Arms negotiator: Agreement not around corner

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's chief arms negotiator said Friday the Soviet Union has shown "some flexibility and forward movement" in long-range arms reduction talks, but that a breakthrough must await an agreement on nuclear weapons in Europe or deployment of new missiles there.

Edward Rowny, Reagan's representative at the Geneva talks intended to reduce U.S. and Soviet strategic nuclear arsenals, reported to the president on the fourth round of negotiations and later said he was hopeful that an agreement "on substantially reducing strategic offensive arms" can be reached.

Despite an optimistic tenor, the arms negotiator, a retired general, gave several reasons to indicate that progress was not around the corner:

—He stepped back from an earlier prediction that the chances of reaching an agreement this year were 50-50. "I have now shifted to being hopeful," he told reporters.

—After more than a year of negotiations, he has not heard from the Soviets a specific target for the number of long-range missile warheads each side could maintain. Each is said to have about 7,500 and Reagan has proposed reducing the arsenals to 5,000. "After a year we don't know what their number is," Rowny said.

—The Soviets, said Rowny, "are very much opposed to reducing these ICBMs (Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles). They want to keep these large, destabilizing systems. We want to reduce these systems."

In addition, he made clear that his progress in Geneva may hinge on the negotiations Paul Nitze is conducting in the same city with the Soviets over the deployment of medium-range missiles by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in western Europe and by the Soviet Union in the Warsaw Pact countries.

He said he did not expect a breakthrough "until Paul has an agreement or the missiles are deployed." Under a 1979 NATO decision, the United States is proceeding with European negotiations while preparing for the deployment of Pershing II and cruise missiles in Europe, beginning in December.

The Soviets, he said, "are trying to prevent the deployment" of these missiles and are paying greater attention to the Nitze negotiations.

Rowny, who returned to Washington on Thursday, spent about 20 minutes with Reagan in the Oval Office, delivering a preliminary report on the just completed round of the arms talks. They are scheduled to resume on Oct. 4. Before the start of the most recent round of the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START), Reagan dispatched Rowny with instructions to show maximum flexibility.

The negotiator said he had already discussed the talks with Kenneth Adelman, the chief of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and would confer with Secretary of State George P. Shultz and with William Clark, Reagan's national security adviser.

"I reported to the president that this has been our most significant round to date," Rowny said. "Our talks have been intensive, serious, and businesslike."

Alleged hijacker is child molester

Alfredo Ayala

HOUSTON (AP) — A man accused of trying to hijack a jetliner was convicted of child molesting in California last year and is named in a warrant accusing him of violating his probation, San Francisco officials said Friday.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Bailey said he had learned Alfredo Ayala also served a prison sentence for child molesting in Cuba.

Beverly Cooperman, information officer for the San Francisco Adult Probation Department, said an official recognized Ayala from a news photo printed after his arrest in Houston Tuesday night.

FBI Agent Dennis Ploeger testified in federal magistrate's court Friday that Ayala approached a flight attendant and told him he was going to take over the plane. The hijacking attempt was foiled by passengers, including Spicer Lung, whose job with Pan Am was eliminated July 15.

Pan Am spokesman Mike Clark said Friday that a new position will be found for Lung, who was the supervisor of the airline's catering service in Houston. Lung has been receiving severance pay and has not been removed from the payroll, Clark said.

"He will not lose any pay," Clark said.

Ayala, 29, was convicted July 28, 1982, in San Francisco of arousing the lust of a child under 14 years of age, Ms. Cooperman said. She said he was sentenced to five years' probation and ordered into counseling.

He was prohibited from having contact with minors without prior approval, she said. Ayala later sought and received permission to go to Illinois and probation officers asked officials in that state to supervise his probation.

Town boasts longest-running fair

WIND RIDGE, Pa. (AP) — Like his daddy, granddaddy and great-granddaddy before him, J.G. Dinsmore heads to a nearby hilltop about this time every year, drawn by an 118-year-old tradition called the Jacktown Fair.

"You never die happy until you've been to the Jacktown Fair. You ever heard that? It's true," says Dinsmore, 70, whose great-grandfather helped organize the first fair in 1865.

He hasn't missed one in more than 50 years, and thousands attend each year from as far away as California.

"It's in our blood. It's fever," insists Josephine Bristor, 69, the fair's secretary-treasurer.

"It's a big reunion. And the town puts it on," said Harry Gardner Jr., 46, who assumed his father and grandfather's place as president of the fair board.

The fair is held on a tree-studded, grassy knoll 1,450 feet above Wind Ridge to display prized livestock, baked goods and needlework.

This year's five-day fest is expected to attract up to 25,000 people through today.

"People plan their vacation around it," said Ray McCracken, 69, the board's vice president.

The village of Jacksonville was settled around 1831 along Elk Ridge, an old Indian trail leading to the Ohio River. A postmaster was appointed in 1849 and the town's name was changed to Wind Ridge, but its nickname, Jacktown, stuck.

In 1865, residents of Richhill Township decided to pay $5 apiece for 280 shares of stock to establish a fair. People came by wagon and horseback for the three-day event, which soon became known as the Jacktown Fair.

Despite the Depression and wars, the Jacktown Fair flourished year after year with no interruptions, holding the record as the longest-running fair in the nation. Yet except for a new exhibit hall, some new concession stands and a few extra constables, nothing's changed, not even the people.

There's still the Dinsmores and the Gardners. And they still own the fair.

"There's no dividends, there's no profit. We're always broke. But that's the way people like it," McCracken said, adding that any profit goes toward improving the fairgrounds.

For the first time since 1935, an entry fee of $1 was charged this year to help make ends meet.

Proposed budget reflects end of boom, Akins says

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Midland's proposed 1983-84 budget is "purely a maintenance budget," and a reflection of the sharp downturn in the economy, according to Mayor G. Thane Akins.

The mayor outlined the $50 million budget at a news conference Friday and announced that a public hearing will be held on it Aug. 25.

By trimming $1.8 million from the current budget in March, "the expansion of our tax base and availability of an adequate unappropriated surplus fund balance have prevented the revenue shortfall from being a disaster," Akins said.

During 1982-83, Midland's tax base expanded because of the influx of businesses and new residences, becoming part of the tax rolls. The surplus fund, which municipalities try to maintain at 15 percent of the General Fund, is usually used for emergencies or unexpected capital expenditures during the year.

While the city is still trying to catch up with last year's growth, Midland is experiencing a "shortfall in sales tax revenue of about $3.7 million, or 33 percent of the budgeted amount," Akins said.

"Unfortunately, restrictions on municipal budgets do not allow the flexibility to meet unpredicted growth or steep declines in local economy," he said.

The proposed budget indicates a halt to past year's ballooning figures when Midland was in a boom. In 1980-81, the budget totaled $27.7 million, in 1981-82 it was $34.7 million and for 1982-83 it was $49 million.

The city's budget consists of three divisions: General Fund, Airport Fund and Water and Sewer Fund. The latter two are self-sustaining with user fees being raised to cover expenditures.

"...It includes no cost-of-living...increases...or merit raises..."

—Mayor G. Thane Akins

To help balance the General Fund, the city council has proposed a one-cent tax increase from 43 to 44 cents per $100 valuation. This means that Midland homeowners would pay $5 more on a $50,000 house and $10 more on a $100,000 house.

The council has specified that revenues from the increased tax rate — almost $250,000 — go toward street maintenance. Akins said, along with the tax rate hike, more than $2.2 million from the unappropriated fund balance will be used for projected expenditures.

The proposed General Fund is about $1.8 million more than the current reduced budget. According to Akins most of the increase is for 24 new employees — 18 of which are firemen for the two new substations.

Less than a 2 percent raise, or $235,792 was proposed for the Water and Sewer Fund because of the cost of water from Colorado River Municipal Water District, electric charges for pumping water and water meters. The city is proposing to spend $135,000 to change half of all meters, which are 20 years or older.

Most of the $1,016,753 hike in the Airport Fund is from a $900,000 debt service, Akins said. In addition, four new employees and other personnel services account for about $100,460 in the increase.

The mayor commended the city administration, department heads and others for "doing an excellent job in cutting the current budget in the face of severely declining revenues and holding the line on the proposed budget."

He said the "most significant and unique" part of the budget is that it "includes no cost-of-living raise increases for city employees or merit raises for any of the administrative people or department heads."

Akins added that the "city is in an excellent financial condition with still the lowest tax rate of any city in Texas with 60,000 in population."

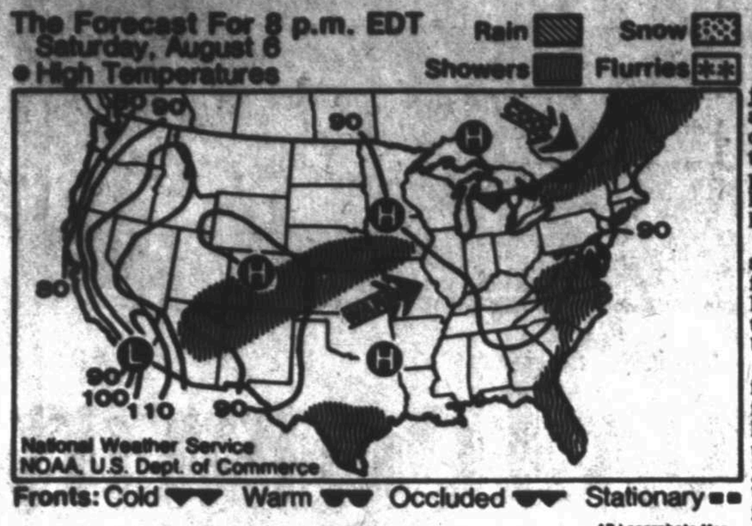
WEATHER SUMMARY



AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for today for New York, New England, mid-Atlantic states, Florida, New Mexico, Iowa and southern Texas.

Hot and dry sums up forecast

The weekend forecast from the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport can be summed up in three words: hot and dry.

Today, under partly cloudy skies, the temperature will be in the low 90s. The wind she'll be a-blowin' from the southeast at 10 to 20 mph. Tonight's mercury will peg out in the upper 60s, with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Sunday should see partly cloudy skies and temperatures in low 90s — again.

The record high temperature for today's date was set in 1964 at 103 degrees. The record low was 61, set in 1975.

Final order signed breaks up AT&T

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge signed the final order Friday authorizing the breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., setting the stage for a new era of telephone competition that should lower long-distance rates — but not local bills.

"In 10 years, most residential consumers will see significant benefits from the breakup," said Robert W. Nichols, the legislative and regulatory counsel to the Consumers Union of the U.S.

"The problem is that the breakup in the near term may create some fairly serious transitional problems," he added. "There is going to be upward pressure on local rates and just general difficulties in finding the right place to go for service and installation..."

While local rates appear destined to rise, Nichols and other observers agreed long-distance rates will start falling, and that consumers will be able to buy increasingly sophisticated telephones and pay less than if they continued to rent their equipment.

"That shows a competitive telecommunications market is better for the country and the consumer," said Samuel A. Simon, the director of the Telecommunications Research and Action Center, a Washington public interest group. "We'll just have to get used to doing things a little differently."

Notwithstanding the short-term problems, federal prosecutors, AT&T executives, congressmen and state regulators expressed relief that nine years of litigation over AT&T's future had finally come to an end.

"After all this controversy — the litigation, legislation on the Hill, uncertainty over the reorganization plan — it's great to have it all behind us," said James P. Denvir, the chief of the Justice Department's AT&T staff.

Echoing Denvir's expression of pleasure, Assistant Attorney General William F. Baxter, head of the antitrust division, said, "I just wish I could get across more clearly that on average, overall phone bills are going to be lower than they would have otherwise been."

"It's true that some things will come down and some things will go up," he continued. "But the overall phone bills for many will be lower than they would have been. The Justice Department, representing phone users in the aggregate, got a very, very high percentage of what it aspired to achieve when it brought the case."

The stage had been set for U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene's final order last Wednesday, when AT&T Chairman Charles L. Brown announced the company would accept Greene's conditions for approval of its Plan of Reorganization, a 471-page document that spells out how the world's largest corporation is to divide more than $150 billion worth of assets.

Among those conditions was a requirement that AT&T give up part of its legacy from a century of monopoly telephone service — all future use of the name Bell.

As its breakup was finally authorized, AT&T was mired in negotiations with its three labor unions and facing a threatened strike at 12:01 a.m. EDT Sunday by its largest union, the Communications Workers of America.

AT&T management spoke optimistically of prospects for a settlement, but leaders of the CWA sent word to its locals to brace for a walkout.

The company is negotiating with the CWA, the electrical workers' union and the Telecommunications International Union, on a new three-year accord. The CWA represents 525,000 of the 675,000 workers covered by the contract, and that union has a "no contract, no work" clause in its constitution.

Under the plan of reorganization developed to comply with an antitrust settlement negotiated by AT&T and the Justice Department last year, AT&T will give up ownership of its 22 wholly owned Bell companies on Jan. 1 by dividing them among seven independent regional firms.

That separation is designed to eliminate once and for all the possibility of AT&T using its control of local phone networks to freeze out would-be competitors in the long-distance and equipment markets. That competition, in turn, is expected to provide consumers with more options and lower prices.

Long-distance competitors like MCI Communications say the breakup will make it possible to offer their cut-rate services throughout the country. Since last Jan. 1, when the Federal Communications Commission went ahead and deregulated telephone equipment, consumers have faced a vast array of opportunities to purchase telephones, some for as little as $10.

With those benefits, however, have come problems. The FCC, citing the new era of competition, has decided the subsidies for local service now built into AT&T's long-distance rates must be eliminated. AT&T cannot take on its competitors, nor can consumers benefit fully from lower long-distance rates, if AT&T's rates are maintained at artificially high levels, the agency says.

Government reassesses number of guerrillas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer than half the estimated 10,000 to 12,000 CIA-backed rebels opposed to the leftist Nicaraguan government engage in combat, making their actual fighting force smaller than the guerrilla army in nearby El Salvador, administration officials say.

The new assessment of the rebel combat strength comes one week after the House voted to cut off covert aid to the rebels, with some members expressing concern that the rebels' power suggested the CIA was trying to oust the leftist government in violation of U.S. law.

The officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, put the total number of combat-ready Nicaraguan rebels variously at from 3,000 to 5,000 men. The rest, they say, are armed but handle non-combat support functions.

The new figures suggest the "contras" or counter-revolutionaries, are less of a threat to the leftist Nicaraguan government and its 25,000-man regular army than had been previously believed.

In El Salvador, the leftist guerrilla force battling the U.S.-backed rightist government numbers about 5,000 to 6,000 regular fighters with roughly an equal number of support personnel, the officials said.

The rapid growth of the Nicaraguan contra army had prompted optimism among its leaders that they might be able to oust the Sandinista government in Managua by year's end. But some members of Congress claimed the size of the force suggested the Reagan administration is violating a 1982 law barring covert aid "for the purpose" of overthrowing the Sandinistas.

Spurred by that concern and fears of a Vietnam-style U.S. commitment in Central America, the House voted 228-195 last week to cut off covert aid to the contras. Although the Senate is considered unlikely to pass the cut-off bill, the House action could threaten administration plans to obtain new money from Congress to pay for the program next fiscal year, which starts Oct. 1.

That funding battle is expected to be fought out when Congress returns from its August recess next month.

Reports that the actual number of combat-ready fighters is lower than had been widely believed could undermine arguments that the CIA operation is designed to oust the Sandinistas and thus reduce pressure to cut off the covert assistance, one Democratic congressional aide said Friday.

The contra army — originally explained to congressional intelligence oversight committees as a highly trained 500-man paramilitary force targeted against Cuban installations in Nicaragua — began forays from Honduran bases in March 1982.

By last May, it reportedly had grown to about 7,000 men, and now, U.S. officials put its total size at between 10,000 and 12,000.

But the rapid expansion of the contra army caused serious management problems and pushed the operation well beyond its $19 million annual budget, officials said. Many of the new recruits, called "railiers," are considered poorly trained and are limited to support duties.

Earlier this year, an ambitious offensive aimed at spreading the insurgency from the north to the heavily populated center of Nicaragua stalled and the contras have since withdrawn much of their army back to camps along the border.

He added:

"Without violating the agreement to keep details of our issues confidential, I can report to you that I told the president that the Soviets also showed some flexibility and forward movement. The president appeared pleased that his flexible approach is being carried out in serious and businesslike negotiations."

Under questioning, he said later that Reagan gave him "the feeling he wants me to show the maximum flexibility that I possibly can without giving in on our objectives. He is serious. He is dedicated about arms control."

The negotiator said that on July 8, the U.S. delegation presented a proposed treaty that in his view met the Soviets' two main complaints: That the United States was prescribing how the Soviets should restructure its forces and that the United States had not offered a comprehensive proposal that included all strategic forces.

Rowny said that the Soviets "did detail some sublimits pretty much on the pattern" of the strategic arms limitation treaty reached by the United States and the Soviet Union in 1980 but never ratified by the Senate before it was withdrawn.

"It does not cause a reduction in the ballistic missile warheads," Rowny said of the Soviet offer. He gave no details about it.

He said that the Soviets had shown flexibility "in some non-central issues," and stated: "After they heard we were showing flexibility, they said they, too, could show some flexibility."

"We're going to further narrow the differences," he said.

Rowny reiterated the U.S. opposition to merging the talks on medium-range missiles in Europe with the talks he is conducting on long-range weapons. He said that with disputes remaining over the European missiles, merging the negotiations would only complicate his talks.

He also stressed the need to follow Reagan's plan to develop 100 MX missiles and then deploy them in existing Minuteman missile silos. MX stands for "missile experimental."

"We need to modernize our forces," he said. "The MX is a necessary part of the modernization of the land-based leg of our triad." The other elements are the nation's strategic bombers and submarines.

"I can't guarantee you an agreement if we have an MX," he said. But he added that without it, "I can guarantee you" that the odds of getting an agreement will be reduced.

Craddick named to committee

AUSTIN — Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, has been named vice chairman of the Joint Study Committee on Water Resources, Speaker Gib Lewis announced recently.

The committee, made up of House and Senate members, will be chaired by Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso.

Other members are senators John Montford, D-Lubbock; John Sharp, D-Victoria; and Bob Vale, D-San Antonio; and representatives J.W. Buchanan, D-Dumas, Hill Kemp, D-Manvel; and Rodney Tow, D-Conroe.

Lewis said the committee is "charged to continue negotiations and study on the set of proposals made on water during the regular session" of the Legislature. The panel is to act as a "quasi-conference committee but with latitude to amend and substitute," he said.

Particular attention, Lewis reported, would be placed on the issues of maintaining freshwater inflows to bays and estuaries, conservation and agricultural needs.

Water Development Board Chairman Louis A. Beecherl Jr. is to serve as an "ex officio member" of the panel.

