Lifting Jobs Apartheid Seen In South Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A special commission recommended Tuesday that discriminatory labor laws be abolished so blacks may have the same pay, training and union membership as whites — a move sure to spark an uproar in this white-dominated nation.

The suggestions were seen as an effort to fill skilled and semi-skilled positions for which there are not enough whites and in part to assuage foreign criticism of the nation's racial policies.

Among initial reactions, a white executive of the Chambers of Commerce praised the report for its "positive picture" and a black union leader said it was a "very great victory for our struggle." A white union chief warned the government to be careful about taking "the rights away from our white labor organizations."

Would Erode Apartheid

Recommendations from the two-year-old government-appointed panel would erode the cornerstone of the white minority-ruled nation's 30-year-old laws of apartheid that even mandate separate bathrooms and cafeterias at work.

Parliament scheduled immediate debate on the suggestions and Fanie Botha, minister of labor and mines, was to give the government's response today. The government said it would issue a white paper next month outlining new legislation based on the report.

Western governments have long criticized South African racial policies. The study said:

"It would be naive to deny the fact or ignore the effect of international attempts to influence labor and other policies in South Africa."

White Minority Protected

The white minority protected its 4.4 million members with employment laws at the expense of the nation's other 26.6 million residents, most of them blacks, who earn perhaps five to nine times less than whites.

But a number of multi-national firms in South Africa — especially those from the United States — have already opened non-segregated eating places, worked toward a policy of equal pay for equal work and tacitly recognized black unions, even though they were technically illegal.

The government's racial laws also keep blacks from voting and relegate them to certain neighborhoods and restaurants.

"You let a black eat next to you," complained a government official to a foreign reporter recently, "and then he wants to live next to you. The next thing you know, he'll want to vote with you."

Mine Training Begun

In the mining industry, on of the country's big foreign income earners, some mining companies have begun training non-whites for previously white-reserved jobs because there are not enough whites.

Last March, the all-white mineworker's union went on a wildcat strike to protest giving reserved jobs to non-whites. But mining companies refused to give in and the strike by some 7,000 white miners stopped within a week.

If the commission recommendations are accepted and the current laws are changed by the all-white Parliament, blacks would not only be entitled to form their own labor unions, but also to negotiate with management and to strike.

Denial Dangers Seen

The commission argued that denial of trade union rights to South Africa's black majority "would constitute a rallying point for "underground" activity, whether in the form of illicit organization within South Africa or expatriate unions operating from across South Africa's borders."

The study said some of the recommendations in principle should be extended to South Africa's migrant workers. There are about 200,000 migrants, who mainly work in the mining industry, a situation which was not mentioned in the portion of the report released.

Overseas pressure on South Africa for its policy of segregation has ranged from the implementation of codes of conduct designed to bring about equality in foreign companies operating here, to U.S. college campus protests calling for an economic boycott of South Africa.

Last year, America's AFL-CIO called on U.S. corporations to divest themselves of South African affiliates and sever all ties with South African corporations.

The report, released on May Day, quickly drew a favorable response from some white business leaders and black trade unionists.

Raymond Parsons, executive director of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, spoke of apprenticeships being open to all races and said, "We're going to have to harness the total human resources of South Africa. Apprenticeship is a key instrumet in trying to do that."

He also noted the report calls for black trade unions "to be brought fully into the collective bargaining process. All this, I think, adds up to a very positive picture on the labor relations front in South Africa in the years ahead."

Opposed was Attie Nieuwoudt of the giant Confederation of Labor and a minority member of the government commission.

"I would like to warn the minister of labor to be very careful before he decides to take the rights away from our white labor organizations in South Africa," he said.

Lucy Mvubelo, a black union leader, said, "I regard it as a very great victory for our struggle." She said the report recognized that black workers are essential to industry and the country's economy.

Wastes May Help Solve Nation's Energy Woes

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ALTHOUGH wasting energy is a prime concern for most budget-conscious Americans, energy waste may help solve the nation's fuel shortages, experts said Tuesday at a Texas Tech conference.

Several speakers illustrated this statement by relating how cattle manure, grain sorgham, cotton gin trash and other 'wastes' may be part of the answer to tomorrow's energy solutions.

Tuesday afternoon's portion of "Coping with the West Texas Energy Crisis," a two-day conference at Texas Tech, covered a regional energy conservation program, comparison of conventional and alternative energy sources, solar energy, biomass energy and gasohol.

Although speakers discussed different energy sources, all agreed that the energy problem is complex and requires many options, not simply one solution.

Solutions Take Time

Alleviation of the energy problem also will take time — between 10 and 25 years is the time necessary to implement new solutions, Dr. Harry Parker of Tech's chemical engineering department predicted.

One of the alternatives touted at the conference was the use of fermented biomass, popularly known as gasohol — a mixture of 80 or 90 percent gasoline and 10 or 20 percent ethanol.

"It fits our area," C. Ralph Blodgett said of gasohol. Blodgett, mayor of Spearman, said that at current gasoline prices, even cutting 10 percent of the nation's gasoline needs means it is feasible to produce gasohol.

Blodgett praised the state House of Representatives which this week approved a $15 million gasohol development program. Other gasohol legislation in Austin this session included a bill passed by the Senate to build a state demonstration plant for the production of gasohol.

Brazil Peddles Gasohol

While Texas is just beginning to think about gasohol, Blodgett said Brazil, which has an abundant supply of sugar cane to ferment, has sold some of its gasohol to U.S. customers and is considering expanding its exports.

And while U.S. production of gasohol has been considered at 90-10 or 80-20 ratios of gasoline to ethanol, Blodgett said Brazil uses 60 percent ethanol and 40 percent fossil fuel.

The Panhandle and West Texas area is a natural location for gasohol production, Blodgett said, because of its feedlots and grain supply.

And the beauty of products used in gasohol production is that even damaged grain (such as grain condemned for human consumption because of fire damage) can be used in gasohol, he said.

He estimated that a bushel of corn could produce 2.5 to 2.6 gallons of alcohol.

Dr. John Reichert, director of the solar energy project at Crosbyton, said the project will provide the city with solar-generated electrcity in daylight hours and fossil fueled electricity at night.

Dr. Ernst Kiesling of Tech's civil engineering department, discussed solar energy in residential use.

Kiesling said 55 percent of energy consumption in a typical home is for space heating and 15 percent is for water heating.

Proper insulation and some use of solar energy can cut the costs of space heating, but solar makes an excellent water heat-

Mandatory Car Surety Advances

AUSTIN (AP) — The House overwhelmingly approved a bill Tuesday that would require every Texas motorist to buy automobile liability insurance.

Only about 70 percent of all Texas motor vehicles are covered by insurance that pays for injuries, deaths and property damage inflicted upon other people.

House members voted 125-9 for the bill. The formality of a final vote still is needed before the measure can go to the Senate.

Minimum liability coverage would be $5,000 for property damage and up to $20,000 for injuries in any one accident.

As approved by the House, a driver would pay a fine of $50 to $200 the first time he was caught driving without insurance and $200 to $1,000 for subsequent violations.

Insurance companies would issue special windshield stickers to those taking out or renewing auto policies. Cars without current stickers certifying coverage could not receive their annual vehicle inspection. A car without an inspection sticker can't be driven legally on Texas highways.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, sponsor of the bill, said the sticker requirement — which he opposed when it first came up last week — would make it "a stronger bill in the eyes of the Senate."

He easily mustered a 112-26 vote to table an amendment by Rep. Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth, that would have required proof of insurance in order to register a car.

The amendment — identical to the bill Green first introduced — would have required insurance companies to issue identity cards to policyholders. It also would have allowed the state to make random checks with insurance companies to assure policies still were in force.

Insurance agent organizations oppose the bill, Leonard said, "but my insurance agent tells me he deals with too many people who have been hit by uninsured motorists to oppose this bill."

"I want to make sure that when somebody drives on the streets and highways that they are as financially responsible as

Warmer, Windy Weather Due

GUSTY winds should begin pushing a thunderstorm-triggering system out of the area today and allow a slight warming trend in the Lubbock vicinity before another cold front grips the region Thursday.

A 30 percent chance for rain, however, remains in Lubbock's forecast today as winds blowing 20 to 30 mph from the southwest and west sweep across the area. The mercury this afternoon should warm to near 80.

Although overcast skies should begin clearing by late today, continued rain is contributing to a dropping subsoil temperature inhibiting crop planting in the area.

Most area farmers have not planted yet, according to Dale Pennington, a soil chemist for the Agriculture Research Center, but those who have "may loose some of their germination seed because of the dropping soil temperatures."

"Those who haven't planted yet have been wise in their decision," said Pennington.

Soil Temperatures Drop

Soil temperatures at a 4-inch depth have dropped from about 70 degrees to 66 degrees in the past five days, said Pennington.

"Individuals planting early will not gain much," said the soil chemist. "Cotton in the ground will stop growing for awhile and the cool soil temperatures are going to delay the initiation of the blooms."

Therefore, crops planted early in the season will not produce any earlier than those planted later in the spring.

A Pacific cold front moving into West Texas by Thursday should only bring afternoon temperatures down to the 70s, but will eliminate a continued threat of precipitation in the area.

Only minor temperature changes are predicted over the weekend with afternoon highs hovering near 80 and overnight lows continuing to drop into the 50s.

A slight clearing trend also is expected for the rest of Texas.

Strong thunderstorms Tuesday also swept across west central, central and south Texas. The worst storms prompted a marine warning along the coastal bend as the approached the gulf.

The thunderstorms caused minor flooding in some areas. In Seguin, 30 miles east of San Antonio, strong winds and heavy rains overturned mobile homes and caused street flooding.

A tornado warning was in effect Tues-

Investigators Say Firemen's Masks Faulty

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ALTHOUGH federal researchers say the protective air packs used by Lubbock firemen may be defective and shipment of the breathing devices has been halted, local fire officials say they have no choice but to use the protective breathing equipment.

Tests conducted by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) revealed that the air packs worn by three Lubbock firemen who were overcome by smoke inhalation and possible toxic gases in a March 25 blaze contained split or punctured diaphragms.

Additional tests done by the Morgantown, W.Va. agency on identical gear indicated that "at least 10 percent" of the air packs, manufactured by Scott Aviation of Lancaster, N.Y., also had the same defect.

Because of NIOSH's findings, Scott Aviation Tuesday stopped shipment of the equipment, according to the firm's manager of corporate communications, Mike Kusner.

However, the company has made no decision as to whether it will recall the breathing gear distributed to thousands of firemen — as well as inddustrial workers — across the nation, Kusner told The Avalanche-Journal in a phone interview from his Willoughby, Ohio, office.

Lubbock Fire Chief Tom Foster said Tuesday his department, which has nothing but Scott-Airpack breathing equipment, had not received NIOSH's alert and that he will "wait until I have the alert in my hand first" before taking any action.

Meanwhile, he said, the department would continue use of the air packs when necessary.

"We would send the boys in (with the air packs)," Foster said. "That's all

Drilling Rig Blast, Fire Injure Four

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An explosion and fire erupted aboard a Texaco drilling rig on Bayou Lafourche on Tuesday, burning four men, the Coast Guard said.

"We don't have a total number (of men on the rig) yet, but people told us they are all accounted for," said Guard spokesman Bob Baeten.

The injured were picked up at the scene by Coast Guard helicopter and taken to the Our Lady of the Sea Hospital in Galliano before being transferred to the burn unit of West Jefferson Hospital in suburban New Orleans, he said.

John W. Porter of Texaco said he did not know exactly how many people were on the rig. "It was just a regular drilling crew and people. It would have been about seven or eight people, I imagine," he said.

Nickel Found To Be Average Per Gallon Gasoline Boost

By KIM PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

GASOLINE prices at several Lubbock service stations increased an average of five cents per gallon during April according to an Avalanche-Journal survey.

Price increases ranged from two to nine cents per gallon with the majority of stations surveyed increasing their prices approximately four cents during the month.

The largest price hike was recorded at self-service pumps at 7-Eleven convenience store at 34th Street and Memphis Avenue. That station's price for unleaded gasoline increased nine cents — from 69 cents per gallon to 78 cents per gallon.

Smallest Increases

The smallest increase — two cents per gallon — was reported at self-service pumps at two different locations. The 7-Eleven store at Ninth Street and University Avenue increased the price of its premium gasoline from 74 cents per gallon to 76 cents per gallon. The Shell station at 50th Street and Quaker Avenue raised the price for regular gas from 67 cents per gallon to 69 cents per gallon.

On the first day of May, gasoline prices at surveyed stations ranged from 85 cents per gallon for full-service unleaded gasoline at the Phillips 66 station at 50th Street and Memphis Avenue to 68.3 cents per gallon for self-service regular gasoline at the Exxon station at 19th Street and University Avenue.

The lowest price for full-service regular gasoline — 73 cents per gallon — was recorded at three stations: the Gulf station, Fourth Street and Indiana Avenue, Phillips 66, Baylor Street and University Avenue and the Phillips 66 at 50th Street and Memphis Avenue.

The highest price for self-service regular gasoline — 74 cents per gallon — was recorded at the Phillips 66 station at 10th Street and Avenue K and the Texaco station at 34th Street and Quaker Avenue.

Although service station operators interviewed during the survey would not predict how much gas prices would increase this month, operators did predict fuel prices would continue to climb toward the $1-per-gallon mark and beyond, some believe.

"A $1 a gallon price for gasoline is just a magic number and gas prices won't stop there," said Wayne Hill, owner of the Texaco station at 50th Street and Slide Road.

"The price for gasoline will hit $1-per gallon and keep on going until people in the United States are paying more than $2-per-gallon like people in some European countries do," Hill said.

Spokesmen for several of the service stations surveyed reported that they had to close their stations on some Sundays during April in order to have an adequate fuel supply for the entire month.

And with many of the major oil companies announcing Tuesday even further reductions in retailers' gasoline allocations, many of the service station operators believe they will have to continue to reduce their operating hours.

Rhode Island Urges Editorial Bylines

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A resolution calling on newspaper editorial writers to use bylines was passed Tuesday by the Rhode Island Senate. The resolution had already been cleared by the House.

The resolution reads that newspapers are required to have their editorial writers sign their work, but in Rhode Island resolutions do not carry the force of law. The Senate vote on the bill was 28-17.

Boy Allowed To Play Girls' Volleyball

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A federal judge ruled Tuesday that a 19-year-old male senior must be allowed to play on his high school's all-girl volleyball team. The judge said the ruling would not lead to male domination because the student has only "limited ability."

Parties in the case said Chief U.S. District Court Judge Raymond J. Pettine's ruling is the first in federal court on a boy's attempt to play on an all-girl team.

Pettine said the student, Donald Gomes, was barred from the team only because of his sex, and would suffer "irreparable harm" if not allowed to play. There is no boys' volleyball team at the school.

"In light of his relatively limited ability, there is little possibility that his participation would substantially disrupt league play or provide one team with a disproportionate advantage," Pettine said.

He also said there is no evidene the ruling "will lead to a sudden influx of males" into the program.

An official of the Rhode Island Interscholastic League, which refused the 6-foot Gomes permission to play on the team, said the ruling will be appealed.

"Ultimately, if we lose, I think it's going to be devastating. I think a lot of boys who can't make the boys' teams will try out for the girls' teams," said the Rev. Robert C. Newbold, the league's executive secretary.

Newbold said similar cases are before state courts in Massachusetts and Illinois, but this is the first decision from a federal court.

Gomes was out of state at a college interview and could not be reached for comment. His lawyer also was unavailable, but an associate said: "We're really glad for Donald. He impresses us as a pretty sincere kid."

The preliminary injunction issued by Pettine applies only to Gomes, and does not open up other girls' teams to male participation. Newbold said the league will not change its rules because of the ruling.

"Anyone else that wants to play is going to have to get an injunction too," he said.

Pettine said the best solution would be to separate teams for girls and boys, but he said a lack of interest in volleyball among other male students rules out a program for boys. Gomes was the only boy to try out for the girls' team.

The team's coach, Byrl Johnston, praised the ruling. "We've been working with Don all season. I think it would be a shame if he couldn't play.

"He's in the starting six. He'll play" in Thursday's game, Mrs. Johnston said.

In his ruling, Pettine cited testimony that ranked Gomes' playing ability between sixth and ninth among the 16 girls on the team. He said therefore Gomes' athletic ability would not necessarily force any girl player to sit on the bench.

Pettine included an unusual postscript to his decision, addressed to women who he said wrote opposing Gomes' effort. He said he is "sensitive to all your fears" of males dominating their programs, but said the decision was made on an unemotional interpretation of law.

Hotel To Capitalize On Christie Link

HARROGATE, England (UPI) — Dame Agatha Christie, the doyenne of mystery writers, mysteriously disappeared for 10 days in December 1926 after her husband told her he was leaving her for another woman.

It was the best thing to happen to the Swan Hotel in nearly 200 years.

Dame Agatha abandoned her car on the edge of a southern English quarry and appeared at the Swan in the northern spa town of Harrogate, registering in the name of the "other woman," Theresa Neale.

She stayed incognito for 10 days. Then a band musician spotted her and notified police.

Publication of Kathlene Tynan's "Agatha," a fictional reconstruction of the incident Mrs. Christie adamantly refused to discuss, and the movie of the same name have renewed a delightful notoriety for the 150-bedroom Victorian style resort.

"Since the film was made," hotel sales executive June Spence said Tuesday, "we decided it would be nice if every December we had an Agatha festival in the hotel, and we're starting it this year."

For the first "Agatha days" Dec. 8-18, 100 Dutch tourists, Christie fans all, already have made reservations.

Though Dame Agatha's disappearance sparked one of the largest manhunts of its time — and one of its greatest scandals — the 10-day incident stayed a mystery. Mrs. Christie always shied from it, saying only she had suffered from amnesia. Even her posthumous autobiography scarcely mentioned it.

So the hotel plans to create the mood and aura of the '20s and let guests use their imagination to fill in details.

"We're going to feature things like tea dances with bands in the afternoon, thin-sliced cucumber sandwiches, staff in 1920s costumes, 1920s menus, the Charleston. We hope to get some vintage cars up and have an Agatha Christie play on at the Harrogate Theater," Miss Spence said.

"We want to try and recreate in some small way what she might have done."

Swimming Pool Charges Upped By Parks Board

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

It will cost more to use city swimming pools this summer if a rate increase recommended by the Parks and Recreation Board is approved by the city council.

All admission fees for city pools would be increased 15 cents under the recommended fee structure, the first rate increase for the pools in about five years.

Parks director John Alford said the increase was necessary because "operating expenses have gone up" and so the parks department can begin paying lifeguards more money.

The below minimum wage salary paid lifeguards, as well as other factors, have led to serious difficulties for the city in securing lifeguards for this year's pool season.

The pools lost money last year, Alford said. Although Maxey and Clapp pools operated at a profit, Rodgers pool broke even and the Simmons and Woods pools were "money losers," he said.

The rate increase "is not going to make us any money," Alford said, "it's going to lose us less."

With the increased rates, Alford said, the city pools would "still be considerably cheaper than private pools."

Also at the meeting, board members denied a request by Laurie A. Walker to use the Municipal Tennis Center at no charge to raise funds for the Lubbock Chapter of the American Diabetes Association.

"Nobody gets to use the tennis center for free," Alford said, and the Parks Board has a policy against allowing any person or organization to reserve all 12 tennis courts at once.

The board approved the recommendation of the Senior Citizen Title VII Nutrition Council that Mae Simmons Senior Citizens Center be enlarged to become a central senior citizens facility for East Lubbock.

Parks Department staff members were instructed to seek out funds for such a facility, probably from Community Development Block Grant funds.

Board members elected Phil Hoel chairman, succeeding Henry Huneke, who asked not to be renamed to the board. Robert Sweazy was elected to succeed Hoel as vice chairman.

Board members recommended an athletic complex under construction north of Loop 289 and west of Texas Instruments be named the Yellowhouse Canyon Athletic Park.

A house being remodeled for a party house in the Buddy Holly area of the Canyon Lakes, commonly known as the Manicapelli House after its last residents, should be called the Landwer Party House after its original builders, the board decided.

Collision Injures New Mexico Youth

A New Mexico youth was pinned in the wreckage of his car Tuesday after the car and a tractor-trailer rig collided at Clovis Road and Gary Avenue.

The youth, Randy Harris, 16, of Belin, N.M., was reported in serious condition Tuesday at Health Sciences Hospital.

The accident occurred about 2:40 p.m. Tuesday. Police said the youth was driving west on Clovis Road at a high rate of speed. The truck was travelling east on Clovis Road.

The two vehicles collided when the truck attempted a left turn from Clovis Road to Gary Avenue. The car was wedged under the truck's trailer, and a fire department rescue team had to be called to cut Harris from his car.

The youth was treated at Health Sciences Hospital for a broken neck and internal injuries.

Bill To Remove City Electric Rate Authority

AUSTIN (AP) — The House tentatively approved a bill Tuesday night that would strip city councils of their power to set electric rates.

A 70-66 vote advanced the bill, which will come up later for final action.

If passed, all decisions on electric rates would be made by the Texas Public Utility Commission, which now receives cases from cities only on appeal.

The House debated the bill for almost five hours before taking a vote.

Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, said it was logical to have rate cases decided originally by the commission inasmuch as it gets most of them anyway on appeal.

"We should originate it in the ball park where the game is going to end," he said.

He said mayors and city councilmen "in some instances have used electric rates as a point from which they can demagogue for re-election."

Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said municipalities "have become and are effective advocates" for their citizens in "presenting the down side of requests for rate increases."

But Donaldson said few cities effectively maintain such a role.

Donaldson's bill, cosponsored by Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, would allow cities to step into rate cases as intervenors, with their costs of hiring experts and attorneys paid by the utilities.

A city that chose to intervene in a rate case affecting its people would be entitled to all data filed with the commission and would have the right to inspect an electric company's records.

Donaldson called the right to intervene "a substantial improvement in the system," but Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, called this "a hollow shell."

Davis said it would not "be too far afield" to call the bill the "electric utility rape, pillage and plunder act of 1979."

"The whole rationale is to provide a mechanism for accelerated rate action," Davis said.

He referred to the time between an electric company's request to a city for a rate increase and the date an appeal is decided.

QUAKE WARNING ISSUED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The director of the University of California Seismographic Station has warned there is a 50-50 chance of a great earthquake somewhere in California within the next 10 years. "I think the evidence is much stronger than 30 or even 10 years ago that a large earthquake is imminent," said Bruce Bolt, a member of the California Seismic Commission.

AN EDITORIAL:

The Politics Of Verification

VERIFIABILITY HAS become the sine qua non of SALT II. Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, for example, made headlines last weekend with his warning that the government's ability to verify terms of the arms control treaty is one of his key concerns.

Byrd, who insists he's undecided on whether to support SALT II, claims Senate action this year would prevent the issue from becoming a "political football (or) showpiece" in the 1980 election.

On the face of it, all Byrd's worrying is commendable. Who could be against adequate verification? Who in control of his political sense could be against arms control?

But in the most base political sense, verification provides a convenient out for those, like Byrd, who may not be inclined to learn about bombs and rockets.

RECENT EVENTS bear strongly on outcome of verification debate.

First is the loss of line-of-sight monitoring stations in Iran. Apparently the administration plans to make up for these losses in part by expanding facilities in Turkey.

Critics, however, point out that Turkey is a poor substitute. If Turkey were a better location, they say, then the seven stations would have been there in the first place.

Second is the loss of a KH-11 satellite manual sold by young employes of TRW, a major space and defense contractor, to Soviet agents last year. In an ironic twist of events, government witnesses were essentially forced to reveal the serious nature of the loss in order to prosecute successfully.

"As a result of their possession of the KH-11 manual, sources say, the Soviets know the capability and timing of U.S. satellite passes over missile fields and can thus plan their operations accordingly," according to The Heritage Foundation.

FINALLY, THERE is the more obvious trouble we have in assessing the technical data which is supposed to be the truth about Soviet strategic systems.

In reality, intelligence estimates on the Soviet Backfire bomber have varied as much as 3,000 to 5,000 nautical miles—a difference of 66 percent.

The disturbing verification process followed by the administration is that determination of the capabilities and performance of Soviet systems is made a political one.

As in other issues related to SALT, the final judgment may rest on trust. Not whether we should trust the Soviet Union to abide by the terms; but whether we can trust an administration which has vested political interest in SALT II to tell us if the Soviets are cheating. If they know.

Crime War Needs Volunteers

LUBBOCK'S "War on Crime" is giving every law-abiding citizen a chance to enlist with the kickoff of Operation Identification and the staging of a crime prevention symposium.

The symposium, scheduled all day Thursday in the Memorial Civic Center, will focus on steps that businessmen and individuals can take to protect themselves from the criminal element.

Operation Identification is a specific campaign in the war. Any resident who wants to mark his or her valuable possessions for sure identification in case they are stolen can use electric marking devices and chemical pens which will be delivered to his door.

Volunteers for the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council's program will deliver and pick up the materials. All you have to do is put your driver's license or Department of Public Safety number on items that a burglar might be tempted to take.

Far too often, police are stalled in their investigations of thefts and burglaries by the fact that the stolen goods, even if recovered, can not be identified and traced back to the owner in order to prove the case.

Along with handing out the stiffer sentences that District Attorney John Montford is asking jurors to assess, the Operation Identification campaign is an easy and effective way for the average citizen to lend his weight to the anti-crime campaign.

In time, such efforts will pay off handsomely in making Lubbock less attractive for the criminal element—and, thus, a much better place for the rest of us to live.

Bouquet To CAC

A TREMENDOUSLY successful Lubbock Arts Festival has to go down as a significant achievement for the struggling Cultural Affairs Council.

Parking lots at the Memorial Civic Center were filled to overflowing Friday through Sunday for this first-ever panorama of what's available here in terms of the humanities and the visual and performing arts.

James Toland, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce-supported Cultural Affairs Council, and Festival co-chairmen Alan Henry and Mrs. James Spears got 100 percent cooperation from the 3,000-plus participants.

As Festival coordinator, Toland is justifiably pleased with both the participation by all ages of persons and the turnout.

The Arts Festival put the Memorial Civic Center to the type of use envisioned for it when citizens voted bonds to build it.

It is the kind of communitywide involvement at the "people place" which we would like to see more of in the months and years ahead.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Outside Observers Find No Rigging In Rhodesia

SALISBURY, RHODESIA—By almost any measure, last week's election for the 72 black seats in the newly created Parliament of Zimbabwe Rhodesia was a stunning success.

More than 200 members of the press and international observers were on hand to examine the election process in minute detail at scores of locations across the country.

The overwhelming verdict was that the balloting was conducted on an above-board basis, and that the enormous turnout (63.9 percent of the total estimated electorate) was an authentic reflection of support for the "internal settlement" arranged by outgoing Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black leaders—Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, and Sen. Chief Jeremiah Chirau.

THIS WRITER was part of an observer team sent to the elections by the American Conservative Union.

Other members of the group included syndicated columnist Smith Hempstone, former congressman Howard Pollock of Alaska, and Byron Engle, former director of the Office of Public Safety of the Agency for International Development.

Additional observer groups included Freedom House, the Institute of American Relations and the American Security Council, plus delegations from Great Britain, France, West Germany, Canada, and other nations.

Our group visited polling places in all sectors of the country, including the Eastern territofy bordering Mozambique, remote tribal trustland areas around Bindura and Belingwe, and black townships of Salisbury and Bulawayo.

AMONG US we travelled several thousand miles back and forth across the country, visited 36 polling places, talked with 156 voters, and conducted 221 interviews other than those with voters in the polling places.

