Kitchen facility funding options mulled by court

Scurry County Commissioners Court this morning decided to retain a request by the senior center as old business on a month-to-month basis and voted and authorized County Judge Bob Doolittle to sign a resolution submitting an application to the Texas Community Development Program for Hermleigh Water Works improvements.

Scurry County Senior Center director Jerry Baird requested commissioners advertise bids for expansion of the center's kitchen facilities.

No proposals were received from a previous bid request for the project, which is estimated to cost about $80,000. Baird said the work must be done by a bonded contractor and there were none in the area that the bidding was previously advertised.

Commissioner Ralph Trevey suggested the center utilize the space it already has by doing smaller renovations until the county can better afford to spend the money for the project.

"We've heard that for a long time," Baird responded, referring to the fact that the center has been trying to expand its kitchen for 10 years. "This is the attitude we've had for a long time and it never changes."

If bids were accepted and none were approved because the county could not feasibly afford the proposals, the court's credibilty could be questioned, Trevey said.

Judge Doolittle made a suggestion of passing a bond issue to fund the renovations to the kitchen, adding that a bond could be "option B," with option A being direct funding by the county.

A bond would require voter approval, but Baird said he felt confident the people of Scurry County would pass a bond to help the senior center.

Baird questioned the state law

IRA EXES ROYALTY — Ira School crowned two former students king and queen Saturday afternoon, the final day of the two-day 1993 homecoming celebration which also marked the school's centennial. Royalty honors were bestowed on Robert Erwin and Leona Clark Smallwood by Erwin's wife, Anita, and Leon Huddleston. Various other awards were also given. Coy Dee Mebane received the award for traveling the farthest distance — 1,800 miles. Wylie and Altha Eubanks were the oldest former students present and C.J. Smith received an award for being the oldest teacher there. (SDN Staff Photo)

Blood drive slated Tuesday in Snyder

Cogdell Memorial Hospital and Scurry County Advisory for United Blood Services are sponsoring a blood drive Tuesday.

The drive will be held from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. at Towle Park Barn.

"The theme for this blood drive is 'Giving Blood is a Labor of Love,'" said a UBS spokesperson. "Livesaving blood is available in this area because of the unselfish giving of volunteer blood donors in this community. It takes a special kind of person who happily interrupts his or her work or family time to make a blood donation."

Each blood drive participant will receive coupons for a DQ Sundae from Dairy Queen, malt or milk shake from Sonic Drive-In, medium drink with the purchase of any dessert from Whataburger, small soft drink and order of Potatoes Ole' from Taco John's, food from McDonald's, a dollar off at Golden Corral, a medium drink with any food purchase from Wal-Mart; and a medium drink with any meal purchase at Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe.

Every fifth donor will receive a 6-pack of cola and every other donor will receive a coupon for a regular order of Gill's Fried Chicken.

Seven $5 gift certificates from both Jaramillo's Restaurant and Spanish Inn will be distributed by random drawings. A Sunday buffet for two from Willow Park Inn will be awarded by a number drawing from a list of all donors.

There will be a choice of small items as gifts from United Blood Services.

Cookies will be furnished by Lawrence IGA and orange juice furnished by Cogdell Hospital Auxiliary.

Outdoor signs advertising the blood drive are at Bar-H-Bar, Ben Wilson Supply, Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy, The Shack, Kmart, Pizza Hut, Golden Corral and Scurry County Coliseum.

Scurry County Senior Center volunteers have been making reminder phone calls.

Heritage Village activities planned during annual fair

Pioneer skills activities and dedication of the Hermleigh calaboose, recently relocated to the coliseum grounds, are among the events scheduled during the Scurry County Fair and White Buffalo Days.

The fair officially opens to the public at noon Thursday and ends at 10 p.m. Saturday. Activities will include stock judging, cookoffs, a fly-in at the airport, a domino tournament, talent show, flower show, art show, exhibits, demonstrations and much more.

Activities at the Dodson House and Dermott School — the Heritage Village — begin at 1:30 p.m. Thursday with a flag raising ceremony by Company D, Detachment 6 of the Texas State Guard.

Fourth grade students from East Elementary will be special guests for the flag raising.

A brief dedication ceremony for the Hermleigh jail, better known as "the calaboose," is planned at 7 p.m. Thursday. The small building was originally used to hold prisoners overnight or until they could be transported to the county jail in Snyder.

Both the house and school will be open from 4 until 6 p.m. Friday. L.J. Mueller will be demonstrating horse shoeing near the house and ladies will be churning butter inside during those hours.

On Saturday, the house and school will be open from noon until 6 p.m. Lye soap making will be going on near the house and there will be buggy rides provided by Tommy Marricle.

A collection of rolling pins loaned by Marge Smith of Dermott will be featured in the house all three days, while family photographs and photo albums will be featured in the school.

The historical commission is hoping to have albums from Ira, Dunn, Fluvanna, Hermleigh, Camp Springs and Pyron represented.

Anyone having old family photo albums, churns or rolling pins to lend for display are asked to call Jean Everett at 573-2763, June McGlaun at 573-9742 or Aline Parks at 573-7108.

Admission to the house and school will be free. However, donations to help with their upkeep will be accepted.

Staff promotions on college agenda

Western Texas College trustees will consider employing one instructor and promotions for three others during their September board meeting, set for 5:45 this evening in the college board room.

The meeting had been scheduled for Sept. 13, but was postponed for lack of a quorum.

Also on the agenda is a report on enrollment for the fall semester, approval of the small class report and a policy revision. Pre-bid consideration will be given to vehicles, correctional officer training class supplies and the purchase of livestock.

The board is expected to approve hiring an additional instructor for the Golf-Landscape Technology program. Funds for the additional instructor are included in the 1993-94 budget.

College administrators will be recommending a promotion in rank for three instructors. No salary increases are involved.

In other discussion, the board will be advised on a project of the chamber's Tourism and Retirement Committee which concerns placing an information center on the college campus.

The board will also be updated on a steering committee's development of short- and long-range plans to bring the college in compliance with the Americans With Disabilities Act.

Approval of the August financial report and minutes are also on the agenda.

Boys Club marathon underway

Pledges are still being accepted for the Birdies, Bunkers & Bogies Eddie Johnson Memorial Golf Marathon, which got underway this morning at Snyder Country Club.

Sixteen golfers began playing at sunup today and will continue playing until sundown.

Local and area citizens are pledging a nickel, dime, 50 cents, $1, $5 or more per hole. Each golfer is hoping to play 100 holes or more of golf. All proceeds will benefit the Scurry County Boys Club.

Golfers are Larry Anderson, Bob Doolittle, Ricky Fritz, Pete Greene, Rick Hall, Joel Hook, John Lacik, Joe LaRoux, Mike McLeod, Donny Newman, Alton Patterson, Glen Patterson, Gordan Ryan, Darrell Thomas, Bryce Wilkins and Sandi Wells.

Anyone wishing to make a pledge may do so at Snyder Country Club today or in the afternoons at Scurry County Boys Club.

Fluvanna girl named Rookie of Year

TCRA Finals Rodeo wraps up successful debut here

Fluvanna barrel racer Jana Himes was named Rookie of the Year after winning the average at the Texas Cowboys Rodeo Association Finals, held at Scurry County Coliseum.

Himes, who won the first two go-rounds in the event, finished second on the year to all-around champion Karen Smith.

The TCRA's top honors were announced Saturday night following the last go-round of the finals.

"It went pretty well," said chamber of commerce spokesperson Dee Blackwell, after the rodeo. "Our attendance was up some the last night after starting out a little slow.

"The TCRA wants to come back, so, hopefully, we'll see the finals here again next year."

Smith, a Lubbock cowgirl, captured first place for the year in both breakaway roping and barrel racing, on her way to the all-around crown.

Smith led the winnings race in both events coming into the finals, and fought off roper Lari Dee Guy and racer Himes.

Guy, who finished the season in second place, won the event at the finals, notching a runner-up finish at Thursday's opening performance, and taking third on Friday.

Bareback rider Shawn Thompson of Pampa, saddle bronc specialist Justin Lane of Morse and Randy Simpson, a bull rider from Bellevue, all held on for event titles.

All three were the leading money winners in their respective events at the end of the regular season.

Thompson won the '93 championship, as well as the average in the finals. Cole Tindol of Canadian wound up second on the year and WTC cowboy Troy Thomson was selected the TCRA bareback Rookie of the Year.

Lane edged out Cliff Norris for the saddle bronc crown. Norris won the average here, and finished second for the season, earning Rookie of the Year honors.

Shon McIntyre came into the TCRA finals in ninth place on the bull riding money list. The Morse cowboy wound up winning the average in the three-day finals at the county coliseum and third overall, but couldn't overtake Simpson for the season championship.

