Official: Associates desert bombing suspect

■ FBI investigates other people who may be linked to World Trade Center blast.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — An illegal Jordanian immigrant arrested in the World Trade Center bombing may have been left "holding the bag" by terrorist associates who disappeared and could have fled to the Middle East, a federal investigator said Friday.

Meanwhile, the FBI was investigating whether three people arrested Friday for allegedly driving a stolen car to a New York mosque were linked to the blast, and a judge said another man charged with striking FBI agents searching his apartment "may be involved up to his eyeballs."

He doesn't plan suicide, Koresh says

WACO (AP) — The leader of an armed religious sect that is holding off federal agents says he doesn't intend to commit suicide and doesn't like being compared to Jesus, the FBI said Friday.

David Koresh, a doomsday preacher who leads a Branch Davidian sect, and his followers have also expressed remorse at the shootout Sunday that resulted in at least 14 deaths, authorities said.

"In most of the discussions held, there has been regret expressed that it actually occurred but there is also very much a tendency to justify what did occur by saying that, in fact, it was an attack on his residence and that he was responding with like force," FBI agent Bob Ricks of Koresh.

Funerals for two of the federal agents killed in the shootout, Steven Willis and Todd McKeehan, were held Friday in Houston and in Elizabethton, Tenn. Funerals for agents Conway LeBleu and Robert Williams were held earlier in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Based on some of his preaching, there was speculation Koresh would kill himself on a Friday, the same day scriptures say Jesus Christ died on the cross. A Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms official in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the agency had heard before the raid that the cult was contemplating mass suicide.

Smith advocates cutting new spending proposals

U.S. Congressman Lamar Smith has figured out the prime spot to start trimming government spending to help President Clinton keep his campaign spending-cut pledge.

Smith's suggestion: Simply delete the president's $178 billion in new-spending proposals.

"The answer is not more taxes," Smith said Friday at a north-side Midland Exxon service station. "It is less government spending."

After Clinton solicits suggestions, callers swamp government 'hot lines'

By Kim I. Mills
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — If the government's got you hot under the collar now, just wait until you call the hot line that hangs up on you after a recording says "It may be more convenient to write."

Two days after President Clinton urged the public to call in with suggestions for "reinventing government," agency and departmental hot lines were ringing virtually non-stop Friday.

And while real, live operators were doing their best to field the calls, many people simply couldn't get through the busy signals or got put off with a recorded message.

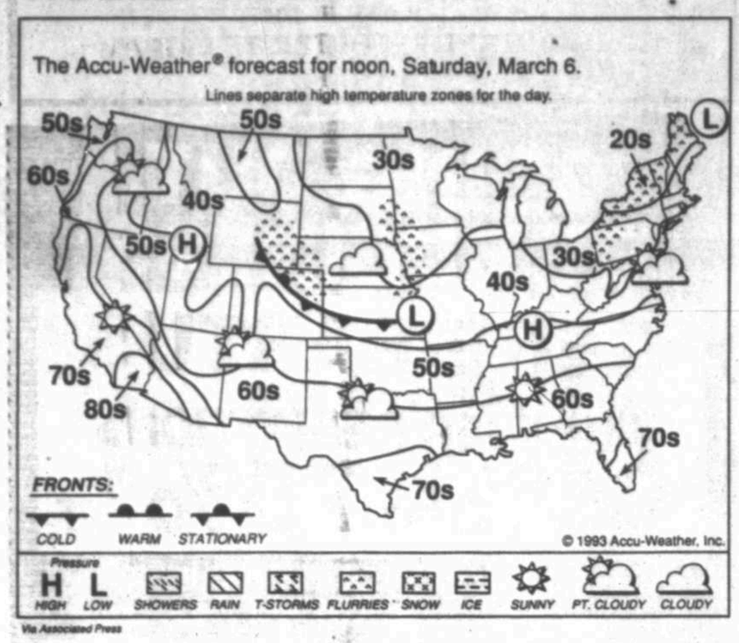

Meanwhile, several of the officials manning the phones, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the public's tips were of questionable value and ranged from complaints about the president to queries about jobs.

"Most of what we're getting is, I don't think, what they intended," said an operator at the Environmental Protection Agency's hot line.

The lines originally were set up for people to report waste, fraud or abuse within individual agencies. But Clinton broadened the scope when he invited Americans to share their ideas about

Today's high to be in low 60s

Staff report

Today's forecast is partly cloudy with a high in the low 60s, and winds north 10-20, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is predicted to be partly cloudy, becoming clear after midnight, with a low in the low 30s.

Sunday's forecast is sunny with a high in the low 60s, the NWS said.

Yesterday's high was 63, compared to the record high of 89, set in 1991. The record low for today's date is 15, set in 1989.

STATE

Sunny skies and normal temperatures covered the state Friday, with similar conditions expected for the weekend.

The only rain was in South Texas, where an upper level disturbance that moved out of Mexico brought some light showers. There also were cloudy skies extending into the deep south.

Elsewhere in the region, there was plenty of sunshine and some gusty winds along the coast.

Temperatures were coolest in the deep south, reaching only the 50s Friday because of the clouds and rain. The rest of the region reported 60s.

Skies are expected to be mostly cloudy with a chance for rain some areas overnight and clear to partly cloudy conditions are forecast for today. Temperatures are expected to reach as high as the 60s to 70s.

More sunshine blanketed West Texas, with winds less than 15 miles an hour. Temperatures were in the 50s over the Panhandles and mountains, with 60s elsewhere.

The region could become partly cloudy today with skies clearing by Sunday. Conditions should be fair, with highs from the mid 40s in the Panhandle to the upper 70s in the Big Bend.

North Texas was mild and dry, with clear skies caused by a dry atmosphere.

The only abnormal condition was slightly high winds. Temperatures rose to the mid 50s to lower 60s.

The region's forecast calls for clear skies with overnight lows around 30. Saturday will be partly cloudy with highs between 61 to 65 and lows 32 to 37.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Police were aware of suspect, official says

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mohammed Salameh and his fellow Muslims often prayed together, kept odd hours and mostly stayed to themselves, neighbors said Friday.

The 25-year-old Jordanian arrested Thursday in the World Trade Center bombing shared two spartan apartments with six other Muslims in an immigrant district known as Egyptian City across the Hudson River from New York City.

When news of his arrest Thursday reached his neighbors, "it kind of made sense," said one, Karen McGullam. "I thought that they were just religious in a weird way, but now I can see there was probably something more to it."

On Friday, neighbors and authorities could give only a fragmented portrait of the wiry, bearded man charged in the Feb. 26 bombing.

Police and the FBI say a van rented by Salameh carried the explosives that killed five people, injured more than 1,000 and forced the closing the nation's second-largest buildings.

According to Immigration and Naturalization Service records, Salameh entered the United States on tourist visa in February 1988. He never applied for another visa, making him an illegal alien.

Salameh's court-appointed attorney described him as a devout Muslim who has lived in the United States for five years.

Authorities were aware of the unemployed construction worker before his arrest Thursday, said Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly. "This person was not unknown to our anti-terrorist task force," he said.

After his arrest and a search of his apartment by bomb-sniffing dogs, Salameh asked for a lawyer and refused to answer questions.

Neighbors in the 12-apartment, four-story building, now recall suspicious behavior by members of Salameh's group. One elderly resident, Mary Mulpeter, said she saw Salameh and his companions repeatedly moving boxes in and out of their apartments.

The second-floor apartment on Kensington Avenue was listed on Salameh's van-rental agreement. It was vacant Friday.

A resident who identified himself only as Al, a policeman, said Salameh moved out about three months ago with rent due. "Nobody really knew who they were and they never gave the impression they were employed," he said of Salameh and his associates. "They really weren't very well liked."

Still, Salameh and the others seemed to fit in with their surroundings — an Egyptian enclave in this suburb of 229,000 people.

For the past 20 years, the area has seen a steady influx of Middle Eastern immigrants, mostly Egyptians. About 100 Egyptian-owned restaurants, markets and other businesses line the streets near Salameh's apartment.

Also nearby is the fundamentalist El Salam Mosque, where Salameh is said to have worshiped, although now some question how active he was.

"We think he just came here and prayed and left; he would just drop in," said one member of the congregation, Yehia Farid, adding that 400 and 500 people pray there every week and they don't all know each other.

On Friday, the Muslim Sabbath, dozens of men streamed down Kennedy Boulevard on the way to pray. Many said they were shocked by news of the bombing and saddened by the publicity surrounding the mosque.

"He didn't do the right thing," Arsahd Hussain, 25, said of Salameh. "This is not what we stand for. He's brought shame on us."

BOMB: Officers find more bomb parts, explosives

of anonymity.

The Jersey Journal, citing a government source at the warehouse who spoke on condition of anonymity, reported that the storage space had been rented by the man arrested Thursday as a main suspect in the bombing.

That man, Mohammed A. Salameh, remained jailed without bail on charges of aiding and abetting the bombing. The FBI said Thursday it found bomb-making materials in an apartment linked to him.

The motive for the blast, which killed five people, remained a mystery.

The man charged with obstruction of justice for allegedly striking the agents, Ibraham A. Elgabrowny, plunged his hands into a urine-filled toilet to foil any testing for traces of explosives, a prosecutor said at his arraignment.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Henry DePippo said Elgabrowny was a part of the investigation into the bombing, but he didn't say Elgabrowny was a suspect. Salameh used Elgabrowny's address in New York's Brooklyn borough to get a driver's license, DePippo said.

Elgabrowny is a cousin of El Sayyid Nosair, who was convicted of a weapons charge in the 1991 assassination of radical Rabbi Meir Kahane in New York City.

In other developments, the radical Egyptian cleric who preached at a New Jersey mosque where Salameh and Nosair worshiped issued an unequivocal denunciation of the bombing.

At the World Trade Center, investigators, repair crews and other workers observed a moment of silence at 12:18 p.m. Friday — exactly one week after the bombing, among the worst terrorist attacks in U.S. history. The blast injured more than 1,000 people, and one man remains missing.

Investigators resumed combing the rubble for the first time in two days after 18 steel braces were put in place to shore up the underground garage where the bomb blew up, creating a crater five stories deep. The twin 110-story towers, the world's second-tallest buildings, are expected to remain closed for a month.

"It's absolutely stunning. I've never seen damage like this before," he said.

On Friday afternoon, the FBI arrested three people outside a Brooklyn mosque after they stole a car from Logan Airport in Boston and drove south, said James Fox, the agency's New York chief.

"We don't have sufficient evidence at this point to say it is connected with the bombing," Fox said on the McNeil-Lehrer Newshour. "It's just a possibility."

At Elgabrowny's arraignment, DePippo said said agents found a 9mm pistol, a permit for the pistol, 150 9mm bullets and two stun guns in the man's apartment.

They also found five fake Nicaraguan passports, one each for Nosair, his wife and his three children, and they found five corresponding Nicaraguan birth certificates.

Elgabrowny's lawyer, Michael Warren, asked U.S. District Judge Richard Owen to set bail at $10,000, arguing that nothing in the complaint warranted jail without bail.

But Owen denied bail, saying Elgabrowny could "disappear into the sands of somewhere," and "he may be involved up to his eyeballs" in the blast.

Salameh, 25, a resident of Jersey City, was arrested there Thursday after authorities traced a piece of a van's axle found in the blast wreckage to a truck rental agency. He was arrested shortly after trying to get back a $400 deposit he had placed to rent the van.

Salameh was refusing to cooperate with authorities, said the federal source.

The source also said Salameh's colleagues may have fled to the Middle East, leaving him "holding the bag."

"Maybe they left him behind as a signature," the source said. "Maybe it was their game plan all along to leave him behind."

The source also linked Salameh to the Muslim Brotherhood, a decades-old radical fundamentalist group based in Egypt. It advocates the replacement of the region's secular regimes with states under strict Islamic law.

The source acknowledged Salameh made the work of investigators easier by returning to the car-rental agency office after the blast. But he cautioned against assuming Salameh is stupid.

"You can make fun of him all you want to, but this thing worked," the source said. "It worked perfectly. They all got away."

The search for conspirators could be complicated if they escaped to the Middle East. Two Libyan suspects in the Pan Am Flight 103 bombing in 1988 were never brought to justice because their government refused to surrender the men.

ATF: Raid was rseult of suicide information

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury agents raided the Texas compound of a heavily armed religious cult after receiving information that the group was contemplating mass suicide, a federal official said Friday.

The State Department had relayed information from Australians connected with the sect that its leader David Koresh was contemplating a mass suicide in the compound, said the official of the Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF), which conducted the raid last Sunday.

With that information, ATF officials decided to stage a high-risk entry rather than surround the compound and demand the surrender of Koresh, said the ATF official, who declined to be identified by name.

"We did not believe we could besiege these people without the very real possibility of a mass suicide," the ATF official said.

On Friday, however, Koresh told negotiators he had no intention of committing suicide.

"He has denied intent to commit suicide," FBI agent Bob Ricks said.

The ATF official said that, in passing along "anecdotal information," the State Department "cited numerous sources in Australia."

A number of Australians are believed to be staying at the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, where a standoff has ensued between federal agents and cult members since Sunday's shootout.

The 45-minute gun battle occurred when agents tried to enter the compound and arrest Koresh on federal weapons charges. Four ATF agents were killed and 16 wounded. A reported 10 cult members died in the shooting.

Since Sunday, federal agents have been negotiating with Koresh and other members of the sect and two women and 21 children have been released from the compound.

Members of the Branch Davidian, an offshoot of the Seventh-day Adventist church, believe they are preparing for Armageddon, the final fight between good and evil.

CULT: Koresh doesn't like being compared to Jesus

(From 1A)

But asked directly whether he will commit suicide, Koresh "has denied that," Ricks said.

Koresh and his followers fought off ATF agents trying to serve search and arrest warrants Sunday. In addition to the four agents, a reported 10 cult members died.

Koresh on Friday asked for and received a medical kit to nurse a wrist wound.

Since the shootout, Koresh has allowed 23 people out of the sect's compound, including a young girl on Friday. Koresh has told authorities 47 women, 43 men and 17 children remain inside, Ricks said.

"This entire matter would be brought to a quick conclusion if Mr. Koresh would leave the compound," the FBI agent said. "We believe it is totally within his power to direct the others in that compound to walk out."

The children who have been released are being kept together by state child protection officials in a "family setting." And the FBI said it planned to videotape and photograph the children to show their parents back in the compound that they are being treated well.

"The children express a strong desire to be reunited with their families," Ricks said.

"They seem very much like they're brothers and sisters," said Joyce Sparks, a caseworker for the state Child Protective Services agency. "They take care of each other. You have the older ones looking out for the younger ones."

The body of a man believed to be in his 30s, recovered Thursday from the compound, remained unidentified, federal agents said. The man is believed to have died in a second shootout with the cult Sunday afternoon.

Authorities say they had been investigating the cult for months, and parents of some cult members expressed concerns to the Seventh-day Adventist church last Easter that Koresh had called for a mass suicide at the compound.

Branch Davidians broke from the Adventist church in the mid-1930s, and church spokeswoman Shirley Burton said she began keeping a file on the group last year after inquiries about the suicide rumors.