The major finding of our survey—confirmed by numerous other observers and journalists—was that the black people of Zimbabwe Rhodesia wanted to vote.

They did so, moreover, despite repeated violence by externally-based guerrillas who had threatened to disrupt the elections in their effort to take the country by force of arms.

Columnist Hempstone and I witnessed a vivid example of this in the rural polling station at Keyera, where voters continued to walk in across the fields despite two guerrilla attacks that day in the vicinity.

BEFORE AND after the balloting, there were charges that the election was rigged by Rhodesian authorities attempting to inflate the total vote. We could find no evidence of this in our inspection of polling places and voter interviews.

Ballot security procedures were good. Secrecy of the ballot was well preserved.

Extremely high vote turnouts in so-called "protected villages" and the fact that votes were sometimes cast in employment settings gave rise to suspicions in some quarters that people were being forced to vote.

In no case in our voter interviews, however, did any respondent say he or she had been pressured to vote.

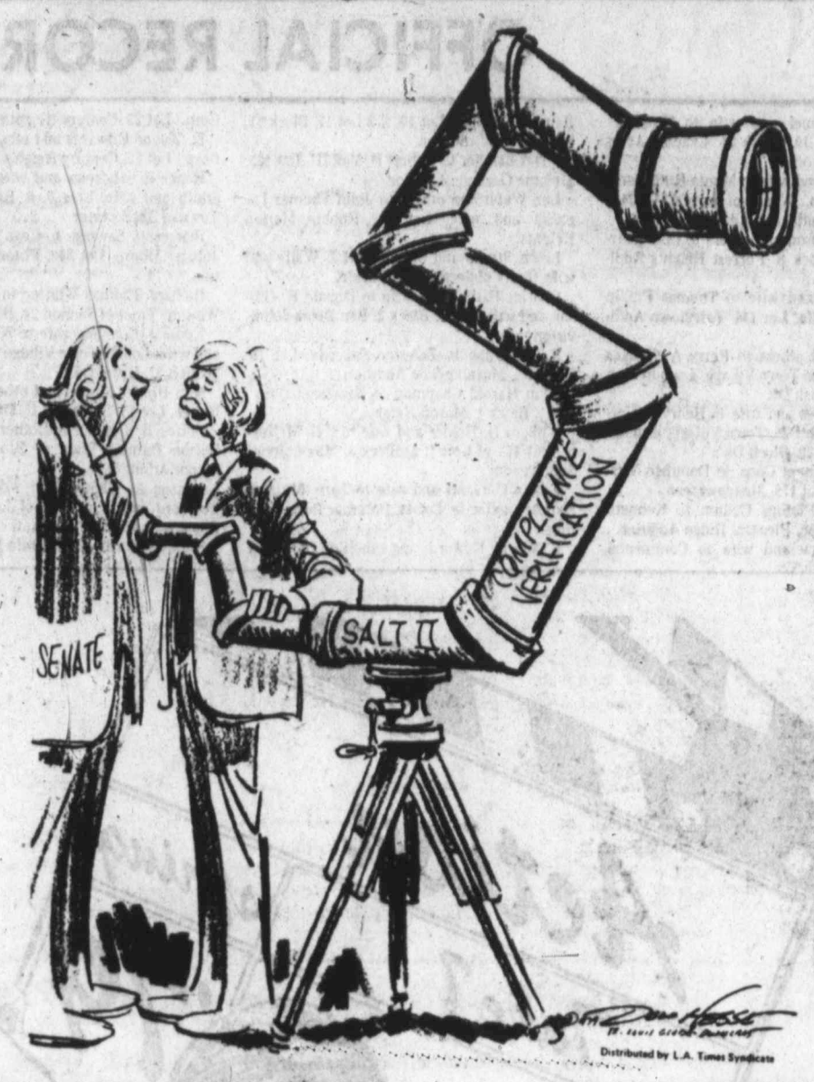

On the other hand, there were several instances in which respondents said they had been told not to vote, but did so anyway.

THE VAST majority of the black voters to whom we talked said they thought the elections were a good idea—an attitude manifested as well by enormous crowds of singing, dancing, and laughing demonstrators.

Attitudes ranged from jubilant enthusiasm in most places to guarded hopefulness in others—with the predominant sentiment being that the election was a step toward peace and better government.

All of which made it apparent that the voting was a true outpouring of popular feeling.

'One Peek Through This And You've Got It

GEORGE F. WILL:

Sex In The Schools

WASHINGTON—These days, everything somehow reminds everyone of sex, and President Carter's desire to subsidize woodburning stoves reminds me of sex education.

I don't understand subsidies for the world's oldest use of fuel, and I don't understand intense instruction in the world's oldest obsession.

At least I didn't understand the latter until I read "Turning Children into Sex Experts," Jacqueline Kasun's essay in the latest issue of "The Public Interest."

Kasun, a California academic, argues that sex education has become a "movement," the focus of which is less biological than political.

Its prime movers are mainly psychologists, sociologists, and "health educators" concerned less with the physiology of procreation than with "value clarification."

It seems that being a sex educator is like being ambassador to the United Nations: A person eager for the job is apt to be exactly the kind of person who should be kept far away from it.

Schools are flooding society with young people who cannot read, write or think adequately.

But seventh and eighth graders in Kasun's community are learning "the four philosophies of masturbation—traditional, religious, natural, radical."

Those who speak of such "philosophies" are, at best, semi-literate, but they are in careers open to their talents: "Sex is too important to glop up with sentiment...Masturbation cannot hurt you and it will make you feel more relaxed."

KASUN REPORTS that the curriculum in Ferndale, Calif., suggests that students discuss in class whether they are satisfied with their "size of sex organs."

And she says, "The seventh-grader in my city is advised to set for himself a purely 'personal standard of sexual behavior.'

"No religious views, no community moral standards are to deflect him from his overriding purposes of self-discovery, self-assertion, and self-gratification."

Once upon a time, it was said that sex education would ameliorate the problem of teen-age pregnancy.

But reasonable people warned, and some other people hoped, that sex education often would involve teaching that sex is just another occasion for self-absorption, another arena for "self-fulfillment."

THIS WOULD result in more promiscuity (and more abortions, and other signs of "clarified" values).

Recently, a rationale for "sexuality" training has been that it awakens children from the drak American slumber of Puritanism, repression, inhibition, etc.

But surely for every child who needs to be "awakened" to sexuality there are 50,000 who need reinforcement against the enveloping sexual vulgarity of popularity culture.

In C. S. Lewis' "The Screwtape Letters," the devil Screwtape, tutoring a young friend in the art of corrupting, explains that "nonsense in the intellect may reinforce corruption in the will."

The trick, he says, is first to convince people that Fashion should rule them because Fashion is the Tide of History, and hence "progressive."

THEN: "WE direct the fashionable outcry of each generation against those vices of which it is least in danger...Cruel ages are put on their guard against Sentimentality, feckless and idle ones against Respectability, lecherous ones against Puritanism..."

And so, today, society invests hundreds of millions of dollars, and even more student hours, in sex-education classes.

Many of them use the sort of materials Kasun cites, such as the article proclaiming that, "We must finish the contemporary sex 'revolution'...Our society must strive to sanction and support various forms of intimacy between members of the same sex."

The coarseness of the materials she cites (which I flinch from quoting) is intrinsic to the doctrine the material serves.

Political arguments, pushed far enough, are about what kind of creatures we are and what we can become, and the doctrine of the sex-education "movement" is this:

MAN IS A sensing more than a reasoning creature; life is a stream of sensations; the good life is the glandular life.

As Kasun says, "In the undertaking to finance and promote a multi-million-dollar program of sex education, the government has entered very heavily into the promotion of a particular world view and establishment of a chosen ideology, a kind of secular religion."

The sex educators she cites treat sex partly as plumbing and partly as recreation. Theirs is an American triumph: plumbing for hedonists.

But they should at least remember C. S. Lewis' warning: You can spoil your enjoyment of the finest mountain view by thinking of it in terms of the mechanics of the retina and the optic nerve.

ANDREW TULLY:

It's OK By Law

WASHINGTON—Life tends to be disorderly. Most of us could come up with a few rules and regulations that would force life to toe our personal mark. Employing the word structure as a verb, for instance, should be punishable by the rack.

The Virginia Supreme Court addressed life's vagaries in ruling unanimously that an unmarried woman who lives with a man may take the state bar examination.

That decision, the state bench noted, will not set well with many people because the plaintiff's "living arrangement may be unorthodox and unacceptable to some segments of society." Right.

But the court decided that "this conduct bears no rational connection to her fitness to practice law." Right again.

THE CASE involved one Bonnie C. Cord, a lawyer with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Miss Cord shares a home in Linden, Va., with a Washington photographer, Jeffery Blue.

She is a graduate of Georgetown University Law School and a member of the District of Columbia bar.

Now then. Warren County Circuit Judge Duncan Gibb last year overruled a 2 to 1 recommendation by a committee of lawyers and refused to let Miss Cord take the exam on the grounds that her lifestyle "would lower the public's opinion of the bar as a whole."

It is fair to say that Judge Gibb disapproves of couples who live together out of wedlock.

HE'S ENTITLED to do so—off the bench. On the bench, a judge is expected to rule according to law, not out of personal prejudice, no matter how wholesome. The law relevant to the Cord case was available to Gibb, either in his own or a legal library.

It is contained in a 1975 opinion by the United States Supreme Court which held that state-imposed qualifications for lawyers must have "a rational connection with the applicant's fitness or capacity to practice law."

In short, is the applicant deemed technically qualified to become a lawyer if he or she passes the bar exam? Two of the three members of the screening committee said Cord was so qualified.

The third demurred; Miss Cord's attorney told the Richmond Supreme Court that member based his rejection on her living arrangements, and the state bench agreed.

THUS, MISS CORD was ruled entitled to a certificate of honest demeanor and good character.

That, of course, will be the point emphasized by those citizens who take a dim view of cohabitation without the benefit of a marriage license. From the moral heights they occupy, their argument is valid.

But if this is a country ruled by laws, not men, it is still a country whose laws are made by men—and, of course, women. And one of those laws says Miss Cord's case was legally correct.

JAY HARRIS:

An India Odyssey

THE NAMES were sometimes familiar. At other times, they had a strange sound...

Bombay, New Delhi, the Gir Forest, Nagpur, Kanha, Agra, Jaipur...

And the sights and sounds and smells. They too, were sometimes familiar. But, often not.

That has been our daily fare for the past two weeks on a "journey beyond our wildest dreams" to India—India, the fabled land of the ancients, the Mongols, Persians, the Hindus, the temples and palaces, the Taj Mahal, the Maharajahs, the British, Kipling and Gunga Din.

Today, it all seems like a dream, and perhaps a touch of a nightmare. For, in the space of a working day and night, we spanned half of America, the Atlantic and two continents to walk where some of history's earliest events were recorded.

INDIA, AS MOST nations today, especially those in the Third World, has more than its share of problems.

Unfortunately, it does not have its share of the answers, from the bureaucracy which seems to enslave all government these days, or the people themselves.

Today, India, with only a third of the land area of the United States, has three times the population—some 650,000,000, and more on the way every minute!

And while we did not see the pervasive hunger we had been led to expect, for many the fine line between bare existence and starvation is like a gossamer thread from which hangs the sword of life or death.

In its great cities—Calcutta with its eight million souls, Bombay with seven million and New Delhi with six million, and many smaller "towns" with censuses surpassing the million mark—may be found riches and squalor, fabulous hotels and slums, hope and dismay side by side.

WE MADE THE journey to the subcontinent of Asia at the invitation of the Indian Government's Department of Tourism.

As has been the case in many other such trips to faraway lands and places the past four years, this one not only was educational, entertaining and fascinating, it was sobering beyond all expectations.

India is a land of fantasy, history, religion and tradition. It has been independent in the modern context only since midnight, Aug. 15, 1947, when Britain formally gave up "the crown jewel" of her colonial empire "upon which the sun never set."

India is a land of contradictions, with wealth to dazzle kings and queens and to entice maharajas and merchants, and slums to sicken the soul. It is also a nation of peoples of diverse deep-rooted beliefs, suspicions and feelings. In brief, India is both the agony and ecstasy of another time, another place.

ON THIS VISIT, we saw the nation perform at near-perfection in the running of its international Air India and its major tourist hotels and attractions.

And we saw it struggling in the throes of what seems to be an insurmountable population problem, poverty and a soaring inflation. India also is a nation shackled by the continuing conflict of religion, tradition and lack of leadership.

But, India also is a beautiful land in many, many ways.

We visited two of its many game and forest preserves, vast areas set aside to protect the fast-vanishing Indian lion of the Gir Forest in upper southwest India, and the beautiful black and gold striped Indian tiger in the Kanha National Forest. We rode and walked through a primeval land of trees, brush and meadows in the half-light of an evening and watched spotted and swamp deer romping at will, beautiful peacocks strutting and shouting their raucous call, monkeys racing along beside the jeep.

AS A MORNING sun streamed through tall trees, we boarded a howdah atop a docile elephant for a short journey through thick underbrush to find the Indian tiger and exchanged wondering stares.

We awoke long before dawn in a rustic cabin to the breathtaking smell of an atmosphere more pure than any we have experienced in the world outside the heights of Canada and Colorado. And we met some of the most sensitive and friendly people it has been our good fortune to know, along with those with the palm out.

We visited ancient shrines and fortresses and homes of a land and peoples whose history encompasses much of man's existence, almost to the beginnings itself.

We re-learned history of the multiple-peopled land of Asia's vast "melting pot," relived the stories of the Mongol hordes, the Persian princes, the centuries of evolution of a people whose seemingly stoic acceptance of the inevitable contrasts sharply with the past and present struggle to be something better.

INDIA TODAY is a land desperately seeking a way out of its age-old chains, yet still held by them.

We marveled at cities such as the busy and thriving port that is Bombay, the New-Old Delhi, the nation's capital.

There, men are debating whether to restore the ban on the slaughter of the "sacred" cow on the one hand and how to continue to obtain uranium from the U.S. for its atomic power-generating facility at Tarapur. In the background is the fear that Pakistan may develop a nuclear weapon.

We sat shocked as autos, bullock carts, huge trucks, bicycles and animals shared packed city thoroughfares and two-lane highways to the constant cacophony of honking horns and the din of a horizontal Tower of Babel.

We chalked up some 30,000 miles, rubbed shoulders with peoples from Dallas to Delhi. We talked about today's world, the past, tomorrow. And we will be telling you more about it in the days ahead.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. "WHY ARE meeting records called 'minutes'?"

A. Because originally they were taken down in minute (exceedingly small) writing only to be copied later into larger more legible script. That's pronounced "mine-OOT." There was a time when minute was a verb. To minute was to make note of.

Snowflakes 15 inches in diameter and eight inches thick are pretty hard to picture, but such there were, it's said. In Montana. In 1887. The largest ever, no doubt.

Lightly Speaking

Small poster appearing on a secretary's desk in downtown office building saying: "Don't ask me to think—I was hired for my looks."

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

JUMPING BEAUTY — Mary Therese Friel, the new Miss USA, does a bit of jumping as she celebrates her victory at Biloxi, Miss., Tuesday morning. (AP Laserphoto)

Dream Comes True

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — It was a dream-come-true for Mary Therese Friel as she lounged in a palatial brass bed Tuesday, sipping orange juice and talking about the start of her year-long reign as Miss USA.

"I dreamed a week ago I was crowned Miss USA," the green-eyed, 20-year-old blonde from Rochester, N.Y., told a news conference. "I was disappointed when I woke up and it wasn't true."

But when she woke up Tuesday morning, it was true, and a rabble of photographers and reporters crowded around her hotel room for her news conference, her first official function as Miss USA.

The next year will be full of travel and public appearances, including her representing the United State in the Miss Universe contest, so she said she made two telephone calls last night.

Alaskans Win Lottery

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The Nenana Ice Classic, a $100,000 lottery, has ended with most of the winners coming from Fairbanks and Anchorage.

The breakup of ice on the Nenana River, which toppled a tripod and pulled a cable attached to a clock on shore to record the time, occurred Monday at 6:16 p.m. Alaska Standard Time.

In 1978, the breakup also occurred on April 30, but at 3:18 p.m.

The lottery is based on the precise time of the breakup.

The 10 winning tickets are each good for $10,000.

Girl, 18, Voted To Board

McHENRY SHORES, Ill. (AP) — The trustees of this tiny village northwest of Chicago moved over Wednesday to make room for Marilyn Zelvis, the youngest of the town's overseers.

Miss Zelvis, 18 and a senior at McHenry High School West Campus, campaigned for election as a write-in candidate only a month after she became old enough to vote.

"Today's youth is tomorrow's future," her leaflets proclaimed.

She now says she doesn't know what her trustee committee assignment will be, but she leans toward parks, buildings, public health and safety.

She also says she intends to "make decisions for the people. I can't go against them. If I had to vote on something I don't believe in, if they wanted it, I'd have to vote that way."

Her age would work against her at the beer sessions following the twice-monthly trustees' meetings.

"With school the next morning at 7:30, I don't think I'll be going out after the meetings," she said with a smile.

Miss Zelvis is no stranger to the workings of village government, having been a secretary to the mayor, taken minutes of village meetings, and having been a dispatcher for the police department.

'Alice Will Be Back'

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — "Alice will be back, but maybe not in the Berkshires," said an associate of Alice Brock after the most recent version of Alice's Restaurant went on the auction block.

"This is not the end," predicted Stockbridge lawyer Frederick Rutberg on Monday as Alice's at Avaloch was sold for $100,000 to the Berkshire Trust Co., a bank that already held two mortgages on the property.

Miss Brock's Avaloch operation was her third bid to operate a restaurant in the Berkshires. Her first restaurant, tucked in a back alley in Stockbridge, became famous when Arlo Guthrie wrote a song about it and director Arthur Penn made a film based on Guthrie's talking blues folk song.

Avaloch is a former estate that has been operated as a resort since Word War II. It sits on a hill that overlooks Tanglewood, summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and the Stockbridge Bowl, a picturesque highland lake favored by America's elite during the nation's Gilded Age.

Earlier this year Miss Brock closed the restaurant and motel, blaming poor tourist weather and state-required improvements in the sewage disposal system.

Her restaurant company filed for bankruptcy in early March, listing liabilities of $526,426 and assets of $26,000.

$30,000 Unclaimed

RIDGECREST, Calif. (AP) — Two auto mechanics were hoping Tuesday that no one comes along to claim two sacks they found inside an old tire. The sacks contained $30,000 cash.

Clifford Dunn, 22, and John Thatcher, 17, found the two- and three-year-old bills while preparing the tire for resale at T and T Alignment Friday.

Police checked with the banks named on the sacks, but they hadn't been robbed and didn't know who owned the money.

Officers in this Mojave Desert community said they had found no other clues to the owner by Tuesday.

If no one claims the cash, it will belong to Dunn and Thatcher, according to Police Lt. Ed Liszka.

'Smelly' Road Oil Found To Contain Cyanide, Other Dangerous Chemicals

CORRIGAN (AP) — Residents of Reily's Village, a new subdivision nestled in the tall pines of East Texas, thought there was something unusually smelly and obnoxious about one of the oil-covered dirt roads in the area.

Now they're being told the sludge used to coat the road last November may contain potentially deadly cyanide and other chemicals.

Federal and state governments are now sampling the sludge from this area as well as other locations around southeast Texas where the waste sludge is known to have been used.

When it's hot, residents say, the stench from the black splotches of road oil becomes almost unbearable, often causing headaches.

"At times you can hardly take a breath, it gets so strong," said T.G. Owens, who lives in the community.

"This stuff is making us sick," said Owens's wife.

Dr. Edwin Eads, director of environmental science at Lamar University in Beaumont, conducted tests on samples brought to him from the road and from a ditch in the area.

He said he found nitrobenzene and some nitriles, which are equivalent to organic cyanide. Both are dangerous to man, Eads said. Nitrobenzene has been shown to cause skin cancer and cyanide can cause death by suffocation. He said it might have to get into the food chain before death would result, but that it was still hazardous in its present state.

"I'm as fearful of those chemicals as I am a snake," Eads said.

The oil for the three miles of roads in Reily's Village came from Browning-Ferris Inc. of Houston, one of the largest waste disposal firms in Texas. The company takes industrial waste, including cyanide, from the petrochemical complex along the southeast Texas coast, but state and federal regulations restrict disposal of cyanide to certain underground sites.

The road oil for Reily's Village was obtained from Browning-Ferris's Chemical Services Division in Nederland, between Port Arthur and Beaumont.

Browning-Ferris said it has started an internal investigation of its own to see if cyanide and other chemicals accidentally got into the road oil.

Gene Davis, operations manager of the chemical disposal company, acknowledged the firm may supply as much as 500,000 gallons of chemical sludge for use as road oil each year.

Corrigan Mayor M.G. Reily, who owns Reily's Village, said he was unaware the problem existed until contacted by a news reporter last week.

Reily said many developers have been using the oil, which is donated free of charge, including transportation, to anyone who wants it.

C.R. Miertschin, director of field operations and enforcement at the Texas Department of Water Resources, said inspectors are checking samples in several areas where the road oil was sent.

Pakistan Said Advancing As N-Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Intense efforts by the United States have failed to deprive Pakistan of the means to develop nuclear weapons at some future point, Congress was told Tuesday.

"We believe we have the capability to slow down that activity," Assistant Secretary of State Thomas R. Pickering told a Senate subcommittee.

"No one is willing to say ... no one has high confidence that we have the ability to stop this kind of activity," he added.

Pickering did tell the Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee on nuclear proliferation, however, that the United States has been able to prevent some sensitive equipment from reaching Pakistan.

"But we don't believe it's possible at this point to stop this with a supply effort alone," Pickering said.

Early last month the United States cut off most foreign aid to Pakistan.

EVELYN PIERCE NACE

Local Author To Address Writers' Meet

Evelyn Pierce Nace of Pampa, author of more than 300 publications, will speak on "Winning at Writing," at the South Plains Writer's Association annual dinner meeting beginning at 6:45 p.m. May 14 at the Gridiron Restaurant.

Mrs. Nace signed a contract in January to write a syndicated column for newspapers and magazines called "Mending Mature Marriage." The column will begin in a few months under the name of Louise Pierce.

Mrs. Nace, who has lived in Pampa 28 years, has sold more than 300 short stories and articles to national magazines, and has written 40 paperback publications.

She is a graduate of Park College in Parkville, Mo., and did graduate work in Schools of Writing at Kansas University and at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

Reservations should be made by May 10 by calling Wallene Dockery at 797-4450.

EARLY EXPLORERS

Norwegian Vikings sailing out of Iceland and Greenland are credited by most scholars with being the first Europeans to discover America, with at least five voyages around 1000 A.D. to areas they called Helluland, Markland and Vinland — possibly Labrador, Nova Scotia or Newfoundland, and New England.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. How you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAY 2, 1979

PHYSICAL
Critical: 9, 21, 32, 44, 58, 67 ..... Can become disoriented
High: 1-8, 22-31, 45-54, 68-75 ..... Energy highlights day
Low: 10-20, 33-43, 55-66 ..... Tire easily today

EMOTIONAL
Critical: 11, 25, 39, 53, 67, 81 ..... Not at your best, careful
High: 1-10, 26-38, 54-66, 82-85 ..... You're all you can be Low: 12-24, 40-52, 68-80 ..... No fun to be with

INTELLECTUAL
Critical: 15, 32, 46, 65, 81 ..... Extra caution today
High: 1-14, 33-47, 66-80 ..... Good day to sell ideas
Low: 16-31, 48-64, 82-95 ..... Don't rely on recollection

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Health Spas Accused Of Misleading Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who go to health spas to get in shape frequently are subjected to misleading claims and high-pressure sales tactics, a federal official concluded Tuesday.

Roger J. Fitzpatrick, presiding officer of the Federal Trade Commission's hearings on the matter, called for government regulation of the spas. Fitzpatrick said the number of consumer complaints prompts the question: "How do spas expect to stay in business with so many dissatisfied customers?" He said the hearings in 1977 and 1978 in Atlanta, San Francisco and New York centered on such repeated industry practices as:

—Pressure tactics. One saleswoman reportedly told a young woman of normal looks and size, "Look at yourself. If you look like this at 24, imagine what you will look like at 30."

—Sudden closing of spas. This can result in consumers "left holding unfulfilled contracts which they either have paid or committed themselves to future payments with creditors other than the spa," Fitzpatrick said.

—Poorly trained instuctors and overly crowded or poorly maintained facilities.

An industry association denounced the findings in Fitzpatrick's 213-page report.

Jimmy Johnson, executive director of the Association of Physical Fitness Centers, called the FTC hearings "a kangaroo court. They issue the rule and get an employee of the agency to preside over the hearings. It obviously is going to be aimed at backing up the complaint....

"The presiding officer has overdramatized this business of consumer complaints. The Better Business Bureau rates us in the bottom third of all industries as to number of complaints. These widespread consumer abuses that are reported here are partially the result of the staff report that was based on data that occurred in the mid 1960s."

Johnson said there are an estimated 4,000 health spas in the United States with about 2 million members.

Fitzpatrick endorsed the regulation recommended by the FTC staff, whose centerpiece would allow consmers to cancel contracts with health spas. Under the recommendation, consumers could cancel within three days for a full refund and later for partial refunds.

He said the regulation would make consumers' lawsuits against health spas virtually unnecessary.

The report said the regulation would lead to "some increase in the price of health spa contracts to consumers." Fitzpatrick didn't estimate the size of the increase, but Johnson said it could be as much as 100 percent.

Noting Fitzpatrick's comment that smaller spas would be hardest hit by the regulation, the industry representative said this goes against one of the FTC's main purposes, to promote business competition. "What we have here is a paradox," Johnson said.

The FTC staff will produce its own report on its views of the hearings. This and the hearing officer's report will be the subject of public comments before the commissioners decide whether to issue a regulation. Such a decision is not expected until next year.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. It's purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: My husband passed away on July 26, 1978, at the age of 89. He had been on salary and paying Social Security taxes all that time. He started drawing Social Security retirement at age 72. There was a law passed stating that beginning in May 1978 widows and survivors of a worker who continues working past age 65 and does not take Social Security retirement until later will receive an increase in their Social Security benefits for the delayed retirement credits earned by the worker. Well, I have waited all these months and I still have not received my increase. What should I do about it? — P.G.

Social Security did not start paying delayed retirement credits to workers who worked past age 65 without drawing Social Security retirement until 1971. Due to the fact that your husband retired before 1971, he did not earn any delayed retirement credits, which is an increase of 1/12 of one percent for each month of work after age 65. So, you will not receive any increase either.

HEARTLINE: I have seen in your articles different things about the Food and Drug Administration. I have had a problem recently that I feel should be reported to them. Can you tell me how I should go about reporting to them? — B.G.

Your complaint should be sent or phoned to the closest FDA district office or to the Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fichers Lane, Rockville, Md. 20857.

As a consumer, you should report any problem in sanitation, labeling and safety of products to help the FDA protect all consumers.

To insure prompt and thorough action on your complaint, you must first determine if, in fact, it was the product that was at fault. Was it used as directed? Was it stored properly? If you find the product was at fault, then report it. You should include the following information:

1. Your name, address and phone number.
2. A clear statement of the problem.
3. As muoh detail as possible about the product label, including code marks.

4. Name and address of store where product was purchased and date of purchase.

Save whatever remains of the product for your doctor's guidance or possible FDA inspection. You should also report the problem to the manufacturer listed on the label and to the store where you purchased it.

