Campus poll

Midland Independent School District trustees have been asked to consider whether to close the two local high school campuses during the lunch break as a way of creating a better and more-disciplined atmosphere for learning. A newly formed group of concerned parents, Advocates for Better Learning and Education (ABLE) has proposed the solution in the wake of the special grand jury report issued last month, which outlined extensive underage alcohol use. School officials have indicated they want to hear from the public on this highly emotional issue.

How do you feel? Should the campuses at Midland High and Lee High be closed, requiring students to remain on campus at all times?

Call the Reporter-Telegram Cityline Community Pulse at 560-2400 and press category 7655 to register your opinion.

The survey will be open until 5 p.m. today, with results to be published Sunday.

Group to buy First City Bidder to also buy Texas Commerce in Lubbock

By John Paul Pitts

Business/Oil editor

The Midland National Bank flag will once again fly over Midland, but not over a locally owned bank.

First United Bank Group Inc. announced Friday that it will purchase certain assets of the former new First City, Texas — Midland from Texas Commerce Bancshares. The purchase price of the bank was not announced.

First United, along with a group of Midland investors, headed by Bill Franklin, chairman of First City, were prime bidders for the bank, but it appears the willingness of First United to also buy the Texas Commerce Bank in Lubbock may have been the deciding factor in the sale.

Marc Shapiro, president and CEO of Texas Commerce Bank, said.

American's decision is concern for travel agents

By Mella McEwen

Staff writer

American Airlines' plans to pull its four DC-9 Super 80 jets out of the Midland market and convert its service at Midland International Airport to American Eagle turboprop jet service was met with disappointment by local travel agents Friday.

Patsy Welmaker, owner of Adventure Travel said Friday she had a client planning to visit her daughter in Florida, who came in and changed her travel plans because she didn't want to get on a little plane.

"We haven't had much reaction, but I'm afraid we will because so many of our customers won't fly American Eagle. They'll change their schedule to avoid it."

She said two main objections to taking out American's jets were the size of the planes and the difficulty making connections at Dallas-Fort Worth International. Welmaker pointed out that "people don't realize how large D-FW is. American Eagle lands at Gates 1 and 2 and there are, what, 48 gates? That's going to make connections very difficult."

Jane Overstreet, owner of Envoy Travel, is concerned for travelers who are elderly or handicapped. Since American Eagle doesn't board via the jetway, she said she worries about the impact on handicapped passengers who use a wheelchair, or the elderly or those flying to Dallas for medical treatment who can't climb the plane's steps.

She added that "I knew it was coming, but I thought maybe they'd leave two jets in the market. At least they're adding an Eagle flight."

Marjorie Edwards, owner of Great Destinations, said she too has been expecting American's move. She was supportive of the move, saying, "I think it's very wise of American to be trimming expenses so they're not forced

'Eyes of the world' to be on Clinton

■ President, Yeltsin to stage weekend summit.

By John King

Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Bill Clinton set the stakes for his summit with Boris Yeltsin in 1991, when he could only imagine playing the central role on the world stage and hardly envision the crises now facing the Russian president.

"For ourselves and for millions of people who seek to live in freedom and prosperity, this revolution must not fail," Clinton said of Russia in that December campaign speech. "In the aftermath of the Cold War, we need a president who recognizes that in a dynamic new era, our goal is not to resist change but to shape it."

This weekend, the world will be watching the 46-year-old Clinton as he holds his first summit with Yeltsin.

When they meet today and Sunday in Vancouver, British Columbia, Clinton will offer a modest program of U.S. aid and a promise to seek greater assistance from Western nations and international lending agencies.

In a speech Thursday, Clinton praised Yeltsin as "the man who stands as the leader of reform."

But even as he tries to boost Yeltsin and prove his own foreign policy cre-

Ruling against Turner's heirs may not be final

By John Paul Pitts

Business/Oil editor

A recent 5-4 decision by the State Supreme Court to uphold a claim by the General Land Office against the heirs of deceased oilman Fred Turner may not be final.

Robert Bledsoe, attorney for Turner's heirs, said that while some points of law were decided by the Supreme Court, the matter is still up in the air and the case could go back to court sometime later this year or next year.

Bledsoe said the original lawsuit was brought by the state in 1989 on the recommendation of the General Land Office. He said a district court

Expert: Inclusion isn't just education issue

By Myra Lee Salcedo

Staff writer

Including special education students into the regular classroom is not just an education issue, according to Michael J. Delaney. "It's a social, political and civil rights issue," he said.

Delaney spoke at an open forum to an audience of more than 80 people Friday night about the concept of inclusion. The Colorado Department of Education consultant for students with severe needs said he is committed to including all students into the regular classroom, even those with behavior problems.

"School systems have operated on the assumption that it is best to sort kids out by functional abilities," he said. "Now we have the highest rate of drop outs, teen pregnancy and suicide. Our schools have focused on teaching that student in the middle of the road. The problem is that group is getting smaller and smaller."

Delaney said studies indicate, by the year 2000, 40 percent of the students will be pulled out from the mainstream program.

Oklahoma City company to buy Midland's M-System stores

Staff report

SAN ANGELO — Midland's three M-System Food Stores were among eight stores acquired Thursday by Fleming Co. of Oklahoma City from M-System Food Stores of San Angelo.

The two companies said the transaction is expected to be finalized within the next two weeks and during this time the stores will operate in their usual manner.

Fleming said it will either sell the stores to other independent grocery owners or operate the stores itself.

Fleming has been M-System's grocery supplier since 1990, and is listed in Hoover's Handbook of American Business as the nation's leading wholesale supplier of food and related products.

In addition to the stores in Midland, M-System has four stores in San Angelo and one in Del Rio. The company has approximately 430 employees, and almost all are expected to be retained by Fleming, M-System said.

"We have enjoyed being part of all the communities in which we have operated over the many years," said Baugh Lewis, company president. "Fleming is a fine grocery company and we are proud to sell our stores to them. They will do an excellent job of serving the needs of customers in our present operating areas."

For its part, Fleming said in a statement that "Fleming is pleased with the opportunity to make this transaction and is excited about the opportunities in these markets."

WEATHER WATCH

The Accu-Weather® forecast for noon, today.

Rain, high of 70 in forecast

Staff report

Midland, which was buffeted by winds of up to 46 mph Friday, should see relative calm and the possibility of more rain today.

Forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport call for a 30 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms today and a high near 70.

The official rainfall total at the airport Friday evening was less than one-tenth of an inch.

Winds are to be southerly at 15 to 25 mph and gusty this morning, shifting to the west by afternoon.

At 9 p.m. Friday as rain clouds drifted by, southerly winds gusting to 46 mph. Near noon, at 11:40 a.m., a gust of 37 mph was recorded, NWS said.

Skies are expected to be partly cloudy tonight with a 20 percent chance of rain. The low is forecast in the lower 40s.

The high on Sunday should reach the mid-60s.

Friday's high temperature was 71, after an overnight low of 40.

The record high temperature on April 2 is 89 degrees in 1978, and the record low temperature for April 3 is 29 degrees in 1987.

STATE

Fair skies diminished across the state Friday as clouds from the Rockies rolled into North and West Texas and moist air from the Gulf moved into South Texas.

A storm system over the Rockies sent increasing clouds over north central Texas while clear conditions continued over the northeast.

Blustery conditions are predicted for Saturday with thunderstorms likely central and east. High temperatures should reach the mid 60s while lows are expected in the mid 50s.

In West Texas the skies varied from partly to mostly sunny across the region while a few areas of light rain developed over the western South Plains.

There is a good chance of rain or thunderstorms over most areas east of the mountains through Saturday night. The precipitation could change to snow Saturday night over the northeast Texas Panhandle, but conditions should be fair over the Far West.

Highs today will range from the 50s in the Panhandle to the low 80s along the Big Bend. Lows tonight will fall to the 30s, as low as the 20s in the Panhandle.

A low pressure system in the Gulf caused clouds to form over most of South Texas amid temperatures in the 60s and 70s.

The forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with showers and thunderstorms through today. The mercury should fall to low mark in the 50s and post a high reading in the 80s.

NATION

Rain and snow extended from the Rockies across the Great Lakes into the Northeast on Friday, swelling rivers beyond their banks for a second day. Rain also fell along the northern Pacific Coast.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EST ranged from 25 at Marquette, Mich., to 90 at Thermal, Calif.

Rains and rivers swollen by melting snow flooded homes and roads in Iowa and in the Northeast.

In Cedar Rapids, Iowa, workers raced to protect businesses near the swollen Cedar River, the National Weather Service said. The Iowa River continued to sprawl out of its banks, forcing evacuations in Chelsea and Tama. Some rural residents rowed boats to and from their houses.

In Pennsylvania, the Susquehanna River and its tributaries spilled from banks near Wilkes-Barre, flooding homes and roads and shutting businesses.

Flooding continued in northern and central New Jersey, where several rivers crested or were near cresting Friday.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

JP charges man in traffic death

Staff report

A 40-year-old Midland man, Michael Dale Burdick, was charged on Friday with involuntary manslaughter in the March 17 death of Donald Whitney Bell, 33, of Midland following a traffic accident, according to Midland police.

Bell died from injuries he received in a March 16 two-car accident at Avondale Drive and McDonald Street in southwest Midland. He died the next day at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center. Bell was the driver of one of the cars involved in the crash.

Burdick, who was driving the other car, was arrested by Midland police on Friday based on results of a blood-alcohol test and was charged with involuntary manslaughter before Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

Burdick was released from Midland County Jail after he posted a $5,000 bond, according to a spokesman for the Midland County Sheriff's Department.

Followers remember MLK 25 years after death

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Twenty-five years after Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated, some who carry the civil rights torch gathered Friday to remember the fallen leader and talk about where the movement is headed.

"We would have advanced the poverty issue sooner in a massive way if Dr. King would have lived," said Jack O'Dell, a former member of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

O'Dell was in town for a symposium and other weekend events marking the anniversary of King's assassination in Memphis on April 4, 1968, as he stood on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel.

Now a leader of the Rev. Jesse Jackson's National Rainbow Coalition, O'Dell said civil rights leaders lost focus after King died, and the struggle is more difficult today.

"We have $4 trillion in debt. We have 3 million homeless. There are 36 million people living in poverty," O'Dell said. "We've lost millions of manufacturing jobs that supported the health care of people and replaced them with service jobs that don't provide health insurance for people."

O'Dell made the comments in an interview before addressing a two-day symposium Friday and today at the National Civil Rights Museum, established at the Lorraine Motel.

A candlelight vigil and wreath-laying were scheduled for Sunday at the museum and were expected to draw hundreds of people.

A concert Sunday at Mason Temple, where King gave his last speech, will be recorded live for an album. Among the performers expected are Memphis native Cybill Shepherd, Raven Symone, who played young Olivia on "The Cosby Show," and gospel rapper Mike-E.

Jackson and Billy Kyles, both friends of King who were with him when he was shot, and Benjamin Hooks, the outgoing executive director of the NAACP, are to speak Sunday at the museum.

Elsewhere, about 40 students and faculty at Boston University, where King studied theology, gathered Friday for prayers and hymns to mark the anniversary. "The civil rights revolution which he began has not been finished, just as our first American Revolution was not finished its work for democracy," said Walter Muelder, who was dean of the school of theology when King was a student there in the 1950s.

In Memphis, present as always at the Lorraine on Friday was Jacqueline Smith. She has camped outside the motel since 1988, when museum planners evicted her to build the museum.

"We owe it to him to continue his work, not commercialize and exploit his name," said Smith, bundled in a snowsuit, scarf and stocking cap. "They displaced poor people to build this $9 million tourist trap. Dr. King would have found a better way to help people with that money."

ISSUE: Delaney opposes separating 'special' students

pen. It's not kids who drive the expense, but the way we organize our system that drives it," he said.

The speaker said when he attended school there were two types of students — general and college preparatory. "And kids were never separated from each other in the core courses," he said.

Delaney said too often educators focus on deficits, or on what needs to be fixed in a student. "The focus is on: 'What do you have that needs to be fixed?' Because I have a learning disability doesn't mean I'm broken. It's who I am... you are not unsuccessful because of a disability, but because you don't have the supports in the environment that you need."

Citing studies which measured an increase in levels of performance when students with learning disabilities were placed in a regular classroom, Delaney said teachers find them hard to accept. "They say: 'Those kids aren't as bad off as my kids. They are functioning at a higher level,' when the level of retardation is directly correlated to the environment. If we want to prepare students to be successful in the real world, we have to replicate the real world."

Taxpayers' money is well spent when students learn social skills as well as academic skills, Delaney said, noting that knowing how to operate a computer at a job won't do any good if the person exhibits inappropriate behavior with co-workers.

He quoted experts who say there is no compelling body of evidence that segregated special education has significant benefits for students, but there is growing evidence in the opposite direction.

A study showed no significant difference in CAT (California Achievement Test) scores between third-grade classes with only regular students, and third-grade classes which had included students with mild to profound disabilities.

"Imagine how you would learn if from the age of 3 you were put in a segregated small group of kids," Delaney said. "Imagine if the kids were non-verbal."

The consultant also frowned upon pull-out programs for gifted and talented students. "High-tech elitist systems should be left to the private schools," he said.

He showed videotapes documenting the behavior changes special education students went through when placed in regular classroom settings. Most of the students learned to change antisocial behavior in response to the other students, rather than the teachers.

Some students came up with ways to help their peers with learning disabilities to achieve academically.

Delaney allowed that inclusion won't work for all students, especially older ones who have been segregated from regular settings all of their lives.

He described schools where teachers and special education teachers work together in teams. He said it was more cost-effective to have special education teachers working to help other teachers.

"Inclusive education means the end to segregated classrooms and segregated schools," he said. "It means all students — regardless of disability, regardless of severity of handicap, regardless of educational need — are educated in regular classrooms alongside their peers."

into bankruptcy as other airlines have been."

But she cautioned that the move may not be good for American. While Midlanders may adjust, she said, they may take other airlines into Dallas rather than fly the smaller planes.

It's a development Welmaker also expects. She said her agency has been dividing business between Southwest Airlines and American, but has begun using Continental Airlines since it began service in Midland earlier this year. "They fly out of Houston and have good connections. I imagine that business will pick up, and of course we also have United Express to Denver."

Edwards said Midland travelers "are in a holding pattern to see whether or not another airline will take up the route with big jets."

They're all being very careful of expenses now."

Dee Hamilton, manager of Midland Travel Agency, is concerned because Eagle's smaller planes — which will hold 42 — will make it difficult for groups to travel.

"We as an agency have a great many people booked as groups out of here later in the year. One group we have is 120 people. How are we going to get them out of here on one plane?" she said.

She said it's a tricky situation since American is the only carrier to D-FW and connections beyond.

The move, she said, "won't discourage travel. People won't like it, but they'll do what they have to do. A lot of business travelers don't like to use the small planes. They've supported American and all of a sudden it's gone."

She acknowledged that American Eagle is "not a bad flight. People will just have to do some adjusting in their attitudes."

Clyncie Baker, owner of Select Cruise & Excursions worries that the move will cost Midland even more retail dollars.

"We have a lot of clients that will not fly on American Eagle. They would rather take Southwest and go from Love Field to D-FW" or they'd rather drive to Dallas and fly out of D-FW, which could mean an overnight stay in Dallas.

"A lot of times our cruise lines that use Midland as a gateway city use American. It looks like Dallas will get the business, and now Midland may not be a gateway city."

She added: "It remains to be seen how the public reacts — that's going to determine what it does to my business."

Bob Landreth, an owner of Travel Agents International, said American's move will make it more difficult to get good fares out of Midland.

"They only put a certain number of seats on the lowest fares, and those will be harder to get and travelers will have to book earlier to get the best prices," he explained. "If they want the best fares, they'll have to plan further ahead than they are doing now."

He said he didn't believe American's move will affect travel overall, because there is more capacity out of Midland International with the addition of Continental and United Express.

Jacque Holliman of A Way Out Travel agreed with Landreth that travelers will have to plan further ahead. "People will have to make arrangements earlier than they have been, because American's going to a 42-passenger plane and the flights will be full."

She said, "I'm really sad to see this happen because people will use Southwest more and change airports in Dallas rather than fly Eagle. And it's sad for the community."

BANK: Facility to be renamed Midland National

(From 1A)

merce Bank Bancshares, said "We were pleased that we could complete the divestiture of the First City in Midland, which was required by the Justice Department, but the decision to sell Texas Commerce — Lubbock was not easy. The bank has consistently been a positive performer and an economic hub for West Texas."

Chuck Cowell, vice president of First City, said New First City — Midland would become a separately chartered bank and that management and staff would remain unchanged.

Some employees, however, have expressed concern that all their seniority at the bank will be wiped out. But all 23 trust department employees will be staying with TCB," said Ed Jones, president Texas Commerce Bank — Midland.

Jones said he regretted that Texas Commerce could not keep the bank, because the two banks combined could have been a major force for economic development in the Permian Basin.

He said the combination of the two trust departments of Texas Commerce and New First City would be the major trust department in Permian Basin. Jones noted that Texas Commerce had paid a premium price to get First City Midland because the expanded trust department would have been used to increase the commercial side of the bank.

"We had two goals in divesting New First City — Midland and that was to lose as little money as possible and to find a solid banking partner for Midland. I think the fact that First United has agreed to have a separate charter for the bank shows that they will be a long-term player that will benefit Midland."

"I am glad this has finally been resolved for the benefit of our customers," Cowell said. "We think it will be a positive move for Midland."

