Allies Draft Nazi List For Early Trials

By ALEX SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Two dozen surviving chiefs of Hitler's Nazi gang — the men who plotted world conquest and reaped misery for their people instead—were listed officially today as defendants in a mass trial of arch war criminals.

Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, whose once-vaunted air force paced the aggression in the Nazis' years of arcendency, headed the list of 24 military leaders, diplomats and politicians who will be brought before an international military tribunal at Nuernberg early in October.

Rudolf Hess Included

The roll call included Rudolf Hess, whose mystery flight to England early in 1941 still has not been explained; Martin Bormann, Hitler's secretary whose capture had not previously been disclosed; such war leaders as Admiral Karl Doenitz and Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, and one industrialist, Gustav Krupp von Bohler Und Halbach of the Krupp dynasty.

The full 24 listed in the joint statement of the war crimes prosecutors of the United States, Britain, France, and Russia, were:

Goering, once designated as Hitler's successor but who later fell from favor.

Hess, deputy fuehrer for all affairs and Hitler's first designate as his successor until the night in the spring of 1941 when he parachuted from his Messerschmitt onto the Scottish moors in a mission which still is a strange, unexplained page in the war's history.

Bormann Mystery

Bormann, whose name provided a new mystery, for there had been unconfirmed reports that he perished in the Berlin chancellory about the time Hitler was said to have died.

About Bormann, the office of Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief U. S. prosecutor, said only that "we won't know where he is. But the fact that his name is on the list means that he is alive and in custody."

Joachim von Ribbentrop, suave former champagne salesman and foreign minister, who directed much Nazi international intrigue.

Navy Moves In Deadly Earnest

ABOARD USS IOWA, Off Yokohama, Aug. 29. (Via Navy Radio)—We are here—great lines of battleships — smack in Tokyo bay.

If the folks back home in Texas think this is a gala occasion with fanfare and showmanship in evidence, they have another think coming. The entire operation, so far, is very prosaic and businesslike.

No Excitement Shown

Sailors aboard the Iowa are squatting along the decks reading magazines. If they are excited at the end of this long trail they do not show it.

Admiral William F. Halsey, the man who wants to ride Hirohito's white horse down the streets of Tokyo, got the following message from Mayor Ed Duffey of Monahans, Texas:

"From the citizens of this thriving West Texas town we today are sending you via air mail one pair of spurs. Use them when you ride that white horse."

Government Easing Up On Butter Calls

DALLAS, Aug. 29. (U.P) — The government will on Sept. 1 relinguish its claim on certain percentages of butter products going to creameries, although only a small increase in civilian supply is expected.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture announced that termination of the order does not remove from creameries the obligation to set aside 20 per cent of butter during August as was previously ordered.

Since butter production normally declines through the fall and winter, civilians will get only a small increase.

Pearl Harbor Report Slashes Into High Government Levels

GEN. WAINWRIGHT AT CHUNGKING — On arrival at Chungking after being freed from Jap prison camp, Lt. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, center, hero of Corregidor, and Brig. Gen. L. C. Beebe, left, are greeted by Lt. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer. (Radiotelephoto from Chungking by NEA Telephoto.)

Book Now Closed For Truman, But Others Ask Trials

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — The secrets of Pearl Harbor were bared by President Truman today revealing criticism striking into high levels of the government.

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, was hit by an Army board, on the ground that he failed to alert Pearl Harbor fully before the Japanese struck that bastion Dec. 7, 1941.

Cordell Hull, former secretary of state, was said by the same board to have presented the Japanese with what they regarded as an ultimatum at a time when the Army and Navy were trying to stall for time to get prepared.

Was Starting Button

This, the board said, "touched the button that started the war," though it quickly added that war was inevitable and imminent anyway.

President Truman, making public reports of Army and Navy investigators of the sneak Japanese attack, strongly defended Marshall. So did Secretary of War Stimson, who added that the implied criticism of Hull was wrong and "uncalled for."

Calls for courts martials to shed further light on the biggest military disaster of U. S. history immediately were renewed in Congress. President Truman reserved decisions on this point.

Many members of Congress took issue with the criticism of Marshall and Hull.

Others Criticised

Others criticized in the official reports included Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations at the time of the disaster, and Lt. General Leonard T. Gerow, then chief of the War department's war plans division.

There was no criticism of President Roosevelt for the unpreparedness in Hawaii. He was disclosed to have predicted on Nov. 25, 1941 that the Japanese might attack somewhere as early as the next Monday—Dec. 1.

Lack Of Alert Cited

Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short, commanding general at Pearl Harbor, was blamed by the Army board of inquiry for alleged failure to alert his command adequately. The Navy board gave Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, naval commander at the bastion, a clean bill, but said Admiral Stark failed to display sound judgment by not sending important information to Kimmel.

However, Admiral Ernest J. King, fleet commander in chief, and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal declared in their reports that Kimmel was to blame as well as Stark.

The reports revealed a widespread belief among high leaders that the Japs would strike in the far western Pacific, not Hawaii. Kimmel received a Navy department warning Nov. 27, 1941, that the Japanese appeared preparing "an amphibious expedition against eithe rthe Philippines, Thai or Kra peninsula or possibly Borneo."

No Attack Indicated

The Navy report said the Pearl Harbor commanders were unable to read into this "war warning" any indication that an attack on Hawaii was to be expected.

Most of those mentioned in the reports reserved comment pending a study of the documents. Hull said he would issue later "such a statement as may be called for."

Gen. Short issued a statement at Dallas saying:

"On Dec. 7, 1941, I was obeying my instructions from Washington as I understood them and was acting in accordance with the information which was available to me at that time. A commnder must base his decisions on the information before him at the time.

Wainwright, Aides Fly To Tokyo Today

By DONALD HUTH
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHUNGKING, Thurday, Aug. 30—Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the hero of Corregidor, left Chungking by plane today for Manila on the first leg of his journey to join Gen. MacArthur in Japan's final capitulation at Tokyo Sunday.

The man who surrendered the fortress island guarding Manila bay to overwhelming enemy forces and then spent more than three years as a prisoner of the Japanese took off from Chungking's Seven Dragon Slope airfield at 9 a. m. (9 p. m., eastern war time, Wednesday).

The 62-year-old American general received the Distinguished Cross yesterday and was entertained by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. He had gone through a busy round of hand-shaking and conferences since his arrival in Chungking from Mukden Tuesday after being freed from Japanese imprisonment.

Four Aides With Him

Accompanying Wainwright were Brig. Gen. Lewis C. Beebe, Col. John Pugh, Maj. Thomas Dooley and T/Sgt. Hubert Carroll, all former Japanese prisoners.

"All this group were with me on the tragic day (May 6, 1942) when I had to surrender and I'm especially anxious that they be present when we accept the Japanese surrender," Wainwright had messaged MacArthur in accepting the supreme commander's invitation to go to Tokyo, a Manila dispatch said.

Wainwright, who arrived in Chungking yesterday from Mukden, Manchuria, after his release from a long, silent internment, was particularly anxious to face again the Japanese commanders who accepted with pompous arrogance the capitulation of Wainwright's heroic band on Corregidor.

Hopes Homma Is There

Particularly he hoped to see at Japan's capitulation the arrogant one-time commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in the Philippines, Gen. Masaharu Homma.

Wainwright was decorated yesterday with the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in northern Luzon in the Philippines. More than 50 American officers watched as Lt.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of U. S. forces in China, pinned the decoration on Wainwright.

Decorated also were two Texans, captured with Wainwright in the fall of the Philippines, and released with him from Jap prison camp.

Noted '1-Man-Army' Liberated At Kukden

CHICAGO Aug. 29. (AP) — Capt. Arthur W. Wermuth, Chicago's famous "One-Man Army" of Bataan, has been liberated from a Japanese prison camp, his wife, Mrs. Jean Wermuth, said today.

Wermuth, according to the telegram, was held at Camp Hoten Mukden, Manchuria, and his name appeared on a list of camp personnel dated Aug. 26 from the American camp commander.

Wermuth gained his nickname by killing 136 Japanese before Bataan fell, and was decorated three times, including the Distinguished Service Cross.

CITY SAID DEFILED

MOSCOW, Aug. 29. (AP) — A Pravda dispatch today declared the Japanese had turned Dairen in Manchuria into a city of prostitution, with the city's richest inhabitant operating 200 houses there for Japanese soldiers and German agents.

Solons Call For Courts Martial

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (AP) — Several members of Congress, dissatisfied with the reports on the Pearl Harbor disaster, today called for court martial to bring out more information.

Meantime, Senator Walsh (D-Mass), chairman of the Senate Naval committee, reserved comment until his committee "receives a reply from the Navy department to its request for all the Navy files in regard to the disaster."

These files, he said in a statement, "would include the naval court of inquiry proceedings, which is the procedure preliminary to holding a court martial."

Among those demanding a court martial of Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, commanders at Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack, was Rep. Short (R-Mo). He told reporters "the full searchlight has not yet been turned on to erret out the deep, dark mysteries of the catastrophe."

Several legislators took issue with criticisms of General of the Armies George C. Marshall and former Secretary of State Cordell Hull in the official reports.

Mahon's Plans For Tokyo Trip Unknown

COLORADO CITY, Aug. 29. (AP) —Mrs. George Mahon, wife of the Texas congressman, said today her husband was in the Pacific theater of operations with the military appropriations committee but that she did not know if he would go to Tokyo.

In a telephone conversation, Mrs. Mahon said the last letter she received from her husband was Aug. 19 and was written on an airplane en route for the Philippines. Since then, she has been advised he was in Australia, she said.

The trip of the House Military Appropriations committee as outlined before the surrender included Guam, Saipan, China and Burma. Eight members of the committee and four Army generals are investigating expenditures of the Army, she said.

The representative's wife is leaving for Washington Friday.

Jap Blow At Pearl Harbor Power-Laden

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — Reports on the Pearl Harbor debacle disclosed today that the Navy probably would have taken a beating had it intercepted the attacking Japanese task force.

The official documents of Army and Navy boards of inquiry also told of:

One or more Japanese submarines operating in Pearl Harbor, relaying information to the enemy task force in the days immediately preceding the attack.

Aerial Torpedo Used

The use of a "secret weapon" aerial torpedo, which accounted for most of the terrific damage to American fleet units caught at the Pacific outpost.

The success of Japanese espionage, which provided detailed information on the number and location of fleet units and Army installations.

In the Japanese task force, the Army board said, were six aircraft carriers, two battleships, two heavy and one light cruisers, a destroyer division and some submarines. That made it "one of the most powerful task forces ever assembled" up to that time.

The account of its operations went like this:

Training began in July or August, 1941, in Japanese home waters. One by one, the ships left about November 22 for a rendezvous at Tankan bay, an isolated spot at Etorofu island in northern Japan.

It sailed on November 27 or 28, taking a northerly route south of the Aleutians to avoid being sighted by shipping.

Steamed Due East

The task force moved due east, maintaining radio silence, to a point north of Oahu, then moved southward under forced draft to between 200 and 350 miles from the island. From there, planes were launched.

The enemy fleet had about 424 planes and sent some 300 against Pearl Harbor. Against them, the Navy could have countered with only 180 planes.

Many Texans In On Jap Landings

(By The Associated Press)

By sea hnd air Texans are arriving with the first forces to reach Tokyo in preparation for Japanese surrender.

Heading the Texans is commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, native Texan, who arrived Wednesday afternoon in Tokyo bay in a seaplane. He boarded the Battleship South Dakota which will be his headquarters.

The first American flag raised on the Jap home islands was by the crew of a plane which landed on Atsugi airdrome near Tokyo Tuesday. The plane carried Col. Delbert Ward, San Antonio, Fifth AAF engineer, and Lt. R. H. Reeves of Denison, co-pilot.

Liaison officer Lt. William V. Bellew of Dallas, stepped off the first Navy bomber which landed on the airfield after Gen. MacArthur's advance contingent had arrived.

There were many Texans on the great warships gathered in Tokyo bay for a landing by American forces.

A former Houston oil man, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Johnson, received from two ranking enemy officers Wednesday the surrender of more than 8,000 Japanese on Morotai and Halmahera islands south of the Philippines.

