0 Taken at Break House

Burglars entered the Russell House sometime after midnight Monday, taking approximately $80 in cash.

Entry to the building was through the garage at the rear of the house. A window pane broken at the north wall of the garage, and the window was unlocked.

After entering the garage part of the building, the burglars slit open the door at the rear of the building and entered the main part of the house. The door was unlocked. The burglars were discovered when the door was opened Tuesday morning. Nothing else was taken except the money.

Sheriff Ray Phagan stated that he is holding a suspect in the case but nothing definite has been developed toward its solution.

GOSPEL 4 QUARTET—This colored male quartet from Topeka, Kansas, will sing at the People's Chapel at the morning service on Sunday, January 23, at 11 a. m. They will also sing on the chapel hour of station KEYE from 8 to 8:30 a. m. Sunday. The Gospel 4 Quartet have been making public appearances for 19 years, and are noted for their fine Gospel singing.

Twenty-two Men Sign Up for Local National Guard Unit

The necessary minimum of recruits have been secured for the National Guard unit in Perryton, thus fulfilling all of the conditions laid down by state Guard headquarters towards activating a National Guard company here.

A total of 21 men was necessary in order to activate the company, and county service officer Tom Davis reports that 22 men had signed up by Tuesday of this week.

Formal application for the Guard company has been sent to state headquarters, and a recruiting team will be sent to Perryton to enlist the local men. Date of the visit of the recruiting team has not been announced.

Most of the men who have signed up for the National Guard are those without previous military experience, stated Davis. Meetings will be held in the VFW Hall, and the company equipment will be stored there.

Two More Men To Be Inducted

Two men from Perryton will report for induction into the Army on January 26 for the January draft call of Local Board 99. These men are Kenneth L. Gibbs and Paul W. Knopfel.

Another man, Robert W. Beach, who registered from Gruver, was to have been included in this call, but has left the country and has been reported to state headquarters as a delinquent registrant.

After this January call, there

New Chevrolet To be Shown This Saturday

Open house in the showrooms of the Perryton Motor Co. on Saturday, January 22, will mark the unveiling of the 1949 Chevrolet automobile, which will be shown to the public all over the nation on that date.

The new model, which is the first radical change for Chevrolet in seven years, somewhat resembles the Buick and Oldsmobile in general appearance. It is lower, wider, and more distinctive than any previous series.

There are two series of 1949 Chevrolets, the Fleetline and Styleline. Fleetlines come in two and four-door sedans, and have the roof line extended in an unbroken sweep to the rear. The Irvin Herget, manager of the Perryton team, stated that arrangements have not been completed for this play-off, and that no opponents or game sites have been determined.

Gruver and Perryton have finished their first half schedule, and are tied with 6 games won and 2 lost. Spearman has a record of 4 wins and 2 losses, but will play Stinnett and Texhoma this week to finish their first half schedule. Since Spearman is expected to win these two, this will make the three-way tie for first place.

Plans Will Be Altered to Fit Low Bid Totals

Bids for the construction of Perryton's water and sewer expansion projects were opened by the city council Tuesday, and it was found that the money on hand from the sale of the revenue bonds failed to meet the low bids for the two projects.

The council will meet Friday night with consulting engineer Joe Ward of Wichita Falls to revise the construction plans, trimming them to meet the bids. While accurate figures on the bids and costs were not available to the Herald, since Ward took them with him to Wichita Falls Tuesday night, Mayor Rufus Bolerjack stated that the cash deficit was in the neighborhood of $13,000.

The bond issue was for $275,000, but the city well now in operation on the north side of town cost $11,000, the engineer-

The senior high school chorus, under the direction of Miss Len Lowe, will sing several numbers.

HERE'S HOW IT WILL LOOK WHEN FINISHED—An architect's drawing of the new school gymnasium and auditorium, now under construction. This view shows the west, or main entrance. To the left is the auditorium and the gymnasium is on the right. This building is scheduled to be completed this year.

New Gymnasium and Auditorium for the Perryton Schools to Compare With Any Plant In the Panhandle; Ready Next Term

Perryton people who have been waiting for the details of the new school gymnasium and auditorium can rest assured that the new additions to the plant will be as fine as any in the Panhandle. In fact, the seating capacity for basketball games will be about the same as the Texas State College gym, a normal seating capacity of 2,000. The auditorium, which will seat 1,400, will be ideal for community gatherings as well as school events.

The seating space in the auditorium is 78 by 86 feet, divided into three seating sections. The seats are late model "posture-form" cushioned affairs, like those commonly used in movie theatres. In addition, there is a balcony at the rear, consisting of 8 rows of seats across. On top of this is a projection booth for the showing of motion pictures. The stage is 21 by 56 feet, with dressing rooms, toilets, etc., on each side. At the rear of the stage is a large door to the outside for the convenience of loading and unloading the stage props and equipment.

There is an orchestra pit just in front of the stage. Main entrances to the auditorium will be from the corridor, on each side of the auditorium. These are emergency exits leading to the outside, however, as shown in the above picture.

The west entrance of the building leads to a foyer from which persons may go either to the gym or auditorium.

Gymnasium
The playing court of the gymnasium is 42 by 90 feet, which is divided into two practice courts, 42 by 45 feet. There are game goals at either end, with four folding practice goals on each side for practice sessions.

The floor area around the court is 62 by 100 feet, making plenty of free space around it, and a great change from the present gym, where the concrete walls and iron railings mark the court boundary.

In the center of the playing court are four inserts for putting up a regulation basketball ring. Seating in the gym consists of a balcony on both sides of the court, where 1,200 persons can be accommodated. There will be no posts or "blind spots" in the balcony.

It's the 'Little People' That Make a Town, Says D. D. Monroe at Chamber of Commerce Fete

"It's the little people that make a town... it's good deeds done by filling station attendants, waitresses, hotel and store clerks that make lasting impressions on visitors to your town."

"Only a fraction of your visitors ever see a member of your Chamber of Commerce, but they can see your Chamber of Commerce in action if the people they meet are selling Perryton."

Thus spoke D. D. Monroe of Clayton, N. M., principal speaker at the Chamber of Commerce annual banquet Tuesday night. Mixing jokes with serious comment, the tall visitor from the Sunshine State kept a capacity crowd of over 200 members and guests thoroughly entertained with his speech.

"On the serious side, he pointed out that right now is the time for the American people to rededicate themselves to democracy and live it rather than talk it. 'We are selfish,' Monroe said. 'A lot of us are still dealing with black markets and hosts of merchants are marking up their stock above a true value for almost fraudulent returns. Democracy is bound to die unless we return to real Christianity and stop making a mockery of everyday life.'"

Probably the most thought-provoking statement he made was, "All of this leads to government control—should war come again we will have a planned economy that we will never get rid of." After the meeting, he explained that he meant "powerful groups would take over our nation, and we, the common man, would never be considered again."

On the lighter side, Monroe said that he has been lots of places and had seen nearly everything, adding, "One time in Miami I even saw Eleanor Roosevelt in shorts."

He read a piece called "A Creed for Our Town," which was sent to him by an anonymous writer, and which drew a good hand from the audience at the banquet.

It goes like this:

"I believe in my town. I believe in its past; in the men and women who have lived before me, whose toil made the land productive, whose common sense laid our good road system, whose foresight founded our school, whose devotion built our churches, whose love raised up children to serve their country."

"I believe in its present; in the men and women and children about me whose working together in courage and perseverance has wrought results of which I am proud. I believe in the spirit of good will and neighborliness that has brought these things to pass."

"I believe in its future; in the men and women who will come after me. I believe that what has been done is only the beginning of a greater work that will be done, that the next generation will be better and nobler than this."

Visitors to the annual banquet came from Higgins, Follett, Booker, Amarillo, Balke, Gray, Spearman, Lipscomb, Pampa, Canadian, Darrrouzett, Liberal, Gruver, Guyton, Borger and Beaver.

Fred Osborne, outgoing president, gave the annual financial report, revealing that the C. of C. now has a deficit of $491. This money, he explained, was needed over and above the approved 1948 budget, for the newly formed City Planning Committee, which was given $500.

The 1948 budget set up at the first of the year was $12,083.00 and $12,076.00 was collected. Osborne added that $4,144.00, raised by preceding chamber officers, was on deposit, and in 1949

British Find Prince is A Prince

LONDON (AP)—A Prince of a guy. In pub and palace. That's the way Britain has sized up Philip, Duke of Edinburgh and husband of Princess Elizabeth.

For more than a year now, he has been on trial, serving a sort of apprenticeship for a rough job which will take on increasing responsibilities as the years roll by. And those responsibilities may pile up much more quickly than anticipated. For Philip—now that King George is ill—will be expected to take over many of the royal functions at public affairs this year.

He has brought to the sedate austerity of the palace a breath of fresh air, a common touch, which the common folk over here approve.

By tradition, the royal family make it a practice to leave a party early—even one of their own at the Palace. Not Philip. He's a bitter-ender.

By practice, members of the royal family keep their cars waiting while out visiting for an evening. Not Philip. If he isn't driving himself as he usually does, he'll tell the chauffeur: "Just whip around for me about 12, will you?"

By custom, Buckingham palace has its flunkies take care of the formalities when one of the regal few accept the invitation. Not Philip. He phones—"I'll be along sevenish."

Just as it happens on High Street, there is an argument within the palace gates on how to say it: "Is it 'cinema'?" or "cinema?" It doesn't worry Philip. He says: "Let's go to the movies."

He marked off a cricket pitch on the front lawn of his Windlesham Moor house and enlisted the gardener, the odd-job man and the policeman on duty for a little practice.

Here in Britain, the average man takes his sports seriously. Philip has proved himself a kindred soul. He's fair at golf, good at cricket, better at squash, and best of all at racing small sailing craft.

But he's no playboy. There are speeches to be made, fairs to be opened, hospitals to be dedicated, factories to be visited, youth organizations to be encouraged. Philip takes them all seriously.

For example, he took over the honorary presidency of the London Federation of Boys' clubs. With his naval work and royal functions, he could have called it quits by merely lending his name to the organization. Philip didn't. In nine weeks, he visited as many clubs.

Philip really works at his job as a prince.

French Trains Have Rubber Tires

PARIS (AP)—France has 140 rubber-tired railway cars, that have gone 12,000,000 miles since they were introduced in 1932. The cars weigh 16 tons, compared with steel-wheeled cars of 33 tons.

When a tire goes flat, a light warns the driver and he stops at the next division point for a change. No danger is involved, because adjoining tires carry the weight.

