NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin—Whether or not Pappy's biscuit are really cooling off in the Governor's race was the focus of attention in the capital this week-end, as W. Lee O'Daniel, the Pied Piper of Fort Worth, continued his unique campaign. O'Daniel adherents, who have sprung up in force, derided the attacks on the flour broker as only serving to solidify his support, while the experts were interestedly watching the strategy of the other two top candidates, McCraw and Thompson. The attorney general opened up vigorously on O'Daniel, attacked his lack of experience and his hill-billy music. Thompson did not alter his policy of attacking nobody, but consistently held to his plan of urging his "constructive program for Texas".

Some analysts contended McCraw's fire on O'Daniel was clear indication that the McCraw board of strategy was desperately afraid O'Daniel had nosed their man out of the runoff, and felt their candidate had nothing to lose by sailing into the hill-billy candidate. Others claimed McCraw forces felt sure the runoff will be between their man and O'Daniel, and they might as well start the war now.

Thompson's forces apparently were skeptical of O'Daniel's strength proving enough in the actual voting to get the flour man into the runoff. So they put Myron Blalock, chairman of the Democratic State executive committee on the radio to fire a few mild blasts of ridicule at McCraw. Thompson, himself, has attacked no other candidate so far, thus getting the double benefit of winning considerable support for a clean campaign, and maintaining an excellent position to bid for everybody's support in a runoff.

School Fund Row

The annual row over the fixing of the per capita school apportionment, and the tax rate necessary to finance it, broke out here last week. It attracted a large delegation of teachers, school officials, taxpayer representatives, textbook salesman, and others who profit by the "big business" of the public schools.

The Board of Education after long argument adopted a resolution advising the Automatic Tax Board that $37,829,161 from the available school fund, will be needed to guarantee a six months term next year. This represents a per capita apportionment of about $24-$22 higher than the apportionment. It also recommended $2,000,000 for text-books. This would require using the present State ad valorem levy from 7 cents to somewhere between 21 and 32 cents. The usual arguments about whether the board should fix the apportionment in advance of the Automatic Tax Board's action, or wait until the tax rate is fixed and then apportion available money to conform, broke out. Conflicting laws make even the lawyers doubtful about the proper procedure. Gov. Allred contends the Legislature must apportion before the Legislature is required to pay a $17.50 apportionment should be levied. The State school fund now receives substantially more than the constitutional allocation of certain special taxes, including gross production tax on oil, and sales tax on cigarets. Increasing revenue from these levies is certain to bring a movement from economy advocates in the next Legislature to cut the schools' share of these special taxes back to the minimum provided in the Constitution.

Brothers Meet After 55 Years

More than half a century ago—55 years, to be exact—a group of orphaned brothers and sisters said goodbye to each other in Lexington, Tennessee. They were divided among widely separated relatives following the deaths of their parents.

A few days ago the two remaining children of the family, two brothers, saw each other near Loraine for the first time since that long-ago separation. The reunion came when M. D. Hart, 60, Lexington, journeyed west of the Mississippi for the first time in his life. He came to visit S. H. Hart, 73, Valley View farmer north of Loraine. The latter has been in Mitchell County 37 years.

Austin Notes

Members of the board of control are engaged in their biennial task of compiling budget recommendations for the various State departments, to be submitted to the lawmakers in January. The Railroad Commission and the 7 State Teachers Colleges presented their estimates this week. The Board of Control, the largest spending agency in the State government, makes the budget estimates for all other departments—but the Legislature usually scraps the recommendations and rewrites the budgets, anyway. . . . Mrs. Louise Snow Phinney, who has been chief clerk of the House of Representatives for several terms, will not be a candidate for re-election by the 46th Legislature. She has reserved a room at a maternity hospital for sometime this autumn. Her husband is Carl Phinney, an able and popular young Dallas barrister. . . . The sudden death of Jeff Strickland, ex-Senator and Secretary of State under Gov. Pat M. Neff, brought sorrow to a large circle of friends throughout Texas. Strickland was known as one of the most effective lobbyists in Austin, representing theatre, sulphur and insurance interests. . . . Lynn Landrum, former editor of the recently merged Dallas Journal, and a first class writing man (whether you agree with him or not), devoted his column in the Dallas News last Saturday to rebuking a gubernatorial candidate who has attacked and maligned newspaper reporters who don't think this candidate will win (and none seems to think he will). Landrum's defense of Walter Hornady, the News' able political commentator, is worth reading.

Mrs. Derryberry Buried Monday

Funeral services for Mrs. J. B. Derryberry were held at the Loraine Church of Christ Monday afternoon with Bro. Forest R. Waldrop of Coleman officiating. He was assisted by Bro. Alonzo Phillips of Loraine, a family friend of long standing. Interment was made in the Loraine cemetery.

Mrs. Derryberry died at the home of a son, B. T. Derryberry, in Longworth Sunday, July 10, following an illness of several weeks. Several months ago she fell and broke her hip and she had never fully recovered from the effects of this injury. Her husband died at his home here in Loraine January 12, 1936.

Mary Rebecca Tatum was born March 1, 1867, at Hamilton, Texas. She was married to J. B. Derryberry October 6, 1884 at Lamin, Texas. Eight children were born to this union, two of whom died in infancy. The six remaining children were present at her bedside.

She was baptised into the Church of Christ in 1898 and lived a faithful Christian life.

She moved with Mr. Derryberry and her family to Loraine from Wichita Falls in 1916 and made her home here until the death of her husband.

The six surviving children are: Mrs. C. H. Walker, Wichita Falls; B. T. Derryberry, Longworth; Mrs. J. H. Doyle, Refugio, Texas; H. B. Derryberry, Loraine; J. E. Derryberry, Dunn; and A. R. Derryberry, Loraine.

She is also survived by sixteen grandchildren and six great grandchildren. Two brothers, T. C. and W. A. Tatum of Dublin, and two sisters, Mrs. W. A. Wright of Morton, Texas, and Mrs. R. L. Knox of Brinkham, Oklahoma, also survive.

Pallbearers were: O. W. Watlington, Odin Griffin, Luther Anders, Kirk Taylor, Kay McCarley, and J. B. Mahon. Flower bearers were: Irene Brown, Mrs. Glenn Coon, Josephine Palmer, Ruth Coon, Mrs. Kirk Taylor, and Willa Dean Hall of Longworth.

Stock Being Sold For Cheese Plant

Selling of stock in the Loraine Cooperative Association, the organization which is to establish the cheese plant here, got under way last Saturday.

Directors of the association are armed with notes and receipts and are contacting farmers in all parts of the territory to sell the stock. As soon as farmers are not quite so busy in their fields a more determined effort will be made to sell the stock.

Common stock in the association is being sold to producers who will patronize the plant at $1.00 per share with a minimum of 25 shares being sold to each individual. 20% of the subscription is being asked in cash, the balance may be paid out within two years with a percentage of the products sold being held out for payment.

Directors are to meet again on Tuesday night, July 19, to see what progress is being made in selling the stock and to compare notes with each other.

LOWER ELECTRIC RATES IN EFFECT IN LORAIN

Lower electric rates have been put into effect in Loraine and will apply on all bills for residential and commercial customers that are made from regular monthly meter readings on and after July 1, A. S. Legg, district manager of the Texas Electric Service Company announced Monday. The new rate schedules bring a substantial saving to all users of electricity in homes and stores, and should encourage citizens to have more of the comforts and conveniences that electricity makes possible.

"The new rates put into effect are in keeping with our policy to reduce the price of electricity as fast as increased use and other factors make such reductions possible," Mr. Legg declared. "Ten years ago 40 kilowatt hours cost $6.10 in residences. Two reductions have been made in residential electric rates since 1928, and 40 kilowatt hours now cost only $2.85. Commercial electric rates also have been reduced, and 150 kilowatt hours of electricity cost only $8.35 under the new rates."

Loraine Gets Lower Electric Rates Effective On July Bills

RAYON'S GROWTH SPURS NEED FOR COTTON RESEARCH

Dallas, Texas, July 12—The spectacular growth, continued through 1937, of production and use of rayon in world wide textile industries is seen in a report of the All-South Development Council as further complicating cotton marketing problems and increasing the urgency for finding new cotton uses and cutting production costs through better seed, better ginning, and more thorough insect control.

Productions of continuous filament rayon yarns, according to a bulletin of the National City Bank of New York, increased by 66 million pounds in 1937, reaching a peak of 1,187,000,000 (billion) pounds. The steady but startling growth of this product is shown by Textile Economics Bureau figures for 1913, first year it figured in textile statistics, when the total was a mere 25,000,000 pounds; for 1922, when it had risen only to 77,000,000 pounds, and for 1929, by which time it had multiplied six times, for a total of 435,000,000 pounds.

