GOLDEN YEARS

Howard College celebrates 50th anniversary; see how things change in half a century!

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Fifty years ago the price of attending Howard College was $3 per semester hour.

These days, the going rate is $18 per hour. What other changes has the college seen since 1945?

The college was established by a county vote Nov. 17, 1945, and classes were offered the following year. During the same election, voters elected seven board members.

The trustees named E.C. Dodd

as the first president of the college.

The first classes were in the old Army Air Forces Bombardier School at Webb Air Force Base. Veterans could receive $65 a month if single or $90 if married from their GI Bill benefits. Veterans today receive about $400 a month to help with school expenses if taking a full course load of at least 12 semester hours.

The $3 per hour was charged if a student was taking nine or more hours while those taking less than nine were charged $5 per hour.

Looking through the 1947-48 bulletin, you find courses being offered in public speaking, food composition and principles of cookery, clothing selection and construction, craft work, in bookbinding, French, Spanish, labor problems, typewriting and shorthand.

The college moved to its present location in 1951. Some of the facilities constructed throughout the next several decades included a library, science building, administration-classroom building, student union building, dorms for men and women, green house, gymnasium and a football stadium.

Students who attended college in 1955 paid $7.50 if they were taking just one semester hour. The cost for taking two through five hours was $5 per hour and a flat rate of $25 for six or more hours.

Some of the courses offered 40 years ago included ceramics, painting, office machines, electricity and radio, leather, astronomy, aviation, auto repair shop and zoology.

TU Electric customers may receive a refund

Special to the Herald

TU Electric customers could see a refund on their January electric bills.

The utility filed a request Friday with the Public Utility Commission to refund customers $64 million, including interest through December, because of lower-than-projected fuel costs from June through September 1995.

Subject to the commission's approval, the refund will be made as a January 1996 credit on utility bills.

The refund is proposed because of declining natural gas prices, which last spring fell to their lowest point in two years on the spot market and have remained at that level.

Electric utilities under PUC jurisdiction recover their fuel costs from customers through a fixed per-kilowatt-hour charge approved by the commission.

When actual fuel costs vary materially up or down from the approved projection, the utility files a request to refund or surcharge the difference.

Since 1986, TU Electric has implemented 11 fuel refunds totaling $775 million and two fuel surcharges totaling $238 million.

I would prefer we do things the old way, month-by-month, but now we estimate, and the problem there is it's hard to predict natural gas.

John Toone

utility bills," Toone said.

"In the past, we would project how many kilowatt-hours we would sell and our fuel costs each month, now we can't do that anymore," he added.

Toone said when TU begins to overcollect, as much as four percent, the company has to start refunding the overcollected amount.

"I would prefer we do things the old way, month-by-month, but now we estimate, and the problem there is it's hard to predict natural gas," Toone said.

A refund is good for customers, but Toone said the old way of doing business was much better.

"When Mark White was governor, he ran on the platform that he would do away with the fuel adjustment. It was a play on words and the fuel adjustment was taken off utility bills," Toone said.

"In the past, we would project how many kilowatt-hours we would sell and our fuel costs each month, now we can't do that anymore," he added.

Toone said when TU begins to overcollect, as much as four percent, the company has to start refunding the overcollected amount.

"I would prefer we do things the old way, month-by-month, but now we estimate, and the problem there is it's hard to predict natural gas," Toone said.

Garden City school's library to go on-line

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

GARDEN CITY - Garden City students will learn how to work with computerized library card catalogs when the new library opens.

Glasscock County Independent School District Board of Trustees approved the purchase of a PC-based checkout and cataloging system to be installed in the new library.

The system, to consist of several networked computers, will include a bar code reader to automatically scan student ID cards for checking out books, as well as a catalog database.

District officials hope the new system will be a learning tool as well as a convenience for both teachers and students, allowing students to become familiar with computerized library functions.

The system has not been selected yet, but will include sufficient networking capacity to allow the addition of a terminal in each classroom, enabling teachers to check on a book's availability without leaving the classroom.

A waterline break in early October did no structural damage to the physical education complex.

Some floor tile was lifted and damaged, baseboard was loosened, and the carpet on the playing surface as well as mats and weight equipment suffered from mildew and mold, said Superintendent Charles Zachry.

In other matters, the board:

•Approved the 87-20 Special Education Cooperative policies.

•Approved the 1994-95 financial audit report by Guy White of Big Spring. The audit shows the district is financially sound.

•Discussed transportation policies outlined in Senate Bill One. Decisions are on hold waiting a new opinion from the Attorney General's Office.

The next regular board meeting will be Nov. 20.

Martin County to update software for county

Martin County Commissioners have authorized purchase of new computer software for the file server in the County Clerk's office.

The new program will back up files whenever personnel leave the office, protecting them against loss or data corruption.

In other matters, commissioners:

•Revised line items in the 1995-96 budget.

The revisions consisted of shifting monies into different functions, without affecting the budget total.

•Set the time to canvass returns of the constitutional amendment election at the regular commissioners' court Nov. 13.

•Approved payment of regular bills.

College

By 1965, the college went to charging a flat rate of $50 per semester for full-time students. The student had to be enrolled in at least 10 hours to be considered full-time.

The mascot was first called the Jayhawk and was changed to Hawk in 1974.