Michael Daniel of Lubbock wound up the event runner-up and Monty Bennett, from Pampa, earned Rookie of the Year designation.

Steer wrestler Clyde Himes of Stanton used the finals to jump from fourth on the year's money list to the overall title and a win in the average.

Himes leapfrogged Nazareth's Keith Birkenfeld, who slipped from first to second in the overall standings.

Clay Novahitza, a top 10 finisher in the event, was named the bull-dogging Rookie of the Year.

Sweetwater calf roper Brook Burnett retained first place on the season, in spite of an average win by Joel Prall of Stinnett, and Steve Purcella captured top honors in team roping.

Purcella's partner Wayne Shaw won the average here, but didn't finish in the top five.

Team roping Rookie of the Year went to Kirt Jones, a Vernon wrangler. McCaulley's Troy Brown earned the rookie honor in calf roping.

Dear Abby

Women Who Are Sheltered May Later Be Left Exposed

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "In the Dark in Canada" could have been written by my mother. She and Dad were married for 40 years when they found out that Dad had cancer. The doctors said he had about a year left. Chemotherapy was started immediately, but after 11 months, he took a turn for the worse and died.

Before his illness, my mother had never paid a bill or balanced a checkbook. She had never put gas in the car or checked the oil. Dad did everything for her. All Mother knew how to do was cook, keep house and raise children.

When Dad died, Mama got a crash course in reality. Abby, please print this. There are many women out there who need to wake up.

THEIR DAUGHTER

DEAR ABBY: Re "In the Dark in Canada": When I'd ask my husband where we stood financially, he'd say, "Don't worry, honey, you will always be well taken care of."

We lived very well — actually, too well for what we could afford. We had nothing in the bank, and my husband had debts I knew nothing about.

You can probably guess the rest of the story. My husband died suddenly, and I had to sell our home and go back to work in order to survive — at age 44.

CONNECTICUT SURVIVOR

DEAR DAUGHTER AND SURVIVOR: For years I have urged my female readers to make themselves fully aware of their financial situation should anything happen to their spouses. Specifically, their husbands should share with them information about assets and debts, insurance policies, contents of their will, etc.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from the woman trying to justify taking things from hotels, stating that she thought guests were expected to take things as souvenirs since they bear the hotel's name:

Abby, I place monogrammed towels in the guest bathroom. That does not mean I expect guests to take them home as "souvenirs" of their visit to my home.

The reader states that the cost of "souvenirs" is built into the price of the hotel room. That does not justify stripping the hotel room of everything that isn't bolted down.

Customers pay higher prices when they shop at retail stores because of the cost of shoplifting, which is passed on indirectly to the customers.

I am sure your reader is an honest person who has just not thought the matter through. She did state that she took "some" ashtrays and water glasses.

I can readily understand how a person might assume it is all right to take "one" ashtray, or even "one" water glass, but taking "some" indicates that the guest is very likely collecting these articles for home use rather than souvenirs.

Thank you for printing this letter, since it seems to be an ongoing problem for hotel owners everywhere.

PATRICIA SETZER,
SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR PATRICIA: I recommend that guests ask hotel management if they may take an ashtray as a souvenir — the chances are, it will be offered as a gift.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband to whom I was married for 34 years died recently. A year before he died, he called me up and asked, "Was I the best lover you ever had?" I replied, "I don't know; I never had anyone to compare you with."

Do you think he died happy?

ELSIE IN GREEN
VALLEY, ARIZ.

DEAR ELSIE: Without a doubt.

Groups compete to make voices heard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's major health, consumer and business groups are straining to make their voices heard in the din over President Clinton's health reform plan.

With television ads, a blizzard of faxes and non-stop news conferences, they are eager to put their spin on the debate as it shifts from the inner sanctum of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue to the more wide open corridors of Capitol Hill.

Asked to list the toughest group he must win over, the president told "Newsweek" magazine that doctors ranked first, followed by small businesses and insurance companies. "Building credibility among doctors is important, having doctors feel good about this plan," he said.

Here is a look at what some of the various groups are saying in advance of Wednesday's launch of Clinton's far-reaching proposal to reshape the health system.

AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

"Our reaction to the president's preliminary plan is mixed," said Dr. James S. Todd, executive vice president of the AMA.

The AMA backs an employer mandate, comprehensive benefits for all and sweeping insurance reforms — all central features of Clinton's plan.

But "we are cautious because elements of the plan seem to place economics ahead of patients," said Todd. "We find disturbing the degree of proposed government and corporate intrusion into the relationship between physician and patient.

"We are also concerned that the means to finance reform is unclear," said Todd, who added that malpractice and antitrust reforms don't go far enough.

HEALTH INSURANCE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA

The White House and the insurance industry trade group have exchanged heated words over a $1.7 million HIAA advertising campaign that claims Clinton would force people "to pick from a few health care plans designed by government bureaucrats."

"We would stop our ads tomorrow if they would agree" to abandon plans to make people buy insurance through "state monopolies," said Bill Gradison, the HIAA president and former Republican congressman from Ohio.

"We support universal coverage. We want the federal government to establish the benefit package. We want to eliminate exclusions for pre-existing conditions," said Gradison. "We want people to keep coverage if they change or lose their jobs.

"It's simply not true that we're against health reform," he said hoarsely. "Today the life or death of an insurance company is in the hands of its customers. Under this plan, it would be in the hands of the government."

PHARMACEUTICAL MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION

The drug industry is relieved that Clinton decided against rigid price controls, just a few months after he accused the industry of profiteering.

And it welcomes the proposed prescription drug coverage for all Americans — with some caveats.

But John Gibbons, a PMA spokesman, said the industry objects vehemently to Clinton's demand for a 15 percent rebate on drugs sold to Medicare patients and authority to "blacklist a new drug (from Medicare) if the health and human services secretary deems it overpriced."

NATIONAL FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT BUSINESS

"We don't see where giving somebody health insurance is more important than having a job," said John Motley, the vice president for government affairs at the 610,000-member NFIB, which is waging guerilla war against making all employers pay a large share of workers' insurance costs.

"We're getting ready to subsidize America's major corporations by making small businesses and their employees pay more," said Motley. "We're getting ready to have the second Chrysler bailout."

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF RETIRED PERSONS

Perhaps no group is more crucial to the Clinton administration's hopes for health reform than the 33-million-member AARP, voice of America's seniors and soon-to-be seniors.

Top AARP officials lobbied hard for the drug and new long-term care benefits in the Clinton package.

"It's promising," said John Rother, the AARP's legislative director. "But I think that we still are concerned about the adequacy of the proposed financing."

CONSUMER UNION

A stalwart supporter of national health insurance, Consumer Union favors abolishing private insurance and letting the government raise taxes to pay all medical bills, as they do in Canada.

AMERICAN HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION

The hospital industry sees "more common ground than battle ground," saidAHA Senior Vice President Rick Wade. The AHA backs universal coverage, insurance reforms and creation of new health plans.

New D-FW radar raises some safety questions

FORT WORTH (AP) — A radar system scheduled to be installed at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport later this year has had safety problems at about 30 airports where it is currently used, according to a published report.

The $6 million radar system should be operational at D-FW in November. But some controllers are worried that the system's troubles could lead to accidents, The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

The new system, called Airport Surveillance Radar-9, or ASR-9, will be used at D-FW to guide flights into and out of the airport in all kinds of weather.

No accidents have been linked to use of the radar at any airport. But the Federal Aviation Administration acknowledges the system has had problems at about half of the 62 airports where it is in use, the newspaper reported.

The computerized system has occasionally failed to discern between two aircraft flying close to each other, which sometimes appear on the radar screen as one craft. It is so sensitive that it picks up objects on the ground. When controllers adjust it to remove the clutter, it misses small airplanes.

Because some controllers say they're concerned about the new radar, the present system at D-FW will stay on line for at least 90 days to make sure the new system works properly, said Lee Wong, the FAA's assistant director for facilities and equipment in the Southwest Region.

D-FW controller Mark Pallone said controllers will be able to switch instantly to the old system if problems occur with the new one.

"There's no way we'll compromise safety for any reason at all," he said. "The new radar won't be accepted until everyone's satisfied with it."

The new system is intended as a major improvement over other systems, including the ASR-8 radar in use at D-FW, said FAA spokesman Ronnie L. Uhlenhaker in Fort Worth.

There are 10 ASR-9 systems in use in the FAA's Southwest Region, including several in Texas. Among those are systems in Houston, Austin and Corpus Christi, Wong said. The system will be operational in San Angelo and New Orleans next month.

Caan questioned in connection with death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Caan says a man found dead outside an apartment where he was staying apparently fell while trying to jump from a stairwell to the apartment's balcony.

Caan was questioned for 10 hours Saturday by police about the death of Mark Schwartz, 25, of West Hollywood. The actor said in a TV interview Sunday that detectives told him Schwartz was drunk and trying to enter the apartment of a mutual friend where Caan was spending the night.

