ATTENDING TWIRLING CAMP

Attending band and twirling camp at West Texas State College for two weeks are all five majorettes from Burkburnett High School. They are Kathy Reasoner, Marilyn Groenewold, Ruby Renfro, Candy Logan and Joy Roberts.

Ruby Renfro, the only senior, is drum major for the second year. Marilyn Groenewold and Joy Roberts are juniors and the two new majorettes, Candy Logan and Kathy Reasoner are freshmen.

Too many anglers fail to get the full benefit of their fishing tackle. Why? Because they don't use it enough.

Many times you can't get out on the water when you want too.

But there's always the backyard.

Try it sometime. It's known as dry casting . . . and there are extra dividends.

Most of the best casters spend long hours dry casting. It serves many purposes, not the least of which is getting acquainted with their fishing equipment.

Since most of us must make a living we can't always get on the water every time we would like to. Also most of the fishing we do is in the daytime.

You Can Dry Cast Anytime

But you can practice casting anytime — day or night. Some of it you can do in the house. That is if the Mrs. will let you get by with it.

In addition to getting acquainted with your tackle — getting the feel of it and knowing just what it will do — you can develop accuracy that will save many a plug for you.

There isn't a fisherman who hasn't at one time or another hung a plug in the top of a tree. But the man who spends a few hours practice casting is less likely to spend his fishing time climbing trees.

Tree hanging also is an excellent way to break a rod.

A fisherman I know was in the boat with a companion who had a brand new rod. He made a cast with his buddy's rod. But something slipped . . . and the lure dangled from the limb of a pecan tree.

Instead of pulling on the line and breaking it, he gave about three yanks with the rod and it snapped . . . much to his chagrin and expense.

Later on his compadre hung his plug in a tree in much the same manner. He put his rod down on the cowl of the boat, intending to pull on the line. Just then a fast boat passed. Its wake rocked his boat and the rod went into the water. So there he was . . . his rod in the water and his plug in a tree. It can happen to anyone! In fact, it has happened to nearly everyone.

Recently one of the best fishermen I know was out after trout in Laguna Madre. He was sitting in the front of the boat, looking back. A trout hit and took out for deep water in front of the boat. My friend tried to stop the run with his rod without turning around. It bent and snapped at the ferrule.

Learn the Right Way

While backyard casting will not eliminate all the hazards of fishing, it will give you certain practice in handling the equipment which will pay off.

In the first place you need to start out right. If you are not sure of the correct hold, you can find illustrations in most fishing publications or the little booklets that accompany your rod and reel. Study these instructions first. Then follow them. They were prepared by men who really know.

After you learn to cast right, then you can begin deviation for convenience.

Learn to cast with a flip of the wrist. Most rods today have plenty of quality built into them. Used properly, they will throw a plug as far as you need to, without the necessity of your giving it a push with your body.

Dry casting can stop or prevent you from being a side-winder — one who holds the rod out to one side and swings the whole arm and sometimes the whole body. That is a dangerous fisherman to be around. There just isn't room in a boat for two of this kind.

Wrist Action Important

Practice over and over the art of using your wrist to develop rod action. If too many years of the wrong type of casting make almost impossible for your casting arm to quit working, try casting with the other arm.

One man used a short reel rod for many years, with heavy line and a slow reel. This caused him to cast with his body. No one ever was able to teach him otherwise.

Then someone suggested he try left-handed casting. Much to his amazement it worked from the start. Now he is a proficient left-handed caster. He learned to do it the right way by practicing in the backyard.

TIME CHANGE

The worship services will begin at 8:15 a. m. The Sunday School will continue to meet at the usual hour of 9:15 a. m. The time of worship services will again be at 10:30 a. m., starting on August 18th.

Rotary District Governor In Burk Tuesday, July 23

Dr. J. Harold Farmer of Denton, Texas, governor of district 579 of Rotary International, arrives next Tuesday, July 23rd to visit the local Rotary Club, one of the 41 clubs in his district. In addition to addressing Burkburnett Rotarians at their meeting, he will confer with Al Lohofener, president of the Rotary Club; George Counter, secretary and other club officers on Rotary administrative matters and service activities on Monday evening.

