Tremendous support shown for prison

Public input

The 89.2 percent approval rating that the citizens of Mitchell County have given the Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) grew on Monday night as 1088 of the 1092 persons who registered at the meeting were in favor of the proposal.

A total of twenty-seven citizens spoke in favor of locating a unit of the TDCJ in Mitchell County during the public input session of Monday nights public hearing.

--Jay McCollum said that, "Our unemployment rate has nearly doubled in the past year and increased 62 percent in the last three months. A typical thousand bed unit brings 317 jobs and a $6 million annual payroll. Along with this comes over 200 other jobs and a $4 million annual payroll which is created by new and existing businesses. This amounts to an annual payroll of over $10 million which is created for Mitchell County by the location of a long term industry."

--Jesse Munoz, Jr. challenged people to tell him of a new house that is being built in the county. "I

Junell supports

The board members of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) know that the economic development team from Mitchell County are the one's with the green buttons and that they led the state in voting for Proposition 4, said State Representative Rob Junell.

In his comments at Monday nights public hearing, Junell urged those in attendance to take off their jackets and roll up their sleeves as an expression to the TDCJ monitors that the people of Mitchell County are ready to work in partners with the department.

"I'm going to give you the bottom line," he said. "You're going to have people here that want you here."

"Not only do they want you here," said Junell. "They need you here."

"They want you to be a part of their churches, they want you to be a part of their schools, they want your employees to be involved in Little League, they want your employees to be involved in Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and all the activities that Mitchell County

A huge crowd of citizens filled the Colorado High School auditorium for the public hearing at which the Board of Economic Development (BED) proposal to locate a unit of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) was presented to the public.

Woody Anderson, chairman of the county's BED and Nancy Sullivan, executive director of the BED, presented the local proposal to the citizens at the meeting.

"When you add the value of the land, the value of the building, the water and sewer to the site, the electric hook-up, the gas hook-up, the access road, the cable hook-up," said Anderson, "it's plain to see how we feel that our $6.2 million package is one of the best proposals in the state."

The Mitchell County proposal addressed all four types of facilities that are to be constructed by the TDCJ, said Anderson.

The tangible assets in the proposal include approximately 820 acres of farm and industrial park land, the old Sequoia mobile home factory, a 150,000 gallon water

Waste company seeks expenses from county

National Waste and Energy Development has notified the county that it wants to be paid for the expenses which it lost when the county terminated the Host Community Agreement.

The agreement with the company concerned the establishment of a combined municipal solid waste landfill and hazardous waste landfill and/or an incinerator facility in Mitchell County.

"Now that you have unilaterally terminated the contract you have the obligation to make us whole by reimbursing us for these expenses," said James T. Cronin of the Pittsburgh company, in a letter to County Judge Ray Mayo.

The company spent money to initiate site studies and for engineering work, said Cronin.

"You need to decide whether this is an obligation of Mitchell County or only the individuals who worked in concert to interfere with our contract."

"It is clear that we initiated the project in reliance on the Host Community Contract," he said.

"Now I find that you have taken this important step without giving me notice of your intent or an opportunity to be heard," said Cronin.

"This is very arbitrary and capricious behavior totally lacking in fundamental fairness."

"I expected a great deal more from West Texas men," said Cronin.

"The Commissioners have acted on this and therefore our position is that we owe you no money," said County Judge Ray Mayo in a letter of reply to the company.

FULL HOUSE: A standing room only crowd attended Monday nights public hearing which was designed to present the Mitchell County prison proposal and receive public input concerning the plan which was submitted by the county's Board of Economic Development.

City National Bank hires new bank CEO, president

The selection of a president and chief executive officer (CEO) of City National Bank has been announced by the board of directors of the financial institution.

Don R. Jones, currently serving as the President & CEO of NCNB (North Carolina National Bank) in Conroe, will assume the duties with the local bank in the next few weeks, announced board chairman J. R. Fuller.

"The board of directors of The City National Bank is fortunate to secure the services of a person with experience, education and abilities of Mr. Jones," said Fuller.

"We are delighted to bring him and his family to Colorado City," he said, "where they will be an asset not only to the bank, but the entire community."

