Area Cotton, Grain Crops Reaching Maturity Stages

Area farmers have looked hopefully at the many promising clouds of the past ten days...only to see them dissipate most of the time. However, Wednesday a few showers fell in the area with the promise of more moisture in the near future.

In the meantime, they have wearily poured water onto the flourishing crops. Grain dealers say some farmers are finishing the watering chore for the year, others are now making the application.

Kenneth Williams of Olton Grain Co-op says, "Watering of corn is nearly over. Perhaps one more week will see completion, or perhaps these clouds will materialize and put a stop to it.

"We have had some corn sampled, earlier planting, and found about 33 percent moisture. We're waiting for a moisture content of 25 to 28 percent. Even so, we're looking for an earlier harvest than last year.

"There has been some damage from spider mites, and corn borers, and not enough water in some instances for the extreme hot weather of the summer. But a bumper crop is still predicted across the nation. This tends to depress the market which now stands at $3.25 for corn and $3 for milo."

Williams also stated, "There is an awful lot in storage already. Figures show 58 percent more corn in storage June 1 than same date last year; and 50 percent more milo on same dates of comparison."

Another grain dealer, aslo lamenting depressed prices, looks hopefully for remedial measures to be taken to increase price supports.

One said, "Farmers were told to plant from turn-row to turn-row and they did. American farmers can produce more than anybody in the world, and now there is not enough export market."

A look at cotton crops growing in the area is very promising according to one ginner. Some farmers claim the best promise since 1954, some make 1962 comparisons. Both were good years.

Ginners estimate about 15,000 acres of cotton have been planted. This estimate is based upon seed sold. Here also, although the market is favorable, it has made a downward turn and producers are faced with lowering prices as against staggering rises in all costs of production.

One sums it up, "The area has on its Sunday clothes, crops are beautiful, but it has been a long hard summer. And when you look at those beautiful crops.... remember that farmer has his problems, too."

ODELL SMITH

Life In Japan 'Crowded'

Olton High School graduates scatter to the far flung corners of the world, as evidenced in a visit this week with Odell Smith, class of '49.

Smith, who has done a bit of world traveling, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith. He comes regularly to spend some time in his former hometown and specifically with his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lester O. Kennedy and his brother, T.J. Smith and family.

Odell has been busy since high school days. He went on to A&M University to earn a degree in 1953 then spent two years in the US Air Force as a ground officer. During this time all traveling was done in the continental United States.

Upon release from the service, he joined Caterpillar Tractor Company of Peoria, Ill. It has been at their direction that Smith has seen various parts of the world.

Following three years residency in Peoria, he was sent to Denmark, from 1963-65, where he spent his time traveling the Scandanavian Countries.

Thereafter he was placed in Brazil, South America, for some six and one-half years.

Presently he and his family are making their home in Tokyo, Japan. Living in the orient for the past seven months, Smith is Parts and Service Director for his company. He says their operation there is a joint venture with Mitsubishi Industries in a factory employing some 9000 persons.

When questioned as to why heavy machinery was needed in the land that for centuries had been cultivated by hand, in very small plots, he explained, "The area of Japan is roughly the size of California. Living in that area are some 112 million people. Space is at a premium. We're helping them extend their land by filling in ocean areas.And we encourage making large flat areas for rice paddies for mechanized cultivation.

"Of course, most of their agricultural products, rice, fruits and vegetables continue to be grown in small plots. They seem very small to us, about like a yard in our country. Each of these producers has a part time job on the side, leaving the wife to do a great deal of the planting and cultivating.

"Japan is a series of volcanic islands, lots of the land is totally unsuited to agriculture, mountainous or wooded areas."

The Smiths live in an individual house in Tokyo, which is uncommon. Within a radius of 50 miles some 30 million people live in crowded conditions, mostly in small apartments. The Smith house is one of six identical western styled houses in te compound. A Japanese owner lives in one, the other five tenants are Americans, and there is a small courtyard area in the midst, giving playing room for children. It is conveniently located near a busy shopping area.

Most Japanese live in quite small apartments with mat floor covering. Many are extended families, including more than one generation. They sleep on straw mats with the addition of a "futon", sort of a sleeping bag.

Travel in Tokyo is chiefly via rail. The inter-urbans may be privately owned, according to Smith, but possibly most of the express trains are government owned....all are dependable and fast. They arrive at their destinations on time, barring a disaster and they travel about 80 miles per hour. All are crowded to capacity or more.

Nearly all automobiles in the country are the smaller makes, Datsuns and the like, because streets are geared to that capacity, and because of the scarcity of oil.

