Bloody glove, mystery flight — speculation's rife

O.J.'s in seclusion; police piece together evidence

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Bloodstains were found in O.J. Simpson's car and stains on his driveway were determined to be blood, adding to the evidence linking the former football star to the stabbing death of his ex-wife and another man, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times, citing unidentified police sources, said an arrest could be made within the next few days, once authorities had compared blood types from the stains with those of O.J. Simpson, his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and the slain man, Ronald Lyle Goldman, a waiter at a trendy local restaurant.

One source quoted by the Times said authorities already are convinced that Simpson is their prime suspect.

Simpson's lawyer, Howard Weitzman, declined Tuesday night to discuss the report of blood stains.

Big Spring $27.2 million lotto winner won't ditch country life

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Cheryl Click's husband thought briefly about buying country singer Tanya Tucker's $5 million mansion in Nashville, Tenn.

The 12 bathrooms and a four-story elevator were appealing, said R.G. Click.

But Mrs. Click quickly brought him back to earth — to Big Spring to be exact.

Mrs. Click, 44, a newly retired electric company employee, on Tuesday claimed the $27.2 million Lotto Texas jackpot drawn Saturday, becoming the game's third-largest single winner.

In spite of the fact that the Clicks now can afford to live anywhere, they won't give up their country life in Big Spring.

'We are not going to go buy a big old yacht. We will spend some money, but it's going to be on something we are going to use, like horses and barns.'

They raise quarter horses on a 13-acre ranch they own.

"I think we are country enough that it's not going to change our daily lives," Mrs. Click said. "We'll still go to drink coffee at the local truck stop."

"We are just down-to-earth people," she said. "We are not extravagant. We are not going to go buy a big old yacht. We will spend some

Zone change to bring in 2 new eateries

■ Council's 6-1 vote clears way for Olive Garden, Black-Eyed Pea restaurants, Best Buy electronics store.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Approval of a controversial zone change Tuesday will make way for two new restaurants, a consumer electronics store, a small office center and some town houses south of Loop 250 between Ward Street and Whitmire Avenue.

Among the development proposals for the site are the Olive Garden and Black-Eyed Pea restaurants and a Best Buy electronics store.

"All the businesses are desirous to be open by Thanksgiving Day," said Wisconsin-based developer David Shea.

Construction of at least one of the businesses is expected to begin Sept. 1, he said.

The restaurants and store will face Loop 250, while the town houses will be built along Lanham Street. The office complex will be off Ward Street behind the proposed site of the Olive Garden and the end of the strip of town houses.

Construction of the town houses will begin within 90 days after a final plat has been submitted to the city — probably in early August. Four will be built initially; as they are sold, more will be built.

No specific plans have been made about what will be housed in the office area.

As part of a compromise between concerned neighbors and the developer, the zone change was approved with stipulations that include:

Citing survival, Amoco announces 20 percent work-force cut in basin

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

Amoco Production Co. announced Tuesday that it would reduce its work force in the Permian Basin by approximately 20 percent, resulting in the loss of 156 jobs throughout the Permian Basin of West Texas and New Mexico.

Bill Stevens, spokesman for Amoco, said the reduction was the result of a consolidation of the company's north and south Permian Basin business units into a single unit. It would be effective July 1, he said.

Stevens said all of the reductions would be in Amoco's field and plant operations. Most of the employees are based at one of 10 production operations centers or seven plants in the areas of Artesia, Clayton and Hobbs, N.M., and Andrews, Brownfield, Denver City, Levelland, Midland, Odessa and Sundown.

Stevens said it is not known at this time specifically how many employees in each of these communities will be affected.

He said Amoco management had been working on the reduction plan for a number of months and was confident

In the most lopsided Community Pulse poll ever conducted by the Reporter-Telegram, callers felt that, yes, the country has become too politically correct and has become overly sensitive when trying to attach labels to different groups of society.

Of the 172 callers who took part in the poll, 162, or 94.2 percent, felt we have gone too far in our political correctness.

Some terms that are now being used in business publications to label groups include, "persons of color" for African-Americans, "persons of non-color" to refer to Caucasians, and "out-gays" to re-

U.S., allies vow to push ahead with sanctions against N. Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Voicing dismay over North Korea's plan to quit the U.N. nuclear watchdog group, the United States, Japan and South Korea pledged Tuesday to push ahead with sanctions against the Communist state.

South Korean authorities, meanwhile, sought to calm the public, scaling back plans for the biggest civil defense drill in years and publicly playing down the possibility of war with North Korea. But jitters sent South Korean stock prices down sharply.

North Korea's withdrawal from the International Atomic Energy Agency would make it virtually impossible to check whether it is complying with provisions of the nuclear arms-control pact it signed in 1985.

Although the regime in Pyongyang says its nuclear research program is for peaceful purposes, the refusal to permit full U.N. inspections has fueled suspicions that the North Korea is trying to build atomic bombs.

Officials of the IAEA said they had not been notified by North Korea that it was withdrawing from the 120-nation U.N. organization. But North Korea's ambassador to the United Nations, Pak Gil Yon, told reporters in New York on Tuesday that formal notice would be delivered later in the day.

The United States is leading a campaign to impose sanctions to pressure North Korea to allow U.N. inspections. The isolationist North Korean government has warned it would consider sanctions an act of war.

President Clinton and Prime Minister Tsutomu Hata of Japan spoke by telephone Tuesday about North Korea's announcement late Monday that it was leaving the IAEA. Japan's Foreign Ministry quoted Clinton as saying North Korea's withdrawal would make the nuclear dispute more serious.

In Seoul, South Korea's foreign minister, Han Sung-joo, said prospects for dialogue with North Korea had diminished. "We have now run into a critical juncture where decisive and firm measures are necessary," he said.

The Japanese Foreign Ministry said North Korea's action "runs counter to the desires of international society" and urged it to reconsider. Japan renewed its promise to support any sanctions agreed to by the U.N. Security Council.

In recent days, South Korea has taken steps to improve war readiness, including ordering a check of underground shelters.

Navy SEALS make 1st jump to Russian ship

■ Military-cooperation exercise ends with Russians giving Americans salami sandwiches, vodka.

By Edith M. Lederer
Associated Press

ABOARD THE FRIGATE NEUSTRASHIMY — Nine U.S. Navy commandos parachuted into the Baltic Sea near the bow of this Russian warship and clambered aboard to a welcome of berry-flavored vodka and salami sandwiches.

"We made history — it's fantastic," said a dripping Lt. Brad McKinney, 32, of Virginia Beach, Va., delighted with the first U.S. military jump to a Russian military vessel.

It wasn't exactly the way the commandos had expected to arrive on the 4,100-ton frigate. They were originally supposed to be passengers on the Neustrashimy, an example of the new cooperation between the United States and its former Cold War enemy.

But when the group of about 15 Navy SEALs and underwater demolition experts showed up at the dock in Kiel, Germany, to board the Neustrashimy, they were told their trip had been overruled by higher Russian command, said Lt. Ryan Zinke, 32, of Whitefish, Mont.

The commandos were disappointed. So were senior U.S. Navy officers, who had spent months arranging the on-board stay as part of a 15-nation military exercise that began June 7 in the Baltic Sea.

But with the ship at sea, the Americans were permitted to go ahead with the parachute drop and other drills designed to foster cooperation with the Russians. The commandos boarded the Neustrashimy quickly with ropes in an operation that could be used to enforce U.N. sea embargoes.

U.S.-sponsored Baltic exercises have been held for 22 years but this was only the second year that former communist states bordering the sea were invited.

The "BALTOPS 94" exercise, which ends Friday, is a preview of what former Soviet bloc nations can expect in NATO's Partnership for Peace program.

U.S. Navy Capt. Edward E. Hunter, commander of the exercise, said BALTOPS 95 may be part of the NATO program, which was started in January to build closer military ties between NATO and its former Warsaw Pact adversaries.

Poland, Lithuania and Russia sent ships to participate in BALTOPS 94, but only the Russians appeared to be operating with restrictions.

The Russian high command also barred most of the Neustrashimy's crew from visiting other vessels. But the Russians did allow limited tours of the frigate, which was commissioned last year, and they warmly welcomed Americans and other visitors.

"We want to experience cooperation with NATO ships and Baltic Sea ships, to know each other closer, and to be a basis for friendship between ourselves," said Capt. Lt. Yuri Orehovsky, who showed off torpedoes and anti-aircraft guns.

When the nine commandos parachuted into the sea, the Russian crew lined the decks to watch. Other U.S. commandos picked them up in motorized rubber boats and brought them to the Neustrashimy.

"I would like to be like the SEALs — if I had the opportunity," said Seaman Igor Ivanov, 19, a conscript from Russia's Volga region. "It was interesting. It's the first time I've participated with other nations."

The U.S. commandos were taken to a spartan room with bunk beds for sandwiches and tea and toasts with vodka.

For the Americans, it was a strange but exhilarating experience.

"I've seen them for years at a distance" and they always were the enemy, said Chief Petty Officer Michael Perdun, 35, of Chatanooga, Tenn., a member of the demolition team based at Siganella, Italy. "This is great."

Zinke, leader of the SEAL team, said his group would love to work with their Russian Spetznaz counterparts.

"After spending many years in opposition of the former Soviet Union, it's an eye-opening experience," he said.

Cardinals support anti-contraception, anti-abortion plan

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholic cardinals from around the world gave their backing Tuesday to a Vatican campaign to keep abortion and contraception off the agenda of a U.N. conference on ways of stabilizing population.