Accused hijacker convicted of child molesting in California

But officials there never saw Ayala, she said, and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Bailey said that conviction was not Ayala's first.

"He admitted having a prior child molesting offense in Cuba," Bailey said.

Ayala said at his initial appearance before a magistrate Wednesday he had served a prison term in Cuba before coming to this country in 1960. He said he was not a political prisoner, but did not specify his offense.

Bailey said he may ask a judge to raise Ayala's $200,000 bond as a result of the new information.

Defense attorney Tom Berg said that would be a waste of time.

"I think that's preposterous," he said. "He couldn't get out on a $200 bond right now. It's not going to have any effect on whether he gets out of jail."

Berg said he heard about the outstanding warrant for the first time after Friday's hearing and knew nothing of its substance.

U.S. Magistrate H. Lingo Platter ruled the government had sufficient cause to hold Ayala after a brief hearing Friday.

"I find there is probable cause for the complaint," Platter said. "It doesn't mean you are guilty," he told Ayala, who quietly received word of the court proceedings through a translator speaking in Spanish.

Ploeger testified Ayala approached a flight attendant aboard the Pan Am aircraft and told him in Spanish, "I want to take control, or take over, the airplane."

Ploeger said the flight attendant, Fernando Villalobos, wrestled with Ayala when Ayala reached for his back pocket.

Defense attorney Berg noted Ayala's blue polyester slacks, the same trousers he was wearing aboard the aircraft Tuesday, had no back pocket.

Ayala was to be returned to the Harris County Rehabilitation Center in nearby Humble, officials said. No future hearing date was set.

Congressman says auto safety agency too slow

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee chairman, saying 15 highway deaths occurred needlessly during the federal investigation into braking problems with General Motors X-cars, charged Friday that such "unconscionable delays" were typical of the government's auto safety agency.

Rep. Timothy R. Wirth, D-Colo., said that even though the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration finally moved against GM this week, foot dragging in the case is "symptomatic of a much deeper problem...an erosion of mission... that shows up again and again and again."

Unexplained delays in the GM case were documented in a General Accounting Office report released Friday.

In addition to the fatalities involving braking problems with the X-cars, Wirth said 71 people were injured in such accidents "while NHTSA was going slow on the X-car probe."

The agency "knew there was a serious public safety problem but did very little to correct it," he said, calling the record "one of unconscionable delays."

Wirth also cited cases dealing with air bags, auto bumper standards, automatic seatbelts, Ford transmissions, exploding tire rims, and batteries as examples of instances when the agency moved too slowly.

Wirth told the agency's chief lawyer to take a message to his superiors "to stop and to stop now" what he called a "pattern of non-enforcement and repeal of safety rules which has characterized NHTSA since 1981" when the Reagan administration took over.

The lawyer, Frank Berndt, came under sharp criticism when he acknowledged under persistent questioning that the agency did not order an administrative recall of 1.1 million X-body cars with potential safety problems before going into court with the Justice Department this week to sue GM.

The government suit seeks to force the recall and more than $4 million in civil penalties for what the suit says are 27 instances in which GM lied to the government during the investigation.

Several members of Wirth's consumer protection subcommittee suggested people driving potentially dangerous cars would have been better served had the agency ordered an immediate recall and then gone into court to enforce it if GM resisted.

"You have chosen a more complicated course that is likely to be drawn out," said Wirth.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., called the decision "one further step in the screwing up."

The congressmen's suggestion was that GM was less likely to fight a simple recall than one connected with other court action seeking penalties and accusing the company of lying. Those charges should have been pursued separately, they said.

On the X-car controversy in general, Markey said, "At a minimum there was gross incompetence by the agency, deliberate deception by General Motors...and perhaps there is a case of collusion between the two."

Tax breaks aren't harming schools

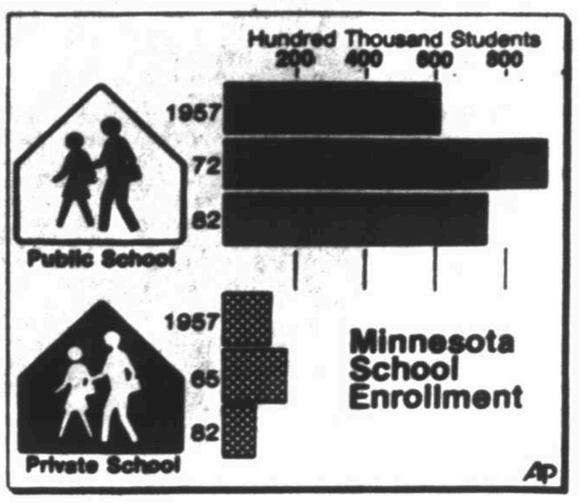
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — While many educators have argued that tax breaks to private school parents would mean the death of public education, tuition tax deductions in effect for three decades in Minnesota have caused no mass exodus from public schools.

Enrollment has dropped at public schools, but it's dropped even faster at private schools, undercutting the argument that tax breaks would encourage parents to switch their children to parochial schools and other private institutions.

Minnesota's law has become central to the debate over the wisdom of tuition tax breaks — a debate that has pitted supporters led by President Reagan against teacher unions, school board officials and others.

"We think (tuition tax breaks) would be a great harm to public schools because they provide an incentive for people to put their children in private schools," said Judy Bardacke, a spokeswoman for the American Federation of Teachers in Washington, D.C.

The U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Minnesota statute by a 5-4 vote in June, cheering Reagan and others who have been pressing Congress to approve a similar, though not identical, federal tuition tax credit.



AMONG THE KEY differences: Minnesota's law provides tax breaks to parents of public school students as well as those with children in private school, allowing public school parents to deduct such things as the cost of their kids' sweatsuits and tennis shoes. The federal proposal is limited to private school parents.

Minnesota's law provides tax deductions, not credits as the federal proposal would, and the state deductions range up to $700, where the federal bill would eventually offer credits of up to $300.

A deduction reduces the amount of a person's income that is considered taxable. A credit directly lops off a chunk of the taxes a person owes. A $300 credit is worth more than a deduction of the same amount.

Supporters of tuition tax breaks now believe that with the Supreme Court ruling, the Minnesota statute could become a model for similar state laws elsewhere, and perhaps even a federal law.

Thomas Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association in Washington, which opposes tax breaks to private school parents, predicted that Reagan and his congressional allies "will now be scurrying to revise their bills to bring them into line with the Minnesota decision."

ENROLLMENT IN private schools in Minnesota climbed from 133,022 in 1957 to 173,534 in 1965 but then slipped to 91,803 by 1982.

The number of public school students went from 617,365 in 1957 to a peak of 914,018 in 1972 and dropped to 749,931 by 1982, according to the Minnesota Department of Education. The tax deduction has been on the books since 1955.

In 1980, nearly 19 percent of Minnesota's children were in private schools, primarily religious institutions, said Douglas Blomgren, the special assistant attorney general who represented Minnesota during arguments before the Supreme Court. But in the most recent years the figure stood at 10 percent.

"What has happened," he said, "is that school populations have decreased in both public and private schools, but have decreased more rapidly in private schools."

"If one is trying to design legislation that encourages a broad spectrum of people to send their children to private schools, this statute just is not going to work," Blomgren said.

But Ms. Bardacke argued that the Minnesota's experience may be unusual, in part because a tax credit can be worth more than a deduction, and in part because Minnesota puts a lot of resources into public education.

NATIONAL EDUCATION Association estimates show that in the 1982-83 school year, per-pupil expenditures in Minnesota were $3,157, above the national average of $2,952.

The deduction cost the state about $4.1 million in lost tax revenue in 1980, the last year for which figures are available.

"Where you have school districts in financial straits...the diversion through tax deductibility is taking away from the public school systems," said Charles Cole, a spokesman for the Minnesota Federation of Teachers.

Consequences become severe

Although the rate of large-truck fatal accidents is declining and large trucks experience fewer accidents per vehicle-mile of travel than passenger cars, the consequences are more severe. In 1981, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reports, large trucks were involved in 11.1 percent of all fatal accidents in which 5,779 people died.

Bag lady, wino evicted from window

NEW YORK (AP) — Under the "No Loitering" sign, a tattered bag lady was reading "House & Garden." A wino in rolled-up pants was drinking expensive scotch.

And a $50,000 gold necklace lay on the littered sidewalk between them.

That's what Fifth Avenue strollers saw until Thursday, when Tiffany & Co., bowing to customer complaints, kicked the miniature street people out of their window display.

All that remains now is the necklace, a few tiny crumpled beer cans, an old slipper and some garbage bags. They'll be gone, too, when the window is changed next week.

The tiff began Tuesday when a New York Daily News reporter, in a column, called the display "a pretty grim joke in a city where 36,000 men and women live in boxes and doorways."

Tiffany still defends its window. "It's a contemporary artistic rendering" of New York City scenes, said Duane Garrison, director of public relations for Tiffany's. Other windows showed Greta Garbo and other celebrities on city sidewalks.

"All you have to do is take a walk within three blocks around here and you'll see all those scenes," Miss Garrison said.

But when "some people complained," the jeweler decided to remove the figures, she added. It was the first time a Tiffany window had been changed because of complaints.

For two weeks, the window showed a small gray-haired woman sitting in a cardboard box between two green garbage sacks. Her pant legs were rolled up. One slipper was on, the other off.

The man's toe poked through the top of a shoe. He had a cigarette butt in one hand and a bottle of expensive J&B scotch in the other. A poster advertising gin read: "Enhance Your Life."

"It's a contemporary artistic rendering (of New York City scenes)...All you have to do is take a walk within three blocks around here and you'll see all those scenes."

— Duane Garrison
Tiffany's director of public relations

Gene Moore, window display director at Tiffany since 1955, told the Daily News that he thought the display was humorous. After the change, Moore declined to be interviewed, Miss Garrison said.

The tableau was "a work of art," said Robert Keene McKinley, who created it. He said it was his favorite Tiffany window and was inspired by a woman who lives in a box on a street near his home. It wasn't created to sell jewelry, he added.

The Daily News account called it "particularly painful" for the homeless "to be laughed at by a Fifth Avenue store whose very name connotes wealth, opulence, the Good Life."

Tiffany's window displays rank as "one of New York's most famous tourist attractions," Miss Garrison said. "They've been talked about, they've been unusual, but they've never been this controversial."

Miss Garrison called Moore "very ingenious." During a recent water shortage, for example, Moore built a miniature fountain display and used gin in place of water to comply with a city order that water fountains be turned off.

Postmaster enforces rules, but angers town

SNEEDVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For 28 years, mail got to where it was intended to go in this tiny mountain town because postmaster Paul Reed knew practically everyone in Hancock County.

But a noteworthy flap has developed because of Reed's retirement and the appointment of temporary postmaster Ann Bunch.

Mrs. Bunch began enforcing U.S. Postal Service rules, which require the return of improperly addressed mail to the sender.

A Sneedville businessman who asked that he not be named said Reed made sure that letters and bills got through because he knew most of the county's 6,800 residents.

"He just know'd 'em, know'd where they live," the businessman said. "He was postmaster for years, and he gave some people a break — probably breaks to those that didn't deserve it."

The flap came to a head earlier this week when a group of angry residents gathered in front of the post office and police had to be called.

Judge charged with intoxication

McALLEN (AP) — A substitute municipal judge was arrested in his courtroom and charged with public intoxication, officials said Friday.

The part-time judge, Ronald Layer, was filling in for a vacationing judge Thursday night when he was arrested, booked on the misdemeanor charge and released on a personal recognizance bond, said Police Chief Les Spradlin.

Asked if Layer, 34, had been fired Friday, City Manager Don Sisson would say only that "Mr. Layer is no longer with the city." Sisson declined futher comment on the case.

Court rejects Barefoot's appeal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A second appeal for Thomas "Andy" Barefoot, a Texas prisoner condemned to death for murder, was knocked down by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday.

A three-judge panel upheld a March 24 ruling by a federal judge in Waco, rejecting Barefoot's claim that a witness in his trial had lied.

Barefoot, an oil field roughneck from New Iberia, La., was convicted of murdering a Harker Heights policeman, Carl Levin, 31, on Aug. 7, 1978.

Cattleman proposes barter plan

AUSTIN (AP) — The president of the Independent Cattlemen's Association thinks Texas should trade its beef, corn, beans, rice and other agricultural products for Mexican oil.

Roy G. Wheeler, who said the ICA board of directors has unanimously endorsed the barter idea, plans to pursue the plan with Texas business leaders, the state congressional delegation and government officials.

He added that the petroleum gained in the deal could be used to replenish this country's strategic petroleum reserves or to decrease the amount of oil imported from Middle Eastern countries.

Deductions don't need spouse's OK

AUSTIN (AP) — A married school employee may have union dues and charitable donations taken out of his or her paycheck without approval of the employee's spouse, Attorney General Jim Mattox held Friday.

Mattox, however, said he needed more facts to determine whether loan installments and insurance premiums could also be deducted from paycheck without the spouse's OK.

Sen. Carl Parker, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, asked for Mattox's opinion on payroll deductions for a married employee of an independent school district.

Odessan tries to rob Coahoma bank

COAHOMA (AP) — An Odessa man armed with a BB gun tried to rob the Coahoma State Bank here Friday morning but gave up after learning a score of law enforcement officers had surrounded the building.

Authorities said the man had locked about 20 persons in the bank vault and broke the air rifle in an attempt to pry open a barred window before deciding to surrender.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said the would-be bandit, Alonzo Orozco Armendariz, 25 yelled to officers that he had hostages. But he walked out of the bank with his hands over his head a few minutes later.

Armendariz was taken to the Howard County Jail in Big Spring, eight miles west of Coahoma on Interstate Highway 20. He was charged with armed robbery and held on $75,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Handicapped boy dies after victory

MD victim wanted to be normal

FORT WORTH (AP) — A severely handicapped teen-ager led his wheelchair soccer team to the gold medal in the United Cerebral Palsy games, then retired to his dormitory with his teammates.

Twelve hours later, he was dead.

Paul James II, 16, "wanted to do and did everything a normal child could," said his father, Paul James. "It may not have been the way a normal child would have done it, but he found a way."

Paul, of Bellows Falls, Vt., led the U.S. All-Star Wheelchair Soccer Team to a 1-0 victory Wednesday night over the Canadian squad.

His coach, Bob Fortone, said Paul was the team leader, and he made several key defensive plays during the game, even though he had little use of his limbs.

The muscular dystrophy victim had heart problems so severe that he had to sleep sitting up to prevent congestive heart failure. A team sponsor found Paul the morning after the big game, slumped over in the chair in which he had been sleeping at a Texas Christian University dormitory.

"He thought he'd make it back to Vermont, but I think he realized this would be his last game," said Fortone, who also coached Paul at the Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center in Greenfield, N.H.

Tarrant County Medical Examiner Nizam Pwerwani said the youth apparently died of respiratory failure. An exact cause of death would not be issued until further tests are conducted, Pwerwani said.

Said teammate Tony Wells, "It's as if he used the last of his strength for this."

Confined to a wheelchair since he was 7 because of a degenerative neuromuscular disease called spinal muscular atrophy, Paul dreamed for a year of helping his team win the gold medal at the games.

The quest began after opposing teams complained and he was disqualified from similar games in Denmark last year because he had muscular dystrophy and not cerebral palsy. However, he qualified for the all-star games here.

"Paul was in an electric wheel chair. He had very limited use of his limbs, but he could maneuver the wheelchair exceptionally well," his father said in an interview from Vermont.

His son hadd to resort to a wheelchair nine years ago after an unsuccessful operation to stretch the cords in his heels.

Muscular dystrophy was diagnosed at age 18 months, he said, and "they told us he wouldn't make it past 5. When he did, we had a major party."

Paul also was a keen chess player and could beat everyone in the family by the time he was 7, his father said.

He attended a public school in Vermont through the sixth grade. When his health deteroriated, he enrolled at the Crotched Mountain center, where he could continue his education and receive therapy.

Wheelchair soccer is a combination of soccer and basketball. Players must dribble the ball while rolling their wheelchairs. The ball can either be thrown or kicked into a net to score a goal.

The team had returned to its dorm, Sherley Hall, after the victory and settled in for the night. The sponsor checked on Paul and the rest of the team about every 30 minutes, Fortone said.

At the 7 a.m. check, all was fine. At 7:40 a.m., Paul was found dead.

"He was more concerned with the team than what happened to him."

Proposed strike could affect 40,000 Texans

AUSTIN (AP) — About 40,000 workers in Texas would join a nationwide strike if American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Communications Workers of America cannot come to terms on a new contract by midnight tonight company and union officials said Friday.

L.D. Magee, CWA district vice president, said in a statement released by his office that a nationwide strike by 525,000 AT&T employees is "a very high probability" unless the company comes up with a "new and realistic contract proposal."

But Southwestern Bell spokesman Dale Johnson said the company is optimistic that a settlement will be reached before the current contract expires at midnight.

Union members recently voted five-to-one in favor of a strike against AT&T should a new national contract not be reached by the deadline, Magee said.

He said the company's only wage proposal called for wage increases ranging from zero to 2.7 percent in the first year with cost-of-living adjustments in the second and third year to be capped at 4 percent of the Consumer Price Index.

"We were astonished that AT&T with its record profits of $7.2 billion last year would put such a meager proposal on the table," Magee said in a statement. "That kind of proposal makes one wonder if the company wants a settlement."

Johnson said the company has contingency plans to use about 10,000 management employees to keep the system operating during a strike.

He said the prime priority would be to man the long distance operator positions because that is a revenue producer.

"We do not anticipate that customers will see a great deal of change with long distance (service) even with a strike," said Johnson.

He said customers would notice a strike primarily in the areas of installation and repair, where a manpower shortage could cause some delay. He said customers also could experience some minor delays in directory assistance because of a strike.

"We are prepared to dealy with any strike situation as long as we need to. We have a plan worked out with appropriate shifts to take care of the job," said Johnson.

Albert Bowles, administrative assistant to Magee in the Austin office of CWA's District 12, said there are 40,000 Communications Workers of America in Texas.

Bowles said the CWA has approximately 10,000 workers in the Houston area; 8,000 in Dallas; 4,200 in San Antonio; 4,000 in Fort Worth and 2,500 in Austin.

Magee said the last nationwide strike by CWA members against AT&T occurred in 1971. The strike lasted for a week.

Hightower fulfills pledge to open farmers' markets

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower served home-grown tomatoes and cantaloupes to a news conference Friday to show he had fulfilled a campaign pledge to help establish farmers' markets in Texas.

Farmers' markets recently opened in Waco, Tyler, Vernon and Grayson County, Hightower said.

"These four are just the beginning. We plan to provide assistance for opening another six to 10 markets in 1984, and a similar number the following year," he said.

Hightower also said the markets may not be limited to home-grown agricultural products.