Dr. Farmer is with North Texas State University in Denton and is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Denton. He was elected a district governor for 1963-64 at Rotary's 54th Annual Convention in St. Louis, Missouri, last June. He is one of 272 district governors responsible for supervising the activities of more than 11,500 Rotary Clubs with a total membership of 535,500 Rotarians in 129 countries around the globe.

"The visit of the governor," the president of the local club said, "is a time for examining the effectiveness of what we are doing to achieve Rotary goals in community improvement, in youth work, in raising the standards of our businesses and professions, and in doing what we can as a Rotary Club and as individual Rotarians to help further international understanding."

As the governor of this Rotary district, Dr. Farmer supervises the organization of new clubs in his area. Last year, more than 300 new Rotary clubs were organized in 46 countries, with clubs being formed for the first time in the West African country of Sierra Leone.

Before assuming his duties as district governor, Dr. Farmer attended an eight-day meeting at Lake Placid, New York, held to assist Rotary governors to meet the duties of their office.

Texas Traffic Deaths Expected To Reach All-Time High in '63

The Highway Patrol investigated seventeen rural traffic accidents in Wichita County during the month of June according to Sergeant E. L. Stroud, Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These wrecks accounted for one person killed, 14 persons injured and an estimated property damage in the amount of $4,675.00.

The Sergeant stated that this brings the total for the year thus far in Wichita County to 95 accidents that claimed two lives, injured 59 people and caused property damage of $44,994.00.

For a comparison, the Patrol Supervisor pointed to accidents in this county for the first six months of 1962 that accounted for four deaths, 52 injuries, and property damage of $45,481.00.

"Prior to July 1, there had been a total of 941 fatal accidents in Texas," Sergeant Stroud said. "That took the lives of 1,136 persons."

"As the year is over half gone, there are definite indications that traffic deaths will hit an all-time high in 1963. Motorcycles at this time are over 100 more than at the same time last year," the Sergeant said. "If we continue to take lives at the present rate, 1963 will become the most deadly year in Texas history for traffic fatalities. Considering the trend of increased accidents and casualties, we have every reason to expect that traffic deaths will exceed the previous all time high in Texas of 2611 in 1956."

"Only 191 more deaths in 1963 than in 1962 will make a total of 2612 deaths, an all-time high and an increase for the year of eight per cent over 1962. Deaths this year have consistently been in excess of eight per cent over 1962."

The Patrol Sergeant stated, "This is not just a probability, it is fairly certain to become a reality unless the motoring public becomes more thoughtful in regard to complying with all traffic laws which would break the trend."

Completes Training In Camp Pendleton

Marine Private First Class Robert L. Engel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Engle of 126 Rose Avenue, Burkburnett, recently completed "lock-on" training with the Second Battalion, Seventh Marine Regiment, First Marine Division at Camp Pendleton, California.

"Lock-on" is the name given to a six-week period of intensive training which progresses from basic tactics of the fire team and squad to the complex maneuvers of the company and battalion.

Infantry battalions of the First Marine Division periodically undergo this training to bring new infantrymen up to combat-ready standards. During this period the infantrymen receive instruction and practice in scouting and patrolling, counter-guerrilla warfare and helicopter movements. The Marines also fire flame throwers, mortars and rocket launchers.

This constant training helps ensure the high degree of preparedness required of the Marine Corps in fulfilling its role as the nation's "force-in-readiness."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Todd and children of Sweetwater visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Todd and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Beckham here a few days last week. The Todds were enroute home from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Beckham in Wentzville, Missouri.

FBI REACHED ALL-TIME HIGH IN FISCAL YEAR

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy announced today that according to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, new all-time highs were recorded in FBI accomplishments in all major phases of operations during the 1963 fiscal year.

Mr. Hoover disclosed in his report to the Attorney General that fines, savings and recoveries in cases investigated by the FBI during this period reached a new peak of $186,225,348 — a figure representing a return of $1.37 for every dollar appropriated for the FBI. A new record was also set for the eighth successive year with the location of 19,192 stolen motor vehicles in FBI cases.