A message supporting Pope John Paul II, who has been lobbying world leaders on the issue, was presented by Cardinal John J. O'Connor of New York and unanimously approved by the 114 cardinals at a two-day meeting on church matters.

"The failed social policies of many developed countries should not be foisted on the world's poor," the cardinals' message said.

It said problems of population growth "cannot be legitimately resolved by the introduction or imposition of artificial, unnatural or immoral means."

The Clinton administration is committed to reversing policies of its Republican predecessors that denied U.S. funds to international organizations that support abortion. The issue has strained relations between Washington and the Vatican and dominated President Clinton's talks with the pope June 2.

The U.N. International Conference on Population and Development is scheduled in Cairo, Egypt, in September.

Rwandans bow to African pressure, ok immediate cease-fire

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Rwanda's warring factions agreed to an immediate cease-fire Tuesday night under pressure from African heads of state, the head of the rebel delegation reported.

The deal was reached at a summit of the Organization of African Unity, where heads of neighboring states, led by Tanzania, met separately with rebel and government teams.

Pasteur Bizimungu, head of the Rwandan Patriotic Front delegation at the summit, said he would order his troops to respect the truce immediately. Rwanda's provisional government is to do the same, he said.

Provisional government negotiators were not immediately available for comment.

The deal did not assign blame for the massacres that followed the April 6 death of Rwanda's president in a suspicious plane crash. An estimated 200,000 people died in the orgy of ethnic violence, most of them Tutsi civilians massacred by militias and government troops of the majority Hutu tribe.

The death of Juvenal Habyarimana, a Hutu, also rekindled the rebel war between Hutus and Tutsis that was halted in August. The rebel movement, backed by Uganda, is dominated by Tutsis and has advanced on Rwanda's capital, Kigali.

Cease-fire permits safe evacuation of people taking refuge in churches.

"I'm disappointed by the fact that the OAU condemns genocide while embracing the killers," Bizimungu said.

Under the agreement, Tanzania has seven days to start reactivating peace accords signed in the Tanzanian town of Arusha in August that provide for a multiethnic government, including rebel members.

"We are going to transmit the (cease-fire) decision tonight," Bizimungu said.

Asked what made him think it would hold, he replied that the provisional government was on record as agreeing to it before heads of state.

"The whole world will know" if they fail to honor it, Bizimungu said.

Several previous cease-fire efforts have failed.

Talks on a cease-fire had started in Kigali, the Rwandan capital, 11 days ago, with no visible progress, before switching to Tunis. The rebels had insisted that the massacres stop before they would agree to a truce.

The United Nations wants a cease-fire to permit shipments of food and medicine into the country. It also wants safe passage guarantees so it can evacuate 10,000 people still under its protection from the capital.

Bizimungu said he thought the truce would hold because the provisional government agreed to it before the African heads of state.

It was unclear if any document had actually been signed.

According to Bizimungu, the cease-fire will permit the safe evacuation of people taking refuge in churches and monasteries. Such people have often been the victim of massacres.

Virus kills lions in Serengeti National Park

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — About 70 lions in Serengeti National Park have died from the canine distemper virus, and many more are infected, Tanzania's parks director said Tuesday.

First detected in December, the virus has been confined so far to the central Serengeti and has not spread to other parts of the 5,600-square mile park, one of the world's largest and most famous game preserves.

"It is the first time we have had such massive deaths of lions in this country," said Gerald Bigurube, Tanzania's director of parks, said by telephone from the northern Tanzanian town of Arusha. "We are now trying to find out how fast it is spreading and what we can do about it."

There are an estimated 2,000 lions in the park.

Researchers suspect the lions may have contracted distemper from dogs kept by local tribesmen. The distemper virus causes weight loss, anemia, severe muscle contractions, persistent twitching of the ears and nose, seizures and often death.

It may be possible to control the spread of the virus among lions by vaccinating dogs against distemper, Dr. Craig Packer of the University of Minnesota was quoted as saying by The New York Times.

Canine distemper is a common viral ailment in dogs, wolves and foxes, but can also infect lions, tigers, leopards and other wild cats.

Basin to bask in sun, mid-90s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high in the mid-90s and south to southeast winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low near 70, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be sunny with a high in the mid-90s.

After an overnight low of 62, Tuesday's high reached 92, compared to the record high for that date of 105 set in 1945. The record low was 56 set in 1989.

STATE

Gusty winds blew across North Texas on Thursday while storms dropped occasionally heavy rains on parts of South Texas and the Hill Country, the National Weather Service said.

Winds of 20 to 30 mph were reported throughout the afternoon over North Texas, with gusts as high as 42 mph reported in the Wichita Falls area, the weather service said. Blowing dust was reported at Reese Air Force Base, west of Lubbock.

Elsewhere, tropical moisture from Mexico advanced as far north as the Hill Country. That meant partly to mostly cloudy skies over the eastern two-thirds of the state and showers and thunderstorms as far north as the Hill Country.

A few isolated thunderstorms were also reported over the Davis Mountains in far West Texas. Otherwise, sunny skies prevailed over West Texas, the weather service said.

Temperatures ranged from 102 in El Paso to a rain-cooled 77 in Junction.

Today, partly cloudy skies are in the outlook for northern and western Texas with scattered showers and thunderstorms. Afternoon high temperatures in those regions generally should be in the 90s, except for around 104 in the Big Bend.

Forecasters said a cloudy, breezy day with scattered showers and thunderstorms is on tap for South Texas. High temperatures there should reach the 90s inland and the 80s along the coast.

NATION

Stifling, summerlike heat gripped the East and Midwest on Tuesday, while the Northwest chilled to lows in the 30s with rain and even some snow in Yellowstone National Park.

The cold front in the West stretched from Washington into the northern Plains and southwest into the Great Basin.

Lows were in the 40s from the Pacific Northwest into Montana and western Wyoming. The mercury dipped into the 30s across the higher elevations. Winds gusted to 70 mph in Buford in southeast Wyoming.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

RIFE: Some details emerge in Simpson slaying

(From 1A)

"You'd have to ask the police," he said.

Earlier, asked if law enforcement has ever characterized Simpson as a suspect in the deaths, Weitzman said: "There has been no indication by law enforcement to me of that fact. They've been communicative and we are in touch."

The bloodied bodies of Nicole Simpson, 35, Simpson's second ex-wife, and Goldman, 25, who worked at a restaurant near Nicole Simpson's Brentwood condominium, were found about 12:10 a.m. Monday near the condo, about two miles from Simpson's estate in Brentwood.

On Tuesday, the Times and the Los Angeles Daily News reported that a blood-soaked glove was found at Simpson's home. The Daily News said the glove matched one found near the bodies.

During a search of Simpson's property Tuesday, police marked a trail of small reddish brown stains leading up Simpson's driveway to a point about 50 feet from the garage.

Police refused to comment on the stains, but the Times report today said they had been determined to be blood.

Weitzman denied that a bloody glove was found at the house. He confirmed that a bloody towel was found in Simpson's room at the O'Hare Plaza Hotel in Chicago, but said Simpson used it when he broke a glass in the room and cut himself upon learning of his wife's death.

Authorities released an autopsy report Tuesday that found both victims died of multiple stab wounds, but withheld other details. Coroner's spokesman Scott Carrier said officials didn't know what kind of weapon was used.

The Times reported today that the woman's throat was slashed and Goldman's wounds indicated that he put up a fierce struggle before he died.

Police refused to say if they were able to determine the time of the deaths.

Therapist Susan Forward, who said she had two sessions with Nicole Simpson while the woman was going through her divorce in 1992, told KCBS-TV that she was "a classic battered wife," who was threatened and stalked by her ex-husband.

The beatings "were very severe . . . he would say to her things like, 'if he can't have her then no one can,'" said Forward, who is the author of the book "Men Who Hate Women and the Women Who Love Them."

The Simpsons were divorced in 1992. Friends said they had been trying to reconcile recently, but the Times, quoting an unidentified source, reported today that Nicole Simpson told her former husband several weeks ago that they could never reconcile, and that police had been called to her townhouse several times in recent months to deal with disputes between the two.

Simpson was emotionally drained, according to friends, relatives and Weitzman, who met with him Tuesday at his mansion.

"It's difficult enough with the shock that your wife's been murdered, but to hear that you may be accused of it, well, it's awful," Weitzman said.

Dozens of reporters and photographers kept vigil outside Simpson's $1.2 million gated estate, watching a stream of visitors come and go. Among them were the singer Jermaine Jackson, Simpson's former University of Southern California and Buffalo Bills teammate Bob Chandler and Simpson's sister.

"He's totally distraught," a friend who identified himself only as Ron said of Simpson.

Simpson was questioned for more than three hours Monday in the slayings.

Weitzman said police estimated the killings occurred at 11 p.m. Sunday.

Simpson and his ex-wife spent Sunday afternoon with their two children at a school music recital.

Simpson reportedly flew from Los Angeles to Chicago on an 11:45 p.m. flight Sunday. The airport is about nine miles in a straight line from his home.

In Chicago, he checked into a hotel where he had made a reservation three to five days earlier. Simpson rushed home after hearing of the killings, his attorney said.

Simpson, 46, and Nicole Simpson had a stormy relationship. In 1989, Simpson allegedly screamed "I'll kill you" as he slapped and kicked his then-wife in a pre-dawn New Year's Day argument. He pleaded no contest to wife beating and was placed on two years' probation.