"Independent commercial fishermen are interested in selling fresh fish directly to consumers through farmers' markets, and some ranchers are discussing the idea of coming into the markets to sell their locally-raised and slaughtered beef," he said.

Man wants burglars...dead or alive

RIESEL, Texas (AP) — On hot summer days, Harold Wilkey sits under his tin shed, swats at flies and admires his vast collection of antiques and junk.

But lately, he has been spending his summer nights under the trees, curled up with a shotgun. And last week he ran a "Wanted, Dead or Alive" reward notice in the local newspaper in Riesel, 15 miles southeast of Waco.

Wilkey desperately wants to nail the thieves who have burglarized his German Barnyard antique shop-junkyard six times in the past two months.

"I've always said I wouldn't shoot anybody over this stuff, but I've changed my mind," said 54-year-old Wilkey, a large man who always wears a "German Barnyard" baseball cap. "That's all I got. That's my living they're taking away from me."

The first time, someone untied the rope from the gate and stole a set of brass bells and other brassware valued at $400 to $500. He estimates his total losses at $1,400.

He never has called the McLennan County Sheriff's Department about the break-ins, since he figures it wouldn't do any good.

In fact, Wilkey is a little afraid that if anyone gets in trouble, it will be him for putting that classified ad in the paper.

Wilkey's ad in the July 29 issue of the local newspaper, the Riesel Rustler, is innocuously sandwiched between ads announcing a Ford LTD and tractor equipment for sale.

But its message, and anger, are clear:

"$1,000 REWARD 'Dead or alive' if you can catch the two that have broken into the German Barnyard 6 times in 8 weeks."

Wilkey admits he was angry when he placed the ad, but he never really expected someone might show up one day with a dead man draped over his shoulder and ask for the reward.

He figured that if two drug addicts were involved, the ad would arouse their suspicion of each other, each thinking the other would try to collect the reward.

If there are laws that forbid Wilkey's kind of crime fighting, county and state officials can't find them. Questions about the legality of modern-day "Wanted Dead or Alive" notices drew these responses from law enforcement spokesman:

— The McLennan County district attorney's office: "Well, it's certainly not good."

— The county-state division of the attorney general's office: "I don't know; I wouldn't know where to look."

— The enforcement division of the attorney general's office: "You're kidding. Oh my gosh."

Wilkey, his wife Sue and twin sons Larry and Jerry, 12, live in a white frame house that overlooks his shed and barn and half acre of scattered treasures that front Texas 6.

Wilkey, who was once defeated in a bid to become Riesel's mayor, said he is encouraged by recent talk about establishing a city police department. That might help deter those who would steal Wilkey's things right out from under him, he said.

But he keeps the shotgun ready, just in case.

Harold Wilkey, flanked by his son Jerry looks like a burly family man. But he has gotten so mad at thieves who continue to steal from his German Barnyard antique shop/junk yard that he's run a "Wanted, Dead or Alive" classified advertisememt in the local paper, and lately he's been sleeping outdoors with a shotgun.

Investigators begin probe into papers

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Congressional investigators have arrived at Stanford University to find out how Carter administration documents wound up in the hands of Reagan campaign officials in 1980.

Rep. Donald Albosta's, D-Mich., committee is looking for evidence of unethical conduct.

Shrimpers protest Mexico's territorial limit

By GARDNER SELBY
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON —Roughed up by more than the broiling sun and salty Gulf Coast breeze, Texas shrimp fishermen could be heard as far away as Congress this week in their cries of economic discrimination.

In Brownsville Wednesday, nearly 900 shrimpers blasted federal enforcement of Mexico's 200-mile territorial limit for putting them closer to poverty than any year in memory.

Coast Guard sources said the crackdown that began July 28 had resulted in 14 seized vessels and 10 seized catches on the high seas.

Partly in response to complaints, the agency in charge of enforcement held closed congressional briefings on the law Thursday and planned a public briefing for Friday, while Rep. Solomon Ortiz, D-Texas, told his staffers to consider drawing up legislative remedies for the 1981 law that requires the government to block Americans from fishing in foreign waters.

Coast Guard officials said they intend no let-up in their boarding of boats suspected of illegal shrimping.

Two 95-foot patrol boats will be joined by a 210-foot Coast Guard cutter sometime late this week, according to Coast Guard sources who asked to be unidentified.

"The law was obviously enacted for conservation purposes," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "We will continue enforcement."

"It's a potentially volatile situation," said John Bovard, director of congressional affairs for the National Marine Fisheries Service. The service held congressional briefings Thursday in order to avoid possibly violent confrontations along the South Texas border, Bovard said.

Bovard acknowledged, "The pickings are a little better (for shrimpers) south of the border," but said that shrimp are expected to return north later this year.

Donors can't solve all problems

HOUSTON (AP) — Recent appeals for livers to save dying children have focused attention on organ transplants, but some people in the field say the problem cannot be solved merely by locating more donors.

"Though we need donors, there is not the critical shortage many people seem to think," said David Stebbins, organ procurement coordinator at Houston's Hermann Hospital.

"And even if we had all the donors we needed, there would still be some dificult problems," Stebbins said.

The number of potential donors is naturally limited. Only about 1 percent of the population dies from accidents or wounds that make them potential donors, he said. Particularly with children, there are too few deaths to have a large donor pool.

Stebbins said the statewide committee on organ donations announced Thursday by Gov. Mark White is a step in the right direction. He added he hopes the group, which includes representatives from hospitals across the state, would address all aspects of the problem.

Another problem, he said, is money.

Transplants are expensive and most private insurance companies still consider them experimental and offer no coverage. Medicare covers kidney transplants, however.

In addition, Stebbins said, the high cost of the procedure means few hospitals perform transplants. National computerized networks can match donors with recipients, he said, but both must often be flown long distances in a race against time.

Another problem concerning organ transplants is that physicians sometimes are reluctant to approach families of dying relatives who are potential donors, said Berniece Burkhardt, a member of the committee and administrator of the Living Bank, which tries to bring together donors and recipients.

"The public is ready for this," Mrs. Burkhardt said, "but they need to know how to do it and physicians need to be more fluent in contacting families of potential donors."

Sara Speights, spokeswoman for the governor, said the organ donor committee plans to address all aspects of the problem.

She said White does not want a government agency to coordinate organ donations, but that he wanted to examine ways the private sector could help.

Leominster, Mass., firefighter Dennis Charpentier, right, tries in vain to revive 18-month-old Sheila Mitchelle Maldonado after she and her sister were trapped in their apartment. Two sisters die in tenement fire

LEOMINSTER, Mass. (AP) — Fire ripped through the top two floors of a three-story tenement apartment Friday, killing two young sisters who were asleep in a second-floor bedroom, fire officials said.

Leominster Fire Chief Fred Johnson said the fire broke out at 7:40 a.m. The victims were Sheila Mitchelle Maldonado, 1½, and Jajaira Maldonado, 2½. Their parents, Ana and Jose Raymon Maldonado, were not hurt.

Officials said the three-story wood-frame building houses eight families, who escaped after residents banged on doors in warning.

Jewelry salesmen robbed of stones

NEW YORK (AP) — A jewelry salesman was abducted in the diamond district and robbed of $500,000 in precious stones Friday morning, police said.

Shlomo Adar, 46, of Queens, was returning from a business trip at 12:30 a.m. when he stopped on 47th Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues, Manhattan's diamond district, police said. He was accosted by an armed man, forced into a car and told to drive. He drove to Queens, where he was bound, gagged and robbed of two jewelry cases that held "thousands of precious stones," including diamonds, police said.

He was left at a gas station, where a passer-by found him, said Sgt. Peter Sweeney, a police spokesman.

Man kills his parents, himself

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — A man with psychiatric problems dating from his military service during the Vietnam War killed his parents and then killed himself in their house, police say.

Robert Lentz, 34, was found in a downstairs bedroom Thursday, a rifle propped against the bed, and the bodies of J.C. Harrison Lentz, 65, and Eugenia Lentz, 62, were found in an upstairs bedroom, Hampton police Detective E.A. Browning said.

The son was shot in the chest but the bodies of the parents were too decomposed to tell where they had been shot, Browning said. The killings could have occurred as early as last Sunday, he said.

'Big brother' sought for assault

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man who acted as a "big brother" to handicapped and retarded children was being sought by police on 17 felony charges of sexually assaulting at least 10 youngsters.

John Carroll Jaco Jr., 22, is accused in a fugitive warrant of assaulting the children, most of them handicapped, Santa Rosa Police Lt. Cathy Riggs said.

Building will block heavens

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A new Prudential Insurance high-rise complex will be a boost to Jacksonville's skyline, but it also will block the heavens from the observatory at the city's planetarium.

The 12½-inch telescope at the Museum of Arts and Sciences will not be able to view the southern sky after the 21-story insurance towers are completed in 1985.

Museum officials have been discussing what they can do with the equipment and a domed observatory worth about $13,000.

One option is to move the observatory to the University of North Florida, said Phil Groce, director of the Alexander Brest Planetarium.

"The trouble with moving the observatory to UNF is that it wouldn't be accessible to the public," Groce said. "UNF would be using it for classes."

"It's all very tentative. It's a nice thought, and I hope it develops. But it's very preliminary," said Dr. Jack Humphries, a physics and astronomy professor at the university.

The observatory's telescope can see the rings of Saturn and the storms of Jupiter with startling clarity, Groce said.

Over the past two years, 15,000 people have toured the observatory, he said.

"What we'd like to do is get Prudential or someone else to pay for a van to take astronomy to schools, malls and so on," Groce said.

John Hollander, general manager of Prudential's planning and coordination division, said he hasn't met with anyone from the planetarium, but said he thinks a roving observatory would be a good idea.

Architects for the $90 million Prudential complex discussed the buildings' design in advance with members of the museum board but there was no way to construct without blocking the view.

Reagan asks Hispanics to support policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday the U.S. goal in Central America is "to prevent the people of this important area from falling under the heel of Marxist dictators, spreading instability to our own borders."

To succeed, he said, will require "economic and military aid and a national resolve...If we run away from our responsibility so close to home, it won't be our grandchildren but our children who will pay the price."

Reagan made the remarks during a White House luncheon with about 85 Hispanic leaders from around the country. He asked their support for his Central American policies, saying they could "serve as a bridge to our understanding our neighbors to the south."

"We're dealing with an issue that affects our national interest," the president said. "Moreover, alien philosophies are being forced on countries that are ill-equipped to reject them.

"So, we're standing by our friends; we're using American economic and security assistance in the tradition of President Truman to protect the forces for democracy, economic opportunity and peace against the expansion of communism," Reagan stated.

He said that Truman, in helping Western Europe after World War II, was dealing with countries several thousand miles away, while "we're trying to assist nearby neighbors, who are only a few hundred miles away."

The president also asked his audience's support for his economic policies, which he said have "laid the foundation for a strong non-inflationary recovery."

He cited the drop in the unemployment rate — from 10 percent in June to 9.5 percent in July — as "new and dramatic evidence of the on-going economic recovery, good news for all Americans."

Reagan said that productivity, factory orders, retail sales, housing starts and auto sales are up.

"This is no time to let up," he said. "There are those who would turn to the disastrous spending and taxing policies of the past, and I hope I can count on you to stand with us to make sure that doesn't happen."

The president received a standing ovation from the audience after his remarks.

He will be bidding for Hispanic support again next week when he travels to Tampa, Fla., and El Paso en route to a meeting with Mexico's President Miguel de la Madrid in La Paz, Mexico.

Earlier Friday, Reagan proclaimed August as "National Child Support Enforcement Month," declaring: "We want parents who are deadbeats to pay up and deliver on their responsibilities."

He said it was a "shocking fact" that more than half of all women who receive child support orders receive less than half what they are due and that 28 percent of them receive no payments at all.

Explosion demolishes nightclub, laundry, post office

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion leveled a nightclub and a laundry, wrecked a post office, damaged parked cars and shattered dozens of windows on a Queens street early Friday, authorities said.

The three buildings were closed when the blast and a gas-fueled fire struck at 12:50 a.m., and no injuries were reported.

Firemen said a gas leak was suspected as the blast's cause, but noted that five fuel cans were found nearby.

Firefighters used a crane Friday to remove debris in the search for clues — and possible victims — in the rubble of the Diogenis Nightclub.

Head-on collision kills one person

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — A head-on collision between two pickup trucks left one person dead and five hospitalized, Kodiak police say.

Killed in the crash Thursday afternoon was 85-year-old Edwin Bulen of San Marcos, Calif. His son, Bill, of Kodiak, was in stable condition in a Kodiak hospital and his great grandson, 17-year-old Anthony Chapman of Houston was evacuated to Providence Hospital in Anchorage where he was reported in stable condition.

The driver of the second vehicle, George Stillwell of Kodiak also was evacuated to Anchorage where he was in critical condition in Kodiak. One of his passengers, Susan McGiver of Kodiak was in stable condition. The other, Coast Guardsman Mike Moxey, was evacuated to Elmendorf Air Force Base Hospital in Anchorage.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, August 7, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This was the birthdate of Nobel Prize winner and educator Ralph Bunche, Ziegfield Follies star Billie Burke, the infamous dancer-spy Mata Hari and long-time Cincinnati Reds manager Bill McKechnie. Also sharing your birthday: New York Yankees slugger Steve Kemp, singer B.J. Thomas, World Series perfect game pitcher Don Larsen and football's Alan Page. It is time to get those emotions that have been making you act erratically out of your system. You need to start the fall in a composed manner. A loved one's good financial luck benefits you too. Romance affects your chances for success. Socialize more with your co-workers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Family celebrations promise a good time for everyone. Singles find adventure while traveling. Marital partners feel greater rapport. A tolerant attitude will help resolve any residential problems. Be patient.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Meditation holds great appeal now. A heart-to-heart talk with loved one clears up confusion. A son or daughter returns home for the day. Show your pleasure by being a good listener.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Life becomes much more rewarding when you recognize your priorities. Differences of opinion with neighbors or relatives should be toned down and quietly resolved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Community affairs hold special appeal now. Be skeptical of advice from friendly strangers. Your savings could be in danger! Regular attendance at a neighborhood church can bring new friends and happiness.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep quiet about your business interests when mingling socially. Loved ones may be hard to please. Spend more time doing things on your own. Resist an urge to indulge in expensive entertainment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be careful not to give someone preference over a rival. Domestic affairs will remain unsettling until later in the day. If going out to socialize, park your troubles at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Entertaining at home has special appeal today. Arguments can be avoided if you employ greater tact. Spend more time with young people. Plan activities the entire family can enjoy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The pace is slow and you love it! A change of scenery proves enjoyable if you choose an out-of-the-way place. You reach a new understanding with loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Attending church while on vacation gives you an opportunity to meet new people. Write a letter to someone you have neglected recently. Steer clear of involvement with strangers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Small social gatherings are favored over large ones now. You enjoy a tete-a-tete with a former romantic partner. He/she may want to continue where you left off. Live in the present!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not allow your imagination to run away with you. Luck smiles on a romantic relationship. Those who are young at heart find bliss. Keep entertainment expenditures within your budget.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Romance is puzzling. Proceed with caution! Arguments will be difficult to avoid if you insist on bringing up controversial subjects at a family gathering.

'Manbeast' abominable CBS movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Viewers who want to know more about nature had better spend Saturday evening in the backyard chasing fireflies, rather than inside watching "Manbeast! Myth or Monster."

The two-hour CBS movie simulates sightings of the creature known variously throughout the world as the abominable snowman, Bigfoot, Yeti and Sasquatch.

It simulates, but does not stimulate. And it does a disservice to people who innocently tune in because they are interested in the subject, and think Bigfoot may actually exist.

INDEED, CBS decided, after the program had been scheduled, to advise viewers, "This film includes dramatizations of speculative material."

This is a glossy production, with magnificent mountain scenery backed by the sound of trumpets and strings. It's too bad the pristine sights have to be ruined by shots of actors running through the forest primeval with patches of hair pasted on their arms and legs.

The film dwells on several characteristics common to the hundreds of Bigfoot sightings over the years: a height of 7 to 8 feet, a weight of 300 pounds or more, longish gray to reddish-brown fur, and a stooped, loping gait.

BUT IT hardly mentions another common characteristic, the horrendous smell the creature purportedly gives off. Alas, the movie provides that for itself.

While television docudramas present things as they might have occurred, "Manbeast!" uses "dramatizations" to present speculation as fact. Not only does the film tell us that Bigfoot definitely exists, but it condemns the logging industry for wiping out the creature's habitat.

The film also misrepresents nameless "scientists" for supposedly wanting to wipe out the species, if that's what it takes to prove whether Bigfoot is real.

Unfortunately, "Manbeast!" adds little to the realm of what is known about the creature. Times, dates, names and places often are omitted in the recitals of various sightings, and only one person — a Louisiana farmer — appears on screen to say he saw Bigfoot face to face.

OTHER simulations of "sightings" were not even real sightings; they showed people in the woods hearing noises they thought were Bigfoot, but could have been a bear, a wild boar, or a teenager with a sock in his mouth.

One simulation blames the disappearance of a skier on Bigfoot, even though there were no witnesses at all. The same for damage done overnight to a construction crew's tractor left in "unexplored" territory in Northern California.

The film claims all this represents "credible witnesses telling incredible stories."

No. Rather, it is incredible that these feeble examples would be offered up instead of more recent, more verifiable sightings.

TO confuse matters even more, simulations of "sightings" are mixed in with simulations of "what might happen."

For instance, to bolster its claims that the creature has a shy, gentle nature, a little girl is shown wandering away from her parents' campsite and coming head-to-kneecap with a Bigfoot that does not harm her. In another fantasy scene, a hunter is shown training a point-blank bead on a Bigfoot, and then lowering his rifle when he sees the friendly curiosity in its eyes.

After only a half-hour, the film suddenly and inexplicably shifts its focus. It becomes a film not about Bigfoot, but about Peter Byrne,

Captain sentenced to hard labor

NUREMBERG, West Germany (AP) — A 29-year-old U.S. Army captain was sentenced to five years at hard labor and dishonorable discharge from the service after she pleaded guilty to 11 drug-related charges, her division said Friday.

Capt. Diana Matos of Puerto Rico, assigned to the 1st Armored Division in Ansbach, Bavaria, admitted to five counts of possessing and distributing drugs and six counts of conduct unbecoming an officer at her court-martial Thursday in Nuremberg, 1st Lt. Benjamin B. Santos said.

In testimony at the trial, the defendant admitted to smoking hashish with enlisted soldiers in her unit at a Christmas party in December 1982 and selling hashish she and an enlisted man bought in Frankfurt last May.

Sixteen to die for overthrow try

LONDON (AP) — A public tribunal sentenced 16 people to death for their part in a foiled June 19 attempt to overthrow the Ghanaian government Jerry Rawlings, state-owned Accra radio reported Friday.