Five Texas officers and 73 other Texans were aboard the battleship USS Iowa off Tokyo bay. They included Lt. Comdr. Billy N. Johnson of Fort Worth and Temple; Lt. Comdr. Robert H. Carraway of Mineloa, Ensigns Hardy D. Redus of Lubbock and Charles N. Brennecke of Austin.

Occupation Forces In For Big Surprises In 'Humbled' Japs

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29 — American fighting men, treading the sacred soil of Japan today for the first time in force, are in for some surprises.

The beaten-down civilian population of Japan is a far cry from the frenzied, stubborn fighters most of them have been up against in the Pacific.

The illusion of peace in Japan is nearly always overwhelming. The littleness of everything—the crowded fields, tiny houses, narrow gauge railways, stunted factory workers, dwarf trees — is most difficult to associate with the sweep and swagger of Japan's armies in the field.

The people themselves, at home, are among the world's easiest to feel sorry for—and Americans nearly always wind up sympathizing with their apparently abject submission to rigid police control, their obvious poverty, and their determination to work and live despite it.

And to western eyes there is such an utter difference between the ordinary Japanese woman — either beautiful or homely — and the cultivated toughness of most Japanese men.

When I was last in Japan, a few months before Pearl Harbor, the people had been living and eating on a war basis for nearly eight years. They showed it. Their clothes were shabby, their faces pinched and sullen. Yet they were still polite, despite envious glances at the foreigner's leather shoes and woolen clothing. Probably the thing the Japanese will feel best about in the occupation is the nonfraternization order for American troops.

For the Japanese are very proud, and their pride is still with them.

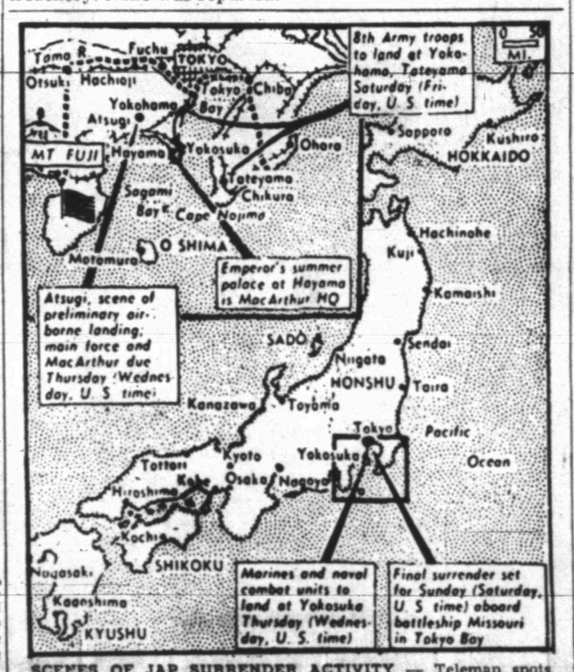

Mighty Array Of Power Keeps Close Watch On Jap Treachery

(By The Associated Press)

ATSUGI AIRFIELD, Near Tokyo, Thursday Aug. 30—Marines of the same regiment whose members fought and died or surrendered at Corregidor, landed in Tokyo bay today to occupy the big Kokosuka naval base, and 11th Airborne division troops, veterans of Philippines battles, swarmed down in transports on Atsugi.

The two forces, which will push across Miura peninsula toward a juncture, opened the occupation of Japan in force while General MacArthur winged toward Japan from Okinawa in his big C-54 transport plane, "Bataan."

An overpowering array of naval and air might was on hand for any possible sign of treachery. None was reported.

SCENES OF JAP SURRENDER ACTIVITY — Telemap spots highlights of surrender proceedings in the Tokyo area as American troops started swarming onto Japan Wednesday evening (Lubbock time.)

Naval Base Surrendered

Admiral Halsey's chief of staff, Rear Adm. Robert C. Carney, quickly accepted the formal surrender of a Japanese admiral at a 10-minute ceremony as the Stars and Stripes was raised over Yokosuka, Japan's second largest naval base.

MacArthur's gleaming silver transport, named after the peninsula on which his outnumbered Army made a heroic stand in the grim, early days of the war, was among hundreds in a steady procession from Okinawa carrying in airborne forces.

In the greatest mass aerial movement yet seen in the Pacific, thousands of combat-clad, fully armed paratroopers arrive in 40-man plane loads at three-minute intervals.

Motor Vehicles Ready

Two hundred cars, buses and motor vehicles of all descriptions were on hand at the runways to help unloading operations.

The Marines at Yokosuka were a reactivated group, replacing the Fourth regiment lost at Corregidor.

The Atsugi landings started at 6 a. m. (4 p. m. Wednesday central wart time).

At the same hour, the tank-equipped U. S. Fourth Marine regiment, augmented by 1,800 seagoing Marines and 400 Royal British Marines and bluejackets, hit the shore from landing craft around Yokosuka naval base.

Fleet Covers Landings

Immediate surrender of that base to Vice Adm. Robert P. Carney was arranged.

The landings were covered by the big guns of the Third Fleet anchored in Tokyo bay, including the big Battleship Missouri, aboard which Japan's surrender will be signed Sunday. Aboard the South Dakota was Admiral of the Fleet Nimitz, ready to sign the formal papers as representative of the United States.

In an impressive synchronized operation, mercy ships immediately began taking on some of the

Boyington Among 500 Rescued At Yokohama

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29. (AP) —A broadcast tonight from Tokyo bay reported that 500 prisoners of war, including the long missing American ace, Maj. Gregory Boyington, have been taken aboard the hospital ship Benevolence.

Gene Ryder, Columbia Broadcasting company correspondent, said the prisoners were recovered from the area of Yokohama, port for Tokyo, prior to the main occupational landings by the Benevolence.

Most of the prisoners were reported suffering from malnutrition, burns and wounds.

SIX WAKE SURVIVORS RESCUED AT SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29. (AP) —Six American Wake island survivors were rescued here by the newly arrived U. S. military mission and were under treatment today in St. Luke's hospital for malnutrition and injuries.

The six included: Edward Cook of Rahway, N. J., civilian, and Marines Cpl. Robert E. Lee of Taylorville, Ill.; Pfc. Leroy Moritz of Sedro Wooley, Wash., Sgt. William D. Beck of South Gate, Calif.

(The name of the sixth survivor apparently was omitted in radio transmission.)

White was skeleton-thin. The others were gaining weight rapidly and were able to walk about.

They told correspondents the Japanese used to beat them with quirts "quite a lot."

About 1,100 Wake survivors, including Marine Lt. Col. J. P. S. Devereux, they reported, were removed to Japan during the last year. Only hospital cases and 35 skilled laborers were left here.

They said that recently Tokyo radio, listing American bombing deaths in Japan, included the names of two men who had been on Wake.

About 450 servicemen and 1,100 civilian workers were on Wake, Peel and Wilkes islands when the Japanese attacked Dec. 11, 1941.

Three Are Killed On Carlsbad Airstrip

CARLSBAD, N. M., Aug. 29. (AP) —A Civil Aeronautics administration inspector was reported enroute here from El Paso late today to conduct an investigation in the deaths of three persons at a private airport last night.

Sheriff Fred Hill said the victims, two women and a small girl, died instantly when struck by a light plane as it landed. Another woman escaped with superficial injuries.

The dead, all of Carlsbad, were Mrs. J. D. Rauch, about 26; her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Rauch, jr., about 28; and Jeggy Rauch, 6, daughter of the latter woman.

Sheriff Hill said the plane was piloted by Joe Sides, a civil air patrol flier of long experience. Sides was under a physician's care.

Japs Plan General National Election

(By The Associated Press)

Japan will hold a general national election soon, probably before Jan. 1, a Domei news dispatch reported today. The last general election choosing present members of Japan's house of representatives took place April 30, 1942.

Home ministry authorities pointed to technical difficulties: Lists of eligible voters were burned by American bombings in many cities; and there was widespread shifting of population. Lower house sources, however, Domei said, held that body responsible for the outcome of the war and seek a new start by a general election.

DE GAULLE STARTS HOME

OTTAWA, Aug. 29. (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle left by plane today for Paris, ending his visit to the United States and Canada.

Nimitz Surprised At Sudden Surrender

ABOARD USS SOUTH DAKOTA, Tokyo Bay, Aug. 29. (AP)—Admiral Nimitz declared today that the Japanese surrender came earlier than expected and caught the Allies before they were "fully prepared."

Correspondents talked to the bronzed, white-haired fleet admiral in the big cabin of his flagship.

Nimitz, who had come aboard shortly after arriving from his Guam headquarters, credited sea power with paving the way for Nippon's sudden decision to quit.

Japs Surrender Yokosuka Base

YOKOSUKA, Thursday, Aug. 30. (AP) — Rear Adm. Robert C. Carney, Admiral Halsey's chief of staff, formally took over Yokosuka naval base this morning.

Carney accepted surrender of the base from a Japanese admiral in a formal 10-minute ceremony shortly before noon (about 10 p. m. Wednesday central war time.)

Rear Adm. Oscar C. Badger, commander of Task Force 31 which put 10,650 American and British Marines and naval landing troops ashore a few hours earlier, was among the witnesses.

Preliminary Instructions

Preliminaries to formal surrender were begun about 10:40 a. m. today (8:40 p. m. Wednesday, central war time) when Marine Brig. Gen. William Clements began instructing Japanese military personnel and civilians about their conduct.

Clements' final instruction was that Japanese vice admiral who formally will surrender the base must be at the main battleship docks. (The time was not stated.)

Clements commands the Fourth Marine Combat team of the Sixth Marine division which made the intial Yokosuka landings.

Sgt. Roy H. Chapman Of Ralls Is Awarded Bronze Star Medal

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE AERIAL RECONNAISSANCE STATION, England — M/Sgt. Roy H. Chapman, 27, of Ralls, Tex., recently was awarded the Bronze Star medal, it was announced at this Seventh Reconnaissance group station.

The award citation read "for meritorious achievement in the performance of outstanding services from November 21, 1944, to April 22, 1945."

Sgt. Chapman is a photo laboratory technician for one of the photographic reconnaissance squadrons which comprise the Seventh group. He and fellow squadron members process and print the pictures taken by photo pilots. Prior to the cessation of hostilities, these photographs provided information on which heavy bomber operations were based, and the results of those operations. They covered enemy activity on land and sea. Other aerial photographs were made into maps which were invaluable to the ground forces in the invasion of Normandy and subsequent land operations.

Sgt. Chapman is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Chapman of Ralls, Tex. He entered the Army May 19, 1941, and has been in the European theater of operations since November, 1943. He was graduated from Robertson high school in 1935, and was attending Texas Tech college when he entered the Army.

A report on the water resources of Lubbock district, entitled "Lubbock County, Tex., Records of Wells, Springs, Drillers Logs — Water Analysis," will be available to the general public in the near future. It is written by Joe W. Lang, a Texas Tech geology graduate, now assistant geologist with the U. S. Geological Survey working in cooperation with the Texas State Board of Water Engineers. Lang has spent considerable time in Lubbock district making water surveys with the city engineers, under the direction of the Texas State Board of Water Engineers.

Final examinations for the summer school term at Texas Tech will be held Friday and Saturday, with the term officially ending Saturday. Pre-registration for the fall semester will be Sept. 10 and registration for classes will be held Sept. 12-13. Classes will begin at 8 a. m., Sept. 14.

Grayson E. Mead, assistant professor of paleontology at Texas Tech who has been on a year's leave of absence working with the Texas Bureau of Economic Geology at University of Texas, will assume his duties at the college Sept. 14 when the fall semester begins.

Congress Unofficially Notified To Be Back To Work On Sept. 5

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (U.P.)—Congress has been unofficially notified that it will be officially notified that on Sept. 5 it will have to come back to work.

Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky told reporters it happened this way:

Under the resolution Congress passed when it decided to take a two month recess starting Aug. 1 it was provided that members could be called back on three days' notice.

The fall of Japan necessitated speeding up the original plan to reconvene Oct. 8 and leaders decided it had better be Sept. 5.

But the resolution prevents them from telling members about it officially until three days before the start of the session. And many of them can't get back to Washington in three days' time.

So unofficial notice has gone out that the official notice will be along as soon as it becomes legal.

U. S. Seen As Source Of Spiritual Guidance

Rev. Wm. F. Blakeslee, pastor of St. Elizabeth's Catholic church, told the Lubbock Rotary club at their regular Wednesday luncheon in the Hilton hotel today that "all the nations of the world will be looking to us for spiritual guidance and inspiration."