HEARTLINE: Will Medicare help pay for a woman to come in and cook and clean for my mother, who is too senile to care for herself? My mother lives with my aunt, but my aunt can no longer care for her because of her own failing health. There is no one else in the family who does not have to keep a full-time job, so none of us can assist her. — H.D.

At this time, no. Medicare will not pay for custodial care in a person's home — or anywhere, for that matter. The type of assistance you are in need of is custodial, not skilled care. Unfortunately, there are many such people in your mother's position, with no family members who can afford to quit their jobs to give the person the care he or she needs and no money to be able to afford full-time help for the person. You might be able to locate a church or volunteer group who could help, but there are few of them.

For a complete explanation of Medicare, we would suggest Heartline's guide to Medicare. To order, send $1.75 to Medicare Guidebook, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

Japan To Give U.S. $1 Million For Art Gallery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira of Japan announced Tuesday his government's intent to donate $1 million to the Smithsonian Institution to build a new building next to the Freer Gallery of Art.

The Freer houses one of the western world's finest collections of oriental art from Japan, China, Korea, India, Egypt and Syria. The collection numbers more than 10,000 works of art.

The gallery also houses the largest collection of works by the American painter James McNeill Whistler, plus other American painters.

The new building will be constructed on Constitution Avenue, just behind the original Smithsonian building, often called the Castle on the Mall. Another one-story structure will house the Museum of African Art, now housed on Capitol Hill, which the Smithsonian will take over next Oct. 5.

There will be a tunnel between the Freer Gallery and the new building, permitting the display of temporary exhibitions. The Freer was donated to the nation by Charles Lang Freer, a Pullman company executive who specified that the gallery not loan any works of art nor house temporary displays.

"The generous gift from the government and the people of Japan will help the institution fulfill a long-cherished wish to broaden the scope of our oriental art collections and to provide opportunities for the display of temporary exhibitions, thereby giving the American people and visitors from overseas a deeper understanding of our cultural friends across the Pacific," Smithsonian Secretary S. Dillion Ripley said.

This is the second major Japanese grant to the United States in honor of the U.S. Bicentennial. Only recently, the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts opened a new 500-seat theater, financed by a gift of $3 million from Japan.

Clements Hears Sides On Mortgage Issue

AUSTIN (AP) — Two senators took advantage of a luncheon engagement with Gov. Bill Clements on Tuesday to make their opposing pleas on what Clements should do about home mortgage interest rates.

Clements has indicated he will decide this week whether he will stick by his April 16 pledge to veto any bill that would raise the state usury limit on home loans from 10 to 12 percent.

Many mortgage lenders in Texas have announced they will not accept any 10 percent loans because they are afraid that by adding the costs of handling these loans, they would violate the usury law.

The Federal National Mortgage Association — known as Fannie Mae — also released new guidelines last week restricting the sale of home loan mortgages in Texas.

Sens. Bill Meier, D-Euless, and Bill Patman, D-Ganado, lobbied the governor from the governor's mansion, where they dined, to the south steps of the Capitol.

Meier is the Senate sponsor of the mortgage bill, and Patman has been a persistent critic of increases in loan rates of any type.

"He (Clements) has heard everything to be heard about mortgage rates," Meier said after talking with the governor.

Meier said, however, Clements still planned to review "economic measurements" supplied by the Texas Real Estate Institute at Texas A&M University.

Meier said he felt the action by Fannie Mae "underscored the necessity for bringing Texas in line with the other states."

Several other senators who might be expected to oppose the mortgage increase — Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi; A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston; and Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin — also dined with the governor.

Patman said Clements merely told the group he had the mortgage rate measure under serious consideration.

"The situation concerns him very greatly," said Patman, "but I personally think the governor will stand tall and strong against the money lenders."

Texas Senate Rewrites Credit Laws

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate passed a rewrite of the state's consumer credit laws Tuesday after one member mounted an often-lonely campaign against a section he said would favor Beneficial Finance Co.

"If we're going to let one or two companies dominate the small loan field, I think we ought to know why," said Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado. "We ought to know the rationale."

Patman criticied one section of Sen. Grant Jones' bill that would remove the current limitation of 60 offices for companies making loans of $2,500 or less.

Senators passed the bill, 26-4, sending it to the House.

Jones, D-Abilene, said his bill would rewrite state law to comply with federal guidelines and eliminate several inconsistencies. It would not affect loan interest rates.

No one questioned the office limit deletion during a committee hearing, the sponsor added.

"I suspect the reason is because there was no one else except you concerned about it," Jones told Patman.

The Ganado senator said he learned that Beneficial Finance Co. had recently acquired First Texas Savings and Loan Association, which has 56 offices in the state. Beneficial has 60 locations, Patman continued.

The Texas consumer credit commissioner forced First Texas to give up its small loan license because the merger would violate the 60-office limit, he added.

"You could see why they want to repeal this particular section," he said.

The maximum location section originated 12 years ago when finance companies wanted to protect themselve from out-of-state domination, Jones said. Inflation since has forced small companies to sell out to large corporations, he added.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, argued the limit was outmoded and unnecessary.

"We don't limit the number of grocery stores," Brooks said. "Why would you limit the number of stores if they can successfully serve the public, if they're regulated and if the public is responding to them?"

Patman said small loan companies prey on widows and poor people "they pull off the street."

UT To Continue Excavations In Greece

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas Department of Classics said Tuesday it has received a matching grant of $60,000 to finance three more years of excavations into the ruins of an ancient Greek settlement.

The National Endowment for the Humanities will provide the funds, to be matched with an equal amount from private donors, to explore Metaponto in southern Italy. The settlement was the site of a large rural population on the Gulf of Taranto and the object of UT research since 1974.

Dr. Karl Galinsky, head of the department, said that over the past five years university archaeologists and teams of international workers have turned up valuable records of agrarian life from the eighth to the second century, B.C.

NOMINATIONS APPROVED

AUSTIN (AP) — A number of gubernatorial appointments were recommended Tuesday by the Senate Nominations Subcommittee. Those approved without dissent included Jon P. Underwood of Austin to the Industrial Commission; Dr. Ruth Bain of Austin, Dr. John A. Welty of Cameron County and Dr. Carlos D. Godinez of Hidalgo County to the State Board of Medical Examiners; Dr. Richard W. Ragsdale of Denton to the Board of Health and Clive Runnells of Houston to the Turnpike Authority. The appointments will be sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Prison Terms Given In Tax Cases

Fines, penitentiary sentences and probated sentences Tuesday were levied against 10 defendants in a final disposition of their tax fraud cases in U. S. District Court.

J. W. Brown of Big Spring received the harshest sentence — five years in federal prison, five years' probation after that and a $5,000 fine — while several other defendants also were sent to prison and ordered to pay restitution.

Judge Halbert O. Woodward passed sentence in a full day of hearings.

The defendants, all from Big Spring, were among two dozen persons indicted here in January for filing false income tax returns and claiming fraudulent refunds.

Most of the other cases had previously been disposed of.

Jennie Nix got three years' probation; Norman McNew six months to serve of a three-year sentence, the rest probated, and $1,196 in restitution; Kenneth Skinner two years' probation and $1,200 in restitution; Lou Ann Hatfield six months to serve of a three-year sentence, the rest probated, and $908 in restitution; Terri McCartney two years' probation and $470 in restitution; Brenda Sanders three years' probation and $906 in restitution; Della Audine Compton two years in prison; Dolly McNew six months to serve of a two-year sentence, the rest probated; and Kenneth Clement three years' probation and $912 in restitution.

Another defendant, Eugene Shipman of Big Spring, pleaded guilty Tuesday and will be sentenced at a later date, Assistant U. S. Attorney Roger McRoberts said.

Sparks Start Fire Atop Houston Building

HOUSTON (AP) — Sparks from a welding torch were blamed Tuesday for a brief but spectacular fire on the roof of the 33-story downtown Tenneco Building.

Billowing black smoke could be seen for miles but firemen said the blaze that was confined to an air conditioning cooling tower was extinguished in about 30 minutes.

No injuries were reported but portions of the building were evacuated for a short time.

Tenneco Inc. built the structure in 1963 as the corporate headquarters for the diversified energy firm.

Firemen said high winds caused some problems but the fire was extinguished quickly after they chopped thorugh asbestos siding on one of four cooling towers.

District Fire Chief W.D. Thompson said a maintenance crew was working on one of the towers and sparks from a welding unit set some wood on fire.

Housing Industry Calling On Congress For Financial Assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The housing industry, saying a further downturn in home starts threatens to play havoc with the economy, urged Congress Tuesday to make home buying easier by allowing lower down payments and greater FHA mortgage protection.

If the number of new home starts this year continues to decline, witnesses told the Senate Banking Committee's subcommittee on housing, it could cost $2.6 billion in lost taxes and reduce the economy by $31 billion.

Over the past five years the median price of a new single-family home has soared by more than 70 percent — from $35,700 to $61,100. Thus, many low- and moderate-income families have been squeezed out of the market.

"The demand for housing would not even be met by a level of production of 2 million units per year," said Vondal S. Gravlee of Birmingham, president of the National Association of Home Builders. Yet, he noted, economists are forecasting new starts this year will drop to about 1.63 million.

A similarly gloomy report was offered by Claude E. Pope of Raleigh, N.C., who heads the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. As Americans take their money out of savings and loan associations in search of higher interest rates, he said, "we can expect a shortage of funds in the mortgage market to develop over the next three to six months."

At the same time, said Leon N. Weiner of the National Housing Conference, the Carter administration is seeking to reduce funding for subsidized public housing to no more than 300,000 units in 1980.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., the subcommittee chairman, would expand the existing "graduated-payment mortgage" program by cutting the required down payment and stretching out the time for reduced payments.

Under the bill, for example, a person with annual income of $18,860 could buy a $55,000 home with a $2,250 down payment. Present law and regulations would require that person to earn $25,100 to qualify for such an insured loan, and the down payment would be $4,200.

At today's 10 percent mortgage interest rate, the buyer's monthly payment for the first two years would be $333, or $130 a month less than under a standard level-payment mortgage. Payments then would go up by 6 percent a year for the next 10 years.

The homebuilders' organization endorsed Williams's bill as one way of getting first-time buyers into a home.

But the National Association of Realtors and the Federal National Mortgage Association, which buys home mortgages, expressed concern that the proposal would sharply increase the potential for mortgage defaults.

Although the median price of homes rose by more than 50 percent during the 1960s, said Realtors' President Donald Hovde of Madison, Wis., one-fourth of all homes showed little or no increase in value.

If owners of that latter group of homes had graduated-payment mortgages, Hovde added, "they would have found it more profitable to just walk away from their property when they decide to move rather than sell to another buyer and liquidate their mortgage indebtedness in an orderly manner."

Federal Drive Against Alcoholism To Focus On Women, Teens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of women and teen-agers whose drinking problems often are overlooked or ignored will be the target of a new government drive against alcohol abuse.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. unveiled plans Tuesday to seek $22 million for new research, training, prevention and treatment efforts aimed at those two groups.

Califano said he wanted to dispel the myth that alcoholism cannot be treated and that the typical problem drinker "is a middle-aged man headed for Skid Row."

An estimated 9 million to 10 million American adults have drinking problems, or 7 percent of the entire population, and 2 million of them are women, often elderly women, Califano said. Also, more than 3 million youths have experienced problems at home, school or on the highways from bouts with drinking.

"The problem is not 'out there,' it is in our midst. It touches virtually every American neighborhood, every office, every family," Califano declared in a speech to the National Council on Alcoholism. "This problem does not just live on Skid Row, it lives on Main Street."

He also recited estimates from HEW's National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism in a report to Congress last fall that drinking kills 100,000 Americans and costs society more than $40 billion annually.

HEW's alcoholism agency already has a budget of $118 million. Its new $22 million drive would include:

•Funding for new treatment programs for women, who have been under-represented in traditional programs geared to men.

•More warnings to the 48 million American women of child-bearing age about the danger of excessive drinking during pregnancy. Califano said the fetal alcohol syndrome causes irreparable harm to 1,500 babies a year and is "the third leading cause of birth defects and the No. 1 preventable cause."

•HEW will consider expanding Medicare and Medicaid coverage for alcoholism treatment, and will fund $1 million in demonstration projects to provide treatment outside of hospitals.

•HEW also will spend $2 million on 15 new programs in medical schools to teach future doctors how to treat alcoholism.

•The surgeon general and the Food and Drug Administration will issue new warnings to physicians and the public about the dangers of mixing alcohol with certain drugs, especially tranquilizers. The FDA also will consider special warning labels on drugs that contain significant amounts of alcohol.

•Special prevention projects will be aimed at 750,000 youngsters with the help of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Catholic Youth Organizations, and others.

•With the help of the alcohol beverage industry, a new publicity campaign will be launched urging the 40 million Americans aged 15 to 24 not to drive after drinking.

Califano said alcohol-related accidents kill more than 8,000 young persons a year and injure 40,000 others.

He said that so many of the deaths caused by drinking are "clearly preventable," problem drinking ranks behind smoking as "preventable public health enemy No. 2 in America."

Califano applauded the alcohol beverage industry for its efforts to encourage people to drink in moderation and to urge youths not to drink at all.

Califano's praise for the industry is in sharp contrast to his frequent attacks on cigarette manufacturers for advertising he contends is geared to convince youngsters to start smoking.

Califano quit smoking four years ago, but he is a social drinker.

Housing Industry Calling On Congress For Financial Assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The housing industry, saying a further downturn in home starts threatens to play havoc with the economy, urged Congress Tuesday to make home buying easier by allowing lower down payments and greater FHA mortgage protection.

If the number of new home starts this year continues to decline, witnesses told the Senate Banking Committee's subcommittee on housing, it could cost $2.6 billion in lost taxes and reduce the economy by $31 billion.

Over the past five years the median price of a new single-family home has soared by more than 70 percent — from $35,700 to $61,100. Thus, many low- and moderate-income families have been squeezed out of the market.

"The demand for housing would not even be met by a level of production of 2 million units per year," said Vondal S. Gravlee of Birmingham, president of the National Association of Home Builders. Yet, he noted, economists are forecasting new starts this year will drop to about 1.63 million.

A similarly gloomy report was offered by Claude E. Pope of Raleigh, N.C., who heads the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. As Americans take their money out of savings and loan associations in search of higher interest rates, he said, "we can expect a shortage of funds in the mortgage market to develop over the next three to six months."

At the same time, said Leon N. Weiner of the National Housing Conference, the Carter administration is seeking to reduce funding for subsidized public housing to no more than 300,000 units in 1980.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., the subcommittee chairman, would expand the existing "graduated-payment mortgage" program by cutting the required down payment and stretching out the time for reduced payments.

Under the bill, for example, a person with annual income of $18,860 could buy a $55,000 home with a $2,250 down payment. Present law and regulations would require that person to earn $25,100 to qualify for such an insured loan, and the down payment would be $4,200.

At today's 10 percent mortgage interest rate, the buyer's monthly payment for the first two years would be $333, or $130 a month less than under a standard level-payment mortgage. Payments then would go up by 6 percent a year for the next 10 years.

The homebuilders' organization endorsed Williams's bill as one way of getting first-time buyers into a home.

But the National Association of Realtors and the Federal National Mortgage Association, which buys home mortgages, expressed concern that the proposal would sharply increase the potential for mortgage defaults.

Although the median price of homes rose by more than 50 percent during the 1960s, said Realtors' President Donald Hovde of Madison, Wis., one-fourth of all homes showed little or no increase in value.

If owners of that latter group of homes had graduated-payment mortgages, Hovde added, "they would have found it more profitable to just walk away from their property when they decide to move rather than sell to another buyer and liquidate their mortgage indebtedness in an orderly manner."

Federal Drive Against Alcoholism To Focus On Women, Teens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of women and teen-agers whose drinking problems often are overlooked or ignored will be the target of a new government drive against alcohol abuse.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. unveiled plans Tuesday to seek $22 million for new research, training, prevention and treatment efforts aimed at those two groups.

Califano said he wanted to dispel the myth that alcoholism cannot be treated and that the typical problem drinker "is a middle-aged man headed for Skid Row."

An estimated 9 million to 10 million American adults have drinking problems, or 7 percent of the entire population, and 2 million of them are women, often elderly women, Califano said. Also, more than 3 million youths have experienced problems at home, school or on the highways from bouts with drinking.

"The problem is not 'out there,' it is in our midst. It touches virtually every American neighborhood, every office, every family," Califano declared in a speech to the National Council on Alcoholism. "This problem does not just live on Skid Row, it lives on Main Street."

He also recited estimates from HEW's National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism in a report to Congress last fall that drinking kills 100,000 Americans and costs society more than $40 billion annually.

HEW's alcoholism agency already has a budget of $118 million. Its new $22 million drive would include:

•Funding for new treatment programs for women, who have been under-represented in traditional programs geared to men.

•More warnings to the 48 million American women of child-bearing age about the danger of excessive drinking during pregnancy. Califano said the fetal alcohol syndrome causes irreparable harm to 1,500 babies a year and is "the third leading cause of birth defects and the No. 1 preventable cause."

•HEW will consider expanding Medicare and Medicaid coverage for alcoholism treatment, and will fund $1 million in demonstration projects to provide treatment outside of hospitals.

•HEW also will spend $2 million on 15 new programs in medical schools to teach future doctors how to treat alcoholism.

•The surgeon general and the Food and Drug Administration will issue new warnings to physicians and the public about the dangers of mixing alcohol with certain drugs, especially tranquilizers. The FDA also will consider special warning labels on drugs that contain significant amounts of alcohol.

•Special prevention projects will be aimed at 750,000 youngsters with the help of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Catholic Youth Organizations, and others.

•With the help of the alcohol beverage industry, a new publicity campaign will be launched urging the 40 million Americans aged 15 to 24 not to drive after drinking.

Califano said alcohol-related accidents kill more than 8,000 young persons a year and injure 40,000 others.

He said that so many of the deaths caused by drinking are "clearly preventable," problem drinking ranks behind smoking as "preventable public health enemy No. 2 in America."

Califano applauded the alcohol beverage industry for its efforts to encourage people to drink in moderation and to urge youths not to drink at all.

Califano's praise for the industry is in sharp contrast to his frequent attacks on cigarette manufacturers for advertising he contends is geared to convince youngsters to start smoking.

Califano quit smoking four years ago, but he is a social drinker.

Fiesta Sniper Victim Gives Birth

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 20-year-old woman, shot in the upper right thigh Friday by the Fiesta parade sniper firing only about 25 feet away, gave birth Tuesday morning to a healthy, 9-pound baby girl, officials said.

Irene Hernandez and her new daughter, Isabel, were listed in good condition Tuesday at the Robert B. Green Hospital, said spokesman Jeff Duffield. Isabel was delivered by natural means, with her father assisting, Duffield said.

Mrs. Hernandez, whose baby was about a week overdue, and her 20-year-old husband, Armando, were among the thousands of parade spectators watching the beginning of the Battle of Flowers Parade when a heavily-armed sniper, crouched in a parked camper, opened fire.

Two were killed and more than 50 injured, most of them by gunshots. The sniper, Ira Attebery, 64, killed himself after exchanging fire with police, officials said.

She said she and her husband were across the intersection of Broadway and Grayson from Attebery's motor home when the shooting started.

Six police officers standing only a few feet away were the first hit by the sniper's bullets.

"I didn't realize at first what was happening," said Hernandez. "I thought they (the shots) were fireworks. Then we saw the cop go down.

"I didn't want my wife or the baby hurt. She couldn't run because of her condition, so I put her down on the road and got on top of her and covered her," he added.

"I was hoping he would take two or three shots and run. I thought maybe he was on the roof or something," he continued. "One shot almost hit us, so I pulled her up and tried to run for cover. That's when one shot hit her in the leg."

The bullet from a powerful AR-15 semi-automatic carbine, a civilian version of the military M-16, hit Mrs. Hernandez in the upper thigh, a scant 12 to 15 inches from the baby. The AR-15 was the weapon Attebery used to kill his two victims, officials said.

Hernadez somehow pulled his wounded wife behind a nearby police car, but it was nearly an hour before the shooting stopped and emergency workers could rescue the pinned-down couple.

"I didn't know what was going on," said Mrs. Hernandez from her hospital bed. "I didn't really know what was going on until I got shot. I was all scared about losing the baby. I kept asking everybody if the baby was all right, but they couldn't tell me until I got to the hospital."

San Antonio Fiesta Sniper's Rites Held

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (UPI) — As a train rumbled and whistled in the distance, Ira Attebery was buried Tuesday beneath an ancient oak tree, leaving only speculation as to why he went berserk Friday and fired an automatic rifle into a fiesta crowd at San Antonio.

Attebery's bullets, fired from the motor home he had parked on the route of the Battle of Flowers Parade, killed two women and injured 55 persons before the sniper put his .38-caliber pistol to his ear and pulled the trigger.

The copper-colored coffin was carried from a hearse to the gravesite by two cemetery workers, a minister and two funeral home attendants. Minutes later Attebery's family arrived in five cars for brief, private services at Poplar Bluff City Cemetery, which borders the residential area of this southern Missouri City where Attebery grew up. Among his hobbies was hunting rabbits and other small game. He was unmarried.

The only floral arrangement was a spray of red carnations with a white ribbon bearing the word "Brother."

The Rev. Gait Copple, minister of the First Assembly of God Church, gave a 13-minute eulogy from which news reporters were barred. The service was delayed 18 minutes by the late arrival of one of Attebery's five brothers. Also at the funeral were Attebery's two sisters.

After the funeral, Copple said Attebery's relatives, who declined to talk with reporters, "have expressed their sorrow to the innocent victims slain or injured" in San Antonio.

"We don't want this to be a show," said the sniper's brother, Howard Attebery, in announcing earlier the funeral would be closed to reporters. "We don't want people coming to see that 'crazy sniper.'"

Howard Attebery said Tuesday his brother went to the grave with a bullet lodged near his heart as the result of a target-shooting accident five years ago. He said Ira was practicing with a .22-caliber handgun when a richocheting bullet struck him. Doctors decided not to remove it, Howard said.

The brother also disputed police allegations that Attebery, who had an arsenal of seven rifles and two pistols in the 20 foot camper he used as a home, went to the parade with the intention of killing people.

He said an unruly bystander or the size of the large crowd could have triggered his brother's rampage. "He was kind of easy to imagine things," said Howard Attebery. He also said his dead rother in recent years had imagined police and strangers were "after him."

Howard Attebery said he saw his brother a year ago and was expecting a visit from him this month.

Mayor Fed Up With Las Vegas

HOUSTON (AP) — A $3,200 gambling loss that ballooned into a $6,000 controversy has caused Mayor Jim McConn to become disenchanted with Las Vegas.

McConn says he will not be returning to the Nevada city later this year for another convention.

"I played blackjack and shot a little craps and I learned I do not want to go back to Las Vegas," said McConn, a homebuilder and former city councilman who plans to seek a second two-year term as Houston's $71,000-a-year mayor later this year.

McConn called a news conference Monday immediately after testifying before a federal grand jury that is investigating Jack Key, McConn's suspended city purchasing agent who was charged April 9 with extorting $6,000 from a tire repair contractor.

McConn acknowledged he had asked Key to arrange a $6,000 loan to cover the January gambling losses but said it was just a coincidence that amount was the same involved in the federal investigation.

"I don't think I have done anything, except perhaps commit an indiscretion in my personal life," McConn said.

"I'm embarrassed. If any one of you have ever gone anywhere and lost money, you know you feel like an idiot after it's happened. And I felt like an idiot when it was over."

Talmadge Secretary 'Can't Remember'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge's personal secretary testified Tuesday that she cannot recall transferring $80,000 from a special office account to the senator's personal bank account in 1975.

Members of the Senate Ethics Committee investigating Talmadge's financial conduct expressed incredulity at Rita Hubler's lack of memory about $80,000.

"That's a lot of money," said Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D. "There should be some association with that."

But Mrs. Hubler noted that the transaction took place four years ago and said she had not reviewed the relevant bank records in preparing for testimony before the committee.

"I wish I could be more helpful ... but I simply can't remember," Mrs. Hubler said.

Specifically, she was questioned about an office account from which funds occasionally were switched to Talmadge's "personal account."

Deposited in the office account were fees for speeches, reimbursements for Senate expenses including travel, interest from investments and "excess funds" from Senate expenses, according to Mrs. Hubler.

Her testimony means that in Talmadge's office, private funds were mixed with reimbursements made from public funds for expenses claimed by the senator and members of his staff.

According to the committee's special counsel, Carl Eardley, the $80,000 originated with honoraria or fees Talmadge earned giving speeches.

Using honoraria for personal use is not a violation of Senate rules, and the $80,000 does not figure so far in any of the five allegations of possible wrongdoing leveled against Talmadge by the committee.

As the person who handled Talmadge's personal financial affairs in 1975, Mrs. Hubler is expected to be questioned extensively about a wide range of transactions beyond the $80,00.

Following her testimony, Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill, committee chairman, was asked if members of the panel were suprised at Mrs. Hubler's memory.

"I'd be surprised if any of us wouldn't be surprised," Stevenson said.

Earlier, the committee heard testimony that Talmadge was surprised and disgusted to learn that a former aide had established a secret bank account in the senator's name at a Washington bank.

T. Rogers Wade, Talmadge's present administrative assistant, corroborated the Georgia Democrat's contention that he had no knowledge in 1973 and 1974 that there was such an account in the Riggs National Bank.

Some $39,000 passed through the account, which is a critical factor in allegations of possible financial wrongdoing leveled against Talmadge by the committee.

The committee says it has evidence that some of the $39,000 went for Talmadge's personal use.

The account was managed by Talmadge's former chief aide, Daniel Minchew, who has said his boss told him when to make deposits or withdrawals from the account.

Minchew also has acknowledged using about $7,000 from the account to pay personal expenses.

Committee investigators reportedly have evidence beyond Minchew's testimony that Talmadge knew about the account.

In sworn testimony generally sympathetic to Talmadge, Wade described his boss as a frugal man who worked hard in the Senate and whose only recreation is an occasional fishing or hunting trip.

"He has almost no social life," Wade said. Asked about his boss's spending habits, he said Talmadge "is certainly close with his money."

Wade said Talmadge first learned about the secret account on Aug. 24, 1978, after the ethics committee had begun its investigation.

Gasoline Rationing Limps

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's standby plan for gasoline rationing was sent limping toward an uncertain fate on the House floor Tuesday by a deeply divided House Commerce Committee.

The panel barely agreed, on a 21-20 vote, to have the full House decide the issue. The committee, spurning Carter's nationally televised appeal for its support, decided instead to send the plan to the House floor without a recommendation.

A Carter administration supporter, Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., had left the session by the time of the final "no-recommendation" vote. But his presence likely would have only broadened the 21-20 margin to 22-20.

The "no-recommendation" vote came after supporters of the plan failed for second time within a week to win committee approval of it. A motion seeking that endorsement died Tuesday on a 21-21 tie vote.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said "it would be absolutely foolish for this country not to be prepared for the possibility of an emergency" and called such a failure "ludicrous."

Powell expressed encouragement, however, that the "no-recommendation" vote did not defeat the Carter plan. He said that on Capitol Hill as well as in the public in general, "there appears to persist some confusion about what the plan means.

"It is not a rationing plan we expect we will need to impose," Powell said at the daily White House news briefing. He said Congress would be required in any case to approve imposing a rationing plan if Carter sought to impose one.

Later in the day, an effort was launched in the same Commerce Committee to block apother Carter energy initiative, the administration's plan to lift controls from domestic crude oil prices beginning June 1. But a vote on that issue was delayed until today.