Franklin, chairman of the board and president of the former New First City — Midland noted: "We are excited to welcome First United Bank Group to Midland. Their strong commitment to community banking in the Permian Basin will greatly enhance the Midland franchise. We intend to return the bank to a community bank with a local charter and the Midland National Bank name."

Cowell said the sale and name change would probably not be official until the third quarter.

"The acquisitions will provide us with a significant entry into the Midland market and strengthen our presence in the Lubbock market," said Tom C. Nichols, president of First United Bank Group Inc.

Nichols added, "Midland is a market we have wanted to be in for some time. We feel it fits well with our other West Texas and New Mexico banks and believe it will be a strong addition to our company."

Following Texas Commerce's successful bid for this bank in February, the U.S. Department of Justice required that certain assets be divested. The sale to First United Bank Group will satisfy this requirement.

First United Bank Group Inc. was recently created with the merger of Lubbock-based Ford Bank Group Inc. and Albuquerque-based United New Mexico Financial Corp.

Ford Bank Group has assets, as of December 1992 of $1.6 billion. United New Mexico reported assets for the same period of $1.8 billion. Following the addition of Texas Commerce Bank — Lubbock and New First City — Midland, assets will total approximately $4 billion with total capital of $234 million.

Hutchison criticizes spending package

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Texas state treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison — one of 24 candidates fighting for a seat in the U.S. Senate — boasted her qualifications and criticized proposed spending by the new administration, during a news conference on Friday.

"I am the only conservative that has a chance to win ... I am the only candidate that can win that will speak for the views of Texas," she said during a stop at Midland International Airport.

"I have focused on a grassroots effort in my campaign,"

Ms. Hutchison said, adding that she was the only major candidate that filed with a petition, with nearly 11,000 signatures.

Voters will have a chance on May 1 to decide who will fill the U.S. Senate seat made available when Lloyd Bentsen was appointed secretary of the treasury by President Clinton.

With the number of candidates, a run-off will probably be held, which Ms. Hutchison said she feels confident about making.

"All the polls show I'm running second to the interim Sen. Bob Krueger," she said.

During her visit to Midland, Ms. Hutchison criticized a $16

'It's just the same 'ol tax and spend ... I think it is time for a change.'

— Kay Bailey Hutchison

million spending package and other spending intentions currently in the works by the new administration.

"It's just the same 'ol tax and spend ... I think it is time for a change," she said.

Ms. Hutchison blamed the deficit on government spending, not because of low taxes.

Of special interest to the Permian Basin, Ms. Hutchison slammed the proposed Btu (British thermal unit) tax as "absolutely wrong for our country." The proposal essentially would tax energy based on the amount of heat a fuel emits.

Ms. Hutchison said she would like to see an energy policy that doesn't tax consumers but stands independent and implements such measures as an oil import tax.

Ms. Hutchison plans to return to Midland in a couple of weeks.

Torch Energy well located near La Grange explodes

LA GRANGE (AP) — South Central Texas authorities said that a gas well exploded Friday afternoon, shooting flames over 200 feet into the air.

There were only minor injuries reported, and no evacuations were mandated although people in a one mile area north of the site were notified of the fire as a precaution, said Sherry Huebel, a dispatcher with the Fayette County sheriff's office.

The well, owned by Torch Energy of Houston, blew out around 4:40 p.m., Huebel said.

Houston oil well firefighter Red Adair's crew was called to the scene, as well as the Department of Public Safety and local authorities. Authorities could not say how long the fire would burn, and it was not immediately clear if they would let the flames burn out or attempt to cap the well, Huebel said.

La Grange is about 60 miles southeast of Austin.

Crash survivor hikes to safety

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Three people were killed when a helicopter crashed in the mountains south of this ski resort town. One badly hurt survivor spent a night in a snow cave and hiked 11 hours to safety.

Toby Cruse, 33, reached the T Lazy 7 Ranch on Friday morning and was taken to Aspen Valley Hospital. Cruse, who endured overnight temperatures in the 20s, was treated for a dislocated shoulder, broken ribs and a bruised arm, Pitkin County Sheriff's officials said. He was listed in fair but stable condition.

Cruse, who is a ski guide, and the others took off from the Aspen airport Thursday and crashed later that day. They were working on a promotional film for a ski lodge in Gunnison, said Beth Sharp of Colorado Heli-Ski, the company that operated the helicopter.

The dead were identified as pilot Ivan Greig Dunn, 48, of Keystone; Jay Ronald Gauthier, 33, of Silverthorne; and Paul Miller, 41, of Illinois.

Sheriff's spokesman Michael Kendrick said after the crash Cruse, "put on his snowshoes and started hiking out."

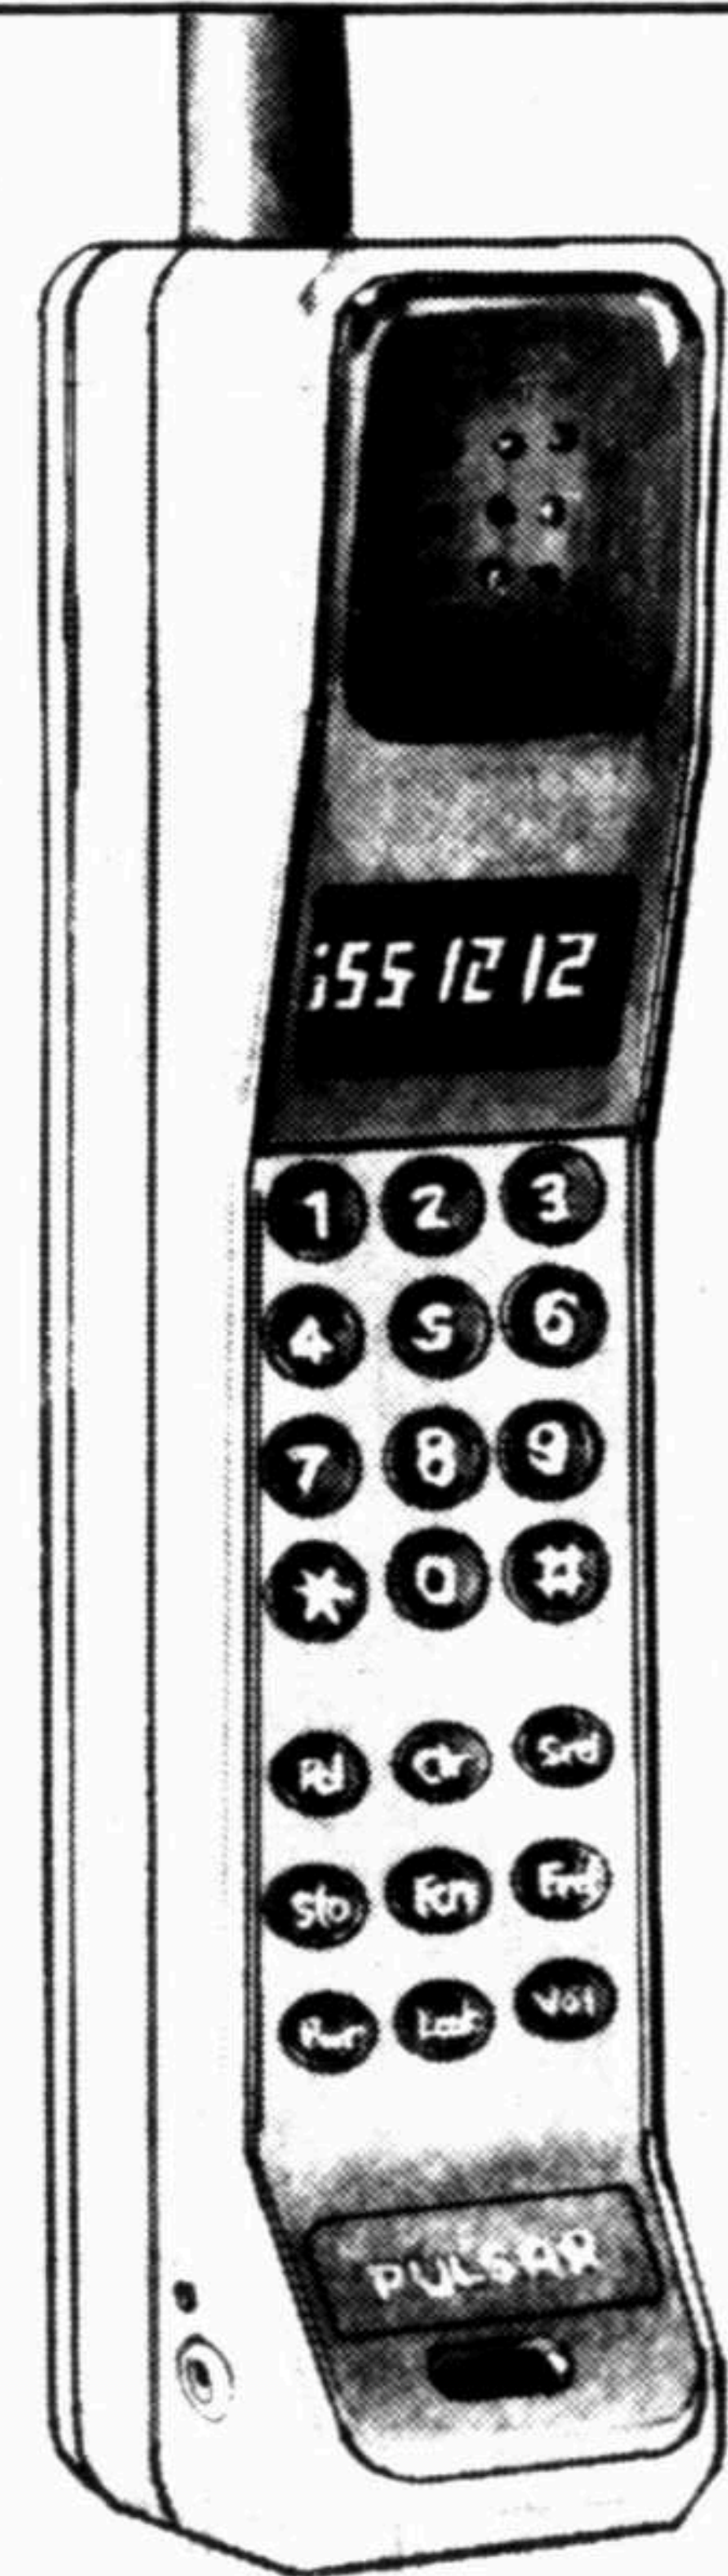

He hiked through the wilderness area until about 10 p.m., authorities said, before stopping for the night and building a snow cave for shelter. He resumed hiking at dawn.

Sheriff's officials said they didn't know the conditions Cruse faced, but it snowed in the area throughout the day Friday.

Blizzard conditions and avalanche danger Friday prevented a search for the wreckage, which was located in the Maroon Bells, an area of mountains and wilderness about 20 miles south of Aspen.

CLAIM: Yates royalty case may return to court

(From 1A)

Judge in Austin first heard the case and ruled that the state's case had no merit. The Texas Court of Appeals also heard the case in 1991 and ruled the claim was without merit.

Then, the state appealed to the Supreme Court, which ruled Wednesday 5-4 in favor of the state.

"I want to stress the 5-4 vote in this matter," Bledsoe said. "The judges instructed that the case be returned to the trial court for a full presentation of the facts."

Bledsoe said the close 5-4 vote of the Supreme Court suggested the decision might be changed in the future.

Lynn Durham Jr., a Turner heir, took exception to the fact that a land office press release had characterized the Supreme Court decision as backing a land office claim that the state had been "cheated" of revenues by Fred Turner, a West Texas oilman who filed a vacancy strip claim on four acres of land in the prolific Yates Field in Pecos County.

"Mr. Mauro has spoken with his usual hyperbole," Durham said. "I have nothing more to say."

Bledsoe said the decision by the Supreme Court did not convict Turner of cheating as the land office release implied, but merely clarified a point of law on fiduciary relationships.

The majority decision written by Justice Raul A. Gonzalez says in part: "We agree with the Court of Appeals that the surface owner is not the state's general agent for all purposes. Within the scope of the Relinquishment Act however, the surface owner is the state's agent to the extent that the state's assets are entrusted to the control of the surface owner, who must not abuse the trust. It is well settled that an agent charged with selling an asset for the owner owes a fiduciary duty to the owner, and that the agent violates this duty by acquiring the asset for his own benefit."

Ron Calhoun, a spokesman for the General Land Office, said they were not implying that the heirs of Fred Turner had been cheating the state. "I am sure they are upstanding citizens; this is something that happened a long time ago."

Calhoun, however, said the land office would not back down from its claim that Turner secretly acted in his own behalf, when he should have been acting on the behalf of the Permanent School Fund.

Calhoun said that normally when an agent acts irresponsibly where the client is concerned, and the court rules for the client everything the agent has gained goes back to the client. He noted, however, that the Land Office may not press for return of the full $120 million estimated to have been earned from only four acres in the prolific field but might settle out of court for half of future royalties. He said the wells were still very productive.

He also said there were other fiduciary conflicts around the state where the Supreme Court decision might apply.

As reported earlier, the case dates back to 1927, when Midland oilman Fred Turner Jr. and associate Bob Reid filed claims on opposite ends of a tract in the Yates Field, the land office said.

Reid received the tract and later deeded 3.97 acres to Turner on March 5, 1934.

Then, on March 20, 1934, Turner, as surface owner and agent for the Permanent School Fund, executed an oil lease to Albert Fasken for a one-eighth royalty and a cash bonus of $20,000. The fund subsequently received half the royalty, according to the land office.

Years later, the land office said it uncovered records and secured testimony from a former employee that indicated Fasken was a "straw man" in the deal. Unknown to the state at the time, Fasken had transferred the lease to an oil company controlled by Turner. Thus, Turner not only received the 1/16th royalty he deserved as the surface owner, but also received huge amounts of money through his nearly 50 percent ownership of an oil company that drilled and operated the two wells on the tract.

Tilton may face jury trial

DALLAS (AP) — The First Amendment does not protect televangelist Robert Tilton from two civil claims filed against him by the widower of a former follower, a judge ruled Friday.

Judge Candace Tyson of the 44th Civil District Court in Dallas denied a motion by attorney Rhonda Byrd, who is representing Tilton and the Word of Faith World Outreach Center Church in the lawsuit.

The ruling means Tilton could face a jury trial as soon as April 26 in two claims filed by William Harrison.

Byrd's motion sought constitutional protection from claims filed by Dallas attorney Martin Merritt on behalf of Harrison, who claimed to continue receiving mail from Tilton addressed to his wife, Mary Alice, long after her death.

Harrison is seeking unspecified damages against Tilton based on allegations of "fraud and intentional infliction of emotional distress," Merritt said.

Ms. Byrd said a jury trial is not inevitable, adding that she will file a motion for Tyson to reconsider the decision as soon as Monday.

Tilton says he prays over the requests, some of which come with contributions to his ministry.

SUMMIT: Nixon, Baker praise Clinton's stance

(From 1A)

dentials, Clinton is trying to avoid linking U.S. policy inexorably to the embattled Russian leader.

"This is the first major test of his ability to manage an extraordinarily difficult foreign policy question," said Will Marshall of the centrist Progressive Policy Institute. Marshall was a Clinton campaign adviser on foreign and national security policy.

During the 1992 presidential campaign, then-President Bush suggested time and time again that Clinton, the Arkansas governor, wasn't ready for such a test. Now it is at hand.

"The eyes of the world will be intensely focused on him, and he knows that," said Jody Powell, who helped another former governor turned president, Jimmy Carter, prepare for his 1979 summit with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

"It's a natural process for those who worked in state government before winning the presidency," said Clinton pollster Stanley Greenberg, who said the public's view of Clinton's ability to direct world affairs has improved since the election. "They think he is very smart and strong and now they want to watch him assume this role."

Clinton has been preparing, and rehearsing, for much of the past month.

He has held White House meetings with leaders of the United States' top Western allies — Canada, Britain, France and Germany.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, like the others before him, offered words of support and pledges of help, but left no doubt the West would follow Washington's — meaning Clinton's — lead on Russia.

"We want to send a message to the people of Russia that the West, under the leadership of the Americans and the American president, will do everything in its power to see to it that Russia and the other successor states to the Soviet Union stand a chance to walk on their own path towards freedom," Kohl said.

Clinton also has received encouragement from former President Nixon, who recently visited with Clinton, and Bush's secretary of state, James A. Baker III.

Taking the lead role in Clinton's summit preparation were National Security Adviser Anthony Lake, Strobe Talbott, the president's special emissary to the former Soviet Union, and Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

Talbott's new book on U.S.-Soviet relations, "At The Highest Levels," was on Clinton's pre-summit reading list. The president also consulted members of Congress and an array of academic and other experts on Russia's political and economic crises.

According to aides, Clinton has received several thick briefing books on Russia and on prospective Western assistance, often scribbling furiously in the margins to raise questions or request additional reading materials.

Authorities arrest man for abusing two-year-old boy

DALLAS (AP) — A 2-year-old boy was in critical condition Friday after authorities said the youth was hurled to the ground repeatedly by the 28-year-old boyfriend of the child's mother.

The boy, Markendrick Turner, was rescued by police and horrified bystanders Thursday afternoon on an East Dallas street, but not before he had been hurled to the ground at least a half dozen times, police said.

He was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas where he was in critical condition Friday suffering from internal and head injuries, said hospital spokeswoman Sue Mundell.

The man was arrested and remained in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center Friday. The man would be formally charged with injury to a child/serious bodily injury by Monday, said police spokesman Ed Spencer.

Police had indicated they were waiting to determine the full extent of the boy's injuries before filing charges. Spencer said the child's mother, who was inside her nearby apartment when the beating began, told police that the assailant was her fiancé.

