BANK TOTALS BREAK RECORD FOR 5 MONTHS

Wichita Falls banks are well on the way to another clearing house record, according to the report made yesterday on the first five months of this year.

Bank clearings through May 30, 1925, totaled $69,757,721.39 as compared with the $48,798,434.82 for the same period in 1924, an increase of $20,959,286.57.

An increase of $3,758,159.77 was noted in the clearings for May, 1925, over the total for the same month last year, the two totals being $13,970,518.35 and $10,212,358.58. The figures for May were affected by five Sundays and one holiday.

Memorial day had a depressing effect on clearings for the past week, only $2,766,084.56 being reported as compared with the $3,481,237.56 of the preceding week, a decrease of $715,152.56, the first time this year that any week has shown a decrease under the totals for the week before.

Don't Forget

That beginning Monday morning new traffic rules go into effect.

You must park your car on Indiana, Scott or Ohio between Sixth and Eleventh streets at a 45 degree angle.

You can only park for two hours.

And you must not do any double deck parking.

He Tells Irrigation Men To Line Highways To Lake Kemp

Formal notification to begin work at once on fencing both sides of roadways leading to and away from Lake Kemp was received Saturday by irrigation district officials here from W. T. Waggoner of Fort Worth, owner of the land on which the big lake is situated. The fencing must be put in by the irrigation district in accordance with the terms of a contract signed with Mr. Waggoner at the time the project was started.

Signed Contract.

When Lake Kemp was formed by construction of the dam, an agreement was made between irrigation officials and the Fort Worth man that a roadway 60 feet wide was to be constructed from the south end of the dam to a point near Maybelle. A provision was also included that upon direction of Mr. Waggoner, both sides of the road should be fenced the entire distance. The same provision was made for a road from the north end of the dam to the Wilbarger county line, which also was to be fenced on orders from Mr. Waggoner.

T. B. Noble, manager of the project, pointed out yesterday that the district officials were bound by their contract to heed Mr. Waggoner's direction and that construction work would begin soon.

Charge for Fishing.

From quarters other than the irrigation offices, expressions have come of belief that Mr. Waggoner contemplates fencing in almost the whole of Lake Kemp and thus be enabled to make a charge for fishing or other privileges on the big expanse of water. In this connection it is pointed out that working crews employed by him are stringing a fence along both north and south sides of the lake from the dam two or three miles west to the old Vernon-Seymour road. This will place a wire barrier along the entire lake frontage that now furnishes fishing grounds for the hundreds of sportsmen who use the lake.

Mr. Waggoner's orders for fencing in of the two roads giving access to Lake Kemp is seen in some quarters as another step in his alleged plan to fence off the lake.

That such a procedure will meet with stern resistance, however, is a foregone conclusion and in that connection some discussion has already arisen here calling for the naming of Lake Kemp as a state park. It has been suggested that the next legislature be asked to condemn a sufficient area of ground around the entire body of water to form a state reserve and thus perpetuate it as a public domain for all time.

CAN'T WEAR SERMON HATS.

BERLIN, May 30.—From all parts of Germany complaints have reached women's hatters, accusing them of either being bribed by the barbers or captivated by the bobbed hair flappers. The complaints are based on the fact that the shapes of hats evidently are designed with an eye onl yto short haired customers and therefore are too small for the old-fashioned maidens and matrons who believe with the German proverb "woman's crowning glory is a beautiful head of hair."

The hatters are likely to pay dearly, for many prospective buyers have announced that they prefer to trim old shapes, rather than look ridiculous with a dimunitive hat perched on top of a luxuriant head of hair. These conservative representatives of feminity are alarmed over the reports of an early invasion, by way of Paris, of phosphorous shining hose, and, by way of Hollywood, of painted unhosed legs.

MARY PICKFORD KIDNAPING PLOT NIPPED IN BUD

SOUGHT $100,000

Film Star Was to Have Been Taken in Auto By Band Disguised As Shriners

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—(AP)—A plot to kidnap Mary Pickford, motion picture star, was uncovered by police today, according to announcement made by Captain of Detectectives George K. Home. Three arrests have been made. Charles Z. Stevens, Billy Woods and Claude (Fat) Holcombe were arrested today in connection with the alleged plot.

According to the police version of the alleged plan. Miss Pickford was decided upon as the victim of a plot in which Pola Negri, Buster Keaton and the grandson of E. L. Doheney, the oil magnate, also were considered.

Miss Pickford was to be forced from her automobile while on her way from the Pickford-Fairbanks studio in Hollywood to her Beverly Hills home. The Pickford chauffeur was to be sandbagged, bound and gagged and Miss Pickford removed from the automobile. A demand for $100,000 was to be made the day following the abduction to be followed by larger demands as the search for the actress spread.

The men arrested today have been shadowed for two weeks, Captain Home said. Police declared the plans of the kidnapers had been to disguise themselves as visiting Shriners and to operate in an automobile decorated with Shrine colors. The men will be charged with conspiracy, detectives said.

Mary Pickford has been co-operating with the police for more than a week, John G. Mott, her attorney, declared. She was instructed to go through her regular routine at the studio and elsewhere. Armed guards under the direction of Captain Home have been guarding her home, the attorney said.

At 9 o'clock tonight it was at 16.5 feet at Rio Grande City, a foot and a half above flood stage, and outwof its banks on both sides. After slightly passing the 22-foot flood stage the river at Del Rio has been falling. At six p. m. this afternoon the flood stood at 16 feet and was falling rapidly.

MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL OF CASE REFUSED

Mother, Father And Daughter Return Saturday to Wichita Falls

LONG FIGHT SEEN

Appeal Notice is Filed Immediately After New Trial is Denied

HASKELL, Texas, May 30.—Mrs. Frank Collier, denied a new trial when Judge Bruce Bryant of the 39th district court overruled a motion presented this afternoon by her attorneys, was at liberty tonight under bond of $10,000 pending action of the court of criminal appeals. Notice of appeal was filed by C. I. Francis, B. Y. Cummings and W. H. Murchison, counsel for Mrs. Collier, who was convicted Friday and sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary in connection with the murder last February of Elzie Robertson, her 19-year-old son-in-law. Amundsen

MOSCOW, May 30.—(AP)—Another appeal was today sent by the commissariat of posts and telegraphs to Russian trading posts, fishing stations, naval depots and wireless stations in the Arctic to maintain a vigilant lookout for the Amundsen north pole expedition or for word of its whereabouts.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—Months of waiting are justified before considering an expedition for the relief of the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar fliers in the opinion of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, noted Arctic explorer.

OLSO, Norway, May 30.—(AP)—The fate of Captain Reald Amundclouded in an impenetrable veil which has hidden the whereabouts of the party since the start for the pole nine days ago. While the Norwegian government has not definitely ordered the dispatch of relief, arrangements are well under way for prompt action if at the end of a fortnight, dating from May 31, no word from him reaches his native shore.

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—France's noted oceanographic research vessel Pourquoi Pas has been offered by the ministry of marine for Amundsen relief work. If the Norwegian government accepts this co-operation, the vessel, which is preparing at Cherbourg for its annual exploration voyage, will be made ready quickly and will start north.

3 of Engine Crew Arrested as Train Hits and Kills Man

LONE OAK, Ark., May 30.—B. M. Webster, engineer, and the fireman and conductor of a train of the Rock Island railroad were arrested shortly after the train which they manned struck and instantly killed Henry V. Benton here.

The locomotive stood idle on the tracks until L. L. Brown, Lone Oak merchant, with experience as an engineer, volunteered his services. Brown stood behind the throttle during the balance of the distance to Little Rock.

At an inquest late today, witnesses testified that the train was traveling at about 50 miles an hour when Benton was struck. The engineer claimed the speed did not exceed 22 miles an hour. Webster later negotiated bond of $2,500.

BEES TURN CONSTABLES

Swarm Quiets Fight in Germany When Law Fails.

BERLIN, May 30.—That bees may be relied on to do the work of constables and do it effectively, was shown the other day at a village inn in Prohnsdorf, Prussia. When a free-for-all fight developed among the patrons with amateur pugilists belaboring each other, the landlord, to save his table and chairs from being smashed, rushed out and brought back a bee hive. After putting on a mask he released the bees. The industrious insects did their work satisfactorily and thoroughly and within a minute every one of the combatants had fled from the building.

Nor was the fight resumed outdoors, as the principals were too busy cooling inflamed portions of their anatomies.

Mrs. Miller Breaks One More Record In Office By Slicing Notary Fee

WHEN nearly 800 notaries public begin to qualify tomorrow morning, they will be met by the glad news that Mrs. Alma Y. Miller, county clerk, has effected a saving to each one of them of 50 cents on the regular clerk's fees. Some weeks ago each notary was notified that the clerk's fees would be $2.50 but after a careful investigation, Mrs. Miller discovered that she could reduce this to $2.00 for each notary public and on yesterday she announced that this reduction in fees would go into effect on Monday morning.

Mrs. Miller enjoys the distinction of being the only clerk in the state who has twice during the same term of office reduced the fees on notaries. Two years ago, she made a slash of 50 cents on each and again this year she makes a saving of like amount to those who qualify. It is a unique situation when a public officer can reduce fees 33 1-3 per cent in two years time and many commendations have been heard of her action.

California Youths Win In Long Auto Race To Be With Dying Mother

VERNON, May 30.—Dave and William Singleton of Hollister, Cal., won out in their race with death last night at 9:20 o'clock, when they reached Vernon in three days and five hours, to be at the bedside of their mother, Mrs. Mollie Jones, who is critically ill with cancer and whose death is expected momentarily. To come here by train meant six days from their home; so the brothers decided to try the long journey by automobile. Starting at six o'clock Tuesday afternoon, from Fresno, their route lay through Bakersfield, Mojave, Needles, Flagstaff, Winslow, Holbrook, Springerville, Sorocco, Vaughn, Mountainaire, Tucumcari and Amarillo, a distance of 1,860 miles.

The worst road encountered was between Flagstaff and Winslow, where the car had to creep along. At that they averaged thirty miles an hour. Some of the best road passed over was the paving between Tolbert and Vernon, in this county. It had not rained at Springersille, Aris., in two years and when they reached that place they ran into one of the heaviest rain storms they had ever experienced.

They drove night and day stopping the engine only for gas and oil and one puncture, which happened last night on Pease river bridge. Gasoline ranged in price from sixteen and a half cents to seventy cents. They arrived to find the mother some better and after a visit with her are sleeping off the effects of the long and gruelling run.

They are former residents of the county.

Thieves Steal Radium; Scientists Believe The Experience To Be Costly

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—Hospitals were on the lookout today for men seeking treatment for burns because of the theft of $20,000 worth of radium in a holdup.

John Gilliano, city employe, was carrying the radium in a lead box wrapped in brown paper out of the home of Dr. Isaac Levin when he was felled by a blow on the head. His assailant grabbed the package and made off with two companions in a waiting taxi.

Gilliano made daily trips with radium from Dr. Levin's office to the cancer institute where the doctor treated patients from the municipal poor house.

The police expressed confidence that the radium would prove the undoing of the thieves, because of its powerful rays which have fatally burned many scientists experimenting with it. It was presumed and hoped the thieves would lose no time to satisfy their curiosity as to the contents of the box.

Dr. Levin at Atlantic City said the robbers would have a hard time in disposing of the radium for cash and he thought they robbed the messenger in the belief he was carrying money.

CITY OBSERVES MEMORIAL DAY WITH SERVICES

Soldier Graves Are All Decorated by War Veterans

Decoration of graves of all ex-service men, a long military procession in the morning and appropriate services at Bellevue park in which representatives of patriotic organizations here were the principal speakers marked Wichita Falls' observance Saturday of Memorial day. The occasion was one of solemn simplicity which, by its very lack of pomp and splendor, took on an added and more meaningful dignity.

The program was comparatively short and was preceded by a downtown parade that marched through streets lined on either side by thousands who stood with bared heads. Veterans of the civil, Spanish-American and world wars, together with a delegation of boy scouts and battery D, 31st field artillery, T. N. G., were included in the procession. It started at 9:30 and wound through the business section of the city, thence out to Bellevue park at Broad and Ninth.

Speakers for the occasion included W. S. Langford, representing the Spanish-American War Veterans; Leon Brown of Vernon, representing the American Legion and veterans of the world war, and Luther Hoffman, representing the Confederate Veterans and United Daughters of the Confederacy. All spoke in warm tones and glowing tribute of the valor of those immortals who gave their lives in the causes for which they fought and which they believed to be just.

At salute of 21 guns, fired by the battery, concluded the program, after which plowers were placed on all veterans' graves in the cemeteries here.

SOUTH TEXAS WELL LIKELY TO GET SAND

Probability Of a New Madeina Sand Is Bright

SAN ANTONIO, May 30.—Probability that a second profitable producing oil sand at around 1,300 feet has been found in the Ina Oil company's number 3 well in Medina county, starting of development work in the lower Rio Grande valley at Rio Grande City, at the lower end of the Reynosa escarpment, and the bringing on of the New Domain's number 1, Eppright, at the east end of the Lockhart field from below the Austin chalk is resulting in this week being the most active in months.

Total depth of the Ina well in Medina county is 1,583 at which point it topped the Eagle Ford. Production is believed to be coming from around 1,300 feet and the first day on the pump the well filled a 50-barrel steel tank. The first sand is at 930, and is not so productive. At 1,300 the production is coming from the Anacacho and Hull wells in that vicinity will now probably be tested down to the same depth.

Majors and independents have been blocking acreage from the point at Rio Grande City where the Reynosa crosses the Rio Grande, north to the Mirando pools. This work is about finished and several important tests will soon be announced. Hadley and Karnes are already starting and are deepening the Mercedes Oil and Gas company's number 3 Kelso.

If the New Domain test at the east end of the Lockhart field is making from the Eagle Ford, as some believe, then wildcats everywhere will begin to watch that formation for possible production and a well producing from that means much to Southwest Texas.

EX-GOVERNOR ARRESTED ON BRIBE CHARGE

Former Washington Head Accused of Seeking Bribes

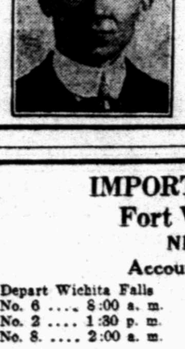

TACOMA, Wash., May 30.—Former Governor Louis F. Hart of Washington was arrested last night on a charge of soliciting a bribe while he was in office. The ex-governor submitted to arrest, was released on bail, made no statement concerning the charges and then attended a twilight baseball game.

The charge resulted from affidavits filed with a county attorney by Forbes P. Haskell, Jr., a special deputy bank examiner in Washington, and Guy E. Kelly, formerly an attorney for the liquidator of the defunct Scandinavian-American Bank of Tacoma.

The information accuses Hart of "violating his official duty; that he did unlawfully, feloniously and directly ask Guy E. Kelly and Forbes P. Haskell, Jr., that they pay him a certain sum of money from the assets of the Scandinavian-American Bank of Tacoma."

Haskell and Kelly in affidavits accuse the former governor of asking them to figure the amount of fees to which they believed themselves entitled and then to add an amount sufficient to care for the governor during his declining years.

The offense charged is a felony and is punishable by a maximum fine of $5,000 or ten years imprisonment, or both.

MA CALLS ON STATE TO PUT LEGION OVER

Today Is Named As Official Endowment Sunday By Governor

Naming Sunday, May 31, as American Legion Endowment Sunday, and calling upon the people of Texas to aid in the raising of this state's $225,000 quota of the National Legion endowment fund for disabled veterans and orphans, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson has issued a proclamation fixing the week of June 1 to 6, inclusive, as a period of intensive campaigning to put this state over the top.

In her proclamation signed last week, the governor said:

"The tragedy of the world's greatest war stalks today through the lives of those innocent victims of the heaviest sacrifice, the orphans and widows of heroes who met death on battlefield, or who lingered on in a living death until the suffering of disease and wounds finally laid a merciful hand to draw the curtain of sternity about them.

"Thousands there are today who lie helpless with the spectre of death waiting at the left of the sick-bed, while on the right hand is the shadow of a wife, or homeless baby, in mute appeal for the chance of happiness denied them because of a task well done for home and country.

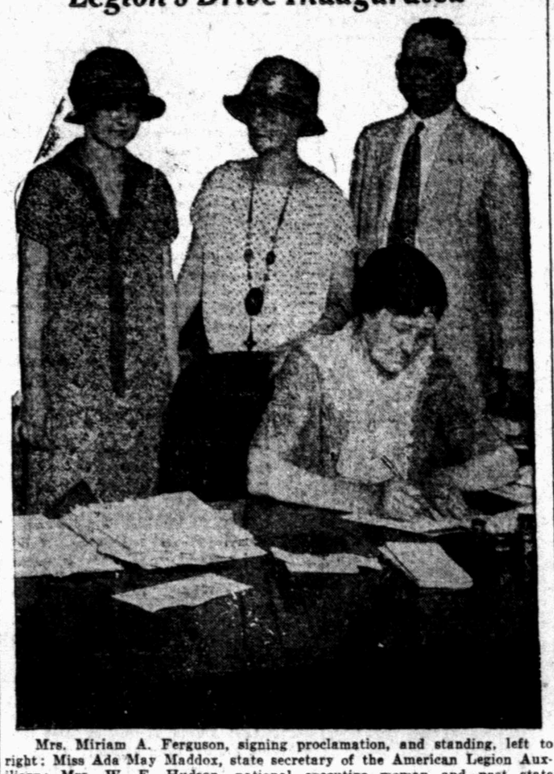

"Today thousands of orphans of the world war are in need of homes. As years progress other thousands of children will look back and know their fathers kept the faith, but that the greatest burden fell upon them — the burden of lonliness and proverty on tender shoulders.

"Through these darkened skies of childhood comes the ray of hope from the bright shield of comradeship, raised on high by the spirit of brotherly love, and held steadfast by the bonds of service. And childhood, looking aloft, searching for the equal oportunity which our forefathers promised all, breathes 'God bless the American Legion.'

"This great organization is undertaking the task of providing a home for every dependent child of a veteran and the protection of every veteran's widow and every disabled veteran's wife. The American Legion has undertaken the task of blotting away that shadow of their comrade's sick-bed, the worry for the welfare of loved ones.

"Therefore, in the present campaign of The American Legion for en endowment fund, which will insure the proper care of every disabled war veteran and a home and education for every child dependent, it is the duty of every one in this state to help."

Legion's Drive Inaugurated

Minister Rides In One Plane and Marries Two Flying Second Machine

DETROIT, May 30.—(AP)—With a minister riding in another plane shouting the wedding ceremony through a megaphone at them Howard N. Potter, a student aviator, and Gladys Mae Baxter were married 300 feet above the ground today.

Potter and his bride arose in one plane, piloted by Frank Overcashier. Rev. Henry S. Ford, pastor of the Memorial Baptist church of Highland Park, was a passenger in the other plane.

When 3000 feet high the engines were slowed down, the planes brought close together and the ceremony was shouted through the air.

E. V. Nichols and Ruth Baxter, best man and maid of honor, respectively, remained on the ground. They were to have been in the air in a third plane while the ceremony was taking place, but their pilot, Jack Burns, was fatally injured yesterday when his plane fell while final tests were being made for today's wedding in the sky.

Negroes' Removal To Huntsville Cause Of Regret by Officials

DALLAS, May 30.—Disappointment was expressed by District Attorney Shelby S. Cox today in a letter to Sheriff Schuyler Marshall for the removal to Huntsville early today of Frank and Lorenzo Noel, negroes sentenced to death on charges of assault and murder, before he had questioned them further. He declared he had expected to obtain additional information from them which he believed might explain other unsolved crimes here. The party arrived at Huntsville at 4:30 p. m., the sheriff's office was informed.

Judge Charles A. Pipkin, before whom the negroes were tried, expressed surprise that the negro brothers should have been removed.

The negroes were aroused from their sleep early this morning, placed under heavy guard and started to Huntsville penitentiary by automobile.

A conference of attorneys representing Mr. Griffin and those for the state is to be held soon, it is understood.

DELAYED LAW COST TEXAS U. $1,000,000

Soil Leases Sold Under Old Laws Proved Expensive

AUSTIN, Texas, May 30—A four-year delay in passing one law which went into effect in April of this year, cost the University of Texas more than $1,000,000.

This is the leasing of university oil and gas lands under competitive bids, instead of at a flat rate of 10 cents per acre, as required up until this year.

Heretofore, a tract next to the biggest producer which might have been found, could have brought the state no more in the original lease price than the rankest wildcat venture. The university of course gets one-eighth royalty of production.

Wisdom Is Shown.

The wisdom of competitive bids was first shown in the sale of submerged tracts, coastal, lake and river bed oil and gas permits. The state collected $10,50 as the initial sale price of one tract in Harris county, and $105,000 "bonus" as the bigest bid on the tract supplementing the required basal price.

The university has valuable mineral lands in more than half a dozen counties. Helium is reported as vastly valuable possibility of the Reagan county area. Oil production is now bringing the school over $1,000,000 a year royalties from the Reagan county field; a field said to be unequalled in proven area, though only 37 wells have so far been drilled in it, it is said here. The field is said to be a proven triangle, five miles to the side, with undisclosed possibilities beyond this area.

Had the competitive bidding system been in operation when the first oil and gas leases went on the market more than five years ago, and had all the leases been sold, not at a flat rate but at a flat-rate-plus-highest-bid, the difference in what the university would have collected would have exceeded a million dollars, according to estimates based on figures furnished by Land Commissioner J. T. Robison when the legislature was in session here.

At is is, the bill which provided for competitive bids was approved by Governor Ferguson March 10, and the first sale of permits under it has been ordered for June 16. One million three thousand, six hundred and forty acres of land, or the oil and gas rights in them, will go on the market at that time. Of this land, several sections are located in Reagan county, over 300 sections in Andrews and 300 sections in Hudspeth county. Other of the land is in Loving, Winkler, ward, Gaines, Dawson, Martin, Crane, Ector and Schleicher counties.

Steins Are Passing Out.

In America the beer stein is practically out of use except in a few "English chop houses," where near beer is still served, and in tap rooms and dens for decorations, dut to the American prohibition law, but it is also a fact that the stein is passing out in Germany, due to the fact that the wine glass is coming into such constant use. Even in the students' gambols the stein has passed out of the picture since the war, though in the interior sections the workmen still cling to their beer stein and will not admit that stein or beer drinking as a German symbol is passing.

Soldier Dead Will Want To Know What We Have Done With Peace-Herrick

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—Was the World war designed by Providence to test the efficiency of modern civilization and if so how did civilization stand the test?

These inquiries were the them of an address prepared by Ambassador Herrick for the memorial day service, attended by American Gold Star Mothers today at the Surosnes cemetery.

"Those boys who lie sheltered in the loving bosom of France and before whose tombs the Gold Star Mothers have knelt, stood the test," the ambassador said. "But if the millions whose voices were stilled in the war, were to rise would they not ask: 'What have you done with the victory we gave you in 1918? Have you, to whom the peace settlements were entrusted shown the same courage and the same self-abnegation.'"

A Famous Man

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood, as well as the "Favorite Prescriptoin" for women, was Dr. Ray V. Pierce, a practicing physician in Western Pennsylvania right after the civil war. He early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established The Invalids' Hotel, then he put up his home remedies in the World's Dispensary, where they were carefully prepared from roots, barks and herbs, and placed them with druggists all over the United States.

For over half a century, Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists all over the United States than any other medicine. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a tonic in its effect on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's family medicines, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for a trial package of tablets to Doctor Pierce's Clinic, in Buffalo, N. Y. —Adv.

AN AMUSING BIT OF SELF-CONGRATULATION.

Viewing the prospect of stable exchange, opened up by Great Britain's return to the gold standard, the federal reserve board's advisory council finds itself unable to refrain from a bit of self-congratulation. According to one of its rare public reports, the council regards the arrangement between the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the Bank of England by which Britain was enabled to resume the export of gold, as one of the "produest and most constructive achievements" of the federal reserve system. "Efficiency of the federal reserve act" appears to the council to be fully demonstrated, since "we are able to render assistance on a liberal scale without fear of adverse effect upon our own financial conditions." Continuing, the council explains that:

"Concentration of reserves and an elastic note issue planned on broad lines enabled us during these last years to absorb a flood of gold in such a manner as to deprive it of inflationary effects which some of our European friends had expected it to inevitably produce. Conversely, we may now envisage with equanimity the possibility of any outgo of hundreds of millions of dollars of our surplus gold. The same process that enabled us to deprive the inflow of gold of its potential ill-effects places us now in a position to lose vast amounts of it without entailing the necessity of a marked contraction of circulation or of forced deflation."

The tone of superior wisdom and boundless confidence taken by the advisory council is rather amusing in view of past exhibitions of trepidation on the part of federal reserve officials and of the council's own evident feeling of relief at a chance to get rid of our surplus gold. Our European friends were not alone in their fears that too much gold over here would produce inflation and bring about the collapse of the one power supporting the world's financial structure. Their alarm was shared in large measure by our own leaders in finance, and by officials of the reserve system. But now our surplus gold is a vanishing night-mare to the wise directors of our super-efficient reserve system, and in their relief they appear to imagine that they never entertained any far—that it was only the ignorant outside world that was anxious in regard to our financial stability.

As to the reserve system absorbing the "flood of terror, the gold was not absorbed at all; it was gold" which was viewed with so much unreasonable merely suffered to accumulate and remain idle. The reserve system may have had something to do with letting it pile up, but since the flood of gold was a general phenomena, individual banks would probably have adopted the policy of holding had there been no reserve system. Besides it is the extent of the market and not gold which determines the amount of paper in circulation. The gold only serves as a measure by providing for redemption.

It was nothing but an illusion to suppose that gold alone could produce an inflation. Another illusion was the supposition that our surplus gold could not be redistributed to other parts of the globe by natural trade and financial influences. It is going from us now contrary to all the gloomy prophecies of financial experts. And it is going under an individual bank arrangement which provides for redemption through the purchase of pound sterling notes in the American market by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and their crediting to the bank's sterling account in London. The reserve system does not appear to enter into the transaction at all.

HENRY HAS THE DECK.

Henry Ford has solved a great problem for the Coolidge administration. He is willing to put 400 steel ships of the United States shipping board fleet into the great melting pot of his automobile factories and turn out Ford automobiles. Why not? It appears to be impossible for the shipping board to operate government owned vessels at a profit, and the national lawmakers are unwilling to vote a subsidy to keep the fleet afloat.

As a war measure it became necessary to bridge the Atlantic and two billion dollars was taken from the pockets of the people to pay the piper. Peace came and hundreds of ships refused to float, hundreds were voted antiquated and additional hundreds could not be operated except at a loss.

Most of the ships of the seven seas are privately owned and successfully operated. Most of the great governments of the great nation see to it that the necessary subsidies are granted to their shipping companies. Warren G. Harding attempted to put over a ship subsidy bill. Leaders of his own party knifed it.

If Coolidge attempts to put over a ship subsidy bill it will be knifed by republican senators and representatives, and as for democratic senators and representatives they are for a great merchant marine for their country, but unwilling to vote a dollar in the shape of a subsidy to sustain the enterprise.

If Henry Ford is willing to purchase 400 steel ships he appears to be the man for the job. He has been a success at everything else that he has tackled and he has the cash money to put over his latest proposition and realize a handsome profit on the transaction.

WHY FOOD IS HIGH IN NEW YORK.

A study by the department of agriculture of food distribution cost in New York City has disclosed that it cost more to truck a sack of potatoes in that city than to haul it by freight 1,100 miles from Michigan. And yet there are farmers who damn the railroads and their so-called excessive freight rates

A REAL GRIEVANCE.

In a foreword to his department's partial report on the production of plantation rubber, Secretary Hoover scrupulously refrains from charging Great Britain with direct responsibility for rubber prices, but his recommendations and reasoning on the subject afford sufficient proof in themselves that Britain is responsible. He sees an actual shortage of rubber by 1928 or 1930, and urges that the American consuming industries "find means to stimulate competitive production" in other tropical areas of the world than those dominated by Great Britain. The secretary's strictures on monopoly, with their direct inferences constitute an able summing up of his exposition of the rubber situation.

"The producing industries of the world," Secretary Hoover asserts, "would be much better off in the long run if combinations in restraint of international trade were abandoned on all sides. In general their effect is to hoist both the producing and the consuming industries upon artificial bases, ultimately resulting in economic difficulties to producers as well as to consumers. The stifling of consumption, stimulation of rival production, the use of substitutes and the paralyzing of industry generally are their ultimate results."

Great Britain is plainly committing this error of restraining international trade. She has maintained her post-war method of stabilizing the price of plantation rubber, although there has seemed no good reason why she should do so. When, after the war, the price of crude rubber dropped to 11 cents a pound, the Stevenson restriction act was passed to stabilize the price around 30 cents. At this latter figure 40 per cent of estimated capacity production was to be suppressed, which was about the calculated amount of falling off in production needed to insure a good price. At 30 cents a pound, 60 per cent of normal production was allowed to be exported. If the price fell, the proportionate production was to fall, but if the price rose increased exports were to be in order. The price has risen, greater production has been allowed, and plantation areas not controlled by Britain have increased their output, until production is about at maximum. But the evil of the restriction act is that it has prevented new planting, and with increased consumption this means a shortage within the next two years.

The British empire produces about 70 per cent of the world's plantation rubber and we consume the same proportion. As the largest part of production will naturally seek the best market it is probable that Britain sells us practically all her output. In any case, her production controls the world supply and our buying determines the extent of the world market. Thus the question of rubber is decidedly an Anglo-American question.

The increased price which we pay for British rubber about balances Britain's debt payments to us. Perhaps this is why she maintains her out-of-date trade restrictions. But that is no way to wipe out an honest debt.

SOUTH CAROLINA SETS THE PACE.

South Carolina is setting the pace. Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, paymaster general of the navy during the war, has accepted the position of chief highway commissioner of his native state. He has stipulated that his service must be without compensation in the face of the fact that the annual salary of the office is $6,000 a year.

At a recent session the South Carolina legislature created the office of chief highway commission and the law provided that he shall have all authority for the appointment of employes heretofore vested in the state highway engineer and the secretary of the highway commission. He is the administrative and executive head of a commission of fourteen, and when the commission is not in session he has all its powers, subject to review or reversal by a majority of the commission.

Those responsible for the law insisted that the state highway department and its employes should be taken out of politics and people given a business administration. Rear Admiral McGowan accepted the position conditional that he should be given a free hand in the naming of employes and in all the transactions relative to the building of highways and the purchasing of material.

South Carolina now has a tax on gasoline of 5 cents a gallon, the highest in the country. Three cents go to the highway department and two cents back to the county. There is also a motor vehicle license and the handling of this money, which will total around $6,000,000 annually will be largely in the hands of Admiral McGowan. The man who disbursed more than three billion dollars while the world war was on and who was voted the most efficient paymaster general the navy ever had.

Now the point is, the people of South Carolina had a man's job for a real man and they picked the most efficient and the most trusted native of the Palmetto state that it was possible for the commissioners to draft for the position of chief highway commissioner. They did not pick a professional politician. They did pick one who could say "no" when the saying was necessary. In the navy his motto was, "it can't be done; now see us do it."

McGowan insists that a public office is not a private snap, and he is going to let the chips fall where they may.

BIG BUSINESS IN THE SADDLE.

There is going to be a battle royal in Washington next winter. Big business demands that the federal trade commission shall be abolished. This commission has been polking its official nose into the big business concerns of America. It has grown very unpopular with captains of industry who say that this is the land of liberty, and that the government should keep its hand off or out of the legitimate industries of the country.

Woodrow Wilson was largely responsible for the federal trade commission and its policy of investigation. Democrats and independent republicans in the house and senate, when the democrats were in power, armed the commission with a double row of teeth. These teeth have been removed since the return of the republican party to power.

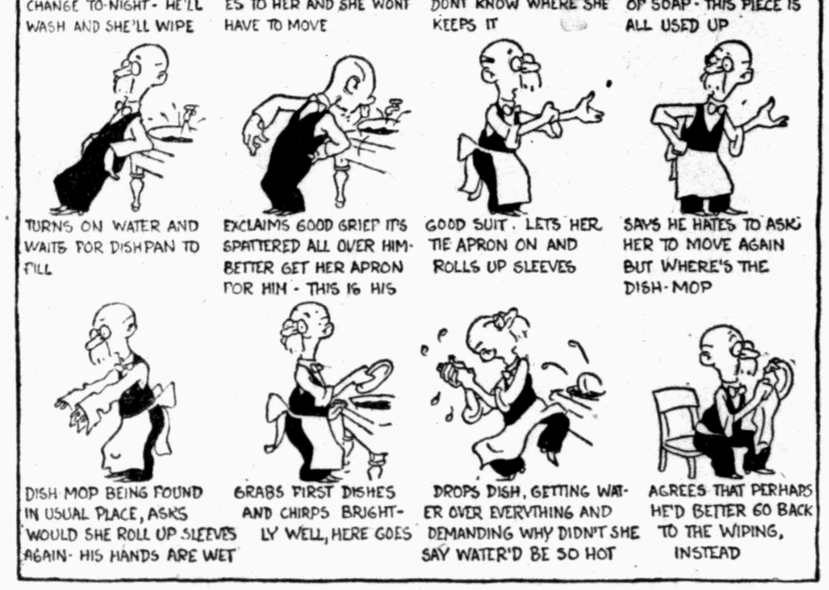

Chairman Culburtson, the aggressive chairman of the commission, would not resign and so the administration made him American minister to Roumania. This made the commission a conservative concern. Three of the commissioners are for secrecy and non-interfering. Two of the commissioners are for open investigation of all industrial concerns and a publication of the facts. Coolidge is the president. He will make known his own policy. Watch and wait.

BRISK BUILDING ACTIVITIES.

Building expenditures authorized in April at 170 cities total $406,000,000, a great gain over the same period in 1924 and experts say the figures point to a great surge forward in building. So great was the volume of work laid out in April, the bulletin says, that that month's total seems to have taken rank second only to the immense aggregate permitted for in March last year, and the four months' aggregate is the largest ever reported. Texas cities show unwanted activities and Dallas showed a gain of more than a million dollars over the same month in 1924 with other cities of the state establishing new high records.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

Who's Who in the Story

Rosilyn Ridgeway learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an overworked little drudge in her father's inn.

Florence Ridgeway, an aritstocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying.

Stevie Van Vorst, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage, and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beolved Landis.

Landis finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed — to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a night club, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

In Paris meanwhile Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a plan. The two arrange to come to New York where Marietta is to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Landis continues philandering with Lydia while Rosilyn to help forget the pangs of jealousy, allows Briscoe to pay her more flattering attention. The next day the latter drives her to the station where she is to meet her husband before they leave for their country home.

Soon after, Landis meets Lydia and while riding with her refuses to comment whether or not his wife "goes her own way," as he quite evidently does.

Van Vorst and his companion rush over, introductions are completed and Landis realizes that the other woman is the dancing girl, Marietta. According to the latter's scheme she flirts with Landis while Steve does his best to intrigue Lydia, not too pleased at the turn of affairs and who becomes furious when a sudden shower ruins her frock. Deciding to leave immediately, she steps into Landis' car.

Back in town the four attended a supper club and while there all agree to meet on the morrow on Van Vorst's expensive yacht for a lavish party. Burning with jealousy, Lydia is coerced into accepting.

Rosilyn loved that room of hers. It was her own particular retreat—that, and the wind-swept cliffs.

She would roam those cliffs for hours, perched between sea and sky. There, in the midst of infinitude, and gazing far out over the tossing water her own troubles would seem somehow lessened, and a certain peace would steal into her heart.

Then she would retrace her steps to where the cliffs shelved gradually downward to sea level, and a dandy little bay was reached. It was a pretty spot, and Rosilyn would lie out in the sunshine, dreaming—or hunting for quiet little shells—or dabbling in the sea pools that the tide left among the rocks.

This was the point nearest to Royal Cliff, and a path led from the grounds down to a boat house now being painted and repaired. The boats were being painted too, for soon a "house warming" was to be given, in honor of the renovation of the old place, and the installation of its new mistress.

And Lydia Harbrook!

There was a Spanish dancing girl as well, with whom rumor had coupled her husband. He had been seen with her in public and his mother was disturbed. Several of the gossips had already dropped a hint or two in the bride's ear.

But she was much too proud to show her hurt.

On this fragrant morning, when the breezes woke her, she came back to earth with a sense of happiness and buoyancy.

She rose and dressed and breakfasted, and made herself so pleasant to Mrs. Ridgeway, senior, (who, if the truth be told, was beginning to be seriously uneasy over Landis' prolonged absences from his wife's side) that that good lady's heart was really touched.

"I'm afraid it's dull for a child like you down here alone," she said. "An old woman like me isn't much company. Once the decorators and painters are finished, we must fill the house with young company. You'll like that, Rosilyn."

"I don't know if I shall. I—I'm quite happy," the bride had prevaricated.

Landis had been many days gone. If only he had written!

Not that he wasn't interested in the renovating of the house. He loved every stick and stone of the old place, and had taken the keenest interest in the work, spending hours with foremen and advisers.

But now that the business was nearly finished, he was off to fresh fields and pastures. That meant Lydia Harbrook. Rosilyn's heart contracted at the thought.

Shortly after breakfast, she contrived to slip off alone along the cliffs. What an enchanted summer morning! Butterflies darted among the little wild flowers that spangled the green grass in clumps of yellow and of mauve and pink.

On, on she walked, dreaming of happiness that, like a will-o'-the-wisp was somewhere farther along the road of life—that magic happiness and utter peace that all souls crave.

The scenery grew wilder, more romantic. Rosilyn rested in the warm sunshine. She loved the feel of it on her bar arms and unshaded face.

"I must have gypsy blood in me," she said.

After a time she went on farther, till presently she saw—lying behind a gorse bush—the recumbent figure of a man. He was quite some distance from her, and appeared to be sleeping, and as she drew a little nearer, she saw, with a start of astonishment and nervousness, that the portion of his jaw and face which appeared below a hat tilted well down to keep the sun off, was uncommonly like Mr. Briscoe, and so was the figure, though he was not nearly so smartly dressed!

"It can't be!" She drew away as softly as possible afraid that the slumberer might awake. It was lonely in this spot, and Mrs. Ridgeway had already censured her for these solitary ramblings. She retraced her steps.

If it were really Mr. Briscoe, why was he in the neighborhood? And why so far from any road or any sign of habitation?

He had an unkempt air, almost as though he had spent the whole night out-of-doors, beside that bush!

But that, of course, was too absurd. Mr. Briscoe was a sybarite for comfort, and a man of means.

It wasn't possible that he had come down here like this, without his car and chauffeur for the purpose of spying on her? The young girl shivered at the thought.

It wasn't possible that he was in league with the Harbrook woman, to come here and make mischief between herself and Landis?

She looked fearfully over her shoulder, but a slight rising of the ground hid the neighborhood behind from her. The bush and its sleeping tenant was now out of sight.

Thinking she heard a step as though someone was following, she broke into a frightened run. She ran blindly, frantically, and at topmost speed, racing over the uneven ground.

And then, before she realized it, calamity was upon her, for a long bramble tripped her unwary feet and pitched her forward into the center of a clump of bushes in a hollow, tearing her face and frock, but—strange to say—giving no support to her, no foothold, for those bushes parted and Rosilyn shot downwards, downwards, through black darkness into a tunnel leading apparently to the very center of the earth.

CHAPTER XLIX.

On the Yacht

After the meal on the yacht the next day, the men stayed down below a little longer, and Marietta went on deck, and stood leaning over the rail, witching the myriad craft that made the water look like fairyland.

Marietta watched one family party in a row boat. Two little girls were assisting their father to unpack a picnic basket, while a pretty young woman, who appeared to be their mother, was attending to a baby.

As Lydia came up behind the Spanish girl, the latter turned to her, pointing, said:

"There's happiness for you."

"Where?" Lydia raised her beautifully pencilled brows. She thought it was impertinent for a mere dancer to so address her.

"Over there. The little family."