Carter's standby rationing proposal, which would allocate gasoline during severe shortages solely on the basis of registered automobiles, faces "a hard fight" on the floor, acknowledged Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., House manager of the measure.

Good Chance Seen

"I think it has a good chance," Dingell said after Tuesday's committee action. Then he added: "I'm not saying I think we can get it through, I'm just saying I think there's a chance."

Dingell said the measure will see floor action within the next few days. The plan will die unless both chambers approve it by May 12. A 1975 law required submission of a standby rationing plan to Congress.

During a nationally televised news conference Monday, Carter had called his proposal "imperative" for the nation to deal with any future fuel shortage emergency similar to the shortage forced by the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

Voted Down Earlier

Last Wednesday, the House Commerce Committee tentatively voted down the rationing proposal by a 22-20 margin. But administration allies, buoyed by approval of the proposal one day later by the Senate Energy Committee, had hoped to turn the vote around.

Despite Carter's direct appeal and a heavy White House lobbying campaign, the White House was only able to switch one vote in the intervening week — that of Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo.

Wirth said he first voted against the plan because he felt it was unfair to western states with their large driving distances. But Wirth said a later promise by the White House to make extra quantities of gasoline available to western and tourist-oriented states "caused me to change my vote."

Opponent Unconvinced

However, that promise alone wasn't enough for Rep. Henry E. Waxman, D-Calif., whose vote the administration had also hoped to switch.

"I just don't think (the plan) is fair," Waxman said. But he parted with other opponents in agreeing to support a motion to send the plan to the floor without a recommendation.

Waxman's vote enabled the rationing plan to go to the floor by the slimmest of margins.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, noting earlier caims by House leaders that the rationing measure would get a floor vote regardless of what the panel did, claimed "this exercise through which we have gone is rather pointless."

Meanwhile, a group of committee liberals led by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., attempted Tuesday to put the Commerce Committee on record in opposition to Carter's oil decontrol decision.

Moffett moved to attach to another bill a measure that would prohibit Carter from lifting oil price controls at least until October, 1980.

Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., committee chairman, adjourned the panel until 10 a.m. today after Moffett offered his motion. Moffett said he's still about three votes short of victory on the panel but "we hope to get more votes overnight."

In another development, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill predicted that the House would strengthen Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax and that Carter, when told this at a White House leadership breakfast, had commented, "the stronger the better."

O'Neill also said that his Massachusetts colleague, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was mistaken in accusing Carter of caving in to oil industry pressure in decontrolling oil prices. "I'm on the same team as the president," O'Neill said.

And the Senate Energy Committee approved 12-6 its own substitute approach to Carter's request for standby power to close gasoline stations on weekends.

Under the committee bill, Carter would set conservation targets for each state, and the states would develop plans to meet them.

SALT Details Due Prior To Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to complete the essential parts of a new strategic weapons limitation treaty before President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev hold a summit meeting.

But there is still no word on when that meeting will be held and there is no end in sight to the pre-summit negotiations.

The agreement to wrap up major provisions of the treaty before Carter and Brezhnev meet was disclosed Tuesday at the State Department by an official who asked not to be identified.

It represents acceptance by the Carter administration of the Soviet view of the summit. U.S. officials had taken the position that Carter and Brezhnev could complete the accord when they met, provided a basic outline was reached beforehand.

Department officials said there is no change in plans for Brezhnev to provide assurances to Carter when they meet that limitations will be imposed on deployment of the Soviet Backfire bomber.

But the negotiations will be concluded before the two leaders meet.

The Carter administration, like its predecessors, has accepted the Soviet argument that the Backfire is not a strategic weapon. This means it would not be specifically limited by the treaty, which will impose ceilings through 1985 on U.S. and Soviet strategic nuclear weapons.

But the Kremlin is reported to be willing to limit production, deployment and refueling capabilities of the Backfire.

The understanding is designed partly to satisfy some American critics. They say that since the Backfire, under certain conditions, could reach U.S. targets, the bomber should be counted against the Soviet total.

Meanwhile, the treaty itself continues to elude U.S. and Soviet negotiators.

It is now more than 16 months since Carter predicted completion within weeks of the outline of an agreement that he said would be the pride of the nation.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met for 32 minutes Tuesday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin. It was their 22nd session at the State Department this year.

They planned to meet again Thursday.

More Meetings Likely

A high-level department official, who asked not to be identified, said there probably would be further meetings. The official said he did not expect announcement of an agreement or of a summit this week.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said that even after Vance and Dobrynin conclude their negotiations it will take at least a month to set up a summit meeting.

This means Carter and Brezhnev will not meet until June, at the earliest.

Other officials said the site also had not been chosen.

The administration wants Brezhnev to come to the United States because the last three summits were held in the Soviet Union. But the 72-year-old Soviet leader has a number of ailments. As a result, Helsinki, Finland, and other so-called neutral sites are being considered.

No Edge Predicted

Vance, in a speech Tuesday night in Chicago, said neither the United States nor the Soviet Union could hope to gain an exploitable strategic edge — with or without the treaty.

"Each side has the financial and technical resources to keep pace with the other," he said in a prepared speech to the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

"With the stakes so high, we know that both of us will do whatever is necessary to keep from falling behind. That is why essential equivalence has become the only realistic strategy in today's nuclear world," Vance said.

Stability Foreseen

Vance said this rough balance serves the cause of stability "even if some find it unsettling compared with our earlier supremacy."

At the same time, he offered assurances that the United States would not be overtaken by the momentum of Soviet military programs.

In a Washington speech, George M. Seignious II, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, rejected suggestions by critics that the Soviets have superior strategic nuclear forces.

"They are wrong," he told the Advertising Council.

Defending the treaty for the administration, he said total spending for U.S. strategic forces through fiscal 1984 will increase from 20 percent to 40 per cent on an average annual basis.

day afternon for northern Baca County in Colorado where a funnel cloud was reported by the state patrol eight to 10 miles west northwest of Springfield, Colo.

Weather officials also had issued a travelers advisory for strong winds and blowing dust for northeastern Arizona and parts of southern California.

Up to two inches of snow fell Tuesday in northwestern Montana and ran and snow spread south and east across the state. A stockmen's advisory is continuing for eastern Wyoming through early today.

Scattered rains were reported in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Florida, Nebraska, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, and northern New England.

Energy Hunt Turning Up Solutions

ing source, he said.

Other home uses of solar energy and energy conservation include sheltering homes with earth. Homes can be built with three sides buried in the soil and the fourth side collecting solar energy.

Dr. William Marcy, director of the solar Trans-Pecos Project, explained how farmers might someday benefit from the system designed by Tech to use solar energy to irrigate Pecos from deep water wells.

It could give farmers a break in electricity costs and give farmers some control over source and supply of energy.

But because it is an experimental project and not a mass-produced system, Marcy noted, "It is also very very expensive."

Finding the most suitable energy sources to adapt to the this area is a goal of the regional energy conservation program of the South Plains Association of Governments.

But right now the program consists only of ideas on paper because there is no money for implementation of the program, Kenneth Leggett of SPAG, said.

One project SPAG has completed is an aerial infrared thermogram of a 15-county area to determine the amount of heat loss in individual homes and businesses.

While interpretation of individual homes is a must because of such factors as nearby trees (which absorb some heat) Tim Hogsett of SPAG said in general the thermogram showed roofs, windows and vents are common areas of heat loss.

Roof Heat Loss Cut

Roof heat loss can be cut by proper insulation and window heat loss can be aided by the use of protective film over the glass or covering windows with blinds or draperies, he said.

Harry Parker of Tech's chemical engineering department, stressed that the energy problem is not only not only involves technology, but also has economic and social considerations.

In comparing bulk energy in cents per kilowatt hour, Parker said current sources of electricity costs between 2 and 4 cents per kilowatt hour, while combustion of electricity produced by combustion of biomass could be had for 7 or 8 cents per kilowatt hour. He estimated the cost of solar electricity at 22 cents per kilowatt hour. The costs of coal and nuclear power are more difficult to estimate, he said.

But with conventional energy prices rising, 7 or 8 cents for biomass electricity "is a reasonable price" for those industries which can readily use such a system, Parker said, naming a paper plant as an example.

He warned against over optimism in the cost and development of alternate energy sources, saying that a 1967 estimate of today's oil shale and oil production costs was over-optimistic. Prices are 10 times higher now than what was predicted.

But whatever the source, Parker said much energy is required for a reasonable standard of living and that conservation alone is not enough.

"We're strongly hooked on energy," he said.

Top Moslem Leader Shot

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — One of Iran's top Moslem leaders closely associated with the new Islamic republic of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was assasinated Tesay as he left a dinner party in Tehran, Torfeh Hospital officials said.

They reported Ayatollah Morteza Motahari was struck in the head by a single bullet and died in the hospital early today.

Sources said an anonymous caller to the morning newspaper Ayendegan asserted the little-known Forghan group was responsible for the murder.

That is the same group that said its members killed Gen. Mohammad Vali Gharani on April 23. Gharani was the former armed forces chief of staff of Khomeini's revolutionary regime, which deposed the monarchy of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in February.

City Firemen's Masks Found To Be Faulty

we've got. We don't have any other choice than to use what we've got."

The deaths of Lubbock firemen Kenneth Haggard, Eddie Swafford and Larry Tucker — who were wearing Scott-Airpacks while fighting an apparently routine structure fire on 34th Street — eprompted NIOSH's nationwide alert to users of the equipment, according to NIOSH deputy director Dr. John Friones.

The researchers said the defects in the breathing gear resulted in a "loss of protection" for the user and possibly caused a "life-threatening" situation.

Friones added that NIOSH has asked the manufacturer to stop sales of the respirator until it is determined what causes the rupture.

Recalls Undetermined

NIOSH, in its directive, states that the diaphragms should be checked closely and regularly, and gives instructions on how to do so. Foster said that when the tragic deaths occurred March 25, the fire department checked all the safety equipment.

That inspection revealed that several other diaphragms in the regulators — some of which were not used in the fatal fire — have pinhole-sized punctures.

After learning of NIOSH's findings, City Manager Larry Cunningham said, "At present, we are checking out all diaphragms. And with this information, we go back and check again."

To Distribute Alert

A NIOSH spokesman in Morgantown said Tuesday the agency was preparing to distribute the alert. "We're in the process of getting them coordinated now," she said. "We're putting them in the envelopes this morning, and they'll be in the mail tomorrow."

The warning says that "NIOSH wants to advise users of Scott-Airpak 11 and 11A and pressure packs 11 and 11A self-contained breating apparatus of the occurences of split or punctured regulator diaphragms. Damage to the regulator diaphragm result in a significant loss of protection which may be life threatening if the respirator is used in the damaged state.

"NIOSH began this investigation following the deaths of three Lubbock, Tex., firefighters who were wearing this type of respirator."

The alert continues, "A sampling of the apparatus in the field has shown at least 10 percent of the units examined have ruptured or punctured diaphragms.

"Users should examine their Scott apparatus for Possible damaged diaphragms and replace those diaphragms in accordance with manufacturer's instructions...The user should check the regulator diaphragm after each use and during regular inspection of the complete apparatus.

"It is not known if failure occurs during assembly, storage or use of the respirator regulator. Therefore, extreme caution must be employeed when using the respirator. In checking the operation of the apparatus, users are cautioned not to obstruct the flow of air from regulator when the bypass is open, because substantial obstruction may rupture the diaphragm.

"NIOSH has recommended the manufacturer stop sales of the respirator pending determination of the reason for regulator diaphragm failure and (its) corrective action."

The federal agency was first contacted April 13 when Dr. Carl Nau, preventive medicine specialist with the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, phoned NIOSH representative George Pettigrew in Dallas. Nau said he had been appointed by the city to coordinate the investigation into the deaths of Haggard, Tucker and Swafford.

Pettigrew said he got Nau in touch with the NIOSH laboratory in Morgantown, and the dead firemen's equipment was sent there. The agency, set up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, does testing and certification of respirators at the West Virginia laboratory, Petti grew said.

Nau said Tuesday he had not received word from NIOSH on the test results and added that he was not aware of a nationwide alert.

He said the reported defects in the diaphragms does not necessarily answer the question of why the city firemen died. "Our problem is how significant the defects are, and whether they are significant enough to cause the problem we ran in to," Nau said.

Jim Bailey, corporate communications director for Scott's subsidiary, ATO, Inc., stressed to The A-J that NIOSH had not established a link between the firemen's deaths and the use of Scott-Airpak equipment. "NIOSH has not stated that there is a connection between the fatalities and the Scott-Airpak equipment," he said.

He adds, "Our officials at Scott Aviation are aware of this alert. We are in contact with NIOSH and are working closely with them on the problem. At this point, the testing and investigation is not complete. We expect to have more information later this week."

Kidnappers Shoot Pair In Ohio

WARRENSVILLE HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — Two men posing as police officers abducted the chairman of First National Supermarkets Inc. and his wife Tuesday after demanding $1 million from the couple, who were shot and wounded when they did not raise the money, police said.

The abductors later left Julius Kravitz, 68, and the couple's car near a motel after the food chain executive's wife escaped. No arrests were reported.

Kravitz, chairman of the supermarket chain in the Northeast and Midwest, was in critical condition after emergency surgery at Brentwood Hospital in Warrensville Heights, said Dr. Samuel Hanton, Kravitz' family physician.

Shot In Chest

Kravitz was shot three times in the chest, said Shaker Heights Police Chief George Lamboy.

Kravitz' wife, Georgina, 56, was reported in satisfactory condition at Hillcrest Hospital in Mayfield Heights with gunshot wounds in both arms, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Lamboy said Mrs. Kravitz answered the door of the couple's apartment in the affluent Cleveland suburb Tuesday morning and found two men dressed as police officers outside.

"They forced their way into the apartment and informed the Kravitz' they wanted $1 million ransom," the police chief said. The men were told they would have to wait until banks opened, so the abductors took the couple for a ride to waste time, he added.

Woman Flees Car

"For no reason at all one of the males turned around and shot Mrs. Kravitz and shot Mr. Kravitz," said Lamboy. He said the woman managed to flee the car and make her way to the Mayfield Heights Police Department.

Kravitz was found near a motel n North Randall, several miles from where his wife reached police.

Lamboy said it was not known if any money had been exchanged because his men had been unable to question the Kravitz couple.

First National operates the Cleveland-based Pick-N-Pay supermarket chain and the First National supermarket chain in New England, with approximately $1.3 billion in sales in the last fiscal year, according to Samuel Colmery, a First National vice president.

Kravitz had been chairman of Pick-N-Pay since 1973 and was named chairman of First National in April, 1978, when the two companies merged.

Car Insurance Bill Advances

they can be. The people want that, and it would be a fraud to give them anything else," Leonard said.

The House added an amendment by Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, allowing police to enforce the mandatory insurance law, if passed, on foreign vehicles that enter Texas.

He said cars from Mexico are "causing a big part of the problem" of injuries and property damage inflicted by uninsured motorists.

"In my opinion, trade will not be hindered. ... If you have the money to trade, you should be able to provide proof of financial responsibility," Coleman said.

Under the bill, a motorist who proves to the Department of Public Safety the ability to pay up to $25,000 in injuries and damage could get a sticker and still drive without insurance.

Foes, Backers View SALT

AMARILLO (AP) — United States intelligence analysts can verify Soviet compliance to provisions of the proposed SALT II treaty despite the loss of American monitoring posts in Iran, proponents of the pact said here Tuesday.

But a retired Army general told those attending a conference at Amarillo College on the latest round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks that "proponents of the treaty are trying to delude the American public into a false sense of security."

Retired Maj. Gen. J. Milnor Roberts, who described himself as a "SALT Shaker," said the United States must achieve strategic parity or supremacy

New Trial Motion Denied For Vester

Judge Robert C. Wright Tuesday denied a new trial motion for convicted murderer Gary Lynn Vester after hearing testimony in 137th District Court by two prosecutors and former Criminal District Attorney Alton Griffin.

Defense attorneys Grady Terrill and Mackey Hancock based their motion in the hour-long Tuesday afternoon hearing on mention of a pistol in the trial as a possible murder weapon. They claim neither they nor the jury were told that ballistics tests conducted last year indicated the pistol was not the death weapon.

Griffin testified that a positive identification of Vester was never made by the 23-year-old woman companion of victim Robert Rios Rivera before she identified Vester in three hypnosis sessions later.

Rivera was killed April 1, 1978, in a field east of Lubbock.

Griffin said a capital murder charge would have been filed then if a positive identification had been made.

Prosecutors argued that how and when identification was made is an important issue. Judge Wright, however, ruled in a pre-trial hearing that Vester was identified before the woman was hypnotized, and hypnosis therefore was not a crucial factor in the case.

Former Deputy Sheriff Ed Barclay testified during the trial that Vester was previously identified but that hypnosis was used to seek a calmer identification for use in trial.

Prosecutors Rick Howell and Mark McBride testified in the hearing that they did not know during the trial that the pistol taken by deputies from the Vester home had been tested and found not to be the murder weapon.

Howell said he understood that the tested pistol was one taken from another suspect in the case.

Vester was found guilty of the slaying in early April and sentenced to 50 years in the penitentiary by a 137th District Court jury.

Terrill said after the hearing that the conviction is being appealed.

Judge Wright formally passed sentence on Vester after the hearing was finished.

Police Search For Four In Tuesday Shooting

Police were searching late Tuesday for four men in connection with the shooting of a 20-year-old Lubbock man.

Albert Marmolejo of 2911 Dartmouth St. was listed in serious condition at Methodist Hospital with a bullet wound.

Marmolejo was shot once with a small-caliber revolver about 10 a.m. Tuesday after an altercation with four Mexican-American men in front of Furr's Supermarket in the Town and Country Shopping Center at Fourth Street and University Avenue.

Police said Marmolejo had left the supermarket and was walking to his car, which was occupied by two of his brothers, when four men drove up in a white and blue Ford.

Witnesses told police that the four men got out of the Ford, while the two brothers got out of their car, and all seven began arguing. Then the driver of the Ford pulled out a pistol, according to witnesses, and handed it to one of his companions, who shot Marmolejo once in the right side.

The victim was treated at Methodist Hospital for a bullet lodged in his liver.

The four men, all thought to be about 17 years old, left the scene in their car.

In other activity Tuesday, a shopper told a used car salesman he wanted to take a car for a test drive to his bank to see about a loan. The man took the car and never returned.

The auto theft was reported to police by Travis Lee Bryant, 41, owner of City Auto, 2501 Texas Ave.

Bryant said one of his employees let a man drive away in a 1976 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, valued at $3,650. The employee said he did not get the driver's name because he told the salesman he was a car dealer and the salesman said the man showed him papers from other car lots where he had bought cars.

A house burglary was reported by Louise Sims, 20, of 2634 E. Cornell St. She told police that someone broke a window in her house, climbed in, ransacked the house and took jewelry, clothes, cameras and a tape player, all valued at about $638.

The burglary occurred between 8:45 and 9:40 a.m. Tuesday.

The director of the local Young Women's Christian Association told police that someone broke into the building either late Monday or early Tuesday and stole two electric typewriters, valued at $1,000.

Police this morning continued to look for a white man, between 25 and 35 years old, who allegedly robbed the Twin Oaks Pharmacy, 3405 34th St., of about $100 cash Monday night.

A woman, one of five employees in the business, fainted when the pistol-wielding bandit entered the store.

Authorities early today were looking for a suspect, described as about 6 foot, 3 inches tall and weighing between 225 and 250 pounds.

The robber was last seen walking east on 33rd Street, clad in a bright-colored shirt, blue jeans and tennis shoes. He reportedly had long, black hair.

In other activity, George William Sterling, 21, of 2317 Auburn St., No. 65, was treated at Methodist Hospital Monday night after reportedly being beaten up by two white men armed with a pistol and knife.

Sterling told police the suspects kicked open the front door of his trailer home about 10 p.m. and struck him several times with the .38-caliber pistol. He said the men repeatedly threatened to kill him.

Both suspects were described as about 5 feet, 11 inches tall. They reportedly were traveling on a high-powered motorcycle.

In another report to police, a foreign student at Texas Tech University said he was verbally assaulted by a man about 7 p.m. Monday.

Shihab Saad Asfour, 27, of 2024 10th St., said he had read a letter to the editor in the University Daily concerning the Mideast war. He said he disagreed with part of what the letter stated about the war and wrote a letter to the school editor giving an opposite view of the Mideast conflict, and that it also was published.

Reports indicate that he received a call at his home Monday — after his letter had been published — and the caller said, "I am an American imperialist. I read your letter in the University Daily, and you are going to die."

Police are investigating the incident.

Pedro P. Gutierrez, 55, of 2407 Third St. said he attempted to rent a room at a hotel in the 700-block of 13th Street about 12:15 a.m. today, and that the hotel manager struck him over the head with a pistol.

Robber Dies By Own Weapon

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRINGS — An abortive attempt to rob a liquor store here Monday night ended in the death of the armed robber, shot once through the head with his own .357-magnum pistol.

Investigators still do not know whether the shot that killed Steven L. Magruder of Farmington, N.M., was fired by accident or as an effort by Magruder to end his own life.

Lora Sue Roach, an employee at Vernon's Liquors, said the man entered the store about 7:50 p.m., drew a pistol and demanded all the money from the cash register.

Carrying a brown paper bag containing more than $300, the man forced the clerk at gunpoint out of the store and into the parking lot.

"He had a hold on my arm and was trying to force me inside his van," Miss Roach said. "He kept shouting, 'Get in! Get in!'"

About the time Miss Roach managed to break free from her abductor, officers James Coyle and Gilbert Barraza were passing by in a patrol car.

"He (the robber) acted like he got scared and relaxed his hold on my arm. I broke loose and ran across the street," she said.

The man sped away in a Chevrolet van and was followed by the officers who said, "We were going about 50 to 60 mph up Gregg Street at one point."

The van continued south for about eight blocks where it turned west. Approximately halfway down the block, the van left the road, careened over a small hill and came to stop in a drainage ditch.

The patrolmen found Magruder, who would have been 22 on May 14, slumped in the front seat of the van "choking on his own blood."

A single bullet had entered his right temple. The injured man was aided by ambulance attendants and taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he died at 10:30 p.m.

His body will be transported to Farmington for services and burial. He was an oilfield driller.

COLD SNAP HITS CHINA

TOKYO (AP) — The worst cold wave in 30 years has gripped much of northern China since mid-April and is hurting agricultural production, the Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency reported Tuesday. "Temperatures are averaging two to three degrees Centigrade lower than usual," Xinhua said in a report monitored here. In most regions north of the Yellow River, the temperature is "too low for seed germination. Sunshine and heat accumulation are markedly less than last year at this time," it said.

Lubbock Receives Liquor Tax

In this quarter's mixed drink tax remittance, the City of Lubbock will receive $58,020, part of $5.2 million being rebated statewide.

The $58,020 is 15 percent of the $386,806 in total tax revenue the city collected from mixed drink sales from January through March.

The county took in $391,175, and its remittance will total $58,676. The City of Slaton, also in Lubbock County, collected $1,116 in mixed drink tax revenues, and it will receive back $167.

Texas cities and counties receive a 15 percent rebate of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries. The tax is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and the rebate is issued by the state comptroller's office.

Mixed drink sales statewide for this year's first quarter totaled more than $180 million. A total of $5.2 million will be rebated to 200 counties and 354 cities.

The balance of the tax money collected, $12.8 million, will go to the state's general revenue fund.

South Plains counties that received rebates include Andrews, $746; Bailey, $312; Castro, $837; Cochran, $95; Cottle, $64; Crosby, $80; Dawson, $170; Floyd, $198; Hale, $4,713; Hockley, $1,148; Howard, $3,715; Lamb, $1,095; Midland, $24,602; Mitchell, $235; Scurry, $1,805; and Terry, $2,230.

Remittances also will go to these South Plains cities: Andrews, $746; Dimmitt, $129; Nazareth, $134; Plainview, $3,361; Levelland, $692; Big Spring, $3,302; Littlefield, $678; Midland, $21,681; Colorado City, $192; Snyder, $1,588; and Brownfield, $1,317.

'Hard Choices' Seen By Candidate Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush, a jack-of-all-trades during the Nixon-Ford administrations, declared his presidential candidacy Tuesday and vowed to wage his campaign for the 1980 Republican nomination "not in terms of simple solutions but of hard choices."

When asked what sacrifices he would call on the American people to make, Bush replied, "I would ask them to realize we cannot beat inflation...unless we curtail government spending to some degree.

"That will involve some sacrifice. We'll spell out later on where we have to do some restraining of the growth of spending and it's going to affect some people's lives."

When asked if he could cite specific areas in which he would cut federal spending, Bush replied, "Not now. But I am ready to say I want to restrict the growth of federal spending."

Limiting the growth of federal spending to seven percent, said Bush, would result in a balanced budget in 1982.

After his formal announcement at the National Press Club, Bush flew to Hartford, Conn., for the start of a campaign trip that would take him to Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Florida and Alabama.

In Hartford, Bush told questioners at a news conference that under certain circumstances the United States might be justified in intervening in the affairs of other countries.

"Suppose the U.S., when Hitler came to power, by supporting an opposition party, suppose we could have destabilized the Third Reich through the political process early on," he said."Would that have been a moral intervention? I say it would be."

The sixth announced candidate for the Republican nomination, Bush enters the campaign long on organization and short on experience winning votes.

He was born in Massachusetts on June 12, 1924, and has political roots in Connecticut and Texas. His late father was Prescott Bush, a Republican U.S. senator from Connecticut. George Bush moved to Texas after graduating from Yale and eventually founded an oil development firm.

He was elected to the U.S. House from Texas, served two terms — the only elective office he has held — and then lost a bid for the Senate.

With Richard M. Nixon in the White House, Bush served as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and later as chairman of the Republican party. Under President Gerald R. Ford, Bush served as chief of the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking and as director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Bush said he believes his varied background in business and public service is "going to be turned into monumental assets."

As for his role as head of the CIA during part of the period in which the agency allegedly was involved in improper activities, Bush said he was involved in drafting and implementing the executive order designed to end abuses.

"There were allegations that weren't true, some facts, a lot of fiction," he said. "You don't kick an agency. You don't tie its hands and then wake up 18 months later and say, 'where is our intelligence'."

Bush conceded that at least two of his rivals — Ronald Reagan, who hasn't announced yet, and former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who has — are often mentioned as likely to finish ahead of him in the Texas presidential primary.

Reagan was a landslide victor in Texas in 1976, when he ran against Ford. Connally was one of the most popular vote-getters in Texas history.

The other announced GOP candidates, in addition to Connally, are Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, Harold Stassen and Benjamin Fernandez, a Los Angeles businessman.

Among those likely to join the field are Reagan, Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and Rep. John Anderson of Illinois.

Baker said he thought Bush would be "a good and credible candidate." Asked if he thought Bush would be challenging Baker for the votes of Republican moderates, Baker said, "I do not think of him as a centrist candidate...I think of him as a scrappy Republican who's after every vote he can get."

Bush said he would make complete financial disclosure, including his income tax returns for the past five years and a personal financial balance sheet..

Change Of Address Gets Changed

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Arrant were convinced if they let things stand with the new address proposed by the U.S. Postal Service, they next could lose their names.

That, the couple agreed, was going too far. They sought the support of their neighbors and collected some 1,000 signatures on petitions.

The petitions were presented to the U.S. Postal Service and by golly, the Arrants and their neighbors won, proving that once in a while bureaucracy can be beaten and red tape can be cut.

It all started when the postal service decided to cluster the mailboxes in sections of The Woodlands, a suburb north of Houston, and to change the street addresses to numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Arrant lived at 10816 Colonywood Place, The Woodlands.