"He tried to jump across the balcony and fell," Caan told Fox News through a gateway intercom at his Bel-Air home. "It was just a horrible, bad luck thing and a terrible thing for a 25-year-old kid to die like that."

Caan said he slept through the entire incident, and awoke Saturday morning to knocks at the door. The mutual friend was not home.

"There were 10 policemen, and there were guns pointing at me," he said.

Lotto Texas

by The Associated Press

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 2, 22, 32, 35, 45, 47.

There were 133 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,603. There were 7,124 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $108. And there were 128,175 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $10 million.

Sales from Wednesday to Saturday's draw were $8.4 million.

Pirates' Meat

The original buccaneers were a group of Dutch, French and English pirates who frequented the West Indies in the 17th century and raided Spanish ships. They actually had a crude "trade association," and members were obliged to share the necessities of life with one another. Many of these pirates settled in the Caribbean, where they learned from native people how to preserve meat in a curing process called "boucanning." They (and, eventually, all pirates) came to be called "buccaneers."

Once gutted landmark to open as clinic

LUBBOCK (AP) — Teenagers who prowled through the smoke-stained brick and shattered glass at Chatman Hospital used to claim that ghosts haunted the structure.

It stood abandoned for years — roofless, gutted by fire and forlorn among the tidy East Lubbock homes nearby.

Neighbors who needed health care were passing the two-story concrete mass on their way across town. Older neighbors remembered how West Texas' first hospital for blacks had thrived under Dr. Joe Chatman, before the weeds and wasps took over.

Now, Chatman Hospital has won a second chance to serve a medically needy community.

University Medical Center is rebuilding the hospital inside its original World War II-era walls. Officials say Chatman Community Health Center should open next summer.

"It's a win-win situation," said Gwen Stafford, UMC vice president. "We'll be providing better care at less costs and closer to them at a place they feel is theirs."

Harold Chatman, Joe Chatman's son, led the drive to raise $225,000 that UMC needed in private money. City officials chipped in $250,000 from federal grants.

Ms. Stafford estimated UMC would spend $607,000 for construction costs and then $350,000 annually to run the satellite clinic. She considers the money an investment in preventative medicine.

Doctors and nurse practitioners will provide services including immunization shots, checkups, X-rays, diabetics screening and pregnancy tests. No one will be turned away if they can't pay, officials said.

"So many times people are intimidated and they hesitate to come to the emergency room," Ms. Stafford said. "But if it's down the street and close, they'll make it a part of their life to go to the doctor."

Joe Chatman built his hospital in 1945, a time when Lubbock hospitals relegated black and Hispanic patients to hallways and basements.

The Presbyterian Center medical ministry took over when Chatman died in 1967. But the Presbyterians moved out in 1979 and vandals set fire to the building in 1987.

"It just seemed like my dad's dreams were gone up in flames," Harold Chatman said softly, standing recently in the shade of tall pine trees his father planted.

The retired schoolteacher watched as workers drilled in an elevator shaft. Steel beams were protruding through the window frames. Scaffolding cluttered the dirt floor.

City councilman T.J. Patterson predicted a ripple effect from the reconstructed hospital. Children will learn the importance of health care, and East Lubbock regains a symbol of stability and possibly new businesses, he said.

Patterson pointed out that the Chatman area, which he represents, is built on the highest point of a very level city.

"To me that's a very positive omen," Patterson said. "It has stature, it's vertical, a catalyst to motivate people."

"He'd be happy. He'd be smiling."

'Misorientation' by commander factor in deaths

AUSTIN (AP) — The commander of the Bradley Fighting Vehicle that fired upon and killed three Texas National Guard soldiers in July thought the soldiers were "personnel targets," according to an investigation.

The investigation into the July 21 incident at Fort Hood, which concluded Saturday, also found that the training scenario used in the early morning exercises wasn't an approved method.

"In this particular case, the engagement of personnel targets by the Bradley vehicle is not a part of the standard scenario," said Lt. Col. Kim Hunt, a Fort Hood spokesman.

The unusual procedure was "a contributing cause, but not primary cause of the accident," officials said in a prepared statement.

The Bradley commander, whose identity has not been released, "observed what he thought was a group of personnel targets and engaged them," the statement said.

The commander also became "misoriented" and turned the turret of his Bradley beyond a safe firing limit during the accident, the investigation concluded.

Sgt. Raul Cardenas, 27, of Weslaco; Spc. Jose Ramos Jr., 42, of Weslaco; and Spc. Daniel Benitez, 27, of Donna were all killed when the Bradley's machine gun shot them in the back. A fourth guardsman, who has not been identified, was wounded.

According to the statement, the guardsmen were engaged in a simulated chemical attack, calling for soldiers to wear protective masks. The equipment could have restricted the tank commander's vision, Hunt said.

"He was in a relatively high-stress environment," Hunt said. "He was inside the vehicle. He felt like he had to perform in a short amount of time."

Hunt said the soldier's supervisors within the National Guard will decide if he is to be held responsible in any way for the deaths, and whether he will continue to serve in the guard.

Lt. Col. Ed Komandosky, spokesman at the Guard's state headquarters in Austin, added: "It's not contemplated that any criminal action will be taken against (the Bradley commander)."

Hunt said he did not know if the Bradley commander had been tested for drug or alcohol use after the accident. Toxicology reports released last week showed that one of the slain guardsmen, Benitez, tested positive for tetrahydrocannabinol acid or THC, the active ingredient most commonly found in marijuana. The report did not indicate how much was found.

Family members of the slain guards met Saturday with officials to review the investigation's conclusions.

Maria Ramos, Jose Ramos' widow, said she has some concerns. "I do think it was an accident, but I still have some questions," she said.

Mrs. Ramos said she did not understand why the soldiers were training under a scenario that wasn't standard, and she said the Guard and Army may have been negligent.

"That is one of the questions I have, why they were firing," Mrs. Ramos told the Austin American-Statesman.

Officials said they don't know why the nonstandard training procedure was used or if it had been approved.

Ponciano Martinez, Benitez's brother-in-law, said he questions whether an equipment error may have contributed to the accident.

Reducing the key suit

By Phillip Alder

What do we all do that our ancestors never worried about doing? Right — we diet. But as Covert Bailey said, "No diet will remove all the fat from your body, because the brain is entirely fat. Without a brain you might look good, but all you could do is run for public office."

In bridge, normally we love to be plump with trumps. But there is an occasional deal — like today's — on which we are forced to diet down the trump surplus in order to make the contract.

I think a positive response to a strong, artificial and forcing two-club opening should guarantee at least two of the top three honors in that suit. Without them but with values for a positive response, you make a "waiting" bid of two diamonds. But North double-checked with Blackwood.

When the dummy came down, everything looked fat-free. South won trick one with dummy's diamond king, cashed the heart queen and played a heart to his king. West's club discard was a stab in the cholesterol belt.

However, South spotted a diet plan. If, at trick 12, the lead was in the dummy and he was left with the A-10 of hearts, he could catch East's J-8 in a trump coup.

This required taking two ruffs in hand. South played a spade to dummy's king, cashed the ace and ruffed a spade. He led a club to dummy's king and ruffed a winning spade. After returning to dummy with a club, he led out the winning spades. East had no defense.

State politicians dole out thousands

AUSTIN (AP) — Some government watchdog groups are leery of thousands of dollars worth of contributions made by state politicians to civic, school, religious and political groups.

"It buys extremely cheap name identification — and particularly effective name identification," said Tom Smith, director of Public Citizen, which monitors political money.

Legislators and other state officials contributed more than $360,000 from their political accounts to various groups during the first half of 1993, according to records at the Texas Ethics Commission.

By writing a check to a local church, Lions Club or chamber of commerce, an officeholder may merit a mention from the Sunday pulpit or luncheon podium or in a newsletter.

That goodwill can translate into votes at the next election, Smith said. "It's something people remember" — though they may not know the money came from a campaign fund instead of the politician's own pocket, he said.

Recipients included alma maters, Little League teams and fellow politicians. Donations ranged from the $50 that Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, gave to the Tip-O-Tex Little Miss Kickball contest, to the $205,000 that former Railroad Commissioner Bob Krueger gave to the state Democratic Party, the Austin American-Statesman reported Sunday.

State officials made 745 contributions to community and political groups from Jan. 1 through June 30, according to a computer-assisted analysis of records at the Ethics Commission.

Such donations were the second-most common expenditure identified in the political fund reports filed by statewide officials and legislators, the newspaper said. Only telephone bills were more prevalent.

Of the $4.9 million spent by Texas politicians during the reporting period, the study found $361,980 — or 7.4 percent — was doled out in contributions.