Spencer said officials in the police child abuse section had not yet interviewed the man, but believe the man had missed taking his medicine.

"He evidently had missed taking some medication and had an adverse reaction," said Dallas police Sgt. Fred Rich. "Obviously this guy was out of control."

A passing motorist said he looked back to see the man yelling and marching around the toddler, who was on the sidewalk.

The motorist told police he watched as the man "picked the boy up and held him over his head." The man then "violently threw the child to the concrete," the witness told officers.

The man "also would grab the child by his feet and slam the child into the concrete, striking his head in a whiplike motion," the witness told police.

Dallas police Cpl. Melvin Cozby said he became involved in a struggle with the man, who tried to grab the officer's gun.

Haitians complain of beatings; U.S. immigration denies HARLINGEN (AP) — U.S. immigration officials on Friday denied allegations that Haitian detainees were mistreated when guards subdued a fight at a detention center in Bayview.

"Nobody was beaten," said Cecilio Ruiz, INS assistant district director for detention and transportation.

But Pat Malone, Proyecto Libertad asylum attorney who represents the Haitians, said she planned to file a complaint with the Office of the Inspector General in the U.S. Justice Department.

"We'll have to take statements from each of the Haitians," she said.

Meanwhile, authorities said Friday that seven Haitians had been returned to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service's Port Isabel Processing Center in Bayview. They had been sent with two other detainees to cool off at the Webb County Jail after a Feb. 26 fight broke out in the immigration center.

Ms. Malone said other detainees have told her that some Haitians were forced to lie handcuffed on the floor overnight after the fight.

"They were handcuffed for about 30 to 45 minutes. That's all," Roel Delgado, administrator at the Bayview center, responded.

Delgado said he was present when guards handcuffed the detainees. He saw no excessive force, he said.

Immigration officials said the trouble started when an argument among Haitians prompted another detainee to complain to a guard. When the detainee returned to his bunk, some Haitians jumped him, they said. About 20 riot squad members had to respond to the ensuing melee.

Asylum attorney Tom Hutchins, who met with the Haitians at the jail in Laredo, said they claimed the guards kicked and beat them with batons.

The Haitians told Hutchins that the guards attacked some who were merely watching the fight. They tried unsuccessfully to explain in Creole that they weren't involved, Hutchins said.

Nearly 100 Haitians have been at the Bayview center since late last year because the INS center in Miami was overcrowded.

Ms. Malone said the Haitians were upset that their asylum hearings haven't been scheduled.

She said the INS should send them back to Miami, where a network of attorneys and interpreters can better assist the Haitians at their hearings.

Authorities leave ball in cult leader's court

WACO (AP) — Authorities have no plans to resume negotiations with cult leader David Koresh, adding that it was up to the doomsday prophet to make the next move, an FBI agent said Friday.

"If he wants to talk to us, he merely has to pick up the phone," FBI agent Richard Schwein said. "At this point, we'll let him initiate it."

Schwein described the 34-day-old standoff as being in a "cooling-off period," after two Houston defense attorneys failed to convince the 97 cult members to immediately leave their heavily fortified compound.

Attorneys Dick DeGuerin and Jack Zimmermann spent hours inside the rural fortress Thursday. They emerged from the marathon meeting saying they had done everything they could and that they, too, were waiting from the sect to decide what to do.

DeGuerin has been hired by Koresh's mother to represent her son and met with the cult leader several times this week. Zimmermann is representing Steve Schneider, considered Koresh's first lieutenant, and met with his client once. The talks were private.

Schwein said although the stalemate continues, authorities are "guardedly optimistic that some progress was made by the attorneys."

"They're now going to think over what their attorneys have said."

Authorities also believe the upcoming week of religious holidays may play a significant part in any action the group might be planning. Passover begins at sunset Monday, although Koresh's Branch Davidian sect apparently observes it on Tuesday.

"What that means we don't know. It could be that they'll walk out and surrender. It could be that they'll take some action. It could be that they'll do nothing."

If the cult launched some sort of attack, Schwein said "we will protect ourselves."

Although FBI agents have no plans to initiate talks with Koresh, they will continue to blare obnoxious sounds and shine bright lights on the compound.

"We will give them many hours of wakefulness to ponder many things," Schwein said.

The standoff began Feb. 28 when U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents tried to serve arrest and search warrants at the compound. A gun battle erupted, leaving four ATF and at least two cult members dead.

Since then, the sprawling compound outside Waco has been surrounded by FBI and ATF agents and other law officers. Of the 97 people still inside the compound, 17 are children.

Schwein indicated authorities were prepared to wait a long time for a peaceful resolution to the siege.

FBI: Letters may be from church

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Threatening letters sent to a former Dallas minister accused of trying to kill his wife apparently came from a typewriter at the preacher's church, an FBI agent testified Friday.

And a police officer told jurors that Walker Railey and his lover met privately in a Dallas hospital room while Railey's wife lay unconscious and near death in a room nearby.

The letters and the love affair are two of the critical elements in the state's case against Railey, 45, on trial for the near-strangulation six years ago of his wife, Peggy.

Railey says he was researching a book at the time of the assault.

State attorneys maintain the letters were part of a complex scheme by Railey to dispose of his wife, abandon his children and run off with Dallas psychologist Lucy Papillon.

Mrs. Railey, then 38, survived but suffered irreversible brain damage.

Prosecutors wrapped up the second week of the trial Friday with testimony from Agent Thomas Dewan of the FBI's laboratory document section in Washington, D.C.

Dewan, who conducted extensive tests on the IBM Selectric, told the jury there is a "high degree of likelihood" several of the six letters were prepared on a typewriter recovered from a third-floor office at First United Methodist Church in Dallas.

Computers to pick numbers for lotto

AUSTIN (AP) — Lotto Texas players who don't want to pick their own numbers will be able to let lottery computers select numbers for them at random.

"Quick Pick" lotto tickets will be in operation by the end of May, State Comptroller John Sharp said Friday.

"We haven't announced the so-called Quick Pick until now to allow Lotto players a better chance of learning how the game is played," Sharp said.

But Sharp said long lines of players at Wednesday's single-day record lotto sales of $9.8 million persuaded him "that the time for Quick Pick has come."

Lottery expert Turk Pipkin said the Quick Pick feature should increase lotto sales.

"It's easier to play, but the catch is you have to pay more attention to your numbers. That seems obvious, but a lot of people don't," Pipkin said.

Bosnian Serb leaders reject international peace plan

BILECA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serbs rejected a U.N. peace plan for the embattled republic on Friday, thwarting efforts to end a year of bloody conflict and defying intense international pressure.

The move, which had been expected, was made by acclamation in the Bosnian Serbs' self-proclaimed parliament. No vote was taken.

The deputies rejected a resolution drafted by Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic which said that "70-80 percent of the maps" proposed by international mediators Cyrus Vance and Lord Owen were acceptable.

They called the wording too moderate and demanded outright rejection of the plan already accepted by rival Muslims and Croats.

Rejection further clouds the proposal drafted by the United Nations and the European Community and is likely to lead to more bloodshed in the former Yugoslav state.

Serb fighters have seized 70 percent of Bosnia. The U.N. plan would divide Bosnia-Herzegovina into 10 autonomous provinces and give Serbs 43 percent of the republic's territory. It would deny Serbs land links to Serbia proper in the east and to Serb-held areas of Croatia for which they fought bitterly.

Karadzic balked at this and summoned the 81-member assembly of the self-proclaimed Serb republic in Bosnia to decide whether to endorse the plan.

Karadzic's resolution described the Karadzic complained that the world community was forcing his people to choose between their dignity and a peace plan that would only mean more war.

Vance-Owen maps as "a good basis for agreement," but many deputies denounced that wording.

"This resolution should be thrown out together with the Vance and Owen maps," said deputy Vojislav Maksimovic.

"We Serbs must militarily defeat our enemies and conquer the territories we need."

Deputies formed a commission to reword the resolution in stiffer terms for Saturday's session.

The draft resolution also called for direct negotiations between the warring sides, for the current cease-fire to become a permanent truce, and for prosecution of war criminals belonging to all sides, including Serbs.

Earlier, Karadzic complained that the world community was forcing his people to choose between their dignity and a peace plan that would only mean more war. But he did not outright reject the plan.

His dramatic, fiery words then left little doubt about how he felt.

"All the world powers are against us, except God, the Russians... and other Orthodox friends," Karadzic said.

"This is the most critical moment in the history of the Serbs in the past 600 years."

The war began when the republic's Muslims and Croats voted to secede from Yugoslavia. The Bosnian government says at least 134,000 people are dead or missing in the fighting, and 2 million have been forced to flee their homes.

This week, with Russia's approval, the U.N. Security Council voted to enforce a no-fly zone over Bosnia that is aimed primarily at the Serbs, a move that Karadzic warned might make Serbs pull out of peace talks. On Friday, NATO agreed to dispatch warplanes to enforce the ban.

No reason to fear coup, officials say

MOSCOW (AP) — As President Boris Yeltsin headed to the Vancouver summit Friday, his aides and security officials insisted there was no reason to fear a coup while he's away.

But that does not mean his bitter foes are going to spend the week-end watching the spring sun melt the last of Moscow's snow. With Yeltsin facing West, his broad back is an awfully tempting target.

"No special security measures will be taken while the president is away," Security Ministry spokesman Alexei Kondakov said confidently. "No such measures are necessary."

When Yeltsin meets President Clinton, the top official remaining in Moscow is Vice President Alexander Rutskoi, who has criticized Yeltsin's free-market reforms. Some hard-liners would like to see Rutskoi take charge, even for a few days. But a presidential spokesman said that would not happen.

"No one ever replaces the president while he is away, under our laws," said the spokesman, Alexander Orlyonov.

"This is not Latin America or Africa," he said. "We think, or at least hope, that events have not reached the point where any special security measures would be needed while the president is gone."

Legal challenges — not illegal ones — seem to be the main concern of the officials staying behind in Moscow to watch the president's flank.

Russia's Constitutional Court overturned another of Yeltsin's decrees on Friday, ruling he had no right to give Moscow's mayor special authority to speed up the privatization of city property.

The court repeatedly has decided against Yeltsin in recent weeks, saying he has exceeded his legal powers and violated the constitution.

Yeltsin's top lawyer, Deputy Prime Minister Sergei Shakhrai, said the Russian prosecutor-general's office also notified him Friday it was starting a formal investigation to find out who prepared Yeltsin's March 20 declaration of "special rule."

Frustrated by their failure to impeach Yeltsin in the Congress of People's Deputies last week, hard-liners have demanded that his "inner circle" of advisers be put on trial for allegedly inciting him to violate the constitution.

Passenger tries to open jetliner door during flight

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — An airline passenger who threw a tantrum when denied more cocktails tried to open one of the plane's doors while it was flying at 10,000 feet Friday, forcing the pilot to make an emergency landing.

Michael Sommer, 25, of Leipzig, Germany, had been drinking heavily during the Lufthansa flight from Frankfurt to Athens and began throwing food trays when refused another drink, a court spokesman said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

A news agency reported Sommer yelled "I want to get out here" as he tried to open the door. The plane landed in Salonica, where Sommer was arrested.

Lufthansa said none of the 120 passengers aboard the Boeing 737 were in danger during the episode. Sommer was charged with disturbing the safety of an airliner. If convicted, he could face a jail term of up to 20 years.

BEDFORD — San Angelo was ousted from the Texas high school soccer playoffs, 4-0, by Lewisville here Friday in the Region I semifinals at Pennington Field.

The Bobcats, who were the third-place team from District 5 behind Abilene High and Midland High, had advanced deeper into the playoffs than any other district team this season. San Angelo finishes the season with a 16-8 record.

With the loss, no other District 5 teams remain alive, allowing the league's coaches to release the All-District team.

HOUSTON — Nolan Ryan wore a Texas Rangers uniform in the Astro-dome but his Houston Astros fans didn't care.

They gave him a standing ovation and popped camera flashes in every section of the packed Astro-dome Friday night as Ryan made a triumphant return to pitch his final exhibition game against his former teammates.

If only his former Astros teammates could have been as cooperative. They roughed up the future Hall of Famer for four runs and 10 hits in his six innings.

