MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

Hon. Marvin Jones, known the country over in political circles as "The Panhandle Kid," made a brilliant speech in opposition to the Fordney Tariff bill. Marvin gave a history of the system of taxation, going back to the eighth century for his material and paying strict attention to the Ancient Moors, Berbers, Syrians, Africans and Arabs, "all bent on plunder." Marvin did not think much of these ancient pillagers and he has scant regard for the tariff collectors who came after them. This is his viewpoint. "We produce more than we consume, therefore to keep agriculture and business going and all of our people employed we must have outside markets. "The Panhandle Kid" handed it to the American steel manufacturers. In the days of the good old Dingley tariff these manufacturers sold steel rails in foreign countries at twenty-eight dollars per ton at a time when they were selling steel rails in the United States at thirty-two to thirty-six dollars per ton. They could afford to pay the ocean freightage and then make money on the steel rails shipped to foreign lands. Republican tariff makers placed crude oil on the free list. They placed hides on the free list. They placed cotton on the free list, but they placed tariffs on all importations of kitchen, household and hospital utensils, all watches and clocks, all of the ten thousand articles used by the American people. In closing, his pungent remarks, "The Panhandle Kid" waxed eloquent. "Robin Hood is pictured in fable, in history, in song and in story as a robber but to many people he is idolized as a hero because he robbed the rich and gave to the poor," he said, "but no such basis for justification can be offered here, because in so far as a high protective tariff rules the schedules above the rates which are necessary to produce revenue it takes from the poor and gives to the rich. The world has just passed through a great crisis. Forty million men were on the firing line in the greatest war of all history. Nearly 10,000,000 lives were lost. Billions of treasure were expended. The treasuries of the nations of the earth were depleted. In fact, many of the great nations of the world are practically bankrupt. America is the one great nation that is left. She has passed through this trial by fire, and while before the war she was rather a debtor than a creditor nation, she has emerged from the conflict a creditor nation. Foreign trade is essential to her prosperity. It is peculiarly unfortunate, therefore, that at such a time those who are in charge of shaping the policies of this government should see fit to pass a tariff law which carries the highest schedule in the history of the government. I told you in the beginning of the Moorish invasion of Spain. For centuries the Moor remained in charge of the Provinces of Cadiz and Andalusia and the seaport town of Tarifa and levied their toll upon commerce. Much was the wealth and many the trophies they sent to the Caliph. Their chiefs increased in wealth in insolent power. They lived in regal splendor, but they were riding to their fall. In 1292 the Christians, under Gaudemus, reclaimed these Provinces, and although the Moors tried repeatedly to recapture Tarifa and these rich Provinces and to regain their power to live from the fruits of other men's toil, they could not succeed. Two centuries later they were driven out of Spain. The privileged classes in this country have grown rich behind the tariff wall. They have overrun the country and levied tribute from all to enrich the few. They have built their 'castles in Spain' and their summer homes in Florida. Emboldened by their success, they are endeavoring to get behind the highest protective rates in all history. But, like the Moors of the centuries that are gone, they are riding to their fall. The great heart of America is just and the people will again assert their rights and reclaim their land and democratic equality shall again flourish in this great free country." Marvin deserted his seat in congress and enlisted as a buck private in the world war. Regardless of his views on the tariff, he is an all-American and has the courage of conviction. Why should the manufacturers of America be protected and permitted to amass immense fortunes at the expense of the consumers of their country and the producers of raw materials forced to compete with the pauper labor and pauper produced free raw materials coming from the countries where the many toil as serfs and the few riot in luxury and live at ease?

Lord Northcliffe is the William Randolph Hearst of the British Isles. He owns a chain of rich and influential newspapers. He owns another chain of monthy magazines and still another chain of weekly newspapers. Northcliffe is in the United States. One of the bitterest feuds of the period is that which exists between Northcliffe and Lloyd-George. Lord Curzon, who first married an American girl, heiress to millions and when she died married a South American widow, heiress to more millions, is the head of the British Foreign office. Northcliffe has Curzon on his black list too. This led to the snubbing of Northcliffe by the British ambassador at Washington, who recalled invitations for a dinner and gave Northcliffe a most contemptable snubbing. The publisher is bent on the overthrow of the Little Welshman. He is determined to get the scalp of Curzon, who remarked not long since in speaking of his dead and his living wives, "I married far beneath my station, but it didn't hurt me any." Northcliffe is the greatest

FIVE RESIGN FROM POLICE FORCE SUNDAY

Commissioner Fitts Declares Action of Men in Line With Policy of Reducing Expenses.

Other Minor Changes Will Be Made Within Short Time, Department Head Announces.

With the resignation of five officers the largest shake up in the police department since the election of J. B. Fitts as police commissioner, three weeks ago, took place Sunday. With the resignations it was learned that two men had been added to the force.

Statements from the men affected indicated that their resignations in all cases were asked by the heads of the police department. In two cases the officers resigning have been members of the force over a year.

"The resignations Sunday are in line with my policy of reducing the cost of operating the police department," declared J. B. Fitts, police commissioner, Sunday when asked concerning the changes. "The present force was larger than needed at this time and the reductions were made mainly for that reason."

Mr. Fitts said that although there might be minor changes in the department later, he did not expect to reduce the force any more at the present time. He indicated that certain shifts are to be made in the present orgaisation.

Motorcycle Officers Morgan, and Newton and Patrolmen Criswell, Jenson and Parrett turned in their badges Sunday. W. M. Hackney and George Housted were added to the force.

TOP MINNOW PROVES ENEMY OF MOSQUITO

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The successful use of the cow and the top-minnow in fighting malaria spreading mosquito known as anopheles, is described in the third installment of the annual review of the Rockefeller foundation's work, made public today. The experiments were made in the bayou region of Louisiana, where the mosquito if unmolested multiplies at a tremendous rate in the still warm water.

The top minnows, it was found, devoured the mosquito eggs as fast as they were deposited save in the zones near the shore where growing vegetation afforded protection. Here the cows played their part.

The banks were turned into pastures and the cows devoured the grasses along the water edge, leaving the mosquito eggs to the mercy of the top minnows.

Work against the ravages of hookworm has been undertaken in American southern states, the report declared.

GREEKS MARCHING ON NATIONALISTS

By Associated Press.

ATHENS, July 31.—The three points on the Black Sea coast at which Greek forces were landed last week are Ineboli, Sinope and Inzerli. The troops landed at Inerli have begun a march on Adabazar. Threatened by these landings the Turkish nationalists are continuing their withdrawal toward Angora.

The commander of Greek air forces reports the capture of the Turkish steamer Kri, with a cargo of merchandise worth 300,000 drachmas, as well as 700,000 drachmas in currency. The Turks are reported by the commander to be demoralized by the blockade of the Black Sea coast, the Greeks operating within range of the guns at Samsun without being fired upon.

Hully Gee! Gum Drops Going Down

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A cut of approximately fifty percent in the price of all candy from gum drops to bon bons was announced today by a chain candy store company, following a general agitation against the price of ice cream, cold drinks and confectioneery.

Benjamin Miller, one of the company officials, made public a memorandum which he said had been sent to the National confectioner's association. It said:

"Its time we got down to reason in this matter. We have been making not 100, but 300 percent profit for a long time. This kind of business, if kept up, would create a panic."

RIOTING FOLLOWS STRIKES

Fifty Are Injured in Street Fighting in Kobe, Japan.

By Associated Press.

Kobe, Japan, July 31.—The labor [illegible] here are again being marked [illegible] fighting. Rioting occurred [illegible] in which it is estimated at least 50 persons were injured, and a sanguinary clash occurred today when disregarding the ban upon any public demonstration seven thousand ship yard strikers paraded to a local shrine, singing labor songs and shouting condemnation of the action of the authorities during yesterday's affairs, which was denounced as oppressive.

The paraders were stopped at the temple gates by 500 police, who attacked with sabres and clubs. Many of the workmen were wounded, some seriously. One hundred infantry men were called out to reinforce the police.

JAPANESE CABINET DISCUSSES STRIKE

By Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 31.—The Japanese cabinet discussed the situation at Kobe today and decided to adopt drastic measures in the belief that the riots there might be incited by some influences not discernible on the surface.

The Kensei-Kai party has adopted resolutions declaring its belief that the government is responsible for the situation.

SPANIARDS HOLD LINE BUT TRIBES PUSH CAMPAIGN

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 31.—The Tangier correspondent of the London Times quotes arrivals from Melilla as saying that the Spaniards are holding a line averaging about four miles from the town, but the key to the situation is Nador, six miles from Melilla.

General Navarro's column is holding out about 18 miles away, but it is stated that his further retreat will be very difficult. The tribes are reported still to be greatly excited and intent upon the extermination of the Spaniards. Gruesome trophies of massacres are passing from village to village.

There will be serious difficulties, according to the correspondent, in provisioning the people of Melilla, numbering probably 50,000 Spaniards. The prosperity of the town is dependent entirely upon the exportation of iron ore, and everything destructible at the mines has been destroyed.

GERMANS DECLARE FOR PEACE

Thirty Speakers Inveigh Against War in Berlin.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 31.—In front of the imperial palace in the Lustgarten where former Emperor William seven years ago made his famous war speech prior to the declaration of hostility against Russia, a huge demonstration was held today. Ten thousand red flags were flying, in contrast to the standard of the kaiser which was flown the day he made his speech.

Thirty speakers inveighed against war. Intended as a general anti-war meeting, it turned into a socialist communist demonstration, the radical speakers invading the sacred precincts of the Imperial cathedral, the columns of which were decorated with red bunting. Anti-Monarchist speakers addressed the crowd from the steps of the cathedral, while boys and girls went among the throng selling the Rote Fahne, the radical newspaper.

Hundreds of crippled soldiers in wheel chairs were wheeled about pleading for money to help "Red Russia."

PLYMOUTH READY FOR PRESIDENT

Celebration Will Culminate Year of Festivities Marking Tercentenary of Pilgrims' Landing.

European Nations Officially Represented in Pageant Marking Close of Festival.

By Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., July 31.—This old colony town as the climax of a year of celebration of the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims, has set tomorrow apart as the day for the principal exercises and prepared to welcome as its guest the president of the United States.

While the presidential yacht Mayflower with President Harding and his official party aboard was cruising toward this port, where she will anchor tomorrow morning, Plymouth made ready for its coming. The narrow streets were garlanded and arched with streamers, the log cabin that first housed the Pilgrim women and children was reproduced, and the graves of the forefathers were marked anew.

Nations Represented.

Official guests from countries connected with the Pilgrim history preceded the president. Isaac Foote, deputy mayor of Plymouth, England, was received formally by the selectmen. Jonkheer William DeBeaufort, charge de 'Affaires of the Dutch embassy at Washington, came tonight as the official representative of Holland. Captain Sydney R. Bayley, naval attache of the British embassy, came to represent the British embassy.

When the Mayflower puts into Plymouth bay tomorrow she will find anchored the battleships Delaware, North Dakota and Pennsylvania and the British cruiser Camorian. With the president's yacht will come a convoy of five destroyers. Troop C, the crack outfit of the Third cavalry, will act as bodyguard, accompanying the president to his place in a parade of floats and marching delegations.

President Will March.

The president will leave the line of march two miles from the start and will retrace in a formal Pilgrimage, the course down Leyden street, first street of the colony, which the forefathers and their families traversed on their way to the church which they built as the ground floor of their fort. The president will review the marchers, then attend an informal luncheon at the Samoset House. Members of the first national girl scout officers' training school at Long Pond will present a birch bark scroll of greetings to Mrs. Harding, who is honorary national president of the girl scouts.

Late in the afternoon, the president will speak from a stand facing Cole's hill.

Harding Will Attend Dinner.

The president will then attend an informal dinner and the presentation of "The Pilgrim Spirit," the pageant prepared by Professor George P. Baker of Harvard University, for the tercentenary.

President Harding will return to the Mayflower late in the evening to make the trip to Portland, Maine, en route to a short vacation at the summer lodge of Secretary Weeks at Lancaster, N. H.

DEFENDS DEBS IN LETTER TO PRES. HARDING

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Marvin G. Sperry, national president of the private soldiers and sailors legion, in a letter to President Harding made public tonight, declared that the "Amazing isolence and effrontry of the language used by John G. Emery, commander of the American Legion in his telegram to you on the Debs pardon case, certainly should be sharply rebuked."

"I denounce as absolutely false," Mr. Sperry's letter continued, "the claim of Colonel Emery that he represents the sentiments of the great mass of ex-service men and women in his deliberately malicious and misleading statements."

Mr Sperry referred to Debs as a "peaceful big-hearted kindly man, filled with a martyr's enthusiasm and willingly, cheerfully, to make self sacrifices for the cause of the poor, the helpless and the oppressed."

TRAINMEN WEAR CREPE AS LAST TRAIN RUNS

RELEASE OF ALL AMERICANS IN RUSSIAN PRISONS MAY BE EXPECTED WITHIN FEW DAYS

By Associated Press

RIGA, July 31.—The release of all Americans still in prison in Russia may be expected within a few days, according to Mrs. Marguerite E. Harrison of Baltimore, who spent many months in prison at Moscow, but who was released and came here under the protection of United States Senator France of Maryland. She was informed before leaving Moscow that all would be out soon.

No formal notification of the release of the Americans has yet been received at Riga and the American officials have not been advised as to whether the prisoners will be freed one at a time or in a group.

Mrs. Harrison related her story today and pictured her life in prison as differing far from sketches of her sufferings drawn from time to time by travelers arriving in the Baltic states from Russia. Although under close confinement for considerable time Mrs. Harrison gave an unemotional statement of her experiences. She was thin and frail, and her recital was interrupted occasionally by a deep cough as she unresentfully told of events from the day of her arrest to her release.

"I was first arrested on April 4, 1920, two months after I arrived in Russia, by way of the Polish frontier," she said. "I was detained two days for cross examination. Then I was released and for six months was permitted to work unmolested in Moscow.