Also in 1974, the college's name was changed from Howard County Junior College to Howard College of Big Spring.

Checking the college's catalog in 1975 shows the school charging students $4 per semester hour. Computer, welding, drafting and business machine courses were offered at the time.

In November 1979, board members voted to establish the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf as part of the college's district.

The college was still charging only $4 per semester hour in 1985. Students could take dental hygiene, emergency medical technology, medical lab technology and nursing courses.

Last year, college officials adopted the motto "Education...For Learning, For Earning, For Life!"

Charter board member P.W. Malone is still on the board, and Cheri Sparks is the college's first female president.

The college has satellite campuses in San Angelo, Big Spring Federal Correctional Institute, Fredericksburg, Kerrville, Lamesa and Snyder.

Genius, 11, prepares for graduate degree study

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (AP) — Why waste time? Now that 11-year-old Michael Kearney has graduated from college, he's working on a graduate degree.

All in preparation for becoming a game show host.

"He could be Mozart, Einstein. We have no idea," said Kevin Kearney, father of the boy with the 300-plus IQ. "Right now he wants to be a game show host. That's a passion we have to accept."

Michael was the youngest child on record to enter college — age 6 1/2 — and the youngest to graduate — age 10 — when he got his degree in anthropology last year at the University of South Alabama.

On Friday, Michael announced plans to attend Middle Tennessee State University, which has offered him something similar to a full-time graduate assistantship.

Michael plans to start school in January. He hasn't decided what he'll get his degree in.

Michael and his sister Maeghan, who is finishing high school at age 9, were mostly home-taught by their parents. Michael began spouting algebra while a toddler.

"He's been trying to take over the family since he was 3," his father said. "I used education as a scam, to divert him so Dad could stay in charge."

North Texas students win robot competition

DALLAS (AP) — A robot, nicknamed "Terminoodle" by its designers from a North Texas school, has taken top state honors at a Texas A&M University competition.

The device, entered by Gunter High School, won first place Saturday in A&M's Texas BEST robotics competition.

The robot placed more of a set of cylindrical swimming pool floats known as noodles in scoring position than a competitor designed by a team from Boerne High.

"I can hardly describe the feelings I've got," said 17-year-old Justin Gamel, a member of the 23-student team who drove the Gunter robot in the final match. "It was like winning the Super Bowl. It was like magic."

The competition's scoring was based on the number of noodles each team placed in a so-called "positive" scoring area or removed from a "negative" area.

The Gunter students' creation gathered 11 positive points, compared with Boerne's seven negative points.

"Gunter is on the map," Leah

Martindale, their teacher and coach, said.

Her team christened their handiwork after its cargo and "The Terminator," the technology-laden film starring Arnold Schwarzenegger.

About 65 hometown supporters helped the students, including four in special education classes, celebrate following their third attempt to win statewide competition.

The Gunter team, which earned the trip to the statewide contest in College Station after winning a North Texas regional contest two weeks ago, had spent about two months building their remote-controlled robot from a box of computer parts.

Two engineers from Dallas-based Texas Instruments began the A&M engineering and technology competition three years ago.

"It's the most exciting thing that's ever happened to me," said Elizabeth Jang, a 16-year-old senior.

Gunter is about 45 miles north of Dallas.

Sheriff fights jail privatization

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Bexar County sheriff is fighting a plan to turn part of the county's jail system over to private management.

County commissioners approved the plan last month. However, Sheriff Ralph Lopez said he will have nothing to do with the plan and asserts that he has the Texas Constitution behind him.

"It's not going to happen while I'm here, unless some judge forces me, and I don't expect that," Lopez told the San Antonio Express-News for a story in Sunday's editions.

Four of the five county commissioners voted Oct. 24 to take proposals from companies interested in running the 782-bed Adult Detention Center Annex.

Under the commissioners' timetable, the private operator would take over Jan. 1, if a committee studying privatization so recommends.

Lopez set the stage for the upcoming legal confrontation when he refused to allow four representatives of corrections companies to tour the annex Friday.

Program promotes small town improvement

By PAULINE ARRILLAGA
Associated Press Writer

ARROYO COLORADO ESTATES (AP) — Walking through this colonia just east of Harlingen, the pungent stench of raw sewage assaults your nostrils. It is an odor Richard Ferguson and Noe Gonzales grew up with.

"We lived in it, we experienced it, and we've grown to hate it," Ferguson says.

Arroyo Colorado Estates isn't much different from the other 1,450 colonias along the Texas border.

Water the color of dirt sits in trenches surrounding run-down homes. Septic tanks don't work, and drainage ditches flood with the slightest of rainfall.

What sets this colonia apart is that after two decades with inadequate sewage, the 171 families here are taking action.

Arroyo Colorado Estates is the first community to try to solve its water and wastewater needs under a new state initiative called Texas STEP — Small Towns Environment Program.

Texas STEP is modeled after a self-help program developed by The Rensselaerville Institute in New York, where 150 communities have completed similar projects in the past 10 years.

Mutilation slaying trial starts

By EDUARDO MONTES
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO (AP) — Passing quietly and unseen along El Paso's streets, James Patrick Bradley spent a long February weekend committing acts that would eventually put an entire city on edge, authorities allege.

Two days after shooting his wife on Feb. 15, police say, the disabled former trucker began leaving chopped pieces of her mutilated body across El Paso.