Koresh, who has previously called himself Jesus Christ, has expressed irritation to authorities of the comparison. "He describes himself as a prophet," Ricks said.

Koresh has told negotiators he is awaiting instructions from God before surrendering. He reneged on a promise to give up Tuesday, saying God had told him to wait.

Those still at the compound have been ordered to stay inside except when releasing children, Ricks said. Two people were allowed to come outside Thursday to remove the bodies of two dogs killed in Sunday's shootouts, he said.

Two elderly women released from the compound, Catherine Mattson, 77, and Margaret Lawson, 76, are still in custody as material witnesses. Gary Coker, the attorney for Ms. Mattson, said he would seek an order that would allow the women to remain in custody but not in jail.

Hot air balloon lands on downtown building

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Two balloonists out for an early evening flight over Midland Friday night escaped injury when a wind shift forced them to make an emergency landing on top of a condemned downtown building.

Terry Potter and another man, who asked not to be identified, drifted aimlessly toward downtown shortly after 7 p.m. when a last-ditch effort to land at the Midland High School soccer field failed.

Potter's balloon then skirted several downtown buildings before bumping into the west side of the Permian Building at Big Spring Street and Texas Avenue. Meanwhile, downtown motorists narrowly avoided colliding with each other while watching the balloon.

"We took it up a bit after hitting the side and finally got it to get over the lip. We managed to set it down on top. It was a little harrowing because there's not much room up there," he said. "It wouldn't have been a pleasant drop."

Potter, who has been flying hot-air balloons for six years, said his main concern during the ordeal was a loss of the aircraft's propane fuel.

"I wasn't scared about what was happening. But I wasn't real happy either," he said. "You can't really steer one of those things."

Roger Wells said he followed the balloon across town after spotting it with his 3-year-old son.

"It was flying too low and was down in between those two buildings. I thought it was going to land on Big Spring Street," he said.

"It's a wonder there weren't a bunch of wrecks. There were people going the wrong way on this street (Texas Avenue)."

Midland Police Sgt. Andy Glasscock helped Potter and several other people lower the balloon's basket down with a makeshift pulley stretched from the top of the seven-story building to the ground. They then carried the balloon down from the inside stairs of the dark building.

Potter said he has had few problems while flying hot-air balloons, except during a festival in Austin several years ago.

"There was a problem with the fuel lines. We were over the state Capitol but fortunately I knew the area and was able to take it down safely," he said.

Conoco Inc. gives $10,000 to Project Blueprint

Staff report

Conoco Inc., supporting the continuation of Project Blueprint, has contributed $10,000.

Project Blueprint is a minority leadership enhancement program of the United Way of Midland.

Mark Mosley, division manager of Conoco Inc., said, "When we learned about the program, we felt it fit very well with the projects we like to support and encourage, particularly in the value of placing minority leaders in the community. I feel our investment will cascade into much broader programs."

Project Blueprint was one of 23 programs nationwide initiated in 1988 through a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to recruit, train and place minority volunteer leaders within the United Way system. The foundation funded the program's first three years.

Midland's Project Blueprint has received funding from ARCO Oil and Gas Foundation for two years. Southwestern Bell Telephone, Chevron U.S.A. Inc., and the Permian Basin Area Foundation also have provided financial support.

Since its inception, more than 300 people have graduated from Midland's Project Blueprint. They complete Board Institute, a 12-hour course that covers such topics as grant writing, board-meeting procedures, agency case histories and United Way divisions.

Each Board Institute class must complete a community service project. The most recent graduates from Class 15 sponsored a pre-spring break party on Friday night at the Northeast YMCA. It was a special event designed for youngsters who are on the Big Brothers/Big Sisters waiting list.

Upon completion of Board Institute, graduates are placed on decision-making boards, committees and in other key volunteer positions.

Midland's Project Blueprint success was recognized in 1991 when it was named recipient of a "Reach for the Stars" national award.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Mark Mosley, from left, of Conoco Inc., Michael Wallace and Maricela Baeza, both of Project Blueprint, and Tommy Duncan of Conoco, visit Friday following the announement that Conoco had donated $10,000 to Project Blueprint.

SPENDING: Answer is not new taxes, Smith says

(From 1A)

Smith came up with his proposal after Clinton had challenged Republicans to come up with their own spending cuts.

"That's an easy challenge to meet, because my first recommendation is that we simply cut out the $178 billion in new spending the president has proposed. Half of the taxes that he has proposed simply go to pay for his new spending proposals," Smith said. "That's the place to start cutting."

Proposed spending cuts, which was a 1992 presidential campaign hot spot, are designed to reduce the $4-trillion national debt and to cut the yearly federal deficit.

Other measures to reduce the debt and the deficit would be by "cutting government overhead" and getting rid of waste, misuse and mismanagement, Smith said.

"The president, in my judgment, was elected to change the government's diet from pork to Slim-fast," Smith decried. "Instead, we are getting more government, more spending, more taxes, more regulation."

Smith also criticized Clinton for reneging on his campaign promise of "no (new) energy tax."

And if the Democratic president fails to be "accountable" by not reducing government spending and by not attacking the federal debt, then the nation needs "to pick another leader," Smith said.

"If Mr. Clinton does not keep his campaign promises and if Mr. Clinton continues to increase taxes on the middle-income wage earner, then we are going to have two deficits in this country," Smith said. "We are going to have the financial deficit ..." and then the people are "going to have a trust deficit" with the president.

"The American people are going to lose their trust and faith and confidence in someone who said one thing during the campaign and now is doing the exact opposite," Smith said.

The American people have "every right to hold the president to the same standard to which he held George Bush to during the (1992 presidential) campaign," Smith said. "And he crucified George Bush for breaking his (1988) promise of 'No new taxes.'

"And yet Mr. Clinton himself has broken a half a dozen promises of the same importance, including his promise not to raise taxes on the middle-income taxpayer."

Aside from the tax burden that Smith said Clinton is imposing on middle-income people, Smith decried the Clinton's energy tax, which is going to add 7½ cents to each gallon of gasoline.

"And equally as bad as that, we have an energy tax that penalizes the oil industry twice as hard an any other source of energy."

Smith said that the Btu (British thermal units) tax is "twice as great on oil" as it is on any other type of energy. And that Btu tax proposal is a complete contradiction of one of Clinton's campaign pledges, Smith said.

"Taxes are already at an all-time record high," Smith said, "because of local, state and federal taxes. The burden on the average American is greater than it has ever been before.

"It's very clear where the problem exists: too much government spending," Smith said. "And that's where we need to cut.

"If we eliminate all the new-spending proposals by Mr. Clinton," Smith said, "we will eliminate this stimulus package that we don't need, because the economy is growing faster than it has in eight years."

Police seek carjacking suspect

Staff report

The Odessa Police Department is searching for the suspect involved in an attempted carjacking.

Carjacking suspect

Officers are looking for a black male in his mid-20s, about 6 feet tall and 180 pounds. He has short black hair, dark eyes, a medium build and a protruding forehead.

The suspect is wanted for aggravated robbery, a felony.

He approached victim Joshua Skaggs in his car Tuesday at the intersection of Applewood and Brittany. Skaggs was stopped at a stop sign. He noticed the suspect standing on the corner. The suspect then pointed a silver snub-nose .38 caliber handgun at Skaggs and his passenger, and told them to get out of the car.

Skaggs accelerated and drove away without incident.

Any persons having information regarding the identity of the suspect are asked to call the ODPD at (915) 333-3641 or Odessa Crime Stoppers at (915) 333-TIPS.

SWAMP: Many people call agencies looking for jobs

People can call government with complaints, suggestions

(From 1A)

making government more responsive and efficient.

At that, "A lot of the calls are basically inquiries about how to go about finding employment within the agency," said an operator at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. "I direct them to personnel."

At the General Services Administration, the hot line started ringing at 8 a.m. Friday and continued without pause. "Oh God," said a stressed-out hot-line answerer. "We're going crazy between two people. We're getting about three calls every 10 minutes."

His lament was echoed by hot line "operators" all over the government, many of whom said that they had been caught short-handed when Clinton solicited the calls and gave out the 21 toll-free numbers on Wednesday.

"We got caught unaware of this," said the EPA operator — who left a caller on hold for more than 5 minutes before answering questions.

This official said the number of calls to the EPA's line was running 500 percent above normal. As for the kinds of ideas the public was imparting, he said, "They're ranging from how the emphasis on the environment is putting people out of work ... to opinions on President Clinton and Vice President (Al) Gore."

At the Department of Education, a woman answering the hot line said calls were coming in at an average of every six seconds. She said she had been called off her normal job — as an investigative agent — to help out.

As for whether the callers offered any useful information, the woman laughed. And she expressed the hope she wouldn't have to answer the calls much longer "because I have more important things to do."

Getting through on some of the hot lines required patience, perseverance — and, ideally, an automatic redial button.

Over several hours Friday, hot lines were constantly busy at the departments of Commerce; Housing and Urban Development; Justice; Labor; and Transportation, as well as at the Commission on Civil Rights and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

At NASA, spokesman Richard Triplett said "(Thursday), we had 231 calls on it, and we average about 30 a day." The volume dropped off only slightly Friday he said.

A majority of the callers were urging that the space station not be built, Triplett said. Others said NASA should curtail its shuttle program, while some were "expressing the opinion that some of the money that we are spending in space should be spent on Earth," Triplett said.

PLAN: Combest formally opens Midland office

(From 1A)

ligence Committee.

He said the meeting was a "cordial affair" that was called to allow Clinton a chance to lobby for his newly proposed economic program.

"Essentially, I think his plan would be an economic disaster and I don't feel like the American people want it," Combest said. "And I think it's a tragedy that we will be asked to vote on it before we see the raw numbers."

Nevertheless, Combest praised Clinton's "genuine" concern about America's future.

"It was a good meeting. Whenever people with differences can sit down and discuss them, it's a good thing," he said. "But it didn't change our stance. It was simply an extension of the olive branch on their part."

Still, Combest criticized Clinton's plan to raise taxes — particularly the British Thermal Units (Btu) tax, which he said would cripple West Texas.

"The Btu tax is simply a devastating measure and would affect us at home in the worst way," he said. "It will hit you on everything you touch and everything you buy."

According to the American Petroleum Institute, the average Texas family will pay as much as $700 more a year in taxes if Clinton's energy taxes are passed.

Combest, who said Clinton's proposals would increase the federal deficit over the next four years, called for a decrease in government spending.

"You cannot tax your way into prosperity," he said. "We have tried to get that across in our own past proposals but the Democratic congress has killed those plans before they could be brought for a vote."

Combest, who has always had offices in Odessa and Lubbock, decided to expand to Midland and Randall County after his 19th Congressional District was redrawn last year. He now shares Midland County with District 21 representative Lamar Smith and newly elected District 23 representative Henry Bonilla.

The Midland office unofficially opened at 511 W. Ohio St., Suite 114 earlier this week. On Friday, Combest — flanked by members of the Midland Chamber of Commerce — announced Susan H. Webb as his local office manager.

"We have always prided ourselves in being accessible to the public. We want to be here to intervene on the behalf of our constituents."

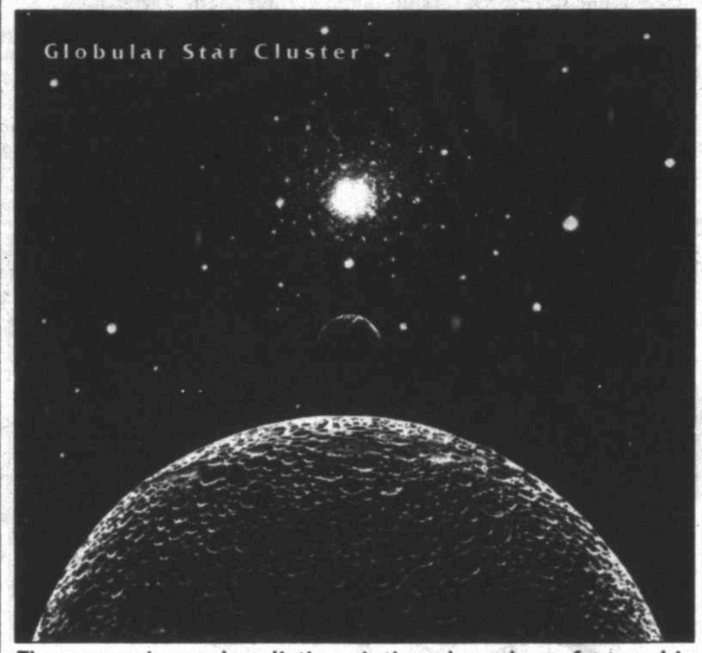

With the realigned districts, Combest now represents 50,000 Midland residents.

"I feel very good about the district. Adding Midland and adding about 90,000 people in Randall County has increased the square mileage of my district, but it was a natural extension," he said. "Their concerns are varied but basically very similar."

Marine claims self-defense in shooting teens

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — A Marine testified Friday he shot two Somali teen-agers in self-defense, saying foreign troops must view every Somali on the street as a threat.

Gunnery Sgt. Harry Conde, testifying on the last day of a two-day hearing to decide whether he faces a court martial, compared the soldiers' feelings to those of U.S. troops in Vietnam who feared civilians were armed.

"Some people want us here. Some people don't. When you're out there, you can't tell," said the 33-year-old radar technician based in Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Asked if he viewed every Somali on the street as a threat, Conde replied: "Yes. How many times in Vietnam did kids carry (explosives) into a village?"

U.S. forces, meanwhile, handed over operation of the southern port of Kismayu to Belgian troops.

Within hours of taking command, the Belgians came under fire while investigating shots from a refugee camp outside the city. They shot four Somalis to death, then found the body of a woman who apparently had been killed by the four Somalis.

Despite the daily violence, Col. Fred Peck, the U.S. military spokesman, said security has improved dramatically since the coalition troops arrived Dec. 9 to safeguard food shipments in the famine-ravaged country.

The violence has its roots in the civil war between Somalia's rival factions and has become virtually endemic. Although thousands of weapons have been confiscated, the possibility of assault remains very real.

Conde faces charges for shooting Ahmed Abdi Omar, 17, and another teen on Feb. 2 after Omar reached into the military vehicle Conde was riding in and stole his prescription sunglasses. Omar was wounded in the abdomen by buckshot pellets, and the 17-year-old bystander was hit in the arm.

Conde could be charged with the military equivalent of aggravated assault. He also is under investigation for using a confiscated weapon, contrary to orders.

If the court martial proceeds, Conde, a 13-year veteran born and raised in San Juan, Puerto Rico, could face up to 10 years in prison. A decision is expected within a few days.

Russian lawmakers vote to convene Congress

MOSCOW (AP) — Lawmakers set the stage for a showdown with President Boris Yeltsin next week, voting Friday to convene an emergency session of Congress and investigate whether he violated the constitution.

Such a finding could lead to his impeachment by the Communist-dominated Congress.

The Congress of People's Deputies, Russia's highest legislative body, will meet on Wednesday to take up the increasingly bitter power struggle between Yeltsin and the legislative branch, led by his political rival, Ruslan Khasbulatov.