"It is no mere coincidence that America has become the most powerful and the most influential nation in the world," he continued, declaring that the guarantee of individual rights set forth in the Constitution was the determining factor in making America great.

He pointed out that democratic Americans with their many divergent points of view still can pool their individual interests and set forth a plan; can work together on a successful program.

"As a debt of gratitude for these rights, young men have gone forth on the field and laid down their lives for their country which protected these rights," he said. "Out of these sorrows, we shall build anew . . . build on those spiritual sacrifices of our young men . . . We can expect great things; we can expect great things of ourselves; we can expect great things of each other; we can expect great things of God."

Winston Reeves was program chairman and introduced the speaker. Out-of-town guests at the luncheon included: Rev. Hubert Bratcher, Will Marr, A. L. Winfrey, Arliss Coward, Emmitt Lynch and Marvin Pruitt of Ralls, Oscar McGinty of Spur, Dick Stovall and Jim Willson of Floydada, J. Willis Jones of Roswell, N. M.; Byron Milburn of San Francisco and J. C. Galloway of Springfield, Mo.

"RIVERSIDES didn't come on my car I CHOSE THEM!"

...and I see a lot of other farmers figure tires like I do!

"When we were in town, Saturday, walking by all the parked cars along Main Street, I happened to notice the number of cars that had Riverside tires. Farmers' cars, like mine. And I got to wondering if all those men had switched to Riversides for the same reasons I did. 'Cause you know, Jim, none of those Riversides came on those cars!"

The American farmer is typical of the millions of car-owners, city and country-folk alike, who have switched to Riversides. He, like you, wants a tire that gives him the most for his money; long wear on rugged roads; maximum protection against blow-outs. (Do you know that Riversides' plies, today, are 12% stronger than our pre-war tires!)

Spastic Paralysis Specialist Is Here For Three-Day Closed Clinic

Dr. Earl Carlson, nationally famous spastic paralysis specialist of New York and Florida, arrived in Lubbock yesterday afternoon to conduct a three-day closed clinic for children handicapped by cerebral palsy.

The clinic will be held today through Saturday at the activity center of the First Baptist church.

Here the victims of spastic paralysis, commonly characterized by a congenital lack of muscular coordination which is usually the result of natal or parenatal injury—more rarely as a result of an injury incurred in later life, will be seen by Dr. Carlson.

Woman's Efforts Cited

Because of the indefatigueable efforts and strong determination of one Lubbock woman, Mrs. A. E. Jones of 2112 Sixteenth, many children of this area and Eastern New Mexico who are victims of spastic paralysis will be examined by a specialist.

Largely responsible for Dr. Carlson's visit to Lubbock, Mrs. Jones has notified those parents of afflicted children—approximately 50 have stood by since the clinic was first planned—of their opportunity to talk with him at the clinic.

Mrs. Jones Worked Tirelessly

During the year Mrs. Jones worked tirelessly to obtain the services of this specialist She contacted more than 200 parents of spastic children residing in South, East, Central and West Texas, Eastern New Mexico and Southern Oklahoma. Considerable newspaper publicity was given Mrs. Jone's early efforts. The P l a insman, Avalanche-Journal columnist, also aided in enlisting support of these people.

Many volunteered their assistance in the request for Dr. Carlson's services, but much time has lapsed since she first contacted parents. Discouraged, many have withdrawn their support.

"We regret Dr. Carlson will be unable to see only those children of parents sponsoring his visit here since his time is limited," Mrs. Jones explained. The specialist is giving his time and is not being paid for his visit to Lubbock. Only the bare expenses for him and his wife are being provided by parents of spastic children.

Will Instruct On Care

It is for treatment of these victims, often referred to as "the forgotten children of medicine," that Dr. Carlson consented to come to Lubbock He will examine and give a prognosis of each child, and instruct parents how to better care for each.

A spastic himself, Dr. Carlson has become a specialist in the very field of his own injuries, and the parents of many thousands of spastic cripples turn to him for advice and treatment. His theory is: "If a spastic child can utter one word, he can learn to talk; if he can take one step, he can learn to walk."

These words of encouragement and a study of the useful life led by Dr Carlson, crippled from birth, motivated Mrs. Jones' desire to bring the specialist here. Hers is a deep and personal interest in spastic cripples since her seven-year-old daughter is one of its victims.

Not only is she interested in the future welfare of her own child, but she hopes Dr. Carlson's visit here will predicate a community interest in the organization of local facilities for the treatment of cerebral palsy. Her hope springs from the knowledge that after Dr. Carlson conducted a clinic in Port Arthur, Tex., a school for spastic children was organized there

As millions of other parents of spastic children follow the life and work of Dr Carlson, Mrs. Jones is no exception. She can almost repeat from memory the struggles and hardships overcome by this fabulous specialist, as is recorded in his autobiography, "Born That Way."

Born in a poor home, Dr. Carlson was so injured at birth that it was years before he could control his legs or arms—even the organs of speech Regardless of his affliction, he was enrolled in public school and by means of a scholarship extended to handicapped young people, he was enabled to enter University of Minnesota. Later he went East, first to Princeton and then to Yale, from which he was graduated, having obtained a medical degree in order to devote his life aiding others who were manacled in misery.

Established Two Schools

During the years that followed, Dr Carlson and his wife Ilse, established two schools for spastics ranging in age from infancy to young adulthood. In the home-like atmosphere of these schools, the children are cared for and guided by skilled nurses and teachers working under the direct supervision of the Carlsons.

The schools, similarly equipped, are located at Pompano, Fla., and the other at East Hampton, Long Island, N Y. Here spastic victims follow a specialized continuous program of recreation, physical and mental training. Eventually they leave the schools, prepared to lead useful lives.

Life magazine featured Dr. Carlson's work with spastic children at the Florida school in its May 26, 1941 issue and again in a more recent issue. It explained the rehabilitation program carried on at the schools and how the children were trained to take their place in society. Reader's Digest has also publicized the life work of the eminent specialist.

Dr. Carlson is in constant receipt of letters and frantic pleas for help or advice from desperate parents. His inability to meet all needs and to administer personal help in every case is a burden that lies heavily upon his heart.

Reared in poverty himself, and painfully aware of the desperate situation such surroundings create in the life of a spastic child, Dr. Carlson has given to the limit of his strength and resources in a one-man crusade Public funds are not administered for the treatment or rehabilitation of the spastics, as they are for the blind, deaf and almost every form of handicap in existance.

"We are indeed fortunate and grateful that Dr Carlson was able to visit Lubbock and feel that it is one step forward for spastic children," Mrs. Jones said.

10-Gallon Hat Goes With Hospital Plea

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (AP)—President Truman received a ten-gallon cow-puncher's hat today—and a request for a 3000-bed veterans hospital near Phoenix, Ariz.

The hat was presented by a delegation of Arizonans on the sunny south lawn of the White House, after they had informed the President that the veterans hospital situation in their state had reached a critical stage.

The President smiled and waved the hat for the benefit of a battery of news photographers.

"This will take John Garner by storm," he chuckled.

MAKING SOAP

MRS. C. A. Tatum is asking for a repeat on the method of making soap as given in this column several weeks ago through courtesy of Mrs. F. E. Belt of Seminole. Ingredients needed, according to Mrs. Belt, are 2 gallons of whole fresh sweet milk, and the milk should be some recently milked and not yet refrigerated, she said, 1 can of good lye and 1 quart of water. Mix water and lye. Put milk in a granite container and gradually pour water and lye mixture into container. It is not necessary to stir this while pouring the mixture into the container but the mixture should be poured from one granite container to another for about 20 minutes. Let set for 24 hours and then it is ready to cut and use.

YOUNG GENERALS

AVERAGE age of the more than 1500 generals who led the United States Army to victory was found to be 51.4 by the statisticians of a famed life insurance company. Less than two per cent were 65 years or older.

The ages of the four generals of the Army average 60.5 years. The youngest is Dwight D. Eisenhower, who is 54. Next in age are Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, who is 59 years old (and who said recently he is planning to retire because he is "an old man") and George C. Marshall, chief of staff, 64. Douglas MacArthur at 65 years of age is the oldest.

• • •

At the lower end of the list of generals are brigadier generals, who constitute 70 per cent of the total number; their average age on July 1 was 50.3 years, or ten years below that of the generals of the army. Full generals averaged 56.6 years, lieutenant generals, 55.3 and major generals, 53.5 years.

• • •

The average age of the 322 generals in the Army Air Forces on July 1 was just short of 47 years, or 4 and one-half years below the average for the army as a whole.

Auroratone—Music in color is playing a large part in the soothing of war-weary nerves of neuropsychiatric patients and is destined for a leading role in the postwar world. This is a technical and highly scientific process whereby gently flowing abstract color-patterns are photographed and the movement synchronized with the rhythm of music on the soundtrack. The most amazing thing about it is its relaxing, hence healing effect upon the beholder.

Cecil Stokes discovered Auroratone when he was on a rest cure and went for a cruise one day aboard a friend's yacht. The deck steward was playing some of Bing Crosby's records and Mr. Stokes became mentally lost in the movement of the reflected colors of the sunset, combined with the soothing tones of Bing's voice. Afterwards he felt very much relaxed and inspired. He was able to sleep without the use of a sedative for the first time since his illness.

This healing therapy has taken years of patient, diligent work. Auroratone is not a commercial product; there is no charge made for the use of the films which are being shown in many government hospitals.

Approximately 1,500,000 pounds of wool were loaded and shipped from Rock Springs, Wyo., in only six weeks time this spring.

Miscellaneous Showers Are Courtesies For Miss Elizabeth Lee, Bride-Elect

Belated Reports Add To Terrible Toll Exacted By Coast Hurricane

HOUSTON, Aug. 29 (AP)—Additional reports from the hurricane-lashed section of the central Texas coast today added to the more than $20,000,000 estimated as the cost to crops and property from the storm's terrific winds, heavy rains, and high tides.

As the disturbance rained itself out in the hills west of Temple, reports drew this picture:

Three dead and at least 13 injured, miraculously none of them in the section hardest hit.

Tremendous Crop Loss

Tremendous damage to rice, cotton, corn, and pecan crops, amounting in Wharton county alone to between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. Terrific damage to fishing boats and other businesses.

16,500 persons sheltered and 10,000 fed by the Red Cross in the hurricane area because of demolished, damaged or water soaked homes.

Thousands of persons who fled to inland towns returned or are returning.

State department of health sanitation crews in action in the area as high water subsided, restoring water and sewage facilities.

Roads and Bridges Out

Damage to many roads, bridges, and Army air force installations.

The cotton firm of Sorrell and Heyne at Wharton estimated that the cotton crop in that county was 90 to 100 per cent lost, a cost of some $5,000,000, and Tom B. Simpson, Wharton county Triple A director, estimated a rice crop loss of $7,000,000.

There are 80,000 acres of cotton and 40,000 acres of rice in the county, Simpson said the pecan crop was a total loss and the corn crop was damaged severely. Compared to the crop loss the residential and business damage in Wharton was light.

Wharton sheltered 2,000 persons from coastal towns and farms and two babies were born at the court house to refugees during the storm.

Lights Still Out

Palacios was reported still with no lights or phone service. The highway from Palacios to Port Lavaca was closed, and will not be reopened for about three months, or until a damaged causeday is repaired, it was reported from Wharton.

High water still blocked the Bay City-Palacios highway, but it was expected to clear within the next 48 hours. Other roads in the Wharton area were in fair shape.

Crop damage was severe near Bay City, with unpicked cotton gone completely, and the rice crop estimated as 50 per cent lost, a report from that city said.

A dozen other cities and towns in the storm's path counted damages.

Reports said the storm did not interfere with production of gasoline or synthetic rubber by refineries along the coast.

Damage to Army Air forces installations under jurisdiction of Foster and Aloe fields at Victoria included destruction of six hut-ment-type buildings and a badly wrecked hangar roof at Port O'Connor.

Big Hangar Damaged

The Central Flying Training command also reported that a big hangar was damaged on Matagorda island, and four one-story temporary buildings were destroyed. Six such buildings were destroyed and the radio control tower was damaged on Matagorda peninsula.

The danger of a major flood on Buffalo bayou here as an aftermath of torrential rains which accompanied the storm, seemed to be fading today.