State officials gave away almost half as much as they received in contributions during the six months. That's partly because the period saw a lull in fund-raising: Lawmakers were barred from collecting political money during the legislative session, from Jan. 12 through May 30.

Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, made the most donations: 41, totaling $4,425. He represents 30 counties in West Texas and gave $100 to a youth fair, rodeo, livestock show or 4-H club in almost each donation.

Urban legislators and statewide officials focused their contributions on college scholarships, well-known charities and social services.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock gave 36 contributions totaling $13,465. They ranged from $1,150 to Texas Tech University and $250 to the Texas Mental Health Association to $100 to the Scottish Rite Crippled Children's Hospital and $100 to the Human Rights Campaign Fund, a gay rights group.

State Rep. Garnet Coleman, a Democrat whose district includes impoverished areas of Houston, also was generous. He made 24 donations totaling $4,770 to such groups as Texas Southern University, Mount Zion Christian School, the South-Central YMCA and the East End Chamber of Commerce.

"It's very hard for me to say no," Coleman said. "The area I represent is one that doesn't have a lot of money or resources. People look to us, as political leaders, for help."

Politicians may give more than other people because they get more solicitations, said Max Sherman, dean of the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas.

"I'm sure there is an element of goodwill involved in it," he said. "But I bet an interesting twist to the story is how often people in public office get asked to give to a wide range of things. Since they're known more widely, they get asked more often."

Andrews spikers need three games to edge SHS in Saturday battle

Snyder's Lady Tigers extended a tough Andrews volleyball team to three games Saturday, before falling 15-8, 12-15, 16-14.

Snyder coach Patty Grimmett was pleased with her team's performance, in spite of the loss.

"We played them real tough. I thought we had them after the second game, but they hung in there.

"Our girls know they played well, and that made them feel good," Grimmett stated. "What we thought about after the game was that Andrews beat Lamesa in two games, and it took Andrews three games to beat us. So, we feel like we played them closer than Lamesa did.

"That's what we're thinking about now, is the district race. That's why we play all these non-district matches, is to get ready for district."

The coach continued, "I was happy with all the phases of our game against Andrews. We did well serving, we blocked well, we played good defense and did a good job hitting. We just had a few things go against us."

Snyder was led by Bianca Rocha, who wound up with 10 points and an ace. The bulk of Rocha's points came in Game 3 when she served points one through nine for the Lady Tigers.

Sterling Cave finished with eight service points, Misty Roquemore had seven, Lindsey Griffin and Kristi McClure each canned five, and C'Ella Clayton managed two.

The Lady Tigers, now 7-10, will visit San Angelo Lake View Tuesday for matches against the Maidens and Bronte's Lady Longhorns. Varsity matches start at 6 p.m.

Andrews tops Snyder frosh

Snyder's freshmen lost a pair of volleyball matches to Andrews Saturday, dropping the A tilt, 10-15, 2-15, then falling in the B contest, 15-10, 11-15, 12-15.

The A team was paced by Brandy Roberge and Nicole Lyons, each with four points. Shawn Purcell added three and Erica Garvin chipped in one.

The B team's top scorer was Shauna Huddleston, who turned in 10 service points. Sarah Knowles had seven, Brandy Cortez finished with six, Christi Whitney served five, Angela Rodriguez managed four, Claudia Hinojos had three and Katye Galloway punched two.

Snyder's frosh will be in action Tuesday at San Angelo Lake View. The Lady Tigers are slated to face LVHS and Bronte in matches, beginning at 5 p.m.

Beat Cardinals, 17-10...

Cowboys claim first victory

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — With everyone focusing on the return of Emmitt Smith, not a lot of attention was directed toward the big guys playing in front of him.

There's no question the Cowboys need Smith, the NFL's top ground-gainer two straight years. The same can be said of Troy Aikman, last year's Super Bowl MVP.

But where would they be without the great offensive line which dominated Phoenix's defense in a 17-10 victory Sunday night?

"We knew we had to have a great pass rush," said Cardinals coach Joe Bugel, whose team had no sacks. "If you give a quarterback of that caliber that much time, he'll pick you apart."

"I didn't think anybody could push our defense around, but they did," Bugel added.

Aikman hit his first nine passes, and Dallas had a 10-0 lead three minutes into the second quarter. Aikman finished 21-of-27 for 281 yards to lead the Cowboys to their first win in three games.

Smith's presence gave the Cowboys an obvious boost even though he didn't get into the game until 6:31 remained in the third quarter.

"Once Emmitt gets in there, then we know we can run the ball," said Alvin Harper, who had a career-high game with six catches for 136 yards. "They have to respect us more and use more eight-man fronts, which makes them play us more man-to-man."

Derrick Lassic scored on runs of 8 and 2 yards and the Cowboys had a 17-7 lead before Smith got on the field.

Smith, who had his career high with 182 yards against Phoenix two years ago, was held out by coach Jimmy Johnson until Steve Beuerlein swung the momentum toward Phoenix with a 12-yard scoring throw to Ricky Proehl.

"I didn't want to put him in there for just a short while and then let him sit and stiffen up at halftime with a hamstring or something," Johnson explained.

Smith said he was trying to be patient.

"Once the kickoff came, I got antsy to get in there. I have to admit I was nervous," Smith said.

He had 23 yards on three carries during a 12-play drive which produced no points but ran down the clock. Eddie Murray, who earlier kicked a 23-yard field goal, missed a 50-yard attempt when the march stalled.

In the fourth period, after the Cardinals pulled within a touchdown on a 20-yard Greg Davis field goal, Dallas held the ball for the last 15 plays and ate up 6:37.

Smith gained 16 yards on the first snap of the drive and finished with 45 yards in eight carries.

"I was pretty impressed," said Lassic. "He has great balance, incredible quickness, and he knows where the holes are. I'm not there yet, but, God willing, I'll get there someday."

He said he didn't mind turning over the No. 1 spot.

"If my starting career is over, I'm going out on top. I just felt much more comfortable this week knowing Emmitt was here and that everything wasn't on my shoulders," Lassic said.

It was Aikman's precision, however, that set the tone for the cool, efficient Cowboys throughout the game.

The fifth-year quarterback used six different receivers, throwing a combined 11 completions to Harper and Michael Irvin, dumping off six more passes to fullback Daryl Johnston and a handful to three others.

On third-and-3 at the Phoenix 36-yard line, Aikman took the Cowboys to the two-minute warning and picked up a first down with a 5-yard throw to Jay Novacek.

Phoenix moved the ball well behind Beuerlein, but Russell Maryland's sack killed one first-half drive, a holding call against left tackle Luis Sharpe ended another, and a third stalled when Gary Clark and Derek Ware dropped passes on back-to-back plays.

In the third quarter, Ware hung onto a 27-yard throw that put the Cardinals into Dallas territory, but Kevin Smith intercepted a tipped pass four plays later.

John Roper sacked Beuerlein just before halftime, and Darren Woodson added to the big-play Dallas defense's laurels when he kept Phoenix out of the end zone in the fourth quarter.

Western Texas women snag first at season-opening rodeo

PORTALES, N.M. — Sophomore Leslie Greer posted a rodeo-best 8.3 time in goat tying in Sunday's finals of the Eastern New Mexico University NIRA Rodeo to lead the Western Texas College women's team to a first-place finish.

Greer turned in a third-place 9.8 in the long go-round, for an 18.1 total time on two head.

Teammate Dusti Beaton took second in the event with an 18.8, including a third-place 10.1 in the short go after leading the event with an 8.7 in the first round.

Western Texas' women wound up with 100 points, edging Vernon Regional Junior College, which was second with 95. Tarleton State was third, overall, with 85 points.

Western Texas' men's squad came in tied for sixth with Texas Tech, each with 55 points. Vernon, led by a top-three sweep in bareback riding took top honors with 250 points. Howard College scored 240 points for second, trailed by host Eastern New Mexico's 210, Tarleton with 115, and West Texas State's 95.

The WTC men were paced by bull rider Fletcher Tigner, who was fourth in the opening round with a 71, then rode for a 72 in the finals for a fourth-place 143 total.

Dax Lackey of Tarleton won the event with a combined 150, including rides of 77 and 73.

Among the bull riders was Snyder's own Ross Hataway, who captured second place in the average for Howard College with a two-head 146, including an event-best 79 in the long go.

Western Texas freshman Leddy Lewis took sixth in steer wrestling with a 13.9 two-head clocking. Howard's Brad Stewart was the top steer wrestler here, posting a 10.0 flat on two runs.

The Westerners will be idle this week and will return to the arena Sept. 30-Oct 2 at the Vernon Regional JC Rodeo.

L'land grabs 12-6 district tennis win

Defending District 2-4A champion Levelland used a 5-1 advantage in girls' singles and won all three girls' doubles matches on the way to a 12-6 team tennis match Saturday at Snyder Junior High.