"Indeed?" The society woman's drawl was sufficiently insolent to put most "upstarts" in their places, but it had no effect whatever on Marietta. "I daresay it would appeal to you, after the hard-working life you are forced to lead."

And then she added:—

"If domesticity is what you're after, why don't you marry, and start a family of babies of your own?"

Marietta's lip curled.

"I suppose for the same reason that you don't."

This was too much.

"I fail to understand you."

"I think not."

"Speak out, girl!"

Lydia snorted.

"You flatter me! Speak for yourself!"

But Marietta only smiled.

"Queer thing, life!" The dancing girl spoke monosyllabically, in a staccato accent. "How much easier to end it all!"

Lydia drew away from her. Temperamental creatures, these Spaniards! Was it possible this woman cared for Landis? If so mightn't it be on the cards that she would seek to do some injury to a rival?—and she, Lydia, was a rival from Mariettas' point of view, if the latter fancied young Ridgeway.

It was disconcerting and impertinent counter-thrust, thought Lydia. But why antagonize the creature?

"I only meant, had you known him a long time?" she forced herself to say pleasantly.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Dear, what're you paying for her room? You didn't tell me," anxioused Helen, as they approached the hotel, where Warren's Aunt Amelia was stopping as their guest.

"Now don't you horn in on this!" with a belligerent swish of his cane. "Won't break us. She's only staying a week."

"She always stays longer than she says. And with you paying for everything— Dear, couldn't you say—bring in casually you've only arranged for the week?"

"Now I'm taking care of this! Don't need any coachin' from you," as they swung through the revolving door into the marbled lobby. "If she can't stay with us—least I can do is to put her up here."

"But, Warren, you know I said I would have her—even if we couldn't get a maid—rather than all this expense."

"Now we'll not discuss that—had that all out! Mrs. Parson?" to the room clerk.

"My secretary get you here all right Sorry I couldn't meet you myself. How d'you find it?" Warren surveyed the room. "Comfortable?"

"Thought you'd rather be outside. I can get you a court room."

"Oh we can't stay. We're not settled yet. Just back a week—and no maid."

"So you wrote me," ignoring this reminder of her inopportune visit. "But I was afraid to neglect my ear any longer. I saw Dr. Wayne this afternoon. He gave me an irrigation. I'm to have an X-ray tomorrow. He can't explain this buzzing. And every time I turn my head I feel something pressing against the drum."

But to Aunt Amelia all her ailments were serious, and dilating on them her favorite topic of conversation.

"Any ear trouble is VERY dangerous! That's why he wants to see the plates. It may be an abcess—or even mastoiditis. You never know!"

"How's Fred gettin' along?" Warren cut in on her unctuous self-diagnosis.

"He's not doing so well. Helen, hand me that scarf—on the back of your chair. He sold that lot next to his house. They say he had to—to pay the mortgage. She's so extravagant—and such a poor manager. And they say she——"

A knock, and a waiter entered.

"The tray? I put it in the bathroom. What's that I can't hear you," cupping her ear at his mumbled request. "The check? Yes, I signed it."

With surging indigation, Helen looked after the large napkin-covered tray.

Her dinner sent up; Since Warren was paying. Aunt Amelia was having every luxury.

A double bed, two windows, and a bath. Eight dollars a day, at least. And her meals! That well-laden tray had not indicated a frugal dinner—with the room service, easily three or four dollars. And breakfast, lunch and no doubt, tea—for Aunt Amelia was an inveterate tea-drinker.

"Walter has diabetes. The doctor put him on a strict diet, but he won't keep to it. Now he gets those insulin tertaments—three a week. Ten dollars each time. You know he can't afford it. They say he's borrowing from her father."

"How's Joe Crawford? Heard he cleaned up on that farm," Warren angled for more cheerful news. "Sold it to a canning factory, didn't he?"

"Yes, he made some money on that, but he'll lose it again. He's always making foolish investments. And he isn't well—an awful cough. Consumption. His mother had it—galloping consumption."

"Great Scott, Aunt Amelia, tune off that gloom station!"

"Well, I'm only telling you the truth—and you don't know the worst yet. Agnes and Will are going to get a divorce!"

"Nonsense. They'll patch things up. They always do. Sorry, I forgot, Aunt Amelia," thrustmg back the cigar he had clipped.

"Smoke always irritates my throat. No, it's gone too far—they won't make up this time. It's her mother—always interfering. The Boyds next door, say they do nothing but quarrel."

"Oh, Aunt Amelia, while I think of it—I want to tell you about the nicest tea room," Helen fairly lugged it in. "Right around the corner from here. Luncheon only 60 cents and dinner a dollar. And it's so nice and quiet—I thought being alone you might like it better than the big restaurant here."

"No, I never care for tea rooms. I'd rather order what I want. And the food here is very good. I can have it sent up if I don't feel like going down."

Helen bit her lip. With an effort she kept back the caustic comments on such unnecessary extravagance when staying as their guest.

"Oh, yes, I was telling you about Agnes—one night he didn't some home till way after midnight, and she locked him out. He had to sleep in the garage. Everybody was talking about it. There, I feel that now," her hand over her ear. "That pressing against the drum! Whenever I hold my head this way, I feel it."

"If you'd try not to think about it," advised Helen.

"You don't know how serious any ear trouble is," bristling. "Oh, I want to speak about Stella. I really should not be alone. I thought I'd write her to come in and stay with me—that's a double bed. She can irrigate my ear and go with me to the doctor. She's been wanting to come anyway, to do so some shopping."

A moment's awkward silence as Aunt Amelia paused for Warren's confirmation to this added strain on his hospitality.

"Why, yes, of course, Aunt Amelia—if you think it necessary."

"I could go to the doctor with you," offered Helen, in a desperate effort to avert this further imposition.

"But you couldn't come here twice a day to irrigate my ear! The doctor says it must be done every morning and night."

"Can't the maid do that?" persisted Helen. "If you tip her a little extra?"

"Certainly not! I wouldn't trust a hotel maid to do anything for my ear. What do you think, Warren? Do you mind if I send for Stella "

"No, that's all right, Aunt Amelia. Have her if you want her."

"I knew you'd say that, so I've already written her. If we mail it tonight—she'll get it in the morning."

"I didn't know you had company, m'am. I'll come in later."

"No, we're going now," Helen, snatching at the excuse, drew on her gloves. "You must be tired from the trip, Aunt Amelia, we won't keep you up."

"I can sleep late in the morning. Have my breakfast in bed, and get a good rest. I don't have to go for those X-rays till eleven."

"Well, we must go, anyway," Helen had risen.

"If you're passing a drug store, Warren, I wish you'd have them send me a mouth wash. I forgot to bring any. Something that's good for pyorrhea. I'm having a dreadful time with my gums. Yes, I want it tonight.

"Aunt Amelia, we'd like you to dine with us tomorrow," invited Helen, achieving a commendable note of cordiality.

"Then I'll bring Stella. I've written her to come in on the 2:30. Warren, you can mail the letter as you go down. You'd better put a special on it."

Her black taffeta rustling opilently, she followed them to the elevator.

While Helen maintained a seething silence, more disconcerting than any outburst, Warren mailed the letter in the lobby and ordered and paid for the mouth wash at the corner drug store.

"Want a taxi?" he demanded, as they came out under a flashing sign.

Instead of her usual economic demur that the subway was quicker, she made no protest as he signaled a cab.

Futile to save on taxis when his aunt was luxuriating at their expense!

"Well, what're you sulking about?" now lighting the forbidden cigar. "And you hardly said a word to Aunt Amelia. 'Bout as chatty as a clam."

"I was just wondering if you shouldn't get them a sitting room—since Stella's coming," with saccharine solicitude. "They should have a suite to be really comfortable."

"Eh? What the Sam Hill—Now none of your blamed sarcasm!" the flaring match illuminated his irate scowl. "The less you say, the better."

"You were just complaining that I hadn't said anything. You're rather hard to please tonight."

As sarcasm always enraged him, only when goaded did Helen ever resort to it.

"Now I'll not stand for that line!" explosively. "Guess I can spend a few dollars on my family without any sarcastic remarks from you."

"So you approve of her inviting your cousin?"

"No. I don't!" jabbing his cane. "Didn't expect her to ring in Stella. But there's nothin' to do now—but cough up."

"Wouldn't you think she'd have offered to pay for her?"

"Oh, well, Aunt Amelia hasn't so much—and she thinks we've got it in bales. Won't happen again. Won't break us to hand out a little this time."

"A little Both of them at that expensive hotel — and meals served in their room! You know what they charge for that. And did you notice that bottle of mineral water? And the way she squelched when I suggested that tea room? And she said NOTHING about leaving at the end of the week!"

"Yes, that's goin' pretty strong," he admitted. "But we're in for it now."

"You can say you invited her for only a week—and if she stays longer, it's at her own expense."

"I'll say nothing of the kind! If she parks there a couple of weeks—why, I've got to come across. And I don't want to hear another word about it! Now that's FINAL! If I were shellin' out for some other jane—you'd have cause to kick. But as long as it's only Aunt Amelia—you're darn lucky!"

CROWE BEGINS INQUIRY INTO GERM DEFENSE

No Session of Court Is Held And Jury Stays The Same

CHICAGO, May 30.—(AP)—State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe today launched an investigation of methods employed by William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, defense attorneys in the Shepherd trial in their previous criminal cases. The move was occasioned, Mr. Crowe said, by successive developments which have led to suspicion on attempted "jury fixing" in the trial of Shepherd.

Edward J. Roos, a defense witness in a murder trial handled by Attorney O'Brien a short time ago, and which resulted in a verdict of acquittal, was placed under technical arrest and questioned throughout the day. The sole comment offered by state's attorneys was that he told a "highly improbable story."

As there was no session of court today, four jurors and eight veniremen were held in confinement until Monday when effort will be made to select twelve men to serve as a jury in the case of William D. Shepherd, accused of causing the death of his wife's millionaire ward, William Nelson McClintock, by the use of typhoid germs and subtle poisoning.

Petrified Dinosaur Eggs Are Found In the Reputed Site of Garden of Eden

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—More dinosaur eggs have been found on the reputed site of the Garden of Eden. In addition to these petrified remains, say dispatches from Urga, Mongolia, Dr. Ray Chapman Andrews and the expedition for the American Natural History museum have discovered in the Gobi desert human and animal skeletons of the stone age.

Ostrich eggs also were found together with thousands of stones laborously polished by hand and estimated to be from 10,000 to 20,000 years old. Half the expedition's discoveries must be turned over to the Mongolian government under the condition of the agreement by which the explorers were permitted to penetrate the vast plateau which Dr. Andrews has termed "the Paleontological Garden of Eden and man's probable place or origin."

Aviator Suffers Heart Attack, But Lands Safely With Richard Berthelmess

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—The pluck of Lieutenant Ten Eyck Dew-Veeder, naval aviator, in bringing his plane and passenger safely to earth yesterday after he had been seized with a heart attack which rendered him unconscious as the machine came to rest is regarded as heroic by his flying companions here.

Lieutenant Veeder collapsed in his seat as the plane carrying Richard Barthelmess, movie actor, halted at the end of the flight from Norfolk to Anacostia, near here. He died soon afterward.

Barthelmess, a bit shaken att he tragedy which produced a greater sensation then any movie thriller of his career, declared Veeder had given the "finest exhibition of pluck and courage I have ever seen."

He was convinced, he said, that the pilot was stricken before he landed.

Veeder knew "that he had a passenger behind him and that he had to bring the plane in," the actor said.

PASSENGER IS SIDE SWIPED BY A FREIGHT

None Are Injured in N. Y. Accident Saturday Evening

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—Passengers were shaken up considerably but none reported injured when Pennsylvania train number 31, the "New Yorker," one of the road's two fastest trains, side swiped a west bound local freight train which was entering a siding near Mulberry Groce, Ill., 60 miles east of here, latet oday. Two negro dining car waiters suffered scratches.

One of the freight cars and the two locomotives pulling the passenger train were derailed. The enginemen leaped from their cabs and were unhurt.

The passenger train was hauled back a short distance to Smithboro, Ill., where it departed at 3:26 p. m., detouring over the Burlington route, for Effingham, Ill.

What Today Means to You

By MARIE BLAKE
Gemini.

The planetary aspects of today are rather complex, and while they are not adverse, they are not, on the other hand, very favorable. Fortunately, it is a day that is not usually devoted to business or professional pursuits, and if the usual customary exercises and occupations of Sunday be indulged in, there is little cause for worry, or opportunity for discouragement. In the evening, there will be experienced a tendency to cavil and find fault. If happiness in the family circle be desired, this temptation to cause unhappiness and promote discord must be overcome, and self-control exercised.

A child born today promises to have healthy infancy, but will, in all likelihood, suffer from a serious illness just after adolescence. The outcome will largely depend on the strength of the constitution that, by proper care, has been built up in its early days. In disposition, it will be rather querrulous, argumentative, and peevish. These outward failings will not, however, detract from its other sterling characteristics of honor, straightforwardness, and integrity. It will not attract many friends, but the few it will have will make in quality for what they lack in quantity. Much material success will not be the lot of this child, and it will do better in a subordinate, than in an exalted, position.

You, if your birthday falls on May 31st, are rather frivolous, ambitious about little things, and rather conceited. It would be more to your advantage to spend more time on improving your mind and less on your personal appearance. You could, if you so willed it, learn quickly, as you have much natural aptitude. You, however, display too much interest on externals, and too little on internals.

You are not very constant in your affections, neither as a friend, nor a lover, and you change both very quickly, according to your whims and fancies. You choose a mate because outside appearance appeals to you, and fail to recognize the fact that a homely, unattractive shell often encloses a sweet and delicious nut.

POEMS THAT LIVE

TO MY MOTHER.

How fair you are, my mother!
Ah, though 'tis many a year
Since you were here,
Still do I see your beauteous face,
And with the glow
Of your dark eyes cometh a grace
Of long ago,
So gentle, too, my mother!
Just as of old, upon my brow,
Like benedictions now,
Falleth your dear hand's touch;
And still, as then,
A voice that glads me over-much
Cometh again,
My fair and gentle mother!

How you have loved me, mother,
I have not power to tell,
Knowing full well
That even in the rest above
It is your will
To watch and guard me with your love,
Loving me still,
And, as of old, my mother,
I am content to be a child,
My mother's love beguiled
From all these other charms;
So to the last
Within thy dear, protecting arms
Hold thou me fast,
My guardian angel, mother!
—Eugene Field.

Forty San Antonio Planes Will Go To Ft. Sill Maneuvers

SAN ANTONIO, May 30.—Ninety officers and men will leave Kelly field Monday morning in forty airplanes for Fort Sill, Okla., to participate in the closing maneuvers of the field air school Tuesday afternoon and night. Three types of ships will be used in the flight and maneuvers, including 30 De Havilands, seven Martin bombers and three S E-5 pursuit ships.

Ten ships from the third attack group are included in the total, three of which are equipped with wing and synchronized machine guns and bomb racks and seven D H-4B bombers. The S E-5 planes are from the pursuit group and the remainder are tenth school group planes.

The first stop will be at Waco where 27 De Havilands and the three S E-5's will refuel, 15 planes landing at each of the two municipal fields there to reduce the period of delay.

The Martin bombers and three De Havilands will make their landing at Dallas, where all ships will stop. The hop to Post field will be made in one lap from Dallas.

The maneuvers at Fort Sill will include bombardment, machine gun attack, observation, radio communication and direction of art fire by airplane, both by day and by night.

Some of the Kelly field planes will go to Muskogee for the dedication of a new hangar at Hat Box field before returning to San Antonio.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

"Co-operation Needed in Supplying Farmer With Power," Says Owen D. Young.

Farmers should consider the possibilities of electric power on the farms, power supply companies should see that the farm market is supplied, machinery manufacturers should meet farm requirements and the states should take advantage of their vast water power resources for the economic benefit of all, Owen D. Young, formerly director general of the reparations board, and chairman of the board of the General Electric company, declared in an address recently.

Speaking before a conference of representatives of farmers' organizations and electric companies, Mr. Young stressed the need of electric power and machinery on farms and outlined the possibilities of creating and meeting the demands of such a market.

Explaining that electricity would lighten farm labors and increase farm profits by lowering production costs, Mr. Young said that the farmer should be open-minded as to new methods and should co-operate with his neighbors that all might benefit by electric service. He suggested that the power company would find an extensive market in the farms and while it might be under added obligation in extending the lines, there would be found in the farm service the means of diversifying the power load.

Manufacturers Get Advice.

Manufacturers were urged to study the application of machinery to farm uses, a neglected field but one that would be profitable once power lines opened the source of supply.

Outlining the part the states should play in the scheme, Mr. Young declared that the development of water power should cease to be a political football and that economic progress should be substituted for political horseplay in utilizing natural resources.

"Millions of horsepower run to waste every year. This waste takes place not because the electrical art and industry cannot harness these great powers; not because they are too timid to try. The record is that they have sought and are seeking the opportunity to develop these powers, but as yet no adequate permits have been given."

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAYS NEWS

MAHMOOD SAMI PASHA.

Mahmood Sami Pasha, who has been appointed by King Fuad to succeed Seif Allah Yousri Pasha, transferred to Berlin, as Egyptian minister to the United States, is associated on behalf of his wife with the feminist movement which, with the rise of nationalism in Egypt, now has begun to break down the age—long seclusion in the harem of the women of the Orient.

Huda Hanem Sharawi, the leader of this movement, is the mother-in-law of the new Egyptian minister at Washington. Her influence in the general election was thrown strongly against the Wafd, the party of Saad Zaghlul Pasha, and in favor of the Liberal constitutional party. Of this party Sami Pasha's brother-in-law, Drr. Hafis Affifi Bey, who was educated in the United States, is the vice president.

The new Egyptian minister, however, though for political reasons he was forced to retire from public life when the Zaghlul cabinet took office in 1924, has been associated rather with technical administration than with Egyptian party politics. Now 40 years of age, Mahmood Sami Pasha was born in 1881—one year before the British occupation of Egypt. At the age of 18, after completing his studies in the governmental schools, he went to England and took a course at the Royal Indian Engineering college at Cooper's Hill. Later he became an associate of the Institutes of Electrical and civil engineers.

Returning to Egypt in 1904, Sami Pasha was appointed to the Nile irrigation department. After eight years in this most important of Egyptian public service, he was promoted to the post of general secretary of the Ministry of Public works. In 1922 he was appointed under secretary of the Ministry of Communications, and held this appointment until last year. Sami Pasha takes a close interest in archaeological research. His father, Amin Sami Pasha, is one of the richest men in Egypt.

Cotton Belt Is Equipping for Oil

SHREVEPORT, La., May 30.—Cotton Belt railroad has awarded contract for four 55,000 barrel steel tanks in addition to those already built on its fuel station at Herbert, two miles south of Camden, Ark., which will give the railroad 555,000 barrels storage capacity. In addition six more tanks of the same size have been ordered for construction at different fueling stations along the main line. These, with station equipment at Herbert will give the railroad total fuel oil storage capacity of 1,500,000 barrels. The new tanks at Herbert will make the railroad's investment there $250,000 or more.

Houston Oil company, which has a long time contract to furnish the road with Smackover crude for fuel owns four 55's at Herbert. Oil is used on the entire system of the Cotton Belt except on one division north of Poplar Bluff, Mo., where coal is still used by locomotives, having been bought on a long term contract. As soon as this contract expires oil will be substituted for fuel on this division also.

Many Police Court Cases Docketed By Judge During May

A total of 772 cases were docketed during the month of May by the city police force, according to the annual report for the month compiled Saturday and submitted by C. B. McConnell, police sergeant and clerk of the court. This is said to be an unusually large number.

The report showed that 138 fines had been imposed and 441 bonds forfeited. Cases dismissed numbered 153 and cases found not guilty were 24. Eleven prisoners served time in jail and five cases are now pending on the docket.

The exceptionally large number of bonds forfeited is accounted for by the stringent traffic regulations enforced in connection with the parking laws and automatic street lights.

N number of newspapers throughout the country recently started using $500 and $1,000 accident policies, affording insurance protection to their readers, at a nominal cost of 75 cents and $1.00. The plan naturally found favor with its readers, and served a good purpose.

THE RECORD NEWS whose sphere is always that of service (and its success is built upon service) decided to render a similar, but better service to its readers, and did not rush into the insurance proposition, because we wanted to give our readers the very best policy written, and without any additional cost to the reader if possible.

Such a policy is now being written by the Inter-Ocean Casualty Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, and the public has quickly recognized this as the greatest service that any newspaper has ever offered its readers.

THE RECORD NEWS never does things by halves and after a close observation of this insurance project we have contracted with the Inter-Ocean company for their policy, and every subscriber of The Record News and every one who may decide to become a subscriber of this paper can obtain one FREE.

This insurance is a wonderful thing and is absolutely essential as a protection to your wives and babies. There is one of these policies watinng for you, if you are a subscriber, or will subscribe for The Record News. You can also arrange for extra policies for each member of your family, between the ages of 15 and 70 years.

Automobile accidents which result fatally are becoming more numerous than any other kind of accidents that end in death. In 1923 the loss from traffic accidents in this country was 22,600 lives, 6780 serious personal injuries, and an economic loss of $600,000,000 an increase of 80 per cent in the last seven years.

Next year your wife, children or mother may be in the tearful line of dependants. There is yet time to provide for their wants with RECORD NEWS accident insurance—though destiny may not let you avoid the tragedy.

Tunney-Gibbons Fight Will Be Real Battle, Avers Edgren

Ed Hughes' Column

NURMI A REAL MARVEL.

Does Paavo Nurmi enjoy advantages the oldtime champions were denied? An "oldtimer" thinks so. He writes:

"Dear Sir:—Your column carries many interesting articles from time to time, and I occasionally read it, as of interest by way of comments from your readers. Perhaps you will term the following the ravings of an oldtimer, but here goes just the same:

"On Saturday evening, February 14, 1925, I visited Madison Square Garden to witness the New York A. C. games and incidentally to see the great Nurmi. Being an oldtimer, I was all eyes when he started to perform. I could not help but draw comparisons as he circled the track to establish a new world's record of 8m. 58 1-5e for the two miles.

"I was wonderfully impressed, of course. Yet for all that, I felt that many of the oldtimers had better form than the Finn, admitting, however, that he is a great runner compared to the present crop. I notice from newspaper accounts that he has small fields to run against, also that timers are stationed at various distances to clock him. Was this ever done in the old days when these records were established? And did they take one timer's word for it that a runner reached a certain distance in certain time?

"Also, did they have officials placed about the track when the old records were made to wave away from the rail contestants who were about to be lapped? Were the oldtimers allowed to come through and make new marks, as they are today?

"If I remember correctly, John Paul Jones, Norman Taber, Abel Kiviat, Joey Ray, Jimmy Sullivan, Mel Sheppard, Frank Riley, Harry Giesing, Haskins, Halstead, Valentine, Lightbody, Pilgrim, Bonhag and 50 to 60 men to win. And, oh boy! 'twas a pretty sight to see them come through on the overland route. Meaning the middle or outside of the track.

"The records Nurmi is breaking were made under different conditions than obtained now. They were made on tracks in the Garden or armories, and occassionally outdoors. Indoor spikes were then prohibited. You had to ease up well on the turns or run into a brick wall. Those old tracks were hard on the feet, too.

"What kind have we now. A special, collapsible, springy pine affair with 45 degree banked turns. They would have made any of the old 4:30 milers do 4:20 or better. The track now used in the Garden throws you right up into the next stride. For example, take Joie Ray's second to Nurmi in the Garden when Paavo made his mile record. Old man Ray ran the fastest mile of his career, after years of terrific competition. Can it possibly be that Ray is better than ever? No, it is not so. It is the fast track combined with the small fields which accounted for it.

"Had Alfred Shrubb in his prime had such conditions as Nurmi has the newspaper accounts would read: 'Nurmi comes within so many seconds of equalling a world's record.' It may seem great to A. A. U. officials to efface the oldtimers' marks. Still for mine I say: 'Let them do it on their merits. Do not give them outside assistance. Do not clear the way for them.'"

* * *

THEY'RE NO BETTER.

"Don't let anyone tell you that Nurmi and Ritola are better than the oldtimers. They aren't. They're merely running under more favorable conditions. If Nurmi and Ritola want to show what they have let them try this:

"Try to break Alf Srubb's one-hour record on the New York A. C. outdoor track. This is no slow dirt affair, either, but a faster one than that which Shrubb traversed. Yours for fair play.

A READER.

This letter is interesting from several standpoints. For one thing, he is the first person I've encountered who, having seen Nurmi in action, doesn't rate him as the greatest of all time. However, everyone to his opinion.

* * *

POETIC FORM.

As for Nurmi's form, I've found it both practical and poetical. Perhaps there have been others who ran more gracefully, but no one can deny Nurmi's rhythmical action when running. The writer is undoubtedly right about the small fields that oppose Nurmi, making it easier for him to break records. He is also correct in the matter of several timers being stationed at various distances to watch for records.

However, he is wrong when he states that officials ordered these about to be lapped to give up the rail position. The athletes have been doing this of their own accord, rather a new wrinkle, in fact. My correspondent appears to have exaggerated the advantages of the banked track and indoor spikes. The banked track helps sprinters, but it is of no particular advantage to distance runners. Murchison, I am told, would not wear spikes indoors, except that it benefits his start.

The first banked track, by the way, was used 36 years ago in Mechanics' hall, Boston. The Garden type of track was introduced in 1919. Thirty-four world's indoor records have been registered on it. There is no denying that it was a fast track. Yet Buffalo has a faster one, while the 102nd Engineers, the Thirteenth Coast and the 106th Infantry are considered equally good. Nurmi, in fact, thinks he can run his fastest on the Seventy-first Regiment track, in New York. This is a flat track, on which no spikes are allowed. Spikes, by the way, have been in use indoors 25 years or more.

Nurmi would have been the same wonder in any age under any conditions, the writer believes.

BOTH TOM AND GENE ARE FAST AND CLEVER, AND EACH PACKS DEADLY SLEEP-PRODUCING SOCK

Light Heavies Tangle Up June 5—That's Next Friday—Winner Goes After Dempsey's Crown

By ROBERT EDGREN

June fifth looks like the big fighting date of this summer season. Gene Tunney and Tom Gibbons meet that day at the Polo grounds, New York City, and if the fight is as sensational as it promises to be the winner will probably be matched to fight Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight title.

There is a great contrast between Tunney and Gibbons, yet they are well matched. Tunney is a youngster, 27 years of age, Gibbons is a veteran nine years older than Tunney, and passing the age of ring effectiveness although, as yet, he has shown no sign of slowing up or losing his punch.

When Tom Gibbons was a boxing instructor in a western army camp during the war Tunney was in active service, and just learning how to put up his hands. He was in the Marines, where you have to be a fighter. Tunney won the light-heavyweikht championship in the A. E. F., where among other he beat Bob Martin and Ted Jamieson. After the war Tunney returned to New York. He was born in Greenwich Village and is one of the few native New Yorkers who have won championships. Tunney's name, by the way, isn't "Gene". It is James J. Tunney. He takes that as a good omen because one of the world's greatest fighters, Jeffries, was another James J.

Starting as a professional boxer after leaving the Marines, Tunney showed a corking knockout punch, but began breaking his hands, which are rather small for fighting. Like old Bob Fitzsimmons, he hit with such terrific power that something had to crack, and usually it was a hand. Billy Gibson, his manager, sent him to the Maine woods to spend a whole winter working as a lumber jack. That developed his hands and he hasn't had any trouble with them since. His crashing knockout punch has returned, as shown in the fights with Spalla and Carpentier.

Tunney Steadily Growing.

Tunney is over six feet tall, perfectly proportioned for fighting, has an aggressive jaw but has been trained and coached to box for openings and take them when they come, like an old timer. He isn't afraid of a punch. He didn't cover up as Gibbons did a few months before, when fighting Carpentier, but let the Frenchman land his flashy right and then pasted him out of the picture with body blows. Extreme caution isn't a part of Tunney's boxing scheme. He likes to take a chance. When he fought Spalla, the big Italian champion of Europe was thought to be rugged enough to fight any heavyweight in this country. In the seventh round Gene feinted Spalla into leaving an opening, and hooked him over the eye so hard that Spalla looked as if somebody had hit him with a baseball bat. In a moment Spalla was so badly beaten that the fight had to be stopped.

Tunney beat Carpentier, and finished him with clean body blows. He knocked out Charlie Weinert, now matched to fight Harry Wills, in four rounds. According to this dope Wills is taking on a soft one, although Charlie did outpoint Firpo a few months ago.

In 1922 Tunney lost the American light-heavyweight title to Harry Greb, fifteen rounds, decision. But he came back next year and easily beat Greb twice, to two fifteen round decisions, winning back the championship.

Billy Gibson has been deliberately educating Tunney in boxing, to send him after the heavyweight championship. He hasn't sent Gene through a lot of fights, but has kept him in training quarters away from the city, with a set of trainers, down on the Jersey farm of a friend of Tunney's. There Gene does his training out of doors and away from crowds.

Tunney has been growing steadily. He could not class as a heavyweight. Three weeks ago he weighed 185 pounds, stripped, which is two pounds more than Dempsey weighed when he beat Willard at Toledo. And he wasn't fat. He never takes on fat because he never overeats and never goes out of training.

There is plenty of interest in this fight. Both Gibbons and Tunney have shown class. Both have good K. O. records. Gibbons, two years ago, piled up a long string of knockouts to back his challenge to Dempsey. When they fought at Shelby Dempsey had a guarantee and Gibbons a percentage. Dempsey got about two-thirds of his guarantee, and there wasn't any percentage. Gibbons fought Dempsey for nothing. That took nerve. Gibbons made some money out of showing around after the fight, because he stayed fifteen rounds with Dempsey. He is a clever defensive fighter, master of every defense trick in the game. And he is aggressive enough to take a chance. When Tom took the Dempsey match his brother Mike, was peeved. He told Tom he wouldn't have a chance with Dempsey. Tom was going to throw away his reputation and take an awful beating, Mike thought. He refused to train or second Tom. He didn't even go to Shelby. He didn't want to see Tom massacred.

"Tom's going to be a better fighter than I am," Mike used to say. "He's a natural fighter. He likes to take chances."

Gibbons Has Wonderful K. O. Record.

Tom has a good K. O. record. He flattened Tommy Melchoir, Al Reich, Sergeant Norcross, Willie Meehan, Fred Allen, Hope Mullen, Clay Turner, Jack Hennan, George Ashe, Joe Burke and Andy Schmader in a round each, and a lot of others in two rounds. Al Reich was a husky young giant, George Ashe a close rival of Billy Miske's, Clay Turner a good Indian when off the bootleg, and Willie Meehan the bird who windmilled Jack Dempsey out of a four round decision before Jack became heavyweight champion.

Tommy Gibbons was born in St. Paul, 1893. He is five feet ten and weighs 175 pounds. Sometimes a little more. Last year he had nine fights, winning eight with knockouts and giving Georges Carpentier a thorough whipping in the ninth, which was a ten-round no-decision affair. The most sensational fight was last Dec. 9th, in New York, when Tom knocked out Kid Norfolk, the clever and game colored light heavyweight, in the sixth round.

Gibbons has a large family, lives at home, takes the best possible care of himself and is never out of training or out of condition. After a hard season of fighting he rests during the summer. He and his brother, Mike, have country places on a Minnesota lake, where they can hunt and fish and live like Indians and there's no better way to keep in good health and fighting trim.

While Gibbons is a cautious boxer when facing a lad with a punch, he fights to win. He has lost only three or four fights in his long ring career—to Harry Greb, to Billy Miske on a foul, to Jack Dempsey. Greb's windmill attack offset all Gibbons' skill. He had Miske nearly out with hard body punches in the fourth round when the referee's decision on a foul—if there was a foul, which is doubtful. To me, peering under the lower rope of the ring, it seemed that last punch of Tom's landed fairly in the pit of Miske's stomach, and was a clean knockout. Dempsey, of course, had too much class for Gibbons, and won on the bit. That was to be expected. But when you ask Dempsey why he let Gibbons stay fifteen rounds he grins and says: 'Those fast, clever fellows give me the most trouble. I like to take the big boys who stand still while I sock them.'

Tommy Gibbons doesn't stand still to be socked. He likes to keep moving, and he likes to do a good part of the socking himself. So does Gene Tunney. That'll make it a fight. That and one thing more: the loser in this fight "ain't got nowhere to go," but the winner will move right up among the boys who talk about fighting Dempsey for a million dollar purse.

Dempsey Fights in Europe, But It's for Sweet Charity's Sake

Heavy Champ Will Take Great Pains to Protect Grecian Nose

Jack Dempsey's first appearance in a British ring during his stay in Europe will be against a British heavy hopeful named Phil Scott.

The bout is a charity affair.

Jack has been asked to be real charitable in his demands for appearing—

And in the way he treats Phil.

Scott is one of the latest crop of "hopes" being dug up daily around the British Isles in the forlorn effort to produce a heavyweight fighter of merit.

The ones dug up to date fall short either because of what they possess or what they don't possess.

Most of them possess glass jaws.

The others lack fighting ability.

Scott, however, has something that Joe Goddard, Cook and the other European heavies, outside of Carpentier, lack. That is real speed. He is a shifty fighter who knows how to use his shiftiness. He has, also, a good left. Most young heavies try to do all their fighting with a haymaking right.

Great Britain won't see Jack at his best, however. Judging by accounts of his short encounter with the ship's butcher on the way over, Jack has to play safe with his movie nose. One good swing, if it lands, just ruins his profile. And he has to retain that profile—to keep in the good graces of the movies and Mrs. Dempsey.

Dempsey should be in fair physical condition, however. He has been living sasely. He trained on the way across. His daily program includes a chance to do a daily dozen or two.

GLORY OF TWO GREAT HITTERS

Doomed to Be Dimmed By Two Rivals Still in Game

Only five men in the history of the big leagues had collected 3,000 hits until Tris Speaker rang up his 3,000th the other day. The five were Ty Cobb, Pop Anson, Nap Lajoie, Hans Wagner and Sam Crawford. Speaker, barring any mishaps, will pass Crawford's total of 3,051 hits this summer, and if he plays part of next season, can pass Lajoie's mark of 3,242. Eddie Collins is but a few hits behind Speaker. The five men in the select lodge of 3,000-hitters up to this season records they held were:

Name	At Bat	Hits
Hans Wagner	10,426	3,430
Ty Cobb	20,018	3,699
Pop Anson	10,195	3,475
Nap Lajoie	9,589	3,242
Sam Crawford	9,849	3,051

Goslin Nearest To Mighty Babe Than Any Other

His Swing And Stance Are Like The Bambino's

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The question as to whether Babe Ruth will regain his old time form will not be answered until the Big Boy has played quite a stretch of games following his return to the game. While he may slam out his usual number of home runs at the start only time will tell whether or not his illness and operation have affected his health and strength.

While the home run star has been fighting his way back to health discussion has waxed fast as to whether there is anyone in the game who could take his place.

No one in the present age or any other has equaled his work as a home run hitter. There is one man in the American league today who has many of the earmarks of the great slugger however.

That man is "Goose" Goslin, Washington outfielder.

Goslin has the same stance at the plate as Ruth, employs the same powerful shoulder swing and more nearly approximates the power of Ruth's blows than anyone I've ever seen.

Possibly, had Goslin the same perfect coordination with which Ruth is blessed, he might get the same distance to his smashes. As it is he puts a tremendous amount of power behind his drives. He ranks among the leaders in the main pack of home run hitters as it is.

There is some similarity in the appearance of the two men but Ruth is built on a larger scale.

Goslin's batting was a feature of the Nat's race last year and he is playing his part in their battle to retain the league and world's title this year.

Lightweight Tourney Proved the Biggest Of Rickard's Fizzles

One by one the best men in the division—who risked their reputations in the hand-picked series, were eliminated. The last of these to go—Sammy Mandell—was wished out on a foul the other night, leaving Jimmy Goodrich, an unknown, sitting sort of dazed in the ring, alone in whatever glory was left.

Sid Terris, rated by fair critics as one of the best lightweights of the day, was eliminated early in the series. So was Luis Vicentini, peppery, clever little Argentine with the red shoes.

And yet, when the world at large failed to take seriously Rickard's announcement that the tourney would produce "the next lightweight champion of the world" he was hurt.

These tournaments are the bunk. There are but two ways a fighter can rightfully claim a title. One is defeating the champion. The other is by going into the open market and licking all the leading contenders who seek a jewel in their crown.

Why kid oneself by believing that the matter can be settled in a tourney from which several of the leading contenders withdrew voluntarily and in which some of the others won mainly because they faced second raters?

It's all the bunk.

Bob Meusel Has Done His Best To Keep Home Run Honors With Yanks While the Bambino Was in Hospital

Irish Outfielder Has Been Stepping At a Fast Pace Since First Game of Season

By NOMAN BROWN

NEW YORK, May 30.—Whatever else may be said of the New York Yankees, their weaknesses and shortcomings it must be said that Bob Meusel has done what he could in his wee small way to keep the ex-champions in in the melee.

When Babe Ruth returns to his old form the burden of hitting home runs now and then in the day's work will fall once more on his shoulders. But Meusel can now be given credit for trying to kee pthe home-run honors in the Yankee family while the Big Babe was recovering from too many botdogs and friend potatoes and the resultant ills.

With Babe Ruth out of the circuit clouting race Meusel stepped into the breach and battled Ken Williams and the other A. L. hitters for home run honors and ambled along at a pace that made Leo Hartnett, Rogers Hornsby and the other National league sluggers step.

In addition to his terrific clouting Bob has been playing a brilliant game afield and doing his best to keep up the morale of the team—very wobbling most of the time.

Meusel joined the Yankee from the Pacific Coast before the days of bloomers in that league. The Yanks paid a fancy price for Bob but not $75,000 or $100,000 as was paid for Paul Strand, Jimmy O'Connell, Johnny Jones, and others by major owners.

Bob hadn't even found a regular place in the Vernon team's lineup in the months he had played with them. He joined Vernon in 1917 and played four games at first that year. The next season, during the time he was with the club he played two games in the outfield. The next year he played the whole season through at third base.

But, wherever he was a field, he carried his big bat. His hitting, more than anything else, caused Yank scouts to urge the bosses to buy him.

He alternated between third and the outfield his first year with the Yanks and hit .328. Then Huggins placed him in the outfield for good. He became one of the meanest members of the game's greatest ball murdering outfit, along with Babe Ruth, Wallie Pipp, Peck and Pratt.

Came the heydays of the Yanks' regime. Ruth climbed the dizzy heights of fame and succumbed to the glamor. He made Meusel a buddy. Bob was classed with the "temperamental" ones. Huggins, it was said, had much trouble with him. But Meusel kept on socking the ball—and that is something.

The Yanks, when they gathered at St. Petersburg, Fla., in the spring, were determined to battle their way back to the championship. The acquisition of Urban Shocker, they felt, was the one thing needed to return them to the throne.

Then came the illness of Ruth and the collapse of the pitching staff.

Give him credit.

BUCKY SAYS SHE'S ALL SEWED UP AND SETTLED

Stanley Harris, Washington boss, says the American league race has simmered down to his outfit and the Athletics. But the Yanks, Indians and White Sox, at least, want to play out the schedule.

Draw Did Not Give Glenna Good Chance To Show Her Ability

There is an interesting sidelight in Glenna Collett's effort to lift the British amateur women's golf crown, that is worthy of mention.

Glenna was eliminated from the tourney in the third round by Miss Joyce Wethered, rated of recent seasons as Great Britain's greatest golfer. The defeat was not unexpected. It was Miss Collett's first attempt to win the British title. It was her first important tourney on foreign soil. And Miss Wethered's play has marked her as one of the greatest feminine players in the game's history.

But her friends and American golfing enthusiasts in general would have liked to have seen Miss Collett in the finals. And this thought brings out the fact that conditions governing the tourney doubled the obstacles in her path to the finals and victory in the final.

Miss Collett and Miss Wethered were in one "bracket" in the early rounds. Miss Cecil Leitch was placed in the other bracket.