Arrested Again

"In October I was again arrested by order of the Cheka (the soviet inquisition). I was charged among other things with having come to Russia without permission, with having supplied food illegally to American and British prisoners, and with having been in communication with people hostile to the government—all of which was true. The examiners were polite but they made me realize the seriousness of my position. "Then I was put in solitary confinement for six days—not in a dungeon but in a room like a small single room of a hotel, and at no time was I in a dungeon, and this was my only solitary confinement in Russia. I was removed on my own request, to a general room, with the occupants varying from 7 to 11, where I spent nearly eight months. This building was not originally a prison, but was an old rooming house. It was primarily used for detention only, and the physical discomforts there were due to this fact.

Rations Were Good

"Generally speaking the rations were good, or better than in the soviet dining rooms outside, but I, like the others inside and out, lost weight on them. Food packages from outside were permitted weekly, and in these I shared intermittently.

"There were periods of several weeks when I got nothing from the outside, and packages sent apparently never reached me.

"I had one more hearing in November, which was without result. At intervals after January 1, I was informed officially that there were prospects of my release if the American government formally demanded it, on the basis of trade negotiations, or in exchange for communist prisoners in America.

"On June 6, by order of the prison physician, I was removed from Cheka detention to the hospital in another and better equipped prison especially for women, where I remained until released, receiving every care and attention. The first word of immediate prospects of my release came through Senator France, who called on me on July 23 and I was finally freed and taken to a railway station, arriving just seven minutes before the train left for Riga.

Gave No Pledge

Mrs. Harrison declared she gave no pledge to the Bolsheviki not to talk outside, but refused when asked for one, saying she would not accept release under any such condition. She was kept in suspense up to the last day before her release, not knowing whether she was going to trial or freedom.

TWO INJURED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES CAR

Homer Moore and Roy Edgeman Hurled from Automobile by Impact.

Their automobile struck by a switch engine of the Wichita Valley railroad at the Holliday street crossing Sunday afternoon Homer Moore and Roy Edgeman were thrown from the machine sustaining injuries which necessitated their removal to the Wichita General hospital. The Ford automobile was thrown and dragged about forty feet completely wrecking it.

Edgeman sustained a fractured collar bone, a broken rib and internal injuries. Moore was severely bruised about the face and legs with no bones fractured. Although suffering great pain from their injuries the condition of neither of the young men who are about 20 years old, is considered serious.

According to the injured men they were unable to see the switch engine as it backed toward the street crossing due to presence of box cars on another track. They also claimed that the engine gave no warning whistle as it approached the crossing.

SOUTHWESTERN COURT TOURNEY BEGINS TODAY

DALLAS, July 31.—Play in the ninth annual tournament of the Southwestern Tennis association will open here tomorrow morning on the courts of the Dallas Lawn Tennis club. The courts were busy today with practice matches in which stars from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana tuned up for the contests of this week.

The greatest interest centers around the doubles events, as the winners are not only eligible to compete in the national doubles championship matches, which will be held in Boston next month, but the United States Lawn Tennis association defrays part of the traveling expenses of the champions of the section.

Robert Shelton, former Texas and southern champion in doubles, has been selected as official referee. Bleachers have been erected for the spectators and the courts are reported to be lightning fast.

"ANTI KLAN" WARNS JUDGE TO QUIT WACO

Prominent McLennan County Jurist Ordered to Leave Texas Within Thirty Days or Be "Planted."

Letter of Threat Accuses Him of Being Leader of the Ku Klux Klan in State.

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, July 31.—Warning to former District Judge Erwin J. Clark to leave Texas within 30 days or it would "plant" him, the alleged anti-Ku Klux Klan of Texas made its first appearance here today. Judge Clark has announced that he will not budge from the city, and defies the so-called organization to do its worst.

The note, slipped through the mail slot in the judge's office door in the Provident building some time Sunday afternoon, says:

"Judge Clark:

"You are one of the leaders of the K. K. K. in Texas. You must leave the state in 30 days or we will plant you.

(Signed)

"X. X. X., Anti-Ku Klux Klan of Texas."

Judge Denies Allegation

Judge Clark found the note about 4:30 p. m. On questioning the janitor, it was found that the note had not been in the slot at shortly after noon, when he cleaned up. The judge then brought the note to a local newspaper office, with the following statement:

"I do not consider it as coming from any responsible source, as the handwriting is rather primitive; but for the benefit of the public, I wish to state that I am not a leader of the Ku Klux Klan, nor even a member of that organization.

"Furthermore, I was born in Waco 36 years ago, and expect to spend the remainder of my life here. If this bunch of x x x x think that they can run me out of Waco or the state, they had better get busy right away, and I'll give them back 29 of their 30 days."

Written on Cheap Paper

The note was scrawled on cheap note paper, in pencil, and in very poor handwriting. "It may be only a practical joke," said the judge, "or again it may not. If its just a joke, then I probably won't hear anything more of it, but if it is intended seriously, and there is such a thing as an anti-Ku Klux Klan, Waco, then they are jumping on the wrong man, because I refuse to be bluffed out. Decent language to describe my opinion of a group of men that would write a thing as this."

COTTON PRICE FALLS LOWER DURING WEEK

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—Prices were depressed in the cotton market this week from the opening, standing 7 to 20 points under the close of the preceeding week at their highest and 68 to 84 points under at their lowest. On the close the trading months were at net losses of 41 to 51 points. October traded at 12.10 at its highest level, fell off to 11.33 cents, and closed 11.66 in the spot department, middling lost 75 points in the net results, closing at 11c, against 38.75 a year ago.

Poor trading reports from Liverpool and Manchester and the quiet in the spot markets of this country were the main factors against values. For a while the more favorable weather over the belt caused selling but it was finally quiet generally conceded that the stage had been set in the belt for the usual August deterioration and that this deterioration might be all the more severe because of the comparatively slight July deterioration, as indicated in most private bureau reports on the crops. Toward the end of the week a covering movement set in among the shorts and they caused steadiness and partial recoveries from the lowest levels.

This covering was induced by general expectations of a rather bullish showing by the bureau reports due Monday.

The week was punctured with private bureau reports on the crop, and conditions percentages returned ranged from 65.1 up to 70.3 with indicated crop figures running from 8,[illegible]000 up to 8,880,000. At the end of the week it looked as if traders expected a report from the government of around 67.5 to 68.0 indicating a crop of around 8,500,000 bales.

Feeling was more bullish regarding the size of the indicated crop than regarding the percentage of condition and most traders seemed willing to regard 8,500,000 bales as bullish in spite of the fact that it was larger than the indicated crop on July 25th, when the figures were 8,433,000 bales.

The report from the government is due at 10 o'clock New Orleans time, Monday morning, and will compare with 69.2 on June 25 of this year, 74.1 on July 25 of last year, and the ten year average of July 25 of 75.4. The average variation for the last ten years during the July condition period has been a loss of 3.4 points.

The annual report by H. G. Hester, secretary of the New Orleans cotton exchange, is due Monday and will contain statistics for which the trade has been eagerly waiting for months past. This applies particularly to the item of the carry-over, regarding which there is much dispute. The average trade looks for carry-over of about 9,500,000 bales of American cotton and anything under is likely to cause buying. The figures on the commercial crop for the year just ending, and on mill takings, exports and consumption will be statistics of great trade interest.

LOADED DICE CONFISCATED BY OFFICERS

Complete tools and equipment, said by officers to be used in loading dice and a large number of the dice were found in the room of a man arrested Saturday night by police officers in the lobby of a down town hotel.

The man is being held by the police for further investigation. A vagrancy charge was filed against his wife, arrested at the same time.

The tools included an automatic drill, a filler, polishing powder, and quick silver. The dice included all kinds. Some were wrapped in small packages ready for delivery in the opinion of the police.

B. F. JOHNSON OPPOSED TO SALARY CUT

Special to the Record News

AUSTIN, July 31.—Declaring that he has and will in the future stand for saner economy than that indicated by the action of the house in cutting the appropriations for the state university to a minimum, R. F. Johnson, representative from the Wichita Falls district, has answered numerous wires that he has received from constituents [illegible] the action of the legislature now in session.

Replying to protests from Charles I. Frances, L. R. Buchanan, W. M. McGregor, J. H. Barnard, Mrs. M. M. Addickes, Jerome S. Stone, R. M. Myers, W. F. Weeks, D. R. Boone, A. H. Britain, J. T. Montgomery, A. D. Montgomery, D. C. Wood and P. P. Langford, all of Wichita Falls, Mr. Langford has written as follows:

"Dear Sirs and Madam:

"Your telegram with reference to the university appropriation was received this afternoon after the appropriation for the main university had been cut to shreds by an overwhelming majority of the house. The members who are proposing these cuts are actuated by a desire for economy as reflected in the speech of the governor and by the press of the state, however, believing that the people desired economy of the saner sort and do not desire the destruction of the higher institutions of learning, I have steadfastly refused to concur in the will of the majority, therefore remained with the small band which are as effectual as "Custer's Band" in his last rally.

"At this moment they are engaged in cutting the appropriation for the medical branch, and will soon pass on to the other institutions, evidencing a determination to cut them all to the point where I think disastrous consequences will ensue.

"Regreting my inability to stem the tide and assuring you of my steadfastness of purpose, I am

"Yours very truly,

"B. F. JOHNSON."

CATCH FISH, 42 POUNDS.

PRINCETON, Mo., July 31.—The fish stories have come into vogue again. It took half a dozen men to land a yellow catfish from Grand river near here. The fish weighed 42 pounds and was 47 inches long.

The "fish yarn" was sustained by the fact that the catch was brought to town and enjoyed by several families.

MONTHLY REVIEW OF FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD SHOWS NATION IS STILL FACING DEPRESSION

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Business reaction in basic lines of industry still was reflected during July in volume of business, extent of unemployment and depression of production, said the monthly review of general economic conditions issued tonight by the federal reserve board. It was added that seasonal dullness in practically all lines of trade presented material alteration in general business conditions.

Copper and zinc, which were said to suffer from lack of demand and extreme depression of prices, were mentioned especially in the connection, although the board declared there had been noticeable improvement in production of cement and structural steel as a result of growth in building operations.

Mid-summer retail business, the board asserted, has been in some respects better than usual while the outlook for a satisfactory autumn business in a number of lines, such as knit goods and cotton textiles was declared to be decidedly encouraging. Consumers' demand as reflected in the volume of retail trade, continued as good or better than at this time last year.

Continuing prospects of excellent food crops was declared to be the most hopeful feature in the general outlook. Little change in the cotton crop was noted, with about two-thirds of last year's production expected.

Price changes during the month have shown no pronounced tendencies, the board stated.

Greater stability was manifested in the textile, boot and shoe industries, although important declines have taken place in other lines, such as iron and steel, and particularly automobiles.

The unemployment situation has remained practically unchanged, according to the review, with labor authorities reporting serious depletion of the savings of men who have been out of work as well as of unemployment funds of trade unions.

Desiring to see a resumption of full production, the board said, apparently has led to operations of some plants on a non-profit making basis, with wage scales correspondingly reduced or employes working on part time.

Money rates have become distinctly easier, the review continued, but fluctuations in exchange and instable foreign financial conditions have prevented any material improvements in foreign trade. Coincident with the falling off in this trade, the board added, there has been a reduction in the proportion of this country's commerce transported in American vessels and a corresponding increase in the proportion carried in foreign bottoms.

Much is being done in Japan to encourage conservation and reforestation and the government and forestry associations are endeavoring to bring to the people a knowledge and realization of the conditions which must be met, says the American Forestry Magazine. Japan has now three imperial universities, 4 academies and several lower class schools of forestry. The manufacture of wood pulp is a growing industry in Japan. She now has thirty wood pulp hulls and produces annually 280,000 tons of chemical and mechanical pulp. The consumption of pulp wood is about 400 000 cords a year. Spruce and fir are mostly used as pulp woods and are grown in Hokkaido and Sakhalin, the northern islands of Japan.

PORCH COMFORT

If the screened-in porch is open to public view so that you are annoyed by curious ones, you can prevent prying eyes by painting the screen Donald, white wash—not a thick one, too late suite paint—now a thick one will let enough to keep out the air. You will then be able to see out but the outsider may not look in, except at night when the porch light is on and the inside is lighter than the outside.

To enclose and make secluded that part of the porch where you have the couch for your naps, hang a curtain of green denim over a frame work made of gas piping fashioned to suit your convenience. Black oil-cloth makes a curtain which will keep out the rain and night dampness from this cosy nook.

A black oil-cloth cover for the couch, rolled on a pole instead of folded, and at hand for rainy weather, will protect the porch couch.

To keep the porch furniture from being spoiled by the weather, use carriage varnish. The furniture can then be washed by turning on the hose and wiping dry.

Burlap, green or brown or tan, makes attractive covers for porch pillows. The coarse weave permits the dirt to go through and they should have a cover lining. For more useful, but less attractive covers, use denim.

Heavy pottery jars or crocks, make good holders for the porch bouquet of wild flowers whose odor is too heavy to bring inside the house but very appropriate for outdoors.

WEALTHY COUPLE OF WYOMING WED AT 90 AND 73

NEW YORK, July 31.—The fruitage of mature judgment and the ideas of youth met here recently when a groom of ninety led a bride of seventy-three to the altar. The principals Mrs. Ora Haley, of Denver, and Edward Ivanson, of Laramie, Wy., are pioneer builders of the west.

Mrs. Haley's late husband was a business associate of Ivanson, and together they founded the First National Bank of Laramie, which institution Mr. Ivanson now heads.

The two families have been lifelong friends. Mr. and Mrs. Ivanson lived happily together for sixty-five years, their life's achievements and endeavors being linked prominently with much of the building up of the intermountain country. The Ivansons were godparents for all of the Haley's children. The Haley children were present at the wedding, which was conducted by an Episcopal bishop.

