference between stations operating on the same frequency but which still were what engineers term "out of phase." This is, while the frequency was the same, the miniature waves which each station transmitted at that frequency failed to match, or overlap, exactly.

This is termed phase interference and causes a form of distortion. This has finally been prevented by use of special equipment, the details of which cannot be disclosed at present.

By the synchronization system, a number of transmitters, or booster stations, will be connected by land wire to a single broadcasting source for broadcasting a program on the same wavelength at the same time. There will be one land line carrying the carrier frequency and the program, while another will be the synchronizing wire keeping the transmitters on the same frequency and in phase.

Power Is Unlimited

A main station and a booster station can be of any power, the power depending directly upon the locality to be served and the nature of the country, as well as the number and frequency of such booster stations.

Theoretically there should be no limit to the number of stations that can be operated on one frequency. But in practice that does not hold true, for the following reasons.

1. The prime consideration is an economic one and depends upon what territory must be served.

2. The regulations and laws now in effect require certain separation in frequency so that at present it is not practical to provide a single network on one wave across the country or even half way across.

3. No practical tests have yet been conducted with any large number of stations or over any great distance, so that difficulties will undoubtedly be encountered which must be solved.

Again, theoretically there can be as many synchronized systems as there are wavelengths or channels properly spaced. But this also becomes a matter of economy and desire on the part of the public.

RADIO DEMONSTRATED

CHICAGO. (AP)—Radio's usages in modern warfare were demonstrated at the Chicago radio show, Illinois national guardsmen operated transmitters and receivers under combat conditions.

A two-way radio telephone between remote parts o fthe show room was demonstrated. The guardsmen also set up and operated the short wave control station of the Thirty-third division.

Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, will deliver an address about the annual roll call, which begins on November 11, from Washington over WEAF's chain, November 8 at 6:45 p. m. (CST).

'Just a Little White Lie' Starts NBC Star Off on Pacific Coast as Annette Hastings Proves Favorite

BY NEA SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Annette Hastings, lyric soprano, "baby star" of the NBC Pacific Division, began her career on a—"Well, it was just a little white lie," confesses the brown-eyed girl with the ruddy-gold hair, whose voice is heard through the NBC network as one of the Coquettes. "All I did was to add three years to my age, instead of taking them off, as most women would have done!"

Annette was 16 and a junior student at a private school for girls in San Francisco.

The San Francisco Grand Opera Company was going into rehearsal, and Annette obtained an audition with Gaetano Merola, conductor. He was enthusiastic about her voice, so Annette, having learned that youth might bar her from professional appearances in opera, blithely announced herself 19.

She cut classes for rehearsals and made her debut in a minor role in "Rigoletto." She never went back, but sang all that season with the opera company and worked in a music store to pay for music lessons when the engagement ended.

She sang the following season again, but her voice, too young for the strain put upon it, began to suffer. Back Annette went to the music store, to wish she were older.

Then came a chance to sing before the microphone, and a new world opened for the girl with the sunny smile and hair. She was just 18, and as NBC'c "baby star" she made an instantaneous success.

Annette's operatic ambitions have not been laid aside, however. She is still studying and hopes to sing Aida, Mimi, Butterfly and such roles some day. She has a good working base in her mastery of four languages.

Annette Hastings

Elisabeth Rethberg, the beautiful German singer, is Annette's ideal. Tennis and horseback riding are her favorite sports, and Gypsy, her police dog, is the sole owner of her heart, she declares.

Little Jack Little is back at WLW with a six-day schedule of broadcasting and a whole new bag of tricks.

Hoover Has a Technique All Own on Radio

President Is Always on Hand Promptly; Tests Voice and Equipment Before Starting His Addresses

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.— (AP) — Herbert Hoover has a presidential radio technique all his own.

He has a reputation among broadcasting officials as a man who "knows his microphone," and he never varies from his system.