Soon it seemed everyone was anxiously captivated by news reports chronicling the gruesome crime and the police's hunt for what some speculated might be a serial killer.

"I think the imagery of pieces being found everywhere was somewhat unsettling," said police spokesman Sgt. Bill Pfeil.

The tension would not abate until after the Presidents' Day weekend ended and James Bradley was in jail, charged with killing his 33-year-old artist wife, Suzy Gae Hahn Bradley.

Now the case is coming back into the public eye as James Bradley, who has been jailed since his Feb. 21 arrest, goes on trial for murder.

A jury pool of about 150 had been scheduled to be assembled today before state District Judge David Guaderrama to begin what is expected to be a week-long trial.

District Attorney Jaime Esparza, who is prosecuting the case, has declined to talk about the trial or any evidence that may be brought forward.

But a signed confession given by Bradley following his arrest — and later contested by defense attorneys — is almost certain to be introduced.

"I believe it works in our favor," attorney Louis Lopez said last week, declining to elaborate. "I think we would have been hurt if the judge would have kept it out."

Bradley, who has pleaded innocent, told police in the confession that he shot his wife six times with a .22-caliber rifle following a fight at the couple's home during which she hit him in the head with a flashlight.

The confession says Bradley then chopped her up with an ax.

On Feb. 17, authorities found the first severed pieces in east El Paso. Some had been stuffed in boxes or spray-painted different colors, possibly to destroy trace evidence.

By Nov. 20, police had found the entire body, but they were still unable to identify the victim.

Desperate to solve the case quickly, they released pictures of the woman's head in the hopes that someone would recognize her.

Within 12 hours after television news aired the photos, James Bradley was in jail.

Man charged in murders

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — An Odessa man has been charged with killing a mother and daughter who disappeared from their Huntsville-area home nearly two years ago and have never been found, the Walker County sheriff said Sunday.

Raymond Cobb, 19, was arrested in Odessa Saturday night and returned to Huntsville on Sunday.

He was being held on two counts of capital murder in Walker County Jail after Justice of the Peace John Paskett denied bond.

Meanwhile, sheriff's authorities hope to locate the remains of Margaret Owings and baby daughter Kori on Monday, Sheriff Dale Myers said.

"We are currently conducting a search this afternoon and tomorrow we'll start again for the remains of the lady and her baby. We think they are within a mile from the residence from which they disappeared," he said.

Myers said the case began Dec. 27, 1993, when Lindsey Owings returned to his farm home on U.S. 75, about five miles north of Huntsville, and found it had been burglarized. He first thought his wife Margaret, 22 at the time, and Kori, 16 months, were out, but later reported them missing.

Cobb, who lived across the road from the Owings in 1993, was questioned numerous times, Myers said.

He confessed to burglarizing the home and was charged about a year ago, although that case had never gone to trial.

Sometime in 1995, Cobb moved to Odessa, the sheriff said.

Myers would not elaborate on what new developments led to Cobb's arrest. But he did say Cobb had been interviewed as recently as a month ago.

Small quake shakes area near Alpine

ALPINE, (AP) — A small earthquake that struck just before noon Sunday was an aftershock to a stronger tremor that shook the area seven months ago, a government geophysicist said.

The tremor, which had a magnitude of 3.6, hit about 11:45 a.m. No injuries or damage were reported.

The epicenter was 20 miles east-southeast of Alpine, which was rocked by a 5.6-magnitude quake on April 4.

Sunday's quake was another of many aftershocks since, said Stewart Koyanagi, a geophysicist for the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

There were 211 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,364. There were 11,136 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $93.

And there were 206,144 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $4 million.

Quote of the Day

"We must make a personal attack when there is no argumentative basis for our speech."

Cicero, Roman orator, c. 58 B.C.

Get into Christmas now; event deadlines nearing

It's not even Thanksgiving yet and we need you to get into the Christmas spirit.

That's right. It's time to think about what most people consider the best time of the year, with "chestnuts roasting on an open fire," someone clambering around on your roof and Rudolph and all the other reindeer bringing joy to all the boys and girls.

What you are needed to do is sign up to participate in the Big Spring Herald's Christmas Parade and the Christmas Tree Forest. The deadline to enter both of these events, in conjunction with the Trail of Lights, is Nov. 22.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

There will also be a gingerbread house contest for children and adults. Reservations need to be in by Nov. 17 if you intend to be like Tim Allen and build the biggest, strongest, yet most beautiful house.

Deadlines for all these events are nearing. So, ready or not, here comes Christmas.

Be there or be square.

Trucks not only killers on highway

While preparing to address a Chicago convention of the American Trucking Association, my homework turned up some surprises.

The trucking industry employs 7.8 million Americans. That's seven times more than all other freight carriers combined! Trucks carry three times more tonnage than railroad trains.

And the industry is growing. DRI-McGraw-Hill projects there will be 4.7 million trucks on America's roads within eight years — that's 15 percent more than now.

Yet, trucks are a small part of our traffic problems. It's American motorists who are killing themselves and one another. Five are killed every hour!

"But trucks are tearing up our highways!"

On the contrary, trucks, which make up 7 percent of our traffic, pay for more highway upkeep than all the rest of us put together — last year, they contributed some $20 billion. That's 37 percent of the total federal highway user tax.