Speaking of the wedding, Mrs. Haley said: "Some will think we are too old. It is not romance, or fire or passion, but the finest kind of friendship that has decided us to go the rest of the way together."

Mrs. Haley is a white-haired, pink-cheeked lady, whose bright eyes and sprightly steps belie the fact that she has passed three score and ten. Mr. Ivanson is robust and active. Both parties are wealthy, the bride being able to count over a million dollars, while the groom's wealth exceeds that sum several times over.

The steamer Pere Marquette, which has been lying at a depth of 600 feet on the bottom of Lake Michigan since 1910, is to be raised in the near future.

Canada has a larger railway mileage in proportion to population than any other country.

LEADING MOVIE STARS ARE GOOD FASHION BAROMETERS

Miss Rubye de Remer in three smart new styles.

While many stage and screen styles are too extreme for general wear one can always be sure of getting good authentic style tips from actresses. That new pictures are splendid forecasts of what will be worn in the future can readily be seen by the apparently modern styles which we see in pictures a year old. Here are three excellent modes taken from Rubye de Remer's wardrobe. Brick red makes the new fall three-piece suit composed of embroidered one-piece frock and cape. A frock of white Canton crepe with jade green plaques and a white angora cape-coat makes this "summer snow" outfit for late sports wear. Rough tweed of a very pale green makes the sports suit, which is trimmed with checked collar and cuffs.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

A GAY EBENING STARTS.

The night of Cherry's party was a moonlight one. It was just warm enough still for the young people to enjoy dancing in the open, and gay were the lanterns lighting up the scene of the festivities.

"You've turned this into a veritable fairy bower, Mrs. Randall," the guests assured her as they arrived.

Jack, dressed to the eyes, as the saying goes, hovered about waiting the arrival of his new favorite. That young lady arrived amind a flutter of ribbons and laces, that would have caused many an old man's heart to beat crazily. She was a pretty little thing, small, dark and dainty. But there were already three swains in her train when she arrived. Things looked rather dismal for any youngster like Jack.

He did manage, however, to secure the first dance and beamed happily at Cherry as they passed each other a while later.

Jane's new beau turned out to be a flashy young man from Chicago, with too red lips and an insistent manner that annoyed Cherry to death. She wondered at Jane's short-sightedness, and yet, after all, the girl had a miserably dull life, and was eager for a new life and any city connections. Mr. William Sills seemed like a sure enough city catch, no doubt, and was perhaps filling her foolish young head with romantic nonsense about Chicago and the world beyond. Still, Jane was Jane, and would know what was the right thing when the time come. She could always be replied on for that, as her mother proudly boasted.

Arthur Hamlen monopolized Cherry's dances from the start.

"Do you know that this is the first time that we've danced together, you and I?" he asked in a sentimental tone as they were seated in a moonlit nook in the garden between dances.

"Yes, indeed, and such fun, isn't it, Arthur? Much more fun even than designing hats," giggled Cherry, as she looked up her tall, handsome partner. "Dear me, I've almost forgotten what it is to be young and foolish these last few weeks. I declare I have."

"Just as if you ever could!" said Arthur, looking into her eyes.

"Indeed, my friend, nothing is easier. Routine and other things can soon change a butterfly girl into a staid and almost prim woman. I know."

"Well, let's hope that these 'other things' will never be allowed to do it to you. Cherry, Cherry, you look simply wonderful tonight. That dress—your eyes, Cherry, I wish——"

"Don't wish, Arthur, dance," commanded Cherry, catching the danger signal in his eyes and voice. "Let's dance and dance and dance. That's how I feel tonight. Sort of moon-struck, terribly young and gay again. Come, Arthur!" And Arthur followed her like a lamb back to the crowd and the music.

COFFEE MAY BE COMBINED INTO MOST DELIGHTFUL BEVERAGES

Mrs. Ida C. Bailey Allen, author of "Mrs. Allen Cook Book", tells how to combine the "Universal Drink" in variety of delicious summer beverages.

Iced coffee is not only a delicious summer drink it it also furishes a mild stimulatin that is particularly grateful on a sulting hot day. It may be combint with fruit juices and other ingredints in a variety of cooling beverageswhich are less sugary than the avage warm weather drink and for ert reason generally popular with me

Coffee, that is to be served cold should be made somewhat stronger than usual. Brw it according to your favorit method and chill before adding sugar and cream. If cracked ice is added make sure the coffee is strong enough to compensate for the resulting dutis. Mixing the ingredients in a shaker produces a smoother beverage topped with an appetizing foa.

It is a convenience, however, to have on hand a concentrated syrup from which any kind of coffee-flavored drink may be concocted on short notice and without the necessity of lighting the stov. Coffee left over from meals may be used for the same purpose, but it should be kept in a covered glass or china dish and not be allowed to stand too long. A coffee syrup made after the following recipe will keep indefinitely and may be used as a basis for many delicious iced drinks.

All Measurements are Level

Coffee Syrup

2 quarts very strong coffee.
3 1-2 pounds sugar.

The coffee should be very, very strong as the syrup will be largely diluted. The proportion of a pound of coffee to one and three-fourths quarts of water will be found satisfactory. This may be made by any favorite method, cleared and strained, then combined with the sugar, brought to boiling point, and boiled two or three minutes. It should be canned while boiling, in sterilized bottles. Fill them to overflowing and seal as for grape juice or for any other canned beverage.

Coffee Milk Shake

Combine three tablespoonsfuls of the coffee syrup with three-fourths of a cupful of rich milk and a little crushed ice. A drop or two of vanilla may be added, if desired. Shake or stir vigorously and serve.

Coffee Egg Nog

(Individual)

Beat the egg in a bowl, add the vanilla, the coffee syrup and the milk, and beat again to blend it thoroughly. If the egg is thoroughly beaten in the first place, it will not be necessary to strain this drink. Fill a tall glass a fourth full of crushed ice, pour in the coffee mixture, and serve at once with or without straws.

Coffee Malted Milk

(Individual)

(Individual)

3 tablespoonfuls coffee syrup.
2 tablespoonfuls malted milk.
3-4 cupful rich milk.
Few grains salt.
Few drops vanilla, if desired.

Put the malted milk in a small, deep bowl and moisten it with coffee syrup, then gradually beat in the milk. Add the salt and vanilla, beat well with the egg-beater and pour into a glass which has been filled a fourth full of crushed ice.

GARMENT MAKING CLUBS

Many young women over the country are being organized into garment making clubs. The general plan of these clubs is the same. Each club is composed of five or more members between the ages of ten and eighteen. Two years' work in proper sequence is undertaken under an instructor. Each member keeps an account of cost of materials used, time spent, and other items of interest. At the close of the course an exhibit is held to which each member contributes at least three finished garments, repair work on an article of clothing or household linen, a report, and a story on "What I Learned as a Member of the Garment Making Club."

Can you think of anything finer for the young womanhood of America? Although this is the day of "ready-mades" and she may never make any of her own garments, yet each will know the mechanism of the job, and be able to keep the clothing in repair.

SHOULD WOMEN HOLD PUBLIC OFFICE?

What is public office for? Is it to administer the affairs of government, of people, and half of these people women and girls? Then why should not women help administer these affairs, half of which concern her own sex? Woman understands better than a man can, the problems and needs and view-point of women. She has given more thought and care to the concerns of children. Then why should she not take her share of the responsibility and opportunity to serve women and children through the government.

In assuming public work, the consideration should be: Who can best do this work? Sex would be entirely forgotten and service be the only object of concern. If a man is better fitted for that particular task, then a man should be put in charge of it; if a woman, then it should become the duty of a woman. This depends entirely upon the nature of the job in question, and of the person considered as a candidate to perform it. Ability and not sex should prove the determining item.

It would be lamentable, however, if women should rush into office merely from the novelty of it; the notriety it will bring, being new; and because they can. It would seem becoming in them to advance slowly and sanely into office holding—as they are—and assume these positions only when the need for their services is quite clear.

The holding of office is by no means the prime object of citizenship—yet it is not to be despised inasmuch as the person in office is able to render benefits to those served if so disposed. Office holding is a great chance to do good by turning the machinery of government into channels of public welfare, and if the candidate is sure he or she will be able to do that, then he or she is serving humanity by accepting office. In that case sex should be ignored.

There are some who are jealous of woman's entrance into public and official life, but there seems little cause for alarm. Of almost five hundred congressmen-elect only one is a woman. There is on an average only half a woman legislator apiece per state. Almost none are in the judicial branches of our government and comparatively very few in the executive. Since women are as yet less experienced than men in affairs of state their best service today can be in their localities, in the cities and towns, where their motherly and home-keeping influence will have a wholesome effect on public housekeeping. Women are taking their citizenship seriously and are making an earnest study of it, and before we are aware they will be amply fitted for public office. When that day arrives it will be to the distinct advantage of good government to make use of large numbers of them in public office.

Another Work for Women

Women, in their present wide-awakeness, are pushing every good work in a most admirable manner. By the wide diverstiy of their helpful enterprises they seem actually to seek out ways and means of making the world better. One of their latest developments is the "Woman's Auxiliary in Ontario, Canada, and its duty is to carry propaganda into homes and schools to the end that there shall be fewer fires.

An expedition is to be sent to Spaskoye on the railroad north of Nikolsk.

The first expedition of the United States army overseas was in 1801, when 3,000 troops sailed for Tripoli.

RECIPES FOR A DAY

Hungarian Goulash—Slice a peeled onion and cook until brown in drippings. These may or may not be removed when brown. Then add one and one-half pounds of lean, uncooked beef, cut into one-inch cubes, and stir until brown. Put into a baking dish or casserole, sprinkle with flour and add about a pint of boiling water or stock, one-half teaspoon paprika and salt to taste. Cover closely and cook slowly.

More fat may be added to that in frying pan and potato balls browned in it and added to the meat when it is about half done, or the potatoes may be placed on top of the meat and cooked until tender. The gravy may be thickened, or cream may be added before serving, if desired.

Sour Cream Cookies—Three-quarters cup sugar, one-quarter cup butter, one egg, onehalf cup sour cream, oneeighth teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon soda, or, one-half teaspoon peach or pineapple extract, sugar, cocoanut.

Cream butter and sugar and beaten egg, then extract and sour cream. Mix and sift dry ingredients, using one and one-half cups flour. Add more flour to make soft dough. Roll very thin, cut into fancy shapes, sprinkle with sugar and cocoanut; bake in a quick oven.

Blackberry Meringue Cake—Whipped whites of three eggs, pinch of salt, one teaspoon vinegar, one cup pulverized sugar.

Place in a ten-inch well greased pie pan and bake in a very slow oven for about three-quarters of an hour, or until firm or a light brown next to the pan.

When cold, cover with sweetened whipped cream one-half inch thick, then lay sweetened blackberries all over same. Cut the same as pie.

Use the meringue and any kind of berries.

SUGESTIONS.

Large Sponges soon break up, and, also, are subject to being clogged up with impurities. This is hard to remedy in a large sponge. Assemble small pieces of sponge in a bag, so as to give the same shape as an original large bath sponge. Make the bag of Turkish toweling or any other suitable material. Thus small pieces of sponge can be utilized and can easily be kept clean.

Loops for Holders—Save the metal loops from old garters. They make admirable rings to attach to holders, or to anything that you wish to hang on a nail.

Bands—When the little women's stockings become too small for the baby take them for bands. Slit the stockings down to the toe, leaving one-half the toe for shoulder straps. Bind the seams with some soft material. Two pairs of old stockings will make one band.

To Trim Collars or Handkerchiefs—The figures cut from leftover pieces of all-over embroideries may be used for corners or borders of collars and handkerchiefs. They are often as attractive as hand-embroidery and much easier to put on.

A PETITION

To the Editors of the Women's magazines.

Dear Friends:

I know your pen writes of things beyond my ken,
But hearken to this piteous plea from the merest of 'mere men,'
Just a moment will suffice for my words of wise advice—
It costs absolutely nothing—and is doubtless worth the price!

When you write of all the cares that fill feminine affairs,
Don't assume that all your readers married multi-millionaires,—
Many doubtless did, I wot, but I tell you on the spot,
You may bet your sweet existence the majority did not!

Now a word with those whose part is to cheer our eyes and heart,
As they decorate your pages with the products of their art:
Love is beautiful and true, but, I humbly beg of you,
Don't paint lovers—on the cover—kissing full in public view!

I know well I'm most unwise, but again I must advise,
Your department that makes womandkind so "easy on the eyes,"
I'll admit, for sake of rhyme, to be ugly is a crime,
But don't make being beautiful take quite—all—our—women's—time!

Now I know I should not dare, but I offer here a prayer
To your editor who advises on our household bill of fare;
My humility's complete, so abjectly I entreat,
Please give recipes and menus that a common man—can—eat!

I await my doom with dread, for the poet sage has said
That "fools rush in"—they do indeed—"where angels fear to tread—"
But as my poor pleas you scan, grant my prayers if you can,
And I'll be truly grateful,

Yours sincerely,
A MEERE MANNE

THE STAY-AT-HOME VACATION

Everybody rests but Mother! She rarely takes a "day off." Her recuperation, like that of the heart—and the policeman—must be taken "between beats."

So much of woman's work is routine work. Three meals a day must be served, the stockings darned, rooms cleaned, beds made, house set in order, besides a myriad other things—trifles many of them, but important and wearying—until we are justified in believing that pessimistic tradition "woman's work is never done."

We promise ourselves, "when this crisis is past, or that task done, I will take it a little easier and have time to do some of the things I want to," but each new period comes dragging in its trail its own peculiar demands and we never will get that dreamed-of vacation unless we "take the bull by the horns," devise ways and means, and force them into execution against great odds. But little that is worth while comes easy, and a vacation, so valuable and so necessary to our highest good, is worth the effort and sacrifice it may cost to ourselves and our households.

For the busy farm woman—whose vacation must come in the winter—and for the fortunate mother of a brood of kiddies, whose hands are always too full, these vacation eliminations might well be practiced continuously during the rush season and years.