"Our girls need to work on their determination and drive," said SHS tennis coach Teri Hoerster. "They have the skills and the fundamentals, but they lack in mental toughness. They do not have what it takes to make a winning team and it shows."

The match was the district opener for both teams.

The only SHS girls' singles player to win Saturday was Katie Thornton, playing in the No. 4 spot. Thornton handed Levelland's Alison Sweet a 6-2, 6-4 loss.

"The boys all played extremely tough," Hoerster continued. "They wanted to beat Levelland, and they did. They had the determination and drive to defeat Levelland. The guys have a chance for a first-place finish in district."

Snyder's boys battled to a 3-3 draw in singles play, and captured two of three doubles contests.

Winners on the boys side for Snyder included No. 1 Tracey Chavez, No. 5 John Purcell and No. 6 Stephen Campbell.

Chavez knocked off Levelland's top seed, Nathan Garza, 6-4, 6-4; Purcell outlasted Steven Gray, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4; and Campbell downed William Daughtery, 6-3, 6-2.

In boys' doubles, Chavez and Cameron Taylor needed three sets to top Austin Crawley and Matt Peck, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2; and Purcell and Salvador Aguirre edged Gray and Sam Lawson, 7-6, 7-6.

The loss drops Snyder to 2-5 in all matches, 0-1 in loop play.

Snyder will travel to Abilene High today to battle the Eagle JV in a 3:30 p.m. non-district encounter. The district chase continues Saturday when the Tigers host Frenship at 10 a.m. at SJHS.

AHS nudges JV spikers

Snyder's junior varsity Lady Tigers took Andrews to three games Saturday, before falling, 15-10, 10-15, 9-15, in volleyball action.

Joanie Wemken's 11 points, including an ace, were tops for SHS. Darla Blackwell added nine points, Kelly Clay served seven, Raechele Wemken, Jina Miller and Kelly Kallemeyn rapped two apiece, and Tiffany Garza wound up with one.

Snyder's JV will be back on the court Tuesday in San Angelo. The Lady Tigers will take on San Angelo Lake View and Bronte in matches set to begin at 5 p.m.

Tigers take second in Lubbock match

LUBBOCK — Snyder, led by junior Bryan Word's 76, placed second in a non-district practice golf match Saturday at Elm Grove Golf Course, firing a team-total 316.

Class 5A power Lubbock Monterey finished with a 303 to claim first place.

"I was very pleased with the Tigers' performance," said SHS coach Bob O'Day. "We played better than our opening performance. We played a strong 5A school within 13 shots, and their team was mostly seniors.

"We beat Frenship's varsity by 58 shots," O'Day continued. "We are a young team this fall with only one senior and two juniors out of 16 players. The Tigers should get even better with experience."

Word wound up third in the individual medalist race, seven shots behind Monterey's Trey Ince, who carded a 69, and just four strokes in back of Richard Gailey, also of Montery, who shot a 73. Snyder sophomore Page Patterson shot a 77 for fourth.

Snyder's JV finished third with a 354, followed by Fresnhip varsity's 374, a 410 by the SHS freshmen, and Frenship's junior varsity, which turned in a 435.

Other SHS varsity scores included sophomore Carl Strelecki's 81, an 82 by sophomore James Pilgrim and Chris Beatty's 94.

Freshman scores for Snyder featured a 100 by Troy Allen, Jay Holley and Ryan Landes with identical 103s, Kevin Lacik's 104 and Jeff Levens' 118.

Sophomore Jeremie Minter, competing as an individual for Snyder, shot a 97.

The Tigers will be off this week, then will host Frenship Saturday, Oct. 2 at 9 a.m.

Angels rally past Rangers

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Texas, which has 13 games left, was an inning away from beating California, but Rene Gonzales hit a three-run homer in the eighth off Tom Henke (5-5), to give the Angels a 9-8 win.

Henke had converted 37 of his previous 43 save chances.

With California trailing 8-6, Chad Curtis singled off Bob Patterson and Henke walked Chili Davis with one out. Gonzales then hit his second home run of the season, his first at Anaheim Stadium since June 19, 1992.

Daryl Scott (1-1) pitched one inning for his first major-league victory, and Joe Grahe struck out the side in the ninth for his ninth save.

Dean Palmer homered twice for the Rangers.

Cable TV, HBO shine at 45th Emmy awards

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Six years ago, when the Emmy Awards first opened the door for cable television, Home Box Office acted the part of the polite newcomer and claimed just three statuettes.

At Sunday's 45th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, an emboldened HBO reflected the growing strength and broad creative reach of cable TV, winning more trophies than any of the traditional networks: CBS, ABC or NBC.

"I don't think the generation growing up now is going to say broadcast and cable," HBO Chairman Michael Fuchs said afterward, predicting that all TV will be seen as a seamless unit. "We broke the barrier."

The cable channel won 17 Emmys, including 11 creative arts awards given in a Saturday ceremony. NBC came in second with 16 awards, followed by CBS with 14 and ABC with 12.

Broadcast networks have been nervously watching their dominance ebb as viewers gain more choices through cable. Sunday's Emmy Awards bolstered critics' arguments that network quality is fading as well.

The ceremony, hosted by Angela Lansbury, was broadcast by ABC from the Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

Big series winners with three trophies each were NBC's "Seinfeld," named outstanding comedy series, and CBS' "Picket Fences," which won the best drama series Emmy.

"We started off so small it's going to be easy to thank people because there's like two people to thank here that even knew we were on," said series star Jerry Seinfeld as he accepted the award.

"Seinfeld" costar Michael Richards was named best supporting actor in a comedy for his role as the eccentric Kramer. Writer Larry David took home an Emmy for a notorious "Seinfeld" episode about masturbation.

Roseanne Arnold, who has sounded off about her top-rated series' lack of Emmys, was named outstanding lead actress in a comedy series for "Roseanne." But she wasn't even there.

Co-star Laurie Metcalf won her second consecutive Emmy for supporting actress in a comedy, giving the ABC show a total of three awards in its five-year history.

A trio of honors also went to HBO's send-up of reality-based TV movies, "The Positively True Adventures of the Alleged Texas-Cheerleader Murdering Mom." Holly Hunter was named best actress in a miniseries or special for the movie.

"Picket Fences" stars Tom Skerritt and Kathy Baker, who play husband and wife Jimmy and Jill Brock, were honored as best actor and actress in a drama.

Ted Danson's win as best actor in a comedy series for "Cheers" wasn't enough to push the NBC series past "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" to become the most-honored program in Emmy history.

"Cheers" ended up with a total 28 awards in its 11 year run; "Mary Tyler Moore" has 29.

Miss Moore won set a record herself Sunday, winning her seventh career trophy for the Lifetime cable network movie "Stolen Babies" to tie former costar Ed Asner's top Emmy acting tally.

When HBO claimed its awards in 1988, two of the three were for the documentary "Dear America: Letters Home from Vietnam."

History proved a gold mine this year as well, with the HBO movies "Stalin," about the murderous Soviet dictator, and "Barbarians at the gate, a comedic look at R.J.R. Nabisco takeover, tying for the best made-for-TV movie award.

The networks, much lambasted for their instant, ripped-from-the-headlines movies, didn't have a single entry in the category.

PBS also gave the networks grief. It picked up nine trophies, including a best actor in a miniseries or special award for Robert Morse's portrayal of writer Truman Capote in "Tru."

CBS' "Northern Exposure" — with a leading 16 nominations — was shut out. It was last year's big winner with six awards.

Miss Lansbury, star of "Murder, She Wrote," lost her 13th bid for an award when Miss Baker took the drama actress trophy.

Astrograph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Tuesday, Sept. 21, 1993

In the year ahead once you tap into something productive or profitable, you'll instinctively know how to expand it into something greater. Things are starting to look very promising.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This could be a very beneficial day for you, provided you're able to keep everything you want to do or accomplish in proper focus. Operate from a prepared agenda. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you will learn by teaching. When you impart knowledge to others, you'll be amazed at how much you'll learn in the process yourself which previously escaped your attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to improve your financial lot in life at this time, it might be necessary to take a calculated risk. Give it mature consideration if you feel the odds are favorable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your greatest asset today is your ability to lead and inspire others. It looks like you will have an opportunity to use it for yourself as well as for friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Sometimes it's unwise to put too much credence in hunches or intuitive perceptions. Today, however, could be an exception, so if you feel strongly about something, follow it through.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you have high hopes and expectations at this time, there could be justification for your feelings. You're in a fortunate cycle where several lucky breaks could follow in rapid succession.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Greater benefits are likely to come to you today through a new channel rather than from sources upon which you usually draw. Do not try to structure things too precisely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not prejudge developments today, because your initial assessment might be weighed on the negative rather than the positive side.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Changes not of your making could be the ones which work out the best for you in the long run today. Don't get flustered if you experience a shift in conditions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The key to your success today could be based upon the depth and extent of your cooperative spirit. If you're willing to help others, they'll be prepared to help you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are determined to finalize several critical matters today, your probabilities for achieving desirable end results are excellent. The ball is in your court, so do your best.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Socially you have a good friend who could be of great help to you at this time in the business world. Don't be afraid to ask for assistance if you're prepared to do something beneficial for him/her in return.