Trucks are involved in 13 percent of all highway fatalities. And of the 13 percent of fatalities, the trucker was at fault in less than one-third of those accidents. So, the whopping two-thirds of the problem is us!

While most motorists are content to expect government and car-makers to protect Americans from themselves with stronger side panels, crumple-bumpers, seat belts and air bags, the American Trucking Association is promoting driver discipline.

The ATA helped to create a commercial driver's license to ensure that all commercial truck drivers are tested and licensed professionals.

The ATA is urging a 1,000 percent increase in roadside inspections to drivers and trucks, along with more designated rest areas.

The ATA is conducting six separate research studies on fatigue and sleep-related issues.

The ATA supports mandatory drug and alcohol testing for the industry.

The ATA wants anti-lock brakes on every vehicle within 10 years.

The trucking industry — with or without the support of trucking unions — is committed to "safety first."

The trucking industry employs one in every 12 American workers and generates 5 percent of our nation's gross domestic product.

So, the guy you cuss when you try to pass him is a better driver than you are.

President Tom Donohue of the ATA is properly proud of his industry's safety priority.

In the past decade, while the number of miles driven by trucks has increased 41 percent, the fatal-accident rate involving trucks has dropped 37 percent! No other group, no other organization and no other industry has done more to improve safety and to save lives.

This year, truckers will haul 5.1 billion tons of freight and will drive 165 billion miles — all with a mishap record infinitely better than yours and mine. In 18 percent of two-vehicle crashes involving trucks, the truck was rammed from behind!

Four Americans killed in Saudi Arabia bomb blast

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Two explosions, possibly from car bombs, destroyed a building housing American and Saudi military personnel today, killing six people and wounding about 60. Four of the dead were Americans.

The blasts set off a fire that engulfed the three-story building, sending out huge plumes of smoke that could be seen across the city. Windows in nearby buildings were blown out.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, and it was not known if Americans or Saudis were the targets.

Saudi society is insular and tightly controlled by the government, and dissent is rare. It was the first known attack against the U.S. military in Saudi Arabia since the 1991 Gulf War, when Iraq fired Scud missiles into the kingdom. One missile hit a U.S. barracks, killing more than 20 Americans.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Riyadh said a car bomb in the parking lot outside the training facility was believed to have caused the 11:30 a.m. blasts.

The White House said six people died — four Americans, a Filipino and one whose identity was unknown. It said its earlier report that five Americans had been killed was incorrect.

Most of the wounded were not badly hurt, the state-run Saudi news agency said, quoting the Saudi Interior Ministry.

Vice President Al Gore, interviewed on Cable News Network, said U.S. officials have no indication of a motive. "We are awaiting further information about exactly what happened and who is responsible," Gore said. "It's a terrible tragedy."

The United States and Saudi Arabia have close military ties, and American military personnel work in the kingdom. The building destroyed today was leased by the United States and used by American military personnel who help train the Saudi National Guard.

Some Muslim fundamentalists oppose the presence of American and other non-Muslim forces in the kingdom, home to Islam's holiest shrines.

Kenneth Bacon, a Defense Department spokesman in Washington, said the preliminary report indicated two explosions, a large one and a smaller one, happened in the parking lot outside the building about five minutes apart.

He did not know if a car bomb was involved. Sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press that a bomb was believed to have been in a Chevrolet Caprice Classic.

Bacon said the building houses the program office of the Saudi National Guard, although the United States leases space in it. Most of the Americans who work there are contract personnel. He did not know how many Americans work there.

Palestinians take over West Bank

JENIN, West Bank (AP) — Thousands of Palestinians lined the streets of this West Bank city today, dancing, singing and firing shots into the air to welcome busloads of Palestinian police who moved in after Israeli troops withdrew.

The Palestinian flag went up in front of the former Israeli army headquarters in Jenin after Israeli troops pulled out before dawn.

Officers climbed onto bus roofs, waving victory signs and tossing sticks of gum to schoolchildren who crowded the streets. The Palestinian anthem "My Homeland, My Homeland," blared from loudspeakers, and people waved flags and cheering.

"I have waited for this my whole life," said 18-year-old Amr Kamal, celebrating in front of the headquarters building. "It is the best day of my life."

Jenin is the first West Bank town to come under Palestinian self-rule under the Israel-PLO agreement signed in Washington in September by PLO leader Yasser Arafat and the late Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

At a gas station on the city's outskirts, Israeli and Palestinian officials shook hands to mark the formal transfer of power.

"It's the best feeling," said an emotional Nasr Yousef, commander of Palestinian police in the West Bank and Gaza. "This is the end of occupation and the beginning of national independence."

Yousef said the handover was the work of Rabin, gunned down at a rally Nov. 4 by a Jewish extremist opposed to the Israel-PLO peace process. "He lost his life for peace," Yousef said.

Before dawn today, Palestinians cheered, whistled and shouted "God is great!" when a convoy of 14 jeeps and armored vehicles drove out of the fenced compound from which Israel ruled the city during 28 years of military occupation.

The moment the Israelis left, uniformed Palestinian police officers rushed into the building, with hundreds of Jenin residents trying to push in behind them.

Arafat's West Bank security chief, Jibril Rajoub, appealed for calm. "Please behave so the Israelis can leave with respect," Rajoub told the crowd.