This arrangement automatically gave Great Britain two chances to defeat the American girl. Had Miss Collett triumphed over Miss Wethered she would have been forced to defeat Miss Leitch in the final round, as Miss Leitch won all matches in her climb to the finals. Little thought was entertained that she faced real opposition before the finals.

In fairness to Miss Collett this condition might have been altered. The sporting thing to have done would have been to let Miss Wethered and Miss Leitch play for the honor of meeting the stranger from the strange land.

However, Miss Collett learned much in the tourney and by the time another year rolls around will have perfected her tournament play considerably. Till then.

WALKER'S RECENT VICTORY ON COAST SENDS STOCK SOARING FOR SCRAP WITH HARRY GREB

Mickey, Rated By Edgren As Best Welter Since Walcott, Beats Cooper in 90 Seconds

By ROBERT EDGREN

Mickey Walker looks like a champion and is a champion.

Micke's earning capacity as welterweight champion is going up. A few days ago, in San Francisco, Mickey fought Lefty Cooper, a local welterweight with championship ambitions, and was paid at the rate of $10,000 a minute while in action. That's a thousands dollars for every six seconds. The difference between Mickey Walker and Henry Ford, as money makers, is that the Ford plant runs day and night, while Mickey gets a shot at the mint only once or twice a month.

Lefty Cooper, by the way, lasted only 90 seconds, and Mickey pulled down $15,000, for what he did to Lefty. Of course Mickey has to split that $15,000, with Jack Kearns and the tax collector, but even at that Mickey won't need to earn a living selling lead pencils.

Walker's stock in the Greb fight, for the world's middleweight title, has taken an upward jump as a result of the welter champ's quick knockouts of Colima and Cooper.

Walker shows the result of education. Before beginning a fighting career that made him world's welter champion in two years Mickey went to the high school in Elizabeth, N. J. While in school Mickey was a basketball player, did a little track work, took a shot at baseball and football, and was a very fair amateur boxer. His real name is Edward Walker. The "Mickey" was attached by his school mates because of his inclination to fight instead of arbitrate.

Walker's Climb to Championship Rapid.

On graduating from the high school Mickey wasn't sure whether he wanted to become a baseball player, an amateur boxer, or a professional glove artist. He passed up baseball because there was a Babe Ruth already. He tried amateur boxing, but found there wasn't enough money in it. Then he met Jack Bulger and tried out as a professional. Mickey didn't have to go through a few years of fighting preliminary bouts. He hopped into the star bouts almost immediately. He knocked out a bunch of pretty fair boys, including Harry Condon, Marcel Thomas, Morrie Scheffer of Omaha, Cowboy Padgett and Dave Shade.

Mickey tells one on himself. It was the first time he met Jack Britton, after he had been fighting a year and had begun to collect a reputation in New Jersey rings. The bout went twelve rounds to no decision. In the middle of the mixup Mickey slapped one over on the welterweight champion's chin and Britton became goggly eyed and wobbly footed. Mickey moved in to finish him, when Jack steadied himself a moment, put on that slow, pleasant smile he's famous for, and said: "Come on, youngster, show us something. Where's that punch they said you had?"

"Right here," says Mickey, "I remembered that Britton was a world's champion, and I thought he was only stalling and kidding me. I backed up and he recovered and was going at top speed again before I had time to realize I'd missed a chance to win the championship."

Next time Walker met Britton, however, he wasn't to be kidded. That fight was in Madison Square Garden, New York, three years ago. It went fifteen rounds, and all through that fighting interval Mickey steadily pressed Britton, digging in with body punches and trading blow for blow every time Jack rallied, until Britton was tired out. Britton made a wonderful spurt near the finish, and Walker stood toe to toe with him and beat him punch for punch. It was Walker's fight all the way, and when it was over Britton, game old veteran, blinked back the tears as the referee raised Walker's hand to show the crowd the new world's champion, walked across the ring and patting Mickey on the back said: "You're a good kid. Take care of yourself and you'll be champion for a long time."

Greatest Welterweight Since Days of Walcott.

Mickey takes care of himself, and he'll be champion for a long time. Britton was right. Probably Mickey's equal as a welterweight champion hasn't been seen in a ring since Joe Walcott was knocking them for a loop. He has everything that makes a real champion—personality, courage, confidence, a quick brain, aggressiveness. He's ring-wise and he can punch. He is one of the most powerfully built welterweights since Walcott's time—better built than Walcott, for he is taller and has a longer reach, while fully Walcott's equal in strength. He's married, has a family, lives quietly at home.

Another admirable thing about Mickey Walker is his entire lack of conceit. The night he beat Jack Britton he left the garden as soon as he could dress and get away from interviewers, and rushed down alone to the tube to go home to Elizabeth, N. J. The platforms were crowded with a home going theatre crowd. As a train pulled in and opened its doors a bull-throated attendant began rushing around the platform pushing people about and ordering everybody to "get a move on."

He spied Mickey Walker, five feet seven, perhaps a little tired looking, and lugging a big suit case. Immediately he charged at Mickey and gave him a violent push.

"Get a move on—get a move on," yelled the attendant.

"Get a move on," bellowed the attendant, shoving Mickey again.

Here an Elizabeth commuter, who had recognized Mickey, caught the attendant's arm and said: "Say, do you know who that guy is you're pushing around?"

"No, and I don't give a blinkety blank," roared the attendant, giving the Elizabethan a push in turn.

"Oh, my gosh," exclaimed the official, "Is that him? Good-night!"

He faded. Meanwhile Mickey had gotten through the door and was standing in a corner of the car, hanging to a strap with one hand while the passing crowd jostled him and stepped on his feet.

You can do that to Mickey in a crowd.

GOLF

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

By BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

The present rule regarding stymie, is that they must be played in match play only. A player is laid stymie if, onthe putting green, the oponent's ball is in the line of hits putt to the hole: provided, however, the balls be not within six inches of each other. If a player knocks his opponent's ball in the hole, when putting, the opponent shall be considered as having holed his putt in the number of strokes he was then lying. Practicing the pitch and "roll around" in order to overcome the disadvantage of being laid a stymie is one of the things to which every good professional devotes much time.

NURMI THE GREAT DEPARTS SHORES OF OLD U. S. A.

America has seen the last of Paavo Nurmi for many months at least. Finland's wonder-runner goes home after a tour of the U. S. which brought him much fame and scores of new records.

What a showing he made in this country!

He appeared in 50 meets. Spectators at these meets saw him break something like 30 records. Some marks were broken and then rebroken.

He ran distances ranging from three-quarters of a mile to 5,000 meters in setting these marks and annexing his long string of victories. He conducted himself during his stay in this country in such a gentlemanly manner on and off the field and handled the arrangements for his appearances in such an upright, straightforward manner that not the semblance of a just accusation of unsportsmanship or professionalism could be proved against him.

More than that he conducted himself in such a manner as to pay honor to the country that claims him — Finland.

If Nurmi typifies the Finnish athlete then there is little cause for wonder that that country should give these great United States, Great Britain and every other country on the globe a race for supremacy in the realm of sport.

The American athletes, trainers and even officials owe Paavo Nurmi much. He brought with him new ideas in training, running and general conduct. Athletes and their handlers, studying him, learned much.

We have had many foreign "invasions." Boxers, wrestlers and whatnot have come to this country. All came with the real primal object, however, of acquiring money.

Nurmi came here to show us Nurmi. Not in a spirit of conceit or boastfulness, but with due pride for himself as an athlete and of his country as a nation.

One other thing, perhaps, drew him here—a desire to see America. Let us hope that he carries home the feeling that America is the land of promise—the land of fair play in sport, the land of good fellowship and "square shooters."

If he has acquired any other impressions through his dealings with the leaders in athletics and American fans it is unfortunate for America.

Two of Coming Baseball Stars Have Bad Arms

Each Has Crooked Arms Caused From Boy Breaks

It is a tradition of baseball that a man must have a good arm to succeed.

Many players have won fame in the diamond sport without a good batting eye simply because they boasted powerful and accurate whips.

Some, of course, have shone because of their batting ability primarily despite other shortcomings. But the number of hard hitters with bum wings is much smaller than the number of poor throwers.

Donnie Bush and Oscar Vitt are two examples of men who climbed the heights and stayed there without the aid of a big bat, simply because they had wonderful whips.

One of Greatest.

Joe Birmingham, old Cleveland centerfielder and ater manager of the team, was one of the greatest outfielders of all time. And the sweetest tribute eevr paid him was that he could "throw strikes from the outfield," so perfect was his aim and strong his arm.

But to get back to good arms.

In the face of all tradition there are two men making names for themselves in baseball today, who, by all the laws of tradition, should be out of it.

They are Riggs Stephenson, utility-slugger de luxe of the Indians, and Russell Miller ,star pitcher of the Ohio State university nine.

Stephenson broke his arm paying football at the University of Alabama. The break mended poorly. The "curve" in Steve's arm is noticeable as it hangs at his side. He cannot "whip" an underhand throw as infielders must do frequently and yet his ability to snag infield hits, his dash and fire and his hitting ability caused Manager Speaker of the Indians to play him at second for some time last year and in 1923.

Shifted to Outfield.

When the need of his service in the infield ended Steve's terrific clouting caused Manager Speaker to shift him to the outfield. His speed in fielding and his ability to judge batters and play them enabled him to hold down the outfield birth acceptably despite the fact that his "whip" was a bit short.

Miller, who comes from a family of ball players, is even a more remarkable character on the diamond in that he essays to pitch with a "crooked" arm, caused by a fall.

Miller has the entire repertoire of the average pitcher and has had remarkable success with the Ohio nine.

All of which goes to prove that after all the heart may have as much to do with it as the arm.

KEARNS CONFIDENT MICKEY WILL POUR IT ON GREB.

Jack Kearns, who lost a one-round battle with Estelle Taylor for the right to manage Jack Dempsey will soon become middleweight champion of the world and any new land the polar explorers find. Kearns asserts that Walker will elevate himself to his second throne by knocking Harry Greb for a row of Japanese bowling alleys when they meet June 10.

May be, may be. But Walker, like all other fighters, lacks experience against a man like Greb. And this may handicap the welterweight champ.

No man who hasn't fought Greb, knows his style. For no one can talk authoritatively about boxing a windmill until he has pulled a Don Quixote. Don had a horse and a nice long spear to help him and lost the decision on points.

Indian Poloists Beat Americans.

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—The crack polo team of the Maharajarh of Jodapur, Indian potentate, today defeated the United States army polo team by a score of 10 to 3 in a game of four chukkers at the Ranelagh club.

Polo Costly Sport.

Nearly one million dollars were used to arrange and finance the international polo match between Great Britain and United States in 1924 when the Prince of Wales was in this country. The gate receipts of course did not pay for even a small part of the expense. Two of the ponies, however sold for $10,000 each immediately after the match which consisted of only two games.

COAL GLEN, N. C., May 30.—Although the mine of the Carolina Coal company, rocked early Wednesday morning by an explosion which entombed as yet undetermined number of men, early today had yielded up 53 victims, two more than the number first thought by company officials to be missing, the search for other bodies continued

LINDSTROM PITCHES TANNER GANG TO CLOSE VICTORY IN NIGHTCAP AFTER RIP LOSES

Callaghan Poles Three Hits Out of Five and Two Out of Three——Jonnard Hits Two Out of Three

SHREVEPORT, May 30.—Home runs in the pinches gave Shreveport the first game of a twin bill here this afternoon 7 to 5, but the locals were unable to wallop when hits meant runs in the final battle and the Spudders won out 3 to 2 in the second. Home runs by McDonald and Bonowitz in the sixth inning of the first game accounted for three runs and a home by Ostergard with Benton on accounted for two tallies in the seventh. In the second game the Sports had men on bases in every inning but the third but it was only in the fourth and seventh that they scored. An error on a single to center with a man on base allowed Distel to round the paths, scoring two runs for the Spudders and Callaghan's homer accounted for the third run. The Spudders opened with a bang in the first inning of the opening game by shoving one run across. Distel walked, took second on Callaghan's single, went to third when Bodie boisted out to right and scored when Fitzgerald rolled out to short.

Wheeler sailed along without much difficulty until the sixth. Two hits off him in the second failed to shove any domestic counters over the platter and another in the third was also wasted. In the sixth, however, Ripper lost his charms. Ostergard rammed a single to center and took second when Silva rolled out to Golvin, unassisted. Tex McDonald lifted one over the right field fence, scoring Ostergard ahead of him. Bonowitz followed with another circuit smash, this time to left. Luderus lined out to Fitz. Burns singled past Dorman and Malone ended it by flying out to Callaghan. Three hits, a double by Benton and another homer by Ostergard and a single from Bonowitz gave a brace of tallies in the seventh.

Ripper Out in Eighth.

The Sports continued their assault on Wheeler in the eighth. Burns slapped a single to left and Malone popped to Query. McGaffigan doubled to left, scoring Burns and sending Wheeler to the showers. Reid relieved him and was greeted with another double from Benton who scored McGaffigan. Ostergard and Silva went out in order.

Malone pulled out of a tight hole in the fourth when the Spudders filled the bases with none out but were unable to score. Fitz and Dorman singled in rapid succession, the former reaching third. Golvin walked, filling the sacks, but White fouled out to Burns and Query hit into a double play, McGaffigan to Benton to Luderus. The visitors counted twice in the sixth on Bodie's homer, a hit batsman, sacrifice and Golvin's single; they counted once in the seventh and the last time in the eighth. In the seventh, Wheeler singled but was forced out when Distel rolled to Burns. Callaghan drove one to the center field fence for three bases, scoring Distel.

Lots of Lindstrom.

Wichita Falls raised a lot of racket in the third round of the second game. Jonnard doubled to right as a starter and made no advance as Lindstrom hoisted to Bonowitz. Distel hit what should have been a single to center, but Bonowitz thought he was a croquet arch and let the ball roll through him. Before he could retrieve it Jonnard and Distel both scored. Just to keep the dirty work up, Callaghan poked one over the right field wall for the circuit and incidentally sent Peters to the club house.

Lindstrom held the Gassers at bay with exception of the fourth when Bonowitz's double and two infield outs scored one run; and the seventh when a walk to Ostergard, McDonald's double to right and an infield out scored another.

They Face Each Other This Week in Fi rst Big Heavyweight Battle of 1925

These two huskies, Tommy Gibbons and Gene Tunney, meet June 5 at the Polo grounds, New York City, in the first of the big outdoor season heavyweight bouts. Gibbons must turn back the younger Tunney to remain a real contender for Dempsey's crown. A victory for Tunney, youthful and ambitious, will start him on the road to more big battles and a possible crack at the champion. Gibbons' experience, ring generalship and short body punch are in his favor. Tunney faces these with youth, stamina, considerable skill and a stiff wallop in either hand.

Hornsby Named New Manager Of St. Louis Cards

Rickey is Appointed Vice-President of Bottom Club

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, National league batting champion, has been appointed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, succeeding Branch Rickey, who is made vice president of the club, President Sam Breadon announced today. The change is effective tomorrow.

Breadon declared everything was friendly between Rickey, Hornsby and himself. Rickey, whom he characterized as a "great organizer," would continue to direct the business affairs of the club, Breadon said, while Hornsby would direct the players on the field.

Hornsby has led the National league in batting for five consecutive years and established a modern batting record for the league last year with an average of .421. Hornsby came to the Cardinals in 1915 in a purchase from the Denison, Texas, club for a nominal sum, said to have been $500. Today he is the highest salaried player in the National league. Last winter he signed a three-year contract at an annual salary said to be not less than $25,000. He is 29 years old.

BEAUMONT 17-2; BUFFS 7-3

BEAUMONT, May 30.—Jake Jacobus went the full route of a double-header between Beaumont and Houston here Saturday afternoon, winning the first game for the Exporters, 17 to 7, but dropped the second in a fast played duel with Frank Barnes, 3 to 2. The veteran spitter sail through the first game as his mates were pounding both Barnes and Benge hard, but slipped in the fourth frame of the second game, slipping a slow ball to Pete Compton who hammered it out for a home run with Gainer on base. McCarty go two home runs, two doubles and a single in the first game. The score:

TWILIGHT TILT TODAY

The Spudders are still on the road, but Wichita Falls baseball fandom can get the next best this afternoon by romping out to the Twilight league diamond on Jalonic street by the Barwise school at 3 o'clock.

* * *

Len Smith sends his revamped Ludlam and Riggs outfit against the speedy Texhoma nine. Texhoma rides in second place right now, with four victories and a loss. Should the Oilers defeat the Clothiers they will be placed in a technical tie for the top with the American Refiners.

* * *

The Smithian crew has taken a new lease, apparently, and is set to spill the leaders. Just this past week the store gang toppled Monroe's Travelers, 8 to 0.

* * *

Smith will assume the ruling role for Ludlam and Riggs. McDuffy more than likely will do the chunkling for Texhoma.

* * *

Both Wichita Falls amateur leagues are swinging around toward the last lap on the first half of their split season schedules. The Twilight split comes June 11. Sunday school loop closes its half June 12. Just two more weeks of play.

* * *

This week's schedules: Twilight—Texhoma vs. Ludlam and Riggs Sunday; American Refiners vs. Monroe's Travelers, Tuesday; Wichita Falls Electrics vs. Security Nationals, Thursday. Sunday school —First Christians vs. First Baptists, Monday; Grace Methodists vs. First Methodists, Wednesday; First Presbyterians vs. Floral Heights Methodists, Friday.

* * *

Riley Rawls is well up among the leading sluggers of the Sunday school loop as well as the Twighters. This boy is a sweet fielder as well as a real hitter. Riley says he is fond of playing at Petrolia where he has a fence to shoot at.

* * *

* * *

SECRET IS OUT

Ronie Glidewell has finally released the secret of his hitting ability when it was discovered recently that he carried a dime in his mouth when he went to the bat. Wonder if he would hit better than .600 if he used a quarter?

* * *

HADDA GET OUT AND WALK

It was a gay crowd that started back from Electra Saturday after giving the all-star nine there a good drubbing. Through the breaking down of one of the cars Riley Rawls and Girard Boone were forced to set out along the pike. They were eventually picked up by a Ford and hauled to Iowa Park where they were joined by O'Dell McDuffy and Johnnie McMahon, these four made it a hilarious trip until the loss of a pair of headgears forced the two last arrivals to be left behind. Ward, a team mate, later picked them up so they didn't have to walk far.

* * *

Rabbit Gordon had a bad scare Saturday while in Electra, when he saw Vernie Ross stretch out over the ground after tagging out a runner at the plate. Gordon came in fast to see if the worst had happened, but Ross was still rearing to go and Gordon was very much relieved.

* * *

Only Fair, Though

Hood Kizziar has a good record at the pitching job. The tall shortstop has been on the mound twice. Worked for three innings. Allowed four hits and two runs. Walked none and fanned six for a strike-out average of two men per inning.

* * *

Skipper Boone, of the First Methodist nine, is intending to use the big "Dark Horse" in his game with the Grace Methodists Wednesday. This may turn out to be the deciding game of the Sunday school loop as these two are now running at a neck and neck clip.

Take a Chance Wins At Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 30.—(AP)—Take A Chance won the Desford Maner stakes, for two-year-olds, at Churchill Downs this afternoon. Sanction was second and percentage third. The time for the four and one-half furlongs was 54 seconds. The race, with $5,000 added, was worth approximately $9,300 to the winner.

Ed Hughes' Column

NURMI A REAL MARVEL.

Does Paavo Nurmi enjoy advantages the oldtime champions were denied? An "oldtimer" thinks so. He writes:

"Dear Sir:—Your column carries many interesting articles from time to time, and I occasionally read it, as of interest by way of comments from your readers. Perhaps you will term the following the ravings of an oldtimer, but here goes just the same:

"On Saturday evening, February 14, 1925, I visited Madison Square Garden to witness the New York A. C. games and incidentally to see the great Nurmi. Being an oldtimer, I was all eyes when he started to perform. I could not help but draw comparisons as he circled the track to establish a new world's record of 8m. 58 1-5e for the two miles.

"I was wonderfully impressed, of course. Yet for all that, I felt that many of the oldtimers had better form than the Finn, admitting, however, that he is a great runner compared to the present crop. I notice from newspaper accounts that he has small fields to run against, also that timers are stationed at various distances to clock him. Was this ever done in the old days when these records were established? And did they take one timer's word for it that a runner reached a certain distance in certain time?

"Also, did they have officials placed about the track when the old records were made to wave away from the rail contestants who were about to be lapped? Were the oldtimers allowed to come through and make new marks, as they are today?

• • •

"If I remember correctly, John Paul Jones, Norman Taber, Abel Kiviat, Joey Ray, Jimmy Sullivan, Mel Sheppard, Frank Riley, Harry Gissing, Haskins, Halstead, Valentine, Lightbody, Pilgrim, Bonhag and 50 to 60 men to win. And, oh boy! 'twas a pretty sight to see them come through on the overland route. Meaning the middle or outside of the track.

"The records Nurmi is breaking were made under different conditions than obtained now. They were made on tracks in the Garden or armories, and occassionally outdoors. Indoor spikes were then prohibited. You had to ease up well on the turns or run into a brick wall. Those old tracks were hard on the feet, too.

"What kind have we now. A special, collapsible, springy pine affair with 45 degree banked turns. They would have made any of the old 4:30 milers do 4:20 or better. The track now used in the Garden throws you right up into the next stride. For example, take Joie Ray's second to Nurmi in the Garden when Paavo made his mile record. Old man Ray ran the fastest mile of his career, after years of terrific competition. Can it possibly be that Ray is better than ever? No, it is not so. It is the fast track combined with the small fields which accounted for it.

"Had Alfred Shrubb in his prime had such conditions as Nurmi has the newspaper accounts would read: "Nurmi comes within so many seconds of equalling a world's record." It may seem great to A. A. U. officials to efface the oldtimers' marks. Still for mine I say: "Let them do it on their merits. Do not give them outside assistance. Do not clear the way for them."

• • •

THEY'RE NO BETTER.

"Don't let anyone tell you that Nurmi and Ritola are better than the oldtimers. They aren't. They're merely running under more favorable conditions. If Nurmi and Ritola want to show what they have let them try this:

"Try to break Alf Srubb's one-hour record on the New York A. C. outdoor track. This is no slow dirt affair, either, but a faster one than that which Shrubb traversed. Yours for fair play.

A READER.

This letter is interesting from several standpoints. For one thing, he is the first person I've encountered who, having seen Nurmi in action, doesn't rate him as the greatest of all time. However, everyone to his opinion.

• • •

POETIC FORM.

As for Nurmi's form, I've found it both practical and poetical. Perhaps there have been others who ran more gracefully, but no one can deny Nurmi's rhythmical action when running. The writer is undoubtedly right about the small fields that oppose Nurmi, making it easier for him to break records. He is also correct in the matter of several timers being stationed at various distances to watch for records.

However, he is wrong when he states that officials ordered thes about to be lapped to give up the rail position. The athletes have been doing this of their own accord, rather a new wrinkle, in fact. My correspondent appears to have exaggerated the advantages of the banked track and indoor spikes. The banked track helps sprinters, but it is of no particular advantage to distance runners. Murchison, I am told, would not wear spikes indoors, except that it benefits his start.

The first banked track, by the way, was used 36 years ago in Mechanics' hall, Boston. The Garden type of track was introduced in 1919. Thirty-four world's indoor records have been registered on it. There is no denying that it was a fast track. Yet Buffalo has a faster one, while the 102nd Engineers, the Thirteenth Coast and the 106th Infantry are considered equally good. Nurmi, in fact, thinks he can run his fastest on the Seventy-first Regiment track, in New Pork. This is a flat track, on which no spikes are allowed. Spikes, by the way, have been in use indoors 25 years or more.

Nurmi would have been the same wonder in any age under any conditions, the writer believes.

Tunney-Gibbons Fight Will Be Real Battle, Avers Edgren

BOTH TOM AND GENE ARE FAST AND CLEVER, AND EACH PACKS DEADLY SLEEP-PRODUCING SOCK

Light Heavies Tangle Up June 5—That's Next Friday—Winner Goes After Dempsey's Crown

By ROBERT EDGREN

June fifth looks like the big fighting date of this summer season. Gene Tunney and Tom Gibbons meet that day at the Polo grounds, New York City, and if the fight is as sensational as it promises to be the winner will probably be matched to fight Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight title.

There is a great contrast between Tunney and Gibbons, yet they are well matched. Tunney is a youngster, 27 years of age, Gibbons is a veteran nine years older than Tunney, and passing the age of ring effectiveness although, as yet, he has shown no sign of slowing up or losing his punch.

When Tom Gibbons was a boxing instructor in a western army camp during the war Tunney was in active service, and just learning how to put up his hands. He was in the Marines, where you have to be a fighter. Tunney won the light-heavyweikht championship in the A. E. F., where among other he beat Bob Martin and Ted Jamieson. After the war Tunney returned to New York. He was born in Greenwich Village and is one of the few native New Yorkers who have won championships. Tunney's name, by the way, isn't "Gene". It is James J. Tunney. He takes that as a good omen because one of the world's greatest fighters, Jeffries, was another James J.

Starting as a professional boxer after leaving the Marines, Tunney showed a corking knockout punch, but began breaking his hands, which are rather small for fighting. Like old Bob Fitzsimmons, he hit with such terrific power that something had to crack, and usually it was a hand. Billy Gibson, his manager, sent him to the Maine woods to spend a whole winter working as a lumber jack. That developed his hands and he hasn't had any trouble with them since. His crashing knockout punch has returned, as shown in the fights with Spalla and Carpentier.

Tunney Steadily Growing.

Tunney is over six feet tall, perfectly proportioned for fighting, has an aggressive jaw but has been trained and coached to box for openings and take them when they come, like an old timer. He isn't afraid of a punch. He didn't cover up as Gibbons did a few months before, when fighting Carpentier, but let the Frenchman land his flashy right and then pasted him out of the picture with body blows. Extreme caution isn't a part of Tunney's boxing scheme. He likes to take a chance. When he fought Spalla, the big Italian champion of Europe was thought to be rugged enough to fight any heavyweight in this country. In the seventh round Gene feinted Spalla into leaving an opening, and hooked him over the eye so hard that Spalla looked as if somebody had hit him with a baseball bat. In a moment Spalla was so badly beaten, that the fight had to be stopped.

Tunney beat Carpentier, and finished him with clean body blows. He knocked out Charlie Weinert, now matched to fight Harry Wills, in four rounds. According to this dope Wills is taking on a soft one, although Charlie did outpoint Firpo a few months ago.

In 1922 Tunney lost the American light-heavyweight title to Harry Greb, fifteen rounds, decision. But he came back next year and easily beat Greb twice, to two fifteen round decisions, winning back the championship.

Billy Gibson has been deliberately educating Tunney in boxing, to send him after the heavyweight championship. He hasn't sent Gene through a lot of fights, but has kept him in training quarters away from the city, with a set of trainers, down on the Jersey farm of a friend of Tunney's. There Gene does his training out of doors and away from crowds.

Tunney has been growing steadily. He could not class as a heavyweight. Three weeks ago he weighed 185 pounds, stripped, which is two pounds more than Dempsey weighed when he beat Willard at Toledo. And he wasn't fat. He never takes on fat because he never overeats and never goes out of training.

There is plenty of interest in this fight. Both Gibbons and Tunney have shown class. Both have good K. O. records. Gibbons, two years ago, piled up a long string of knockouts to back his challenge to Dempsey. When they fought at Shelby Dempsey had a guarantee and Gibbons a percentage. Dempsey got about two-thirds of his guarantee, and there wasn't any percentage. Gibbons fought Dempsey for nothing. That took nerve. Gibbons made some money out of showing around after the fight, because he stayed fifteen rounds with Dempsey. He is a clever defensive fighter, master of every defense trick in the game. And he is aggressive enough to take a chance. When Tom took the Dempsey match his brother Mike, was peeved. He told Tom he wouldn't have a chance with Dempsey. Tom was going to throw away his reputation and take an awful beating, Mike thought. He refused to train or second Tom. He didn't even go to Shelby. He didn't want to see Tom massacred.

"Tom's going to be a better fighter than I am," Mike used to say. "He's a natural fighter. He likes to take chances."

Gibbons Has Wonderful K. O. Record.

Tom has a good K. O. record. He flattened Tommy Melchoir, Al Reich, Sergeant Norcross, Willie Meehan, Fred Allen, Hope Mullen, Clay Turner, Jack Hennan, George Ashe, Joe Burke and Andy Schmader in a round each, and a lot of others in two rounds. Al Reich was a husky young giant, George Ashe a close rival of Billy Miske's, Clay Turner a good Indian when off the bootleg, and Willie Meehan the bird who windmilled Jack Dempsey out of a four round decision before Jack became heavyweight champion.

Tommy Gibbons was born in St. Paul, 1893. He is five feet ten and weights 175 pounds. Sometimes a little more. Last year he had nine fights, winning eight with knockouts and giving Georges Carpentier a thorough whipping in the ninth, which was a ten-round no-decision affair. The most sensational fight was last Dec. 9th, in New York, when Tom knocked out Kid Norfolk, the clever and game colored light heavyweight, in the sixth round.

Gibbons has a large family, lives at home, takes the best possible care of himself and is never out of training or out of condition. After a hard season of fighting he rests during the summer. He and his brother, Mike, have country places on a Minnesota lake, where they can hunt and fish and live like Indians —and there's no better way to keep in good health and fighting trim.

While Gibbons is a cautious boxer when facing a lad with a punch, he fights to win. He has lost only three or four fights in his long ring career—to Harry Greb, to Billy Miske on a foul, to Jack Dempsey. Greb's windmill attack offset all Gibbons' skill. He had Miske nearly out with hard body punches in the fourth round when he lost the decision on a foul—if there was a foul, which is doubtful. To me, peering under the lower rope of the ring, it seemed that last punch of Tom's landed fairly in the pit of Miske's stomach, and was a clean knockout. Dempsey, of course, had too much class for Gibbons, and won on the bit. That was to be expected. But when you ask Dempsey why he let Gibbons stay fifteen rounds he grins and says: "Those fast, clever fellows give me the most trouble. I like to take the big boys who stand still while I sock them."

Tommy Gibbons doesn't stand still to be socked. He likes to keep moving, and he likes to do a good part of the socking himself. So does Gene Tunney. That'll make it a fight. That and one thing more: the loser in this fight "ain't got nowhere to go," but the winner will move right up among the boys who talk about fighting Dempsey for a million dollar purse.

Dempsey Fights in Europe, But It's for Sweet Charity's Sake

Heavy Champ Will Take Great Pains to Protect Grecian Nose

Jack Dempsey's first appearance in a British ring during his stay in Europe will be against a British heavy hopeful named Phil Scott.

The bout is a charity affair.

Jack has been asked to be real charitable in his demands for appearing—

And in the way he treats Phil.

Scott is one of the latest crop of "hopes" being dug up daily around the British Isles in the forlorn effort to produce a heavyweight fighter of merit.

The ones dug up to date fall short either because of what they possess or what they don't possess.

Most of them possess glass jaws.

The others lack fighting ability.

Scott, however, has something that Joe Goddard, Cook and the other European heavies, outside of Carpentier, lack. That is real speed. He is a shifty fighter who knows how to use his shiftiness. He has, also, a good left. Most young heavies try to do all their fighting with a haymaking right.

Great Britain won't see Jack at his best, however. Judging by accounts of his short encounter with the ship's butcher on the way over, Jack has to play safe with his movie nose. One good swing, if it lands, just ruins his profile. And he has to retain that profile—to keep in the good graces of the movies and Mrs. Dempsey.

Dempsey should be in fair physical condition, however. He has been living sasely. He trained on the way across. His daily program includes a chance to do a daily dozen or two.

GLORY OF TWO GREAT HITTERS

Doomed to Be Dimmed By Two Rivals Still in Game

Only five men in the history of the big leagues had collected 3,000 hits until Tris Speaker rang up his 3,000th the other day. The five were Ty Cobb, Pop Anson, Nap Lajoie, Hans Wagner and Sam Crawford. Speaker, barring any mishaps, will pass Crawford's total of 3,051 hits this summer, and if he plays part of next season, can pass Lajoie's mark of 3,242. Eddie Collins is but a few hits behind Speaker. The five men in the select lodge of 3,000-hitters up to this season records they held were:

Name	At Bat	Hits
Hans Wagner	10,426	3,430
Ty Cobb	20,018	3,699
Pop Anson	10,195	3,475
Nap Lajoie	9,589	3,242
Sam Crawford	9,849	3,051

Goslin Nearest To Mighty Babe Than Any Other

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The question as to whether Babe Ruth will regain his old time form will not be answered until the Big Boy has played quite a stretch of games following his return to the game. While he may slam out his usual number of home runs at the start only time will tell whether or not his illness and operation have affected his health and strength.

While the home run star has been fighting his way back to health discussion has waxed fast as to whether there is anyone in the game who could take his place.

No one in the present age or any other has equaled his work as a home run hitter. There is one man in the American league today who has many of the earmarks of the great slugger however.

That man is "Goose" Goslin, Washington outfielder.

Goslin has the same stance at the plate as Ruth, employs the same powerful shoulder swing and more nearly approximates the power of Ruth's blows than anyone I've ever seen.

Possibly, had Goslin the same perfect coordination with which Ruth is blessed, he might get the same distance to his smashes. As it is he puts a tremendous amount of power behind his drives. He ranks among the leaders in the main pack of home run hitters as it is.

There is some similarity in the appearance of the two men but Ruth is built on a larger scale.

Goslin's batting was a feature of the Nat's race last year and he is playing his part in their battle to retain the league and world's title this year.

Lightweight Tourney Proved the Biggest Of Rickard's Fizzles

One by one the best men in the division—who risked their reputations in the hand-picked series, were eliminated. The last of these to go—Sammy Mandell—was wished out on a foul the other night, leaving Jimmy Goodrich, an unknown, sitting sort of dazed in the ring, alone in whatever glory was left.

Sid Terris, rated by fair critics as one of the best lightweights of the day, was eliminated early in the series. So was Luis Vicentini, peppery, clever little Argentine with the red shoes.

And yet, when the world at large failed to take seriously Rickard's announcement that the tourney would produce "the next lightweight champion of the world" he was hurt.

These tournaments are the bunk. There are but two ways a fighter can rightfully claim a title. One is defeating the champion. The other is by going into the open market and licking all the leading contenders who seek a jewel in their crown.

Why kid oneself by believing that the matter can be settled in a tourney from which several of the leading contenders withdrew voluntarily and in which some of the others won mainly because they faced second raters?

It's all the bunk.

Bob Meusel Has Done His Best To Keep Home Run Honors With Yanks While the Bambino Was in Hospital

Irish Outfielder Has Been Stepping At a Fast Pace Since First Game of Season

By NOMAN BROWN

NEW YORK, May 30.—Whatever else may be said of the New York Yankees, their weaknesses and shortcomings it must be said that Bob Meusel has done what he could in his wee small way to keep the ex-champions in in the melee.

When Babe Ruth returns to his old form the burden of hitting home runs now and then in the day's work will fall once more on his shoulders. But Meusel can now be given credit for trying to kee pthe home-run honors in the Yankee family while the Big Babe was recovering from too many hotdogs and friend potatoes and the resultant ills.

With Babe Ruth out of the circuit clouting race Meusel stepped into the breach and battled Ken Williams and the other A. L. hitters for home run honors and ambled along at a pace that made Leo Hartnett, Rogers Hornsby and the other National league sluggers step.

In addition to his terrific clouting Bob has been playing a brilliant game afield and doing his best to keep up the morale of the team—very wobbling most of the time.

Meusel joined the Yankee from the Pacific Coast before the days of bloomers in that league. The Yanks paid a fancy price for Bob but not $75,000 or $100,000 as was paid for Paul Strand, Jimmy O'Connell, Johnny Jones, and others by major owners.

Bob hadn't even found a regular place in the Vernon team's lineup in the months he had played with them. He joined Vernon in 1917 and played four games at first that year. The next season, during the time he was with the club he played two games in the outfield. The next year he played the whole season through at third base.

But, wherever he was a field, he carried his big bat. His hitting, more than anything else, caused Yank scouts to urge the bosses to buy him.

He alternated between third and the outfield his first year with the Yanks and hit .328. Then Huggins placed him in the outfield for good. He became one of the meanest members of the game's greatest ball murdering outfit, along with Babe Ruth, Wallie Pipp, Peck and Pratt.

Came the heydays of the Yanks' regime. Ruth climbed the dizzy heights of fame and succumbed to the glamor. He made Meusel a buddy. Bob was classed with the "temperamental" ones. Huggins, it was said had much trouble with him. But Meusel kept on socking the ball—and that is something.

The Yanks, when they gathered at St. Petersburg, Fla., in the spring, were determined to battle their way back to the championship. The acquisition of Urban Shocker, they felt, was the one thing needed to return them to the throne.

Then came the illness of Ruth and the collapse of the pitching staff.

Give him credit.

BUCKY SAYS SHE'S ALL SEWED UP AND SETTLED

Stanley Harris, Washington boss, says the American league race has simmered down to his outfit and the Athletics. But the Yanks, Indians and White Sox, at least, want to play out the schedule.

Draw Did Not Give Glenna Good Chance To Show Her Ability

There is an interesting sidelight in Glenna Collett's effort to lift the British amateur women's golf crown, that is worthy of mention.

Glenna was eliminated from the tourney in the third round by Miss Joyce Wethered, rated of recent seasons as Great Britain's greatest golfer. The defeat was not unexpected. It was Miss Collett's first attempt to win the British title. It was her first important tourney on foreign soil. And Miss Wethered's play has marked her as one of the greatest feminine players in the game's history.

But her friends and American golfing enthusiasts in general would have liked to have seen Miss Collett in the finals. And this thought brings out the fact that conditions governing the tourney doubled the obstacles in her path to the finals and victory in the final.

Miss Collett and Miss Wethered were in one "bracket" in the early rounds. Miss Cecil Leitch was placed in the other bracket.

This arrangement automatically gave Great Britain two chances to defeat the American girl. Had Miss Collett triumphed over Miss Wethered she would have been forced to defeat Miss Leitch in the final round, as Miss Leitch won all matches in her climb to the finals. Little thought was entertained that she faced real opposition before the finals.

In fairness to Miss Collett this condition might have been altered. The sporting thing to have done would have been to let Miss Wethered and Miss Leitch play for the honor of meeting the stranger from the strange land.

However, Miss Collett learned much in the tourney and by the time another year rolls around will have perfected her tournament play considerably. Till then.

GOLF

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

By BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

The present rule regarding stymie, is that they must be played in match play only. A player is laid stymie if, outhe putting green, the oponent's ball is in the line of hits putt to the hole: provided, however, the balls be not within six inches of each other. If a player knocks his opponent's ball in the hole, when putting, the opponent shall be considered as having holed his putt in the number of strokes he was then lying. Practicing the pitch and "roll around" in order to overcome the disadvantage of being laid a stymie is one of the things to which every good professional devotes much time.

NURMI THE GREAT DEPARTS SHORES OF OLD U. S. A.

America has seen the last of Paavo Nurmi for many months at least. Finland's wonder-runner goes home after a tour of the U. S. which brought him much fame and scores of new records.

What a showing he made in this country!

He appeared in 50 meets. Spectators at these meets saw him break something like 30 records. Some marks were broken and then rebroken. He ran distances ranging from three-quarters of a mile to 5,000 meters in setting these marks and annexing his long string of victories. He conducted himself during his stay in this country in such a gentlemanly manner on and off the field and handled the arragements for his appearances in such an upright, straightforward manner that not the semblance of a just accusation of unsportsmanship or professionalism could be proved against him.

More than that he conducted himself in such a manner as to pay honor to the country that claims him — Finland.

If Nurmi typifies the Finnish athlete then there is little cause for wonder that that country should give these great United States, Great Britain and every othgr country on the globe a race for supremacy in the realm of sport.

The American athletes, trainers and even officials owe Paavo Nurmi much. He brought with him new ideas in training, running and general conduct. Athletes and their handlers, studying him, learned much.