During the past fiscal year, convictions in FBI cases increased to 12,816, the largest number for any peace-time fiscal year. Mr. Hoover noted that convictions were recorded against 96.1 per cent of all persons brought to trial and that 93 per cent of these resulted from guilty pleas. As a result of these convictions, slightly over 37,000 years of actual, suspended and probationary sentences were meted out. In addition, seven life sentences were imposed.

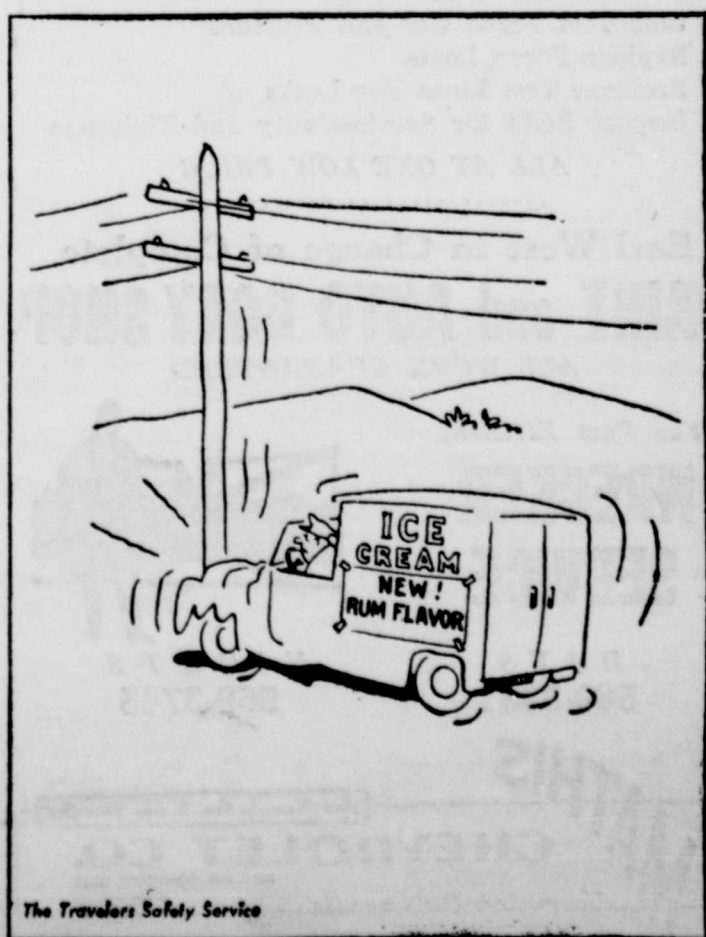

According to Mr. Hoover, a total of 11,887 FBI fugitives were located an increase of 724 over the previous year. Included in this number were nine members of the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" list and 2,514 violators of the Fugitive Felon Act who were being sought at the request of state and local authorities after they had fled across state lines to avoid prosecution, custody or confinement.

Commenting on internal security investigations, Mr. Hoover pointed out that as a result of evidence developed and witnesses supplied by the FBI, the Communist Party, USA, was convicted in December, 1962, for failure to register with the Attorney General under the Internal Security Act of 1950, and a maximum fine of $120,000 was imposed. Following this action, two national leaders of this organization were indicted for failure to register for the Party and 27 additional petitions were filed with the Subversive Activities Control Board against individuals who failed to register as required by law. In addition, intelligence and counterintelligence information disseminated by the FBI enabled the Department of State to take action against Soviet and satellite officials who engaged in activities beyond the scope of their duties in the United States.

Continuing its long-standing policy, the FBI made its cost-free cooperative services available to Federal, state and local law enforcement agencies. In

BOA Constrictor On Liberties

For many years it has been necessary for the publicly regulated, heavily taxed, electric utility industry to devote much of its energy opposing the encroachment of "socialized" powers which are designed to ultimately bring about, on a step by step basis, a government monopoly of electric service, tax free, and subsidized in a dozen different ways by all the tax payers.