Even more spectacular has been the rise of rayon "staple fiber," which is rayon cut into short lengths—1½ to 2 inches—for spinning into yarns or cotton, woolen or worsted spinning machinery. Starting with 20 million pounds in 1932, production more than doubled by 1934, at 52 million, nearly tripled the next year, touching 139 million, doubled in 1936 to 297 million, and doubled again last year, to reach 622 million. This 1937 total for staple fiber represented 34 per cent of total rayon production.

As to the actual competition between cotton and rayon, the bulletin says "the development of staple fiber at this phenomenal rate is something to be considered by the sheepman and cotton growers of this country as well as the silk farmers of Japan." The total poundage of all rayon produced (nearly 2 billion pounds) is not yet impressive in relation to total cotton (more than 18 billion lbs.) and as world use of fibers expands there will be room in the industries for both materials without necessarily reducing the consumption of cotton and wool. "Nevertheless, price relations are affected. The higher the price of old materials, the greater the competition from the new."

With this new re-inforcement of an economic "ceiling" on cotton prices, the need for more economical cotton growing and marketing methods, to insure margin of profit despite restricted price, is more apparent than ever, says the Council's report. It is further justification for speeding plans for a cotton research laboratory to discover new uses for cotton, and intensifying work toward cutting costs by insect control, better seed selection, better ginning. Research might conceivably make cotton and rayon more "partners" than rivals through emphasizing and perfecting cotton linters' and materials, though wood pulp is being used increasingly now, especially in staple fiber production, stalks' usability as rayon raw material may be significant that Japan, whose silk is popularly thought of as being most "rivalled" by rayon's growth, has in the last few years become the world's leading producer of rayon filament yarn, accounting for 28 per cent of the world total in 1937. The United States produced 26 per cent. Japan, which uses wood pulp as the raw material, also was second to Germany in staple fiber, making 28 per cent to Germany's 35 per cent. In this field the United States produced but 3.2 per cent.

Progress of rayon toward a better competitive price status, thru technical advances which have also improved its physical properties, is shown in its price history since 1928. Viscose staple fiber, then 60 cents per pound, has come down to 25 cents; viscose rayon filament, over the same period, has been brought down from $1.50 per pound to 49 cents.

Announcement of a reduction in electric rates in Loraine and other towns served by the Texas Electric Service Company was made this week by A. S. Legg, district manager of the company.

The reduction is the largest that has been made since 1925, being approximately a 24% reduction for Loraine. The reduced rates take effect July 1, and should the consumption of electricity in Loraine the coming year be the same as the past year Loraine electric consumers will make a saving of $1900.00.

Mr. McSpadden, local manager, stated Wednesday that the rate in all towns served by the Texas Electric Service Company will be exactly the same, except the minimum charge which varies according to the size of the town. The new rate does not take into account a room count, or any flat charges. All rates will be the same. (This does not mean that all bills will be the same.)

Announcement of the reduction was made the the Loraine City Council in a called meeting Wednesday at noon by Mr. McSpadden.

In addition to Loraine, rate reductions are also being made in all the other towns and communities served by the Texas Electric Service Company. In this immediate area Colorado and Westbrook together with the Buford, Dunn, China Grove, and Ira communities will also receive reductions.

The reduction was made voluntarily by the company.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—Several years before Romain Rolland finished "Jean Christophe," Leo Tolstoy called him the warden of the conscience of Europe. In his quarter-century exile in Switzerland, he remained "above the battle," warning of war, decrying hatred, pleading for peace and understanding. His has been a voice crying in the wilderness. His exile ended, he returns to France, "an old man, broken and despairing," as the news dispatches report. The world seems to have little heeded his impassioned appeals. He wants to die in Clamecy, the village where he was born.

The greatest novel of a century, possibly of many centuries, "Jean Christophe" has been called by great critics and multitudes of lesser lights. It was published in 1913. This writer has found few young persons, even those majoring in literature, who have read it.

He has found others who have never heard of Romain Rolland, the Nobel peace prize winner exiled from his country, while Carl von Ossietzky, German Nobel peace prize winner, was impoverished, jailed and hurried to his death in the same "years between." There is in this age swift obsolescence in the spiritual heritage as well as in machines.

But another, even greater teacher, looking sadly down on the multitude from a hill in Jerusalem, was also unheeded: "How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" But neither He nor His teaching was altogether forgotten. There will also be those who will remember Romain Rolland.

When he was exiled from France, vast sums of money were offered him if he would go to America, to write and lecture. Publicity, or any form of self-exploitation, is to him profoundly distasteful. He withdrew to a secluded villa near Zurich, Switzerland.

There is one definite attitude in all these post-war writings. He had no faith in "movements," in "ideologies," right or left. He repulsed Henri Barbusse, his clarte group and the various "united fronts," as he did the emissaries of bloody reaction from the right. He knew that the righteous can be as cruel as the wicked, once they find reliance on force.

Like the great German Fichte, whom he esteemed, he believed only in the "inner light"—never in organization or force. But he was not a "political agnostic." He fought, and suffered, to arouse the world conscience, as the dying Tolstoy had enjoined him.

He is a tall, spare, pallid old man, with thinning hair and sad, deep-set eyes as he returns to France at the age of seventy-two. Educated in music, at the Ecole Normale, he became a devotee of Wagner, whose genius inspired his life—then of Tolstoy and Shakespeare. He has written many times in the last few years that he sees little hope that the world will escape a last devastating war.

IT WAS reported that Sir John Reith, director general of the British Broadcasting corporation, was badly licked in that international A r a b i c crooning contest a while back. Virtually all observers gave the decision to Italy. If so, it probably was the only time he ever lost a contest.

The tall, bald, grim Scotsman is upped to the job of running the Imperial Airways, as a civil arm of rearmament, with a sizeable hike in salary. It is now $50,000 a year, instead of $35,000.

He is an engineer, and in 1916 was here with 600 technicians checking on war material contracts. He didn't like America or Americans but eased up on us later on. Running British radio, he has been exonerated as a tyrant, but he has held to his line and confounded all his adversaries. His views on radio programs were outlined by him as follows: "To set out to give the public what it wants, as the saying is, is a dangerous and fallacious policy."

Seeks Reinstatement as Its Chairman and Back Salary . . . Proposed New Deal Party Purge Hits Some Snags

Here is the new Peace Memorial in the Gettysburg National Military park which was dedicated by President Roosevelt during the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, in which veterans of the Northern and Southern armies participated. On the top of the shaft burns "The Flame of Eternal Peace."

DR. ARTHUR E. MORGAN has started a court fight to regain the chairmanship of the Tennessee Valley authority from which he was ousted by President Roosevelt for what the latter termed "contumacy." In chancery court at Knoxville, Tenn., he filed a mandamus suit asking that he be recognized as a member and chairman of the board of directors of the authority.

A. E. Morgan

In the bill, which named the TVA and Directors H. A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal as defendants, the former chairman asked for payment of back salary since his dismissal. He also asked for a declaratory judgment voiding the President's removal order and forcing the other two directors to recognize him as its chairman.

Doctor Morgan never has recognized the President's right to remove him. After starting the court action, he said he would carry his fight for reinstatement to the Supreme court if necessary.

The justice department in Washington withheld comment on the suit, but it was a foregone conclusion that the government would contest it. Before the President removed Doctor Morgan he asked the justice department whether this was within his power. Robert H. Jackson, now solicitor general, but then acting attorney general, advised "there would appear to be no question that the power of removal is in fact vested in the President."

Tells Cities to Hurry

CITIES of the nation were urged by Secretary Ickes to make haste to submit projects for PWA approval and thus play "a dominating part in bringing about recovery."

At the same time he asked business to co-operate with the government in the $1,600,000,000 building program, and warned contractors and private industry not to pay "graft" to corrupt officials in an attempt to curry political favors in the form of benefits from PWA construction.

"The success of this recovery program will depend upon the speed with which our municipalities move," he said. "They will have to produce faster than before. They will have to draw their plans more rapidly, make decisions more quickly and file their applications with alacrity."

"Involved are jobs for workmen, the creation of new business for industrial and commercial concerns, the expansion of factory payrolls, the rejuvenation of transportation systems, the spread of purchasing power, the expansion of credit, the stimulation of our securities and our banks."

'Purge' Is Hard Hit

TWO long distance messages came from Manila, from Paul V. McNutt, governor general of the Philippines and reputed boss of the Democrats of Indiana.

