Morris Collett Leases Sinclair Station

Morris Collett has recently reopened the Sinclair Service Station located in Harris Street in front of the Motor Hospital and extends a cordial invitation to his many friends and the general public to drop by and let him service your car.

Mr. Collett states that within the near future he expects to have a complete line of the most used automobile accessories and be able to supply the demand for tires.

Prepare Now for Club Exhibits Nov. 17 and 18

Are you doing your part for the club exhibit? If not, why not? If your club is worth being a member of, it is worth boosting, and what better way can you boost your club than by having something at the exhibit? If you can not enter a complete list of articles, enter what you can. Don't be a slacker and let one or two have all the work to do. But, let's each and every club member have a part in the work and exhibit. Let's be able to say "Our Exhibit" and mean it.

Don't you like to be on the inside of things? And, wouldn't you like to win a prize or prizes? Then have your things ready to enter by the exhibit, and by doing so help your club, yourself, and your demonstrator.

I heard one inspiring remark and I will pass it on to you. Mrs. Bell Martin of Peaceful Hill club has just finished a hooked rug for the club exhibit, it is her second one.

Mrs. Thurmond Moore, Peaceful Hill; Mrs. A. T. Bural, Duck Creek; and Mrs. F. B. Crockett, Espuela were appointed by the County Council to serve as a publicity committee, for the club exhibit to be held in November. They will appreciate each club sending in stories of the products to be exhibited.

A History of My Club Work

(Lizzie Lou Baxter, Afton 4-H Club)

At the age of thirteen years I became a member of the 4-H club. For a long time I had wanted to be a club member; at first because my sisters were, and later because I realized the value of its teaching. At this time I was especially interested in knowing how to cook and sew which were two of the main studies of the work. Poultry was also one of the projects.

Between gardening and poultry, I chose gardening as my project. I have been garden demonstrator for my club this year. With the help of my mother and the home demonstration agent I planned the garden for our family of ten. We planned to produce at least 8,000 pounds of vegetables to use fresh and canned. We have had 9,622 pounds of 21 varieties during the year and including the foods that are growing or are maturing in the garden and will be used the next two months. We have a garden plot close to the house and one in the orchard. These are watered from the tank. Then we have corn, beans, and peas in the field. Our garden has done remarkably well and because of it our grocery bill has been unusually low for a family of our size. Besides the garden we have a good orchard, and of course cows and chickens to provide milk, butter, eggs, and meats.

Each member of the family has helped with the garden work and has been interested in the records I have kept on the garden.

The girls as cooperators in the garden work had as goals to grow 25 feet each of lettuce and string beans, 150 tomato plants, and prepare for exhibit 1 quart of canned tomatoes and 1 pint of chili sauce. Of the eight girls in our club, four have completed their goals and four have reached all except growing the tomatoes. They have the exhibit

Fine Acting Stands Out in "The White Sister", at Palace

HELEN HAYES, CLARK GABLE AT THEIR BEST IN VIVID, ABSORBING TALKIE

A new pair of screen lovers, Helen Hayes and Clark Gable, will make their appearance Sunday at the Palace Theatre in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much-discussed talking picture version of the undying F. Marion Crawford romance, "The White Sister". The combination is particularly strong one. Under the careful direction of Victor Fleming they do a beautiful job of one of the most stirring love stories in literary history.

The story of the aristocratic Italian girl who falls in love with a soldier on the eve of her marriage to a man of her father's choice gives both Miss Hayes and Gable every opportunity for romantic portrayals of the first order. Whether it be in the lighter scenes of the carnival at the start of the picture or at the dramatic moment when the soldier whom the heroine believed to be dead returns, very much alive, the work of the two stars is at all times touching and effective.

One always expects good acting from Lewis Stone and these expectations are well fulfilled in his role as the father who forbids his daughter's romance. It is to be regretted that his appearance in the picture is so short. Louise Closser Hale as the family servant offers another of her flawless character portrayals flecked with humor. Splendid work is done by May Robson, Edward Arnold and Alan Edwards. "The White Sister" is a picture which deserves to be underscored in any moviegoer's list of worthwhile productions.

