Guerrilla Bases In Lebanon, Syria Hit By Israeli Planes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel made five air strikes Sunday against guerrilla bases in Lebanon and Syria. A top Israeli official said they signaled a new policy of "no longer waiting for the guerrillas to hit first."

The raids were the first against the guerrillas since the Sept. 16-17 sweep into Lebanon by Israeli army units. There has been relative quiet on the borders since then, but Gen. Haim Herzog, the former intelligence chief, said in a broadcast commentary: "From now on the very presence of saboteurs in Syria and Lebanon is to be regarded as a provocation."

"This is the operative phase of our pledge to hit the terrorists wherever they are, and they are in Lebanon and Syria," another high-ranking military source said.

An Israeli spokesman said the targets in Lebanon were at Sinik, Dakifa and Dier el Ashayer and a guerrilla naval base at Ras el Naba south of the Litani River Delta. He said a guerrilla training camp was hit in Syria. The raiders came within 15 miles of Beirut and within 30 miles of Damascus.

The spokesman said all the planes returned safely.

Radio Damascus said the Syrian Air Force drove off the Israelis after they attacked near Missiaf, about 100 miles north of Damascus. No casualties were reported.

The rockets and bombs could be clearly heard in Beirut, and sunbathers along the Mediterranean ran for cover as the jets streaked towards their targets.

A Lebanese communique said two civilians were killed, 16 were wounded and two others were missing.

Reds Continue Small-Scale Attacks Against Saigon And Border Areas

SAIGON (AP) — Three of the four major highways leading out of Saigon were reported unsafe today due to continued harassment by communist forces. U.S. troops were advised to stay off them.

Sources said Highway 1 was cut near the district town of Trang Bom, 30 miles northeast of Saigon, and enemy fire was hampering crews trying to repair a blown culvert. The closing of the highway cut off the supply of vegetables from Da-lat to Saigon.

Highway 13 remained closed about 21 miles north of Saigon, although government troops have claimed they reoccupied the cluster of hamlets in that area which the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong seized last week.

A third highway, Route 15 to the resort town of Vung Tau, was reported open only to essential traffic along a 20-mile stretch where the enemy sprang two ambushes last week. South Vietnamese officials ordered all vehicles to travel with guards. U.S. officials ordered American vehicles that must travel the road to move in pairs and to be equipped with weapons and radios.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong kept up small-scale attacks north of Saigon.

Heavy fighting was reported along the Cambodian border, 75 miles west of Saigon, and along the northern coast between Hue and Quang Ngai, 125 miles to the south.

U.S. B52 bombers kept up heavy pressure on the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

Fifteen strikes were flown against North Vietnam, to the north and south of the port of Dong Hoi, and 60 strikes were made across South Vietnam. About half of the strikes in South Vietnam were in the Saigon region.

U.S. fighter-bombers made more than 270 strikes against North Vietnam Sunday and destroyed a MIG 21 on the ground at the Yen Bai Air Base 80 miles northwest of Hanoi, the U.S. Command announced.

The command also announced that a MIG shot down an Air Force F4 Phantom last Thursday about 25 miles north of Hanoi. The two crewmen were reported missing.

It was the 112th U.S. plane the command has reported as lost over North Vietnam since the resumption of full-scale bombing last April. A total of 122 American airmen have been killed or captured while on missions over the North, according to U.S. records.

State Senate May Discuss Death Penalty

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Senators indicated today they want to vote before going home on a bill reinstating the death penalty for certain murder cases.

With six members absent, the Senate Jurisprudence Committee voted 5-2 for the bill, but this was short of the seven-member majority required by new Senate rules.

The full Senate, however, voted 23-5 to put the matter on its calendar. Two days remain in the current special session of the Legislature.

Meanwhile, the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee indicated it would vote on a

Adjournment Of Congress Delayed By Major Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress went into overtime today with members itching to hit the hustings, facing the possibility of long debates over two of the biggest bills of the dying session.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd of West Virginia predicted lengthy debate on the compromise versions of the Social Security bill and one giving President Nixon extraordinary powers to cut spending.

Both houses had set their sights on adjourning last Saturday. But the Senate had to carry over business to today and the House is to return Tuesday after frantic but futile efforts to finish their business in sessions that lasted until early Sunday.

Conferees sent to the two chambers for action a compromise version of the Social Security bill, stripped of all welfare reform but expanding some benefits and increasing payroll taxes to pay for them.

The payroll-tax boost provided by the bill would mean that a person earning $10,800 in 1973 would have to pay $631.80 instead of the $468 maximum withheld this year.

Nine Die; Racism Blamed

CHICAGO (AP) — Sheriff Richard J. Elrod says eight members of a black terrorist gang charged in the recent murders of nine persons were apparently "roaming the countryside looking for someone to kill."

Authorities said apparently not all of the eight men charged had participated in all slayings.

Elrod told newsmen Sunday the nine white victims, including the members of two separate families, apparently were randomly selected by a Chicago street gang which he said called itself "De Mau Mau."

When asked about possible racial motivation, Elrod said, "I can see no other apparent motivation."

Six men are being held without bond, two others are still being sought.

Elrod, the Cook County sheriff, said the De Mau Mau organization apparently was founded several years ago by Vietnam veterans who had been dishonorably discharged.

The most widely reported of the murders was the killing of a retired insurance executive and three members of his family Aug. 4 in the wealthy Chicago suburb of Barrington Hills.

Paul Corbett, 67, his wife, Marion, 57, and his sister-in-law, Dorothy Derry, 60, were found shot through the backs of their heads. Corbett's stepdaughter, Barbara Boand, 22, was found dead a few feet away. She had been shot through the heart.

A month later, three members of a rural Monee family were found shot to death in their farmhouse.

The bill also would: —Raise from $1,680 to $2,100 the amount a retired person could earn without reducing Social Security benefits.

—Set a new $170-a-month minimum for persons who worked as long as 30 years in covered employment.

—Slightly increase benefits for men by extending to them an unintended advantage women enjoy under present law in calculating their old-age insurance payments.

—Raise widows' payments to 100 per cent of their husbands' basic entitlement.

—Extend Medicare to persons retired for disability as well as for age, and federalize programs for about 3 million aged, blind and disabled persons.

Conferees also agreed to put substantial limitations on sweeping powers which the House voted to give Nixon to enforce a $250-billion ceiling on government spending for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Under the compromise, Social Security and other retirement payments, veterans' benefits, judges' salaries and several other items would be exempt from cuts.

The bill would permit reductions up to 20 per cent in 50 categories of programs. It would allow funds for specific programs within a category to be deleted entirely.

Although administration spokesmen indicated dissatisfaction with the compromise, a presidential veto was seen as unlikely since the bill also contains a $15-billion increase in Treasury borrowing authority that is deemed essential.

McGovern Paying Fourth Visit To Lone Star State For Votes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. George McGovern today makes for his fourth post-convention campaign trip to Texas, still hoping to match Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 feat of winning the biggest of the 11 states of the Old Confederacy.

Despite polls showing President Nixon well ahead for the 26 Texas electoral votes, McGovern's strategists say that record black and Chicano registration, and an all-out effort by labor leaders in a flight back to the Democratic party may be able to turn the tide in the three weeks remaining before the Nov. 7 election.