Thereupon the New Dealers of the Hoosier state decided they could not win in November unless they renominated a t e d Frederick Van Nuys for the senate. That gentleman had been marked for elimination by Tommy Corcoran and his fellow managers of the proposed "purge" of those who had opposed any major New Deal policies and Governor Townsend had publicly announced Van Nuys could not be renominated. The senator was planning to run as an independent. After hearing from McNutt, the governor invited the senator to present his candidacy to the state convention, and Van Nuys accepted in the interests of party harmony.

Corcoran's purge appears to have bogged down elsewhere, too. Senator George of Georgia and Senator E. D. Smith of South Carolina seem likely to win renomination. In New York city Tammany decided to support Congressman John J. O'Connor, who led the fight against the reorganization bill, and several other New York members of the lower house whom Corcoran had listed for defeat.

Insists on Reorganization

IN HIS last press conference before starting on his transcontinental and Pacific ocean trip, President Roosevelt revealed that he was still determined to have congress pass a reorganization bill. Seemingly not at all discouraged by the defeat of the measure in the last congress, he said he was confident the next session would realize that the country wants such a law and would enact it. The congressmen who voted to recommit the measure favored at least 90 per cent of the bill, he said, and opposed only 10 per cent of it.

Trial Fare Raise

REVERSING a previous ruling, the interstate commerce commission in a ten-to-one decision authorized eastern railroads to increase basic passenger coach fares from 2 to 2½ cents a mile for a trial period of 18 months. Commissioner Claude R. Porter cast the only dissenting vote. Railroads estimate that the increase will mean $40,000,000 in added revenue a year. Action was taken on an appeal by the carriers for reconsideration of the commission's initial decision on March 6, when their original plea was turned down on a six to five vote. In seeking a review, the roads contended the commission had entered too greatly into the field of management. This view was concurred in by several of the commissioners, who dissented from the original majority opinion.

Want to Quit Austria

ARTHUR ROSENBERG, representing the Federation of Austrian Exiles, told a conference of 32 nations at Evian - les - Bains, France, that four and a half million Austrians will flee Nazi rule in their country if a new homeland can be found for them and they are allowed to take a substantial part of their property with them. The conference, officially the Intergovernmental Committee on Political Refugees, was instigated by President Roosevelt.

Myron Taylor

The American delegation was headed by Myron C. Taylor, former head of the United States Steel corporation, and he took the lead in the preliminaries for settling the problem of German Jews and other refugees from the Reich.

The Americans made it plain, however, that the United States' attitude was one of helpfulness rather than direction. Officials said they were trying to help shape plans, but "we do not intend to be the final judges of whatever may be done."

Mr. Taylor was unanimously elected president of the conference. The Zionist Organization of America closed its forty-first convention in Detroit with an attack on what it termed Nazi violence and brutality toward Jews in Austria and Germany. Dr. Solomon Goldmann of Chicago was elected president.

Magnificent Cakes Entered.

The judges report that they have never seen a finer collection of cakes assembled at one time. Because almost all the cakes were so exceptionally good, it was extremely difficult to choose the winners. But a most careful scoring system was used, and the cakes were checked for general appearance, including shape, size and crust, both color and character; flavor, including odor and taste; lightness; crumb, including texture, rated as to its fineness, tenderness, moistness and elasticity, color and grain.

C. Houston Goudiss has said that he regrets that every woman who entered the contest could not win a prize. He offers his congratulations to the winners and his thanks to the many other homemakers who helped to make this Cake Contest such a splendid success.

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THERE is a modern air about the colorful roughly woven table mat and the chair cover and cushion shown here. Does it surprise you to learn that they cost next to nothing? There is a trick end of the strip so that it will pull through the burlap easily. If long strips are needed, cut around and around the stocking spirally instead of lengthwise. Now, draw out one thread of the burlap; then tie one end of the next thread to the tapered end of the stocking strip as at A. Pull the other end of this thread as at B to draw the strip through.

"There's the Doorbell Again"

SUPPOSE daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean!

It would be even more impractical for you to visit daily all these stores to find out what they have to offer and the price. And yet you need those merchants' service quite as much as they need your patronage. Contact between seller and consumer is essential in the supplying of human needs. Before a sale can be closed the goods must be offered. Every week, through the advertising columns of this newspaper, the merchants of this city come to your home with their choicest wares. Easily, quickly, you get the news of all that is worth while in the market-places of the world.

They are not strangers at the door, but merchants you know and trust. You are surer of high quality and fair price when you buy an article advertised by a reputable firm.

"I'm armed all right," the bandit sneered. "Don't make any mistake about that. But I may take you up on yore offer. Maybe I can use two guns."

Norris ate ravenously. He drank cup after cup of coffee. More than once he went back to the bottle. At last he pushed his chair back.

"I reckon you know it was Lee Chiswick's crowd attacked us in Live Oak canyon," he said. "I left in some hurry. Me and Kansas. Did they collect the rest of the boys?"

"Mile High got away. But Sid Hunt was killed. Lou they captured."

"Too bad about that, Sherm," the other man jeered. "He'll blab, of course, and you'll be in this up to yore neck."

The big man looked at him bleakly, but made no answer in words. "Kansas got away with you, didn't he?" was his comment.

A film of wary blankness came over the eyes of the hunted man. "Kansas made it out of the canyon with me," he said slowly. "A posse jumped us at the old Walsh place and got Kansas. I fought 'em off and lit out with the girl."

"Got Kansas. You mean killed 'im?"

"He'll never be any deader," Norris answered callously.

"Come clean, Morg. We've got to know just where we're at. Did you do this Chiswick girl any harm in any way?"

The sulky look spread over the face of the kidnaper. "Didn't hurt the li'l fool at all, outside of slapping her white face once when she got sassy."

"What are yore plans?" Howard inquired.

"First off, I aim to dress my wounds and bathe my feet in hot water."

"Sure, Morg," the fat man said with oily smoothness. "Help yourself to anything I have here. You are welcome to whatever I've got."

Norris leered at him. "I'll bet you feel like I was your prodigal son. A fatted calf wouldn't be near good enough for me."

His host decided not to put the welcome on too thick. Morg Norris was not a fool when his passions were not involved.

"You can have it straight, Morg, since you ask for it," he retorted brusquely. "You've played yore hand like a damn fool. I was hoping you wouldn't show up here, but would slip across the line to Mexico. Well, you're here. There's nothing I can do but give you a lift on yore way. Right now all the passes will be watched. You wouldn't have a dead man's chance of getting through unless you had all the luck in the world. Question is, where do you aim to hole up? They will watch Tail Holt the way a cat does a mouse-hole. Even now someone may know you're here."

"Only Sherm Howard, and of course he wouldn't give me away," Norris said derisively.

"Sure nobody saw you come in?"

"Sure. While I think of it, Sherm, I'll take that other gun you promised me." The slitted eyes stabbed into those of the older man.

For a barely perceptible instant Howard hesitated. He had a suspicion Morg was not armed. If so, he could be killed now with no risk. The man had become a menace. It would be well to get rid of him. He could use just now the credit that would come to him for rubbing out the desperado. But he could not do it. He found he had not the sheer nerve to draw and pump lead, not with the killer's gaze on him and his hand close to where the butt of a revolver might lie inside his vest.

"Glad to give it to you," Howard said in his cheerful voice of false heartiness. "You'll find it in the tray of the trunk there. It's a good gun too. Throws just a mite high, but you'll make allowance for that."

"You get it for me, Sherm," the visitor urged. "You know just where it is."

Howard got the gun. He handed it to Norris, who broke it and made sure the chambers were loaded.

"Much obliged, Sherm," the outlaw said, mockery in his voice. "I can sure use this. Haven't had a gun in my hand since those skunks jumped me at Wild Horse."

The fat man made the best of it he could. He said promptly: "I'm not dumb, Morg. Knew all the time you didn't have a cutter. Trouble with you is you're so damned suspicious. Why wouldn't I let you have a gun when you're up against it? You don't think straight."

"You'd bust a trace to help me, wouldn't you, Sherm?" the killer jeered.

"Personally, far as I'm concerned, you can go to hell your own way, Morg," Howard told him bluntly. "But I stand by my crowd, and you're one of the gang, even if you do wear out our patience. You can't stay here, of course. Everybody in town comes and goes to this house, as you know. Where do you aim to hole up till you can slip across the border?"

"I won't worry you about that," Norris said with a cynical grin. "If you are a Good Samaritan to help me while I'm here that will about let you out for right now."

"I don't care where you hide," the older man replied. "Nothing to me. Go to the L C ranch and stay with the Chiswicks if you've a mind to. Point is, when they crowd me, I'd like to make sure I'm giving them the wrong steer."