The couple's children, who were sleeping in the condo when the bodies were found, were reportedly staying with relatives.

The relationship between Goldman and Nicole Simpson was unclear. Simpson said through his attorney that he had never heard of Goldman.

But neighbors of Nicole Simpson said they had seen Goldman with the woman and her children.

On Sunday night, just hours before the killings, Nicole Simpson was part of a party of 10 who ate at Goldman's restaurant, Mezzaluna, employees said. Her ex-husband wasn't at the restaurant. Goldman wasn't the waiter, but afterward, he volunteered to return to Nicole Simpson a pair of glasses she had left behind.

"He was a friend to everyone. Not only Nicole Simpson, but everyone else," said Karim Souki, the restaurant's owner. "That's just who he was."

VOW: Ten of thousands commit to chastity

(From 1A)

Inside, the 137th annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention got under way.

"It's a way to tell the world not to have sex before marriage," said 13-year-old Katy Burks of Waxahachie. "It's really important to me. All my friends . . . are getting pregnant and it hurts to see them getting hurt like that."

As she walked around the colorful mosaic created by the multicolored pledge cards signed by thousands of her peers, 15-year-old Sarah Owen of Brandon touched the purity ring she was given when she made her chastity vow at her church.

"I hope it says we don't have to be like the generation before us. We can set new standards," she said, alluding to baby boomers whose watershed sexual freedom followed the accessibility of contraception but predated AIDS.

Since its humble beginnings little more than a year ago, when 59 teens took vows of chastity in a Nashville church, the True Love Waits campaign has inspired 102,000 youths so far in the nation's largest Protestant denomination to pledge to abstain from sex before marriage.

At some youth rallies, more than 10,000 people at a time pledged "to God, myself, my family, those I date, my future mate and my future children to be sexually pure until the day I enter a covenant marriage relationship."

The campaign has already spread to 26 other Christian groups, including the Roman Catholic Church.

Even as they set up the Baptist display, campaign organizers were looking ahead to a national youth rally next month in Washington and an international rally in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 1995.

What has captured the imagination of the nation's teens is the opportunity to "get in the face" of an adult generation that expects them to be promiscuous, said the man who started it all, the Rev. Richard Ross of the Baptist Sunday School Board.

"It's a way to tell the world not to have sex before marriage. It's really important to me. All my friends . . . are getting pregnant and it hurts to see them getting hurt like that.'

— Katy Burks, 13, of Waxahachie

"Teen-agers like going against the flow," he said. "Teen-agers . . . like surprising adults and not fitting in with adult expectations."

"I believe it shows that all young people are not the bad people they're made out to be," said 16-year-old Jonathan McMichael of Warrenton, Ga. "There are folks that live for God and want to go with his will."

Risking the ridicule of their peers, teens said abstinence gives them an opportunity for redemption in a culture that often expects them to give their libidos free rein.

"It gives other youths a place to look at and say, 'We're not so odd. Look, there's 100,000 other people that are not having sex,'" said Rob Ladd, 18, of Nashville. "Even if five of my friends are having sex, I don't have to."

Debbie Brown, 19, of Phoenix said she hoped the display would influence President Clinton and other government officials to promote abstinence campaigns.

SURVEY: Most think we're overly sensitive fer to homosexuals who have become public about their sexuality.

"Political correctness is simply an attempt by liberals to prevent discussion or criticism of their political agenda," Banks Campbell said. "It demonstrates their own lack of consistency in that they would ask for themselves the freedom to say or do almost anything, but then deny to anyone who disagrees with them the same options."

One anonymous caller referred to street signs in Massachusetts that have been changed from "Slow Children at Play" to "Caution, Children at Play."

"All they had to do," the caller said, "was put a comma between the 'w' and the 'c.' Then they'd have a sign that (means) caution, children at play."

The same caller also indicated that he was against the extreme to which political correctness has grown, saying, "We spend too much time appeasing special interest groups."

Another caller disagreed.

"I don't think we have become too politically correct, although we do go to extremes sometimes. But I do think we need to be more tolerant, because intolerance is what got us where we are today, and I'm not too happy with where we are today."

One woman was infuriated with the "P.C." issue, saying, "We spend too much time coddling criminals and homosexuals that there's only one thing left for God to do to this country, and that's knock it off the face of the earth. And that's what he's going to do soon. It's too bad people won't listen to God's word because he is the ultimate judge, not the sick Supreme Court sitting up there in Washington."

A male caller added to the sentiment: "Being a person of non-color with no slow children, and not being an out-gay, I would like to express my insensitivity to the plight of title changers. Remember, a rose by any other name still smells the same, and the same applies to horse manure."

Political correctness, another caller said, is adding to the issue of divisiveness.

"I think we've gone overboard," the female caller said. "This is dividing our nation as it's never been before. We need to be united and not so divided on every issue."

LOTTO: Winners won't give up country life money, but it's going to be on something we are going to use, like horses and barns."

The Clicks were at the truck stop on Sunday morning when they learned about their good fortune.

Mrs. Click had just heard that there was only one winner in Saturday's drawing when she started studying her numbers — 9, 18, 19, 22, 32, 39 — against those listed at the truck stop. When she realized she was the lone winner, she said her hands started trembling.

"I just started to shake. I didn't say a word. I tucked the ticket back in my change purse. I couldn't think," she said.

"When we got back to the house, we just paced the floor and couldn't believe it. I didn't want anyone to know because I didn't want anything bad to happen."

Mrs. Click, who collected a check for $1,368,063.64 on Tuesday, said she traditionally buys five Quick Pick tickets per drawing, but bought 20 on Saturday.

"He said it was too much to spend, but it turned out to be worth it," Mrs. Click said.

The Clicks, who have been married 7½ years and don't have any children, will receive a check for $1,362,000 each year for the next 19 years.

Only Wanda Wilson of Houston, who won $41.48 million in February, and Rebecca Brown of Irving, who won $38.65 million last September, have won more than Mrs. Click.

Big Mike's Farm Store in Big Spring will receive $272,460.64 for selling Mrs. Click's winning ticket.

Click, 68, said once he was overruled on buying Tanya Tucker's mansion — which he saw on a country music television show — he started making plans to build a big house on the land they own.

"The house we have now is paid for," he said. "We will just take it down and start all over with the landscaping and everything."

"The main thing I will really enjoy is being able to build a house like I want and decorate it like I want," said Mrs. Click, adding that a shopping spree at a western wear store also is in the works.

Click said he isn't worried about the money altering his way of life.

"We are not much for change," said Click, who is a retired phone company employee and now serves as director of the local rodeo association. "Take traveling for instance. She said we ought to take a cruise, and I said not unless the boat has wheels on it."

ZONE: Council paves way

to the office area,

- an 8-foot-high screening wall,
- the town houses being at least 2,000 square feet each on lots a minimum of 100-by-80 feet,
- and a drainage plan approved by the city.

Supporters and opponents packed the City Council chambers for Tuesday's public hearing. The concessions to protect the adjacent neighborhood were made apparently to the general satisfaction of both sides.

The council approved the request 6-1, with Pat Schneider, District 1 representative, dissenting. The measure requires a second vote, which is scheduled for June 28.

Ms. Schneider said she voted against the change because of dissatisfaction with parking-lot access and the lack of a no-parking provision on Whitmire Avenue.

Nevertheless, Ms. Schneider apparently was instrumental in working out the neighborhood integrity vs. development debate. Last week, she held a town meeting that narrowed the differences between the two groups.

The issue has epitomized a re-occurring debate between residents and developers in Midland amid a recent surge of interest in developing Loop 250.

Last summer, Shea was denied a zone change to permit a Best Buy on the site. The council voted it down due to pressure from residents.

Residents' concerns have included increased traffic — especially in light of two schools nearby — and not having a buffer between the retail area and the neighborhood.

Other concerns include devaluation of houses, crime, noise and smell.

The town houses are intended to act as a buffer — residents had preferred 10 be built instead of the initial four. The restricted access from Ward Street should lessen anticipated traffic in the residential area, officials said.

Opponents of the zone change pointed out they were not against economic development or new restaurants, but wanted to protect their neighborhood.

CUT: Amoco drops 20 percent

the company could maintain present operations with 20 percent fewer employees.

The 780 Amoco employees in the Permian Basin were offered voluntary severance packages that will be based on years of service and will provide medical insurance coverage for a period after severance.

Employees have until July 1 to accept the package and voluntary severance.

If the voluntary program does not meet staff-reduction goals, an involuntary severance program will then follow, Stevens said.

Jim Posey, vice president of the Permian Basin Business Unit, in a letter to Mayor Bobby Burns, said the reduction was painful, but necessary.

"We have elected to pro-actively change, as a natural step in the life cycle of our business, rather than face a crisis later on," Posey wrote.

He said in his letter that because of the maturity of the Permian Basin fields, the natural tendency for operating costs to rise and the projection of continued soft oil prices, Amoco could not continue to do business as it had in the past.

"We must change, if we are to survive short term and win long term. Our philosophy of continuous improvement is a credit to our corporation, our employees, our shareholders, our contractors and to the communities in which we operate," he wrote.

Croatian president takes historic tour of ravaged Sarajevo

■ City, Muslim, Croatian nations come to the end of the tragedy, leader says.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (NYT) — Once reviled in this ravaged city, Croatia's president, Franjo Tudjman, visited Sarajevo on Tuesday for the first time in the 26-month war to discuss a nascent Bosnian federation of Muslims and Croats allied to his country.