Palestinian police did nothing to stop an impromptu convoy of revelers from driving through the base, firing pistols in the air.

Mexico's ruling party leads race for governor

MORELIA, Mexico (AP) — Mexico's ruling party, trying to halt a string of stinging election losses suffered during this year's economic meltdown, took an early but slim lead today in the Michoacan governor's race.

But exit polls and preliminary results suggested the conservative opposition National Action Party (PAN) was leading in the mayoral races for the state capitals of Puebla, Culiacan and Oaxaca.

Support for the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) has declined since an economic crisis shook Mexico three weeks after President Ernesto Zedillo took office Dec. 1 with pledges to allow full democratic reform.

"We are seeing a country that we never would have imagined a few years ago ... with the advance of the National Action Party in large cities all over the country. This is an enormous advance," political analyst Sergio Sarmiento said on independent television Azteca.

Millions of Mexicans voted in local elections across six states Sunday, testing a governing party frayed by the devaluation of the peso and loss of 1.1 million jobs.

Although the elections were largely peaceful, a traditional post-vote battle to declare winners intensified today as the conservative PAN claimed to be leading in several key mayoral races.

Preliminary results were expected later this morning.

In the states of Puebla, Sinaloa, Tlaxcala, Oaxaca and Tamaulipas, 6.6 million people were registered to pick mayors and state legislators. In Mexico City, voters chose 365 neighborhood council members.

Here in Michoacan state, early returns with 35 percent of precincts counted showed Victor Manuel Tinoco Rubi of the ruling PRI leading for governor with 38 percent of the vote, seven percentage points ahead of his closest rival.

Felipe Calderon Hinojosa of PAN, which harnessed popular discontent with the crisis to win an unprecedented three gubernatorial posts this year, was second with 31 percent.

Cristobal Arias Solis, of the leftist Democratic Revolution Party (PRD), was third with 28 percent. Analysts said such a finish would be a disappointment for the party that considers Michoacan its cradle.

Before the results, Arias still seemed convinced of winning and declared at a news conference: "We have a strong chance of gaining the majority in this process and going on to govern Michoacan."

It was perhaps the most closely watched race, a three-way battle, as 1.9 million Michoacan voters also chose 113 mayors and 30 state legislators.

Michoacan is the home state of Mexico's most revered president, Lazaro Cardenas, a populist who gave land to the poor during his 1934-40 term.

His son, Cuauhtemoc, became governor but broke from the leading party in 1987 and established the PRD. PRI has defeated every party's attempt to gain power.

The PRI said early trends seemed to favor its candidates in state legislative races in Michoacan, Tlaxcala, Puebla, Tamaulipas and Sinaloa.

PAN supporters honked horns and celebrated in Puebla's streets as their mayoral candidate, Gabriel Hinojosa, declared: "I already feel like the mayor."

Storms kill one, leave thousands with no power

By ROGER PETTERSON
Associated Press Writer

Thousands of customers were without electricity Sunday from North Carolina to Maine after a night of violent weather that killed one person and brought wind gusting to 81 mph, thunderstorms and snow.

"We had lightning while it was snowing," said George Stein, a spokesman for Potomac Edison Co. in West Virginia.

The stormy weather broke out along a cold front that pushed eastward through the region, followed by some of the arctic air that has dropped temperatures into the single digits and lower across the Upper Midwest.

Record lows Sunday included 15 at South Bend, Ind.; 19 at Jackson, Ky.; 16 at Cincinnati, and a record-tying 41 at Melbourne, Fla. In the core of the cold-air mass, Ely, Minn., had a Sunday morning low of 18 below zero.

In Thomaston, N.Y., police said a 50-foot tree snapped during Saturday night's storms and crashed atop a moving car, killing the driver.

In Brooklyn, N.Y., a wall collapsed at an abandoned building, forcing a cut in power to one of New York City's subway lines for eight hours overnight.

The northern end of the cold front continued producing stormy weather Sunday in northern Maine. The southern end of the front had touched off violent storms Saturday in Florida.

The electrical outages, which peaked Sunday afternoon at about 350,000, were caused by fallen trees and utility poles.

"Trees down over cars, trees down over houses and trees down over power lines," Gregory Hostetter, a sheriff's dispatcher in Rockbridge County, Va., said late Saturday.

But the wind wasn't the only problem. In West Virginia, some trees toppled because Halloween vandals had sawed halfway through their trunks, said Jack Shaver, a spokesman for Appalachian Power Co.

Wind gusted to 81 mph at Cambridge, Vt., and Boston; 76 mph at Bath, Maine; 70 mph at Massachusetts' Cape Cod, and 65 mph at Ocean City, Md.

Wind up to 60 mph in southern West Virginia ripped the roof off a mobile home; one woman inside suffered a broken leg.

Flooding closed some roads in parts of Maine and New Hampshire. Flood warnings were posted Sunday for parts of New Hampshire, Maine and New Jersey.

Up to 4 inches of snow fell in the mountains of West Virginia and about an inch of snow fell across Maryland. Up to 7 inches fell in upstate New York.

Plane declares emergency, lands safely in Connecticut

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — What started off as a relaxing vacation in Los Angeles to visit family, ended in a scare for Elvira Mahony, a 36-year-old accountant from Glastonbury.