The first year of my club work was not what I had hoped for. The second and third years seemed to interest me more. I learned to make bread, salads and other dishes for the table at demonstrations given by the home demonstration agent. As a result of this I now prepare, or help prepare every meal for the family and it is no longer difficult to prepare the different dishes instead of serving the same things over and over.

During the latter part of my third years work, which found me more successful, I helped to can for the family a great deal. I had received a book on canning from the home demonstration agent which enabled me, by following its directions, to can with success anything I wanted to. At the close of the year I entered some of my products in the county exhibit. All this was wonderful to me, but greater is my fourth year's work as garden demonstrator. This year I have helped with all the canning and it has been a real pleasure.

My first year's work found me interested in clothing also. At the close of my second year I had completed two aprons and a cap. Along with these I had learned to make buttonholes. The third year I made a pair of pillow slips, a dresser scarf, and a pin cushion. This year in my bedroom improvement work I made a braided table mat using old silk stockings.

During my four years work I have learned much in the improvement of the home. One of the most important things in exterior improvement is that of arranging the flowers and keeping the yard clean. In interior improvement I learned that much can be saved by refinishing old furniture or by making furniture in the home. I have made a dressing table, bookcase, and wash stand from fruit crates. The rearrangement of the furniture has helped the looks of my bedroom wonderfully and the clothes closet is much more convenient since it has been improved by having shelves for folded clothes and hats and a shoe rack.

Since I have been a member of the club, I have served as secretary, garden demonstrator one year, and reporter. One enjoyable phase of

W. L. Malone Opening New Cafe in Spur

Methodist Church

Sunday was a happy day of worship for us. Services for the day were well attended. The people worshiped God in Holy Communion, and pledged anew their love and devotion. There were nine new members added to our fellowship. Our hearts rejoice to welcome these children of God into our church family.

The membership of the church and our friends who worshiped with us rejoiced in the evening service as our Young People's choir lead us in singing the Beautiful Life of Christ. We felt our hearts strangely warmed as we followed our Christ from the first prophecy of His coming, as the Angels sang of His birth, of His life of service and compassion, of the cross and His suffering, and how he triumphantly arose and finished the plan of salvation.

The fellowship services are growing in interest. Together we are drawing nearer our master as we sing, pray and study our master's way for us. These mid-week services are just what a hungry Christian heart needs. We expect to work and pray till the entire membership of the church find joy in seeking these services.

May we invite all who will to worship with us next Sunday. One of the vital subjects of our Christian faith will be presented, "The Holy Sabbath." The Christian Sabbath is one of foundational stones you'll enjoy this message.

the work I regret missing very much is the encampments we have had. Nevertheless I feel that club work has meant more to me than I shall ever be able to express in words. By this work I have added to the knowledge for the foundation in making a real home.

As garden demonstrator this year, my record shows the vegetables used at home, fresh and canned, amounted to $414.93. Expenditures amounted to $12.06. This leaves a net profit of $402.87.

Spur Defeats Knox City 13 to 6 Friday

(By ARCHER L. POWELL)

The local eleven showed up better against the Knox City club Friday and won a 13 to 6 victory. Both teams played ragged and clean football at intervals. Spur held the upper hand of the contest, playing a larger part of the game in Knox City's territory.

The new combination in the back field, with Chapman at full, Delisle and Martin at half, and Morgan at quarter showed up much better.

The forward wall was equally as good if not better than went against Matador last Friday.

The diminutive R. J. Bell was a Red flash in Spur's line, breaking under the opposing wall and tackling the ball carrier behind the line of scrimmage.

Green held down his center position with a calm, cool head. Scroggins, the big husky who kept in condition in a Reformation Camp during the summer, was referred to by the visitors as a "tough un" but at least they learned not to expect any gain through his wing of the line. Bingham, Foreman, Gilbert and Hefner also showed power, and are learning football. Bostic, veteran of last season played a game despite his leg injury.

It was left to Vernon Morgan to do the scoring and furnish the crowd with thrills. He got heated up toward the last of the second period and carried the pigskin down the field 36 yds in five downs placing the ball almost on the goal line when the whistle sounded for the half. Spur's first counter was given when Morgan followed good interference around rt. end, 30 yds. and scored. The supreme thrill of the afternoon came when Morgan intercepted a Knox City forward pass and raced down the field 60 yds to score. He also made the extra point.