During his 24-hour stay, McGovern plans to address the Texas Legislature in Austin, and speak to rallies in Houston and San Antonio today and in Fort Worth Tuesday.

Before leaving for Austin, the Democratic nominee scheduled an appearance with two labor unions supporting his candidacy, the United Auto Workers and the International Association of Machinists, to plug his proposal for converting defense and aerospace plants to civilian pursuits.

McGovern spent some time Sunday relaxing at the Beverly Hills home of actress Shirley MacLaine, one of his Hollywood supporters. He worked on a speech covering tax and economic policy that he plans to tape in Washington Tuesday for showing on a paid nationwide telecast Friday night.

McGovern-camp theorists were buoyed by the size and response of the crowds at a series of weekend rallies in San Francisco, San Diego and Los Angeles.

"We're very much heartened by the way the campaign is progressing the past few days," McGovern told a San Diego news conference Saturday afternoon adding that he thought more older people were turning out than had been earlier in the campaign. The California rallies were on the heels of what aides described as big turnouts in the Midwest.

McGovern's Texas trip will concentrate on seeking to convince Democrats who have been cool to his candidacy that they should support their party and its nominee. This argument is also being made by Texas Democratic senatorial nominee Barefoot Sanders, now given a good chance of unseating Republican Sen. John G. Tower.

A number of other state officials, including some running for election Nov. 7, are openly supporting McGovern. The man they would really like to see appear with him in person is former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

However, McGovern aides say Johnson's health still won't permit public campaign appearances although they expect the nominee to speak with the former president by phone.

Sen. George McGovern charged today that the Nixon administration has hired 50 people "to sabotage and corrupt our political process" but only 13 to develop peacetime jobs.

In a speech prepared for a meeting discussing how to convert defense and aerospace plants to peacetime pursuits, the Democratic presidential nominee said that only 13 of the 2.7 million federal employees are working on that problem.

But, comparing that to published reports alleging a widespread Republican effort to sabotage Democratic candidates, he said, "They hired 50 people to conduct some of the shabbiest undercover operations in the history of American politics."

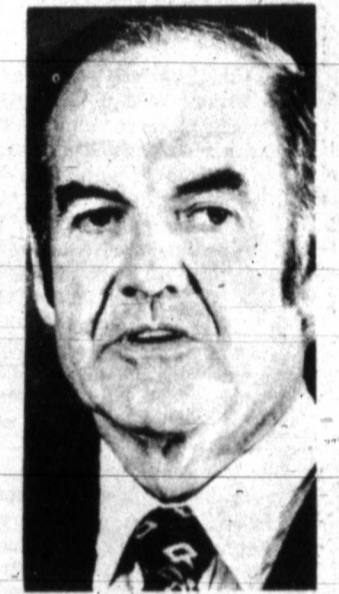

Noting a story in Sunday's Washington Post declaring that Dwight Chapin, a top White House aide, received information in that operation, McGovern declared, "The Republican team of saboteurs has a contact who is at Mr. Nixon's elbow every single day; someone who has constant access to the President."

"But aerospace workers who are concerned about job security don't have a contact anywhere in the White House, or even in the Executive Office Building next door," he added.

McGovern said "our government is so obsessed with political advantage and so obedient to the privileged few that it has no time to consider your concerns."

And he charged that "Republican scaremongers" are contending that his economic proposals will cost jobs when his conversion plan is designed to insure a job for every de-

Sen. George McGovern, defense and aerospace worker laid off because of military cutbacks.

Nixon Pledges More Money To Fight 'Drugs And Crime'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has pledged more money, more manpower and tough new laws "to maintain our momentum in the war against drugs and crime."

"We have fought the frightening trend of crime and anarchy to a standstill," Nixon said Sunday in a paid political broadcast, but "the job is far from finished."

In the second of a series of national radio broadcasts, Nixon said he would ask the next Congress "to require stiff mandatory sentences for heroin traffickers, and to amend other federal statutes so as to keep these peddlers of death off our streets after their arrest."

This, he said, would be coupled with continued "massive federal funding" to help improve local law enforcement and with a thorough revision of criminal laws.

At no time during the 15-minute address from his Camp David, Md., retreat did Nixon name his Democratic opponent, George McGovern. But he took swipes at past Democratic administrations, charging that they allowed an upswing in violence, crime and drug abuse.

In contrast, Nixon said, the two men who have served as his attorney general, John N. Mitchell and Richard G. Kleindienst, "have brought real backbone to our national law-enforcement effort."

"Neither has fallen for the naive theory that society is to blame for an individual's wrongdoing," Nixon said. He touched on the same point later in the speech when he pledged to "work unceasingly to halt the erosion of moral fiber in American life, and the denial of individual accountability for individual actions."

He said government has an essential role in determining the moral tone of America.

Local School Board To Meet Wednesday

The Pampa school board will not meet tonight.

The regular session was postponed until 7:30 p.m., Wednesday.

At that time 18 action items on the agenda will face the panel.

Prominent among these is a request by the student council of Pampa High School to discuss the dress code with the board members; a recommendation regarding telephone service within the school system with a view to saving money and a matter of policy regarding married students.

The latter is a "carry-over" item from the last meeting deferred for further study.

Abrams Takes Over As Army Chief Of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams finally takes over as Army chief of staff today after being cleared by the Senate of any responsibility in the unauthorized bombings of North Vietnam last winter.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird planned to swear in Abrams at a full honors ceremony in front of the Pentagon.

Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam for about four years, was nominated to become Army chief of staff nearly four months ago, but Senate action was delayed until its Armed Services Committee completed an investigation of the unauthorized bombings.

The committee last week rejected the retirement promotion of Air Force Maj. Gen. John D.

Lavelle, who was relieved as 7th Air Force commander last April for ordering the unauthorized bombing strikes.

But committee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said "no testimony put a hand on Gen. Abrams," who was Lavelle's superior in Southeast Asia. Abrams had testified he was unaware of any illegal raids.

The 58-year-old Abrams, who presided over the gradual withdrawal of most U.S. troops from Vietnam, assumes leadership of an Army slumped down to about 840,000.

The biggest job facing Abrams will be to complete the Army's transition to an all-volunteer force by next summer.

Senate OK's Superport Proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators approved a proposal today putting Texas in the race for the first deepwater superport for oil tankers although two asked why all the rush.

The vote was 16-12 but it must go back to the House because of an amendment.

In the House, Speaker Rayford Price said he thought the necessary two-thirds vote could be mustered for a second round of House action on competitive car and home insurance rates.

Lawmakers must wind up their business by midnight Tuesday.

Sen. Barbara Jordan of Houston said she had "grave reservations" about the superport bill, sponsored by Sen. A.R. Schwartz of Galveston. "What is the rush?" she asked.

"I've heard all about Texas being in a race with Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, but the race is not going to be won in the next 90 days," Miss Jordan added. "Isn't it a fact that you are rushing this for a real substantive reason?"

"No, it's not a fact," said Schwartz. "There is an unquestionable need for an offshore facility for petroleum."

Legislature Faces Possibility Of Another Special Session

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Only two more days remain in this special session of the legislature, and Speaker Rayford Price says he is "very doubtful" that a competitive rate insurance bill can be passed in that time.

Gov. Preston Smith has opened the session to consideration of several other topics, but the main reason he called the lawmakers to town last month was to pass an insurance bill.