A 17th defendant was given a 10-year prison term because he played a lesser role in the coup attempt, the radio said. Four others were acquitted.

Only three of the 16 who were convicted appeared in court, and all pleaded innocent, the radio said. The others were tried in absentia, but it was not clear if they were at large.

Book to carry critical note

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Copies of a book by Seymour Hersch that are sold in India will carry a note critical of Richard Nixon's policies regarding India and disputing the author's claim that former Prime Minister Morarji Desai was a paid CIA informer.

Desai, who denies working for the CIA, filed a multimillion-dollar defamation suit against Hersch, author of "The Price of Power: Kissinger in the Nixon White House," which focuses on former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The Bombay High Court ruled Wednesday that each copy of the book sold in India must display an attached note on the title page concerning Nixon's policies and Desai. The court rejected the former prime minister's attempt to block distribution of the book in India.

Mexico's price index rises

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The consumer price index for Mexico rose 4.9 percent last month, mostly because of higher prices the government authorized for bread and tortillas, the Bank of Mexico reported.

The price index rose by 3.8 percent in June, its smallest increase in 14 months.

Government officials have said they hope to reduce last year's 100 percent annual inflation rate to 80 percent for 1983.

Church council criticizes U.S. policy

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — U.S. policy toward Central America came under fire Friday at the World Council of Churches assembly as U.S. and Central American delegates pledged mutual prayer, education and political action to reverse militarization in the region.

Declaring they are "alarmed and opposed (to) the escalation of U.S. military engagement" ordered by President Reagan, they asked withdrawal of all outside military forces from the region.

Meanwhile, the generation gap made itself felt at the assembly, as delegates from 18 to 30 pressed their demand for a greater voice in the global ecumenical body.

About a dozen of the young men and women — from America, Africa, Western and Eastern Europe — took the floor during nominations for a proposed new policy-making committee to protest that less than 10 percent of the body would be their peers.

The friction arose as the 18-day assembly, representing 300 denominations totaling about 500 million Christians around the world, held its 13th day, beginning its decision-making stage.

"I'm appalled at the way young people are treated at this assembly," said the Rev. Carl Kuusk, an Anglican delegate from Donwell, England, adding that if things didn't change, he wanted no part of the council.

He said young delegates were pressured not to make waves and "keep our mouths shut."

The outbursts came during the presentation of nominations for a new 145-member central committee, a powerful, policy-making group that guides council policies in the seven years between assemblies.

Christine Mueller of Nordstrasse, East Germany, a delegate of the Evangelical Church (Lutheran), said the low representation of younger members would mean "losing contact" with young Christians.

The nominations committee chairman, Harry Ashmall of Perthshire, Scotland, acknowledged that youth representation was a "very serious problem," but said little could be done about it unless home denominations themselves picked more young delegates.

However, the assembly moderator, Anglican Bishop Edward Scott of Ontario, Canada, noted opportunities for later floor substitutions on the committee slate by initiative of any group of at least six delegates.

In the new central committee slate, women make up 26.21 percent of the nominees, men 73.79 percent and young people 9.66 percent, with clergy 59 percent and laity 41 percent.

Also Friday, nominees were presented for seven council presidents.

—Archbishop Rev. W.P.K. Makhulu of Botswana, head of the Anglican Church of the Province of Central Africa.

—Metropolian Paulos Gregorios of Kerala, India, of the Orthodox Syrian Church of the East.

—R. Nita Barrow, a Barbados woman lay leader of the Methodist Church of the Carribbean.

—Bishop Johannes Hempel of the Evangelical (Lutheran) Church in East Germany and president of the Federation of Evangelical Churches there.

—Marga Buehrig of Zurich, Switzerland, a woman lay leader and scholar in the Swiss Reformed Church.

—The Rev. Lois Wilson of Ontario, Canada, a past moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Embassy employee arrested in April bombing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Lebanese employee of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut is being held in the fatal bombing that wrecked the embassy last April, sources close to the investigation said Friday.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said four or five other people were being detained by Lebanese authorities, including at least one Palestinian. All played only minor roles in the car-bombing of the embassy, the sources alleged.

About 60 people, including 17 Americans, died in the April 18 explosion. The bodies of several Lebanese workers never were found.

No charges have been filed. The results of the inquiry, including the names of those detained, were expected to be announced shortly, the sources said.

FBI forensic experts from Washington helped Lebanese police establish that the bombing was carried out with a pickup truck loaded with an estimated 2,000 pounds of TNT. Witnesses said the truck forced its way into a crescent-shaped driveway in front of the embassy and the bomb was then detonated.

The sources said a Lebanese identity card, possibly forged, was found but it could not be determined if it belonged to the driver of the truck because the driver's body was disintegrated by the blast.

Sri Lankan government asks Tamils to legally seek reforms

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Parliament voted unanimously Friday to outlaw all demands of separatism for minority Tamils, and the government quickly followed with a plea to Tamils to seek reforms within the system.

The passage of the constitutional amendment by 150-0 followed a wave of bloody ethnic violence that has left 267 people dead on this island nation off India's southern coast.

Two weeks ago a Tamil terrorist group killed 13 soldiers in an ambush in the northern district of Jaffna, sparking rioting by the majority Sinhalese population. Tens of thousands, most of them Tamils in the Colombo area, have been left homeless.

The 16 Parliament deputies of the Tamil United Liberation Front boycotted the special session, and remained in Jaffna, which is predominantly Tamil, although the capital was calm for a third day Friday.

Under the amendment, the front's Parliamentary members must swear allegiance to a united nation of Sinhalese — who are Buddhist — and Tamils, who are Hindu.

If they remain absent from Parliament for the next three months, they will automatically lose their seats, said government spokesman Douglas Liyanage said.

The front's members were expected to meet soon in Jaffna and prepare a response.

Citizens in Colombo say most Tamils are not committed to a separate state. Minister for Trade and Shipping Lalith Athulathmudali said the riots flared "because the ordinary Sinhalese came to believe that every Tamil who did not open his mouth to say otherwise was for (the separate state of) and terrorism."

The minister, a close associate of 77-year-old President Junius Jayewardene, urged the front's members to take the required oath denouncing separatism and to fight for reforms within the government.

He said it was crucial for the government and Tamil leaders to work together, and he urged Tamils to set up citizens' associations that would openly advocate a unified nation.

U.S. forces to maneuver in Somalia

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Marine-Navy exercise centering on Somalia later this month will be the biggest held by the United States so far in the Indian Ocean region, Pentagon officials said Friday.

A total of 2,800 U.S. Marines will hold maneuvers in Somalia after an amphibious landing from a Navy force offshore.

Somali forces also will take part but there was no word on their size or composition.

In the past, the United States has conducted more limited maneuvers in the area, including unpublicized Marine landings of about 1,000 men each in Oman in 1981 and 1982, and an 1,800-man Marine mock assault into Somalia last November, according to Marine officials.

This year's exercises in Somalia, scheduled for mid-August, are described by the Pentagon as "designed to allow the forces of both nations to conduct training.

Businessman has market cornered

By SKIP HOLLANDSWORTH

DALLAS (AP) — In the quiet of the afternoon, his hands still dirty from pulling weeds in the back alley, Joe Williams looks at his empire. He walks inside Joe's Barber Shop, his first business, which opened in 1969. A little black-and-white television flickers soundlessly in the corner, and William McKinley, who now runs the shop, wipes a bead of sweat off his cheek and says, "Lot of flies in here today, Joe."

Next door is Joe's Washateria, and around the corner is Joe's Beer and Wine. Right beside that is Joe's Liquor. In the back of Joe's Liquor, behind the chicken wire that Joe put up to keep people from leaning over the counter and stealing things, is Joe's Bail Bonds, and at the other end of the small strip of stores is Joe's Barbeque, where the kids like to hang out.

Joe's Grocery Store used to be there, but he closed it, along with Joe's Chicken and Joe's Cafe. In the parking lot is a big yellow truck and tractor, the machinery that makes up Joe's Construction. Across the street is a little house where Joe one day hopes to set up his latest venture, Joe's Insurance.

It is one of the more complete business monopolies in Dallas, servicing a closely knit, predominantly black neighborhood just east of Love Field and only a few blocks from two of the richest white areas in the city — University Park, to the east, and the million-dollar homes of Bluffview, just to the north.

Williams, 44, has made his stand in what is called the old Elm Thicket neighborhood, one of the few black areas in North Dallas.

Beginning in the 1930s, blacks moved into a small cluster of frame houses in the area. During the mid-'60s, when a black minister, the Rev. T.L. Young, bought one of the brick homes a couple of blocks east of ohe black section, others gradually followed.

Now, the middle-class neighborhood, where real estate agents say an average two-bedroom home sells for about $65,000, extends eastward. Among the prominent residents are state Rep. Sam Hudson, former state Rep. Zan Holmes, Terminal Cab Co. owner Ezell Randall, the Rev. I.B. Loud of St. Paul United Methodist Church and artist Willard Watson. Watson, known as "The Texas Kid," has put so many unusual animal sculptures in his front yard that the street is often blocked with people who have stopped their cars to gawk.

Significantly, one of the largest houses in the neighborhood has just been constructed by Williams. It has five bedrooms, 20-foot ceilings, and cost $500,000 to build. For Williams, married and the father of four daughters, a burly but soft-spoken man who wears plain, inexpensive work clothes and drives a beat-up 1973 red Oldsmobile, the house is the only sign that he has become wealthy from his storefront shops.

"My banker said to me one day, 'Joe, why are you spending so much money on that house?' And I said to her, 'Because I want a big house like white people.' She said most white people never get close to a house like that, and the sad thing is I've spent so much money on it that now I'm more or less broke."

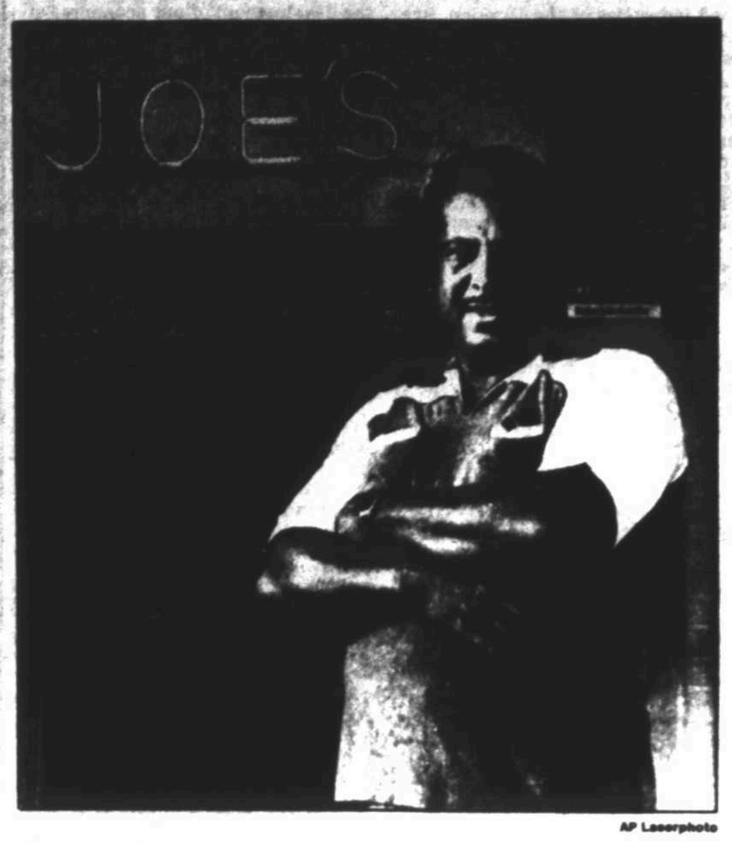
But Williams never stops trying, in his words, "to figure out ways to make some money." After waking up at 5 a.m. to clean his stores ("I think it's still my duty to be the janitor"), he does construction or landscaping work besides overseeing the businesses on the dilapidated, concrete-wall shopping strip. Throughout the night, he takes calls placed to Joe's Bail Bonds from people wanting out of jail. He is always hustling.

"He never takes the time to act big," says Robert White, who frequents Williams' stores.

Says real estate agent Arnold Blair, whose family started one of the first black real estate companies in Dallas, "Joe is one of your basic entrepreneurs. He just sort of popped up as a small businessman, and he went from one business to the next. Everything he starts he sticks his name to, and it seems to get along."

After graduating from Prairie View A&M University, Williams taught high school math for two years, then came to Dallas. When he realized he could make more money cutting hair than working as a machinist at the LTV Corp., he moved to Elm Thicket and opened Joe's Barber Shop. Thus began what Williams now calls "the Joe stores."

Williams recently took his insurance test "because there are a lot of people around here who need automobile insurance." Willams even wanted to start a Joe's Day Care Center, "because all these kids are running around the neighborhood with their hair uncombed and nothing to do, waiting for their parents to get home from work."



AP Laserphoto

Joe Williams stands in front of one of the stores he owns in Dallas. He has a barber shop, washateria, liquor and grocery store, not to mention the bail bond and construction company, and all are called Joe's. It is one of the more complete business monopolies in Dallas, servicing a closely knit, predominantly black neighborhood just east of Love Field.

But the city would not grant him the proper zoning. Blair, who sells many of the properties in the area and is representing the owner of the shopping center, says the property is for sale and several buyers have expressed interest. If it is sold, the last black enterprises in Elm Thicket, which, other than Williams' businesses, consist of a tavern and beer and wine store, might be torn down.

"Just as well," says Williams, looking at Joe's Beer. "A bulldozer could knock down this old shopping center in less than a minute."

Ironically, in the neighborhood around the shopping center, many homes have been refurbished and repainted. "People care about keeping Elm Thicket," says Blair. "There isn't any racial tension any more. The whites and blacks get along so easily because they have been living on the same streets since 1965. A young white family came into the edge of the neighborhood and bought one of the larger houses for $159,000, fixed it, and now it could sell for $265,000."

When the black residents started expanding from their little patch of wood-frame houses, white residents began selling out. "We would have 15 houses for sale on one block," remembers Blair. "And the blacks were right there ready to buy them."

Soviet study urges economic changes

By the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

MOSCOW — A confidential study prepared for the Kremlin leadership has called for a fundamental reform of the Soviet economy and asserted that its centralized management system can no longer ensure the "full and effective use of the society's intellectual and labor resources."

The document, printed in 70 numbered copies and made available here, provides an unusual insight into internal Kremlin debates over how to rescue the economy from the stagnation that has afflicted it during the past few years.

In contrast to published accounts that focus on various impediments to economic growth — ranging from a lack of incentives to shortages of skilled personnel — the 30-page study's main argument is that the existing system itself is now acting as a "brake" to further development.

THE STUDY WAS presented in April at one of a series of closed-door seminars organized by the Soviet Academy of Sciences, economic sections of the Communist Party Central Committee and the Gosplan, or the state planning commission. These seminars involved the country's top economic officials, managers and economists.

It is not known what other points of views were articulated at these conferences. The fact that the system itself was being questioned, however, suggests the scope of the discussions and the concern over the economy.

Yuri Andropov, the new Soviet leader, subsequently endorsed reformist tendencies in a June speech in which he asserted that changes in the economy are "inevitable" and that the economy was so far managed on an "irrational trial-and-error" basis.

While Andropov appears to have embraced the assessments of reformist elements as to the weaknesses of the country's economy, he has not necessarily endorsed their prescription for a broad decentralization. There are indications, however, that he is gingerly moving in that direction.

THE CLEAREST such indication came last month when the government inaugurated partial reforms to free industry from rigid central control and boost production. These reforms, known here as "economic experiments," involve the country's heavy and transport machinery industries as well as electro-technical industries. Also involved are the food industries of the Ukraine, Byelorussia's light industry and local industry of Lithuania.

The "experiments" provide for a freer rein for the enterprises in deciding how to reward workers, introduce labor-saving technology and plow profits back into production. The enterprises will be involved in "all stages of planning," be allowed to change their systems of financial incentives and generally be given more independence from the central authorities.

All this suggests that the Soviet leader is determined to modernize the country's economic structure. It is by no means clear whether he is prepared to go as far and quickly in the direction suggested by the study.

The Soviet economy, the study asserted, "has long passed the point where it was possible to regulate it effectively from a single center."

IT SAID THAT some of the basic ideological assumptions have become dated or irrelevant. In particular, it challenged the notion that economic changes can be carried out "without social conflicts" because "under socialism there are no groups" without vested economic interests.

"An analysis of the past decades of the development of our economy," it said, "forces us to cast doubts on this point of view. A fundamental restructuring of the system of economic management touches significantly on the interests of many social groups, some of which see in it hopes for an improvement in their positions while others see a worsening" of their status.

Earlier attempts to reform the economy — made by Nikita Khrushchev and later by Alexei Kosygin in the '60s — "did not take into account" changes that had taken place in the country. "This was, we believe, one of the reasons that they ended up in failure," the report states.

THE STUDY identified the huge state bureaucracy as the main opponent of any reforms. There are an estimated 5 million Communist Party members employed at various levels in the bureaucracy.

Some officials, the study said, fear reforms because of their lack of education. Others are afraid that they will loose their lucrative jobs.

The first group, it said, includes people whose power and duties would increase. But, it added, they are afraid "because the economic system of management requires higher qualifications than the (current) administrative system."

Mexico tightens border security

By RICARDO CHAVIRA
Copley News Service

MEXICO CITY — Fearing that Guatemalan guerrillas have infiltrated Mexican refugee camps, officials here have substantially increased security along the Guatemalan border.

The concern is focused on dozens of Guatemalan refugee settlements that have sprung up in the rugged jungles along the Mexico-Guatemala frontier. Authorities believe that the settlements could become bases for insurgents from Central American nations.

More than 70,000 Guatemalans — for the most part Indian farmers — have fled the government-guerrilla war in their homeland and settled in makeshift jungle camps just inside Mexico. Foreign observers here estimate that about 1,000 refugees a month stream north across the mountainous frontier.

That flow and Guatemalan government action ranging from protests to cross-border military raids have led Mexican officials over the past year to quadruple the number of immigration officers along the border, bringing the total to about 200. In addition, an undetermined number of soldiers and federal security agents have been dispatched to the region.

"They are definitely keeping a tight watch on things," said a foreign government official here.

Immigration authorities now make regular checks of the camps to question newly arrived refugees and to provide legal documents permitting them to remain in Mexico.

"They're not impeding the flow of refugees into the camps, but they're restricting foreign diplomats and journalists from going there," the official said.

Ben Crenshaw pulls down his visor over his eyes in reaction to a shot within 2-feet of the pin on No. 6 in the PGA tournament Friday. He one-putted for a birdie to jump into the title run.

Sutton fights off Crenshaw

Jack Nicklaus jumps back into PGA race

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) — Hal Sutton turned back the challenge of Ben Crenshaw with a record-setting performance and stretched his lead to three strokes Friday in the second round of the 65th PGA national championship.