"Traffic travels on the left, as in all Pacific countries," Smith explains, "And sometimes you think all 30 million are on the streets at once. It is congested, but it is predictable. Japanese obey signals and well disciplined drivers. Their acident rate is lower than in many countries. I take the Company bus to the factory, a distance of about 30 miles. The trip requires about an hour and a half."

"You don't see any unreliable cars on the street, all are well maintained, by law they must undergo a thorough inspection every two years. The country is building a system of modern expressways. Most of them are toll roads. The overall plan is about one-third complete. Building on this has declined since the oil crisis."

Living in Tokyo is very expensive, but very comfortable. Almost anything one wants is available in supermarkets, for a price. Smith remembers the last steak he purchased was about $15 per pound. Because, he says, it is extremely expensive to fatten cattle. Fish, pork and chickens are less expensive.

And Smith commented, "Speaking of fish....I found raw fish very hard to accept as a food. We try some of the native foods, but still perfer our own."

Language is a real barrier, naturally. "I am trying to learn to speak," he admitted, "but I'm very lazy at it, studying only about two hours per week. Languages are very difficult to learn without a visual symbol. Since words are written in those unique characters rather than the Roman alphabet, I'm not trying to learn to read or write the language.

"We have to work through an interpreter in all business transactions and it takes two hours or more for any ordinary forty-five minute session, just to be sure that both parties understand fully what is being said."

In describing the economic boom that Japan has enjoyed in recent years, he says, "This is a key to a way of life for them. Japan is a world leader in electronics, opticals and ship building. There is no un-employment problem as we know it. It probably is about two percent, but there is no opportunity for advancement for individuals.

"Government is an integral part of business. It attempts to avoid major economic and social problems with a thermostatic, tight control. They maintain a flow of trade to assure protection for themselves.

"The rate of growth of business has declined since the oil crisis has arisen, and they have not yet adjusted to all of it. They had been geared to such a high domestic economy in appliances, textiles, etc., and a large number of companies are being closed down.

"Japanese men are really dedicated to their work. They think nothing of long hours, or extra tasks. When they elect to join a company, they feel committed for the rest of their careers to that particular work."

Smith reports the crime rate is low in the country. "For one thing, punishment is very severe for law breakers. Too, they seem to have great respect for privacy of others, this is an outgrowth of centuries of teaching of a culture on this basis."

When asked if they had no violence on television, he was quick to admit that it was much worse than that in our nation, "That is, judging from the picture, I can't understand all that is being said."

Odell, who is very modest in all that he reports, seems to be greatly interested in understanding the people of this land so new to him.

"it would take a long time to really understand them, I think. They may look Western, but their social life is really unchanged. Their families are not as close as we Americans are, they seem to accept family life as a "responsibility" rather than a close family unit," he reasons.

"But there again, we really can't judge, because we can't understand them.

"In their western dress they are very conservative, especially in the offices where I work.

"Japan is a country of contrasts. They are deeply rooted in tradition, yet on the surface they are accepting Western society. They are clever at adapting (though not always adopting); they are good at copying."

Odell married the former Miss Anna Menzler, who is a native of Austria. They met in South Carolina. They are parents of two sons. Steve is in sixth grade in the American school they attend. Mike, who will be a fourth grader, holds dual citizenship having been born in Brazil.

The boys both study Japanese as a required subject and they are having to learn the characters also. They list the beautiful parks of Japan as favorite places.

They have a thirty minute bus ride to school and their father states, they really have more freedom possibly than they would have in an Americn city.

The Smith family finds most of its entertainment at The American Club. There are possibly 12,000 to 15,000 westerners living in the area.

When asked if they had felt any earth tremors in the land of volcanic isles the visitor was quicky to reply, "Oh, my, yes. We have probably one or two a month. You can hear the windows rattle and dishes shake in the cabinets. But we have had no damaging quakes. But yes, they do bother. You always wonder when do I leave...and where do I go."

Weather Modification Voted On Saturday

Lamb County residents joined with neighbors in surrounding counties in casting votes on the future of weather modification services. Lamb County voting was Saturday, Aug. 20.

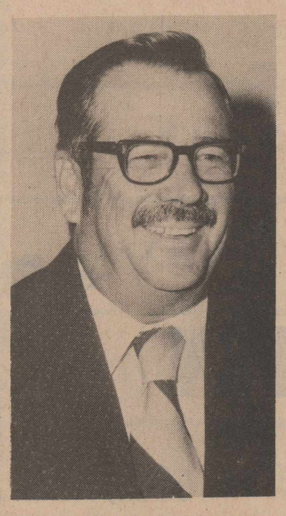

Persons in Precinct 1 cast ballots in the grade school building with balloting beginning at 7 a.m. and continuing until 7 p.m.