Knox City's best bets were Armstrong, Stovall, McCarty, and Bryan. Their score was made when Morgan fumbled behind his goal line and Knox City covered en masse.

GAME PLAY BY PLAY

First Quarter—McCarty kicked off to Morgan who returned 10 yds to Spur's 32 yd line. Chapman picked up a yd at rt tackle then added two more on a line play. Delisle took a yd through rt. tackle, and Chapman punted to Huntsman who was forced out of bounds on the Knox City 30 yd line.

McCarty advanced 9 yds in two line plays and Armstrong added a yd making first down. Bryan was stopped for no gain by Morgan. A pass, McCarty to Hyde was good for 13 yds. Armstrong and McCarty were held for no gain in two plays, another pass was incomplete, ground by Green. Spur's ball, Chapman smashed through rt guard for a yd but fumbled on the next snap back and Knox City covered the ball. McCarty was smothered for 2 yd loss. Dutton went around rt end for 3 yds. A pass was grounded. (Bell went in for Hefner) Knox City punted to Martin on Spur's 10 yd line for 2 yd, ran over rt tackle for he returned seven yds. Chapman hit 4 yds, and repeated the tackle play for another 2 yds. Chapman punted to mid-field. (Martin received a severe knee injury and was relieved by Suits.)

McCarty ran rt end for 1 yd, Hommock failed to gain at rt tackle. Armstrong lost 6 yds in a repass play. Knox City punted to Suits who returned 20 yds to Spur's 40 yd line. Chapman picked up 2 yds through rt guard. Armstrong intercepted Spur's pass on his 40 yd line. Armstrong cleared rt end for 8 yd.

Second Quarter—(Bostic went in, Foreman went off) A pass and end run was good for only 4 yds. Armstrong made a yd through line and Bryan added a yd. Spur's ball. Suits failed to gain through line and last 9 yds in a nattempt at a left run. Delisle gained 9 yds around rt end. Morgan punted out of bounds over the 40 yd marker. McCarty got a yd but Green stopped Bryan for no gain. Delisle knocked down a pass and McCarty punted out of bounds on Spur's 25 yd line. Delisle went

Clarence Foreman Enlists in Marines

A notice was received this week that Clarence D. Foreman, son of Com. and Mrs. W. F. Foreman, of Espuela, had enlisted in the Marine Corps through the New Orleans recruiting station, located at 535 St. Charles Street, and was immediately transferred to Parris Island, S. around left end for 2 yd, then went through rt tackle for 2 yds, and around left end for 4 more. Morgan punted. Knox City drew a 5 yd off side penalty on each of the next two plays. Chapman circled rt end for 2 yds. A Knox City player intercepted Spur's pass on his 45 yd line. McCarty lost 2 yds and Bryan lost 2 yds when hit by Scoggins. Bingham covered a blocked punt on Knox City's 35 yd mark. Chapman failed and a pass Morgan to Bingham was incomplete. Spur drew a 5 yd off side penalty. Morgan tore around rt end for 11 yds and repeated for 8 yds more placing the ball on Knox City's 16 yd line. Morgan tried center for 1 yd. Delisle failed at rt end. Morgan was good for 11 yds through line. Morgan went through line again placing the ball within a ft of goal line when whistle blew for half.

Third Quarter—Bingham kicked off to Knox City. Ball covered on 18 yd line. A pass incomplete. McCarty lost two yds. Dutton was smothered in attempt to pass losing 3 yds. Knox City Punted out of bounds on their own 25 yd line. Delisle ran rt end for 3 yds. Morgan followed good interference around rt end for 30 yds and a touchdown. Morgan failed to clear rt end in trial for point.

Big boys of the American Press state in answer to the national wide demand for inflation of the currency that this will be the "last rabbit that Mr. Roosevelt will pull out of the silken hat."

The NRA has been of great benefit to the laboring class of people which we do not know in the agricultural South and we have nothing to say against it—but so far it has not raised the price of farm products in proportion to the raise that has been made in the price of manufactured products and we find the agricultural and ranch sections and Wall Street, N. Y. clamoring for an inflated currency.