Sutton, golf's Rookie of the Year last season and now the game's leading money-winner, added a 66 to the 65 he had in the first round and finished two trips over the 6,946-yard Riviera Country Club course in a record 131.

That total is 11 shots under par and set the all-time tournament record. The old record was 132, set by Ray Floyd last year at Southern Hills in Tulsa, Okla.

While Sutton, whose credentials insist he is the best of the game's young players, was setting the pace, two of the most accomplished performers golf has produced were making their presence felt as well.

JACK NICKLAUS, holder of a record 17 major professional titles, said he "got back in the golf tournament" with a 6-under-par 65 that put him at 138.

And Tom Watson, in danger of missing the cut for the final two rounds after taking a 75 in the first round, reeled off a string of six consecutive birdies and got back to even par for the tournament after 14 holes of play.

Crenshaw, who needs a victory in one of the Big Four events to confirm his stature in the game, shot a 66 that put him at 138.

"I fought and scrapped pretty well the last two days. I'm pretty proud of that," said Crenshaw.

With about one-quarter of the 150-man field still out in muggy weather, Pat McGowan held third place at 135 after a 67.

Gibby Gilbert, who got off to an eagle-birdie-birdie start, shot a 66 and was tied at 136 with club pro Buddy Whitten. Whitten had a second-round 70.

Tied with Nicklaus at 138 were Bruce Lietzke, who matched par 71, and Lee Trevino, who shot himself into a position among the leaders with a 68.

Sutton, winner of the important Tournament Players Championship earlier this season, credited help from his teacher, Jimmy Ballard, with his spectacular performace thus far in the last of the season's Big Four events.

"I flew him into Shreveport (La.) last week and worked with him," Sutton said. "I was blocking it out to the right. That's what happened when I got in the heat at the Anheuser-Busch. I started hitting everything to the right.

"He worked with me, and I think I'm hitting it as well now as I ever have. We just made some very productive changes in my game."

SUTTON IS making his first start since blowing a 6-stroke lead in the final round of the Anheuser-Busch in Williamsburg, Va.

And he made reference to that when he was asked about the security of a 3-stroke lead at the halfway point of the PGA.

"Nothing is ever secure in this game. I can tell you that. And, believe me, I'm speaking from experience.

"I can't do anything about anybody else. The only person I can control is me. And that's what I'm going to try to do from here on in."

Sutton, who already has set money-winning records for both first-and second-year players, held a one-shot lead at the start of the day's play and quickly expanded it.

He lipped out a 30-foot eagle putt on the first hole, tapped in for birdie and chipped in from 40 feet on the second.

"I wanted to play aggressively, make some birdies," he said. "That start, an eagle putt that could have fallen and a chip-in got me off and running."

He bogeyed the third, missing the green, but dropped 8-10 footers for birdies on the fifth and sixth.

Sutton wedged to three feet and made that birdie putt on the eighth, but got into trouble off the tee, thrashed around for a while and then made a 4-footer for bogey on the ninth.

HE ALSO bogeyed the 12th from the rough, which dropped him back into a tie with Crenshaw for the lead.

But Sutton got his approach within 30 inches of the flag on the 13th to go ahead again, then pulled away with a 15-footer on the 16th and a wedge to five feet for birdie on the 17th.

Crenshaw, who snapped a lengthy slump with his ninth career victory in Dallas earlir this year, said he'd been having alignment problems "and had missed the last four cuts in a row.

"But I fought and scrapped pretty good out there today, and I'm proud of that."

Crenshaw has been second five times in the majors but has yet to win the Masters, U.S. or British Opens or the PGA.

Nicklaus made a single bogey, after driving into the rough and had seven birdies, including two on putts from 25-30 feet, in compiling the best round of the day.

"Actually, I played about that well Thursday, but I couldn't get anything in the hole and came up completely empty," he said.

Dallas, Miami to eye backups

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Veterans Danny White and David Woodley will start, but a couple of young quarterbacks will get a serious looks when the Miami Dolphins and Dallas Cowboys clash tonight in their exhibition football openers. .

Miami Coach Don Shula calls his quarterback situation the strongest it has been in the past three years, with Woodley going into his fourth season. Woodley completed 98 of 179 passes for 1,080 yards and five touchdowns last season while leading Miami to the Super Bowl.

Shula said Woodley will play the first half and that most of the veterans would be in the lineup with him, including running backs Andra Franklin and Tony Nathan.

But rookie Dan Marino, the Dolphins' first-round draft choice out of Pittsburgh, is slated to start the second half at quarterback. In the same backfield with him will be former Oklahoma star David Overstreet, the 1981 No. 1 draft choice who spent two years with Montreal in the Canadian Football League, and former Miami Hurricane Woody Bennett.

"With (holdout free agent Don) Strock not being in camp, Marino is getting much more work," said Shula. "There's no queston we miss Strock, but it's enabled us to get a quicker handle on Marino's abilities at quarterback."

Shula said Marino also will be the holder for Uwe von Schamann on field goal and extra point attempts.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said White will quarterback for half the game, with Gary Hogeboom scheduled for a quarter's duty in his uphill effort to try to claim the starting job.

Hogeboom, who has a stronger arm, was impressive against the Washington Redskins in the NFC title game last year after White was knocked out with an injury. But Landry has made it clear that White will have to be beaten out.

White was "just about perfect" in the plays he called in an intrasquad scrimmage last weekend, Landry said, including a 70-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Tony Hill on the first play.

A crowd of 55,000 is expected for the 8 p.m. kickoff in Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys and Dolphins have split their four previous meetings, which date back to Dallas' 24-3 victory in Super Bowl VI in 1971.

Dallas has lost three of its past four exhibition openers, including a 14-10 loss to Buffalo a year ago.

"I don't pay much attention to the score," Landry said. "You try to win. You don't want to lose. But you're not going to leave your starters in all game just to try to win, either.

"We'll look at backup people basically in this game as well as some of the rookies. We can't look at everybody so we have to pick out certain people to look at," he said.

Diablos explode for seven in first

EL PASO -The Midland Cubs were handed another loss last night by the El Paso Diablos, 12-3, stretching their slump to 22 losses in the last 29 tries.

The futility began early as Midland starter Ron Richardson got bombed in the first inning, allowing six runs and retiring no batters before getting the hook for Carlos Gil.

El Paso put two aboard in the first with an error and a bunt single before Richardson, 2-8, walked four consecutive Diablos. In came Gil, who got out of the inning but not before surrendering a home run to get the Diablos off to a 7-0 lead that was never threatened by Midland.

After that, the game settled into a more normal pace.

Midland tallied one in the third, seventh and eighth but had little success against pitcher Steve Clutterbuck. Clutterbuck scattered 10 hits, going the distance for his tenth win against seven defeats.

"I had to be aggressive when we got ahead," said Clutterbuck, "because that kind of lead won't last if you're not."

Clutterbuck walked none and was in control throughout, but gave up a solo home run to Cub third baseman Tom Lombarski. Lombarski, who hit his round-tripper to straight away center, had three hits in four trips as the sole bright spot in a dismal overall performance that saw Midland slip further into the Texas League dungeon.

Said Clutterbuck of Lombarski's shot: "Lombarski's a good hitter. I didn't want to walk anybody. I threw him a good pitch and he hit it."

The Cubs now have the worst record in the TL and are 2-8 against the Diablos in the second half.

El Paso was the perpatrators of the current Cub slump, as they contributed the first five setbacks to this Midland drought.

Among the sour notes for Midland, every El Paso batter scored in the blowout and Cub reliever Ray Soff uncorked three wild pitches.

Midland plays tonight to complete the El Paso trip before returning home Sunday for the start of a ten-game homestand.

Midland Superkarter races with little, dreams big

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Superkart racing is a rapidly growing sport in the U.S. and Midland's Doug Meshirer is one of the best, ranked seventh overall.

Doug Meshirer has a goal he considers to be "far fetched." He wants to win the Indy 500.

Plan B: "Any kind of racing where I can make a living will do," said Meshirer, a Midlander who is currently ranked seventh in the United States as a Superkart racer. Until he made the change to a water cooled engine — for more power — he was the top ranked air cooled racer in the country.

Superkart racing machines — similar in appearance to an Indy-style car but one-third the size — provide a tremendous sensation of speed for the driver at a fraction of the cost.

"It feels like you're going 300 miles an hour," said Meshirer.

THE COST of an entire season of racing can run as little as $20,000. Little? It is compared to the cost of a new Penske PC 10 Indy car — $220,000, spare parts not included.

The cost difference does trim down a bit when you take into consideration the difference in prize money — hundreds of thousands of dollars for an Indy-style race, zero for Superkarts.

Plan C: "I'm looking for a sponsor," said Meshirer who claims to have spent $20,000 out of his own pocket this year (including his new water-cooled engine). "It costs about $1,000 a race if you don't hit the wall. I need to come up with a sponsor to finish the season."

Plan D: Scrapping part of the racing season and concentrating on the big one, the World Cup at Daytona International Speedway. "The last race of the year for me will probably in Daytona, Fla. It's the World Cup and there will probably be 150 drivers from around the world there. I'm definitely going. If I have to sell my stereo and television, I'm going."

He's hoping such drastic measures don't come about.

MESHIRER HAS been involved with racing or wild car antics — including a stint as a stunt driver for the movies — for several years.

"I went from drag racing (he built his own funny car) to motocross to Superkarts and I did some stunt driving in the movies," said Meshirer. "In the movie Hangar 19 I drove a jeep into a building wall but they didn't use it. That was good money, $2,000 in three days and most of the time you just sit around."

And then a friend got him hooked on Superkarts.

"A friend of mine said 'Let's go see some go kart races in Lubbock,'" said Meshirer. "I said go kart races in Lubbock, what fun. I wasn't there 10 minutes before I was trying to figure out how to get enough money together to get into it."

The Superkart he drives has a little more power than the average go kart. With a six-speed transmission, it reaches speeds in excess of 155 mph, accelerating from zero to 60 in 3.2 seconds. The engine that provides the speed is a Yamaha TZ 250cc which sits on the left-hand side of the car and provides 70 horse power.

Surprisingly, the car doesn't come with the normal safety equipment commonly associated with racing — seat belts or roll bars.

"The weight is so low to the ground (the car sits five-eights of an inch off ground) it's almost impossible to flip unless you hit someone," said Meshirer. "That's why they made us eliminate ground effects which help push the front end of the car down. If you spin around and start going backwards, the ground effects cause an up lift instead of down.

"If the car does flip over and you're buckled in, you'll break your neck," said Meshirer. "In that case, you want to be thrown clear."

A NORMAL Superkart race is run on tracks that average "four or five miles in length with left-hand turns, right-hand turns, hairpin turns and straighaways," said Meshirer.

And, with all those turns, the Superkarts average a faster lap speed than the Indy racers. "In Wisconsin at Road America we go faster than the Indy cars," said Meshirer. "They (Indy cars) run laps about 96 mph and we average 114. They do 190 down the straights but have to slow to 90 on the curves while we go 150 on the straights and 130 around turns."

To win a Superkart race, a driver has to go through three heats with different starting points in each: front, middle of the pack and rear. Each race is timed and the position after the three races determines the overall winner. Points are awarded, 200 for first, 100 for second, 50 for third, etc.

Like the races at Indianapolis or Charlotte or Daytona, Superkart racers have pit crews for between race work. Pit stops for fuel aren't needed, but quick repairs might be called for.

Dave Perkins, who works for KCRS and Sammy Moore whose a machinest in Midland, act as Meshirer's pit crew. Moore, who builds some of Meshirer's racing parts, helps keep down the cost of ordering replacements from Europe. It's a big savings when you consider it costs $53 a call to put in an order.

Ruidoso

RUIDOSO DOWNS (AP) — Tonkawa Charger, a five-year-old gelding making his first start of the summer at Ruidoso Downs, scored a close victory Friday in the featured thoroughbred horse race.

Tonkawa Charger outdueled six opponents in the 5½-furlong race and hit the wire a neck in front of Shes A Snoop. Stash It, the leader through most of the race, finished third.

Tonkawa Charger, owned by Melvin Riggs of Ft. Stockton, Texas, made a big move down the stretch to nip Shes A Snoop, another late-attacher.

Tonkawa Charger returned $9.20, $6.60 and $5.60. Shes A Snoop paid $6.60 and $5.20 while Stash It paid $5.00 to show.

Players can sign up for the tournament as a team or as an individual to be paired with a partner. Entry deadline is Wednesday, Aug. 10. To enter, call Yvonne or Cary Garton at 683-1529.

The tournament is paid for through funds raised by the Mixed Doubles tournament, which is sponsored by First City National Bank.

Gunslingers still don't have a play house

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A compromise plan that would have let the San Antonio Gunslingers use Alamo Stadium has been shot down by the city, but the United States Football League is hinting that it may take the matter to court.

The City Council refused Thursday night to reconsider its decision not to remove a 1939 deed restriction barring professional sports from the stadium.

But in a telegram read at the city council meeting Thursday, USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons hinted at legal action over the city council's decision.

40,000 MILE LIMITED WARRANTY

Under Dunlop's Limited Tread Wear Warranty, new Dunlop Generation® IV Radial Tires are warranted to deliver to the first retail purchaser in normal use a tread life of 40,000 miles when properly fitted to one passenger car. If your tire wears evenly to the tread wear indicators before delivering 40,000 miles, Dunlop will, on presentation of the Dunlop mileage certificate to any participating Dunlop dealer and in exchange for the worn tire, give credit toward a comparable new Dunlop tire based on Dunlop's Mileage Unit Price and tire mileage not received. The Mileage Unit Charge reasonably reflects current retail prices. You pay local taxes and mounting and balancing charges. Tires on front-wheel drive vehicles must be switched front to rear at 7,500 mile intervals. For complete details, see your Dunlop dealer.

Palmer may see minors

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three-time Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer, plagued by various ailments all season, may be sent to the minor leagues for rehabilitation, the Baltimore Orioles said Friday.

The 18-year veteran has pitched just six games for the Orioles this year. He is 2-2 in 32 1-3 innings.

He went on the disabled list July 8 because of tendinitis in the right shoulder.

Smithson, Jones zero Tribe

By The Associated Press

American League

CLEVELAND — Mike Smithson and Odell Jones combined on a four-hitter and George Wright singled home the winning run as the Texas Rangers blanked the Cleveland Indians 2-0 Friday night.

Smithson, 7-10, struck out five and walked four. The big right-hander had dropped his last five decisions since his last victory June 24.

The victory was the second straight following an eight-game losing streak for the Rangers, who began play in fourth place in the American League West, six games behind the first-place Chicago White Sox.

Lary Sorensen, 5-9, was the loser, although he allowed only seven hits. It was the Indians' third straight loss after winning their first four games under new Manager Pat Corrales.

Texas scored both its runs in the fifth. Wayne Tolleson singled with one out and took second when Sorensen threw wildly to first on an attempted pickoff. After Buddy Bell walked, Wright singled to score Tolleson. Dave Hostetler walked to load the bases and Larry Parrish's sacrifice fly made it 2-0.

Only two Indians reached second base. Gorman Thomas and Ron Hassey drew consecutive walks with two out in the second but Julio Franco grounded into a forceout. Pat Tabler had a one-out infield hit in the seventh and took second when Hassey walked, but Franco again grounded into a force play.

Brewers 7, Blue Jays 0

MILWAUKEE — Moose Haas fired a six-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory and Ben Oglivie's RBI double capped a three-run third inning as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 7-0 Friday night.

Haas, 9-2, did not walk anyone and struck out five as the Brewers won for the fifth time in their last seven games. It was his second shutout and fifth complete game of the season.

The Brewers took a 3-0 lead in the third inning off Jim Gott, 6-9. Paul Molitor walked, stole his 26th base and scored on a single by Ted Simmons, who took second on the throw to the plate. Cecil Cooper, the major leagues' RBI leader with 91, singled Simmons home and also advanced on the throw. Oglivie followed with his RBI double off the left-field wall.

The Brewers made it 4-0 with a sixth-inning run on singles by Oglivie, Roy Howell and Rick Manning and added three runs in the eighth against Randy Moffitt on Charlie Moore's two-run single and Molitor's sacrifice fly.

Yankees 12, Tigers 3

NEW YORK — Dave Winfield drove in four runs with a double and his 20th homer of the season and Graig Nettles also homered in support of Dave Righetti's seven-hit pitching as the New York Yankees defeated the Detroit Tigers 12-3.

Winfield's two-run double and Nettles' two-run homer highlighted a five-run fourth inning that chased Detroit starter Dave Rozema, 8-2. The big inning gave the Yankees a 7-1 lead and enabled Righetti to coast to his fourth consecutive triumph but his first since July 15.

Steve Kemp led off the Yankees' fourth with a single and one out later Andre Robertson was safe on an error by third baseman Tom Brookens, Detroit's third of the game.

Willie Randolph walked to load the bases and Don Mattingly greeted John Martin, acquired Thursday from the St. Louis Cardinals, with a sacrifice fly for the first of his three RBIs. Winfield followed with a two-run double and Nettles hit his 16th home run.

A's 3, Twins 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Gorman Heimueller notched his first major league victory and Jeff Burroughs hit a three-run homer in the fourth inning to lead the Oakland A's to a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Friday night.

Heimueller, 1-2, allowed both Minnesota runs and scattered seven hits in 7⅓ innings. It was his seventh major league appearance and sixth start. Dave Beard finished to earn his sixth save.

The Twins took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on Tom Brunansky's 15th home run of the year, but the A's rebounded in the fourth off Minnesota starter Jack O'Connor, 1-3, making his first appearance since being recalled from the minors this week.

Dwayne Murphy singled with one out and one out later Carney Lansford. Burroughs then hit his eighth home run, a 400-foot shot to left field.

The Twins got one back in the bottom of the fourth when Dave Engle walked and came around on singles by Gary Gaetti and Brunansky.

Red Sox 5, Royals 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Carl Yastrzemski's pinch-hit double scored Rick Miller from first base with two out in the eighth inning and boosted the Boston Red Sox to a 5-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Miller drew a two-out walk off reliever Mike Armstrong, 5-6,and scored easily when Yastrzemski hit his line drive into the gap in right-center field.

The winner was Bruce Hurst, 8-8, with Bob Stanley pitching the final two innings for his 21st save.

The Red Sox tied the game 4-4 in the seventh inning when Wade Boggs broke an 0-for-13 slump with an RBI single off Armstrong. Glenn Hoffman and Jerry Remy had walked with one out and Hoffman scored when Boggs singled.

The Red Sox took a 1-0 lead off Paul Splittorff in the second inning on a two-out single by Dave Stapleton, a walk and Gary Allenson's single.