We have had many foreign "invasions." Boxers, wrestlers and whatnot have come to this country. All came with the real primal object, however, of acquiring money.

Nurmi came here to show us Nurmi. Not in a spirit of conceit or boastfulness, but with due pride for himself as an athlete and of his country as a nation.

One other thing, perhaps, drew him here—a desire to see America. Let us hope that he carries home the feeling that America is the land of promise—the land of fair play in sport, the land of good fellowship and "square shooters."

If he has acquired any other impressions through his dealings with the leaders in athletics and American fans it is unfortunate for America.

WALKER'S RECENT VICTORY ON COAST SENDS STOCK SOARING FOR SCRAP WITH HARRY GREB

Mickey, Rated By Edgren As Best Welter Since Walcott, Beats Cooper in 90 Seconds

By ROBERT EDGREN

Mickey Walker looks like a champion and is a champion.

Micke's earning capacity as welterweight champion is going up. A few days ago, in San Francisco, Mickey fought Lefty Cooper, a local welterweight with championship ambitions, and was paid at the rate of $10,000 a minute while in action. That's a thousands dollars for every six seconds. The difference between Mickey Walker and Henry Ford, as money makers, is that the Ford plant runs day and night, while Mickey gets a shot at the mint only onee or twice a month.

Lefty Cooper, by the way, lasted only 90 seconds, and Mickey pulled down $15,000, for what he did to Lefty. Of course Mickey has to split that $15,000, with Jack Kearns and the tax collector, but even at that Mickey won't need to earn a living selling lead pencils.

Walker's stock in the Greb fight, for the world's middleweight title, has taken an upward jump as a result of the welter champ's quick knockouts of Colima and Cooper.

Walker shows the result of education. Before beginning a fighting career that made him world's welter champion in two years Mickey went to the high school in Elizabeth, N. J. While in school Mickey was a basketball player, did a little track work, took a shot at baseball and football, and was a very fair amateur boxer. His real name is Edward Walker. The "Mickey" was attached by his school mates because of his inclination to fight instead of arbitrate.

Walker's Climb to Championship Rapid.

On graduating from the high school Mickey wasn't sure whether he wanted to become a baseball player, an amateur boxer, or a professional glove artist. He passed up baseball because there was a Babe Ruth already. He tried amateur boxing, but found there wasn't enough money in it. Then he met Jack Bulger and tried out as a professional. Mickey didn't have to go through a few years of fighting preliminary bouts. He hopped into the star bouts almost immediately. He knocked out a bunch of pretty fair boys, including Harry Condon, Marcel Thomas, Morrie Schaeffer of Omaha, Cowboy Padgett and Dave Shade.

Mickey tells one on himself. It was the first time he met Jack Britton, after he had been fighting a year and had begun to collect a reputation in New Jersey rings. The bout went twelve rounds to no decision. In the middle of the mixup Mickey slapped one over on the welterweight champion's chin and Britton became goggly eyed and wobbly footed. Mickey moved in to finish him, when Jack steadied himself a moment, put on that slow, pleasant smile he's famous for, and said: "Come on, youngster, show us something. Where's that punch they said you had?"

"Right here," says Mickey, "I remembered that Britton was a world's champion, and I thought he was only stalling and kidding me. I backed up and he recovered and was going at top speed again before I had time to realize I'd missed a chance to win the championship."

Next time Walker met Britton, however, he wasn't to be kidded. That fight was in Madison Square Garden, New York, three years ago. It went fifteen rounds, and all through that fighting interval Mickey steadily pressed Britton, digging in with body punches and trading blow for blow every time Jack rallied, until Britton was tired out. Britton made a wonderful spurt near the finish, and Walker stood toe to toe with him and beat him punch for punch. It was Walker's fight all the way, and when it was over Britton, game old veteran, blinked back the tears as the referee raised Walker's hand to show the crowd the new world's champion, walked across the ring and patting Mickey on the back said: "You're a good kid. Take care of yourself and you'll be champion for a long time."

Greatest Welterweight Since Days of Walcott.

Mickey takes care of himself, and he'll be champion for a long time. Britton was right. Probably Mickey's equal as a welterweight champion hasn't been seen in a ring since Joe Walcott was knocking them for a loop. He has everything that makes a real champion—personality, courage, confidence, a quick brain, aggressiveness. He's ring-wise and he can punch. He is one of the most powerfully built welterweights since Walcott's time—better built than Walcott, for he is taller and has a longer reach, while fully Walcott's equal in strength. He's married, has a family, lives quietly at home.

Another admirable thing about Mickey Walker is his entire lack of conceit. The night he beat Jack Britton he left the garden as soon as he could dress and get away from interviewers, and rushed down alone to the tube to go home to Elizabeth, N. J. The platforms were crowded with a home going theatre crowd. As a train pulled in and opened its doors a bull-throated attendant began rushing around the platform pushing people about and ordering everybody to "get a move on." He spied Mickey Walker, five feet seven, perhaps a little tired looking, and lugging a big suit case. Immediately he charged at Mickey and gave him a violent push.

"Get a move on," bellowed the attendant, shoving Mickey again.

Here an Elizabeth commuter, who had recognized Mickey, caught the attendant's arm and said: "Say, do you know who that guy is you're pushing around?"

"No, and I don't give a blinkety blank," roared the attendant, giving the Elizabethan a push in turn.

"Oh, my gosh," exclaimed the official, "Is that him? Good-night!"

He faded. Meanwhile Mickey had gotten through the door and was standing in a corner of the car, hanging to a strap with one hand while the passing crowd jostled him and stepped on his feet.

You can do that to Mickey in a crowd.

Two of Coming Baseball Stars Have Bad Arms

Each Has Crooked Arms Caused From Boy Breaks

It is a tradition of baseball that a man must have a good arm to succeed.

Many players have won fame in the diamond sport without a good batting eye simply because they boasted powerful and accurate whips.

Some, of course, have shone because of their batting ability primarily despite other shortcomings. But the number of hard hitters with bum wings is much smaller than the number of poor throwers.

Donnie Bush and Oscar Vitt are two examples of men who climbed the heights and stayed there without the aid of a big bat, simply because they had wonderful whips.

One of Greatest.

Joe Birmingham, old Cleveland centerfielder and ace manager of the team, was one of the greatest outfielders of all time. And the sweetest tribute eevr paid him was that he could "throw strikes from the outfield," so perfect was his aim and strong his arm.

But to get back to good arms.

In the face of all tradition there are two men making names for themselves in baseball today, who, by all the laws of tradition, should be out of it.

They are Riggs Stephenson, utility-slugger de luxe of the Indians, and Russell Miller ,star pitcher of the Ohio State university nine.

Stephenson broke his arm paying football at the University of Alabama. The break mended poorly. The "curve" in Steve's arm is noticeable as it hangs at his side. He cannot "whip" an underhand throw as infielders must do frequently and yet his ability to snag infield hits, his dash and fire and his hitting ability caused Manager Speaker of the Indians to play him at second for some time last year and in 1923.

Shifted to Outfield.

When the need of his service in the infield ended Steve's terrific clouting caused Manager Speaker to shift him to the outfield. His speed in fielding and his ability to judge batters and play them enabled him to hold down the outfield birth acceptably despite the fact that his "whip" was a bit short.

Miller, who comes from a family of ball players, is even a more remarkable character on the diamond in that he essays to pitch with a "crooked" arm, caused by a fall.

Miller has the entire repertoire of the average pitcher and has had remarkable success with the Ohio nine.

All of which goes to prove that after all the heart may have as much to do with it as the arm.

KEARNS CONFIDENT MICKEY WILL POUR IT ON GREB.

Jack Kearns, who lost a one-round battle with Estelle Taylor for the right to manage Jack Dempsey will soon become middleweight champion of the world and any new laud the polar explorers find. Kearns asserts that Walker will elevate himself to his second throne by knocking Harry Greb for a row of Japanese bowling alleys when they meet June 19.

May be, may be. But Walker, like all other fighters, lacks experience against a man like Greb. And this may handicap the welterweight champ.

No man who hasn't fought Grub, knows his style. For no one can talk authoritatively about boxing a windmill until he has pulled a Don Quixote. Don had a horse and a nice long spear to help him and lost the decision on points.

Indian Poloists Beat Americans.

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—The crack polo team of the Maharajarh of Jodspur, Indian potenate, today defeated the United States army polo team by a score of 10 to 3 in a game of four chukkers at the Ranelagh club.

Polo Costly Sport.

Nearly one million dollars were used to arrange and finance the international polo match between Great Britain and United States in 1924 when the Prince of Wales was in this country. The gate receipts of course did not pay for even a small part of the expense. Two of the ponies, however, sold for $10,000 each immediately after the match which consisted of only two games.

Callaghan Poles Three Hits Out of Five and Two Out of Three——Jonnard Hits Two Out of Three

SHREVEPORT, May 30.—Home runs in the pinches gave Shreveport the first game of a twin bill here this afternoon 7 to 5, but the locals were unable to wallop when hits meant runs in the final battle and the Spudders won out 3 to 2 in the second. Home runs by McDonald and Bonowitz in the sixth inning of the first game accounted for three runs and a home by Ostergard with Benton on accounted for two tallies in the seventh. In the second game the Sports had men on bases in every inning but the third but it was only in the fourth and seventh that they scored. An error on a single to center with a man on base allowed Distel to round the paths, scoring two runs for the Spudders and Callaghan's homer accounted for the third run. The Spudders opened with a bang in the first inning of the opening game by shoving one run across. Distel walked, took second on Callaghan's single, went to third when Bodie boisted out to right and scored when Fitzgerald rolled out to short.

Wheeler sailed along without much difficulty until the sixth. Two hits off him in the second failed to shove any domestic counters over the platter and another in the third was also wasted. In the sixth, however, Ripper lost his charms. Ostergard rammed a single to center and took second when Silva rolled out to Golvin, unassisted. Tex McDonald lifted one over the right field fence, scoring Ostergard ahead of him. Bonowitz followed with another circuit smash, this time to left. Luderus lined out to Fitz, Burns singled past Dorman and Malone ended it by flying out to Callaghan. Three hits, a double by Benton and another homer by Ostergard and a single from Bonowitz gave a brace of tallies in the seventh.

Ripper Out in Eighth.

Malone pulled out of a tight hole in the fourth when the Spudders filled the bases with none out but were unable to score. Fitz and Dorman singled in rapid succession, the former reaching third. Golvin walked, filling the sacks, but White fouled out to Burns and Query bit into a double play, McGaffigan to Benton to Luderus. The visitors counted twice in the sixth on Bodie's homer, a hit batsman, sacrifice and Golvin's single; they counted once in the seventh and the last time in the eighth. In the seventh, Wheeler singled but was forced out when Distel rolled to Burns. Callaghan drove one to the center field fence for three bases, scoring Distel.

Lots of Lindstrom.

Wichita Falls raised a lot of racket in the third round of the second game. Jonnard doubled to right as a starter and made no advance as Lindstrom hoisted to Bonowitz. Distel hit what should have been a single to center, but Bonowitz thought he was a croquet arch and let the ball roll through him. Before he could retrieve it Jonnard and Distel both scored. Just to keep the dirty work up, Callaghan poked one over the right field wall for the circuit and incidentally sent Peters to the club house.

Lindstrom held the Gassers at bay with exception of the fourth when Bonowitz's double and two infield outs scored one run; and the seventh when a walk to Ostergard, McDonald's double to right and an infield out scored another.

They Face Each Other This Week in Fi rst Big Heavyweight Battle of 1925

These two huskies, Tommy Gibbons and Gene Tunney, meet June 5 at the Polo grounds, New York City, in the first of the big outdoor season heavyweight bouts. Gibbons must turn back the younger Tunney to remain a real contender for Dempsey's crown. A victory for Tunney, youthful and ambitious, will start him on the road to more big battles and a possible crack at the champion. Gibbons' experience, ring generalship and short body punch are in his favor. Tunney faces these with youth, stamina, considerable skill and a stiff wallop in either hand.

Hornsby Named New Manager Of St. Louis Cards

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, National league batting champion, has been appointed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, succeeding Branch Rickey, who is made vice president of the club, President Sam Breadon announced today. The change is effective tomorrow.

Breadon declared everything was friendly between Rickey, Hornsby and himself. Rickey, whom he characterized as a "great organizer," would continue to direct the business affairs of the club, Breadon said, while Hornsby would direct the players on the field.

Hornsby has led the National league in batting for five consecutive years and established a modern batting record for the league last year with an average of .421. Hornsby came to the Cardinals in 1915 in a purchase from the Denison, Texas, club for a nominal sum, said to have been $500. Today he is the highest salaried player in the National league. Last winter he signed a three-year contract at an annual salary said to be not less than $25,000. He is 29 years old.

BEAUMONT 17-2; BUFFS 7-3

The veteran spitter sail through the first game as his mates were pounding both Barnes and Benge hard, but slipped in the fourth frame of the second game, slipping a slow ball to Fete Compton who hammered it out for a home run with Gainer on base. McCarty go two home runs, two doubles and a single in the first game. The score:

TWILIGHT TILT TODAY

The Spudders are still on the road, but Wichita Falls baseball fandom can get the next best this afternoon by romping out to the Twilight league diamond on Jalonic street by the Barwise school at 3 o'clock.

Len Smith sends his revamped Ludlam and Riggs outfit against the speedy Texhoma nine. Texhoma rides in second place right now, with four victories and a loss. Should the Oilers defeat the Clothiers they will be placed in a technical tie for the top with the American Refiners.

The Smithian crew has taken a new lease, apparently, and is set to spill the leaders. Just this past week the store gang toppled Monroe's Travelers, 8 to 0.

Smith will assume the ruling role for Ludlam and Riggs. McDuffy more than likely will do the chunking for Texhoma.

Both Wichita Falls amateur leagues are swinging around toward the last lap on the first half of their split season schedules. The Twilight split comes June 11. Sunday school loop closes its half June 12. Just two more weeks of play.

This week's schedules: Twilight—Texhoma vs. Ludlam and Riggs; Sunday: American Refiners vs. Monroe's Travelers, Tuesday; Wichita Falls Electrics vs. Security Nationals, Thursday. Sunday school —First Christians vs. First Baptists, Monday; Grace Methodists vs. First Methodists, Wednesday; First Presbyterians vs. Floral Heights Methodists, Friday.

Riley Rawls is well up among the leading sluggers of the Sunday school loop as well as the Twighters. This boy is a sweet fielder as well as a real hitter. Riley says he is fond of playing at Petrolia where he has a fence to shoot at.

SECRET IS OUT

Ronie Glidewell has finally released the secret of his hitting ability when if was discovered recently that he carried a dime in his mouth when he went to the bat. Wonder if he would hit better than .600 if he used a quarter?

HADDA GET OUT AND WALK

It was a gay crowd that started back from Electra Saturday after giving the all-star nine there a good drubbing. Through the breaking down of one of the cars Riley Rawls and Girard Boone were forced to set out along the pike. They were eventually picked up by a Ford and hauled to Iowa Park where they were joined by O'Dell McDuffy and Johnnie McMahon, these four made it a hilarious trip until the loss of a pair of headgears forced the two last arrivals to be left behind. Ward, a team mate, later picked them up so they didn't have to walk far.

Rabbit Gordon had a bad scare Saturday while in Electra, when he saw Vernie Ross stretch out over the ground after tagging out a runner at the plate. Gordon came in fast to see if the worst had happened, but Ross was still rearing to go and Gordon was very much relieved.

Only Fair, Though

Hood Kizziar has a good record at the pitching job. The tall shortstop has been on the mound twice. Worked for three innings. Allowed four hits and two runs. Walked none and fanned six for a strike-out average of two men per inning.

Berlenbach Outpoints McTigue To Win Light Heavy Championship

SAME OLD STORY OF YOUTH PITTED AGAINST VETERAN, SO SOCK 'EM PAUL'S CHAMPION

Astoria Slugger Flashes Early, Slows Up, and Then Rallies to Wear Down Grizzled Opponent

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach of Astoria, N. Y., became light heavyweight champion of the world here tonight by outpointing Mike McTigue, who gained the title from Battling Siki in Dublin three years ago, in a 15-round bout. It was a case of a slugging youth meeting a middle aged boxer with a great defense.

In the first three rounds Berlenbach was the master, but from the fourth to the seventh it seemed that McTigue had regained his championship form. His artful left was continuously in Berlenbach's face and the Astoria man seemed unable to penetrate his wonderful covering.

In the last half part of the fight the youth and strength of Berlenbach gradually wore down his opponent. In the eighth Berlenbach cut McTigue's lips with rights to the head and in the next two rounds opened cuts over his left eye and his ear.

ROUND ONE—For the first time in his fighting career, McTigue wore flaming red trunks instead of familiar green. Both fighters appeared to be in tip-top condition. McTigue worked a light left jab to the face. Berlenbach bored in and landed lightly to the body with a left hook. Berlenbach launched a terrific offensive to the body which was countered with stinging lefts and rights to the face. Berlenbach was cautioned against hitting low. Berlenbach drove McTigue against the ropes with a left to the stomach. McTigue seemed slow.

ROUND TWO—Berlenbach drove lefts to the chin and McTigue frowned displeasure. Berlenbach was fighting well. Berlenbach drove two heavy lefts to the champion's face. McTigue swung a sharp right to Berlenbach's jaw.

ROUND SIX—McTigue showed a burst of speed and landed several sharp rights to the head. The champion continued his rally and shook the challenger with lefts and rights to the face. McTigue kept up a terrific bombardment on Berlenbach's head and sent him to his knees with his powerful punches. The great crowd reared encouragingly. Berlenbach went to his corner unruffled, however, and seemed not to have suffered a great deal.

ROUND SEVEN—McTigue continued his assault and terrific fighting followed. Berlenbach refused to give ground, however. McTigue boxed like a master and kept the heavy punching Berlenbach at bay throughout the round.

ROUND NINE—Berlenbach kept boring in trying to break down McTigue's defense. He shook the champion with short lefts to the chin and then was cautioned for hitting low. There was a great deal of clinching. Berlenbach seemed willing to take two of McTigue's punches to land one of his own.

ROUND TEN—Berlenbach landed a hard left to the chin after McTigue had jabbed him a half dozen times. Berlenbach landed swinging lefts to the body and head. McTigue sent a stinging right to the chin. Berlenbach sends da right to the kidney at the bell.

ROUND ELEVEN—Berlenbach charged ligerishly but missed his target. McTigue kept up the jab, jab, jab. Berlenbach fought like a demon and landed heavily to the champion's body and jaw. Three jabs from McTigue and a heavy left hook for Berlenbach as the round ended.

ROUND TWELVE—Berlenbach landed a left to the stomach and another to the chin. McTigue kept up his jabbing tattoo. They exchanged rights to the head. It was a thrilling fighting, with Berlenbach landing more frequently.

ROUND THIRTEEN—McTigue's right sar bled. McTigue landed a right to the head. Berlenbach sunk two lefts to the chin. McTigue sent Berlenbach against the ropes with a right to the face. There was a vicuous exchange of rights and lefts to the head. Berlenbach landed a left to the jaw. McTigue countering with a left hook and a right to the chin.

ROUND FOURTEEN—There were a number of clinches without any damaging blows. Berlenbach rocked McTigue's head with lefts. They exchanged rights to the head. McTigue's left eye bled from a cut. McTigue sent right and lefts to the stomach. They traded lefts to the chin. McTigue kept the jabbing going and Berlenbach punched on with the left to the head.

ROUND FIFTEEN — They shook hands, exchanged smiles and McTigue sent a vicious right to the jaw. Berlenbach knocked the plaster off Mike's cut eye. McTigue's upper lip was swollen twice its size. He countered Berlenbach's lefts with short rights to the body. They began slugging to the head. It was about an even exchange. Berlenbach backed McTigue into the ropes and swung both lefts and rights to the head.

Slattery Slaps It on Burke In Sudden Order

Pittsburgher Loses Tilt On Technical Kayo In Second

NEW YORK, May 30.—Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo light heavyweight sensation, who holds two point verdicts over Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., and another over young Stribling of Georgia, scored a technical knockout over Jack Burke of Pittsburgh in the second round of a six-round match here at the Yankee stadium tonight.

The second found Slattery working easily, evidently allowing his opponent to hang on, but he soon opened up and the knockout came from a left hook followed by a right cross two minutes and 19 seconds after the start of the second.

Burke weighed 175 1-2 and Slattery 161.

YOUNG ITALIAN WINS GREATEST COMPETITION OVER STAGED AT INDIANAPOLIS IN LAST STRETCH

Youngster Sets Killing Pace From Start to Set Remarkable Average of 101.13 Miles Hour

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—(AP)—Breaking all existing records for the event, Peter De Paolo, youthful racing star and nephew of the famous Ralph De Palma, today won the greatest race ever staged on the Indianapolis motor speedway when he piloted his little cream-colored racing creation to victory in 4:56:39:47. De Paolo set the remarkable average of 101.13 miles an hour for the 500-mile grind.

The boyish looking De Paolo, with only three years of driving experience behind him, set a killing pace the instant he was clear of the red starting flag and fought it out to the finish with Earl Cooper, Benny Hill, Dave Lewis, Harry Hartz, and Phil Shafer, whose cars were within striking distance throughout the race. De Paolo won in the last few miles after a nerve wracking battle between the stretches and around the turns with Benny Hill, driving as a relief pilot for Lewis.

In addition to racing glory De Paolo won approximately $38,000 in cash prizes. He won the prize $20,000 to the winner, $7,800 in lay prizes and another $10,000 offered by accessory manufacturers.

Hill, who drove the last 70 miles for Lewis, piloted the only front wheel drive car in the event across the finish line for second place, about a mile and a quarter behind the flying De Paolo. Less than 60 seconds separated them in their duel around the last lap.

Shafer's car, the one which was driven to victory in the 1924 race, finished third with Wade Morton, relief driver, in the seat.

Hartz Second.

Harry Hartz, who finished fourth last year, and for two years previous finished second, finished fourth again today with the veteran Tommy Milton, twice winner of the event and one of the outstanding favorites today, pulling up fifth. Leon Duray was sixth and the smiling Ralph De Palma seventh. Peter Kreis, teammate of De Palo and Shafer, finished eighth and William Shattuc ninth. Pietro Brodino, the only foreigner who started, drove an international car across the finish for tenth place. He made a gallant showing in the last 50 miles, after trailing the field from the start, forced to quit temporarily by blistered hands, Brodino was given brilliant support by Antonine Mourre, French pilot, who acted as relief driver. Mourre qualified to drive an American car, but withdrew yesterday.

Today's race was witnessed by a record breaking throng estimated at 140,000 to 150,000. This is by far the greatest crowd that ever witnessed an automobile race or any sporting even in America, if not in the world. Last year's attendance was around 138,000, the previous high mark.

Winner 27 Years Old.

De Paolo, 27 years old, got his racing baptism as a riding mechanic with De Palma, his proud uncle. With the event of the one-seated racing car, De Paolo was graduated in the role of mechanic to the driving game. He drove his car the fastest 2 1-2 miles ever traveled over the Indianapolis track when he clicked off an average of 114.083 miles an hour in his qualifying test.

De Paolo drove a masterful race today, driving every inch of the distance with the exception of 65 miles when he gave way to his relief driver, Norman Batten, from the 105th to the 131st lap. De Palolo requested his seat so he would be able to get a brief rest from the bumping he had received and to be in condition for the final 100-mile dash. The car De Paolo drove was equipped with a geared supercharger especially designed for the race.

All of the cars in today's race were equipped with balloon tires for the first time and experts were unanimously agreed that they withstood the punishing grind with extraordinary durability. They enabled the drivers to travel at greater speed, even around the turns, and provided superior riding comfort.

Business Tender Herated.

Officials of the Birch Valley Lumber company at Tioga, W. Va., demonstrated that "big business" has a tender heart some times. This company refused to fill a Philadelphia lumber yard's order for white oak until a robin, which was discovered rearing a young brood op top of the pile, had time to teach the fledgling to fly. The officials declined to allow the workmen to remove the timbers, though it meant waiting some days for the brood to grow up, and there were no other seasoned white oak planks in the yard.

Esthonia dairy and poultry productions are growing rapidly, and butter and eggs are being shipped to many parts of the world.

SENATORS DIVIDE TWO

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Washington and Boston divided honors in the twin holiday bill today, the champions winning the afternoon contest, 7 to 2, after dropping the morning game, 9 to 4. Ruether went the full nine innings for Washington in the second game, while Boston let loose a barrage of extra base hits in the morning encounter and won easily. The score:

Inside Dope On New Light Heavy King

Sock 'em Paul Holds Three Championships in Sport Realm

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach, new light heavyweight champion of the world, was born in New York City 24 years ago of French and German parents. At birth he was a deaf mute and suffered this affliction for 18 years. Then one day he was knocked unconscious by an electric wire while dislodging a kite from a pole, and his proper faculties came to him for the first time.

His earliest participation in sports was as a wrestler and in 1920 he won the middleweight match for America at the Olympic games.

Berlenbach soon tired of grappling, however, and entered the boxing ranks as an amateur, gaining a string of 13 knockouts and winning three contests by decision. The professional game found him and he floored opponents right and left until he encountered Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., in March 1924, at Madison Square Garden.

With only three professional engagements passed, Berlenbach was criticized for tackling such a powerful opponent. It proved fateful evening, for in the fourth ronud the man who had swept through a great array without difficulty found himself on the canvas from a terrible right and the decision was then counted over him.

Then Berlenbach proved himself. He announced his intention of "coming back" and in a series of bouts regained his knockout fame until his challenge to McTigue was accepted. He never since has met Delaney, however, and the Bridgeport man is expected to be one of the first challengers for the newly placed crown.

Holder of three championships —wrestling and amateur and professional boxing—he is prepared for another test of human power in the ring.

Crowds Turn Out To Honor League Leading Mackmen

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—(AP) Philadelphia's Athletics, ten years ago the greatest team in baseball, have once again returned to power as an attraction.

Since the departure of their marvelous infield, comprising McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker, there have been many empty seats in the stands, but today at morning and afternoon games 70,000 persons thronged Shibe Park in tribute to a team of youngsters that has forced itself into a commanding position in the American league.

Chief Bender, Jack Coombs and Eddie Plank, great moundsmen of a decade ago, never pitched before such throngs, the size of the afternoon gathering forcing hundreds to seek seats on the tops of houses nearby at 50 cents each.

CHISOX TAKE BOTH

CHICAGO, May 30.—Chicago defeated St. Louis in both games of a double-header here today by scores of 5 to 2 and 4 to 2 respectively. The locals won the first game by bunching their hits behind bases on balls. Opportune hitting gave them the second game, which was a pitching battle between two left-handers. A crowd of about 35,000 witnessed the game. The score:

Vernon Once More Garners North Texas Interest Past Week

OTHERWISE QUIET

A quiet week with optimism the note both among refiners and producers was North Texas' lot during the past seven days. The field saw practically no completions of note and what color there was to the period came from an ever rising refined market and the pervading atmosphere that the time is propitious for the first summer crude raise in several years.

Completions in South Vernon furnished the Wilbarger feature, further definition of the Howell pool southwest of Iowa Park the Wichita feature, while nothing of importance stirred Archer's equanamnity. Humphreys gave Nocona a wild howling gas well that is threatening to crater up, sand below 800 feet, Willie Jones farm.

Reports credit E. B. Lawson with a 1,500 barrel well or better from the sand at 2,280-2,300 feet in his No. 7, Wharton, on the lease acquired from Thelma Wells et al, section 99, South Vernon. The well is the first big Lawson completion since the purchase, and the largest completion in several months in the Wilbarger field.

Ray-Massie,B -H-W.

What means practically a new productive area for the 1,300-foot horizon is seen in Ray and Massie's No. 1, lease 2, Bond-Hawkins-Wiliams, showing for better than 400 barrels from thirty feet of sand at 1,275-1,305 feet, well located in the northeast of the southeast of the northwest of the northeast of section 100, adjoining the Staley and Wynne thirty acres. The well is some distance from other 1,300-foot production and is separated by a line of either very small wells or dry holes.

Bridwell and Hendrick completed their No. 6, Dill, and 9, Stephens, in the 2,200-foot stuff for a combined flush of about 400 barrels. The new wells should have the effect of sanding South Vernon production for the current week well above 8,000 barrels a day, a new peak.

Beatty Well.

The Beatty well in the northwest of the southwest of section 47, block 2, pumped something better than 100 barrels the first 24 hours after starting up from sand at 1,952-60 feet. Nearby acreage brought an offer of $600 cash and $600 oil during the week and the offer was turned down.

Near the Gulf pool a belated drilling campaign is taking shape with derricks up already by Humble (SE of E 40 of W 70 of N ½ of NW 1-4 of section 50, block 14) and by Consolidated-Staley-Wynne (NE of SW of section 50). Gulf has made a location for No. 2, 525 feet west of the No. 1, (approximately in center of northeast quarter of the section. In the midst of the old group of Texas company dry holes Keys and Eslick are dry and abandoned at 2,253 feet, Atlantic is down a little more than 1,000 feet on its No. 1, Sigler-Waggoner, north of the old Sigler No. 1. On the outcome of this test much depends—whether or not another major producing area for the county is to be uncovered.

Wichita County.

In Wichita county Atlantic has about a 2 barrel well from sand at 1,499-1,504½ feet in its No. 1, Mitchell, a northeast offset to the Howell discovery. It will probably be sent deeper. Hester and Hawkins west offset to Atlantic is shut down at 1,653 feet, dry but awaiting further development. Owens and Pace and Howell's No. 1, Mitchell, is going deeper at about 1,700 feet, dry, located about 1,500 feet north and west of the pool. Hooser of Dallas is starting development of his forty acres, while Roberts and Hill are drilling at about 1,000 feet on their No. 2, east of No. 1.

Petroleum Producers No. 1, Burnett, S&MGRRCO survey, section 3, a mile and one-half southeast of the Texhoma Fowlkes Station production is a dry hole at 2,010 feet.

Archer County.

A mile and one-half southeast of Holliday on the J. J. Perkins fee, Petroleum Producers have a sand and are testing at 1,783 feet. The sand is said to show well and a producer is possible.

North of Archer City some four or five rigs are running with Burns and Maxson's No. 2, Wilson, a location east of No. 1, section 75, due on the sand toward the end of the week. Other locations and rigs are by Sun, White Eagle, Consolidated-Larkin-White, and Kentucky. Due north of this Superior Oil Producing company is drilling at about 900 feet on its No. 1, Wilson, southeast corner of section 62, ATNCL.

Cranfill Pool.

Two interesting tests are seen in southeast Baylor county in the vicinity of the Cranfill pool, an area of one well and three abandoned producers just southwest of Megargel. Here Richards No. 1, Mills, southeast quarter of 2428, TE&LCO survey, northwest of the single well is drilling at 1,300 feet and due to top the 1,400-foot stuff in a day or so. Cranfill is drilling on No. 3, Mills, 600 feet west of the No. 2, a 20 barrel well, TE&LCO survey, 2413.

Texhoma has made two interesting wildcat locations, their No. 2, Portwood, in the southeast corner of TE&LCO survey, block 3140, southeast Baylor county, and No. 1, J. A. Kunkel, southwest of the Carey pool, in the southeast corner of their 40 acres on the J. Sandeford survey, south Archer county.

A geological party headed by Dr. J. J. Runner of the University of Iowa will geologize the Medicine Bow district this summer, in company with about a dozen students from Iowa state institution of learning.

REAGAN COUNTY WELL CUTS UP

Big Lake Oil company's No. 21, University, NE of the SE quarter of section 1, block 2, Big Lake field, Reagan county, tests out the possibilities of the sand at 2,440 feet. No. 21 had 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas there and much oil. The well is drilling on to the regular pay at 2,875 feet, although fishing now at 2,500 feet.

Humphreys Promises Nocona Development

South Vernon Shows New Peak at 8,215 Barrels A Day

North Texas production was off nearly 4,000 barrels in daily average last week according to a compilation of pipeline run figures by a major company here. A lack of new large completions is given as the reason for the decline. South Vernon reached a peak, 8,215 barrels a day.

Detailed figures follow:

District—	Last Week	Week Before
Electra	17,175	17,370
Burkburnett	14,830	15,070
Iowa Park	4 444	4,470
Archer county	37,595	40,020
Clay county	450	420
Vernon	8 215	7,990
Nocona (Montague Co.)	150	203
Young county	10,785	11,720
Jack county	20	20
Total	93,664	97,291
Decrease, 3,627 barrels.

Oil Gossip

The wildcatter meets all the ups and downs of life in the drilling of a single well, the gamble makes it worth while and none grumbles.

F. E. Doudrik of Gainesville has a story all of his own to tell. Mr. Doudrik, of Indian extraction himself, is the president of the Big Indian Oil company, the owner of a small oil well in the Callisburg community north of Gainesville in Cooke county. The test had to go some 3,500 feet for a 20 barrel or so daily production, took some thirty months to drill, and at a cost of about $153,000. This expense was defrayed each quarter as Indian friends and relatives on reservations throughout the country donated a portion of their allowance from the government toward the furtherance of the well.

Big Indian is starting now on their second well, the expenses of which they hope to pay from the production in the first.

CROMWELL WILL INCREASE

TULSA, Okla., May 30.—The north end of the Cromwell field, if it continues true to its present form, should cause that major oil field to show additional increases in output the next month. The past week it was estimated as making 40,100 barrels a day. Scouts forecast it doing 41,000 a day by the end of the week; 43,500 a day by June 5, and 45,000 a day by June 10.

R. E. Wertz, superintendent of operations for the Producers and Refiners corporation, is the newly elected mayor of Pareo, Wyo. Out of a total of 163 ballots he received 159.

Cosden No. 1, Garner, drilling on the Edward Toulinson block about five miles northwest of Bombarton, western Baylor county, is reported starting up again at 500 feet after being temporarily shut down. The well has encountered several showings, one with some gas, according to the reports.

Burns-Maxson, Wilson

Burns and Maxson No. 2, Wilson, second location east from the northwest corner of the east 4 acres of lot 1, section 75, ATNCL, north of Archer City has set and cemented casing on sand at 1,477 1-2 feet on sand at 1,478-78 1-2 feet, barely scratched.

The Sun company's offset to the discovery well is due down next, drilling yesterday at 1,240 feet.

WAITS TILL FALL

Humphreys Interests Have Assembled 50,000 Acres Of Wildcat Stuff.

DENVER, Colo., May 30.—Col. A. E. Humphreys, who with his associates, has brought in 11 new oil pools in as many years, is assembling more acreage for wildcatting afted disposing of the Humphreys-Boyd holdings in Wortham, Texas, but will not attempt to bring in any new fields this year.—The Humphreys interests have assembled more than 50,000 acres of likely looking oil leases, all on structure, in southern, western and northern Texas into the Humphreys corporation.

"Throughout the summer our drilling activity probably will be confined to the development of the Humphreys corporation's proven acreage at Nocona," Colonel Humphreys says.

"At the same time some of our wildcat acreage will be partially tested by other operators who are drilling adjacent properties, to some of which we have contributed limited tracts for the purpose of securing these tests.

"We are unwilling at this time to put on an active drilling campaign, as it is not desirable to bring in new oil discoveries right now. The oil men are just beginning to see daylight, after several years of overproduction, and the discovery of another large pool at the present time would upset the oil industry once more by bringing about a price weakness that would put the business back into the rut, to remain there at least another year. I feel that this is an obligation I owe to the oil industry. A large part of the operators, and especially the smaller refiners, have not been making any money during the last two years.

"During the last 11 years our organizations have discovered 11 important pools, and it is not timely that we should even try to discover another one during the next few months. We have made our annual contribution by the discovery of Wortham during the present 12 months.

"According to present plans, another active drilling campaign probably will be put on next fall, in the expectation that something may be opened up during the winter to aid in supplying the 1926 demand for oil. In the meantime we will confine ourselves mainly to geological investigations and the assembling of acreage.

"The Humphreys corporation's oil production at present is 900 to 1,000 barrels daily, consisting of 700 to 1,000 barrels at Richland and 150 to 200 at Nocona. Our Richland acreage is all drilled up, but at Nocona we have a large number of wells to sink. This is shallow production, at less than 1,000 feet, and when the market conditions warrant it the wells can be put down quickly.

"Our auditors in the Dallas office are working on the details of a financial statement, which we expect to have completed and ready to submit to stockholders of the Humphreys corporation about July 1.

Asphalt Association of America has changed its main office to 441 Lexington avenue, New York City.

SMACKOVER'S COMPLETIONS ON INCREASE

Total of 72 For 138,797 Barrels of Flush Are Brought In.

2,184 PER WELL

Salt Water Encroachment Is More Pronounced During Week.

By D. H. BANCROFT.

SHREVEPORT, La., May 30.—An increase of 24 in the number of Smackover completions compared with last week's record shows the results of the unprecedented size of the weekly permits lists for that field for the few weeks in which permits for over 800 new wells have been granted, over 200 of them in the last three weeks, and the majority of which are yet to be completed. Rapidity of completions, however, is keeping pace with rapidity of growth of activity in the district through the use of quick-setting cements and in depth-per-day drilling records. While of the drilling records which have been established in the field have not been broadcast, some of the crews in Smackover have set a mark for drillers and roughnecks in all fields to shoot at. Or drill after.

More Completions.

Smackover completed 72 wells this week, compared with 48 last week; eight of the 72 were failures, five in the deep stuff and nine on the north side of the deep sand area, and 11 others making from 10 to 90 per cent water. Initial production of the 64 producers was 138,797 barrels, almost double that of last week's 42. Average initial per well also shows an improvement, being 2184 this week compared with 1653 for last week's 42. It is significant, however, that the average initial production of the deep wells is not so good, 1,430 for 57 this week and 2,042 for 38 last week, especially in view of the fact that there were two 15,000 barrel completions this week and a greater number of wells of 5,000 barrels and over than last week.

Water Cuts Oil.

There were 18 completions of 2,500 barrels of pipeline oil and over; 18 of 1,000 to 2,000 and 28 under 1,000 barrels in Smackover. The first 18 were, two of 15,000 barrels; one of 8,000 and one 7,500; three 7,000 each, two 6,000, one 5,000, six 3,000, one 3,500 and one 2,500. The 57 deep sand producers had an initial production of 138,505 barrels and seven shallow wells added 1,292. Eleven of the deep sand wells were on the north side of the deep stuff, in Ouachita Parish, and are the forerunners of a long list of completions on that side of the deep area, as each week sees the other three sides more clearly defined by salt water or producers heavily cut by water.

The discovery section itself shows salt water this week, and sections immediately adjoining on the west and north also report wells badly cut; another significant development.

Production Steady.

However, the number of wells under way and future permits lists will keep Smackover at its present speed for several weeks to come, being sufficient to offset the rapid decline in individual wells—Smackover completions showing a quick drop after flush production wears off—and intrusion of salt water.

The two star performers of the week were Woodley Petroleum company 6 Umstead in 4-16-15 with 15,000 barrels at 2,365 feet and Ark. Fuel Oil 6 Snyder in 34-15-15 with the same initial production at 2,380 feet. The salt water tests in the discovery section and immediately northwest and west were Eason et al 2 Palmer in the southwest of the southeast of the southwest of 9-16-15 at 2,520 feet; Broderick and Calvert A-3 Murphy in the southwest of the southwest of 8-16-15 at 2,460 feet and Crawford and Sebastian 6 James, 2,500 barrels 90 per cent water at 2,395 feet in 6-16-15.

Outside of Smackover, completions in the Shreveport district were two in Cotton Valley with an initial 236 barrels; one gas well in the Gleason district of Webster with 35 million feet; a 10 barrel producer on the north side of Bellevue, a failure each in Morehouse and Union parishes and a gasser in the second completion of a Waskom well, drilled to the Blossom sand at 1920 feet. The Union parish well was a rank wildcat drilled by Roxana Pet. Co., in 13-22-3w, dry at 2,315. The Morehouse failure went 2,660 feet, 400 below the Monroe gas, Nat. Gas and Pet. Co., 16 Crossett in 15-22-5e.