Jones has been employed in Texas banking since 1978. He has received both a bachelors and master of business administration degree which he received from Northwest Missouri State University.

He has served in a variety of capacities as a civic, community and church leader while living in Conroe as a member of the Rotary Club, the Conroe Chamber of Commerce and as an active member of the First United Methodist Church.

Don and his wife, Terrie, have two sons, Jonathan, age 12 and Joel, age 6.

Road signs to help 9-1-1

Recently named private roads in the county will soon have signs designating them.

The step is another which is required for the implementation of the 9-1-1 emergency system.

All roads in the county have been assigned names, said Mitchell County 9-1-1 Coordinator Karen Holman.

The signs will allow directions to be given to emergency vehicles who are responding to calls and reduce response time of the vehicles in rural areas.

Commissioners noted that the system won't work without the use of the signs and that the county has an obligation to assist with the mandated emergency system.

The information from the efforts of the Rural 9-1-1 addressing system continue to be put into the computer and checked for accuracy.

After the information has been put into the system, county residents will be informed by a mailing of their 'new' physical address.

Daylight Savings Time begins Sunday, 2 a.m. Set your clocks forward 1 hour.

don't know of one," he said. "I always have people tell me that they like it here and that everyone is friendly, but they are pushed away from Mitchell County for employment."

--Dorothy Fowler said that, "I've seen the good, the bad and the ugly...and if Mitchell County ever needed a shot in the arm economy wise, we sure do need it now."

--Eddie Piland said that, "One of the greatest needs that I have heard expressed in our community over the past several years is jobs and that's why I enthusiastically support the idea of the TDCJ coming to Colorado City."

--Don Nimmo spoke in favor of the proposal and noted that 45 percent of the 1200-plus Colorado Independent School District's students are below poverty level according to the national ranking. 59 percent of those listed in the poverty level are between the ages of 4-7, Pre-K to 2nd grade.

"Those are the parents that we need out in the work force," he said, "that are now looking for jobs."

"We need you!"

--Susan Anderson said that, "In the past ten or fifteen years, we have not had many opportunities for our children to go off to college and to come back. I see this correctional facility as an opportunity for our community."

--Sonny Hollis said that, "Mitchell County offers the resources of our cultural centers, the resources of our educational centers, the resources of our business-industrial-agricultural community, but most of all we offer to you the resources of a committed people, dedicated to leading the way in service to the proposed facility."

Also speaking their support for the BED proposal were Tony Turner, Mike Ratliff, David Stubblefield, Rev. Robert Bracy, Wendell Alford, Virginia Fuller, Juan Espinosa, Marion Bassham, Marsha Jordan, Charles Bowen, Joe Rivera, Elmer Martin, Georgie Griffith, Bobby Lemons, Mary Helen Gomez, Rev. David Shaw, Robert Sadler, Allen Smith, Phillip Rodriguez and Jan Lemons.

No one at the meeting voiced any opposition to the BED proposed submission to the TDCJ.

County insurance document unchanged

No action was taken by the Mitchell County Commissioners Court to change the planned document which sets out the guidelines for the county's insurance.

The county's planned document specifies that an employee is defined as being regularly scheduled for 30 hours of work per week.

The company that assists with the county's insurance program advised the county that the document could be broadened to include elected officials, to prevent a future claim from not being paid by a re-insurance company.

The commissioners were presented with a letter from the Ted Parker & Associates insurance company, which cited the experience of a county which had a claim rejected because of the narrow description relating to an elected official.

The commissioners said that they saw no reason to change the planned document.

The change which had been presented to the court by County Treasurer Ann Hallmark died for the lack of a motion.

offers," said Junell, "because we need you!"

"As a member of the appropriations committee," said Junell, "I'm concerned about how we spend our dollars and cents."

He noted that when the legislature added a one-quarter cent sales tax two years ago, no one came and said, 'We sure appreciate you raising our taxes.'

"But when people see where their dollars go, whether they are in the schools in Loraine, or Colorado City, or Westbrook," he said, "or where they see that they go to be used to put the people who can't live in our society behind bars where they belong - then they are willing to sometimes have their taxes used that way."