A specially constructed microphone, which no one but the president uses, is stored in the Washington headquarters of the National Broadcasting company.

The president always talks directly into the "mike" in a calm manner. He is extremely prompt for his radio appearances.

Addresses by him, going out over the air lanes from the White House, are made from the Lincoln study, and it is there that he seats himself several minutes before broadcast time and reads a few lines from his speech, so that engineers may get a voice level test. The talk is always typewritten on thin cards enclosed in a small black leather notebook.

There are duplicate transmitting facilities in the study, for nothing is ever allowed to interfere with the success of the broadcasting.

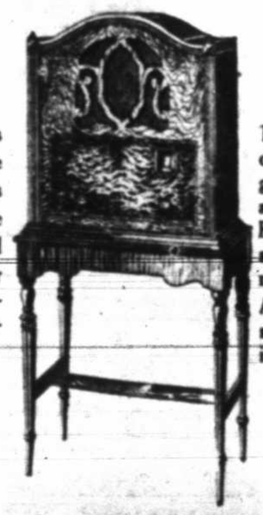

The chief executive sits with perfect composure until the announcer gives the signal for him to begin. Once the controls are set they are seldom touched, for Mr. Hoover speaks in an even tone.

Mr. Hoover is an enthusiastic radio listener as well as an important broadcaster.

A Smashing Serial Of Football And Love

'MUD AND GLORY'

Written for the Lubbock Daily Journal and King Features Syndicate by James M. Neville. Copyright by King Features Syndicate. All rights reserved.

SYNOPSIS

Red Thomas, freshman football ace, is jealous of Terry Malone's ability on the field. In a quarrel, Red breaks Terry's arm. After a year's absence, Terry decides to leave Princeton and go to Yale. Sonny Drayton takes Terry to a party given by Margot Blair, whom Terry has been anxious to meet. Sonny confides Terry's plans to Margot and urges her to persuade him to stay at Princeton. Margot likes Terry and agrees.

CHAPTER VIII

Burne shrugged his shoulders and in silence the three boys walked across the field. The varsity coach greeted Terry and insisted that he have dinner with the squad. Terry sat down and took in carefully all the men about him. It was that hour of a summer evening when sunlight flames slowly into burning gold and then fades quickly into the dreamy red and blue of twilight. Over him swept a song with more than a hint of regret. If fate had been a little kinder, he might have been one of the athletes along the table; one of the coatless crowd wearing white oxford shirts opened at the neck; anticipating stirring football games in the near future. He ate his dinner without relish.

Later, he walked with his former roommates down under tapestries of trees darkened by blue shadows of evening. Past Ivy Club, proud and indifferent to her clinging neighbors; past the white pillars of colonial and red-bricked, polished Cottage; past sprawling Tiger Inn. They crossed the campus and passed Gothic walls pale blue and strangely quiet. In the dusty glow from the street, two bronzed Tigers crouched before Nassau Hall.

They walked out into the hot confusion of the street and joined the group of athletes crowded on the steps of Frank Kane's store. The talk centered on the New York Giants' spurt for the pennant, Babe Ruth's hitting and football prospects in rival colleges.

Surrounded by the type of men he considered the salt of the earth, and listening to intimate stories about famous athletes at Lale and Harvard related by boys who played side by side with them in school, Terry Malone was in his own kind of paradise. No one appreciated the fact more than Sonny Drayton. His idea of getting into Princeton one of the greatest schoolboy athletes in the land assumed color and shape.

The night before Terry planned to go up to New Haven, Sonny Drayton arranged with Margot for an informal dinner party. Terry sat next to her. Like all girls raised in a restricted circle, she welcomed the opportunity of talking with a man not stamped with the mannerisms of her own set. Had Terry been suave and blase, she might not have been interested. She had met too many men in Paris, New York and Newport even as a sub-debutante to be impressed with men skilled in the monotonous small talk of society.