The trains run in almost complete silence and with increased smoothness at 80 miles an hour. A tire lasts for 22,000 miles.

They cost more to operate because Diesel engines are too heavy for the tires and are replaced by gasoline engines, which are more expensive to operate.

Queen county, New York, was noted for horse races as early as 1865.

Trend Toward Larger Farms Is Not Good for Nation's Small Operators

COLLEGE STATION—Is there going to be room for all size farms? That's a question many folks are thinking about when they view with alarm the general trend toward larger farms.

For years these folks have been wondering how long large, medium and small scale family farms can keep on providing a good living for their operators, says C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist of Texas A. & M. College.

A recent survey made by the USDA Bureau of Agricultural Economics, groups farms together according to the gross income they bring in from the sale of their products. This survey also gives quite a bit of other information on the broad classes of farms that are alike in size and other characteristics.

Bates says that the medium farms are providing a good living, and in some parts of the country these farms are getting even bigger. As they do increase, they begin competing successfully with the large-scale units.

As for the nearly one million small-scale farms, Bates is not so certain. These farms raise from $500 to $1,200 worth of products a year, but they don't make enough to provide these same farm families with telephones, automobiles, electricity and running water.

With industries springing up all over the state, there are more opportunities for part-time jobs off the farm. Quite a few folks that have jobs in town build homes on small acreages outside the city limits. Such location permit them to have chicken a few pigs or sheep, a cow and vegetable patch. Ever since RF lines and butane gas have taken on to the country, this trend has become more general.

Texas families want more elbow room; they want more ground area than they'd have in the city. So, as the economist see it, there's a big need for training farm people in other trades whose best income is outside farming. And others need help in further developing more profitable farms where they are says Bates.

But, in many ways, this farm management specialist thinks the small-scale farm is one of our toughest present day problems.

Perry County, Texas, Still Has a Circuit-Riding Preacher Who's Been Riding a Horse 54 Years

William C. Barnard
Herald Press Staff

Perry County still has a circuit-riding preacher, a kindly old farmer who spends Saturday afternoons delivering the Word of God.

Forbes, 74 years old, Benjamin Johnson, 72, traveled by horse or on foot to the churches and neighboring communities.

Forbes wore out my last horse, "I couldn't get it any more. So for 16 years Ollie has been carrying me."

Forbes' 20-year-old horse, a fat, patient creature, pulls the preacher's days a week and totes him from his guest pulpit to the other two days a week. Brother Forbes, as he is known, had a sorrel horse.

The horse was too rough to ride, so he could get along with a buggy. Ollie rides a single-footer but a fox-trotter. A fox-trot is easier on a man than a gallop.

Forbes lives in the Balch community, Parker County, 12 miles west of Weatherford. He has a most of which he has to his daughter and with whom he resides. He reserves for himself a small orchard, a garden and 10-acre plot on which he grows cotton, feed and corn. "I also own a couple of hogs."

Up at dawn, Forbes farms until dusk five days per week. He works without rest, not even taking time out for lunch. "Ollie and I figure two meals a day are enough for us."

A minister of the Church of Christ, Brother Forbes preaches in Parker, Palo Pinto, Erath and Hood counties. "Distances don't make much difference—Ollie and I get up early and travel late. And we take the near cuts—just strike right out over the fields and little roads and once in awhile we hit an old road, no longer in use, that I traveled decades ago. A man can really think riding an old road for an old road's like meeting an old friend."

While following the plow on weekdays or riding Ollie to church on weekends, Forbes composes and rehearses his sermons. "I followed Brother Forbes across my ranch the other day," a friend says. "He didn't know I was there and I listened to one of the best sermons I ever heard."

And Forbes declares: "A man can lose himself and prepare a sermon on horseback. He never could do that in a car—most likely he'd find himself in a ditch."

Sometimes, riding along on Ollie, Brother Forbes reflects on the state of the world. "I've always been an optimist and hope

I always will be. I think everything will turn out for the best. There's a great world crime wave on now, but crime waves ebb and flow like the ocean tides."

A native of Pettus County, Mo., Forbes came to Collin County, Texas in 1889. He went to Add-Ran Christian College at Throp Spring, Hood County, a school that later became Texas Christian University. After leaving the college in 1898 he taught school in Parker and Hood Counties before settling down to his main occupation as a farmer.

Brown-eyed Brother Forbes was Parker County's representative in the Texas Legislature from 1926 to 1932. Slightly built and of medium height, he weighs 140 pounds, his thick crop of hair is now grey. "Once it was red as a woodchuck—folks could warm their hands over it in the winter." Overalls, a cotton shirt and an old straw hat cannot hide the innate dignity of this quiet, serious, well-loved man. There is dignity in his weatherproof face, in his manner and voice, and in his strong, toil-scarred hands the dignity is there.

To find the oldtimer you follow a lonely country road a dozen miles south of Weatherford. You go through a couple of barbed wire gates, cross a cottonfield path and stop your car at the bank of a dry river. After that, you are on foot and you follow the river a quarter of a mile, cross it, and walk through snagging brush another quarter of a mile and then you catch sight of Forbes and Ollie, plowing.

This year, he and Ollie plowed, planted and picked three acres of cotton which yielded a bale and five acres of corn which amounted to 125 bushels. All that, besides the feed crop. Forbes never hires any help. "Ollie and I do every lick."

The pair are admirably suited. "Ollie goes along nice and slow but she keeps going. When I was younger and after I wasn't so young, I followed a team of mules, but those plagued mules just wore me down."

Forbes has a son and a daughter. His wife died in 1931.

He never sets any fee for his sermons—just takes any pay the churches want to give him. He spends Saturday nights at the homes of the brethren. "I'm always welcome."

Brother Forbes can read the few Testament in Greek as easily as in English but he doesn't read the Bible much any more.

"I've read it so much that now I just think the Bible instead of reading it. I just turn the verses and chapters over in my mind."

He preaches without notes. Folks have been after me to set down some of my sermons for a long when I'm gone. Two New Cagers

NEW YORK (AP)—Two newcomers have been added to the New York Athletic Club basketball squad in preparation for a schedule that includes many of the leading college teams in the east. The recent additions are Fred Lenanti, former NYU player, and Joe Cullen, who played freshman basketball at Rhode Island State last season.

Rangers Lose to Gruver, Spearman During Past Week

The Rangers drew a blank in their basketball games this week, dropping a close one at Spearman Friday night and absorbing a good drubbing in the local gym from the Gruver Greyhounds Monday night. The game with Canyon, scheduled Tuesday night, was cancelled because of bad road conditions which made it impossible for the Canyon team to appear.

The loss to Spearman by a 47-46 count, evened the games between the two teams this year to two wins each. The game was nip and tuck throughout, but the Lynx staved off a late Ranger rally to take the one-point decision. Windom, Cayton and White were high point men for Spearman, with 15, 16 and 12 points, respectively. Revis and Powell hit 14 and 13 points to lead the Ranger scoring.

There were three games Monday night against Gruver. The Gruver juniors were leading, 9-2, in the final quarter, when coach Brotherton pulled his team off the court in protest against the officiating.

The game between the B teams was a close affair, and the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle. Final score was 35-37. Earl Dean LaFever led the

Weekly Swing of Southwest Farm Markets

Eggs eased downward last week as slow demand failed to keep up with liberal supplies, but markets opened Monday about steady. Current receipts were quoted about 26 to 28 cents per dozen at the leading wholesale terminals. Poultry moved slowly too, but prices held about steady except for losses of 1 to 2 cents per pound on fryers.

Some let-up in supplies helped hog prices toward a stronger position last week, but Monday's southwest stockyards opened steady to lower than Friday. Top butchers moved within $20 to $20.60 per 100 pounds in dull trading. Sows brought mostly $15 to $17.50. Chicago and St. Louis were among the few markets to start the week at higher than Friday's average.

Cattle advanced slightly this week when steers and snow cut off supplies, but lost these gains when shipments picked up. Trading was slow at southwest terminals Monday with most bids for yearlings, steers and cows 50 cents to $1 lower than the previous Friday. Vealers and calves held about steady. Midwest markets saw similar trends.

Hay showed some strength with alfalfa quoted at $39 to $43 at Texas markets and around $33 at Kansas City for best offerings. Prairie hay sold at $13.50 to $17 a ton.

Cottonseed meal prices slumped again last week, bringing losses at wholesale level up to $6 and $8 per ton for the past two weeks. Other feeds were steady to strong.

Despite last week's official announcement of record stocks of feed grains on farms, southwest prices slipped very little. Monday's quotations were down 2 to 3 cents on wheat, yellow corn, oats and sorghums. Barley was a little stronger and white corn easier.

Obituary
Emma Elizabeth Smith, daughter of James Robert and Martha Elizabeth, one of six children, was born Dec. 13, 1887, in Rusk county, near Henderson, Texas. She passed away at the Washington Clinic, Amarillo, on January 14, at 3 a. m., at the age of 61 years, one month and one day.

In 1892 the Smith family moved to Hunt county, near Lone Oak. In 1906 she came to Ochiltree county and taught school at Black.

On June 12, 1907, she was united in marriage with J. V. Stump and to this union was born one son, John Robert.

She united with the Church of the Brethren in 1917. She taught a Sunday School class for several years, and was a faithful member of the church throughout her life.

In 1915, she became seriously ill and had a long period of sickness, so that she was unable to walk for over a year. Since that time, she had not been well. In 1940, she had a kidney operation and was relatively free from pain since the operation, although unable to do regular housework.

Her father, mother, and one brother, Robert, preceded her in death.

She leaves to mourn her passing her husband, Jess; a son, John Robert; two grand daughters, Sandra Sue and Judith Gayle Stump; a brother, Gracie Smith, Huttsville, Ark.; three sisters, Flora Williams, Lone Oak, Texas; Josephine Doores, Walla Walla Washington; Marjorie Black, Perryton; other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Duke and family spent Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Morgan of Booker.

VIEWING THE SKYLINE of San Francisco from Angel Island in the bay.

AP Newsfeatures
SAN FRANCISCO—Want to buy an island in San Francisco Bay—an island with a view of the Golden Gate and the Golden Gate bridge?