The Senate approved such a bill last week, but opponents say its provisions for a maximum rate set by the State Insurance Board will prevent insurance companies from penalizing drivers with bad driving records and drivers in high-risk groups such as males under 25.

And if insurance companies cannot charge such drivers more, the rates for all other drivers will have to be higher, critics say.

The bill also provides for competitive rates on house and property insurance, and there is general agreement that competition would drive those rates below present rates, which are fixed by the insurance board.

But the effect of competitive rates on car insurance is less clear. Some experts say yes, some say no, and some say it will be about the same.

The session must end at midnight Tuesday.

The House killed its competitive rate bill Friday after it was amended to provide for the maximum rate that the Senate bill contains.

Sponsor of the House bill, Rep. Cavness of Austin, will ask the House for a four-fifths vote today to take up his bill again, substituted for the Senate bill.

Failing that, the bill cannot come up until Tuesday, the last day of the session.

Some House members who are opposed to Cavness' bill might vote to allow him to bring it up today in order not to rile the governor, who has been vague recently on whether he will call another special session if he's unhappy with the legislature's work on the bill.

A lot of lawmakers want to avoid another session because it will interfere with their reelection campaigns.

Car Window Hit By Shot

Answering a call that someone was shooting off lights, police found a window of an auto parked in the rear of a residence in the 400 block of Purviance St. had been broken by a shot.

A man living in the 400 block of Ward admitted to firing a gun in his back yard. He and his mother agreed to make restitution for the damage.

They were admonished by officers that it is illegal to discharge firearms inside the city.

Drug Suspected

Responding to a call regarding a fight at the Pizza Hut, officers found a bag of suspected marijuana and smoking paraphernalia when they stopped a car leaving the scene.

The driver was booked for failure to have a valid Texas drivers license, one passenger was booked for intoxication and another for instigating the fight. The latter was released when the victim declined to press charges.

Further charges are pending.

Prison Rodeo Ends 3rd Show

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Prison riders wound up their third performance of October here Sunday with Harry Southerland of Fort Worth still holding the lead in the individual championship cowboy standings.

Southerland took one first place and the second in Sunday's running of the 41st annual Texas Prison Rodeo. Two more performances are set for the next two Saturdays in October.

A capacity crowd of 25,000 saw Southerland, who won top honors in 1971, take first place in the bull riding contest and second in bareback riding.

His nearest competitor, Charles Brogdon of Kerrville, grabbed second place in bull riding and a newcomer, Robert Waldrep of Orange, was third.

Waldrep won the bareback riding event.

Rusty Huss of Fort Worth won the saddle bronc riding contest. Leonard Harris of Grand Saline was second followed by Bill Sheffield of Kilgore.

Property Tax Reform Demanded By Both Public And Politicians

By Associated Press

A great tidal wave of reform is about to break over the bedrock of America's local governments: the property tax. But don't count on the reform to wash away any of your taxes unless you're poor, old or live in a poor school district.

The demand for reform comes from every quarter: homeowners and renters, parents of school children and the assessed, state and federal officials, economists, tax experts, mayors, governors and even presidential candidates.

In accepting the Republican presidential nomination, President Nixon said, "One of the goals of our next administration is to reduce the property tax which is such an unfair and heavy burden for the poor, the elderly, the wage earner, the farmer and those on fixed incomes."

In August, Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern said, "As president, I would propose $15 billion to local school systems to assure substantial property tax relief. The weight of property taxes is crushing the average homeowner in every part of the nation."

All the current talk of reform was sparked on August 30, 1971. When the California Supreme Court ruled that it was unconstitutional to fund public schools primarily from the property tax raised in each local community because this discriminated against poor districts. Six courts in other states have made essentially the same ruling and one test case is to be heard during the current session of the U.S. Supreme Court.

But the taxpayer revolt has been growing for years. In 1970, a study by Educational Research Service found 46.8 per cent of the school bond issues submitted to referendum were rejected and 47.9 per cent of school budget or tax rate referenda were voted down. In the first six months of this year, another study found, voters defeated 53 per cent of state and local bond issues.

Why? Because the property tax has been rising so fast. One homeowner in the Chicago suburb of Des Plaines with a house worth $35,000 will pay property taxes of $694.64 this year on the assessed value of the house, $9,335. This up from an assessment of $8,179 and a tax of $57.58 in 1968 and an assessment of $8,967 and a tax of $453.21 in 1966.

An Atlanta man with a house assessed at $21,500, or 40 per cent of its true market value, has seen his property tax more than double in five years. It was $252 five years ago, $307 three years ago and $518 this year.

These real cases illustrate another of the problems stalking anybody who would reform the property tax: the wide variations, sometimes even in the same neighborhoods, in the assessments local governments set on property as the basis for a tax.

So now the cry is out for property tax reform.

A recent Fortune magazine survey found special tax study committees either proposed, at work or finished in 39 states. In California in 1966 and in New Jersey and New York this year, state study commissions urged the state to take over the cost of public education. A similar recommendation came this year from the President's Commission on School Finance.

A U.S. Senate committee held the first federal hearings ever on the property tax this year.

But all this is not likely to produce what the people burdened by the tax want most: a tax reduction.

To begin with, the cost of government isn't going down; it's going up. Even if economies are made, they are not likely to offset the effects of inflation and of increased demand for public services to serve a growing population.

So the question of property tax relief comes down to who will pay more and will pay less. Many of the proposals labeled "relief" are, whatever their intent, just proposals to shift property taxes to less unpopular sales and income taxes.

One difficulty a taxpayer faces in learning about this is that there are few valid studies of just what the impact of any of the proposed reforms would be on his total tax bill. Even the experts often disagree.

Five broad proposals that might lower your property taxes are being discussed. Here is a rundown with an assessment of what experts say about whether you would really pay less in taxes than before.

1. FEDERAL AID

This could come in either of two forms: increased benefits for the low-income elderly or all low-income persons.

Relief for the poor or the elderly is going to increase everyone else's tax at some level.

If all or a major portion of school property taxes are replaced by a value-added tax or more of existing federal taxes, there are two theories about what that would do to your total tax bill. And not even the experts agree.

One group of economists believes that middle-income people would get a slight tax break and the wealthy would be hit much harder. Another group believes that middle-income people would experience a tax increase and the wealthy would get a sharp tax reduction. The basis of the disagreement is whether people who make more pay more property tax. And no one has yet been able to prove whether they do or don't.

2. STATE REFORM OF SCHOOL TAXES

This could take several forms. The most widely suggested is a statewide property tax for schools. This would reduce the tax on most low- and middle-income homeowners and increase it on most wealthy homeowners.

The state also could combine tax districts so each had roughly the same amount of property tax. This might have much the same impact as a statewide property tax.

Or the state could replace local school property taxes with state income tax or sales tax increases.

The state could adopt a complex system known as "power equalizing" under which each district could still set its own property tax rate for schools but some wealthy districts would be required to contribute some of their revenue to poorer districts.

3. RELIEF FOR THE POOR OR ELDERLY

There are many ways this could be done. Under a plan called "recapture" all the taxes would eventually be paid, but not until the homeowner died or sold his property. In effect, he or his estate would owe the government some part of his taxes as the years pass.