"We are at the end of the tragedy that this city and the Muslim nation, and together with it the Croatian nation, had to experience," Tudjman said as he formally dedicated a new Croatian embassy in Sarajevo.

Just five months ago, Tudjman stood behind the Croatian nationalists fighting Bosnia-Herzegovina's Muslim-led government. Since then Muslims and Croats have joined in an alliance against the Serbs, who have captured 70 percent of Bosnia since the war began in April 1992.

After meeting with Bosnia's president, Alija Izetbegovic, Tudjman strolled on Sarajevo's main downtown street under heavy security to the embassy, shaking hands with pedestrians as some shouted in approval and others jeered.

Dedicating the embassy, he said his trip was "proof of our support for the Croat-Muslim federation as well as the formation of a future confederation with Croatia."

Tudjman's visit came on the eve of a scheduled parliamentary session in which Croatian and Muslim leaders are to fill positions in the government.

The parliament has already approved a constitution and linked Muslim and Croat military commands. But Western diplomats lament the lack of progress Muslims and Croats have made in organizing the federation, especially on the local level.

In most areas of Bosnia with mixed populations of Muslims and Croats, often antagonistic local administrations are still in place. Restrictions still prevent refugees in divided areas from returning to homes in areas controlled by the other side.

Fierce fighting between the Croats and Muslims in central Bosnia claimed thousands of lives and uprooted tens of thousands of people before the United States and Roman Catholic clerics persuaded Tudjman early this year to replace the nationalist Croatian leader, Mate Boban, and agree to form a federation.

Tuesday local radio reports described renewed clashes between Croatian and mostly Muslim Bosnian army forces near the western town of Mostar as well as fighting that has pitted Muslim against Muslim in a pocket of Muslim separatists near the northwestern town of Bihac.

The fighting is marring a four-week cease-fire that took effect in Bosnia on Friday. Still, clashes in the country have sharply declined overall since last week, the United Nations military command says.

Suspect makes Lockerbie confession

Shabaan belonged to Abu Nidal's European terrorist network at the time the plane was blown up, ex-PLO commander says.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestinian who claims he blew up Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland was an explosives expert in Abu Nidal's European terrorist network at the time of the 1988 bombing, a former PLO commander said Tuesday.

Youssef Shaaban, 29, made the surprise confession Monday during his trial on charges of assassinating a Jordanian diplomat in Beirut in January.

Judicial authorities sought Tuesday to discredit Shaaban's claim, and one official maintained he never mentioned the Pan Am bombing in court. But reporters covering the trial heard Shaaban say Monday: "I personally blew up the Lockerbie plane."

A former PLO commander, Col. Munir Makdah, told The Associated Press that Shabaan belonged to Abu Nidal's European terrorist network at the time the plane was blown up, killing 270 people.

"Youssef Shaaban operated in Europe between 1986 and 1989, with a base in Spain, and he traveled with different passports under various names," said Makdah, who broke from PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's Fatah faction last year.

Prosecutor-General Munif Oweidat told reporters Tuesday he would not authorize an investigation into Shaaban's claim he was behind the bombing because his words have been stricken from court records.

U.S. and British authorites have accused two Libyans of being behind the attack and assert the bomb was planted in luggage checked aboard Flight 103 in Frankfurt, Germany. Passengers and luggage transferred to a Boeing 747 in London for the last leg of a trip to New York.

The jetliner exploded over Lockerbie, Scotland, on Dec. 21, 1988. All 259 people aboard were killed, along with 11 on the ground.

For many years, Makdah was Arafat's security chief in the Palestinian refugee camp of Ein El-Hilweh outside the southern port city of Sidon. He headed Fatah military forces in Lebanon, before falling out with the Palestine Liberation Organization chief last year over the autonomy deal with Israel.

Makdah now leads guerrillas opposed to Arafat. The PLO leader is the sworn enemy of Abu Nidal, a former Fatah official who broke with him in 1973 and is now one of the world's most wanted terrorists.

On Monday, Shaaban offered no details to corroborate his claim. The bombing has in the past been blamed variously on Iran, Syria and finally Libya. Two Libyans face charges in the United States and Britain in connection with the bombing.

Lebanese court sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, speculated Shaaban might have been ordered by Abu Nidal to make the claim to take the heat off Libya, chief backer of his terrorist group.

Police Constable Steve Guscott, 42, outside the court in Taunton, Somerset, southwest England Tuesday where he was fined 100 pounds ($151) for common assault. He also must pay the teen he slapped 50 pounds ($75) in compensation.

Constable who slapped teen becomes hero to many Britains

LONDON (AP) — When Police Constable Steve Guscott caught up with a sassy teen-ager on his beat who had been harassing an old lady, he did what he would have done to one of his own sons — he slapped him.

The teen charged the 42-year-old officer with assault and now Guscott, who has 20 years of unblemished service, must pay $225 and could lose his job.

Guscott has become a hero to many Britons who are disturbed about rising crime and long for a bit of old-fashioned discipline.

"It used to be if you had a run-in with a policeman he would box you around the ears and you would go home crying and tell your dad about it and he'd give you another one," said Kevin Escott, a friend of the officer.

Guscott's boss, Avon and Somerset District commander Superintendent Mike Nelson, said police switchboards had been "totally overwhelmed" Tuesday by calls of support for the officer, who is based in Minehead, 140 miles west of London.

"It does show there is a wind of change within society that perhaps indicates that the pendulum has swung too far and it may be time to redress that balance," said Nelson, who will be a character witness for Guscott at his disciplinary hearing next month.

British Broadcasting Corp. radio also reported getting many calls from listeners, supporting the bobby.

The Sun newspaper reported 52,687 in favor of Guscott and 2,195 against him on a "You the Jury" phone line it set up. The Daily Mirror set up a similar line and reported more than 20,000 calls, which were 15 to 1 in favor of the police officer.

At a magistrates' court hearing Monday, Guscott pleaded guilty to common assault on a 14-year-old boy. He was ordered to pay a $150 fine and $75 in compensation to the teen-ager.

The prosecution said Guscott, who had been called to investigate a report of youths repeatedly banging on an old woman's door, struck the teen-ager twice, once on the nose with his elbow and once with an open-handed slap.

Guscott admitted the slap but denied the elbow. His lawyer, Ian Wilson, said the slap was "no more and no less than he would do with his own son if he had behaved in a similar manner."

Dole clears way for presidential bid

N.Y. Times News Service

Taking a clear step toward a race for the Republican nomination for president in 1996, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas said Tuesday that he had instructed his advisers to seek commitments from political strategists and fund-raisers around the country before other candidates locked them up.

Dole emphasized that he had not decided whether to run. But he said he gave the go-ahead for his advisers to move quickly because he did not want other contenders to get an edge in building organizations, as happened in his bid to wrest the Republican nomination from then Vice President George Bush in 1988.

While he has not assembled a preliminary campaign operation, and described the contacts with strategists as informal, Dole's political action committee, Campaign America has hired more than a half-dozen field workers in important primary states, including Iowa and New Hampshire.

"Whether or not I do it, you've got to be prepared," Dole said in a telephone interview. "If you're going to get into this thing, you ought not wait until after next year. If you wait until you decide to do it, you may be behind the curve. I've had that happen to me."

As the Senate Republican leader and the most visible Republican in the country, Dole would be viewed as an instant front-runner, particularly since no strong challenger has emerged from the field of Republicans who are considering taking on President Clinton.

Echoing Dole, his advisers said in interviews that he had not made a decision, but several said they believed that he would probably run.

"Based on what I'm seeing, I think if he had to make the decision today, my guess would be that he'd do it," said Tom Synhorst an adviser who helped engineer Dole's upset over Bush in the 1988 Iowa caucuses.

"I think it's 90 percent there," said another close adviser, who would speak only on the condition of not being named.

Dole, 70, said he would decide in February and emphasized that he was far from assembling a formal campaign structure. But he has maintained his network of support though travels around the country for Campaign America on behalf of other candidates.

"We're not out trying to lasso any big fund-raisers, though I've thought of it," he said. "We have a few field men. It's all part of being prepared. I'm not totally naive about all this stuff."

The efforts to build an informal network that could become a presidential campaign are being led by a handful of close advisers, including Synhorst and William B. Lacy, a top official in Dole's 1988 campaign.

Pressure essential on North Koreans

Facing the most difficult international situation of his presidency, President Clinton appears to be waffling as he ponders how to counter North Korea's insistence that it will not permit inspection by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) at its nuclear facilities

What is needed is not waffling, but determined leadership with a direct statement of what the United States will accept and what it is willing to do if North Korea fails to comply.

Clinton is not known for his expertise in foreign relations, but North Korea is obviously willing to challenge him on his resolve. Clinton must stand up to the challenge. He has sought international support for sanctions against North Korea — a move that government has said could provoke war — and would be wise to continue to build international support against North Korea's challenge.

If North Korea does not permit the inspections at its nuclear facilities, Clinton should be ready to use all means at his disposal to force compliance.

Clinton is correct to seek international support for a tough line against President Kim Il Sung's government. Such support will become critical in the event North Korea insists on rejecting international demands for the inspections and becomes, in effect, an outlaw nation. President George Bush used his skills as a diplomat to build international support against Iraq in the Persian Gulf War. In reality, however, only the United States has the military power and international respect to challenge North Korea's refusal. The United States must show leadership in this matter and the task falls to Clinton.