"Sure. You'd hate to see them collect me. But don't worry about it. They won't." The outlaw got a basin, poured hot water into it from the kettle, and reduced this to the proper temperature. All the time he watched his host out of the corner of his eyes.

"But there's one thing you can do for me, Sherm, since you're so anxious to help. I'm about out of mezzuma. I'll take a small loan if you can spare it."

Howard took his time to answer. Money was his god. To part with it unless he saw a chance of getting it back with interest was a positive pain to him. He could read Norris like a book. The fellow was sneering at him, but back of this lay a threat. His request was an order.

"Haven't got much here, Morg, but what I have is yours," the big man said. "Ten dollars—or even twenty."

"Wouldn't be of any use to me," Norris said coolly. "I'll take five hundred."

"Five hundred!" Howard stared at him. "You're loading me, Morg."

He crept along the wall toward Main street. From this spot he had fired the shot that had wounded Lee Chiswick only a few weeks ago. Then he had been riding the top wave, a leader among the reckless, lawless cowboys of the vicinity. Now he was a fugitive, every man's hand against his.

A poor broomtail stolen in the hills had brought him to town, but he intended to leave on a better mount. That was why he had ventured so close to the heart of the town. There were sure to be horses in front of the Golden Nugget.

A half a dozen of them stood at the hitchrack. His eyes went up and down the street. A few people were in view, two or three of them lounging in front of saloons, one or two others moving briskly toward some destination.

Norris stepped to the hitchrack to choose a mount. To him there came the sound of hoofs. Three men rode round a corner and drew up at the Golden Nugget. One of them was Curly Connor.

Back of a horse Norris crouched, revolver in hand. He guessed that these men had just come back from a fruitless search in the hills for him. They swung stiffly from their saddles as riders do who have not left them for many miles.

"Me, I could use a drink," one of them said wearily.

The speaker was Mile High. He tied the rein with a slip-knot and turned toward the Golden Nugget. As he did so his glance stopped abruptly. He was looking into the glittering eyes of someone standing back of a horse.

"God-damn it, it's Morg," he broke out.

"Right, first guess," Norris said evenly, not raising his voice. "Don't monkey with yore hardware, any of you, unless you want to go out in smoke."

Mile High said bitterly: "You killed Kansas, you double-crossing devil."

"So I did," the bad man jeered. "And I'm still on the shoot, Mile High. Roll right along and get that drink, with yore arms down."

Stepping swiftly to the left for a better view of the man, Curly dragged out his revolver. Two guns blazed, one of them that of Connor. With a ribald yell of triumph Norris vaulted to the saddle. Mile to a path crossing the vacant space used by the town for a baseball ground. This he followed. Behind the plate were two or three adobe houses belonging to Mexicans. He wound around these and came to the rear door of the Golden Nugget.

He did not enter the gambling-house, but crept along one of the walls until he could look through a window and see what was going on inside. The sight of that room gave him an acute nostalgia. He had been one of the king-pins there for many months. He had ruffled it with the best of them. Fifty times he had cantered into town with some boon companion and strolled in to drink, loaf, or play the wheel. Sick and weary as he was, nothing would have pleased him more than to drop in there and relax.

But he dared not show his face. The Golden Nugget was closed to him forever. When he had run away with Ruth Chiswick, he had put himself beyond the pale. If he were to open the door and walk in now a dozen cold, hostile faces would stare at him, and at the right moment bullets would crash into his body as they had into that of Wild Jim Pender. Howard had been right. The thing he had done had hurt all the Tail Holt outlaws. If they got the chance they would square themselves by planting him in Boot Hill.

He crept along the wall toward Main street. From this spot he had fired the shot that had wounded Lee Chiswick only a few weeks ago. Then he had been riding the top wave, a leader among the reckless, lawless cowboys of the vicinity. Now he was a fugitive, every man's hand against his.

Stepping swiftly to the left for a better view of the man, Curly dragged out his revolver. Two guns blazed, one of them that of Connor. With a ribald yell of triumph Norris vaulted to the saddle. Mile High's forty-five came into action, but the horse was plunging at the feel of the spur. Again Norris fired, his mount still in the air. An instant later he was dashing into the darkness, crouched low in the seat.

"Rout the boys out of the Golden Nugget, Jim," Curly said excitedly. "Get after him immediate! He got me."

"Bad, Curly?" asked Mile High. "In the shoulder. I'll make the raffle all right, but I don't reckon I can ride with you."

The lank puncher picked his hat out of the dust. There were two little holes in the crown. "The son-of-a-gun sure gave me a haircut. Been one inch lower he would of collected me. Better get inside and have the boys look after you, Curly."

"Yes," agreed the black-headed man. "I'll be all right when I'm fixed up. Get fresh horses, Mile High. That rapsallion don't aim to pick no daisies on the way."

"Curly was right. The fugitive had already left the road and turned up a gulch trail leading into the hills. If there had been any room for doubt as to how he stood at Tail Holt there was none left now. His roaring gun had cut down the most popular man in town. He had seen Curly stagger from the impact of the bullet. As soon as possible he must get out of the country. Until that time he must lie hidden."

Old Man Haskins would take care of him—for a price. That was one of the reasons he had been forced to hold up Sherm Howard. Nobody did anything for nothing, the bandit reflected bitterly. Not when you were down on your luck, with the cards stacked against you. He would have to pay Pete well for protection.

Norris rode steadily till late at night. He was in a vile humor. His swollen feet tortured him. The clout on the head, a souvenir from Jeff Gray, still pained at times. From lack of sleep he was dead tired.

The cabin of the nester was dark when he rode up to it, but a hound dog filled the night with its barking. A man came to the door. He opened it only an inch or two.

"Who is it?" a piping voice demanded.

"Lemme in, Pete. It's Morg Norris."

The hillman hesitated. "I ain't exactly fixed for visitors, Morg. That's a fact sure enough." He lowered his squeaky tones to a whisper. "I ain't alone. I done got someone here."

The hunted man was taken aback. He had counted on Haskins being alone. Few came up to this neck of the woods.

"Who you got here?" Norris asked.

"Why, I don't rightly know his name," Haskins said. "A fellow from Texas."

Morg swung from the aaddle and walked close to the other.

"I'm listenin'," Pete, he said, and his voice dripped menace. "Is this some guy sent up to get me?"

Haskins was a big, unkempt, slovenly man. He was of middle age, large, with a deep barrel chest from which one would have expected the roar of a bull.

"Jumpin' Jehoshaphat, no!" The high falsetto registered excitement. "Don't start lookin' for trouble, Morg. This is a bird sent up by Sherm Howard. He's on the dodge."

Someone inside the cabin joined the talk. "Who is it, Pete?"

"A friend, Clint. Wants to stay with me a spell. He got into a kinda jam. Name is Norris."

"The fellow they're after?"

"Yes."

"What's all the powwow about? Why don't you bring him in?"

Mile High's forty-five came into action.

You know I haven't got anything like that in the house."

"You'd better have it. Don't try to fool me, Sherm. I know you."

The narrowed eyes were glittering dangerously. Howard knew he had to make a choice. He must either pay or fight. For a moment he played with the idea of shooting it out. Reluctantly he gave this up. Morg was a dead shot. From a coffee-pot in the cupboard he drew out a roll of bills. He counted five hundred and pushed the money across the table. There was about fifty dollars left.

With his evil grin Norris mentioned that it was more blessed to give than to receive. "Pay you when Jay Gould sends me a million," he added cheerfully.

He busied himself doctoring his wounds and taking care of his feet. Before he left he gave Howard instructions, a purring threat in his voice.

"You haven't seen me, Sherm. You don't know where I am. It wouldn't be healthy for you to get busy rustling a posse to take after me. Understand?"

Coldly Howard answered: "No use trying to help you, Morg. You don't know how to appreciate kind treatment."

"If I got any from you, I'd sure keep my eyes skinned till I found out why," the man on the dodge cut back.

He backed to the door and stopped there for a last word of advice.

"I'll stick around a few minutes outside. Don't move from yore chair for half an hour. Just take it easy and see if you can beat the solitaire game."

Presently the door closed behind him.

Howard sat in the chair as he had been advised. He was busy thinking, and his thoughts all pointed to one conclusion. Norris was too dangerous a man to let live.