Legislators adopted an agenda that includes studying whether any Russian leaders, including Yeltsin, violated the constitution. Khasbulatov said Valery Zorkin, the chief justice of Russia's Constitutional Court, will deliver a report on this issue.

The Constitutional Court already has ruled that Yeltsin violated some articles of the constitution by banning grass-roots Communist Party structures after the failed 1991 coup and by outlawing the hard-line National Salvation Front.

The agenda adopted Friday by the Supreme Soviet, the smaller standing legislature, does not mention the word "impeachment."

But hard-line lawmakers are almost certain to bring up the issue if Zorkin determines there are sufficient grounds. The hard-liners tried and failed to raise impeachment at the last Congress in December.

Some lawmakers accused Yeltsin of preparing to introduce a state of emergency and disbanding the Congress. They pointed to Wednesday's meeting of Yeltsin's Security Council, at which top generals reportedly demanded that he take firmer steps to resolve the political crisis.

Jet carrying 97 people crashes in Macedonia

SKOPJE, Macedonia (AP) — A jet with 97 people aboard crashed while taking off in a snowstorm Friday, and up to 77 people were feared dead, authorities said.

Hours after the Macedonian airliner crashed and exploded about a half-mile from the end of the runway, 20 survivors — all injured — had been found, said U.N. peacekeepers in this former Yugoslav republic and other rescuers. Most of the people on board reportedly were ethnic Albanians.

Blackened pieces of the twin-engine jet and bodies were strewn along a 120-yard area.

The Fokker 100, operated by a Macedonian charter airline, Pal Air, was flying to Zurich, Switzerland, when it veered to the left and crashed into a snowy field seconds after becoming airborne, said Pavle Trajanov, Macedonia's deputy interior minister.

Blagoje Filipovski, the director of Skopje airport, said the cause of the crash was unknown. The plane's two black boxes, which record electronic flight information and cockpit conversations, were recovered, Trajanov said.

Trajanov told Skopje radio there was a large explosion seconds after the plane plowed into the field. Visibility was about 400 yards when the plane went down, airport officials said.

Trajanov said luggage searched in the wreckage showed no trace of explosives.

A flight attendant who survived said there were unusual vibrations during takeoff, according to Filipovski.

A Fokker spokesman, Bart van Veensaid, said in Amsterdam that there were reports an engine had exploded, but that it was unclear if the blast occurred before the crash. Fokker is based in Amsterdam, the Netherlands.

Leo Steijn, another Fokker spokesman, said the plane was new and that Pal Air received it about five weeks ago.

Fokker, the Dutch Civil Aviation Authority and Swissair — which performed maintenance work for Pal Air — were sending investigators to the site, Steijn said.

The Fokker 100 is a 100-seat twin-engine jet designed for short- and medium-length flights. Introduced in the late 1980s, it is Fokker's latest model and mainstay of its fleet.

A Fokker 28, operated by U.S. Air, crashed a year ago in snow at New York's La Guardia Airport, killing 27 people, and investigators said ice and snow buildup on the wings was the main culprit.

The 20 survivors were taken by helicopter to a military hospital, U.N. officials said.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug quoted Trajanov as saying that most of the passengers were ethnic Albanians from Kosovo, a region in neighboring Serbia that has been hit by ethnic unrest recently.

Steijn said the three-member cockpit crew died in the crash, including Dutch pilot Peter Bierdrager, the Macedonian co-pilot and a Swiss flight engineer. But Pal Air officials in Skopje said Bierdrager was hospitalized in critical condition. There was no way to immediately reconcile the reports.

The crash occurred more than 100 miles away from any fighting in former Yugoslavia.

Bombing raid carries civil war into Ivory Coast

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — A Nigerian-led intervention force has turned the tables on Liberian guerrilla leader Charles Taylor, driving him back along the route he conquered in 1990 and attacking an Ivory Coast border post.

With the raid last weekend, Nigeria sent a message warning Ivory Coast not to help Taylor, who is under increasingly military pressure and seems likely to seek refuge for his forces in Ivory Coast, which borders Liberia.

Taylor's rebels surprised the 11,000-strong, five-nation West African force in October by launching an offensive that almost took Monrovia, the Liberian capital, and left an estimated 3,000 dead.

But in the past six weeks, the rebel chief has been retreating from the Atlantic coast back to the Ivorian border, where he began Liberia's civil war with an invasion on Christmas Eve 1989.

The invasion, aimed at overthrowing the tribalist dictatorship of President Samuel Doe, at first was welcomed in West Africa. But the rebellious force splintered into factions, and Doe's death in 1990 did nothing to end the fighting.

The West African force intervened later that year after some 20,000 civilians had been killed and about 1 million Liberian refugees had fled into neighboring countries. Thousands more starved to death in a siege of Monrovia.

The war already has spilled into Sierra Leone, which Taylor invaded in March 1991. Sierra Leone in turn backed another group of rebels who have driven Taylor out of western Liberia and now are battling him in the north.

Four Nigerian jets last weekend attacked a Ivorian border post near Danane, 310 miles northwest of Abidjan, injuring four Ivorian soldiers and a customs officer.

The attack was unprecedented in this African nation, which has never seen war. Nigerian officials said it was a warning.

Monterey escapes MHS

■ Midland High falls from the winner's bracket as Lubbock Monterey awaits its opponent in the Tournament of Champions.

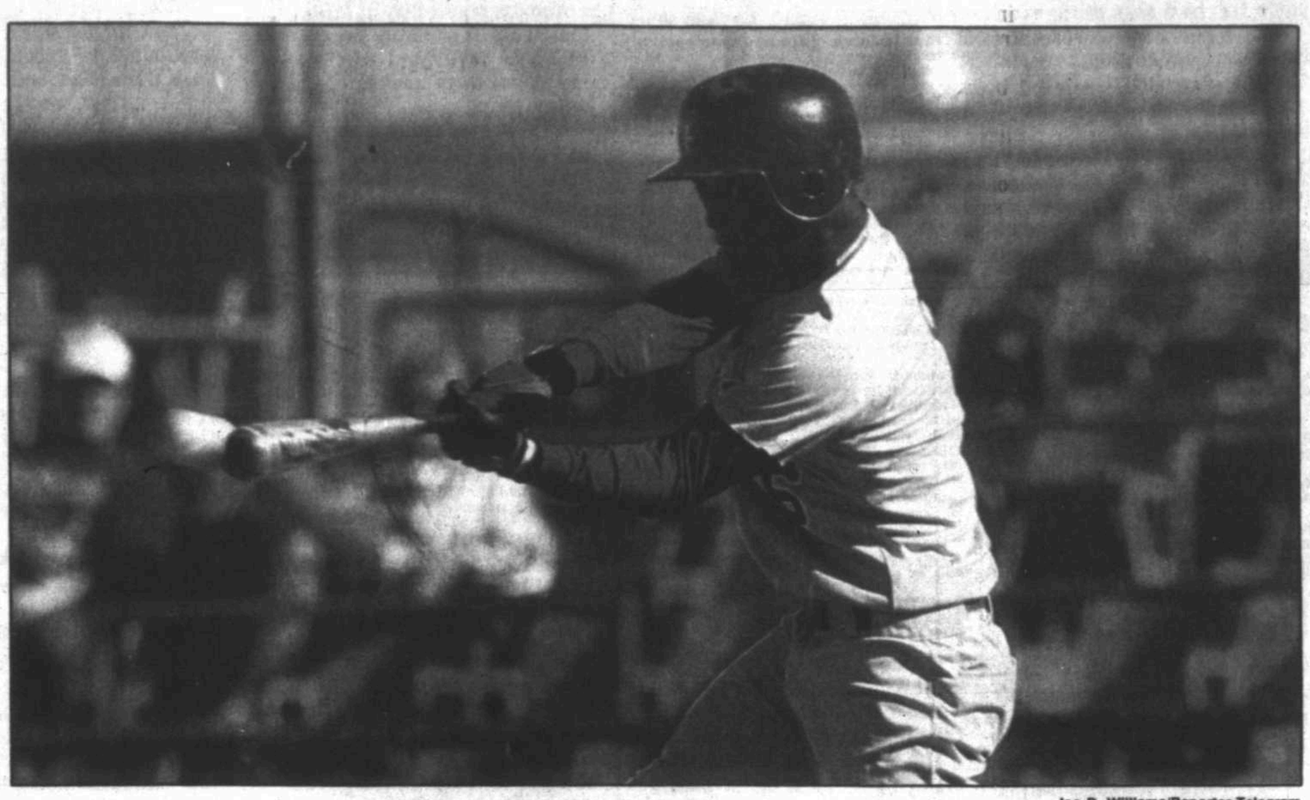

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Considering the type of thorn Midland High was in the side of the Tournament of Champions opposition Friday, a tag along the line of "Consternation Congregation" might be appropriate for the Bulldog baseball team.

MHS began the day at Angels Stadium with a 6-5 victory over El Paso Eastwood, overcoming a 5-3 deficit in the bottom of the seventh inning to stay in the winners bracket. The Bulldogs then tried their luck with Lubbock Monterey Friday night, seeing their comeback fall just short as a seventh-inning suicide squeeze failed to produce the tying run in a 3-2 loss.

Friday's other tournament games saw Odessa Permian defeating El Paso Irvin 12-9, Del Rio downing El Paso Burges 3-1, Midland Lee beating Perm-

Jackson no quick fix for Dallas

Associated Press

DALLAS — After a 54-game wait, the Jim Jackson era finally began in Dallas Friday night. But even his presence wasn't enough to slow the team's slide toward infamy.

record, falling 105-86 to the streaking Houston Rockets.

It was Dallas' 13th straight loss, dropping their record to 4-51, a pace that would break the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers' mark of 9-73.

Houston won its ninth straight, improving to 36-21 and remaining a half-game behind the San Antonio Spurs for the Midwest Division lead.

Hakeem Olajuwon paced eight Rockets in double figures with 24 points and 11 rebounds, and his second-half spark helped Houston pull away after leading only 44-41 at the half.

Jackson, the No. 4 pick in last summer's draft who ended his holdout Thursday, played 26 minutes with six points, four assists and five turnovers.

"I felt like I was just playing," said Jackson, appearing in his first real game since last March in the NCAA tournament. "I felt more comfortable as I kept going."

The above-average crowd of 14,450 greeted Jackson mostly positively, with only a smattering of boos. He won their affection by the second half, once he began tossing no-look passes and running give-and-gos with Rooks.

El Paso Hanks crashed what was supposed to be Midland Lee's Region I coming out party at Chaparral Center Friday night and came away with a 57-51 overtime victory over Hurst L.D. Bell to join — who else? — Fort Worth Dunbar in today's 11 a.m. finals.

Hanks, now 32-3, with mirror-like wins over Lee and Bell gained its first entry into a Region I final since the event moved to Midland in 1981. The Knights beat 26-10 Bell much the same way they ousted Lee in the region quarterfinals — with a stiff defense and an occasional explosion, like 17 points in overtime.

And, well, 31-4 Dunbar took a 70-54 win over 27-3 El Paso Coronado in a game that sent a few chills through Wildcat coach Robert Hughes, who has seen his team win 1,000-plus games over the years. Dunbar is now seeking its seventh Region I title since 1981 and another chance to win that elusive state championship that has never come to the proud basketball tradition.

But it was Hanks that was the surprise since many felt that today's final would be a Fort Worth affair.

"I don't know about gaining respect (for El Paso basketball)," noted Danny Lopez, Knight coach. "I just know that we have a team to come and play every day and do the job."

Cowboys visit Clinton, White House

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

WASHINGTON — They've been cheered at airport rallies, toasted on talk shows and hailed at city-wide celebrations. But Friday it was the Dallas Cowboys' turn to play the role of wide-eyed, gawking tourists.

In a whirlwind visit to the nation's capital, the Super Bowl victors got a chance to meet another comeback artist at a White House ceremony that transformed the stately East Room into an Astroturf-covered practice field.

"It's about time we had somebody with real popularity in here," President Clinton joked in welcoming America's team to America's house. "Four years ago they were about 1-15, and four years later they won the Super Bowl. In the parlance of Washington, we call that deficit reduction."

As it turned out, deficit reduction was also on the minds of some of the Cowboys. Several players from the upper-ian 5-3, and Eastwood taking a 6-3 victory over Del Rio.

The Monterey victory over MHS made the Plainsmen the final unbeaten team in the tournament and sends them into today's championship game, scheduled for a 5:30 p.m. start at Angels Stadium. The Plainsmen's opponent will be determined in the games leading up to the championship.

And the possibility of MHS being that team is unlikely because the Bulldogs have used four pitchers in the two days leading to the Saturday round.

MHS begins today's play having to win four games to take the tournament title. The Bulldogs open the Saturday round with a 10 a.m. game against, who else, Eastwood. Should MHS take that game, it would face Lee at 3 p.m. for the right to face Monterey in the championship. And for the loser's bracket winner to take the tourney title, it will have to beat Monterey twice in the double-elimination tournament.

Lee's chances of unseating Monterey as tourney champ are better because of pitching depth. The Rebs still have senior ace Julian Urquidez fairly rested, but if they have to go to the bullpen they might have to rely on unrested or untested arms.

Not matter who it is, the loser's bracket finalist must find a way to beat Monterey, something three teams, including Lee, haven't been able to do in this tournament. MHS came the closest Friday, though, as the Bulldogs almost overcame giving up two runs in the first inning.

With the infield of Ricky Flores (3B), Mike Melzer (SS), Brad Heidelberg (2B) and Gabe Lawson (1B), MHS' gloves made sizzling grounders look routine. As the defense kept the Bulldogs in the game, Flores singled Lawson home in the second to bring MHS within one run at 2-1.

Monterey re-gained a two-run advantage when, in the fourth inning, Plainsman pitcher Mark Gary drove in what turned out to be the game-winning run on a double.

Then in the sixth, Heidelberg's groundout to shortstop with runners on second and third brought home a run, and put the 'Dogs back in striking distance. But in the seventh with runners on first and third, relief pitcher Matt Miller was able to play Mike Melzer's bunt and put Michael Valenzuela out at home. After walking Abel Sanchez to load the bases, Miller got Tim McLaughlin to ground out to second to end the game.

In the Rebels' victory, Lee scored all five of its runs in the first three innings, then held on for the win. Pitcher Kirk Ulrich, who suffered his first loss of the year in Monday's doubleheader at Monterey, kept the Panthers off balance with a mixture of breaking pitches and an occasional fastball.

He wound up striking out nine while going the distance to move his record to 1-1 for the season.

"Basically, I had a little more pop on my fastball (than against Monterey). I didn't have to throw my slider every pitch. A slider looks like a fastball to hitters, so they think it's going to come over the plate and they swing at it, even when it's in the dirt," Ulrich said.

When Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez began making ample substitutions (Lee used 17 players) in the fourth inning with a 5-1 lead, it coincided with Permian's beginning to come out of what Panther head coach Bob Highley called a "fog."