Terry was delightfully naive. His eyes sparkled and seemed to say, "You're wonderful, Margot. Beautiful!" She adored his smile, so easy and compelling, which was caused, no doubt, not so much by what was said but from happiness bubbling within.

Margot was flattered by his adoration and, feeling very much at home, drew him out, made him talk. Terry responded and rambled on about his experiences in the West, days at Andover with Sonny Drayton. They talked of their future plans. Margot was starting in as a freshman at Vassar that fall.

They got on gloriously. Together they were a handsome pair with that peculiar glow young people have under the spell of mutual attraction.

Watching them, Sonny Drayton shrewdly waited until an appropriate time to switch the general conversation to Terry and his intended entrance into Yale. Mr. Blair liked Terry. His forehead contracted and he almost lost his sense of propriety when he learned that Terry was a superb quarter-back.

"What's this?" he cried, "that boy isn't going to New Haven! Terry, speak up. I never heard of such a thing.

Before Terry had formulated an answer, Margot turned on him with amazingly innocent eyes.

"Oh, you're just kidding, aren't you? Why father he's a Princeton type if I ever saw one." She pressed his fingers under the table. "Go on, Terry, Tell Dad that you're just fooling, that you never even thought of going to Yale".

The conflict was on.

"What's the matter with Yale?" said Terry.

"Nothing. They give wonderful parties in Sheff. I like lots of Yale boys but—" she paused, took his hand and regarded him tenderly. "I don't know what it is. You remind me of a boy who was here years ago. I was just a little thing. But he was nice to me. I still have a picture of him in my room, standing by an airplane. He was killed in France. His name was Hobey Baker."

He reminded her of Hobey Baker! Ye gods! Sitting there, suddenly smiling at everyone, he was at the highest peak of human happiness, when the world looked rosy; when the mind refused to believe in deception. He wanted to do something amazingly silly or startling or wicked to express his feelings. He did not see Sonny winking at bewildered Burne Warwick, did not notice that Margot looked very sweet and dumb with her eyes on the flowers in the center of the table.

Then facing the facts of fermenting trouble he lived again the tormented hours of tossing on hospital cots with a broken arm that refused to mend in the allotted time. He recalled the grinding pain of having it reset; of weary sitting on the sidelines watching able-bodied men at play; of the piercing aches even now when dampness soaked through to his injured shoulder. How could he justify returning to Princeton with Red riding the crest of football popularity before him, with trying to make the varsity with Thomas in the same backfield? He shook his head sadly.

Spurred on by the spirit of conquest rather than any deep, sincere motive, and sensing his muddled condition, Margot fluttered her hand in his under the table. "Oh, Terry, please stay here. We all want you to—so much!" Her warm hand weakened his firm determination by the bright promise of happy hours together. He listened to her charmed words.

"I just know we can have lots of fun—I mean you and me—if you stay here." Her voice was a whisper, soft, caressing. "I could care for you, Terry, More than anyone."

He was lost in a whirl of ecstasy. Forgotten were the resolutions, the rationalism of going to Yale, of staying out of swinging distance with Red Thomas. Under the table his hand squeezed Margot's fingers.

"I'll stay."

It was a satisfying decision. His spirits soared. Mr. Blair called for champagne to celebrate the occasion with proper ceremony. Burne Warwick did not approve of the underhanded methods of both Sonny and Margot, yet was happy about the result. Sonny had the conquering look of a diplomat who pulled a clever trick. He winked at Margot. She did not wink back.

Terry became light-hearted, charming and attractive. Margot looked at him. She was flushed and lovely, animated with the joy of conquest. Her eyes dropped on the table. It was so easy! What gullible fools men were, she reflected. Just a few sweet words, a little hand pressing, a soft smile and they tumbled over like wooden soldiers.

Nevertheless, Terry was charming and tender and romantic. She felt a little ashamed. Idly playing with an emerald ring on her finger, she wondered vaguely how everything would turn out.