No, said the postal service, from now on you live at A-1210.

Postal officials said this would speed service and eliminate the need of mailmen to memorize the streets they serve.

Mrs. Arrant, in a recent interview, said: "It wasn't just the loss of our address, which we thought was nice. It was the fact that the next step could be eliminating our names.

"The postal service could have said from now on you will receive mail by your Social Security number, and losing your address is one thing, but losing your name is another," she said.

So, a letter to the Arrants could have come like this:

Mr. 496-30-5178 at A-1210 The Woodlands, followed by a zip code.

Mr. and Mrs. Arrant decided to fight. They toured the neighborhood on foot, getting signatures on petitions. They posted some petitions at the clubhouse and soon found they had a lot of signatures.

These petitions were taken to the postmaster at Spring.

The postal service yielded and gave up on the new plan.

Arrant, an independent auto parts salesman, said the proposed system would have been "just an inconvenience, especially for those who operate businesses. It sounded like we were just being guinea-pigged."

In addition to that, Arrant recently had several thousand cards printed giving his address as 10816 Colonywood Place. He would have been forced to burn those and print new ones saying write, A-1210.

Survey Indicates Grocery Price Rise In April

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Family budgets were stretched by another rise in grocery prices during April, but the rate of increase was smaller than it was the month before, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the latest findings:

•The marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in eight cities last month and decreased at the checklist store in five cities, for an overall increase of half a percent. That compared with an increase of 1.8 percent during March.

•Food prices at the supermarket are increasing more than non-food prices. The non-foods represent 21 percent of the items surveyed by the AP, but accounted for only 12.5 percent of April's increases.

•The AP found the marketbasket bill has increased in every city over the past 12 months. The average rise was 10.3 percent.

•Breakfast was the best meal for bargain hunters. The price of a dozen eggs decreased at the checklist store in 10 cities last month. Orange juice prices went down at the checklist store in five cities, thanks in part to special sales.

•Meat prices are still climbing. The price of a pound of chopped chuck went up at the checklist store in six cities; center cut pork chops and frankfurters went up in five cities each.

Meat prices have been rising for about a year, primarily because of smaller supplies of beef. Cattlemen, who reduced the size of their herds when beef prices were low, have taken steps to rebuild, but it will take several years to raise the animals and get the meat to family dinner tables.

Consumers, meanwhile, will have to turn to pork and poultry if they want to pay less for meat. Supplies of hogs and chickens are increasing and government economists say the increase should take some of the pressure off food prices which are expected to rise by about 10 percent during all of 1979.

Howard W. Hjort, chief economist for the Department of Agriculture, said recent statistics indicate "a significant slowdown in the rate of food price increases," and he said he expected "that pattern will continue for the rest of the year."

The USDA said Monday that prices paid to farmers during April declined, the first drop in five months. There were lower prices for hogs, oranges, eggs, lettuce and milk, but the amount of time it will take for the decreases to reach the retail level varies.

No attempt was made to weigh the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes were used when available. If the requested size and brand was not available on March 1, 1973, a substitute was selected. Items temporarily out of stock on one of the survey dates being compared were not included in the overall total.

The AP did not try to compare prices from city to city — to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. Comparisons were made only in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying an item rose 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.

The USDA marketbasket issued each month is based on a complex set of statistics. It includes 65 retail items of U.S. farm-produced foods in amounts that theoretically could supply a household of 3.2 persons for one year. The department, which draws on information from 1,500 supermarkets in compiling its report, says the figures do not correspond to actual family food spending and are used mainly to illustrate changes in costs.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Here is a breakdown of what happened in Albuquerque and Dallas during April:

ALBUQUERQUE: The total for 13 available items went from $15.34 to $15.92, up 3.8 percent. Pork chops, coffee, tomato sauce and sugar increased; chopped chuck, orange juice and eggs decreased. The checklist store was out of pork chops on one of the survey dates. Other items were unchanged.

DALLAS: The marketbasket for 12 available items went from $14.24 to $13.69, down 3.9 percent. Pork chops, peanut butter and tomato sauce increased, while milk, coffee, eggs, fabric softener and frankfurters declined. Chopped chuck and detergent were out of stock at the checklist store on one of the survey dates; the remaining four items were unchanged.

Lubbock Food Survey Shows Lower Costs

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

By CARRIE LINE CURTIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An Avalanche-Journal marketbasket survey of 16 standard grocery items Tuesday indicated May's total was the lowest since October 1978 for a set group of items.

This month's total was $20.40, down from last month's $20.55. The October 1978 total was $19.54.

The low total can be deceiving, however, because one item, round steak, jumped from $1.98 a pound in April to $2.59 a pound this month. The survey also noted a large jump in one dozen medium eggs, up to 79 cents this month from April's 69 cents.

A large loaf of bread increased from April's 69 cents to 73 cents. A 12-ounce jar of creamy peanut butter cost 92 cents this month, compared to April's 86 cents.

What made the difference in this month's total was a significant decrease in several items.

A one-pound can of regular coffee slid to $2.19, compared to April's price of $2.89 a can. Another large decrease this month was a head of Iceberg lettuce selling for 39 cents a pound, compared 49 cents a pound a month ago.

A one-pound package of hickory smoked bacon sold for $1.53 this month and $1.65 in April. A one-pound package of stick margarine sold for 71 cents a package this month, down from April's price of 73 cents.

A 49-ounce box of laundry detergent was marked $1.71 this month and $1.73 in April.

All other prices for the 16 standard grocery items remained stable this month:

A gallon of homogenized milk was still selling for $2.33 and a can of whole green beans was still selling for 46 cents.

A five-pound bag of sugar was marked at $1.29 and a five-pound bag of flour was selling at 99 cents, the same as for April.

The price per pound for a chicken fryer remains constant at 59 cents a pound.

Crime Council Launches 'Operation Identification'

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

To coincide with the kickoff of Operation Identification, the Lubbock County Crime Council voted Tuesday to ask Mayor Dirk West to formally declare May Crime Prevention Month.

Operation Identification, a countywide effort by the council to get homeowners to mark their valuables, should get under way today, Hal Hensley, chief administrator for the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's office, said.

Hensley said he has ordered 10,000 brochures from the Texas Crime Prevention Institute in San Marcos and is waiting for them to arrive before sending out volunteers who will canvass neighborhoods explaining the marking procedures to homeowners.

Hensley added that persons wishing to do volunteer work in their neighborhoods should contact him at the District Attorney's office (747-0111) or call the Crime Abatement Program number (763-1133), which has been set up at the sheriff's office.

Council chairman Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard said his office has been receiving a lot of calls on the CAP number, but not all have had to do with preventing crimes.

"We've been getting calls on everything from cats in trees to speeding through school zones," he said.

The council also voted to adopt guidelines drawn up by Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford stating how to mark valuable items and listing the most pilferable items in most households.

The guidelines also include a receipt which must be signed by homeowners in case they should lose or damage the marking devices or chemical pens. Volunteers also will provide homeowners with inventory sheets to keep track of all items marked.

Valuables should be marked with the owner's Texas driver's license number or Department of Public Safety ID number. Items too small to accommodate the whole number should be marked with the owner's initials. Credit cards, along with items too sensitive to be marked, such as watches and clocks, should be serialized and placed on the inventory sheet.

Hensley said all volunteers, who have been advised not to enter homes, will display ID cards from the District Attorney's office. They will distribute the brochures and logo stickers and will leave the marking devices with the homeowners and go back to pick them up one day later.

Capt. Frank Wiley of the Lubbock Police Department suggested adding golf clubs and binoculars to the list of items most often stolen in home burglaries. That list ranges from such large items as air conditioners and television sets to small items like garden tools and calculators.

The guidelines also suggest that homeowners mark items in inconspicuous places so that they can be readily identified by law enforcement agencies.

Chamber of Commerce representative Frank McGlaun brought up the idea of running in The Avalanche-Journal a "box score" of crimes in the Lubbock area.

"A lot of people are shocked when I tell them the crime rate," he said. "And people aren't going to get involved (in Operation Identification) unless they're aware that our sleepy little town has such a high incidence of crime."

Montford said the "box score" idea would be misleading in that some crimes are falsely reported to police authorities.

Montford agreed with McGlaun's idea of establishing a speakers' bureau and suggested crime statistics be included as part of talks before civic groups.

The high incidence of crime "is more of an educational awareness program to be directed at the public," he said. The council approved setting up a speakers' bureau which will include some of the women members as well.

The Better Business Bureau reported there still are plenty of tickets left to the Business Crimes Symposium scheduled Thursday in the Civic Center.

Tickets may be obtained by calling the bureau at 763-0456 or at the office at 1015 15th St. Mail orders should have checks made payable to the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council and sent to Box 1178, Lubbock, 79408. Tickets also will be available at the door.

The symposium, which will be in separate morning and afternoon sessions, will be highlighted with a speech by former con artist and master forger Frank Abagnale Jr., who now assists vulnerable businesses in curbing white-collar crime.

Las Vegas Gasoline Promise Ill Advised

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority has unceremoniously dumped its $224,000 media campaign to lure southern California residents to the gambling mecca with the promise of abundant gasoline.

The campaign was dropped after a weekend which saw lots of motorists, few open gas stations, long lines and short tempers. Police were called to mediate several disputes at service stations. The new campaign will promote flying instead of driving to Las Vegas and will urge local residents to do their gasoline shopping during the week, leaving the weekends to tourists.

Mayor Declares Lubbock One Of 'Cities Of Gold'

Mayor Dirk West has proclaimed Lubbock as the first of the legendary "Seven Cities of Gold."

Eric Strong, president of the Roots Historical Arts Council, said the group asked the mayor to designate the week beginning April 26 to honor Lubbock in this way.

"The arts council feels that Lubbock is a city of gold for three reasons — for the spirit of cooperation that exists here among all the people, for its quick response to aid another city in time of disaster and for its friendly people," Strong said.

The group asked the mayor to issue the proclamation during Thursday's city council meeting, and members of the arts council performed a five-minute skit about Estebanico of Africa and Francisco Vasquez de Coronado of Spain, who sought but never found the legendary Seven Cities of Gold during the 1500s while exploring what is now the southwestern United States.

The group requested that this week be designated for the honor so that the proclamation would coincide with the Lubbock Arts Festival.

"Personally, I think that the history of the Lubbock area is fascinating, and I feel that Lubbock could be one of the cultural centers of the Southwest in the next few years," Strong said.

Purpose of the Roots Historical Arts Council is to encourage disadvantaged persons in the Lubbock area to participate in various art forms and to promote the minority history of the Lubbock area.

Drug Abuse Expert To Visit Lubbock

Dr. Marsha Keith Schuchard, who has developed and participated in federal and university drug education programs, will address Lubbock groups today and Thursday.

Dr. Schuchard will discuss drug abuse, particularly among school-age children, and will offer suggestions for drug education methods.

Besides addressing a meeting of Lubbock public school counselors and Church Women United, she will present programs that will be open to the public at no cost.

Today at 1:30 p.m. she will give a presentation to PTA members and other interested persons at Hodges Community Center and again on Thursday at 9 a.m. in the Lubbock High School auditorium.

Dr. Schuchard, who is a literary historian, became interested in drug abuse and education out of concern for the health and safety of her own children.

She was instrumental in developing the "parental peer-group" approach to drug education and drug abuse prevention in Atlanta, Ga.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I really get ticked off at all this flap over the '40s being nostalgic.

How can they be nostalgic when I remember them?

As for the fashions of the '40s coming back, if I were asked to pick an era of clothes to bring back, the '40s would be my LAST choice.

We all dressed like we were going to a war. Our jackets looked like they hung from curtain rods, our skirts were pencil slim, and our shoes reflected our shortage of leather and good sense. Not necessarily in that order.

If there is anything I must protest, it is the resurrection of the hat. Some fashions are better off left buried. They make as much sense as Bette Midler when she appeared at an Emmy ceremony wearing a 45 r.p.m. tacked to the side of her head.

For those of you who have never endured a Millinery age, allow me to fill you in.

The choice of hats of the '40s narrowed down to (a) pillbox, (b) pillbox with a veil. The (a) pillbox defied gravity and was attached to the back of your head by a large hatpin which hooked into your scalp. Any hair left under it turned brown and died.

The hat matched your gloves, purse and shoes. If it didn't your mother made you go back into the house and change.

The (b) pillbox with a veil set yet another tone. If you had good skin, the veil covered it. If you had a bad skin, the veil called attention to it.

The veil was not conducive to sneezing, smiling, scratching, yawning, talking, kissing or picking something out of your teeth with your tongue. The least movement set it off. Once when I took a deep breath of boredom, I nearly inhaled my hat.

The hat is not in the interests of most women. Most of us need all the help from hair we can get. I only remember one instance when I was wearing my pillbox that I got a whistle from anyone. A tall, dark Marine whistled at me and asked me to store his bag. He thought I was a bellhop.

That's really all I can remember about the '40s. After all, I was only a toddler at the time.

Laboratory Robots Help In Treatment

BRADFORD, England (WNS) — Wives suffering from sexual inhibitions reportedly are cured more quickly, more easily if they "confess" to a robot recent installed in a hospital here, according to a report by the hospital.

Says Dr. Hugo Milne, the robot "allows a woman to ponder her reply without interference from the doctor's impatience or even his irritating mannerisms and emotive judgments."

Women were asked such questions as whether love-making was distasteful to them always or only sometimes. All questions were the sort that embarrassed women when asked by a man. The computer produces a rapid printout of major causes of sex troubles.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you ran a letter about some children whose mother forced them to eat. I agreed with your answer and would like to recite my own experience in the hope that such parents might realize the lifelong anxieties they may be instilling in their children.

When I was four, my mother made me sit at the table until I finished everything on my plate. Many times I spent hours in the dining room facing cold food. When we ate in a restaurant, I was yelled at and punished when I didn't clean my plate. I vividly recall the times I vomited after forcing myself to eat so as not to be "bad" or "waste food." ("There are children starving in India.")

I am now in my 20s and have a fear of food — fretful that if I eat I'll vomit.

I tried therapy only once. The therapist told me my problems are not rooted in my childhood but in my teen years when the symptoms first became apparent. He refused to let me explain in detail what I'd been through, so I never went back. The problems are still there but I'm trying to overcome them alone. Any suggestions? — Gagging In Gainesville

Dear G.: In every field you will find competent and incompetent people. Unfortunately your first therapist was a lemon. For heaven's sake don't give up. Find yourself another therapist and work at getting well.

Dear Ann Landers: It blows my mind that I am writing to Ann Landers. I never thought it would happen to me, but sooner or later you get us all.

I'm a 22-year-old male whose best friend married five months ago. Since their wedding I have been a house guest several times. They live about 40 miles from here. I find myself strongly attracted to the young bride. I'm afraid it's blossoming into something more than friendship.

Last weekend we went for a walk. I confessed that I was falling in love with her. She said the feeling was mutual. We are both concerned about this terrific attraction we seem to have for one another and would like your advice. — Feeling Guilty

Dear F.G.: My advice is to visit the newlyweds a lot less often — and stay in a nearby hotel or motel. If you are not dating a few women in your own town, I strongly recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: I read in your column about that man, Mr. Eugene Jerome Dupuis Jr., in Tulsa, who named all his six children Eugene Jerome Dupuis Jr., just to prove YOU were wrong. (Apparently he wrote to you several years ago and asked if he could name both his newborn twin sons "Jr." You replied, "Sorry, only one Jr. to a family." The man's wife has since had four more children, three of them girls. They are ALL named Eugene Jerome Dupuis Jr.)

Didn't that father consider the confusion in birth records, social security numbers, marriage certificates, bank obligations, bills, newspaper and magazine subscriptions, etc.? How can the government permit such foolishness? — Goggled-Eyed In Garden City

Dear Goggled: Thank the good Lord the government CAN'T tell us what to name our children. They are telling us enough already. Mr. Eugene Jerome Dupuis is within his legal rights. I agree, however, that his children are going to face some difficulties later in life.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

We could discuss the two-club opening bid for many articles. Today's experts have almost as many ways of using it as there are experts, but the bid does not come up often enough to warrant that amount of discussion.

As for the weak bids of two spades, hearts and diamonds we recommend the hand have 7-10 high-card points with the understanding that you can go up to 11 or down to 6 if the spirit moves you. The suit should be six cards and should have some Lady to it and the preferred distribution is 6-3-3-1 coming second.

The two-notrump response to a weak two bid is artificial and forcing. Opener rebids his suit with a minimum (7 or 8) and shows a feature with a maximum (9 or 10).

The South hand is a maximum for a weak two bid so he rebids three diamonds to show his side ace. North's three hearts is a general continuation of the force. South's raise to four hearts is a raise. For all he knew, North was showing a real heart suit.

At this point North know that there was enough ammunition for 12 tricks. His five-spade bid confirmed spades as the suit and told South to bid six if he held second-round club control.

South might have held just one club. He did have two, so he passed at five spades. The defense took two club tricks and South took the rest.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Here are excerpts from six (of many) letters on the same subject.

"I have Barlow's syndrome. I never heard of it before. Please explain." — Mrs. M.

"Please explain the click syndrome. The doctor has told me to quit smoking and to go off birth control pills. I am 29." — Mrs. B.R.

"I have mitral valve prolapse. Why do I need medication before surgery, dental work, etc.?" — Mrs. E.B.

"Please write about Barlow's syndrome. I am 33 and a female. I had palpitations and a feeling of my heart becoming enlarged. I take medicine to control it. I trust my doctor, but want to see something about this in the paper." — Mrs. G.T.

"Is mitral valve prolapse acquired or is it congenital? Is there surgery for it?" — Mrs. R.A.

"I have click syndrome. I am in my early 50s. Until now I didn't worry about it. My doctor didn't seem concerned because I never had any symptoms. Can you ease my mind? Is it common?" — Mrs. M.A.E.

Besides those mentioned by these readers this problem goes under a hodgepodge of other names — "floppy mitral valve," for example. Most people who have it have no symptoms and require no treatment.

The mitral valve controls blood flow between the two left chambers of the heart. It opens to allow filling of the left ventricle (lower chamber) and closes as blood is pumped out via the aorta, the main artery leaving the heart. With mitral valve prolapse, a "leaflet" of the valve billows upward into the upper chamber (atrium). The cause is not known, but for some unclear reason the valve is just too large for the opening it controls.

For years doctors reported the peculiar extra clicking heart sound, best described as "lub-duh-dub". With newer equipment (such as an echocardiogram) the defect was pinpointed to the floppy valve. Today, it is probably the most common of heart valve problems.

It tends to run in families. It is more common in women, and it is interesting that all of the above letters are from women. It is quite common, occurring in perhaps as many as 6 percent of otherwise healthy individuals. Most are unaware of it, and the defect is usually found in ordinary heart examinations. A few may notice fatigue, shortness of breath, chest pain and palpitations (sensation of heart beats). Special monitoring devices can determine the extent of heart rhythm disturbance caused by it.

Drugs are available to control the heart rhythm if needed. Antibiotics are advised for use before surgery or dental procedures to prevent possible infection of the valve. On rare occasions, a leakage may develop, in which case surgery can be done to replace the valve; the results have been encouraging.

Mrs. B.R. was advised to quit smoking and go off birth control pills most likely because of the threat either may pose to persons with heart problems. Caffeine and certain drugs should be avoided.

Again, most people who have this problem have no symptoms and live a norml life.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I would like some information on metabolism. I have a weight problem and just can't seem to lose any of those extra pounds. Also, I am cold and tired most of the time. I have been to a dootor to find out if I have a gland problem. He says I don't. So I was wondering if metabolism could play a part in this and if there is a drug that would help. I am 39 years old and weigh 180 pounds. — Mrs. C.M.

Sure, metabolism has something to do with it. That's how the body utilizes the foods we eat to produce the energy we need and keep our organs, glands, etc., functioning normally. I suspect that your "metabolism problem" stems from the fact that you provide your body with more calories than it can use. Hence you are overweight. Your problem begins at the dining table.

Dear Dr. Ruble: If a man has become sterile from radiation while in the service, is it possible for him to become fertile again after 20 years? — M.D.H.

Not if the sterility was caused by radiation of his testicles (the sperm-producing glands). He can find out if he is producing sperm by checking an ejaculation specimen. That would settle the issue.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

German Chancellor Set Retirement Age

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a famous German leader who decided that the ideal retirement age should be 65, according to a television show aimed at the aging.

Otto Von Bismarck, the 19th-century German chancellor, picked that age because he had been told that very few of his country's workers who were to receive retirement pensions lived to be 65 at that time, reports Hugh Downs, host of "Over Easy," the daily Public Broadcasting Service program shown on 254 of the network's TV stations.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I read your column every day and I really enjoy it. Those helpful hints can really save a lot of time and trouble.

I guess I'm writing to you to let off a little steam.

So many people seem to be putting down homemakers these days, and it really "bugs" me.

People will ask you if you work and when you reply, "No, I stay at home and take care of my family," they look at you funny and say, "Oh, well, what do you do all day?"

They must picture in their minds a woman sitting in front of the T.V. set eating candy and bored to tears.

When you hear this reaction from enough people you begin to get depressed thinking perhaps what you do is not all that interesting or important and worthwhile.

But even working at a career can become routine as I know because I have worked at a job. I really feel that raising a family is a very precious and rewarding career. Besides, who says you have to be glued to your house all day? There are many outside activities one can become involved in.

I strongly believe, though, that life is what you make it, regardless of your circumstances. And I find having a sense of humor is a great gift that will make a very hectic day a lot easier.

Thank you for your time. — P.R.

Mothers and homemakers, don't let anyone ever demean your position in society.

Where would any of us be today if it weren't for someone taking the time and trouble to nurture and admonish us into our present state of existence?

Love and kisses to you, P.R., for sharing your thoughts with us. — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever scratched your head and wondered what under the sun you could do with a "mystery sock," the odd one that every so often shows up?

Just put a couple of globs of paste wax (floor or car) in it and when waxing day comes along you'll be able to apply a thin even coat with little effort.

Just leave the wax in the sock for the next time. — Mr. Marion

DEAR HELOISE:

I make jam and jelly by the quart! So after many tries at success, I have a couple of hints to pass on to novices.

First, oil your cooking pot on the bottom and sides and the jam will not stick.

Also, to quickly test your "brew," put a teaspoon full of your jam or jelly into the freezer. It cools immediately and you can see if it has reached the desired thickness.

Happy cooking! — The "Jam Factory"

DEAR HELOISE:

The elastic in my knee socks always wears out first, so the socks won't stay up.

One day my feet were really cold, so I put on my knee-hi stockings first, then my knee socks over them.

I turned the wide elastic band of the stockings over my sock top and my socks stayed up all day.

Now I know what to do with all my stretched out knee socks. — Virginia

DEAR HELOISE:

When clothes have been left in the dryer too long and consequently are wrinkled...

Just re-set your drying cycle for about five minutes on the "regular" setting, and put a clean wet washcloth (wrung out) in with the clothes.

CBS Reveals Shakeups In 1979-80 Prime Time Show Lineups

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS will begin the 1979-80 prime time season in September with seven new series, but minus two critically acclaimed programs, "Kaz" and "The Paper Chase," that were victims of low ratings, the network announced Tuesday.

In addition to "Kaz," and "The Paper Chase," CBS said "Good Times", and "The Mary Tyler Moore Hour" had been lopped from the network's prime time lineup, and that three limited series, "Billy," "Time Express" and Dear Detective," would not return in the fall.

The network announced several months ago that Miss Moore, who attempted two series during the past season, would return in 1980 with a new half-hour situation comedy.

CBS was the last of the three networks to unveil its fall schedule, and, predictably, left three nights unchanged. In addition, the network said 13 series would return in September, with only one, "The Jeffersons," in a new time slot, Sundays at 9:30 p.m.

The network's new series include four hour-long dramatic programs, and three half-hour situaton comedies.

The dramas are "Trapper John, M.D.," with Pernell Roberts recreating the role from "M-A-S-H" in a series set 28 years after the Korean war, Sundays at 10; "Big Shamus, Little Shamus," with Brian Dennehy as a hotel detective and Doug McKeon as his son, Saturdays at 9; "Paris" starring James Earl Jones as a captain of detectives in the Los Angeles Police Department, Saturdays at 10, and "We're Cruisin'," starring James Vincent McNichol and Marc McClure as two boys enjoying that time between adolescence and adulthood, Tuesdays at 8.

The new comedies in the CBS lineup include "Working Stiffs" with Jim Belushi and Michael Keaton, Wednesdays at 8; "The Last Resort," Wednesdays at 8:30, and "Struck by Lightning," starring Jack Elam and Jeffrey Kramer, Saturdays at 8:30.

CBS spent all but several weeks of the recently completed season as runnerup in the ratings to ABC, and scored with a number of programs added to schedule after the first of the year — "White Shadow," "The Dukes of Hazzard" and "WKRP in Cincinnati." All will be back in their present time slots.

One new program that did well in the ratings, "Stockard Channing in Just Friends," will return toward the end of 1979, the network said.

CBS confirmed, in addition, that "All in the Family" would become "Archie Bunker's Place," with Carroll O'Connor back as Archie. Jean Stapleton will make several appearances during the season as Edith, CBS said.

Both "Kaz," starring Ron Leibman, and "The Paper Chase," with John Houseman in the lead, were hurt by scheduling. "Kaz" was pre-empted at least nine times and "The Paper Chase" aired opposed ABC's hit Tuesday night comedies.

LTV Corp. Reports Quarterly Earnings

DALLAS (AP) — LTV Corp. on Tuesday reported first quarter net income of $40.5 million, or $1.41 per share, compared to a net loss of $8.8 million or 64 cents a share for the same quarter a year ago.

First quarter 1979 sales were $1.98 billion, compared with $1.24 billion for the first three months of 1978.

Net income for the 1979 and 1978 periods includes credits of $14.3 million and $13.1 million, respectively, resulting from the cumulative effect of accounting changes.

Results for the period ended March 31 were the first to reflect the combined operations of LTV and Lykes Corp. following the merger of Lykes into LTV last December. The 1978 figures do not include the results for Lykes.

RCA's TV Sales First, TV Network Last

NEW YORK (AP) — RCA claimed the No. 1 spot in television sales for the first time in 20 years on Tuesday but said profits of its NBC television network are continuing to decline with the ratings.

RCA President Edgar Griffiths told the company's annual meeting that NBC's 1979 profit "will be substantially below that of last year." In 1978, NBC profits fell 20 percent from the 1977 level and as recently as two months ago Griffiths had been predicting profits would be about the same or slightly higher.

NBC is in third place in the network ratings and has been falling farther behind. NBC's chairwoman, Jane C. Pfeiffer, promised the stockholders "you will see improvement (in the ratings) in the fall."

Despite the NBC problems, Silverman predicted RCA's earnings for 1979 will exceed those of 1978, when the company reported profits of $278.4 million, or $3.65 a share, on sales of $6.6 billion.

RCA developed color television, but saw its market position slip to the point that it fell to a distant No. 2 behind Zenith. It fell behind numerous companies in the black-and-white TV market.

But Griffiths said "highly reliable information" showed that in the first quarter of 1979 it regained first place in both color and black-and-white television sales. He said it was the first time in 20 years RCA held both leads.

Griffiths did not cite a source, but an RCA spokesman said the statement was based on figures from the latest survey by Trendex Inc., generally regarded as the leading firm in the field.

A spokesman for Zenith, which has been the color television market leader since 1972, confirmed the Trendex result but added that Zenith "had record unit sales to dealers in the first quarter. We believe this national rating service is subject to major aberrations on a quarter-to-quarter basis."