In Austin Gov. Coke R. Stevenson's office was receiving reports of damage.

The Austin weather bureau said that the storm, in its dying stages, did no one any good. It brought heavy rains and winds up to 50 miles an hour in the Austin-Columbus-Navasota-Temple area; damaged cotton and growing crops, but apparently passed up the parched hill country west of Austin, which was badly in need of rain.

Coulson Death Ruled From Natural Causes

Death from natural causes was the verdict of D. W. Robertson, justice of the peace, in the finding of the body of R. D. Coulson, 65, about 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night in his room at 809 Ave. K.

The man apparently had died of heart attack. His body was taken from Sanders Funeral home Wednesday morning to Coleman, where a brother W. I. Coulson is in the wholesale drug business. Another brother lives at Greenville.

Coulson's body was discovered lying across his bed, clad only in underwear and socks and shoes, by Leonard Huber, manager of a rooming house at that address and optrator of the Quality Shoe Shop, at 805-A Broadway, where Coulson was employed.

The Gallup Poll: Varied Problems Face Nations In Return To Peace

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—While Allied nations spent years facing the common problem of war together, now that they are turning attention to domestic matters, each finds itself confronted with widely different problems.

GALLUP

Following scientific sampling methods similar to those used by the American Institute, affiliate organizations, before the war's end, questioned the common people of France and Britain on what they felt were the chief problems facing their governments in the months ahead.

In Britain, the Number 1 problem, according to the man-in-the-street, is housing. In fact the housing situation is reportedly one of the reasons the common man in Britain voted the Labour party into power. He felt the Labour party would do a better job on housing than the Conservative party.

In October, the French people are going to have a chance to vote in a general election. Their greatest concern is over food and fuel, the survey by the French Institute shows. The way the French people vote in October will probably be determined in no small part by what the people think the candidates will be able to do to solve these problems.

Meanwhile, a survey here in the United States on a similar question found that in the public mind the chief problem here is the question of postwar employment and the possibility of depression.

The top problems of the government as viewed by people in the three countries:

IN BRITAIN
HOUSING	54%
Post-war Employment	13
Preparing for return of forces	4
IN FRANCE
FOOD, FUEL	38%
Internal Politics	14
Collaborationists, etc.	11
Cost of living, wages	8
IN UNITED STATES
JOBS, POST-WAR EMPLOYMENT	20%
Avoiding Depression	16
Permanent World Peace	15
Labor Union Troubles, Strikes, etc.	10

Running Game To Prove Top Threat For Aggieland Club

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Aug. 29 (AP)—A running game matching that which topped the Southwest Conference last season will make Texas A and M a tough customer this fall.

Not of championship caliber but troublesome for all appear the less youthful Aggies. Coach Homer Norton fears manpower problems despite the fact that he has 13 lettermen. He explains this away by pointing out that quite a few of his 1944 numeral men were regarded more for effort than ability due to the fact that they would be marching away to war about the same time that the gridiron season ended.

Ball-carrying should be just as good as last season but passing hardly will be up to Jim Cashion's speed. Cashion is in the service along with more than a dozen other Aggie lettermen who would have been back except for the national emergency.

End play, probably better fortified with reserves than other positions, may be improved and tackle play looks better with the return of Leonard Dickey, who was good enough to letter on the championship 1941 team. Teaming with Monte Moncliff, Aggieland's best bid for all-America in five years, Dickey will give A and M top-flight strength at the forward posts.

The backfield will be faster and there are a couple of youngsters who make it appear of the explosive type—long gainers bursting from Norton's all-out T formation.

Mark the name Preston Smith in your futures book. Smith is the all-State back from Bryan whom Norton classifies as one of the finest prospects to come along in any year. Smith is a strong runner, fine defensive man, smart passer and a good kicker. He's hard to bring down if you can catch him. The other dynamite cap in the Aggie backfield is Rob Goode, a speedy 190 pounder from Bastrop. Goode also has the makings of an excellent punter.

NEW BROWNWOOD COACH

BROWNWOOD, Tex., Aug. 29 (AP)—L. F. Gresham, former coach at Memphis and Bowie, today was named basketball coach and assistant football coach for Brownwood High school.

The average annual rainfall in Texas ranges from 51 to 55 inches on the Gulf Coast to 9.16 inches in the El Paso area.

All-Star Grid Classic Tonight

The sports eyes of West Texas will be turned on Soldier Field in Chicago tonight when the College All-Stars trot out to tangle with the National Pro league champions, Green Bay Packers in a charity game expected to draw 92,000 fans.

Some expect the figure this year to fall short of the record throng of 1942 when 101,000, but the loosening of gasoline rationing might swell the figure even above the expected 92,000 predicted.

The interest in West Texas will center on a pair of the All-Stars, and two boys expected to see lots of service in the game, Texas Tech's Walter Schlinkman, last year's All-American candidate from West Texas, and Clyde Flowers, Texas Christian great, and now assistant grid coach of the Plainview Bulldogs, have been gaining much praise at the workouts in Chicago.

Many of last year's service stars will be in the lineup for the All-Stars, headed by Tommy Harmon, the great Michigan back who was recently released from the Army. Charlie Trippi, last year's star of Randolph field in Texas, perhaps the nation's greatest team.

From Green Bay's camp came word on the eve of the game that Don Hutson, the old timer from Alabama, has been starring in scrimmage, and Coach Curly Lambeau likely will again build the Green Bay attack around the nation's top scorer.

Byron Nelson Takes First By Big Rally

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29 (AP) — Byron Nelson, of Toledo, polished off a four-round total of 295, seven under par, to win the Big Four war bond golf match at Oakmont Country club today.

Nelson's final 35-39—74 overcame a two-stroke margin held by Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., at the end of 54 holes of play this morning. Snead scored a fourth-round 79 to finish with 298, Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia was third with 304, and Gene Sarazen, the Connecticut squire, last with 314.

Nelson and Snead finished even in war bond prizes. Nelson received $2,500 for first prize and another $1,000 for one of the low four rounds. Snead collected $1,500 for second place but evened the money figures by receiving $2,000 more in bonds for two individual low rounds.

SOLONS, A'S SPLIT

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29 (AP) — Washington's pennant-hungry Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics divided an important twin bill tonight in a battle of errors with the Nats taking the opener 3-2 and dropping the nightcap, 2-1.

Roger Wolff, who scored his tenth loss against 14 wins, was the victim of a pair of miscues by his teammates in the seventh inning of the nightcap after he had tossed shutout ball for six frames. Errors by Hartland Clift and Joe Kuhel, an infield single and a long fly enabled the A's to knot the score.

Charley (Greek) George, second string receiver for the Athletics, committed a pair of errors in the eighth inning of the opener to give Emil (Dutch) Leonard the decision over Bobo Newsom.

Wichita Falls Golf Tourney Expects To Have Banner Field

WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 29 (Special.)—More than 200 are expected to match putts and pars over the Wichita Falls Country club course this week end in shooting for the big trophy and valuable merchandise prizes offered, according to latest reports announced by tournament leaders.

Many top flighters have already entered the tournament, indicating one of the fastest fields ever gathered in West Texas. Coyal Francis, local links wizard, is expected to carry much of the local hopes, with Cpl. Don Cherry, recent winner of the Lubbock Invitational, ranked high in the field. Billy Maxwell, who proved the sensation of last year before losing one up in the finals, is expected back. Dick Martin, Dallas, who last week won the Longview tournament, has also entered.

West Texas is expected to send many other top notchers to the tournament, which drew 125 last year in wartime conditions.

Baylor Lineman Hurt, May Be Lost To Club

WACO, Aug. 29 (U.P) — Baylor footballers, under Coach Bill Henderson, went through a dummy scrimmage in a drizzling rain here yesterday.

Veil Is Lifted From Jap Sneak

Although the entire facts are yet to be revealed to me and to the public, the recent statement of the Army Pearl Harbor board shows beyond question that there was available to the authorities in Washington, before the attack, critical information which was not disclosed to me and which was vital to my decision.

"My conscience is clear."

Ended For Truman

President Truman, while withholding a decision on the court martial demands, strongly indicated that the whole affair was ended so far as he was concerned.

In response to a question he said of court martials were found necessary those charged would be given a prompt and fair trial. Neither Army nor Navy inquiry boards recommended court martials.

The President made public the voluminous documents at a special news conference. He said the country was entitled to the facts now since hostilities had ceased and there was no longer any need for military secrecy.

The Army board concluded that the "extent of the Pearl Harbor disaster" was due primarily to two causes—failure of the commanding general of the Hawaiian department, Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short, "adequately to alert his command for war," and failure of the War department to direct Short to "take an adequate alert" and to inform him of all developments in the United States-Japanese negotiations.

Short Relieved Jan. 11, 1942

Short was relieved of his command Jan. 11, 1942, 35 days after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

Under the heading of "responsibility," the Army board said:

The action of then Secretary of State Hull in delivering sharp counter-proposals of Nov. 26, 1941 to the Japanese after dropping a three-months' truce plan "was used by the Japanese as the signal to begin the war by the attack on Pearl Harbor. To the extent that it hastened such attack it was in conflict with the efforts of the War and Navy departments to gain time for preparations for war.

"However, war with Japan was inevitable and imminent because of irreconciliable disagreements between the Japanese empire and the American government."

Comment Uncalled For

(Secretary Stimson in a separate statement said: "Not only do I strongly disagree with what amounts at best only to a conjecture, but I feel that the board's comment in this respect was uncalled for and not within the scope of their proper inquiry.")

General Marshall, the board asserted, "failed" to keep Short "fully advised of the growing tenseness of the Japanese situation which indicated an increasing necessity for better preparation for war, of which information he had an abundance and Short had little."

General Gerow, the board alleged, "failed" to keep Short informed on the "impending war situation," to send Short on Nov. 27th a "clear, concise directive," to realize that Short's reply to the Nov. 27 alert message was "not a state of readiness for war," and to take the required steps to implement joint plans between the Army and Navy to insure functioning of the two services "in the manner contemplated."

Command Not Readied

General Short, the report continued, "failed" to place his command in a "state of readiness for war." In the face of a war warning, it said, he adopted an alert against sabotage only.

"The information which he had was incomplete and confusing but it was sufficient to warn him of the tense relations between our government and the Japanese empire and that hostilities might be momentarily expected," the document stated.

Also, it continued, short failed to reach or attempt to reach an agreement with the admiral commanding the Pacific fleet (Husband E. Kimmel) and the admiral commanding the 14th naval district (Claude C. Bloch, Hawaii command) for implementing the joint Army and Navy plans and agreements then in existence which provided for joint action by the two services."

Navy Reconnaissance

The board also found Short failed to inform himself of the effectiveness of the long-distance reconnaissance being conducted by the Navy and did not replace inefficient staff officers.

Secretary Stimson said the board's criticism of General Marshall was "entirely unjustified." He added that "on the contrary throughout this matter I believe that he (Marshall) acted with his usual skill, energy, and efficiency."

President Truman said he associated himself "wholeheartedly with this expression by the Secretary of war," adding:

"Indeed I have the fullest confidence in the skill, energy and efficiency of all our war leaders, both Army and Navy."

The Army report was dated Oct. 20, 1944 and was signed by Lieut. Gen. George Grunert, president; and Maj. Gens. Henry D. Russell and Walter H. Frank, members.

Report Dated Oct. 19, 1944

The naval court of inquiry's report was dated Oct. 19, 1944. It gave the "opinion" that "no offenses have been committed nor serious blame incurred on the part of any person or persons in the naval service" and recommended no further proceedings.

After reading the record and indorsements by Rear Admiral T. L. Gatch, judge advocate general of the Navy, and Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, Navy Secretary Forrestal directed that:

1—Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel "shall not hold any position in the U. S. Navy which requires the exercise of superior judgment." (Kimmel was retired the same day Gen. Short was retired from the Army.)

2—Admiral Harold R. Stark also shall not hold any Navy position requiring the exercise of "superior judgment."

Forrestal's directive was not dated. Stark was not relieved until March 12, 1942 when the duties of chief of naval operations and commander in chief, U. S. fleet, were combined under Admiral King.

Stimson said "sufficient action" already had been taken against Gen. Short, whom he described as a man with a long record of "excellent service."