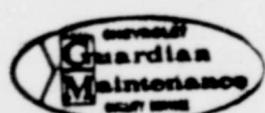

This utility industry counteroffensive has met with a heartening measure of success. That was the keynote of the 31st annual convention of the Edison Electric Institute which was recently held in Denver. Long and hard as the fight has been, it was stressed, the results are beginning to show. The industry is particularly encouraged by President Kennedy's statement in which he said that when a choice is to be made of government or private construction and financing of some given project "the burden of proof should be on the federal government."

The margin of success the industry has earned in this struggle should please overburdened taxpayers. We have developed 34 percent of the world's power capacity with only 6 percent of the world's population. Great new systems are coming into use, are under construction, or are in the blueprint stage, designed to make the most of all feasible fuels—coal, oil, water, nuclear energy. In the next 20 years enormous new investments will have to be made by the industry — about $140 billion. Particular stress will be laid on research and the search for new and valuable ideas.

Anyone who wants socialized power, which digs deep and needlessly into the pockets of all the taxpayers even as it acts as a boa constrictor on their liberties, has the right to espouse it. But who can say we need it?

OXFORD, NEB., STANDARD: "The progress of the future is linked to freedom of thought and freedom of speech. Consequently, those who seek the truth should vigorously oppose any effort to curb them or circumscribe the right of man to formulate his own thoughts and express them freely to others."

BRIDGEWATER, S. D., TRIBUNE: "We get a sinking feeling in our stomachs as we read that in a survey among high school students on the question 'Who contributes most toward improved living standards—business, government or union leaders?—business ran a poor third.'"

Accent on Health

J. E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Many people suffer from "mid-morning hunger" — a better revise your eating habits, State Health Department nutritionists advise. More people are turning to the habit of skimping on breakfast. Surveys have shown that two out of every three children leave for school without breakfast, and four out of five workers leave for work without eating.

"Morning hunger" is the feeling which comes from inadequate breakfast. Usually feel weak and by mid-morning. They are hungry, yet have no lunch. Or, if they are eat a big lunch, they are sleepy by early afternoon.

nutritionists say, calls for the "patient" to eat a solid breakfast. The extent of breakfast consumption varies from person to person. Individuals with special problems or modified diets can be guided by their physician.

Many Texas teachers and school nurses place special emphasis on breakfast. One school nurse had a breakfast contest in the elementary grade. Near the end of the school year a mother telephoned to report on the improved breakfast habits and general well being of the whole family. Before the contest, the mother said, none of the family ate breakfast. Her child, involved in the school breakfast contest, insisted on having a good breakfast. Eventually it caught on and the whole family began eating breakfast and feeling better.

It is a false idea that skipping breakfast is a good way to reduce. If anything, this highly injurious practice adds pounds. It works like this:

Skip breakfast and by noon you have lost your appetite or else are afraid to eat for fear of being groggy all afternoon. Then for supper you eat the food your body has been demanding all day. Now you go to bed and your supper is converted into fat rather than energy as would have been the case had you eaten properly during hours of greatest activity.

An adequate breakfast pattern can be adapted to any age, budget or cultural pattern: fruit or fruit juice, protein-rich food — such as eggs, cheese, meat or beans — bread or cereal and milk.

If time is a prohibitive factor, some preparations can be made the night before — setting the table fixing the coffee pot, etc.

Breakfast eating is a part of a pattern of daily life that will pay dividends in a higher level of health and well being.

Talk Not the Cure . . . Too many of us prefer to talk about politics rather than to do something to correct the evils about which we talk.

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS

From The American Medical Association

Farm Safety

It really isn't news to those who live and work in rural areas that farming can be a hazardous occupation. Farm accidents are a constant threat, not only to life and limb, but also to livelihood. The injured farmer can't work, and the crops and farm animals won't wait for him to recover.

Earlier this year the American Medical Association sponsored the First National Congress on Farm Safety. Hundreds of leaders in farm health and safety programs from scores of private organizations and government agencies spent several days studying the farm safety problem and seeking ways and means of helping the farmer to stave off accidents.

Next in the farm safety campaign comes National Farm Safety Week, proclaimed by President Kennedy for the week of July 21-27. Once again rural leaders will strive to help farmers learn how to avoid accidents.