Louis Pappalardo, a senior vice president of Trendex, refused to confirm the figures and expressed shock that either company would discuss them, saying they were confidential.

The Zenith spokesman, who asked not to be quoted by name, said that for all of 1978 Zenith had 21.5 percent of the color TV market against RCA's 18.9 percent. Neither company disclosed the precise first quarter figures shown by Trendex.

Griffiths strongly backed both Mrs. Pfeiffer and NBC President Fred Silverman. He refused to give details on NBC's negotiations with Johnny Carson, who wants to leave the highly profitable "Tonight" show.

Carson was nominated by Evelyn Y. Davis, a corporate gadfly, to serve on RCA's board of directors. She said he would soon qualify as an "outside director," meaning one not employed by the company.

Carson got 302 votes as he finished 14th in the field, with one to be elected. The director who finished 13th received 59,957,127 votes.

RCA Affirms Confidence In NBC Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Silverman will have both the resources and the time to "see NBC back to the top" in prime-time television, the president of RCA, the network's parent company, promised Tuesday.

Edgar H. Griffiths, RCA's president, acknowledged the network's last-place finish in the recently completed season was unsatisfactory, but noted for the company's stockholders that Silverman joined NBC late last summer, after the fall schedule had been competed.

"Mr. Silverman can hardly be blamed for programs he did not select," Griffiths said, adding that the NBC executive's performance should not be judged by program changes he made during the season.

"My expectation is that you will see his work pay off for us in the next year, Griffiths said. "He is not a miracle worker. He is by reputation and performance the best programmer in television."

Griffiths did not propose a specific timetable for Silverman, but said, regarding resources, "There is nothing in the area of programming that we are constrained from doing."

Silverman, present for the 60th annual meeting of RCA stockholders in a studio at the network's Rockefeller Center headquarters, said in response to a question from the floor that NBC would return five of 15 programs introduced since last fall's schedule was set. That, he said, was a more than adequate rate of return.

Griffiths painted a generally optimistic picture for NBC, saying at one point, "The difference between NBC's performance and success in the future is only two or three shows."

But he did attribute NBC's profits, which he said were "substantially below those for the previous year," in part to low prime-time ratings.

Commentary from stockholders was mixed. "Mr. Silverman, he looks bad, because of the pressure," one man declared, pointing to the NBC president. Said another stockholder: "Hi-ho, Silverman."

Griffiths extended his "total and complete support" to Silverman and Jane C. Pfeiffer, the former IBM executive who became NBC board chairman last October.

In one relatively lighthearted moment, a stockholder proposed that Johnny Carson, host of "The Tonight Show" on NBC, be elected to replace Mrs. Pfeiffer on the board. The stockholder said Carson was "somebody not quite as ambitious" as Mrs. Pfeiffer.

Carson, who has said he wants to leave the late-night talk show before his contract expires in 1981, finished 14th in the voting for the 13-member board, with 302 votes. The 13th member selected got nearly 60 million votes.

NBC spent all but a few weeks of the recently completed season in third place in the ratings, behind ABC and CBS. The network endured several important setbacks, including the failure of super-expensive but now-canceled "Supertrain" series.

Griffiths acknowledged that program's dismal performance, but told stockholders there had been some successes, like "Diff'rent Strokes," a situation comedy introduced by Silverman after the season had begun.

NBC announced a fall lineup Monday that surprised most observers by including many shows that did poorly this season.

Carson Nixed As RCA Director

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Carson may leave NBC's Tonight Show, but he won't be moving to the board of directors of RCA, NBC's parent company.

RCA stockolders voted down Carson's nomination to be a director. He received 302 votes, considerably below the 59,957,127 votes received by the lowest winning candidate.

Carson was nominated by Evelyn Davis, who said the RCA board needed someone who was "not ambitious" and would not try to take over the company.

Noting Carson's publicly stated desire to get out of his contract for the Tonight Show, which runs through the spring of 1981, Mrs. Davis said he would soon qualify as an "outside director," one not employed by the company.

RCA President Edgar H. Griffiths, who opposed Carson's election, said he hoped negotiations with Carson will reach "a sensible, reasonable conclusion," but declined to discuss details of the talks.

Brezhnev Memoir Made Into Soviet Documentary

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet television broadcast Tuesday night the first of a three-part documentary film based on President Leonid I. Brezhnev's book of World War II reminiscences, "Malaya Zemlya."

The book is one of three volumes of Brezhnev memoirs that this year was awarded the Lenin Prize for Literature, the Soviet Union's equivalent of the Pulitzer Prize.

Malaya Zemlya is the name given to a small piece of land near Novorossisk which was seized by a small band of Soviet troops during World War II and held for 225 days against the Germans.

The battle itself was one of hundreds across the Soviet Union fought during the war, but has received massive publicity in recent years because of Brezhnev's part in it as political officer in the Soviet army and one of the Malaya Zemlya fighters.

The Soviet news agency Tass noted that some news reels were being shown for the first time, made by cameramen filming the battle for Novorossisk and the first days of the city's liberation.

One news reel shows Brezhnev himself in the trenches, Tass said, during his days as chief of the 18th Army's political department.

"Our task was to reproduce with very high precision, in a strictly documental way, every line of Brezhnev's remarkable book, that priceless document," said film director Vladimir Osminin.

Tuesday night's episode interspersed a TV announcer reading from Brezhnev's book with authentic World War II news clips, with modern day shots of Novorossisk and wartime Soviet songs.

Fight Clothing, Long Hair Denounced

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The president of Marxist Mozambique in a May Day speech forbade women from wearing tight blouses and curve-fitting pants and said men with long hair should be shaved bald.

In a broadcast on Radio Mozambique monitored here, Samora Machel also said Roman Catholic priests were working to obstruct transformation of the former Portuguese colony into a modern socialist state.

"It is a case of either us or them," he told a mass rally in the capital of Maputo. "But we have force on our side."

He blamed tight clothes and long hair on "moral agents of imperialism who are trying to corrupt the people."

He also said that many of his countrymen viewed "with contempt" the quality of tractors and other farm machinery imported from Communist East Germany but said it "is as good as any."

Napoleon III of France declared war against Benito Juarez of Mexico in 1862.

Steel Price Increase Held Feasible

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. Chairman David Roderick says the company could raise steel prices by about 3 percent in the third quarter and still meet federal guidelines.

The head of the nation's largest steel producer also said the company might not be able to afford a proposed $3.5 billion mill at Conneaut, Ohio, unless cost-price relationships improve.

"There is no question that costs are continuing to rise," Roderick said in his first press conference since he replaced ailing Edgar Speer as chairman last week.

"They (higher costs) are just economic facts of life and ultimately they will have to reflect themselves in the marketplace in the price of steel," he said.

Because steel is used so widely in the American economy, government inflation fighters have traditionally kept a close eye on its prices. U.S. Steel is a recognized pace setter because of its dominance in the marketplace.

Under President Carter's guidelines, U.S. Steel may raise prices in periodic adjustments by 8.3 percent in the year ending Sept. 30.

"We really have no meaningful room under the guidelines to make any price adjustments in the current quarter, but over the balance of the (guideline) year, there is something in the range of 2 to 3 percent," Roderick said.

The steel industry's financial condition must improve before massive projects, such as the proposed Conneaut plant, which would be the world's largest steel mill, can be built, he said.

"This country needs greenfield sites," he said, referring to new plants. "Steel demand is growing at a rate of about 2.5 percent a year and we are the only major industrialized country in the world that can't supply our own domestic requirements."

"Are Conneauts going to be built? Yes, they will ... but when you get a cost-price relationship in place that will warrant that type of massive investment," he added.

Roderick said the domestic steel industry needs protection against foreign steel dumping, a tax climate that would renew capital investments and "an attitude on the part of the government that steel must be permitted to have prices in the marketplace without jawboning and other restraints ... to provide an adequate profit margin."

Roderick said it was unlikely U.S. Steel would seek federal financing help as did Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. when it asked for a guaranteed loan package of $140 million to build a new rail mill.

"I don't like it (federal help). If you review the history of the nationalizations that have taken place in places like Spain, Italy and France, the first step is to get federal guarantees..." he said.

On the topic of imports, Roderick conceded that the amount of foreign steel entering the United States is down substantially over the first three months compared with the same period last year.

"The trigger price mechanism does appear to becoming more effective and for that we are very pleased," he said.

The mechanism sets minimum prices at which imported steel may be sold. Violations are supposed to trigger a Treasury Department investigation. The Carter administration set up the program last year to counteract complaints by domestic producers that foreign mills were selling their products here for less than it cost to produce them.

On the company's dealings with China, Roderick said the sale of 100,000 tons of tubular goods will be delivered as scheduled in July.

He said U.S. Steel is looking ahead to further sales of such products, but that with the potential decontrol of domestic oil he said the company "is cautious about taking on substantial tonnage until we are satisfied that the needs of domestic customers can be satisfied."

The company also is still awaiting word from the Chinese for further discussions on a protocol agreement under which U.S. Steel would help develop iron ore resources in China at an estimated cost of $1 billion, he said.

Kubiak's Gasohol Bills Win Approval In House

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A pair of gasohol bills "sailed" through the Texas House of Representatives early this week, but their eventual passage into law could dash plans for a major gasohol production plant near Dimmitt.

"We had a lot of support in the House today, and just sailed right through," Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, who sponsored the legislation, said Tuesday.

The bills, which Kubiak unabashedly is calling "the best bills to come out of the House this session," would legalize the distillation of alcohol and establish a $15 million state fund from which persons wishing to build gasohol facilities could borrow.

House Bill 1986, which legalizes the distillation of alcohol in Texas, contains an amendment which would disqualify the Dimmitt Amstar Corn Processing plant, mentioned since the beginning of legislation as a probable site for a major gasohol facility.

The amendment, pushed hard by the Licensed Liquor Distributors, states that all permits for the manufacture of alcohol for a motor fuel must be issued only to groups which are majority owned by Texans. Should the bill become law before the amendment is changed, Amstar and the Midwest Solvents plant scheduled for Santa Rosa in the Rio Grande Valley would be inelgible to produce alcohol for gasohol.

"As far as I know, Amstar is an out-of-state operation," Kubiak said, adding that the liquor lobby influenced the amendment with their strong effort to oppose all new legislation dealing with changes in Texas alcohol and liquor laws.

While Amstar and Midwest Solvents will suffer, state institutions will most likely prosper with the financial exemption provided them in the bill. Should the bill become law without revision, state-owned gasohol operations may be the primary source of most of Texas' commercial gasohol production in the future.

The other bill, HB 1803, is not without its problems, either. It establishes a $15 million state fund, which is to be loaned to individuals, cooperatives or companies wishing to build gasohol facilities, but no money to supply that fund was appropriated in the House's new Appropriations Bill. That Appropriations Bill now is in a conference committee, where such funds could be provided.

Despite the problems remaining with the legislation, Kubiak seemed delighted the bills had made the progress they have. "We're on the way," he said. "Gasohol is a fuel whose time has come — it provides us with a renewable American alternative fuel source, and I don't see how those men can vote againt it in good conscience."

The measures will be carried into the Senate today by Sens. Raul Longonria of Edinburg, Bob Price of Pampa and Bob Vale of San Antonio, according to Chuck Dean, Kubiak's legislative assistant, who said he expected hearing dates to be set "very soon."

Price will be watching both the Senate and the House; he has a trio of Senate bills awaiting action by the House.

All won approval from the Senate Thursday. In the House they will be sponsored by Kubiak. The bills would exempt gasohol from the state motor fuels tax, authorize five grants of up to $4 million each for the construciton of grain alcohol plants and authorize the state to spend $20 million for the construction of a pilot gasohol production plant.

These bills face a tough, budget-minded House, and observers say two of the three will have "a very tough go." Only the motor fuels exemption appears safe; it has a sister bill already in the House Ways and Means Committee.

WINDMILL BLADE MOUNTED

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — The first of a pair of 200-foot-long blades was mounted Tuesday on the world's largest energy-generating windmill. The windmill, atop Howard's Knob near this western North Carolina mountain town, is part of a $3.5 million energy research project constructed by the U.S. Department of Energy and designed to produce 2,000 kilowatts of electricity — enough to supply 300 to 400 homes.

WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Market analysts like to use the term "test" when stocks are at some psychologically important area, or there is some surprise development, or an overbought or oversold market tries a run in the opposite direction. "Test" seems a good term because it has a connotation of pass or of fail; of a decisive answer; of a little more insight into what the future may hold for stocks.

As we close out April, we can in hindsight see a market which had lots of tests and the answers are almost unanimously the same — inconclusive. Most of April experienced a moderate pullback in the majority of industrial and transportation issues while the utilities suffered from radiation and interest rate fallout. It was a month of a general correction but not bad relative to the news and, of course, oil and gas stocks did well despite the rest of the market — a test and a decent score for not coming totally unglued.

OK, then the test of its strength. A week ago stocks found themselves moderately oversold after being down the two prior weeks and a normal bounce started. The rally lasted only three days and showed a great deal of fatigue — a failure of that test. Since the Federal Reserve Board took all of one week to reverse its policy and to tighten credit Friday, everyone has gone to press with new projections of higher interest rates and more competition for bonds — another test.

You simply inject one part surprising news and one part disappointing rally into the market beast and obviously we should have had a good test of the technical underpinnings of the market. The results from the lab were, again, inconclusive. Yes, stocks went down Friday and Monday but in a gentle, inconclusive fashion.

Our conclusion from all this inconclusive testing is hopefully clearer than tape action itself. Long-term we still see a bull grazing out there but he is tranquilized by the vast number of conflicting opinions about the economy and rising interest rates. Perhaps the simplest term for the drug that has put a governor on the bull is lack of conviction. This will change and that is why those investors looking past the short term should buy good stocks which are so much out of favor rather than many other investment vehicles so much in favor for so long.

For trades, we read the inconclusive tests differently. The market seems to have a cap on it and as yet a not clearly defined downside risk. Our technical and monetary indicators lead us to conclude that an 800 test is out there and why not in May, one of the poorest months of the year for stock buyers? If leadership, volume, and breadth inprove, there will be plenty of time to get on board. In the meantime, we remain cautious short-term, we look for bounces, but see better buying opportunities out a month or so.

Coalition To Confront Oil Giants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition, a consortium of labor, public interest, senior citizen and minority oranizations, announced a campaign Tuesday to roll back oil prices and reduce petroleum company profits.

"People are not stupid, you know. The only real winners in this so-called energy crisis are the oil companies," said William W. Winpisinger, president of the coalition and of the International Association of Machinists.

He said the coalition would attempt to create widespread public support to achieve its goals because "President Carter knuckled under to the oil companies. Congress has caved in to the energy companies."

The coalition's goals are to roll back energy prices, end oil company profiteering, eliminate what Winpisinger described as "phony oil shortages" and "stop the lying" by oil companies.

"Americans are sick of oil company ripoffs and weak-kneed public officials who are afraid to stand up to the corporate giants. It's time for the American people to confront the companies themselves and let them know in plain English they are not going to take it anymore," he said.

Gas Distributor Reveals Purchase

OMAHA (AP) — Northern Natural Gas Co., a Midwest wholesaler, will buy one-third of Exxon USA's Alaskan North Slope natural gas output over a 20-year period, it was announced Tuesday.

The agreement calls for Northern to purchase about 1.5 trillion cubic feet during the period, which will begin around 1984, when the 4,800-mile Alaskan Highway Pipeline project is expected to be completed.

A Northern Natural news release, issued from the corporation's Omaha headquarters, said Northern will pay Exxon $1.45 per million BTUs.

Northern said its purchase from Exxon is equivalent to 11 percent of Northern's average daily deliveries.

In addition, the gas corporation said, it has an agreement with BP-Sohio for nearly 2 trillion cubic feet of gas production from its Prudhoe Bay reserves.

Gordon Severa, Northern vice president for natural gas, said the Alaskan reserves are "very significant since they represent a long-term supply which will extend into the next century."

Northern Natural sells natural gas to 71 utilities in eight midwestern states — Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, South Dakota, Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. We are in our 70s and retired. Most of our money is in six-month savings certificates, with an average yield of 9½ percent. Since we are satisfied with this return, wouldn't it be better to invest this money — as the certificates mature — in industrial or utility bonds and "lock up" this high interest for the rest of our lives?

It seems to us that this would give us peace of mind, because we wouldn't have to wonder what the interest on certificates will be every six months.

A. Strictly for income purposes, you could do that. Many well-rated bonds of industrial companies and electric and gas utilities are now selling at prices where their interest provides yields of 9½ percent or better.

A bond is a debt security. A company which issues a bond pledges to pay the bondholder interest at a fixed annual rate and to pay off the bond at "par," or face, value at maturity. So, unless the issuer goes bankrupt — an unlikely prospect with a well-rated company — you would be sure of collecting steady interest.

Assuming that's the "peace of mind" you want, I can't fault your plan. You will have "locked up" today's yields, no matter what happens to interest rates in the future. If interest rates come down, you'll be very happy.

But, if interest rates go still higher in the years ahead, you might feel differently. If that does happen, the market values of bonds will fall. Although that won't affect your interest income, your peace of mind might be disturbed by the fact that the values of your investments have dropped.

Q. I set up savings accounts for three small children, with their mother as custodian, in 1973, hoping that with compounded interest the money would be helpful by the time the children are in high school. My broker said this was a big mistake. He pressured me into canceling the savings accounts and buying shares of a mutual fund for each of the children, again with the mother as custodian.

The fund is now way down in value. I am disgusted with the broker. Should the fund shares be sold and the money put in a more secure place?

A. My suggestion would be to leave things as they are. The mutual fund you named in your letter has a better than average record. You don't say when the switch from savings accounts to fund shares was made. It probably was at or near "the top of the market."

Prices of individual stocks and mutual fund shares rise and fall. But, over the really long term, the stock market has done better than savings accounts. If the kids still are young enough so that they don't need the money, give that fund investment some more time.

Q. My husband buys a $25 Series E, U.S. Savings Bond out of every paycheck. Should he continue to do this or should he open an Individual Retirement Aocount (IRA)? He is eligible for an IRA.

A. Then he should open an IRA. It's a much better deal — as far as taxes, investments and just about everything else is concerned — than buying E bonds through the payroll savings plan. Anyone who is not covered by a "qualified retirement plan" can and should open an IRA.

Money put into an IRA is not subject to income tax at the time it goes in. That reduces your taxes right off the bat. And the money the IRA investment earns — in dividends and-or interest — is also sheltered from income tax, until you start withdrawing it..

E bonds pale in comparison.

Student Business Group's Profits Increase Fourfold

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP) — General Motors and Exxon aren't the only firms reporting record profits. A collection of student-run businesses at Babson College, harkening to a new call of entrepreneurship, more than quadrupled their sales last year.

"We like to think of ourselves as entrepreneurs," says Johnnie Carson, a finance and marketing senior who heads the chamber of commerce at the 60-year-old business college.

The chamber — a collection of nearly 40 student businesses — issued its first annual report this year, reporting sales for the 1978-79 school year climbed to $250,000 from the $60,000 recorded in the previous year.

Carson, his cohorts and their advisers, all attribute the successful results to the new emphasis the school has put on entrepreneurship.

Babson last year initiated its Academy of Distinguished Entrepreneurs, honoring five men, including Soichiro Honda, Motown Records' Barry Gordy and McDonalds' Ray Kroc.

The business luminaries attended ceremonies at the school, speaking to the students about their successes and failures.

"The kids were really impressed and motivated by what these people had to say," said Dick Bishop, Babson's director of college relations who serves as an adviser to the student businesses.

Bishop downplays his role in the success of the pizza delivery companies, the refrigerator rental firms and advertising consulting businesses that draw customers from some 60 Boston-area colleges and universities.

"These kids are so well-organized, there really is no need for an adviser," he said.

Carson, whose printing company ended its first year with $13,000 in sales, says the idea of entrepreneurship has great appeal among many of the school's 1,300 students who "don't want to be a cog" in the great wheel of business.

"To me, an entrepreneur is someone who starts his own enterprise, incurs risks and takes full responsibility for the entire operation," says Carson. "It may be more work, but he also gets all the benefits."

The businesses are generally sold to underclassmen at the end of the year. But several of the student entrepreneurs, including Carson, plan to hold onto their companies after graduation.

Buoyed by this year's success, the chamber of commerce has set a goal of $500,000 in sales for next year, a figure some regard with skepticism.

"It may be a little unrealistic to hope to double your sales in a year," said Bishop. "But the students keep coming up with new ideas. Lord only knows what they'll do next year."

Police Putting 'Sting' On Fencing Operations

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

A poster of Farrah Fawcett-Majors naturally turned the heads of the thieves as they entered the nondescript warehouse in Kansas City and a hidden police camera got a clear shot.

That was during Operation Picaroon — named for pirates who prey on pirates — which netted 152 arrests and stolen goods valued at $1.5 million, ranging from a $1.50 electric fan to two tractor-trailer rigs, 156 firearms and 139 automobiles.

Over the past five years, similar scenarios have been staged 71 times by undercover police who set up phony fencing operations in 41 cities and collected more than $163 million in loot and arrested more than 6,500 criminals.

Many of the operations are still in progress, but the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration which puts up most of the "buy money" won't say where, for obvious reasons.

Music from the movie "The Sting" was playing in the background as agents from the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation held a news conference in Charlotte to announce they had sprung a trap and rounded up 109 suspects, plus a half million dollars worth of property.

And undercover operatives in Tampa, Fla., had a private laugh when they tacked up a sign at their warehouse for hot goods, naming it G.U.L.F. Industries, for "Government Uncovers Local Fences."

Gimmickry notwithstanding, police and federal agents posing as buyers of stolen property have an impressive track record. Since the idea was conceived on a grand scale in 1974 for an operation in Washington, more than 6,654 suspects have been indicted on 8,691 charges, and the LEAA says more than 90 percent have gone to jail.

That was with a total outlay of $4 million in "buy money" put up by the LEAA, which also provides some equipment and training of local law officers.

Defenders of the "sting" operations — so named by police in Washington, D.C., who sprang the first big trap in February 1976 and got $2.5 million in contraband — point to the high conviction rate and say it has proven to be a successful crime deterrent.

The LEAA says a survey of eight cities with populations of more than 100,000 showed the crime rate had dropped at a greater rate in cities where the scheme was tried.

By the first anniversary of Kansas City's Operaion Picaroon in February, 65 of the 152 suspects had been sentenced to jail, mostly on charges of crimes against property. Another 37 were placed on probation. Five were found innocent and charges were dropped against 15 others for lack of sufficient evidence. The rest either had not been captured or were awaiting trial, sentencing or extradition.

But critics claim mostly petty crooks are being rounded up and at least one judge wondered out loud whether providing such a market for stolen property actually encourages crime.

"It turned my stomach," said Mecklenburg Superior Court Judge Frank Snepp, who presided over most of the cases in Charlotte, N.C., where only 27 of the 109 arrested were sent to prison.

"I've got big doubts about such things, whether it doesn't increase break-ins if they know there's a market. It's like putting candy in front of a baby."

But in Los Angeles, where last year's Operation Tar Pit yielded 256 arrests and $42 million worth of loot on a $450,000 grant from the LEAA, Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess said:

"We have injected a monstrous note of uncertainty into the plans of those who would like to engage in fencing operations."

In Tampa, Fla., where the stunt has been pulled three times over the past five years, officials point out that all 68 suspects arrested in stings in 1975 and 1976 pleaded guilty to charges including possession of stolen property, armed robbery, burglary, auto theft and even kidnapping.

"On the kidnapping count, a guy stole a car at gunpoint with someone in it," said a Tampa undercover agent who didn't want to be named. "Then he drove around a few hours before bringing it to us. I have no idea why."

Taking a cue from their big city cousins, sheriff's officers in Penobscot County, Maine, set up sting operations at Ron's Junk Shop in Solon, population 700, and at Sam's Bargain Barn in Veazie, a small Bangor suburb of 1,600, complete with hidden videotape cameras to record the illegal activities.

They collected $850,000 in hot merchandise, including a $45,000 tractor-trailer truck for which they paid $2,400. But, more importantly, they arrested 60 persons who all pleaded guilty.

"We were 60 for 60," said Sheriff Otis LaBree, who ran the operation under the code name "Queen Bee."

Success of the stings often depends on the acting ability of the undercover operatives. In Sacramento, Calif., it was a young police officer who set up a front as a small appliance repairman and infiltrated the underworld. His work led to 36 arrests and all went to prison.

The star of a phony storefront operation in Nashville, Tenn., which netted $2.27 million in loot and a roundup of more than 300 suspects, was Charles Lowe, a balding 40-year-old agent of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Firearms and Tobacco.

Bearded and using the name Charles Becho, Lowe ran an outfit called the Consolidated Telegraph Co. He purchased everything from dynamite to blood plasma and diamonds. Once he was slugged and arrested by an unknowing local officer who stumbled onto the operation.

When the shop was finally closed, Lowe added a final dramatic touch. He hung a wreath on the door saying that his wife had died. Later a second note appeared on the door, presumably from one of "Becho's" colleagues. It said:

"Bates was here. Sorry ..."

Murder, Fraud Suspected In Fire Death

NASHVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A mystery with all the trappings of a Perry Mason thriller will unfold in a courtroom Wednesday in search of an answer to a question that has unsettled this southern Indiana tourist town for nine years: Is Clarence Roberts dead or alive?

Was the charred corpse found in the ashes of a fire-ravaged garage that chilly, mid-November night in 1970 really Roberts? Or was it some innocent pawn in a scheme to bilk four insurance companies out of more than $1 million?

Roberts' wife, Geneva, who has gone to court to force the companies to pay the death benefits, wants him declared legally dead.

Insurance company investigators, on the ther hand, claim they ave witneses who have seen the 53-year-old businessman and former county sheriff or have heard his voice on the telephone since the fire. They want Roberts declared alive.

"On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, I think he's alive; on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, I think he's dead, and on Sunday, I just don't know," said J.D. Ackman of the Wabash Life Insurance Co. The firm insured Roberts for about $300,000 and lent him money for a series of investments that proved disastrous.

"The fact that this has gone on now for more than seven years and he has not shown up has blown a lot of theories people had over the course of time," said Dr. Robert Seibel, a family friend.

One of those theories alleges that Roberts killed another man, put the body in the garage and set it afire so his family could collect the insurance money and pay off more than $200,000 in debts. Along that line, a Brown County grand jury indicted Roberts in 1975 on murder and kidnapping charges in the death of the person whose remains were found in the burned-out garage. That case is pending.

"I couldn't imagine him doing what they say he did," Seibel said. "Anybody's capable of doing some things when they get backed in a corner. We all have a little of the savage in us. But this would have to have been very carefully planned. To accomplish it, he would had to have money to get away, which doesn't make it very probable."

"At first, everybody thought he committed suicide," Seibel added. "That is my feeling, too. He just couldn't see his way out from under."

Ackman, who calls himself one of the "leading authorities" on the case, said Roberts' brother, Warren, who was Brown County sheriff at the time, insisted the body was not that of his brother.

"We were ready to pay off," Ackman said. "He was in the ground already, then everybody got cold feet and dug him up."

An autopsy showed the victim's bone structure and teeth differed from Roberts', and the victim's blood-type was not the same as that listed on Roberts' military records. But medical authorities said those records were inconclusive because of the possibility of error. Other experts questioned the physical evidence because of the impact of intense heat on blood and bone.

Nevertheless, state police concluded the body could not have been Roberts.