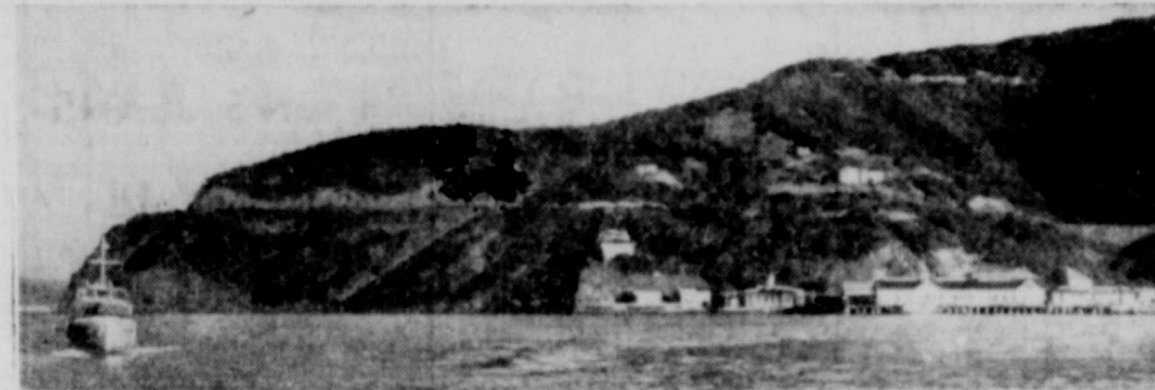

Uncle Sam has it for sale and through the War Assets Administration (WAA) has been asking for bids for more than a year and a half. The offering is Angel Island, declared surplus by the Army in 1946. It is rugged and beautiful with a loop of good paved road around its lower level and a fire trail loop higher up. A jeep easily scales its 770 foot height, where there is an arresting view of the entire northern part of San Francisco Bay.

WAA appraised the island, with its salable installations at $700,000, but it is estimated that ten times that amount has been put into its buildings, its extensive water pipes and storage tanks, and other equipment. There are three separate garrison posts, the newest of which has a 200 bed hospital and considerable housing for men and officers.

Airy, nearly all fog-free, and wild enough to support the herd of perhaps thirty deer whose tracks stipple the fire trails, Angel Island is only three miles north of San Francisco and could provide recreational facilities easily reachable for the 2½ million city dwellers of the Bay Area. There is much room for picnicking, hiking, and riding.

Also on the island are former Ft. McDowell and the well-equipped quarantine station of the U. S. Public Health Service at Hospital Cove. Here the Immigration Service formerly had its detention station for immigrants.

Laymen's League Director to Speak Thursday Night

H. Parr Armstrong, director of the Laymen's League of Texas Christian Churches, will be the main speaker at the Perryton Laymen's League monthly banquet Thursday night.

Doors at both sides of the gym will eliminate walking across the end of the court by spectators.

Along the east and west sides of the gym, underneath the balconies, will be the dressing rooms, showers, offices, and storage rooms.

The coaches' office, on the west side, leads off the main entrance.

The dressing room space is partitioned into home and visiting teams dressing rooms. Players have access to the playing court through doors at the north and south ends of the court into the dressing rooms.

There are storage rooms and equipment drying rooms, with ample room to take care of all sports equipment.

The gym is lighted in daytime by four large windows on each side. For night play, the court is illuminated with six rows of 1,000 watt bulbs, three bulbs per row. Smaller bulbs are placed over the seating sections and downstairs.

Local Highway Patrol Car Gets Radio Transmitter

New radio equipment for the patrol car of the State Highway Patrol was installed Monday, linking Perryton and the surrounding area with patrol headquarters in Amarillo.

Patrolmen Jack Shields and Bob Loving spent Monday in Amarillo getting the new 50-watt transmitter and receiver installed.

Effective range of the transmitter and receiver is only 50 miles, using the antennae on the car, stated Shields. However, stationary antennae will be erected at Perryton, Spearman, Lipscomb and Canadian, with which the transmitter can be used at a much greater range.

This two-way radio equipment is used by the Highway Patrol for many things, including complete reports of road conditions, death messages, etc., as well as being an invaluable aid in law enforcement.

The Perryton sub-station is the last in the area to receive this two-way radio equipment, stated Shields, and the northwest corner of the Panhandle is now part of a state-wide radio network.

ing and attorney's fees come to another $16,500, reducing the cash from the bonds to approximately $247,000. The low bid total for the two projects was around $260,000, stated Mayor Bolerjack.

Among other things, it is planned to reduce the size of the proposed elevated steel tank from 250,000 gallon capacity to 200,000 gallons, and cut down the underground concrete reservoirs from 250,000 gallons to 100,000 gallon capacity, thus bringing the total cost within the amount of money on hand.

This will make it unnecessary to reduce the amount of new water and sewer lines in the expansion plan, Mayor Bolerjack reported.

There were eleven firms submitting bids. Low bidder on the waterworks construction was the S. E. Lanier Co. of Haskell, Texas. Low bidder on the sewer construction was the Sherman Machine and Iron Works of Oklahoma City.

Other firms submitting bids were Cullum, Hodson and Harrison, Dallas; Bell, Braden, Barker and Gilvin, Amarillo; Nodland-Eby Co., Starbuck, Minn.; Dayton Bros., Valley Mills, Tex.; Harrison, Shirley and Harrison, Amarillo; Park Owen Const. Co., Pampa; Panhandle Const. Co., Lubbock; McGregor Const. Co., Perryton and the City Const. Co., Dallas.

Coast Guard Lands Pigeon

CHICAGO (AP)—An exhausted pigeon fluttered down in a water intake crib in Lake Michigan four miles off the Chicago shore. The keeper put through a radio call to the Animal Welfare League. The League got in touch with the Coast Guard. A crash boat plowed the cold, choppy water to the crib, picked up the bushy bird and brought it to dry land. The pigeon—it looked like the homing kind—was taken to league headquarters to rest until it had strength enough to go home.

Miss Ollenberger-Delmar Platner Change Vows in Church Ceremony

A double ring ceremony, Miss Doris Ollenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ollenberger of Bethany, Oklahoma, became the bride of Mr. Delmar Platner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Platner of Perryton on Sunday, January 9, at 3:00 p. m. in the Apostolic Faith Church.

Tica Tabor read the vows over an archway of greenery flanked by large baskets of white flowers. During the ceremony, Miss La Barker sang "Because I Love You Truly." Miss Es-Bowen accompanied her on piano and played the traditional wedding marches.

Miss Ollenberger, who was given away by her father, wore a white satin dress with a cathedral train. The fitted bodice had a net yoke trimmed with pearls. The long sleeves had self buttons the length of the sleeves. Her finger-ring was held in place with a white carnation and white satin roses. Her jewelry was a strand of pearls.

Joe Alice Franks, of Kings Texas was maid of honor. She wore a pink nylon dress and carried a colonial bouquet of carnations.

Mr. Pletcher served as best man. Bob Ollenberger, brother of the bride, and Billy Johnson of Arlington, Colorado, were the ring bearers.

When Sue Tabor, small daughter of Rev. Tica Tabor and Max Berger, brother of the bride, were ring bearers. Karen wore a white net over satin with a cathedral train decorated similarly to that of the bride. She wore a fingertip veil and her bouquet was fashioned with white carnations and white satin ribbon. Miss Barker wore a yellow net over satin formal and she held a bouquet of pink carnations. Miss Bowen wore a pastel green taffeta formal and her corsage was also of pink carnations.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ollenberger chose a gray crepe dress with navy blue accessories. She wore a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Platner wore a black crepe dress with fuchsia accessories. She also wore a gardenia corsage.

Following the ceremony there was a reception given in the Ollenberger home northeast of Perryton.

The lace covered bride's table was centered with the traditional tiered wedding cake with pink tapers on either side. The white frosted cake was decorated with pink confection sugar. A miniature bride and groom standing in a small silver wedding bell topped the cake. Approximately eighty relatives and friends were at the reception.

The bride attended Bethany Highschool in Oklahoma. She is a member of the Home Maker's club.

The bridegroom is a 1947 graduate of the Joplin, Mo., high school. He is employed as a clerk at the Bryan's Food store.

For her wedding trip to Wichita, Kansas, Mrs. Platner chose a gray wool suit with gray and silver accessories.

After January 20 the couple will be at home at 605 Amherst in Perryton.

Council Has View of Manual, 49 Meeting

County home demonstration club is a committee appointed by the county home demonstration clubs and responsible to the county home demonstration agent, states the manual. At the first meeting of the 1949 Ochil-tree County Home Demonstration club on Saturday January 15, members read and discussed definition, history and responsibilities of the council as outlined in the manual. The county home demonstration council, which serves as a link of communication between the county agent and the county home demonstration club, was first organized in 1924 under the direction of Mrs. Mag-N. Barry, then Extension Agent, Rural Women's organization. While the work of the council has increased in volume and activity, the fundamental principles are still illustrated in the relationship between lay professional workers.

The county agent, as a professional home economist, is responsible for the technical instruction relating to food, clothing, shelter and family relations. The council, trained by the agent, is to make this information available to all rural homemakers and interprets it to those who are unable to receive direct instruction. It also informs the county agent of the needs and assistance is especially needed.

The three uppermost responsibilities of the council are to serve as an advisory committee, to be a means of communication between the clubs and the agent, and to make this information available to all rural homemakers and interprets it to those who are unable to receive direct instruction. It also informs the county agent of the needs and assistance is especially needed.

The committee to make the manual rules for the council, composed of Mrs. J. H. Wood, Mrs. B. R. Pletcher, and Delbert Davis was appointed by Mrs. John Schoonover, chairman of the council.

Other committee was appointed to aid in making plans for the new home demonstration club rooms. The committee included Mrs. Oscar Blank, Mrs. J. Flathers and Mrs. Virtie Jones.

J. H. Kershaw, the county home demonstration agent, explained duties to the council.

Club members present were James P. W. Wernske, H. C. W. O. E. Blank, Delbert Davis, James E. Haden, T. M. Os-burn, B. R. Pletcher, Virtie Far-ley, G. Blackwell, Nathan-man, Corwin Trosper, J. H. Howard, O. J. Crain, Harry-er, Fay Savage, Etta Wag-ner, Martin McCartor, and Ir-molesworth.

Taz HD Club Receives First Letter From Their 'Adopted' French Family

The Taz Home Demonstration Club, which "adopted" a French family in the year 1948, received the first letter from the family on Tuesday, January 18.

The letter from the French family is as follows:

"Dear Friends:

"It is with great pleasure that I have received your friendly letter, and I will be truly happy if you will be interested in my little Bernard who is a fine little gentleman. He has been sick, but happily he is better today. I have taken him to the doctor who has found him much better.

"You are always very responsive to all that which you can find to do for your friends and broad, so we work through the difficult times with always a joyous hope for the future.

"I am the mother of six children. My husband works on the paving of the streets of Paris. It is very poor work and like all others he is not paid enough for a living.