Permian scored two runs in the sixth, and with two out in the seventh had a runner in scoring position. Then Mack Cohlmia grounded to short and was safe on a throwing error. Courtesy runner Shane Rickerson, who was at second base, rounded third and Highley sent him home. But Lee first baseman Sean McIntosh had recovered from the error in time to make the throw to the plate for the final out.

"If it was a district game I probably would not do it (make all the substitutions so early with a four-run lead). But in tournament play, I'm not trying to impress anybody with my record. Kids will never learn how to play unless they get into a live game," Benavidez said.

In the Bulldogs' comeback over Eastwood, the Troopers jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the second inning and chased Tim Beard after 1 2/3 innings. Then Chad Benson relieved for MHS and allowed just one more Eastwood run in the remainder of the game.

The Bulldogs chipped away at the lead with solo runs in the third, fifth and sixth innings. By the time the bottom of the seventh rolled around, MHS trailed 5-3 with the top of the order due up.

Melzer, who reached base in each of his four plate appearances and stole three bases, drew his third walk of the game to jump start MHS' seventh. After Melzer stole second, Sanchez doubled him home and McLaughlin singled Sanchez across to tie the game at 5-5.

With courtesy runner Rick Lawson on base for McLaughlin, MHS cleanup hitter Gabe Lawson doubled down the right field line to win the game.

"I'm tickled pink. We didn't play well early in the game, and it's a good sign that we were able to come back against a team like Eastwood," Wood said. "We got what we wanted (in the seventh). Any time you need to comeback, having 1-2-3 coming to bat is what you want."

Johnson runs out of chances

Associated Press

PARIS — No more gold medals. No more world records.

What's more, no more comebacks.

Sprint star Ben Johnson is staring at a ban for life from track and field after he was caught as a drug user for the second time.

He'd already served a two-year suspension after a doping scandal at the Olympics in Seoul in 1988, when he was stripped of the gold medal and a world record for a positive test for steroids.

A doping commission of track's world governing body, the International Amateur Athletic Federation, has ruled he is guilty again. This time it was an excess of steroid-related testosterone at a meet in Montreal on Jan. 17.

According to the IAAF, the only punishment is suspension for life for the 31-year-old Canadian.

But the IAAF is giving Johnson the chance to explain why his testosterone level was at 10.3 times the regular level. Even a 6-1 ratio is suspiciously high, but just acceptable, said Istvan Gyulai, the IAAF's general secretary.

"Under the rules, the athlete will be ineligible for life for the second doping offense, pending a hearing before the respective national athletics federation," Gyulai said.

But he believed Johnson was unlikely to come up with an adequate explanation.

"If, after the hearing, there is no new evidence, no new circumstances, then this doping offense is confirmed and he's ineligible for life," Gyulai said.

Another IAAF source, who requested anonymity, said it was unlikely that Johnson would appeal.

"He's finished," the source said.

Johnson was tested three times in a six-day period in January. Two of the tests were negative, but the Montreal sample showed a marked increase in the level of testosterone, which aids strenuous training.

"I have been doing this job for some time and I cannot ever remember such a high level of testosterone being detected," said Bryan Wotton, who checked the dope-testing procedure in Canada.

Johnson has denied any wrongdoing in a statement released through his lawyer.

"Mr. Johnson stands by his earlier statement that he has taken no prohibited substances and has engaged in no improper practices," Terrence O'Sullivan said.

While Johnson and his lawyers prepared their defense, others reacted strongly to the fact that he had been found guilty again.

"I'm not going to take my foot and drop-kick him while he's down," said rival sprinter Carl Lewis, who won the Olympic title in 1984 and was awarded the 1988 gold after Johnson's disqualification.

"What I will say is this: If he used drugs, I'm glad he got caught. I don't think anything is that important in life."

Tech opens SWC with 1-0 shutout

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Travis Driskill pitched a four-hit shutout over 10 innings, leading Texas Tech in a 1-0 victory over No. 23 Baylor in both teams' Southwest Conference opener.

Mike Kinney walked with the bases loaded in the 10th off Jason Rathbun (5-1), sending Clint Bryan home with the only run of the game. Bryan had led off the inning with a single.

Driskill (4-1) struck out eight and walked three in his second complete game of the year.

Rathbun allowed three hits and struck out six in 9 1-3 innings.

The Red Raiders improved to 12-2 while dropping Baylor to 16-4.

REGIONAL: Knights, 'Cats tip off at 11 a.m.

(From 1B)

The Knights never trailed in regulation, leading by as many as eight points, but Bell's Scott McAnally drained a three-point shot with 16 seconds left to knot the game at 40-40.

Bell then had a chance to win it when Mike McEwen stole the ball and missed a layup. Bell had its only lead in overtime, 43-42, but Hanks' guard Billy Churchill hit a three-point shot to send the Knights on a six-point run that turned the final tide.

"Coach (Lopez) says to take that shot when I have it, so I wasn't thinking about anything else at the time," Churchill said of his three-pointer that seemed to sink the Blue Raiders' momentum.

But it was defense, and not three-pointers, that made Hanks a winner.

"This was just like the Lee game," senior 6-5 post Jason Tollette said. "We've worked a lot on defense in practice and it has paid off four us in the last two games."

In game 2, Dunbar came out taking no prisoners, vaulting to a 17-6 first quarter lead and eventually leading by 21 points, 52-31, early in the fourth period. That's when the T-Birds refused to fold and scored 15 consecutive points in one stretch to narrow the margin seven points, 61-54, with 1:52 left in the game.

The Wildcats then hit free throws down the stretch as super guard Anthon Burks hit 12 of 14 free throws in the game on the way to 21 points. Samuel Varner had 20 points.

"Acutally, I think the players had a conspiracy going to see how much they could make the coach squirm," Hughes said. "I've been telling them what to do all week — what time to get on the bus, what time to practice — and I guess they were out to show me up.

"What really happened was the fact that we just relaxed and you can't do that against Coronado because they can shoot the lights out. We've beaten Coronado three times in a row and that's a lot of times to play Coronado at this level. I was glad and sorry to see Matthew Baskind finish up. He's a great player and I've enjoyed watching him work."

Now it's on to the 11 a.m. final with the winner winning the state basketball Lotto number for Austin. However, there is no guaranteed check there when you arrive.

COWBOYS: Aikman giddy about trip to D.C.

(From 1B)

income tax bracket said they hoped to use the White House visit to give Clinton their thoughts about his soak-the-rich tax plans.

"Yo, man! I don't mind paying my part of the taxes, but I don't want to carry all of America on my back," offensive lineman Nate Newton said. "If I get a chance to speak to the president, I'm going to ask him about the taxes first."

Still, most of the Cowboys admitted that they were experiencing the kind of awe that their fans often describe.

"It's a great honor," coach Jimmy Johnson said. "It makes chills go up and down your spine."

Quarterback Troy Aikman said the Washington visit, which included a tour and reception at the Capitol hosted by Texas lawmakers, was probably the highlight of a long string of post-Super Bowl celebrations.

"Everybody on the team was really looking forward to it," Aikman said. "We wish we could stay longer."

Left tackle Tony Casillas called the day's events "a once in a lifetime kind of thing."

Safety James Washington, who was hoping to get Clinton's autograph, marveled at the thought of a kid who grew up in a Los Angeles ghetto meeting the world's most powerful leader.

"I won't realize what's really happening until two or three years from now or when I'm retired and have time to think about it," he said. "Winning the world championship has opened a lot of doors that a kid from Watts wouldn't have gotten."

Clinton, who was joined by Vice President Al Gore, seemed equally buoyed by the encounter. The president, who spent about an hour shaking hands and signing autographs, offered special congratulations to wide receiver Michael Irvin, who celebrated his 27th birthday on the Washington trip.

"Can you imagine that?" Clinton joked. "Twenty-seven years old and wealthy enough to retire the national debt."

In honor of the Cowboys' visit, the East Room, often the site of formal state dinners, was covered with bright green Astroturf. The Super Bowl trophy was displayed in the center of the room in front of a fake goal post.

As if to underscore the jarring contrast between Friday's festivities and more typical East Room functions, the goal post was flanked by famous paintings of George and Martha Washington. The founding father appeared to be pointing at the goal line.

"I watched this team over the last year win the way I think Americans win best," Clinton said. "They started a lot of games slow, and they always finished fast. That's what we have to do as a country."

Team owner Jerry Jones, who supported Clinton early in his political career in their home state of Arkansas, also found political analogies in the Cowboys' experience.

"Football is a game of investment and work and effort and a little pain right now so you can have some gain later down the road," Jones said. "I think that's what he's trying to do as president."

Clinton seemed particularly pleased when the Cowboys gave him a jersey as an honorary reserve quarterback. During the presidential campaign, Clinton and Gore broke up the monotony of long bus rides by stopping at roadside parks to toss a football.

"I'm just going to sit around now and wait for my number to be called," the president joked. "I'm going to start practicing this afternoon. You know, it's never too late."

But Johnson had a word of advice for the eager recruit.

"We've been able to observe your jogging," he told the president. "You're going to have to jog a little faster."

Amarillo eases into Class 5A title game

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Stefanie Andrus and Tracie Swayden led a balanced scoring attack as Amarillo advanced to the Class 5A state championship game with a 50-33 victory Friday over Deer Park in the University Interscholastic League girls state basketball tournament.

Andrus scored 12 points and Swayden added 10 as nine different Amarillo players scored. The Sandies' swarming man-to-man defense frustrated the Lady Deer, who never threatened in the game.

Carey Mefford scored nine points and grabbed 13 rebounds for Deer Park, which shot just 26 percent from the field.

The Sandies (34-1) led 30-18 at intermission and held Deer Park (27-8) to just five points in the third quarter.

Amarillo led by as many as 20 (47-27) with 3:02 left, before allowing its substitutes take the floor.

CC King 63, Pflugerville 53

In the other 5A semifinal, Sabrina Roberson scored 26 points and Corpus Christi King played with confidence and courage as the Lady Mustangs upset undefeated Pflugerville.

King withstood a hectic 9-0 run by the top-ranked team in the state that narrowed the Lady Mustangs' lead to 55-49 with 2:10 left. But a stoic Roberson took control, scoring five points in a 7-2 spurt that put the game out of reach, 62-51 with 38 seconds left.

King (32-5) will meet Amarillo (34-1), which defeated Deer Park earlier in the day, for the Class 5A state championship on Saturday.

Pflugerville, which finished the season 32-1, was led by Jamie Peterson with 14 points.

CLASS 2A SEMIFINALS

Marion 63, Panhandle 60

Hamilton 54, Cooper 51

AUSTIN — Bernice Baumann hit a free throw with 19 seconds left and Melissa Gerth and Nater Dunn finished strongly as Marion knocked off Panhandle in a Class 2A semifinal of the University Interscholastic League girls state basketball tournament.

The victory by Marion (32-4) avenged a loss to Panhandle (26-6) in last year's Class 2A state championship game.

The Lady Bulldogs' victory was in doubt even after Baumann hit one of two free throws with 19 ticks on the clock. But a desperation 3-pointer by Panhandle's Angie Jo Ogletree with 10 seconds left missed the rim and Marion ran out the clock after snatching the rebound.

Panhandle was led by Tammy Stewart, who had a game-high 27 points on 13-of-26 shooting, and nine rebounds. Ogletree added 15 points.

Tamara Grier had 16 points, while Beth Radtke and Dunn each added 13 for Marion.

Panhandle led by as many as nine in the first half and was in control deep into the third quarter, leading 45-39 with 2:25 left in the period.

But Dunn took charge for Marion in the fourth quarter, scoring nine points, including seven in a row, to help put her team up 52-47 with 6:26 left. Gerth took it from there, scoring six consecutive points, including two free throws that put Marion up for good, 62-60, with 1:22 to play.

Florida beats Houston in franchise debut

Associated Press

The Florida Marlins played their first game Friday, beating the Houston Astros 12-8 before 6,696 adoring fans at Cocoa, Fla.

"It's a fantastic day, it really is," said owner H. Wayne Huizenga, the video retail magnate who landed Florida's first major league franchise more than a century after big-league teams began training in the state.

Huizenga received a loud ovation — one of several throughout the afternoon — as he posed on the field with the team's grinning, sword-nosed mascot 45 minutes before gametime.

The first standing ovation came when reserve catcher Steve Decker poked a soft single to center for the first hit. It drove in Dave Magadan, who got on base and reached third on two throwing errors.

The first home run, a two-run shot by Jeff Conine, led a five-run rally in the fourth.

"Not quite a World Series atmosphere, but not your typical spring training game," said Walt Weiss, the former Oakland shortstop who handled the Marlins' first three chances. "Everything involved today was a little special."

The Marlins said they would donate all of Friday's proceeds to victims of Hurricane Andrew.

Florida also took care of some off-the-field business, signing right-handed pitcher Scott Chiamparino, the last unsigned member of their 40-man roster, to a one-year contract.

The other expansion club, the Colorado Rockies, opens exhibition play Saturday against the San Francisco Giants at Tucson, Ariz.

Twenty of the 28 teams were in action in exhibition games Friday.

At Mesa, Ariz., Ryne Sandberg fractured his left wrist when he was hit by a pitch from San Francisco's Mike Jackson. Both benches emptied and there was some pushing and shoving, but no punches were thrown.

Sandberg, the highest-paid player in baseball this season, is expected to miss 4-6 weeks.

The second baseman, furious after the game, said the pitch on a 1-2 count was "right at my head and coming in."

Mike Moore, the free agent pitcher who was the centerpiece of the Detroit Tigers' offseason dealing, gave up six runs on seven hits in three innings in a 7-6 loss to the Chicago White Sox.

Dodgers right-hander Orel Hershiser continued to rebound from reconstructive shoulder surgery nearly three years ago by pitching three scoreless innings against the Yankees.

The Toronto Blue Jays turned a triple play in the sixth inning of a 3-2 loss to Texas. First baseman Domingo Martinez started it by making a diving catch of a Ivan Rodriguez's bunt. He threw to shortstop Alex Gonzalez to nab Dean Palmer off second, then second baseman Domingo Cedeno tagged Rob Ducey off first.

The Pittsburgh Pirates announced that right-handed reliever Alejandro Pena will resume throwing Monday after a weekend of treatment for his ailing pitching elbow.

Pirates lefty Zane Smith threw off a mound fer the first time since undergoing rotator cuff surgery on his throwing shoulder last Nov. 10.

"There was still some minor pain but nothing compared to what it was like when camp started two weeks ago," Smith said. "I'm not cutting loose yet, but my shoulder's improving slowly but surely."

Much of the talk around spring training camps concerned baseball's plans to expand the playoffs and begin regular-season interleague play.

"This is a good first step in solving the problems of baseball because there are some problems," Royals manager Hal McRae said Friday. "I think the time is right to do something different. You've got to change with the times."

Cleveland general manager John Hart saw some merit in the idea — with some reservations.

"We have to face the reality that there are 28 teams," Hart said. "It certainly would make September more exciting. For me personally, I'm a little bit more of a purist. But right now, I think it's something that has to be explored."

There were players and managers on both sides of the fence, making for a lively debate.

"I personally would like to see the playoffs stay the same," Royals pitcher Jeff Montgomery said.