A vacation requires a change from accustomed activities, scenes, associations and trains of thought. It implies much play, jollity, and exercise in the open. For these reasons no stay-at-home vacation could hope to equal that which takes one far away from familiar sights, sounds, and experiences; but as a substitute for or even supplement to the go-broadly vacation it is worth enacting.

By turning every stone, housework must be reduced to the minimum, only the barest necessities of life being performed, and everything which can be done outside the home turned off during the elect period. It will cost a little more. Some of the beans in the garden may wither uncanned and hubby be reduced to purchasing extra socks to piece out the term of his darnlessness, but all this should be figured as a part of the price of the vacation.

As to meals, the utmost simplicity must prevail. A return to the primitive is a part of the charm of vacation, which is never ideal without considerable "roughing it." One warm dish, raw fruit or vegetables, and store-bread or confections, with "canned" living for awhile will cut down labor. The family should take many of their meals at the restaurant and cook some in the open over the camp fire where everybody helps. This would save not only meal getting, but dish washing. If only the menfolks can take many of their meals at the restaurant, the housewife will be greatly relieved; for women—left to a manless meal—is satisfied with very little. What meals are served at home should be eaten on the screened porch or in the kitchen on a table covered with oilcloth—a la camping.

As to the necessary routine work, each member of the family should, during Mother's vacation, make his own bed, sew on his own buttons, and about the house "do a good turn daily" as in the law of a first-class scout. This trying it for themselves will make the family appreciate more Mother's doing it for them afterward. "Self-serve" should be the inviolable law of the household for this period. Even Father, pouring his own cup of coffee and baking his own cakes, renews his honeymoon chumminess with the cook and it may be great fun—for the time—if entered into with the right spirit and makes a change of labor for him.

What work she absolutely must do, should, as much as possible, be done outdoors. Greens could be cleaned on the back porch and the mending done under a tree.

With all this extra time at her disposal, Mother is not to loiter about the house. She will have hours and hours to go abroad; fishing with the family, hiking, joy riding, camping, swimming, picnicing, sightseeing, revisiting old haunts—the Indian Trail, the Flowing Well, the cliff, the cave, a loved hill or wood.

Most important of all the vacationist must throw herself into the mental state of happy-abandon which is typical of recreation. Being within a jitney of home it will require effort of will to put homekeeping thoughts aside. But it can be done and all the kinks relaxed out of overwrought nerves. Listening to the birds, inhaling the sweet air, lounging on the fresh earth, gazing into the deep blue—one may soar far away and away in spirit, out into the empyrean in great expansive soul flights, thinking big inflating ideas, and effervescing with rich emotions. All this spiritual exuberance may be attained by day, and at night there is one's own comfortable bed to which no other is ever quite equal. The stay-at-home vacation has its own special compensations, not least of which is the bathroom and ready supply of paraphernalia.

When winter's chilling blast blows down the chimney, other women may have more jelly stored on their pantry shelves, but she who has thus drank of the nectar of the gods will have in luscious memories meat that these other women know not of.

ALL RIGHT!

"Bah," quoth the pessimist,
With a face characteristically long
"This is a pretty bum old world!
And thing are wrong—all wrong!"
Still another "Bah" quoth he,
With a face characteristically wry,
"I could make a better world myself
With only half a try!"

"Sure,' smiled the optimist,
Characteristically aglow,
"That's what we're here for; now let's try—
Heave-ho, my friend, heave-ho!"

Richard Turner opened a coffee house at 8 Fleet street, London, near the temple, in 1860, and it became known as Dick's coffee house and has been so known through all the years. The walls are covered with mementoes of famous patrons, one novel exhibit being connected with the poet Cooper, who passed many pleasant hours there.

FOR CHILDREN—THE COUNTRY

Only a few more weeks until school bounds will pen in our children. Since we are becoming, according to our census, an alarmingly "citified" people, it behooves the mother to make great effort and sacrifice to get her children to the country as much as she can in these last weeks of vacation, that they miss none of the sweetness which should be woven in to their lives. This may be done without imposing on country uncles, aunts and cousins—if father and mother are willing to take the time and trouble to do it. Mother may have to pile her week's mending into a basket and "pack" it out to the woods, or father to trail the lads and lassies along when he goes fishing, or even one or both parents may have to take hikes with the kiddies, or camping parties; or, if the children are old enough, mother may simply do up a good luch and start them out on a country ramble for the day.

These things all cost time, and money and forethought, and effort in these days—but they are worth the cost! They put poetry and vision and sweetness into childhood and make for development and bigness of character.

Mr. Henry Bailey, of Cleveland Art school puts it nicely thus:

"All children ought to be familiar with the open country. They should know the joy of playing in healthful mud, of paddling in clean water, of hearing roosters call up the sun, and birds sing praises to God for the new day.

"They should have the vision of pure skies enriched at dawn and sunset with unspeakable glory; of dew-drenched mornings flashing with priceless gems; of grain fields and woodlands yielding to the feet of the wind; of the vast night sky 'all throbbing and panting with stars.'

"They should feel the joy of the seed-time and harvest, of dazzling summer noons, and of creaking, glittering winter nights. They should live with flowers and butterflies, with wild things that have made possible the world of fable."

Optimism.

The price of rent,
With swife ascent,
Soon has my pile of wherewith spent.
But sing for glee—
It occurs to me
The blessed sun and air are free!

WHY HAS HE BEEN OVERLOOKED?

According to the Philadelphia Public Ledger Major General Leonard Wood after all may not be able to accept the provostship of the University of Pennsylvania, upon which, it has been announced, he would enter the coming autumn. It was announced at the White House that "informal intimations" had been received there that since General Wood's arrival in the Philippines he had developed an interest in their problems that might induce him to become governor general. There was a strong inference in high official quarters that if General Wood could be persuaded to accept the post, it would undoubtedly be offered to him. The matter of naming a governor general is not to be settled until the Woods-Forbes commission, now in the Philippines, has submitted its report. The commission is concluding its tour of the islands this week and is due to arrive in Manila within a few days. It is semi-officially announced that General Wood will advise against granting independence to the Filipinos. Woodrow Wilson was denounced because he failed to send Wood to France. Then the republicans refused Wood a presidential nomination. Harding failed to invite him to enter his cabinet. Why has the great man been overlooked and this too in the political household of his admiring friends.

SMALL AND HIS PROSECUTIONS.

"What will Governor Len Small do next?" asks an exchange. He will go on the rack in a court of justice and if the evidence warrants conviction, he will either go to the penitentiary or be ousted from high office, a disgraced and dishonored thing. His political enemies are men of his own party. They will show him no mercy. Political fanaticism is as cruel in its methods and practices as the hungry tiger of the jungle. There are powerful republican leaders and powerful interests arrayed against this Illinois governor. He is be[illegible] and the deep blue [illegible] whom he has shown favors will desert him in his hour of need; those whom he has never favored will give him a fair trial. Those who wish to destroy the machine he has builded and substitute one of their own will employ the sandbag and the [illegible] bag as well as the scorpion whip of the honey, humble Governor Len Small into the dust[illegible]

WHY NOT FUND [illegible] LOANS?

[illegible] THE

President Harding has [illegible] his fight. Secretary Mellon has won his [illegible], and now the administration will be given [illegible] authority to fund the debts of foreign [illegible]. Why shouldn't the debts be funded? [illegible] business. America loaned ten [illegible]. But over there, Uncle Sam has their I. O. U.'s, [illegible] nothing more, nothing less. Some day the [illegible] must be collected. These governments [illegible] hundreds of millions annually for [illegible] and sea defence. They are squandering [illegible] of millions annually keeping up foreign [illegible] and grabbing new colonies. American loans saved them from overwhelming disaster. They should be made to pay, and the first step on the part of the government should be the funding of the loans.

BETTER FEELINGS IN TRADE CIRCLES.

A better feeling in trade circles has been brought about by the recent improved demand for spot cotton, according to the report of the Dallas Federal Reserve bank for the last month, made public yesterday. Uncertainty as to whether the farmers would be able to profitably dispose of their cotton has restricted to a large extent the wholesale movement of merchandise to the immediate needs of the retailers, and no broad movement is looked for until late fall or early winter, says the report. However, good progress of crops, favorable range conditions, further liquidation of bank loans, but midsummer quietude in business and industrial lines mark the summary of conditions.

PRESIDENT IN A TRANCE.

President Harding has complimented the country on the measures of relief for business and agriculture which have been taken during the last four months. There is a self satisfied optimist for you. He mentions the fifty million dollar [illegible] relief of the live stock industry as having been of great benefit." President Harding should come out of his trance. A committee representing the live stock industry of the southwest has been appointed to go to Washington to confer with the powers that be, in order that some financial relief may be obtained for the live stock industry. Again the President Harding should [illegible] of the trance.

IN THE GAS WORLD.

Accumulation of stocks of gasoline in the United States which led to the report of May, has been arrested, according to figures from the Bureau of Mines. On June 30 the gasoline stocks had been reduced by nearly 48,000,000 gallons. The total stocks on hand at the end of June were 752,608,016 gallons, as against 800,500,000 at the close of May. Reductions were shown in all of the divisions of the country save those of Colorado and Wyoming and of California. The refineries of Texas and Louisiana, had at the close of June 172,015,170 gallons, a reduction of 20,360,000 gallons compared with the end of May, and those of Oklahoma and Kansas show June stocks to be 70,959,580 gallons, a reduction of about 9,500,000 gallons. Activity in the gasoline market of Texas is said to have been the greatest on record, and the price has advanced in the last ten days from ten and a half cents wholesale to eleven and a half cents. There is money in petroleum.

WHEN A HERO ISN'T A HERO.

Sergeant Alvin York faces the loss of his fine farm in Tennessee because he sees no way to meet a mortgage of $12,500 that will fall due this autumn. The outstanding American hero of the world war who single-handed captured 132 Germans in the Argone on October 28, 1918, has found the drop in corn and produce prices in the last year a much tougher enemy than that of the Boche machine guns. But if he loses his farm he will retain his self-respect, as under no consideration will he exhibit himself for profit, though to do so would net him far more than enough to pay off the mortgage. His religious scruples and sense of patriotism will not permit him to capitalize his war record, which he calls "an act of Providence." And so today Alvin York is working in the fields, worrying how he will meet the mortgage and take care of his wife and Alvin, Jr. Just when is a hero a hero?

MENACE OF AN ANGRY TONGUE

A angry woman's tongue started a run on a Boston bank, regarded as one of the soundest financial institutions in the United States. Her deposit had been attached for debt and she went on the war path, started a riot, and created a run. As the institution has one hundred and eighty thousand depositors and twenty-five million dollars in quick assets, the run was short lived. There should be a law to reach man or woman who are public news mongers and scandal mongers and who do not hesitate to place in circulation false statements or to distribute the poison which effects public confidence. In this instance, the bank was not affected. Regardless of the failure of the woman to wreck the institution if there was a way to reach her she should be sent to the penitentiary.

A FAIR SHOWING.

Exports of grain, dairy and meat products during the calendar year of 1920, figured on a tonnage basis, were double the exports of any pre-war, year. Cotton on the other hand, dropped to about three-fourths of the nominal pre-war exports. Grain, dairy and meat products and cotton constituted in value nearly 78 per cent of the agricultural exports of the United States last year. Cotton alone constituted about 32 per cent and the other items about 46 per cent. In relation to this country's total production of grain, meat and dairy products, the exports of these commodities in pre-war years constituted about 9 per cent, 8 per cent and 1 per cent, respectively, of such production.

NAME A NEW COMMITTEE.

According to Austin correspondents agreement is impossible on the senatorial redistricting bill. That is, it is impossible for the sub-committee, instructed to bring in a bill, to agree. Then the senate should name a new committee. Redistricting was a pledge or platform demand and the governor in his campaign for the high office that he holds, promised to do all in his power to force redistricting. There are bull headed senators who are opposed to an equitable division of the state into thirty-one districts. Their controlling motive is selfishness. They have their fences hog tight in the district as they are today and they are willing to block redistricting for another twenty years.

A FALSE VIEWPOINT.

"A roar went up from the city of Austin when the salary of the dean of the state medical college at Galveston was cut from six thousand dollars to five thousand dollars. This is a free country. A man isn't chained to his job. If he can not live on five thousand dollars a year the road is open for the dean to hang out his shingle, resume the practice of medicine or surgery and take in all he can get. In addition to this the three month's vacation each year and office hours from nine until three and no night calls are privileges which the dean enjoys. A SUBSCRIBER.

Why the gospel of false or fake economy?

MAKE WAY FOR A KING MAKER

King George says that Lord Northcliffe is a liar. His lordship says he isn't. Lloyd-George says that Lord Northcliffe is a liar. His lordship says he isn't. Lord Northcliffe has been unofficially received by President Harding and the Harding cabinet. He has been given first page space or position by all the leading American newspapers. He has spoken his contempt for the rulers on the other side who have placarded his newspapers and shut off his publications from all government news channels. Lord Northcliffe makes and unmakes prime ministers, but to date he hasn't tackled the job of making or unmaking kings.

Idle men and machinery are causing a loss of nearly one billion dollars a year in the metal trades industry. Instability of employment is a large cause of waste, according to the report made by the American Engineering Council. Waste is criminal. Inefficiency is criminal. If America is to control its share of the commerce of the world, waste must be reduced to a minimum and efficiency raised to a maximum.

THE LAW.