"My son Jean is to leave soon for the military service. He is twenty years old. Jacques is an apprentice center learning to be an electrician. Lucienne, 15 years old, is my only daughter. She has been a corset apprentice for two months. Andie, 13 years old, goes to school and is in the finishing class. He is a loud boy but works well.

"Philippe, 9 years old, goes to school also, but he is very slow for his age like so many children. Born during the war they have suffered a great deal from privation.

"And the sixth is Bernard, a boy who will be 8 years old the 9th of January. I hope that he can recover from his cold so that he can gain some weight. He only weighs 12 kilograms and 300 grams (27½ pounds), but we lack so many things. Milk is still very closely rationed. After 10 years the children never touch milk. The things we can find most easily in the markets are too expensive for us to buy on our meagre salary.

"I have written in French. I do not speak it, tell me in your next letter and I will translate before I send it.

"Accept the good friendship of all our little family.

"A friend who has written with pleasure and hopes to hear from you soon."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

HERE'S THE BEST FOOT FORWARD—a small house that looks big. Windows in the garage give it the appearance of an expensive rambling ranch house. This plan W-505 by Bertram A. Weber, 221 No. La Salle St., Chicago, 1, Ill., features a bedroom wing with outside walls for each bedroom, thereby assuring cross ventilation. The L-shaped living room with fireplace affords ample dining space. A utility room off the kitchen eliminates necessity for a basement. This makes the plan economical, with only 1,190 square feet, 17,500 cubic feet.

It Takes Green Feed to Make Good Steers; Dry Pastures Don't Help

COLLEGE STATION—There is a saying that history repeats itself. And that's just what it will do this year, unless Texas stockmen do something.

About a year ago, a number of West Texas cattle feeders had trouble. Their cattle lost their appetites and didn't gain as well as they should have. The blame went to the late summer drought of the year before, says Dr. W. C. Banks, extension veterinarian of Texas A. & M. College.

Texas had a good share of dry summer ranges this past year, so history may repeat itself again this year unless Texas stockmen keep a good eye on their cattle. Cattle are facing a tough winter. They have spent a lot of time on drouthy ranges, and now there is little green feed in the winter pastures. It takes high quality green feed—and lots of it—to keep the cattle in shape. Good quality alfalfa hay is one of the best sources of vitamin A there is, says Dr. Banks. Two to four pounds per day supply enough vitamin A to keep the cattle in good shape.

Cattle that don't get plenty of green hay will soon become night blind. After that, if the sick don't get their vitamin A, they will have convulsions and later become totally blind.

Here's a recent report from Paul T. Marion, assistant animal husbandman of the Spur Experiment Station. On the night of December 22, one Hereford steer in a pen of five was found to be completely night blind. Two others had affected night vision. These steers had not had any vitamin A in their ration in 44 days. They came from grass pastures that had dried out back in August and September. They just didn't have any green feed to furnish them vitamin A.

Other steers just like these—on the same pastures—have been fed the same ration plus alfalfa hay and silage. All this group had normal night vision. If nothing is done to correct the vitamin A deficient ration, all the steers in this group will become night blind. They will soon lose their appetites, some may fall to the ground and have convulsions. Later they may become totally day blind.

Last year, reports Marion, showed more severe symptoms of vitamin A deficiency after 84 days on the ration that didn't have green feed. Before the end of the experiment it was necessary to feed vitamin A to them so they would recover their appetites and be able to finish the experiment.

Now is the time to see that your cattle get plenty of high quality alfalfa hay or silage, says Dr. Banks.

This will keep them off the sick list later on.

Australia Urges Round-Antarctica Flight

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Charles K. Foot, a West Australian, is trying to promote a round-the-South-Pole flight next year.

He thinks such a flight should be made early in the year to mark the visit of King George VI, Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

Foot says such a flight would strengthen Australia's claim to part of the Antarctic continent, and add to scientific knowledge of the cold south. He suggests that the flight be made by flying boat, and start at the end at Perth.

Firm this West Australia city, he says, the plane could fly to Hobart, Tasmania. Then it would head south, refueling at Macquarie Island, at a rendezvous with a ship in the Ross Sea and then at Palmer Archipelago.

It would make the next stop at Magallanes, the Chilean city at the southern tip of South America. From there the plane would fly to Cape Town, South Africa, stopping on the way at a permanent whaling station at South Georgia in the south Atlantic. Then it would fly to Prince Edward and Heard Islands before completing the round-the-world flight at Perth.

Mermaid Jilts a Scientist; Lures Him to a Bar. Then Disappears in the Dead of Night

By HAL RICHARDSON

Newsfeatures
ARWIN — Australian and American scientists are having a unhappy setback in their search for a native life in Arnhem Land, northern Australia. Here some of the troubles:

David A. Johnson, associate curator of mammals at the U. S. National Museum, Washington, sighted a dugong. This is a species of marine mammal supposed original of the Mermaid.

F. D. McCarthy, anthropologist to the Australian Museum at Sydney, found a rare and valuable fresh water tortoise. Aboriginal carriers guarded it carefully for fifteen miles. Then their appetites overcame their good intentions. They cooked and ate it.

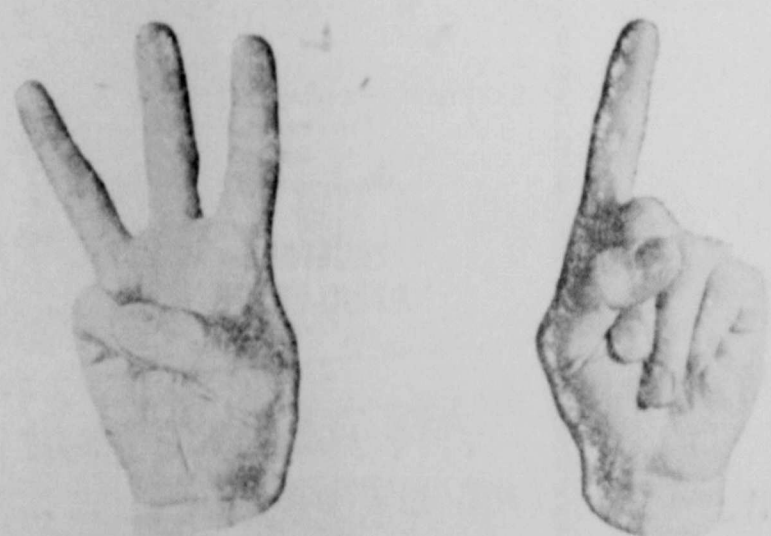

this trek. Back in Darwin one morning outside his Darwin quarters, he heard a beautiful warbling note. There, a few feet away, was a coveted Warbler. His trapping gear was still further away. He missed the bird.

McCarthy was searching for a cave painting of a Malay prau on Groote Eylandt. Suddenly he saw a fine young rock wallaby. He rushed back towards the camp to tell Dr. Johnson, who wanted such a specimen. Stumbling over rocks he met Dr. Johnson hurrying to tell him he had just found a beautiful cave painting of a Malay prau. Neither found what he wanted.

Dr. Johnson, after many disappointments, caught a fine red kangaroo. He drove all the aborigines away in case they mistook it for food. Then he hung the kangaroo in a hut ready for skinning and went for his knife. When he returned the camp dogs sitting happily outside the hut, were not hungry. But there was no red kangaroo.

Roy Miller, Duke Holmes and Rev. C. E. Boatman left Monday for San Antonio to visit Milton Todd Jr., who is hospitalized there.

Babson Discusses Fires

ROGER W. BABSON, Editor-in-Chief

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 14—Last year U. S. property was destroyed by needless fires amounting to $700,000,000. In addition about 15,000 people lost their lives. Property can be replaced but lives cannot be. Be sure that this year 1949 your house is not burnt with you in it. All who lost their lives last year could be alive and happy today.

Causes of Fires

About 25% of the fires are due to smoking — mostly cigarette smoking. About 20% are due to defective wiring, overloading present wires and misuse of flexible cords. 15% of the fires are set; while the balance are due to various causes. These mostly could be classified as "carelessness and bad housekeeping."

It is also interesting to note that most fires start in basements of homes, factories and stores. If basements were kept clean, the total fire loss could be reduced 30%. Closets and attics are also a source of danger. I hope each reader of this column will start 1949 by giving his basement, attic and closets a good cleaning out. Don't be afraid to throw stuff away!

Back Your Fireman

Considering the tremendous loss stated above, you at first think that the fire departments have been lax and inefficient. This is not so. I believe that the fire departments of our cities are the most efficient of all city departments. Just think—if it were not for your fire department your entire city would now be in ashes.

Also remember that ALL fires are ultimately extinguished. 97% of the fires are extinguished by the fire departments before the loss amounts to $500. This is pretty good and usually is due to someone quickly pulling a little red alarm box. In fact, there never was a fire unless caused by explosion which could not have been extinguished by one bucket of water if discovered in time.

Listen to Your Fire Chief

When your city council or firemen ask the advice of their Health or Legal Department or Building Inspector they act upon the advice. When however the Fire Chief asks for new equipment or more fire alarm boxes he is partly given the brush off. This is wrong.

Fire Chiefs know what is best for their city and the citizens. Hence, all their requests for new equipment should be granted, including recommendations for salary increases. Considerable their responsibilities. The fire chief and his staff are the backbone of all city departments. The Fire Chief is your best friend.

Suggestions to Readers
The best kind of fire protection is a sprinkler system connected with the fire alarm system. A sprinkler system is expensive but very efficient. The so-called "Vigilant Rate of Rise" system connected with the fire department does not extinguish the fire as do sprinklers but it automatically calls the fire department. Hence the fire gets out of hand.

When the buildings, either of the home space or business, are insured for a term in a block of $5000 it is only partial protection. The fire chief can do all he can to protect his city, but if a resident does not protect his own property, the fire chief cannot help.

Don't Pick on Farmers To Cut Down on Prices

(Ed. Note: The Wolf Creek Philosopher may be misinterpreting things in his letter this week, but we're publishing it for what it's worth.)

Dear Editor:

The weather predictions have been so inaccurate lately I been wondering if they're predicting weather by public opinion polls instead of regular forecasts and was outside looking at the thermometer to find out for myself how cold it was when a copy of the Amarillo News whipped around the corner and hit me in the face and since I had to pull it off to see my way back in the house I carried it on in and sat down by the fire and read where a Republican Senator has informed farmers they've got to cut their prices or face a economic bust.