American, employees talks set

DALLAS (AP) — The National Mediation Board is summoning American Airlines and its flight attendants union to Washington this week, turning up the pressure for an agreement in contract negotiations that have continued for almost a year.

Stakes are high in the intensive talks, which will be held before board member Joshua Javits. The Association of Professional Flight Attendants is balloting its members, urging authorization to go out on strike if bargaining collapses.

American had asked that the talks be declared at an impasse earlier this month, but now the carrier will go back to the table and try to reach an agreement.

"I think the National Mediation Board is going to put both sides through a wringer next week. We're looking forward to long, hard hours," said Ray Abernathy, spokesman for the union, which represents about 21,000 flight attendants at the nation's largest carrier.

The contract covering the flight attendants does not expire but became amendable last Dec. 31. The union, which contends most workers haven't had a pay raise in a decade, set a Labor Day deadline to try to reach a new agreement.

Police note four arrests

Snyder police made four arrests over the weekend and early this morning, and investigated numerous other complaints.

Officers arrested a 30-year-old man at 2:11 p.m. Saturday in the 1100 block of 24th Street on a Stonewall County warrant for failure to appear.

At 12:37 a.m. Sunday at Town & Country, officers arrested an 18-year-old man for possession of drug paraphernalia and public intoxication and a 19-year-old man for public intoxication.

C&W employees contacted police at 12:03 p.m. Sunday in reference to having two female juveniles in custody for shoplifting. The girls were transported to the police department and later released to a guardian. No charges have been filed.

At 4:35 p.m. Sunday, police took a 13-year-old male into custody for unlawful carrying of a weapon, num-chucks. The boy was later released to a relative.

Police arrested a 23-year-old man and a 21-year-old man for public intoxication at 2:24 a.m. today at Allsup's.

A woman contacted police at 8:26 a.m. Saturday to complain that she had been assaulted by a man. A report for Class C family violence was filed.

At 9:01 a.m. Sunday, a man contacted police in reference to someone damaging his vehicle. A report for Class A criminal mischief was filed.

Officers worked a two-vehicle accident at 6:27 p.m. Sunday in the 4100 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1980 Buick driven by Ordon Benbenek of 2325 Sunset and a 1976 Buick driven by Ruben Delao Jr. of 1205 13th St.

At 7:47 p.m. Sunday, police received a report of a man creating a disburbance in the 1000 block of 29th Street. The man was transported to the police department and later to Big Spring State Hospital.

At 9:07 p.m. Sunday, a woman notified officers that someone had been entering her residence while she was not at home. A report for criminal trespass was filed.

Structure destroyed in fire here

An old home used to store hay was destroyed in a Sunday morning fire here.

Snyder firefighters got the call at 6:05 a.m. that a structure was on fire at Hargrove and N. Avenue R.

The structure, an old house, contained about 150 bales of hay. The building and most of its contents were destroyed.

The owner is Bobby Stroud.

Firemen are still investigating the cause of the fire.

SO reports trash dumped in county

The sheriff's office received a report of someone messing with Texas.

George W. Kitchens Jr. reported to the sheriff's office a white male, between 18 and 20 years old, driving a 1978 or 1979 half-ton pickup, pulling an orange flat-bed trailer, dumping trash on the Old Arah Route Road.

The driver reportedly left the area and headed toward Fluvanna.

The incident is under investigation.

Demjanjuk gets ok to return to states

JERUSALEM (AP) — John Demjanjuk, extradited to Israel in 1986 to stand trial as "Ivan the Terrible," will return to the United States after Israel's top court cleared the way for his release.

The Supreme Court on Sunday set aside appeals for a new Nazi war crimes trial, ending the long saga involving the retired Ohio auto worker. His departure from Israel had been delayed five times.

Demjanjuk was acquitted July 29 of being "Ivan the Terrible," a Nazi guard who operated gas chambers at Treblinka death camp in occupied Poland during World War II. With the new ruling, he is free to leave Israel immediately.

In Ohio, Demjanjuk's son-in-law, Ed Nishnic, called the decision "definitely good news." But citing past delays, he added: "We are going to approach this thing very cautiously, very carefully."

Nishnic and U.S. Rep. James Traficant, D-Ohio, planned to leave today to escort the 73-year-old Demjanjuk, who stayed in protective custody. Traficant said he expected Demjanjuk to be back in the United States before Friday.

In Washington, a State Department official said today that once Demjanjuk is free, the U.S. Embassy would issue him a letter allowing him to board an airplane in Israel and to be admitted into the United States.

The ruling by Justice Theodore Orr was the sixth time the court has dealt with Demjanjuk's case since his acquittal, when a five-member panel said there was reasonable doubt about his identity as Ivan the Terrible but found that he had been present at other Nazi camps.

Orr rejected appeals by Holocaust survivors and Nazi hunters who sought to have Demjanjuk retried on charges that he was at the Sobibor death camp as well as concentration camps.

They had mounted an international search for Sobibor survivors who could identify him. Demjanjuk has said he spent World War II as a German prisoner of war and claimed he was the victim of mistaken identity.

Israel's Attorney General Yosef Harish already had decided not to prosecute Demjanjuk further, saying the evidence was too weak and there was risk of double jeopardy, or trying him twice on the same charges.

The Supreme Court needed exceptional circumstances to overturn the attorney general's decision. Orr's ruling meant those circumstances did not exist.

Nazi hunters and Jewish organizations criticized the ruling, arguing that Israel was letting a war criminal go on a technicality.

Obituaries

James Suggs

1925-1993

ASPERMONT — Services are set for 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church for James B. Suggs, 68, who died Saturday in an Abilene hospital. Officiating at the service will be the Rev. Mickey Wagoner, pastor, with interment to follow in the Aspermont Cemetery.

He was the father of Kathye Parker of Snyder.

Born in Clinton, Ark., Mr. Suggs had been a resident of Aspermont since 1956. He had worked for Conoco Oil Co. for 37 years, retiring in 1985.

He married Jessie Hammer on March 13, 1948 in Monument, N.M. He was a member of the Aspermont Masonic Lodge and Stonewall County Senior Citizens Center where he was the center's man of the year in 1968. He was a volunteer fireman for 27 years, active in the Abilene Coachman's Clubs and a member of the First Baptist Church.

Other survivors include his wife, Jessie, of Aspermont; three sons, Gary Suggs of North Richland Hills, Ricky Suggs of Big Spring and Randy Suggs of Klondike; a brother, Carl Suggs of Carlsbad, N.M.; two sisters, Dorothy Stephens of Monument, N.M., and Lena Mae Stanton of Jal, N.M.; eight grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

LIPAN — Services are set for 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Lipan Church of Christ for S.D. Parks, 60, who died Sunday in a Weatherford hospital. Burial will follow in the Evergreen Cemetery in Lipan.

Officiating at the service will be a cousin, G.A. Parks Jr. of Snyder, assisted by Byron Tidwell, minister of the Lipan church.

A former Scurry County resident, Mr. Parks was born in Snyder, the son of Steve and Verma Callie Fenton Parks. A graduate of Snyder High School, he also graduated from East Texas State University and did additional studies at Rice University, Abilene Christian University and Tarleton State University. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army and served in the Korean War.

Mr. Parks married Ella Cornelison in Lipan in 1955. At the time of his death, he was an accountant for the Palo Pinto Community Services in Mineral Wells. He had lived in Lipan since 1983.

Mr. Parks was preceded in death by a twin brother at birth.

Survivors include his wife, Ella Parks of Lipan; a son, Stephen Parks III of Mexia; a daughter and son-in-law, Martha and Jay Jackson of Lipan; a sister and brother-in-law, Margaret and Bruce Slaughter of Hico; a brother and sister-in-law, Ray and June Parks of Hico; two aunts, Mrs. Esther Dabbs and Mrs. Evabell Moore of Snyder; three uncles, G.W. Parks, Lynn Fenton and Myron Fenton, all of Snyder; and five grandchildren.

Miss America hopes to draw attention to homeless people

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss America Kimberly Clarice Aiken says she will devote her year-long reign to helping homeless people and raising awareness about their plight.

"My main goal is to get homeless people off the streets and get people who may become homeless not to be in that situation," Aiken said. "I'd like to make the greatest difference."

The 18-year-old Columbia, S.C., resident bested 49 other women to win the 1994 title early Sunday. She is the first Miss America from South Carolina since 1957.