If the communist government in North Korea is, in fact, developing nuclear weaponry, that fact would change the entire political equation for not only South Korea, but all of eastern Asia. Thus, it's imperative that the nuclear inspections be carried out.

No one wants to push North Korea or any other nation into starting a war, but Clinton should continue building international support for sanctions while encouraging that government to abide by international agreements regulating nuclear weapons.

When woman says 'no,' man should take note

What is it about the word 'no' they don't understand?," a women's rights advocate said in response to a Pennsylvania Supreme Court decision that tossed out a man's rape conviction.

That is a pertinent question for men in general to address.

The state court . . . ruled that a man who did not use physical force, but had sexual intercourse with a woman who said "no" throughout the encounter, could not be found guilty of rape because there had been no "forcible compulsion" as required by Pennsylvania rape law.

Such a decision is a step backward in time, for in other states courts are redefining the definition of rape to deal with cases where outright physical force or threats of injury were not present. . . .

As the definition of rape evolves . . ., men need to listen closely when a woman says "no."

Kentucky case leaves public festivals on shaky ground

A U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing government-sponsored events such as fairs, festivals and parades to bar "inappropriate" groups from participating places new limits on expression of ideas.

The Frankfort, Ky., case resulted in murky law because Downtown Frankfort Inc., which had been given responsibility by the city for the annual pumpkin festival, had no formal guidelines for its policy that booths, meant to be for fun and entertainment, could be denied "to any displayer (or merchandiser) deemed inappropriate to that theme or purpose."

The downtown improvement organization rejected Capitol Area Right to Life, which had participated in the 1989 festival. There had been objections to the prolifers giving plastic fetuses to children.

Also banned under the general policy were the National Organization of Women and the Kentucky Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights. . . .

The absence of a requirement for formal guidelines . . . will make application of the decision uneven. . . . The Kentucky case builds a shaky platform for ideology to prevail in management of public fairs, festivals and parades.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, June 15th, the 166th day of 1994. There are 199 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On June 15th, 1215, King John signed Magna Carta at Runnymede, England, granting his barons more liberty.

On this date:

In 1520, Pope Leo X threatened to excommunicate Martin Luther if he did not recant his religious beliefs.

In 1775, the Second Continental Congress voted unanimously to appoint George Washington head of the Continental Army.

Secret exists before Gulf War Syndrome

WASHINGTON — Anyone wondering why our government still isn't sure if soldiers were exposed to harmful chemicals during the Gulf War should review the military's bumbling history of defending against these nefarious weapons.

Anderson

Chemical and biological weapons — often called the poor man's atomic bombs — are once again in the headlines as Congress considers how to compensate the tens of thousands of veterans suffering symptoms of what's been dubbed Gulf War Syndrome. While the Clinton administration focuses on a nuclear North Korea, chemical and biological weapons (CBWs) remain a weapon of choice among Third World nations. They're easier to hide from prying foreigners than nuclear weapons, and much easier to make.

Detecting the tools of chemical warfare is a very inexact science, say more than a dozen experts, mostly from the U.S. intelligence community, who spoke with our associate Dale Van Atta on the condition of anonymity. Together, these experts explained one of the most mammoth CBW errors ever made by the intelligence community. The episode began 21 years ago, and elements of it are still being kept secret.

The story begins with the Arab-Israeli "Yom Kippur War" of 1973. The war turned out to be an intelligence bonanza for the Israelis. America was excited as well by the prospect of taking a close look at some of the advanced Soviet weaponry the Egyptians had been using.

The Israelis turned over a wide variety of captured Soviet-supplied Egyptian weaponry to the CIA for analysis. This included the individual CBW antidote kit each Egyptian soldier carried aboard armored personnel carriers.

The CIA's Life Sciences Division met excitedly to work on analyzing the kit, code-naming the entire project "Grand Plot."

Early work turned up a curious element in the antidote provided in the kits, which CIA officials believed to be the latest in Soviet nerve gas defense. Two elements were already known and used in the United States — atropine and TMB4. But a third element was benactyzine, a known hallucinogen. The CIA dubbed the new antidote by its acronym, TAB.

Testing came next and the usual suspects — monkeys — were tapped for the job. The monkeys were gassed and the antidote applied. They lived. The CIA's after-action report, still classified Top Secret, claimed that TAB was "effective against soman and other standard nerve gas poisoning."

The CIA convinced its sister intelligence services in the military that it had found a new antidote. The U.S. Army soon began using it.

Some NATO allies cautioned U.S. Army officials that if there was a war, and the Army used its TAB injectors, American forces would crumble without a single Soviet chemical weapon being fired. Those self-injected soldiers would be too confused by the strong hallucinogenic side-effects of benactyzine.

But the military bureaucracy dug its heels in, and kept the new injectors for five more years.

Finally, in an internal memorandum dated Nov. 4, 1980, the U.S. Army chief of staff quietly ordered the destruction of the millions of TAB injectors.

The memo read, in part: "Subsequent studies have indicated that TAB is incapacitating in itself, causes hallucinations, and does not contain sufficient atropine to be effective."

The epilog to this story comes from an Egyptian general.

Years after the failed experiment, the Egyptian sheepishly admitted that he had personally bought the TAB injectors from Bulgaria. He had discovered that Egypt's Soviet-supplied injectors had expired in 1969, and was looking for a cheap replacement.

If the CIA had known from the beginning that the TAB injectors were Bulgarian produced, they would have thrown them out.

Most Israelis want off 'peace process' train

WASHINGTON — Speaking to Muslims in South Africa, Yasser Arafat blurted out the truth about secret assurances he received in a letter from Israel's government, granting a Palestinian foothold in Jerusalem.

Safire

Israeli spokesmen told the Knesset "there is no letter on the subject of Jerusalem." Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin declared "there was no letter from me, or the Israeli side, following the Cairo agreement, which concerns Jerusalem."

But there was such a letter before last month's agreement in Cairo. It was from Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, dated Oct. 11, addressed to the late Norwegian intermediary, Johan Holst, for transmission to Arafat.

In it, Peres thrice treated "East Jerusalem" as a separate entity, pledging not to "hamper the activity" of its Palestinian "institutions," thereby putting the capital of Israel into negotiating play.

The secret letter's contents were substantive; Peres now says.

"I have this letter," he told fellow Muslims in triumph. "In this letter, we are responsible for all the Christian and the Muslim and the Islamic holy sacred places."

After Peres' tortured excuse for his deceit — "a letter is not a document" — opposition leader Benjamin Netanyahu asked a direct question in the Knesset: "Are there any additional letters?" The reply by Peres was again slippery: "In the Foreign Ministry there are thousands of letters."

Why does Peres want the Jewish Yalta agreement kept secret? The firestorm that swept through the Israeli Parliament at being kept in the dark makes the answer clear: The majority of Israelis now see where the "peace process" is headed, and they want to get off that train.

Israelis in West Bank settlements have already been demonized and are destined to live under Arab rule. By rejecting what he calls "our control of a foreign nation," Rabin rhetorically recognizes what the PLO calls the state of Palestine. And according to the newly drafted Palestinian constitution, "Jerusalem is the capital of Palestine."

Thanks to Arafat's revelation of assurances given him (he didn't know his speech was being recorded) the issue of Jerusalem is no longer being put off until the final stages of negotiation. It's here now. The step-by-step shrinkage of the State of Israel is not intended to end with the division of the West Bank, but with the division or internationalization of Jerusalem.

Is that what Israel is willing to concede? Not now, not yet.

Forever and eternity are to end in a couple of years. The basis for negotiation with the PLO is to satisfy the desire of Palestinian Arabs for a land of their own; the notion that the desire can be satisfied by merely forcing settlers out of the West Bank is a delusion.

Arafat speaks of Jerusalem as "not their capital; it is our capital!"

Arguments now being advanced about ruling a foreign nation will soon be applied to East (at least) Jerusalem. The U.N.'s Resolution 904 in March of this year identified "territories occupied by Israel in 1967, including Jerusalem."

But of the 550,000 people who live in Jerusalem, 320,000 live on land not under Israeli control before 1967; a majority of these 320,000 are Jewish, and may not take kindly to the imposition of Palestinian sovereignty in the eastern portion of what Israelis were led to believe was their nation's capital.

For this, they will be denounced as intransigent colonizers, obstacles to the peace process. Voices in the White House and Congress will urge cutting off aid to the "occupiers" of Greater Jerusalem.

World opinion will unite to condemn the territory-grasping Jews who dare to claim sovereignty over the cradle of three religions.

And would even that final concession bring peace? In his speech to Muslims, Arafat compared his agreement with Israel to the prophet Mohammed's deal with the tribe of Kuraish, which became a model for deals with infidels: such a "despicable truce" is never permanent.

But give the PLO leader credit for more frankness than Peres of the Thousand Letters. "The irony would be," says the Likud's Netanyahu, "if Yasser Arafat's unintended candor saved the land of Israel."

William Safire's column is distributed by New York Times News Service.

ART BUCHWALD

Media, readers need each other for rumors

Wherever I travel in this country people always ask me about "The Media." They don't actually want to know about the media so much as attack them. Since I am being paid to speak at their event I am the perfect target for their hostility.

Buchwald

I try to explain that the media do what they do because the public's appetite for scandal is insatiable.

I tell them: "If I give you North Korea cheating on nuclear weapons, you fall asleep. If I offer you a photo of Paula Jones tearfully telling how the President of the United States harassed her, your heart beats faster and your hands sweat as you read the papers. I have always maintained that there is a two-way street between the reader and the grubby press. When it comes to good solid rumors you people cannot do without us and vice versa."