According to the paper, Senator Aiken of Vermont told farm leaders "They must accept lower prices for wheat, corn, cotton and livestock in the immediate future or face a depression." He said housewives and consumers are sore about $1-a-pound meat and butter and other high priced groceries.

Of course now I ain't no Senator, but I have thought and thought and I can't see no advantage in a farmer going busted just to keep the rest of the country prosperous, and I can't see no profound thought in me cutting my income to avoid a depression. I guess I'm backward, but all the depressions I ever experienced personally came on exactly at the same time my income started droppin'. I may not be able to see the picture from a Washington Senator's standpoint, but as long as my income held up times was good but invariably when it dropped times got bad, and this happened so often over the years I began to suspect there must be a connection between the two.

I'll admit groceries is high, but have you bought a tractor lately or a combine canvas or a pair of work pants or had a busted water pipe fixed? I may have missed them issues, but I ain't seen a newspaper article yet with a statement from some Senator where tractor manufacturers has got to lower their prices or face a depression, on account of farmers gettin' fired off $1,500 tractors costin' $2,400.

In the meantime, I will appreciate you gettin' in touch with that Vermont Senator and seein' if he can't pick out some other group to lower their prices to head off a depression this time instead of farmers. Every other

Assigned to Fifth Armored Division

Recruit Clifford L. Miller, son of Mrs. Maude Springmeyer, Gray, has been assigned to the Fifth Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Ark., for eight weeks of basic training.

Reactivated July 6, 1948, the Fifth Armored hung up a brilliant war record in six European campaigns during World War II. Before the end of 1949 Camp Chaffee is expected to have 20,000 troops, making it the largest Army training center in the nation.

Before entering the Army, recruit Miller worked on the Springmeyer farm at Gray.

time, farmers lowered their prices and instead of headin' off a depression it just brought one on. Ain't there some other group to try this experiment out on this time?

Yours faithfully,

Born in Liverpool in 1910, he studied at Winchester college and at Trinity, Cambridge, where he on his honors degree in a law office and then, equipped with one typewriter and 40 pounds, launched out as a writer. Among pre-war novels there were "This is the Schoolroom," "At First Sight" and "The Whipping Boy." "Truth" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ Scientist, on Sunday, January 23.
The Golden Text is: "Thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, longsuffering and piteous in mercy and truth" (Psalms 86:15).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible:

Reds Attempt Greek Assassinations

ATHENS (AP)—The woes that go with being a Greek political leader are being intensified by Communist terrorists who want to put an end to their woes—and them.

Hardly a day passes that a minister doesn't receive an anonymous telephone call that goes something like this:
"You dirty fascist reactionary. You only have a few days to live. We're going to kill you. Long live Markos!"

Minister of Justice Christos Ladas had several such calls before the Greek communists celebrated May Day with his assassination.

The Greek police can't trace he calls because Athens has a modern dial system.

George Papandreu, who was prime minister at the time Greece was liberated and when the revolution of 1944 broke out, is becoming somewhat calloused to attempts and plots on his life. Already twice hand grenades have been thrown through the doors of his home, but he has escaped serious injury each time.

A few days ago the OPLA Communist, execution squad, had him scheduled for assassination at the time he would be attending the wedding of a friend. A repentant Communist, however, gave the plot away and the police arrested six persons.

Papandreu, chief of the Republican Socialist Party, is particularly despised by the Communists because he summoned British troops to quell the 1944 rebellion.

Guerilla Chief Markos has nominated virtually every Greek political leader for extinction. He issues his sentences over his radio and demands that "comrades" in the cities carry out his orders. There is little doubt they are trying.

The World's Best Tires Are Here

Condensed from Popular Science Monthly

FLUCK is with you, next time you buy a tire for your car you'll get more than you expected for your money. This year something like three out of 100 purchasers will receive a "surprise package" tire.