The fifth attempt to get production in the Urania district since Urania Pet. Co., brought in the "discovery" well was cheduled to be made the last day of the current week, Zeigen et al having planned to drill plug in No. 2 Urania in 19-10-2e, a half mile southeast of the discovery at around 1,470 feet, 20 feet deeper than in previous tests. Territory northwest of Urania district is scheduled for a test by Ohio Oil Co., which has secured permit for No. 1 Rolen in 5-12-1w, Winn parish, roughly 15 miles north and six west of Urania, and on the north slope of the Sabine-Caldwell structure. Galloway and Arrendale, who recently finished a test at Sikes, a few miles south of the Rolen location, will drill the hole.

Gasoline Brings 13 Cents Gallon

North Texas gasoline, 58-60, end point 437, brought 13 cents on the market yesterday one refiner reported, with the higher end point, 450, just a little less at about 12½ cents.

Little of the higher gravity is to be had, with one offer for 64-66 at 14 7-8 cents a few days ago turned down.

Kerosene is moving in job lots at 4½ cents, with a little gas oil being sold at 3½ cents. Fuel oil is going around $1.00 a barrel.

Although flooding the oil sand with water has originally greatly increased the quantity of oil recoverable, it seems that even after flooding the greater part of the oil still remains underground.

Oklahomans Strive To Keep High Rank In Producing List

Much High Gravity Oil Promised From Sooner State As a Result of New Effort There.

By PAUL HEDRICK

TULSA, May 30.—The zest that Oklahoma and Kansas oil operators are manifesting in their activity in the light oil pools indicate that they are taking seriously the talk of a decline in the gasoline content crude oils. Almost all of the new drilling is in the lighter pools.

The light oil campaigns extend throughout Northern and Central Oklahoma and in South Central Kansas, and the oil men of Oklahoma are reported to be driving for a "come-back" to keep the Sooner oil state within the top of the list of oil producing states.

California, of course, is first, but the bulk of its output is heavy oil; Arkansas, thanks to Smackover and its 21 gravity crude, is second, and Texas is third. The Lone Star state was pushed forward by the development of the numerous rich pools in North-Central and East-Central Texas the Reagan and high gravity areas of Southwest Texas.

This tendency to try and keep their home state, and hitherto the chief source of petroleum in the Mid-Continent, may cause many companies to not be as conservative in drilling campaigns this year as originally planned. The prospects are that June, July and August will see a constant increase in the production of better than 39 gravity crude from Kay, Noble, Garfield, Osage and Pawnee counties, with Tulsa, Payne, Creek, Okmulgee, Okfuskee, Seminole and Hughes adding constantly to the grand total.

Garber Area

The Garber field of Garfield county is getting perhaps the biggest play of any oil area in the state. If present exploration plans are caried out it will require a year to drill out tests in the Wilcox horizon and the shallow sands from 1,180 to 4,400 feet. Close to 100 tests are now in different stages of operation, from locations staked out to wel lactually drilling. Around 36 are going to the Wilcox sand at 4,400 feet, and the 2,300-foot sand, which is yielding 48 gravity oil, is to get 50 tests.

The deep sand discovery, Sinclair Oil and Gas company No. 26 Belveal, in the northeast corner of 24-22-4w, is doing close to 2,000 barrels a day from 4,377 to 4,404 feet. The gravity of it sproduction is better than 42.

The producing area of Garber is now six miles long by two and one-half wide, the structure running from the northeast to the southwest. The following companies are in the field—Sinclair, Healdton Oil and Gas, Roxana Petroleum, Mid-Continent Petroleum, Prairie Oil and Gas, Crew Heirs, Empire, Minnehoma and Skelly Oil.

Others Nearby.

The Barnes, Alcorn, Hubbard and other areas between Garber and Tonkawa are all scheduled for a very intensive development. There are some 23 locations either staked or tentatively placed in the Alcorn pool around the Marland Oil company's No. 2, Thomas, in 15-25-2w.

At Tonkawa there are some 30 wells starting in the extension area developed by the Texas company in 27-25-1w, and the Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation-Marland Oil company in 33-25-1w. Louie Friedman had hopes of developing another extension area in 28-25-1w, but it is not promising well.

The Hubbard pool of 26-2w, is looking better, and assures the old Blackwell area of a long-lived oil pool. In gas production the Blackwell area is a rival to Chickasha.

For a surprise pool the Braman field in 29-1w is in a class by itself. It rocked along for nearly a year with one or two companies controling operations. Then some small operators drilled a community test on a nine acre test just north of the townsite in 5-28-1w, and it did 400 barrels the second day after coming in. As a result the ordinary 330-foot location plan, or one well to each 10 acres, has been discarded and probably 16 wells will be drilled about the community test.

Osage County.

By the time this report is published the Osage agency is expected to have announced that another sale of Indian leases will take place late in June or early July at Pawhuska, due to the drilling in of some oil wells offsetting untold tracts in the Burbank field. The acreage sold at the March 18 auction is expected to keep Burbank above 60,000 barrels a day for some months to come.

To the south of Burbank the region is due to receive some testing this summer and fall, because of the semi-success across the river in Pawnee county, and also because the construction of a highway through Fairfax has revealed some splendid looking structures.

The 22-10 country, in central Osage county, is also to be tested for deeper production this year by the Tidal Osage and Barnsdall Oil companies. The demand for gasoline and lubricants has caused the Barnsdall company to keep right on exploring the southeastern Osage area and the evidence of what success it is enjoying was its No. 12, in 5-20-12, some seven miles nort hof Tulsa, which came in for 572 barrels of 41 gravity from 2,035 to 2,062 feet. A mile north of this in 21-12, the same company recently found 51 gravity oil.

Osage county has the distinction of having producing sands from 980 feet down to 3,000 feet, deeper tests being unproductive.

New Town Lot Field.

The Collinsville town lot pool, situated on top of what is generally known as Smelter Hill, is due for a most intensive development now that the H. I. Van Nostrand well in the southeast corner of the northeast of the southeast of 30-22-14e, Tulsa county, came in early last Sunday morning for better than 500 barrels a day from the Burgess sand at 1,296½ feet, corrected steel line measurement and in the real pay two inches at 1,314 feet.

The Van Nostrand well made better than 1,000 barrels the second day, sand at 1,296-1,304, and cavings in the hole caused it to fall off sharply Tuesday and Wednesday it was virtually dead. Mr. Van Nostrand reported that the cavings in the hole had been practically cleaned out and as soon as it could be eased to the sand, it would be drilled in. He anticipates a well doing from 1,100 to 1,500 barrels.

The Tonkawa oil field in Kay and Noble counties was wielding 60,825 barrels a day from 767 wells for the fiscal week, a gain of 307 barrels and with two new wells in. The deep sand did 41,843 barrels from 104 wells.

The Burbank field did 57,936 barrels a day from 1,788 wells, of which Osage county made 47,081 from 1,543 wells, and Kay county 10,853 barrels from 195 wells. The field storage in Burbank at the start of the week was 11,883,738 barrels.

Cromwell field in Seminole and Okfuskee counties, produced 40,375 barrels a day from 359 wells, a loss of 32 barrels and five new wells in.

Wetumka district, incluing Papoose, Gilcrease and the new 9-9 area, in Okfuskee and Hughes counties, did 22,497 barrels a day from 176 wells, a loss of 324 barrels and four new wells in.

Wewoka Holdenville, in Seminole and Hughes counties, did 14,460 barrels a day from 130 wells, a loss of 490 barrels and two new wells.

South Weleetka, in Hughes county, made 2,296 barrels from 34 wells, a gain of 327 barrels and one new well.

REFINERS SEE BETTER WEEK IN TEXAS AREA

Optimism Is Chief Note In Refined and Producing Departments.

FORT WORTH, May 30—Virtually the only feature of the oil industry this week was the rise of the refined market, U. S. motor fuel, gasoline for the flivvers, was quoted at 12½ cents a gallon in carload lots, with little obtainable and the jobbers scrambling for material.

All grades of natural gasoline were almost impossible to obtain. From grade "A" to grade "CC" the price was 14 1-4 cents. Fuel oil was also strengthening.

Wildcatters are seeking a place to "light." Even the old fields of West Central Texas, such as Ranger, Eastland and Breckenridge are seeing attempts at exensions being made. Almos every company, large or small, is keeping from one o a dozen wildcats going.

In North Texas the play has switched to the old Wichita county districts and those regions that have not heretofore been developed for one or more sands are getting attention.

Big Lake Still Rises.

The rise of the one big field in West Texas continues and with it attempts at opening up similar pools in Reagan and surrounding counties. There were two new wells there this week.

Big Lake Oil company No. 19, center of the southeast of the southeast of section 12, block 2, made 3,737 barrels the first day in sand at 2,903 to 2,926 feet and the first full 24 hours production was 5,674 barrels, total depth 2,929 feet, in the second or big pay.

Texon Oil and Land company group one No. 11, center of the northwest of the northeast of section 36, block 9, is flowing 40 barrels an hour in the first pay but is still drilling, seeking the second pay.

Big Lake field is now producing between 34,000 and 35,000 barrels, with the Big Lake Oil company's production at 20,795 barrels at 7 a. m. Thursday morning, May 28.

Big Lake Oil company has began shipping 10,000 barrels daily to the Crown Central Petroleum company (formerly United Central) at Houston, in addition to its deliveries of 5,000 barrels to the Reagan County Purchasing company (for the Humble Pipe Line company) and 7,500 barrels by rail to the Humble Pipe Line company at Houston.

In East Central Texas.

The fate of Bazette, East Central Texas, in Navarro county, along the Balconnes Fault line, will be known within a day or so.

Penn & Windsor No. 1, Vinson, S. P. Bailey survey, was feeling for the sand Friday night below 2,000 feet. It is northeast of the town of Powell and about five miles northeast of Powell field. It had the Austin chalk at 2,101 to 2,576 feet, considered quite favorable.

Nearby, Rowan, Edson and Peeples No. 1, Warren, Doom survey, was also feeling for the sand and coring in search of the first Woodbine sand. This well had the chalk at 2,026 to 2,533 feet.

Gilbert Johnson and Jack Greenwood No. 1, Greer, Rushing survey, got under way this week and probably will strike the chalk in the latter part of next week. It is also northeast of Powell.

A fourth well, No. 1, Huggins, to be drilled by Bert Prince and associates, northeast of the town of Bazette is still a derick, but a rig is moving in.

In Kaufman county, Sowell, Lyle and associates No. 1 Massengill, Walker survey, five miles southeast of Terrell, on Atlantic Oil Producing company acreage, topped the Austin chalk at 1,933 feet and was last reported drilling below 2,000 feet. Its elevation is 463 feet. It is another Woodbine sand test in the Balconnes Fault zone.

Eighteen dry holes have been drilled in the Bazette district, northeast of Powell, six alone by Gilbert Johnson, who is beginning his seventh attempt to obtain a producer there.

CAPITAL CITY PAYS TRIBUTE TO WAR DEAD

Coolidge Leads in Yearly Observance Services in Washington

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—With fitting ceremonies, the national capital paid its Memorial day tribute today to the dead of all wars, President Coolidge leading in observance of the day by delivering an address at Arlington cemetery, resting place of more than 50,00 soldiers and sailors.

Other Services Held.

Services also were held at half a dozen other cemeteries where former service men ar buried; at Soldir's homes and on the U. S. S. Campus, where Spanish war veterans, members of Admiral Dewey camp, were in charge of the ceremonies. In tribute to sailors who gave their lives for their country, particularly in the world war, a poppy anchor was dropped into the Potomac river from the bow of the U. S. S. Sylph, the secretary of the navy's yacht.

After his address in the Arlington amphitheatre, President Coolidge walked to the nearby tomb of the unknown soldier and reverently placed on it a large wreath. Mrs. Coolidge laid a small bouquet of roses on the top of the tomb.

In the course of his speech, the President traced the clash for authority between the states and federal government, which culminated in the Civil war, and he said, still persists to a less extent. He made an appeal for observance of law by individual Americans and for rigid enforcement of the law by states and local governments.

Speech Applauded.

Twice during his speech, which was broadcast by radio, Mr. Coolidge was applauded—once when he declared that "what we need is not more federal government, but better local government," and again when he asserted that "what America needs is to hold to its ancient and well charted course."

"There is no use disguising the fact," said the President, "that as a nation our attitude toward the prevention and punishment of crime needs more serious attention.

"The conclusion is inescapable," he added, "that laxity of administration reacts upon public opinion, causing cynicism and loss of confidence in both law and its enforcement and therefore in its observance. The failure of local government has a demoralizing effect in every direction."

Beg Your Pardon

ON FREIGHT RATE.

Editor Record News:

I noticed an article in today's Record News to the effect that lower freight rates between Dallas and Wichita Falls will prevail via the FWDC after June.

The article further states that the lower rate comes from a direct haul via the FWDC road which in the past has applied a two-line haul.

This erroneous information, evidently put out by someone connected with the FWDC as to the rates being protected at the present time and is misleading to anyone not familiar with the construction of rates.

For your information, the present rates being protected between Dallas and Wichita Falls by all lines are based on MKT mileage which figure slightly less than the present joint line rates via the short route. In the event there is a change made in rates between Dallas and Wichita Falls, the lowest rates will apply via all lines.

I would appreciate your correcting in the next issue of your paper the erroneous impression that has been left with the public from the article in today's paper.

H. G. SMITH.

ON A REVIVAL.

Editor Record News:

In reporting a sermon preached by me in the Floral Heights Baptist church last night, you made me say: "I have broken all the laws of God and have sinned like all the rest of you, and I am hoping that the Lord on the judgment day will remember the good things I have done, though they are only too few, and will allow them to stand in payment for the evils I have tolerated in my life." I did not say that. What I did say is: "I have broken all of God's laws, I am unworthy, I am not good, but I am not depending upon my goodness, but upon Him who knew no sin. I am depending upon the merits of Christ."

We very greatly appreciate your kindness in giving us the publicity which you have. I am sure this was an honest mistake on your part, but it is a doctrine against which the Baptists have always stood—salvation by works.

Yours very cordially,
R. L. ESTES, Evangelist.

Quanah Girl Is Only Winner From Texas Of Georgia Contest

QUANAH, May 30.—Being the only successful contestant from Texas, and one of twelve winners in a contest put on by Brenau college conservatory of Gainesville, Ga., with over sixteen hundred entrants, is the honor just won by Zana Magee, salutatorian of the 1925 Quanah high school class.

This contest was held in many high schools all over the United States, the grand prize being a $1,000 scholarship.

Miss Magee is planning to attend this college and finish the four-year course, starting this fall. She is the daughter of Mrs. F. A. Magee, district clerk.

Mrs. Magee is very ill and is not expected to recover. The knowledge of her daughter's success was conveyed to her by Superintendent C. E. Davis in her last hours of consciousness before lapsing into a coma from which attending physicians state she wil probably never come out.

The names of the twelve successful contestants, each of whom received a $1,000 scholarship in Brenau conservatory, one of the south's foremost colleges of music, follow:

LEON H. BROWN.

Leon H. Brown of Vernon was the legion speaker at memorial exercises at Pellevue park Saturday morning honoring the dead of all wars. For two years he had charge of state headquarters of the American Legion of Oklahoma as department adjutant, and has been an active worker for the legion since its organization.

COLLIER

mobile late Saturday afternoon, presumably for their home in Wichita Falls. The names of Mrs. Collier, Frank Kell and W. M. McGregor appear on the bond supplied.

In their motion for a new trial attorneys representing Mrs. Collier set forth 30 allegations in which they alleged error had been made in the original trial and on which a new bearing was justified. Included in the number was one charge alleging misconduct of the jury; one in which the indictment brought against the defendant by a Wichita county grand jury was attacked; several in which remarks made by state's counsel in their arguments to the jury were attacked; and others.

Plea Is Overruled.

Judge Bryant gave due consideration to all of the points set forth in the defendant's motion and then announced he would overrule the plea. Notice of appeal was immediately served and the bond perfected.

Mrs. Collier spent the night in the Haskell county jail Friday after the jury in her case came in at 7 o'clock with a verdict of guilty and a sentenec 10 years in prison. Sheriff Turnbok declined a request of defense counsel to pay for a special guard at Mrs. Collier's apartment.

Judge Bryant's ruling Saturday marked another step in the long and bitter legal battle that started immediately after Buster Robertson was shot and instantly killed on Valentine's night. Frank Collier, at that time mayor, fought through the courts for over a month before he was convicted on a manslaughter charge. Immediately after the indictment against him was returned he was denied bail and spent four days in the county jail of Wichita county before his release was obtained through habeas corpus proceedings.

Father Out on Bond.

His trial in the 89th district court at Wichita Falls lasted 10 days and was one of the most dramatic, if not the most, ever staged in that city. The jury in his case was out about 28 hours and when his attorneys presented a motion for a new trial 42 points were raised in which allegations of error were made. Judge P. A. Martin overruled the motion and set Mr. Collier's bond at $5,000. This was perfected and he has since been at liberty.

History of Case.

His wife, who was with him at the corner of Bluff and Seventeenth streets in Wichita Falls the night Buster Robertson was killed, was indicted by a Wichita county grand jury April 7 and was released under bond. Her case was later transferred to Haskell county on a change of venue, Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court being of the opinion that a fair and impartial trial could not be obtained for Mrs. Collier in Wichita Falls in view of the immense amount of publicity given the case.

The trial started here last Monday, May 25, and after four days, most of which were spent in waiting for Mrs. Frank Wood, star witness for the state to recover from an attack of illness that caused her to faint and fall from the witness stand, all evidence was completed. The state used only six witnesses—Bob Windham, special officer who arrested Mr. Collier the night of the killing. Mrs. Hattie Robertson, mother of the youth who was slain; C. E. Bates, deputy sheriff of Wichita county; Archie Smith, undertaker who took charge of Robertson's remains after the homicide; Johnnie McMahan, school-boy chum of Buster and Mary Francis Collier; and Mrs Wood. Only one of these—Mrs. Wood, was cross-examined by the defense.

Used no Witnesses.

In its defense, attorneys for Mrs. Collier did not put a single witness on the stand. They introduced parts of Mrs. Collier's testimony at the habeas corpus hearing and sought to put her husband, Frank Collier, on the stand. This was blocked by the state, however, which contended he was not a competent witness inasmuch as he was under conviction and sentenced for a felony offense.

Prosecution of the Collier case has been handled throughout by James V. Allred, the youthful district attorney of the 30th judicial district whose arguments in both trials were epics of legal oratory. Mr. Allred electrified a mammoth crowd that jammed the Wichita county court house when Mr. Collier was tried, and did the same here Friday when he closed for the state in Mrs. Collier's case.

He has been assisted, however, by able attorneys in both instances. In the trial of Mr. Collier he was aided by Bernard Martin, former district attorney and law-partner; by his brother Ben Allred who is now a practicing attorney in Wichita Falls; and by J. Earl Kuntz, assistant district attorney. In the trial of Mrs. Collier Mr. Allred was ably assisted by District Attorney Tom Davis of the 39th judicial district and County Attorney Clyde Grissom of Haskell county.

Those Who Defended.

The Collier defense has rested throughout mainly in the hands of the Wichita Falls law firm of Weeks, Morrow, Francis and Hankerson, and in B. Y. Cummings, veteran Texas barrister whose eloquence and ripe legal training have made him a conspicuous figure for years in criminal courts of the state. At the trial of Mr. Collier the defense was headed by W. F. Weeks, assisted by C. I. Francis and Judge Cummings. Mr. Francis and Judge Cummings again represented Mrs. Collier at Haskell and were assisted by Judge W. H. Murchison, one of Haskell's leading attorneys.

Vernon Once More Garners North Texas Interest Past Week

LAWSON WELL TAKES HONORS AT 2,300 FT.

OTHERWISE QUIET

A quiet week with optimism the note both among refiners and producers was North Texas' lot during the past seven days. The field saw practically no completions of note and what color there was to the period came from an ever rising refined market and the pervading atmosphere that the time is propitious for the first summer crude raise in several years.

Completions in South Vernon furnished the Wilbarger feature, further definition of the Howell pool southwest of Iowa Park the Wichita feature, while nothing of importance stirred Archer's equanamnity. Humphreys gave Nocona a wild howling gas well that is threatening to crater up, sand below 800 feet, Willie Jones farm.

Reports credit E. B. Lawson with a 1,500 barrel well or better from the sand at 2,280-2,300 feet in his No. 7, Wharton, on the lease acquired from Thelma Wells et al, section 99, South Vernon. The well is the first big Lawson completion since the purchase, and the largest completion in several months in the Wilbarger field.

Ray-Massie,B -H-W.

What means practically a new productive area for the 1,300-foot horizon is seen in Ray and Massie's No. 1, lease 2, Bond-Hawkins-Wiliams, showing for better than 400 barrels from thirty feet of sand at 1,275-1,305 feet, well located in the northeast of the southeast of the northwest of the northeast of section 100, adjoining the Staley and Wynne thirty acres. The well is some distance from other 1,300-foot production and is separated by a line of either very small wells or dry holes.

Bridwell and Hendrick completed their No. 6, Dill, and 9, Stephens, in the 2,200-foot stuff for a combined flush of about 400 barrels. The new wells should have the effect of sanding South Vernon production for the current week well above 8,000 barrels a day, a new peak.

Beatty Well.

The Beatty well in the northwest of the southwest of section 47, block 2, pumped something better than 100 barrels the first 24 hours after starting up from sand at 1,952-60 feet. Nearby acreage brought an offer of $600 cash and $600 oil during the week and the offer was turned down.

Near the Gulf pool a belated drilling campaign is taking shape with derricks up already by Humble (SE of E 40 of W 70 of N ½ of NW 1-4 of section 50, block 14) and by Consolidated-Staley-Wynne (NE of SW of section 50). Gulf has made a location for No. 2, 525 feet west of the No. 1, (approximately in center of northeast quarter of the section. In the midst of the old group of Texas company dry holes Keys and Eslick are dry and abandoned at 2,253 feet, Atlantic is down a little more than 1,000 feet on its No. 1, Sigler-Waggoner, north of the old Sigler No. 1. On the outcome of this test much depends—whether or not another major producing area for the county is to be uncovered.

Wichita County.

In Wichita county Atlantic has about a 2 barrel well from sand at 1,499-1,504½ feet in its No. 1, Mitchell, a northeast offset to the Howell discovery. It will probably be sent deeper. Hester and Hawkins west offset to Atlantic is shut down at 1,653 feet, dry but awaiting further development. Owens and Pace and Howell's No. 1, Mitchell, is going deeper at about 1,700 feet, dry, located about 1,500 feet north and west of the pool. Hooser of Dallas is starting development of his forty acres, while Roberts and Hill are drilling at about 1,000 feet on their No. 2, east of No. 1.

Petroleum Producers No. 1, Burnett, S&MGRRCO survey section 3, a mile and one-half southeast of the Texhoma Fowlkes Station production is a dry hole at 2,010 feet.

Archer County.

A mile and one-half southeast of Holliday on the J. J. Perkins fee, Petroleum Producers have a sand and are testing at 1,783 feet. The sand is said to show well and a producer is possible.

North of Archer City some four or five rigs are running with Burns and Maxson's No. 2, Wilson, a location east of No. 1, section 75, due on the sand toward the end of the week. Other locations and rigs are by Sun, White Eagle, Consolidated-Larkin-White, and Kentucky. Due north of this Superior Oil Producing company is drilling at about 900 feet on its No. 1, Wilson, southeast corner of section 62, ATNCL.

Cranfill Pool.

Two interesting tests are seen in southeast Baylor county in the vicinity of the Cranfill pool, an area of one well and three abandoned Producers just southwest of Megargel. Here Richards No. 1, Mills, southeast quarter of 2428, TE&LCO survey, northwest of the single well is drilling at 1,300 feet and due to top the 1,400-foot stuff in a day or so. Cranfill is drilling on No. 3, Mills, 600 feet west of the No. 2, a 20 barrel well, TE&LCO survey, 2413.

Texhoma has made two interesting wildcat locations, their No. 2, Portwood, in the southeast corner of TE&LCO survey, block 3140, southeast Baylor county, and No. 1, J. A. Kunkel, southwest of the Carey pool in the southeast corner of their 40 acres on the J. Sanderford survey, south Archer county.

A geological party headed by Dr. J. J. Runner of the University of Iowa will geologize the Medicine Bow district this summer, in company with about a dozen students from Iowa state institution of learning

REAGAN COUNTY WELL CUTS UP

Big Lake Oil company's No. 21, University, NE of the SE quarter of section 1, block 2, Big Lake field, Reagan county, tests out the possibilities of the sand at 2,440 feet. No. 21 had 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas there and much oil. The well is drilling on to the regular pay at 2,875 feet, although fishing now at 2,500 feet.

Humphreys Promises Nocona Development

South Vernon Shows New Peak at 8,215 Barrels A Day

North Texas production was off nearly 4,000 barrels in daily average last week according to a compiliation of pipeline run figures by a major company here. A lack of new large completions is given as the reason for the decline. South Vernon reached a peak, 8,215 barrels a day.

Detailed figures follow:

District—	Last Week	Week Before
Electra	17,175	17,376
Burkburnett	14,830	15,070
Iowa Park	4,444	4,470
Archer county	37,595	40,050
Clay county	450	420
Vernon 8	215	7,900
Nocona (Montague Co.)	150	205
Young county	10,785	11,720
Jack county	20	20
Total	93,664	97,231
Decrease, 3,637 barrels.

Oil Gossip

The wildcatter meets all the ups and downs of life in the drilling of a single well, the gamble makes it worth while and none grumbles.

F. E. Doudrik of Gainesville has a story all of his own to tell. Mr. Doudrik, of Indian extraction himself, is the president of the Big Indian Oil company, the owner of a small oil well in the Callisburg community north of Gainesville in Cooke county. The test had to go some 3,500 feet for a 20 barrel or so daily production, took some thirty months to drill, and at a cost of about $153,000. This expense was defrayed each quarter as Indian friends and relatives on reservations throughout the country donated a portion of their allowance from the government toward the furtherance of the well.

Big Indian is starting now on their second well, the expenses of which they hope to pay from the production in the first.

TULSA, Okla., May 30.—The north end of the Cromwell field, if it continues true to its present form, should cause that major oil field to show additional increases in output the next month. The past week it was estimated as making 40,100 barrels a day. Scouts forecast it doing 41,000 a day by the end of the week; 43,500 a day by June 5, and 45,000 a day by June 10.

R. E. Wertz, superintendent of operations for the Producers and Refiners corporation, is the newly elected mayor of Parco, Wyo. Out of a total of 163 ballots he received 139.

Burns-Maxson, Wilson

Burns and Maxson No. 2, Wilson, second location east from the northwest corner of the east 4 acres of lot 1, section 75, ATNCL, north of Archer City has set and cemented casing on sand at 1,477 1-2 feet on sad at 1,478-78 1-2 feet, barely scratched.

The Sun company's offset to the discovery well is due down next, drilling yesterday at 1,240 feet.

WAITS TILL FALL

Humphreys Interests Have Assembled 50,000 Acres Of Wildcat Stuff.

DENVER, Colo., May 30.—Col. A. E. Humphreys, who with his associates, has brought in 11 new oil pools in as many years, is assembling more acreage for wildcatting afted disposing of the Humphreys-Boyd holdings in Wortham, Texas, but will not attempt to bring in any new fields this year.—The Humphreys interests have assembled more than 50,000 acres of likely looking oil leases, all on structure, in southern, western and northern Texas into the Humphreys corporation.

"Throughout the summer our drilling activity probably will be confined to the development of the Humphreys corporation's proven acreage at Noconas," Colonel Humphreys says.

"At the same time some of our wildcat acreage will be partially tested by other operators who are drilling adjacent properties, to some of which we have contributed limited tracts for the purpose of securing these tests.

"We are unwilling at this time to put on an active drilling campaign, as it is not desirable to bring in new oil discoveries right now. The oil men are just beginning to see daylight, after several years of overproduction, and the discovery of another large pool at the present time would upset the oil industry once more by bringing about a price weakness that would put the business back into the rut, to remain there at least another year. I feel that this is an obligation I owe to the oil industry. A large part of the operators, and especially the smaller refiners, have not been making any money during the last two years.

"During the last 11 years our organizations have discovered 11 important pools, and it is not timely that we should even try to discover another one during the next few months. We have made our annual contribution by the discovery of Wortham during the present 12 months.

"According to present plans, another active drilling campaign probably will be put on next fall, in the expectation that something may be opened up during the winter to aid in supplying the 1926 demand for oil. In the meantime we will confine ourselves mainly to geological investigations and the assembling of acreage.

"The Humphreys corporation's oil production at present is 900 to 1,000 barrels daily, consisting of 700 to 1,000 barrels at Richland and 150 to 200 at Nocona. Our Richland acreage is all drilled up, but at Nocona we have a large number of wells to sink. This is shallow production, at less than 1,000 feet, and when the market conditions warrant it the wells can be put down quickly.

"Our auditors in the Dallas office are working on the details of a financial statement, which we expect to have completed and ready to submit to stockholders of the Humphreys corporation about July 1.

SMACKOVER'S COMPLETIONS ON INCREASE

2,184 PER WELL

Salt Water Encroachment Is More Pronounced During Week.

By D. H. BANCROFT.

SHREVEPORT, La., May 30.—An increase of 24 in the number of Smackover completions compared with last week's record shows the results of the unprecedented size of the weekly permits lists for that field for the few weeks in which permits for over 300 new wells have been granted, over 200 of them in the last three weeks, and the majority of which are yet to be completed. Rapidity of completions, however, is keeping pace with rapidity of growth of activity in the district through the use of quick-setting cements and in depth-per-day drilling records. While of the drilling records which have been established in the field have not been broadcast, some of the crews in Smackover have set a mark for drillers and roughnecks in in all fields to shoot at. Or drill after.

More Completions.

Smackover completed 72 wells this week, compared with 48 last week; eight of the 72 were failures, five in the deep stuff and nine on the north side of the deep sand area, and 11 others making from 10 to 90 per cent water. Initial production of the 64 producers was 138,797 barrels, almost double that of last week's 42. Average initial per well also shows an improvement, being 2184 this week compared with 1653 for last week's 42. It is significant, however, that the average initial production of the deep wells is not so good, 1,430 for 57 this week and 2,042 for 38 last week, especially in view of the fact that there were two 15,000 barrel completions this week and a greater number of wells of 5,000 barrels and over than last week.

Water Cuts Oil.

There were 18 completions of 2,500 barrels of pipeline oil and over; 18 of 1,000 to 2,000 and 28 under 1,000 barrels in Smackover. The first 18 were, two of 15,000 barrels; one of 8,000 and one 7,500; three 7,000 each, two 6,000, one 5,000, six 3,000, one 3,500 and one 2,500. The 57 deep sand producers had an initial production of 138,505 barrels and seven shallow wells added 1,292. Eleven of the deep sand wells were on the north side of the deep stuff, in Ouachita Parish, and are the forerunners of a long list of completions on that side of the deep area, as each week sees the other three sides more clearly defined by salt water or produces heavily cut by water.

The discovery section itself shows salt water this week, and sections immediately adjoining on the west and north also report wells badly cut; another significant development.

Production Steady.

However, the number of wells under way and future permits lists will keep Smackover at its present speed for several weeks to come, being sufficient to offset the rapid decline in individual wells—Smackover completions showing a quick drop after flush production wears off—and intrusion of salt water.

The two star performers of the week were Woodley Petroleum company 6 Umstead in 4-16-15 with 15,000 barrels at 2,365 feet and Ark. Fuel Oil 6 Snyder in 34-15-15 with the same initial production at 2,380 feet. The salt water tests in the discovery section and immediately northwest and west were Eason et al 2 Palmer in the southwest of the southeast of the southwest of 9-16-15 at 2,520 feet; Broderick and Calvert A-3 Murphy in the southwest of the southwest of 8-16-15 at 2,460 feet and Crawford and Sebastian 6 James, 2,500 barrels 90 per cent water at 2,395 feet in 6-16-15.

Outside of Smackover, completions in the Shreveport district were two in Cotton Valley with an initial 236 barrels; one gas well in the Gleason district of Webster with 35 million feet; a 10 barrel producer on the north side of Bellevue, a failure each in Morehouse and Union parishes and a gasser in the second completion of J. Waskom well, drilled to the Blossom sand at 1920 feet. The Union parish well was a rank wildcat drilled by Roxana Pet. Co., in 13-22-3w, dry at 2,315. The Morehouse failure went 2,660 feet, 400 below the Monroe gas, Nat. Gas and Pet. Co., 16 Crossett in 15-22-5e.

The fifth attempt to get production in the Urania district since Urania Pet. Co., brought in the "discovery" well was cheduled to be made the last day of the current week, Zeigen et al having planned to drill plug in No. 2 Urania in 10-10-2e, a half mile southeast of the discovery at around 1,470 feet, 20 feet deeper than in previous tests. Territory northwest of Urania district is scheduled for a test by Ohio Oil Co., which has secured permit for No. 1 Rolen in 5-12-1w, Winn parish, roughly 15 miles north and six west of Urania, and on the north slope of the Sabine-Caldwell structure. Galloway and Arrendale, who recently finished a test at Sikes, a few miles south of the Rolen location, will drill the hole.

Gasoline Brings 13 Cents Gallon

North Texas gasoline, 58-60, end point 437, brought 13 cents on the market yesterday one refiner reported, with the higher end point, 450, just a little less at about 12½ cents.

Little of the higher gravity is to be had, with one offer for 64-66 at 14 7-8 cents a few days ago turned down.

Kerosene is moving in job lots at 4½ cents, with a little gas oil being sold at 3½ cents. Fuel oil is going around $1.00 a barrel.

Although flooding the oil sand with water has originally greatly increased the quantity of oil recoverable, it seems that even after flooding the greater part of the oil still remains underground.

Oklahomans Strive To Keep High Rank In Producing List

Much High Gravity Oil Promised From Sooner State As a Result of New Effort There.

By PAUL HEDRICK

TULSA, May 30.—The zest that Oklahoma and Kansas oil operators are manifesting in their activity in the light oil pools indicate that they are taking seriously the talk of a decline in the gasoline content crude oils. Almost all of the new drilling is in the lighter pools.

The light oil campaigns extend throughout Northern and Central Oklahoma and in South Central Kansas, and the oil men of Oklahoma are reported to be driving for a "come-back" to keep the Sooner oil state within the top of the list of oil producing states.

California, of course, is first, but the bulk of its output is heavy oil; Arkansas, thanks to Smackover and its 21 gravity crude, is second, and Texas is third. The Lone Star state was pushed forward by the development of the numerous rich pools in North-Central and East-Central Texas the Reagan and high gravity areas of Southwest Texas.

This tendency to try and keep their home state, and hitherto the chief source of petroleum in the Mid-Continent, may cause many companies to not be as conservative in drilling campaigns this year as originally planned. The prospects are that June, July and August will see a constant increase in the production of better than 39 gravity crude from Kay, Noble, Garfield, Osage and Pawnee counties, with Tulsa, Payne, Creek, Okmulgee, Okfuskee, Seminole and Hughes adding constantly to the grand total.

Garber Area

The Garber field of Garfield county is getting perhaps the biggest play of any oil area in the state. If present exploration plans are caried out it will require a year to drill out tests in the Wilcox horizon and the shallow sands from 1,180 to 4,400 feet. Close to 100 tests are now in different stages of operation, from locations staked out to wel lactually drilling. Around 36 are going to the Wilcox sand at 4,400 feet, and the 2,300-foot sand, which is yielding 48 gravity oil, is to get 50 tests.

The deep sand discovery, Sinclair Oil and Gas company No. 26 Belveal, in the northeast corner of 24-22-4w, is doing close to 2,000 barrels a day from 4,377 to 4,404 feet. The gravity of it sproduction is better than 42.

The producing area of Garber is now six miles long by two and one-half wide, the structure running from the northeast to the southwest. The following companies are in the field—Sinclair, Healdton Oil and Gas, Roxana Petroleum, Mid-Continent Petroleum, Prairie Oil and Gas, Crew Heirs, Empire, Minnehoma and Skelly Oil.

Others Nearby.

The Barnes, Alcorn, Hubbard and other areas between Garber and Tonkawa are all scheduled for a very intensive development. There are some 23 locations either staked or tentatively placed in the Alcorn pool around the Marland Oil company's No. 2, Thomas, in 15-25-2w.

At Tonkawa there are some 30 wells starting in the extension area developed by the Texas company in 27-25-1w, and the Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation-Marland Oil company in 33-25-1w. Louie Friedman had hopes of developing another extension area in 28-25-1w, but it is not promising well.

The Hubbard pool of 26-2w, is looking better, and assures the old Blackwell area of a long-lived oil pool. In gas production the Blackwell area is a rival to Chickasha.

For a surprise pool the Braman field in 29-1w is in a class by itself. It rocked along for nearly a year with one or two companies controling operations. Then some small operators drilled a community test on a nine acre test just north of the townsite in 5-28-1w, and it did 400 barrels the second day after coming in. As a result the ordinary 330-foot location plan, or one well to each 10 acres, has been discarded and probably 16 wells will be drilled about the community test.

Osage County.

By the time this report is published the Osage agency is expected to have announced that another sale of Indian leases will take place late in June or early July at Pawhuska, due to the drilling in of some oil wells offsetting untold tracts in the Burbank field. The acreage sold at the March 18 auction is expected to keep Burbank above 60,000 barrels a day for some months to come.

To the south of Burbank the region is due to receive some testing this summer and fall, because of the semi-success across the river in Pawnee county, and also because the construction of a highway through Fairfax has revealed some splendid looking structures.

The 22-10 country, in central Osage county, is also to be tested for deeper production this year by the Tidal Osage and Barnsdall Oil companies. The demand for gasoline and lubricants has caused the Barnsdall company to keep right on exploring the southeastern Osage area and the evidence of what success it is enjoying was its No. 12, in 5-20-12, some seven miles nort hof Tulsa, which came in for 572 barrels of 41 gravity from 2,035 to 2,062 feet. A mile north of this in 21-12, the same company recently found 51 gravity oil.

Osage county has the distinction of having producing sands from 980 feet down to 3,000 feet, deeper tests being unproductive.

New Town Lot Field.

The Collinsville town lot pool, situated on top of what is generally known as Smelter Hill, is due for a most intensive development now that the H. I. Van Nostrand well in the southeast corner of the northeast of the southeast of 30-22-14e, Tulsa county, came in early last Sunday morning for better than 500 barrels a day from the Burgess sand at 1,296½ feet, corrected steel line measurement and in the real pay two inches at 1,314 feet.

The Van Nostrand well made better than 1,000 barrels the second day, sand at 1,296-1,304, and cavings in the hole caused it to fall off sharply Tuesday and Wednesday it was virtually dead. Mr. Van Nostrand reported that the cavings in the hole had been practically cleaned out and as soon as it could be cased to the sand, it would be drilled in. He anticipates a well doing from 1,100 to 1,500 barrels.

The Tonkawa oil field in Kay and Noble counties was wielding 60,825 barrels a day from 767 wells for the fiscal week, a gain of 307 barrels and with two new wells in. The deep sand did 41,843 barrels from 104 wells.

The Burbank field did 37,939 barrels a day from 1,738 wells, of which Osage county made 47,081 from 1,548 wells, and Kay county 10,853 barrels from 195 wells. The field storage in Burbank at the start of the week was 11,883,738 barrels.

Cromwell field in Seminole and Okfuskee counties, produced 40,375 barrels a day from 359 wells, a loss of 32 barrels and five new wells in.

Wetumka district, including Papoose, Gilcrease and the new 9-9 area, in Okfuskee and Hughes counties, did 22,497 barrels a day from 176 wells, a loss of 324 barrels and four new wells in.

Wewoka Holdenville, in Seminole and Hughes counties, did 14,460 barrels a day from 130 wells, a loss of 490 barrels and two new wells.

South Weleetka, in Hughes county, made 2,296 barrels from 34 wells, a gain of 327 barrels and one new well.