"My conclusion is," he said, "that under all the circumstances the evidence now recorded does not warrant the institution of any further proceedings against any officer in the Army."

He said all of the Army board's report is now public except that part which would reveal sources of secret information, but that the department would make available to congressional committees the full reports and the record of the testimony.

Railway bonds faltered.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (AP)—Cotton futures moved lower today as scattered hedging and New Orleans liquidation met indifferent mill buying. Prices at one time showed losses of 60 cents but subsequently hardened on short covering to close 5 to 40 cents a bale lower.

The somewhat slow progress being made in reconversion to civilian operation by the textile industry, lack of mill interest in spot cotton contributed to the easiness. The government weekly weather report said there was serious loss in the Texas counties affected by the hurricane but damage was minor as a whole. The mid-August cotton parity of 21.45 cents announced after the close was in line with expectations.

estimated 36,000 Allied prisoners which had been held in Japan.

At Yokohama, the hospital ship Benevolence received 500 overjoyed prisoners who had been held for months, even years, under Japanese guard. Among these was reported to be the long missing Marine flying ace, Maj. Gregory Boynington, of Okanogan, Wash.

Overhead hundreds of planes, ranging from fighters to Superfortresses, covered both the Atsugi and Yokosuka operations.

Alertness Everywhere

There was alertness everywhere for possible attacks by diehard members of the Japanese air force but none was reported.

The main landings followed by two days the arrival at Atsugi of technicians from Okinawa. They preceded the arrival within the next few weeks of thousands of troops of the Sixth and Eighth armies to occupy strategic points of Japan.

The 24th Army corps will enter Korea where General Stilwell will accept the surrender.

Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Swing's battle-tested 11th Airborne Paratroopers landed in planes hour after hour on split-second schedule. At least two days will be required to land the entire division.

The paratroopers established a perimeter at the airfield for tonight. The first expansion move will be to effect a juncture with Marines proceeding northward from Yokosuka, apparently 18 miles distant.

Be Dramatic Finale

The juncture of the soldiers and Marines of the soil of Japan will be a dramatic finale to the war record of these units. The 11th Airborne division fought the bitter battle around Nichols Field in Manila to top off other campaigns.

The original members of the Fourth Marine regiment once were stationed in China. Many died and others were imprisoned in the defense of Corregidor.

Specifically trained teams accompanied all landing units for the swift release and succor of war prisoners and internees.

Brig. Gen. W. T. Clement will command Marine landing forces. An additional three battalions of bluejackets will be available as reserves in the Yokosuka operation.

Other elements of the U. S. Eighth Army will land from transports Sept. 1 at Yokohama and Yateyamahojo.

Territory Assignments

Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger's Eighth Army will be assigned to the Tokyo region and northward. Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army, which like the Eighth is a veteran of the Philippines liberation campaign, will occupy other areas of Nippon, beginning with small airborne landings Sept. 3 and 4 on Kanoya peninsula, southern Kyushu island.

Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's U. S. Fifth Fleet, which will convoy the Sixth Army units, will control the waters of southwestern Japan and eastern Korea.

Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet will guard Tokyo bay and adjacent waters.

Units of the American air forces meanwhile are charged with taking over Japan's additional airfields.

Gen. Wainwright

Moore, a native of Austin, commander of harbor defenses in Manila and Subic bay, received the Distinguished Service Cross, the same decoration that went to Wainwright, T/Sgt. H. Carroll of Paris, Wainwright's orderly, received the Silver Star.

Former Aggie Gridster

Moore, former fotoball star at Texas A. and M., where he earned the nickname "Old Maud," was cited by Gen. Douglas MacArthur for "extraordinary heroism in action at Fort Mills, Corregidor, during the months of March and April, 1942."

"As commander of the harbor defenses in Manila and Subic bay," the citation read, "Maj. Gen. Moore, during the intensive siege of these fortified islands, showed great gallantry. The splendid efficiency and dogged determination of this garrison was largely based upon his efficiency, tenacity and individual courage."

Sgt. Carrol, whose sister, Mrs. Frank R. Osburn, lives at Paris, was honored for gallantry in action on Bataan on Jan. 21, 1942. The citation said he entered the front lines as he had on many other occasions to act as body guard to the commanding general of the First Philippine corps.

Business Here Not To Observe Labor Day

A majority of Lubbock's business houses and retail stores—excepting local banks—will remain open Monday, Labor Day, Mrs. Gladys Workman, manager of the Retail Merchants association, has announced.

"It has been the custom of the merchants to close on Labor day until 10:30 a. m., when labor organizations have staged a parade or some other demonstration," Mrs. Workman explained. "But since no labor parades have been planned for Lubbock this year, the members of the association will not observe this closing custom. They will open their stores at the regular time Monday."

Certain lumber companies and other firms, having a closed contact with labor groups, were reported to be planning to close. The banks will remain closed Labor day.

Tire 'Seconds' Are Still Under Ration

Tire certificates are still required for "factory second" tires and they are not removed from rationing, Wm. G. Williams, District Office of Price administration rationing executive, said Wednesday.

Factory rejects have been placed on the ration-free list, he said, and this type has been confused with seconds. Some difficulty has come up since a recent regulation removing from rationing used truck tires, factory rejects and truck tires reclassified as Grade 11 by OPA.

Tire dealers are said to have misunderstood the change to mean that seconds could be sold without certificates. This is incorrect, Williams said.

Coulson Property Is Given To Milam Opportunity Home

Numerous cases of canned goods and other property found in the room of R. D. Coulson, 65, who died Tuesday night of a heart attack at 809 Ave. K, were given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. L. Huber, his landlady, to Milam's Opportunity home.

Coulson had told Mrs. Huber, she related, that in event of his death she and her husband, Huber's employer, were to have the property.

Mrs. Huber said, however, she felt that the Milam home "needs it worse than we."

She asked police to arrange for delivery of the property. Assistant Chief of Police Bill Mabray communicated with K. P. Kuykendall, who sent a truck to the rooming house and transfered the goods.

Included in the gift were cases of canned vegetables and fruits, juices, a gallon of honey, five gallons of syrup, two cases of canned sardines, a case of evaporated milk, jars of salad dressing, preserves, and several pairs of shoes, and ties and socks.

A coroner's inquest concluded that death was from natural causes, and the body was taken from Sanders Funeral home to Coleman for burial.

Appreciation for the supplies was said by Mrs. W. T. Milam, of the home, and by Kuykendall, chairman of the home's board of trustees.

News Briefs

Mrs. Thelma Gore, 29, of Lubbock pleaded guilty of adultery when arraigned Wednesday afternoon before County Judge Walter Davies, and was fined $500 and court costs. The complaint, sworn to by Glynn Hudgens, city-county vice officer, charged she was an habitual intimate of Claude Ellis, who was listed by city police who had arrested him as 24-years old and of Lubbock Army Air field. Officials said he would not be charged by the county, but had been given in custody to military police. The woman's husband, officials said she related in a signed statement, is on Okinawa. They said she has four children under 6 years old.

Russia Eases Chinese Situation

ONLY a few days ago, American and British interests were worried over the threat of civil war in China.

Now, suddenly, almost over-night, the possibility of such a conflict appears to have vanished. Soviet Russia and China have clasped hands, and by the terms of their new 30-year treaty, the obvious and potential causes of internal warfare have been eliminated.

Soviet Russia has agreed to withdraw from Manchuria within three months. In addition, Russia has promised to give military supplies and moral support to Chiang Kai-Shek's governments and to keep hands off of China's internal affairs.

By these concessions, Russia has withdrawn its support from the Chinese Communists, headquartered at Yenan. Yet just a few days ago the Chinese Red Army was growling fiercely at Generalissimo Chiang and trying to beat him in a race to seize the fighting equipment being laid down by the Japs. Now the Chinese Red Army is in the role of the dog that got cuffed for barking at a friend of the dog's master. Chiang emerges once again the dominant leader in the new China.

This arrangement is as the United States and Great Britain would have wanted it. Chiang has long been their favored leader in China. In addition to eliminating the threat of civil war, the treaty holds a promise for cooperative effort in the development of the Orient.

With one swing of his big paw, the Russian bear has plucked the burrs from under the saddle.

Occupational Generalship

WITH General MacArthur's forces taking over key points in vanquished Japan, it is interesting to observe the elaborate precautions that were taken to avoid armed clashes between the die-hard Japanese and the American occupational troops.

Acting to reduce the danger of such incidents, the Supreme Allied Commander forced the Japanese government to withdraw all combatant units from the initial occupation areas and keep them confined to assigned bivouacs.

All Jap aircraft was grounded, all shipping immobilized, and all artillery rendered inoperative.

The Jap government, while urging its people not to give way to "servility or cringing," appears to have made strenuous and complete efforts to prepare them for the arrival of the Americans. American military experts see the principal danger of bloodshed in the fact that most of the best troops of the crack Kwantung Army, including many of the fanatic type, had been transferred from Manchuria to defend the home islands against invasion. There are reported to be nearly 3,500,000 soldiers in Japan. Danger to the occupation army will not be eliminated until all these Jap soldiers are disarmed.

The Russian newspaper, Pravda, has warned the victorious powers to be on guard and "not for one minute to trust the false and cunning maneuvers of the Japanese imperialists."

General MacArthur will not need this warning. He is not a man to take chances. He and his men will go about the job of tightening the controls on Japan with the swift, efficiency of an expert roper putting a rope on a kicking calf.

The long period of occupation will not be without incidents, but it will be accomplished with the same high degree of generalship displayed in winning the war.

We may be certain of that.

History Repeating Itself

NOT long ago public speakers—politicians as well as others—were declaring that isolation was dead.

They said that the United States had learned the danger of isolation the hard way, and had paid for its folly with the blood of its young men.

Yet today, we are beginning to hear a voice, saying: "I didn't raise my son to police a foreign nation. Why must they send him overseas to serve as an MP in Japan or Germany?"

Of course, it is natural for every parent to wish that his son be the lucky one who does not have to go. But there is another side to this. The boys who have borne the brunt of the fighting deserve a trip home. Somebody has to take their place and do the guard-duty. Now that we've defeated Germany and Japan, we can not let them do as they please. If we did, we would soon have another war on our hands.

Simple and axiomatic as these truths are, there are many persons in America who ignore them. They are the counterparts of the generation of 1919, the generation that under the leadership of Hiram Johnson, Jim Reed, and other smooth-talking isolationists, turned its back on Europe.

It cost too much money and took too many soldiers to police Germany then, so they thought we should think and be "Americans First." The phrase—"America First"—had a good ring to it. It seemed to make sense.

But Gemany, unguarded and unwatched, prepared anew for world conquest. It has cost us a staggering toll in dead and wounded.

Will we repeat the folly of the past?

The story: Mrs. Kittridge fusses over Brock, manages to make Thayer feel an intruder. Brock feels self-conscious in Thayer's presence. Sitting alone on the terrace, his mind goes back to the time when he first lost his leg.

* * *

He was not a good patient those first days. He was still shamed remembering how he had tried to push away the tending hands, how he had cursed when too weak to oppose them. Until a haggard-faced doctor had outcursed him into silence. "You're my job, don't make it any harder."

Cold sobering fact. He was sane after that and numb with despair. That was when he turned in upon himself, his an aloneness none could share.

There was one nurse with level brows and deep dark eyes like Thayer's. He watched her a great deal and once he said, "There is nothing about me worth all this trouble you're taking." Not knowing what he wanted her to answer, yet somehow tensed, waiting.

With her too-loud laugh all resemblance to Thayer vanished. She said, "Fishing for compliments, Captain?" and he felt heat pour into his face and a sort of sick shame surge through him. It was that night, lying sleepless in the dark, that the horror of coming home to Thayer like this first gripped him. He longed for her unutterably, yet the thought of returning to her a cripple seemed beyond his strength to face. Every recollection of their hours together was sweet because of their joy in life and movement. I love to walk with you, Brock; I love that way you stride along.

Once he tried in desperation to talk to the chaplain. To the chaplain it was an old story. He told Brock, "My boy, a woman's love is an enduring thing. She'll stand by, never fear." It gave Brock a chill feeling. That night he dreamed of Thayer. She stood straight, unflinching, her hands clenched tightly at her sides. He tried to walk to her and could not; he was falling. . . . A nurse wakened him when he cried out.