Mariners 3, Angels 1

SEATTLE — Tony Bernazard drove in two runs and reliever Bob Stoddard pitched five shutout innings after taking over for injured starter Matt Young to lead the Seattle Mariners to a 3-1 victory over the California Angels.

Stoddard, 6-10, replaced Young with two outs in the third inning after the Seattle left-hander was hit above the left ear by a line drive hit off the bat of Steve Lubratich. Second baseman Bernazard caught the ball on the fly after it struck the pitcher.

Young suffered a bump and severe headache, but a clubhouse examination revealed no serious injury.

Ellis Valentine opened the third with a solo home run, his ninth, to give California a 1-0 lead. Bill Caudill worked the final 1⅓ innings to earn his 20th save.

Winfield: Seagull slayer?

NEW YORK (AP) — Canadian authorities had thousands of witnesses. A lifeless victim. And a suspect already fitted for pinstripes.

But New York Yankee slugger Dave Winfield, now the seagull slayer, said he didn't mean to do it. Even the police weren't sure the charges would fly.

Winfield knocked off some Blue Jays — the unendangered kind — with two hits, and a seagull — a protected species — with one throw. He ended up at Toronto police headquarters after Thursday night's game, charged with cruelty to animals.

"They always pick out the big guy," complained the 6-foot-6 Winfield, who posted $500 cash bail and returned home Friday with the ghost of a Canadian seagull draped around his neck like the ancient mariner's albatross.

"It was unfortunate about the bird, but also unintentional," said a remorseful Winfield.

Bird lovers were saddened. "I don't think it's comical. I think it's sad and unfortunate," said Janet Huling, a spokeswoman for the Humane Society of the United States.

The morning headlines in Toronto blared: "Damn Yankee Charged in Slaying of Seagull At Ballpark."

Senior police officials were reconsidering their actions. After warmup tosses in the outfield in the fifth inning, Winfield heaved a 75-foot throw to the batboy and, alas, dispatched the seagull.

The arresting officer, Staff Sgt. Tom Moclair, predicted that the incident would be "bigger than Jonathan Livingston Seagull." And indeed, on Friday, the seagull slaying was the talk of Toronto.

"The city should apologize to Winfield," said Joe McElhone, who got into a discussion of the case with fellow stockbrokers at a Toronto tavern.

"I think it makes us look like a hick town," added Dan Lett, another broker. "I think the police officer involved should be reprimanded."

"We're glad the Toronto police looked into it," said Huling, of the U.S. Humane Society. "For a baseball player, particularly because they are role models for a lot of children, it's a serious charge and should be investigated."

Brett, Perry, Howser get the thumb

NEW YORK (AP) — George Brett, Gaylord Perry and their Kansas City Royals manager and coach have been ejected from the suspended pine-tar game against the New York Yankees and will not be around if it has to be replayed, the American League announced Friday.

AL President Lee MacPhail said the two players, Manager Dick Howser and coach Rocky Colavito also will be fined an undisclosed amount.

The dispute began when umpires disallowed Brett's two-run homer in the top of the ninth inning July 24 at Yankee Stadium because there was excessive pine tar on the bat. The ruling made Brett the final out of the game, which triggered a heated argument.

Last week, MacPhail overruled the umpires and reinstated the home run, which put Kansas City ahead 5-4. MacPhail then said the game was suspended and that it would be completed after the season ends if it affects either team's pennant chances.

MacPhail's statement noted that after the homer was nullified, "several members of the Kansas City Royals were overaggressive in their reactions to the final out call of umpire Tim McClelland."

Montreal sinks Pirates as NL East tightens

By The Associated Press

National League

PITTSBURGH — Bill Gullickson pitched a five-hitter to outduel rookie star Jose DeLeon and Gary Carter slugged a home run among three hits, as the Montreal Expos defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-1 Friday night.

Gullickson, 10-10, was in trouble in just one inning as the Expos moved to within 1½ games of the National League East-leading Pirates. He struck out three and walked two in winning his third consecutive decision.

DeLeon, 2-1, came within two outs Sunday of pitching a no-hitter against the New York Mets in his third major league game, but left Friday night after being charged with five runs and giving up five hits in six innings.

The Expos took a 1-0 lead in the first on walks to Bryan Little and Andre Dawson and Al Oliver's RBI single. Dawson singled in a run in the third before Marvell Wynne doubled and Bill Madlock singled him home in the bottom of the inning as the Pirates closed within 2-1.

Carter closed the scoring with his 12th homer in the ninth.

The loss was the second in a row for the Pirates, who had won 22 of their previous 30 games.

Mets 9, Cubs 4

CHICAGO — Bob Bailor banged a single and two-run double during a six-run seventh inning to lead the New York Mets to a 9-4 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

With the Mets trailing 4-3, Bailor opened the seventh with a single and scored the tying run on singles by Brian Giles and pinch hitter Ron Hodges. Giles scored the lead run on a sacrifice fly by Danny Heep.

Mookie Wilson singled in another run and stole second and third. The Cubs then walked Keith Hernandez and George Foster intentionally with two outs to load the bases to get to pitcher Jesse Orosco. But Orosco beat out an infield single to score Wilson before Bailor doubled home the final two runs.

Orosco, 9-5, was the winner and Mike Proly, 1-4, was the loser.

The Mets scored three times in the fourth when Wilson beat out an infield single and scored from first on a hit-and-run single by Hubie Brooks. Foster singled but Brooks was thrown out at the plate by right fielder Keith Moreland before Darryl Strawberry cracked his 15th homer.

Ryne Sandberg's eighth homer, following a single by Larry Bowa in the fifth, cut the lead to 3-2 and and the Cubs went ahead in the sixth on Jerry Morales' pinch two-run double.

Phillies 10, Cardinals 7

ST. LOUIS — Joe Morgan hit two home runs and drove in four runs to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 10-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the second time this season that Morgan had hit two homers in a game to beat the Cardinals. On June 9, Morgan homered twice off Joaquin Andujar in a 6-5 Philadelphia triumph.

John Denny, 12-5, pitched the first five innings to pick up his sixth straight win. Reliever Ron Reed pitched 2⅓ innings to gain his fourth save.

Tommy Herr had a career-high five RBI in a losing cause for St. Louis.

Morgan clubbed a three-run homer during a five-run uprising in the second to put the Phillies ahead 6-0. Ivan DeJesus ignited the rally with a one-out double and scored on a single by Greg Gross. Pete Rose then reached first base on an error before Morgan connected for his ninth homer of the season.

Von Hayes drove in the fifth run of the inning with a single.

The Cardinals scored three times in the fourth. Herr doubled home two runs aftr consecutive singles by Willie McGee and Andy Van Slyke. Herr scored on an RBI single by Darrell Porter.

Lineman triggers 21-17 Eagle win

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Lineman Ken Clarke snatched a fumble on a quarterback sack and lumbered 41 yards for a third-quarter touchdown that triggered the Philadelphia Eagles to a 21-17 victory over the Detroit Lions Friday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The score was tied 10-10 with 49 seconds left in the quarter, when Eagles defensive end Carl Hairston sacked the Lions' Gary Danielson, slapping the ball into the air. Clarke grabbed it and outran Lions pursuers into the end zone.

Since Tony Franklin missed the extra point after Clarke's score, Jim Asmus boosted the Eagles to a 19-10 lead with a 38-yard field goal with 5:19 left in the game.

The Lions rallied to cut the deficit to 19-17 with 2:06 left in the final period on an eight-play, 75-yard drive, capped by Vince Thompson's 1-yard burst into the end zone. Eddie Murray kicked the point after.

The Eagles' final two points came with 1:25 to go, after Max Runager's punt was downed on the Lions' 2-yard line. On second down, Danielson dropped back to pass and stepped out of the end zone for a safety.

NFL Exhibitions

Broncos 10, Seahawks 7

DENVER — Rookie quarterback John Elway completed five of six passes in engineering a touchdown drive on his first professional series, and the Denver Broncos defeated the Seattle Seahawks 10-7 Friday night in the National Football League exhibition opener for both teams.

Elway, the passing sensation who was the first player chosen in the NFL draft last spring, electrified a partisan crowd upon entering the game at the start of the second half. After a Denver holding penalty, Elway completed three straight short passes, then hit Steve Watson on a 38-yarder and rifled a 16-yarder to Rick Upchurch, setting up Sammy Winder's 2-yard scoring run with 8:38 left in the third quarter.

Kansas City releases Vida Blue

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Royals released veteran left-handed pitcher Vida Blue, once one of the game's most feared pitchers on Friday. He was replaced him with Eric Rasmussen of the team's AAA affiliate in Omaha.

The Royals asked waivers on Blue for the purpose of his unconditional release, said Royals spokesman Dean Vogelaar.

Blue, 34, is in the fifth year of a six-year contract in which he reportedly is paid $800,000 a year.

He was obtained March 30, 1982, along with pitcher Bob Tufts in a trade with San Francisco.

Mickey Rivers takes a rare look out the Texas Ranger dugout. He spends more time these days playing cards in the lockerroom than playing baseball for the Texas Rangers.

Rookie Rizzo clings to women's golf lead

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Patti Rizzo, the 1982 LPGA Rookie of the Year, withstood a charge by Sue Ertl, another sophomore on the women's golf tour, and clung to a one-stroke lead Friday at the halfway mark of the $175,000 Boston Five Classic.

Rizzo, who equalled the Radisson Ferncroft Country Club course record with an opening round 66, slipped to a 2-under par 70 for a 36-hole total of 136.

Then Ertl, playing 2½ hours behind Rizzo, made a startling charge after bogeying her first hole of the day. Ertl, who had a first-round 71, collected seven birdies without a bogey the rest of the way for a 66. She missed a five-foot putt on the 18th green which would have given her the course record and a tie for the lead in the 72-hole test on the 6,008-yard layout.

Australian Jane Lock, who had a first-round 71, moved up with a 67 for 138, just two strokes back.

Pam Gietzen, tied with three others for second place at 69 Thursday, and Vicki Tabor were tied another stroke behind at 139. Gietzen fired a 70, while Tabor added a 69 to her first-round 70.

Becky Pearson, who had a routine 74 in the first round, finished late in the day, firing another record-equalling course record of 66. She was alone at 140.

Donna Caponi, a million-dollar winner on the tour, and Holly Hartley were tied at 141. Caponi had a second-round 70, while Hartley added a 69 to her opening 72.

Ertl, a former Michigan State All-American, needed only 27 putts in her fine round, matching her lowest score in two years on the tour. However, the 26th putt hurt her, just missing from up close on the 36th hole.

Rivers is Rangers' top card player

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Mickey Rivers throws a little batting practice, shags some infield grounders, challenges teammates to 40-yard dashes and shuffles and deals playing cards in the clubhouse.

Trouble is, about all the highly paid Rivers has been playing lately for the Texas Rangers is cards. If he isn't going to play baseball in Texas, he says he'd rather be sent somewhere else where he can participate.

RIVERS, THE former New York Yankee All-Star, has been sitting on the bench since mid-July. He has sat nervously and watched as the Rangers have slid down the American League West standings.

"I'm not real happy about it," said Rivers, a career .295 hitter. "I've been working hard. I worked hard in spring training and I feel quick. I definitely have the good timing and I just want to get more at-bats."

Rivers, 34, battled back this year from knee surgery. He played in only 19 games in 1982.

After alternating in the designated hitters slot, "Mick the Quick" has taken a back seat to Dave Hostetler and journeyman Bobby Jones, who was called up from Oklahoma City. Hostetler bats right-handed and Jones left-handed. Rivers also bats from the left side.

Rivers hasn't started any of the Rangers' last 22 games before Friday night's contest in Cleveland. The Rangers have lost 17 of those games.

"I don't really need to be starting," said Rivers. "Just participating. I want to participate. I can get on base, maybe steal a base or something, and score some runs. You need that."

Texas Manager Doug Rader apparently does not agree. Rivers has played only five times in the outfield this year. In 51 games, he has scored 19 runs, has batted .264 and driven in 12 runs.

Rader, with an eye toward the future, is betting on Hostetler, a hulk of a hitter whom Rader has called "the franchise."

BUT HOSTETLER has struggled, hitting only .211 with eight homeruns. And Rader shys away from inking Hostetler into the starting lineup for the rest of the season.

"You guys ask me to make long-range commitments and I don't think you can do that with this ballclub," Rader said. "For the interests of the organization — the long-range interests — I think it's important that he (Hostetler) play a lot the rest of the season."

So Mickey Rivers fools around during batting practice, flies past catcher Bobby Johnson in a quick 40-yard dash in the outfield, deals a card game, sits on the bench with his $450,000 annual salary, and wonders about his future.

"I don't care about Hoss starting. I want to see Hoss do good. That would be a plus for the team," he said.

"If they don't need me, let me go with someone else. Just let me go. It's more important for me to participate somewhere than to stay here."

BOWLING BEAT

Worley, Urias pace bowlers

By RANDY ISENBERG

Rick Worley paced bowling action over the past two weeks in Midland, rolling a 673 on the strength of a 277 game. Rosie Urias, with a 207-613, paced the women closely followed by Gladys Meredith with a 203-603.

Ruben Urias has had a good summer of bowling and his scores continued through the week as he turned in a 251-632 and a 258-670. Leo Rodriguez bowled games of 235-634 and 243-661.

Mack Gilliland produced a 273 game for a 610 series; Brian Gillette rolled 259-654; and Darrell Hopkins had a 277-634.

Midland youngstes Jason Urias and Patti Pyle were regional champions at the West Texas Regional YABA bowling championships in El Paso. Urias finished in seventh place in the Boys' Division B all-evenths and the two teammed up to capture the combination Division B title.

BOWLING CALENDER: Fairmont Park Lanes Bowling Center has been selected as the site for the state Finals of the Miller National Doubles Tournament to be conducted the first three weekends of January. The new 32-lane facility has also been selected to host the State Finals of the Texas All-Star Youth Bowling Championship tournament, an event that will be televised by KMID-TV. This tournament will be held on May 13, 1984.

Dellwood Lanes is the host center for the West Texas Bowling Match Game Championships to be televised by KMID. The scratch event, which features a guaranteed $2,000 first place purse, will be conducted on Oct., 8, Nov., 5 and Dec., 3.

Fairmont Park will be hosting the Northside Mens Open Invitational Team double and singles tournament the first three weekends in December.

On the statewide calender, the Texas All-Star Championship tournament will be held in Houston Sept., 3-5 with an entry fee of $200 per bowler for the scratch event, a U.S. Open Qualifying tournament. The top four entries in each division will receive paid entries in the BPWA U.S. Open.

The third annual Texas State Senior Mixed Tournament will be held in Houston on Oct., 22-23 and 29-30. This senior tournament is open to bowlers 55 or older.

Martin draws suspension

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin, who was fined earlier this season for remarks he made about an umpire, was suspended for two games Friday by the American League for calling umpire Dale Ford a liar during Sunday's game in Chicago.

AL President Lee MacPhail said he suspended Martin "for making public remarks adversely reflecting on the honesty and integrity of an American League umpire."

The suspension is to begin Aug. 9, when the Yankees host Toronto. New York also plays Toronto on Aug. 10.

MacPhail said Martin can appeal the ruling. If he does, the suspension would not take effect until the appeal is heard.

Martin was suspended for three games starting May 10 for kicking dirt at umpire Drew Coble.

In April, MacPhail fined Martin a reported $5,000 for remarks directed at umpire Dan Morrison after a game the Yankees lost in Seattle to the Mariners.

Reached at Yankee Stadium Friday afternoon, Martin said he had no comment on the latest action.

He was ejected during Sunday's game.

Houston owes its workers perk-pay

HOUSTON (AP) — For the first time ever, the city of Houston knows it owes municipal workers, including police and firefighters, $157.15 million in a fringe benefit known as perk-pay.

The benefits are accumulated as city workers pile up unused vacation and sick time. When the worker retires or quits, he can redeem those off-days for cash at his current wage scale, even if the time was earned years earlier when wages were less.

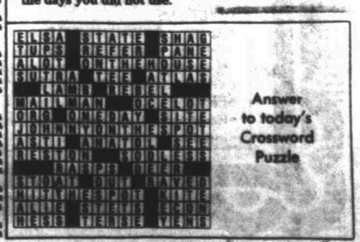
"There's nothing wrong with giving people generous benefits," Houston Controller Lance Lalor said Thursday after receiving the official figures from the city personnel department. "What's wrong is not putting up the money to cover them."

The $157 million liability, which is unfunded, has jumped $40 million in the past four years and could jeopardize Houston's AAA bond rating, Lalor said.

"It is symptomatic of a city that is not managing its finances very well. When we have big unfunded liabilities and we don't even know how much they are, that is a red flag to financial analysts," he said.

The gathering of the perk-pay records for Houston's 19,638 city employees, never before attempted, has been going on for months in all city departments, and finally culminated with the figures delivered to Lalor from Personnel Department Director Barbara H. Litchfield.

"There is nothing the city can do, or should do, about the vacation and sick leave pay already earned by city employees," Lalor said. "We should adopt a policy which says to city employees, either you use your vacation and sick days or lose them, or alternatively if you do not use those days we will pay you in cash for each year at the end of each year for the days you did not use."



Answer to today's Crossword Puzzle

Reagan saddled with Vietnam legacy

But he has opportunity to sell Central American policy

BY EVANS WITT

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has a lot of work to do to sell his policies in Central America to the public, but the task may not be as difficult as opponents would like to believe.

The legacy of Vietnam looms large before the public as the news is filled with U.S. battle forces, American advisers and potential blockades, raising the specter of another quagmire for the United States, in El Salvador or Nicaragua.

Reagan has tried to deal with this time and again, as he did in a recent news conference — "There is no comparison with Vietnam and there's not going to be anything of that kind." But the flat denials have not calmed all the fears.

ACCORDING TO a Washington Post-ABC News opinion poll released Thursday, four in 10 citizens see the United States becoming involved in a new Vietnam to the south. In addition, fewer than half those interviewed said they believe the Reagan administration is being truthful when it says it has no intention of sending American soldiers to fight in El Salvador.

One reason is that the comparison of Central America today with Vietnam in the 1960s — whether valid or not — unleashes deep and powerful reactions from many Americans. The Vietnam War is burned into the psyche of those who fought in the war, fought against it or watched their sons and neighbors die in Southeast Asia.

No matter what he does, Reagan simply cannot erase the legacy of Vietnam.

BUT THIS doesn't mean Reagan can't sell his policies on Central America to the public.

Americans don't know much about what is going on with our neighbors in Central America.

"I don't think they're as aware as they should be — we've tried to make them aware — that this is something of a threat in this hemisphere to peace," Reagan said at his news conference last week.