Spurs nip Chicago in OT

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Dale Ellis scored seven of his 29 points in overtime Friday night as the San Antonio Spurs came back from a 21-point deficit, beatng Chicago 107-102 and ending the Bulls' seven-game winning streak.

David Robinson added 28 points for the Spurs, who were down 35-14 in the first quarter.

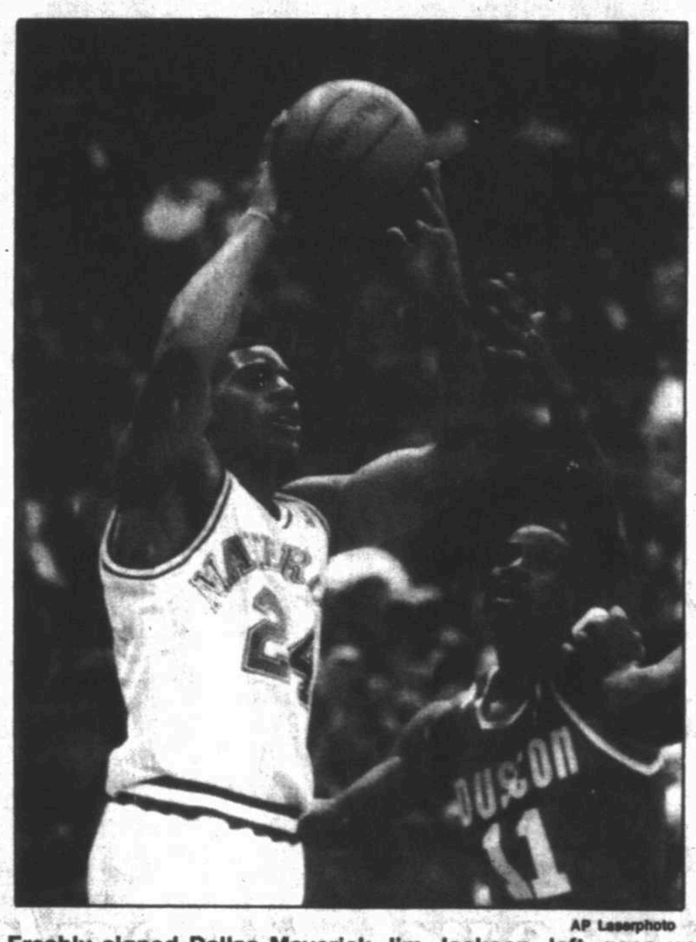

Scottie Pippen had 39 points, 13 rebounds and 10 assists for Chicago, which played its second straight game without Michael Jordan, who is hospitalized with an infected corn on his foot. The Bulls are now 1-6 without Jordan over the last 6½ years.

The Bulls outshot San Antonio 57 percent to 20 percent in the first quarter, and led 35-17 at the end of the period. Pippen had with 17 in the quarter.

The Spurs trimmed it to 54-40 at halftime and Robinson led a third quarter rally with 13 points His 12-foot jumper at 1:54 brought San Antonio to within 71-68, before the Bulls went on a 7-1 run to close out the quarter with a 78-69 lead.

Ellis led the Spurs' in the fourth quarter with 10 points, including a pair of three-point field goals.

Celtics 105, Pistons 101

BOSTON — Kevin McHale hit a short follow shot with 23 seconds left and the Pistons' Isiah Thomas blew two subsequent chances to tie the score as the Boston Celtics defeated Detroit.

Kevin Gamble had 26 points on 12 of 17 shooting for the Celtics, who have won seven in a row at home. Joe Dumars had 24 points and Dennis Rodman had 19 rebounds for Detroit, which lost its 12th straight road game.

McHale grabbed a rebound in the lane and tossed in a 10-foot jumper to break a 101-101 tie. Thomas was fouled at the other end of the court, but missed both free throws. The Pistons got another chance when Rodman rebounded the second missed foul shot, but Thomas threw the ball away on a drive.

Dee Brown added two free throws for the final Boston points.

Robert Parish had 21 points and 15 rebounds as the Celtics avenged a 99-95 loss at Detroit on Monday. Sherman Douglas added 17 points for Boston.

Thomas had 22 for the Pistons, but only seven in the second half.

Detroit now is 6-21 on the road and its 12-game losing streak away from home is its longest since they lost 20 straight a dozen years ago.

Heat 109, Clippers 105

MIAMI — Rony Seikaly, who had 21 points and 22 rebounds, hit two free throws with 45.1 seconds left as the Miami Heat beat the Los Angeles Clippers for the first five-game winning streak in their history.

Glen Rice had had 21 points for Miami, while Steve Smith scored 20, 11 in the final period.

It was the second consecutive big rebounding game for Seikaly, who had an NBA season high and career high 34 Wednesday night against Washington.

The Heat led 103-98, but Danny Manning, who scored 27 of his 32 in the second half, hit a layup and then added one of two from the line to make it 103-101 with 1:57 to play.

After Seikaly hit two free throws, a basket by Manning and two Mark Jackson free throws enabled Los Angeles to tie the game at 105 with 1:02 left.

Seikaly hit two more foul shots to make it 107-105, Manning missed for Los Angeles, and Smith hit a 15-foot jumper with 11.3 seconds left to put the game out of reach.

Ron Harper contributed 20 points for the Clippers.

The Heat, who tied a franchise mark with their seventh consecutive home victory, have won seven of their last eight games.

Bucks 109, Magic 91

MILWAUKEE — Blue Edwards scored 21 points and Eric Murdock 20 Friday night as the Milwaukee Bucks controlled rookie center Shaquille O'Neal and beat the Orlando Magic 109-91.

O'Neal, in his first Milwaukee appearance, scored 18 points, six under his average and had 10 rebounds. Nick Anderson and Scott Skiles also scored 18 apiece for the Magic.

Milwaukee's Derek Strong, playing on a second 10-day contract, scored all 12 of his points in the second half as the Bucks stopped a late rally.

Down 12 after three quarters, the Magic got within six on Anderson's basket with nine minutes to go. But the Bucks responded as Anthony Avent scored six points and Jon Barry made two 3-pointers for a 96-85 lead with 3:28 remaining.

Suns 130, Kings 122

PHOENIX — Cedric Ceballos scored 14 of his 23 points in the third quarter, when the Phoenix Suns pulled away from foul-prone Sacramento en route to a 130-122 victory Friday night.

Charles Barkley, who had 32 points in 31 minutes, hit 3 of 5 3-pointers in the third period and scored 11 points as the Suns extended a 59-54 halftime edge to 101-88. Barkley was 9 of 11 from the floor for the game.

Kevin Johnson scored 17 points for the Suns, who hit 37 of 54 free throws compared to 16 of 21 for the Kings.

Lionel Simmons finished with 17 points and Wayman Tisdale and Walt Williams had 16 each for Sacramento.

Danny Ainge's free throw and 3-pointer during a 12-2 run in the first 3½ minutes of the fourth quarter gave the Suns a 113-90 lead.

Hornets 94, Trail Blazers 92

PORTLAND, Ore. — David Wingate's 15-foot shot off a rebound with 5.2 seconds left gave Charlotte a 94-92 victory over Portland Friday night, the Hornets' first ever win over the Trail Blazers.

Kendall Gill's 18-footer was off the mark but the ball bounced long to Wingate, who had just entered the game 45 seconds earlier, and he hit the open jumper.

Cliff Robinson had 29 points and 13 rebounds for Portland, which lost for the 10th time in 15 games.

Larry Johnson scored 28 points and Gill 18 for Charlotte.

Player, fans split on changes in baseball

Associated Press

Greg Maddux would like to see new rivalries, such as Cardinals-White Sox. Greg Colbrunn wants to watch Don Mattingly play at Yankee Stadium. Al Kaline worries about tradition.

All over spring training, the big talk Friday was about the big changes baseball may soon make.

And, just like the fans, major leaguers were split — strongly, too, — on the ideas of expanded playoffs, interleague play and realigned divisions.

"I'm all for it," Detroit's Alan Trammell said. "I think it would be great."

"Nix it," Atlanta pitcher Steve Bedrosian said. "Baseball has a lot of tradition, so I say leave it the way it is."

Owners showed overwhelming support for the moves in a nonbinding vote Thursday at Phoenix. Though they said the changes could be in place by next season, it most likely will be 1995 before they go into effect. The players' union also must approve them.

"The traditionalists are going to say National League teams should play National League teams, and the same for the American League teams," said Todd Zeile, St. Louis' player representative. "I guess it's inevitable, but baseball has been different."

Montreal pitcher Chris Nabholz mostly favors the moves and would welcome a Canadian rivalry against Toronto. Especially, he said, if it meant he got a chance to see SkyDome.

"But I think they have a lot of straightening out before they make them," he said. "Do you have a designated hitter or no DH? Do you shorten the schedule so the playoffs don't go into November? What will it mean for road trips and travel?"

Owners said that fan surveys showed support for the changes, particularly in the 18-34 age group. Most players are in that same bracket, and some see the need to create more interest in a sport that has lost some of its popularity.

"The fans are the customers, and I think you have to give them what they want," Maddux said.

Maddux, now with the Braves, won the Cy Young Award last season with the Cubs. He sees potential for rivalries with Chicago teams that might blossom because of interleague play.

"Cubs-White Sox would be good, but it could go beyond teams that close to each other," he said. "There's a strong rivalry between Chicago and St. Louis, so how about White Sox-Cardinals or Brewers-Cubs?"

White Sox manager Gene Lamont said the changes would be good for everyone involved.

"Some teams can win with 86 victories and other teams can't make it with 91," he said. "The fans would get to see Barry Bonds, Will Clark . . . They'd get to see stars of the other league."

So would the players.

"Growing up, I always rooted for the New York Yankees and always wanted to go to Yankee Stadium," said Colbrunn, beginning his first full season as Montreal's first baseman. "Don Mattingly is my favorite player, and I would like to watch him in person."

But Kaline, a Hall of Famer who spent his entire career with Detroit, does not want to see Yankees-Mets, Dodgers-Angels, Athletics-Giants or any of the other new matchups that might come.

"I don't like the idea of interleague play," said Kaline, a Tigers' announcer who also works with the team's outfielders in spring training.

Rangers open spring with 3-2 win over Jays

Associated Press

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — Kevin Kennedy won his managerial debut Friday as his Texas Rangers posted a 10-inning 3-2 exhibition victory over the defending world champion Toronto Blue Jays.

Benji Gil singled home pinch-runner Terrell Lowery with two outs in the 10th inning after winning pitcher Terry Bross worked out of a bases-loaded, none-out situation at the top of the inning.

"These are the kind of games we're going to have to win this season — one-run games," Kennedy said. "I strive on those games."

Despite the victory, the Rangers showed signs of the problems that plagued them last year by committing four errors and hitting into a triple play.

The game-winning rally began when losing pitcher Tony Castillo walked Cris Colon, who moved to second when David Hulse dropped down a perfect bunt with two strikes.

Colon took third on a wild pitch and Gary Redus walked, loading the bases for Gil.

Blue Jays first baseman Domingo Martinez started the triple play in the sixth by making a diving catch of an Ivan Rodriguez bunt. Martinez threw the ball to shortstop Alex Gonzalez to nab Dean Palmer, then second baseman Domingo Cedeno tagged Rob Ducey off first.

Weekend games could break bubbles

Associated Press

Whether you're sitting on the bubble, fence or flagpole, one quick move either way and things are over.

This weekend there are a few games that will decide the immediate future of some college basketball teams who have been described in those precarious ways.

A look by conference at some of the big games this weekend that could decide at-large berths to the NCAA tournament (of course, any team which gets hot and wins its conference tournament gets to end all bubble talk immediately):

Atlantic Coast Conference

Georgia Tech (15-10, 7-8) at Clemson (15-10, 5-10) on Sunday — The Yellow Jackets have a power rating that seems to make them a lock for the tournament, but a loss against Clemson means a sub-.500 conference finish. A win by Clemson and one in the first round of the ACC tournament would put the Tigers in a position that seemed implausible only a month ago.

Atlantic 10

The conference tournament starts Sunday and three of the quarter-final games that day will mean a lot. Temple (15-11) needs a victory over West Virginia (16-10) to seal things because the Owls play the second-toughest schedule in the country. West Virginia's power rating jumped considerably last week, so a win would seem to get the Mountaineers very close. St. Joseph's (17-9) has to beat Rutgers (13-14) because of the weakest power rating of the league's top six teams. Rhode Island (17-9) would clinch things by beating George Washington (19-7), along with Massachusetts (20-6) the league's sure bet.

Big East

The Showdown at the Conte Forum will be Saturday when Providence (15-10, 8-9) visits Boston College (15-10, 9-8). The winner is almost assured an NCAA bid; the loser looks likes a high seed in the NIT. Connecticut (15-10, 9-8) can make things easy for itself with a win Sunday over Georgetown (14-11, 7-10); a loss and the Huskies probably would have to win one game in the Big East tournament.

Big Eight

The bids for five of the top six teams in this league seem set and Kansas State (17-8, 7-6) could make it a half-dozen with a win at Iowa State (18-9, 7-6). Remember that Iowa State was invited last season despite a 5-9 league mark.

Big Ten

Wisconsin (14-10, 7-8) and Michigan State (14-10, 6-9) both face must-win road games this weekend. That's where the similarity ends. The Badgers travel to Northwestern (7-17, 2-13), while the Spartans are at Michigan (23-4, 12-3).

Big West

Long Beach State (19-8, 11-6) still has a chance at a third berth for this league, but the 49ers can't stumble against Pacific (15-10, 11-6) Saturday.

Colonial Athletic Association

If James Madison (19-7) and Old Dominion (20-6) both win Saturday and Sunday to set up a championship game between them Monday night, the CAA could have an argument for a second team.

Metro Conference

Virginia Commonwealth (18-7, 7-4) has suddenly become a factor with its win at Tulane. The Rams can't lose in the season finale at Southern Mississippi (9-16, 5-6) Saturday.

Pac 10

The league has an extra week of games, but this weekend none is as important as Arizona State (17-7, 10-5) at California (16-8, 9-6). The winner can relax a bit, while the loser fights to the final weekend in a season in which the league was down.

Southeastern Conference

Florida (16-9, 9-6) could make things easy on the selection committee and itself with a victory at home Sunday against Kentucky (22-3, 12-3).

Southwest Conference

The talk of possibly three bids can stay alive if the top three teams — Southern Methodist (19-6), Rice (17-7) and Houston (18-7) — all close out the regular season with home victories.

Sun Belt

New Orleans (24-2) and Western Kentucky (21-5) could both reach the NCAA tournament if they manage to meet in Monday night's conference title game.

Health problems force out Redskins' Gibbs

Associated Press

ASHBURN, Va. — Joe Gibbs unexpectedly retired today as head coach of the Washington Redskins, saying that after a dozen years and three Super Bowl victories it was time to get closer to his family.

"This is the toughest decision I have ever made," Gibbs said at an emotional news conference.

Richie Petitbon, assistant head coach for defense, will replace Gibbs.