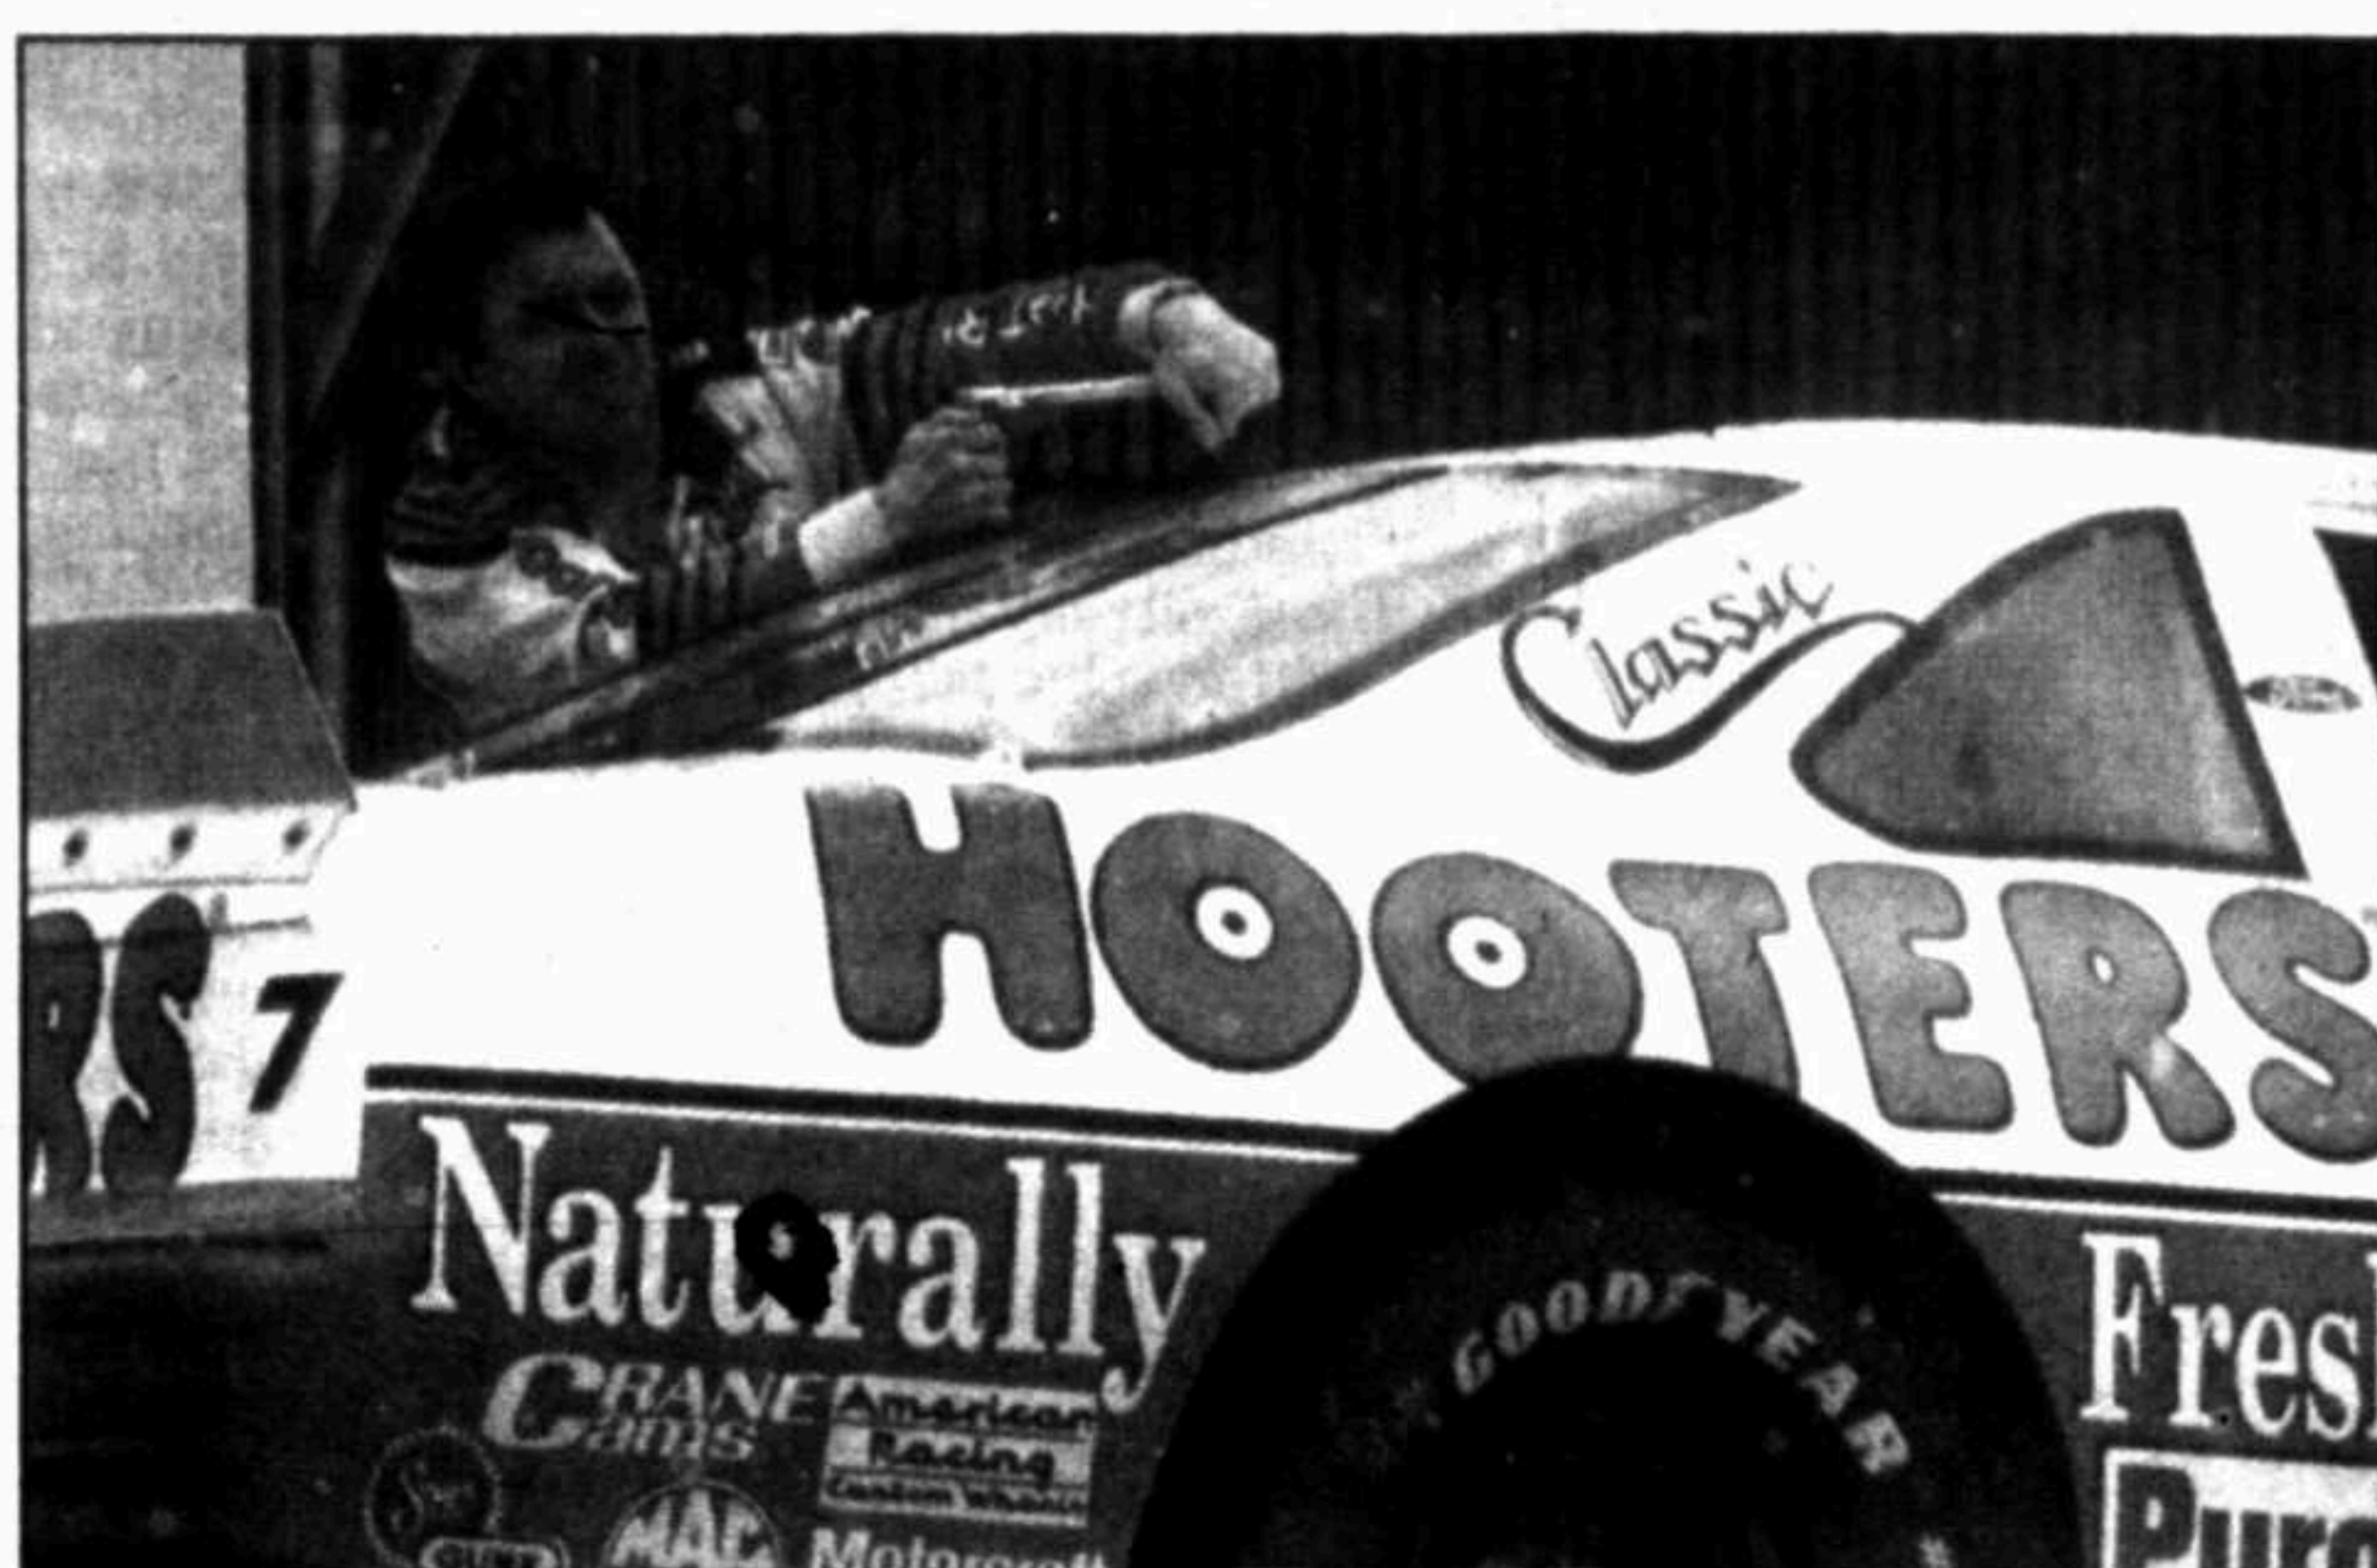

Ryan was the losing pitcher as the Astros took a 4-0 lead and held on for a 4-3 victory. Pete Harnisch went five innings for the Astros and got the victory.

Race car driver Alan Kulwicki, who was killed in a plane crash Thursday, is shown working on car prior to qualifying for the TranSouth 500 last week.

Crash investigation begins

By Leslie Lloyd

Associated Press Writer

BLOUNTVILLE, Tenn. — Federal investigators on Friday began trying to figure out why a plane carrying stock car driver Alan Kulwicki crashed, killing him and three others.

While the probe of Thursday night's crash could take weeks, there was little doubt that the four people in the plane were killed instantly.

Sullivan County Sheriff Keith Carr said debris was not spread over a wide area, an indication the plane came straight down rather than at an angle as if trying to make an emergency landing.

"It's really just going to depend on the complexity of the situation," said

NEW ORLEANS — Roy Williams bristles at the notion that Kansas is a mere clone of North Carolina, even if he freely admits he's "stolen as much as I can steal" from former boss Dean Smith.

And their players are getting a bit weary of all the student vs. teacher stuff, as if Williams and Smith were going to don shorts and sneakers and do battle on court today.

"It's not coach Williams against Dean Smith," Kansas guard Adonis Jordan said. "I would like to see that game, though. That would be a funny game to watch. But it's the Kansas players against the North Carolina players."

That sentiment is shared by the Tar Heels, who don't see themselves as sol-

NCAA's 'Swoopes' time

■ Texas Tech faces Vanderbilt in the NCAA semifinals in a battle between Sheryl Swoopes and 6-10 Heidi Gillingham.

By Ed Shearer

AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Sheryl Swoopes will not change her style today when No. 5 Texas Tech faces top-ranked Vanderbilt and the nation's tallest Division I female player in the NCAA Women's Final Four.

"Obviously she's going to be a little bit intimidating," Swoopes said Friday of 6-foot-10 Heidi Gillingham. "Having a 6-10 girl in the middle is definitely going to make us think twice about shooting in the middle, but we are going to attack her and hope to get her in foul trouble."

The Lady Raiders (29-3) carry a 17-game winning streak into the 11 a.m. CST opener of the Final Four at The Omni. Vanderbilt (30-2) has won its last eight games.

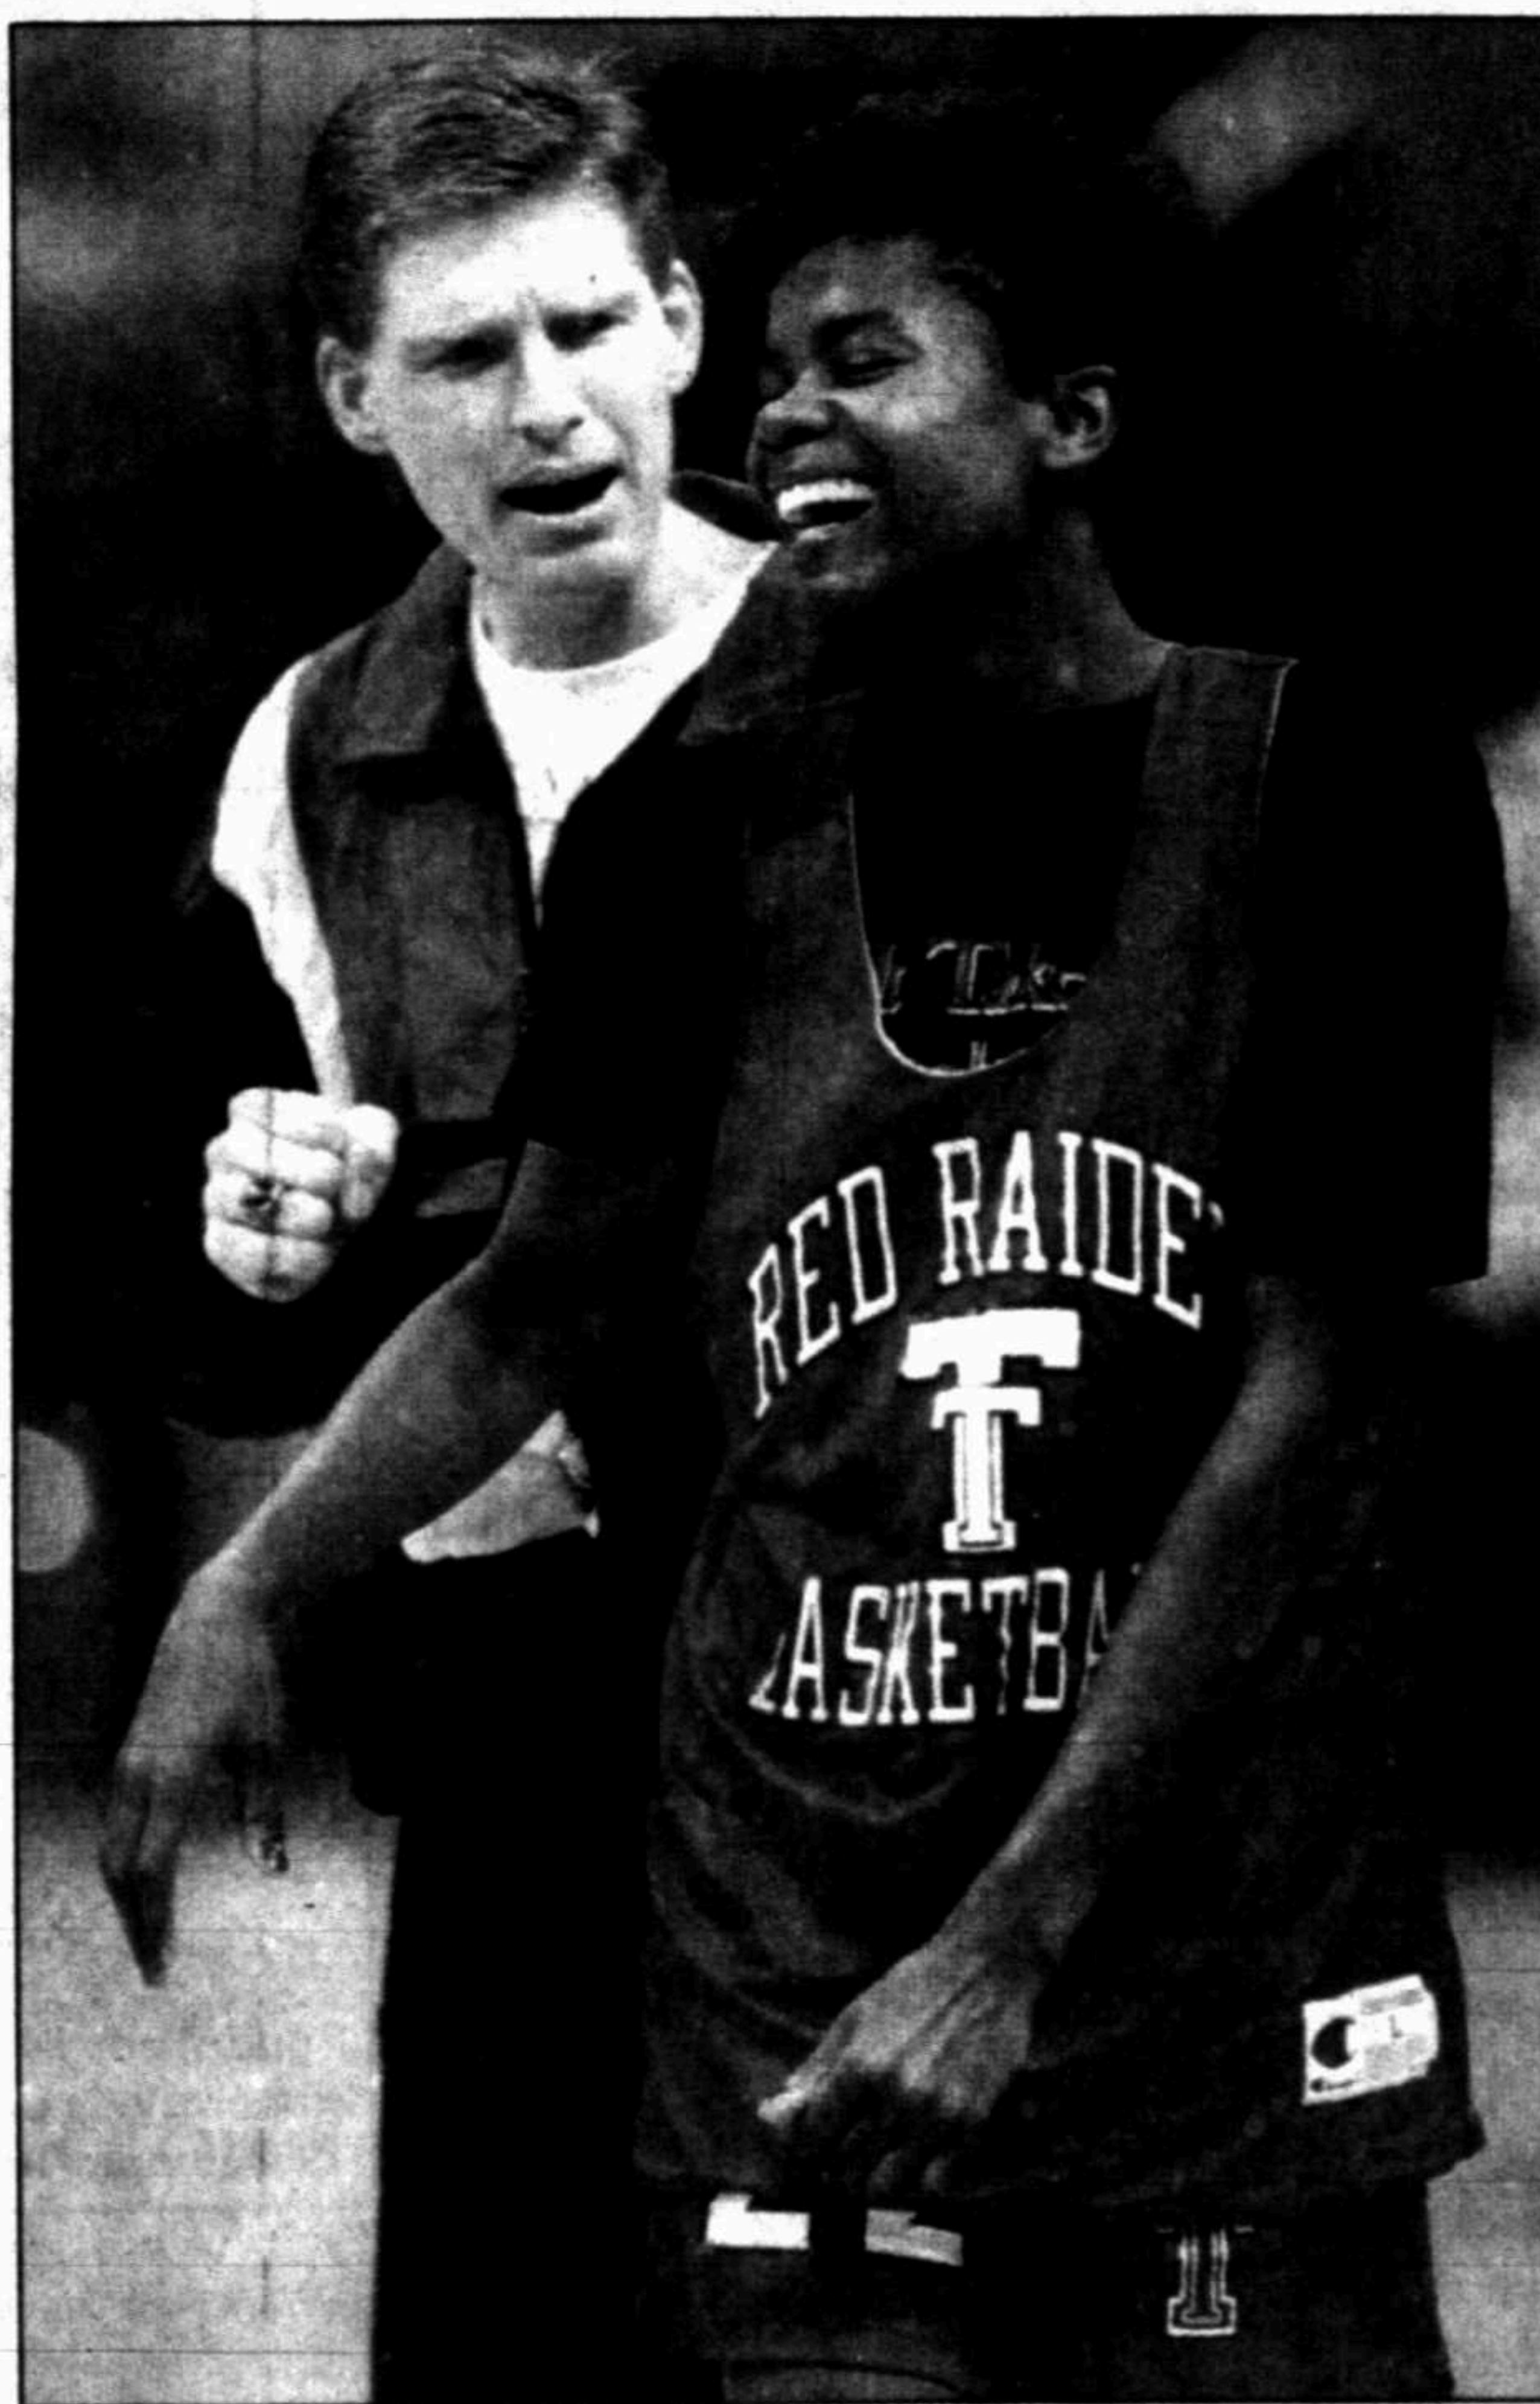

The other semifinal will be a family affair between teams that shared the Big Ten Conference championship — No. 3 Ohio State (27-3) and No. 4 Iowa (27-3). They split their regular-season meetings, each winning at home.