Some recent laws don't suite me[illegible] quite, they seem to me too drastic; the statute that would hit me right should be a bit elastic. But while I criticise the laws, and eloquently flay them, and daily ply protesting jaws, I none the less obey them. I used to drink Hostetter's Balm of Ginseng and Cucumbers; it made my troubled spirit calm, and soothed my fevered slumbers. And often now I'd have a bowl of that inspiring tonic, when life has jarred my weary soul with troubles that seem chronic. But I must violate a law, if I would quaff a flagon; and so the line I sternly draw, and ride the water wagon. From half a mile of garden hose I drink the limpid fluid, then sink me down to my repose, majestic as a Druid. The water slops in my inside, and sloshes through my vitals, and often to the gods I've cried, by all their storied tidles, and asked them why I am condemned by water mains to languish: alas, they only bawed and bemmed, and chortled at my anguish. The law is written to the books, and I shall not defy it, and I'll consume the babbling brooks, nor raise unseemly riot. If we defy the laws we make through statesmen by us chosen, our government's an empty fake, and Order's feet are frozen.—Copyright by George Matthew Adams.

URGES BANK OF NATIONS AS PANACEA

WASHINGTON, July 31. — A Bank of Nations is being urged upon congress by Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, ranking democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations committee and millionaire newspaper publisher, as a panacea for the internationa l financial jam in which the wide, wide world is caught just now.

Hitchcock has sponsored a bill for the establishment of the Bank of Nation at New York City, with branch offices in this and other countries. He would incorporate it as an international banking institution with a capital stock of $2,400,000,000 divided into 240,000 shares of $10,000 each.

Sounds like a financial pipe dream, but Hitchcock insists that some kind of an international federal reserve banking system is the only practical way to end the perlious fluctuation of exchange values and the dangerous piling up of "frozen credit" now troubling the world's financiers.

"Everyone recognizes that there exists in the United States and other countries at the present time a great demoralization of business, a high rate of unemployment and a general unprofitable condition in all lines of trade," Hitchcock said. "International commerce is almost in a state of collapse. The United States has an enormous surplus of products which it is unable to sell, while other nations have a great need of these products and are not able to buy them."

Two causes may be given, in Hitchcock's judgment, for these conditions more than any others:

1. The unstable condition of international exchange, which has fluctuated so violently during the last two years that it has made exporting and importing a dangerous gamble and has ruined hundreds of firms attempting international commerce.

2. The exhaustion of international credit due to the enormous balance of trade which was not paid for in products and could not be paid for in gold. Attempts by private concerns to supply this credit have only resulted in the exhaustion of their resources.

Stabilization Is Aim.

Hitchcock believes that such conditions can be remedied by the establishment of an entirely new international exchange and to foster an international credit system.

"Inasmuch as the United States now holds more than one-half of all the gold of the world, which it is not using, and inasmuch as the United States has become the great creditor of the world," Hitchcock said, "no effort to restore commerce, to stabilize exchange and to establish credit can be made unless the United States takes the lead.

"I therefore, propose the Bank of Nations. I would give the United States the controlling interest in it. I would have $1,300,000,000 of its stock taken over by the United States and $200,000,000 more sold to American banks and bankers, exporters and importers interested in foreign commerce, and the remaining $900,000,000 sold to foreign governments.

"The Bank of Nations would be large enough and powerful enough to put an end to the pirated speculation which has been going on in international exchange and which has made commerce next to impossible. It would also be powerful enough to establish a legitimate international credit to promote commerce between the nations, particularly with respect to great exportable surplus products of the United States to Europe.

Would Issue Own Notes

"To give the bank power to be used in discounting bills of exchange, buying and selling government securities, including treasury certificates, and making loans to exporters and importers, I would empower it to issue its own banknotes, or currency, protected by an adequate reserve of gold and government bonds.

"This power to issue currency would develop an enormous possibility of credit, and I believe this currency which would be on a gold basis would soon be in strong demand for use in other countries and for international shipment. In other words, the great store of gold in the United States—one-half of all the gold available in the entire world—would not be diminished, but would remain largely here, while the currency of the bank would be used to facilitate international commerce.

"Other nations are struggling desperately to keep enough gold within their borders to make a respectable cover for their currency. The Bank of Nations would make it possible to use this gold as a basis for an international currency which could be used in international commerce and for its facilitation.

"We have in this country abundant credit facilities, but international commerce practically has none. The bank I propose would create a system of international credit and would be able to extend this credit over a year's time, so that the raw materials purchased from the United States could be made into the finished product and sent to the markets before the maturity of the paper which was created at the time the products were exported."

Explorations of the air have revealed an astonishing definiteness of arrangement in its layers, although, of course, the details are continually changing. Teisserenc de Bort, in England, has directed his studies of floating balloons to a solution of the question of the influence of the topography of the earth's surface on the state of the air above it. He finds, among other things, that the disturbances produced by hills and valleys are transmitted to an unexpectedly great elevation affecting the lower and middle strata throughout. A general effect noticed is that the velocity of the wind, or of a current of air, is increased over a hill and diminished over a valley. It is thought that similar observations, generally distributed, would furnish us with a real topography of the air.—Christian Science Monitor.

LACK OF LEADERSHIP CAUSES CONGRESS TO ACCOMPLISH BUT LITTLE, WASHINGTON THINKS

WASHINGTON, July 31.—A lack of leadership such as the republican party is accustomed to having, is the cause of the aimless attitude of congress. No one realizes this more than President Harding.

And, to be fair to the president, he is not trying to dictate to the legislative branch of the government when he confers with senators and congressmen, and sends messages to them. He is merely trying to bolster them up to the point of accomplishing something, under their own leadership. He sees the necessity for using the goad, although he would much prefer that senate and house leaders prod their own members than to do it himself.

But, frequently the point is reached where he sees that something has to be done and he confers with the so-called leaders, or sends a message to the members of senate and house, calling their attention to the necessity for action. And then he is charged by disgruntled members of his own party with undertaking to dictate to congress.

The fact is that congress has no general plan of action, and neither knows what it is doing nor what it intends to do. There is no coordination between the senate and the house, nor is there any harmonious procedure in either senate or house. The leadership is divided in each house, and the majority party has to fight it out among its own members as to what shall be the course of procedure, without any knowledge of what the other house may determine on its own account.

Mann Complains

It was but a few days ago that Representatives James R. Mann, of Illinois, former republican leader of the house, made complaint on the floor of that body that no one could find out what plans the majority party has for action in the house.

"I heard the gentleman from Wyoming," said Mr. Mann, referring to Congressman Mondell, republican leader in the house, "interrogated this morning and he did not seem to know what is coming up. He side-stepped the proposition with his usual skill, and he is a very skillful gentleman."

Because of the lack of program in the house, the committee on rules has brought in rules for consideration of several bills, in order to have them taken up. This again brought Representative Mann to his feet with a protest against legislation in that way.

"The difficulty with these rules," he said, "is that a man must not merely be familiar with the rules of the house, but he must follow up all of the time the committee on rules, hang to the coat tail of the gentleman from Kansas, in order to know what is coming up in the house. That is one of the great reforms that grew out of the claim some years ago that the speaker had too much power."

Speaking of the difficulties which have been experienced in carrying out any program in the house, Mr. Mondell, republican floor leader, said: "I realize how tremendously important it is that we should know as far in advance as possible what legislation we are to take up. Unfortunately it is very difficult to determine far in advance absolutely and beyond question just what we shall do. On Saturday last I made an attempt to do that for a period covering some ten days, and owing to the fact that the committee on rules did not entirely agree with me that guess went somewhat awry * * * As far as I shall have anything to say with regard to the procedure, I hope I may be fortunate enough to be able to make a reasonably fair guess as to the program and to be able to inform members relative thereto."

No Program

So it appears that even Mr. Mondell, majority leader in the house, is unable to give the house more than "a reasonable fair guess," at the best as to what the program of the house may be. And one reason is that there is no program. The mere details of which minor measure shall first receive consideration may be determined by the committee on rules, backed up by a majority vote of the house. But, with regard to a general program, there is no program.

Members of both senate and house are clamoring for a recess, in the face of which the president is calling on congress for immediate legislation to assist the railroads out in their financial difficulties and to establish a market for agricultural products.

"We are killing time," said former Republican Leader James R. Mann, "and wasting the time of the house and of the country, trying to fool the people, and they know it. We pretend to be doing business when we are not. We are wasting time instead of having courage enough to quit awhile and go home."

"This is an impelling moral obligation to American farming," said President Harding in his special message to congress relative to his plan to have the war finance corporation assist in financing the marketing of agricultural products, "in all its large aspects, and it will be most gratifying to have your early sanction.

"In the case of the railroads there is a moral and a contractural obligation, and your favorable action is no less urgent and will no less appeal to public approval."

And so majority members of the senate and house continue to urge a recess, while the president is urging action. There is a general desire among members of congress, as is so noticeable throughout civilization in these days, to get along without work, and there seems to be a pretty general desire in congress not to do anything. It has been suggested that congress is afraid of the consequences of almost any legislation it may enact at this session, and therefore hesitates to pass any bill. Be that as it may, there is a general tendency in congress to inaction, which has caused even the president to protest.

Country Desperate.

"It seems," said Representative Pou of North Carolina, in the house, "that we are in a situation where nobody will indicate the program of legislation to be enacted, and yet the situation of the country is, to put it mildly, the most desperate since 1907. I do not know how it is in other parts of the country, but I do not believe there is one cotton producer in the state I in any part represented who even hopes to get the cost of production when he sells his commodity upon the market. . . . I respectfully submit that this is not how to [illegible] life of the republic when no member of this body can have any business more important than staying here in Washington and attending to his duties.

"I do not know what the answer of the majority is going to be to the cry of distress that is going up from every part of the country. Nobody but a lunatic ought to expect relief from the Fordney tariff bill. It may be that some measure of relief will be afforded by the tax bill which the ways and means committee is at this moment said to be considering. The country is anxiously hoping so.

"I respectfully submit that the situation throughout the country, in every line of endeavor, in business, in agriculture, in manufacturing, with five million men out of employment, including ex-service men, walking the streets, begging for any kind of a job; it is time that the majority realized the necessity for action. The majority leader should issue a summons to the membership on your side, as our leader will do to the membership on our side, to stay on the job until some attempt is made to relieve the condition of distress which is driving men to desperation."

The republicans in congress have not even been able to agree on the tariff. The house has passed a tariff bill, but the senate insists that the tax bill shall be put through first, and is prepared to keep the tariff measure in the pigeon holes of the senate finance committee till the tax bill has passed, and possibly forever. The American Protective Tariff league has gone on record as opposing the passage of the Fordney bill; the senate republicans do not seem to approve it, and even in the house it was passed only under the sting of the party lash. So it would not be at all surprising if the tariff bill should not pass at all.

Must Cut Taxation.

Congress now faces the impossible task of cutting down taxation while keeping up expenditures. Chairman Fordney, of the ways and means committee of the house, is quoted as saying he believes the committee can cut half a billion dollars a year from the tax bill now being framed, and republican leaders in the senate openly assert the most important matter before congress is tax reduction. And yet the clamor for increased expenditures is such that congress can hardly fail to yield. Already the civil departments of the federal government are demanding and receiving increased appropriations, and predictions are freely made that appropriations for the current year, when completed, will exceed those of last year.

All this means that taxation can not be reduced. It may be shifted, and to shift it in a manner to cause the least remonstrance is what congress is now trying to do. There is little doubt the excess profits tax will be wiped out, and the wealth of the country will be less freely taxed than it has been. Probably the soda water and ice cream cone tax will be cut off. But those between will have that much more to pay. Three-cent postage, bank check taxes and other methods of raising revenue are being considered. But it seems probable the sales tax will be adopted to make up for taxes wiped out, and in the long run the consumer will have this to pay. But trying to reduce taxation and keep up expenditures is one of the evidences that congress has no definite program and is proceeding in a haphazard fashion.

But the greatest evidence that this is true is seen in the fact that congress is trying at the same time to shut out foreign trade through the adoption of a prohibitive tariff, and to provide a fund of from $100,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 for the establishment of foreign trade by American farmers.

Financial Condition Bad.

As a result of the world war, the financial situation in most of the countries of Europe and some of those in the rest of the world is such that the nations which owe the United States are not even able to pay the interest on their debt. They simply haven't the money with which to pay it. And yet it is proposed that this government, either through a special fund to be appropriated by congress, as proposed by Senator Norris, or through the financing methods of the war finance corporation, as proposed by the president, shall finance the purchases by foreign governments of agricultural and other products from the United States. And, at the same time it is proposed through the prohibitive tariff, that these governments shall be prevented from paying for the goods for what they need to buy in the United States.

There was a time when the United States owed other countries. Then we could ship the products of the American farms or factories, and take credit for them on the bills we owed. Now other nations owe us. And there is not enough money in the world for them to pay it in cash what they owe. We did not loan it to them in cash, but in the products of our mills and factories, and as the United States paid its debt in goods, the nations which owe us have a right to expect that they may pay off their debts in the same way. But here the Fordney tariff bill would step in and prohibit such payment. And all the money in the world could not force American farm products into foreign markets if the importation of foreign products into this country in payment is prohibited.

The very fact the congress is trying to force American products into foreign markets and prohibit the importation into this country of foreign products is an evidence of a lack of program and an indication that congress has no great, comprehensive plan for readjustment and reconstruction. Whether the senate will kill the tariff bill and make it possible to resume commerce with the nations of the world, and dispose of some of our surplus farm and factory products, remains to be seen. So far there is no indication as to what sort of policy is contemplated, if any, to bring about a resumption of American exports.

STOCKS HAVE REACTIONARY WEEK'S TRADE

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The stock market this week experienced another dull and reactionary period, offset however, by the strength of bonds where an unusually active demand at rising values was noted. Selling of stocks converged mainly around junior or secondary industrials of the equipment variety, in which offerings were accelerated by additional dividend suspensions. Losses in the issues ran from five to almost twenty-five points with very irregular recoveries.

Returns of the United States steel and Bethlehem Steel corporations for the year's second quarter were slightly better than popular forecasts. Advices in the final day of July pointed to further reduction of industrial operations and lower prices and wages.

President Harding's message to congress urging that increased powers be granted the war finance corporation, particular in relation to railway financeing and farmers' credits was well received, but proved little of a market factor ,beyond infusing a firm tone to transportations.