Under the fastest growing plan, now in effect in 15 states including seven which adopted it within the past 21 months taxes for the poor or elderly go down even as others pay more. This plan is known as the "circuit breaker." In Wisconsin in 1968, 16,809 people who qualified under one segment of the program had their average property tax bill reduced from $288 to $188. These people had an average adjusted household income of $1,750. The idea behind the "circuit breaker" is that once the property tax reaches a certain percentage of family income, the hardpressed taxpayer gets relief.

4. REFORM IN ASSESSMENTS

Tax experts say this might bring the greatest relief to the average taxpayer, but this would have to vary from community to community.

A study in Boston in 1962 found that illegal variations in assessments resulted on the average in a taxpayer in poor black Roxbury paying over 50 per cent more, and a taxpayer in white, working class Charlestown paying 30 per cent more in property taxes than a taxpayer in wealthy, white West Roxbury in a situation where they all should have been paying the same tax.

5. TAX THE LAND, NOT THE BUILDING

Under this proposal, the tax falls entirely on land or more heavily on the land and less on the building than it does now. This is known as the "site value tax" or a modification of it. When the property tax was increased on land and reduced on buildings in the Detroit suburb of Southfield Mich., in 1963, the average tax bill of the homeowner was reduced by 22 per cent, while the tax bills of those with vacant or underdeveloped land rose.

While the property tax is different in each of the 15,000 jurisdictions where it is levied, it is the most hated tax in America. A survey done last March by the federal Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations found that 45 per cent of the people think it is the most unfair tax, compared with 19 per cent who chose the federal income tax for that distinction, 13 per cent who chose the state income tax, 13 per cent who chose the state sales tax and 10 per cent who didn't know.

But it is the most visible tax, and some say that is why it is hated when it should be liked. You write a check for every penny, not a cent is deducted from your pay. It's not like the sales tax which hits you a few pennies at a time. You know your local government gets the money. You know the services your town provides, but can you say exactly what the sales or income tax buys for you?

And these describe attributes of a very responsive tax. You know what you pay, you know what you get and in most cases you can vote yes or no on it.

Weekend Violent Deaths In Texas Stand At 20

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two traffic accidents that took seven lives and a spectacular plane crash into the Pecos River that killed two other persons highlighted Texas violence over the weekend.

The Departments of Public Safety said the small aircraft was on a flight to El Paso from San Antonio with three occupants aboard.

The two persons killed were identified as Floyd Gene Mills, 50, of El Paso, and Georgia Chaffer Mills of San Antonio. Mrs. Mills' husband, John Floyd Mills, 26, of San Antonio was rescued when his seat, to which he was strapped, came to the surface as the plane sank. The river at the point of the crash was about 200 feet deep because it forms a small canyon near the Amistad Lake.

The Associated Press began its regular weekend violent death count at 6 p.m. Friday and included deaths that occurred before midnight Sunday. The toll stood at 20 early today, including 11 traffic fatalities, four shooting deaths, two deaths by explosion, two deaths in the plane crash and one stabbing death.

Four persons were killed in a traffic accident at Lipscomb Saturday. They were identified as Ray Belt Smith, 56; Jesus Maria Gallegos, 53; Beatrice C. Smith, 59; and Kerri Contreras, age unknown. All were from Higgins.

The Department of Public Safety said they died when their car rolled over on Texas Highway 305.

In another multiple death accident Saturday, three persons died in a pickup-car collision three miles east of Roby on U.S. Highway 180.

Police identified them as James Arthur Strange, 60; Jerry Lee Wright, 14; and Nettie H. Jackson, 57. Police said the three victims were in a car following another in which the boy's parents were riding.

In San Antonio police said that a 27-year-old man, Martin Fonseca, was stabbed and shot to death late Saturday in front of his home. Police said the slaying was apparently the outgrowth of an earlier argument with several other men.

In Alpine a 66-year-old woman, Mrs. Mary Jo Carney, died in a one-car accident in the outskirts of the city Sunday.

In Dallas police reported that a 34-year-old woman, identified as Dorothy Rose, was stabbed to death Sunday in the southeast section of the city.

Among the first deaths of the weekend were those of James Charles Brown and Johnny Glen Davis of Dallas.

Brown was shot by police officers who were chasing him Friday night after he ran away when the officers approached him.

A police spokesman said that Brown was wanted in connection with the investigation of two burglaries.

Davis was shot early Saturday morning when he became involved in an argument with two other men at a Dallas residence. Police were seeking the two other men.

In Irving, a 10-year-old boy, Ricky Crawford, was killed early Saturday morning in a two-car collision on highway 114.

Higgins Man Charged In 4 Deaths

LIPSCOMB — Charlie "Junior" Ashley, 43, Higgins, has been charged with homicide with a motor vehicle following the deaths of four persons in an accident some three miles north here Saturday afternoon.

Full details are not known at this time but a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety said there was evidence of some contact between a vehicle driven south on Texas Highway 305 and one driven by Ray Belt Smith in the same direction.

The Smith car rolled over throwing all four occupants clear. Three of them were declared dead at the scene and the fourth was dead on arrival at the hospital in Canadian.

They were Smith, 56, his wife, Beatrice, 59, of Amarillo; Mrs. Kerri Lee Contreras, 57, and Jesus Maria Gallegos, 53, of Lipscomb.

Ashley is in Lipscomb County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Statue Cleaning

The exterior of the Statue of Liberty is never cleaned because the patina, a protective verdigris resulting from the oxidation of the statue's copper sheathing, would be removed. The sheets are about as thick as a silver dollar.

HERE ARE THE FACTS, WE FEEL EVERYONE IS ENTITLED TO KNOW:

Purcell, Price Swap Charges In Area Visits

By DAN COLEMAN

Paired 13th Congressional District foes Graham Purcell, a Democrat, and Bob Price, a Republican, campaigning face-to-face Thursday, exchanged direct challenges in Wichita Falls and in Childress.

The heated rhetoric and forceful campaigning lent credence to the Associated Press characterization of the Purcell-Price match-up as the most heated and interesting congressional race in Texas history.

Purcell Thursday challenged Price "to appear jointly with me under any circumstances to discuss the issues of this campaign publicly and to compare voting records."

After both traveled during the afternoon from Wichita Falls to Childress for the Old Settlers Week celebration, Price challenged Purcell to "denounce the candidacy of George McGovern and go on record in support of the re-election of the President. I ask him to take a firm policy stand in public against the man who is far to the left of the best interests of this district, our state, our nation."

Each man declined to accept, or more accurately, even to recognize the exhortation of his opponent.

Purcell did, however, perhaps damn with faint praise the presidential candidacy of McGovern when asked about Price's statement. "I will vote for McGovern. I do not favor his platform or position, but I will vote for him. If I do not it will endanger my position on my committees," Purcell said.

Purcell and Price each have at stake committee positions and seniority. The House agriculture and grains subcommittee, a panel with obvious importance for the grain-rich Panhandle through Wichita Falls 13th District.

Dear Abby

A nurse by any other name is still a nurse

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Charles Scribner's Sons, N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a registered nurse, and my pet peeve is one that is shared by many in my profession. It is being called "NURSE."

We all wear name pins. Why can't people take the time and trouble to look at them and call us "Miss Jones" or "Mrs. Smith"? A nurse would never call a patient, "Patient," or a visitor, "Visitor."