Swoopes, a 6-foot senior named on Friday to the Kodak All-America team for the second year in a row, has been on a roll in the postseason. She started it with a career-high 53 points against Texas in the finals of the Southwest Conference tournament.

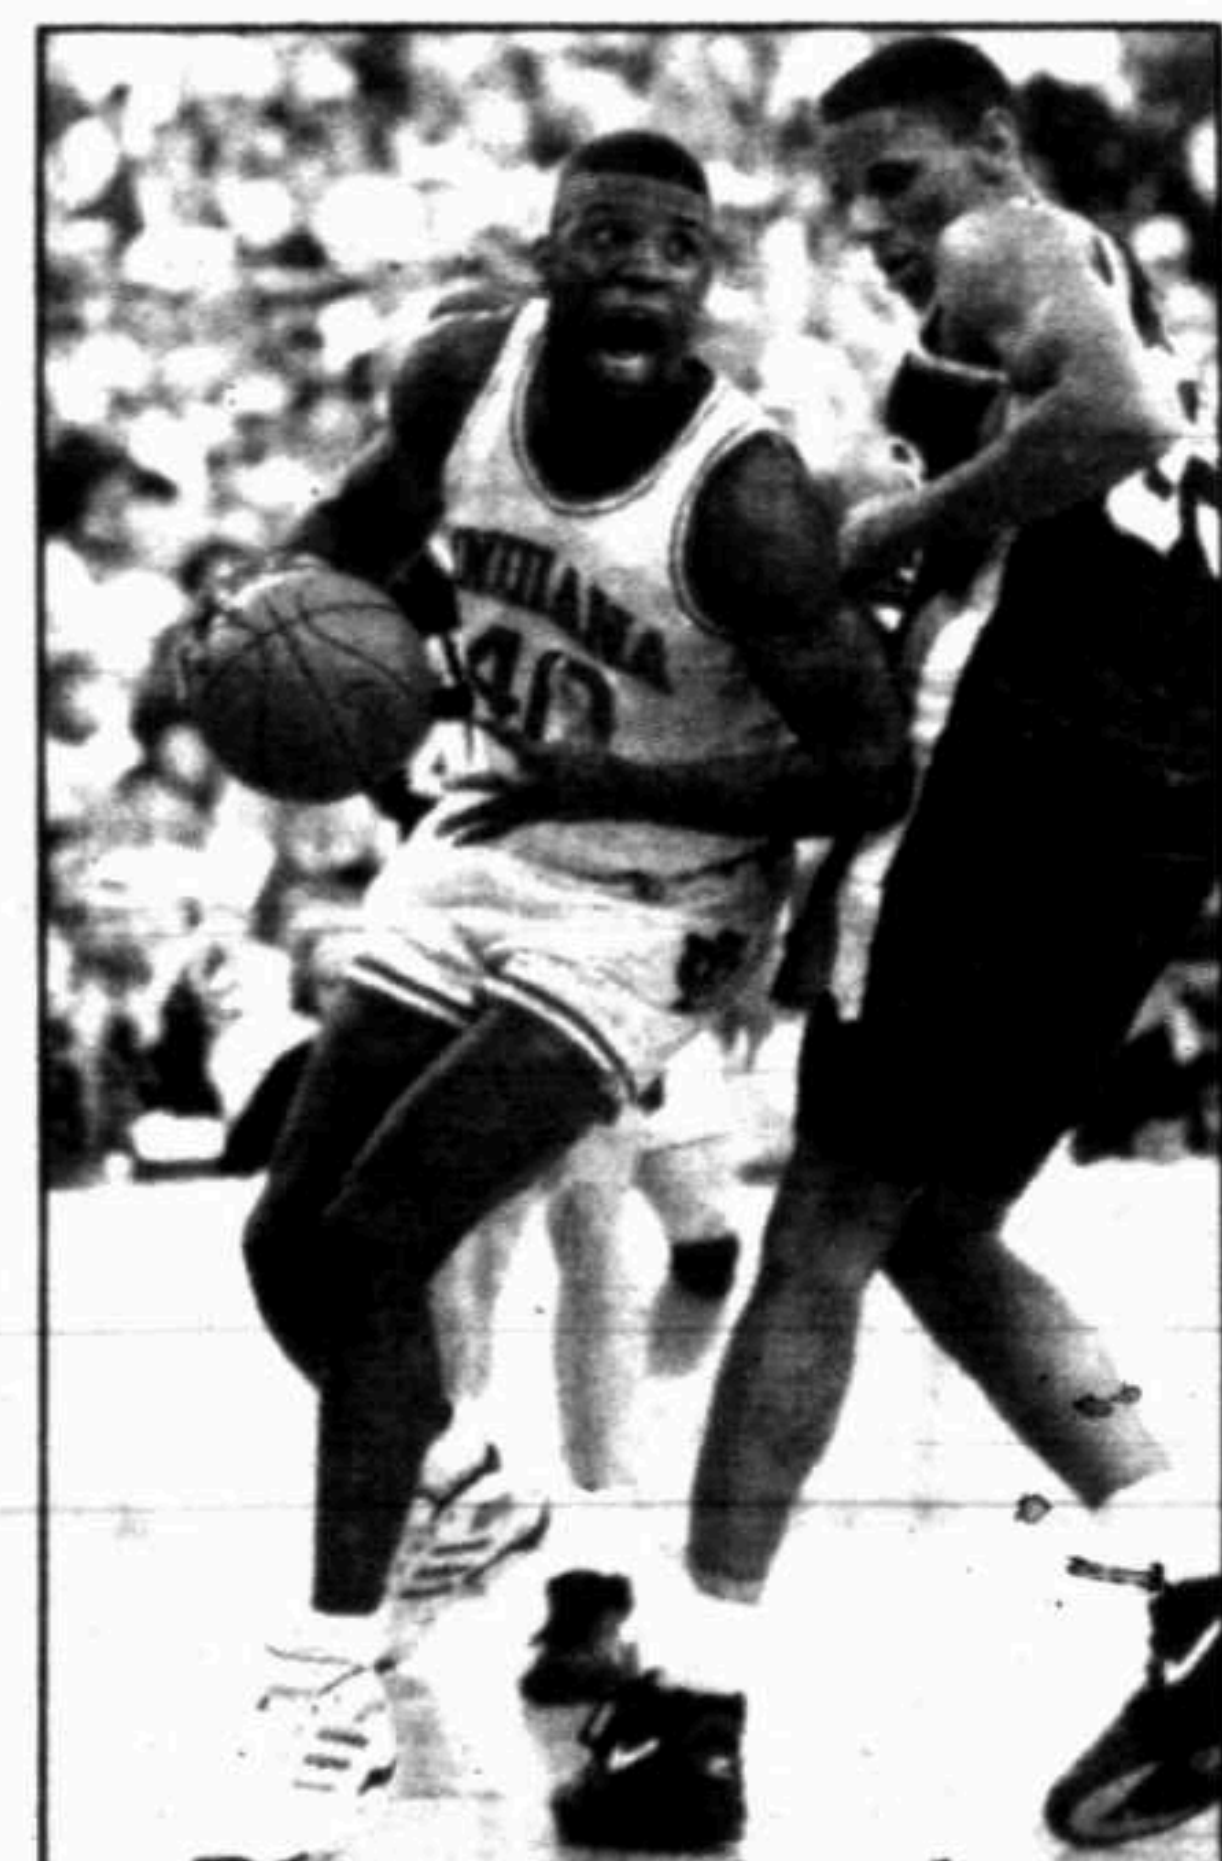

She had 30 points in a West Regional victory over Washington, 33 against Southern Cal and 36 in last Saturday's championship victory over Colorado. Swoopes is averaging 27.4 points.

Indiana's Calbert Cheaney
...NCAA Player of the Year

Cheaney top NCAA player

By Owen Canfield

AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS — Calbert Cheaney has come a long way since the days when he used to play basketball under a single spotlight near his home in Evansville, Ind.

Cheaney, the All-American who led Indiana to a 31-4 record and to the finals of the Midwest Regional, was voted The Associated Press player of the year on Friday.

"When I got to Indiana my freshman year, all I wanted to do was contribute to the team and not worry about anything like this," Cheaney said. "Fortunately, things have ended up being pretty good. Never really in my wildest dreams did I think this would ever happen."

Cheaney was chosen by sports writers and sportscasters around the country in balloting conducted before the NCAA tournament.

Cheaney received 53 first-place votes, beating Bobby Hurley of Duke who had 25. Anfernee Hardaway of Memphis State was third with 21 first-place votes and Kentucky's Jamal Mashburn was fourth with 17.

"It's obviously a great feeling to know you're one of the best college basketball players in the country. It's very flattering," Cheaney said. "Like I said, it's all surprising to me."

It shouldn't have been. Cheaney averaged 22.4 points per game and helped carry the Hoosiers to a 17-1 record in the Big Ten despite injuries to Pat Graham and Alan Henderson that left Indiana with fewer than 10 players at times.

Cheaney became the leading scorer in Indiana history and Big Ten history in the same game, against Northwestern in March. He scored the game's first seven points to move past Steve Alford on the school list, then later made a 3-pointer to overtake former Michigan player Glen Rice on the Big Ten scoring chart.

The 6-foot-7 forward finished his career with 2,613 points and a shooting percentage of 55.9. He made 43.8 percent of his shots from 3-point range.

Cheaney was selected most valuable player of the preseason NIT and the Midwest Regional. He scored nearly 23 points per game in the 15 games Indiana played against teams ranked in the Top 25.

Cheaney grew up shooting baskets at a goal near his house in Evansville. At night, the only thing that lit the hoop was a blue light.

MHS, Lee need wins

By Bill Price

Staff writer

While Midland High tries to keep its head above water in the District 4-5A baseball race today against Abilene High at Angels Stadium, Midland Lee and Abilene Cooper will play in a battle of first- and second-place teams in Abilene.

MHS, 6-9 for the season and 2-3 in district, will take on the Eagles at 2 p.m. The Bulldogs are coming off a 5-4 loss to San Angelo Tuesday at Angels Stadium, while AHS (9-5, 1-4) is fresh off its first league win of the season, 12-5, Tuesday over Odessa High. In other 4-5A action today, Odessa Permian (3-2) travels to

4-5A Baseball Roundup

San Angelo (also 3-2) in a third-place battle. OHS is idle as the first half of district play comes to a close.

Despite the Eagles' district showing so far, MHS head coach Rick Wood isn't about to take them lightly.

"You can look at their pre-district record and see they're not a pushover. I have great respect for them," said Wood, who missed Tuesday's game against San Angelo after being hospitalized for a kidney stone.

AHS is expected to pitch Charlie Martinez (0-0), who owns the Eagles' best district ERA at 5.60 (four earned runs in five innings). The Bulldogs will likely counter with Mike Melzer (0-1), who will be making his second 4-5A start of the season after losing to Cooper.

MHS owns the second best team batting average in 4-5A games, hitting .344 in five league games. That mark is only exceeded by Lee's .423. Outfielder Chad Benson is the top hitter among Bulldogs with more than 10 official district at-bats, hitting .636. He is followed by Melzer (.500), catcher Tim McLaughlin (.421) and center fielder Abel Sanchez (.417).

And after MHS' performance against San Angelo, Wood likes the 'Dogs chances today.

TECH: Two teams very much alike balance and depth, with seven players averaging five or more points, led by the All-American Gillingham at 14.3 per game.

"Heidi is the anchor of our team on both offense and defense," Vandy coach Jim Foster said. "I do think if there were a draft tomorrow, Heidi would be the first player chosen."

"She has the most intense work ethic I've ever seen. Big players are usually spoiled. Heidi's goal is to have a perfect game."

The perception has been it will be a match of Tech's speed and athletic ability against Vanderbilt's size.

"There's a misconception about our athletic ability," Foster said. "We know they run the floor well. We run the floor a little better than people think we do."

Tech coach Marsha Sharp agreed.

"I think he's probably right," she said. "You can't be the No. 1 team in the nation and not be very athletic. They do lots of athletic things. We are a couple of teams that are awfully lot alike."

Both teams employ zones defensively.

"I never coached it until two years ago," Foster said. "We played, I believe, four minutes of man-to-man in a game in December. It scared me to death."

Foster said Swoopes is such an outstanding player, he knows she will get her points.

"Swoopes has made her teammates pretty good players by her decision-making," Foster said. "I think you could make a great mistake underestimating the other players."

NCAA: Up-tempo for Game 2

(From 1B)

Phelps said. "We worked hard all year long for this."

Indeed, but it will be directed by coaches who share similar philosophies and compete head-to-head as fervently from their benches as they do on golf courses.

They both teach tough, man-to-man pressure defense, spread out the scoring on offense, and run many of the same plays. But the differences in the size and talents of their players influence the way they'll attack each other at the Final Four before the Kentucky-Michigan game.

"They're a better rebounding team than we are," Williams said Friday. "We may be a better perimeter shooting team. They've got probably six or seven plays that we don't run at all. We've got six or seven plays that they don't run at all. We play a half-court trap. They play more zone than we do. They play more full-court pressure. Most of the time the half-court is our pick-up line."

Kansas' flexibility to shift players from one position to another is a key part of its strategy, while North Carolina, because of the superior height of its forwards and center, keeps them in specific roles.

"They're much bigger walking through airports than they are usually on the court," Williams said, "because most of the time they don't play Eric Montross, Kevin Salvadori and Matt Wenstrom together. If they did, then they would be the biggest team. If they do put Kevin and Eric in there at the same time, it'll create great matchup problems for us. Also, I'm hoping it'll create some problems for them on the other end trying to counteract our speed."

Michigan vs. Kentucky
Minutes before today's second Final Four game, there could be an announcement along the lines of: "Gentlemen, start your transition games!"

When Michigan and Kentucky square off it will be two talented, exciting, up-tempo teams going at it. You probably won't need anyone to work the 45-second shot clock.

"Both teams have the ability to score points in bunches," Michigan coach Steve Fisher said Friday. "I'm excited by it, but I don't see 100 points by either team."

"We will run and they'll be happy to hear that," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said Friday. "I expect a fun night with both teams running up and down the floor."

Kentucky (30-3) has been doing just that all through the NCAA tournament, winning its four games by an average of 31 points while scoring 96 or more in all but one.

Michigan (30-4), on the other hand, has had to weather the different styles of teams like George Washington and Temple and the Wolverines' margin of victory has been just over 10 points, although they started with a 31-point win over Coastal Carolina. Michigan is the only team back from last year's Final Four, having lost to Duke in the title game.

"I think one thing our team has been doing quite often this season is playing to the level of the competition," Michigan's Rob Pelinka said. "We knew with the success we had last year our goal all this season would be to come back and win one more game."

Vandy's Fogler named top coach

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Eddie Fogler of Vanderbilt knows how he got to be selected as The Associated Press college basketball coach of the year.

"We were a team picked low that finished high," Fogler said Friday. "That's how coaches win this award. When their teams exceed expectation levels."

It also makes coaches hot properties and Fogler is being prominently mentioned for the vacancy at South Carolina. He refused to discuss that, saying only "I'm the coach at Vanderbilt. That's why I'm here. I'll talk about Vanderbilt."