It is beyond denial that billions (not millions) have been shipped out of this country by our international bankers for foreign bonds which are not worth their paper they are written on and that we are short on currency in circulation. And it is also known that other billions were sent to certain countries who have defaulted or semi-defaulted their obligations and that we are very short on the do-re-me. Any person of intelligence knows that the value of money rises and declines in direct proportion to the value of commodities and that a controlled currency would tend to regulate this discrepancy.

Back in 1920 a laboring man says I will work for $5 per day and if you can find anyone you like better you can go to H—. Today the federal government says you must pay a man so much for a certain number of hours which is far below the average of better times. Our contention is that if the real evil is corrected business will take care of itself.

For the past two years or more this newspaper has contended for an inflated and controlled currency and has suggested that the money be used first to pay the obligation to World War veterans—and we now suggest that the balance be used to retire some of those "tax free interest paying bonds" which continually force our government further into debt and place greater burdens on directly and indirectly connected property owners and those who are with them.

The agricultural sections have been very much behind Mr. Roosevelt because they realize that he cannot possibly sanction any inflation of the currency before all the large lots of gold are turned into the treasury but they are becoming impatient for him to pull this last rabbit out and divide it up.

Greetings Editors

C. E. Ingalls, editor of the Corvallis, Oregon, Gazette-Times, in an editorial inspired by a recent meeting of Oregon editors, said:

The Oregon editors are with us today. Not as many of them are here as would have been two years ago, for the depression hit the newspaper business harder than any other. Only one paper on the Pacific coast made any money last year—the Los Angeles Times.

But the editor has refrained from asking the government to subsidize him. He isn't sufficiently organized as to numbers. It takes blocs with power at the polls to get subsidies. The newspaper man hasn't even sufficient power to make the government quit competing with him in the job printing business.

And yet, the politicians think a lot of him at election time and he has been mixed up with politics ever since the first newspaper was founded. The first one published in England got itself taxed out of existence because it took a shot at politics and opposed the reigning party. England at one time had a paper subsidized by the king but nobody besides the editor, Daniel DeFoe or Robinson Crusoe fame, and old King William himself, knew anything about it. And poor Dan! He had to sit in the stocks one day for taking the side of a British peer that the king didn't like.

Well, we don't sit in the stocks any more. European countries, especially France and Russia, still subsidize their press. In this country it is free—very free.

A child is born unto the wife of the town's leading merchant. The physician gets $50 and another customer. The editor writes a story about the birth and risks his soul unto damnation by bragging a pound or two extra on the kid's weight. And he is lucky if he gets anything more than a cheap cigar.

Let's watch the kid. She grows up, gets the measles, chickenpox, mumps, scarlet fever, housemaid's knee, the itch and breaketh a few bones. The doctor on each occasion gets his fee. The editor laments so that all the neighbors send flowers and bring in jelly. Finally the kid graduates. She gets a swell notice regarding her beauty, wisdom, charm and accomplishments. She shines among the girls as Venus among the stars, and her gown—Worth had nothing on the local dressmaker who gets 30 cartwheels for making it. The editor gets an invitation to the graduation which sets him back four bucks. And the invite was printed by an out-of-town job office.

The young lady goes off to college and the "girls" give her a farewell party. The editor runs a cut of the maiden which cost him three bucks and gives the party a solid column hoping he will get an extra ten-inch ad. The girls mother calls for ten copies of the paper to send to her folks back east and looks surprised when she is charged 50 cents and tells her husband not to give the editor the extra ten-inch ad on account of it.

While she is away to college she falls in love with a lemon who has looked her dad up in Bradstreet. She brings him home and puts him on exhibition. The editor, however, is the one who sells the young lemon to the town by calling him a rising young business man. So the neighbors consent to letting the girl marry him and the editor gets an invitation to the wedding and finds it was printed in Portland or San Francisco. The editor writes a flowery piece about the bride looking like the Queen of Egypt or the Rose of Sharon or something and the minister gets ten dollars. The editor gets a new subscriber who stands him off for a year then drops the subscription, notifying the editor in a government printed envelope.

One by one the new family increases. The editor lies his pound or so of flesh each time. The doctor gets his fifty bucks—if the father-in-law holds out. Finally, all flesh being grass, the wife is gathered to her eternal pasture. The editor prints a beautiful obituary, a piece of poetry and a card of thanks and loses the merchant's advertising forever because the obit is headed "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place". And the minister gets five dollars and the undertaker $300 and all the relatives of the deceased stop the paper and declare the editor put the caption on the obituary on purpose.