"The Mitchell County proposal will give the taxpayers of Texas the biggest bang for their buck," said Junell.

The overwhelming community support of Mitchell County was noted by Sullivan who said that the citizens of the county were pursuing the location of a unit with no reservations.

April Fool's Special

CHIEF LONE WOLF

Meet Aaron W. Dunn. Born in Macon, Georgia, April 12, 1845, his claim to fame is ... he founded Colorado City, Texas.

Dunn owned a general store in Coleman when he moved in 1880 to what would become Mitchell County a year later. According to a story in the February 3, 1933, Colorado Record, Mr. Dunn "decided this was an ideal location for a town."

The newspaper story goes on to say Dunn later returned to this site with materials and built a store. Actually, the start of Colorado City was a little more involved than that.

In Lee Jone's book, Lore and Legend, it's noted that the Texas and Pacific Railroad had two surveys for a possible route through this part of West Texas; one twenty miles south of current day Colorado City and the other at the existing townsite.

A letter written to Mrs. J.W. Smith (Clara Rogers) from her brother J.E. Rogers relates that he was working for the Dunn, Coleman and Company in Coleman in early 1880.

"They conceived the idea of putting a store somewhere on the Colorado River," Rogers wrote, "as they understood the Texas and Pacific Railroad Company was contemplating on building from Ft. Worth to El Paso. They employed Miller and Paddleford, carpenters, to make out a bill of lumber for a store twenty-five by sixty feet, of rough lumber. This was loaded on ox wagons at Round Rock, Texas. The lumber was thrown off at the first survey. Before the carpenters got to work, they were informed that the railroad would be built where the town now is."

An early day Mitchell County cattle baron, George Waddell, recalled, "A.W. Dunn came to my place on Champion Creek in the winter of 1880. He stayed all night and told me he had lumber on the road out here to Silver Creek. I told him he was making a mistake; he ought to bring his lumber and put his store on the railroad."

Waddell knew what he was talking about. A "Captain Powell", one of the railroad's engineers, had told Waddell "there was no doubt in his mind that there would be a town built in the river valley as there was no level place on either side of the river where a side track could be put on account of the grade."

Waddell then related that Dunn asked if he would show where the lumber should be unloaded. The rancher readily agreed and the next day Dunn and his teamsters, with their wagon loads of lumber, stopped at Waddell's ranch and he took them to the spot which became Colorado City.

Soon Aaron Dunn got his store built. It was located south of the current Anthony's store, where the old Burton-Lingo lumber yard still stands.

After building his trading post, Dunn named the site "Colorado City."

A writer in the town's first newspaper, the Colorado Clipper, remembered in an October 7, 1881, story that four years earlier "one solitary building, the store of Dunn, Coleman and Company, marked the spot where now stand the flourishing town of Colorado City."

But, it wasn't flourishing yet.

"Mr Sullivan had a ... tent erected near (Dunn's) a store ... it was used as a restaurant ... old man Nelson had moved in and was preparing his winter quarters ... J.E. Rogers, J.B. Whitfield, William Sullivan and Mr. Nelson were the only inhabitants. You could not picture a more desolate habitation.

And that was downtown Colorado City in 1881!

The following spring, April 16, 1881, the railroad construction crew had arrived here and the workers were glad to have a place to spend their money. The boom was on!