The 52-year-old Gibbs said he didn't feel well at the end of last season. He said doctors described his condition as "migraine equivalent." He said he didn't have headaches, "but you have other nervous reactions that are set off."

Gibbs said doctors "assurred me that I'm going to be fine and it's just going to take a while."

He choked back tears when he said he wanted to be "closer to my family," to spend more time with his wife and two sons.

"You're looking at one of the luckiest guys in the world," he said of his long run as head coach.

First word of Gibbs' retirement came from his associates.

Offensive line coach Jim Hanifan said earlier today that Gibbs "feels it's time to go."

Hanifan stressed that while Gibbs' health is fine, the fatigue that comes with a dozen years of coaching had caused him to re-evaluate his plans for the future.

Gibbs compiled a record that any head coach would envy after taking over the Redskins in 1981. Overall, he is 124-60.

During his first year, the Skins went 8-8. But they won the Super Bowl the following season, and again after the 1987 and 1991 seasons — each time with a different quarterback.

Gibbs is one of just three coaches in NFL history to win three Super Bowls.

Last season, Gibbs presided over a team beset with injuries that struggled to make the playoffs. It lost in a divisional playoff to San Francisco after defeating Minnesota in a wild-card game.

Gibbs repeatedly said that he found defending a Super Bowl title challenging, and that he wouldn't be able to justify the long hours and work unless he loved his job.

His work habits are the stuff of legend around the NFL, and Gibbs was known to spend three or four consecutive nights on a cot in his office as he worked late into the night preparing the game plans.

In the last two years, Gibbs became an owner in the high-priced world of stock car racing. Last month, his entry won the Daytona 500 NASCAR race with Dale Jarrett, son of former NASCAR champion Ned Jarrett driving.

Gibbs' coaching career began at San Diego State University in 1964, and he moved on to Florida State in 1967. He worked under John McKay at USC in 1969 and 1970.

He spent two years as an assistant in Arkansas before moving to the NFL in 1973, when he became offensive backfield coach for the St. Louis Cardinals.

He became Tampa Bay's offensive coordinator in 1978, then took the same post in 1979 with the Chargers, his last job before signing up with the Redskins.

Petitbon is the architect behind Washington's defense.

An All-Pro safety during his playing days with the Bears, Rams and Redskins, Petitbon came to Washington as coach in 1978 and took over the defense when Gibbs' arrived in 1981.

Petitbon about to give up on job

Associated Press

ASHBURN, Va. — Richie Petitbon has been waiting so long for a head coaching chance that he had just about given up hope when the Washington Redskins' job unexpectedly dropped into his lap because Joe Gibbs quit Friday.

"Joe's decision came as as big a shock to me as anyone," Petitbon said. "I was flabbergasted."

Petitbon, who has coordinated Washington's defensive attack since Gibbs became coach in 1981, was passed over this winter for the Chicago Bears and Denver Broncos posts. Those were his first head coaching opportunities since 1986, when New Orleans went for Jim Mora.

"I'm 54," Petitbon said. "I was running out of chances."

And while the Redskins were talking about continuity, keeping the same philosphy and coaching staff and re-signing as many of their free agents as possible, there was no question that things would be different under Petitbon.

Both Gibbs and his longtime defensive gurus work long hours, devise complex, successful game plans and earn the respect of their players. But their approach to dealing with others can be different.

Behind closed doors, Gibbs could yell at or cut up with his players, but with the cameras filming and tape recorders rolling, he was as careful as a State Department spokesman. Unfailingly honest on almost every subject, there was one where he lied shamelessly and repeatedly: Each opponent, it seemed, was The Greatest.

Not so with Petitbon, whose blunt, plainspoken style contrasts sharply with that of his predecessor.

In praising the Washington organization, Petitbon said by way of comparison Friday: "So many teams in this league have absolutely no chance to win because of their ownership. We are given the tools to win."

He also made no attempt to hide his desire for the top job. Asked how long it took him to accept, Petitbon deadpanned: "After I got up off the floor, not long at all."

"You just have to be yourself," Petitbon said. "I'm a very honest person, I'm a very blunt person, and I think players understand that. It may not be what they want to hear, but you're better off if you're honest."

A tireless student of the game, Petitbon has masterminded Washington's situational defense, a scheme that calls for different packages and players for nearly every down-and-distance scenario.

His fortunes in some respect have been tied to the strength of his linebacking corps, because those players must be strong enough to stop the run, agile enough to rush the quarterback, and have the speed to cover tight ends and wide receivers in certain situations.

In the past two seasons, with Wilber Marshall anchoring the linebacking corps, Washington's defense has played well, allowing only 224 points (second-lowest in the league) during the 1991 Super Bowl championship season. Last year, despite numerous injuries, Washington finished with the NFL's seventh-ranked defense.

As that success led to head-coaching temptations, Petitbon also was reminded of the job security and freedom he had with the Redskins.

That scenario played out again in January, when the Bears interviewed Petitbon before choosing Dallas defensive chief Dave Wannstedt.

"I'd rather be lucky than good," Petitbon said, "and I have to believe someone was watching over me ..."

Murray moves from 'hog to dog

Comic snaps comedy slump

By Eleanor Ringel

Tomorrow is never another day in "Groundhog Day," a larkish time-warp comedy starring Bill Murray. It's always the same day, over and over and over. . . .

Murray plays Phil Connors, a full-of-himself weatherman who's doing his umpteenth puff piece on Groundhog Day in Punxsutawney, Pa. 'Mad Dog' surprisingly bland

Bill Murray's on top of the world right now.

His smirking performance as a wiseacre weatherman who gets stuck in a time warp has charmed audiences into making "Groundhog Day" the most popular comedy of the year.

However, even a talent like Murray can't save his latest project, an enigmatic effort called "Mad Dog and Glory," from becoming a remarkably uneven, unentertaining film.

You want to like it. It's got Bill Murray and Robert DeNiro, possibly the most bizarre casting combination since Meryl Streep and Roseanne Barr in "She-Devil." But star power aside, nothing

Americanized foreign films a mixed bag

By Yardena Arar
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — French perfume, Japanese cars, Italian food — when it comes to imports, Americans embrace the best the world has to offer, and films are no exception.

As long as they're made in the USA, of course.

Hollywood doesn't remake foreign films routinely, and when it does the results have been mixed. For every outstanding success on the order of "The Magnificent Seven" and "Three Men and a Baby," there is a so-so "Cousins" or disappointing "Paradise."

But filmmakers keep turning overseas for inspiration, as evidenced by a rash of current and upcoming films. "Scent of a Woman," starring Al Pacino as a blind retired military officer, stems from a 1970s Italian film of the same name, "Profuma di Donna."

"Sommersby" tells a story similar to France's "The Return of Martin Guerre." "The Vanishing" is not only a remake of a Dutch-French thriller, it is directed by the same man who wrote and directed the original. "Point of No Return," scheduled for release this month, is "La Femme Nikita" transposed from Paris and Venice to Washington, D.C. and New Orleans.

How foreign films fare in Hollywood's hands varies from project to project, but the transformation almost always goes well beyond merely translating a script and casting American actors.

"Sommersby," for example, is set in a post-Civil War, small Southern town as opposed to the 15th-century French village that is the scene of "The Return of Martin Guerre," which was based on an actual reported incident in French history.

While Amiel more or less kept the fundamental plot, director Martin Brest and screenwriter Bo Goldman so radically overhauled "Profuma di Donna" that the film credits simply read "inspired by characters" in the Italian film. Specifically, Brest and Goldman were enamored of the irascible, ill-tempered soldier played in the original by Vittorio Gassman.

"We felt that if we could find an American equivalent of the character, it would be an outrageous character, and that was the purpose — to sort of unleash this character on an unsuspecting public," Brest said.

After capturing her second Best Actress Oscar for last year's "Silence of the Lambs," above, Jodie Foster embarked on an Americanization of a French movie, Jon Amiel's "Sommersby," below, with co-star Richard Gere.

'Sommersby' explores trust

By Max McQueen
N.Y. Times News Service

Once upon a time, 1557 to be exact, a French peasant returned to his home after a nine-year absence.

His name? Martin Guerre. That's who he said he was, anyway. Turned out he was an impostor. But his family and friends bought into his great lie. His true identity was revealed in a 1560 trial.

Arrest Memorable, Jean de Coras' account of that trial, came out in 1561.

Oscar snubs offer video rental ideas

By Dolores Barclay
AP Arts editor

NEW YORK (AP) — When Oscar snubs, the best revenge for the movie buff just might be the VCR.

So what if your favorite actor and director didn't get nominated for an Academy Award this year? You can always savor their many glorious celluloid moments via videocassettes.

Let's take a look at all the hours you can spend celebrating just some of this year's losers — Spike Lee, Robert Redford, Alfre Woodard, Tom Cruise.

Lee, whose "Malcolm X" received the highest marks from a number of critics, picked up only two Oscar nominations, for Denzel Washington's portrayal of Malcolm X, and for costume design. Lee was overlooked for the director's prize and the movie ignored for best picture.

Redford's "A River Runs Through It" opened to much acclaim. For a good part of the year, the movie looked to many like an Oscar sleeper. Though it picked up four nominations, including cinematography, Redford's direction was ignored.

Woodard played opposite Mary McDonnell in the much-touted "Passion Fish." Critics agreed that both women had done star turns. But only one got the Academy flash: McDonnell was nominated for best actress, Woodard didn't even receive a nod for supporting actress.

Critics said Cruise's role in "A Few Good Men" was his best yet on film. The Academy said otherwise. No go.

So don't get angry; just grab a video and enjoy. Here's a partial list of what's available:

LEE:

—"She's Gotta Have It" (1986): Many consider this small-budget, early effort about a lusty young woman to be Lee's best work.

—"School Daze" (1988): A mottled, meandering message flick that doesn't quite make it as it tries to blend humor, politics, music, dance and campus life.

—"Do the Right Thing" (1989): A powerful examination of race relations and bigotry. Among his best works.

—"Mo' Better Blues" (1990): Portrait of a troubled jazz artist. Some fine performances blend against the musi-

ALADDIN: Another endlessly entertaining animated feature from Walt Disney, buoyed by Robin Williams' energetically inventive turn as the Genie who helps a poor street kid named Aladdin surmount the evil plotting of Jafar and win the love of the Sultan's daughter Jasmine. Dazzling color and breathtaking animation combine with nonstop laughs and spritely songs. G. Rating: 4 stars.

AMOS AND ANDREW: An adroit social satire that gets more mileage than you might expect out of a one-joke set-up. Andrew (Samuel L. Jackson), a famous black writer, buys a home on an all-white resort island and is mistaken by his pseudo-liberal new neighbors (Michael Lerner and Margaret Colin) for a burglar. They call the police who handle things with all the finesse of the LAPD and Rodney King. To save his own neck, the chief (Dabney Coleman) sneaks a drifter, Amos (Nicolas Cage), into Andrew's home, therebye concocting a false hostage crisis. Writer/director E. Max Frye says that prejudice and opportunism are equal-oppotunity afflictions. He's as a scornful of self-congratulatory "some of my best friends are . . . " whites as he is of Giancarlo Esposito's Al Sharpton-ish publicity hound. His movie may handle things more gingerly than it needs to, but it keeps its targets well within its sites. And scores a few direct hits. PG-13. Not yet rated.

THE CRYING GAME: There are more surprises in 20 minutes of this extraordinary Irish film than there are in 20 Hollywood pictures. Neil Jordan has fashioned a head-spinning original, a Lynch-ian thriller-romance so deliciously topsy-turvy in its plot twists that you leave the theater swearing not to reveal the ending. Or the middle. Or even the first third. In the shortest short-hand possible, the film is about an IRA operative (Stephen Rea) who befriends a British soldier/hostage (Forest Whitaker), then looks up the soldier's girlfriend, a stunning London hairdresser (Jaye Davidson). R. Rating: 4 stars

THE DISTINGUISHED GENTLEMAN: This represents a solid return for Eddie Murphy the crowd-pleasing comedian, even if the movie itself is uneven and predictable. Murphy stars as a small-time con man who scams himself into a Congressional seat in order to perpetrate the biggest swindle of his life, only to suddenly get a conscience when he finds himself surrounded by politicians even more amoral than he. R. Rating: 2 stars

FALLING DOWN: Michael Douglas plays an everynerd who snaps one day in a traffic jam, starts walking through L.A. and collects a growing arsenal of weapons and hysterical white guy complaints. Joel Schumacher's ("Flatliners") film is superficial, prejudicial and intriguingly gripping — this guy may be a mental case, but there are too many of us who know exactly how he feels. Robert Duvall plays the easygoing cop on his trail; Barbara Hershey is the worried ex-wife he's determined to visit. R. Rating: 3 stars

A FEW GOOD MEN: Director Rob Reiner's solidly entertaining adaptation of the hit Broadway courtroom drama has everything — strong performances, brisk dialogue, crackling intrigue and tension — except a satisfying finale, where a climactic confession comes far too easily and diffuses the drama. Tom Cruise and Demi Moore star as Naval attorneys defending Marines on murder charges; Jack Nicholson plays the commanding officer of the base where the incident took place. PG-13. Rating: 3 stars

HOME ALONE 2: LOST IN NEW YORK: The same. Only bigger. PG. Rating: 2 stars

HOMEWARD BOUND: THE INCREDIBLE JOURNEY: You couldn't ask for better entertainment — family or otherwise — than this ingenious Disney remake of the studio's own 1963 movie about three pets who undertake a perilous wilderness trek to find their owners. This version owes as much to "Look Who's Talking" as it does to "Lassie Come Home" in that the intrepid pets have been given voices and distinctive personalities by some expert off-camera talent: Don Ameche as the voice of Shadow, a soulful golden retriever; Michael J. Fox as Chance, a rambunctious bull terrier pup; and Sally Field as Sassy, a smart-mouthed Siamese. The animals brave everything from raging rapids to ravenous cougars on their journey; they also drop some delicious one-liners, thanks to the clever, animal- savvy script (the cougar is "Arnold Schwarzen-kitty"). This is a shamelessly enjoyable, hug-your-pet kinda movie. If you're embarrassed to go without a kid, rent one. G. Rating: 4 stars

GLORY: Director adds dud

(From 1C)

rescues this picture from just sitting there like a clump of wet oatmeal.

DeNiro stars as Wayne "Mad Dog" Dobie, a gutless Chicago evidence technician who earns his nickname from his timid nature.

Wayne makes a new friend when he interrupts a grocery store holdup, accidentally saving the life of Frank Milo (Murray), a neighborhood loan shark.

Murray dominates the screen whenever present as the tenaciously friendly thug. Milo tries to force a friendship on the shy detective by inviting Wayne to his nightclub, where he occasionally performs as a stand-up comic.

Wayne meets an attractive bartender named Glory (Uma Thurman), and Frank, determined to pay the debt for saving his life, "loans" Glory to the unwilling Wayne for a week.

But Wayne ends up falling for her and when Frank wants her back, things could get ugly.

It's hard to pin down just what's wrong with this picture. Suffice it to say that nothing works.

DeNiro is so milquetoast, he's annoying to watch. He manages to immerse himself in the wimpy side of his character so well that you just wish Milo would put him out of everyone's misery.