Reductions of the French banks discount rates placed the institution on the same level with the Bank of England and the leading reserve centers of this country. Call money fell to 2 1-2 per cent, establishing a low record for almost two years and easier rates were quoted for bank acceptances and merchants' paper.

In several of the more important branches of commerce a turn for the better was reported. This applied more directly to the middle west than to remote centers where large sums in grain and cotton bills remain unliquidated. British and French exchanges were unsettled, and most of the other European remittances, notably Italian and Dutch quotations weakened. Decline in the latter rate was attributed to heavy purchases of American bills by Germany, preliminary to further reparations payments here.

SAM BROWN BELTS

SOAR IN PRICE

WASHINGTON, July 31—As army officers began to blossom forth in Sam Brown belts in accordance with the war department's order restoring this popular article of military wearing apparel to general usage, the price of this equipment, which has been a drug on the market, immediately soared upward and many different forms of the belt made their appearance.

Officers who served with the American expeditionary forces, from General Pershing down to the second "rookie" who grabbed his commission ten minutes before his homebound transport sailed from Brest, were ready and waiting when the Sam Browne order was issued.

But the others were required to buy belts, and Major-General H. L. Rogers, of the Quartermaster's Corps, has decided to issue a standard belt with a view to ultimately adopting one for the use of officers.

To this end Louis Heuer, leather and equipment expert of the quartermaster general's office, has gone to Jeffersonville, Ind., to superintend the manufacture of several different types, one of which will be adopted as the standard for all.

RECORD NEWS SPORTS

WE CAN'T WIN 'EM ALL ANYWAY, AND IT'S BETTER TO HAVE LOST ONE NOW THAN LATER IN SEASON

The strain was getting too great—too great possibly on the Spudders, and certainly on the fans. So perhaps it is just as well that the homeings were choked off at the unsatisfactory end of a 7 to 4 score by the hustling Beaumonters Sunday. For the uncertainty is ended now—the great question as to when the Spudders would drop one, and what Dallas and Fort Worth would do, is answered—and the Spudders can now go out to win a ball game, rather than to keep from losing one, and preserve an unbroken run of wins.

The Spudders, however, did not lose Sunday's game. The Exporters simply won one. They clouted unmercifully the offerings of Al Miller, the recruit from Enid, when said clouting promised fattening for the Beaumont score. Listless playing by members of the Spudder crew helped somewhat, possibly, but the main argument is carried in the number and character of blows registered in the hit column by the Beaumonters, three four sack licks being included.

Miller Hit Hard

Al Miller, having his first real tryout for the Spudders, while seeming to have plenty of stuff, could not make the grade, and his pitching was freely belted around the lot by the visitors.

Perhaps he was allowed to stay too long—but he always showed enough stuff to lead to the belief that he might get over with another inning, and remained on the mound until the invaders had sufficient of a lead to win.

Darrough, who finally succeeded him, was somewhat more successful, and although allowing several hits, kept them scattered through his three innings, which coupled with support that, while ragged in spots, came through in the pinches and cut down the scoring. Darrough, however, was touched up for a home run clout, the third for Beaumont for the day, by Meine, the visiting pitcher.

Meine too was nicked a number of times for safe blows, but managed to get away fairly well in the pinches, when the Spudders really began to threaten his lead, and prevented the forthcoming of hits when they might have changed the looks of the score board.

Exporters Start Early

The exporters started out to make a day of it right at the start of the game, when DeMaggio, their lead-off man, worked Miller for four wide ones. He made second on Stansbury's infield out—on a roller which McDonald fumbled but recovered quickly enough to whip across to first. Alexander then grounded to Gross, whose throw was wild and was muffed by Works—DeMaggio scoring from second when Works was slow in recovering and throwing the ball. Smith [illegible] on the ground past McDonald [illegible] was stopped by Gross [illegible] late to catch the runner at first. Work's return across the diamond to McDonald, however, was fast enough to catch Alexander, who was trying to take an extra station on the play. Smith was then thrown out stealing.

Starts Home Runs

The visitors skipped around, and then proceeded to gather in three more by driving one of Miller's slants over the left field fence, for the first home run of the day.

DeMaggio, after Meine had flied out to Miller, started the trouble all over again with four balls. He took second on Stansbury's infield out, McDonald to Works. DeMaggio then crossed up the Spudder defense by stealing third, the steal catching McDonald flat footed and third uncovered. The runner counted a moment later when Alexander scratched a hit past McDonald. Alexander proceeded to second when Kitchens let one through, and scored from second on Smith's solid drive past short and into center field. Works killed the slim chance to nab Alexander at the plate when he intercepted Miller's throw just in front of the plate.

Whaling drove out another safety toward first base, this one being one which McDonald was lucky to reach. Smith reached third on the play.

Smith Caught.

Smith was caught off third immediately afterward and run down when Kitchen's apparent peg to second was stopped by Miller.

The Spudders in the fourth obtained their first count when Clark walked, with one down, and scored from first on Miller's double to center. Proceedings were temporarily halted here however as neither Griggs nor Works could produce the safety necessary to bring Miller home.

Beaumont chalked up two more in the fifth when Stansbury drove a pretty single to left, took second on Alexander's sacrifice, remained there while McDonald was throwing out Smith at first, a pretty stop and throw, and trotted home when Whaling drove [illegible] second home run of the day over the left field fence.

The locals added a couple to the tally in their half of the fifth. Kitchens flew out to center, but Bischoff, hitting for Miller, doubled down the third base line. Bescher was hit in the leg by Meine. Both runners succeeded in getting an additional base as Gross struck out, having started with the pitch. Both scored on McDonald's Texas leaguer to center, which went for a lucky double. Clark walked, and Miller scratched an infield hit, filling the bases, but Griggs grounded out to Doyle, ending the apparent rally. Beaumont's last run came in the eighth on the third drive by the visitors over the left field fence, this time by Meine at the expense of Darrough.

The final score for Wichita Falls, in the ninth, resulted from a two-base hit to right by McDonald, who scored on Miller's double to center after Clark had fanned.

TEN HOURS OF ORATORY TO END TRIAL

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 31.—Ten hours of oratory, in which nine lawyers will strive to convince the jury that there was no conspiracy for Chicago White Sox players to throw the 1919 world series, is scheduled for tomorrow in the baseball trial.

The defense expects to have made its last plea before court adjourns tomorrow, leaving the way open for the state to close Tuesday and send the case to the jury.

Henry Berger, representing Carl Zork of St. Louis, is expected to open for the defense. Judge Friend already has announced that he will not sustain a verdict of guilty against Zoak and Mr. Berger is expected to confine most of his talk to the technicalities of conspiracy laws.

PRESS BOX PATTER

Naturally it is aggravating to a player to have the third strike called on him and equally as naturally it is the part of wisdom for him to vent his feelings outside the hearing of the umpire, when the umpire happens to be of the scrappy disposition of Paul Sentell. That, however, is no excuse for a player venting his feelings on the bench in vile language when that language is as plainly audible to women sitting in the boxes immediately over that bench, as was the case at one stage in Sunday's game, with one of the visiting players in the offending role.

The offense was sufficiently flagrant, and the language sufficiently vile, that the party in question should have been forced to spend a while in the city's mill. It so happened, however that the police detail was concentrated in another part of the grounds, and the language kept up its flow until the player's vocabulary was either exhausted, or his characterization of the umpire had sufficiently assuaged his feelings that he could turn his attention to other matters.

CATS WIN AND TIE.

FORT WORTH, July 31.—Fort Worth won the first game of a bargain matinee from San Antonio today, while the afterpiece was a one all draw, darkness halting its finish after nine innings of battle. Lefty Phillips, the newly acquired T. and O. league flinger, worked for the Cats, while Tiner and Mutt Williams opposed him in the second game. It was a great duel from gong to gong. Bratcher's hitting produced the winning runs for the Cats in the opening game. Score:

GREATEST ATHLETE HARVARD EVER HAD ENDS COLLEGE CAREER SPECTACULARLY

There photos of Edward O. Gourdin, great Harvard star, show him after the takeoff and at the end of his marvelous broad jumps. The photos, however, were not taken at the same performance, as the different shirts indicate.

Edward O. Gourdin, negro athlete and the greatest track man Harvard ever produced, has ended his college athletic career. And he retired in a blaze of glory. Appearing in the international college games in Harvard stadium, Gourdin set a new world's record for the broad jump by hurtling through the air for 25 feet and 3 inches. The best previous recognized mark was 24 feet 11¾ inches, made by Peter O'Connor of Ireland in 1901.

GIANTS MEET FIRST DOUBLE 1921 DEFEAT

NEW YORK, July 31.—The New York Nationals suffered their first double defeat of the season today, just when Manager McGraw saw hope of going ahead of the Pittsburgh league leaders for the first time since June 6. The Giants, who had pounded their way to a joint ownership of first place with the Pirates Saturday, today fell back a game behind their rival when Cincinnati wrested two hard fought contests from them. The Pirates, however, are in the midst of their real slump, due mainly to a falling off in pitching and lack of scoring power. Boston, which is five games back of Pittsburgh, continues its task trying to catch the leaders. The Braves are not hitting hard but the pitchers are effective. A double defeat recently, also to the credit of Cincinnati, delayed the Braves in their chase.

The Cleveland world champions, maintain only a two games lead over New York in the American League race but the Indians have shown ability to brace when threatened by their Yankee pursuers.

In the National league, Brooklyn and St. Louis have been aided by good pitching. The Superbas were unfortunate in dropping several close games while the Cardinals, who tied them today for fourth place, were playing winning ball, capturing their last five games. Chicago has not played as well at home as it did in the east.

Both teams have refused to play at the park of the other.

LITTLE ROCK CLUB MANAGER DRAWS LAY-OFF

By Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 31.—John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association, tonight suspended Norman (Kid) Elberfeld, manager of the Little Rock club for 30 days for what Mr. Martin held "an entirely unjustifiable physical attack" on Umpire Pfenninger, in today's game at Memphis, and gave warning that a "repetition of such conduct" on the part of Eberfeld would result in his expulsion from the league.