Geneva Roberts clings tenaciously to the belief that it was her husband she buried in Nashville Memorial Cemetery, using a "John Doe" death certificate when the county coroner refused to issue a certificate in Roberts' name.

Don Robertson, Mrs. Roberts' attorney, said he hopes to introduce new evidence to bury Roberts once and for all.

European Panelists Hit Increase In Pollution

PARIS (AP) — A 22-nation panel of researchers says the Western world is getting noiser and dirtier and warns that many environmental problems affecting the quality of life are not being solved.

The Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a think tank of specialists from Western nations, also says agricultural land in the West is decreasing, wildlife species are dwindling and drinking water contains more chemicals than ever before.

The group makes no specific recommendation on what to do about pollution in its report, released Tuesday. The findings are scheduled for presentation to a conference of environment ministers here next week.

Noise pollution is far worse in the United States than in other Western countries, the organization said.

The group says 13 percent of all Americans would be awakened by airplanes if they slept with their windows open. Elsewhere in the West, the statistic is 2 percent, the report said.

Noise that can permanently damage hearing is twice as likely to occur in the United States as it is in Canada and Japan, the organization said.

Air pollution remains a critical problem, the group said. Although concentrations of sulfur dioxide in most city air samples are showing decreases, carbon monoxide emissions from cars have soared. In Europe, "it has been impossible to do more than prevent conditions from worsening," the report said. The United States, Canada and Japan have improved in that area by setting stringent standards.

The panel said the quality of drinking water is "satisfactory in many places," but a matter of concern in urban and industrial areas. A study of rivers shows that only the Red River and Nelson River in Canada and the Loire River in France contain less nitrate pollution than when testing was done in 1966.

In some areas, the environmental report was not so bleak. Pollution from chimneys and sewage has declined, illness causd by short-term exposure to pollution has dwindled and the amount of woodland and parks remains stable in Western countries.

But the researchers said the air is becoming generally dirtier, cancer and other long-term illnesses caused by pollution are on the rise and urbanization is slicing into the world's reserves of farmland.

The panel describes the environment as the third-biggest public issue in the West after inflation and unemployment. It rejects the idea that environmental concerns hurt the economy by eliminating jobs and making goods and services cost more.

"Existing studies show that environmental policies have had only small effects on total employment, on prices and on economic growth," the report says.

Aquatic Plants May Give Fire Retarding Chemicals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The University of Washington, using a $1.9 million grant, is seeking to learn whether chemical compounds from acquatic plants can be used to help protect children's clothing from fire.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said Tuesday the university's scientists, using a government grant, are analyzing the properties of an abundant Pacific Northwest alga which has enzymes that cause chemicals to bond fabrics, making them fire-resistant.

The NOAA said the scientists "believe that the plant enzymes could be an economical and effective substitute for fire-retardant chemicals that were removed from the market because of their possible contribution to the incidence of cancer."

Dissident's Family Denied Visitor

MOSCOW (AP) — A Moscow woman tried to visit the family of one of five prisoners traded to the United States last week for two Russian spies but was prevented from doing so by police in Kiev, dissident leader Andrei Sakharov said Tuesday.

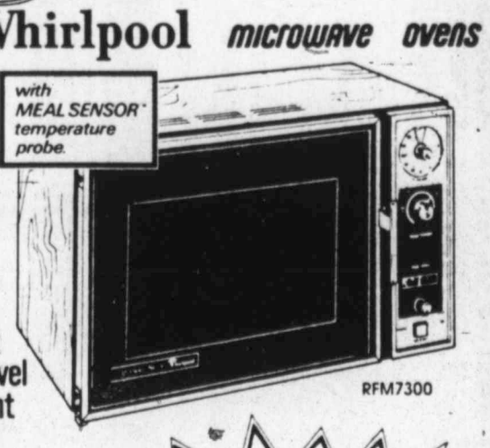

Malva Landa went to the Ukrainian capital Monday to give the family of Baptist pastor Georgi Vins $150 and a letter from Sakharov, he said by telephone.

But Mrs. Landa, a member of Moscow's "Helsinki" human rights group, was searched and put on a train back to Moscow by police, the Nobel prize-winning physicist said.

Dow Achieves Trend Shift

NEW YORK (AP) — Individual stocks responding to earnings reports and takeover developments held the spotlight on Wall Street Tuesday as the over-all market drifted aimlessly.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had fallen 12.56 points in the last three sessions, managed a .61 gain to 855.51.

Advances just slightly outnumbered declines in the over-all count on the New York Stock Exchange.

For the second straight session, Brascan Ltd.'s class A shares were by far the most actively traded issue, with Edper Equities of Canada adding to its holdings in the company.

The stock dropped 1⅛ to 21¼ on turnover of nearly 3.5 million shares — record daily volume for a single issue at the American Stock Exchange. By itself, Brascan accounted for close to half the total turnover of 7.81 million shares on the Amex.

Edper Equities, which has bought nearly 7 million Brascan shares since the start of the week, said late in the day it held 31 percent of the company, and was now "out of the market" for the stock.

Edper opposes Brascan's plans for an acquisition bid for F.W. Woolworth, the large U.S. retailer. Thus, Woolworth's stock fell 1⅝ to 25⅝ in active trading on the Big Board.

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues at Consolidated Tape close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Wellington Farmer Honored As Leading Area Conservationist

A Wellington farmer was honored as conservation farmer of the year Tuesday at the 1979 Area 1 Soil and Water Conservation awards banquet.

G. Neil Davis, who was nominated by the Salt Fork Soil and Water Conservation District, received the award before a crowd of about 350 people at the Texas Tech University Center Ballroom.

Frank Gray, chairman of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation board, was master of ceremonies for the program that honored 14 people for their efforts and talents to making wise use of renewable natural resources.

Area 1 consists of 51 counties in the Panhandle and High Plains of Texas. Sponsors of the regional awards program are the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation board, the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts and the 199 local Soil and Water Conservation Districts in Texas.

A list of the awards, the recipients and nominating districts follow:

Outstanding conservation district — Ochiltree SWCD; Bill Miller, chairman; Perryton.

Outstanding resident conservation farmer-rancher — G. Neil Davis of Wellington, Salt Fork SWCD.

Absentee conservation farmer-rancher — Kenneth Gibson of Sidney, Upper Colorado SWCD.

Essay Contest — 1. Chris Kirksey of Booker, Lipscomb SWCD. 2. Ann Jeffrey of Pampa, Gray SWCD. 3. Katrina Chaffin of Southland, Garza SWCD.

Poster Contest — 1. Alvin Meyer of Happy, Tule Creek SWCD. 2. Amy Long of Childress, Hall-Childress SWCD. 3. Kimberly Hand of Matador, Upper Pease SWCD.

Business-professional man or woman — John Muthersbough of Canyon, Palo Duro SWCD.

Conservation teacher — Kenneth Foster of Levelland, Hockley SWCD.

Wildlife Conservationist — Randy Beasley of Morton, Cochran SWCD.

Public media award — Jim Steiert, farm and ranch editor of the Hereford Brand newspaper in Hereford, Tierra Blanco SWCD.

Conservation homemaker — Leta Goodin of Claude, Staked Plains SWCD.

CONSERVATION WINNERS — Frank Gray, chairman of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, stands between the two major award winners at the 1979 board convention, held Tuesday in the University Center at Texas Tech. G. Neil Davis of Wellington, left, was named resident conservation farmer of the year, while Bill Miller of Perryton was cited for having the Outstanding Conservation District. Ag Department Disperses $37.6 Million For Feed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reports that its emergency feed program provided more than $37.6 million between October and March to help U.S. livestock producers buy up to 1.96 billion pounds of feed.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the department has approved 46,841 of the 58,570 applications received — 80 percent — during the first six months of fiscal 1979.

Under the emergency feed program, officials say, the agriculture secretary may authorize financial aid to farmers whose livestocks are threatened by conditions brought on by a natural disaster.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL has strongly urged the U. S. Department of Agriculture to drop consideration of a proposal for paying the expenses of witnesses to testify in its hearings.

Macon Edwards, vice president of the council's Washington operations, told USDA officials at a hearing Tuesday in Washington, D. C., that such a practice would seriously endanger the democratic system of government.

He said the proposal would give a government agency the power to select and solicit witnesses whose viewpoints coincide with its own, and to deny the payment of expenses for witnesses opposing the agency's view.

"THE RESULT WOULD BE A STACKED hearing record justifying what the agency proposed to do in the first place, thus enabling government to impose its will on the people," Edwards said.

"The very foundation and strength of our democratic society is the people's control of government, not government control of the people."

While saying he did not expect such abuses to occur in USDA, Edwards expressed great concern that the proposal would establish a precedent for other government agencies.

He commended USDA's effort to facilitate input from all those affected by its rulemaking, but said the fact that the department has offices in virtually every county in the nation allows it to have day-to-day contacts with the people its rules affect.

Edwards also pointed out that the proposal would require additional federal spending at a time when efforts are being made to dampen inflation. As an example, he cited the proposed $3.3 million cut in agricultural research.

"NOT BY THE WILDEST STRETCH OF THE imagination can we see benefits from the proposal before us today even approaching those of a stronger, better-financed research program," he commented. "It's hard to understand how paying witnesses could take priority over research."

The council official said cotton industry people — as taxpayers — strenuously object to having their tax dollars used to advocate positions which might be totally opposite to theirs.

"If a particular viewpoint has enough merit to justify its representation to government, then we believe private funding can be obtained to cover the expense of doing so," he added.

Edwards suggested that USDA use other means of obtaining needed input to rule-making, including field hearings and instructions to its personnel in local offices to seek viewpoints of affected persons.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures rose and wheat and soybean futures were mixed Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Signs of good export business in corn continued to bolster corn futures. The Agriculture Department said after the close Monday that 46.4 million bushels of corn wre shipped abroad last week, 16.4 million bushels more than the previous week. Private exporters also reported a 363,000-metric ton corn sale to unknown destinations, the most recent of several such announcements in the last week.

Cattle Futures Finish Mixed In Trading

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 40 points lower to 30 higher on 32,763 cars Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. August was off the most at the day's low with most other months higher led by distant August. The nearby ran up 77 early.

Early support followed record high beef and higher cash cattle with late selling ascribed to profit taking. The cash connected commission house was selling the nearby and buying later months.

Wholesale beef was up one at 114½ cents a pound, which is a record high. Cash cattle were unchanged to up $2 with the best top $78 per hundredweight at St. Louis. Slaughter was 107,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 18,100 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 60 higher to 25 lower on 4,777 sales. May led the advance after gaining 105 with November down the most. Losses ran to 32 in nearer months in earlier trade. Profit taking pared the early gain which was sparked by fresh strength in cash feeder cattle and beef. Some reaction followed slippage in live cattle futures.

There have been 26 deliveries thus far. Cash feeders were unchanged to up $5 with the best top $140 per hundredweight at Louisville. About 7,700 head are expected at the major terminals today.

Hog futures closed 70 lower to 7 higher on 5,384 lots. July was weakest after slipping 105 with only distant June higher. Earlier, April gained 45. Spreaders were selling nearby contracts and buying deferreds.

Nearby pressure stemmed from heavy hog runs and slaughter and mostly lower prices. Easy tone to pork products also brought some selling. Traders noted, however, that futures continue to maintain a sharp premium over cash.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to off ¼ at 71 to 74 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up 50 cents to off $1 with the best top $46 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 341,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 31,500 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 27 to 130 lower led by August after July skidded 170. Sales totaled 5,864 contracts. Earlier, May rose 22.

Initial support carried over from Monday night but was erased as cash hogs declined and cash bellies eased at noon. Delivery of 33 cars was also negative as was the possibility of sizeable storings out of town.

There have been 33 deliveries thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 1 cent at 48 to 56½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Conservation Expert To Speak

Ray V. Fitzgerald, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Washington D.C., will keynote the annual meeting of American Cotton Growers at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the board room here of Farmers Cooperative Compress.

ACG is the farmer cooperative whose 3,000 members own and operate a denim mill at Littlefield that manufactures more than 20-million linear yards of heavyweight, indigo-dyed, finished denim annually. The cooperative's principal customer is Levi Strauss & Co.

Fitzgerald is head of the government agency in the U.S. Department of Agriculture that administers federal programs covering various commodities including cotton.

The cooperative is in the midst of its most successful financial year, said L. C. Unfred of New Home, president.

Members recently received $3¼-million in cash payouts as progress payments covering the past two seasons. To date, members already have received nine cents per pound above Commodity Credit Corp. loan values on the 1978 crop. Additional cash payments on the 1978 crop are anticipated.

EPA ESTIMATED MPG
38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE
With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.
CITY ESTIMATE 24

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy, the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate."

Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

CHEVY CITATION

Citation goes a long way on a tank of gas. But that's just the start. Citation has the traction of front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, and a transverse mounted engine that's cradled in rubber cushioned mountings to reduce engine vibration. Sleek Citation is easy to park, yet big enough for five adults and lots of cargo. See Chevy Citation for yourself. And to really appreciate it, get behind the wheel!

EPA ESTIMATED MGP 38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE · CITY ESTIMATE 24

With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy, the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate".

Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The US Army Corps of Engineers has initiated several organizational and realignment studies aimed at identifying opportunities for improving the performance and management capability of its water resources (civil works) activities and military construction. As a part of this initiative, the Southwestern Division Engineer is conducting a specific study to assess the costs and benefits of possible realignment involving the Albuquerque, Little Rock, Fort Worth, and Tulsa Districts.

The Realignment Study will review workload requirements and investigate several realignment alternatives to determine the most efficient manner of accomplishing the workload within these district boundaries, consistent with the high quality of Corps work in the past.

The study will consist of an evaluation of the operational, budgetary, economic, environmental, community, and employee impacts associated with the final alternatives considered.

At this point we are considering the following alternatives in making this evaluation: (No district closures are being considered.)

b. To consolidate military-real estate services in the Fort Worth and Tulsa Districts or centralize them in the Fort Worth District.

c. To change the Fort Worth, Albuquerque, Tulsa, and Little Rock Districts' internal boundaries to more closely align them with state boundaries and minimize the number of Southwestern Division districts in any given state, and the Galveston District boundary to eliminate two districts serving one city, i.e., Austin, Texas.

d. To change the Southwestern Division external boundaries to more closely align the boundary along state lines to minimize the number of divisions in a given state. This would include external boundaries of all Southwestern Division districts.

e. To transfer some civil works operating projects between Southwestern Division districts.

f. To establish a Corps of Engineers liaison office in some state capitol cities.

g. To transfer a portion of the military design and construction functions from the Fort Worth District to the Albuquerque District and/or Little Rock District.

You are invited to submit your comments and suggestions on these alternatives. Your comments should be mailed to US Army Engineer Division, Southwestern, ATTN: SWDDC-RS, Main Tower Building, Room 730B, 1200 Main Street, Dallas, TX 75202, to be received by 7 May 1979. All comments will be given full consideration in reaching study conclusions and recommendations.

BID NOTICE

The Lubbock Independent School District will receive sealed bids for air conditioners until 2:00 PM (CDT), May 15, 1979, in the office of the Director of Purchasing, 1628 19th Street, Lubbock, Texas 79401. Braves Beat Pirates 5-2

By The Associated Press

Knuckleballer Phil Niekro notched his 200th career victory as the Atlanta Braves beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2 with the aid of two home runs by Gary Matthews.

Matthews broke a 2-2 tie when he led off the ninth with an inside-the-park homer off loser Kent Tekulve, 1-4, and Atlanta added two insurance runs on a sacrifice fly by Mike Lum and an RBI single by Glenn Hubbard.

Niekro, who earned his first big league victory here in May 1965, tossed a seven-hitter to raise his record this season to 3-4. His career mark is 200-175.

With the score tied 2-2 in the ninth, Matthews lined a pitch from Tekulve to shallow right. Dave Parker attempted a shoe-string catch, but the sinking drive bounced past him into the right field corner and Matthews scored standing up.

Matthews' homer over the center field wall gave Atlanta a 1-0 lead in the third inning off Pirates starter Bert Blyleven. Tim Foli doubled in the third and fifth innings off Niekro and scored each time to give Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead. A sacrifice fly by Dale Murphy tied the score in the Atlanta sixth.

INDIANS 3, BREWERS 1

Rick Manning drove in all Cleveland's runs with a single and a homer to lead the Indians to a 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Mike Paxton, 1-1, gained the victory with seventh-inning help from Sid Monge. Loser Lary Sorensen, 3-3, went all the way for the Brewers.

The Indians jumped on top in the first inning when Jim Norris led off with a double, went to third on an infield out and scored on Manning's single. They made it 3-0 in the third on a single by Norris and Manning's first home run of the season.

The Brewers got seven hits off Paxton in 61-3 innings but their only run came in the sixth on Ben Oglivie's double and a single by Sal Bando. Monge came on with one out and two on in the seventh, got out of a jam via a grounder and a fly ball and went on to register his third save of the season.

TWINS 3, BLUE JAYS 2

Ken Landreaux hit a solo home run in the sixth inning to give the Minnesota Twins a 3-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Jerry Koosman, 5-0, went six innings to become the majors' first five-game winner. He scattered nine hits and struck out five before giving way to relief ace Mike Marshall in the seventh after walking the leadoff batter. Marshall earned his eighth save.

Willie Norwood gave the Twins a 1-0 lead in the second inning with his third homer of the year off Jesse Jefferson, 0-2. Rob Wilfong followed with a double and scored on a two-out single by Landreaux.

Toronto tied the game 2-2 with a run-scoring double by Rick Bosetti in the third and an RBI single by Alfredo Griffin in the fourth. Landreaux belted Jefferson's first offering over the fence with one out in the sixth.

ROYALS 9, RANGERS 3

Darrell Porter and Frank White smashed home runs to back the combined seven-hit pitching of Paul Splittorff and Marty Pattin and power the Kansas City Royals to a 9-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Splittorff, 4-2, yielded only a two-out double to Bill Sample in the third inning. Pattin took over at the start of the sixth when Splittorff developed a sore back.

White led off the bottom of the first inning with a homer off Jon Matlack, 0-1, who was jolted for five hits and six runs while lasting only 21-3 innings in his first appearance of the season after coming off the disabled list.

The Royals made it 3-0 before the first inning was over on Porter's RBI grounder and John Wathan's run-scoring single. Pete LaCock greeted reliever Doc Medich with a bases-loaded two-run single in the third. In the fifth, Al Cowens singled and Porter blasted a 425-foot shot over the center field wall.

CARDINALS 7, ASTROS 6

Pinch-hitter Roger Freed slugged a bases-loaded home run with two out in the bottom of the 11th inning, powering the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-6 triumph over the Houston Astros.

The dramatic hit wiped out a three-run rally by Houston in the top of the 11th that had given the Astros a 6-3 lead.

Freed's homer, his first career grand slam, was his first hit of the year in six pinch-hit appearances. It pinned the loss on Astros left-hander Joe Sambito, 2-1, who earlier worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the 10th.

Tony Scott triggered the Cards' rally with a leadoff single. Ken Reitz struck out, but Ken Oberkfell and Steve Swisher each walked before Freed homered after Garry Templeton struck out.

Enos Cabell's fielder's-choice grounder, Burt Bochte's RBI single and Joe Sambito's run-scoring double put Houston ahead 6-3 lead in the top of the frame.

Earlier, Houston overcame a 3-1 St. Louis edge when Craig Reynolds doubled home pinch-runner Jimmy Sexton in the eighth and scored on Jose Cruz' single.

CUBS 5, REDS 1

Bill Buckner smashed home runs his first two times at bat and Ivan DeJesus drove in two runs with a second-inning single as the Chicago Cubs beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-1.

Buckner got both homers off Cincinnati starter Fred Norman, 1-3. His first-inning shot just cleared the right field wall and his third-inning blast bounced off the second-level facade at Riverfront Stadium.

Jerry Martin doubled for Chicago in the second inning and Norman loaded the bases by walking Ted Sizemore and pitcher Ken Holtzman before giving up the two-run single to DeJesus.

The Cubs scored again in the seventh off reliever Tom Hume when DeJesus reached base on a fielder's choice and came in on a single by Bobby Murcer.

Holtzman, 2-1, scattered six hits in71-3 innigs for the victory.

The Reds' run came in the third inning on a single by Ray Knight and a triple by Ken Griffey.

TIGERS 5, WHITE SOX 2

Lance Parrish and Jerry Morales hit successive home runs in the eighth inning to help the Detroit Tigers to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Parrish's second homer of the season came with two out off loser Ken Kravec, 0-3, and Morales followed with his first of the year. Steve Baker, 1-2, gained the victory with seventh-inning help from Jack Billingham.

GIANTS 7, PHILLIES 0

Terry Whitfield slammed an inside-the-park home run, singled and drove in three runs, while Bob Knepper pitched a five-hitter as the San Francisco Giants beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-0 and snapped an eight-game losing streak.

It was the first victory in the last game of a frustrating road trip for the Giants, who for the third time since they moved from New York to the West Coast city, had lost eight straight games.

PADRES 10, METS 5

Gene Tenace and Barry Evans drove in two runs apiece with a pair of bases-loaded singles and the San Diego Padres trimmed the New York Mets 10-5.

Gaylord Perry worked six innings to earn his 270th major league victory. He surrendered nine hits, including a three-run homer by Doug Flynn, but struck out 10 Mets, getting leadoff man Frank Taveras four times. Bullpen ace Rollie Fingers finished up.

Flynn's second-inning homer staked Mets starter Wayne Twitchell to a 3-0 lead but the Padres knocked him out in the third. Fernando Gonzalez opened with a triple and scored on Perry's double. A hit batsmen and a walk loaded the bases. When Twitchell forced in a run by walking Mike Hargrove, Kevin Kobel relieved for the Mets and Tenace greeted him with a two-run single.

The Mets tied it in the fourth on Joel Youngblood's double, a single by Steve Henderson and Flynn's infield out.

It stayed 4-4 until the seventh when Gene Richards opened with a single. He moved up on a sacrifice and scored on Jerry Turner's single. Walks to Hargrove and Tenace loaded the bases and Evans drove in two more runs with a single up the middle.

Bruins Post NHL Win

A-J News Service

Veteran defenseman Brad Park charged deliberately the length of the ice and scored with just over three minutes remaining in the third period boosting the Boston Bruins to a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Canadiens.

Park's goal at 16:48 of the third period broke up a brilliant goal-tending duel between Boston's Gilles Gilbert and Montreal's Ken Dryden and kept alive the Bruins' Stanley Cup playoff hopes.

With victories in the first two games in Montreal, the Canadiens lead the best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal series 2-1.

The fourth game is scheduled here Thursday night.

Park, plagued by knee trouble much of the regular season, scored his first goal of the current playoffs with a snake-like manuever after Larry Robinson had pulled Montreal into a 1-1 tie by converting a rebound at 13:23 of the finale.

Taking a pass from Jean Ratelle deep in the Boston zone, Park started out slowly. He began picking up speed approaching center ice as defenseman Mike Milbury and winger Don Marcotte joined him to assist him on the attack. Robinson was the only Montreal defenseman back while both teams were shorthanded.

Using Milbury and Marcotte as decoys, Park speeded into the Montreal zone, went around Robinson as the Montreal defenseman dropped to his knees. Park then fired a 20-foot wrist shot, beating Dryden to his stick side.

Boston took a 1-0 lead on Stan Jonathan's goal at 12:19 of the first period. Both teams had scoring opportunities after that, but neither goalie would bend until Robinson and, then, Park managed to break through late in the game.

With his 27th playoff goal, Park became the all-time leader among defensemen in Stanley Cup play. He broke a tie with former Boston great Bobby Orr, now retired.

The Bruins outshot the Canadiens 31-18, including 13-8 in the final period.

Gilbert, a 30-year-old goalie who has played in the shadow of veteran Gerry Cheevers, was given his first playoff start since 1976. He responded with an outstanding effort as the Bruins, beaten by the Canadiens in the championship round the last two years, snapped an eight-game winless streak against Montreal.

Gilbert set the tempo in the fifth minute of play when he held his ground and made a tremendous save to rob Montreal's Doug Risebrough on a breakaway. Gilbert also turned in many other acrobatic stops before being beaten by Robinson from closeup on a second rebound.

Early in the third period, Gilbert made three saves within 15 seconds in frustrating the Canadiens. Boston then successfully killed a penalty incurred for having too many men on the ice, and the two teams exchanged scoring opportunities.

After Robinson tied the score, the Bruins got an unusual break. Jonathan and Dryden scuffled at the Montreal crease. Both were penalized for slashing at 15:11. Before the penalties were up, Park scored the deciding goal.

RANGERS 3, ISLANDERS 1

Second-period goals by Bobby Sheehan and Phil Esposito carried the ever-poised New York Rangers to a 3-1 triumph over the New York Islanders Tuesday night, giving the winners a 2-1 lead in their National Hockey League semifinal playoff series.

The Rangers went ahead when Sheehan — promoted only seven games ago from New Haven in the American Hockey League — banged in a rebound of Mike McEwen's shot at 3:14 of the period. Bob Bourne tied it for the Islanders at 14:04, taking the puck when Rangers defenseman Mario Marois couldn't control it and lifting a 15-foot backhander over the shoulder of goalie John Davidson.

But the Rangers refused to sag under pressure from the team that compiled the regular-season's finest record. And at 16:23, the veteran Esposito rapped in a pass from Don Maloney to give the Rangers a 2-1 lead.

As had been the pattern in the first two games, the Rangers owned the play in the second period. Over the three games, they have outshot the Islanders 44-16 and outscored them 5-2.

In the third period, Steve Vickers stole a pass from the Islanders' Stefan Persson and broke in on goalie Glenn Resch. He lost control of the puck after passing the netminder, but swept around from behind the cage to increase the Rangers' lead with 6:05 to play.

As also had been the case in the first two games, the Rangers' penalty-killing supremacy frustrated the league's most potent regular-season power play.

Sikma Paces Sonics By Suns In NBA Action

SEATTLE (AP) — Jack Sikma's 10 third-period points broke the game open and Gus Williams popped in 11 of his game-high 27 points in the final quarter to lead the Seattle SuperSonics to a 108-93 victory Tuesday night over the Phoenix Suns in the opening game of their National Basketball Association Western Conference championship series.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is set for Friday night in the Seattle Kingdome.

The Sonics blended fierce rebounding with a tenacious defense to deny the Suns the running game they prefer.

Forward John Johnson held Walter Davis, the Suns' leading scorer in the playoffs, to only four points in the first half. Davis finished with 13, nine below his playoff average.

Lonnie Shelton scored 15 points and Williams added 14 as the Sonics raced to a 52-44 halftime advantage. Baskets by each of Seattle's five starters boosted the Sonics lead to 62-50 early in the third period.

After a basket by Davis, Suns guard Gar Heard was whistled for a technical foul. Dennis Johnson made the penalty shot and then fed Sikma for an easy basket and a 65-52 lead that finished Phoenix.

Seattle took an 81-66 lead into the fourth quarter and a basket by Williams with 6:40 to go gave the Sonics their biggest lead of the game, 97-75.

Shelton added 19 points and Dennis Johnson 17. Sikma finished with 16. Alvan Adams led Phoenix with 18 points and Mike Bratz added 17 off the bench.

Seattle finished with a 56-45 edge on the boards, including 20 rebounds in the first period. Sikma led the way with 11 rebounds, Shelton had 10 and John Johnson added eight and a game-high nine assists.

Top Midland Netter Signed By Tech

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Midland's Jeff Bramlett says that he always considered Lubbock "almost a second home," and on Tuesday Bramlett began plans to move to here on a more permanent basis.

Bramlett signed a national letter-of-intent with Texas Tech tennis coach Mark Hamilton in an affair that made both Bramlett and Hamilton very happy.