There was plenty to say. Vandy won the SEC regular season championship with a 14-2 record, finishing a game ahead of Kentucky, a Final Four team, in the Eastern Division and four up on West Division champ Arkansas.

That was accomplished, Fogler said, by winning four of the last six games on the road, no small accomplishment, especially in the SEC. "As good as Arkansas is, that says a lot about us," he said.

The Commodores finished 28-6 for the season and reached the round of 16 in the NCAA tournament before being eliminated by Temple.

For Fogler, Vandy's accomplishments were no major surprise. "I saw us as having a good team, an NCAA team," he said. "I can't say I knew we'd be 28-6 and SEC champions. The things that had to fall in place did. We had no injuries. We started the same unit every game. I feel good about what the group accomplished."

For the future, Fogler feels Vanderbilt has established itself in the conference. "I don't think a team will ever come up against us and say, 'Oh, this will be easy.' That won't happen," he said.

Fogler came to Vanderbilt in 1989 after three years as head coach at Wichita State. The Commodores won the NIT title in his first season and are 81-48 under in four years under him.

CRASH: FAA looks for clues

(From 1B)

Anne Eldridge, a spokeswoman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta.

Investigators from the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board were at the site where the plane crashed and burned on a hillside about six miles northeast of Tri-City Regional Airport.

"It would be much too early to speculate on the cause," said Alan Pollock, an NTSB spokesman based in Washington.

Dr. William McCormick, a forensic pathologist, was performing autopsies at the Quillen College of Medicine at Johnson City, Tenn., in an effort to positively identify the bodies.

Officials have tentatively identified the four men as Kulwicki, 38, NASCAR's reigning Winston Cup champion; Mark Brooks, 26, son of Hooters of America chairman Robert Brooks, Kulwicki's sponsor; Dan Duncan, 44, of Taylor, S.C., director of sports marketing for Hooters; and pilot Charlie Campbell, 48, of Peachtree City, Ga.

have anything to feel bad about. We gave ourselves a chance to win. It wasn't like we gave the game away," Wood said.

FOR LEE, the memory of last season's first matchup between the teams is painfully clear. Cooper handed the Rebels their first league loss of 1992 in a 24-7 rout, coming back from a 5-3 deficit to score 21 runs in the next two innings.

This season, the Cougars are undefeated in 4-5A at 5-0 (12-7 overall) while Lee is second at 4-1, 16-3.

"It's a big game for us. I'm sure our kids are thinking about that game where they beat us by a couple of touchdowns and a field goal," said Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez of today's 2 p.m. game at Cooper.

"I'm sure it's in the back of our minds and in the back of theirs. I don't expect it will be hard for me to get our guys up for the game. I just hope our bats are ringing."

Senior righthander Julian Urquidez (5-0) will take the mound for Lee today, and is expected to face Cooper's Josh Martinez (1-0). In his 12 district innings pitched, Urquidez has put up an ERA of 2.92. Martinez, who earned his first win of the season against MHS, has a 2.69 ERA in 5 1/3 innings pitched.

Urquidez is the Rebels' top hitter, with a .733 average, seven RBI and two homers in five district games. Kevin Jordan, Jason Baker, Kirk Ulrich, Brian Graham, Travis Stephens and Blair Geismar are all hitting .500 or better. Also, Sean McIntosh, Alex Hale and Chris Connolly are hitting .400 or better.

LEE NOTE — Rebel center fielder and lead-off hitter David Galvan is expected to play today after dislocating his left shoulder diving into first base a week ago against Permian. "They popped his shoulder back into place and the X-rays were negative. He is hitting the ball well and is running OK, say he should play," Benavidez said.

White narrows choices

Associated Press

Free agent Reggie White has narrowed his list of teams to three — all in the NFC.

A source close to All-Pro defensive end's agent, Jimmy Sexton, told The Milwaukee Journal that White had narrowed his choices to San Francisco, Washington and Green Bay. The 49ers were to be the favorites, followed by the Redskins.

■ NFL Roundup

Sexton went to New Orleans on Friday to attend the NCAA Final Four, and could not be reached for comment.

Meanwhile, the New York Giants signed wide receiver Mike Sherrard to a $4.8 million, three-year deal, and the Pittsburgh Steelers kept quarterback Neil O'Donnell by matching the $8 million, three-year offer by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The Washington Post reported Thursday that the Packers had made the highest bid of any team — a four-year contract worth $17.2 million. The Journal source said White probably would decide by Sunday.

But Redskins general manager Charley Casserly said Friday that he spoke briefly with Sexton.

"We had a very brief conversation this morning, but there was no negotiating," Casserly said. "We're still waiting to see what will happen."

For the Redskins, and to a lesser extent, the 49ers, the whole process has been hurry-up-and-wait. The 31-year-old White, who had 81 tackles and 14 sacks last season for the Philadelphia Eagles, began his hunt for a new team by stating repeatedly that he wanted to play for a winning team.

Officials familiar with the discussions say the Redskins have offered a four-year, $14 million contract.

The 49ers, meanwhile reportedly are considering offering a five-year deal worth between $19 million and $20 million, with signing bonus of between $4 million and $5 million.

Two things work against the Redskins. They have a club policy against guaranteeing money and have never given signing bonuses to veterans.

To get around that roadblock, Washington could structure the deal so that White gets the bulk of the money in the first two years, a move that also would help when the NFL salary cap kicks in for the 1994 season.

San Francisco and Washington both have problems in that they are over the impending salary cap. Washington's reason for optimism is that the 49ers are farther above it than the Redskins.

Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren acknowledged the possibility that White could go elsewhere.

"All I know is we are one of the players," the coach said.

White earlier removed the New York Jets from the running because he wants to stay in the NFC.

"We have been informed by Jimmy Sexton ... that we have presented everything that Reggie was looking for, but that he had decided to stay in the NFC," Jets general manager Dick Steinberg said. "We are disappointed Reggie has decided to pursue other opportunities, but we will continue our negotiations with other free agents who can improve the team."

White's eight NFL seasons have been with the NFC's Eagles.

Sherrard, 29, comes to New York from San Francisco, where he played two seasons after an injury-plagued pro career that began when he was Dallas' first-round draft choice in 1986. He had 38 catches for 607 yards and no TDs last season.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Payne Stewart played a second day of solid golf, shooting a 2-under-par 70 on Friday for a two-shot lead midway through the $1 million Freepoint-McMoran Golf Classic.

Stewart, who shot a wind-blown 70 on Thursday for a one-shot lead, completed 36 holes at 140, two strokes better than Mike Standly, who had his second 71.

"I'm excited about what I'm doing on the golf course," Stewart said. "I seem to be playing with a lot of confidence. The weather got better out there. The guys who played early or late had the advantage."

After shooting a 35 on the front nine, Stewart bogeyed 15 but birdied the tough 18th hole for another 35.

Wind gusting to 35 mph across the 7,116-yard, par-72 English Turn course on Thursday was reduced to a brisk breeze Friday and scores fell accordingly.

Stewart, who teed off early Thursday before the worst of the wind, played late on Friday and again found better conditions. The wind wasn't as much of a factor Friday, although golfers still had to cope with the tough course and hard greens.

Left-hander Russ Cochran made a big move, shooting a 68 for 143.

"I played solid," Cochran said. "I missed a few opportunities, but it's a hard golf course to play."

parade of low scores should not be considered a knock on the Jack Nicklaus-designed course.

"When you get good weather and conditions, I don't care how tough a golf course is. You're going to shoot good scores," Gilbert said. "In this weather, the golf course is nice, the greens are nice, and we're professionals. We're supposed to shoot low scores."

Aoki, considered Japan's greatest golfer, was a shot back at 134, with Tom Shaw, Dale Douglass and Tom Weiskopf grouped at 135.

Shaw matched Aoki's 65. Phil Rodgers set the course and tournament record in 1991, and Jack Nicklaus shot a 65 last year.

Rangers topple Jal in 7-4 win

JAL, N.M. — In its second year of baseball competition, Greenwood matched its win total of a year ago with a rain-shortened, 7-4 victory over Jal here Friday.

Andy Watzl (2-0) pitched a complete game for the Rangers, striking out six batters and allowing five hits in five innings.

Wright birdies to lead

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Pamela Wright of Scotland overcame whipping winds Friday to shoot a 2-under-par 70 and take a one-shot lead after the first round of the $450,000 Las Vegas LPGA at Canyon Gate.

Wright birdied three holes in a five-hole stretch on the back nine to catch and pass the early leaders. She hit all nine greens on the back side, when the wind subsided late in the day.

"The wind just wears you out," Wright said. "But I got the ball where I wanted it and I never looked at the leader board. I'm very happy to be under par today."

Missie McGeorge, Kris Monaghan, Trish Johnson, Allison Finney, Lisa DePaulo and Judy Dickinson were the only other players to break par on the 6,114-yard Canyon Gate Country Club course.

The tournament, formerly known as the Las Vegas LPGA International, used to be played on the 7,000-yard Desert Inn course. This is the first time the event is being played at the 3-year-old Canyon Gate layout.

Patty Sheehan, Beth Daniel, Juli Inkster and Terry-Jo Myers led a large group of players at 72. Joining them were Nancy Ramsbottom, Barb Thomas, Kristi Albers, Deb

Richard, Marta Figueras-Dotti, Elaine Crosby and Lynn Connelly. "Everybody is going to be frustrated with putting," said Wright, a fifth-year pro seeking her first LPGA Tour win. "Everyone is fighting personal battles. For me, I'm very happy."

McGeorge also played steadily in spite of the wind, with three birdies and two bogeys on fairways she considered among the best on the LPGA Tour.

"The wind was definitely a factor," she said. "It's a short course, but the greens are small and getting pretty firm. Even off the tee, some holes were playing crosswind and you had to aim at the rough and let the wind bring it back in."

"With the way it was today, there aren't going to be too many people under par. I mean, you almost have to take the wind into effect on the green."

McGeorge was consistent despite the tough conditions. She bogied Nos. 7 and 14 when she hit wedge approaches over the greens, but she sank two 5-foot birdie putts and another from 18 feet to join the group of eight players who broke par.

Monaghan had five birdies and four bogeys, including three in a four-hole stretch on the front nine.

Resignation asked of Maxson

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A university regent has called for the resignation of UNLV president Robert Maxson, saying his ability to lead "has been irretrievably lost" due to problems in recent weeks.

"For the sake of UNLV and its ability to go forward into a brighter future, for the sake of our community which must begin to heal, Bob Maxson must acknowledge his responsibility, take the honorable course and step aside," regent Shelley Berkley said in letters published by the Las Vegas

Review-Journal and Las Vegas Sun.

The regents will hold a special personnel session with Maxson on Wednesday afternoon. Two sources close to the situation who asked not to be identified said the 11 regents were almost evenly split on Maxson issue and that a vote could go either way.

Maxson was in a meeting Friday and could not be reached for comment on the latest developments.

Spurs move closer to Houston

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson scored 12 of his 39 points in the fourth quarter and Sean Elliott added 21 points Friday night as the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Minnesota Timberwolves 108-101.

Micheal Williams led the Timberwolves with 19 points and Christian Laettner had 16, but both players fouled out late in the game.

The Spurs moved within one game of idle Houston in the race for first place in the Midwest Division. Minnesota had been going for what would have been a franchise record-tying fourth consecutive victory.

Warriors 134, Mavericks 93
DALLAS — Billy Owens led Golden State's 36-18 third-quarter spree with 10 points and the undermanned Warriors routed Dallas.

Owens, who finished with 29 points, had two three-point plays during the third quarter run as Golden State expanded a 59-49 halftime lead to 95-67 entering the fourth quarter.

Knicks 123, Heat 107
MIAMI — Ten days after they were involved in the biggest brawl

NBA Roundup

of the season, New York played another fight-filled game, beating Miami.

Patrick Ewing finished with 26 points and 22 rebounds as the Knicks snapped the Heat's 12-game home winning streak. But with 4:20 left in the third quarter, Ewing hit the Heat's Grant Long in the jaw with an elbow, a blow that required four stitches and knocked Long out of the game.

Several brief physical and verbal skirmishes followed in the next few minutes, including one which resulted in a double technical foul against Miami's Brian Shaw and New York's Charles Smith.

Hornets 114, Cavaliers 113
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kendall Gill's steal and layup with 12.7 seconds left gave Charlotte a victory over Cleveland in a game in which Cavs guard Mark Price missed an NBA record 78th consecutive free throw.

Trail Blazers 96, 76ers 91
PHILADELPHIA — Cliff Robinson scored 17 points and blocked a potential game-tying 3-pointer by Clarence Weatherspoon with 13 seconds left as Portland clinched a playoff spot by defeating Philadelphia.

Philadelphia lost its sixth straight game and for the 12th time in 13 tries.

Pacers 118, Magic 102
INDIANAPOLIS — Reggie Miller scored 17 of his 24 points in the third quarter, sparking Indiana over Orlando, extending the Pacers' homecourt winning streak to a club-record 11 straight.

The Pacers, who opened a 1½-game advantage over the Magic in the tight Eastern Conference playoff race, beat Orlando despite 32 points by Nick Anderson and 28 points and 19 rebounds from Shaquille O'Neal.

Pistons 109, Kings 100
AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Joe Dumars scored 20 of his 35 points in the second half as Detroit held off Sacramento.

Dumars has 73 points in his last two games and the Pistons have now won four of their last five, and six straight at home to pull into playoff contention.

Suns 118, Celtics 114
BOSTON — Phoenix let a 16-point lead with five minutes left drop to one but held on behind Charles Barkley's 37 points for a win over Boston.

Phoenix, the NBA's best team with a 54-15 record, won its sixth straight game. Boston, which had been the hottest, had a nine-game winning streak stopped.

Bulls 118, Nets 105
CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 18 of his 40 points in the first quarter as Chicago beat New Jersey.

It was the Bulls' 10th straight victory over the Nets.

Nuggets 116, Bucks 107
DENVER — Rookie Bryant Stith scored 10 of his career-high 24 points during a 23-11 run in the second period that lifted Denver over Milwaukee.

Todd Day, also a rookie, had a career-high 30 points for the Bucks, but they were unable to overcome the second-quarter spurt, which gave the Nuggets a 61-49 lead with 2:55 left in the first half. Milwaukee got no closer than four in the second half after trailing 65-56 at halftime.

Viola, Bailey combine for early no-hitter

Associated Press

While some teams arrived back north and played in the cold, Frank Viola pitched for Boston in Florida and was real hot.

Frank Viola and Corey Bailey combined for a no-hitter at Clearwater, Fla., on Friday, leading the Red Sox over the Philadelphia Phillies 10-0.

Viola struck out six and walked one in seven innings, allowing a runner to reach on a strike-out-wild pitch. Bailey pitched the final two innings and walked one.

"It was important for me to end the spring on a positive note, and I think I did that," Viola said. "It was a nice time to put it all together."

In his previous spring appearance, he allowed nine runs and 12 hits in 2½ innings against Minnesota and lost his third straight decision.

"That might have been the best thing that happened to me," Viola said. "It got me mentally focused again."

Back in Baltimore, the Orioles played in 53-degree weather and intermittent rain at Camden Yards and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 before 20,412.

"Actually, it's warmer than I thought it would be," new Baltimore second baseman Harold Reynolds said.

Also up north, the ruling executive council suspended Cleveland pitcher Jose Mesa and Cincinnati first baseman Hal Morris for three games each and fined them for their parts in a fight during an exhibition game this week.

It was the first time in eight years that penalties imposed in spring training have carried over into the regular season. Lonnie Smith, with St. Louis in 1985, was suspended for three days after using abusive language to an umpire during an exhibition game.

Mesa's suspension is scheduled to start Monday when the Indians open the season against New York. His agent, Mike Powers, said Mesa plans to appeal, which means the penalty will not take effect until after a hearing.

Morris, who separated his left shoulder in the fight and is out from four to six weeks, will begin his suspension the second game after returning from the disabled list. Morris has seven days to file an appeal.

On the trade front, the Red Sox traded pitcher Daryl Irvine to the Pittsburgh Pirates for infielder Jeff Richardson.

Sen. Durenberger indicted on two felony charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. David F. Durenberger, whose 15-year congressional career has been plagued by ethical and legal troubles, was indicted Friday on two felony charges that he falsified his expense accounts to bill taxpayers for stays at a Minnesota condominium he owned.

The Minnesota Republican, his personal attorney, Michael C. Mahoney of Minneapolis, and a Durenberger associate, Paul P. Overgaard, were charged in U.S. District Court with conspiring to make false claims and with making false claims to the Senate.

If convicted on both charges, Durenberger could face a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $500,000 fine. He vowed to fight the charges and finish his term, which runs through 1994.

"I believe that fairness will prevail. So will the ideal of justice. So in the end will I," Durenberger said. "I don't expect to resign."

Durenberger branded the charges "senseless felony counts"

that are "completely false" and "the same old stuff."

Durenberger, 58, has served in the Senate since 1978. He has not said whether he plans to seek reelection in 1994.

He said the Justice Department earlier had offered to drop the charges against his friends if he would plead guilty to misdemeanors. "If the government thinks its case is that weak... it should, at the very least, forgo the indictment of my friends and quit trying to coerce me into a false confession," Durenberger told reporters at a Capitol Hill news conference.

Mahoney and Overgaard also were charged with one count each of perjury and making false statements to the government.

The Justice Department had been investigating the senator since the Senate denounced Durenberger in 1990 for ethics violations, including the condo matter.

Durenberger refused to plea bargain because he doesn't think he should be prosecuted, chief aide Rick Evans said.

Durenberger was originally elected to fill a seat vacated by the death of Hubert H. Humphrey. He earned a reputation as a thoughtful legislator and one of the Senate's leading experts on health care and environmental issues.