Margot Blair was a very modern young girl. Raised in an age when the world did not seem over-bright when it was the vogue to be casual, frank and cynical about things regarded as serious and sacred, she had a critical habit of mind which made her seem older than she was, and a little cold. She had a high estimate of herself, which was justified, and had formulated a working code which governed her conduct in having a good time. Seeking a happy solution to the difficult art of living gracefully and without inconvenience, she had discarded the mouldy, virtues and syndicated thought handed down from inhibited ancestors.

Her deep blue eyes were rather moody and challenging when she was confronted with the baffling problems of human relations. In the endless round of resorts where the idle and rich foregathered, she noted many things which were scribbled down in a book of impressions called her Credo.

Margot was one of the first girls who defined love as "being a slave to one's glands." At the French finishing school, she added, "Love and all the treacherous devices of moonlight, loneliness, beauty and such are merely nature's method of race propagation. I respect the ruthless, wasteful force of nature and intend to beat the game by staying at arms length from all entanglements of the heart."

While in Paris the summer before, and playing around with an unmoral cosmopolitan group of young people, she scribbled, "Love is just an emotion. Emotions do not last. Yet I want to fall in love someday. It is the most luxurious thing in the world to me; that which fills the spirit with warmth and radiance, which colors the morning sun, which makes one hour more glorious than another; which brings out nobility of soul. Few people ever seem to experience the real thing. Love seems to be dying out, getting old-fashioned, in this complicated modern day. People have too much to do, so many other things to think about that they can't find time for it. Among the married people I know there seems to be very little affection or passion. I know many people who are married and don't seem even to like each other.

"Marriage has little to do with love. Just a contract entered into for social or economical convenience. Yet there seems to be no other way. However, I'm young yet, and know very little of what it's all about. I'll learn."

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The pony on which Clowny rode seemed very glad to have a load upon his back. He pranced around and Clowny cried. "I hope that I don't spill. This little fellow's very peppy and he doesn't seem to want to stand. Just watch me ride him, Tinymites, and you will get a thrill."

"Well, go ahead," one Tiny cried. "You're hopping 'round. Why don't you ride? Most anyone can do as well as you are doing now. If you are scared to let him run, get down and let me have some fun. If I am given just one chance, I'll shortly show you how."

Then Clowny shouted, "Giddy-app!" The pony got a friendly slap, which made him start to gallop down the little winding street. This made the whole bunch laugh in glee and Coppy shouted, "Mercy me! I hope he doesn't run away. This ought to be a treat."

Around and 'round the pony went and then the pony owner sent the other Tinies out to bring poor Clowny safely back. They grabbed the reins. The pony stopped. All of a sudden Clowny flopped. "That's all your fault," cried Clowny. "Common sense you Tinies lack."

Just then a small cart came in sight and Carpy cried. "Say, that's just right for all of us to ride in. Come, let's take a little spin." The man who owned the cart agreed and Scouty cried, "That's all we need!" They ran up to the little cart and promptly piled right in.

The Travel Man stood by and smiled. Thought he, "I'd like to be a child and have the fun those Tinies have. They're happy as can be." Wee Scouty drove around a bit. Then Clowny took his turn at it. He shouted, loudly, "I am good! Just keep your eye on me."

ooth Tarkington Returns to His Writings With "Mirthful Haven"

opeless Struggle Of Small Town Girl Is Told

"MIRTHFUL HAVEN" finds Booth Tarkington in a mood hewhat similar to that in which wrote "Alice Adams." He shows brave, determined and hope- struggle of a small-town girl rise above the handicaps of nily and environment, and he ws, once more, an unforgetable aracter sketch; but in some way book fails to ring true at the y end, and you are left with the ling that Mr. Tarkington has quite lived up to his own stand- is.

dna Pelter is the daughter of shiftless drifter and bootlegger a small town on the Maine ast. An accident takes her nporarily out of these sur- ndings and puts her for a few rs in an exclusive finishing hool, and she returns to her me town to live a dual life— ng with her father on the old is, and surreptitiously mingling h the wealthy summer folk o do not dream that she is one the despised "natives."