Please print this. It might penetrate. Thank you.

IRKED IN N. J.

DEAR IRKED: I found it difficult to believe that the majority of nurses shared your feeling, so I conducted a minipoll. Here are the results:

The Cleveland Clinic, Cleveland:

"We questioned approximately 300 nurses, and

"[a] More than 90 per cent were 'not irked' by being called nurse. While they all wear name badges, many patients are not wearing their glasses, others are preoccupied with their illnesses, and some never even notice the name badge.

"[b] Virtually all of our nurses would be 'irked' by being called by her first name unless it was by a patient who happened to be a friend.

"[c] The nurses would prefer not to be called 'Miss or Mrs.'"

"[d] Our conclusion is that nurses are proud of being called nurse, a title which designates a high level of achievement and respect."

Century City Hospital, Los Angeles, Cal.:

"We asked 44 nurses how they felt about being called 'nurse,' only three said they didn't like it, two said they preferred to be called 'Miss or Mrs. So and So'—but NOT 'Miss' or 'Mrs.' unless their last names were included. One said, 'I don't object to being called 'Nurse' if it is said gently, but when someone shouts 'NURSE' as the he's a sergeant commanding a buck private, I bristle.'"

Mount Sinai Hospital, Minneapolis:

"Not one nurse said she would be irked if she were addressed as 'Nurse.' It is preferable to 'Blondie,' 'Red,' 'Girly,' or 'Honey.'"

"We regard nursing as a noble profession, and since it required a great deal of time and effort to attain that title, it's inconceivable that a nurse would be irked when addressed as 'Nurse.'"

Saint John's Hospital, Santa Monica, Cal.:

"Only one nurse polled was 'irked' when someone called her 'Nurse.' The consensus was that 'Miss' or 'Mrs.' was a close runner-up for irritating nurses. Almost all the nurses preferred to be addressed by their names, [all wear name pins on their uniforms], but a surprising number of patients and visitors do not seem to notice them.

"Most expressed great surprise that any nurse would be irked at being called 'Nurse.' Of course, since St. John's has many nuns who are also nurses, one would be more apt to address a nursing sister as 'Sister' than 'Nurse.' They answer to both cheerfully."

Abbott Hospital, Minneapolis:

"Sixty five nurses were polled, 31 of whom stated that they did not like to be called 'Nurse.' They preferred to be addressed by their names, 'Miss or Mrs.' which is the reason their names are worn on their uniforms.

"Thirty-four of the Abbott Hospital nurses said they had no objections whatsoever to being called 'Nurse.'"

Oswald: "Jeff Rubens of New York has been a great bridge theorist for many years. He finally showed his ability as a player when his team won the Spingold Cup this year so that his new book, 'The Secrets of Winning Bridge,' is rather timely."

Jim: "He is a duplicate player rather than a rubber bridge player. As would be expected, his section on duplicate is very good. His chapters on rubber bridge are not up to that standard."

Oswald: "East's three-club bid is a typical non-vulnerable match point preempt. Jeff recommends South's jump to four spades, as do we. You can't play your partner for a blank hand in these situations."

Jim: "Jeff neither recommends nor disapproves of West's five-club bid. This time it works well as North bids a doubtful five spades."

Oswald: "The important bit of advice comes next. Rubens points out that West expects to beat five spades, but there is no point in a double. If West does beat five spades he is sure of a mighty good score. A double would

Service League To Attend Vision Course

Members of the Pampa Junior Service League will attend a Refresher Course in Pre-school Vision Screening Tuesday, Oct. 17, conducted by Miss Joanne Allen, Program Director with Texas Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Houston, Texas. The session will be held from 11-3 at the First Christian Church, 1633 North Nelson.

Pre-school Vision Screening is a project co-sponsored by the Texas Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the Pampa Junior Service League in an effort to locate pre-school age children with visual problems before they enter the first grade.

Later in the year, simple vision tests, administered by these trained volunteers, will be given to pre-school age children using the Snellen "E" chart. No diagnostic techniques will be used and the volunteers do not attempt to make a diagnosis. When a child is unable to pass the tests, a letter is sent to the parents recommending that the child be taken for a complete professional eye examination.

According to the Texas Society, a shocking number of children face partial blindness if their defective vision is not detected early. Today experts know that amblyopia or "lazy eye blindness" is the leading cause of partial blindness in the pre-school children. However, it is almost 100 per cent preventable. Tragically, because so few parents are aware of the danger, we are still finding only a small fraction of these children in time to save their sight.

Pre-school Vision Screening Programs are conducted throughout the State by the Texas Society for the Prevention of Blindness and volunteer groups such as the Pampa Junior Service League.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17

Your birthday today: Understanding takes on direct, perhaps harsh outlines and many changes. At least you know where you are. Today's natives prefer to work alone, knowing or hoping that it will long survive them, as is often the case.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Your first concern the way your friends get tangled in your affairs, perhaps taking chances for you that you wouldn't take.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: An early start gets you on the crest of the wave and you can roll through the day in good morale, with something to show for your efforts.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Education is the keyword for today's achievement. New information is needed, can be gathered with reasonable success.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: An extra burden of details and some lapses in cooperation shouldn't be allowed to upset you. Be satisfied to do less than planned.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Your charm attracts more assistance than usual—if you really want it. Covering for friends works only for a short time.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Bright ideas need developing. Personal collaboration comes more smoothly; perhaps with unfamiliar people, different theories.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Making yourself clear to others without pressure is an exercise in communication skills. Something you did lately will pay off now.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Dealing with authority, coping with questions related to older people turns out more constructive than has been customary lately.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Brief journeys, visits with friends and relatives provide satisfactory results, agreement for future actions.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Be willing to deal with older people; try again for solutions of chronic problems. Important people are open to suggestions.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: To get the necessary cooperation, you must adjust your approach, accept differences.

If you want to roast almonds after blanching, place the nuts one deep in a shallow baking pan. Heat the nuts in a 375-degree oven until lightly brown—this may take as long as 20 minutes. Stir the nuts a couple of times during the roasting to prevent scorching.

Does your ground beef supply for burgers disappear in face of brisk summer demand? A stock of ground beef patties in the freezer saves extra trips to the store. For convenience in meeting individual and varying demands, shape ground beef in patties and securely wrap each separately in foil or freezer film. Or place two layers of waxed paper or foil between each patty (for easy separation), place in transparent freezer bag, seal and freeze. Burgers can be cooked from the frozen state; just place on broiler rack a bit further from the heat and allow additional time.

R TAKING NON-PRESCRIPTION DRUGS?

SEE YOUR PHARMACIST

This is the theme that all pharmacists around the entire country will be stressing this week. Why is it important? Because, many drugs that do not require a doctor's prescription can be dangerous and your pharmacist is qualified to advise and counsel you in the use of such over the counter drugs.

Of course, self-medication is only indicated with simple ailments and should never be attempted when there is the possibility of something more serious. We will never hesitate to recommend that you consult your doctor if we feel that you may be doing yourself a disservice by continuing with a non-prescription drug.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Nixon Widens Electoral Lead

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — In NEA's second 1972 electoral count survey President Nixon's indicated lead over Sen. George McGovern is 489 votes to 27, with 270 needed for election. The margin in the first survey last month was 462 to 27.