Just the other day I read that the New Yorker magazine — one of our most respected publications — reported that Hillary Clinton planned to succeed her husband when he finished his term in office. Perhaps it isn't true but it's certainly worth buying the New Yorker for.

Naturally, the White House denied it. So did the source of the information, Betsey Wright, a former Clinton chief of staff who was quoted in the article.

Despite the denials, a spokesperson for the New Yorker said that Connie Bruck is noted for her accurate reporting and "stands by her story."

If a reporter writes that somebody said something and that person denies it, then we are dealing with a case of veracity. Who, my audiences keep asking, are we to believe? It's a legitimate beef, and my answer is, members of the public should believe whomever they want because it's no skin off their backs.

These are the rules:

1. If a reporter does not stand by his or her story he or she will get into trouble with the bosses.

2. A source must always deny his or her quote if there is any chance that it will backfire.

3. A reader may repeat any story he or she reads because everyone knows that where there's smoke there's fire.

When it comes to covering a news item, reporters find that people are not as cooperative as they used to be.

You may note that stories often end with, "Mr. Dennis Ratner, the lawyer, would not return this reporter's calls."

The implication being that because Ratner did not call back he is hiding something, rather than the fact that he sees nothing to be gained from talking to "The Media." I personally believe that all reporters' calls should be answered no matter what Ratner is doing.

That's why we have a First Amendment.

Frankly, I don't know which side I am on when it comes to defending "The Media." Everyone has a job to do, although the critics believe we have gone too far when it involves interfering in the private lives of public people. I have no misgivings about passing on a rumor I heard at a dinner party concerning an intriguing dalliance. If it comes back to me in less than three days I know that I've got a hot one and I can go public with it.

If, on the other hand, the rumor dies somewhere over Columbus, Ohio, I will refuse to print it. As I write this, the New Yorker's "Hillary Clinton for President" rumor is now up in a balloon high over the Grand Canyon. I suspect that it will return with a few extra rumors attached to it, and will be ripe for further dissemination.

Should I choose to use it and it is adamantly denied by Mrs. Clinton's spokesperson, I, obviously, will stand by my story.

Art Buchwald's column is distributed by the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Clinton: Plan will replace welfare with work

■ Proposal would cut benefits to immigrants, drug addicts, alcoholics, slash subsidies to wealthy farmers, feature 2-year limit on cash benefits.

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Clinton announced a $9.3 billion plan Tuesday to transform welfare from a check-writing system into a job training program for tens of thousands of single mothers.

"I really believe that we have a chance finally to replace dependence with independence, welfare with work," Clinton told former and current welfare recipients. He spoke in the walnut and marble lobby of the historic Commerce Bank in downtown Kansas City, where Harry Truman found a job as a young man.

Eula Duncan, a mother of four who is trying to get off welfare and get a job, whispered "Amen," as the president promised to give women on welfare a second chance and to get tough with the parents who refuse to support their children.

"We cannot permit millions and millions and millions of American children to be trapped in a cycle of dependency with people who are not responsible for bringing them into the world, with parents who are trapped in a system that doesn't develop their human capacity to live up to the fullest of their God-given abilities and to succeed as both workers and parents. We must break this cycle," he said.

The White House proposal would cut welfare benefits to immigrants, drug addicts and alcoholics, and would slash subsidies to wealthy farmers to finance its scaled-back and often-delayed plan.

In Washington, Republican Sen. Phil Gramm called the president's plan "limp" and said it does not meet the test of placing welfare recipients in "productive tax-paying jobs with a future."

"The plain effect of the president's proposal is to leave most welfare programs untouched while spending more on some and trusting bureaucrats to invent a handful of new welfare programs to take up the slack," Gramm said.

Opposition also came from a Democratic senator. Tom Harkin of Iowa, who is sponsoring his own welfare reform bill providing for individual welfare-to-work contracts, said the Clinton proposal resembles a New Deal program that promises government jobs. "What kind of nonsense is that?" he said. "We don't have the money for that."

The cornerstone of the president's plan is a two-year limit on cash benefits, an idea Clinton used to define himself as a new and centrist Democrat during his 1992 campaign.

But Tuesday's plan to translate his popular campaign promises to "end welfare as we know it" singles out the youngest mothers on the rolls of Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the joint federal-state welfare program that supports 5 million poor families.

And at the end of the decade, fewer than 8 percent of welfare recipients would actually be enrolled in a work program, although Clinton declared that his proposal would push 1 million parents into the work force by 2000.

The plan also pours far more money into child care, education and training — a total of $7 billion over five years — than into subsidized jobs, just $1.2 billion.

According to the proposal, women born after 1971 would receive the education, training, job placement and child-care services they need to become self-sufficient. Those who fail to find work before their cash benefits run out would be required to take subsidized or community service jobs paying the minimum wage.

Honored composer Henry Mancini dies at 70

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Henry Mancini, the much-honored composer whose American popular standards included the "Pink Panther" theme and Oscar winners "Moon River" and "Days of Wine and Roses," died Tuesday at age 70.

His death, from complications of liver and pancreatic cancer, came at his home and with his wife, Ginny, at his side, publicist Linda Dozeretz said. He had been ailing for several months.

Andy Williams, a close friend who made "Moon River" his signature song, said few composers had Mancini's way with a melody.

"I've probably sang 'Moon River' more than anyone else in the world and I never get tired of it. It's always fresh," Williams said in a telephone interview from his theater in Branson, Mo. "He was special and he'll be missed."

Flowers were placed on Mancini's star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Mancini appeared weak at a gala birthday celebration in April but expressed optimism that he could continue composing. He was working on a score for a Broadway version of "Victor-Victoria." Mancini and lyricist Leslie Bricusse won the Academy Award for their original score of the 1983 film that starred Julie Andrews and Robert Preston.

"The world has lost a huge talent. We've lost a very dear friend," Miss Andrews and her filmmaker-husband, Blake Edwards, said in a statement.

Mancini also won Academy Awards for the songs "Moon River" (1962) and "Days of Wine and Roses" (1963) and the score of "Breakfast at Tiffany's" (1962). He was nominated for Oscars 14 times.

He also was a prolific recording artist, collecting 20 Grammys and six gold albums. On television, he appeared on a half-hour musical series, "Mancini Generation," as well as numerous specials. His concerts sold out around the world.

But film scoring provided the foundation of his career. He wrote and conducted the music for more than 80 movies and earned a reputation for being fast and good.

In concerts, Mancini often played solos on the flute, a throwback to his earliest musical training.

Born in Cleveland on April 18, 1924, he was reared in the steel town Aliquippa, Pa. His father taught him to play the flute when he was 8, and at 12 Mancini started taken piano lessons. A few years later he was arranging music.

INS prepares for large-scale Haitian exodus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bracing for a large-scale exodus from Haiti, more than 60 U.S. immigration officers have assembled in Jamaica to begin implementing the new policy of offering a haven to Haitians fleeing political persecution.

An administration official said the operation in Kingston may be the immigration service's largest in the world.

But outside critics expressed concern that the "asylum interview" experiment may be inadequate.

Arthur Helton, director of migration programs at the Open Society Institute, said he believes that President Clinton may be left no choice but to intervene militarily if the Haitian exodus overwhelms the processing facilities.

Asked about that possibility, an administration official said the United States is planning on a larger-than-expected outflow, but he declined to specify the official projections.

Officials were being coy on Tuesday about when the shipboard processing center will open for business, apparently out of concern that a publicly announced target date could lead to a surge of refugees. Officials would say only that the processing center will open soon.

More than five weeks have passed since Clinton said he was suspending his policy of forcibly returning all Haitian boat people back to their homeland. The delay in getting the program off the ground has prompted some criticism that the administration is not serious about sparing political refugees.

Over 1,500 Haitian boat people have been repatriated without screening since Clinton's announcement.

Health reform moves in House; Senate votes questionable

■ Key House Ways and Means Committee votes 20-18 to kill GOP proposal to eliminate employer mandates.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — A House panel Tuesday narrowly voted to require employers to pay most of the cost of their workers' health-care premiums, while leaders of a key Senate committee told President Clinton they lacked the votes to pass any health-care plan.

The chairman of the Senate Finance Committee started closed-door negotiations to try to piece together a plan that will win enough bipartisan support to clear the committee.

In its first vote on the complicated health-care bill, the Ways and Means Committee, lead House panel on the issue, defeated, 20-18, a Republican proposal to eliminate the mandate on employers. Four Democrats joined all of the panel's Republicans in voting to strip the bill of the mandates.

Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Texas, acknowledged that the close vote was a good indication that the panel's acting chairman, Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., had been able to persuade a majority needed to push the bill though the committee. However, Andrews said he did not believe a bill that included the so-called "employer mandates" and price controls could get the 218 votes necessary to pass the House.

The Gibbons bill replicates the president's proposal that employers pay for 80 percent of health care premiums with individuals paying the rest. Small businesses with low-wage workers would receive government subsidies.

Democrats have argued that requiring employers to pay for insurance expands on a system currently in place and would avoid the need for a broad-based tax, which would otherwise be necessary to ensure that everyone had health insurance.

■ More nation news/5B

Gibbons said that without the requirement on employers, health care reform "would be dead." And he portrayed the vote on the move by Rep. Fred Grandy, R-Iowa, to eliminate mandates as a "drop dead, do-or-die amendment."