But, it's a great game. You seldom see anyone who has the virus in his blood, who ever leaves it. If he does, he always tries to get back in again. He becomes calloused to criticism and has few illusions about people. He is a connoisseur of political bunk. He has no heroes and believes no political promises. He knows that the business office does not appreciate him and that it couldn't sell a single paper without him and the business office is just as positive that it works and slaves day and night and pays out its profits for a worthless lot of tripe in the editorial department. Maybe they are both right, but man for man, the editor does more for his town and gets less thanks for it than any hundred men in the community. So, when you meet one of them on the street today, greet him pleasantly. He may have to write your obituary some day.

(Taken from September issue of the Industrial News Review)

And if we were running a "personal" column as most editors do with a lot of bunk that doesn't mean anything we would jump all over this chamber of commerce, minute men merchant association or what ever it is, for publishing the amount of each farmer's check as it arrives. It seems to us that to avoid confusion it would be enough to publish his name without making all his personal affairs public. According to our opinion the farmers, who are the backbone of this nation, are getting just a little bit tired of this sort of thing.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McGlothlin and children, Wilma Faye and John Carl, and Wynell McClure spent the week end visiting with relatives and friends in Munday, Benjamin and Guthrie, returning home Sunday evening.

Met our old friend, J. H. Bolch, of Highway, this week for the first time—and we say old friend because we have been mailing a paper to J. H. Bolch for the last several years and although thoroughly acquainted with his initials and name but would not have known him from Alexander The Great—but he is a most entertaining talker and we were very glad to make his acquaintance. He states that if his creditors are not listening that he has already gotten out three bales of cotton.

Buster Robinson was in Saturday of this week and while here was a pleasant caller at The Texas Spur office. Mr. Robinson hasn't yet gotten over the trick pulled on him last fall when that guy come through here and says boys just give me the cash and I'll send you the groceries.

Frank Forbis was down last week and as Spur had grown so much since the last time he had been here he had to drop by the Texas Spur office to inquire his way around.

J. H. Turpin was a most pleasant caller at The Texas Spur office the past week but since times are getting better and cotton is coming in we absolutely refuse to put a mans name on our subscription list without the money. One dollar a year which is less than two cents per week is little enough to pay for all the misery an editor goes through within the course of a year—but I guess we can stand that if you can stand the paper. Subscribe to The Texas Spur and be happy and contented.

Lee Cathey is here this week from East Texas for a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cathey and his many friends in this section.

Miss Loretta Garner spent the week end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Garner, of three miles east of Spur. Miss Loretta has recently completed a course in Beauty Culture at Lubbock and has accepted the management of a Beauty Shop in Quitaque.

Eustace Blumberg, who has been in Hempstead the past several weeks returned to Spur this week and has taken his former position with the B. Schwarz and Son store of this city. His many friends are glad to welcome him back.

A letter from E. C. Edmonds, Jr., states that the revised NRA schedule of the "Washington Post" let him and five other reporters out. Unfortunately for our friend that he had not so much seniority—but perhaps not—we know him to be an entertaining writer and since that is what the world demands he may later think "why in the world did I ever save for that niggardly Washington Post anyway?"

Stock Law Notice

There has been many questions and inquiries to the various county officials as to when the Stock Law of Dickens County, prohibiting horses, mules, jacks, jennets and cattle running at large goes into effect.

For the benefit of the people of Dickens County, I am taking this opportunity to make it clearly understood that it will be unlawful for anyone to permit their animals mentioned above to run at large in Dickens County beginning October 4, 1933.

Respectfully yours,

JIM CLOUD

LET YOUR LIGHT
SO SHINE

And a candle to a room full of candles and the light is not appreciably increased but bring in a 200-watt tungsten and the candles become dull and yellow.

The world is full of people who give out only a candle glow, and that is why the opportunities for those of the electric light type are so promising. There is a great shortage of students in schools of all kinds. This means that the uneducated boy or girl will be just another candle added to a world already full of candles; it also means that those who have the good judgement to equip themselves with the proper type of education will be comparable to the electric light in the room filled with candles.