"I thought, 'Whatever God wanted,' I put my life in his hands," she said. "I just prayed for my kids because my kids weren't with me."

Mahony was one of the 72 passengers aboard an American Airlines jet that had to make an emergency landing at Bradley International Airport early Sunday. The plane encountered severe turbulence and possibly loss of engine power, a federal aviation official said.

One person was injured during the evacuation of the damaged airliner after it landed safely at Bradley, its destination, said Mary Culver, a spokeswoman for the New England region of the Federal Aviation Administration.

That person was brought to a local hospital and released, American Airlines spokesman Al Becker said in a recorded statement.

National Transportation Safety Board investigators were expected to arrive at Bradley on Sunday to conduct an investigation.

The pilot of the MD80, flight 1572, en route from Chicago, declared an emergency one mile before landing at 12:57 a.m., Culver said.

The pilot said he encountered turbulence upon his initial attempt to land, she said.

Equipment on board the plane indicated the pilot may have encountered windshear, a severe wind that pulls the plane downward, she said.

"That's probably the most violent form of weather a pilot can encounter," she said.

When he tried to increase his engine power to counter the weather, the left engine did not respond, she said.

The pilot then attempted to use another maneuver to land, but this time the right engine did not respond to a call for more power, Becker said. The pilot then landed the plane in an unpaved part of the runway, he said.

The plane's wings and landing gear were damaged upon landing, Culver said. Other damage may have also occurred, she said.

Passengers getting off the plane said they heard an explosion shortly before landing and that the cabin started to fill with smoke.

Due to reports of fire in one of the plane's engines, the captain called for an emergency evacuation, Becker said.

After evacuating the plane by sliding down inflatable slides, some passengers were barefoot as they walked through the terminal because they were asked to remove their shoes during the landing.

Passengers said everyone remained calm and gave the pilot an ovation after the plane's wheels hit the tarmac.

Neither side blinks as federal shutdown looms

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Massive federal furloughs may start at midnight and federal borrowing could be disrupted on Wednesday, but President Clinton and his Republican antagonists are showing little inclination to avoid a jolting political standoff.

Clinton was ready to veto a pair of bills today that would temporarily extend the government's ability to spend and borrow money, complaining that they would boost Medicare premiums and limit Treasury's ability to cope with a debt crisis. Congress approved the borrowing measure Friday, and the Senate planned to ship the stop-gap spending bill to the White House today.

A partial federal shutdown loomed Tuesday morning, when most agencies' authority to operate ceases. In all, 800,000 of the 2.1 million civilian workers would be sent home, although air traffic controllers, meat inspectors and others with crucial jobs would keep working. Military personnel will also remain on the job.

The government's authority to borrow will also be depleted, probably Wednesday, although Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin has said he would take such steps as utilizing cash from government trust funds to avert an unprecedented federal default.

"We think we've done our job," House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., told reporters, between budget meetings he and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., attended Sunday in the Capitol, where tourists outnumbered lawmakers.

After a curt phone conversation among the two leaders and Clinton on Saturday, Gingrich and Dole considered telephoning Clinton again Sunday but didn't, further dimming prospects for a quick settlement.

In separate television appearances, the GOP leaders said the problems over the short-term bills would dissolve if Clinton pledged to seek a seven-year balanced budget, as Republicans want. They said policy details could be negotiated later.

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta rejected that proposal, and countered with his own: Drop the Medicare premium increase, and negotiations on the short-term spending bill can begin.

"They just have to recognize that they are going to do things the old-fashioned way, which is not to just stamp their feet on the ground and threaten the country with default and crisis, but take these issues to the American people," Panetta said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

White House press secretary Mike McCurry said Clinton would meet Monday in the Oval Office with congressional leaders on the impasse — if Republicans first delete a provision from the temporary spending bill boosting the monthly Medicare premium to $53.50 in January, rather than letting it fall to $42.40 as it would under current law. It is now $46.10.

Gingrich defended the higher premium, saying Clinton's preference to reduce it is "totally irresponsible," because officials say Medicare will go bankrupt in seven years unless savings are found. Letting the premiums fall would make it politically harder to boost them later.

Gingrich told a Republican p The fight over both the short-term bills is linked to the bigger battle over GOP plans to balance the budget by 2002. On the way, Republicans want to remake Medicare, Medicaid, welfare and dozens of other programs and dispense $245 billion in tax cuts over seven years.

Clinton has said he will veto the GOP package, which he says cuts spending and taxes too deeply.

Three arrested in alleged bomb plot

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A man who allegedly saw himself as a prophet and sent warning letters to President Clinton and the Texas governor was one of three people arrested on charges of plotting to build a fertilizer bomb.

Ray Willie Lampley, 65, his wife, Cecilia Lampley, 47, and John Dare Baird, 53, are charged with conspiracy to manufacture and possess a destructive device, Assistant U.S. Attorney Doug Horn said. The three were being held without bond and are scheduled to appear in federal court today.

They were arrested by the FBI Saturday at the Lampleys' home in Vernon, 90 miles east of Oklahoma City.

The arrests are not connected to the April 19 bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City, authorities said.

McIntosh County Sheriff Bobby Gray said the FBI recovered bomb-making materials from a back room in the Lampleys' house but apparently did not find an assembled bomb.

Ray Willie Lampley is a self-proclaimed prophet who allegedly supports anti-government sentiments, FBI Special Agent Timothy Arney said.