The President's gain comes from picking up part of the 49 votes listed last time as doubtful. The latter category is reduced to 22 in the newest nationwide sampling.

The judgments are arrived at by telephone checking, coast to coast, with knowledgeable and reliable political figures and analysts.

While Nixon is this time awarded Wisconsin, Missouri and Rhode Island from the doubtful list, giving him a present edge in 44 states, McGovern remains static with just three and the District of Columbia, Minnesota, Connecticut and Hawaii are rated doubtful, though it can be argued that Nixon has a borderline margin in all.

The Nixon increase is indicated despite the fact that national polls show a modest narrowing of the huge gap between himself and McGovern. Furthermore, NEA's survey brought forth frequent comment in various states that McGovern's status had shown improvement. State-level efforts in his behalf seem in many places to be better organized.

Nevertheless, these changes were never described as either substantial or massive. "Modest but insignificant" was the word from one analyst in a large eastern state. Next door to it, a Democratic politician spoke of party regulars' earlier hostility to McGovern and added:

"Now they're at least indifferent, and that's an improvement."

What it comes down to, generally, is that the improvement is expressed in terms of smoothing out relations between young McGovern forces and the regulars, helping to rack up heavy registration totals presumed to benefit McGovern, getting under way with hordes of young volunteers on the door-to-door foot canvassing that served Mc-

Worry Clinic

By—GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Like Marjorie, I wrote to my Illinois Senator Dirksen when he was still alive. And he was guilty of the same fallacy of "knowing to Sacred Cows" that Sen. Birch Bayh illustrates. Litigants are not to be "judges in their own feuds."

Case V-519: Marjorie M., aged 38, has cancer.

"Dr. Crane," she phoned, "I have had all the surgery. X-ray and cobalt the doctors dare give me."

"But still the tumors are growing and my liver is enlarging."

"So I have been told to put my house in order, for my life expectancy is only a few more months."

"When I heard about Dr. Andrew C. Ivy's new horse blood hormone for treating cancer, I wished to give it a try."

"Then my doctors, relying on the Food and Drug Administration's veto of this Carcalon, told me it was quackery and worthless!"

"But, you are also a member of the AMA and you wrote that hundreds of terminal cancer victims like me have been living on Carcalon for many years, with their tumors in check or entirely eliminated."

"So I contacted Sen. Birch Bayh, urging him to compel the FDA to test Carcalon and make it available to us dying cancer patients."

"Sen. Bayh answered me with a nice personal note, saying he had asked the FDA for advice but it said Carcalon was valueless and had been amply tested but found worthless."

"It called Carcalon a total

Govern well in primaries.

Here and there, too, there are credible reports that some Democratic defectors may be returning to the party fold. National polls tend to substantiate this.

Most reports suggest it is the effect of the party's pull, of old Democratic voting habit reasserting itself as balloting time nears. The stunning aspect of that evidence is that McGovern seems to be having no magnetic effect at all—that personally he is still perceived in negative ways.

To be as harsh about it as many voters and politicians are, McGovern is again and again described as indecisive, incompetent and un-presidential.

In most instances, where in-state sources reported "improvement" in McGovern's status, they wound up by saying it might well come to naught unless the candidate himself "catches fire nationally."

With less than a month to go and the negative view of him said by many sources to be set in concrete, it is difficult to see where McGovern can find the igniting spark even his ardent partisans say he needs. The NEA survey ticked off plenty of doubts, but not a single instance of a claim that McGovern truly has "taken off" on a critical rise.

Even the states given to McGovern in this report, Massachusetts, West Virginia and South Dakota, have been shaky for him.

Still, the news for him is not all black. Veteran observers feel he probably will firm up his hold on Massachusetts and West Virginia, could well take doubtful Connecticut, Minnesota and Hawaii, and may even grab a few key states away from presently leading Nixon. These could include Maryland, Wisconsin, Missouri, and California, most special of all with its great bag of 45 electoral votes.

The California story is puzzling. Both the polls and the best analysts there say Nixon is leading today, but by a much smaller margin than in such places as Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, and even New York and Michigan (these two won by Humphrey in 1968).

Since the record from 1948 on shows persuasively that the seven largest northern industrial states tend to vote in surprising conformity with each other in presidential elections, the question this time is why should California be different — if in fact it is.

There could be misreadings there, or in all the other big states. It could also be that McGovern is getting particular benefit in California from the fact that in the spring he campaigned there longer.

This would add, of course, to his recognition. Yet, knowing him better has hurt him in most places, so this seems contradictory. The fuller answer may lie somewhere in the mix of heavy joblessness, a higher youth quotient and a smaller proportion of the ethnic-Catholic voters found widely this year to be turned off from McGovern.

Even if he picked up all the additional states here suggested, however, they would lift McGovern's total only to 127 and leave him 143 votes short of election.

DPS Has Special ID Procedure

AUSTIN — Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director, Texas Department of Public Safety reported that almost 7,000 Texans have obtained special personal identification cards since the DPS began issuing them Sept. 1, 1971.

The cards, which were authorized by the 62nd Texas Legislature, are laminated and contain a color photograph of the holder. They are the same size as a Texas drivers license.

Information appearing on the cards includes the holder's date of birth, height, sex, and eye color. Each card has a special identification number issued by DPS.

"These cards are especially valuable to those persons who do not hold a Texas drivers license, but who need some sort of official card to help establish their identity. Applicants have included the elderly, persons too young to obtain drivers licenses, and blind and handicapped persons. All Texans are eligible, however," Speir said.

In order to obtain a personal identification card, the applicant must appear at a DPS drivers license field office, execute a special application form, present a birth certificate or other documentary evidence of identity and date of birth, be fingerprinted and pay a statutory fee of $5.00.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, October 16, the 290th day of 1972. There are 76 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1964, Communist China announced it had tested its first nuclear bomb, making it the world's fifth atomic power.

On this date—

In 1973, Queen Marie Antoinette of France was executed by guillotine.

In 1970, the U.S. Congress established the District of Columbia as the permanent seat of the U.S. government.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte landed as an exile on the Island of St. Helena.

In 1840, New Zealand became a British colony.

In 1859, the Kansas abolitionist, John Brown, staged a raid on Harper's Ferry, Va.

In 1970, Anwar Sadat became president of Egypt, succeeding the late Gamal Abdal Nasser.

Ten years ago: It was announced that Soviet Premier Khrushchev would visit the United States and a meeting with President John F. Kennedy appeared likely.

Five years ago: There were demonstrations across the United States to protest the Vietnam war.

One year ago: There were elaborate ceremonies in Athens, to welcome a visitor of Greek descent, U.S. Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Today's birthdays: Actress Angela Lansbury is 47. Former Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion is 86.

Document Bares Mao Purge Policy

By RAY CROMLEY
Mao Tse-tung has been circulating a most curious document accusing Mao himself of betraying his friends and loyal associates.

The paper reportedly was written by Lin Li-kuo, son of Lin Piao who was Mao's designated heir until deposed last year. It is especially interesting because it critically analyzes Mao's techniques in consolidating his power within the Chinese Communist party, details of which I learned some 27 years ago in the caves of Yenan from sources high in Mao's own hierarchy.

Lin Piao had been feverently loyal to Mao for decades. In the upper echelons of the party almost every leading Chinese Communist had broken with Mao at one time or another—Chou En-lai, Chu Teh, Peng He-huai, Liu Shao-chi, and on and on and on. But not Lin Piao.