The months passed, teaching him endurance if nothing else. The stump of his leg was not yet healed enough to bear an artificial limb but that he had any leg at all was considered a minor miracle. At last he came home.

He would never forget his first sight of her at the airport, for she was standing straight and tall as in his dream. It made everything so giddy. If her hands were clenched. . . . But he never knew, for they had all reached him by then. Nothing kept him going but necessity.

The sight of the little room his mother had fixed up nearly broke him with relief, for his heart had seemed to stop at the foot of that long staircase. To have Thayer see. . . .

But when Thayer had come into the room with him and they were alone, he had felt his whole body strung taut with longing for her. He was afraid to look at her, afraid to touch her, for first—he had promised himself this — he must know how she felt. Only—how to put it into words.

It seemed he must hurt her, goad her into expression of the real feeling that lay so deeply guarded behind her dark eyes Yet it was his undoing, because hurting her had hurt him so much more. She had struck through every defense when she said, "Brock, have you forgotten Drumhead Hill?" Because he had forgotten, and remembrance smote him, sharp and poignant.

She was standing there so close and suddenly his arms went about her waist without volition, his face was against her and he was crying, who in all these months had shed no tears. He felt the warmth of her body through her clothing; he felt her hands on his hair, against his cheeks. He wanted to seize them, press his face into them, cling to them.

It was the old imperative dinner gong which had saved him from a complete emotional breakup. What had it meant to Thayer? Was she relieved? It had come between them like a presence. She had made an excuse, gotten away. When she returned she was poised, sure of herself. His unspoken questioning, like a trapped thing, ran round and round in a pit of silence.

"Hello!" The words breaking across his thoughts startled Brock. Moya came around the corner of the house, wind blowing her hair. She said, "Your mother said you were out here," and dropped into a chair beside his. "How brown you're getting, Brock. Don't you love a day like this?" To herself she was thinking, Will he ever look as he used to? It's his eyes, and his mouth—they are so different.

She could not remember when she hadn't been in love with Brock. He was simply part of her life's plan; no other boy interested her. He had been difficult at times but she had entertained no fear of real rivalry. Between their two families their ultimate marriage was an accepted fact.

His meeting with Thayer and its consequence had rocked to its foundations the security Moya had looked upon as fact.

She had seen, though vaguely understood, the change in Brock. At first he had seemed hard, then she noticed his eager reaching toward the old, the familiar; like a child seeking the sure safety of the commonplace. Slowly it became clear. Thayer—his winning of her and his brief marriage—represented a pinnacle Brock had reached. It was somehow apart from the ordered life of Daverton to which he now returned. That old life could claim him again; Moya felt sure of it. Thayer was an outsider; only those who loved him best could rebuilt life for Brock again Mrs Kittridge knew this. More than once she and Moya had looked at each other wordlessly over Brock's head. It's my turn now, Moya thought. Yes, my turn.

Rum was originally known as rumbullion in the 18th Century, as rumbo in the 19th and finally as rum today. It meant "great tumult" in Devonshirt dialect.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

THERE was a story in the papers about the arrest of gunmen who robbed bank messengers of thousands of dollars in cash which they were delivering to a check-cashing agency near a big plant.

It was payday in the plant and the money was being taken to the agency so that the employees might cash their pay checks there.

BRANDEIS

Why should employees have to go to a check-cashing agency to convert their checks into cash?

Why should they have to pay a fee to these people, instead of getting their money right at the paymaster's window?

You see the same thing in New York and in other large cities all over the country.

I asked an employer.

"It isn't safe for us to have so much money here. Our messengers may be held up or our cashier may be held up."

That's an odd excuse.

* * *

The agency's messengers were held up, weren't they?

And how can we prate about that "brave new world" as long as human beings will prey on each other, as long as there are all kinds of rackets in existence, as long as sharks and chiselers take advantage of every opportunity to make a little extra money?

Wherever you look today you see how much the human being still has to learn about humanity.

Employees take advantage of their employers. Discourtesy is rampant because it is a seller's market. Prices are up as high as profiteers dare to raise them. Black markets everywhere. Ceiling prices are laughed at and evaded.

Some people have called me a Pollyanna because I like to see the good in everything and because I try to look on the bright side of life.

* * *

BUT all around me there is greed and lust and cruelty and intolerance, and sometimes I wonder by what right we call ourselves the superior species of beings when, in so many respects, we do things that no respectable animal would condescend to do.

What wonderful inventions we have made! What scientific genius we possess! What marvelous commercial and productive brains we have!

But what have we accomplished spiritually?

Talk is cheap. To listen to some of our orators we have every formula for a perfect world.

But to read the crime news and the news of racketeering and chiseling and discrimination and downright cussedness, one wonders sometimes how a humanity such as ours can ever expect to have peace on earth until it first learns to exercise the first principles of good will to men.

GOP Is "Behind 8-Ball"

Republicans In Need Of "Issues"

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

TOP Republican leaders realize belatedly that their last two Presidential candidates, by substituting their personal platforms for the official party pledges, put them on such a difficult spot that their only hope is to "drift back" into political power through the supposedly inevitable changes in the tides of a people's favor.

Now that the end of the war permits the opposition to make detailed plans for the 1946 Congressional elections, which may forecast their 1948 chances to recapture the White House, the scarcity of major vote-getting issues between the historic organizations has become their principal concern and conversation.

When National Chairman Herbert Brownell, jr. visited a politician or dropped into a clubhouse on his recent swing around the country, the back-room boys buttomholed him and asked: "Will you please tell us how we are going to fight the Democrats in the 1946 Congressional contests, and what we are going to use against Truman in 1948?"

TUCKER

Brownell himself could not answer that query save with, 'Oh, something will turn up. A lot can happen between now and then."

Not an original remark, but a pertinent reply under the circumstances. The postwar negotiations may bog down, and precipitate fresh rivalries. Domestically, there may be dangerous inflation. Or the administration may fall down in providing jobs and winning over 12,000,000 voters among the returned veterans.

Off the record higherup GOP-ers acknowledge that their main reliance rests in the Truman Administration's failure to solve these problems. But they cannot admit publicly that they expect to rebuild their political fortunes on a foundation of world and domestic disaster.

That would be unpatriotic, and politics of the worst kind. Moreover, the more intelligent members of the minority do not wish to win that way.

* * *

ENDORSEMENT: The disappearance of any basic differences between America's two great partisan organizations is admittedly the new and fundamental fact of present day politics on the national stage.

Franklin Roosevelt's death eliminated many headline controversies which derived their substance and persistence only from his challenging and provoking personality.

The GOP's 1940 and 1944 standard-bearers — Wendell Willkie and Tom Dewey—endorsed the Roosevelt-Truman administration's foreign policies. Such outstanding Capitol Hill leaders as Sens. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Warren Austin of Vermont, and Reps. Jim Wadsworth, of New York and Charlie Eaton of New Jersey, implemented the nonpartisan program for winning the war and the peace.

The New York governor also approved the New Deal's major domestic reforms—the Social Security act, the National Labor Relations statute, the Wage-Hour law and far-reaching financial aid for the farmers. Indeed, he urged expansion and extension of these social and economic innovations.

Dewey's only expressed reason for his election was his belief that "It is time for a change" because these measures had been maladministered by "tired and quarrelsome old men." It should be noted that Brownell, as the Dewey campaign manager, helped to devise this strategy and so far has not yet thought up a better design for victory.

House-Senate strategists of the old fight-'em-and-bite-'em school did not agree with the Albany man on this kind of tactics. They refused to subscribe to a statement of party principles which he framed and submitted to them last December, only a month after his defeat.

The practical boys recognize that, in the public mind, Dewey has tagged them with the label which FDR slapped on them in the 1944 campaign: "Me too, boys!"

* * *

NEW DEALERS: Opposition critics of the Willkie-Dewey "appeasement attitude," as they describe the two men's campaign strategy, have tentatively mapped out an altogether different kind of battle. They will try to tag President Truman as an advocate and supporter of all the most unpopular features of his predecessor's New Deal.

These GOP extremists will cite his senatorial votes as evidence that he is no more conservative than FDR. He dissented only a few times on comparatively minor matters. They will note his White House endorsement of subsidy and unemployment legislation that had been advanced originally by Mr. Roosevelt and Henry Wallace. They expect that they can point to forthcoming policies as a sign of a permanent alliance between the administration and the radical Hillmen faction of the labor group.

In short, they will accuse the President of pretending to move to the right without having taken a single step in that direction. They also anticipate, as mentioned above, that he will come many a cropper in the difficult period which lies ahead. Although they soft-pedal these expectations at the present moment, they will pounce on every mistake and use it to fullest advantage in the ballot-box brawls.

* * *

PROGRAM: In plain, blunt, political lingo here is one hard-boiled GOP-er's analysis of Mr. Truman's re-election problem, and the methods he will adopt to assure his return to the White House in 1948:

"We're not kidding ourselves that Truman has shifted slightly right of center. He is still on the Roosevelt side of the line. He has to be. Look at it this way:

"Roosevelt built an unbeatable machine—he was a smart politician—out of three entirely divergent elements. He won four times with the votes of the Solid South, the Hague-Kelly-Flynn machines in the cities and with the almost unanimous support of labor and the radicals. If he had lost any one of those three groups, he would have been licked.

* * *

LABOR: "Like Roosevelt, Truman figures that he can always hold the South, especially as he is more of a Southerner than a Midwesterner. As I recall, his father was a Confederate soldier. Besides, he has satisfied that section with the Byrnes and Vinson appointments.

"The city machines are purchasable, and they were bought long ago with jobs and contracts. But he MUST have the rank and file of labor on his side. So he MUST—and will—give them what they want. Why do you think he has kept Wallace in his cabinet? And, although Ickes is no more of a liberal than I am, he makes a rip-roaring radical speech against 'the interests,' though I don't believe Harold would know an 'interest' if he saw one.

"Truman isn't fooling us old politicians. He's a New Dealer and he always will be. And I think the country will be sick of that kind of stuff three years from now!"

A left-handed claim to fame of which we are inordinately proud is that we have never listened to an Amos & Andy radio program.

"The bat sings in such high-pitched tones that the human ear cannot detect them," says a naturalist. We wish this were true also of yodelers.

The shorter shirt tails are proving embarrassing to men who cannot afford to have their pants re-soled.

Fraternization Called "A Moral Disgrace"

Writer "Speaks Out In Meeting"

By BILL CUNNINGHAM
Special Correspondent

PARIS—If this piece ever gets back to the U. S. Army in Germany, the author thereof will scarcely be listed as Public Buddy No. 1, but I've got to write it because it's gnawing at my insides. I can see, in advance, where it can be counter-attacked. I have no guard in three places. They are: (1) I'm a middle-aged man, past the exquisite burn and yearn of amorous curiosity; (2) I am free to move where I will and live as I like, instead of being fenced by the deadly monotony of life in a barracks; (3) the general application of that time-honored proverb, "A young devil; an old saint."

Nevertheless, and withstanding here it is: It's my considered, and all but prayerful pondered opinion that fraternization with the Germans is not only a moral disgrace, but a step of sorts toward encouraging a Third World war.

* * *

"Travesty On Victory"

It doesn't make much sense to lose a million men fighting a gangster-led herd of martial and moral lunatics and then fall to necking them all over the place as soon as the shooting stops. It's travesty enough upon bloody and costly victory to think of our men making love to their maids, but when you think of our girls reversing the negative, as they have the right to under the ruling, you have the complete picture, and that picture is a complete prostitution of all we've been through.

I hasten to say that I haven't seen any American women walking out with the handsome specimens of German youth, but there's nothing in the regulations to stop them if they want to, and it wouldn't surprise me in the least if some want to, for they're human, too.

* * *

BUT the whole thing is bad for three or four reasons. First of all, we've smashed into that land after the bloodiest fight in all history as conquerors. We're prepared to stay 50 years if necessary. Our main objectives have been three, (1) To beat them into the earth and make them quit, no matter what the cost. (2) to get it through their thick skulls that they all—every one of them—are guilty of monstrous and unforgivable crimes against God and decent society and (3) not only to make them pay for what they have done, but to make deadly sure they don't get into position to do it again.

The situation is bad because its features are so unusual, and because they fit so exactly into a pattern that tends to erase the reason for our presence in Germany. To begin with, the Germans are a physically clean people, as all the world knows. Hitler raided all Europe to feed and clothe them well. Their cities are punched to flinders, but at least the young people, themselves, look healthy, fit and hygienic.