For more than fifty years our school has been bending its efforts to convert the human candle into the human electric light bulb-taking youngsters out of the mediocre class and raising their earning power and placing them on the road to a successful business career. How well we have succeeded is testified to by more than fifty thousand office workers distributed all over the English speaking world, many of whom are at the head of large business enterprises. What we have assisted others to do we will be glad to do for you.

May we send you our annual describing the work we are doing? Its free.

In Remembrance of
L. W. Stark

It is with a sad heart that I pin these words together in remembrance of L. W. Stark, Afton, Texas, who departed this life a few weeks ago. He leaves a wife and three children and a host of friends to mourn. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his Saints." Funeral at the Methodist church where, for many years he attended worship. His body was laid to rest in the Afton Cemetery to await resurrection at the Last Day. "And it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the Judgement."

I can hear him say,

Good-by, sweet wife and children dear,

I know you would that I was here; But I am gone from earthy pains, So trust in Him who ever reigns.

You, too, so must quit the walks of life,

With all its sorrow and its strife; So be prepared to meet your God, By living faithful to his word.

Then I hear,

"He is dead," no, not dead, But sleeps the sleep of all; He shall arise and leave his bed When sounds the Savior's call.

Our Savior slept the same deep sleep;

He slept till the Angel's call; He raised his head and left his bed, The cold, damp bed of all.

He sleeps no more, He's alive and well,

He answered the Angel's call; So we, like He shall answer death And when the heavens fall.

"Live, not die" shall He then cry; "Come forth, both great and small, To live again and never die— Redeemed by the Judgement Call."

OUR MOTHER

Dear mother, thou art gone.
Thy voice no more we hear.
Thy soul from us has flown.
The days are dark and drear.
The things you taught us, mother
dear,

Are in our hearts for aye
We'll ever follow in thy steps
Till dawn a brighter day
They Godly counsel, good and true
With us will ever stay
To bring us happy thoughts of you
And gladden every day.
Oh! how we'd like to be like you
And walk by faith each day
To your God be ever true
Along life's lonely way.
Our precious one, thou art not dead
Jesus has called thee home.
Thy spirit gently from us fled
To beckon us to come.
We will ever faithful be
To you who was so true
Yes, oh yes, we'll come to thee
In that land beyond the blue.

McADOO

The busy days of the year are upon us. Most everyone is feeling better and happier now that fall is here. It is a privilege to live on the South Plains in the fall with cloudless skies of azure by day and a star flung canopy at night, and with breeze that carries a tang. Heavy feet grow lighter and so do heavy hearts. Everything takes on a brighter hue, people are working, doing something for themselves or for others.

IN MEMORY OF BOBBIE WYNELL TAYLOR

Born Apr. 11, 1933, died Sept. 24, 1933

Jesus sent a precious flower
To earth from heaven's throne
Little sun beam of on hour
Lent to us to call our own.
With tiny hands, and baby feet
And darling eyes of blue
And wondrous smile so sweet,
That vanished ere we knew.
Jesus sent an angel bright
To earth to claim his own.
And bore our darling from our sight
To blossom near his throne.
Oh! the house so sad and lone
Of empty hand and heart
Tis best that the should claim his own
But ours the sadder part.
How could a dainty flower so white
Bloom in a world like this
So sweet, so precious in our sight
So dear to love and kiss.
Dear father in the after while
May we claim our priceless pearl
And see again the wondrous smile
Of our darling baby girl.
(By one who loved her.)

Croton Man Cultivates 500 Acres; Praises Farmall Tractor

Curley McDonald, a former tank driver in the World War, was in the city this week from his farm on croton and stopped by to tell us what a wonderful machine the tractor is.

Mr. McDonald is this year cultivating something above 500 acres half of which is in wheat and the other half in row feed crops. In this manner he states, he is able to utilize his Farmall so as to have not more than 250 acres at a time to look after and states that that is a simple matter.

Not only is Mac an advocate of tractor farming but he states that the Farmall has them all beat and that the used model with which he started last years crop on has so far required $1.60 worth of new parts and has needed no mechanical attention other than his own. Also he insists that after warming up it runs better on coal oil than on gasoline. Wonder what a gas primer on our automobiles would do to the gasoline market?