REFINERS SEE BETTER WEEK IN TEXAS AREA

FORT WORTH, May 30—Virtually the only feature of the oil industry this week was the rise of the refined market, U. S. motor fuel, gasoline for the flivvers, was quoted at 12½ cents a gallon in carload lots, with little obtainable and the jobbers scrambling for material.

All grades of natural gasoline were almost impossible to obtain. From grade "A" to grade "CC" the price was 14 1-4 cents. Fuel oil was also strengthening.

Wildcatters are seeking a place to "light." Even the old fields of West Central Texas, such as Ranger, Eastland and Breckenridge are seeing attempts at exensions being made. Almos every company, large or small, is keeping from one o a dozen wildcats going.

In North Texas the play has switched to the old Wichita county districts and those regions that have not heretofore been developed for one or more sands are getting attention.

Big Lake Still Rises.

The rise of the one big field in West Texas continues and with it attempts at opening up similar pools in Reagan and surrounding counties. There were two new wells there this week.

Big Lake Oil company No. 19, center of the southeast of the southeast of section 12, block 2, made 3,737 barrels the first day in sand at 2,903 to 2,926 feet and the first full 24 hours production was 5,674 barrels, total depth 2,929 feet, in the second or big pay.

Texon Oil and Land company group one No. 11, center of the northwest of the northeast of section 36, block 9, is flowing 40 barrels an hour in the first pay but is still drilling, seeking the second pay.

Big Lake field is now producing between 34,000 and 35,000 barrels, with the Big Lake Oil company's production at 20,795 barrels at 7 a. m. Thursday morning, May 28.

Big Lake Oil company has began shipping 10,000 barrels daily to the Crown Central Petroleum company (formerly United Central) at Houston, in addition to its deliveries of 5,000 barrels to the Reagan County Purchasing company (for the Humble Pipe Line company) and 7,500 barrels by rail to the Humble Pipe Line company at Houston.

In East Central Texas.

The fate of Bazette, East Central Texas, in Navarro county, along the Balconnes Fault line, will be known within a day or so.

Penn & Windsor No. 1, Vinson, S. P. Bailey survey, was feeling for the sand Friday night below 2,000 feet. It is northeast of the town of Powell and about five miles northeast of Powell field. It had the Austin chalk at 2,101 to 2,576 feet, considered quite favorable.

Nearby, Rowan, Edson and Peeples No. 1, Warren, Doom survey, was also feeling for the sand and coring in search of the first Woodbine sand. This well had the chalk at 2,026 to 2,553 feet.

Gilbert Johnson and Jack Greenwood No. 1, Greer, Rushing survey, got under way this week and probably will strike the chalk the latter part of next week. It is also northeast of Powell.

A fourth well, No. 1, Huggins, to be drilled by Bert Prince and associates, northeast of the town of Bazette is still a derick, but a rig is moving in.

In Kaufman county, Sowell, Lyle and associates No. 1 Massengill, Walker survey, five miles southeast of Terrell, on Atlantic Oil Producing company acreage, topped the Austin chalk at 1,933 feet and was last reported drilling below 2,000 feet. Its elevation is 463 feet. It is another Woodbine sand test in the Balconnes Fault zone.

Eighteen dry holes have been drilled in the Bazette district, northeast of Powell, six alone by Gilbert Johnson, who is beginning his seventh attempt to obtain a producer there.

CAPITAL CITY PAYS TRIBUTE TO WAR DEAD

Coolidge Leads in Yearly Observance Services in Washington

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—With fitting ceremonies, the national capital paid its Memorial day tribute today to the dead of all wars, President Coolidge leading in observance of the day by delivering an address at Arlington cemetery, resting place of more than 50,00 soldiers and sailors.

Other Services Held.

Services also were held at half a dozen other cemeteries where former service men ar buried; at Soldir's homes and on the U. S. S. Campus, where Spanish war veterans, members of Admiral Dewey camp, were in charge of the ceremonies. In tribute to sailors who gave their lives for their country, particularly in the world war, a poppy anchor was dropped into the Potomac river from the bow of the U. S. S. Sylph, the secretary of the navy's yacht.

After his address in the Arlington amphitheatre, President Coolidge walked to the nearby tomb of the unknown soldier and reverently placed on it a large wreath. Mrs. Coolidge laid a small bouquet of roses on the top of the tomb.

In the course of his speech, the President traced the clash for authority between the states and federal government, which culminated in the Civil war, and he said, still persists to a less extent. He made an appeal for observance of law by individual Americans and for rigid enforcement of the law by states and local governments.

Speech Applauded.

Twice during his speech which was broadcast by radio, Mr. Coolidge was applauded—once when he declared that "what we need is not more federal government, but better local government," and again when he asserted that "what America needs is to hold to its ancient and well charted course."

"There is no use disguising the fact," said the President, "that as a nation our attitude toward the prevention and punishment of crime needs more serious attention.

"The conclusion is inescapable," he added, "that laxity of administration reacts upon public opinion, causing cynicism and loss of confidence in both law and its enforcement and therefore in its observance. The failure of local government has a demoralizing effect in every direction."

Beg Your Pardon

ON FREIGHT RATE.

Editor Record News:

I noticed an article in today's Record News to the effect that lower freight rates between Dallas and Wichita Falls will prevail via the FWDC after June .

The article further states that the lower rate comes from a direct haul via the FWDC road which in the past has applied a two-line haul.

This erroneous information, evidently put out by someone connected with the FWDC as to the rates being protected at the present time and is misleading to anyone not familiar with the construction of rates.

For your information, the present rates being protected between Dallas and Wichita Falls by all lines are based on MKT mileage which figure slightly less than the present joint line rates via the short route. In the event there is a change made in rates between Dallas and Wichita Falls, the lowest rates will apply via all lines.

I would appreciate your correcting in the next issue of your paper the erroneous impression that has been left with the public from the article in today's paper.

H. G. SMITH.

ON A REVIVAL.

Editor Record News:

In reporting a sermon preached by me in the Floral Heights Baptist church last night, you made me say: "I have broken all the laws of God and have sinned like all the rest of you, and I am hoping that the Lord on the judgment day will remember the good things I have done, though they are only too few, and will allow them to stand in payment for the evils I have tolerated in my life." I did not say that. What I did say is: "I have broken all of God's laws, I am unworthy, I am not good, but I am not depending upon my goodness, but upon Him who knew no sin. I am depending upon the merits of Christ."

We very greatly appreciate your kindness in giving us the publicity which you have. I am sure this was an honest mistake on your part, but it is a doctrine against which the Baptists have always stood—salvation by works.

Yours very cordially,
R. L. ESTES, Evangelist.

Quanah Girl Is Only Winner From Texas Of Georgia Contest

QUANAH, May 30.—Being the only successful contestant from Texas, and one of twelve winners in a contest put on by Brenau college conservatory of Gainesville, Ga., with over sixteen hundred entrants, is the honor just won by Zana Magee, salutatorian of the 1925 Quanah high school class.

This contest was held in many high schools all over the United States, the grand prize being a $1,000 scholarship.

Miss Magee is planning to attend this college and finish the four-year course, starting this fall. She is the daughter of Mrs. F. A. Magee, district clerk.

Mrs. Magee is very ill and is not expected to recover. The knowledge of her daughter's success was conveyed to her by Superintendent C. E. Davis in her last hours of consciousness before lapsing into a coma from which attending physicians state she wil probably never come out.

The names of the twelve successful contestants, each of whom received a $1,000 scholarship in Brenau conservatory, one of the south's foremost colleges of music, follow:

Speaks Here.

LEON H. BROWN.

Leon H. Brown of Vernon was the legion speaker at memorial exercises at Pellevue park Saturday morning honoring the dead of all wars. For two years he had charge of state headquarters of the American Legion of Oklahoma as department adjutant, and has been an active worker for the legion since its organization.

mobile late Saturday afternoon, presumably for their home in Wichita Falls. The names of Mrs. Collier, Frank Kell and W. M. McGregor appear on the bond supplied.

In their motion for a new trial attorneys representing Mrs. Collier set forth 30 allegations in which they alleged error had been made in the original trial and on which a new bearing was justified. Included in the number was one charge alleging misconduct of the jury; one in which the indictment brought against the defendant by a Wichita county grand jury was attacked; several in which remarks made by state's counsel in their arguments to the jury were attacked; and others.

Plea Is Overruled.

Judge Bryant gave due consideration to all of the points set forth in the defendant's motion and then announced he would overrule the plea. Notice of appeal was immediately served and the bond perfected.

Mrs. Collier spent the night in the Haskell county jail Friday after the jury in her case came in at 7 o'clock with a verdict of guilty and a sentenec 10 years in prison. Sheriff Turnbok declined a request of defense counsel to pay for a special guard at Mrs. Collier's apartment.

Judge Bryant's ruling Saturday marked another step in the long and bitter legal battle that started immediately after Buster Robertson was shot and instantly killed on Valentine's night. Frank Collier, at that time mayor, fought through the courts for over a month before he was convicted on a manslaughter charge. Immediately after the indictment against him was returned he was denied bail and spent four days in the county jail of Wichita county before his release was obtained through habeas corpus proceedings.

Father Out on Bond.

His trial in the 89th district court at Wichita Falls lasted 10 days and was one of the most dramatic, if not the most, ever staged in that city. The jury in his case was out about 28 hours and when his attorneys presented a motion for a new trial 42 points were raised in which allegations of error were made. Judge P. A. Martin overruled the motion and set Mr. Collier's bond at $5,000. This was perfected and he has since been at liberty.

History of Case.

His wife, who was with him at the corner of Bluff and Seventeenth streets in Wichita Falls the night Buster Robertson was killed, was indicted by a Wichita county grand jury April 7 and was released under bond. Her case was later transferred to Haskell county on a change of venue, Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court being of the opinion that a fair and impartial trial could not be obtained for Mrs. Collier in Wichita Falls in view of the immense amount of publicity given the case.

The trial started here last Monday, May 25, and after four days, most of which were spent in waiting for Mrs. Frank Wood, star witness for the state to recover from an attack of illness that caused her to faint and fall from the witness stand, all evidence was completed. The state used only six witnesses—Bob Windham, special officer who arrested Mr. Collier the night of the killing. Mrs. Hattie Robertson, mother of the youth who was slain; C. E. Bates, deputy sheriff of Wichita county; Archie Smith, undertaker who took charge of Robertson's remains after the homicide; Johnnie McMahan, school-boy chum of Buster and Mary Francis Collier; and Mrs Wood. Only one of these—Mrs. Wood, was cross-examined by the defense.

Used no Witnesses.

In its defense, attorneys for Mrs. Collier did not put a single witness on the stand. They introduced parts of Mrs. Collier's testimony at the habeas corpus hearing and sought to put her husband, Frank Collier, on the stand. This was blocked by the state, however, which contended he was not a competent witness inasmuch as he was under conviction and sentenced for a felony offense.

Prosecution of the Collier case has been handled throughout by James V. Allred, the youthful district attorney of the 30th judicial district whose arguments in both trials were epics of legal oratory. Mr. Allred electrified a mammoth crowd that jammed the Wichita county court house when Mr. Collier was tried, and did the same here Friday when he closed for the state in Mrs. Collier's case.

He has been assisted, however, by able attorneys in both instances. In the trial of Mr. Collier he was aided by Bernard Martin, former district attorney and law-partner; by his brother Ben Allred who is now a practicing attorney in Wichita Falls; and by J. Earl Kuntz, assistant district attorney. In the trial of Mrs. Collier Mr. Allred was ably assisted by District Attorney Tom Davis of the 39th judicial district and County Attorney Clyde Grissom of Haskell county.

Those Who Defended.

The Collier defense has rested throughout mainly in the hands of the Wichita Falls law firm of Weeks, Morrow, Francis and Hankerson, and in B. Y. Cummings, veteran Texas barrister whose eloquence and ripe legal training have made him a conspicuous figure for years in criminal courts of the state. At the trial of Mr. Collier the defense was headed by W. F. Weeks, assisted by C. I. Francis and Judge Cummings. Mr. Francis and Judge Cummings again represented Mrs. Collier at Haskell and were assisted by Judge W. H. Murehison, one of Haskell's leading attorneys.

QUANAH HAVING BUILDING BOOM, RECORDS SHOW

Real Estate Changes Run To High Totals For Half Year

QUANAH, May 30.—Building activities and real estate changes in Quanah since January 1st, 1925, will total several hundred thousand dollars—and it would seem the end is not yet.

With the exception of the First National bank building and the building occupied by the Moore-Browne Motor company, the entire east side of Main street between Second and Third has recently changed hands. E. B. Caskey, president of the First National bank, purchased the Fred Ripps building, adjoining the First National bank. This building is now occupied by the Western Wholesale Drug company of which Mr. Caskey was an incorporator, and is now the sole owner. Ground has been broken for the new home for this drug company, upon lots recently purchased by Mr. Caskey from Barney Jones on corner of Second and Green streets.

Buys Two Buildings.

Oscar Hall of Paducah purchased two buildings of the Houston block of five buildings and Col. Roy Simmons of Wortham, Texas, purchased the remaining three. These buildings adjoin the Ripps building.

Col. Roy Simmons also purchased the Berry building from Judge Berry of Vernon. This building is on the opposite side of Main street from the Houston block.

Mr. D. Swearingen recently purchased the two-story, rock building on corner of Second and Main, opposite First National bank, and is now remodeling, putting in up-to-date brick fronts and making extensive changes in the second story arrangement for offices.

Mr. G. A. Vestal purchased the 50-foot front buildings now occupied by the Star cafe, the Star rooms, at corner of Railroad and Main.

Mr. Hayden Hunter has purchased the building now occupied by Sansom Brothers furniture store, and will move his gents' furnishing stock as soon as Sansom Brothers move into their new location on Third and Main in the new brick building being erected for them by Elbert & Hankins.

Over $20,000.

With the exception of the Fred Ripps building purchased for a reported price of $12,000, all the above transactions have involved sums over $20,000.

In December, 1924, the Quanah hotel was sold for approximately $60,000.

The Security National bank plans remodeling their building as soon as their lease to the Western Union Telegraph company expires. Tentative plans call for an expenditure of something like $25,000.

Mrs. Kerrigan is planning on building adjoining the 25-foot building she is now having built on her remaining 50-foot fronting on Mercer street. With these Kerrigan lots built on the block in which the city hall is located facing Mercer will have been built up solid since January 1, 1925.

Ground was broken this morning for the 25x115-foot brick building being erected by Mrs. Annie Kerrigan adjoining the city hall on Mercer street. This building when completed will be occupied by Smith undertaking parlors.

Brick on Ground.

Everal carload of brick are on the ground and work has started on the building of the Western Wholesale Drug company 100x75 which is also in the same block with the city hall, fronting on Second street.

The Elbert & Hankins double brick store building on Main street is also nearing completion. This building will be occupied by Sansom Brothers furniture store.

The Crowder-Brooks 75x100 brick storage and show rooms is completed, and now being used for supplies and accessories usually kept in their service station on the corner of Mercer and Third, opposite the city hall. This temporary arrangement made necessary while their brick service station on the front of the same lots with their storage rooms is being completed. This service station will be among the most modern and up-to-date stations in the Panhandle when completed.

Build Service Station.

Mr. A. F. Fields of Fields Tire & Vulcanizing shop has also completed a service station on corner of Third and King.

Mr. W. B. Hampton has built several concrete store buildings on both King and Second street, all of which were leased before work was started.

The Cicero-Smith Lumber company of Fort Worth have purchased twelve lots north of the Denver tracks, including the lots on which the Denver hotel is located. The hotel building will be moved off, and a large stock of lumber and building materials will be carried at this yard.

Many residences have been built, and much residence property changing hands, vacant lots being sold and homes being planned.

With al lthe activity in both business and residence property there is still a shortage of available business houses and offices, and a house available for rent has many applicants before the moving van ever gets to the door.

Through the efforts of the chamber of commerce and individuals it is expected a building and loan company will soon be established in Quanah, and through this medium the housing situation will be relieved by many additional homes being built. The good crops of 1924, and the outlook for 1925 with plenty moisture in the ground is the foundation for the increased activities in Quanah real estate and building.

Only a few of those who see articles displayed in store windows of Mexico can read so that the goods are identified by the pictures displayed instead of the name.

FIGHT FILM AT PALACE

Buck Jones Shows In His Latest And Best Picture Today Only

The Jolly Flapper musical comedy will start its second successful week here Monday. By changing programs every other day the troupe has been certain of continuous big houses.

The title forecasts lots of fact action and furious fighting, as well as plenty of love with a peppy romance. The big stakes are said to include at least two girls; and the popular western cowboy is said to have his hands full when he hits the white lights of Broadway.

There are four knockouts in the picture. There are also promised some more kayoes in the scenes on Broadway, but these have to be seen, not told.

The facts about the big championship bout in the show are these:

Battling Buck, champion vs. Kid Holliday, challenger.

To a finish for heavyweight championship and purse of $25,000, "Winner Take All."

Challenger his physical equal; has longer boxing experience.

Battling Buck has been told by promoters fight is "framed"; challenger will weaken in eighth round.

Champion scorns frame-up victory; promises his best to knock out challenger before eighth round; but unable to do so.

In the eighth, the Kid shows signs of weakening as per frame-up agreement; Battling Buck slows up, is caught off his guard and knocked down for a count of nine by the challenger, who now fights like a demon, and knocks the champ down again and again in every succeeding round.

How does it end?

Everyone Should Profit Through Old Home Week

City Finance Commissioner And Brother Approve Of Celebration

ALL OF THIS WEEK

Unusual Growth is Seen In Wichita Falls In Last Few Years

"The observance of Old Home Home Week in Wichita Falls is a new departure on the part of the city to arrange a hospitable and profitable celebration for friends and neighbors of the trade territory surrounding, and it will undoubtedly be enjoyed by everyone concerned," declared Oral Jones, cashier of the City National bank, and his brother, Lester Jones, cashier of the Wichita State bank, two leading young business men of the city who have lived here the past 24 years.

Expressed Regret.

"More than one business man has expressed his regret to us at having from Wichita Falls and leaving behind such a progressive city and such splendid opportunities for good business and moneymaking activities," the brothers declared. "Chief among these was Nat T. Waggoner, manager of the bonding department of the First National bank of St. Louis, who paid a visit to the city last week. He expressed his surprise and pleasure at the strides Wichita Falls has made since he left here five years ago.

"When you stop to think of it, the city has expanded remarkably in that time; buildings have been erected, additions opened, streets paved and many new and lasting monuments to progress and industry erected in the last five years that have changed Wichita Falls from a town to a city," they stated.

"Five years ago the three large office buildings, the City National, the Staley and the Bob Waggoner, were being completed, and the Kemp hotel was just being opened. Scott street had only a few business houses on it, and now it is filled with modern business buildings and is a main artery of traffic. Lamar street, that contained mostly residences now boasts many business buildings, a newspaper plant; behind it on Eighth street a modern engraving plant is going up, and on Lamar and Tenth, a proposed church structure to cover half a city block.

Period of Solid Growth.

"The city faces a rich period of solid growth; great numbers of business houses and residences are springing up with startling rapidity. Under construction now are the Harvey-Snider office building beside the City National bank building, the Perkins-Snider building at Tenth and Indiana, while the Wichita Cleaning and Dye Works building, the Seven Gables building at Floral Heights have been completed. The W. R. Ferguson apartment house at Tenth and Brook and the two hospitals being erected give the residence section of the city a metropolitan aspect.

"The Katy warehouse, built recently, has given a noticeable stimulus to business, and the new paved streets in every section of the city have joined with the present street signal lighting system for traffic control to make Wichita Falls seem a real city. Myriads of garages, filling stations by the dozen, and corner drug stores have sprung up at every favorable locality in the past five years.

"The magnificent Lake Kemp irrigation project opened in the last five years needs no mention, nor does the wonderful half million dollar Junior college building, so far has their fame spread. The municipal park site, south of the city, containing a handsome club house, golf links and beautiful recreation facilities which will be centered with a paved ribbon of scenic highway, will be a real pleasure to visitors, as one of our noteworthy achievements of the past five years.

Residences Expanded.

"The residence sections have expanded and beautified almost unbelievably. Outlying streets with vacant lots have built in solid with pretty homes, well parked yards set in lawns and trees. Greater than this is the opening of new residential additions in the city that expand its boundaries and increase its value immensely; the Westmoreland addition near the Seymour road south of town, the addition south of the Junior college opened by the Hamilton-Martin Investment ocmpany, and the building up of the Morningside region. Restricted districts have resulted in magnificent homes through which will be proud to drive our friends.

"The progress made by Wichita Falls during the past five years is great, but is it merely the foundation for greater progress in the next decade, progress that will make Wichita Falls the leading city of West Texas. It is this realization that the business men of Wichita Falls are trying to impress on the citizens of the surrounding communities, in an effort to enlist their interest, their support and their loyalty to "the city that faith built," the interview concluded.

H. L. Iselin of Henrietta has returned from a year's study at Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, and was in Wichita Falls yesterday to begin a summer's work.

R. B. Morton of the Automobile Apartments, left Friday on an overland trip to Roswell, N. M., Mr. Morton expects to be back in Wichita Falls about Monday.

R. B. Fisk returned yesterday from an extended stay in New Mexico in the interests of his company, the National Petroleum company.

Miss Gladys Smith, Texan hotel, is spending a few days in Galveston and Houston.

R. E. Harding, first vice-president of the Fort Worth National bank has returned after a visit in the city with his friends among the bankers here. Mr. Harding says Wichita Falls is a wonderful city, and praised highly the new banking buildings and modern banking facilities to be found here. The banks, he states, are to be congratulated for their strong and substantial condition, and he predicts a great future for Wichita Falls and her citizens.

Word has been received from Mrs. A. R. Bleakely, president of the Civic League, urging the people of Wichita Falls to take better care of their property. She states that it is now time to cu be weeds from he alleys and vacant lots, before the stalks turn hard and the seed pods form. Mrs. Bleakely also states that it is time to white wash trees. She reommends the following receipt for a white wash: A large bucket of water, one-half gallon of lime and one-half can of lye. This should be applied, she says, with something so that every bag worm that is trying to hatch, can be touched. This application should be repeated in several weeks.

Stanley M. Raub, local violinist-teacher, closed the season's work with a pupils recital on last Friday evening, and will leave Monday for a summer of vacation and study. He goes directly for a short visit with his mother in Kansas, then will leave the latter part of June for study with Professor Leopold Auer, world-famous teacher of violin, in Chicago. Mr. Raub will return to Wichita Falls and resume his teaching on September 1, at the new Raub Studios, 1801 Elizabeth. Due to the growth of his violin class he will be assisted by Mrs. C. R. Eyssen and Miss Emma Lou Scott as instructors.

The closing recital of violin music by pupils of Stanely M. Raub was given last Friday evening at the new Raub Studios and Recital Hall, 1801 Elizabeth street. While this marked the close of the season's work, it also marked the opening of Mr. Raub's new and commodious studios and recital hall, recently erected and furnished in artistic style. A large audience was in atendance and showed by hearty applause their appreciation of the program. Of particular interest was the first part, composed by two-violin numbers by Hozart, Bach and Lisst, played by Mrs. Bruce Greenwood and Mrs. C. R. Eyssen with Mrs. O. J. McKnight at the piano. The second part of the program was given by the younger pupils, with the third part by those more advanced. The program was given with Misses Elizabeth Cole and Eleanor Fleming, assisting accompanists.

QUANAH HAVING BUILDING BOOM, RECORDS SHOW

Real Estate Changes Run To High Totals For Half Year

QUANAH, May 30.—Building activities and real estate changes in Quanah since January 1st, 1925, will total several hundred thousand dollars—and it would seem the end is not yet.

With the exception of the First National bank building and the building occupied by the Moore-Browne Motor company, the entire east side of Main street between Second and Third has recently changed hands. E. B. Caskey, president of the First National bank, purchased the Fred Ripps building, adjoining the First National bank. This building is now occupied by the Western Wholesale Drug company of which Mr. Caskey was an incorporator, and is now the sole owner. Ground has been broken for the new home for this drug company, upon lots recently purchased by Mr. Caskey from Barney Jones on corner of Second and Green streets.

Buys Two Buildings.

Oscar Hall of Paducah purchased two buildings of the Houston block of five buildings and Col. Roy Simmons of Wortham, Texas, purchased the remaining three. These buildings adjoin the Ripps building.

Col. Roy Simmons also purchased the Berry building from Judge Berry of Vernon. This building is on the opposite side of Main street from the Houston block.

Mr. D. Swearingen recently purchased the two-story, rock building on corner of Second and Main, opposite First National bank, and is now remodeling, putting in up-to-date brick fronts and making extensive changes in the second story arrangement for offices.

Mr. G. A. Vestal purchased the 50-foot front buildings now occupied by the Star cafe, the Star rooms, at corner of Railroad and Main.

Mr. Hayden Hunter has purchased the building now occupied by Sansom Brothers furniture store, and will move his gents' furnishing stock as soon as Sansom Brothers move into their new location on Third and Main in the new brick building being erected for them by Elbert & Hankins.

Over $20,000.

With the exception of the Fred Ripps building purchased for a reported price of $12,000, all the above transactions have involved sums over $20,000.

In December, 1924, the Quanah hotel was sold for approximately $60,000.

The Security National bank plans remodeling their building as soon as their lease to the Western Union Telegraph company expires. Tentative plans call for an expenditure of something like $25,000.

Mrs. Kerrigan is planning on building adjoining the 25-foot building she is now having built on her remaining 50-foot fronting on Mercer street. With these Kerrigan lots built on the block in which the city hall is located facing Mercer will have been built up solid since January 1, 1925.

Ground was broken this morning for the 25x115-foot brick building being erected by Mrs. Annie Kerrigan adjoining the city hall on Mercer street. This building when completed will be occupied by Smith undertaking parlors.

Brick on Ground.

Several carload of brick are on the ground and work has started on the building of the Western Wholesale Drug company 100x75 which is also in the same block with the city hall, fronting on Second street.

The Elbert & Hankins double brick store building on Main street is also nearing completion. This building will be occupied by Sansom Brothers furniture store.

The Crowder-Brooks 75x100 brick storage and show rooms is completed, and now being used for supplies and accessories usually kept in their service station on the corner of Mercer and Third, opposite the city hall. This temporary arrangement made necessary while their brick service station on the front of the same lots with their storage rooms is being completed. This service station will be among the most modern and up-to-date stations in the Panhandle when completed.

Build Service Station.

Mr. A. F. Fields of Fields Tire & Vulcanizing shop has also completed a service station on corner of Third and King.

Mr. W. B. Hampton has built several concrete store buildings on both King and Second street, all of which were leased before work was started.

The Cicero-Smith Lumber company of Fort Worth have purchased twelve lots north of the Denver tracks, including the lots on which the Denver hotel is located. The hotel building will be moved off, and a large stock of lumber and building materials will be carried at this yard.

Many residences have been built, and much residence property changing hands, vacant lots being sold and homes being planned.

With al lthe activity in both business and residence property there is still a shortage of available business houses and offices, and a house available for rent has many applicants before the moving van ever gets to the door.

Through the efforts of the chamber of commerce and individuals it is expected a building and loan company will soon be established in Quanah, and through this medium the housing situation will be relieved by many additional homes being built. The good crops of 1924, and the outlook for 1925 with plenty moisture in the ground is the foundation for the increased activities in Quanah real estate and building.

FIGHT FILM AT PALACE

Buck Jones Shows In His Latest And Best Picture Today Only

The Jolly Flapper musical comedy will start its second successful week here Monday. By changing programs every other day the troupe has been certain of continuous big houses.

A great cast supports Buck Jones, the cowboy star, in the newest William Fox offering, "Winner Take All," booked at the Palace theatre to show today only. Peggy Shaw plays opposite the star, and plays her part to the best of her wellknown ability. William Norton Bailey is an old experienced consumate villain with whom no one is safe alone. Edward Hearn, Lilyan Tashman and Ben Deeley are other screen favorites who have been character parts.

The title forecasts lots of fact action and furious fighting, as well as plenty of love with a peppy romance. The big stakes are said to include at least two girls; and the popular western cowboy is said to have his hands full when he hits the white lights of Broadway.

There are four knockouts in the picture. There are also promised some more kayoes in the scenes on Broadway, but these have to be seen, not told.

The facts about the big championship bout in the show are these:

Battling Buck, champion vs. Kid Holliday, challenger.

To a finish for heavyweight championship and purse of $25,000, "Winner Take All."

Challenger his physical equal; has longer boxing experience.

Battling Buck has been told by promoters fight is "framed"; challenger will weaken in eighth round.

Champion scorns frame-up victory; promises his best to knock out challenger before eighth round; but unable to do so.

In the eighth, the Kid shows signs of weakening as per frame-up agreement; Battling Buck slows up, is caught off his guard and knocked down for a count of nine by the challenger, who now fights like a demon, and knocks the champ down again and again in every succeeding round.

How does it end?

Everyone Should Profit Through Old Home Week

City Finance Commissioner And Brother Approve Of Celebration

ALL OF THIS WEEK

Unusual Growth is Seen In Wichita Falls In Last Few Years

"The observance of Old Home Home Week in Wichita Falls is a new departure on the part of the city to arrange a hospitable and profitable celebration for friends and neighbors of the trade territory surrounding, and it will undoubtedly be enjoyed by everyone concerned," declared Oral Jones, cashier of the City National bank, and his brother, Lester Jones, cashier of the Wichita State bank, two leading young business men of the city who have lived here the past 24 years.

Expressed Regret.

"More than one business man has expressed his regret to us at hoving from Wichita Falls and leaving behind such a progressive city and such splendid opportunities for good business and moneymaking activities," the brothers declared. "Chief among these was Nat T. Waggoner, manager of the bonding department of the First National bank of St. Louis, who paid a visit to the city last week. He expressed his surprise and pleasure at the strides Wichita Falls has made since he left here five years ago.

"When you stop to think of it, the city has expanded remarkably in that time; buildings have been erected, additions opened, streets paved and many new and lasting monuments to progress and industry erected in the last five years that have changed Wichita Falls from a town to a city," they stated.

"Five years ago the three large office buildings, the City National, the Staley and the Bob Waggoner, were being completed, and the Kemp hotel was just being opened. Scott street had only a few business houses on it, and now it is filled with modern business buildings and is a main artery of traffic. Lamar street, that contained mostly residences now boasts many business buildings, a newspaper plant; behind it on Eighth street a modern engraving plant is going up, and on Lamar and Tenth, a proposed church structure to cover half a city block.

Period of Solid Growth.

"The city faces a rich period of solid growth; great numbers of business houses and residences are springing up with startling rapidity. Under construction now are the Harvey-Snider office building beside the City National bank building, the Perkins-Snider building at Tenth and Indiana, while the Wichita Cleaning and Dye Works building, the Seven Gables building at Floral Heights have been completed. The W. R. Ferguson apartment house at Tenth and Brook and the two hospitals being erected give the residence section of the city a metropolitan aspect.

"The Katy warehouse, built recently, has given a noticeable stimulus to business, and the new paved streets in every section of the city have joined with the present street signal lighting system for traffic control to make Wichita Falls seem a real city. Myriads of garages, filling stations by the dozen, and corner drug stores have sprung up at every favorable locality in the past five years.

"The magnificent Lake Kemp irrigation project opened in the last five years needs no mention, nor does the wonderful half million dollar Junior college building, so far has their fame spread. The municipal park site, south of the city, containing a handsome club house, golf links and beautiful recreation facilities which will be centered with a paved ribbon of scenic highway, will be a real pleasure to visitors, as one of our noteworthy achievements of the past five years.

Residences Expanded.

"The residence sections have expanded and beautified almost unbelievably. Outlying streets with vacant lots have built in solid with pretty homes, well parked yards set in lawns and trees. Greater than this is the opening of new residential additions in the city that expand its boundaries and increase its value immensely; the Westmoreland addition near the Seymour road south of town, the addition south of the Junior college opened by the Hamilton-Martin Investment company, and the building up of the Morningside region. Restricted districts have resulted in magnificent homes through which will be proud to drive our friends.

"The progress made by Wichita Falls during the past five years is great, but is it merely the foundation for greater progress in the next decade, progress that will make Wichita Falls the leading city of West Texas. It is this realization that the business men of Wichita Falls are trying to impress on the citizens of the surrounding communities, in an effort to enlist their interest, their support and their loyalty to "the city that faith built," the interview concluded.

Mr. Harding says Wichita Falls is a wonderful city, and praised highly the new banking buildings and modern banking facilities to be found here. The banks, he states, are to be congratulated for their strong and substantial condition, and he predicts a great future for Wichita Falls and her citizens.

Word has been received from Mrs. A. R. Bleakely, president of the Civic League, urging the people of Wichita Falls to take better care of their property. She states that it is now time to cu he weeds from he alleys and vacant lots, before the stalks turn hard and the seed pods form. Mrs. Bleakely also states that it is time to white wash trees. She reommends the following receipt for a white wash: A large bucket of water, one-half gallon of lime and one-half can of lye. This should be applied, she says, with something so that every bag worm that is trying to hatch, can be touched. This application should be repeated in several weeks.

Stanley M. Raub, local violinist-teacher, closed the season's work with a pupils recital on last Friday evening, and will leave Monday for a summer of vacation and study. He goes directly for a short visit with his mother in Kansas, then will leave the latter part of June for study with Professor Leopold Auer, world-famous teacher of violin, in Chicago. Mr. Raub will return to Wichita Falls and resume his teaching on September 1, at the new Raub Studios, 1801 Elizabeth. Due to the growth of his violin class he will be assisted by Mrs. C. R. Eyssen and Miss Emma Lou Scott as instructors.

The closing recital of violin music by pupils of Stanely M. Raub was given last Friday evening at the new Raub Studios and Recital Hall, 1801 Elizabeth street. While this marked the close of the season's work, it also marked the opening of Mr. Raub's new and commodious studios and recital hall, recently erected and furnished in artistic style. A large audience was in atendance and showed by hearty applause their appreciation of the program. Of particular interest was the first part, composed by two-violin numbers by Hozart, Bach and Liszt, played by Mrs. Bruce Greenwood and Mrs. C. R. Eyssen with Mrs. O. J. McKnight at the piano. The second part of the program was given by the younger pupils, with the third part by those more advanced. Many Entertainments For The Summer Are Planned

HOMECOMING! What a word for the anxious boys and girls who have been away from home nine months attending school. On every train now for several days will be students from schools all over the state coming home to be with their parents and friends for awhile.

Visitor Here Honored By Many Parties

The reception suite was prettily decorated in spring colors of pink and white. Baskets of pink and white roses were used effectively in the decorations. The place favors, table appointments and score pads were used to carry out the color scheme.

Following the dinner the guests played bridge for several haurs. In the games E. T. Turner won high score and Mrs. Chick Nolen won low. The honoree was presented a dainty gift.

Those who were present at the affair were Misses Helen Gordon, Gladys Cooper, Marjorie Ketner, Grace Smith, Thelma Ernest; Messrs. and Mesdames Chick Nolen, E. T. Turner; Mesdames Gordon and J. B. Ferguson, Trent and Payne Hill, San Antonio; Richard Gordon and the honoree and hostess.

Mrs. E. T. Turner Hostess.

Mrs. E. T. Turner entertained honoring Mrs. Hill with a bridge party Thursday afternoon.

The decorations for the affair were lovely. A bowl of snapdragons and sweet peas were used at each table.

In the games Mrs. D. R. Hobson won high score and Mrs. M. M. Landis was consoled for low. Both received dainty gifts. The honoree was presented with a dainty bit of lingerie.

Refreshments were served to about thirty guests.

CLASBY GLEANERS IN SOCIAL MEETING.

THE CLASBY GLEANERS class of the First Baptist Sunday school enjoyed a social meeting at the home of Mrs. Jerry M. Schaefer, Thursday afternoon. Mesdames A. E. Jones, J. J. Lory, and W. M. G. Mackechney assisted Mrs. Schaefer in the entertainment.

To the Women of Wichita Falls
An Invitation to attend
A Series of Free Lectures on HEALTH, BEAUTY, POWER, POISE, PERSONALITY by
Mrs. Marie LaSalle Booth
Dramatic Artist, Lecturer and Entertainer.

Mrs. Booth, a grandmother in Reality, but a maid of 20 in vitality.

THE WICHITA FALLS Record News this morning renews its invitation to the women of this city and the women of surrounding cities, towns and communities to be its guests at a series of free lectures on Health, Beauty, Power, Poise and Personality, to be delivered by Mrs. Marie LaSalle Booth dramatic artist, lecturer and entertainer, commencing Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Olympic theatre, and continuing at the same hour and same place on Wednesday and Thursday.

AS a special convenience for business women, a night class will be conducted at the Y. W. C. A. at 8 o'clock Tuesda night, and continuing the same hours Wednesday and Thursday nights.

As indicated above the lectures are free.

Mrs. Booth is being brought to Wichita Falls by The Record News because of her nation-wide reputation for a constructive program of good living and personal care, of so vital interest to the feminine heart. Hers is a message of beauty in all that it means. Not only beauty of the face, beauty of the figure, but beauty of the mind, as is indicated by her lecture slogan of power, poise and personality.

WICHITA FALLS women will find Mrs. Booth refreshingly brilliant, delightfully entertaining and wholeheartedly sincere in her work. Needless to say, Mrs. LaSalle Booth is not a "cold cream" advocate, nor does she have a panacea for every excess ounce of flesh or extra wrinkle. Mrs. Booth is not a Coue to the feminine dominion. Mrs. Booth, above everything else, is an instructor in proper living, an educator in proper exercise and physical care, and The Record News has no hesitancy in recommending her course of lectures to be given free this week to the women of Wichita Falls as something in the distinct measure of a rare opportunity — a rare treat.

"There are many women," says Mrs. Booth, "who find themselves with money and leisure for social and cultural activities who have not yet overcome timidity or who have not acquired the self-possessed bearing which the successful hostess must have.

"IT is my wish to help such women acquire whatever knowledge of social amenities they may feel they need and to help them cultivate a bearing which will not only respect but win admiration because of their charm of manner.

"Are you healthy, happy and efficient?" is the essence of Mrs. Booth's inquiry of those with whom she comes in professional contact. "Poise, power and personality are essential to that indescribable presence in a woman—charm. A charming woman is like the sunset—ever changing, yet fundamentally the same. Every woman instinctively longs to be healthy and beautiful. Her prayer is for charm and beauty. A pretty face is only one element of beauty; the body is the instrument of the soul incarnate."

Mrs. Marie LaSalle Booth exponent of the art of scientific breathing and body building.

MRS. BOOTH warns against routine; warns against the one track mind—but then, let her tell it to you.

MISS MONTERY LEWIS IN VIOLIN RECITAL.

A genuine treat unfolded itself last Friday night at the First Christian church, when Miss Montery Lewis made her first bow as a concert violinist. The fine playing of this slip of a girl, still in her teens, won for her a high place in the esteem of those who had the pleasure of hearing her. Her program, while containing some numbers that were well kfown to the public, also included some notable modern works. Miss Lewis showed her fine equipment in the technical de Beriot Concerto. The dance Satanic by Nelson called forth an almost uncanny technic in so young a person.

Her beauty of tone was especially brought out in the Thais Meditation, and above all in the Prize Song from Meistersinger. This last number is a favorite of the great Elman and Miss Lewis gave this number with a wealth of shading and sostenute tone that was entirely satisfying.

She displayed sufficient verve in Fuchs' Mazurka and in the ever appealing Liebesfreud by Kreisler.

Believe Rum Ships In Gulf Waters Now

GALVESTON, May 30.—First evidence that rum vessels which have been chased off the Jersey coast by the coast guard blockade, had shifted to the gulf coast district was made known today after coast guards from San Luis station boarded a British schooner off Galvston loaded to her guards with liquor.

The vessel was boarded at 9 a. m. Since the vessel was outside the twelve mile limit, the coast guards were without authority to examine the ship's papers. After remaining aboard the ship for a half hour the guardsmen returned to shore.