Aiken is founder and president of the Homeless Education and Resource Organization in her hometown and said she has worked with homeless children who live in shelters and transitional housing.

She has an uncle who was homeless, but Aiken said that was not the reason she adopted the issue for the pageant. He now lives with a friend in New York City, she said.

During Sunday's news conference, Aiken waved occasionally to her mother, father and younger sister sitting in the back row in a hotel ballroom. Her boyfriend of 11 months, Louis Barber, lives in North Carolina.

The two met as students at the University of North Carolina in Charlotte. Asked how he felt when he realized his girlfriend had won, Barber said, "I had to sit down. I felt fainty."

One of the youngest women to win the title, Aiken said she also felt overwhelmed, but was prepared for the 20,000-miles-a-month of travel that comes with the crown. The last 18-year-old to win was Tawny Godin of New York in 1976.

Aiken will receive a $35,000 scholarship, a 1994 Chevrolet Camaro, and an estimated $200,000 in speaking fees.

She is pursuing a degree in music and accounting.

Aiken succeeds Leanza Cornett, 22, of Jacksonville, Fla., who focused on AIDS education during her reign.

Woman hopes to benefit from new clemency law in Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman who shot her husband hopes she will be the first person in Texas to be granted clemency under a new law for family abuse victims who have killed their abusers.

Becky Wardlow has spent five years in the women's prison in Gatesville for shooting her violently abusive husband Johnny Wardlow in their Lufkin area home in 1985. She was convicted of involuntary manslaughter.

"He drank a lot and was constantly going to the bars," Ms. Wardlow recalled. "He would come home and start breaking things, especially things that were important to me. Then he went from that into physical violence and sexual and mental abuse."

She describes the physical violence with an almost clinical coldness: the stitches to her chin, the bruises. Her voice lowers and her eyes cloud over when recalling the sexual abuse.

"I've laid in bed with guns and knives," she says.

On Jan. 19, 1985, Ms. Wardlow, saying she feared that her husband, might finally carry out his longstanding threat to kill her, leveled a 12-gauge shotgun at the back of her husband's head and killed him.

Now out on probation, Ms. Wardlow wants her rights to vote and sit on a jury restored. She also wants the ability to fill out a job application without labeling herself a convicted felon. And she wants to return to prison, to counsel other women. But convicted felons are not permitted to visit others in prison.

Several domestic violence experts in Texas are appalled that no one has been granted clemency even though the law has been on the book since 1991.

Other states with similar programs, such as Ohio and Maryland, have processed numerous cases in the past few years.

"I'm not only surprised, I'm shocked," said Toby Myers, a psychotherapist and director of the Pivot Project, a Houston treatment group for batterers. "The fact is many of these women had never (before killing their abusers) even been to the principal's office."

Joseph Ober-Hauser with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, said about 175 women, out of 500 screened, have met the standards of domestic abuse since passage of the bill. Only three cases have made it to the governor's desk. Two have been rejected; one has been pending for about one year.

"We look for a pattern of abuse," Ober-Hauser said. "Just because you got into a fight one night is not justification for killing someone. Very few make it through all the documentation that's needed."

The recommendation then must go through several committees before landing on the governor's desk.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards, said the governor's staff is expecting to get Wardlow's clemency recommendation soon.

Today, the assistant retail manager speaks to community groups and the police about her experience in order to increase awareness about domestic violence.

County commissioners that requires a builder to be bonded in order to do construction on a county facility, and said if not for this law, the work needed in the senior center's kitchen could be done cheaper and could even be treated as a "barn-raising" project, allowing citizens to volunteer their time to help with construction.

Baird said communities of 20,000 or less in population should be exempt for the law requiring a bonded contractor.

The court decided to hold the senior center's request for renovations and bring it up as old business on a month-to-month basis, until a resolution can be made on funding.

Commissioners voted in favor of allowing Judge Doolittle to sign a resolution to submit an application to TCDP. The grant will be used to fund improvements for Hermleigh Water Works.

The grant asked for in the resolution is $250,000 and will be matched by five percent ($12,500) from the Hermleigh Water Works fund.

The court also approved line item transfers in the budget for Precinct 3, the county airport and the parks department.

Precinct 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. said the transfers will not effect the bottom line of the budget, but will adjust the areas that were over-budgeted and alleviate areas that were underbudgeted.

Commissioners planned to reconvene at 2 p.m. to consider bids for a self-propelled broom and a diesel truck. Two bids were reported to have been submitted on each vehicle.

Judge Doolittle presided over the meeting attended by commissioners Gray, Trevey, Jerry Gannaway and Roy Idom.

Not all employers in Texas have workman's compensation

HOUSTON (AP) — Forty-four percent of Texas employers don't carry workers' compensation insurance, according to a report released by the Workers' Compensation Research Center.

The center concluded that 40 percent of small companies, those with two to five workers, don't have compensation coverage. It also found that 12 percent of employers with more than 1,000 workers don't carry the coverage.

But dropping compensation coverage can be dangerous, said Eric Oxfeld, a spokesman for the American Insurance Association in Washington.

Companies that don't carry workers' compensation insurance give up key defenses, he said. Employers without coverage can't claim in court that workers were responsible for accidents, Oxfeld said.

"A single accident can wipe a business out," he said.

The report concluded that most manufacturing firms — 53 percent — don't have workers' compensation. It also found that 51 percent of finance companies and 49 percent of wholesalers and retailers don't carry the coverage.

For Jim McIngvale, co-owner of Gallery Furniture in Houston, dropping workers' compensation insurance made sense financially.

"We really couldn't afford it. Premiums went through the roof," McIngvale said.

In place of compensation coverage, McIngvale bought on-the-job accident insurance, and also plans to install a gym and hire a nutritionist.

About 35 percent of the employers that don't have workers' compensation coverage have bought alternative insurance that pays medical bills or lost wages, according to the report.

But those alternative policies aren't as good as workers' compensation, said James A. Dyer of the Public Policy Research Institute at Texas A&M University. He said many policies pay less for wages and medical benefits than workers' compensation.

President of Texas NAACP also assists state attorney

HOUSTON (AP) — The double life of Texas NAACP president and assistant state attorney Gary Bledsoe worries some people in the state.

When lawmakers considered a bill against hate crimes, Bledsoe was there testifying for it.

Last summer he joined anti-death penalty activists at a news conference to applaud the release of a man who had spent 13 years on death row.

That's a full plate for Bledsoe, who as an assistant state attorney makes $600 more a year than his boss, Attorney General Dan Morale.

But both a Morales spokesman and Bledsoe say the taxpayers are getting their money's worth. They say there's no conflict between Bledsoe's special interests and his day job, despite the fact that Bledsoe openly conducts NAACP business during regular office hours.

"Anytime we've got state employees who are busy doing other things from 8 to 5 on a work day, it raises concerns," said Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause of Texas, the self-styled citizens' lobby.

"Common Cause's whole thing is about public trust, public confidence in public officials and state employees doing the public's business and not pursuing their own agenda."

Bledsoe defends his work on taxpayer time.

"We all have First Amendment rights and nothing I do compromises what I do in this (attorney general's) office," Bledsoe said. "It's not unusual. It's just that I'm black and the high profile that makes it unique in the eyes of many."

Bledsoe is also involved in the recent East Texas desegregation case, but not as a state attorney. Two weeks ago, Bledsoe wrote a letter to the Justice Department. He asked for a federal investigation into the murder of William Simpson, a black man who was gunned down during a Beaumont robbery after he fled from Vidor, where he said racial harassment was intolerable.

Morales' spokesman Ron Dusek said Bledsoe's activism hasn't produced any problems for the attorney general.

"It hasn't yet," Dusek said. "Gary is smart enough to know when something he might do or say would involve a conflict."

Bledsoe's dual role has begun to attract more attention in the wake of the Vidor controversy and the Gary Graham death penalty case, in which the NAACP has been fighting Morales.

"He's making more leaps than a Nike Air commercial," a federal investigator groused Friday after Bledsoe, wearing his NAACP hat, fired off a letter to U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno, suggesting Simpson's death was tied to the housing controversy.

Bledsoe's primary responsibilities at the attorney general's office are to enforce the state's open meetings and open records laws and handle human rights issues.

Meanwhile, Morales and the NAACP are locked in open warfare over Gary Graham, the convicted Houston murderer whose case has become a major cause of death penalty opponents.

Morales, who has pressed for Graham's execution, lost the latest legal round last month when the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals voted 5-4 for a stay of execution pending further deliberations on Graham's request for a clemency hearing.

Supported by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, Graham — convicted of the 1981 robbery-murder of a man in a grocery store parking lot — is seeking a hearing before the parole board on evidence not heard at his trial that he says would prove his innocence.