CHAPTER XI

Morgan Norris closed the door of the Howard house and ran through the garden to a back street. Before moving into the open road he glanced up and down it to make sure nobody was in sight. Swiftly he went up the road until he came

By-Products Are Important in Fishing Industry; Waste Used for Fertilizer

Often forgotten about in casual thoughts of the fishing industry is the importance of by-products. These are principally meal, fertilizer, and oil which are manufactured from the waste of canneries and other fish plants. In a big plant the waste may make up as much as half of the "raw material."

Oils are extracted from all parts of the fish, although the public is most familiar with fish liver oils, which, as the name implies, are obtained only from fish livers. An interesting quirk, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, is that bodies of fish yielding liver oil are usually very lean, while livers of fat fish contain little oil. Medicinal oil is made from fresh livers, although stale livers are used in making other oils.

Oils are obtained either by pressing and cooking of waste or simply by cooking the waste and skimming the oil off the top of the vat. Fish oils are used, among other things, in making paints and varnish, waterproofing materials, linoleum, leather, soap, and lard substitutes. Salmon, sardines (young herring), and tuna—in addition to the well known cod—are important in contributing oil from cannery waste to add to the supply obtained from whale, porpoise, and menhaden fishing.

Fish waste—particularly the "scrap" left after oil extraction—is being successfully used as a fertilizer and is one of the most important sources of organic nitrogen. The scrap is treated with acid and the resulting fish fertilizer often is mixed with other fertilizer compounds to form a "complete" fertilizer.

The feeding of fish and fish scrap to animals has been recommended and practiced for many years, but it is only in recent years that use of fish meal as a stock and poultry food has grown rapidly. Like fertilizers, meal is made from "scrap." It must be dried carefully and ground into granular form for poultry feed or into a rather fine meal for other purposes.

Pounded Grain in Hollow Stump
When mills were not available, the early farmers often made their corn into meal by pounding it in a hollow stump.

C. Houston Goudiss Recounts The Miracle of Milk

Noted Food Authority Explains Why It Is the Cheapest and Most Nearly Perfect Food

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York City.

OF ALL the foods known and used by man, milk is supreme. It is a miracle of perfection—a veritable elixir of life.

Milk has powers possessed by no other food. It builds sturdy bodies for infants; strong bones and sound teeth for growing children; helps to maintain vitality in adults; and to delay the onset of old age.

It contains a greater assortment of nutritive materials than any other single food. It is the foundation of every balanced diet. Considering the services it performs for mankind—from infancy to old age—it is the cheapest food we have.

Milk is so many-sided that I always think of it as the Benjamin Franklin of foods. It is a vast treasure chest of nutrients—the most complex product of nature's chemistry. It contains nearly every chemical element of the body itself, in proportions adapted for quick and easy assimilation.

Milk fulfills six essential requirements of a perfect diet.

First: It supplies carbohydrate and fat for heat and energy.

Second: It furnishes protein that is suitable for building new tissues and repairing the millions of cells that are worn out daily.

Third: It yields minerals which build bones and teeth and regulate the subtle internal processes of the body.

Fourth: It contains every known vitamin in some degree and is abundantly supplied with the vitamins that are necessary to growth, to the smooth running of the body machine, and to the prevention of many types of infection.

Fifth: It contains water, to act as a solvent, a carrier and regulator.

Sixth: It is easily digestible.

This brief summary helps to explain the unique place of milk in nutrition. Think of it! In one food, we find protein of the highest type; carbohydrate and fat; all the vitamins; every one of the minerals demanded by the human body; water; and an easy digestibility that readily changes these ingredients into vigorous life.

The Biggest Food Bargain

We occasionally hear the charge that milk is too high in price—that it is a luxury to afford enough of this master food to supply a quart daily for every child—at least a pint for each adult. That is ridiculous! The cost of milk is much cheaper than the cost of illness. And milk is not a luxury, but an indispensable necessity.

I contend that no homemaker can afford not to buy milk in adequate amounts—that if she desires health, efficiency and long life for her family, she must provide a sufficient amount of milk before she purchases any other food.

A Food for Children and Adults

Humankind needs milk as the flowers in the garden and the grains in the field need the blessing of rain.

Deprived of milk, children develop a multitude of ills. They become thin and weak; their resistance is low; they fall easy victims to the germs of disease; there is small hope of their reaching normal manhood and womanhood.

Nor is milk only a food for children. It is likewise essential for adults who desire to live longer, happier, and healthier lives—to fortify their bodies against the assaults of disease—to retain or regain mental and bodily vigor. It is indeed a Fountain of Youth!

Milk for Pep and Power

A quart of milk daily supplies from two-thirds to three-fourths of the total calories required by a year-old child. For a five-year old, it provides about half the day's fuel requirements, and for a ten-year old, one-third. Even a moderately active man could obtain one-fourth of his energy requirements from a quart of this precious fluid. It is also interesting to note that five-eighths cup of milk is equivalent in energy value to one and one-third eggs, or two and one-fourth ounces of lean beef.

A quart of milk yields more than an ounce of pure protein of the highest quality. Moreover, nutrition authorities hold that under normal conditions, it is the most completely digested and absorbed of all food products.

Milk for Minerals

As a source of calcium, milk is indispensable. Without milk, it is practically impossible for the body to obtain enough of this captain of the minerals for normal skeletal development.

It has been estimated that when the calcium requirement is met through the use of milk, the need for phosphorus will also be adequately provided.

Though milk is not as good a source of iron as of calcium and phosphorus, the iron is present and in a form that can be easily utilized by the body.

Milk for Vitamins

Milk is so rich in vitamins A and G, that the addition of a quart of milk daily to a good mixed diet practically guarantees against a deficiency of either of these precious substances which promote growth, help build resistance to disease, prolong the prime of life, and help to ward off old age.

It also furnishes a considerable amount of vitamin B, which promotes appetite, aids digestion and helps to prevent a nervous disorder.

Milk contains a relatively small amount of vitamin D, but this can be remedied in both bottled and evaporated milk by irradiation, or the addition of a vitamin D concentrate. It is less dependable as a source of vitamin C than any other vitamin, as the amount it naturally contains varies with the diet of the cow and is reduced by pasteurization or evaporation.

This deficiency is easily made good, however, by adding to the diet fresh fruits and fruit juices and raw leafy vegetables.

In Praise of Milk Producers

As milk is man's finest food, the men who are occupied with its production are engaged in the world's most important pursuit. They labor to provide the nation with a pure, safe, clean supply of the food that makes life worthwhile for children and helps to prolong life for adults.

Let no one say that milk is expensive. Rather let every homemaker come to realize that this magnificent food would be CHEAP AT ANY PRICE!

Creep Feeding, Pro and Con

By T. C. Richardson, Secretary Texas Breeder-Feeder Association

Suckling calves grow faster, weigh heavier at weaning time, shrink less from weaning, and are worth more per pound, when they have access to a grain ration while running on pasture with their dams. The grain is placed in a self-feeder fenced to exclude the cows and permit the calves to eat at will. Known as "creep-feeding," this practice has become quite common in the Southwest, and is generally profitable. Now that oats and barley are in the bin creep-feeding can start; corn and grain sorghums will also soon be available.

Both Texas and Oklahoma experiment stations have done research work on creep feeding, and will send their bulletins explaining the procedures and the results in detail on request. Since the farmer or ranchman is interested only in selling his crops and livestock to the best advantage, his own circumstances must decide whether creep feeding is a desirable practice.

In general terms it may be said that creep feeding is always profitable if the grain feed is home grown, and especially so if the calves are to be sold as feeders.
In Bee county, Texas, the creep fed feeder calves sold in the fall of 1937 weighed an average of 100 pounds more than other calves under the same range conditions, and sold at a better price per hundred, paying handsomely for the grain consumed. On good pastures the contrast is not so great, one Oklahoma experiment showing a difference of only 39 pounds. The difference in price, in favor of the creep fed calves, however, would have still paid for the grain at market prices.

The true cost of meat production by the farmer who grows both grain and livestock is not the "market price" of the grain, but the cost of producing the grain and turning it into meat.
This may be higher, but is more likely to be lower than the "market price" formula would indicate; the farmer who feeds his own grain at least cuts out the cost of hauling to town and the cost of extra handling which all grain must bear if it goes through commercial channels. For this reason the "profit and loss" data in experiment station reports should not be literally applied to farm-feeding operations, either creep-feeding or finishing, where the farmer produces both the feed and the animals to consume it.

Creep-fed calves take to the dry lot finishing rations with less loss of weight at weaning than non-creep-fed calves, but the latter tend to gain more rapidly in the finishing period. As a rule creep-fed calves will finish ahead of those not creep-fed, though there may be little difference in the final weights, if both are fed for the same length of time.