Inspection, Correction and Protection are the three keynote themes of National Farm Safety Week. Farmers are urged to inspect equipment, land, buildings, and their own work habits and attitudes. They are urged to correct dangerous conditions and careless habits. By so doing, farmers can protect lives, their own and others.

Farm resident accidents cause 9,000 deaths and 800,000 disabling injuries every year. These statistics are appalling, because most of these deaths and injuries could have been prevented. And the statistics do not convey the grief, loneliness and pain involved in accidents.

Accidents don't just happen, they are caused. More than 90 per cent of all accidents involve some human failure — improper attitudes, carelessness, lack of attention to rules and regulations. American physicians, particularly those who practice in rural areas, are well aware of the serious problem of the farm accidents. Thus physicians, through their professional association, the AMA, have long been in the forefront of farm safety programs.

Farmer — once again your physician urges you to inspect, correct and protect. It might save your life, or the life of one of your loved ones.

TRILLION FEET

The nation's first sawmill started turning our rough pine boards at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1608. Since then, more than a trillion board feet of Southern Pine lumber have been produced — enough to build 100,000,000 homes.

FISHING FROM LOGS

Sure, you can fish from logs, but a better way is to KEEP a fishing log. Write down where, when, how. Record weather, barometer, water and air temperature. List how many you caught, what size and what they were feeding on. The next season, you'll have a record of when to fish and when not to. It even works if you follow the maximum. The best time to go fishing is when you can.

I have traveled widely myself, having been to most of the important countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain. Never have I taken a trip without coming home with the feeling that I have learned a great deal that I could not possibly have learned any other way. If you want to take a trip yourself, or if you want to give a trip to a relative as a gift, I advise you to deal with a travel agency in or near a city close to where you live. Details will be taken care of for you, whether the trip is to be by ship, plane, or some of each. You will find that you can often get alternative possibilities, making the actual decisions later. Your local travel agency will keep you posted.

this regard, a total of 3,801 local and regional police training schools were held which were attended by approximately 105,000 officers. In addition, there were two sessions of the FBI National Academy during fiscal year 1963, bringing the total number of graduates to 4,354.

The FBI Laboratory achieved new highs with the receipt of 196,057 specimens of evidence which required 247,894 scientific examinations. The FBI Identification Division, which serves as the national repository for fingerprint identifying data, received an average of almost 23,000 fingerprint cards for processing each working day throughout the 12-month period. As the fiscal year ended, its files contained 167,397,932 sets of fingerprints representing an estimated 77,387,801 persons. Additionally, the FBI Disaster Squad, a group of fingerprint experts who are available to assist in identifying bodies of disaster victims, was dispatched to the scenes of five air crashes during the period.

Mr. Hoover also reported that approximately 130,000 items of criminal intelligence information were disseminated by the FBI to other law enforcement agencies during the 1963 fiscal year. Included were items received from FBI confidential informants which, when passed to the authorities concerned, resulted in the arrests of almost 3,400 persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie McDonald of Smyrna, Georgia, are the proud parents of a baby boy, Neil Rice, born Friday, July 12th.

Heat, Humidity Tire Hear Keep Cool, Advises Doctor

"Air conditioning has been one of the big improvements in the health of man in this country," according to cardiologist Dr. George E. Burch. He's all for it to keep the heart from overworking during heat waves and long, hot summer months.

Keeping patients with heart disease alive longer is a principal interest of Dr. Burch, Henderson Professor of Medicine at Tulane University, New Orleans.

Using rooms in which any climate can be simulated, and aided by other equipment, Dr. Burch has made a study of how patients react to a hot, humid environment.

In an interview on NBC's Today show during its visit to Tulane, Dr. Burch described his findings. "One of the things that happens in heat and high humidity is that the cardiovascular system is strained, the circulation increases and cardiac output rises, and there is a great deal of extra work for the heart," he said.

If a person has heart disease, a hot, humid environment or a sudden rise in temperature can throw him into serious difficulty, he added.

These dangers can be avoided by reducing heat generation and increasing heat elimination, he stated. "One way to lose heat more rapidly, of course, is to make use of fans and air conditioning, to try to find cool areas, to stay in the shade, and the like. And to reduce heat production, one has to reduce the amount of muscular activity in the body," he pointed out.