Thurman is remarkably bland as the lanky, hollow-eyed Glory, a character we're told is supposed to be beautiful (at least to Wayne) but remains unconvincing to anyone else.

The two make an uninteresting couple, a fact that becomes sadly apparent when they make love for the first time in what is the most romantically devoid, uncomfortable sex scene of recent memory.

A few secondary players manage to stand out. David Caruso is outstanding as Wayne's hard-boiled partner, but isn't given enough to do. Kathy Baker and Tom Toles are wasted as Wayne's battered neighbor and her abusive boyfriend.

Only Murray remains engaging throughout. Moving from amiable mugging to unbalanced severity, Murray once again proves he's perfectly capable of playing it straight. Too bad he only appears in about half of the film.

It's a shame the picture has no direction in which to go, with most of the blame falling on the director, John McNaughton, and screenwriter Richard Price.

It's a wonder McNaughton scored this project to begin with. The director, most known for his powerful debut film "Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer," has done little to prove his talent since then. His interesting but flawed follow-ups, "The Borrower" and Eric Bogosian's "Sex, Drugs and Rock 'n' Roll," made some critical splashes but were box-office duds.

What a surprise. That's probably the well-deserved fate in store for "Mad Dog and Glory."

"Mad Dog and Glory" features Robert DeNiro, Bill Murray, Uma Thurman. Directed by John McNaughton. Rated: R (language, violence, partial nudity, adult situations)

FOSTER: Actress shows versatility

Over the years, the odd little tale has inspired an operetta, a play and two novels. It was also the basis for "The Return of Martin Guerre," a 1983 French film with Gerard Depardieu.

There. Now you know the genealogy of "Sommersby," Jon Amiel's Americanization of Martin Guerre. It might veer from the specifics of Guerre's true-life story, but the basic concept is the same.

If someone who claimed to be a long-lost loved one showed up on your front porch speaking in knowing terms about you and your family, would you let him in or slam the door?

That question dogs "Sommersby" from its first frame on. Is that striking young man really Jack Sommersby? And if not, do we care?

Richard Gere has the title role. As a Confederate soldier who returns to Tennessee seven years after he just upped and left, Gere's masked man has no sweat convincing the good people of Vine Hill that he's their long-gone neighbor.

"Elmer Gantry," "The Rainmaker," even the recent "Leap of Faith" have focused on strangers whom people want to trust. Same goes for "Sommersby." If everything doesn't add up, the townspeople don't mind, because they are blinded by Sommersby's good deeds. Those include convincing one and all to plant tobacco if they want to regain their pre-Civil War wealth.

So they do. All is pretty rosy in Vine Hill until Jack is carted away on a murder charge. The only way Jack can clear himself is to reveal his true identity, a revelation that has its own high cost.

On this decision, Amiel hinges "Sommersby's" climactic scene. He stages it in a courtroom between the Sommersbys, who before God and man and a conveniently arranged black judge (James Earl Jones), they must confess or cover up their mutual deceit.

With the sleights of hand directors use nowadays, we are highly aware anything can happen. While that knowledge doesn't keep us on the edge of our seats, it has us hoping that the film's end is faithful to its whole. In that, Amiel does not disappoint.

"Sommersby" is not an epic in the sense of time and space.

REMAKE: Some hit, others miss

(From 1C)

Brest and Goldman completely discarded a love story featured in the Italian version, but considerably beefed up the role of the young man who escorts the officer (played by Chris O'Donnell).

On the other hand, the American version of "The Vanishing" departs considerably from the original because of a love story.

Both versions are about a man obsessed, three years after the fact, with the mysterious disappearance of his girlfriend at a gas station during a vacation. But in the original version, the man basically walks away from a new love; in the remake, the new girlfriend becomes an active player in the thriller, which has a more conventional resolution than the rather creepy but highly effective one in the original.

George Sluizer, director of both versions and the producer and co-writer of the original, said he knew when he sold the remake rights to a major studio that "there would be differences."

Art Linson, producer of "Point of No Return," looks upon his remake of "La Femme Nikita" much the way he views his 1987 Brian De Palma-directed hit, "The Untouchables" — as a high-class version of a popular success.

"We tried to remake it for audiences that don't see films with subtitles," he said simply.

DAY: Murray at comic best

(From 1C)

mate Weatherman's Nightmare. Namely, he's stuck in time on Feb. 2. Every day begins at 6 a.m. with "I Got You Babe" on the radio. Every day, he's offered coffee by his landlady, accosted by a buffoonish, long-forgotten high school classmate, forced to witness Phil's (the furry one) big entrance to the tune of the "Pennsylvania Polka."

What would you do if every day was literally the first day of the rest of your life and nothing you did had any consequences? Phil is confused, then aghast, then Machiavellian. In a midmovie sag, he starts behaving like he's starring in a Jim Belushi film — using his privileged hindsight to seduce a local beauty, help himself to ready cash, the usual.

Thankfully, the film pulls itself out of this adolescent phase. Phil learns the only way to get his life right is by living it right. He becomes a kind of Guardian Angel of Punxsutawney, reads Chekhov and earns the love of the ever-adorable Ms. MacDowell.

The star also earns back the respect of his fans, who have every right to have deserted him long ago. He hasn't been this funny and endearing in half a decade.

He's at his smarmy-sarcastic best here, and "Groundhog Day" may be the movie that salvages Murray's career.

"Groundhog Day" features Bill Murray, Andie McDowell, Chris Elliott. Directed by Harold Ramis. Rated PG (mild sexual humor and language)

REVIEWS: Movie choices recapped

(From 1C)

the movies it makes fun of. Emilio Estevez is a cop on the edge. Samuel L. Jackson is his by-the-book partner with two days until retirement. Together, they make Mel Gibson and Danny Glover look like comic geniuses. This film's director, Gene Quintano, does the same for the Zucker brothers, Mel Brooks and whoever makes "The Hat Squad." PG-13. Rating: 1 star

A RIVER RUNS THROUGH IT: Robert Redford's third directing effort is a respectful and often moving adaptation of Norman Maclean's Montana memoirs. Set mostly in 1926, it depicts Norman and his brother Paul's (Craig Sheffer and Brad Pitt) love of fly fishing, their hard affection for a stern, minister father (Tom Skerritt, who is wonderful) and their differing attractions to sustenance and destruction. Tough-minded nostalgia laced with quiet, forgiving grace. PG. Rating: 3 stars

UNTAMED HEART: A tender, well-played tearjerker that doesn't quite have its act together. Christian Slater 's a magical hunk with a bad heart. Marisa Tomei ("My Cousin Vinnie") is a sweet-natured waitress with a bad love life. They both work at a local diner and before long, we're into a kind of downscale "Frankie and Johnny."

Alas, director Tony Bill seems to think that some bright dialogue and likable characters — add Rosie Perez as Tomei's wisecracking pal, a sort of hot-pants Thelma Ritter — are enough to fill out a movie. But the unfocused, incident- driven plot is simply too implausible. Still, it's nice to see three such accomplished, high-voltage performers tone themselves down and fit so appealingly into these low-key roles. Even so, the strain of the imperfect script starts to show and after a while, you notice they're all wearing their puppy-dog faces — extremely eager to please and a little dim. PG-13. Rating: 3 stars

USED PEOPLE: Shirley MacLaine stars as a widow wooed by a longtime distant admirer (Marcello Mastroianni) while she copes with her daughter's problems and resentments in this dysfunctional family comedy-drama. At times, it's uneven — it occasionally plays as too cute or treacly — but overall, the human story is unfailingly charming.

Officials investigate possible rules violation by Bentsen's son

WASHINGTON (AP) — A son of Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen is being investigated by the Resolution Trust Corp. for possible violation of rules regarding management of the agency's property.

The investigation centers on whether Houston investor Lan Bentsen disclosed to the RTC that a company in which he was a principal defaulted on $54 million in loans inherited by the RTC.

The federal agency, charged with disposing of assets from the nation's failed savings and loans, is barred from doing business with individuals or companies that have defaulted on loans or caused loss of more than $50,000 to a failed thrift.

RTC officials refused to discuss the investigation while it is in progress. They also refused to discuss the settlement on the loan defaults they reached last month with Bentsen's company, Lan Bentsen Interests of Houston.

Bentsen referred calls to two Texas attorneys who represent a property management company, Sovereign National Management Corp., in which he owns a 35 percent stake. But he told the Washington Post, in an interview published Friday, that he was surprised by the RTC investigation.

"I go to great lengths to be sure I don't trip across these things," Bentsen told the newspaper.

Houston attorney Mark Metts, who represents Sovereign, said the RTC began investigating Bentsen's contracts last December.

At issue is whether the RTC was aware of the loan defaults involving Lan Bentsen Interests at a time when the agency was working with Sovereign.

Sovereign obtained numerous property management contracts from the RTC in 1987 involving assets of a handful of large failed Texas thrifts, including United Savings Association, First Heights Bank, San Jacinto Savings Association and University Savings Association.

The elder Bentsen's financial disclosure form shows he owns between $500,000 and $1 million of Sovereign common stock. There has been no suggestion that Lloyd Bentsen has done anything improper and spokesman Jack DeVore said the treasury secretary "never, never made contact with the RTC on behalf of his son."

Metts and another Sovereign attorney, Sandy Brown of Dallas, said the RTC should have been aware of the LBI defaults because Sovereign has been seeking since 1990 to clear up the issue.

Metts and Brown said that when the RTC implemented regulations in 1990 pertaining to conflict of interest, Sovereign quickly approached the agency to obtain a waiver.

In spring 1991, Sovereign's lawyers proposed an agreement that would have transferred all of Sovereign's RTC contracts to a new company in which Bentsen would have no ownership or interest.

"Our proposal was to isolate those (RTC) contracts so Lan could not receive any benefit," Metts said.

Military officials offer cash incentives for civilian employees to resign

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Military officials are offering cash incentives for more than 900 civilian Kelly Air Force Base employees to resign or retire in an attempt to create vacancies for workers facing layoffs.

So-called buyout offers to employees in surplus occupations at the San Antonio Air Logistics Center at Kelly are designed to avoid layoffs by the Air Force and Army of 15,000 mostly junior employees nationally, the Pentagon said Thursday.

Any layoffs after Sept. 30 would be as a result of budget cuts and downsizing, the military said.

A military officer said up to 24 employees at Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio would be eligible for the bonuses.

Incentives of up to $25,000 will be most attractive to senior employees who are eligible to retire or are nearing retirement age, said M.D. Daniel, Kelly's chief civilian personnel officer.

He said those facing termination by a reduction in force are likely to be those with the least seniority.

Reductions at Kelly were first announced last fall, with officials expressing home that attrition would reduce the number of forced layoffs.

Kelly and Brooks were among 14 bases of the Air Force Materiel Command where a total of 8,300 civilian employees faced possible termination because of budget reductions, said a command spokesman at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

Daniel said Kelly employees eligible for the incentives have a deadline of March 19 to make application to retire, retire early or resign.

"We are glad these incentives have been offered," said R.C. Rodriguez, executive vice president of the American Federation of Government Employees union at Kelly.

"It is unfortunate we have been placed in this situation, but I believe that, because of the downsizing of the Department of Defense, these actions are necessary," he said.

"We anticipate a deadline of March 22 to submit applications," said Mary Johnson, civilian personnel officer at Brooks AFB.

Houston man claims jackpot of $12.6 million

AUSTIN (AP) — Tem Vuth is a man of few words.

Perhaps it's the result of growing up in war-torn Cambodia, dashing from city to city to escape the reign of terror there in the late 1970s, and dreaming of a better life.

Or perhaps it's the realization that those dreams have come true — because of six little numbers.

"America is a very great country," Tem said Friday, as he claimed the first payment of his $12.6 million lotto jackpot.

Tem, a Houston automobile mechanic, matched all six numbers in Wednesday's Lotto Texas drawing. State Comptroller John Sharp on Friday presented him with a check for $638,936, the first of 19 yearly payments.

Tem, 29, said he has bought $25 to $50 worth of tickets for every lotto drawing, and that he purchased 60 tickets for Wednesday's.

He said he watched the drawing on television with his wife, who is pregnant with their first child. When the winning numbers sounded familiar, Tem fished through his 60 tickets and found the winner.

"It was kind of exciting," he said. The winning numbers were 11-13-17-31-40-44.

REDFORD (as director):

—"Ordinary People" (1980): A family drama. This was Redford's debut as a director and it won the best picture Oscar.

—"The Milagro Beanfield War" (1988): An overlooked gem. Fine performances, good writing. About a small town's fight against big money interests.

WOODARD:

—"Extremities" (1986): The brutalization of a woman and her revenge. Good performances by Woodard and Farrah Fawcett.

—"Mandela" (1987): Woodard co-stars with Danny Glover as the South African leader's wife.

—"Miss Firecracker" (1989): A sweet, funny-sad little movie about self-esteem. Co-stars Holly Hunter, Tim Robbins, Mary Steenburgen.

—"Grand Canyon" (1991): Urban nightmares and hopes.

CRUISE:

—"The Outsiders" (1983): Francis Ford Coppola's interpretation of S.E. Hinton's book. Has its moments, but not many.

—"Risky Business" (1983): Cruise at his best, and a pretty good teen flick about an enterprising suburban lad.

—"The Color of Money" (1986): Sequel to the superb "The Hustler," and not as good. But worth watching for interplay between Cruise and Paul Newman.

—"Legend" (1986): Something about a unicorn and a forest and . . . oh, just skip it.

MATHEW 24:27

Blessed is the man who does not walk in the counsel of the wicked....But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he mediates day and night.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

MONEY IS THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL—WRONG!

HOW MANY TIMES HAVE WE HEARD THIS SAID AND ACCEPTED IT WITH NO FURTHER THOUGHT? HOW MANY TIMES HAVE WE SEEN IT HANGING AS A MOTTO ON A WALL OR OVERHEARD A GRANDFATHER INTONE IT SAGELY TO SOME YOUNGSTER? HUNDREDS UPON HUNDREDS OF TIMES—AFTER ALL, IT'S STRAIGHT OUT OF THE BIBLE, RIGHT?! BUT FEW OF US HAVE EVER REALIZED IT'S A BLATANT MISQUOTE!

THIS SAYING IS FOUND IN ONE PLACE, AND IN ONE PLACE ONLY, IN THE ENTIRE BIBLE! PAUL THE APOSTLE WROTE IT IN HIS FIRST LETTER TO TIMOTHY THE YOUNG EVANGELIST WHO WAS A DEVOTED FOLLOWER OF PAUL. IT CAN BE FOUND IN I TIMOTHY, CHAPTER 6, VERSE 10. PAUL WROTE, FROM LAODICEA, THE FOLLOWING "...THE LOVE OF MONEY IS THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL..."

IN OTHER WORDS, PAUL WAS ADVISING YOUNG TIMOTHY THAT NOT MONEY ITSELF, BUT MAN'S INNATE GREED OR DESIRE FOR IT, WAS THE REAL TROUBLE-MAKER, THE REAL "ROOT OF ALL EVIL"—HIS FURTHER ADVICE WAS TO FOREGO THE PURSUIT OF GREAT WEALTH AND LUXURY AND RATHER BEND ALL EFFORTS TOWARDS A SEARCH FOR WISDOM AND A PURER LIFE DEDICATED TO GOD.