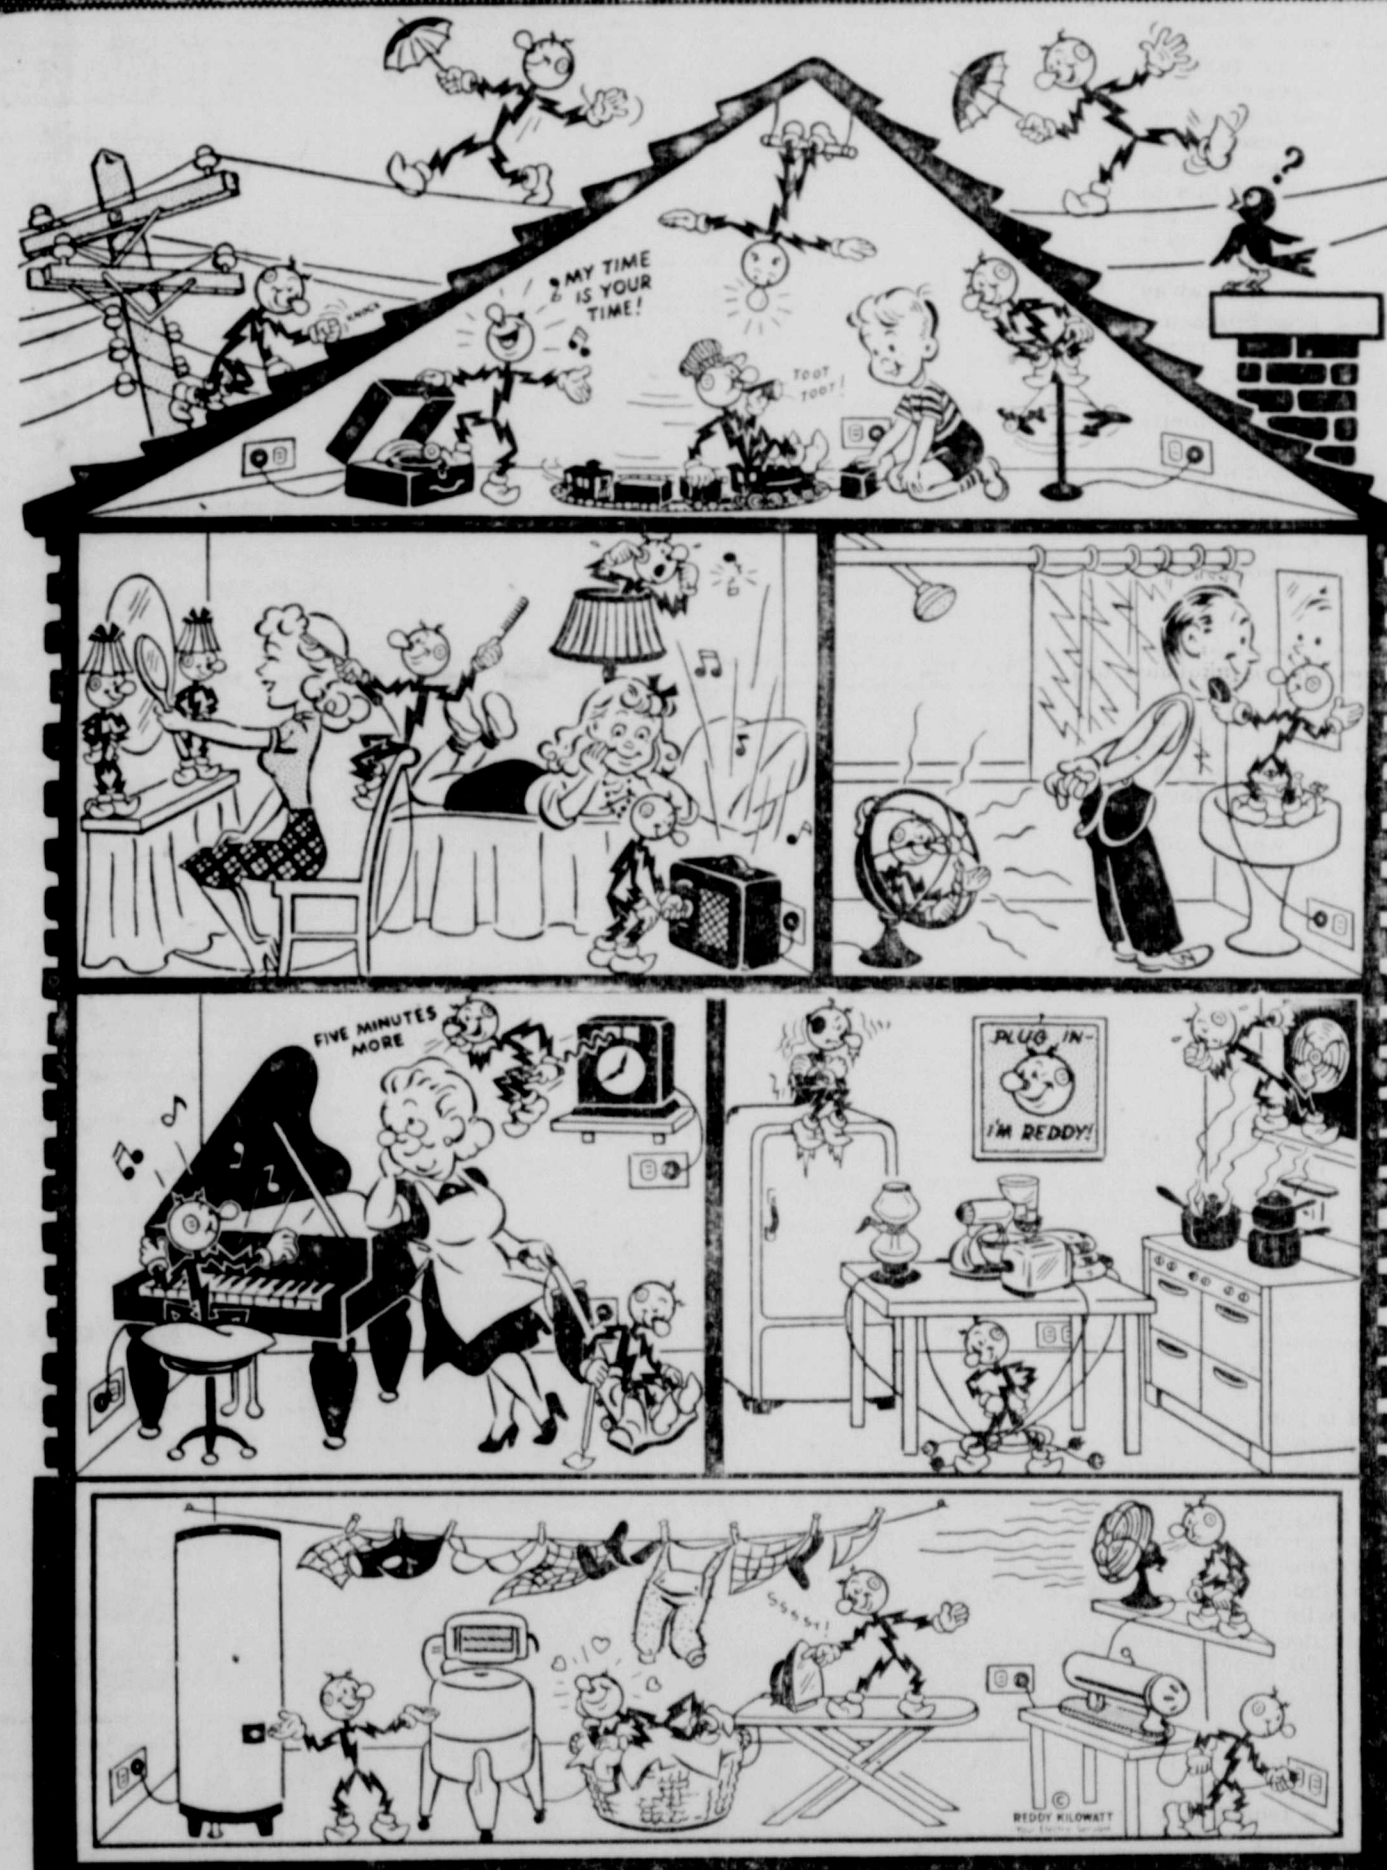

The prize will be of a standard make and will bear no distinguishing label. It looks exactly like any other tire. Neither you nor the dealer can tell it from the rest—not even an expert could. So you won't even know you have the jackpot tire until some day, perhaps in 1950 or 1951, you realize it has worn longer than any other tire you ever owned.

Treads of these wonder tires are made of a brand-new kind of synthetic rubber, called "cold rubber," made

The special synthetic rubber that goes into these tires is not expensive. It sells at the same price as standard synthetic rubber—18½ cents a pound. Natural rubber costs about 22½ cents.

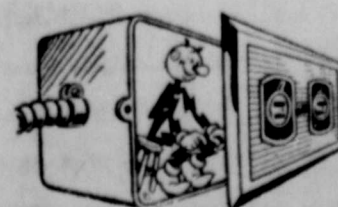

In synthetic-rubber plants that they operate for the Government, the Copolymer Corporation, jointly owned by eight tire manufacturers, began making the new rubber last February at Baton Rouge, La., and the U. S.

Popular Swedish Sport Gets Fans Into the Act and Is Enjoyed by All

New Features

Swedish cross-country skiing is a popular outdoor sport that is enjoyed by all. It is a sport that is easy to learn and can be enjoyed by people of all ages. The sport is a combination of running and skiing, and it is a great way to get in shape and enjoy the outdoors.

Exposure to the cold is a necessary part of the sport, but it is a cold that is not harmful. In fact, the cold is a good thing, as it helps to keep the body warm and healthy. The sport is a great way to stay active and healthy during the winter months.

It was introduced to Sweden in 1918 by Major Ernst Killander, still an enthusiast at 65. In 1938 the Swedish Cross Country Orientation Association was formed and joined the Swedish Sports Federation. The Association boasts 181,000 members and 1,470 clubs.

Clubs are notified by local newspapers of the date of an orientation contest. Members bring compasses to a rendezvous spot and are provided the map.

There are five divisions according to age—11-18, 18-26, 26-42, 42-50 and 50 upwards.

Contestants are informed the location on the map to which they must proceed. They can walk or run, down roads, paths or across country. At the first goal, they are told another station. The race usually covers three stations and a total distance of four to nine miles.

There are variations of the sport—relays and team races. Orientation has a particular appeal to hunters, who find it of

Swiss Try Fifth Columnists

BERN, Switzerland (AP)—Since the end of the war, 102 Swiss citizens have been prosecuted as members of the Nazi fifth column in Switzerland, according to a government report.

Of the 102 persons charged with treason, collaboration with the Germans and undermining Switzerland's neutrality and independence during the war, only three were acquitted. Ninety-nine fifth-columnists were sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment, ranging from 20 years to six months. Those sentenced to prison terms included several tried in absentia and still believed to be abroad.

MANDAN, N. D. (AP)—Jack Murray, Mandan, N. D. postmaster, was in a party that agreed to shoot only bucks.

A deer bounded into view. "Don't shoot, it's a doe," yelled Murray.

The deer swerved, hit a tree, and fell dead of a broken neck. It was a buck.

Town to Get Pure Water — in 1950

ALICE, Switzerland (AP)—The citizens of this little mountain town in the Rhone Valley are finally going to have drinking water free of tubercular germs. For more than 30 years the town of Alice has striven against infected water released from the great tuberculosis sanatorium at Leysin. A government analysis of drinking water drawn from springs at a lower level showed as long ago as 1915 that tubercular germs were present in the water.

Government Office Space Problem Is Headache

WASHINGTON — "You'd be amazed how much time the president of the United States spends worrying about the government office space problem in Washington." So reported Donald C. Stone, director of the Economic Cooperation Administration, who worked with both President Roosevelt and President Truman on office space problems. He was then an assistant director of the Budget Bureau.

"The top problems for Washington officials today are the loyalty programs and office space," Stone continued. "Space is an old problem here. There's never enough of it in Washington. People who have it cling to it until they are pushed out. You have to be continually shifting various offices, contracting and expanding."

Bumper Crop of '48 Cuts Farm Income

By A. R. GEORGE
Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON—The American harvest in 1948 was the biggest in history, but total income of farmers dropped somewhat from the all-time peak of the previous year.

Farmers' 1947 income had reached a record high of $16,500,000,000. Their 1948 income is estimated by the Department of Agriculture at some $15,450,000,000, a decrease of about 8 per cent.

A decline in some farm prices during the last year is attributed mainly to increased output of several products and a falling off during the latter part of the year in the overseas demand for American products.

War-torn countries have been steadily increasing their food production. However, a record amount of American food—19,347,000 long tons—was sent to foreign countries during the crop year ending last July 1. Countries under the European aid program got 65 per cent of this food.

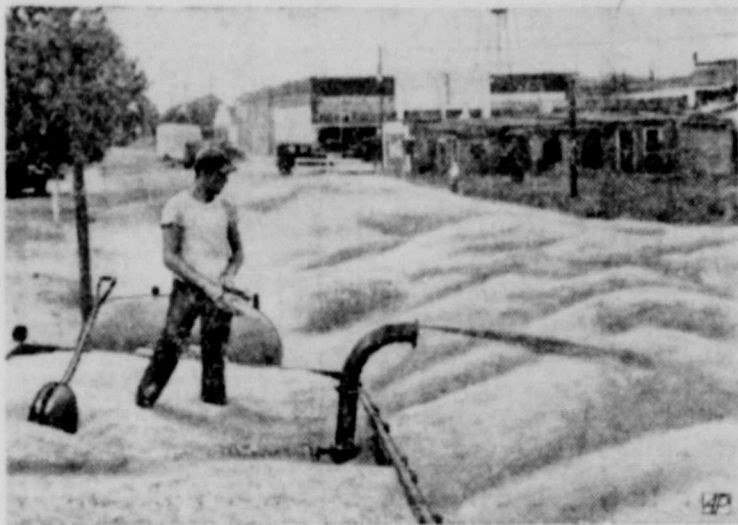

Despite the huge shipments abroad, the year's record-breaking farm output gave folks at home 14 per cent more food than was available in the pre-war years of 1925-1939.

The 1948 corn crop was the biggest of all time, wheat production was the second largest, and there was a bumper cotton crop. Huge potato production cost the government more than $100,000,000 in price support operations.

The Department of Agriculture has asked farmers to cut down 1949 planting of wheat and potatoes to prevent market glutting surpluses. There were recent indications, however, of a record wheat planting.

The government has recommended that farmers produce more poultry, milk, vegetables, sheep and lambs in the coming year. It also has called for a 17 per cent boost in the 1949 spring pig crop—to provide more pork chops for next fall and winter.

As a result of large 1948 feed crops, more red meat is in prospect for 1949. This indicates a smaller demand for eggs.

dignity for you even to suggest it. Many a time you have to take it to the President, and he has to review the problem, try to reconcile the official to the change or just order him to vacate.

One of the classic stories about Presidential intervention concerns President Roosevelt. In 1939 he wanted the Budget Bureau — probably a President's handiest and most-used tool — to be moved into the old State, War and Navy Building, just west of the White House. But the State Department had the building.

Diplomats protested that valuable traditions and prestige would be destroyed if they were moved from the hallowed halls.

Finally, to get to the bottom of the matter, Roosevelt announced he was going over to see about it himself. He had them roll him across the street in his wheelchair, and he inspected the enormous pile from top to bottom. He barged into one office after another, asking questions, creating vast consternation.

He sailed into a big file room on the top floor. Are all these files necessary? he asked. Are they current files? The clerks and bureaucrats assured him they were. The President wheeled himself up to a drawer, drew out the first folder in sight and read: "China. Wild horses. 1905."

"The Budget Bureau moves in!" the President announced, wheeling himself out without another word.

Juice by the Gallon

LAKE LAND, Fla. (AP) — Like your orange juice by the gallon? Then go to the Citrus School at Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Florida.

Over 80 gallons a day are delivered by the marketing class to the campus soda shop, local restaurants, soda fountains and super markets at the same price of any soft drink.

Florida Southern College is located in an orange grove in the heart of the citrus belt, and the Citrus School is the only one of its kind. The marketing class picks the oranges, washes, squeezes, bottles, sells and delivers the juice as a project in marketing.

The students are also shipping citrus gift boxes for the student body of the college to their families out of the state of Florida.

He puts about 50 crickets in the sleep boxes. Listening to their music is lots better than counting sheep, his customers tell him.

Livestock Replaces Cotton in Texas As Largest Single Income Producer

COLLEGE STATION—Twenty-five years have made a big change in Texas agriculture.

A quarter of a century ago, Texas farmers received a large share of their income from cotton—around 70 percent, according to the figures. Today, livestock is taking the place of cotton as the basis of income. It is not quite up to the 70 percent mark, however. At the present time, the income of Texas farmers from livestock and livestock products runs about 40 percent of the total income.

In 1924, the total sales from livestock and livestock products were only 20 percent of the total income, says C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist of Texas A. & M. College. By 1944, returns from these sources had risen to almost one-half the total income—up to 46 percent. The same year, receipts from cotton and cottonseed had dropped to only 25 percent of the total farm income. It ran about the same as this again last year, says Bates. Sales from these products made up one-fourth of all farm income.