The greatest benefits from creep-feeding will be shown in calves to be sold as feeders at or soon after weaning. The greatest gains occur when pastures are short. In a Texas range experiment in Webb county creep fed suckling calves gained 114 pounds more in 160 days than those not creep fed, and ate an average of 7 pounds of feed per day (4 parts ground milo heads, 1 part cottonseed meal). This included what the cows ate while the calves were learning, which was for 43 days, enough to make them gain 50 pounds more than their less fortunate sisters on the range.

Threshed grains are recommended for young calves, while older calves will handle ground ear corn or grain sorghum heads to advantage. Unless pastures are unusually green and abundant cottonseed meal or pea-size cake should compose one-seventh to one-fifth of the ration. A small amount of limestone flour or finely ground oyster shell in the ration is advisable, and bone meal may be mixed with the salt in equal parts to advantage. The self feeder should be placed near the watering place.

Those not familiar with selffeeders and creep-feeding practices can get helpful bulletins through county agents.

WEEKLY HEALTH LETTER
By Dr. Geo. W. Cox,
State Health Officer

Austin, Texas, July 12.—Dr.
Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer estimates that the State of Texas suffers an economic loss of one-half million dollars annually from typhoid fever, a preventable disease.

Last year 378 Texans died of typhoid and approximately 4,000 were ill with the disease. The average duration of the illness is from six to eight weeks plus convalescent period of about six weeks. This means that typhoid is responsible for the loss of approximately 200,000 work days each year in Texas, with the attendant loss of income over several months period.

Early fall and late summer each year sees a tremendous increase in the prevalence of typhoid in Texas, due to vacation travel and the hazards brought to the local population by itinerant labor.

Typhoid is particularly prevalent in those sections where there is seasonal employment bringing into the area great numbers of laborers who live in tents, shacks and trailers without adequate sanitation.

The local communities have the problem of dealing with this shifting population put squarely on their own shoulders. Insofar as is feasible, the itinerant population should be immunized against typhoid and should be made to conform with sanitary regulations (particularly with regard to disposal of waste) as a protective measure to the permanent community population.

Typhoid fever can never be controlled by the use of pure water, pasteurized milk or clean milk, clean foods, proper disposal of sewage, screening against the fly and destroying its breeding places, by search for and care of human carriers, and by general practice of immunization.

In selecting a place for a vacation, choose one where you know that the water and milk supply is pure. Be sure that the kitchen and dining room are screened to protect the food from flies. When camping it is best to boil water used for drinking, unless you know that it is pure. Clear, sparkling spring water is often nevertheless polluted.

Speaking of the Governor's Job....

TEXAS NEEDS A LEADER

ERNEST THOMPSON

Trained... Talented... Tested

Qualified for the Governor's Job by a Sound Record of Public Service

WHAT HE HAS DONE!

As Mayor of Amarillo, he saved citizens nearly a million dollars a year by cutting every utility rate in the city and lowering the tax levy.

As Texas Railroad Commissioner, he assisted the farmer through lower freight rates and the livestock industry with emergency drought rates; brought many millions of dollars to the school fund by sensible supervision of the Texas oil industry; helped lower the gas rates in scores of Texas towns.

As a man, whose boyhood was spent at hard work, he has achieved a brilliant record of private and public service, fought for his country with high honors during the World War, is chairman of the Oil States Compact Commission, has earned the respect and admiration of straight-thinking people all over the nation.

WHAT HE WILL DO!

Tackle the farm problem with both fists and help the farmer and rancher work out a solution that will take the penalty off owning or working a farm or ranch—his belief being that the farmer is entitled to a fair profit, the same as any other man.

Urge the legislature to change the old age assistance law so that no needy old person will be denied a pension merely because a son or daughter happens to have a job.

Actively encourage industrial expansion to relieve unemployment; wage war on governmental waste and fight new taxes; and advocate state control and regulation of all utilities.

NOTICE

With our regular issue of July 21, we expect to include a special section for candidates so that they will have an opportunity to get a last appeal before voters of this precinct. Candidates who desire to do so may purchase advertising in this issue at our regular rates. A story about the candidate will be run also if furnished us. All matter of this nature must be in our office not later than Tuesday, July 19, and we would be glad to get it on July 14, 15, or 16.

We want the candidates to feel that we are getting out this edition to assist them in reaching the people of this precinct with a last appeal.

BAPTIST W. M. U.

We had our missionary program last Monday afternoon from three to five o'clock in the home of Mrs. Owen Eggott.

The regular time for these special programs is the first Monday in each month but as the first Monday of this month came on July 4, we thought best to postpone our meeting a week.

We had some very interesting reports from our missionary work in Chile.

Eleven ladies were present and only one lady who had a part on the program was absent. This is the time of year when so many are busy canning fruit and vegetables, and some of our ladies are on their vacation. But lets try hard to carry on our church work all seasons of the year.

Mrs. D. M. Colburn and Mrs. Page will have charge of our missionary program for the next three months.

We want to thank Mrs. Godfrey and Mrs. Edwin Hallmark for the splendid programs which they planned and were responsible for the past three months.

We urge you to bring your Bible and meet us at the church next Monday afternoon at four o'clock.

DRIVERS URGED TO STUDY LAWS OF RIGHT OF WAY

Austin, Texas—State Police today urged drivers to study laws relating to right of way after analysis of 771 recent accidents showed that one or more vehicles involved in 123, or 16 per cent of the crashes, were not in their rightful positions.

Unless intersections are controlled by local regulations, police pointed out, vehicles approaching from each driver's right have the privilege of entering the intersection first.

Drinking on the part of a driver or pedestrian was listed as the cause of 101 of the 771 accidents, with speed ranking third. Fifty-four collisions were caused when automobiles moved too close to the center of the highway or were driven on the wrong side.

Other facts revealed in the study showed that 48 accidents were caused by pedestrians running into paths of vehicles, 40 by improper left turn, 31 by disregard of traffic control signals, 30 because drivers did not signal intentions of making turns or stops, 27 by improper passing, and 19 by drivers' lack of attention.

State safety officials warned drivers of motor vehicles to use more courtesy at intersections and places where other vehicles or pedestrians may possibly move into their line of travel. Through courtesy, they explained, hundreds of crashes can be prevented each year and many lives may be saved.

Aside from the continued heavy death toll on Texas highways the safety officials were encouraged by the continued reduction in violent traffic fatalities. A general nine percent decrease has been reported for the first five months of this year, despite a nine-percent increase in travel.

“DOWN GO ELECTRIC RATES FOR LORAINI HOMES AND STORES!”

See how the Price of Electricity has Dropped in the Past 10 Years

Reddy Kilowatt, your electrical servant, is glad to work for you just as hard and just as long for LESS WAGES. He is one servant who doesn't shirk, doesn't ask for a day off, and doesn't want more pay. Let him work harder at less pay to save your time and your energy.

Average Cost of Electric Service in the Home is LESS than 10c a Day

Electric service is one of the smallest items of household expense. The average daily cost of electricity in the home is less than 10 cents a day

- . . . Less than the price of a package of cigarettes.
- . . . Less than the price of a gallon of gasoline.
- . . . Less than the price of a quart of milk.

Divide your next electric bill by the number of days in the month and see for yourself how small is your daily cost for the many ways electric service saves your time, your money, and adds to the ease of living.

Cheap Electricity NOW CHEAPER Than Ever!

RESIDENTIAL ELECTRIC RATES 54% LOWER THAN IN 1928

Another reduction in electric service rates to Loraine residential and commercial customers became effective July 1. This reduction cuts the price of electricity for the average residential and commercial customer 54 per cent below the 1928 level.

The Texas Electric Service Company always has followed a policy of reducing the price of electricity as rapidly as conditions warrant, and the record of rate reductions over the last 10 years show graphically how electric rates have been consistently reduced. This latest reduction, which makes CHEAP electricity still CHEAPER, comes at a time when other living costs are generally higher.

ELECTRIC RATES REDUCED AGAIN

STATE FAIR OF TEXAS CELEBRATES GOLDEN JUBILEE

Dallas, Texas, July 12, — Listing more than $100,000 in premiums for livestock, agriculture, poultry, culinary, textile, hobbies, and many other classifications, the premium list for the Golden Jubilee Celebration of the State Fair of Texas is now being distributed, it has been announced by Otto Herold, president of the state fair.

Premiums in Livestock and Poultry have been increased, and competition has been taken out of the county agriculture exhibits. Instead of having counties compete, each county exhibiting will be given $125.00. This will enable Texas counties to present the most complete picture of agricultural possibilities of the State ever seen. The premium list contains premiums which will be awarded individual farm exhibits, as well as 4-H Club Boys and Girl Exhibits and Future Farmer exhibits.