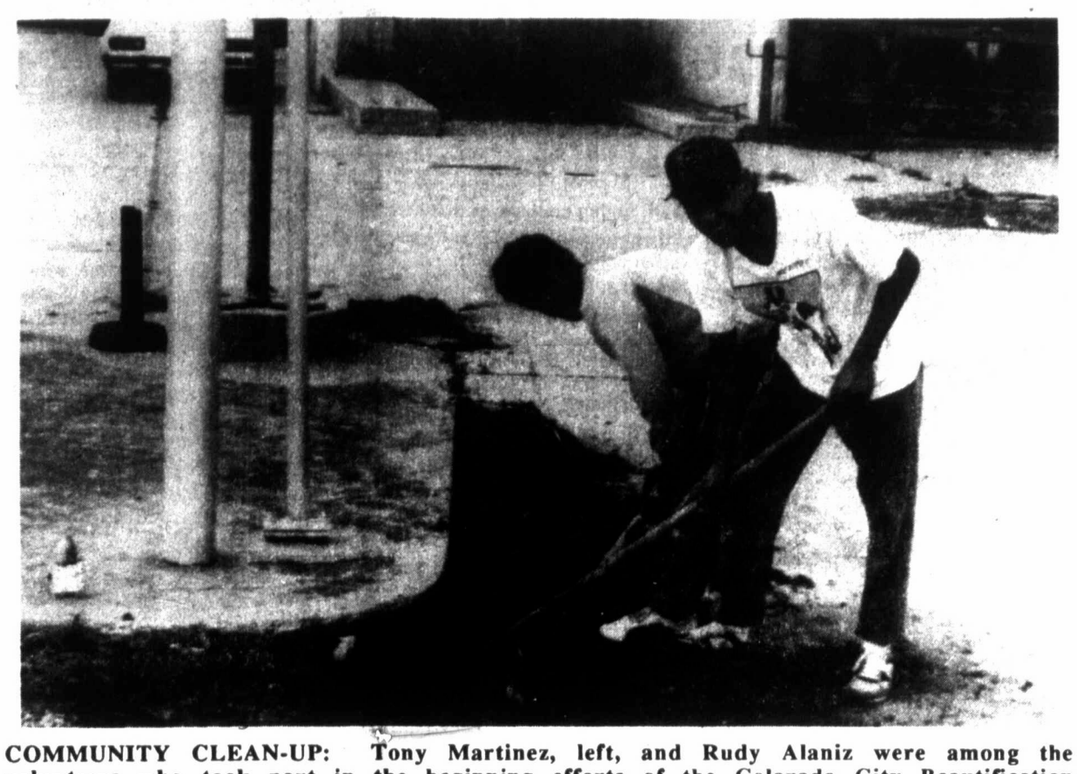
By 1885, Colorado City was said to have a population of 6000 persons. Thanks to the cattle industry, there were more millionaires in this one town than there were in all the rest of Texas.

This was the center of the world's cattle industry.

A.W. Dunn, the father of Colorado City, had enlisted in the civil was at Waco in 1862. He later finished his education and became a school teacher. In addition to founding Colorado City, he organized the town's first bank, the Colorado National Bank. He served as president of the bank for a number of years.

He later served as a trustee of Baylor University.

Mr. Dunn died, at the age of 87, January 27, 1933, in Odessa. He is buried in Coleman, Texas.



COMMUNITY CLEAN-UP: Tony Martinez, left, and Rudy Alaniz were among the volunteers who took part in the beginning efforts of the Colorado City Beautification project which began last Saturday.

Measles outbreak poses health threat to travelers

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) has issued a warning that a large outbreak of measles in Corpus Christi and other South Texas counties poses a health threat not only to area residents, but to travelers. The warning states that unvaccinated young adults and parents with unvaccinated children should not travel to the South Texas area.

Unless a person already has had measles or been vaccinated against the illness, he or she is susceptible to the highly contagious disease and should ask a doctor about immunizations. To ensure adequate protection from measles, certain age groups should already have received two doses of measles vaccine, administered at least one month apart. The outbreak has particularly affected preschoolers.

Officials are also concerned that unimmunized high school and college students expected to visit the outbreak area may contract the disease and take it back to their campuses. Corpus Christi and neighboring Padre Island traditionally attract thousands of students during their schools' annual spring break. The locale also is popular during Easter holidays.

Loraine Senior Citizens Happenings

Wind, wind go away. Come again some other day. Like maybe in August during the long hot dog days of summer.

The main topic of conversation around here lately seems to be about the wind and about politics. There are those who think the two subjects just naturally go together.

On the 9th of March, Laura Linam came to interest seniors in a mature driving class. The classes are designed to help older drivers improve their driving skills and have less accidents. Several members were interested and did sign up for the 8 hour class.

The center building was a hub of activity on the 10th. The main dining room was closed off and used for the election while the kitchen was used early in the a.m. for commodities distribution. There was a large turnout for both events.