Gray told The Sunday Oklahoman that Lampley has been sending letters "to certain people — the president, the governor in Texas, and even I got some — that we were going to be dead within a certain amount of time."

Gray said investigators told him that Elohim City, a white separatist religious community, was a purported target of the alleged bomb conspiracy.

San Francisco's Tyrone Drakeford, left, sacks Dallas quarterback Wade Wilson during the third quarter of their game Sunday in Dallas.

Some showdown: Niners ransack Dallas; Oilers fall

Still sold on Dallas winning the Super Bowl? Here's an option: the Kansas City Chiefs, owners of the best record in the NFL.

While the Cowboys were ambushed by the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers on Sunday, the unassuming Chiefs quietly defeated the San Diego Chargers 22-7 for their ninth victory in 10 games.

With Steve Bono and Marcus Allen scoring on short touchdown runs, the Chiefs beat the defending AFC champions for the second time in five weeks. On Oct. 9, the Chiefs won 29-23 in overtime.

"They still don't think we've played anybody," Chiefs defensive end Neil Smith said. "But we have to beat the champions. They were the best team in the league last year. To sweep them is a sweet feeling."

The 49ers (6-4) enjoyed a similar sensation against the Cowboys (8-2). After losses to New Orleans and Carolina, the 49ers were two-touchdown underdogs against the seemingly invincible Cowboys.

San Francisco led 17-0 just 4:58 into the game — Elvis Grbac-to-Jerry Rice for an 81-yard TD on the second play was the catalyst — and the Cowboys were dazed.

"We stunk up the place," Dallas defensive end Charles Haley said. "We must be intimidated by guys in red shirts and gold helmets."

Steve Young (shoulder injury) did not play by design, but Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman left the game in the first quarter with a bruised left knee. Dallas never recovered, and Aikman was set for an MRI today.

"This was a damn important game for our team," 49ers coach George Seifert said. "We wanted to do everything we could to win this game."

So did Miami's Dan Marino, who wasn't as successful as Joe Robbie Stadium. Marino passed for 333 yards and broke Fran Tarkenton's all-time yardage record, but New England beat his Dolphins 34-17. The 34-year-old Marino now has 47,299 yards.

"Breaking Fran's record, one of the all-time great passers, is something special to me," Marino said. "Unfortunately, the thing is, you want to win the games that you're playing when you're breaking records."

Aikman wasn't the only injured quarterback. John Elway sustained a concussion early in the second quarter and did not return in Denver's loss at Philadelphia. Also injured were Houston's Chris Chandler (right leg), Tampa Bay's Trent Dilfer (throat) and Indianapolis' Paul Justin (sprained right knee).

In other games, it was New England 34, Miami 17; Buffalo 23, Atlanta 17; Green Bay 35,

BSHS coach did the right thing

Once in a while a person comes along, someone who defies the odds, defies logic, lives out an incredible dream and shows us the indomitable spirit of man.

If you're a Rocky fan, you know I got that from Rocky III, but if you're a Big Spring Steer football fan, you know I'm talking about the decision made by Steer head coach Dwight Butler.

There is little question that however long he coaches, there will never be another aptly demonstrated lesson in courage, sportsmanship, and fair play than shown recently by Butler.

No matter what the outcome was of the 4-4A District Committee meeting, the Steer coach taught his kids a valuable lesson.

Butler reacted like a coach who cared about the character of his players, rather than a coach so hell-bent on winning that nothing else matters.

I don't know if you can teach class to another human being, but Butler did one better — he displayed it. Players and fans should be proud to have a coach who cares about the integrity of his team rather than trying to put one over on everyone.

No one in the world could have possibly felt for the players more than their coach, but the decision he made will be a lesson to cherish for a long time.

Defending champs victorious at NYC Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — His tender embrace at the finish line and the protective arm he wrapped around her shoulder on the victory stand underscored the poignancy of their triumphs in the New York City Marathon for the second straight year.

German Silva and Tegla Loroupe ran not only as defending champions, they ran to keep promises to the dead — to his father, to her sister.

Silva's victory Sunday in 2 hours, 11 minutes was 21 seconds quicker than last year, when he made a wrong turn about a quarter-mile from the finish before being redirected by a policeman to beat countryman Benjamin Parades by two seconds in the closest finish in the race's 26-year history.

This year, Silva beat Paul Evans of Britain, who finished second in 2:11:05, with William Koech of Kenya third in a personal-best 2:11:19.

But even though Silva made no wrong turns, there still was plenty of personal drama for the winners, who also overcame record-low temperatures and fierce winds.

Silva dedicated the race to his 70-year-old father, Agapito, who died of cancer in July. Loroupe was running in memory of her 33-year-old sister Albina, who died Oct. 30 after severe stomach hemorrhaging and left behind four children ranging in age from 10 to 1.

Before Albina died, she had wanted Loroupe "to fulfill her responsibility in New York," and the marathoner had promised not to return home to Kenya until after the race.

"When I was training I could see her face and she was smiling," Loroupe said. "Even today, she was still smiling. I ran a good race for her, but when I finished, I was sad because when I go home next week I'm going to see the children but not my sister. She gave me a lot of strength and encouragement."