Process Pavements

COSTS LESS —— LASTS LONGER

RECOGNIZED authorities say that 5-inch sheet asphalt IS standard. Cities everywhere, who seek a paving free from abrasions and certain to stand the wear and tear of years of heavy traffic, have adopted Willite Process Pavements. Asphalt, because of its water-proof qualities, is not subjected to the destructive effects of the elements, moreover, apart from its own stability, it protects foundations or old pavements from the damage due to expansion and contraction, and tends to maintain a reasonably constant temperature.

Little or no repairs are needed—Willite smooths out under heavy traffic due to its contracting qualities. It can be thrown open to traffic immediately upon completion, it means less wear and tear upon your and your neighbor's car. It gives satisfactory long-life service.

To Whiten Skin with Lemon

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.

Potash and Perlmutter Discuss Mineral Water Cure—Shall We Drink it, Rub It in Our Hair or Sail Boats in It?

"I see where a German doctor says we have in this country a whole lot of mineral springs which has got absolutely the same rotten egg taste and smell of Carlsbad and all them other European mineral springs, and yet we don't make no use of them at all," Abe Potash observed the other day.

"What do you mean, yet?' Morris Perlmutter asked. "It ain't a matter of yet. It's merely a case of no longer, which we did make use of them up to a few years ago, and the only reason why we don't continue to make use of them is that people has now got the spine adjusting superstition instead of the mineral spring superstition. They now stay home and get rubbed instead of going to a mineral spring and getting boiled, but whether they get rubbed or get boiled, Abe, they still believe that there is a miraculous cure for the results of eating dill pickles and ice cream in addition to the old fashioned, homely remedy of leaving such poison alone if it disagrees with you."

"But don't you think drinking some kinds of mineral water is good for the liver?" Abe asked, "if you diet along with it."

"If you diet along with it," Morris repeated, "you can drink it, rub it in your hair or sail boats in it, and it won't make no difference, because without dieting, y'understand, there ain't what you go there and drink but what you go there and don't eat which cures you."

Mineral Springs Cure Extremely Thorough.

"But not as much benefit as them European mineral spring resorts get from Charles Noblestone," Morris declared. "Which whatever an American has got when he goes to a European mineral water cure, y'understand, the people which run it will see that he goes away without it. They have a combination of mud baths, race tracks, mineral water, carbonic acid baths, roulette and baccarat, which is guaranteed to relieve an American of kidney trouble, traveller's checks, varicose veins, two letters of credit and his steamer fare home to America.

"I Don't Know," Morris Said, "I Never Took One Except By Accident While Standing on the Curb During a Rain Storm When a Big Fifth Avenue Bus Was Going By."

In fact, Abe, you would think that in both European and American mineral spring resorts, gambling was something which the doctor ordered for every sufferer from liver trouble, kidney trouble, and rheumatism. It seems to be the idea of people who run such mineral water cures, that unless at least once a day, an exhausted business man with one kidney in the grave could drink four glasses of mineral water and put a big st k of chips on the second dozen the odd and the red, and also star number twenty-eighth, y'understand, he might just as well stay at home and design his own headstone while he has still got the time."

"And I suppose, Mawruss, that people which run such a mineral water town also figure that if an invalid got to cut out some part of the cure, y'understand, it would better be the four glasses of mineral water than the regular dosage of at least two hours of roulette every afternoon and evening," Abe observed. "Although, Mawruss, I have heard that them mud baths are wonderful for some sicknesses."

Mawruss Divulges New Mud Bath Cure.

"I don't know," Morris said. "I never took one except by accident while standing on the curb during a rain storm when a big Fifth Avenue bus was going by. But I wouldn't be a bit surprised, Abe, if you took your clothes off first and then got covered with mud, y'understand, it would certainly be good for the blood circulation to have it brushed off with a whisk broom by an ex-Pullman porter. On the other hand, Abe, since automobiles have been dropping so much oil into the mud, y'understand, it might be very easy to overdo this mud bath cure, and instead of the mud coming off by brushing only, it would then be necessary for the patient to get dry cleaned or something. As for them natural carbonic acid baths which is advertised by the European mineral springs as being so good for rheumatism, y'understand, I have had samples of such baths when a siphon of seltzer didn't work right, and it certainly wasn't a cure for any rheumatism I ever had unless I anyhow changed my shirt before I got good and chilled."

"Well, it's anyhow remarkable the claims which is made for them different European mineral springs," Abe said. "Noblestone tells me that there are mineral springs in Europe which are no further apart than Jersey City and Hoboken, or Gary, Ind., and Chicago, y'understand, and yet one spring would be wonderful for the heart and no good for the liver or kidneys while the other would practically grow a new set of kidneys in twenty-four hours and kill a man with heart trouble in ten minutes."

"And what is more remarkable still, Abe," Morris remarked, "only an egg candler with years of experience testing rots and spots, could tell the difference between the two spring waters by tasting them. And anyhow, Abe, I don't know how Charles Noblestone comes in to be such an expert about mineral waters. I never saw that feller take a chance on so much as a glass of plain faucet water without so-to-speak disinfecting it with something which is not only bad for the heart and the kidneys, but also terrible for the stomach."

"That's probably the reason why Noblestone finds them European mineral waters so good for what ails him," Abe said. "Eleven months out of the year, he drinks his mineral water mixed and one month he drinks it straight, and the change naturally benefits him."

Cause, Effect and the Cure.

"Well, ninety per cent of the people which goes to mineral springs in America and Europe, go there to get rid of the same mineral water habit that Noblestone has," Morris declared. "They are suffering from too much mineral water with ice and liquor in it, and the chances are that when they get it boiled out of them with hot carbonic acid water baths, y'understand, what does down the waste pipe, gauges at about ninety proof and I wouldn't be a bit surprised if it also corroded all the metal in the pipes it went through."

"But there must be a certain amount of people who go to mineral spring cures for something else besides the mineral water habit, Mawruss," Abe said.

"There is always a certain amount of people who go to mineral springs, doctors and hospitals to get cured of something which they ain't got," Morris replied, "and for them people, Abe, a mineral water resort is a good alibi. It gives them an excuse for feeling well and makes it unnecessary to throw a bluff that they are sick for anyhow a few months longer."

"Then you don't think that going to a mineral spring is any good," Abe said.

"It's good for a change," Morris concluded, "but so far as I'm concerned, I can get cured just so fast by staying home, eating reasonable, drinking hydrant water and playing pinochle."

Fable of Acrobatic Horoscope —By George Ade

It struck him that being a Preacher was the Duck Soup.

Once there was a Boy, named Jefferson who lay on his Back in an Orchard on whole Afternoon mapping out his Future. He was Five Years Old at the time and still carried his Milk Teeth and a few Pin Feathers but already he had begun brooding over his Career.

After a Survey of All Business Occupations and Professions it struck him being a Methodist Preacher was the Duck Soup. He had been watching one of them and it seemed to him this Bird had everything organized and Bird had everything organized and was riding high wide and purty. Nothing to do all Week except wear a darw Shit in conjunction with a pseudo-Panama and beam like a Head Light whenever addressed.

Jefferson had it on good Authority that the Parson didn't have to pay House Rent. No matter where he went, the Folks who saw him coming began to kill Yellow-Legs and lay the Foundations of an old-fashioned Strawberry Short-Cake. At every Wedding he could go as far as he liked on the Ice Cream. Neighbors often sent in the first Lilac Cuttings and usually he had Corn on the Cob about a week ahead of the Stores. Easy Picking was the only Name for it.

The Job seemed to have no Draw-Backs. On Sunday Morning the Preacher was Boss of the whole Show. He picked out the Songs and no matter what he said, no one dared to give him any Slack. It seemed to little Jefferson that a Feller who had a chance to be a Minister and then got hooked with some other kind of a Job was a little shot in the Upper Story, to quote the picturesque Idiom of some three Decades ago.

By the time that Jeffie was 10, and sat on a baggage Truck at the station every Day to watch the Choo-Choos wham by he had forgotten all about his Determination to free-lunch his way through Life as a Parson. He was now all set to be a Con on a good Passenger Run. Nothing, it seemed to him, could exceed the Glory of the Blue Uniform, the servile attentions at every Way Station, the imperious Gesture to the Engineer, the Lantern carried in the Hollow of the Arm, the Rollicking Camaradeship of Traveling Salesmen and the expert flipping on and off. Jefferson knew all the Trains by Number and was saving up to buy a heavy Silver Watch. It was all fixed. When he grew up he was going to run No. 5 into the Grand Central every Evening and then wash up and go to the Minstrels.

We discover him at the Age of 15 eating Throat Lozenges and making hurried Preparations to be a great Political Orator. He was just at the High School age when the Legs and Mental Perceptions are wobbly, when the Voice and the Outlook on Life are changing and when the Whiskers and many impracticable Ambitions are beginning to sprout.

Jefferson had tried out his new Baritone on Norval, whose Father fed the Focks, on the Turk who lay in the Guarded Tent at Midnight, and on Spartacus, who formed the first Equity Association amongs the Actors doing stunts in the Arena at Rome. He was one of the main Elocutors in Lincoln High and his Stuff had been going over big. Consequently, when he came under the Spell of a visiting Wind-Jammer who spoke for nearly two Hours in Court Square House he was carried completely off his Feet and resolved that he would be a Public Speaker or bust his Vocal Cords in the Attempt.

The great Word-Painter who had so impressed our Young Friend belonged to the Old School of Platform Performers who loved Metaphors and hated Hair-Cuts. The Type is still hanging on in the Chautauquas but the radio has him on the Ropes. Along about 1905 he was a Darb. The one admired by Jefferson wore a double-breasted P. A. and was trying to be a Carbon Copy of Daniel Webster and was getting away with all of the standardized Tricks. He knew how to wave the Flag and Cry and pluck the Stars out of the Firmament, so every time he hit a Yap Town the Farmers would drive in from miles around in order to have their feelings massaged and get all het up.

Let us now check up on Jefferson at the ripe Age of 20. He is a Junior at a College which is trying to dispense Knowledge and collect Endowments. Through his membership in a Frat and because of his natty Appearance he has been given the principal male Part in a Performance by the Dramatic Club and he has learned that he is saturated with Histrionic Ability. Therefore he has made up his Mind to be a celebrated Actor. Already he has been photographed in Costume and is preserving a newspaper Clipping which says that in the Part of the Hero he was "adequote." The Fact that the Local Sheet did not go into any of the harrowing details merely proves that More News is suppressed than ever gets into Print.

Between the Period of his College Triumphs and his 25th Birthday he had quite a few Experiences. Statistics prove that almost anything may happen to a Graduate just after he is deprived of the Checks from Dad and finds himself trying to get a Grape-Vine on the World. He suddenly ascertains that the Task is a good deal like trying to upset a Brick House without the help of a Lever. It is during the cruel try-out Years that the one who has prepared himself to be a Landscape Gardener suddenly decides that he can do better by playing the Piano in a good Movie House and the incipient Lawyer goes out in a Ford taking Orders for a Nursery.

Jefferson got shut of Actoritis without suffering a single Cramp. It seemed to work out through the Pores. In fact, he told his Relations on Commencement Day that he had almost decided to take up Social Service and be a Settlement Worker and go about shaking Hands with Lowly Rough-Necks whether they wished to be annoyed or not. When he made this noble Resolution he was still under the Influence of the Baccalaureate Sermon which, very often, will help to guide Young Men and Women through Life for at least a Week after they have heard it.

Jefferson copped his Sheep-Skin in June and along in July his Male Parent asked him if he was going to play Tennis indefinitely, and he said No he had been looking around for the Agency of some good Car, so along in September we find him soliciting Life Insurance, only to learn that all Persons still living were fully covered. So about all he did for the remainder of the year was to play Santa Claus at a Yultide Festival put on by the Church.

Early next Spring in order to relieve the Tedeum of Life in a Small Town and to prove that two may live as cheaply as one of they stay in Bed and don't eat, he up and got Married. When he announced his Intentions, the Parental Blessing could have been heard a Block away.

Now we find him at 25 in a good Boom Town helping to lay out a Residential District costing $40 an Acre and about to be sold for $100 a Front Foot. He has a Bungalow, a Baby Carriage and a set of Golf Clubs and is active in the Chamber of Commerce, having been selected to give out the Identification Badges at the regular Luncheons.

It seemed that Jefferson at the age of 30 had struck his Stride, rung the Bell, and brought home the Side-Meat. He had become the head Babbitt in the Boom Town already mentioned, which will be remembered as the one having the Bill-Board, to be seen from the Station, reading as follows: "Watch Us Grow."

He was worth a World of Money if all of his Property was worth what he was holding it at. Every day he sat around with other busy Cigar-Smokers, talking about building a Million Dollar Hotel, than which there is nothing more easy to talk about.

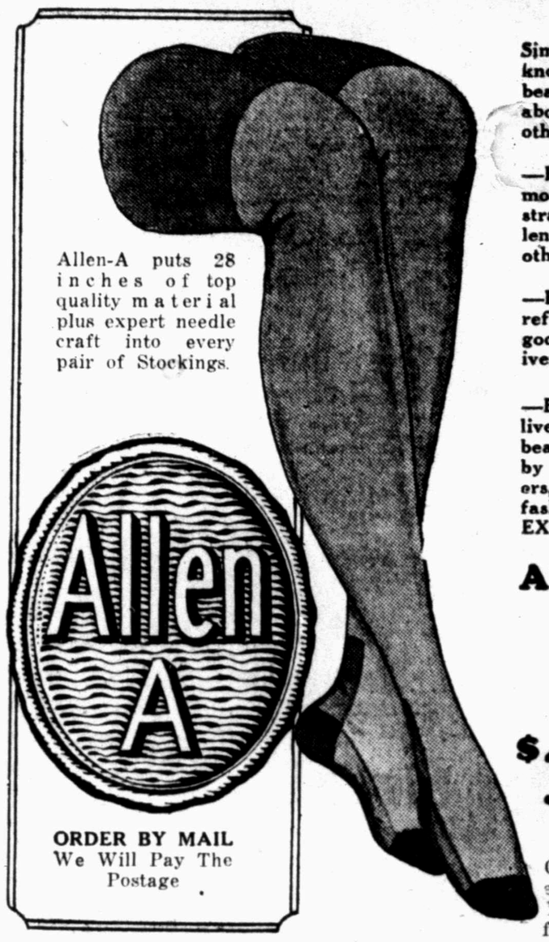

Now we come up to the Present and we find Jefferson back in the Home Town running the General Store founded by his Father in 1877 and also having general Supervision of the two Farms. He is just where he was destined to be from the Beginning. He still has some Holdings in the Town which started out to be another Chicago and then stubbed the Toe. They are Corner Lots and will be all right some Day, if not sold for Taxes.

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

There was a miracle in fat, easy-going Morris's life and that miracle was his wife. Maude was the TOWN BEAUTY. She had married Morris because SHE LOVED HIM. Morris never ceased wondering.

But one day the laugh that had been Morris's, the easy laugh that made the negroes love him, STOPPED SUDDENLY. And now Morris sits alone in the magnolia-scented air. Maude's rocker tilts beside him.

MONONA is one of those Louisiana swamp towns, and they are legion, that has stood in a trance for so many years that the very trees that line its wavy, leisurely streets seem to have grown great beards of moss that hang down and make them look like a procession of patriarchs through the town.

There is not one thing that distinguishes Monona from its drowsy kind. Pickaninnies and geese wabble their bow-legged processions through its lanes. Rice whitens there, and the raising of sugar cane keeps the negro population together, ragged body and ragged soul.

All through the stagnating, mosquito-bitten heat of swampy summers, Monona stands stagnant there; and all through one after another of them Morris Janipus, long after he was in a position to migrate to cooler climes, remained at his post in the Janipus Dry Goods Company, Incorporated.

If there was one thing that distinguished Morris Janipus, or, for that matter, distinguished Monona, it was his laugh. Down in Louisiana they say it was Janipus' laugh that brought him the patronage of negroes from all over the countryside and made him eventually one of the rich men of his State.

There was nothing studied about the Janipus laugh. When anything pleased Morris, no matter how trivial, he broke into a gelatinious quiver that shook his short, fat body literally from head to foot, and with it came the joyous, bouncing guffaws of good-natured amusement that made the negroes for miles around come loitering into the Janipus Emporium to spend their earnings. The negroes, as a race, love easy laughter, and all of his life Morris Janipus gave it freely.

He was a fat little man, upon whom had dawned a miracle. The miracle was Maude Daily, who had married him in the days when the Janipus Dry Goods Company was a one-story shanty instead of the four-story pressed brick building that now occupied a square block.

And Maude Daily, who was a town beauty, had married fat little Morris Janipus for one reason. Because she loved him. Great big, creamy Maude Daily, who was as tall as Juno, and as beautiful, fell swiftly, directly and unswervingly in love with Morris Janipus. A love that was never to falter; a love that was to keep the easy laughter fresh on her husband's lips; a love that begot a family of three daughters.

Gladiola. Bettina. Audrey.

Yes, Maude named them. Big, creamy, novel-loving Maude who, as she grew older, grew plumper in a white voluptuous way, and whose daughters, named from out the paper-backed novels that cluttered up the household, grew up into the same complacency that characterized their easy-going, southern, drawling, ever-laughing parents.

And as the fortune of Morris Janipus grew, the little homestead that had started with three rooms grew with it, and when Maude's daughters had reached their teens, the home, what with built-on after built-on addition, had become the show place of Monona. A rambling, fine, overgrown colonial affair with great galleries running along all four sides; glassed-in conservatories; screened-in sleeping porches; fruit-bearing arbors, and magnolia-scented gardens.

The Janipuses had become a first family, so to speak; Morris and Maude and their three romantically named offspring. Morris, who seemed to grow shorter as he grew stouter. Maude, who towered so above him.

Sometimes, passing the house even two or three blocks away, you could hear the ready laughter of this family. The chatter of young girls, the droning voice of Maude as she sat in her rocker on the side gallery, her crisp white wrapper, opened to reveal a rather too voluptuous throat, and Morris, who worshipped her, laughing with her, and laughing at her, and never ceasing to marvel at his miracle.

Negroes lived on the Janipus place. Old, crooked, weasened creoles, gnarled with the years as oak trees can gnarl with years. Through the long Louisiana twilight you could hear their crooning and the curious lusciousness of pickaninny twang and the minor plucky, sobbish notes of banjoes. And the sullen sweetishness of magnolia blossoms lay on these tender twilights that Morris Janipus loved so with his fat and pudgy little heart.

But then the girls grew up and, with a curious instinct for her young, Maude Janipus stirred herself out of the easy-going lethargy she loved, and took her girls East to school and put them in smart seminaries and in summer traveled with them to Europe, and sometimes, against his will, dragged Morris along.

Against his will, only because he would have preferred the drowsy trance of the old-time summers in Monona, but where Maude went there was Morris's place. And so, during the years that their three girls were in their lovely teens, the Janipuses came to spend much of their time at watering places in the East and along the Riviera or in France where the girls could revel in the joys that Paris lavishes.

And even while he would have preferred home, and the fragrant, drowsy twilights, and the leisurely streets that he loved, there never was a time when Morris's laughter waned, or his joy in Maude, or his capacity to be happy in the heart of his family.

And one day, one incredible day, one soul-twisting day, the heart of that family stopped its beat. Maude Janipus died in Paris of a finger infection that started with nothing more than a pin prick, ironically enough, from a diamond and emerald brooch that Morris had brought her home one day, merely in the spirit of one of his frequent outbursts of adoration, from a smart shop in the Rue de la Paix.

It was as if a river had stopped running, or a bell had stopped tolling, or a sea had ceased to surge.

From that day Morris Janipus never laughed. The capacity for it had died somewhere in him. Had died down into an ache. An ache of silence.

His daughters, who loved him, married and had homes. Beautiful homes. Two of them in Connecticut and one on a historic site that overlooked the Penobscott River, and they all of them wanted Morris to live with them.

But Janipus, almost as if with saddistic impulse to inflict upon himself a certain kind of torture, lives all of his time in the twenty-two-room, white manor-house in Monona. Maude's rocker, tilted almost as if to the heft of her body, stands on the side gallery. Evenings, Morris sits there beside it in the heavy scent of magnolia, and to the sobbish sounds of banjoes, and to the shrill little mourning notes of pickaninnies.

Morris's three daughters clamor for him, but somehow he lives on in Monona, where the twilights seem full of Maude and the very chair that he sits beside seems tilted to the heft of the creamy body that he loved.

Poor Morris, sitting there on the gallery that is silent now of the run of his children's feet and the laughter of her who had been his perpetual bride.

It seems in a way cruel that he should inflict upon himself the torture of sitting beside that empty chair of Maude's. And yet, if he had the power of words, only Morris could describe to you the peculiar balm to the wound of his being; of sitting there, twilight after twilight, beside the memories.

ATTEMPTS TO RESTORE HUGO BANKS FAILS

Dallas Conference is Said To Be a Failure Friday

HUGO, Okla., May 30.—(AP)—A conference between local bankers and officials of the federal reserve bank at Dallas yesterday in regard to reopening the Hugo National was unsuccessful, it was stated today by C. G. Shull, president of the closed bank. The Hugo National closed May 7. Since then two other banks here have stopped business and left the city without banking facilities. Mr. Shull, who returned today, declined to reveal the proposals made by the Dallas federal reserve officials, but it is understood they were asked to take over about $100,000 of the Hugo National paper. It is not known whether more attemps will be made to effect a settlement with the reserve bank.

If some action in that direction is not taken at once liquidation of the closed bank will begin soon, it is believed. In that case it is regarded as certain that a charter will be granted either for a new state or national bank to persons representing outside capital. Applications for charters are on file with the comptroller of the currency at Washington and with the state bank commissioner at Oklahoma City.

Semi-monthly pay checks amounting to $15,000 were cashed by employes of the St. Louis-San Francisco yesterday at a branch of the First National of Boswell and the Durant National bank at Durant, Okla.

The bank at Boswell is one of the two left open in Choctaw county. Approximately $50,000 in county warrants to be issued next week will be cashed through the First National Bank of Oklahoma City, it was announced at the county clerk's office, it was said.

Moro Fort Is Blown Up by Constabulary

MANILA, May 30.—(AP)—The constabulary today blew up the Moro fortress in Lanao province which it stormed yesterday. Two additional outlaws were killed and a number wounded.

MANILA, May 30.—(AP)—Governor General Leonard Wood today cabled to Washington asking that one of the shipping board vessels which the board has decided to scrap be allotted for use in the Philippine islands. The request points out that only one ship is available for use in repairing cables connecting the various islands and this is frequently inadequate in keeping the lines of communication in order.

Howe About Toasting and Boasting—A One Woman Man —Oscar and Sam

-By Ed Howe

Every man who has failed likes to say his riches are not in gold; that he has been of more use to the world by giving good advice than successful men have been in material affairs—a few men have been useful who have done nothing but give good advice, but they are extremely rare. The world is on a gold basis; men fail or succeed as they make money.

What pleasure the young man in school gets out of thoughts of what he is going to be! For he can make himself believe it; but the old fellow gets little pleasure out of conceit; he has tried everything, and knows what he can do, while the young fellow has tried nothing, and can easily imagine himself the greatest man in the world.

When I was a boy there was a copy of "Lucille" on nearly every parlor table, but I knew no one who had read it, or, having read it, cared for it—there is a tremendous amount of rubbish in what we call the old classics. I do not pretend to say what the per cent is, but it is quite large. And the good that remains partakes of the museum quality: an old thing of the past.

Some men say religion is unnatural. It is the most natural thing in the world. A cunning man observed in the distant past that men generally dread death, so wrote a book saying there is no death. It became a best seller, and continues a best seller to this day. And there you are.

Several years ago I was in a steamship room, and very miserable. The steward recommended a certain remedy, and said he had never known it to fail. I had been taking it for days. It's that way with me in everything: good advice frequently does not apply to my case.

I heard a woman say: "Some men are one-woman men. My husband is." Several men present burst out laughing. The wife asked: "What do you mean?" But they wouldn't tell her what they meant. They afterwards told me.

I do not think much of the artist who paints the figure of a woman, and neglects to drape certain parts of it in the conventional manner. Such a fellow is a radical looking for free advertising, instead of paying for it, as honest business men are compelled to do.

When I am introduced to a stranger, the name means nothing. What I am interested in is, "What does he do? And how does he get along at it."

I heard the other day of a noted woman who has a husband and a man secretary—I don't believe I could properly love a wife with a man secretary, and here give public notice of that disposition.

What we call civilization is only rules men have tried many centuries, and generally adopt because they work best. Any fool may say civilization has faults, and point them out, but generally it is the best we can do. To find fault with what we call "The System" is making fun of yourself and others. How contemptible my affairs, and yours; but I should like to see either of us live by a different plan. The old fellows occupying the graves have done much for us; be careful of new plans recommended by young chaps still walking about, and talking too much.

An American doctor, so intelligent and learned that he was called to the head of a noted medical institution in London, lately said: "We put unknown medicine into a body we know little about to cure diseases we know nothing about. Here is a man whose opinions are really worth something, and he is very decidedly against dosing. One of the things we will have to do, if we are to become really intelligent, is to change our habits about medicine and doctors. Be fair with both, but not silly.

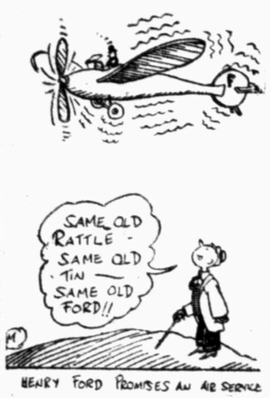

The world surely moves: I heard a woman say the other day she was coming to believe the most harmful thing is overwrought sentiment. The women are as responsible for sentiment as they are for corsets. And, after years and years, I hear they are abandoning corsets. Every man who indulges in overwrought sentiment does it to inspire applause from the ladies he knows better.

The man who became famous with the saying "there is nothing new under the sun" made an easy guess. Writers are always asking: "What will happen in the future." I can tell them: the same old things. There is nothing new to eat, nothing new to think, nothing new to do.

In a small town there is too much to eat, and too much to drink in a large one.

I am expected to admire Oscar Wilde because he said beautiful things, some of them stolen from older sources. I estimate a man not by what he writes or says, but by the worthy things he accomplishes. There is a man in the east named Samuel Rae. For a good many years he has been president of the Pennsylvania railroad company; he built the tube under the Hudson river and the Pennsylvania terminal in New York city. I think Samuel has much the best of Oscar.

Toasting women in public and roasting them in private is a very old custom. A writer in the Bible tells of finding one just man in looking over a thousand, but in looking over the same number of women, he had less luck. I have never been invited to contribute to a Bible, but in any group of ten women I find good ones. Men spoil women, and then grumble about their work.

I was calling the other evening, but departed when I caught the hostess, a very polite woman, yawning. She did it as amiably as was possible, but I caught her, and relieved her at the first evidence of distress. A polite woman is a great work of art: I like that woman for trying to hide her disposition to yawn.

You have frequently been entertained at considerable discomfort to yourself. Don't accept every invitation: some of them are worse than worthless. And after you have been bored by accepting a bad invitation, you must pay back, and bother those who failed to entertain you.

In one of his writings H. G. Wells speaks of the development of civilization as wonderful. I do not see anything wonderful about it. Early man tried various things, adopted those that would work, and passed off the stage. Then his successors improved his processes, and in time their processes were improved. What is there wonderful about it? Is it not natural for man to seek the shortest and easiest methods. If a dog is lying in the sun, and it becomes too warm, he moves into the shade. We finally learned to heat chilly houses, although you would blush to hear how long we were in learning of so simple a utility as a fireplace to carry smoke outside the room. The real wonder is the long time we were in learning the simplest things. And some of the simplest things we haven't learned yet. Look at the millions who still believe that the easiest way to get things is to steal them. Billions are yet to be converted to the simple, true doctrine that honesty is the best policy.

Is Henry Ford about to pull another boner? He is a very smart man, but do you recall his resolve, during the war, to get the soldiers out of the trenches by Christmas? With all his money, all his intelligence, he didn't do it. Now he is credited with a determination to give the country an airplane service within six months. There is a lot of nonsense in the airplane that no man, not even as smart and great a man as Henry Ford, can make sense of.

The only safe rule is to watch everybody: the man who is honest may be careless, or so dull that crooked associates easily lead him astray.

The man or institution most closely as you watch the public utilities. I am not above suspicion; you are not. And I am as certain about you as I am about myself.

And while about it, watch yourself. Men originate their own troubles. You can get rid of most of yours by looking over your faults candidly, and remedying the more serious ones. I am an old fellow, and have been through a mill rather thoroughly.

I have concluded the people themselves are to blame for the wrongs they complain of so bitterly. Suppose we try the plan of everyone doing a little better. That may bring the relief we need so much. And our first reform should be to watch ourselves carefully to see that we are as honest, efficient, polite, healthy, industrious and helpful as one should be.

A business career may rob a woman of some of her charm, but I do not think this is necessarily so. Business is not as nasty a mess as what we call society. Women undoubtedly learn many valuable things in business, and become better able to correctly understand human problems. Women are fair enough: the trouble has always been that a woman shut up in a home is apt to complain of some things men cannot help.

Poet's Second Divorce Is Under "Divorce Mill" Scrutiny, Has Wed Again

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—After a sensational elopement three marriages and two divorces, Eleanor Hoyt Hichborn Wylie Benet, poet, now faces the prospects of the annulment of her last divorce.

Attorney General Sisson of Rhode Island desires to have it vacated on the ground that Rhode Island domicile she claimed was fictional, today's Providence Journal says.

Eleanor Wylie as she calls herself, being a member of the Lucy Stone League, is now the wife of William Rose Benet of New York, literary critic and novelist.

Two Years Old.

As a Washington belle Eleanor married Philip Hichborn in 1906. Next door to their home lived Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wylie.

Four years later Washington was startled to learn that Mrs. Hichborn had eloped with Wylie. Mrs. Hichborn had one child and Wylie four. Wylie is now an accountant of the Couzens committee investigating administration of federal revenue laws.

Hichborn petitioned for a divorce, but ended his life at the home of his sister, Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., while proceedings were pending. The decree was granted after his death.

After the divorce Wylie and Mrs. Hichborn were married in 1916 in Corsica, where they were living with their three children.

Divorces Then Weds

Mrs. Wylie obtained a divorce at Providence in March, 1923, and in October of the same year married Mr. Benet.

Francis P. Dougherty, Providence attorney, who was recently indicted for divorce mill operations, was Mrs. Wylie's lawyer when she obtained the divorce from Wylie. The depositions in her suit were sworn out before Leonard W. Horton, master in chancery, who with Dougherty is in jail. More than 100 divorces in which they figured are under scrutiny.

Mrs. Wylie deposed that she lived in Bristol three years prior to February 3, 1923. The length of residence required of a divorce petitioner is two years. Investigators have found no evidence of a Bristol domicile and say that two witnesses who swore she had lived in Bristol were mythical.

MEIGHAN SCORES ANOTHER REAL HIT

Lila Lee Makes Final Bow To Films In Picture

THOMAS MEIGHAN AND LILA LEE IN GEORGE ADE'S "OLD HOME WEEK" A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

Olympic Sunday.

Every ambitious boy dreams of the time when he will go out into the big world and return to the old home town, famous and rich. Then the mean old grouch on the corner, the estingy grocer who kept too close an eye on his bananas, the catty school marm, the patronizing wife of the town's "big man" who objected to juvenile sniffling—everybody will swell with pride and importance, and "I know him when" will be the town's slogan Fundamental Theme.

That is the fundamental theme of Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount comedy-romance, "Old Home Week," which makes its initial appearance tonight at the Olympica theatre. But George Ade, the famous American humorist who wrote the story, has given this basic idea an original twist, filled it with comedy ingredients, added some dramatic trimmings, a surprise climax and a delightful ending, and the result is a picture bubbling over with wholesome humor, clean fun and homespun pep.

As Tom Clark, the native son who "makes good" right in his own home town, Tommy Meighan has a role that suits him to the proverbial "T." His performance rings true because there is an air of unaffected naturalness about it, an undercurrent of sincerity and plausibility that holds the interest of the audience from the opening flash in the final fadeout.

Good Photoplay.

Not a little of the success of the photoplay is due to the intelligent scenario Tom Geraghty has provided and the deft direction of Victor Heerman. The picture throbs with reality and humanness because they have convincingly transferred the spirit and favor of the story to the screen.

Mr. Meighan has the assistance of a tip-top support cast which is headed by charming and lovely Lila Lee who contributes a delightful characterization as Tom's sweetheart. Larry Wheat, Charles Dow Clark, Max Figman and Charles Sellon are a few of the other prominent players, who give a very good account of themselves.

JUST A YEAR TO LIVE

Mission Puts on Unusual Film First Part of This Week

Antonio Moreno and Dorothy MacKaill in "One Year to Live"

What would you do if you had but one year to live

The question is asked you in the new First National picture, "One Year to Live," which starts at the Mission today.

And the movie obligingly answers, indirectly, by vividly depicting the plight of a beautiful girl whose physician tells her she has but one year to live.

It is a sensational theme, and is reported by pre-view critics to have been well carried out by an elaborate cast which includes Aileen Pringle, Antonio Moreno, Dorothy Mackaill and other favorites.

The scenes are laid in Paris, and have been given the glitter and glamor popularly associated with the gay night life of the French capital.

There are some fascinating glimpses behind the scenes of a famous Parisian theatre—and the panic which ensues when a beautiful, but temperamental, star refuses to "go on" for the paradoxical reason that the audience is clamoring for her.

"If they want me, they can wait." she reasons.

And there are some sequences of a bewildering carnival which climaxes the theatrical season in Paris. Hundreds of beautiful girls, in glorious costumes, take part amidst showers of confetti and a bedlam of music and hilarity.

One year to live.

Miss Pringle has the role of the girl, and her problem is dual. While facing death, herself, she must also provide for the comfort and safety of an invalided little sister (Dorothy Mackaill) after she is gone.

It is in search of a dual solution that she plunges into the night life of the capital. And it is there the picture reaches a dramatic climax when she meets the man she really loves (Moreno).

M. C. Levee, its producer, has given the film a lavish production, and the direction by Irving Cummings develops the full power of the contrasting gayety and tragedy of the plot.

"One Year to Live," should live much longer on the screen.

EVERY MOVIE OFFERING A FEATURE

Unusual List of Attractions To Be Offered This Week

"One Year to Live," "Soul Fire," "Old Home Week," "The Denial," "Lady of the Night," all of them first run pictures, will be shown in Wichita Falls this week.

The Olympic is starting something new in billing only one show for the entire seven days. "Old Home Week," featuring Thomas Meighan and Lila Lee, a combination that has never failed to please a movie going people. Meighan plays the sort of role suited to him, that of an easy going sort of individual who takes life as he finds it. He eventually proves himself a hero though when he successfully outwits a pair of oil crooks and stamps himself as the town's idol.

Lila Lee heads a strong supporting cast, playing opposite the star and as usual gives a good account of herself. She plays the part of a young village belle in love with the city chap and eventually wins him.

The plot of the story concerns the scheme of two oil sharpers who plan an old home week in an effort to get people to go into their fake oil well scheme. The hero returns from the city, broke, but rich to all appearances and sets out to upset their plans. He undoes himself first however and that is where the drama and comedy come in.

If you had only one year to live, what would you do? That is the question the Mission asks in a general sort of way to attract attention to their feature picture this week, "One Year to Live."

With Antonio Moreno and Dorothy MacKaill playing the lead roles, there is certain to be no end of good acting. The setting of the story is in Paris. Dorothy MacKaill plays the part of the French actress who has only one year to live, and who in that time must do a number of things. She first of all must care for an invalid child, she must care for herself, and of course, true to the story, she must love. How she works out the year, with the day of death approaching nearer each day, is told in the drama that runs at the Mission for the first three days of this week.

Starting Wednesday, the management announces "Soul Fire," a drama of American society featuring Richard Barthelmess. Here again is a film that pre-release viewers have heralded as a great story. The star is supported by Carlotta Monterey and Ellalee Ruby.

Strand—"The Denial"

The Strand offers "The Denial," beginning today. The cast includes Claire Windsor, Bert Roach, and William Haines. The film portrays two different lives, that of the Spanish-American war days and that of the present day period. The story begins in 1897 with a romance, which was interrupted by the war. The girl marries another in the meantime.

Years pass and the romance of another day offers a new drama in the film that makes the film one of the best to be shown in Wichita Falls in some time.

Wednesday the theatre presents what the owners say will prove the best play offered at the Strand in the past six months, all favorites notwithstanding. The story is a comedy, unusual in plot, and uproarous in effect. Monta Bell takes the lead and this popular actor lives up to the name established for himself in past shows. Norma Shearer supports him and does it with all the ability for which she is famous.

The Palace will continue to sow the rapidly growing favorites, the Jolly Flapper Musical comedy. In addition several new films will be offered that should prove an attraction to Wichitans. Beginning Sunday "Lightning Brice," a serial in 18 episodes will be started. Jack Hoxie plays the hero and offers thrills and excitement galors.

Thursday the "Silent Accuser" will start. Raymond McKee will play the lead role, and will be ably supported by Peter the Great, the wonder dog.

GOOD AND BAD SOCIETY

"Scene from LADY OF THE NIGHT"

AT THE STRAND WEDNESDAY

No matter in what station of life one lives, emotions remain pretty much the same, according to the thesis of "Lady of the Night," which comes to the Strand theatre on Wednesday.

Monta Bell, director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has brought to the screen a powerful story of society at its highest and lowest levels.

He has filmed the lives of two girls—one at the top, the other at the bottom of the social ladder—who fall in love with the same man.

That it is love of the deepest kind is shown when the spirit of sacrifice moves both of these girls when in the climax they have to choose between what they regard as their happiness and their duty.

Brilliant social balls, receptions and country club dances set with the lavish hand of wealth are contrasted against the squalid home life of the slums and its only outlet of pleasure—the Bowery dance hall.

And Norma Shearer playing the dual role of Molly, daughter of a convict and Florence, daughter of the Judge who sent her father to prison, is said to give one of the finest performances of her career. She is supported by an exceptional cast, including Malcolm McGregor, as a young inventor; George K. Arthur, Fred Esmelton, Dale Fuller and Betty Moorrissey.

Miss Shearer's double part calls for something more than is usual in dual roles. For one thing she has to look entirely different, for there is little of facial resemblance in the two girls. The picture is made from an original story by Adela Rogers St. John, adapted for the screen by Alice D. G. Miller.

The picture is said to be the best of the three excellent pictures which Monta Bell has directed with Miss Shearer in the leading role—"Broadway "After Dark" and "The Snob" being the other two.

MISSION OFFERS DRAMA

Richard Barthelmess in "Soul Fire"

SHOWING AT THE MISSION

As the young musical genius of "Soul Fire," his newest First National vehicle, which opens Wednesday at the Mission theatre, Richard Barthelmess scores the hit of his career. We put ourselves on record as saying this, even with clear and vivid memories of his fine performances in "Broken Blossoms," "Tol'able David," "The Enchanted Cottage," "Classmates" and "New Toys."

His playing of Eric Fane, the young American seeking to express himself in music, is a remarkable contrast to his recent comedy performances of the young husband in "New Toys," it might be added. Here Mr. Barthelmess returns to the heights of tragedy. He achieves a number of fine moments of poignancy, of movie wistfulness and of powerful drama. His Eric Fane will be remembered when most of the celluloid performances of the current screen year are long forgotten.

"Soul Fire" moves before a picturesque background, for Eric Fane's quest of his great symphony leads him from Italy to Paris and from Port Said to the South Seas. His pilgrimage carries him to the pinnacle of success as a writer of jazz in the Latin Quarter of Paris, and to the very depth of the mire as a derelict, a revolutionist against the shams of society, in the "wickedest city of the world," Port Said. It is not until he shakes off the shackles of civilization and gets back to the simplicity of nature itself—in the lonely and lovely isles of the South Seas—that his genius strikes fire. Then the great symphony ——and Fane is world-famous

Not only does he find great music in the South Pacific, but he finds a very beautiful girl as well, one Teita, the castaway daughter of English parents. With Barthelmess playing Fane and Bessie Love portraying Teita, these love interludes become things of sheer lyric beatuy. Indeed, Barthelmess, it should be noted, never played with such compelling sentiment and romance. His work has great histrionic vitality and great charm as well.