But Grandy said Congress could still pass meaningful reform without guaranteeing that everyone had health insurance. He and others said the Gibbons bill imposed too much government control over health care and would have a devastating impact on small businesses.

Some Democrats who voted for the measure said they were doing so reluctantly because of the potential impact on businesses.

"I am not a happy warrior," said Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas. But Pickle said requiring employers to pick up most of the health-care tab was the fairest way of achieving universal coverage because it builds on "the way we do business now."

The employer mandate has proved troublesome for the Senate Finance Committee, where Republicans and conservative Democrats have balked at the requirement for employers to pay.

Clinton met with the committee's chairman, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., and its ranking Republican, Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, and asked them to hold off voting on a plan that resembles the administration's proposal.

Moynihan, who acknowledged that there are not enough votes for any plan to clear his committee, said he would begin work today on a compromise proposal that would still meet Clinton's goal of universal coverage. Moynihan indicated that there will not be an official public vote on the preliminary version of the bill, saying the senators will "do it in the back room until we have rudiments of a bipartisan majority."

Packwood was blunt in his assessment that any bill that forces employers to pay for health care would be defeated in the Senate because of the intensity of the opposition to the measure. He warned that the president "cannot cram this down the throats of a vociferous group that does not want it."

In the meeting with the president, Packwood proposed an option that would scrap the employer mandates or any pledge to reach universal coverage for the next three years. If by that time a certain percentage of the population is still not covered, the president would submit a plan for obtaining universal coverage and the Congress would have to act on it within several months.

Midland receives tax rebate

■ Rebate check represents 3.57 percent increase over June '93.

Staff Report

The city of Midland received a check for $629,418 for its sales tax rebate for the month of June, representing a modest 3.57 percent increase over June of last year. That check was for $607,710.

The latest check brings Midland's year-to-date total to $5,050,874, or 5.66 percent more than the $4,779,935 that had been received by this time last year.

This month's checks include taxes collected on April sales and reported to the comptroller in May by businesses filing monthly tax returns.

Rebate checks are considered an accurate gauge of the state of the local economy. Statewide, checks were up 5.5 percent over June of last year.

Meanwhile, Midland County showed an even greater improvement over June of last year. This month's check was for $529,578, or a 36.39 percent increase over June '93, when the check totaled $388,258. For year to date, Midland County's total is $3,090,708, or 12.26 percent above last year's total to date, which was $2,752,955.

Other totals from area communities are as follows:

■ Andrews: $43,846 for this month; $48,942 for June of '93; down 10.41 percent; $365,050 for year to date; $351,076 for '93 to date; up 3.98 percent.

■ Big Spring: $224,439 for this month; $198,526 for June of '93; up 13.05 percent; $1,684,575 for year to date; $1,602,856 for '93 to date; up 5.09 percent.

■ Lamesa: $29,420 for this month; $33,559 for June of '93; down 12.33 percent; $291,788 for year to date; $291,781 for '93 to date; no statistical change.

■ McCamey: $6,127 for this month; $5,821 for June of '93; up 5.25 percent; $45,494 for year to date; $46,479 for '93 to date; down 2.11 percent.

■ Odessa: $562,513 for this month; $529,908 for June of '93; up 6.15 percent; $4,486,562 for year to date; $4,011,781 for '93 to date; up 11.83 percent.

■ Rankin: $1,466 for this month; $2,056 for June of '93; down 28.70 percent; $14,256 for year to date;

Odessa woman sues task force for false arrest

■ Odessan also names Ector County, Texas Narcotics Control Program, State of Texas in lawsuit.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

An Odessa woman has filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Midland claiming she was falsely arrested by the Permian Basin Drug Task Force.

The task force arrested Viola Olivas on March 22, according to the lawsuit. She alleges her civil rights were violated by the arrest.

She is suing the task force, Ector County, the Texas Narcotics Control Program and the State of Texas.

According to the lawsuit, Ms. Olivas was washing her car at an Odessa car wash when she heard someone yell "freeze" and discovered that a man, who didn't identify himself as a law-enforcement officer, was pointing a gun at her.

Ms. Olivas said another man, who also didn't identify himself, told her to drop to the ground. She said after she did that she was handcuffed and told she was under arrest for "drugs."

She claims the defendants failed to adequately supervise, train and discipline task-force officers and failed to implement or enforce sufficient policies and procedures to insure that citizens are not subject to wrongful arrest.

Ms. Olivas' lawsuit claims the arrest caused her pain, suffering, mental distress and anguish, as well as violated her civil rights to "be free from unreasonable and wrongful arrest ... and right of equal protection under the law."

She said she has suffered from sleeplessness, anxiety, depression and humiliation.

She claimed the officers falsely arrested her with malicious intent.

The lawsuit is asking for $200,000 in damages.

Task Force Commander Tom Finley was unavailable for comment.

Agencies request funding from block grant

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

Midland City Council members heard from agency representatives and the public to get input on how to distribute the city's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds this year.

Each year the city receives the federal funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to improve neighborhoods, especially in areas that would benefit low- to moderate-income residents.

This year, the city has been allocated $1,381,000, which is about 8 percent more than last year's total.

Tuesday's meeting was the first of two public hearings that are to be held before the City Council decides how the money will be spent.

The programs that are selected must be submitted to HUD by the end of August. The department then audits the allocations and programs.

The largest request — $440,000 — was made for park improvements. Chuck Swallow, assistant director of the city's Community Services Department, said about $400,000 of the requested money will be to continue the work on Reyes-/Mashburn/Nelms Park.

About $15,000 would be spent to convert a tennis court at Hidalgo Park and the remaining $25,000 would be spent on renovations at Sparks Park.

The second largest proposal was $375,000 for the city's street-paving program.

The council also heard from various agencies that are requesting funds:

Water Wonderland, Odessa Jaycees seek sponsors for planned July 4 fireworks display

■ Officials hope to make display largest in Southwest.

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Water Wonderland officials and Odessa Jaycees members are seeking sponsors to finance what they hope will be the largest fireworks display in the Southwest.

Park officials and representatives of the Jaycees said Tuesday that they are hoping to collect at least $25,000 this week to finance the fireworks display, set for July 4. They have already collected $7,500.

Charlie Notley, vice president of marketing for Water Wonderland, and Andy Ricks of the Odessa Jaycees, said plans are to turn the display into an annual event for West Texas.

Ricks said he has already ordered $7,500 worth of fireworks. The Jaycees' traditional supplier needs to give the manufacturer as much advance notice as possible for an additional order.

Notley said he hopes the fireworks will be the finale of a four-day event that will begin with a car, boat or motorcycle show on July 1, followed by a special event on July 2 and a Tejano music concert on July 3.

The July 4 fireworks display would follow an evening of races at the Wonderland Speedway and Miniature Golf, located at the north end of the park.

Owner Keith Grogan said the speedway will open June 25 for a trial run and will have a grand opening on July 4 weekend. He expects more than 100 cars from throughout the southwestern portion of the country to enter the races.

Notley said Midland County officials are assisting with security and control of the event; the Texas Department of Public Safety has been contacted because of the expected traffic..

"Because of the excellent view, we expect 20,000 to 30,000, many of whom will park along Highway 80 and its access roads," he said.

CAF deals with loss of aircraft to fires, crashes

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

A fire in a hangar near Conroe destroyed a replica of a Japanese Mitsubishi "Zero" naval fighter. Eighteen additional aircraft were destroyed in the fire, which razed the hangar.

The Confederate Air Force has recently been beset by the loss of vintage World War II aircraft in hangar fires and crashes.

The CAF, founded in 1957, has grown from its original North American P-51 Mustang fighter to its current 135 warbirds.

But, there have been more.

On Sunday, there were 136 CAF aircraft, including 80 warbirds in airworthy condition. Others are in restoration or maintenance.

Then a fire in a hangar near Conroe destroyed a replica of a Japanese Mitsubishi "Zero" naval fighter.

Eighteen additional aircraft were destroyed in the fire, which razed the hangar.

The CAF's authentic Zero is at the CAF hangar at Midland International Airport.

Earlier, on Memorial Day weekend, the CAF's sole Lockheed P-38 Lightning crashed into a cluster of mesquite trees after the twin-engine fighter lost power shortly after takeoff in an airshow outside of Breckenridge.

The pilot, Joe Orr, and mechanic, Lorie Stafford, survived. But the million-dollar Lightning — which was restored over a 10-year period by the CAF's Cen-Tex Wing in San Marcos — was heavily damaged.

The P-38 is restorable, according to Steve Miller, the CAF's maintenance director in Midland.

Restoration costs — counting aircraft parts and engines — are estimated at $250,000, Miller said in quoting Breckenridge restorer Nelson Ezell.

Ezell, who helped restore the CAF West Texas Wing's Helldiver, is to help restore the P-38 Lightning.

Miller said "the wing and the engine nacelles and the cockpit area are still pretty much in one piece. They are just beat up and bent ... torn up pretty severely. Both booms are broken off just aft of the engine radiators."

In landing into a cluster of mesquite trees, the P-38 "took out about a 100 yards of mesquite trees about four miles from the airport," Miller said.

"When he (the pilot) rotated at takeoff, the engines begin to miss and sputter and failed to produce power, basically," Miller said.

"The left engine quit completely, and the right still was kind of sputtering whenever it (the P-38) hit the ground.

Houston researcher seeks strep vaccine

By Ruth Sorelle
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — A researcher is doing preliminary work on a vaccine to prevent a potentially lethal bacterial infection that in its most severe forms can produce horrific symptoms, including destruction of flesh.