The American dough fairly catches his breath when he sees these blonde German girls. They have figures. They wear flaring colored skirts and white blouses. Their blonde hair shines like halos as they pass on their bicycles. They wear lipstick and fingernail polish, and there's a heady smash of perfume in their prop-wash as they walk or ride by.

* * *

Situation Made To Order

The next thing is that most of these girls can be had at practically the soldier's own price. For many of them it's all there is left. Practically all of them were married or were engaged to German soldiers. So far as they know their husbands and lovers have been killed. Many have no homes and are frozen in the country regions where they are because they fled the bombings in Berlin, or some other city, and now have no papers with which to get back.

They have food cards which give them a bare subsistence and landlords are forbidden to turn them into the street pending the eventual working out of some plan. They'll become any man's mistress for a few marks to buy bread, pay room rent for an occasional pack of cigarettes and a bar of chocolate. And furthermore, they'll stay true to their benefactor. Maybe they don't want to risk losing him, but the soldier attributes it naturally to his prowess as a lover, and is pretty proud of the whole affair.

* * *

AS I SAID, I'm not arguing morals. I've long since been convinced that, as the saying is, the man and woman business is here to stay, and from my observation, it doesn't make the slightest difference what country you're in.

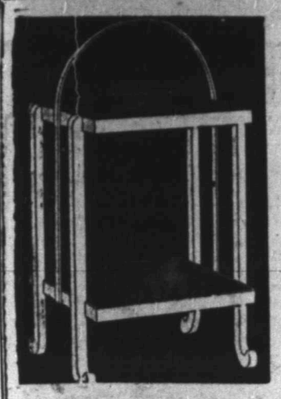

But these gals have an ideology which was driven into their minds from their cradle days by that Arch-Master Herr Doktor Josef Paul Goebbels. It's a line to the effect that the Russians are beasts, that Germany was trying to save the world from them and the Jews, that we were misled into the war by Herr Roosevelt, himself probably part Jewish, that we will be positively sorry that we got on the wrong side and that we'll have to fight Russia ourselves before the whole thing is over, that Germany, unless we save it, will go Communistic and that Communism will eventually engulf us, as well.

Russia Eases Chinese Situation

ONLY a few days ago, American and British interests were worried over the threat of civil war in China.

Now, suddenly, almost over-night, the possibility of such a conflict appears to have vanished. Soviet Russia and China have clasped hands, and by the terms of their new 30-year treaty, the obvious and potential causes of internal warfare have been eliminated.

Soviet Russia has agreed to withdraw from Manchuria within three months. In addition, Russia has promised to give military supplies and moral support to Chiang Kai-Shek's governments and to keep hands off of China's internal affairs.

By these concessions, Russia has withdrawn its support from the Chinese Communists, headquartered at Yenan. Yet just a few days ago the Chinese Red Army was growling fiercely at Generalissimo Chiang and trying to beat him in a race to seize the fighting equipment being laid down by the Japs. Now the Chinese Red Army is in the role of the dog that got cuffed for barking at a friend of the dog's master. Chiang emerges once again the dominant leader in the new China.

This arrangement is as the United States and Great Britain would have wanted it. Chiang has long been their favored leader in China. In addition to eliminating the threat of civil war, the treaty holds a promise for cooperative effort in the development of the Orient.

With one swing of his big paw, the Russian bear has plucked the burrs from under the saddle.

Occupational Generalship

WITH General MacArthur's forces taking over key points in vanquished Japan, it is interesting to observe the elaborate precautions that were taken to avoid armed clashes between the die-hard Japanese and the American occupational troops.

Acting to reduce the danger of such incidents, the Supreme Allied Commander forced the Japanese government to withdraw all combatant units from the initial occupation areas and keep them confined to assigned bivouacs.

All Jap aircraft was grounded, all shipping immobilized, and all artillery rendered inoperative.

The Jap government, while urging its people not to give way to "servility or cringing," appears to have made strenuous and complete efforts to prepare them for the arrival of the Americans. American military experts see the principal danger of bloodshed in the fact that most of the best troops of the crack Kwantung Army, including many of the fanatic type, had been transferred from Manchuria to defend the home islands against invasion. There are reported to be nearly 3,500,000 soldiers in Japan. Danger to the occupation army will not be eliminated until all these Jap soldiers are disarmed.

The Russian newspaper, Pravda, has warned the victorious powers to be on guard and "not for one minute to trust the false and cunning maneuvers of the Japanese imperialists."

General MacArthur will not need this warning. He is not a man to take chances. He and his men will go about the job of tightening the controls on Japan with the swift, efficiency of an expert roper putting a rope on a kicking calf.

The long period of occupation will not be without incidents, but it will be accomplished with the same high degree of generalship displayed in winning the war.

We may be certain of that.

History Repeating Itself

NOT long ago public speakers—politicians as well as others—were declaring that isolation was dead.

They said that the United States had learned the danger of isolation the hard way, and had paid for its folly with the blood of its young men.

Yet today, we are beginning to hear a voice, saying: "I didn't raise my son to police a foreign nation. Why must they send him overseas to serve as an MP in Japan or Germany?"

Of course, it is natural for every parent to wish that his son be the lucky one who does not have to go. But there is another side to this. The boys who have borne the brunt of the fighting deserve a trip home. Somebody has to take their place and do the guard-duty. Now that we've defeated Germany and Japan, we can not let them do as they please. If we did, we would soon have another war on our hands.

Simple and axiomatic as these truths are, there are many persons in America who ignore them. They are the counterparts of the generation of 1919, the generation that under the leadership of Hiram Johnson, Jim Reed, and other smooth-talking isolationists, turned its back on Europe.

It cost too much money and took too many soldiers to police Germany then, so they thought we should think and be "Americans First." The phrase—"America First"—had a good ring to it. It seemed to make sense.

But Gemany, unguarded and unwatched, prepared anew for world conquest. It has cost us a staggering toll in dead and wounded.

Will we repeat the folly of the past?

The story: Mrs. Kittridge fusses over Brock, manages to make Thayer feel an intruder. Brock feels self-conscious in Thayer's presence. Sitting alone on the terrace, his mind goes back to the time when he first lost his leg.

* * *

He was not a good patient those first days. He was still shamed remembering how he had tried to push away the tending hands, how he had cursed when too weak to oppose them. Until a haggard-faced doctor had outcursed him into silence. "You're my job, don't make it any harder."

Cold sobering fact. He was sane after that and numb with despair. That was when he turned in upon himself, his an aloneness none could share.

There was one nurse with level brows and deep dark eyes like Thayer's. He watched her a great deal and once he said, "There is nothing about me worth all this trouble you're taking." Not knowing what he wanted her to answer, yet somehow tensed, waiting.

With her too-loud laugh all resemblance to Thayer vanished. She said, "Fishing for compliments, Captain?" and he felt heat pour into his face and a sort of sick shame surge through him. It was that night, lying sleepless in the dark, that the horror of coming home to Thayer like this first gripped him. He longed for her unutterably, yet the thought of returning to her a cripple seemed beyond his strength to face. Every recollection of their hours together was sweet because of their joy in life and movement. I love to walk with you, Brock; I love that way you stride along.

Once he tried in desperation to talk to the chaplain. To the chaplain it was an old story. He told Brock, "My boy, a woman's love is an enduring thing. She'll stand by, never fear." It gave Brock a chill feeling. That night he dreamed of Thayer. She stood straight, unflinching, her hands clenched tightly at her sides. He tried to walk to her and could not; he was falling. . . . A nurse wakened him when he cried out.

The months passed, teaching him endurance if nothing else. The stump of his leg was not yet healed enough to bear an artificial limb but that he had any leg at all was considered a minor miracle. At last he came home.

He would never forget his first sight of her at the airport, for she was standing straight and tall as in his dream. It made everything so giddy. If her hands were clenched. . . . But he never knew, for they had all reached him by then. Nothing kept him going but necessity.

The sight of the little room his mother had fixed up nearly broke him with relief, for his heart had seemed to stop at the foot of that long staircase. To have Thayer see. . . .

But when Thayer had come into the room with him and they were alone, he had felt his whole body strung taut with longing for her. He was afraid to look at her, afraid to touch her, for first—he had promised himself this — he must know how she felt. Only—how to put it into words.

It seemed he must hurt her, goad her into expression of the real feeling that lay so deeply guarded behind her dark eyes Yet it was his undoing, because hurting her had hurt him so much more. She had struck through every defense when she said, "Brock, have you forgotten Drumhead Hill?" Because he had forgotten, and remembrance smote him, sharp and poignant.

She was standing there so close and suddenly his arms went about her waist without volition, his face was against her and he was crying, who in all these months had shed no tears. He felt the warmth of her body through her clothing; he felt her hands on his hair, against his cheeks. He wanted to seize them, press his face into them, cling to them.

It was the old imperative dinner gong which had saved him from a complete emotional breakup. What had it meant to Thayer? Was she relieved? It had come between them like a presence. She had made an excuse, gotten away. When she returned she was poised, sure of herself. His unspoken questioning, like a trapped thing, ran round and round in a pit of silence.

"Hello!" The words breaking across his thoughts startled Brock. Moya came around the corner of the house, wind blowing her hair. She said, "Your mother said you were out here," and dropped into a chair beside his. "How brown you're getting, Brock. Don't you love a day like this?" To herself she was thinking, Will he ever look as he used to? It's his eyes, and his mouth—they are so different.

She could not remember when she hadn't been in love with Brock. He was simply part of her life's plan; no other boy interested her. He had been difficult at times but she had entertained no fear of real rivalry. Between their two families their ultimate marriage was an accepted fact.

His meeting with Thayer and its consequence had rocked to its foundations the security Moya had looked upon as fact.

She had seen, though vaguely understood, the change in Brock. At first he had seemed hard, then she noticed his eager reaching toward the old, the familiar; like a child seeking the sure safety of the commonplace Slowly it became clear. Thayer—his winning of her and his brief marriage—represented a pinnacle Brock had reached. It was somehow apart from the ordered life of Daverton to which he now returned. That old life could claim him again; Moya felt sure of it. Thayer was an outsider; only those who loved him best could rebuilt life for Brock again Mrs Kittridge knew this. More than once she and Moya had looked at each other wordlessly over Brock's head. It's my turn now, Moya thought. Yes, my turn.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

THERE was a story in the papers about the arrest of gunmen who robbed bank messengers of thousands of dollars in cash which they were delivering to a check-cashing agency near a big plant.

It was payday in the plant and the money was being taken to the agency so that the employees might cash their pay checks there.

BRANDEIS

Why should employees have to go to a check-cashing agency to convert their checks into cash?

Why should they have to pay a fee to these people, instead of getting their money right at the paymaster's window?

You see the same thing in New York and in other large cities all over the country.

I asked an employer.

"It isn't safe for us to have so much money here. Our messengers may be held up or our cashier may be held up."

That's an odd excuse.

* * *

The agency's messengers were held up, weren't they?

And how can we prate about that "brave new world" as long as human beings will prey on each other, as long as there are all kinds of rackets in existence, as long as sharks and chiselers take advantage of every opportunity to make a little extra money?

Wherever you look today you see how much the human being still has to learn about humanity.

Employees take advantage of their employers. Discourtesy is rampant because it is a seller's market. Prices are up as high as profiteers dare to raise them. Black markets everywhere. Ceiling prices are laughed at and evaded.

Some people have called me a Pollyanna because I like to see the good in everything and because I try to look on the bright side of life.

* * *

BUT all around me there is greed and lust and cruelty and intolerance, and sometimes I wonder by what right we call ourselves the superior species of beings when, in so many respects, we do things that no respectable animal would condescend to do.

What wonderful inventions we have made! What scientific genius we possess! What marvelous commercial and productive brains we have!

But what have we accomplished spiritually?

Talk is cheap. To listen to some of our orators we have every formula for a perfect world.

But to read the crime news and the news of racketeering and chiseling and discrimination and downright cussedness, one wonders sometimes how a humanity such as ours can ever expect to have peace on earth until it first learns to exercise the first principles of good will to men.