During the Long March, Mao's initial rise to power was heavily dependent on Lin Piao's military columns. In the political intrigues in Yenan in the Japanese war years, Mao's deepening control of the party was possible in large measure because of Lin's backing.

When Mao was threatened with loss of control of the party some years back, he called in Lin Piao to take over the army to insure its loyalty. In these circumstances, assuming the document is genuine, as Mao himself claims, and making due allowances for exaggeration, what Lin Piao has to say through his son is indeed worth reading.

Businessmen Learning

One of the most often voiced complaints of businessmen (and a valid one, we might add) is that they are forced to act as unpaid tax collectors for the government in the collection of such tributes, for instance, as income taxes (federal, state and, in many cases, city), Social Security "contributions," and sales taxes.

The collection of, accounting for, and deposit of such funds, along with the complex reports and other paperwork the various levels of government require, is an enormously expensive and time-consuming process. Complaining businessmen have tried to explain, requiring the hiring of additional personnel and rising overhead costs.

These artificially created costs, those complaining have pointed out, are particularly burdensome to small businesses and, in many cases, have been the determining factor leading to failure and bankruptcy.

Businessmen reasoning thusly, certainly have a point. Moreover, to force businessmen into the role of unpaid tax collector is nothing less than uncompensated involuntary servitude.

Considering all of this, and if it is true, as often charged, that businessmen are universally motivated by gross greed, one would think that, if given a chance to vote on the question, they would vote with one voice in favor of the government paying them to be tax collectors.

Happily, that was not the case in a recent opinion poll conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, Inc., which boasts "the largest individual membership of any business organization in the United States."

In view of the bookkeeping costs to small businesses of collecting, reporting and depositing taxes, NFIBI members were asked, "would you be in favor of government compensation for this cost?"

The response, when all the votes were in and counted, was: 49 per cent opposed, 46 per cent in favor, and five per cent undecided.

One reason the proposal failed to carry, the NFIBI advises in its September newsletter, was trenchantly stated by one member business owner who, obviously, had been doing some real thinking. Said he:

"The cost of the red tape and paperwork of being reimbursed by the government, added to the cost of one more bureau (please don't tell me they wouldn't add one more bureau!), well, just let me pay the cost. It's cheaper."

Slowly, but surely, the realization is growing that before government can GIVE, it must first TAKE and that, to ask the government to do ANYTHING, is only asking for more trouble.

Businessmen Learning

Here are selected paraphrased excerpts:

Instability prevails in the ranks of the ruling clique. The struggle for personal power and interests and the contest of wits has become sharp.

Mao splits contradictions and creates contradictions to obtain his objective of divide-and-rule within the party, destroying his opponents by one.

He makes use of this person to hit at that person at one time, and makes use of that person to hit at that person at another. He incites cadres to struggle against cadres, army units to struggle against army units, party members to struggle against party members.

He talks sweetly to those he wishes to pull over, but charges them with unwarranted offenses the next day, utterly destroying them. A person can be his guest one day, but his prisoner the next.

Reviewing the history of the past few decades, has there been anyone whose position he boosted, but who has not been eventually sentenced to political death?

Has there been a single political force which managed to stay in the same boat with him all the way?

Past secretaries of his either committed suicide or were under custody—his close-comrades-in-arms and confidants were also sent to jail. His own son became a lunatic under his pressure.

He is extremely skeptical and a sadist. His philosophy of purging people is thoroughness; once he purges someone he does not stop until the person is thoroughly destroyed. Once he abuses a person he does so to the end, shifting all the blame for bad deeds onto that person.

In his seclusion and seldom comes out of his abode. His movements are mysterious and his security measures tight.

What is Mao's purpose in circulating a document so critical of himself? The answer may lie in Peking's developing relationship with Moscow and Washington.

Wealth Out Of Nothing

In an attempt to stimulate the economy, the political bureaucracy takes money by taxation or inflation from one segment of the population and transfers it to another segment of the population. Newspapers and television then report a pickup of business so far as the recipient group is concerned. The gain can be proved statistically because at the end of the year it will be shown that more dollars entered the economy. Besides that, the gain will be obvious since in the recipient area more people will be traveling to work in that vicinity also you will see houses being built to accommodate the people who have been attracted to the area where the taxed or inflated dollars are being spent. People go where the action is.

Sometimes the transfer of money is geographical as when a defense plant is closed in Texas and another is opened in California or vice versa. Sometimes the transfer of money is not geographical at all, but is accomplished by taking from one category of the population in order to reward some other classification. For example, inflation reduces the buying power of aged persons and other fixed-income types while at the same time giving able-bodied workers a feeling of affluence by lining their billfolds with those same reduced-value dollars. When the older people begin to feel the pinch, the politician cleverly reverses the direction and raises their Social Security. They are grateful.

This is the Keynesian economics that Presidents and professors talk about. It is based on the notion that a government can create wealth out of nothing, or—more precisely—can increase the amount of wealth without resorting to the crass formality of producing any material goods or marketable service. This is like the Japanese basketball coach who increased the height of his players by the simple expedient of using a two-foot yardstick. The strange part of the whole process is that sports-conscious Americans would laugh at the coach, but they take their Keynesian politicians seriously. Why?

He lives in seclusion and seldom comes out of his abode. His movements are mysterious and his security measures tight.

What is Mao's purpose in circulating a document so critical of himself? The answer may lie in Peking's developing relationship with Moscow and Washington.

Question Box

QUESTION: Recently there have been glowing reports of the success of Amtrak, the government's corporation it set up to handle passenger trains. Trains now are running on time and are providing better service. Doesn't this prove the government can do a better job of serving the public than private enterprise?

ANSWER: By no means. The only thing that has been proved so far by Amtrak is that an operator who can have fewer controls from on high and who doesn't have to pay its own way can do better—superficially.

In the first place, Amtrak arbitrarily cut off a great many unprofitable trains. The railroads were unable to discontinue trains without approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission and (with intrastate trains) of state commissions. Amtrak has operated only on main routes where there is a better chance of getting patronage. Recently it announced plans to discontinue other trains, which the railroads would not have been permitted to do without costly and time-consuming hearings.

In the second place, Amtrak, rather than being expected to pay its way, is operating with heavy subsidies provided from tax funds by Congress. This is despite the fact Amtrak also can set its own rates.

An additional spur to interstate train traffic was given by the recent plane skyjacking incidents. Some persons have expressed fears of skyjacking and have returned to use of ground transportation, including Amtrak's trains.

We suspect nearly anyone could give a glowing report under the circumstances under which Amtrak operates. How long taxpayers will be willing to subsidize the service remains to be seen.

BRUCE BLOSSAT As for Miscues, Dig That Shriver

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WITH THE SHRIVER CAMPAIGN (NEA) — In Philadelphia, U.S. Rep. William Barrett introduced R. Sargent Shriver at a street rally as "The most handsome vice-presidential candidate we've ever had."

It was an agreeably irrelevant comment, yet it said a lot about the kind of campaign Sen. George McGovern's running mate has been carrying on.

The effervescent, fast-talking Shriver does provide some of the zest we reporters say has been missing from this campaign. The trouble is, most of his utterances are not taken seriously because he's so outrageously careless.