Many new classifications are included in the premium list, such as the Hobby Show, the first annual All-Southwestern Newspaper Contest, the Flower Show, the Colt and Mule Show, and others.

GOV'T. CLASSES COTTON FREE OF CHARGE

College Station—Forms and instructions for use in making request for the free cotton-classing service to be supplied this year for properly organized one-variety groups are now available, according to E. A. Miller, agronomist of the Extension Service of College Station.

The forms and instructions for filing may be obtained from any one of the cotton-classing offices of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Addresses of Texas offices are P. O. Box 1366, Dallas; P. O. Box 1140, Austin; and 509 U. S. Court House, El Paso.

The classing service as it will be started with the 1938 cotton crop provides free classification of a sample from each bale of cotton produced by a member of a qualified improvement group.

Notification of the grade and staple length according to the U. S. Cotton Standards, will be returned to the grower from whose bale the sample is drawn. The service is not available to individual cotton growers, only to members of organized improvement groups.

Miller urged that one-variety associations that desire the free service for the current crop apply as promptly as possible, so that the Bureau may arrange all details for handling and shipping the samples.

Only those communities that will qualify by meeting the rules and regulations of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics will be eligible to receive the classing service, Miller said.

MANURE VALUABLE AS FERTILIZER FOR PASTURES

College Station—“The manure from a dairy cow averages about $24 a year in value as fertilizer,” states Robert L. Lancaster, pasture specialist of the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College, who has been receiving numerous inquiries as to the use of manure as fertilizer.

A ton of manure is about equal in plant food value to a 100 pound bag of 10-5-10 fertilizer, but more than half of the value of stable manure is lost unless all of the solids and the liquids are caught and worked into the soil at once, Lancaster said. With the usual loss of the liquids and the loss of the nitrogen as ammonia, the fertility is reduced to around 5-5-5.

The liquid can be mostly absorbed if 8 or 9 pounds of straw or sawdust bedding is used per day for each cow. This is important because about half of the nitrogen and four-fifths of the potash is in the urine.

Nitrogen escapes as ammonia gas within a day or two, but the use of a pound of superphosphate per cow per day, spread in the gutter before the bedding is put down, will greatly reduce this loss.

For sanitary purposes superphosphate will do all this lime can do, and in addition it reacts chemically to prevent the escape of nitrogen, Lancaster pointed out. Since manure is deficient in this element, superphosphate need this element, superphosphate is a valuable addition.

When manure is spread it should be harrowed in to prevent drying losses, but daily spreading and harrowing is not practical on most pastures. The manure should be stored under a roof to prevent leaching and on a tight concrete floor to stop drainage.

“The investment necessary to construct such a storage place is a wise one,” Lancaster said. “The spreading may then be done during rainy weather when harrowing and when the fertilizer will be soaked into the ground.”

IF gas cost nothing AT THE WELL

Even if gas could be had for nothing at the well—the cost of using it in your home would not be greatly changed. A large part of what you pay for gas service is the cost of delivering it to your burner tips—and keeping it there every minute. To properly serve you, there is necessary a vast investment in gas reserves sufficient enough to meet any demand, in pipelines and equipment for its transportation and control. Money must be spent to maintain all this equipment at a high standard for dependable service. A skilled organization must be on duty day and night.

There's a difference between “raw materials” and a finished, usable service.

Your home and this community could not risk anything less than the best in gas service. Life and health in the home depend more than ever on the efficiency and quality of service. Yet today, in spite of the fact it is costing Lone Star Gas System more to operate because of rapidly mounting taxes and other new costs, your gas dollar buys more than ever before.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them! Nature destined the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing matter the kidneys must remove from the blood to keep health in its balance. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feet tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

WASHINGTON.—A new idea of the "yardstick" as applied to TVA, Bonneville and other government power projects is being discussed in New Deal circles, with the positive statement in some quarters that it is really what the President and David E. Lilienthal mean when they use the word.

First, let's consider what has been the popular conception—that congress thought it was when it was voting the money for TVA. Stated briefly, the idea was that it would be demonstrated that the price of electricity should be to small consumers—literally a yardstick to determine whether rates charged by privately owned utilities were fair.

This is the only explanation of the "yardstick" that has ever been publicly considered. It is the only one congress ever thought of. It is what the average, intelligent, well-informed person thinks it is all about. And it may still be the correct answer.

But let's look at this new conception, advanced now by people in sympathy with New Deal objectives and particularly in sympathy with the government electric projects.

According to this theory, the whole purpose is to demonstrate to the country, and to the electric industry, that if power is produced in enormous quantities, and offered to ordinary consumers at very low rates, consumption will leap up to an unbelievable extent, and hence the reduction of rates would be the soundest thing, economically, that the electric companies could do.

Note in this connection that Lilienthal was actually attacked by Arthur E. Morgan for having used high pressure methods to induce people to use more electricity than Morgan thought they could afford.

Forced Prosperity
Note that Lilienthal has repeatedly insisted that the privately owned electric systems in TVA territory had literally had prosperity forced upon them by TVA competition—that is, by being forced to reduce their rates.

Note that in Bonneville what seemed to the electric industry a very bad policy, from the purely economic standpoint, was laid down. In this case the stream flow is such that there is an enormous quantity of constant power, that is, power which is available for 24 hours a day, and cannot be economically stored during the hours when the consumption might be low. For this sort of situation, private power experts figured the most economical use would be to get industrial plants to locate near the switchboard, and particularly the type of plants which would operate in three shifts, thus using all the potential power.

But emphatically the government does not want this. It wanted wide distribution. It was to give the household consumers for hundreds of miles around the benefit of this cheap power. The answer, according to this new theory, is that if the rates were made low enough, the small consumers would use so much electricity that the whole operation would be profitable. But also that it would be an outstanding object lesson to the utility executives of the country, showing them that there is gold in the hills if they will only mine for it with low rates.

Certainly, one New Dealer pointed out, Lilienthal must have been ignoring the old yardstick conception when he reported to congress recently on the allocations as to cost of the three first TVA dams as between power, navigation and flood control.

Marked for Slaughter
The latest development in the Maryland "purge" situation is that Senator George L. Radcliffe, who does not come up for re-election until 1940, is marked for the slaughter by the supporters of Representative David J. Lewis. What happened was that Radcliffe, after announcing some time back that he was for the renomination of Senator Millard E. Tydings, later accepted the post of campaign manager for his colleague.

This seems to have taken the Lewis people by surprise. In fact, they are indignant. They are saying that Radcliffe has now shown himself in his true colors, after having posed as a New Dealer since his election to the senate in 1934.

Actually it should not have surprised any one. Again and again, while the Tommy Corcoran crowd was looking for somebody to run against Tydings, they would go to Radcliffe for advice. Always Radcliffe told them that he was for Tydings.

So while it may not have been figured in advance that he would take the chairmanship of Tydings' campaign, it should not have surprised the Lewis people that Radcliffe should be sitting in Tydings' corner.

Incidentally, the Lewis publicity indicates a rather amazing ignorance of the last few years in Maryland politics. One need only go back to 1934 to figure that Radcliffe would be very unlikely to take any public step against Tydings.

The Case of Ritchie

At that time Governor Albert C. Ritchie was still alive and active. In fact, he was the undisputed boss of the Democratic party in Maryland. He was serving his fourth term as governor, and aspired to a fifth term, although no governor before that had ever succeeded in getting two terms.

Tydings, who had been a loyal lieutenant to Ritchie, knew that his chief had slipped in personal strength due to a combination of factors. One was that too many people were getting to think that Ritchie should be satisfied with four terms, that the honors should be passed around. Another was that Ritchie had made many enemies in the Eastern Shore section of Maryland by using the militia to break up mobs in a threatened lynching. Still another was that, rightly or wrongly, a lot of people blamed Ritchie for the fact that some of the banks in Maryland had gone sour during the dark days of early 1933.

So Tydings urged Ritchie to run for senator instead of governor. No one questions that Ritchie could easily have been elected senator. The term of a Republican was expiring, and no one would have opposed Ritchie for the Democratic nomination.

In an attempt to force Ritchie's hand Tydings brought out Radcliffe for governor, as a sort of trial balloon. Ritchie was unmoved, ran for governor and was defeated by Harry W. Nice. Tydings, after Ritchie's decision, then supported Radcliffe for senator, and he was easily elected, though he had never run for office before, on the same day Ritchie was defeated.

All of which put Radcliffe under all sorts of obligations to Tydings, and Radcliffe is not a man to take his obligations lightly.

Where Will It Lead?