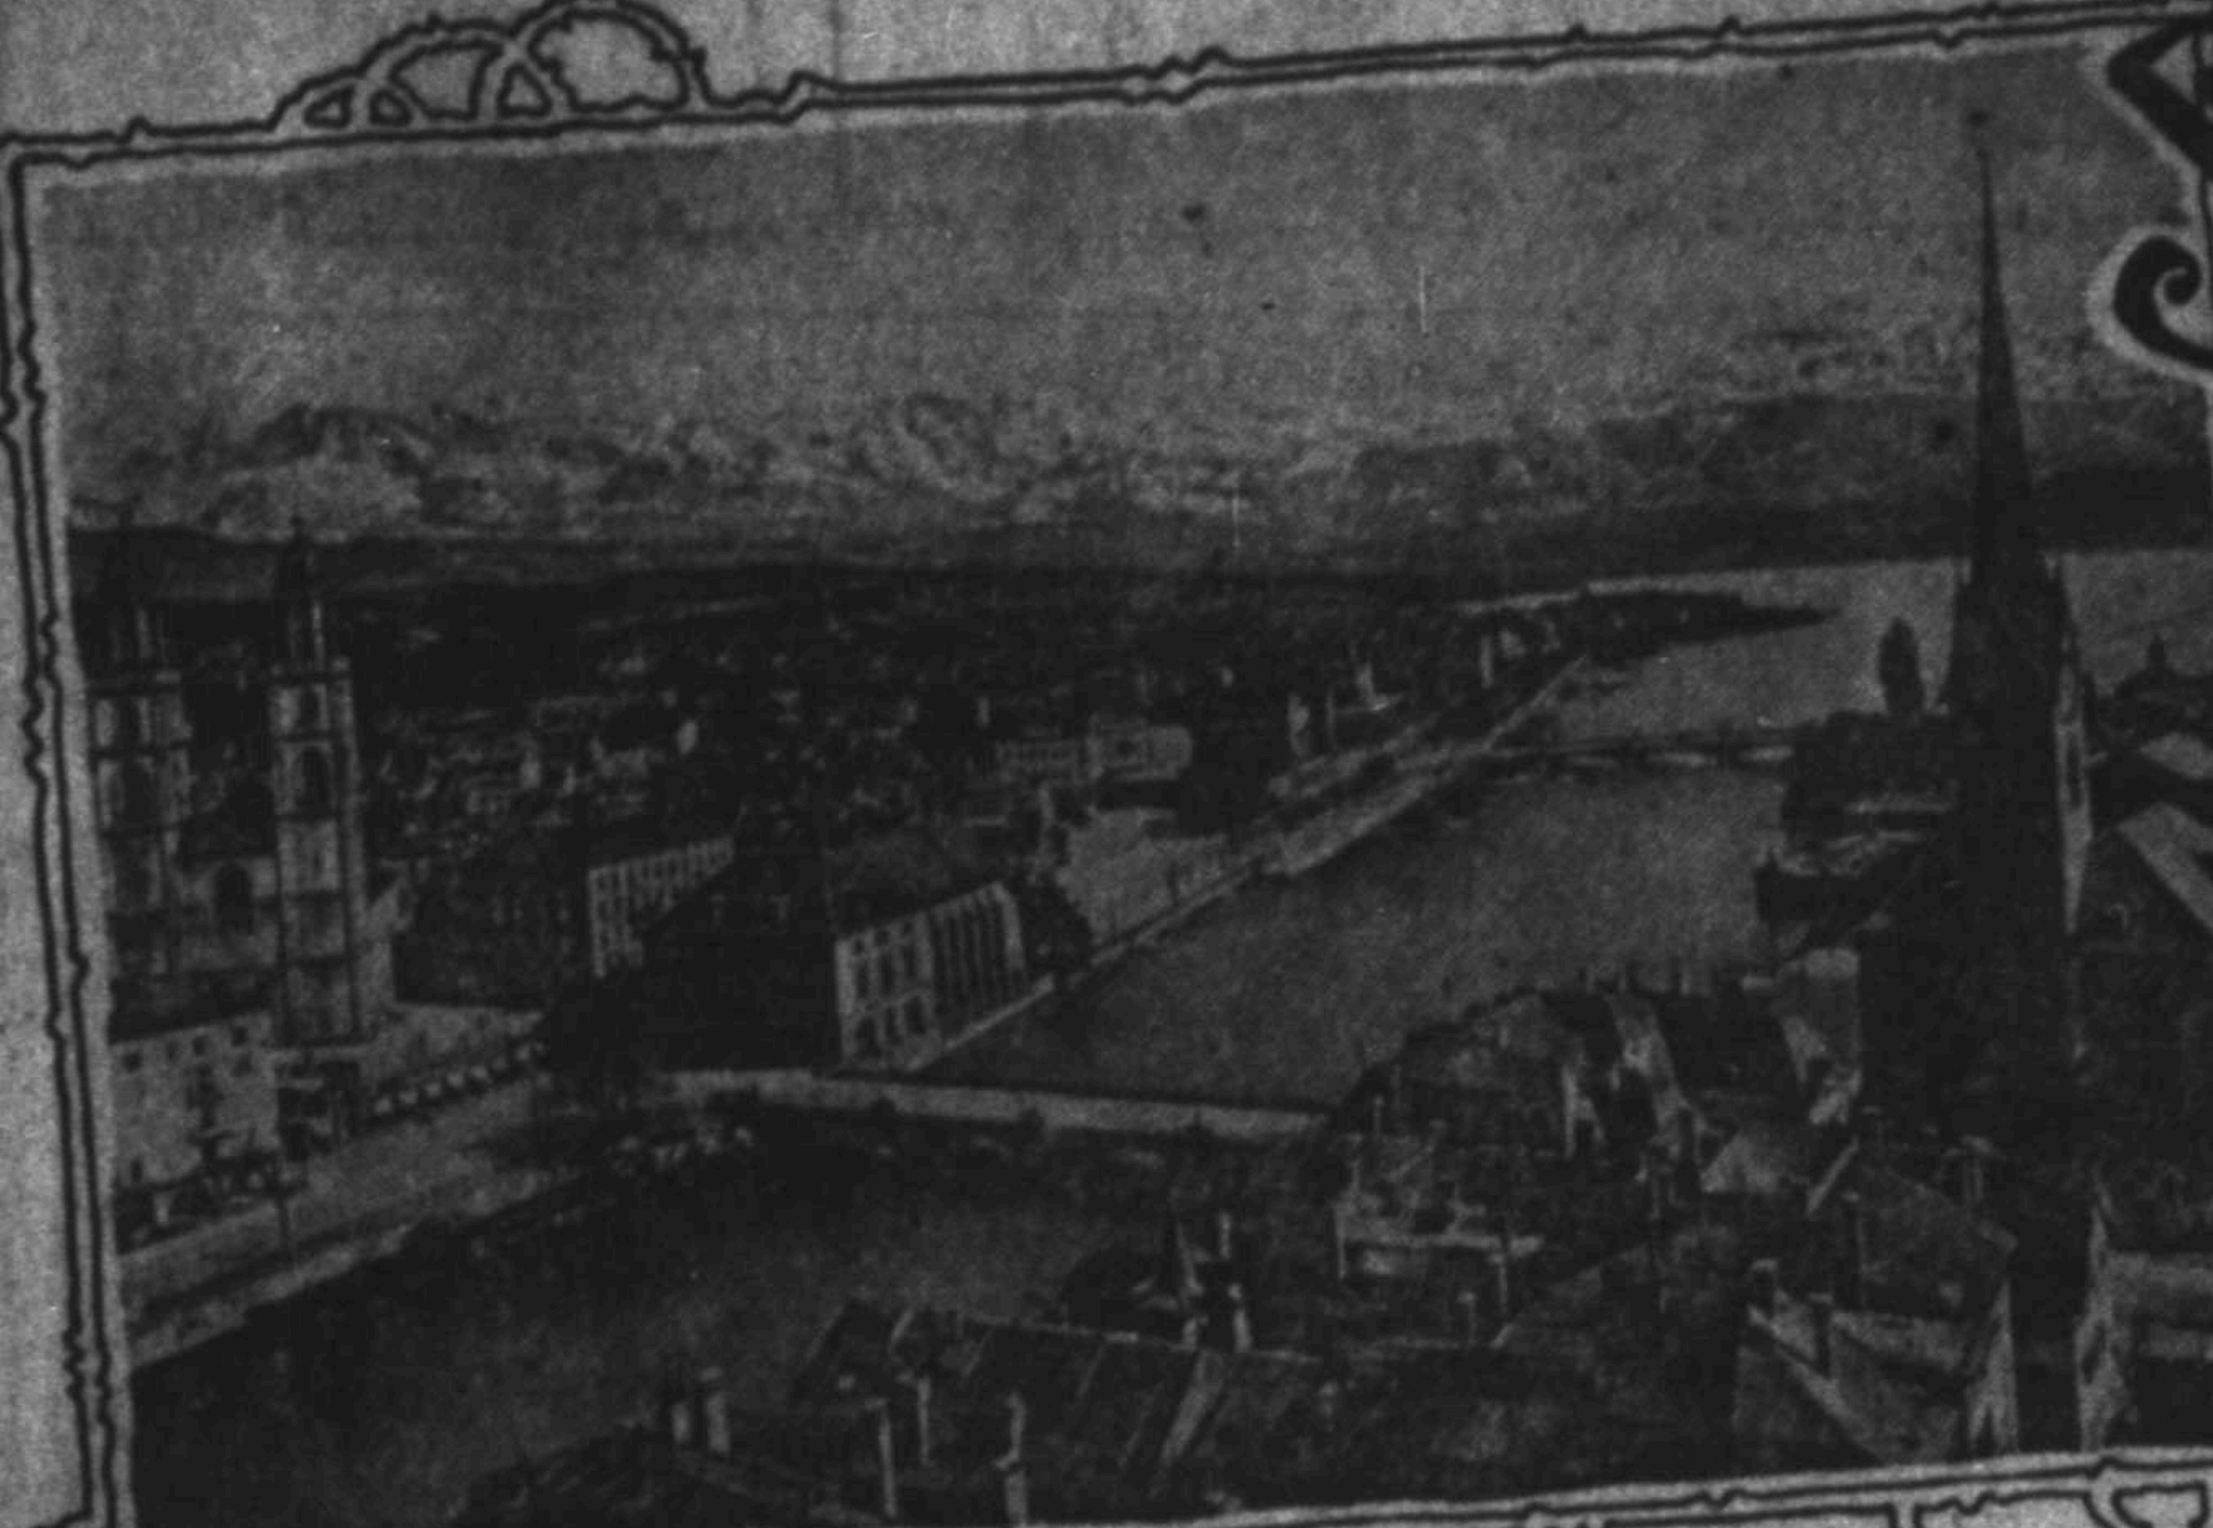

Solid wheels of wood have become so popular on automobiles that now they are being used on bicycles.

A Haven of Rest for Ex-Royalties — Many Quaint and Beautiful Places Used By These "Men Without a Country".

BY MARIE WIDMER

WHEN ex-King Constantine with family and suite left Lucerne—his home during exile—a few months ago, to once more assume the triumphs and tribulations of a King, there was much speculation among the colony of titled exiles in the land of the Alps as to the possibilities of others to follow suit. Then like a thunderbolt the news spread that ex-Emperor Charles of Austria, who had been leading the life of a dignified, rather secluded country squire at Villa Prangins, on the Lake of Geneva, had left Switzerland without official permission and was making efforts to re-establish his throne in Hungary. But contrary to Constantine's case, where the people were clamoring for their former ruler, the Hungarians had no desire whatsoever to see Charles reinstated as their King and the final outcome was that he had to join his family again in Switzerland and be grateful that the Swiss overlooked his political adventure.

The Castle Of Wartegg

First Swiss Residence Of The Exiled Imperial Family Of Austria

The ex-Imperial family of Austria made their first sojourn on Swiss soil in Castle Wartegg on the Lake of Constance, a chateau which dates back to the year 1534, when it was built by Caspar Blarer, brother of the then powerful Diethelm Blarer, Abbot of St. Gall, and proprietor of a portion of the extensive domains of Wartensee near Staad, on the Lake of Constance.

However, the ancient chateau proved too small and a few months later, in 1919, Charles settled himself comfortably in the palatial Villa Prangins, near Nyon, on the Lake of Geneva. This residence forms a part of one of the finest estates in that part of Switzerland, and has many associations with fallen grandeur. The domain in its entirety is composed of the chateau la Bergerie and Villa Prangins. It belonged to ex-King Joseph Bonaparte of Spain, who took up his residence there after leaving Bordentown, N. J. The next owner was his nephew, Prince Jerome Napoleon, son of King Jerome Bonaparte of Westphalia. He often sojourned at Prangins during the Second Empire, with his Italian wife, Princess Clothilde, daughter of Victor Emanuel II. Spending vast sums of money on the place, he transformed the same into an abode of rare beauty and luxury. Wonderful steam yachts were stationed in the harbor and above the mantlepiece in the principal dining room of the mansion there was and still remains, in lieu of a mirror, an immense, sumptuously framed single pane of glass, permitting of an outlook on the silhouette of the Mont Blanc, rising in the distance directly opposite.

During his two years' sojourn at Prangins Charles of Austria has led the uneventful life of a gentleman farmer. Most of his time was devoted to shooting, fishing and boating. Occasionally he accompanied his wife, ex-Empress Zita on a shopping tour to nearby Geneva, but the Swiss being accustomed to the presence of titled exiles hardly noticed them.

An Outing To The Habsburg, The Cradle Of His Ancestors

It was indeed a strange irony of fate which brought the Habsburgs back to Switzerland, the very land they once oppressed. On the Wulpelsberg above Brugg, in the canton of Argovie stand the insignificant remainders of their first stronghold, the actual cradle of their dynasty, dating back to the year 1020. The tower, with walls eight feet thick, is the only part now standing which belonged to the original structure; in it the room said to have been occupied by Rudolph of Habsburg is still shown. The government of the canton of Aargau, who is the owner of the ancient stronghold had the same renovated a few years ago. The adjoining dwelling house, where refreshments are sold, is rented to a farmer.

District Of Lucerne Future Abode

It is rumored that Charles, on account of his recent ill-calculated venture, will transfer his domicile from the Lake of Geneva to the Lake of Lucerne, where he has already done some "house-hunting." One of the estates under consideration is the beautifully situated Castle Heidegg, built in the Middle Ages by the nobles of Heidegg, and now the property of a Lucerne patrician family Pfyffer-von Heidegg.

Lucerne, ever famous for its perfect scenic beauty, would probably welcome the opportunity of sheltering this interesting family in its vicinity, for Constantine's presence there proved an irresistible lure for many tourists. But Lucerne in summer is so fascinating and offers so many attractions that it is really of no account whether it can feature any ex-notables or not.

As a city it is both modern and quaint. The palatial hotels and smart shops, the spacious lake promenades and attractive villas, form a delightful contrast against the reliques of the past; the picturesque mediaeval wooden bridges spanning the river Reuss. Being situated in the district which is described as "classical ground" for its historic associations, Lucerne is also much frequented by the Swiss themselves and many native singing and gymnastic societies as well as rifle clubs often hold their annual summer festival in this city, thus introducing the native atmosphere so much enjoyed by foreign guests.

At Zurich And Elsewhere

Another fair Swiss city, Zurich, was at the outbreak of the great upheaval in Germany and Austria, in the Fall of 1918, a particular favorite refuge of fallen dignitaries both from the highest ranks of the nobility and the military cast. These more or less illustrious persons have departed long ago, but there are still a goodly number of titled guests who prefer to live on their dwindled income in some moderate priced Swiss pension.

The ancient Castle of Zizers, the homestead of the noble family von Salis, situated near the Grisons capital, Coire, was at one time the retreat of the ex-King Ludwig of Bavaria and his eldest daughter Hildegard. Joined later on by some additional members of his family the former King of the Bavarians now resides at Locarno, a lovely spot in Italian Switzerland, where he devotes the best part of his time to reading and automobiling.

While the ex-Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, the mother of the former Crown Princess Cecilie, has lived quietly on the lake of Geneva ever since the war began, the ex-Grand Duke and ex-Grand Duchess of Hessen, occupying the carefully renovated Castle of Tarasp in the Lower Engadine, are freely intermingling with the outer world.

This chateau, crowning a gracefully formed hill in the vicinity of the well known group of Spas, Tarasp, Schuls, Vulpera, is perhaps the most beautifully situated stronghold in the whole of Switzerland. It is 1,000 years old and was the seat of the Austrian governors up to 1803.

Health and pleasure seekers in Switzerland will thus have opportunities to encounter many personages whose names once carried weight, but who in the little mountain republic have to become converted to the principles which are in harmony with the laws of real Democracy—simplicity and equality—if they want to endear themselves to the natives.

The judge is taken suddenly ill and Jimmy gives him a dose or two of "Knight's 99" with the result that the Judge is cured and Jimmy acquitted. The syndicate thereupon begs Jimmy to reveal the fifth ingredient of his decoction, the four others being known to them, and he complies. The citizens of the town, convinced of his greatness as a townsman, elect him mayor and Miriam becomes his bride.

Douglas MacLean takes the part of Jimmy Knight and Marian De Beck plays as Miriam Rogers.

Mr. And Mrs. Buster Keaton

Buster Keaton and Natalie Talmadge-Keaton have settled down into regular old-fashioned domesticity. Buster comes home to dinner every night, and Natalie meets him at the door with a smile—and they are finding out that the good old home stuff of their fathers and mothers is good enough even for the brides and bridegrooms of 1921. Incidentally, Buster is working on "The Playhouse," his latest comedy.