A remarkably fine cast surrounds Barthelmess. Aside from Miss Love, the principal roles are in the hands of Helen Ware, Carlotta Monterey, Walter Long, Harriet Sterling, Richard Harlan, Effie Shannon and other well known players.

The direction of John Robertson deserves a paragraph itself. Robertson has done nothing better than "Soul Fire," which takes rank beside his best photoplays, such as "Sentimental Tommy" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Indeed, "Soul Fire" is a noteworthy piece of directorial inspiration.

Special Acts Planned For The Olympic

A special act at the Olympic theatre engaged for the run of "Old Home Week," Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture is composed of an old time fiddler and banjo player. Lovers of the old familiar tunes will have an opportunity to hear their old favorites played over again exactly as they were played when our grandparents were young. Mr. J. E. Tucker the fiddler has won two big contests paying "The Arkansas Traveler" and he plays all the other old favorites with ability, including such old time toe-ticklers as "Turkey in the Straw," "Pop Goes the Weasel" etc. Edgar Gibbs is Tucker's accompanist and is declared to be one of the best banjo pickers that ever played at a square dance. Both these men are Wichita Falls people and they need no introduction to many people here who have heard them play. Their act will be presented as a prologue to the feature picture "Old Home Week" at the 4:30, 8 and 9:45 shows Sunday and at the two night shows during the week, and is an act that should be welcomed with open hearts during this saxophone age.

Women In the Next War ========== By Rupert Hughes

Women will fight in the ranks alongside the men when the next war comes—unless it comes too soon. If it does then they will fight in the one after that. For there will be another war before long; and another after that; and so on and on. That is as safe a prophecy as saying that there will be snow next winter and that many regions will get rain that don't want it, and many won't get it that do.

Women will be part of the regular army, the volunteers and the draft-troops. And why not? After all it is no more cruel to kill a woman than to kill her son and her husband or her father. And women are just as warlike as the men—perhaps a little fiercer when the battle breaks.

There have been ferocious women-warriors. They fought long before the lengendary Amazons. Individuals have fought in all nations and in all wars. There were women in our revolutionary and Civil wars, and our pioneer women killed and scalped the Indians with a right good will when the time came. In the world war there were organized troops of women in Russia and Poland. Everybody remembers the Russian Battallion of Death.

Women go to the polls now, run for all the offices and appear in all the businesses. Why should they not take their place in the trenches? For one thing, the women will not object.

More nonsense has been written and spoken about war than about almost any other subject—possibly because it is the most dramatic and horrible thing in the world. War is also the most unreasonable thing in the world: therefore the surest thing to happen again.

To some kind souls the unreasonableness of war is a reason why there must never be another war. We have heard a vast amount of talk of late years about the last war, the war to end war, and the war against war.

If I remember correctly there was a League of Nations founded some time ago—the thirty-seventh of ninety-eighth or something the league on record that was to prevent future wars. The object was "to bring people together round a table" to discuss things amicably and so to settle quarrels by conversation. As if the one way to prevent war were not to prevent people from getting together! As if conversation and discussion were not the surest way to start a quarrel! As if most quarrels did not start around a table!

The first grand vistage of the anti-warrers—and there are all too many women among them—is to assume that everybody wants a war; that soldiers like to kill, and that it helps to prevent war if you only show how wasteful, cruel and destructive wars are. Just show people how soldiers suffer and they won't want to fight!

That is like curing the cholera by describing its ravages, and exterminating cancer by conventions. Cholera was conquered by a study of microbes. Cancer will be conquered by science, not by denunciation of its victims or lurid accounts of its cruelties.

One thing is horribly certain: the more horrible a war is the more widespread it is bound to become. This is not my fault and I am not boasting of it or responsible for it. I learned it from history not from my own black heart.

Another nonsensical thing is to speak of the next war as bound to be so destrictive that nobody will be left to wage it. This folly has been uttered after every new military invention since the hand-axe was improved upon by the javelin and that by the bow and arrow.

Fact, not fancy, says that more wars were prevented by preparedness than were ever prevented by helplessness.

Hundreds of wars are stopped in advance by compromise and common sense, and by a sense of uncertainty lest one bite off more than he can chew.

I was in Paris when the Agadir trouble nearly brought Germany and France to war. The airships gathered, the word to mobilize was all but uttered, then Germany backed down. The kaiser found he was not so ready as he thought he was and the French were readier than he thought they were. But he came back later and drove through Belgium, as many people knew he would. And now he wishes he hadn't. But he may come back, or his heirs may come back, as Napoleon returned from Elba and drenched the field of Waterloo, only to fail again; only to return in the person of Napoleon III who was elected president of a republic (as Von Hindenberg has just been elected, assured everybody that he had no monarchical ideas (as Von Hindenberg has just done) and then throttled the republic and erected a throne (as Von Hindenberg may do) and brought on another great war (as Von Hindenberg may—or may not do.)

During the debates over the League of Nations some years ago I wrote an article for the New York Times in which I sketched the history of various leagues and mentioned one we made with the Indians in the American colonies, the result being the annihilation shortly after of the poor Indians who entrusted their destinies to our dear Puritans. I ridiculed the idea that the league would prevent another war. Mr. Raymond Fosdick replied to my ridicule by an article ridiculing me and pointing out that it was foolish to insist that there would be another war.

A few weeks ago Mr. Fosdick was quoted in the papers as saying that another war would come very soon and that it would be more terrible than the last one.

The League of Nations is already in pitiable state of collapse and more likely to foment wars than end them.

So it always goes, always has gone. The latest league has not succeeded in preventing war, but it has succeeded in persuading several small nations that it is the tool of a few large nations. From such suspicion gory battle springs.

Now nobody could be more soft-heartedly hostile to wars than I am. I detest the very thought of them, and I don't want to harm a man, woman, child or nation in the world. I hate wars even more than I hate the diseases, disasters, heartbreaks, financial panics, accidents, deaths, and miseries of this complicated world.

But I am lacking in that beautiful type of mind which believes a thing improbable because it is undesirable.

We all have our ideals, but idealism, like any other "ism" is generally a form of mental ill-health.

If the "idealists" had not prevented America from being prepared for the World War, in spite of two years of warning, we could have entered it promptly and ended it a year earlier with a saving of about four million lives. But what are four million lives between idealists? They are working for a "principle," and therefore they may sacrifice truth, life, liberty and history more ruthlessly than any barbarian.

Today the idealists are preventing the minimum preparedness demanded by common sense, and we shall undoubtedly enter our next war in our usual helpless condition with a resultant loss of perhaps several million more lives.

We have always been unprepared. We have always been kept from preparedness by the idealists of the day. We are now kept from preparedness by the idealists of our day.

None the less, men and women who love their countries or their liberties must take the abuse of the idealists and fight for as much preparedness as they can eke out for the next war.

And war will come—not for any better reason than before; but for the ancient reason that human nature is human nature and there is no sign of diminution in the willingness of people to die for their passionate beliefs.

It behooves women to make sure that when they are drafted in the next great conflict, as they will be, they and their country shall not be found as cruelly unprepared as hitherto.

Even the most pacifistic fanatics were jolted the other day when the German republic suddenly elected to its presidency the old warrior, the devout monarchist Von Hindenberg. The headliners were like earthquakes to the world. The Literary Digest said that "a chill of apprehension fell across Europe and America when the verdict of the polls revealed Field Marshall Von Hindenberg as the first president of the German republic actually elected by the people."

There was a lull on second thought. But so there was after the Archduke of Austria was shot at Sarajevo. The eruption was preparing none the less and by and by American men and women were in the trenches of France.

This very day I find in one of the papers a long article by Guglielmo Ferrero, who has as good a right as anybody to be called "the foremost historian of Europe." He discusses the treaty between the Russians and the Japanese, and the Soviet renewal in Asia of "the imperialistic policy of Czarism."

He says that " a great Asiatic cyclone is preparing as a consequence of the World War. It will burst in ten, twenty, thirty years, and there are no signs of what miracle can stay its advent. It may take the form of a great war between Japan and England, complicated by a revolution in India, and might end with the fall of European domination in Asia. This cyclone is so inevitable that it was a capital error to endeavor to comprise in the League of Nations all the states of the world, instead of limiting it to Europe only."

So here is a learned thinker opposing himself directly to all those monopolists of virtue who denounced the United States for staying out of the league, and who drove Henry Cabot Lodge to his grave in a storm of unending obloquy for being the one dog in the manger who kept us out of the league; though anybody with any regard for facts could have found out what the next election showed: that the American people were in enormous majority against entering the league.

Facts, friends! Let us have facts! Let us not be idiots enough to denounce barometers for bringing on storms, the slander umbrella-makers for being the fiends who cause the rain.

Women must study history for they are going to make more and more of it—especially in war.

It is a commonplace idiocy to say that there would be no wars if mothers had their way. But mothers always have their say and some of the greatest warriors have been queens and some of the greatest fomentors of war have been mothers.

In my own experience, when a war really starts, it takes several men to hold the mothers. They grow so ferocious that they frighten their sons.

It is a terrible thing for a mother to lose a son in war. But it is a terrible thing for a mother to lose a son by marriage or by death. Yet marriages and deaths cannot be prevented by pointing out the pathos they cause.

Furthermore, it is a terrible thing for a father to lose his son in war. It is a terrible thing for a son to lose himself in war. But what has that got to do with it?

The same people who say that women are too sweet to fight, used to say that women are too sweet to vote or to be allowed out of the house without a male protector.

Those old idiocies are stil dying hard but they are dying.

It is just seventy-one years ago that Florence Nightingale horrified all the good people of England by announcing an indecent desire to go to the Crimean war and nurse the soldiers who were drowning in mud and having their intended wounds eaten alive and raw by the undisturbed flies and maggots.

Would you believe that the high-minded gentlemen and ladies of her day called her filthy names and likened her to a street-walker? But she went and won immortality by the beautiful sublimity of slapping the best people in the face. And now the Church of England wants to canonize her as a saint.

She made such a sensation that when our Civil war broke out several years later, two thousand American women went into the field as nurses. The nice ladies were satisfied to stay at home and scrape the fuzz off of linen. It was called lint and was stuffed into the wounds of the poor soldiers whom gangrene ate alive in hordes. Most of the nurses were men. Walt Whitman was one of them. It was thought wonderful that two thousand women should be so bold. But there were two million men in arms. And only one woman nurse to every thousands of the poor dogs.

In the World War the women turned out en masse. Thousands on thousands wore breeches and puttees, and went into the trenches.

It enfuriates me to hear so many big-mouthed moralists yawp against the women of our generation for being inferior to the women of the last. Never in the history of mankind was womanhood so glorious, so loyal, so devoted, so womanly. Young and old, of all nations, sprang up fearlessly and reached sublimities of courage and of love.

They will do better yet in the next war. For they will carry arms and wield them well. And why not?

Women can shoot as well as men. Some women shoot far better than most men. How many males ever equaled Annie Oakley? Women can sail boats and run steamships. There are women who are licensed air-pilots There are numberless women athletes who are far superior to the average man in prowess and endurance. Some of the greatest mathematicians and scientists of our day are women. The last war proved that women can stand the hardships as well as men can stand them. So let them make ready in their various nations for the supreme test of their mettle.

It is discouraging to find that these tremendously expensive and gaseous conventions were the pacifists gather and malign everybody that dares to expect the inevitable, are so numberously attended by women. But it is encouraging to note that there is a leaven of hard-headed, good-hearted women who lighten the mass.

As I write this, there is a great conference of women in Washington, and the pacifists have carried their bullying tactics so far that a headline in yesterday's paper announces; in the new language that might be called headlinese: "Pacifism May Disrupt Meet." The report goes on to mention "indications that American patriotic societies connected with the organization might consider with-drawing should its meeting develop a pacifist trend. Interest in the withdrawal rumors reached a particularly high pitch because the program tomorrow calls for consideration of resolutions of the peace committee which deal with disarmament, the League of Nations, and the world court."

Patriotism, like mother love, is not a matter of reason but of passion; it exists in all normal beings, and those who are superior to either emotion are abnormal. The trouble with patriotism, as with mother love, is that other people feel it as strongly as we do. Our enemies are as sincere as we are. Until they trust us well enough to disarm first, we should be as foolish to disarm first, as they would be to trust us well enough to disarm first.

Woe to the world because of wars that must come. But woe be unto him and unto her, who, when war comes, fails to give his or her utmost even unto death.

In the World Wars Women Turned Out "En Masse."

Bevy of Birthdays Stir Lardner Menage Deef and Dumb Dog, Pete, Had to Be Exchanged for Voluble Purp--Ring Living Pretty Close—By Lardner

To the editor:

This is the time of yh. when all the conversation in our neighborhood is in regards to flowers and how is your delphineums coming along and ets. and for'a man like I that don't know a azalea from a 3 toed sleuth about all as I can do is set around with my mouth shut and wished it was football season. Once in a wile I have got to pretend like I was interested and listen to what is being said as otherwise I would not know whether to saw how terrible or ain't that grand.

Like for inst. I was talking to Oscar Shaw one day or rather he was talking to me and when he got through I said fine, but come to find out afterwards whathe told me was that he had went to the flower show and boughten $50.00 worth of sweet pea seeds and planted them and not one sweet pea had come up.

Tough Luck Gifts.

This was quite a set back because when you come to think of it $50.00 worth of sweet pea seeds is several sweet pea seeds and I suppose if they was shook out of their packages and laid end to end they would probably be enough of them to reach from the Presidio to Grant's tomb so me saying fine to Oscar was like as if you would of went in a telegraph office the 5 of last November and wired hearty congratulations to J. W. Davis collect. But as I say I ain't no expert on flowers and seeds and etc. thoug self the people I am introduced to calls me Gardner.

Since the last time I give you the home news we have had 4 or 5 birth days in the family including I and the madam but her and I don't brag no more about our birthdays but a birthday is a big event in the life of the kiddies and they can't think of nothing else for a mo. before and after same.

As I may of said before the question of buying xmas and birthday presents has become a serious question around our little nest not only on acct. of they being such a bevy to buy for but also it seems like they was a curse or blight on our presents the same like on Oscar's sweet pea seeds.

For example a yr. ago last xmas we invested in a radio as the kiddies had been squawking for one ever since they was out on the market and when we got it all set up and connected why we couldn't even hear static let alone Schenectady. The parrot we bought didn't say boo for a entire mo. Every bicycle we have ordered has been shy a couple of pedals or wheels or something and the books has all had whole pages tore out of them and the games has been short 3 or 4 cards or more.

Well we had a long argument in regards to what should we buy for little David on the occasion of him being 6 yrs. old and finely decided on a dog though all the dogs we ever had was nothing but a misery to us but anyways we plunged on a wire haired fox terrier and David was tickled to death with same and named him Pete but he may as well of left him anonymous as it soon developed that the little canine creature was absolutely stone deef and dumb.

So poor David hadn't no sooner than began to love his new pet when same had to be took back to town and exchanged for another one which can both hear and talk but won't never be as high in his master's esteem as Pete was. Personly I have wished more than once since the substitute come that either he was dumb or myself was deef.

Lunch in N. Y.

Incidently David may not get his degree from kindergarten this June on acct. of being laid up with whooping cought which his brothers claim he catched it from the co-eds who insist on kissing him all the time.

"Not all the time," said Modest David when this theory was promulgated.

Speaking about birthdays, another mouth to feed has recently been added to the already numerous array in the person of a calf which has been christened Kate in honor of a friend of ours on acct. of both of them looking so silly.

The master of the house has been sticking pretty close to home as it seems to be cheaper but I did go into old N. Y. one day to tend a luncheon that Ray Long give in honor of Michael Arlen author of the Green hat who I had heard somebody say he was the swellest dresser in the world and I wanted to get a look at him but he was completely showed up from a scenic standpoint by O. O. McIntyre who his friends call him Odd and no wonder and they say he gets his clothes made in Paris by Suzanne Lenglen and Irv Cobb says that when Odd is going to have a new suit made the orders material that was intended for fancy vests and has coat and pants made out of it and then selects the vest from assorted college pennants.

Amongst the Great Neck items in the papers recently was a item in regards to Ed Wynn buying a $250,-

000 home and the item went on to say that this made Ed a neighbor of Tommy Meighan and I. Well it makes Ed a neighbor of Tommy all right but the home he ought is 2 and a half miles further from me than the home he had and maybe that is why he bought it, but anyway when people asks me after this if I don't live pretty close to Ed Wynn I will half to tell them I live pretty close but not to Ed Wynn.

Two Romances Shown in "The Denial" at Strand This Week

SHOWING AT THE STRAND

"The Denial," Hobart Henley's third production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will be at the Strand theatre for three days, beginning today. It is a story of two periods—of today and the time of the Spanish-American war, showing the outcome of two romances that were beset with similar difficulties.

Claire Windsor, who plays the leading role, is said to do the best work of her career, appearing both as a girl of 1897 and as a mother of 45 at the present day. The part is a distinct novelty for this actress, and the report is that she has the opportunity for some fine character work.

William Haines is the 1897 youth with whom Mildred (Miss Windsor) is in love. Bert Roach, who made such a hit in "Excuse Me" as the bibulous salesman, is his rival. Edward Connelly, the Metro favorite, and Emily Fitzroy appear as the girl's parents, one meek and quiet, the other domineering and ponderous.

Billy Eugene plays the role of Mildred's brother who gets mixed up with an 1897 "fast" woman, while Vivian Ogden appears as the gossipy Aunt Effie.

"The Denial" is based on the play "The Square Peg," by Lewis Beach, and in its screen adaptation by Agnes Christine Johnston has been divided into a prologue, main story and epilogue.

The two young lovers of the present day, a young aviator named Billie, and Dorothy, Mildred's daughter, wish to get married, but the mother will not hear of it because she does not want her daughter to take a chance on a man who is shortly to go on an expedition to the Polar regions, and who may never come back. The youthful lovers persist, however, and Mildred is forced to look back on her own life.

The central part of the story then occurs, showing how Mildred had been kept from marrying the man of her dreams by her mother, and was forced into a drab, loveless existence with a youth who was wealthy, but who held no attraction for her.

Then a climax is reached which is both novel and exciting in which the scene shifts back to the present day.

RICKENBACKER AUTO OUTDOES ADVERTISEMENT

Cannon Ball Baker Goes Faster Than Makers Say He Can

"It is not often that a car can perform better than the advertising can promise, but we actually did run into such a condition recently," says Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, vice-president and director of sales of the Rickenbacker Motor company.

"It happened this way:

"Cannon Ball Baker, who has been lowering one road record after another all the way across the continent and back is not only a marvelous driver but he is a stickler for facts.

"That is what makes his records valuable—every newspaper man in the land knows that Baker is a dependable individual and that a second or a tenth of a mile is of vital importance to his way of thinking. If our advertising makes the slightest error in the way of either over-stating or understating the time or the distance of a record, we hear from him, pronto.

Checks Up On Decks

"No matter where he is, he critically scans the publicity and checks up the facts.

"For that very reason, we usually publish his telegrams just as they are received at the factory. He gives all the essential facts and is just as dynamic in wording his messages as he is driving a car.

"However, when we received his telegram stating that he had driven from Ogden, Utah, to Salt Lake City, Utah, 36.5 miles, in 36 minutes 18 seconds time; and that on the good stretches had made as high as 85 miles per hour, we assumed that he must have put a special set of gears in his rear axle.

"In fact I was certain of it," says Captain Rickenbacker, "and so I took the liberty in our advertisement, concerning this feat, a statement to the effect that 'the car was a regular stock model with the exception of gear ratio which was 4 1-4 to 1.'"

Not a Stock Model.

"Now it is a fact that we have built some cars with gear ratio of 41-4 to 1, but inasmuch as the rules do not permit a car to qualify as 'stock model' unless 1,000 just like it have been built and sold, I did not feel justified in calling this a strictly stock car.

"Baker's telegram about the record had said nothing about gear ratio but a hasty calculation had convinced me and our engineers that no car with 32-inch wheels and a 4.6 to 1 gear in rear axle could possibly travel 85 miles per hour.

"Yet we had the authenticated record to prove that Cannon Ball Baker's Rickenbacker's Six had actually attained that terrific speed.

"What was our amazement to receive a day or two later, a message from Baker stating:

"Your 'ad' contains serious misstatement. I used standard stock gear ratio."

"Then we began to do some more figuring.

"It was a matter of simple arithmetic to find that, in order to do what Cannon Ball Baker's car had done, that Rickenbacker motor had to turn up more than 4,100 revolutions per minute!

"That is some test of a lubricating system.

"Imagine our chagrin as well as our satisfaction to discover that for once at least the car had actually outtalked the advertising."

Buses which operate more slowly than passenger motor cars complicate the handling of traffic on this street. From this picture it will be seen how difficult it would be to cut around a bus.

Heavy vehicles are not permitted on this street except during certain hours. Cruising taxicabs are not allowed at any hours.

"Many-Profit Car Passing Out-"One-Profit" Business Now In Vogue-Says Owner

There is a phase of automobile building which will be talked of more this summer than almost any mechanical detail of the car.

Buyers of motor cars are being permitted to look farther and farther into the manufacture of the machine, as years go by, increasing their knowledge of car building and becoming, thereby, more careful and more competent buyers.

As a result, more than 560 makes of automobiles, each announced to the public in the beginning with a flourish and many adjectives, have been discarded by competent buyers and no longer are on the market.

The phase of building which is the next step in the education of the public in the real work of motor cars, may be called "one-profit manufacture. A year ago, that hrase would have meant little to a buyer. Next year, it will be a potent factor, as distinguished from "many-profit" building.

Makes Entire Car.

It means this: The "one-profit" manufacturer makes the entire car, complete. He does not buy the engine here, the body there ,the springs, frames, transmissions and whatnot elsewhere. Making them himself only one profit is taken onthe car.

On the contrary, in an assembled car, the maker of the engine takes his profit, the body builder does likewise, and so do all the parts makers.

On top of all these separates profits the assembler adds his own profit, his own overhead business expense, his sales and other costs, further amplifying the excess.

Not one tangible thing is represented in the complete car by any of these separate profits, except in the price. Paying for them is like buying the air in a new tire, the hole in a doughnut, water in stock. It is, as Studebaker points out, the "bone in the beefsteak." One has to pay for the bone, but it represents no value when he comes to eat the steak.

A conservative compilation of such extra costs on a sample assembled car selling under $1,500 was $369. That is a lot of money to pay for "bone" in a beefsteak.

The situation is elemental. The engine maker, the body builder, the springs, frame, transmission, wheel and other parts makers must have their profits, above their actual costs and overhead expense, to keep in business.

Consider Own Purses.

But buyers are beginning to ask whether they should consider their own purses, in buying a car, or whether their interest is in maintaining separate parts establishments. Over the graves of the host of "departed" assembled cars, this discussion will be keen this summer.

Studebaker makes its own car complete. Such a company does not have to pay a dozen profits, maintain a dozen overhead establishments, and then hide the extra costs, the "bone in the beefsteak" in the price of the car. Nor does it have to fit its designs to stock bodies or stock parts of any kind. The whole car is built to fit one design. Its bodies are distinctive, not found on a half-dozen makes of car, losing individuality.

Which in part accounts for the inability of the factories to keep up with the orders and demands for the new models.

For in place of the "bone" in a Studebaker "beefsteak", real "meat" can be built in, without an increase in price. That's why, points out the South Bend company, its product stands up where others give out, delivering unequalled service. It's a situation which every car maker must meet.

HAND BRAKE ON MARMON IS POPULAR

Emergency Brake Has a Capable Experience, Says Dealer

An interesting and distinctive feature of Marmon construction which, under existing congested conditions of traffic, has come in for unusually favorable comment, is the convenient location and altogether capable appearance of the Marmon emergency brake, which occupies a paramount position in the location of the operation mechanism of Marmon cars, according to L. W. Fritz, local Marmon dealer. Contrary to the practices of other motor car manufacturers in placing the emergency brake in a remote position, where it is necessary to stoop forward with chest on the steering wheel and grope uncertainly for it, Marmon has placed its emergency brake a scant few inches from the right hand as it rests normally on the steering wheel.

Ordinary Brake Useless.

"The inconvenience of reaching the conventional emergency brake is so great that it is rarely used except in locking the car in parking," says Mr. Fritz. "Accurate control of the car is obviously impossible when it is necessary to grope uncertainly for the emergency brake. The advantage of accessibility will be noted in moving from a standstill up a grade. It is good driving practice under this condition to keep the car from slipping backward by application of the emergency brake with the right hand while the left foot engages the clutch and the right foot controls the engine speed at the accelerator pedal. The superior ease of accomplishing this with the Marmon type emergency brake is most striking in comparison with the inaccessibly arranged control of the ordinary car."

Get Use to It.

Marmon drivers, especially women, for mthe habit of using the emergency brake, moderately applied in conjunction with the foot brake in ordinary stops. This habit is possible only when the emergency brake is conveniently placed. Incidentally this practice is easier on the brake mechanism, causing both sets of brakes to wear equally. Replacement of brake bands becomes necessary only about one-half as often and considerable saving in repair bills is the result since relining both brakes costs very little more than relining the service brake alone.

The location of the Marmon emergency brake, Mrs. Fritz says, has been the means, in numerous instances, of saving collisions in traffic jams which might easily have been serious.

Tests Show Oakland Easy With Gasoline

The senior class in automotive engineering at the Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, recently conducted a series of tests to wring the secrets of Oakland six economy from this car by scientific means and measurements, only to discover that it averaged 25.8 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Another interesting record noted was that the Oakland accelerated from 5 to 25 miles per hour in eight seconds in high gear and in five seconds in second gear. At thirty miles per hour, the four wheel brakes brought the car to a stop in 25 feet, 9 inches.

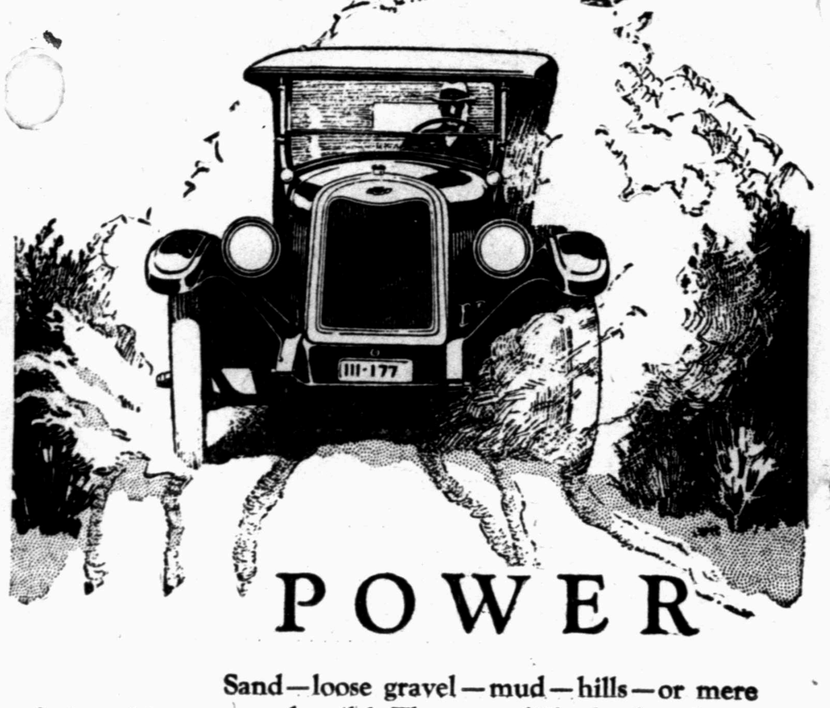

In charting the economy curve, it was discovered that the greatest efficiency in miles per gallon was secured at a speed range between 18 and 25 miles per hour—which is the speed at which the majority of city driving is done.

Six road runs constituted the tests, which were made on an Oakland touring car by seven senior students, under the direction of Professor Mason.

PIERCE-ARROW SHOWS PROFIT FOR 3 MONTHS

Big Increase of Earnings Reported by Motor Company

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 30.—The Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company has issued its quarterly statement of income account for the three months ended March 31, 1925. During this period the corporation showed a balance of profits before depreciation of $350,964 compared wit h$378,109 in the corresponding period of 1924. Depreciation charges were increased during the quarte rover $17,000. After all deductions, including interest on notes and debentures, and provision for federal taxes, the March quarter showed a balance available for the prior perference and preferred stock of $200,416, as compared with $78,729 in the first quarter of 1924, a comparative increase of $121,687 or 155 per cent. These earnings were equivalent to $1.68 a share on the $10,000,000 preferred stock after allowance for the quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the prior preference stock.

During the March quarter Pierce-Arrow shipments ran slightly over 70 per cent in excess of the three months to March 31, 1924. The March business it is understood was the largest of any month since May, 1920. The company continues to cenjoy favorable prospects for the current quarter. It is probable that April shipments will show the largest total of any month except during the war period.

The company has recently retired $500,000 of bank loans, reducing its bank obligation substantially below the December 31, 1924 figures. At the present time, cash in hand materially exceeds the amount of bank borrowings. As evidence of the high credit which Pierce-Arrow enjoys it may be stated that the first mortgage bonds which since 1923 have been deposited as collateral for its bank loans, have now been released to the company and are back in its treasury. None of these bonds has ever been sold to the public and their return to the company's treasury demonstrates very clearly that Pierce-Arrow in volume of business, margin of profit and net earnings has attained a satisfactory and independent financial position.

	First Quarter Ended March 31st. 1925	1924
Net earnings before depreciation	$550,964	$378,410
Deduct: Depreciation	192,984	175,569
	$357,980	$202,541
Less: Interest, taxes and miscl. charges	157,564	123,812

Veteran Gear Tester Has Passed on More Than a Million Axles

"Dad" Cutler, who completed on May 30 eight years of "silence testing" at the Chevrolet gear and axle plant in Detroit, has approved during that time more than 1,000,000 axle gear assemblies.

His ear has been specially trained to detect noises in the driving gears of the Chevrolet axle.

Just Starting.

"Retire! Not me! I'm just starting on my second million. Besides I'm getting married in June."

Cutler has been a widower for 18 years. He is a veteran of the western oil fields and was in the Klondike gold rush.

In his "silence test" the gears on the rear end of the drive shaft are clamped into a machine which has two rear wheels, axles and brakes similar to those in the completed car. The forward end of the drive shaft engages an electric motor drive which "Dad" starts with a foot lever. Then he manipulates the brakes so that the gears revolve both forward and backward under all possible driving conditions. If his ear detects any slight irregularity in the purr of the gears, the assembly is rejected.

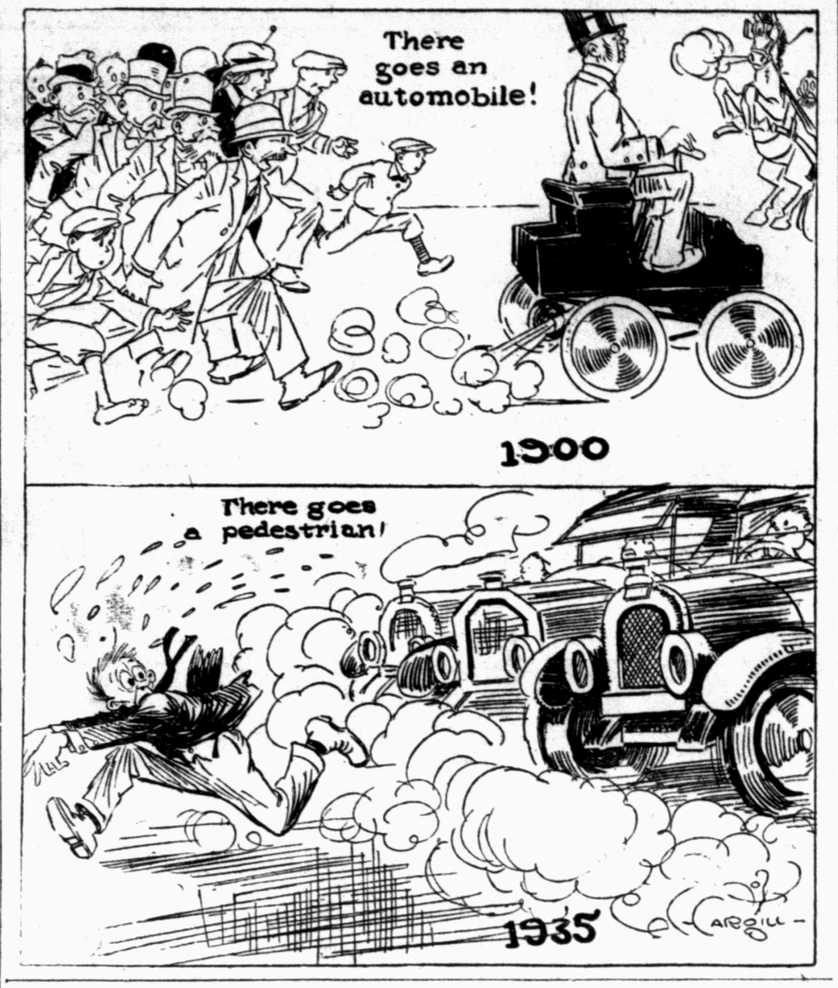

"Dad" Dean of Crew.

At adjoining test blocks are other men on the same work whose experience ranges from two to four years. But "Dad" is the dean of the crew.

"It requires one year of training before a man's ear is 'tuned to a point where he can judge the sound of a gear assembly," he said. "I don't hear any other sounds around me. I have learned to ignore them. All I hear is the gear murmur.

"The method is like that of a robin listening for earthworms crawling under the sod. The robin pays no attention to surrounding noise. His interest is centered upon the slight sound of worms crawling under the grass roots. The robin makes his living by hearing those sounds. I make my living by hearing the gear sounds."

The parts comprising the axle gears are subjected to numerous precision tests before being assembled. An electrical device on the test stand determines the load under which the axle is tested and gives the equal of road conditions. The 'silence test" is made just before the gear assembly goes into the car.

FORD CO. SETS NEW FACTORY MARK FOR DAY

Assembly Plants Turn Out 7,858 Cars in 8-Hour Working Day

The Ford Motor company set a new record for production Tuesday, May 19, when its assembly plants turned out 7,858 Ford cars and trucks in the eight-hour working day. This record is for the United States plants alone and does not include foreign plants and associated companies or the Ford Motor company of Canada, Ltd.

An interesting thing in connection with this remarkable production is that the company is exceeding its most careful estimates for May. Current Ford billboards, which were prepared 60 days ago, carry the message, "7,000 More Since Yesterday." But in actual output the company exceeded this by 850.

Production of the company has been steadily increased during the last few weeks due to the growing spring business and new output records have been frequent, but none approaching within 100 of the remarkable figure of Tuesday.

On April 28 the domestic plants beat a record of 7,482 established a year ago by assembling 7,594 cars and trucks. This record stood until May 12 when production west to 7,732.

Oakland Hopes To Build for Future, Says Factory Head

While the so-called saturation point in the motor car industry will ever be in the distant future, due to growth in population and the ever widening and new uses to which to the motor car will be put, the time has arrived for intensive organization and co-ordination—in other words, preparation for the "long haul" period, in the opinion of C. W. Matheson, vice-president and director of sales of the Oakland Motor Car company.

"The motor car company that is building for permanence must make preparation for at least five years in advance," he states. "Intensive merchandising requires intensive organization, which means sound engineering, economical production and salesmanship of the highest order in the whole dealer organization.

"In line with the General Motors plans to prepare for this 'long haul,' Oakland has just put into operation plans that look to increasing, permanent business for years in the future.

"Probably the greatest step looking forward to sound business connections with dealers was the announced policy of the General Motors corporation last year that none of its units would 'overload' its dealers with cars. This policy is being conscientiously followed by Oakland.

"In planning for sound dealer connections, Oakland has recently inaugurated a most comprehensive sales development department to help the dealers' sales organizations. We feel that it is very much to our own interest to train the dealers' salesmen in the most modern merchandising methods and to this end are conducting sales among our dealers throughout the country. We desire to eliminate the 'floater' type of salesman by preparing salesmen for a life work.

"Our engineering department is keeping pace with the intensified methods used in merchandising. We not only have a chief engineer and an assistant engineer, but also a body designing engineer and an automotive electrical engineer, as well as experimental tool and metallurgical engineers. Our four chief engineers headed, for a number of years, the engineering staff of the Cadillac Motor Car company.

"We are selecting our dealers slowly and carefully, as we want them with us for years. The fact that our dealers are building new and most modern sales and service buildings indicates their faith in the industry.

"We are constantly improving production methods and likewise improving our models. We do not economize at the expense of the car, but build to a standard of quality rather than to a price. We believe this policy pays in the long run.

"It might all be summed up in the statement that we are planning at least five years ahead by putting into operating new methods of production and merchandising that we expect to bear fruit years in the future."

RICKENBACKER SETS ANOTHER PEAK RECORD

Mountain Mark Added To Long List of Cannon Ball Baker

Until Mr. Baker arrived in Denver last week, his Rickenbacker had done little in the form of purely hill and mountain records.

However, this famous car was introduced to some of Colorado's noted mountain highways when Cannon Ball drove this machine to the new record over the Circle Route.

Up Lookout Mountain.

The next morning after this marvelous run, Baker piloted the same car to the top of Lookout Mountain, 6.2 miles in 10 minutes 31 2-5 seconds, an acerage of 36.38 miles per hour. The time was checked from the railroad tracks at the base of the mountain to the Lookout Mountain Inn at the crest.

With the throttle wide open, Rickenbacker hit the railroad tracks at sixty miles per hour, passing the famous brick house at a mile a minute clip and continued on up the mountain leaving in its wake a cloud of dust. The speitators saw the blue car streaking along the side of the mountain, climbing up and up at an astonishing speed, leaving here and there on the sharpest turns dust whirling in the air similar to a young tornado.

And then at the top, Baker not content with establishing an up mountain record, immediately turned his car and started for a down mountain record. Passing Wild Cat Point in a very few seconds, it was soon seen that the down mountain time would be less than the climbing record.

In Fast Time.

Taking the turns just a little faster, running with throttle wide open on the short stretches, Baker succeeded in coming off the mountain and crossing the railroad tracks in 9 minutes, 31 2-5 seconds, just one minute less than the time required in going to the crest.

"Doc" Kenny of the Denver Post was the official timer, riding in the car with Mr. Baker and checking the time with two stop watches. Damon Gall of the Rocky Mountain News was the official observer.

This is the first time that a down mountain record has been established. Hundreds of cars and drivers, in all parts of the country, have lowered, established and attempted to establish mountain climbing records, but few if any have ever tried the down mountain stunt.

In mountain climbing tremendous power is required to make speed of any consideration, while the descension record is a perfect demonstration of the power that is built into the mechanical four-wheel brakes.

Growing Pains on Natural Gas Lines

Growing pains are quite likely to affect natural gas companies about this time. In the effort to be sure of enough gas for next winter's demands producing companies have begun field work, and the activities will continue into the late fall.

Field activities consist of removing pipe lines from wells that have died down so far they are no longer commercially usable and the coupling on of new wells to take their places as well as the drilling of more wells.

Opportunity is also taken at this time to replace pipe that has worn out. The effect of the soil on the mains in some places is very destructive. New mains are laid to replace those that have pitted or been victims of rust.

In territory where the chemical action of the soil is very destructive, these new mains are painted with a heavy coating that resists chemical action and are then carefully wrapped in heavy paper. These protections sometimes are quite effective in delaying the pitting of the metal—at other times and places they seem to have little value.

With the rearrangement of the feed lines from the wells into the compressor stations, it is sometimes necessary to do a lot of pipe fitting at the stations themselves.

This work is done in the summer time both because of the convenience of the outdoor labor at this time and because, due to the decreased domestic consumption, it can be done at less inconvenience to consumers.