Although the intention was to put the conduct of the anti-trust investigation on a high plane, administration critics say that too much weight is put on the preliminary meetings between big business executives and the New Deal prima donnas. These critics hold that a proper appraisal of such get-togethers is that New Deal strategists such as Thurman Arnold, Tommy Corcoran, Ben Cohen and Herman Oliphant are glad to talk to anybody, but they keep on their way undisturbed by the talk. In short, they seem to be simply impervious to other views if the other views do not fit in with their preconceived notions.

Where that path will lead is by no means certain as half a dozen senators and representatives, including Senators William E. Borah and Joseph C. O'Mahoney, have their own ideas as to how to proceed. This "economic" commission has not yet organized.

Participation by congress in the inquiry was not desired by President Roosevelt, and the independent attitude of congressional members is fair assurance that it will not be dominated by the White House. In fact, time and again Senator O'Mahoney, although an original Roosevelt man "Before Chicago," and a member of Roosevelt's "little cabinet," as assistant postmaster general, before his coming to the senate, has shown his independence. In fact, he first became a close friend of Mrs. Roosevelt by differing with her sharply, and in a large committee meeting, on an important question involving personalities in politics.

His difference with the President on the Supreme court issue is still remembered, and with some bitterness, at the White House.

Keep Check on Inquiry

Congressional members have not been present at the meetings arranged between administration officials and various members of Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper's business advisory council. Even so, the council never has been able to exert any influence on the administration, although Prentiss L. Cooney, who came to Washington some time back as assistant to W. Averell Harriman, council chairman, is trying to build up its effectiveness as an agency of co-operation between business and government. He has succeeded to the extent, and only to the extent, of bringing into personal contact with the young brain trusters prominent members of the Roper group, including important figures from Standard Oil, American Radiator, Sears Roebuck and Co., U. S. Steel, and General Foods.

Congressional members of the commission don't propose to let administration officials run away with the inquiry. Representative Edward C. Eicher of Iowa is the only 100 per cent New Dealer in the lot, but the Capitol contingent splits along other lines. Senator William H. King of Utah and Representatives Hatton W. Summers of Texas and B. Carroll Reece of Tennessee will seek to define anti-trust policy for the future in a quiet, orderly fact-finding inquiry without upsetting business. Senators Borah and O'Mahoney disclaim any intention of turning the inquiry into a circus but believe nevertheless that it should be a public performance and the commission, with that in mind, was given all the inquisitorial powers of the securities and exchange commission in the resolution setting it up.

Incidentally, the Lewis publicity indicates a rather amazing ignorance of the last few years in Maryland politics. One need only

Lesson for July 17

DEBORAH: EMERGENCY LEADERSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4:1-9, 12-14. GOLDEN TEXT—Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?—Esther 4:14. PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Deborah Sang. JUNIOR TOPIC—Why Deborah Sang. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ready for Emergencies. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Emergency Leadership.

"Every man did that which was right in his own eyes." Such is the divine summary of what was wrong in Israel during the period of the judges (Judges 21:25). "There was no king in Israel," no competent and inspiring leadership. The people lived according to the whims of the day, and, as always, humanity left to itself drifted to lower and lower levels. This was true morally and spiritually and ultimately politically, for they came repeatedly into bondage to other nations and were only delivered as God raised up judges to lead them to repentance and victory, as well as to rule over them.

I. A People in Disorder (vv. 1-3).

Any people that forgets God and begins to live after the dictates of the flesh will at length come to the place where some strong man with "chariots of iron" will rule over them. We, in America, look at the other nations of the world, viewing their plight with sympathy but ever assuring ourselves that "it can't happen here." We ought to arouse ourselves and face the facts lest our own land, happy in its possession of God's great blessings of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," abuse those privileges, neglect the worship of God, spurn the leadership He gives us, and become "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof" (II Tim. 3:4, 5). If we do not awake and repent the Lord may have to "sell" us, as He did Israel, into the hands of the oppressor.

II. A Leader Called of God (vv. 4-9).

God always has His man ready for the hour of need—only in this case His man was a woman. Glorious indeed is the record of faithful and capable womanhood in annals of God's work on earth. Deborah was a woman of unique gifts—a poetess, a prophetess, and withal "the wife of Lapidoth," evidently a woman who cared well for her own household.

Brains and natural ability are much needed, especially in a time such as ours when few there are who even care to think for themselves and few who have any desire to develop native ability except for the purpose of "making money." But true leadership calls for more than talent and intelligence; it calls for a burning in the soul, a divine zeal, the urge of God in the heart.

Deborah had this fiery touch upon her life. Barak, while undoubtedly a man of ability, evidently did not have it. Many excuses have been offered for the weakness indicated in verse eight. It has been said that he was cautious, or that he wanted to give the place of honor to Deborah as the leader of her people. These suggestions may be true, but somehow one has the feeling that what he really lacked was the "flaming heart." May God give it to us, that in our much doing of His work the divine fire may warm and inspire us!

III. A Divine Victory (vv. 12-14).

God gave Deborah and Barak a great victory, but note that it was God and not man who brought about the defeat of Jabin (Judges 4:15, 23). It was a complete victory and the enemies of Israel troubled them no more for many a day.

Dr. Wilbur M. Smith aptly points out that we should look "upon these conflicts in the book of Judges as certainly symbols of the great conflict that every Christian knows as he wrestles, not with flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the world-rulers of darkness and spiritual wickedness in heavenly places. Victory is certain only when the Lord is with us and only when we walk in His will and contend against evil in His power. We are more than conquerors, but only through the Lord Jesus Christ" (Peloubet's Select Notes).

In closing this lesson the writer of these notes wishes to recognize the blessing of God in enabling him to complete two years of this service to Him and to His people. He also wishes to thank those readers in every state of the Union and in a number of foreign countries who have written to him words of appreciation, encouragement and counsel.

Value of Meditation

It is not he that reads most, but he that meditates most on Divine truth, that will prove the choicest, wisest, strongest Christian.—Bishop Hall.

Attaining Perfection

The warm loves and fears, that swept over us as clouds, must lose their finite character and blend with God, to attain their own perfection.—Emerson.

Designs for Sheer Cottons

THESE pretty styles will make you and your daughter feel fresh and cool, and look smart and charming, when you go out to tea parties or dinner, these midsummer days. They have a summery, dressy effect, and yet they are not fussy. Make them yourself, and have something very individual as well as fashion-right. It's so easy: a detailed sew chart comes with each pattern. And you can wear much prettier materials when you sew your own—at big savings, too.

Afternoon Dress With Shirring. Shirring is one of the smartest details you can choose—it's used just this way in new and expensive models—on the shoulders, to give fullness over the bust, and at the sides only of the skirt. Thus your dress has animation and grace, and yet the front and back are plain and won't crush and muss when you sit down. In dimity, voile, organdy, handkerchief lawn or mull, with a youthful tie belt and frills of lace, this will be the most flattering frock you own.

Bolero Frock for Little Girls. With or without the sleeveless bolero, this dress is a perfect darling for little girls! It's so simple and yet it has loads of style, with its very puffed sleeves, very full skirt, and little round collar. Notice how short the bolero is—that's the smart new kind. Make this up in dotted swiss, dimity, organdy or batiste, and trim it with rickrack, irish edging, or linen lace. It's a pattern that you and your little girl will both like so well that you'll make many times over. It will be nice for school in fall fabrics, too.

Combine Crochet and Cross Stitch

A quick "beauty treatment" for your linens—this easy-to-crochet border and simple embroidery motif! Pattern 6106 contains a transfer pattern of two motifs 6 by 11 inches, two motifs 4 by 12 inches; and two motifs 5 1/2 by 6 inches; chart and directions for crochet; color schemes; illustrations of stitches; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York City.

Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

Czechoslovakia

The republic of Czechoslovakia is composed of two branches of the same Slav nation: the Czechs of Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia, and the Slovaks of Slovakia. The state came into existence on October 28, 1918, when the national council took over the government of the Czechoslovak countries, which had formerly belonged to the Austro-Hungarian monarchy. The Czechoslovak national assembly met in Prague on November 14, 1918, and formally declared the Czechoslovak state to be a republic.

Gold Rush Crime Wave

Crime was rampant in San Francisco during the gold rush during the early fifties. Up to 1854 there were 4,200 homicides and 1,200 suicides, while the records of the next few years showed many deaths by violence, the high mark being reached in 1855 with 585. In 1851 the Vigilance Committee was formed to attempt to free the city of most of the lawless element. By 1856, when it came together a second time, order was restored in the community. More than 8,000 citizens served on the two committees.