But ethics lapses plagued his career since the late 1980s.

The Senate Ethics Committee rebuked him in 1988 for a speech that appeared to have disclosed sensitive national security information. The Senate disciplined him two years later for the condo expense payments and a book deal he had used to launder speaking fees.

Then last fall, a Minnesota woman filed a paternity lawsuit against him, contending he raped her in 1963. He denied the charge.

The indictment returned Friday by a federal grand jury in Washington accused Durenberger and his two advisers of hiding the senator's ownership in the condominium so that he could qualify for government reimbursement while on visits home to his state in the mid-1980s.

Mahoney and Overgaard, president of Independent Service Company, a pension advisory company in Albert Lea, Minn., also were charged with perjury and making false statements to the government in depositions and affidavits given to the Senate Select Committee on Ethics.

Philip Morris fires first shot in price war

NEW YORK (AP) — Already buffeted by proposals for sharply higher taxes and more curbs on advertising, the cigarette industry faced a new threat Friday: a price war.

Philip Morris USA, the nation's biggest cigarette maker, fired the opening shot with its announcement that it plans to lower the price of its best-selling Marlboros.

Acknowledging that it's having a hard time keeping pace with lower-priced competitors, Philip Morris USA also said it planned to beef up its promotion of Marlboros, which usually cost $1 a pack more than discount cigarettes.

The moves stunned investors, who unloaded tobacco stocks in heavy trading.

The announcement came a day after federal health officials reported more blacks and women have started smoking, a development attributed to the growing popularity and availability of discount brands.

It also comes as the industry girds to fight an anticipated move to boost taxes on cigarettes and as smoking opponents call for curbs on tobacco advertising for health and safety reasons.

Philip Morris' strategy carries a heavy cost.

Operating earnings from its domestic tobacco business could fall as much as 40 percent, or nearly $2 billion, this year from the $5.2 billion the division earned last year, the company said.

The company's parent, Philip Morris Cos. Inc., which also owns food and brewing businesses, offered no estimate on how the campaign would affect its profits.

Analyst John Maxwell of Wheat First Securities in Richmond, Va., said the move could start a price war.

"I've never seen a price war in this industry before... The danger is your competitors do the same thing and you all lose," Maxwell said.

Hundreds fall for April Fools' shuttle prank

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Hundreds of people were made April Fools by a radio station that reported a space shuttle was going to do the impossible — land at Montgomery Field.

The gullible headed to the airport Thursday morning to watch what they thought would be Discovery's landing, tying up traffic for hours. Neither Discovery, nor any other shuttle, is currently in orbit.

Dave Rickards, a deejay on KGB-FM, told listeners that the shuttle was being diverted from Edwards Air Force Base for an 8:30 a.m. landing at the airport, in a crowded residential-commercial neighborhood.

Airport manager Tom Raines was furious.

"Hundreds of people were late to work. Hundreds of kids were kept out of school or were late to school," he said. "I had to shoo parents away with their video cameras, and a lot of them got really mad."

Police spokesman Bill Robinson said Friday that the radio station was being billed for the dozen officers needed to control the traffic jams to the airport.

Rickards said he was merely "looking for a good scambo for April Fools' Day. I just light these bombs, and then I run away," he said.

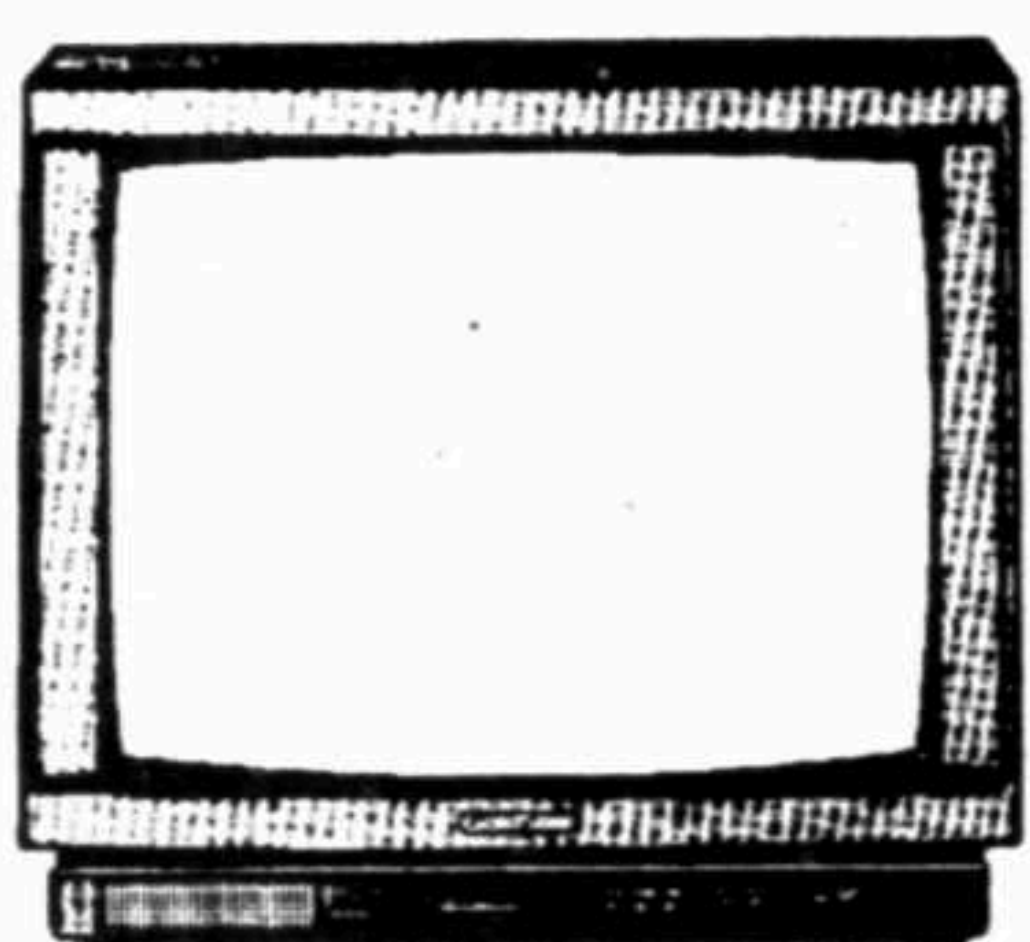

KGB general manager Tom Baker said the station was trying to be funny, "and I think Dave pulled it off."

"If we inconvenienced anybody, I'm sorry. That's not what it was intended for. It was intended as an April Fools' joke."

Even if a shuttle were in orbit (Discovery is scheduled lift off Tuesday for an eight-day mission) it would be impossible to land it at Montgomery.

'Cop' showcases 'cute' violence

By Stephen Holden
N.Y. Times News Service

The gimmick may be cute, but it is also somewhat unsettling to watch Norman D. Golden II, a child actor who suggests a pint-size Eddie Murphy, imitate a police officer in the action-adventure comedy "Cop and a Half."

In the film, Norman plays Devon Butler, a sassy third grader who has his own handcuffs and wields his red-and-gold plastic water pistol as though it were a lethal weapon. Stalking through the schoolyard with his toys, he earnestly re-enacts the clichés of police action films, grimly ordering people to "Freeze!" and warning, "You're dead meat now."

Soon enough, Devon gets his chance to play the role for real. After witnessing a murder in a warehouse, he refuses to divulge any information unless he is made a policeman. In a compromise solution, he becomes partner for a day with Nick McKenna (Burt Reynolds), a cranky middle-aged officer who claims to hate children.

Before long, the pair are being pursued with intent to kill by the drug-dealing gang that carried out the warehouse murder. Eventually, of course, Nick warms to Devon (who is being brought up by a stern but loving grandmother, Ruby Dee) and the two form a father-son bond.

Among the macho trials they survive on the way to becoming a family of sorts are a brawl in a biker bar and a boat chase in which they prepare themselves for a particularly daring stunt by singing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

In the film's most amusing scene, Devon also gets to stop one of his grade-school teachers for speeding and grills him in his best mean-cop manner. "I'm your worst nightmare," he growls, from behind over-size sunglasses. "An 8-year-old with a badge."

"Cop and a Half," which was directed by Henry Winkler, has quite a few such comic moments. The outlaw leader (Ray Sharkey) fancies himself a latter-day Dion DiMucci, and meetings with his henchmen are prefaced with an enforced group rendition of "The Wanderer."

For all its amusing touches, "Cop and a Half" is as slick and predictable, and as glib about exalting juvenile violence, as last year's family-comedy hit "3 Ninjas."

When Devon is asked how, at the age of 8, he has learned to swagger like a police officer, he breaks into a grin and boasts, "From prime-time TV."

"Cop and a Half" is rated PG (Parental guidance suggested). It has several violent scenes staged in a comic way with almost no blood.

'Huck' clear winner on the Big Muddy

By Michael H. Price
N.Y. Times News Service

Moviemaking challenges don't come much tougher than Mark Twain, whose best-known stories — the ones about Tom Sawyer and his scruffy pal, Huckleberry Finn — have been shot so often they ought to be full of holes by now.

But as the literature endures, so does the desire to find a present-day relevance in these sturdy antiques. Latest such episode is Stephen Sommers' "The Adventures of Huck Finn," a savvy re-invention more so than a remake. It arrives this weekend from the Disney company.

Thoroughly worthy of being mentioned in the same breath with the scant handful of best "Huck" films — there have been more than half a dozen over the long stretch — this version puts Elijah Wood, an 11-year-old from Iowa, in the title role.

Wood, who is best known for his impersonation of Barry Levinson in that respected filmmaker's autobio-

Gay-themed 'Cranes' gets wide support

By Peter M. Nichols
N.Y. Times News Service

Videos with gay themes often are not promoted outside a few large cities, but this month CBS/Fox is broadening that reach in a campaign for "The Lost Language of Cranes," about a father and son who each declare their homosexuality.

The tape, a BBC production shown on PBS last year, will be released in stores on June 2.

"Usually gay titles like this are kept low profile or called art films without acknowledging what they really are," said Sal Scamardo, the director of promotions at CBS/Fox. "This time we're taking the direct approach, putting it out there, saying what it is."

Scamardo and representatives of gay organizations like the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation, known as GLAAD, say that video stores could be taking advantage of a large and unserved lesbian and gay market of frequent video renters. Across the country, many of these people never have access to gay titles because stores don't carry them.

CBS/Fox is working with GLAAD and other organizations to persuade gay renters and groups to alert dealers to the demand and potential profit.

"The problem is that gays aren't as visible, so stores aren't aware of the market," said Donald Suggs, GLAAD's director of public affairs.

Other people involved with gay film and video say that bias, not unawareness, is the real reason for the shortage of gay titles outside of the largest cities. "Fear is the overriding issue; people can't even see a profit motive," said Spence Halperin, a member of Out in Film, an organization of gay and lesbian film makers.

DeVito wakes from movie hibernation

By Michael H. Price
N.Y. Times News Service

As "Batman Returns" made its cometlike sweep through the moviegoing set, registering little lasting impression beyond a spectacular flash, the excitement began building anew.

This popular ardor was not concerned with when another "Batman" would pass, but with the question of when Danny DeVito would crop up with a new movie. That time is now — the mass audience having missed out on an interim DeVito picture called "Hoffa" — and the film is "Jack the Bear."

Easily the most memorable sustained performance in "Batman Returns," after all, belongs to DeVito. In reinventing a famous comic-book villain known as the Penguin from a wisecracking buffoon to a mean-spirited freak with a tor-

DeVITO: Fans set for screen return

(From 1C)

mented soul, De Vito contributed substance to a film in which substance cannot be taken for granted.

But even though "Batman Returns" efficiently cracked the $100 million mark in paid admissions last summer, there seemed to be little enthusiasm for the picture beyond the herd instinct to patronize a sequel to a runaway hit.

DeVito, in a visit just before the short-lived new outbreak of Bat-mania, seemed to be more keenly interested in two other projects of his: "You're not gonna believe the scald we're getting on 'Hoffa,'" the actor-turned-director said, "and I've got a plain-acting job in the can called 'Jack the Bear' that'll blow people away — if they ever get a chance to see the thing, that is."

"Hoffa" was in the shooting stages just then, and DeVito — as that bio-picture's director and key support player — had every reason to expect that his admirably biased study of labor leader James R. Hoffa would take last winter's filmgoing scene by storm. "Jack the Bear," meanwhile, was known to exist — but when it would be coming out was anybody's guess.

So winter came and went, and "Hoffa," a stylishly directed piece that might reasonably have landed Jack Nicholson a Best Actor nomination at the Oscars, was virtually a forgotten film by the start of 1993.

Which leaves us with "Jack the Bear," that long-delayed drama about a family in crisis, as the handiest evidence of what Danny DeVito has been up to lately.

"Oh, it's not just my picture," DeVito said during our summer visit. "There's this terrific kid ensemble cast in it — course, you know I'm pretty much just a big kid, myself — with a really great lead performance by the kid who was in that dog movie, 'Bingo,' this Robert Steinmiller Jr. — you remember 'Bingo,' don't you?"

"Anyhow, I'm this irresponsible father, a widower, and Robert Steinmiller and this other really natural kid actor, a really little ball-of-fire kid named Miko Hughes, they're my kids in the picture, and I've got this character who has job problems, and a drinking problem, and a guilt problem over losing their mother, and there's this bad man in the neighborhood played by Gary Sinise, and — I just wish I could describe it better, 'cause it's really a great movie, and it'll be worth your waiting."

The wait ends this weekend, with Marshall Herskovitz's "Jack the Bear" coming into general release as vindication of DeVito's extravagant salesmanship. The key juvenile players, Miko Hughes and Robert J. Steinmiller Jr., had long since established their credentials — preschooler Miko in "Pet Sematary" and adolescent Steinmiller in the under-appreciated boy-meets-dog comedy "Bingo" — but "Jack" requires each boy to tap an emotional depth that none of his earlier work has demanded.

Steinmiller, 14, spoke conclusively of his commitment to acting in a visit the other day to Dallas.

"It's like I knew acting was for me the minute I got into rehearsing for this school play, just to see how it felt, a few years ago," he said. "And when my church choir director set it up for me to audition for 'Les Miserables' — and I got a part — I knew I'd found my place." (Steinmiller had the role of Gavroche in the 1989 Chicago and Philadelphia presentations of the hit musical production.)

Pursuit of the profession has yet to lure Steinmiller away from a conventional middle-class existence. He attends school in suburban Chicago, where his father, Robert Sr., manages a tire store and his mother, Stephanie Steinmiller, works for a municipal parks department. Kid sister Jessica Steinmiller also appears in "Jack the Bear."

"School life is ordinary, and that's fine with me," the actor said. "You can act without giving up a familiar way of life."

"Sometimes the kids at school'll tease me — they'll call out 'Hey, Bingo!' sometimes, 'cause of that dog movie I did — but I don't get special treatment because I haven't changed. I still do school plays, too."

Steinmiller also has landed another feature-film assignment, in David Anspaugh's forthcoming "Rudy," while waiting for "Jack the Bear" to be issued.

"These kids are the ones to watch," DeVito said. "People probably have gotten sick of watchin' me after all these years."

VIDEO: Altman works available for rent

(From 1C)

(Greta Scacchi). Using Michael Tolkin's clever and knowing screenplay, Altman, Vincent Canby wrote in The New York Times, has made "a grand Hollywood fresco."

GAS FOOD LODGING, 1992. Columbia Tri-Star. 101 minutes. R. Nora (Brooke Adams) and her daughters, Trudi (Jone Skye) and Shade (Fairuza Balk), fight to keep from being buried by their bleak lives in the dead-end town of Laramie, N.M. Mostly this consists of using the parade of men passing through or trying to make do with those males stuck in town as they are. A resilient and resourceful trio, they manage to make the best of this tawdry and at times ridiculous situation. With its clear observations, Allison Anders' film becomes "A Last Picture Show" with a feminine perspective, "a keenly observed character study of women who don't know their own strength" (Janet Maslin).

UNDER SIEGE, 1992. Warner. 120 minutes. Closed captioned. R. In Andrew Davis' freewheeling thriller, 30 men and a Miss July go aboard the battleship Missouri, presumably to help the crew throw a surprise birthday party for the skipper. Once below decks they take over the ship and, threatening to nuke Honolulu, start to sell Tomahawk missiles by cellular telephone. Business is good until along comes a ship's cook (Steven Seagal), of all people. Slashing and stabbing, Seagal hacks his way to the evil mastermind, William Strannix (Tommy Lee Jones), in a film "that is just lunatic enough to keep you watching the screen while snorting in uncertain derision" (Canby).

POLE TO POLE, 1992. Arts and Entertainment. Four cassettes, 8 hours. No rating. In a travelogue done up as an adventure story, actor Michael Palin makes his way from the North Pole to the South Pole along the 30th longitude, a route that takes him through Russia and down the length of Africa. The only rule is that until he's on the ice pack, no planes are allowed. As in another of his treks, "Around the World in 80 Days," Palin's whimsical nature leads him to encounters with Santa Claus and others on a journey both "vigorous and colorful" (Walter Goodman).

"The Player," "Nashville" and "M*A*S*H" are Robert Altman's best-known films. Here are some other Altman titles on tape.

COUNTDOWN. NASA cuts corners in a race to the moon. James Caan and Robert Duvall star. 1968. Warner. 102 minutes. No rating.

BREWSTER McCLOUD. A boy living in the Astro dome dreams of turning into a bird and is linked to a series of murders in Altman's surreal fantasy. 1970. MGM/UA. 101 minutes. R.