Natalie is perfectly happy to give up the screen and be a good little housewife.

She doesn't want a lot of maids around—because she particularly wants to cook Buster's food herself. Despite the fact that her trousseau was fairly bulging with lovely negligees and s...t looking little "breakfast in bed" caps and coats, Natalie gets up early—it has to be early for a film star, you know—puts on a snappy little checkered gingham apron and goes into the kitchen to see that the poached eggs on toast are just right.

"Because the food a comedian eats is most important," announces the young wife seriously enough. "How could he be funny if he had a pain in his 'tummy'?"

"Keeping Up With Lizzie"

Lizzie Henshaw, belle of Pointview, a small country town, is sent to a fashionable school by her ambitious father. His bitter business rival, Pettigrew the father of Dan, Lizzie's sweetheart, not to be outdone sends Dan to Harvard. And then both of them—the town's two leading grocers—start to boost their prices to pay for their children's schooling. After graduation, Lizzie tours Europe with some wealthy friends and then returns to Pointview with a flock of lofty and expensive ideas, and accompanied by Count Louis Roland, who sees in her an opportunity to marry wealth. She immediately sets a standard of dress and mode of living that starts a period of wild and furious spending on the part of Pointview, which threatens to ruin everybody. Poor Dan, in spite of his Harvard background, plays second fiddle to the Count. Lizzie's father, unable to hold the pace, confesses he is broke—the Count refuses to go on—but upon receiving a dowry of $10,000 agrees to a hasty wedding. On the way to the minister he fakes a breakdown, and when they all get out of the car, the Count jumps in and speeds away with the money. Meanwhile, Dan, suspicious of Count Louis, has discovered that he is an imposter, and with "Soc" Potter, the village lawyer and everyone's friend, jumps into a machine to stop the wedding.

As they speed down the road, they come upon the stranded wedding party. Dan explains the situation, and they all continue the pursuit. In his haste to get away, the Count takes a turn at too high a rate of speed, the car leaves the road, and plunges over a bank into a lake. After pulling him to shore, Dan forces him to return the money, and then releases him on his promise to leave the country. After such a rude awakening, the simple life has a stronger appeal for Lizzie, and Dan continues with her to the minister's instead of the Count.

Enid Bennett and Edward Hearn take the principal parts.

Rubye de Remer

"America's Most Beautiful Blonde," as Rubye de Remer is designated by Helleu, will soon be seen in E. Phillips Oppenheim's celebrated story, "Passersby." The name of the picture will be changed upon release as a previous production by another author has already employed the title.

Miss de Remer will be surrounded by an all-star cast, which includes Lewis Stone, Raymond Hatton, Walter McGrail, Kathleen Kirkham, William V. Mong and Frank Leigh.

Alice Calhoun In "Peggy Puts It Over"

In "Peggy Puts It Over," Alice Calhoun plays the part of a young girl who strives to put life into the sleepy town of her birth, where the townspeople were still driving oxen teams and talking in the b'gosh lingo. It was a hard uphill task but "Peggy puts it over," even against the wishes of the man she loves, who would have Oldtown remain as it is and not become modernized. The story is a splendid vehicle, for Miss Calhoun whose beauty and sense of comedy find a grateful outlet in "Peggy Puts It Over." The charming star is now busily at work on her new production, "The Matrimonial Web."

Walter McGrail

Walter McGrail is one of the most popular and most capable leading men in pictures. His first stage appearance was in "Pinafore," in which he sang a bit and walked about the stage but contends that he was of no importance whatever to the production.

After several years in dramatic plays and comic operas Mr. McGrail returned to New York from a one-night tour to find that activities in the thespian line were not all they should be. A chance to play in a picture was offered him, and, in a disinterested sort of way, he accepted it. His screen performance was so satisfactory that he continued and his climb to fame began.

Viora Daniel

Viora Daniel has just graduated from playing leads with male stars in feature pictures to heading the casts in comedies. Her latest are "Let Me Explain" and "In For Life."

GIRL ASSERTS RIGHT TO CHOOSE HER OWN

HERKIMER, N. Y., July 31.—Mike Pollack of New Haven, Conn., for the present, at least, is a disappointed wooer. Paula Misloski, of Jordanville, was the object of Mike's affections. Some years ago, when Paula's parents lived in the Connecticut city, the suitor took a fancy to the then sixteen-year-old girl. This he made known to the girl's parents, who, without Paula's knowledge, agreed, at a future time, that Mike should become their son-in-law.
Meantime Mike saved his earnings, bought a house, arranged the details for the wedding, even as to the flowers and music. Recently the suitor, ten years Paula's senior, came to Jordanville to claim the hand of the young lady.
She resented the family plans and went to the sheriff for protection. Mike's demands upon the sheriff were met with advice to wait until "all" were ready for the ceremony.

FRENCH LADS BEING SENT TO SCOUT CAMPS

PARIS, July 31.—Through the cooperation of the three French scouting organizations, Les Eclaireurs de France, Les Scouts de France, Les Eclaireurs Unioniste de France and the American committee for Devastated France, about a thousand Frenchmen and boys, especially from the devastated area of the Aisne, are having an opportunity this summer of attending a boy scout camp, where they are being taught the principles of scouting and how to become scout leaders.
The two camps, which will operate from July 17, to September 6, at La Croix St. Ouen, near Compiegne (Oise) and at Corcy, (Aisne,) respectively, will be the largest scout camps ever held in France.
Mr. Lorne W. Barclay, National director of education of Boy Scouts, in the United States, has come to France, at the invitation of the minister of foreign affairs, to represent the American Boy Scouts and to collaborate with representatives of the French Scout organizations in the direction of the summer camps. In addition, sixteen American men many of them college students, have volunteered their services as assistants at the camp schools. Among them are Henry Cabot Lodge, from Harvard, grandson of Senator Lodge; Paul North and Jack Danforth of Princeton; Ashley Newman and Barry Rich, of Yale. Some of these boys are working their way over on ships of the U. S. Shipping board.

United States Invited to Join

Chief Big Hawk, of the Seneca tribe of Indians, has accepted the invitation to instruct the French boys in Indian lore, woodcraft and outdoor work. The National Catholic welfare council is represented at the French camps by George Boyle, and the Dominion Boy Scout association of Canada is represented by Mr. Labelle of Ottawa, Canada. Dr. D'Eliscu of Temple University, Philadelphia, has charge of the camp sanitation.
Many of the boys at the camps are the guests of troops of American boy scouts who, in answer to an appeal sent to them by Miss Anne Morgan of New York, have started a campaign to raise $25 each to send a representative French boy from some village in the devastated region to one of the two camps as guest of their troop.
The main leaders for the camps were furnished by the French Scouting organizations, and leaders from Great Britain, Belgium, Canada and the United States have been invited to join. The French leaders specialize in pioneering and nature study and the Americans in athletics, scout games, boxing, wrestling, swimming, water sports and life saving and first aid.
The committee of direction for the two summer scout camps has Mrs. A. Murray, Dike as president, and Miss Anne Morgan as vice-president. The committee on technique is composed of Lorne W. Barclay, M. Guerin-Desjardins, M. Jean Loiseau, M. l'Abbe Sevin and M. H. Guerreau.
Last year the American committee organized a boy scout camp at Franeport, in the Forest of Compiegne, where 261 boys received training in scouting. At the invitation of the French government 350 American boy scouts came from America to visit the camp and the battlefields of France.

A majority of the crowd did not take part in the parade, merely watching the radical demonstrators.

TEXAS RANKS FIFTH WITH CHICK FARMS

Special to the Record News

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Along with its reputation in various other lines, Texas ranks fifth among all the states with regard to the number of chickens on farms, according to a report made today by the census bureau as a portion of the 1920 census returns. Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Ohio are the only states which reported the larger number of chickens on January 1, 1920, than Texas.

Out of the total chicken population of 370,537,385 in the United States there were 18,008,062 in Texas compared with 12,719,572 on April 15, 1910. It is explained by the census bureau that because of the difference in dates a strict comparison may not properly be made from these figures but they will do for approximate comparison. The largest number of chickens on hand in 1920 was 27,746,510 in Iowa.

Texas produced during the year 1919, 70,625,008 dozens of eggs out of a total of 1,656,267,200 produced in the United States in the same period. Nine other states produced a larger number.

During the year 1919 Texas farmers raised 26,592,113 chickens out of a total of 475,923,035 raised in the United States. Only Iowa, Illinois and Missouri raised a larger number.

The figures show that Texas made a gain of 11.5 per cent in the number of chickens raised in 1919 compared with 1909, but that it decreased 8.7 per cent in the number of eggs produced in the same period. However, the outlook for the next decade seems to have improved for the number of chickens on hand January 1, 1920, was almost half as many more than ten years previous.

WHEN PRESIDENT "ROUGHED IT" WITH EDISON AND FORD

Above are the four distinguished campmates. Left to right are Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, President Harding and Harvey C. Firestone. Below, the evening meal. Left to right around the table are Bishop Anderson, George B. Christian (Harding's secretary), Mrs. Edison and her husband, President Harding, Mrs. Firestone and Henry Ford.

That President Harding likes to "get back to nature" is shown by these pictures of his recent week-end spent with Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and Harvey C. Firestone in their camp on Licking creek, Washington county, Maryland, recently. Harding enjoyed the brief rest from state cares. He sat under the huge trees and chatted with the auto wizard, electrical wizard and tire magnate, chopped wood, and ate and slept "like a boy." The photos show "the boys" in camp.

It includes addresses by such well known journalists as James Wright Brown, of Editor and Publisher, New York; H. L. Bridgeman, of the Brooklyn Standard Union; K. Sugimura, of the Tokio Asahi Shimbun; B. W. Fleisher, of the Japan Advertiser; Thales Coutoupis, of Nea Ellas, Athens; Ludwig Saxe, of Verdenes Gang, Christiania; Rustom N. Vatchaghandy, of Sanj Vartaman, Bombay, and Virgillio Rodriguez Beteta, of the Central American Press association, Guatemala.

Others of equal prominene will appear in the first formal program announcement. The names of two well known newspapermen who will be the chief representatives of England and France, respectively, on the program will be announced soon.

It is planned to devote four and a half or five days to the business sessions of the congress, leaving the remaining time open for the schedule arranged by the Hawaiian entertainment committees. The business sessions will consist of general meetings when the delegates will assemble in a single body for discussion of problems affecting the entire profession, and departmental conferences of first interest to only a part of the delegates. Two afternoons will be devoted to conferences on journalistic education, the newspaper press, daily and weekly, and magazine writing. The Pan-Pacific Press conference will probably meet for an all-day session on the last day.

Prof. Walter B. Pitkin, of Columbit university, and Prof. W. D. Hornaday, of the University of Texas, will have places on the program of the educational conference. Their problems will have to do with training for newspaper work of all kinds. The program committee believes that the program now being arranged will be truly representative of the best journalism of almost every country of the world.

NEW FLEET OF SEA PANTHERS PLANNED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—America's submarine fleet is to be as powerful and efficient as that of any nation in the world.

Eighty first-class "sea panthers" are now in operation, and the navy department is planning the addition of thirty S-boats, the latest and most improved type of under the surface fighter.

"When these new craft are received and prepared for active work we will have a good submarine fleet," Secretary of the Navy Denby said today.

Persistent rumors have prevailed recently in congress and in naval circles that the subsea fleet of the American navy was "on the bum," but Secretary Denby's denial of these stories and his expressed desire to make the navy's U-boat flotilla a formidable arm of the nation's first-line of defense has quoted some of the most aggressive of those who have attacked the department's policy and building program.

Pleas for greater development of submarines were among the features of the recent discussion in congress of the navy appropriation bill for the next fiscal year, and much of the criticism leveled at the navy department's subsea policy and the alleged poor condition of the submersible fleet was brought to a head in a resolution introduced in the senate by Senator King (D.), of Utah, directing an investigation by the senate naval affairs committee. No action has been taken on this resolution since its introduction, and it is regarded as unlikely that the proposed investigation will be conducted.

One of the latest rumors concerning the condition of the submarine fleet had it that a number of U-boats were tied up at the Panama canal and that they were of no use except as junk.

Secretary Denby declared that certain divisions operating in tropical waters have encountered difficulties due to the climate action on engines and gear and that experiments are now being conducted to eradicate these troubles.

A flotilla of the latest type of submarines made their way recently to the Pacific and are now operating in those waters.

High officials of the navy department dismiss most of these rumors as propaganda and go right along with their work of developing the undersea flotilla, with the belief that this arm of the navy is to be "as good as the best."

Wooden blocks, four to six inches in cubic dimensions, are used as elements in a game of lawn dice introduced by a western sportsman, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. As the blocks are fairly heavy, and are pitched somewhat the same as bowling balls, considerable exercise is afforded. Scoring is the same as in the ordinary game. It is said tht the fad is becoming very popular on the west coast.

Some forms of seaweed contain as much as 40 per cent of sugar.

SURGEON CLAIMS HEART'S DISEASE CAN BE CURED

LONDON, July 31.—Will the doctors of the future cure heart disease by operation?

The astonishing case of a woman of sixty-two who was made much better for her remaining six years of life is reviewed in the British Medical Journal.

She had been suffering for four years from a swelling in the main artery near the heart. Dr. Theodore Tuffier, a well-known surgeon, after an X-ray examination, granted her request and consented to operate. Professor Renon, who was present, records how the swelling of soft growth, which began only a finger's breath from the heart itself and was two inches long, was isolated and bound round so as slightly to lessen the passage of the artery. Dr. Tuffier states that the patient was for four years afterwards free from functional troubles and died last year from an ailment not attributed to the heart.

"The feasibility of the operation has been established," Renon reports.

"This case, says the Journal, "indicates a short step forward toward the period foretold by Lauder Brunton, a celebrated English doctor who died in 1916, when 'irremediable' conditions associated with heart and blood vessel disease shall successfully be brought within the realm of surgery.'