She Fails In Love

Naturally, the girl falls in love h a lad in this forbidden up- class stratum of society; and t as naturally, her despairing nt to escape from her past is med to failure.

ike Alice Adams, she puts up a iant struggle and takes her de- t standing up; but the sur- ingly hopeful, rising note with ich Alice Adams' tragic story is is somehow blurred in irthful Haven." The upward e is there, to be sure, but it is trick. Mr. Tarkington seems to ve evaded something, as if he re too fond of his heroine to her work out her own salva- n unassisted.

Needless to say, "Mirthful ven" is decidedly worth read- g. He does not miss real great- ss by a very wide margin. This book is published by ubleday, Doran & Co.

CAREFUL STUDY OF A PLOMACY THAT FAILED

"Portrait of a Diplomatist" is of Sir Arthur Nicholson, a noted British pre-war statesman, by his son, Harold Nicholson; and it is a very good presentation of the virtues and the faults of the statesmanship that led up to the World War.

Sir Arthur played a large part in the devious diplomacy that brought France, Russia and England together in close alliance. He was a man of high intelligence and of a keen sense of duty. As his son points out, he strove honestly to do the best thing for England; and the writer truthfully remarks that no matter how we criticise the diplomacy of the old school, it is hard to see how Sir Arthur, given his tradition and his viewpoint, could have done other then he did.

That, of course, is in itself the ultimate criticism of the old diplomacy. This "great-powers game," as H. G. Wells calls it, was founded on a basic error. The diplomats, Sir Arthur and all the rest, really wanted to avert war; they really wanted to keep their nations secure; and what they got was 1914. The goal simply was not to be gained their way.

"Portrait of a Diplomatist" is very well done. The Houghton-Mifflin Co. is the publisher.

A GOOD MYSTERY YARN WITH A CLEVER PUZZLE

One of the best of the fall mystery stories is "The Murderer Returns," by Edwin Dial Torgerson. The scene of this crime is laid in Montreal, and the author has injected a good deal of suspense into a cleverly-contrived and ably-told story.

French detectives—in fiction—are generally very fine men. There is one in this book. To be sure, he is really a French-Canadian, and not a genuine son of La Patrie, but he falls into the general classification.

"The Murderer Returns" is published by Richard R. Smith, Inc., at $2.

ONE-PARAGRAPH REVIEWS OF WORTH-WHILE BOOKS

Among the current books that are forth looking at are the following:

"The Gun Club Cook Book," by Charles Browne, issued by Scribner's. The only cook book I ever saw, or expect to see, that is actually humorous. It not only contains many good recipes — at least they look good; it is packed with a dry wit that brings many chuckles. It is worth owning even if you don't feel the need of adding to your knowledge of cookery.

"The Wings of Adventure," by Sir Philip Gibbs, printed by Doubleday-Doran. A collection of short stories, many of which—especially the first one in the book—are more than ordinarily good.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive," by Frank Buck, assisted by Edward Anthony; issued by Simon and Schuster. The adventures of a man who collects wild animals for zoos and circuses; highly exciting in spots, and interesting all the way.

"The Complete Sherlock Holmes," in two volumes, published by Doubleday-Doran. Just the thing for Sherlock Holmes' numerous admirers; all of the Holmes saga under one roof.

Chicago comes another tersely written

PATHS OF GANGDOM GET IN NEW SULLIVAN BOOK

A scant four months after the murder of Alfred J. Lingle in ten volume by Edward Dean Sullivan, newspaperman — "Chicago Surrenders," a sequel to his "Rattling the Cup on Chicago Crime."