Sales from other Texas crops—wheat, rice, sorghum, citrus, flax and peanuts—made up around 33 to 35 percent of Texas' farm income. And back in 1924, these miscellaneous sources provided only 10 per cent of the income. By 1944, they had climbed to 28 percent.

This growth in sales from fruits and crops other than cotton brings out the increasing commercial importance of these parts of Texas agriculture. The big need for food and feed during the war and the years following was one main cause for this upward trend in these crops, says Bates.

Examples of the industry building up in the areas of production are the vast processing plant at Corpus Christi for handling grain sorghum and cereals, and the expanding milling and feeding manufacturing plants in north and northwest Texas.

Also, markets for an increasing volume of milk have developed from the rapid expansion of the industrial growth within Texas and the South-east calls for an increased output of meats, poultry and dairy products. Prospects are that the growth will balance the economic pattern with more livestock on Texas farms.

Industrial markets, too, have aided in the shift from cotton farming to dairy and livestock farming, says Bates, especially in the South and East Texas areas.

This big turn in agriculture wasn't a case of wanting to, he concluded, but of having to.

Germans Prefer Jungles to Europe

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—Thousands of Germans are so eager to leave Europe they will face wild animals to do so. Two small, advertisements in local Ruhr papers asking for men for two big game expeditions brought thousands of replies. Expedition leader Gustav Hahnke said 85 per cent were from people "jumping at a chance to turn their backs on Europe."

He only wants 22 men for each of the two expeditions. But in a few days there were over 3,000 applicants. Emil Wacker, owner of the German "Apollo" circus, hopes to send the two expeditions next year to the Congo and the Amazon. He wants to bring back elephants, tigers, and snakes for German circuses and zoos.

THE NATION'S CAPITOL — with a personal touch — makes a post card reproduced here in its actual size.

By IRVING DESFOR
(AP) Newsfeatures Photo
Art Director

Post cards and vacations have been a time-tested twosome almost ever since Columbus took a cruise to the West Indies. If Queen Isabella didn't get a post card from the New World it was probably because the Indian post office wasn't so efficient in those early days. Today's snapshot can take that old custom, give it a new angle... a personal touch... and make it look novel and different.

The idea is to convert your vacation snapshots into personal post cards and send them out instead of the usual commercial type. This can be done if you're spending a week or more at one spot, provided you have darkroom facilities yourself, or can get the developing and printing done locally fairly quickly. Or it can be done after your return to familiar darkroom surroundings.

The standard post card size is 3½" by 5½". A slight leeway is allowable in each direction and it still takes a one cent stamp. For special effects with certain pictures, much larger sizes can be made but don't forget to use first class postage. If you can have your photos printed on post card stock then most of your problems are solved. Double weight paper is the next choice. If you have only single weight paper, it should be mounted on a three ply Bristol board either with rubber cement or dry mount tissue. Paste is out for it would buckle the board when dry. The final step is to rule a line in the center of the blank side of the card. The address and stamp go on the right hand side of the rule, and the message on the left in the usual manner.

These cards have proved most effective with newly found vacation friends to whom you were going to send a picture anyway, since they appeared in your shots. Imagine the surprise and delight when their own picture arrives as a post card! And for old friends whom perhaps, you visited. It's a nice way to address a "thank-you-for-the-hospitality" note.

Other variations on the basic idea pop up, with a little Susan receives a toy or a sweater on her birthday. Shutterbug daddy catches the happy moment of playing with the toy, or trying on the sweater for the family album. Make post cards of these pictures, with a "thank you" to the donor.

And now for a final personal postcard possibility. The locale can be any convention, exposition, fair, tourist spot or attraction which draws large crowds of sightseers with the normal desire for souvenirs. Why can't a photographer set up a spot to shoot individuals or groups with an unmistakable background trademark for quick post card prints? Then Joe Doe or Mary Jane can send off personal post cards to prove they were at a State Fair or a National Convention or Niagara Falls or the S. S. Cruise Ship... and have a treasured memento besides. This should receive local Chamber of Commerce cooperation since it

Two Wars, 21 Years Needed to Build Ship

NEW YORK (AP)—Most freighters can be constructed in a few months, but there is afloat today a former American cargo vessel that required all of two World Wars and twenty-one years to build. Launched too late for World War I, this holder of a unique shipbuilding record was laid up as an unfinished hull until World War II forced its completion, the American Merchant Marine Institute reveals.

The Trento slid down the ways at Pascagoula, Miss., in 1920, but it was decided not to finish the ship which was placed in layup at Mobile. But in 1941, when war caused another ship shortage, the Trento was quickly completed, her hull being remarkably preserved. Renamed the Philae and placed under the Panama flag, because of Neutrality Act restrictions on the movements of American ships, she served throughout the war. Recently she was sold to the Norwegian owners who named her the Thor-scape.

Girl Jailed After Mine Work

KIEL, Germany (AP)—No German law forbids women from working in mines—but a girl who tried it in male disguise landed in jail for three months.

A poster of the German Ruhr Coal Mines Administration calling on the homeless German youth to come to work, gave her the idea. She decided to become a miner. The American and British-sponsored enlistment program provided for better living conditions—clothing, better and higher food rations, tobacco and liquor rations.

Ursula and her old ailing mother had not had any of this since they had fled from their hometown of Koenigsberg in East Prussia, now Kalingrad in Soviet Russia. For two years they had lived in a slum-like refugee quarter in a small Schleswig-Holstein village. Coffee, cocoa, bacon and an adequate wage with which she could support her mother and provide medical treatment for her made her decide quickly, she told the judges.

She put on slacks, cut her hair bandaged her breasts and enlisted at the labor office for the Ruhr coal mines as Peter Klenkies.

None of her "buddies" down in the pit recognized Peter as a member of the weaker sex. She worked for four months, but fell ill and had to leave her job.

When she returned to her mother, the police got wind of "Peter" and summoned her to court, on charges of "document forgery and illegal name change."

A three-months' jail sentence was the lowest punishment the court could find for the offense.

Every day some 6,000,000 people travel New York's 237 miles of subways and elevated lines.

Winner, Loser Gets Prize In Florida Angeling Tourney

UPI Newsfeatures
MIAMI, Fla.—There's one fishing competition in which you can win a prize if you lose.

It's the Metropolitan Miami tournament and more than 300,000 anglers are expected to participate.

The $15,000 worth of prizes includes a tough luck trophy awarded by Author Philip Wylie to the unfortunate fisherman with the best hard luck story. Among the more cherished awards are four perpetual trophies—for the heaviest sailfish, the longest sailfish, the heaviest white marlin and the heaviest jackfish.

The 106-day tournament runs into April and is open to everybody—there is no admission fee—and the eager school boy with dime store equipment is just as

Austria Counts Its Refugees

VIENNA (AP)—There is one displaced person or refugee for each seven citizens of this country according to the latest figures of the International Refugee Organization (IRO).

IRO figures show there are 425,000 registered displaced persons and refugees. In addition there are 85,000 persons holding German citizenship and persons of German ancestry expelled from other countries and 5,000 miscellaneous aliens, all holding indefinite residence but with no actual guarantee of Austrian citizenship.

They do not include a further 85,000 South Tyroleans whose future is still undecided. Latest figures give Austria a total population of 7,500,000 persons, excluding the refugees. A scheme to give refugees Austrian citizenship has been bitterly opposed by the Communist party.

Already entered are rod and reel experts from 44 states, the District of Columbia, Europe, Canada and South America.

How do you win the tough luck trophy?

Well, Collins L. Carter, of Albion, Mich., got this award at the last tournament when a shark bit off the tail of a white marlin he was about to boat after an hour's struggle. The bite was estimated at 13 pounds and the remainder of the fish weighed 107 pounds. The ultimate winner of the class scaled only 104 pounds, but mutilated fish are not eligible so Carter joined the tough luck group.

The first tournament was held in 1936. The idea was started by a group of sportsmen-businessmen in Miami and Miami Beach who formed an association known as Anglers, Inc., to encourage sport fishing in the metropolitan Miami area. All members donate their services and refuse to accept prizes.

The tournament committee say the rules are kept as simple as possible. All catches must be made unaided on rod and reel and must be weighed in at one of 53 official weighing stations. Thirty-one different species of fish may be entered.

Just in case the avid angler needs encouragement the committee points out that of 58 world records charted between 1874 and 1947 no less than 20 of the top fish were taken in Florida waters.

Street Store Boomed By India's Refugees

By STEVEN V. DAVID

UPI Newsfeatures

NEW DELHI—India's capital jammed with 300,000 refugees, has become a city of sidewalk shopkeepers.

You'll find them in front of buildings, tucked away in corners and in the shade of trees. Some boast stalls and others keep their wares in large wooden cabinets. But most go into business simply by spreading a piece of cloth on the ground and displaying a few articles.

They'll sell you almost anything—if you're not careful. Toys, trinkets, cigarettes, food, cloth, toilet articles, shoes, clocks and countless other items are for sale. But prices are no cheaper than those of established shops.

drinks operates from a wooden box on small wheels. He also sells hot Indian tid-bits wrapped up in green leaves. The flies love them.

Some simply sell services. A tailor sits outside an airline office, sewing unhurriedly at three rupees ($1) a day, pretty good pay. A barber squats down on a sidewalk, Oriental fashion, to shave a customer who must also squat.

You may have your head massaged in the park by a youngster whose charge is four annas (eight cents). The ear-cleaner's fee depends on the results he can show.

You may have a tooth pulled at a moderate charge. Just sit on a misplaced kitchen chair and open your mouth. The "dentist"

STREET BARBER shaves his customer in New Delhi, India's millions of refugees mean many more such open air shops.

The "street wallah" will tell you he has to pay higher wholesale prices than do legitimate shops.

The street wallah is an institution in India, but New Delhi and Old Delhi have more than their share of such entrepreneurs. They are quick to tell you stories of past suffering, and many of the stories are true. The presence of their would-be shops is an indication of the resourcefulness and courage of people who lost everything in the partition of India and the rioting which accompanied it.

Street wallah activity in New Delhi centers in Connaught Circle, where hundreds sit side by side along the verandahs in front of the shops of established merchants. Here women in flowing saris bargain heatedly with bearded hawkers who fled the Punjab rioting. Vendors hold up bananas or beads or betelnuts. Darning urchins, offer shoe-shine—controlled price.

Dust mingles with the smoke of incense and flies find their paradise.