Outcome of the balloting will determine whether cloud seeding operations in efforts to suppress hail can be continued. The elections, in Lamb, Castro, Swisher, Brisco and Randall Counties were called after opponents circulated petitions asking to have elections conducted.. Weather modification foes believe the seeding program causes a decrease in rainfall.

Fate of the hail suppress- program of Atmospherics Incorporated of Littlefield and Plains Weather Improvement Association of Plainview will be determined by the election results.

In election Precinct Two, voting will be at the Earth Community Building; Precinct Three, Spade school building; Precinct Four, Lumsden Gin; Precinct Five, Sudan Community Building; Precinct Six, Pleasant Valley Community Building; Precinct Seven, Sudan Co-op Gin; Precinct Eight, Amherst City Hall; Precinct Nine, Fieldton Baptist Church; Precinct 10, County Courthouse; Precinct Eleven, Beck Gin; Precinct Twelve, Hart Camp Baptist Church; Precinct 13, Springlake Community Building; Precinct 14, Littlefield Junior High School building; Precinct 15, Springlake City Hall; Precinct 16, Paul Hukill residence.

'Following Tom' Is Top Interest

Well manicured and pretty, the spacious yard of the Tom McGills' country home is the sole responsibility of the "lady of the house."

Strictly her domain, Juanita says there's "also an acre out back" to 'tend. Although it's hard work and an never-ending task, she finds satisfaction from the labors and says she supposes it could be called a hobby.

"Following Tom" is Juanita's first listed hobby. That, she says, leaves no time for hobbies.

Juanita and Tom were classmates at school and graduated together with the class of 1931. Their children, Mack and Coy, also graduted from OHS and their grandchildren, Sherilyn and Jarrod McGill are students in Olton schools.

Mack and his wife, Gayland, live with their children just a short distance away. Father and son farm together.

Coy, Mrs. Alan Duncan, lives in Plainview. She has a four-year-old son, McAlan.

The McGills "went together" throughout high school; their dates being Saturday night movies when "Tom could find money for a show." The first years of their marriage, they lived on the McGill home place. Juanita laughingly says it was later nicknamed as the "weaning pen," since Tom's two brothers also brought their brides to that first home.

Juanita and Tom moved to their home north of the Circle community in 1953. It's distance from town is more than compensated for by the beauty of the countryside in the changing seasons.

MRS. TERRY JAMES HUTTO

Miss Vaughn, Mr. Hutto Pledge Twin Ring Vows

In a candlelight ceremony in First Baptist Church, Tulia, Sunday, Aug. 14, Miss Debbi Darelle Vaughn and Terry James Hutto, exchanged wedding vows. The Rev. Charles Davenport, pastor, directed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Vaughn, former residents of this city now living in Tulia, and Joan Hutto and H.F. Hutto, also of Tulia.

Traditional nuptial selections were presented by Mike Figer, organist of Houston, cousin of the bride; and Mrs. Keith Harmon, pianist of Dallas, cousin of the bride. Soloists were Mrs. Dennis Powers, Tulia, and Robert Stovall, Fort Stockton.

White urns of Boston fern banked the altar area and formed a background for an archway decorated with lemon leaves, yellow gladoli, accented with blue bows. Two multibranch candelabra were fitted with white cathedral tapers. Seating area for parents of the bridal couple was marked by lighted white tapers and white satin bows.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal wedding gown of white silk organza over bridal taffeta designed with a Victorian neckline of lace and sheer yoke appliqued in lace. Banded in satin and lace, the Empire bodice was enhanced by a lace trimmed flounce forming a deep V. A double flounce of self fabric formed cap sleeves. The softly gathered A-line skirt was paneled in lace and dotted with lace motifs. Back fullness of the skirt cascaded into a full chapel train.

She wore a wide brimmed hat of matching organza and lace with soft streamers, dotted with lace motifs, flowing to the tip of the train. She carried a cascade arrangement of yellow roses, gypsophila and English ivy atop a white lace-covered Bible, gift of her paternal grandmother.

For 'something old' she wore a diamond brooch having belonged to her paternal great-great-great grandmother. 'New' was her white Bible, and 'borrowed' were diamond earrings belonging to the maid of honor. Into her 'blue' garter was tied a British six-pence minted in the year of her birth.