It winds devious paths into politico-criminal turbulence that centers about Chicago since Al Capone and other vice lords built an underworld industry of bootlegging and racketeering.

Prohibition and its effect on gangdom, easy money and homicides incident to gang activities—Sullivan deals with all these.

They enter, too, into "The Third Degree" by Emanuel H. Lavine, New York police reporter.

THE MORE YOU HAVE THE MORE YOU WANT

"Love is like whiskey," declares Mary Grigs in her new novel, "Bid Her Awake." (Houghton-Muffitn). "The more you have, the more you like it; it's the nicest possible way of drowning your troubles. It's like the merry-go-round you get at a fair. When you're not on the damned thing, you'd give your eyes to be on one of the horses. But there's only one way of getting off again, and that's when the music stops. It's either too soon or too late."

LA FARGE'S NOVEL TO BE SHOWN IN DRAMA

The rumor that Oliver La Farge's Pulitzer prize novel, "Laughing Boy," is soon to be produced on Broadway became a fact when David Belasco recently announced his acceptance of the dramatic version made by Otis Chatfield-Taylor. Formerly conected with Houghton Mifflin Company, Mr. Chatfield-Taylor is the son of H. C. Chatfield-Taylor of Chicago, author of "Tawny Spain" and "Cities of Many Men."

Legendary

The characters of Frank Shay's book, "Here's Audacity!" are America's legendary heroes—Paul Bunyan, mightiest of the loggers; John Henry, the steel driving negro; Casey Jones, the railroad engineer; Strap Buckner, Kemp Morgan, Pecos Bill, Old Stormalong, Kwasind, Tony Beaver and the White Steed.

Their stories are anecdotes, too, exaggerated tales of the impossible spun around supermen in the bunkhouses of lumber camps, by cowboys on the range and by workers in the oil fields.

The characters are giants akin to the Pantagruel of Rabelais. Bunyan and his blue ox, Babe, are perhaps the best known, besides Casey Jones.

Interesting Books

Among other books on the fall list that are worth your while the following:

"TAFT AND ROOSEVELT: the Intimate Letters of Archie Butt"; issued by Doubleday, Doran & Co., in two columes at $7.50. In these fat volumes the late Major Butt, military aide to Presidents Taft and Roosevelt, presents an intensely human, revealing portrait of Taft, throws much light on the famous Taft-Roosevelt break and traces the history of a highly unlucky administration.

"INSTIGATION OF THE DEVIL" by Edmund Pearson; published by Scribners at $2. This connoisseur of crime retells here a collection of tales of murder, some of them very mystifying and all of them interesting. Good entertainment, ably presented.

"DOWN THE RED LANE," by Henri Nadel, published by Bobbs-Merrill at $2.50. A sensitive and talented Frenchman describes his career as an infantryman in the World War, in a book that gives an unforgettable picture without falling into the current stereotype.

"SAM HOUSTON, PATRIOT," by Flora Warren Seymour; issued by The Century Co. at $2. A well-written boys' life of the great Texan, packed with interest—and capable of appealing to grown-ups, as well.

Listeners who like one-man shows will find one worth listening to on WBBM each Tuesday and ... at 6:15 p. m. ... Len ... the curly chef, of ... line of songs and patter that sound new.

Celia said the hat looked very well.

"We're going to ——" the other girl said, naming a small, fashionable restaurant. "Dicky's to meet us there. It's all right. He knows I'm always late."

"Who's Dicky?" Celia asked.

LISI grinned. "The plot thickens," she said. "Haven't had time to explain why I really called you yesterday. Dicky's my Big Thrill. He's an actor—oh, a good one, too! Going to open in a wonderful show next month. But you see I can't have him out at the house or meet him at the club because of Kate. Every time a man I like sees Kate they forget me like that!" Lisi's fingers snapped. "She goes after them on purpose. Kate's mean as she dickens that way. Ask her little sister if you want to learn all. I fished up this excuse of lunching with you so I could get into town without a row. Anyhow, I didn't think you'd mind—"

It was impossible to hold resentment against Lisi. Celia was a little uncomfortable about lunching with this strange man but her companion waved aside her scruples.