Morales argues Graham's alibi witnesses already have been adequately examined by the courts and the parole board and found not to be credible.

Bledsoe, who is not involved in death penalty litigation for the state, said the Texas NAACP, unlike the Legal Defense Fund, was not a party to Graham's defense. And he said he has not personally participated in news conferences held by Graham supporters.

But, in his NAACP role, Bledsoe has issued a statement supporting Graham's bid for a clemency hearing.

"The Board of Pardons and Paroles, in the interest of justice and fair play and maximizing support for the criminal justice system, should grant Gary Graham a hearing," he said.

Bledsoe defended his ability and his prerogative to juggle his taxpayer-funded job with his advocacy role.

"They (taxpayers) are getting more than 40 hours. Many weeks they get 80 hours. I work weekends and nights," he said.

Galloway named reserve deputy

DEVORE, Calif. (AP) — While Don Galloway was playing a detective on the old TV series "Ironside," he wondered what it'd be like to be a cop for real.

Now he can find out.

Galloway, who co-starred as Sgt. Ed Brown on the 1967-75 series, graduated Saturday as a reserve deputy for the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department.

"I wanted to be an actor when I was 12 years old," said Galloway. "But all the time I've been an actor, I thought, 'What would it be like to be a police officer?'

"This is what I've been waiting for so long."

Galloway, 56, completed 168 hours of training to become a reserve deputy. He must complete 200 hours of patrol work before he can be recognized as a full-fledged peace officer.

Easing a cancer patient's final days

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Will abstinence from eating eventually cause death, and how long might it take? I suffer from cancer and wonder if this form of dying is painful.

DEAR READER: If you don't eat, you'll die of starvation in a matter of months; if you don't drink, you'll succumb much sooner. I don't believe this is a realistic option for you. Starvation is uncomfortable — at least in the early stages. I think that you and your physician could work out a more humane way, when the time comes.

For instance, most caring doctors are willing to prescribe drugs, such as morphine, to make the final days of a cancer patient more bearable. Also, tranquilizers, such as Valium, often make patients with terminal illnesses more comfortable.

Don't misunderstand me. I'm not advocating "mercy killing." I'm referring to the completely ethical medical responsibility of easing pain in a hopeless situation, such as terminal cancer, a role that any doctor worth his salt should be willing to adopt.

I suggest that you have a frank discussion with your physician, during which you both can review your wishes, his obligations and the many resources (such as a hospice) in your community. Cancer patients should not have to consider starving themselves to obtain relief; there are more appropriate methods to ease the pain.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is your opinion of bungee jumping? I feel that such a fall and the quick jerk is not good for the body.

DEAR READER: I think it's nuts. But then I don't sky-dive either. I believe that you're correct to be concerned about the potential consequences of a sudden tug at the end of a bungee cord. This could certainly cause injury to the neck and head.

In all fairness to the devotees of bungee-jumping, I am unaware of anything more than sporadic reports of injuries and deaths sustained during the proper execution of a jump — assuming the equipment is shipshape, a real source of concern. Nonetheless, to paraphrase the famous poem, when it comes to a bungee-jumper, I'd rather see than be one.

As an aside, you might be interested in a recent report in the New England Journal of Medicine (from the Health Project Consortium). The experts concluded that an enormous amount of medical costs in this country is directly attributable to high-risk behavior: everything from smoking cigarettes to not using seat belts.

I'd include bungee-jumping and many other "sports" in that category. If we're ever going to get a handle on health costs, we'll have to start taking responsibility for our own actions, and that includes high-risk behavior. End of lecture.

Opinions differ on restoring cemetery

HARDIN, Mo. (AP) — Hundreds of caskets, burial vaults and human bones — the remains of several generations — may never be recovered from a small lake gouged into a small-town cemetery by summer floods.

Backwaters from the flooded Missouri River surged through the Hardin Cemetery in July, working loose more than 700 of its 1,544 graves, many dated to the 1800s and others unmarked.

The water swept tombstones, vaults, caskets and bones into farm fields, hung them on fences and trees. It deposited some up to 14 miles away.

Two months later, 393 vaults or caskets have been recovered, along with uncounted skeletal remains. Ninety-four individuals known to have been buried in the cemetery have been identified; 314 graves remain unaccounted for.

The river has receded near this western Missouri town of 600, but most of what used to be a nine-acre cemetery is covered by water 12 to 35 feet deep. Searchers believe it harbors the missing remains.

Steve Shirley, president of the local cemetery association, said the group is leaning toward moving what's left of the cemetery and making the flooded area a "memorial lake."

"(But) if the government doesn't help pay for it, we're not going to be able to do very much," he said.

Some people want the water pumped out, including Dean Snow, the Ray County coroner. He and Jerry Brown, an assistant director of the Missouri Funeral Directors Association, believe numerous vaults and caskets lie in about 15 feet of water.

But State Emergency Management Agency officials say pumping out the lake would be difficult because it lies below the water table. They also say it would be costly and could prove fruitless — divers last month couldn't tell what was in the murky water.

The decision whether to pump the water or move the cemetery is up to the cemetery board and SEMA, which is financing the cemetery recovery. It has cost about $100,000 so far.

"We're trying to go as quickly as possible on this," SEMA director Jerry Uhlmann said last week. "This is a horrible situation, and we're trying to correct it. The biggest problem is there's no place to pump the water out to because there's water everywhere around it. And that area is all level."

Only a small corner of the cemetery survived. Now it drops away 6 feet to a jagged, muddy bank from which vaults and caskets grotesquely protrude. Where the murky water laps at the bank, more dislodged caskets loom just below the surface. Toppled and broken gravestones are everywhere in the mud and water.

The floods washed away the oldest section of the cemetery, including a segregated part where blacks were buried decades ago. Many of those graves were unmarked.

Searchers find bones in the mud daily, and Snow predicts farmers will be ploughing them up for years to come.

A temporary morgue has been built on the county fairgrounds, and almost 500 families have come to an assistance center for counseling and to provide descriptions of their loved ones, how they were buried and anything that might help identify them, Snow said.

Slater learning to live without being intoxicated

NEW YORK (AP) — Christian Slater says he's completely off alcohol after four years of fast living that started at age 16.

"I once didn't feel I could be an exciting personality if I wasn't screwed up," he says in this week's People. "My motto was: Live fast, die young and leave a good-looking corpse."

Slater, 24, says he started drinking at 16 on the set of "The Name of the Rose," a 1986 film shot in Europe. "I couldn't believe I was in countries without a drinking age," he says.

For years after that, he says, "I squeezed alcohol dry." In 1990, after his second arrest for drunken driving, Slater served 10 days in jail. He says that brought him to his senses.

"You know you have a lot to answer for," he says. "So either you wake up or continue on the same path and eventually die.

"I learned that I don't have to be intoxicated to feel OK."

Ballad moves Jackson to tears

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Michael Jackson was moved to tears during the first of two concerts in Israel.

After singing his love ballad, "She's Out of My Life," at a beach-side park Sunday, the singer wept for a few minutes while fans screamed: "We love you."

Some 50,000 people attended the sold-out show; police estimated another 20,000 fans were in the area to hear the music. At least 182 people were treated for heat exhaustion in the sticky, 86-degree weather, police said.

Jackson arrived Friday for two performances. He will appear in Hayarkon Park again Tuesday night.

Term limits petition snafu affects six

HOUSTON (AP) — A petition snafu has the Houston City Council coming and going.

Exiting will be city Controller George Greanias and five senior members of the city council, expected to rush to court to keep themselves on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Entering are last-minute challengers flooding in to become candidates after the incumbents have so far been disqualified.

Last week, five incumbent council members and Greanias got caught handing in some faulty petitions needed to surpass a new term limit measure.

The signatures were there, but on some, ZIP codes or county of residence were not included.

City Attorney Benjamin Hall III marked the papers incomplete and said he was referring the paperwork to Secretary of State John Hannah. Hannah, in turn, marked the paperwork without the ZIP codes, incomplete on Friday. He said the city's own laws barred the six from running, because the paperwork was not completed properly.

That leaves the 14-member council, Houston voters and potential challengers, in a tailspin.

Four incumbents John Goodner, Frank Mancuso, Eleanor Tinsley, Christin Hartung got snagged by the ZIP code ruling. A fifth, Jim Greenwood, was told he didn't have enough signatures. Greanias was told the county of residence of some of the signers was missing.

Adding to the mishap is the fact that the six incumbent officials — who as elected officials are charged with the public's bidding — were trying to circumvent the majority of voters' term-limit wishes when they sought the signatures.

In 1991, city voters approved a term-limit law that would limit each elected official to no more than six years in any elected job. However, part the term limit measure came with a council-constructed, crater-sized loophole:

Incumbents can bypass the six-year cap by obtaining voters' signatures through petitions. The number of signatures depends on the size of one's district.