Over a span of years, he misused the name of a famous song gave the wrong date for McGovern's big Vietnam speech, misstated the number of men under arms in World War II by three million, garbled his own age at an earlier time, misquoted the Declaration of Independence and the Star-Spangled Banner.

So when he guns out "facts" about the alleged sins of the Nixon administration and other matters, it registers as great good fun but doesn't seem to have much to do with governing the United States.

He comes across, then, mostly as a showman, something like a movie matinee idol dashing about trying to promote one of his films by joshing with the customers.

Don't imagine, though, that the folks don't enjoy the fun. Talking on a Philadelphia street to a group of blacks, Shriver as usual was rattling off food and other price increases to hammer home the perils of continuing inflation. He shouted:

"Why, chittins have gone up 15 per cent. And Nixon is taking pig's feet away from us."

A puzzled reporter heading for the press bus asked another: "What are pig's feet now? Fifty cents a toe?"

Wherever he is, Shriver plunges on. At a ministerial alliance in a Baltimore church, he said:

"Funeral expenses are up. You can't afford to die under Nixon. Diapers are up 18 per cent. You can't afford to be born under Nixon."

In Shriver's book, President Nixon is to blame for everything bad that has happened anywhere in the world in the past four years — but mostly for "blowing things up in Vietnam instead of building up Baltimore," or for taking all the tax money down to Washington and sending it overseas instead of to places like Philadelphia.

Shriver says that under the President, unemployment has doubled, welfare roles and costs have doubled. Maybe, but with so much error in his daily spiel, who can be sure? It would take the General Accounting Office six months to run an accuracy test on Shriver's gunned-out statistics.

Thus it all comes back to simple good fun. Reporters keep track of the number of times he says "thank you" when he's introduced. When I left the entourage, the record was 15. They replay tapes of his more outrageous — and hence hilarious — comments.

There's no doubt, of course, that his heart is in the right place. In his rare calm moods, as at a big Pittsburgh rally, he begins to make real points. And there's no doubt, either, that this Kennedy brother-in-law is a genuine charmer. At a Philadelphia garment factory, he had the working girls in a dither of shouting, giggling and giggling. They loved him.

But the question lingers: "Is this a real run for high office?"

Your Health Diabetics Should Limit All Sweets

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I can understand that in the case of a diabetic, all sweet stuff is taboo. Yet honey is on that list also, but it is the natural sweetener. Why isn't it allowed?

Dear Reader—Not all doctors restrict all sweets for diabetics although most doctors prefer that the carbohydrates be in less concentrated form, namely in vegetables or natural fruits. The reason for this is to keep the sweets from being absorbed too quickly into the blood and causing a sharp rise in the level of the blood sugar. Recent recommendations from the diabetic society have liberalized the amount of carbohydrates that diabetics can use while restricting the amount of fats, particularly saturated or animal fats in an effort to decrease the possible influence of the diet in diabetics on causing the high incidence of heart disease that diabetics often have.

Now the common table sugar that people use is really a double sugar and when it is absorbed through the digestive tract, it is split into two simple sugars, one of these is called glucose, the other is readily converted to glucose which is the form of sugar that the body uses for energy. Incidentally, most of the foods, including proteins and fat, are converted to the glucose sugar by the body to be burned by the body for energy.

It's true that honey is a natural sweetener and its carbohydrates are composed of a single sugar which are directly absorbed into the bloodstream where they are converted to glucose the same as ordinary sugar and have the same effects in that regard. Thus as far as raising the blood sugar level is concerned, in the diabetic, both normal sugar and honey will cause this.

Don't be confused about the term "natural sweetener." Sugar is a natural sweetener, it is a natural concentrated extract from beets and sugar cane. Honey is a natural sweetener extracted from flowers by the action of bees. Whether bees or man do the extracting from plants, both products are natural sweeteners, and neither one in large amounts is advisable for individuals required to restrict their sweet intake.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing regarding your article on eggs versus high cholesterol (which I have) and what to do with the egg yolks.

I read an article in a movie magazine that some of the beauticians use the egg yolks like a mud pack for the face. I tried it and it really works.

Dear Reader—Thank you for your suggestion. Using egg yolks on the face won't affect the cholesterol intake of the diet and your suggestion that this might be one use for egg yolks for people who are trying to avoid them is appreciated. I can't speak for how effective they are as a mud pack but it surely wouldn't harm anyone who wants to try it.

Inside Washington

Often Tarr'd By Same
Brush He Tars Others
By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — If ever there was a graphic illustration of the kettle calling the pot black, it is Sen. McGovern's wailing complaints about the widespread disbelief in his credibility and dependability.

Everyone is at fault but himself—the press (invariable targets of sorehead politicians and losing candidates); the failure of the public to grasp and appreciate his "real character and veracity" (as he unctuously told a meeting of editors in Washington); unnamed business and other hostile interests; etc., etc.

With characteristic self-righteousness and disdainful smugness, the South Dakota radical seems totally oblivious of the fact that there is a glaring credibility gap in his very complaints.

While on one hand he is viciously and unsparingly excoriating and denigrating the Nixon administration, on the other he is indignantly berating those who question his integrity and reliability. To McGovern, reviling the opposition is a public service, but when the same treatment is dished out to him, that's a despicable outrage.

It seems never to occur to McGovern that this might strike the average fair-minded voter as a blatantly sanctimonious contradiction and raise lasting doubts about the glibly voluble candidate's credibility.

Especially as against the still vividly fresh background of: That now famous, fervent avowal "I am 1,000 per cent for Tom Eagleton and have no intention of dropping him from the ticket," only to unceremoniously dump him several days later; that full-page ad in the Wall Street Journal in May, at the height of the primary battles, piously denying he harbored radical tax reforms, such as wiping out capital gains, while at the same time in stump speeches on the hustings he was telling crowds that was exactly what he was going to do; his astounding ignorance of just what his $1,000 handout welfare plan would cost—$20 billion, $27 billion, $30 billion, $43 billion or more; he clearly didn't know.

The Credibility Gap

The plain fact is that the reason for the widespread doubts about McGovern's credibility and reliability is his incontrovertible record of weaseling, waffling and flip-flopping on virtually every issue in the campaign.

With typical sanctimoniousness, the South Dakota leftist defends that. As he told the editors, "I make no apology for changing my mind in light of additional insight and reflection. I have held to a steady course on the transcendent issues of our time, the war in Vietnam and the reallocation of excessive military spending to the urgent needs of our society."

Both those statements are flatly untrue; the record proves that irrefutably.

McGovern voted for the Tonkin Gulf resolution, and for every appropriation for the Vietnam war until 1968, when he made his first and short-lived scramble for the Presidency; and in the 14 years he has been in Congress (four in the House, 10 in the Senate), he never sponsored legislation or done anything else to "reallocate excessive military spending"—in fact, he has repeatedly voted for huge KILLEEN, Tex. (AP)—Mid-Texas Communications Systems, Inc. will build a $12 million communications system that it says will be among the most sophisticated in the country for a new planned community near Houston. The Woodlands.

The system will be adaptable both to current telephone equipment and to anticipated developments like the picture telephone, the company announced.

The Woodlands is a 17,000 acre development with 49,000 living units, which is being built 25 miles north of Houston at a cost of $3 billion.