Silva became the first repeat champion since Italy's Orlando Pizzolato won in 1984 and 1985, while Loroupe became the first woman to win two in a row since Norway's Grete Waitz, a nine-time champion, won her fifth straight in 1986.

Loroupe's time was 2:28:06 — 29 seconds slower than in 1994. She was followed by world champion Manuela Machado of Portugal in 2:30:37 and first-time marathoner Lieve Slegers of Belgium in 2:32:08.

Silva said his emotions were the same as Loroupe's, because of their dual anguish.

"It is something I have in common with Tegla," he said.

"We feel together."

"I was running for my father. He was in my mind. He's with me everywhere. I was doing this in his memory. When I remember him, he gives me motivation. I'm sure wherever my father is, he's happy and proud."

Loroupe, who said she would take care of her sister's children, was grieving the past two weeks. But she pushed aside her heartbreak to win the women's division by about 750 meters.

The temperature at the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge in Staten Island at the start of the 26-mile, 385-yard event was 40 degrees, matching the previous low, first set in 1981 and equaled in 1989 and 1992. The winds were gusting up to 55-60 mph, and the wind chill factor

SPORTS IN BRIEF

BSHS boys win swim meet

PECOS — The Big Spring High School boys swim team captured first place in their division at the Pecos Invitational Saturday.

This marked the first time Big Spring had won first place at the invitational.

The BSHS boys dominated the meet, out-pointing host Pecos 128-83. Big Spring set the tone for the meet when it finished 1-2-3 in the boys' 100 backstroke. Eric Smith took first place in the event with a time of 1 minute, 2.43 seconds, while teammates Slate Broyle and Stephen Smith finished second and third, respectively.

Eric Smith also took first place in the 200 freestyle, Alex Padilla won the 50 freestyle, and Big Spring swept the relay events.

While the BSHS girls did not win any events, they had their best showing of the season, finishing fourth in the six-team field.

The girls' top individual finish was a third place by Somer Leubner in the 100 breaststroke.

The swim team will return to action Friday and Saturday at the San Angelo Invitational.

Oilers, Biggio at odds

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros were to take a four-year, $20 million offer for All-Star second baseman Craig Biggio off the table if he didn't sign it today, the team's president has told a television station.

Biggio, who became a free agent today, won't have the contract to use as a bargaining chip with other clubs, Astros President Tai Smith told KRIV-TV.

"It doesn't make much sense for us to give (Biggio) a $20 million safety valve while he's out there talking to other people," Smith said.

Smith also worried about the team's marketing efforts in the wake of a possible move as early as the 1997 season. Owner Drayton McLane Jr. has said that next season's attendance must increase radically or he'll be forced to sell the club.

was a bitter 18 degrees.

That forced the field of approximately 27,900 to don warm weather gear.

Olga Appell, the only elite American in the field, wore long bicycle shorts, a T-shirt cut off at the sleeves, long socks on her arms, a headband and sunglasses. She also greased her face and legs with oil.

None of that seemed to help. Appell, who went out unusually fast and built a huge early lead, dropped out before the 13th mile.

The wind was very fickle, swirling throughout.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 14, 1995: You constantly need to seek clarification this year to understand what is happening. Events and the choices you make will make you see things differently. Your strong suit through mid-1996 is finances. Now is the time to make money and squirrel it away. From mid-1996 on, you might have a tremendous urge to purchase an item that will improve your quality of life. If you are single, your poise and attractiveness increase, as will opportunities to meet someone. If attached, you discover the importance of planning time together. LEO pushes you.

Shoplifter should have heard riot act instead

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Upset Mother," whose daughter was arrested for shoplifting. Since her daughter was not read her rights, she asked if they should fight the arrest in court. Before she wastes her money on a lawyer and court costs, let me answer a few of her questions.

The person who originally detained the girl probably was an employee of the store, not a police officer.

Because security personnel (often called "loss prevention" or "asset protection" employees) are private citizens, they are not required to read suspects their rights. After security personnel have processed the paperwork required by the employer, the police would then be called. It is the police who in most cases issue a citation and give the offender a court date. Miranda rights are read to a suspect when he or she is going to be taken to a police station or a juvenile detention center to be processed.

I have been a loss prevention officer for more than five years. I am a guard and I do not wear a uniform, but I watch cameras and walk the floor looking for shoplifters.

It was nice to see a parent concerned about her daughter's rights, but in this case, the daughter should take whatever punishment the court deems appropriate.

Please do not use my name since I work undercover; just sign me ... LOSS PREVENTION OFFICER

DEAR OFFICER: Thank you for explaining why the young shoplifter may not have been read her rights. Read on for a letter from a reader who criticizes the girl's mother for failing to teach her daughter the virtues of honesty.

DEAR ABBY: I was amazed by your reply to "Upset Mother," who seemed to be more concerned with her daughter's rights than the fact that this "normally good" girl committed a blatant theft and was caught in the act.

You advised the mother to consult a lawyer to determine if her little girl's rights were violated. Surely you jest. The rights of society were violated by a girl whose obviously indulgent parent views the crime as a prank that could be corrected with an apology, a long lecture and a month's grounding.

"Upset Mother" should be hauled into court for failing to instill basic values in her daughter. If the girl had been properly taught when she was a preteen, the theft may not have occurred in the first place. -- HOPE BRYSON, LOS ANGELES