McCABE AND MRS. MILLER. A swaggering gambler (Warren Beatty) and a crafty prostitute (Julie Christie) write new chapters in Altman's revisionist Old West. 1971. R.

THE LONG GOODBYE. The director's loose translation of Raymond Chandler stars Elliott Gould as the private eye Philip Marlowe. 1973. MGM/UA. 113 minutes. R.

SECRET HONOR. Storming around his study, the whisky-fueled Richard M. Nixon (Philip Baxter Hall) is not that happy with Alger Hiss, Fidel Castro, Henry Kissinger or the Kennedys. 1985.

FOOL FOR LOVE. Sam Shepard hunkers down with Kim Basinger in an adaptation of Shepard's Off Broadway play. 1985. MGM/UA. 105 minutes. R.

O.C. & STIGGS. An Altman attempt at teen-age comedy produces some chaotic moments for an Arizona insurance mogul. 1987. CBS/Fox. 109 minutes. R.

VINCENT AND THEO. Tim Roth and Paul Rhys star in Altman's study, originally a television mini-series, of the van Gogh brothers. 1990. Hemdale. PG-13.

JACK: Truth resonates in film's characterizations

(From 1C)

cago stage artist Gary Sinise. If "Mockingbird" taught us to deal charitably with the misfits in our midst, "Jack the Bear" amends that caution to take into account the escalating dangers of the present day.

"Jack the Bear" is not "To Kill a Mockingbird," of course — nor even a variation on that classic novel — but it descends from the Harper Lee story as surely as Lee's artistic and spiritual ancestry can be traced back to Mark Twain and "Tom Sawyer." For Dan McCall's 1974 novel "Jack the Bear," the basis of Steven Zaillian's screenplay, taps that same vital tradition of seeking the truth through the eyes of children.

And truth resonates throughout "Jack the Bear," which tells of a lonely, self-destructive widowed father (DeVito), the sons (Steinmiller and Hughes) whom he fears losing even as he risks driving them away, and the deteriorating neighborhood where joys are hard-won and threats are ever-present.

DeVito is a middle-aged Peter Pan, a TV-show personality who specializes in eccentric characters and seems incapable of turning off the make-believe when off duty. Steinmiller is the man of the household for practical purposes, and Hughes is the energetic preschooler whose inquisitive nature triggers the film's key crisis.

Delicately balanced between robust humor and dire foreboding, the film trades largely on the family's strained closeness, revealing by subtle degrees the circumstances under which DeVito's character lost his wife (played in heartbreaking flashbacks by Andrea Marcovicci). The sons experience dizzying changes, particularly when Steinmiller's premature discovery of romance coincides with the realization that his father is sinking fast.

Gary Sinise, who directed and co-starred in 1992's under-appreciated remake of "Of Mice and Men," bolsters the dramatic tension as the un-neighboring neighbor who seems like a marginally OK, sort of pathetic, guy until he shows up one Halloween evening with a disturbing message. The harassment escalates to a state of crisis, which the movie must be allowed to reveal in its own good time.

As densely populated as "Jack" is with strong masculine presences, it falls to Andrea Marcovicci, as the ghostly wife-and-mother figure who torments DeVito's memories, to convey the point. The mission is to state a case for reconciliation, of learning to live with oneself before attempting compatibility, and few films of recent times have conveyed this personal urgency as sharply as "Jack the Bear."

"Jack the Bear" is rated PG-13 for mature subject matter and language.

the worried ex-wife he's determined to visit. R. Rating: 3 stars
A FAR OFF PLACE: Alternately too violent or too slow for kids, this family drama about two kids and their native guide escaping from murderous African poachers plays a little like an African version of "The Night of the Hunter," only with a boring villain. Adults will likely find the movie rather pedestrian and film with grating lapses in logic. Preceded by the fairly amusing Roger Rabbit short "Trail Mix-Up." PG. Rating: 2 stars

FOREVER YOUNG: Mel Gibson is at his most matinee-idol adorable as a daredevil test pilot who, in 1939, demands to be a guinea pig in a top-secret cryogenics experiment. He's supposed to be in deep freeze for a year; instead, our sleeping beauty wakes up 50 years later — in a brave new world of answering machines, Thighmasters and fatherless kids (Elijah Wood) with plucky moms (Jamie Lee Curtis). PG. Rating: 2 stars

HEAR NO EVIL: "Wait Until Dark" retold for Marlee Matlin, so the jeopardized heroine is deaf rather than blind. The new approach doesn't work as well — there's always a 50-50 chance that she'll turn and see the killer sneaking up on her, which she almost always does. Some nice behavior as she falls in love with D.B. Sweeney's hearing mystery-solver, but little suspense and lots of plot and character inconsistencies. R. Rating: 2 stars

HOME ALONE 2: LOST IN NEW YORK: The same movie as the all-time comedy hit, but it cost more. This time, Macaulay Culkin defends Manhattan against the hapless crooks played by Joe Pesci and Daniel Stern, but it's amazing how little invention writer John Hughes and director Chris Columbus fit onto the presumably wider canvas. "Another Christmas in the trenches," the 12-year-old hero mutters at one point. Parents whose undiscerning kids drag them to this will know exactly what he means. PG. Rating: 2 stars

HOWARDS END: This tragicomic examination of Edwardian England class interaction is superbly acted (Emma Thompson, Anthony Hopkins, Helena Bonham Carter, Vanessa Redgrave). PG. Rating: 4 stars

PETER'S FRIENDS: Despite a number of killer lines, this British "Big Chill" for the '80s isn't clever or character-developed enough to rise above amusing status. Director Kenneth Branagh and co-writer Rita Rudner give themselves the best roles, as a self-loathing TV writer and his Hollywood horror wife, who headlines his ghastly sitcom. NR. Rating: 2 stars

POINT OF NO RETURN: This virtual scene-for-scene remake of 1990's "La Femme Nikita" has maybe one advantage over the earlier movie — no subtitles. Otherwise, it's the same implausible hokum, with Bridget Fonda playing a sociopathic punk transformed into a steely, sophisticated assassin by a secret government agency. Some campy moments and over-the-top melodrama has been added, which, if not exactly helping, certainly doesn't hurt. R. Rating: 2 stars

TEENAGE MUTANT NINJA TURTLES III: More of the same, only more confusing. Writer/director Stuart Gillard, thinking he'll go artsy on us and make a reptilian "Yojimbo," slapped together this muddle concerning time travel, 17th-century Japan, corrupt gunrunners, social rebellion and bonding with kids. PG-13. Rating: 1 and a half stars

UNFORGIVEN: Clint Eastwood's finest achievement is an unflinching examination of the price paid for violence and other dysfunctions of the American character. Finally giving a soul and a fate to his Man With No Name, the director plays a decrepit ex-gunslinger out to earn one last bounty. Gene Hackman, Morgan Freeman and Richard Harris are the other old guns in this most grievous and intelligent western. R. Rating: 4 stars

UNTAMED HEART: Understated direction and terrific performances, particularly Marisa Tomei's sensitive, heart-rending work, buoy this otherwise humdrum weepie about two lonely hearts making good. Tomei stars as a Minneapolis diner waitress unlucky at love; Christian Slater plays a painfully shy, socially awkward bus boy with a congenital heart problem. PG-13. Rating: 3 stars

HUCK: 11-year-old Wood enlivens Finn's struggle

graphical picture "Avalon," suffers from the same sweet-faced screen presence that handicapped Mickey Rooney in the 1939 "Huck." But like Rooney, Wood acquits himself with a scrappy portrayal that renders the baby-faced appearance beside the point. Junior Durkin, of Paramount Pictures' 1930-31 matched set of "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," remains the best impersonator of the famous Mississippi River urchin, but Wood comes close enough.

Wood is especially good at struggling with the moral issues raised by Mark Twain, and he works beautifully with stage veteran Courtney B. Vance, as the escaped slave who shares Huck's excursion in search of freedom. Huck wants to get away from his abusive father (Ron Perlman, in a terrifying brief portrayal), and Jim wants to travel to a slavery-free region so he can lift his family out of bondage.

As the chums proceed, Huck's limited understanding of human rights gets expanded by Jim's sensible philosophizing. Director Sommers' screenplay never preaches, using subtlety instead to bring out Twain's arguments for common decency; the pacing is a delight, with as many twists as the Mississippi has bends.

Vance gives Jim a pleasing mixture of enthusiasm and dignity, registering perfectly the character's shifting moods of elation, desperation and impatience. Just as delightful are Jason Robards and Robbie Coltrane as the confidence artists who team up with Jim and Huck for one lengthy misadventure.

The film is a lustrous wonder, benefiting especially from Bill Conti's elegant orchestral score and Janusz Kaminski's sparkling camerawork.

"The Adventures of Huck Finn" is rated PG for some scattered rude language and violence.

'Crush' treads familiar path to lukewarm thrills

By Bob Strauss

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — With both Alfred Hitchcock and Amy Fisher to borrow from these days, thriller makers don't have to do any thinking at all.

At least, those like Alan Shapiro don't. His feature writing and directing debut, "The Crush," is an efficient, erotic gut-churner that doesn't have a single original idea to its name.

It's also pretty preposterous from the get-go; Shapiro's talent rests solely in his ability to make everything old seem less creaky than it really is.

Bland Cary Elwes plays bland investigative reporter Nick Eliot, who has just arrived in that hotbed of magazine activity Seattle for a job at trendy Pique magazine.

Since, one presumes, all available residential space has been scooped up by runaway Californians, he's forced to move into the garage apartment behind Liv and Cliff Forrester's (Gwyneth Walsh and Kurtwood Smith) posh, suburban home.

The Forresters are busy professional types who love, but don't supervise much, their adorable 14-year-old, near-genius piano-prodigy daughter Darian (Drew Barrymore look-and-act-alike Alicia Silverstone).

Darian surreptitiously rewrites Nick's first story in a way that pleases his demanding editor. She suns herself at a perfectly in-eye-shot place beneath his window. She knows much more than a nice girl should about the attack patterns of wasps.

Dopey Nick eventually rebuffs the eager Lolita's come-ons, although he still somehow manages to wind up peaking through the slats of her bedroom closet while she prepares to take a bath.

Of course, the brilliant, sexually aggressive kid turns out to be a psycho, lots of people get hurt, and Nick gets framed.

Smith has a few moments of droll, overprotective patering, and Silverstone, while not up to Barrymore speed, is both alluring and competent well beyond her years.

Shapiro claims that this movie was inspired by an experience he actually had with a brainy and insistent young woman. If true, she must have seen a lot of old movies. Or been named Amy.

I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.
Philippians 4:13

Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.
Hebrews 11:1

I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.
John 6:35

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THREE WISE MEN?

ANY ONE WHO EVER ATTENDED A CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION, PUT ON BY THE SUNDAY SCHOOL KIDS, KNOWS THAT THE WISE MEN WHO FOLLOWED THE STAR FROM THE EAST TO WORSHIP THE INFANT JESUS WERE THREE KINGS NAMED MELCHIOR, GASPER, AND BELTHAZAR, RIGHT? ...WRONG!

NOWHERE IN THE BIBLE DOES IT STATE HOW MANY THERE WERE, WHAT THEIR RANK WAS, NOR THEIR NAMES! IN MATTHEW, THE ACCOUNT MERELY SAYS THEY WERE WISE MEN FROM THE EAST (MATT 2:1). IN LUKE, ONLY SHEPHERDS ARE MENTIONED (LUKE 2:8-15)....

...THEY WERE NOT DESCRIBED AS KINGS UNTIL THE 6TH CENTURY A.D. AND, SINCE THREE GIFTS HAD BEEN GIVEN—GOLD, FRANKINCENSE, AND MYRRH—SOMEONE DECIDED THE "KINGS" MUST HAVE BEEN THREE IN NUMBER! BUT NOT UNTIL THE 8TH CENTURY WERE THEY NAMED MELCHIOR, GASPER, AND BELTHAZAR—BY WHOM, AND BY WHAT AUTHORITY, WE'LL NEVER KNOW!

SAVE THIS FOR YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL SCRAPBOOK.

NEXT WEEK: LAMP UNTO MY FEET!

THIS DEVOTIONAL AND DIRECTORY IS MADE POSSIBLE BY THESE BUSINESSES WHO ENCOURAGE ALL OF US TO ATTEND WORSHIP SERVICES.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You need to be more disciplined where your work is concerned. Refuse to be distracted from your goals. Only steady effort will land you that position you covet. Heed the business advice you receive from experts. Romance becomes more fulfilling during the summer months. Keep your feet planted firmly on the ground. December is the best time for vacation travel. Your intuition will tell you the ideal place to go.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Eddie Murphy, actresses Doris Day and Marsha Mason, singer Tony Orlando.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Behind-the-scenes maneuvers could thrust you into the spotlight today, boosting your professional prestige. Do not let a co-worker's comments ruin these good vibes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pleasures, possibly treasures, await you in a faraway land. Shape the future with careful planning. Taking a fresh approach to an old problem works beautifully.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Marital harmony is strong. Couples draw closer together. Try to accommodate a young person's wishes. Review your personal finances. Limit spending on entertainment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The idea that there may be more money where a windfall came from is wrong. Accept your good fortune without getting greedy. If your mate takes a practical stand, go along.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): By collaborating more closely with your allies, any obstacles will quickly be removed. An original approach works best. Get in touch with friends you have not seen recently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A close friend helps you turn a quick profit. Remember to return the favor in the near future. Plan an overnight trip. An older person enjoys babying you and you love it!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Gaining ground in one direction may mean losing it in another. Take a closer look at spending to see where you can save money. If fatigue sets in, cancel non-essential activities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Those who have a good reputation and an A-plus credit rating can consider themselves in clover. Friends will play an important role in any major decisions you make now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good day for conferences regarding new investments. A change of personnel works in your favor. An unexpected windfall gives you cause for celebration. Financial worries disappear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A stroke of good luck could lead to a real bonanza. Your concern for your family is most admirable. You will feel better about yourself once you get rid of certain inhibitions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not give up on your goals or allies, even if their prospects appear dim. Unknown factors give you an edge in sports activities and financial transactions. A good day for shopping.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Something that you intended to acquire has a steep price tag. Luck comes to those looking for better ways of communicating. Conducting more than one romance at a time could cause trouble.

Oscar-winning filmmaker looks to make cinema center

PRAGUE, Czech Republic — Milos Forman is joining 26 Czech filmmakers in a project to convert the Barrandov studios from a producer of Communist fare to a hotspot of film production.

Forman, the Oscar-winning, Czech-born director of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Amadeus," moved to the United States after Russian tanks crushed the "Prague Spring" reforms in 1968.

Forman told reporters Friday his venture into Czech production is "deeply irrational."

"I have always refused to even co-produce the films I was directing," Forman said. "But I have a soft spot for Barrandov." He made his debut there in the 1960s.

Forman said he plans no part in the company's business activities.

"If I can help to open a few doors, set up some contacts, that's fine," he said. The 150-acre studios were built in Prague by the family of President Vaclav Havel before World War II. Vaclav Marhouk acquired them and assembled the filmmakers and others in the movie business to join him in ownership.

"I value my role as a father and husband first and foremost, and it's a family decision," he said.

Five miles southwest of downtown Chicago, Bridgeport was once a vastly Irish-American enclave. Hispanics now make up much of the population.

Daley wouldn't say where he might move with his wife, Maggie, and their three children.

NEW YORK — Beethoven, Chopin, Brahms, Ravel ... and Billy Joel?

The songwriter said he immersed himself in classical music before writing and recording his new album.

The album, nearly completed, is due out by early summer. It includes the songs "Lullaby in G" and "A Minor Variation."

But Joel's producer, Danny Kortchmar, said the album is rock 'n' roll in the style of the Beatles, one of the bands Joel played in as a teenager.

"This is not what you might expect," Kortchmar said. "It's not overthought or overproduced. It's a real straight-ahead thing."

The album, "River of Dreams," is Joel's first in four years.

PHOENIX — Barry Goldwater took photographs of everything from landscapes to Indians in his native Arizona and is donating 1,000 shots to a museum.

The color slides being given to the Heard Museum date to the 1930s.

Goldwater started taking pictures as a boy, but said his passion for photography began in 1934 when his late wife, Peggy, gave him an Eastman camera for Christmas.

It went with him everywhere: camping in the wilds, piloting his airplane or wearing a Santa Claus suit to hand out gifts to Navajo children.

The Heard is noted for its collection of artifacts documenting the history of Indians in the Southwest.

"This collection is literally priceless," Heard Director Martin Sullivan said of Goldwater's photos. "These are some marvelous, very visually powerful images. Also they provide a snapshot of changes over the years of Arizona's native population."

Goldwater, who retired from the Senate in 1986, unsuccessfully ran as the Republican nominee for president in 1964.

Anderson

NEW YORK — Terry Anderson, the journalist who spent nearly seven years as a hostage in Beirut, and Madeleine Bassil will be married April 18.

"It will be very small, very private," Bassil said Friday. The wedding will be at the couple's home in suburban Yonkers.

Anderson and Bassil have a 7-year-old daughter.

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press at the time of his kidnapping, was freed in December 1991. He has resigned from the AP, is a fellow at the Gannett Freedom Forum at Columbia University and is finishing a book about his experiences. A television miniseries also is in the works.

CHICAGO — The Bridgeport neighborhood without a Chicago mayor living in it would be like the Vatican without a pope. But Mayor Richard M. Daley says his family is thinking about moving.

The working-class neighborhood has been home to the Daley clan for more than a century. Daley's late father, Richard J. Daley, who ruled Chicago as mayor for nearly 20 years, lived in Bridgeport, as did three other mayors.

But Daley told reporters Thursday, "We are considering a move."