"Dicky's a love!" she declared. "Wait till you see him."

The man who rose when they entered the foyer of the restaurant was not, to Celia's way of thinking, "a love." He was too blond, too conscious of his regular features, and too eager to talk about himself.

A waiter led them to a corner table which had been reserved. Lisi fell into eager conversation about how rehearsals were going, and whether Dicky had succeeded in getting his part enlarged.

He had not but he was going to talk to the director that afternoon.

Celia sat back and listened. She thought the attraction between Lisi and this fair-haired Dicky curious. A vision of Tod Jordan's dark good looks rose in her memory.

"But Celia!" Lisi turned laughing. "I forgot to tell you Dicky's name! Isn't that a scream? Listen, he's Richard Brandon Caruthers on the theater programs. Remember that! Last spring Dicky was playing in "Finders Keepers" when I met him. Oh, you should have seen him—"

"It was a good part." Caruthers put in. He explained to Celia that he played juvenile roles and preferred drama though he had appeared in musical comedies.

The luncheon was appetizing. Celia devoted herself to the creamed sweetbread and salad and let the others talk. It was interesting to hear this familiar gossip of the stage. Somehow she had expected an actor to be a more glamorous person than Richard Brandon Caruthers.

At 3:30 they left the restaurant. Dicky was to report at the theater at four. They all climbed into the coupe and Lisi drove toward Broadway. Celia dared not admit it was her first view of that famous thoroughfare. Her father and grandmother apparently had little interest in the theater.

IN the afternoon sun she thought the great electric signs looked hideous and the street had a cheap, dismal air. It was very hot. Curious looking men and women passed. Caruthers left them in front of a theater which to Celia was one of the ugliest.

All the way to Grammercy Park Lisi chattered of the young man's attractions.

"You know," she said impulsively, "I like you, Celia. I knew I could depend on you. You're on the level!

Celia replied that she liked Lisi too. It was agreed they should meet again soon. Then Lisi departed and Celia entered the house.

The next day was dreary but on Saturday Mrs. Mitchell and Celia drove to Westchester to attend a society fair for the benefit of charity. It was one of the charities of which Mrs. Mitchell served as a board member.

Celia was not interested until she visited the fortune teller's tent. Her grandmother, by an odd quirk of character, had the greatest faith in seers.

"Ask her to read your future!" Mrs. Mitchell urged and the girl went into the brightly festooned bower.

She offered her palm to the aged gypsy.

"Can you see anything there?" Celia asked as she sat down.

The old woman studied the hand several moments.

"Sweethearts" she muttered. "Two of them. One handsome! I see—"

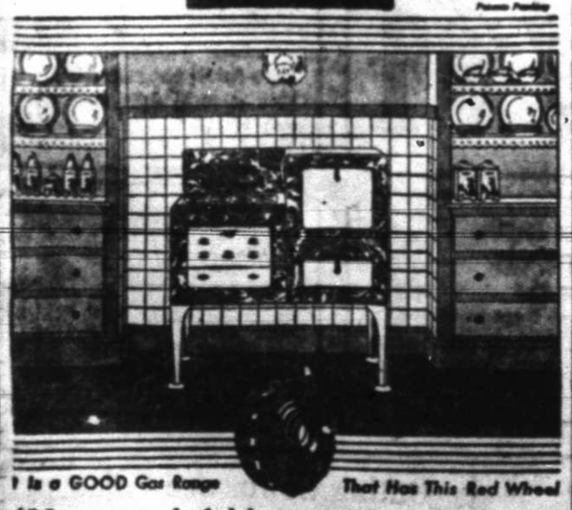

The gypsy's sharp eyes darted upward and her voice rose "I see —Danger!"