A CBS-New York Times poll in June, for example, said that only 8 percent of those questioned could accurately identify which sides the U.S. government is supporting both in the conflict in El Salvador and in the fighting in Nicaragua. That low level is even more remarkable when one understands that, if everyone simply guessed at random in answering the questions, 25 percent would have given the right answers merely due to chance. In the Washington Post-ABC News poll released Thursday, fewer than half those surveyed knew that the United States is backing the government of El Salvador and only three in 10 knew the United States is opposing the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

THE GOP incumbent tends to blame opponents of his policies and the media for this confusion.

"Maybe the people are disturbed because of the confused pattern than has been presented to them and the constant drumbeat...that there is an ulterior motive to this," Reagan added.

Without dealing with the issue of why the public is confused, it is clear that information about Central America is sparse. And that means the public's reactions to polls asking about Latin American policy tap broad views and lingering fears.

PUBLIC OPINION is not frozen in concrete on this issue.

In that lack of knowledge is Reagan's opportunity.

In the case of Central America, Reagan's words and his actions will be the key. If he can present the case forcefully and then back it up with clearly understood actions that make comparisons with Vietnam meaningless, Reagan has the opportunity to swing public opinion his way.

But Reagan can also fail in this effort. If comparisons with Vietnam seem more and more valid as his policies and actions unfold, winning public approval for U.S. moves in Central America will become more and more difficult.

Mexico babies born in U.S.... 'best gift'

By RANDALL HACKLEY

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - It's really no surprise that every day in 1982, an average of 37 expectant mothers traveled from their Juarez home to El Paso to give birth to their babies.

"It's a Mexican parent's best possible gift - to give that child the chance to be an American citizen," Reproductive Services social worker Eva Moya said. Regardless of parentage, every child born in the United States is an American citizen until age 21, when it must choose between its American nationality and that of its parents.

The Texas Bureau of Vital Statistics reported this week that 1,309 of the 13,137 babies born in El Paso County last year were children of Mexican parents - 10 percent of this far West Texas county's total births.

In 1981, 1,316 of the 12,943 babies born in this border county were of Mexican parents - 10.1 percent of the total births.

El Paso City-County Health Unit director Laurence Nickey isn't surprised by such numbers. "It's happened for years - (El Paso is) intertwined in more ways than one with Juarez."

Sixty-two percent of El Paso's 480,000 residents are Hispanic, and many have relatives across the Rio Grande in Juarez, Mexico's fourth largest city.

Marianna Gutierrez said the opportunity to have her child gain U.S. citizenship was the force behind her coming to El Paso for the birth. So last month when her labor pains started, she traveled directly from Juarez to El Paso's Thomason General Hospital, and gave birth three hours later.

The cost? About $200, which Mrs. Gutierrez said was "the best investment I could make." The hospital couldn't legally deny her medical care once she went into labor, and she had sufficient cash, she explained.

Thomason, where Antonio Gutierrez was born, is one of three area hospitals that handle births by Mexican mothers. There are also two midwifery centers here.

There is no law to prevent Mexicans from entering the United States to have their babies. Mexicans routinely shop in U.S. border towns such as El Paso or obtain three-day border crossing cards, and there is no such thing as stopping a pregnant mother at the bridge, immigration officials say.

In addition to citizenship, educational and medical benefits are reasons so many Mexican babies are born in El Paso each year, Mrs. Gutierrez said.

A U.S.-born child of Mexican parents has more chances to survive "the economic struggle. The benefits that a U.S. citizen baby gets gives it a better opportunity in life (than Mexico)," Ms. Moya said.

Mexico is in the midst of its most severe economic crisis since the 1910-20 Mexican revolution. An $83 billion foreign debt and three devaluations of the peso during 1982 sliced the value of the Mexican currency by one-sixth, to its current 148 to the dollar.

A baby born to Mexican parents in the United States also has the opportunity later in life to work in America, where current hourly minimum wages roughly equal the $3.48 per day wages in Juarez, Ms. Moya said.

Parents wanting their child to gain dual citizenship risk "disintegration of the family," she said. Most who choose to be an American citizen instead of Mexican will live in the United States, away from their family.

"It can break up the families, which traditionally are very close in Mexico," Ms. Moya said.

El Paso is the second most common area for Mexican births. In 1981, 2,201 babies of Mexican parents were born in Hidalgo and Cameron counties in the Brownsville-McAllen area — 47 percent of the 4,658 babies of Mexican parentage born that year in Texas.

Toothpaste, soap imported

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) - Mexico has authorized the importation of 3,000 boxes of toothpaste and 5,000 cartons of soap to stem a shortage of those hygenic goods in this border city.

Federal commerce deputy Lucila Dominguez Chicas said shortages in Juarez, Mexico's fourth largest city, would be alleviated immediately by importing American soap and toothpaste from the Texas border city of El Paso.

Juarez commerce officials said 280,000 pesos - or about $1,900 dollars -would be allocated for the shipment. Mexican toothpaste normally is manufactured in Mexico City and Guadalajara, but shortages have depleted store shelves in Juarez since the spring, authorities said.

Since the shortage started, black market prices for U.S. brands of toothpaste in Juarez have risen up to 300 percent of their American price. Some locals even began brushing their teeth with blackened tortillas - an old Mexican recipe - in the place of toothpaste, store clerks said.

Quebec separatist movement seems to have lost its steam

MONTREAL (AP) — Quebec's independence movement, which elected a separatist government and dominated Canadian politics for a boisterous decade, seems to have lost its steam.

"Nobody is talking about independence," said Pierre Bourgault, who was president of the Rallement pour l'Independence Nationale, a precursor of Premier Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois.

"I think it is a dead issue," Bourgault said in an interview. "For the moment anyway. Maybe not for the next century, but for the moment."

Energies formerly diverted into politics are now finding expression in theater, music, art, sport and other outlets, some Quebec observers say.

Lise Bissonnette, editor-in-chief of Le Devoir, the influential daily of Quebec's intelligentsia, said the newspaper gets far fewer letters on politics than it did three or four years ago.

In their place are submissions on economics, ecology, pacifism and more cultural listings than the paper can find space to print.

"There is definitely a cultural explosion in Montreal," she said. "At least they are not sitting home watching television."

Ms. Bissonnette was among those who supported a "yes" vote in the May 1980 referendum on whether to give Levesque's government a mandate to negotiate with Ottawa for "sovereignty-association," a term whose meaning was never completely clear.

The "no" forces won the referendum with 60 percent of the vote.

"How we could dream it could happen, I just don't know," Ms. Bissonnette said in an interview.

Rene Levesque

QUEBEC NATIONALISM has a history dating back centuries, but by the 1940s and '50s it had become identified with ultra-conservative forces in a largely backward and rural society. It was at that time that Pierre Elliott Trudeau, now prime minister, was developing his federalist views, and writing that progress for French Quebecers could come only as part of Canada.

Then in the 1960s, under the leadership of such charismatic figures as Bourgault and Levesque, the nationalist movement enlisted most of Quebec's youth and its intellectuals.

"You forget how important, how great it felt," Ms. Bissonnette said. "We felt we were part of a worldwide liberation movement."

When the radical Front for the Liberation of Quebec, after a series of minor bombings, staged two abductions in 1970 and murdered one of the kidnap victims, some Canadians feared their country could only survive at the cost of constant and escalating violence.

But as it turned out, the October Crisis — in which Trudeau's government declared an "apprehended insurrection" and imposed a kind of martial law — was the end of the line for the FLQ.

Levesque and his Parti Quebecois gained strength in every provincial election, finally winning power in 1976 after promising to make no move toward independence without consulting the voters in a referendum.

Bourgault, whose split with Levesque was bitter, blames the premier for "errors of strategy, particularly taking power without independence as an objective."

HE NOW CONTENDS that Levesque's tactics brought Quebec most of the adverse economic consequences predicted as a result of independence — such as scared-off investments — without any of the benefits.

"Now we've lost the industries, we've aggravated a lot of people, to no avail," he said.

Levesque's party is in serious trouble in the polls, with its hopes for re-election raised only by disarray among the opposition Liberals.

The Parti Quebecois alienated many of its most stalwart supporters last winter by imposing new public service contracts that cut the pay of teachers, nurses and other public employees while eliminating job security.

But Levesque has by no means conceded defeat. In recent months he has been saying independence will be the central issue in the next election, expected in 1985. Then, Levesque has said, if the Parti Quebecois wins 50 percent of the popular vote the government will take immediate steps toward making Quebec a sovereign state.

In Quebec, not many people seem to believe him.

Independence has become "a kind of dream..." said Dominique Clift, a Montreal journalist and author of the book, "Nationalism in Crisis." "Nobody takes it seriously anymore as something that could happen in the near future."

Bourgault, who now teaches public speaking at the University of Quebec's Montreal campus, said his students have lost interest in Quebec independence, but he is not entirely dismayed.

"WHY DON'T YOU have students in the streets? Because they're very happy with their lot," Bourgault said. "I think Quebec is one of the freest societies in the world, one of the most tolerant."

Martha's Vineyard auctions off 'Possible Dreams'

Art Buchwald

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Cocktails for four with author Lillian Hellman went for $450 and a cartoon of President Reagan and Henry Kissinger was sold for $500 at a Martha's Vineyard residents' auction, with columnist Art Buchwald as emcee.

Miss Hellman, poet Rose Styron, mystery writers Rose and Lawrence Treat and other island notables gathered in a school gym Thursday night for the annual "Possible Dreams" auction, held to raise money for Martha's Vineyard community service agencies.

Buchwald auctioned off such treats as cocktails for four with Miss Hellman, an Edgartown walk with Vineyard Gazette publisher-editor Henry Beetle Hough for $500 and an original Jules Feiffer cartoon of Reagan and Kissinger for $500.

Other offerings were a gourmet lunch for six at the home of Ralph Graves, Time Inc.'s editorial director, and Eleanor Graves, author of "Life's Great Dinners," a year's free parking at the Makery in downtown Vineyard Haven and fishing for two with Pulitzer Prize-winning author John Hersey.

"Everyone who comes to this island in the summer has a good time," said Buchwald, attired in checkered shirt, gray slacks and cowboy hat. "They feel they should give something back. This is our way."

The auction raised about $33,000.

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. James R. Thompson, who earlier this week became chairman of the National Association of Governors, will be staying in bed for several days because of back pain and a related leg problem, aides say.

Thompson's physician ordered the governor confined to bed Thursday for "at least three or four days," aides said.

They quoted the doctor as saying Thompson was suffering from lower back pain, which was causing numbness in his right leg and foot.

Aides said the governor's meetings and appearances were canceled through the weekend. He will rest at his Chicago home.

Thompson, 47, a Republican, has suffered from occasional back pain for several years.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Musician Al Hirt took a tour of Beale Street, billed as the birthplace of blues, and said he'd consider opening a club in Memphis.

"I've never thought of moving from New Orleans, but I can live in New Orleans and work in Memphis," said Hirt, in town Thursday to take a look at a renovated section of Beale Street, scheduled to open in October as a tourist center and nightclub district.

The trumpet player closed his nightclub in the New Orleans French Quarter three months ago because business was off.

"I don't have any New Orleans customers and tourism is down," he said. "But I love New Orleans. It's my home."

City officials pointed out that singers Lou Rawls and Charlie Rich already have said they will open clubs on Beale Street, where W.C. Handy played in clubs where he was credited with creating blues.

Hirt said he would have little trouble financing a club in Memphis, and would talk it over with his advisers.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Brewers Manager Harvey Kuenn and a "farm team" of animals wearing baseball paraphernalia were the featured guests as the 132nd annual Wisconsin State Fair began.

Kuenn was the center of attention in the opening ceremonies Thursday, receiving a framed copy of a State Fair promotional billboard sporting the slogan "We're the Farm Team." The barnyard ballplayers appearing with Kuenn were a real-life representation of the billboard.

Kuenn, manager of the defending American League champions, left his familiar plug of chewing tobacco in the pouch.

"I do look a little different than I do on television," said Kuenn, whose expectorations were the subject of several close-up camera shots during telecasts of the 1982 World Series. "I'm sure all of you know I don't chew when I'm not on the field."

Low-income diet stresses peanut butter

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Forget the junk food, learn to like peanut butter and be prepared to spend plenty of time in the kitchen if you want to follow the government's recommendations for feeding a family on a low-income budget.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently developed a series of meal plans for low-income households. The USDA says food for the meals can be bought for $58 a week, the maximum food-stamp allotment for a family of four; Agriculture Secretary John Block recently went on a highly publicized shopping trip to prove the point.

The government is trying to spread the word about the menus through the news media, with workshops and by distribution of a booklet, "Making Food Dollars Count — Nutritious Meals at Low Cost." The booklet includes suggested menus for a family of four for two weeks, lists the foods needed to prepare the recommended meals and the amounts, and offers general advice on stretching food dollars. Block ordered his department to distribute the booklet for free. It is also available by mail for 50 cents from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 405L, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

The meals are designed to provide food for a woman between 20 and 50 and three children aged 3 to 5, 6 to 11 and 12 to 14. The department says it picked that pattern because more food-stamp households are headed by women than by men.

The suggested menus include three meals and a snack each day. The USDA says they "emphasize economical foods, such as dry beans and peas and grain products," and "contain less of foods with little or no nutritional value, such as soft drinks, coffee and tea."

Some of the combinations are unusual. A recommended lunch, for example, includes peanut butter-vegetable sandwiches. The recipe: Take half a cup of peanut butter and one-quarter cup each of shredded cabbage, chopped celery and chopped raisins and mix together, then spread on bread. There's also tuna pizza, with a biscuit-mix base, topped by shredded process American cheese.

Most of the dinners include a meat dish — roast pork with gravy, braised turkey with gravy, liver and onions, beef pot roast and beef chop suey with rice, for example.

A taste for peanut butter is a must, however. One week's menus include peanut butter in one form or another six days out of seven.

Junk foods are out. Snacks are things like cereal, cottage cheese, muffins and cake. And peanut butter.

The USDA stresses that its menus are not the only way to eat. The department also says, "The menus and recipes are not appropriate if you have no time for food preparation. The USDA says preparing and cooking the recommended foods takes an average of two and a-half hours a day.

Physiologist develops birth control for rats

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — High technology has unleashed a new biochemical weapon in the centuries-old battle against rats — birth control.

Gametrics Ltd. of Sausalito, Calif., says its new Epibloc gives male rats a "chemical vasectomy," while Palo Alto-based Zoecon is marketing an aerosol that aborts the development of flea larvae and pupae.

"People think rats are smart. Rats aren't smart," says Ronald Ericsson, who invented Epibloc while employed by the Upjohn Co. to find a safe birth control pill for men. When Upjohn decided the product was unsafe for humans, Ericsson got the patent rights.

"I'm not knocking Upjohn, but they didn't want to develop it" as a rat-control product, he said.

Epibloc is left as bait in sachets the size of a sugar packets. The product kills most rats — up to 90 percent — right away, like a conventional rodenticide. It then forms scar tissue in the reproductive systems of surviving males, blocking the flow of sperm.

"It really is a chemical vasectomy," said the Gametrics president, "but it doesn't affect sex drive." When the sterile males mate with females, Ericsson says the result is a false pregnancy that keeps the female from reproducing three times as long as normal.

That's important because the reproductive cycle for the common rat is just 42 days. Without Epibloc, Ericsson, a reproductive physiologist, said the rats would quickly reinfest the area.

Naturalist Jaeger at age of 96

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Edmund C. Jaeger, a naturalist who proved that some birds enter a state like hibernation, has died from a heart attack at the age of 96.

Jaeger initially planned to become a physician, but wildlife proved a bigger lure. He obtained a zoology degree from Occidental College and did graduate work at the University of California, Berkeley, then began exploring the Santa Ana Mountains near Corona.

In 1922 Jaeger began a 30-year teaching career at Riverside City College, taking students on trips to the desert.

He and some students were camping in the Chuckawalla Mountains in 1946 when they found a Nutall's poorwill in an apparent dormant state.

Jaeger tagged the bird and returned to study it until he was satisfied that some birds do go through a period of winter torpidity.

HARD HATS MAKES SENSE

They're not the most comfortable type of headgear, but they've become the badge of the construction industry. No good superintendent will let you step on his building site without one.

The idea of protecting ourselves against possible hazards is an ancient one. Through the centuries it has had its religious counterpart. The Bible urges us to put on the whole armor of God.

Each week in our churches and synagogues we can prepare ourselves spiritually for the challenges tomorrow will bring. We can strengthen our souls to meet and overcome whatever dangers might one day confront us.

Roman Catholics question policy on priests, nuns in public office

RELIGION

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A surge of questions, friction and uncertainties have arisen among Roman Catholics about Vatican pressures that caused a nun to resign from her religious order and about future church policies on priests and nuns in public office.

Amid ensuing criticisms of the handling of the Michigan case, there also has been intensified concern about the implications for numerous other church professionals who hold public office.

They haven't come under ecclesiastical curbs, as did former Sister Agnes Mary Mansour in Michigan, and their situations are being cited in contrast to the action against her. But some see portents in it.

She regretfully resigned from the Sisters of Mercy last May under a Vatican ultimatum in order to retain her post as director of Michigan's department of health services.

Leaders of nuns' organizations and others, including some religious personnel who hold public office, have deplored the church's action in her case.

"We cannot accept this injustice without crying out against it," says Sister Elizabeth Morancy of Providence, R. I., a three-term Democratic member of the Rhode Island state legislature.

In comments in the National Catholic Reporter, published in Kansas City, Mo., she defends active political participation as fully consistent with her religious order's mission.

She also foresaw impending conflict between the hierarchical type of authority invoked by Pope John Paul II and the collegial, participatory type which most nuns have implemented in their communities.

While the pope repeatedly has objected to religious personnel holding political office, clergymen often have done so through much of church history, including the 20th century and into present times.

But recent developments, including the Mansour case and newly revised church canon laws, have brought that practice under a cloud of uncertainty.

"All over the country, clerics and religious are serving in local offices — school boards, planning agencies, hospitals, welfare commissions, city councils," says Sister Madonna Kolbenschlag of Washington, D. C.

If former Sister Mansour "can become a victim of arbitrary and unfounded church discipline, so can many others," she writes in the lay-edited Catholic weekly, Commonweal.

She says if the church proscribes such roles, "a great number of extremely worthy men and women are going to undergo a terrible conflict of responsibilities. Certainly American religious communities of women will face a steady drain of some of their best, most dedicated members."

Religious personnel now holding public posts include:

— Sister Mary Madonna Ashton, Minnesota commissioner of health, who took the post with approval both of her religious-order superior and of her bishop, Archbishop John R. Roach of St. Paul-Minneapolis.

— The Rev. Joseph Simmon, a member of the Divine Word order and a city councilman in Epworth, Iowa, for the past six years.

— Sister Ardeth Platte, a city councilwoman in Saginaw, Mich., for 10 years.

Prior to the Mansour case, some religious personnel holding public office have been forced to leave it under ecclesiastical pressure, including the Rev. Robert Drinan, former Democratic Congress member from Massachusetts, who quit in 1980 under papal orders.