Miss Debbie Burrow, Tulia, served as maid of honor. Bridal attendants were Kassandra Brown, Plainview, cousin of the bride; Mrs. Frank Westfall, Tulia; Mrs. Betsy Figer, cousin, of Austin; Mrs. Joe Dale Chitwood, Houston; and Mrs. John Young, Lubbock.

Little Miss Stacey James, niece of the groom, Goldthwaite, was flower girl. Ring bearer was Andy Brown, Lubbock, cousin of the bride.

Feminine attendants wore identical gowns of saffron yellow nylon over polished volare. The slipper length gowns were styled with short capelets. Cummerbunds at the waists were tied with bows for back interest. In their hair they wore nosegays of gypsophila and miniature yellow roses, tied in yellow satin and blue lace. Each carried a long stemmed yellow rose.

Candles were lighted by Amy Brown, Lubbock, cousin of the bride and Leslie Hutto, Lubbock, niece of the groom. Flower girl and candlelighters were gowned in white.

Doug Jordan, Tulia, was his friend's best man. Groomsmen were Gary Hutto, brother of the groom, Larry Freeman of Dallas, Scott Burrow of Canyon, Frank Reeves and Van Latham, both of Tulia. Guests were seated by Kelly Brown, Plainview, bride's cousin; Kent Hayhurst, Lubbock; Alan Pohlmeier, Tulia; and Donald Figer, Austin. Groomsmen and ushers wore vested azure blue tuxedoes and added yellow rosebud boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Vaughn selected an ivory voile formal length gown with matching jacket with co-ordinated accessories. The mother of the groom wore a white taffeta gown, overlaid with a floral sheer nylon.

A reception in fellowship hall of the church building honored the young couple. The bride's table was laid with white organza over white with lace swags tied with yellow bows. The tiered wedding cake was adorned with fresh yellow daisies. A silver candlestick, fitted with yellow tapers, was entwined with yellow flowers.

The groom's table covered with an ecru floor length cloth, was centered with blue tapers in wooden holders entwined with English ivy, white rosebuds and blue cornflowers. A chocolate cake topped with white doves, bore the couple's names and date of wedding.

Members of the house party were Miss Cindy Beck, Perryton; Cheryl Veatch, Plainview; Cheri Blake, Abilene; Mrs. Buddy James of Goldthwaite, sister of the groom; and Mrs. Larry Freeman of Dallas.

The bride attended Texas Tech University and will enter West Texas State University this fall, seeking a degree is Speech Pathology.

Hutto has attended WTSU and is presently studying at Amarillo College working toward a certificate in medical laboratory technology. He is presently employed at St. Anthony's hospital in the medical laboratory.

Following a wedding trip to New Orleans, the young couple will be at home in Amarillo.

Rehearsal dinner was hosted by parents of the bridegroom in a Tulia restaurant.

Bridesmaids luncheon was hosted by aunts of the bride, Ms. Tom Brown, Lubbock and Mrs. Dell Brown, Plainview.

Cloud Seeding -- Hope For The Future

Weather changes prompt people to jump to strange conclusions.

In 1870, Pennsylvania farmers blamed a long drought on the railroad locomotives running through their state.

Some people thought a newly strung telegraph line from Charleston to West Virginia caused the eastern seaboard drought in 1895. The dust bowl drought of the 1930's was attributed by some to the numerous radio stations in the area.

Again weather patterns are changing. Now it is the weather modifiers who get the blame.

WEATHER TAMPERING: WE ALL DO IT

Whether we realize it or not, whether we intend to or not, we are altering our weather. There are dissenters who frown on any deliberate attempt at weather modification, but they may rest assured that man affects his weather conditions through poor soil conservation practices, prodigal use of energy, and pollution.

Automobile exhausts, industrial smoke, and all particles in the air modify clouds. Whether natural, man-made, inadvertent or intentional, these particles are modifying our weather at this moment.

CAN SEEDING TEAR UP A CLOUD?

"Rather than decreasing rainfall, silver iodide is doing the opposite thing," said Dr. Pierre St Amond. Dr. St Amond is a leading authority with many memberships in scientific organizations. "Seeding in updrafts makes a cloud grow. A full grown cloud couldn't possible be stopped by seeding. Instead rain should be increased."

This noted scientist and other authorities say only a very small cloud could be dissipated and then only by dropping tons and tons of cement on its top to weigh the air down.

Twin-engine planes like those used in seeding clouds for hail suppression couldn't possibly carry enough material to "tear up" a cloud.