Street wallah business extends down the side roads. A bicycle tire hanging limply from a tree heralds the open-air establishment of a cycle repairman who may have started with only a pump to inflate flat tires. A dispenser of ominous-looking soft has no license, but neither has the "doctor" who offers powders and ointments for headaches and indigestion. The chiropodist whose office is a little leather bag also is a self-made professional man.

The Sikh fortune tellers get by without crystal balls and shrouded booths. They walk up behind you, murmuring softly that you are about to inherit a lot of money or that "you will be going home to England soon." An American who has never been near England is inclined to suspect the fortune teller's ability.

The sidewalk wallahs have been removed from chandni chowk (moon market), old Delhi's famous bazaar. Things got so bad that the trams which run on both sides of the street could scarcely move between the pushcarts and benches of refugees.

The government has plans for settling most of the refugees in new townships where they may follow their original vocation of farming. Cities are to absorb professional men.

But with an overall total of five million refugees to cope with, rehabilitation has been slow. The little man who unfolds a cloth and goes into business will be around for awhile.

Want Ads are economical, too.

Continental Found in Book

BERLIN (AP)—It was an ordinary looking book but the title interested Capt. Richard H. Lake. He paid three marks and took the book home.

Lake noticed a piece of brown paper pasted on the inside of the back cover. He tore it off. In a little receptacle gouged out of the cover lay a one-dollar bill issued in 1779 by the Continental Congress. It guaranteed the holder one dollar credit in the United States of America, then three years old, and in the middle of a whacking war.

Lake hasn't any idea what it is worth as a collector's item today, if anything. "But it cost me only three marks. That's 90 cents. And it guarantees me a dollar. So I stand to make a dime," he said.

Greek Ships Repaired

ATHENS (AP)—21 Greek merchant ships have been repaired and restored to service with steel imported into Greece under the American mission and Economic Cooperation Administration. The ECA mission here announced 30,000 tons of steel have been brought into Greece by the two aid missions since August, 1947.

Other large shipments of steel are expected for utilization on bridges, airports, buildings, and industrial rehabilitation and development. About 2000 tons of the steel already imported has been used for the repair of ships vital for the rehabilitation of Greek trade. It is expected another 1700 tons of steel will be used to restore 19 other merchant ships.

The repair work is being done, under bids, by eight Greek companies, all members of the Association of Greek Iron and Steel manufacturers.

The game of quoits apparently originated along the borders of England and Scotland in the 15th century.

Tobacco Plant Recreated

TUCUMAN, Argentina (AP)—A plant which died thousands of years ago has been recreated and is growing happily in Calif. It is the grandfather of all tobacco plants, even though it would be a considerable disappointment if you tried to smoke it. The story of how it was created anew is a sidelight on how modern botany works.

Dr. Thomas H. Goodspeed of the Berkeley Botanical Garden is responsible for the recreation of the plant. He told about its birth during a visit to the South American Botanical Congress here. Tobacco was originally a hybrid between two entirely different plants. Under some unusual condition back before history began, they were cross-fertilized and produced a new plant which continued as a type. The new plant gradually changed and ultimately became modern tobacco. The plants also continued to grow near each other in northwest Argentina.

Dr. Goodspeed discovered the parents many years ago during an exploring trip to the area. In 1942, during a trip, he found the other parent in California, he said the two plants.

Build Car

ST. LOUIS, Switzerland — A Swiss engineer has invented a small-scale experimental car which recently achieved speeds of 33 m. p. h. during test runs at the airport here. The design, says Hans Berger, of Thun, says the first full-scale experimental car will have a maximum speed of 100 m. p. h.

The first test model is only six feet long and three feet wide. Its power is supplied entirely by a small jet engine in the rear which expels gas and air at high pressure and pushes the car forward. The car has no steering shaft, clutch, gears or differential.

College Men Often Fail at Job, Lacking One of Basic Traits

By LOYD BRADY

CHICAGO (AP)—Why does the college trained man frequently fail at his first job?

The answer—he is still a child in one way or another, because he lacks one or more of seven basic traits.

That is the answer given by Dr. Robert N. McMurry (Cap. N. M.) based on a survey by his management firm which studied 1,167 trainees directly hired from college by 247 companies.

He listed the seven traits as:

The ability to stay long enough with a company to repay the investment in training.

The ability to accept responsibility.

Persistence, or the ability "to follow a path to the end," even if the path is unfamiliar.

Self-reliance.

The quality of being agreeable to different groups and different persons.

Identification of his personal goals with those of the firm.

And the ability to exercise authority without belligerence.

"Absence of these traits, or any one of them, indicates failure of an individual to grow emotionally," said Dr. McMurry.

He said his study was based on experience with the 1,167 trainees recruited directly from college who were trained at the expense of $2,750 each for the first year, exclusive of such items as supervision and breakage.

Of the whole group, only a small percentage were judged desirable at the end of the first year. The others had left or had proved unsatisfactory and were discharged.

The way to avoid this loss, Dr. McMurry said, is "to keep clearly in mind the qualifications for the job, and to use a patterned interview which permits the interviewer to explore all facets of the applicant's background."

"This latter will give the interviewer a factual basis for judging whether the trainee does have the qualities the company seeks—and this judgement must be made upon a careful evaluation of what the candidate has done rather than on what he says he will do."

Uniform Traffic Signs Asked

GENEVA (AP)—European traffic experts have worked out a formula for giving motorists in most of Europe traffic signals and warnings in the same size color, if not in the same language.

Working under the auspices of the Economic Commission for Europe, a working party on road traffic conditions has drafted recommendations. Some of the puzzling and hair-raising signs now in use will be scrapped.

The experts also reached agreement on traffic light systems and a routine of signals for traffic policemen which will mean the same thing in any country. At present, the motions of traffic policemen are interpreted variously as a "go" sign in one country may mean the opposite a hundred miles away.

The recommendations of the working party are now being mailed to all governments of Europe for consideration. It is planned to include the approved version of the uniform system in the international convention on road traffic now being drafted by the commission.

The traffic experts agreed that warning signs, such as those at crossroads, should be triangular in shape with a red border and with dark symbols on a light background. Prohibitory or mandatory signs, used for one-way streets and prescribed routes, would be circular, with a red border and white lettering on a sign will be rectangular, with each country choosing its color.

Worth Ray's New Book Follows Dim Pioneer Trails

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Worth S. Ray of Austin is an amateur historian whose hobby is following the dim trails of the little people—the unsung farmers and merchants—among Texas pioneers. Straining his eyes to read the faded records in dusty books and tearing his pants on briars in abandoned cemeteries to make out eroded tombstone inscriptions, Ray has filled in some big gaps in his new book, "Austin Colony Pioneers," privately printed here.

He started with the names of the original 300 Austin colony pioneers who settled early in the 1800s in Bastrop, Fayette, Grimes, Montgomery and Washington counties. Ray's book tells what happened to them, especially the individuals whose names failed to rate notice by what he calls the "big history books."

In his own words, Ray "Drags forth skeletons in the closets, stories of human interest and exciting experiences . . . of love under the Live Oaks at old Independence; of strutting bridegrooms married in Santa Anna's old broadsword vest; of Old Webberville, the first hot spot on the banks of the Colorado whose wild denizens broke for cover when Aaron Burleson stalked down Main Street."

There was four-year-old Mary Ann Alcorn, for instance, daughter of Elijah who spelled it "Eli-gah."

She arrived with her father, mother and brothers on the banks of the Brazos south of the spot where Washington-on-the-Brazos was built. It was the last day of the year 1821, antedating the formal establishment of Austin's colony, but the Alcorn-McNeese-Boatright party were among the first Anglo-American ground-breakers in Texas. As Ray puts it:

"Young Stephen F. Austin only a few days before at the little Mexican town of Nacogdoches had told them that somewhere in between the Brazos and Colorado Rivers good home-sites and productive lands lay ready for the occupancy of settlers."

Ray, who makes his living as editor and publisher of the Texas Supreme Court Reporter, (caps) goes on to tell what happened to the Alcorns, the McNeeses and the Boatrights. Mary Ann married Parrott W. McNeese son of John, in 1839. Parrott became sheriff of Washington county and died in 1885 at Brenham, five years after Mary Ann's death.

The book's 378 offset-printed pages are packed with such family trivia sharpened a hundred times with spicier items gleaned from the old newspapers, county records and locally-written histories.

From Noah Smithwick's "Evolution of a State" he relays the story of Capt. James B. (Brit) Bailey, a squatter who refused to be evicted from the Austin lands and a rebellious soul who declined to be buried lying down. When Brit was in his last illness, he is quoted as having told his wife:

"I have never stooped to any man, and when I am in my grave I don't want it said, 'There lies old Brit Bailey.' Bury me so the world must say there STANDS (caps) Brit Bailey, and bury me with my face to the setting sun. I have all my life been traveling westward and I want to face that way when I die."

And so, Ray relates, they had a hole dug like a well and they lowered the coffin feet first so that Old Brit would be facing the setting sun in his last resting place.

Then there is the story of Wayne Barton who felt he was being crowded when settlers moved within a dozen miles of him, and who moved into the vicinity of what is now Austin. Famed Barton Springs, the story goes, was named for him. His son, Wayne—a son-in-law of General Burleson, the former vice-president of the Texas Republic—died in early-day feuding.

In this category is the numerous Black family, original settlers of Grimes county which was hewed from Washington county. Ray lists the 13 children of Gavin Bingley Black who married Margaret Anna Moore. One of their children was Tom C. B. Black who moved to Hill county and whose son is Charles L. Black of Austin, one of Texas' top lawyers.

The "Big" historians may sniff at their failure to recognize Ray's effort as a contribution to Texas history, but it is good reading for anyone interested in people. It is recommended to young fiction writers seeking lively source material, and to collectors of books about and by Texans.

Ancestral Home To Be Sold

LONDON (AP)—Hunstanton Hall ancestral home of the Lord High Admiral of The Wash, is to be sold because of the "impossible burden of taxation." Home of the Le Strange family since the 13th century, this old landmark stands on the Norfolk shore of The Wash—a great bay between Norfolk and Lincolnshire. It was damaged by fire in 1853 but many priceless tapestries and old paintings still hang on its walls.

Its owner, Bernard Le Strange, the Squire and hereditary Lord High Admiral of The Wash, says he is obliged to sell the hall and gardens because of heavy taxes but will keep the rest of the estate.

The title "Admiral of The Wash" was conferred upon an ancestor of the 46-year-old owner by King John for protecting the shore against invasion. With the title went the right to everything washed ashore on a ten-mile stretch of coast.

Le Strange has moved his family to a stone stableman's cottage on the estate.