The Rev. Robert Cornell, who served two terms in Congress as a Democratic representative from Wisconsin, yielded to similar admonitions from his bishop in 1980 not to run again.

Church sets 'explosion'

Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell St., will hold its 9th annual Spiritual Explosion Monday through Aug. 14 at 8 p.m. Daily seminars will be held at 10 a.m.

Initiating the special week's services will be a musical program on Monday which will feature gospel choirs from Texas. The musical will be highlighted by special guest violinist Samuel Murrell of Kansas City, Mo.

Guest speakers for the week include Tuesday, Bishop Harold Benjamin, Philadelphia, Pa.; Wednesday, the Rev. Frank Smith, Dallas; Thursday, the Rev. A. LaDell Thomas, Waco; Friday, the Rev. Charles Blake, Los Angeles, Calif.; Saturday, the Rev. Richard White, New Orleans, La.; and Sunday, Faith Temple's pastor, the Rev. W.C. Kenan, will preach at the concluding service.

Each night the Rev. Eddie Jernagin, Los Angeles, Calif., will conduct the inspirational service.

All services are open to the public.

Minister re-elected

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Rev. Ralph A. Bohlmann was overwhelmingly re-elected to a second term as president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod at its general convention. de won 844 votes of 1,079 cast on a first ballot.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE?

Jesus' disciple John came to Him and said, "Master, we saw someone using Your name to cast out demons. And we told him not to. After all, he isn't in our group."

But Jesus said, "You shouldn't have done that! For anyone who is not against you is for you."

As the time drew near for His return to heaven, He moved steadily onward toward Jerusalem with an iron will.

One day He sent messengers ahead to reserve rooms for them in a Samaritan village. But they were turned away! The people of the village refused to have anything do do with them because they were headed for Jerusalem.

When word came back of what had happened, James and John said to Jesus, "Master, shall we order fire down from heaven to burn them up?" But Jesus turned and rebuked them, and they went on to another village.

As they were walking along someone said to Jesus, "I will always follow You no matter where You go." But Jesus replied, "Remember, I don't even own a place to lay My head. Foxes have dens to live in, and birds have nests, but I the Man from Heaven, have no earthly home at all."

Another time, when He invited a man to come with Him to be His disciple, the man agreed--but wanted to wait until his father's death. Jesus replied, "Let those without eternal life concern themselves with things like that. Your duty is to come and preach the coming of the Kingdom of God to all the world."

Another said, "Yes, Lord, I will come, but first let me ask permission of those at home." But Jesus told him, "Anyone who lets himself be distracted from the work I plan for him is not fit for the Kingdom of God."

Conservative: Criticism of church council 'propaganda'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A tall Midwesterner of an old-line, conservative Chistian heritage is moving into a top post of the oft-attacked World Council of Churches, convinced that the blasts against it are "misinformation and propaganda."

The council's once-in-seven-years general assembly met recently in Vancouver, British Columbia.

The Rev. Arie R. Brouwer, named to be deputy general secretary of the international Christian body, says that to accuse the churches and their cooperative councils of pro-Marxism is incongruously absurd on its face.

The charge is contradicted by the churches' very nature, he says: "Marxist philosophy and its view of humanity is radically at odds with the Christian understanding of our being children of God.

"Our opposition to communism is not in the name of any 'ism,' but in the name of Christ. The Christian faith is set over against any kind of 'ism,' capitalism, communism or any other."

Yet as the Iowa-reared Brouwer shifts from the leadership of a conservative U.S. denomination to executive duties for the world council, the body faces revived charges of links to Marxist causes.

The criticisms have been repeated in various forms after being raised on a recent broadcast of the CBS show "60 Minutes" and in the Reader's Digest. Similar charges were made against the U.S. National Council of Churches.

The charges are "mostly by innuendo and insinuation, only very, very loosely related to any facts," says Brouwer, who for the last six years has been the chief administrator of the Reformed Church in America, of Dutch origins.

The denomination, with the longest unbroken ministry in this country, dates back to 1624 and Brouwer cherishes its conservative tradition. "Conservative is a good word to me" in the sense of conserving values and principles, he says.

"That's something we're trying to do," he added in an interview. "The churches and their councils cannot back off from their work for justice, peace and understanding in the world despite these attacks.

"When the churches side with the poor who seek their just due, powerful institutions see it as a threat, and they use the weapons of propaganda and slogans. We saw this in Hitler's time; we've seen it in the Soviet Union and in the McCarthy era in this country.

"There's hardly a more damaging label that can be used than 'Communist-Marxist.' So they use it. It's used against Roman Catholic priests identifying with the poor in Latin America. It's used against the councils of churches trying to build trust and open relationships in the world."

Brouwer, 47, a slim, 6-foot-7 man, takes over his new post in September at council headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland. He previously has served on governing boards of both national and world councils.

As deputy to general secretary Philip Potter, Brouwer will administer the council's most activist and controversial sector, the program unit for justice and service, which works in the areas of relief, development, health, international affairs and a fight against racism.

The relief arm alone channels about $60 million annually for church use in emergencies.

Television show examines problems of Hispanic family

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — About six million Spanish-speaking Americans across the country switch on their TV sets each week to watch the problems of the Hispanic community dealt with from a "realistic" Christian perspective.

They mail checks and thank-you letters to a program that examines family problems, injustice, drugs, gangs and other issues. The show tackles the subjects in a variety of ways: documentary, emotional testimonial, song, inspirational talk by the priest-host.

Called "Nuestra Familia" — or "Our Family" — the show is filmed on location nationwide by the Hispanic Telecommunications Network, a non-profit corporation based in San Antonio.

HTN is a year old and growing, fueled by the drive and know-how of the network's president and founder, Adan Medrano, an over-30 executive born into a family of migrant farmworkers.

"People watch our show because they want to know about life and meaning and what they're all about," Medrano says. "So many shows try to give religion sugar-coated with entertainment.

"Part of our message is, 'It's not enough to watch a television show. This is a beginning. You can't just tune in Sunday morning.'"

Another purpose of the show, Medrano says, is to provide "a means of cultural and religious self-expression" for Hispanics.

"Nuestra Familia," paid for by several Catholic religious groups, is beamed by satellite to more than 200 cities in the United States via the Spanish International Network.

"One of the biggest problems we have in the Hispanic community," Medrano says, "is lack of communications between groups — Cubans, Puerto Ricans and so on.

"That's why it's good that we're in San Antonio," he says. "If we were in New York, we'd be considered too Puerto Rican. We really work to be useful and relevant to our entire audience."

Much of HTN's 11-member staff spent the early summer on a filming tour through the Midwest, after logging a total of 20,000 miles on both coasts last year.

With HTN, the show is the showcase — not its host.

The Rev. Alberto Vargas, the host of "Nuestra Familia" its entire first year, will be replaced during the program's second season, Medrano says.

"We're trying to get rid of the personality cult syndrome that so many of the religious shows are dependent on," he says. "This is a show about anyone's life. It doesn't depend on anyone to make it work."

The matter of soliciting money is a sensitive issue for Medrano, who grimaces slightly when the question is raised.

Trans-Pecos ministry sponsors third annual 'Holy Roping'

VAN HORN — The Episcopal Trans-Pecos Ministry is hosting its third annual "Holy Roping" today and Sunday in Van Horn.

Proceeds from the roping, which is the organization's major fund raising project each year, will go to help fund the ministry's outreach program.

Roping begins at 10 a.m. both days in the Van Horn arena. The events include an Open Roping; a "B" Roping, ropers eligible are previous contestants in the Van Horn and Eunice, N.M., "B" ropings; Over 40 Roping, on both ends; and Barrel Racing.

Prizes are breast collars and a cash purse for each roping event. The roping is approved by the Southwest Texas Team Ropers Association. Concessions will be available on the arena grounds.

Church services will be held at 8 a.m. Sunday in the arena. All denominations are welcome to attend.

For more information call Bob Mullens, 1-915-283-2543.

Alamo Heights pastor to retire

The Rev. Milo B. Arbuckle, pastor of Alamo Heights Baptist Church, has announced his retirement effective Sunday. He has been pastor at Alamo Heights for six and a half years.

During that time he led the church in a building program to erect an 850-seat sanctuary.

He began his ministry while a student at the Oak Avenue Baptist Church in Ada, Okla. He then pastored the First Baptist Church, Fredrick, Okla., First Baptist Church, Lamesa, and Denver Temple Baptist Church, Denver, Colo.

Arbuckle first came to Alamo Heights from a short period of retirement as Interim Pastor in April of 1977. He accepted the church's call to pastor Sept. 21, 1977. His current retirement concludes 50 years as a pastor.

He and Mrs. Arbuckle will continue to make Midland their home.

CWU to hold garage sale

Church Women United will sponsor a joint garage and bake sale Aug. 13 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave.

Public donations for the garage sale are requested. Those who have items to donate may call 682-7204, 683-2084 or 682-5918.

Proceeds from the sale will go to support CWU's state project, New Directions. New Directions provides emotional support, a place to stay, nutritious food, clothes and help in finding jobs for ex-offenders. A 75-member volunteer team assists with the day-to-day operations of New Directions.

Kiddy Konvention scheduled

The First Alliance Church, 1610 W. Wall Ave., is holding its 3rd annual Kiddie Konvention Monday through Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Each day will feature special programs including stories, puppets, crafts and refreshments from around the world, for ages 4 through 12.

For more information or to arrange transportation call 683-2642.

Sexuality paper presented

BALTIMORE (AP) — A position paper on human sexuality presented to the annual conference of the Church of the Brethren says it holds that sexual intercourse "belongs within heterosexual marriage," but the church should not reject those who disagree.

Discussing singles, married couples and homosexuals, the paper advocates "welcoming all inquirers who confess Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior."

Computermania goes to camp

By the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Four years ago this summer The Original Computer Camp Inc. opened in Santa Barbara, Calif., and 30 youngsters enrolled.

This summer, 900 youngsters are honing their skills on Apples and Commodore 64s at six Original Computer Camp sites, paying from $995 to $2,400 in enrollment fees. Twice that many are expected next year.

Computermania may be reaching critical mass this summer, and it is not limited to the young.

Public schools in Columbus are offering $2-an-hour computer classes in what is touted as the first attempt to make a community "computer literate." The 9,000 who signed up for Summer Tech '83 range in age from 3 to 85, and include unemployed people, housewives, business executives, teachers and senior citizens.

CLUB MED, Everyman's way to see the world, is offering computer training this summer as a joint venture with Atari. Vacationers at Club Med's Dominican Republic resort can learn computers as they bask in gentle tradewinds.

Computer Camps International offers a week-long camp in Connecticut, where adults can get in a little tennis and swimming while mastering their Apple, IBM or Texas Instruments computer.

In the season with fewer bothersome distractions, computer camp has become the chosen summer preoccupation for the keyboard generation, and camps for adults and children, novices and whizzes, are booming.

Typically, computer camps appeal to children's curiosity, parents' anxieties and to the summer camp tradition.

"CAMPTER AT Computer Camps I arntio$a brighter future. They learn computer skills that will give them a competitive edge in school and careers," one advertisement reads.

The Original Computer Camp Inc. boasts a "seasoned curriculum" at six new campsites: three at prep schools and three in wilderness locations.

Four weeks of computer training in England ($2,400, not including air fare) and two weeks in Hawaii ($1,200, excluding air fare) were booked solid. Two weeks training in Santa Barbara can still be had for less t6oi,m,100. If Lake Tahoe, Steamboat Springs, Colo., or New Hampshire are more appealing, Original Computer Camp can put just the thing together for the 7- to 15-year-olds in the house.

Admittedly an upscale student body, and one that attracts a number of kids who, according to executive vice president Tony Uhler, are "almost computer geniuses," most of the youngsters at the Original Computer camps come from the approximately 4 million U.S. homes, about 5 percent of all U.S. families, that have computers.

YOUNGSTERS with no computer experience are in the minority, Uhler said. The campers represent "a pretty traditional bell-shaped curve."

Is there profit to be made?

"Well, it's paid off," Uhler said. "We're thinking of expanding next year. We expect we'll be doubling our number of campers."

Atari Computer Camps opened last year with four camps, and expanded to seven regional camps this year. A.J. Sekel of Atari said that this year's 2,000 campers is double last year's attendance.

Reporters play 'pack journalism' in August

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan isn't on vacation yet, but the White House press room is from time to time taking on its mid-August hues. That's when days go by without a serious story emanating from the glowing screens of reporters' computer terminals or from the glowing screens of the nation's television sets.

So it was the other day when the television network folks began stirring about, itchy at the prospect of having no story for the evening news.

And this gives us a neatly executed example of pack journalism.

With his competitors milling about, one reporter sat quietly in his booth, with his door closed. Suddenly, he slid the door open as quickly as he could, uttered a four-letter word, and went bounding toward the office of deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

It drew the predictable response: A herd of his colleagues went chasing toward Speakes' office, convinced that a hot story was about to break.

The perpetrator, aware of the stir he created, then stood back quietly perusing newspapers, with a sly grin across his face.

Then there was the reporter who, given to bursts of shouted outrage, stood outside his booth and shouted, "I am somebody."

But within a day, the White House was once again generating news and the reporters were back at work.

REAGAN recalled the other day how he took to the campaign trail in 1980 accompanied by his friend Jimmy Stewart. At each stop, the master of ceremonies would introduce Stewart as an actor. When it was Reagan's turn to speak, he would add that Stewart was a major general in the Air Corps Reserve.

"After several of these situations, the master of ceremonies did refer to his military record and then said Brig. Gen. Jimmy Stewart," Reagan said. "So when I got up I apologized to the emcee ... and said, 'It's Maj. Gen. Jimmy Stewart.'"

Son charged in parents' deaths

Investigators collect evidence

DARDANELLE, Ark. (AP) — Authorities collected evidence from three states Friday as they investigated the killings of a Arkansas couple, whose son was charged Thursday in connection with their slayings.

The bodies of Francis and Beulah O'Rourke, both 61, were found in a car parked near a Sallisaw, Okla., apartment house last Friday, July 29.

Their son, Michael O'Rourke, 35, was charged Thursday with capital murder in their slayings. The charge said O'Rourke or an accomplice caused the death of either or both of his parents.

Investigators reported their search for clues ranged from Arkansas and Oklahoma into Missouri.

Thursday afternoon, Oklahoma authorities recovered from a reservoir a mallet believed to be one of the weapons involved in the killings. Authorities believe a coin collection pawned in Springfield, Mo., was on the property of the slain Yell County couple.

Yell County authorities, meanwhile, planned to obtain a warrant Friday to search the car of Michael O'Rourke.

Prosecutor Tom Tatum said the charge is subject to amendment as the investigation progresses. He said that up to three people may be involved in the deaths and that further charges might be forthcoming.

Already charged with hindering prosecution or apprehension in the case, along with O'Rourke, is Dennis Meadors, 31, who O'Rourke says was one of his two roommates. The two were charged after police learned that they had entered the sealed O'Rourke home early Tuesday.

A Russellville police report filed July 23 shows that a Dennis Meadors, 31, of 705 Dike Road, Unit 43, told Officer Joel Campbell that a western style, single-action blue-steel six-shot revolver was taken from the floor board of his unlocked car at about 6 p.m. that day. He said the car was parked in front of the U.S. Post Office at Second and Boston streets in Russellville when the loss occurred. Meadors couldn't give the make, model and serial number of the weapon but said he bought it July 22 from A-1 Pawn Shop in Russellville for $100.

Authorities said that Francis O'Rourke was shot twice in the head and that his wife died from a blow to the back of the head and neck. A preliminary medical examination had shown earlier that Mrs. O'Rourke died of strangulation. Tatum said the advanced decomposition of the bodies necessitated extensive testing to determine the cause of death. The couple died about 7 a.m. Thursday at their home, seven miles west of Dardanelle on Arkansas 22.

Tatum said Yell county Sheriff Denver Dennis and Joe Jones, a sheriff's department investigator, had been collecting evidence of the crime strewn all the way from Dardanelle to Table Rock, Mo.

Tatum and Oklahoma District Attorney Gerald Hunter said Oklahoma Criminal Investigaton Bureau officers searched Thursday for the murder weapons, a .22-caliber gun as well as the mallet or a sledgehammer type instrument, in a lake near Jay, Okla. A mallet and eyeglasses, believed to be those of Mrs. ORourke, were found in the lake.

Tatum said a statement made by Meadors was very revealing. The prosecutor said the case broke Wednesday afternoon as a result of numerous pieces of circumstancial evidence. "It's like stacking bottles to a point where they start to fall off," he said. "We stacked and restacked the evidence until it was obvious that we were close to a solution but had no hard evidence...and then a cooperating individual gave us a statement that was very revealing and tied to everything else." Tatum did not say who that individual was.

Among the evidence is a wheelbarrow from the O'Rourke home. The wheelbarrow was found in a creek about nine miles west of the murder scene. Other evidence includes a bucket, clothing and some compost. Authorities said a safety deposit box belonging to the O'Rourkes contained wills naming their son as their heir.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The City of Midland will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1982 by 7.904 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on 8-25-83 at 10:00 a.m. at City Council Chambers, 300 North Loraine, Midland, Texas, 79702.

For the proposal: Thane Akins, Jesse Hatfield, Steve Davidson

AGAINST the proposal: Gordon Marcum, David Godfrey

Absent and not voting: Tom Sloan

NOTE: The actual tax rate is proposed to increase frm 43¢ to 44¢ per $100 of valuation.

ENTRY LEVEL SALES
NO EXPERIENCE NEEDED
Have you been wanting to get into sales but were just afraid there'd be too much time before making any money after you acquired the training and the contacts?
Well, here's your opportunity to learn the business of selling and begin making very good money right from the start.
$500
$750
$1000
WEEKLY
PLUS BONUSES
You decide your own pay, the greater the commitment and the willingness to learn will set the sky as the limit for you.
Men and women with no more selling experience than I when I learned of this opportunity are regularly making $1000 per week, every week in Dallas, Houston, Austin, St. Louis, Wichita Falls and now Midland-Odessa.
It makes no difference what you are presently doing-- trucking, laborer, office/secretarial, retail, anything! Our proven successful program works for anyone we select, and we'll only select a few who will be successful! With us you lose the right to fail.
On top of all this, we have a product that people need. It virtually sells itself. To find out more about this amazing opportunity and to join a winning crew and have fun too, be at 10055 Co. 125 W.

ISUZU P'UP TRUCK

Some beasts are born for just one thing. Work.
Isuzu breeds such an animal. The tough, dependable P'UP. The gas or diesel powered truck that has proven it has the muscle it takes to do the job. And continues proving it in over 100 countries around the world.
But the best thing about our little beast is its little price.
Not to mention how little it eats on the job.