"Some patients, of course, can't afford to air condition their whole homes," Dr. Burch said, "so what we try to do is make it possible for them to sleep well at night, and advise them to air-condition their bedrooms or the areas of the house where they spend most of their time. Room air conditioners are adapted for these purposes. They remove air conditioners ventilate and dehumidify as well as cool. Living humidity is an important factor in comfort and health for patients, and the new models can move from 1 1/2 to more than 3 1/2 of moisture from the air per hour depending on cooling capacity. Air conditioners come in a range of cooling capacities from 4 BTUs to more than 12,000 BTUs per hour. As combination coolers and dehumidifiers, they balance elements of coolness and dryness the air to healthful levels.

What Type Driving Is Toughest—High Speed Or "Hacking Around?"

Hard-Driving Harry, the burly salesman who covers three states, may not punish his car nearly so much as his ninety pound wife does hers.

Harry hurries along the turnpikes at the legal limit, but his car thrives on such driving. It was designed for long runs with few starts and stops of the engine.

Today, however, more than 80 per cent of all motor trips are under ten miles. Harry's wife drives such short trips every day—to school and to market, and this is the type of driving that is toughest on an automobile engine and oil.

For one thing, the engine rarely gets up to the proper operating temperature intended by the manufacturer and this inhibits proper circulation of engine lubricating oil.

Also, when you start a cold engine, the choke feeds the engine a rich mixture—lots of gas and little air. Though required for starting, the rich mixture of ten results in a residue of unburned gasoline that trickles into the lubricating oil to dilute and contaminate it. In addition, water condensed from air which the engine "breathes" or which condenses from air in the passenger tank, can add to the contamination. Other engine irritants can exist in the oil including catalyst particles.

How to combat these damaging conditions? Although it is difficult and sometimes impossible to change day-to-day driving patterns, it helps if you can get the car out for a long run occasionally.

When a car is driven at highway speeds for about ten miles or more, many contaminants are expelled from the exhaust as the engine oil warms to lubricate properly and to exercise a cleaning effect.

Since short haul driving remains a necessity, however, the best way to combat the wear caused by your engine is by adherence to a proper schedule of changes. Removing and replacing the crankcase oil is a simple and effective way to remove contaminants. The fresh oil contains additives your engine needs, which may have been depleted in the old oil.

What is a proper oil change schedule? Every 30 days in winter and 60 days in summer, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Your car's engine will run better, stay cleaner, and last longer. Their recommendation is a good rule, both for brand new cars and those that are new.

First Aid For Spots And Spills

Did Junior spill soda pop on the carpet? Or grind gum into the chair upholstery? Solutions to these and other spot cleaning problems are contained in the new, streamlined First-Aid Kit by ServiceMaster, world-wide professional care organization. Designed to meet the needs of modern housekeeping, the kit's turquoise and white carrying case has a fold-down front for easy access to the cleaning materials—particularly handy in case of emergencies.

A "Dial-A-Spot" disc on the inner case cover shows how to use the cleaners, paying off at each spin with information on how to treat various stains and spills. In all, the "Dial-A-Spot" chart has directions for removing 55 different spots.

The kit's five solutions specially formulated for wool and unlimited use on wood, cotton and synthetic fibers. For Fresh, for example, is for removing food stains and grease spotting. Other products specifically designed to remove blood and pet accidents, due to baby or pet accidents, treat ink and dye spots; remove obstinate stains such as paint, tar and gum.

Applying "first aid" is a simple matter with the complete matter and tissues found in the kit. Also included as a bonus is the homemaker's helpful page booklet gives tips on construction and care of upholstery.

Music Appreciation

I am not a musician, but as I write this I think back and realize how my taste in music has changed. Early in life, it took only the simplest childhood jingles to please me, then in school I was trained and taught to appreciate more intricate music. All through life I feel that my knowledge of... and appreciation for music has grown and matured.

Through study and help from others, I have also grown as a Christian and have a better appreciation of my Lord.

My knowledge of, and love for God increases with each church worship service... This way of life and worship, I would recommend to anyone. Won't you try it... Start by attending church this Sunday.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