SUPPRESSING HAIL MAKES MORE RAIN

Paul Schickendanz, a world-wide recognized meteorologist, conducted a study in Hale and Lamb Counties comparing the years before cloud seeding from 1929 through 1969 to the period since 1969 when clouds have been seeded for hail suppression.

Seeded counties received 5 to 10% more rainfall than would have been expected based on non-seeded counties. During this period hail damage was 50 to 60% less. Additional rain and reduced hail are the result.

WHY DOES DOUBT PERSIST?

So why does doubt and confusion on cloud seeding results continue? It is human nature to doubt what can not be fully understood. When the cotton gin was invented, the inventor and any businessman adventuresome enough to think of installing a cotton gin was threatened. The loud cry went up everywhere! This machine will replace man! Everyone will be out of work! The cotton gins means the south will starve!

MAN WANTS TO PLACE BLAME

Many years ago the man on the street cried out that trains, the telegraph lines, the radio stations were causing the drought. Now the battle cry is sounded that cloud seeding is stopping rain.

RAINFALL IS NOT DECREASED

Ray Booker, a Phd. scientist recognized in all scientific circles, says it is simply beyond the power of man to overseed cumulus clouds to the degree which would be required to keep rain from falling.

There is absolutely no scientific evidence anywhere that cloud seeding has decreased rainfall in ANY direction in a 180 to 200 mile radius.

HOW MUCH SILVER IODIDE IS TOO MUCH?

The Bulletin of the American Meteorological Society is the most widely recognized authority on cloud seeding. Scientists report that if all the silver dispersed in 100 years accumulated in the top two to six inches of soil, no additional silver concentration could be detected.

As far as the iodide is concerned, Dr. Lou Grant said a person gets more iodide when he salts his breakfast eggs than he would ever get as the result of seeding clouds.

IS WEATHER SACRED?

In spite of irrefutable proof that we all practice weather modification inadvertently, many still oppose altering it scientifically, insisting that weather is God-given and therefore sacred.

Today, because of increased sophistication and technology, we do not have to sit by idly while the natural forces wreak havoc on mankind.

We have the capability and the knowledge to modify the weather and manage precipitation to a significant degree. If we use this ability and knowledge properly we can receive great benefits and greatly increase the productivity of our farms and ranches.

Remember, 10 short years ago man had not set foot on the moon. Look at the tremendous increase in technology we've gained from this venture.

BIG SPRING PROJECT

The rain increase program at Big Spring is a definite success. Dry land farmers are immensely proud of the program which is funded by $100,000 from the state of Texas and an additional $600,000 from the US government.

Farmers with irrigation cannot get by without rainfall. They would not fund a program that deprived a neighbor of whatever rain he would receive from a cloud.

Rather than decrease rain, cloud seeding increases rainfall. As much as this region needs additional water, it would be bad to cut off a program that can produce additional rain.

HAIL INSURANCE IS PROHIBITIVE

Insurance companies have made their own surveys on hail damage in this area. Loss ratios on hail are down $4 on $100 worth of coverage on most policies. This is an 18% decrease in crop hail insurance. The reason is that hail suppression activites have reduced hail damage significantly enough to warrant a reduction.

INSURANCE TAKES 18% PROFIT

Hail suppression participants pay their own way. Hail insurance costs $18 per $100 coverage if the crop is insured for !300 an acre. That means a farmer taking out insurance pays $54 an acre, or 18% of that projected figure. No farmer can afford to pay 18%.

900 PAYING PARTICIPANTS

There are some 878 farmers who are paying participants in the Lamb and Hale County weather modification programs. There are no tax funds, no state or federal funds involved. These farmers pay $1.40 per cultivated acre and get 50 to 60% reduction from damaging hail. This is the cheapest insurance they can buy. With all the money that goes into making a crop, they can't afford to be without this protection.

SCIENTIFIC KNOW-HOW DOESN'T COUNT

Scientists KNOW and UNDERSTAND the limitations and capabilities of cloud seeding. Scientists are convinced weather modification will be a common water resource management tool in the 1980's and 1990's. But it is what the public thinks about weather modification, rather than what scientists know that will play the dominant role in the future of this science.

That's why the CONSERVATIONIST ELECTRIC water heater is worth looking at. It saves 15% of the energy used in a like-sized regular electric water heater and delivers all the dependability of electric water heating. The Conservationist is heavily insulated on all sides so heat is retained inside the water heater . . . used for what you're paying for . . . to heat water.
And, you save on space above the heater because an electric water heater does not need a flue or vent.