GOP Is "Behind 8-Ball"

Republicans In Need Of "Issues"

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

TOP Republican leaders realize belatedly that their last two Presidential candidates, by substituting their personal platforms for the official party pledges, put them on such a difficult spot that their only hope is to "drift back" into political power through the supposedly inevitable changes in the tides of a people's favor.

Now that the end of the war permits the opposition to make detailed plans for the 1946 Congressional elections, which may forecast their 1948 chances to recapture the White House, the scarcity of major vote-getting issues between the historic organizations has become their principal concern and conversation.

When National Chairman Herbert Brownell, jr. visited a politician or dropped into a clubhouse on his recent swing around the country, the back-room boys buttonholed him and asked: "Will you please tell us how we are going to fight the Democrats in the 1946 Congressional contests, and what we are going to use against Truman in 1948?"

TUCKER

Brownell himself could not answer that query save with, 'Oh, something will turn up. A lot can happen between now and then."

Not an original remark, but a pertinent reply under the circumstances. The postwar negotiations may bog down, and precipitate fresh rivalries. Domestically, there may be dangerous inflation. Or the administration may fall down in providing jobs and winning over 12,000,000 voters among the returned veterans.

Off the record higherup GOP-ers acknowledge that their main reliance rests in the Truman Administration's failure to solve these problems. But they cannot admit publicly that they expect to rebuild their political fortunes on a foundation of world and domestic disaster.

That would be unpatriotic, and politics of the worst kind. Moreover, the more intelligent members of the minority do not wish to win that way.

* * *

ENDORSEMENT: The disappearance of any basic differences between America's two great partisan organizations is admittedly the new and fundamental fact of present day politics on the national stage.

Franklin Roosevelt's death eliminated many headline controversies which derived their substance and persistence only from his challenging and provoking personality.

The GOP's 1940 and 1944 standard-bearers — Wendell Willkie and Tom Dewey—endorsed the Roosevelt-Truman administration's foreign policies. Such outstanding Capitol Hill leaders as Sens. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Warren Austin of Vermont, and Reps. Jim Wadsworth, of New York and Charlie Eaton of New Jersey, implemented the nonpartisan program for winning the war and the peace.

The New York governor also approved the New Deal's major domestic reforms—the Social Security act, the National Labor Relations statute, the Wage-Hour law and far-reaching financial aid for the farmers. Indeed, he urged expansion and extension of these social and economic innovations.

Dewey's only expressed reason for his election was his belief that "It is time for a change" because these measures had been maladministered by "tired and quarrelsome old men." It should be noted that Brownell, as the Dewey campaign manager, helped to devise this strategy and so far has not yet thought up a better design for victory.

House-Senate strategists of the old fight-'em-and-bite-'em school did not agree with the Albany man on this kind of tactics. They refused to subscribe to a statement of party principles which he framed and submitted to them last December, only a month after his defeat.

The practical boys recognize that, in the public mind, Dewey has tagged them with the label which FDR slapped on them in the 1944 campaign: "Me too, boys!"

* * *

NEW DEALERS: Opposition critics of the Willkie-Dewey "appeasement attitude," as they describe the two men's campaign strategy, have tentatively mapped out an altogether different kind of battle. They will try to tag President Truman as an advocate and supporter of all the most unpopular features of his predecessor's New Deal.

These GOP extremists will cite his senatorial votes as evidence that he is no more conservative than FDR. He dissented only a few times on comparatively minor matters. They will note his White House endorsement of subsidy and unemployment legislation that had been advanced originally by Mr. Roosevelt and Henry Wallace. They expect that they can point to forthcoming policies as a sign of a permanent alliance between the administration and the radical Hillman faction of the labor group.

In short, they will accuse the President of pretending to move to the right without having taken a single step in that direction. They also anticipate, as mentioned above, that he will come many a cropper in the difficult period which lies ahead. Although they soft-pedal these expectations at the present moment, they will pounce on every mistake and use it to fullest advantage in the ballot-box brawls.

* * *

PROGRAM: In plain, blunt, political lingo here is one hard-boiled GOP-er's analysis of Mr. Truman's re-election problem, and the methods he will adopt to assure his return to the White House in 1948:

"We're not kidding ourselves that Truman has shifted slightly right of center. He is still on the Roosevelt side of the line. He has to be. Look at it this way:

"Roosevelt built an unbeatable machine—he was a smart politician—out of three entirely divergent elements. He won four times with the votes of the Solid South, the Hague-Kelly-Flynn machines in the cities and with the almost unanimous support of labor and the radicals. If he had lost any one of those three groups, he would have been licked.

* * *

LABOR: "Like Roosevelt, Truman figures that he can always hold the South, especially as he is more of a Southerner than a Midwesterner. As I recall, his father was a Confederate soldier. Besides, he has satisfied that section with the Byrnes and Vinson appointments.

"The city machines are purchasable, and they were bought long ago with jobs and contracts. But he MUST have the rank and file of labor on his side. So he MUST—and will—give them what they want. Why do you think he has kept Wallace in his cabinet? And, although Ickes is no more of a liberal than I am, he makes a rip-roaring radical speech against 'the interests,' though I don't believe Harold would know an 'interest' if he saw one.

"Truman isn't fooling us old politicians. He's a New Dealer and he always will be. And I think the country will be sick of that kind of stuff three years from now!"

A left-handed claim to fame of which we are inordinately proud is that we have never listened to an Amos & Andy radio program.

"The bat sings in such high-pitched tones that the human ear cannot detect them," says a naturalist. We wish this were true also of yodelers.

The shorter shirt tails are proving embarrassing to men who cannot afford to have their pants re-soled.

"A woman has a poor sense of values who puts a hardwood floor above her husband, declares Dorothy Dix. Also a poor sense of direction.

Fraternization Called "A Moral Disgrace"

Writer "Speaks Out In Meeting"

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Thomas L. Stokes, one of The Morning Avalanche's top correspondents in Washington, in enjoying a brief vacation. During his absence, his space will be filled by Bill Cunningham, former Texan and lately a nationally known sports writer, commentator, war correspondent and magazine author; and by other outstanding writers.)

* * *

By BILL CUNNINGHAM
Special Correspondent

PARIS—If this piece ever gets back to the U. S. Army in Germany, the author thereof will scarcely be listed as Public Buddy No. 1, but I've got to write it because it's gnawing at my insides. I can see, in advance, where it can be counter-attacked. I have no guard in three places. They are: (1) I'm a middle-aged man, past the exquisite burn and yearn of amorous curiosity; (2) I am free to move where I will and live as I like, instead of being fenced by the deadly monotony of life in a barracks; (3) the general application of that time-honored proverb, "A young devil; an old saint."

Nevertheless, and withstanding here it is: It's my considered, and all but prayerful pondered opinion that fraternization with the Germans is not only a moral disgrace, but a step of sorts toward encouraging a Third World war.

* * *

"Travesty On Victory"

It doesn't make much sense to lose a million men fighting a gangster-led herd of martial and moral lunatics and then fall to necking them all over the place as soon as the shooting stops. It's travesty enough upon bloody and costly victory to think of our men making love to their maids, but when you think of our girls reversing the negative, as they have the right to under the ruling, you have the complete picture, and that picture is a complete prostitution of all we've been through.

I hasten to say that I haven't seen any American women walking out with the handsome specimens of German youth, but there's nothing in the regulations to stop them if they want to, and it wouldn't surprise me in the least if some want to, for they're human, too.

* * *

BUT the whole thing is bad for three or four reasons. First of all, we've smashed into that land after the bloodiest fight in all history as conquerors. We're prepared to stay 50 years if necessary. Our main objectives have been three, (1) To beat them into the earth and make them quit, no matter what the cost. (2) to get it through their thick skulls that they all—every one of them—are guilty of monstrous and unforgivable crimes against God and decent society and (3) not only to make them pay for what they have done, but to make deadly sure they don't get into position to do it again.

The situation is bad because its features are so unusual, and because they fit so exactly into a pattern that tends to erase the reason for our presence in Germany. To begin with, the Germans are a physically clean people, as all the world knows. Hitler raided all Europe to feed and clothe them well. Their cities are punched to flinders, but at least the young people, themselves, look healthy, fit and hygienic.

The American dough fairly catches his breath when he sees these blonde German girls. They have figures. They wear flaring colored skirts and white blouses. Their blonde hair shines like halos as they pass on their bicycles. They wear lipstick and fingernail polish, and there's a heady smash of perfume in their prop-wash as they walk or ride by.

* * *

Situation Made To Order

The next thing is that most of these girls can be had at practically the soldier's own price. For many of them it's all there is left. Practically all of them were married or were engaged to German soldiers. So far as they know their husbands and lovers have been killed. Many have no homes and are frozen in the country regions where they are because they fled the bombings in Berlin, or some other city, and now have no papers with which to get back.

They have food cards which give them a bare subsistence and landlords are forbidden to turn them into the street pending the eventual working out of some plan. They'll become any man's mistress for a few marks to buy bread, pay room rent for an occasional pack of cigarettes and a bar of chocolate. And furthermore, they'll stay true to their benefactor. Maybe they don't want to risk losing him, but the soldier attributes it naturally to his prowess as a lover, and is pretty proud of the whole affair.

* * *

AS I SAID, I'm not arguing morals. I've long since been convinced that, as the saying is, the man and woman business is here to stay, and from my observation, it doesn't make the slightest difference what country you're in.

But these gals have an ideology which was driven into their minds from their cradle days by that Arch-Master Herr Doktor Josef Paul Goebbels. It's a line to the effect that the Russians are beasts, that Germany was trying to save the world from them and the Jews, that we were misled into the war by Herr Roosevelt, himself probably part Jewish, that we will be positively sorry that we got on the wrong side and that we'll have to fight Russia ourselves before the whole thing is over, that Germany, unless we save it, will go Communistic and that Communism will eventually engulf us, as well.

Unique Problems Presented With Present Occupation Plan In Japan

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press Staff Writer

The American occupation of Japan appears likely to go through without further bloodshed, but with plenty of headaches in store for the conquerors.

This occupation presents problems unique in American military history. From present indications, there will be a lot of trial by error. It will be almost a miracle if it is accomplished without some grievous setbacks.

Isolated Cases Probable

The chances of large-scale armed resistance to the occupation seems to be dwindling. The attitude of Japanese government authorities, backed by the authority of the emperor, is reassuring on that point. Outbreaks of isolated fanatical resistance are considered possible, but the American forces are going in fully armed to cope with them.

A mighty fleet and overwhelming air power will be back of the land forces, ready for swift action in case of treachery. Responsible Japanese act as though convinced of the hopeless physical odds against them, even aside from the terrible threat of the atomic bomb.

It is the administrative features of occupation which present the real problem. The Americans, in the words of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, are going in with a big stick but walking softly.

Ability of Emperor

What the United States has done, for better or for worse, is to recognize for the time being the presumed ability of the emperor and the governmental setup under him to maintain internal order in Japan, under direction of the Allied high command.

The situation is radically different from that in Germany, where a prime condition of Allied victory was the eradication of every vestige of Adolf Hitler and his regime. Even in the first World war it was a prime condition that the Kaiser and what he stood for had to go.

Retention of the Japanese emperor is an expedient, born of realism.

If the Allied victors had abruptly overthrown the imperial system, based on the supposedly divinity of the emperor, there was no telling what chaos or anarchy might have resulted.

Not Irrevocable Choice

Retention of the emperor was considered worth trying, and is not an irrevocable decision. It was a decision, incidentally, concurred in by the other great powers and not reached by the United States alone.

Nevertheless, the United States will have to bear the immediate brunt of the experiment. If it is found that an absolute military government, like that applied to Germany, becomes necessary, it will be some time before the other powers will be able to share full responsibility.

The United States has undertaken the job with its preparations not half completed. The Japanese surrender came with unpredictable swiftness and scarcely more than three months after the collapse of Germany. Elaborate invasion plans had to be scrapped and occupation plans substituted. Provisions for "military government" were in embryo.

There were not even enough interpreters to go around, or men conversant with Japanese writing to take over national, provincial or municipal records for administration purposes.

The only answer seemed to be that the Japanese would have to carry on their own internal affairs, under American military orders, from the emperor down to village officials.

Quite obviously, if the Japanese continue to show their present willingness to obey instructions, a great deal of confusion and maybe a complete breakdown is going to be averted. If it doesn't work out, the United States and her Allies have the means and power to take over as completely as they have in Axis Europe.