Ray Smith and his wife, Nellie, came the 11th for a visit and lunch. Ray brought his electric keyboard and his violin and played several songs for us.

When he began to play Edelweiss several people began to hum and sing along. It brought to mind "The Sound of Music" with its glorious scenery and the beautiful white flowers waving and shining in the valleys and atop the mountains.

Our thanks to Vida Mae McDaniel for coming the 13th, (On her lunch hour we found out) to play piano for the Keatter Combo bands practice session. They are looking for new members. If you would be interested in joining the band, contact Darlene. Someone will come up with an instrument for you. They seem to have lots of fun.

Get well cards were sent to Florence Ellyson, Arlena Claxton, Aubrey Jones, Bittie Jones & Iva Armstrong. A sympathy card was mailed to Billie Schroeder as her husband passed away the 18th. Also Eloy Briseno passed away and a card was mailed to his family. Our well wishes and sympathy goes out to these friends at this time.

We want to welcome a new resident, Alfred Johnson, to the Taylor Witta Complex. We hope he enjoys the center and his new apartment.

If you jigsaw puzzle workers have problems finding just the right piece remember to ask Willie Rose for help. She is Grande Patron of the puzzle table. (an honorary and reverant title).

Members having birthdays in March are Laura Lewis, J.M. Lewis, Effie Wheeler, Vida Alsobrook, Gladys Hart, Allie Ruth Wiggins, Darlene Hamrick, Julia Green, J.D. Iglehart, Geraldine Parnell, Lewis Claxton, Raymond Hackfield, Bill Varnadore, Annie Bell Jones, Thelma Matlock, Marie Dobbs, Ima Harris and Elizabeth Scoggins.

Effie Wheeler made the special birthday cake to center on the decorated table.

Please remember to have some fun. We miss you when you are not here, so see you at the center.

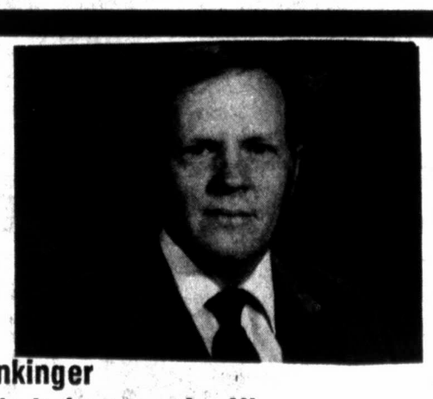
Elect
David "Gink"
Ginkinger
Mitchell County Sheriff



David "Gink" Ginkinger
is the best qualified candidate to be your sheriff.
Why do I believe I am the best qualified?

* I have the law enforcement experience.
* I am a certified peace officer.
* I know "Mitchell County". I have lived her for 15 years. I know the roads of Mitchell County as well as all the back roads, even the places that have names that were given to them in the earlier days, "Old Cuthbert Store", "Cedar Bend", "Butler Camp", "T-Vill Cemetery", "Sixteen Mile Road", just to name a few. I feel I know this county better than the other candidate.
* I am a dedicated family man, my wife, Donna, and I have been married for 19 years, and have three sons, one granddaughter, and three grandsons.
* I am an honest person and I will give you an honest answer. I am not going to tell you something just because I think that is what you want to hear. I am not going to promise you something just on the basis that it might "get me elected", I don't work that way. I truly believe that I have Been Honest and up front with each and every one of you voters out there.
* It is time for Mitchell County to elect a Sheriff that will work for you. I am that person, THAT IS A PROMISE I WILL GIVE TO YOU, AND ONE THAT I WILL KEEP.

Thank You,
David "Gink" Ginkinger

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I would like to express our gratitude to Westbrook ISD School Board, and their superintendant Mr. Sonny Hollis.

Our church youth group leaders wanted to sponsor a retreat for young adults 15-17 years of age this summer, and we did not have the shower facilities.

No one would help us, or give us a good reason why they wouldn't.

Mr. Hollis was our last hope, and he came through for our kids.

We will be forever grateful.

Because of these nice people, we are able to go ahead with our plans. They did not give us the run around like some people.