"I talked to all the other Southwest conference schools," said Bramlett. "But my family has always lived in West Texas, my sister went to school at Tech and I've always liked Lubbock."

In fact, Bramlett was in Lubbock over the weekend as he teamed with Pierre De Chaud to capture the Class AAAA regional doubles crown. Currently he is the sixth-ranked player in the state but he has beaten every one of the top players except Paul Crozier — ranked No. 1.

"He (Bramlett) could turn out to be real good," said Hamilton. "He'll definitely play for us next year. There's no question about that — it's just a matter of where (in the lineup)."

The Raiders lose two players, David Crissey and Harrison Bowes, from this spring's 10-14 squad. And Hamilton has said that they will sign at least two more players besides Bramlett this year.

Hamilton is currently talking to another Midland netter, Jose Rivera, who played for Midland College this spring. According to Hamilton, Rivera may be one of the best juco players in the nation.

"I'm real impressed with Rivera," said Hamilton. "He could step in here and help us right away."

Bramlett didn't play tennis last summer, and according to Hamilton, that hurt him during the fall season and kept him from being ranked even higher.

"But he's going to play a lot this summer," he added. "He'll definitely be ready to play for us."

The Tech netters were 1-8 in SWC play this spring and 10-14 overall. But that record actually shows a marked improvement for the Raiders who hadn't won a SWC dual match since 1977, until they whipped Baylor 9-0 last week.

And in the SWC point standings the Raiders finished with 16 points — they had only 2 last year.

"We did exactly eight times better this year than last year," said Hamilton. "With some good recruiting we can do even better next year."

And at least one Raider netter (Bramlett) has high hopes.

"I think the team will really be good next year," said Bramlett. "I've talked to Coach Hamilton about it, and I consider Tech to have one of the best teams in the state. They could be in the top three in the Southwest Conference. Tech is improving."

Spurs Seek To End Jinx

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs, one of pro basketball's best at qualifying for the playoffs, and perhaps the worst once they get there, will be facing more than Philadelphia in tonight's decisive game.

They'll also face their own miserable playoff past, says veteran guard and Spurs team captain James Silas.

The Central Division champions have frittered away a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven, Eastern Conference semifinal series. They host the rejuvenated 76ers in the decisive seventh game at 7:30 p.m.

"We can't deny the past. It's staring us right in the face," said Silas. "The pressure's on. We have to respond to it. If we lose, people will say the same things, about how we get in the playoffs and choke."

"We'll be playing at home. We're not shook (up) or anything," he added.

The franchise, in its 12-year history in two cities and two pro leagues, has qualified for the playoffs 11 times. But the team won only one series — its first, a 1968 three-game series over Houston as the American Basketball Association's Dallas Chaparrals.

They lost in the next round that year, later falling in first-round games seven times in the ABA and twice in the National Basketball Association.

San Antonio turned a home-court advantage to a 3-1 lead in ths year's series. But Philadelphia ruined the Spurs' chance to clinch the series last Thursday, trouncing the Spurs 120-97 on their own court. The 76ers won again, 92-90, in Philadelphia on Sunday.

San Antonio coach Doug Moe, who has coached the Spurs' two NBA playoff failures, curtly dismisses the idea of a playoff jinx.

"In the games, you don't think about it. It just doesn't come up. All you think about is that game. You don't say, 'Gee, we've never won a playoff.' "That's something for the press. It makes for interesting reading. But it has nothing to do with the game.

"The Washington Bullets went for a long time without winning a playoff and now everybody calls them a clutch playoff team. The Oakland Raiders did it. These things happen," he added.

San Antonio's 6-foot-11 center Billy Paultz, suffering from a pulled hamstring, is "doubtful" for tonight's game, said Moe. That means pencil-thin Mike Green, 6-10 and barely 200 pounds, will start against massive 6-11, 260-pound Darryl Dawkins.

"Billy's a good rebounder and takes up a lot of room in the middle. It (Paultz's absence) will affect us," Moe said of the 240-pound Paultz. "If you don't have a guy, there's no use crying about it. It's part of the game."

"He hasn't been 100 percent lately because of injuries. If he had, we'd be losing a lot," he added.

Philadelphia coach Billy Cunningham, who played on the 1968 76ers — one of only two NBA teams to blow a 3-1 playoff lead and lose a series — said he knows how the Spurs feel.

"There's no question you start feeling a little doubt in yourselves. You think about the comfortable lead and how things were going to be so nice and easy," he said. "A big key is the way they get started in the game (tonight). They have to get a good start to regain their confidence.

"We have good confidence in ourselves and we also have the respect of the Spurs, which is the combination you need," he added.

Expos Win Seventh, Rattle Dodgers 7-3

MONTREAL (AP) — Run-scoring singles by Rodney Scott and Warren Cromartie in the fifth inning helped the Montreal Expos post their seventh straight victory, a 7-3 decision over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday.

Andre Dawson began the rally with a one-out double and scored on Scott's hit off starter Bob Welch, 2-1, giving Montreal a 3-2 lead.

The winner was Bill Lee, 3-0. He worked the first 6 2/3 innings before giving way to Elias Sosa.

The Dodgers had taken a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Davey Lopes led off with a triple and scored on a single by Bill Russell.

The Expos replied with two runs in the bottom of the first when Cromartie and Tony Perez drilled two-out singles, and Gary Carter doubled down the third-base line, scoring Cromartie. Perez scored when shortstop Bill Russell was charged with an error on the relay from the outfield.

The Dodgers' Ron Cey hammered a one-out homer over the left-field fence in the fourth inning, and Joe Ferguson hit his second home run of the season in the seventh, narrowing the Expos' lead to 4-3.

Camp Followers

ABOUT THE MIDDLE of July, the world is just one big steam bath — especially in a cramped gym where windows are practically nonexistent, and the ones that do exist are usually stuck closed.

Inside, youngsters run around in shorts bouncing a ball with one hand, wiping the sweat out of their eyes with the other. Over at the side, an older man watches, whistle poised to stop the action long enough for the youngsters to get their breath and turn a furtive eye toward the Coke machine in the corner.

Finally, the whistle blows, the action ceases and the kids sprint for the soft-drink machine — only to find it empty, or bearing a scrawled sign saying "Out of Order."

Then back to the court.

There's more to it than that, but summer basketball camps do include such vignettes. That is, they do in most states across the nation. They exist in Texas only for the younger kids, the ones below high school age.

In Texas, under the eyes of the University Interscholastic League, such camps are banned. That is, they're taboo if the youngster wants to play for a high school team under the UIL's jurisdiction.

COME SATURDAY MORNING, in Austin, the UIL will announce the results of a state-wide referendum which touches on several topics. But, the one which will draw the most ears is the one involving summer camps.

Many coaches — college and high school — will be wanting to hear the result. So will school adminstrators, a few legislators, even a couple of court judges.

It's that big a matter — or it has been

NFL Teams Complete College Talent Draft Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — There's just one day left for 28 National Football League clubs to complete their planning and strategies before dividing up the 1979 crop of college football talent.

The 44th annual NFL draft will be held Thursday and Friday at the Waldorf Astoria with the 28 NFL teams selecting 330 players in 12 rounds.

"It seems like the day before Christmas," cracked Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano as the Browns' staff studied the draft rotation and possibilities one more time. "I hope a big defensive end comes down the chimney for us."

Cleveland is about halfway down the draft list's first round with the No. 13 selection and must await the moves of teams like Buffalo, Cincinnati and Chicago, all with multiple high picks.

Buffalo will draft No.1 as a result of last year's trade of running back O.J. Simpson to San Francisco, then pick again as the No.5 team with its own choice. Cincinnati has its own pick, No.3, and No.12 from its trade of defensive end Coy Bacon and defensive back Lemar Parrish to Washington last year. Chicago owns the No.4 choice from Tampa Bay as payment for its trade of defensive lineman Wally Chambers to the Bucs last year, and its own pick, No.9.

Buffalo also owns San Francisco's fourth round choice from the Simpson trade which supplied the Bills with the 49ers' No.2 and No.3 picks last year — defensive end Scott Hutchinson and wide receiver Danny Fulton — and will deliver San Francisco's No.2 next year.

Oakland also is without a first round selection, that pick having gone to Los Angeles in the deal that sent cornerback Monte Jackson to the Raiders.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle will announce the Bills' opening pick, and Buffalo, searching for linebacking help, is expected to select Ohio State All-America Tom Cousineau as the No.1 choice.

Two trades were completed this week involving draft choices. Tampa Bay picked up Oakland's second and third-round picks in exchange for defensive tackle Dave Pear and Baltimore acquired veteran quarterback Greg Landry from Detroit for three picks, a No.3 this year and the Colts' fourth and fifth-round selections in 1980.

Barring any other deals, the draft rotation looks like this:

Buffalo (from San Francisco); Kansas City; Cincinnati; Chicago (from Tampa Bay); Buffalo; Baltimore; New York Giants; St. Louis; Chicago; Detroit; New Orleans; Cincinnati (from Washington); Cleveland; New York Jets; Green Bay; Minnesota; Atlanta; Seattle; Los Angeles (from Oakland); San Diego; Philadelphia; Denver; Houston; Miami; New England; Los Angeles; Dallas; Pittsburgh.

Four clubs have forfeited draft choices. Minnesota and Pittsburgh each lost a third-round choice, while Los Angeles lost a fifth-round pick and New England a seventh-round selection for various indiscretions. Houston and San Francisco used 1979 choices to make supplemental 1978 selections. Houston's No.10 pick went for wide receiver Johnnie Dirden and San Francisco's No.12 was used for running back Rod Connors.

AAA Baseball Roundup

Borger Gains Tie...

BORGER (Special) — Greg Fleming tossed a two-hit shutout and catcher Nathan Bailey had a perfect day at the plate to pace Borger by the Dumas Demons in a District 1-AAA baseball game Tuesday afternoon.

Fleming went the distance to record his third win of the season against seven setbacks. Bailey went 2-for-2 at the plate, with a double and a single along with an RBI.

The victory gives Borger a share of the district race with Dumas. Both sport 7-3 records. Levelland, which was rained out Tuesday, could climb into the 1-AAA picture again with a victory over Estacado today. If the Lobos win there would be a three-way tie for the lead.

...Tigers Win Again

LAMESA(Special)— The Snyder Tigers continue to roll through district 3-AAA baseball unscathed and on Tuesday they defeated Lamesa here 2-0 to move their district record to 3-0xx in the second half of loop play.

Mitch Mackey hurled six shutout innings before giving way to Sid Everton in the final frame for the Tigers.

Snyder broke the scoreless tie in the fourth when Mackey singled , advanced on a Everton base hit and scored on Scott Crenwelge.

The Golden Tors gave a run away in the fifth when Mark Davis reached base after being hit by a Morales toss, went to second on a sacrifice bunt, then to third on a passed ball before scoring as Richard Crayton stole second— drawing a throw from the catcher and leaving home plate open.

Coronado Sweeps Doubleheader

HEREFORD — The Coronado Mustangs, behind the pitching of Gene Segrist and Russell Johnson, swept a high school doubleheader from Hereford Tuesday afternoon, winning the first game 7-4 and taking the nightcap 9-5.

The win kept the Ponies in the District 4-AAAA title chase with a 6-2 second-half mark. Coronado is now 19-8 for the year.

Meanwhile, the Herd splipped to 0-6 in loop play and 7-20 overall.

Segrist, who upped his mark to 7-3 on the year, went the distance in the first half as the Coronado offense back him with five hits. The Herd, however, tagged Segrist with six hits.

Kevin Bunch, who was relieved by Norman Hill in the seventh inning, was saddled with the loss.

Donald Ewing had the only big blow of the game, collectin a home run off Bunch.

In the nightcap, Johnson limited Hereford to only four hits as he went the distance. Norman Hill was the loser after giving up four CHS runs in the first inning.

Gene Segrist and Alan Harp, CHS; Bunch, Hill (7) and Weems. WP—Segrest (7-3, 3-3). LP—Bunch. 3B—Ledbetter, CHS. HR—Ewing.

SECOND GAME

Busby Moves Closer To Starting Rotation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Officially, reliever Steve Busby was tagged with Kansas City's 8-7 loss to Texas Monday night. But unofficially, his three-hit performance may have moved the former club hero a notch closer to the starting rotation.

"Buzz was great, super," enthused Manager Whitey Herzog.

He left open the question of Busby's return to the starting job he held before being relegated to the minors following a rash of injuries in 1976. Prior to that year, Busby rewrote the club's pitching records with a pair of no-hitters, two all-star berths and a 22-win season during three stellar years.

Busby was tabbed Monday night after Rich Gale, last year's pitching sensation who continues to struggle, surrendered six runs. Busby inherited a6-1 defict, then gave up only three hits and two unearned runs in 6 2-3 innings.

Barron Highlights Monterey Banquet

Defensive back Andy Barron was named the Most Valuable Player of the Monterey High School football team during the school's all-sports banquet Tuesday night at the Lubbock Civic Center.

Also honored were Mike Carter and Larry Bradley, coach's trophy; Mindi Holloway, girl's volleyball; Craig Ehlo, boy's basketball; Margaret Grennell, girl's basketball; Ricky Pinkerton, baseball; Susan Rickard, girl's track; Cooke Creel, girl's golf; Scott Mickey, boy's swimming; Linda Cooper and Beth Hamlin, girl's swimming; and Caroline Lugo, girl's cross country.

Others honored were athletes participating in boy's track, tennis, and golf.

Tech Sends Netters To TAIAW Action

DALLAS (Special) — Three women netters will represent Texas Tech at the state AIAW large college individual tennis tournament here today.

Debbie Donley, Karen Schuchard and Peggy O'Neil will compete in singles play, with Miss Donley and Miss Schuchard teaming in doubles.

For Miss Donley, a senior from St. Louis, it could be the last tournament as a Raider unless she advances to regional action. The tournament will follow a single-consolation format and will continue through Saturday.

Miss Donley posts a 25-19 singles record. Miss Schuchard stands 22-20 for the year in singles competition, while Miss Donley and Miss Schuchard hold an 18-10 doubles record. Miss O'Neil, who has played No. 3 singles, has an 18-21 record.

At present, the UIL prohibits summer camps in football, basketball and volleyball. But, last summer, Houston schoolboy Greg Kite went to federal court and got an order restraining the UIL from penalizing him for attending a summer camp. The case is being appealed on its merits, the UIL reports, but Kite was able to attend the summer camp and improve his skills, then compete last winter. He has since earned a scholarship to BYU.

Even before the Kite case, SMU coach Billy Allen threatened to challenge the rule by sending his son Billy to a camp prior to his senior season at Highland Park.

BUT, NOT ONLY has the regulation been tested in the courts, but a state senator, democrat Ron Clower of Garland, introduced legislation (HB 1099) this spring which would overrule the UIL in such matters as the camps.

Clower's bill has cleared committee but has not hit the floor of the senate. Even it is gets past the senate, it has to go through the house and thence to the governor for passage. And with less than a month of work in the regular session, its passage appears remote.

But, fact that the matter reached such governmental levels indicates the vast interest in the matter.

FOR YEARS, THE UIL has been the power of interscholastic athletics. Coaches, fathers and mothers, and athletic boosters for years cussed Rhea Williams as the guy who — they asserted — said no to every proposal.

Williams' word was law, and his conservative stands were largely responsible for the great respect the UIL has had. Even after getting out of UIL athletics, Williams continued to be the one man most persons felt dominated the UIL.

Bailey Marshall and now Bill Farney oversee the UIL and catch all the flak, but the actual policies and rules come from high school administrators who vote in referenda such has been most recently conducted.

The rule prohibiting summer camps appears narrow minded. Sure, money is involved in attending such camps, which puts it out of reach of some youngsters.

But, high schoolers have been and continue to attend summer band camps without being prohibited from competing in UIL competition. Golfers and tennis players can attend summer camps without threat of consequences, but not footballers, basketballers or volleyballers.

Even though the UIL works in some mysterious ways, its overall program is sound.

It appeared to legislate against athletes about a decade ago when it ruled that a youngster can obtain but one letter jacket during his high school career — which looks to penalize that youngster for giving two or three — even four — years of allegiance to a school in exchange for only visible award. It held tight on its transfer rule for many years before being edged into a change by threats of court action and the the legislature.

But, the matter of summer camps should be left in the hands of the UIL and not legislators.

From the state capitol, the legislators can exercise which is known in politics as the illusion of power, rather than the actual power. The threat of power (once compared to blue smoke and mirrors) should remain there, but not exercised, as in the case of Clower's move.

The camp rule should be altered, at a time when the world is just one big workshop-shortcourse-training session-refresher course. Not allowing a high schooler to improve his skills, whether at using a slide rule or basketball, appears illogical.

But, the change — if it comes — should be done by school administrators.

Qualifiers Meet Draws State-Ranked Performers

Curtis Conaway and Chuck Perry, both winners at last week's Region I-AAAA track competition, will compete in the state qualifiers' meet Saturday at Texas Tech.

The meet, which gets under way at 1 p.m. with the first field events, is sponsored by the Lubbock Independent School District, and according to meet director Pete Ragus, some of the top high school runners in the Panhandle and West Texas are expected to compete in the afternoon affair.

Running events will begin at 2:30 p.m. There will be no prelims and the athletes will be heated according to the times recorded at the regional meets, Ragus said.

Along with Conaway and Perry, state qualifiers in the 880-yard dash and high jump, respectively, other entrants include Estacado sprinter Robert Humphrey and speedster Jerry Isaacs of Dunbar.

Coaches interested in entering athletes can contact Ragus at the LISD office, 747-2641.

LCC Cancels MSU Series, Adds Cowboys

This weekend's scheduled Texas Athletic Conference baseball games between Lubbock Christian and Midwestern State have been cancelled, according to LCC coach Larry Hays.

However, Hays has arranged two warmup games for the Chaparrals to get them prepared for the District VIII tournament, which begins a three-day run in Arlington May 11.

LCC will host the Hardin-Simmons Cowboys at Chaparral Field at 12:30 p.m. Saturday in a doubleheader Saturday. The Chaps, currently ranked 10th in the nation, will bring a 37-20 record into the twinbill.

Hardin-Simmons, which is preparing for the Trans-America Conference tournament in Shreveport, La., on May 10, sports a 13-23 mark. The Cowboys have lost four straight including a doubleheader from Mary-Hardin Baylor Saturday.

LCC and Hardin-Simmons have met four times this year, with the Chaps holding a 3-1 edge

Hays hopes to get two more warmup contests next week. Two more victories would give Hays 350 career wins.

Franse Gains Honors

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — All-America Paul Williams of Phoenix, Ariz., joined two Houston prep stars and one each from New Mexico and Nevada Tuesday on Wendy's All-Southwest prep basketball team.

Named along with the 6-6 ace from Phoenix' St. Mary's High School were 6-2 Texas Tech signee Nelson Franse of Clovis, N.M., Robert Williams of Houston's Milby High School, 6-11 Greg Kite of Madison High in Houston, and 6-6 Mike Brown of Gorman High School in Las Vegas, Nev.

The All-Southwest squad consisted of a first team and a second team, both composed entirely of seniors, and a third squad of 12 underclassmen. A number of the players were scheduled to participate in Wendy's Basketball Classic, scheduled for Albuquerque May 11-12. The tourney features all-star teams from four sections of the country.

Selected to second team honors were 6-6 Mike Maxwell of Salt Lake City Highland High School, 6-3 Mike Jackson of Central High in Aurora, Colo., 6-3 Bo Overton of Ada, Okla., 6-6 Rickie Thompson of Houston Jones High and 6-9 Claude Riley of Crockett, Tex.

The underclass squad:

Brooks Jennings, 5-10, Clovis (N.M.); Dan Tarkanian, 6-1, Las Vegas, Nev., Gorman; John Cheatham, 6-4, Phoenix East; Willie Powell, 6-4, Winslow, Ariz.; Chris McMullin, 6-4, Orem, Utah; Mark Montgomery, 6-4, Ogden, Utah, Weber High; Chris Needham, 6-5, Corona del Sol High, Tempe, Ariz.; Billy White, 6-6, Las Vegas, Nev., Westrn; Larry Davis, 6-7, Lufkin; Ricky Cobbs, 6-7, Wichita Falls; Gilbert Collier, 6-8, Fort Worth Dunbar, and Kevin Linder, 6-8, Highland High, Denver.

All are juniors except Davis, who is a sophomore.

Jennings and Franse led Clovis to the state Class AAAA championship last winter and Franse was selected the outstanding player in the state.

Rains Stop City Teams

Inclement weather conditions forced the cancellation of three local high school baseball games Tuesday afternoon.

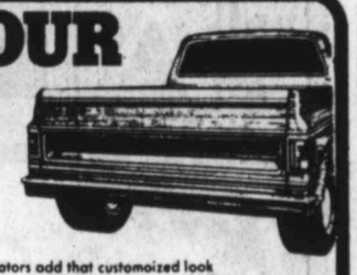

Teams with scheduled makeup games today are Lubbock High's District 4-AAA game at Plainview and Estacado's 1-AAA bout at Levelland. The Westerners and Bulldogs will battle in a doubleheader starting at 2:30 p.m.

Dunbar, scheduled to play Canyon here Tuesday, will host the Eagles in a single contest Thursday at 4 p.m.

PALMER TO PLAY

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer, the winner of 61 tour events, has accepted an invitation to play in the $300,000 Memorial Tournament May 24-27 at Muirfield Village Golf Club.

There's Never Been A Better Time, Or A Better Reason, To Change To Gas-Saving Goodyear Radials.

The energy crisis is here. We all have to start saving gas in every possible way.
One good way to begin is by changing to Goodyear radials. For it's a fact that radials do help save gas.
Belted radial construction stiffens the Goodyear tread. This enables our tires to roll like a hoop — with a significant reduction in rolling resistance when compared with bias or even bias belted tires.
By making Goodyear radials easier rolling, we've also made them fuel efficient. The result — fuel savings that extend over the entire life of the tread.
But saving gas isn't the only advantage. Goodyear radials are also efficient in terms of wear, for the belts add muscle that inhibit tire wasting squirm. This reinforcing action of the belts also helps keep the entire tread face in contact with the road, for effective traction and handling on your car.
Goodyear gives you a choice of six gas savers. For an extra good reason for going Goodyear, now, see the offer in the adjacent box. It's a winner!

'Bid' Trainer Points To Screen King In Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Bud Delp, trainer of favored Spectacular Bid, said Tuesday he is as confident as he can be but is mentally prepared to accept defeat in the Kentucky Derby.

Trainer Luis Barrera thinks Screen King is just the colt to beat Spectacular Bid and win the $200,000-added Derby Saturday at Churchill Downs.

Delp has predicted the 1¼-mile Derby will be a two-horse race between Spectacular Bid and Flying Paster, but Barrera disagrees.

"He's gonna find out there's no two-horse race. This horse is a runner," Barrera said before sending Screen King out for an excellent workout.

The colt went six furlongs in 1:11 3/5 and galloped out a mile in 1:39.1/5. That came after Spectacular Bid went five-eighths of a mile in 1:00 2/5 and galloped out three-quarters in 1:15.

Screen King's posted fractions were 23 4/5 for the quarter, 47 2/5 and 59 2/5. Jockey Bill Gavidia was in the irons. Angel Cordero will ride in the Derby.

"He went better than I wanted him to," said Barrera, whose brother, Laz, trained Bold Forbes to win the Derby in 1976 and sent out Affirmed to win last year. "They're gonna know I was here."

Screen King, owned by Carl Lizza and Herb Hochreiter, goes into the Derby off a fast-finishing nose loss to Instrument Landing in the 1⅛-mile Wood Memorial at Aqueduct April 21. He won the Woodhaven and Swift, both at 6 furlongs, and finished second by a head in the Bay Shore and third in the Gotham.

"My horse is ready to go a mile and a quarter in a ploughed field," Delp said after Spectacular Bid posted fractions of 25 and 48 4/5 under exercise rider R.A. Smith. "Of course, I'm not comparing the Churchill Downs racetrack with a ploughed field," the trainer added.

"I have more confidence that I ever had in my life," said Delp, who has trained Spectacular Bid to 10 straight victories, including three major pre-Derby stakes — the Florida Derby, Flamingo and Blue Grass. "He's perfect mentally and perfect physically. I'm thinking about taking him home with me Friday night to get him a good night's sleep."

It was then that Delp, who has continously said Spectacular Bid cannot lose, admitted he was also conditioning himself for the unexpected.

"I'm prepared if I lose, don't worry about that," he said.

But a few moments later he was saying, "If we set the pace, we'll lead all the way."

The connections of Spy Charger, who finished a distant second in the Stepping Stone Purse Saturday at Churchill Downs, have decided to skip the Derby.

Other probables for the race are Golden Act, General Assembly, Sir Ivor Again, Lot o'Gold, Shamgo and King Celebrity.

Aussie Netters Win In Federation Cup

MADRID (AP) — Second-seeded Australia, led by Dianne Fromholtz and Wendy Turnbull, easily defeated Canada Tuesday and advanced to the second round of the 32-nation Federation Cup tennis tournament.

Miss Fromholtz dropped only six games on the clay courts of the Club de Campo in beating Canada's Marjorie Blackwood 6-4, 6-2.

Miss Blackwood, celebrating her 23rd birthday, led 3-1 at the start of the first set and 2-0 in the second. But she could not hang on against the 22-year-old Miss Fromholtz, the world's No. 4 ranked woman player.

Miss Turnbull defeated Canada's Nina Bland 6-4, 6-1 in a strong sun and gusty wind.

Australia is expected to meet the top-seeded United States in the final of the $110,000 Cup on Sunday.

The United States moved into the second round of the Cup after its first opponent, the Philippines, withdrew.

The team of 16-year-old Tracy Austin of Rolling Hills, Calif., and veterans Rosie Casals of San Francisco and Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., was joined Tuesday morning by Chris Evert Lloyd, who flew into the Spanish capital without her husband exactly two weeks after their marriage.

The 24-year-old Miss Evert, who spent her honeymoon in London at her husband's apartment, drove out to the Club de Campo for an hour's practice early Tuesday evening. She said she was fit and determined to win and help the United States to its fourth consecutive Federation Cup victory.

But she said her target for the next 48 hours, until the United States' first match on Thursday, was to practice — not to tell reporters about her honeymoon, when she didn't touch a tennis racket.

U.S. captain Vicki Berner said Miss Evert would not play until the semifinals in order to have a chance to regain top form.

In Tuesday's play, seeded teams moved easily into the second round of the Cup.

France's Frederique Thibault and Brigitte Simon, seeded seventh in the tournament, dropped only eight games between them in beating Indonesia. Betty Stove and Elly Vessies of the Netherlands had a slightly tougher time against Argentina but still managed to qualify in straight sets.

The surprise of the day came on the center court when Spain's Monica Alvarez-Mon, a diminitive 24-year-old, beat Renata Sasak of Yugoslavia in straight sets 6-3, 6-1. Although her teammate, Carmen Perea, was an easy victim for Yugoslavia's Mima Jausovec, the Spanish women managed to take a set in the deciding doubles before going down to defeat 10-8, 3-6, 6-1 in a two hour, eight minute marathon.

In other first-round matches Tuesday, Germany beat Korea 3-0, Italy beat Thailand 3-0 and Japan coasted to easy singles victories over Norway.

For the first time in the 17-year history of the Cup, first-round matches Tuesday were proceded by a parade of the competing teams in national dress. Word of the event reached some teams a little late, however, and the Romanians were forced to go shopping in downtown Madrid to buy matching outfits.