NEXT WEEK: BIBLES, BIBLES, AND MORE BIBLES! ALSO A BIG SURPRISE!!

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You get the ample support you need to meet a new challenge. Exciting career opportunities open up in June. Aligning yourself with an influential group will help you attain certain goals. Personal and financial pressures begin to ease up. Steer clear of complicated business arrangements this coming autumn. A friend's scheme could fall apart. Let romantic partner decide your holiday plans.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: director Rob Reiner, author Gabriel Garcia-Marquez, conductor Sarah Caldwell, TV personality Ed McMahon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get an early start if traveling today. If you want to clinch more contracts, be sure to keep your word. Influential people want to do business with you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A cloak of secrecy surrounds a new venture. Do not attempt to make money "the easy way"; you could end up a loser. Postpone traveling or entertaining.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Exceptionally good vibes prevail. People may be so moved by your array of talents and helpful attitude that they share all they have to give. Music, dance and ballet are highlighted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Curb a sudden desire to rule the roost or hurry romance along. Making too many demands too soon could arouse opposition. Give your mind and body a well-deserved rest this evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When you wish upon a star, it makes no difference who you are! Confide your hopes in those who can help and your dreams could come true. Visit a museum or art gallery.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A social event provides an attentive audience you are certain to impress. Converse with people at all levels; you will win admirers and maybe a job lead or two.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make time today to talk with important people. You gain both good publicity and valuable advice! Romance moves into a new stage this weekend. Do not try to rush things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may blame a partner for recent troubles. Try not to be argumentative or obstinate when dealing with a client. The best things in life will come your way eventually.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Confidentiality plays an important role in delicate negotiations. A heart-to-heart talk is featured tonight. Think carefully before you say something that could offend others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You could be under considerable pressure to make a decision. Keep your long-range plans in mind. Looking ahead provides answers to financial questions. Stay home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): When your sincerity and good intentions are brought to light, other people will see eye-to-eye with you. You will find the romance you seek. Cheer up a disappointed friend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Even a short trip can help you establish a meaningful relationship. Dress for success — your appearance speaks volumes. Do not hesitate to talk shop in social situations if others are interested.

TODAY'S CHILDREN: Talented but sensitive, these Pisces sometimes feel that their efforts are unappreciated. Wise parents will encourage them to forget such thoughts and forge ahead! Quiet and somewhat passive, these youngsters are often attracted to stronger, more assertive types. This is fine so long as their pals share their high ideals and intellectual interests.

Carter mends from surgery; MacLaine movie hits snag

ATLANTA — Former first lady Rosalynn Carter is recovering at Emory University Hospital from surgery to remove a benign tumor.

Mrs. Carter, 65, had surgery Monday and is expected to be hospitalized several more days, Carter Center spokeswoman Carrie Harmon said Thursday.

Carter

"The operation was successful. She is doing fine," Ms. Harmon said.

She would give no further details of the surgery.

Former President Carter was in Washington on Thursday for meetings with President Clinton, Vice President Al Gore and Secretary of State Warren Christopher. He then returned to Atlanta to be with his wife.

NEW YORK — Convicted murderer Jean Harris says her years behind bars weren't wasted and prison made her a stronger person.

In an interview with Barbara Walters, airing Friday on ABC-TV's "20-20" program, Harris says: "I think prison made me stronger than I've ever been in my life. I didn't have a very strong will to live when I went in, but I have a very strong will to live now."

Harris

The former girls' school headmistress was convicted in 1981 of the March 10, 1980, shooting death of Dr. Herman Tarnower, the developer of the Scarsdale Diet. Sentenced to 15-years-to-life in prison, Harris was granted clemency Dec. 29 and released from Bedford Hills Correctional Facility on Jan. 22.

The 69-year-old Harris said she learned in prison that "you either stand for something when you're in there or you just fold. I decided I stood for something that mattered."

She said she wanted to continue working with children of inmates.

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — The rock band Van Halen paid the city $10,000 to help cover police costs when 3,000 fans turned up at a nightclub where 200 tickets were being sold for a surprise concert.

"We basically told them 'You pick up the bill for this, or it's over folks.' And they agreed," West Hollywood City Manager Paul Brotzman said Thursday.

But the Van Halen money won't pay the entire tab for sheriff's deputies and Beverly Hills police who handled crowd control outside the Whisky nightclub on Wednesday.

"I can tell you we will probably be sending them a bill for the rest," Brotzman said.

City officials said they were caught unaware by the event.

But a spokeswoman for the concert said the concert was no secret. "We sent releases out to the newspapers Monday and the radio stations Tuesday," said spokeswoman Maureen O'Conner. "They should have known. It was in Tuesday's newspapers."

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — A chapel won't open its doors for the filming of Shirley MacLaine's latest movie because of her religious beliefs.

Faith Chapel has refused TriStar Picture's request to film scenes at the church for the movie "Guarding Tess," starring MacLaine and Nicolas Cage.

MacLaine

"Given the fact that Shirley MacLaine is a guru for the New Age Religion, which is contrary to Christian truth, we certainly would not want to give her our endorsement," Pastor Robert Ridenour said.

TriStar Pictures, which will be shooting scenes across the street at the Maryland Theatre next month, wanted to film the entrance to the 83-year-old chapel, which was used as a theater until 1975.

TriStar publicist Judith Rheiner had no comment on the chapel's decision. MacLaine, the author of several books on spirituality, also had no comment, said her publicist, Dale Olson.

MacLaine plays a former first lady and Cage is one of the Secret Service agents guarding her in the movie, most of which is being shot in Baltimore.

LOS ANGELES — "Sisters" star Ed Marinaro says men won't admit to watching the NBC-TV series.

"Guys never cop to watching 'Sisters,'" Marinaro said Thursday during a "KTLA Morning News" interview.

"You know, they'll come up to me and they say, 'Yeah, that show 'Sisters,' yeah, uh, my wife watches it. I don't watch it. I'd never watch a show called 'Sisters.' But my wife likes it a lot, and that Sela Ward is a good-looking chick.'"

Asked why "Sisters" was so popular, Marinaro joked, "Well, I have a lot to do with that."

He then said: "It's a show that women really like. It's about Middle America and problems that we all have."

The public is invited to attend.

In dialogue sermons, the Rev. Robert Walter is presenting a series on "The Body of Christ."

The remaining topics include: "The Mouth of Christ to Speak God's Word," March 10; "The Ears of Christ to Hear Our Prayers," March 17; "The Eyes of Christ to See Our Needs," March 24; and "The Heart of Christ Beating with Love," March 31.

■ Marriage class set

The Westside Church of Christ, 4410 W. Illinois Ave., is in the third week of a six-week class called "The Decision to Love."

The class, which is open to all interested parties, is designed to help troubled marriages through biblical principles.

The class meets Thursdays at 7:30 p.m.

Free child care will be provided. Please call ahead for reservations.

■ Training ongoing

Hospice has scheduled volunteer training Tuesdays and Thursdays in March.

Attendance at either morning or evening session each Tuesday and Thursday for a total of eight sessions is necessary to complete the course.

The course is free and those who take it are not required to become a hospice volunteer.

Hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 7 to 10 p.m. For more information or to register call Thelma, 682-2855.

■ Class won't meet

The Growing in Grace study class at First Baptist Church will not meet Sunday.

The class resumes March 14 with the topic "Evidence for Jesus' Existence," which includes a survey of non-biblical proofs.

■ Elder was speaker

Elder Fred Thomas and his wife, Jean, were the guest speakers at the Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church recently.

The couple served as missionaries in Africa for 20 years and during that time established a hospital.

They have served the Seventh Day Adventist Church in the United States for 22 years and Thomas was secretary for the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventist, Washington, D.C.

Many people are joining the clergy late in life

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Thomas Quinn was a real estate agent in the early 1980s, when success was measured by fat bank accounts, luxury cars and fancy homes. Single and making $45,000 a year, he lived in an eight-room house.

Though he had plenty from the material world, something was missing. He was active in his church, but that wasn't enough.

In his late 40s, he did some soul-searching and came to a decision that would change his life: He wanted to be a priest.

Quinn is among a growing number of middle-aged and older people who have left good-paying jobs to join the clergy.

"I prayed quite a bit before I made the decision to become a priest," said Quinn, 58, principal of St. Mary's Central Catholic High School in Sandusky, Ohio. "I've never regretted my decision. I really enjoy what I'm doing."

The Catholic church has four seminaries in the United States that accept only people who are at least 30 years of age. Quinn went to one of them — Sacred Heart School of Theology in Hales Corners, Wis.

Men over 30 can enter any Catholic seminary. But the four that are strictly for older men are designed to help them give each other support in adjusting to their new life.

"They are in their 40s, 50s, 60s. Those people had some type of professional background, a house, business. Now they are living in a shoe box they call a room," said Michael Hohenbrink, vicar of seminarians for the Toledo diocese. "What they do is tell a common story, and their common story is supportive to one another."

Ten years ago, Quinn was the only person in the Toledo diocese who was studying for the priesthood after giving up a professional career. Today, seven of the 19 seminary students in the diocese are between the ages of 32 to 42.

In the United Church of Christ, the average age for an incoming seminarian is 34, nearly 10 years older than the average 20 years ago, said spokesman Bill Tupper.

The United Methodist Church said the average age for its seminarians is 35, 10 years older than what it was 30 years ago.

Older people who become priests bring a different perspective to helping people, Quinn said.

"The older man brings charisma," he said. "He knows what it's like to have a family to come home to. . . . He knows what it's like to face those daily pressures, problems."

"I think people are finding that there is not a whole lot of fulfillment in material things," said Ed Jackson, who quit the State Highway Patrol in 1970 to become a minister.

He gave up his job eight years before he could retire and collect a pension. He said his wife and children supported his decision.

Jackson, 67, one of the founders of the Grace Brethren Church in Columbus, joined the patrol in 1948 and eventually rose to the rank of lieutenant.

He said he was a devout Christian but had become somewhat jaded after investigating murders, rapes and other crimes. He left the patrol after an experience during a riot at Ohio State University in 1970.

"One of the rioters was injured very badly. I was in a position to help him. I wasn't so sure I wanted to," he said.

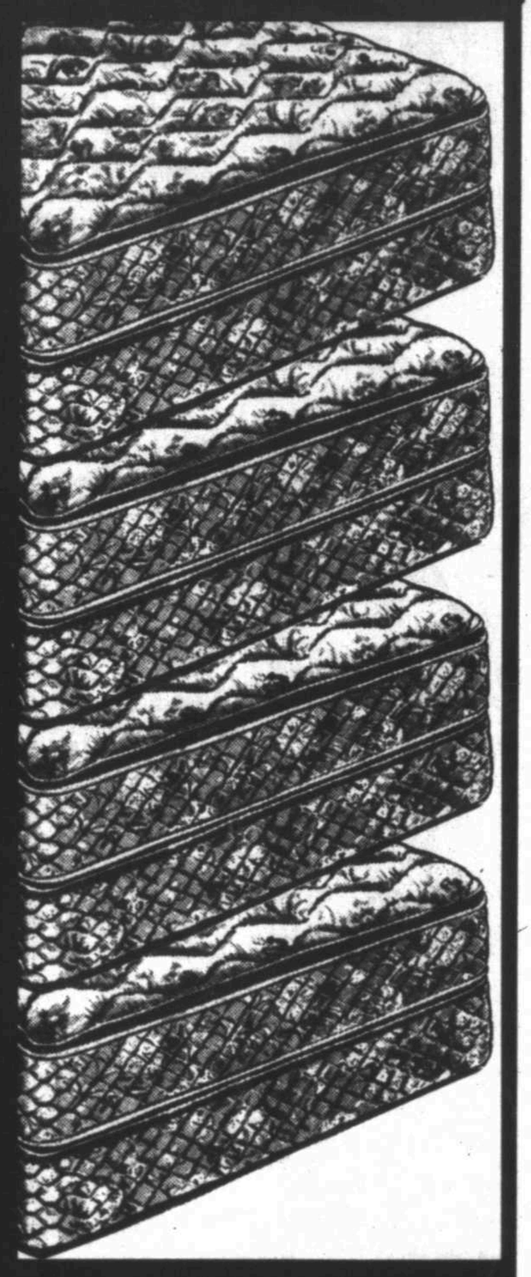

Then, he said, he thought how Jesus died on the cross, forgiving those who persecuted him.

Clinton, Yeltsin to meet in April

By Greg McDonald
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton said Friday that he plans to "aggressively" pursue ways to help Russian leader Boris Yeltsin strengthen democracy and revitalize his nation's economy when the two hold their first summit next month in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Clinton announced the location of the April 3-4 meeting during a White House news conference in which a group of mayors endorsed his plan to increase taxes and reduce the deficit.

The president described Yeltsin as "a man of real courage and real commitment to democracy" and said he believes the Russians have made enough steps toward real reform "for us to try to engage them in specific actions that will produce economic results."

He acknowledged that he would be prepared to offer the Russian president financial assistance but refused to say how much.

"Obviously, money will be discussed, but it's not just a question of money," Clinton said, noting that he plans to offer some "rather specific" and "innovative" suggestions as well.

"I don't want to make any sweeping commitments ... but I'm going there to this meeting with the intention of trying to more aggressively engage the United States in the economic and political revitalization of Russia," the president added.

Clinton's comments appeared to indicate a departure from the more cautious approach of former President Bush in dealing with Russia. Bush, for example, often ignored the advice of former President Nixon and others to provide more financial aid to Russia, insisting that serious economic and political reforms had to come first.

Nixon, writing in Friday's New York Times, noted that the Russian economy is in the grips of serious depression that threatens Yeltsin's continued efforts at democratic reform. He warned of a possible coup by former communist hard-liners unless the United States leads the way in bolstering his standing.

"Without a substantial increase in aid from the West, the Yeltsin government will not survive," Nixon wrote.

Mayors meet with Clinton on economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 40 mayors offered their support to President Clinton's economic program on Friday, saying it would help strengthen America's ailing cities.

"President Clinton understands that as go our cities will go this nation," Mayor David Dinkins of New York said at a news conference the mayors held with the president and Vice President Al Gore.

"Our new president has advanced a meaningful program to jump-start our ailing economy and to reform the deep structural problems that have weakened America, from the financial capitals to the farmhouses," Dinkins said.

Most of the mayors said they were particularly enthusiastic about educational programs to aid young people — like Clinton's commitment to fully fund Head Start — and the short-term stimulus program to boost the economy through infrastructure projects, summer jobs programs, community block grants and incentives.

Mayor Bill Althaus of York, Pa., who is president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said the conference endorsed Clinton's program wholeheartedly, across party lines.

Clinton said the mayors intuitively understand the tough decisions he's had to make in order to try to increase investment and cut the deficit simultaneously.

Many of the mayors said Clinton was the first president in many years to really pay attention to the problems cities face.