Dr. James Musser, an assistant professor at Baylor College of Medicine, said he is nowhere near perfecting such an immunization.

"If you could compare this to D-Day, we have just left England," he said.

Musser is working to develop a vaccine for streptococcus A, a bacterium that sends many U.S. citizens to the doctor's office at an annual cost of $2 billion, said Musser.

"Strep throat is the third most common cause of physician office visits in the United States," he said. "We really need a vaccine."

In its more severe forms, streptococcus can cause scarlet fever and rheumatic fever that affect the heart; sepsis, in which the bacteria run amok in the bloodstream; and necrotizing fasciitis, a destructive tissue infection. These forms of the infection are reported to have caused a dozen deaths in England this year.

Musser's work, funded by the National Institutes of Health and the American Heart Association, focuses on an enzyme that appears to be responsible for most of the flesh destruction. He and his researchers have had some success in work on animals.

For most, a streptococcus A infection means no more than a sore throat. Why some people develop a life-threatening infection remains a mystery that Musser and others in the field hope to sort out.

Such infections mysteriously come and go, Musser said. For the past couple of years, they have been increasing in the United States and Europe, he said.

In 1990, the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention studied an outbreak of streptococcal sepsis in the Denver area. Jim Henson, the creator of the Muppets, died that year of a bloodstream strep A infection that went out of control.

During World Ward II, experts estimated that there were 750,000 cases of acute rheumatic fever in military recruits in the United States and Canada, Musser said. The infection peaked in the late 1980s and 1990, he said.

"Now we are having another little peak," he said.

The CDC and state governments do not require that the disease be reported to health authorities, which makes it difficult to determine how many cases occur each year.

Musser estimated that 1,000 to 2,000 cases of the most severe forms of strep A occur in the United States annually.

Two types of streptococcus A have been associated with flesh destruction, he said. One is genetic type 1 and the other is genetic type 3. Musser has worked most with type 1.

He has followed the infection around the world, from the United States to Europe to Russia to Africa, the former Yugoslavia, India and even New Zealand. In each case, the bacteria involved was identical to that found in other parts of the world, Musser said.

Treatment is with intravenous penicillin, he said.

"Unfortunately, some patients can go downhill in as little as six hours," Musser said.

On Monday, he consulted with a Little Rock, Ark., physician about a patient admitted to a hospital there Friday. The patient's knee had become infected with the bacteria.

The patient, a woman, developed sepsis and was on a respirator, Musser said, adding, "She will be lucky to survive."

DEATHS

Edward Brumley

BIG SPRING — Graveside services for Edward "Edd" Brumley, 65, of Colordo City, father of Michael Brumley of Midland, are to be at 4 p.m. Thursday at Trinity Memorial Park in Big Spring with the Rev. Carroll Kohl of St. Paul Lutheran Church officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Myers & Smith Funeral Home and Chapel.

Brumley died Monday in an oilfield accident in Scurry County.

He was born Oct. 29, 1928, in Newport, Ark.

He lived in Big Spring until moving to Colorado City in 1990.

He was an oil company driller and trucker. He worked for Riley Drilling Co.

He was preceeded in death by his father, Randolph Brumley, and a brother, Bob Brumley.

Other survivors include his wife, Hannah Brumley of Colorado City; another son, Terry Brumley of Big Spring; a daughter, Jennie Watkins Nix of McAlister, Okla.; his mother, Mae Brumley of Big Spring; a sister, Thelma Ditto of Big Spring; four brothers, William Brumley and Buster Brumley, both of Lake Colorado City, James Brumley of Moody and Charles Brumley of Seymour; seven grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Ellen Barroso

HAYWARD, Calif. — Ellen B. Barroso, sister of Midlander Edna Wilson, died June 6 at her Hayward residence.

She was born Jan. 27, 1921.

Other survivors include another sister and a brother, both of Nevada; and several nieces and nephews.

DESTROY: CAF loses planes to fires, crashes

(From 1B)

"It's a million-dollar asset," Miller said of the Lightning. "It (has) depreciated pretty substantially ... We're picking up the pieces and moving on, but it's a pretty big hit — a pretty big blow."

In the Conroe hangar fire, Gary Hudson, pilot and sponsor of the destroyed Zero replica, also lost his North American AT-6 Texan trainer, according to Bob Rice — executive director of the CAF and the American Airpower Heritage Group.

The Zero replica, which appeared with other replicas and the authentic Zero in the CAF's "Tora! Tora! Tora!" combat reenactments, was a modified AT-6.

"Gary Hudson is one of our most dedicated CAF members," and is an active performer in the CAF's World War II airpower demonstrations, Rice said.

Hudson is leader of the CAF's VMB-612 Squadron, which also maintains the two-engine North American Aviation PBJ — the Navy's version of the old Army Air Corps B-25 Mitchell bomber of 1942 Tokyo Raid fame.

Fortunately, the PBJ — named "Devil Dog" — was at the CAF's Midland hangar at the time of the fire, Rice said.

Miller, noting the risks involved in aviation, said one person commented that, "'Well, I guess we need to stop putting them in hangars if they are burning up.'"

But, countered Miller, if the warplanes are placed "outside, a tornado would come along and blow them away."

Over the years, the CAF has lost other warbirds:

- Last year, the CAF lost its only British Supermarine Spitfire of 1940 Battle-of-Britain fame in a fire at the Canadian Warplane Heritage Museum Hangar at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada.
- The Spitfire, valued at $1.5-million, had just undergone restoration.
- More recently, the CAF's Wildcat fighter ground-looped in Virgina and is being repaired.
- An extremely rare Douglas A-20 Havoc bomber crashed during an airshow at Harlingen in the late 1980s. The pilot suffered a massive heart attack either before or after one of the plane's fuel tanks went dry.
- A restored Consolidated Vultee PBY Catalina crashed near the Texas Gulf Coast after the pilot flew the flying boat too close to the ocean.
- A Curtiss SB2C Helldiver crashed on land, was torn up, but was restored to flying condition.

Officials remove tags barring 'pep pills'

RICHARDSON (AP) — State health department officials Tuesday removed tags that had barred shipments of the diet supplement Nature's Nutrition Formula One to its nationwide distributors.

The tags were removed from boxes stored at the Richardson warehouse of Alliance USA, which manufactures Formula One. The move frees the company to ship to its 100,000 distributors throughout the United States.

The action followed the Texas Department of Health's decision to abandon its plans to issue administrative orders against the product.

Dr. David Smith, state heath commissioner, said the department has decided instead to pursue action in federal court.

The health department banned Formula One in early May after reports of illness from people who said they experienced a "speed-like high" from the product.

for $62,650 for the academy and $100,000 for the nursing home. She pleaded with the council not to deny the request for the fourth year in a row.

Sylvester Cantu, community development coordinator, said HUD previously denied the request because of the religious focus of the centers' by-laws and services that are rendered.

He said the centers would have to change to a more secular way of doing things in order to be approved by HUD.

- Lael Cordes-Pitts requested $20,000 for Casa de Amigo's Home Cleaning Program.
- The Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children requested $92,957 for renovations and expansion.
- The YMCA made several requests for funding, including $25,000 for its Senior Wellness Program; $25,000 for the Prime Time After-school Care Program; $25,000 for its Summer Child Care Program; and $22,880 for a new after-school and weekend program at Washington Recreation Center.
- Midnight Basketball program, $15,000;
- Southeast Senior Center Nutrition Program, $64,000;
- Southeast Outreach Center, $100,000;
- American Red Cross Learn to Swim Program, $20,143;
- city's lot clearing, demolition and target area code enforcement program, about $143,000;
- city housing services, $400,000; and
- CDBG administrative costs, about $250,000.

Fort Worth adopts teen curfew

FORT WORTH— Fort Worth will impose a crackdown on juveniles who are out late beginning July 5 after the City Council unanimously approved a citywide teen curfew Tuesday.

Council members also expressed strong support for a proposed anti-graffiti program that would include graffiti-removal operations five days a week, penalties for property owners who do not remove graffiti and restrictions on possession of spray paint by people under 17.

The curfew ordinance prohibits youths under 17 from being in public places from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday and midnight Friday to 6 a.m. Saturday and midnight Saturday to 6 a.m. Sunday.

City and law enforcement officials hailed the decision as the latest tool in tackling violence by and against juveniles.

"If parents either would or could do the job of keeping young people off the streets when they have no business being out there, then we wouldn't have to do it," Police Chief Thomas Windham said. "But the fact is, parents are not doing that."

Councilman Chuck Silcox said that with the deaths of seven juveniles in the first six months of this year, city officials must do everything in their power to stem the flow of violence.

"A child that could be out roaming the streets at midnight, two or three o'clock in the morning, has much more of a chance of getting injured (by) gang violence or other violences, just simply because they are out at a time that children don't need to be out," said Silcox, who represents much of southwest Fort Worth.

The council action comes two weeks after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal of a Dallas teen curfew that the Fort Worth ordinance is modeled after.

The only significant difference between the two ordinances is that Fort Worth city marshals and deputy marshals — whose chief duty includes issuing arrest warrants — will have the power to enforce the curfew ordinance. Dallas' ordinance allows only police officers to enforce its curfew.

In an informal work session Tuesday, council members indicated that they will approve the proposed graffiti-removal program, which also relates to juveniles.

Jan Hale, city administrative analyst and co-chairman of a graffiti commission, said council members are likely to consider adoption of the program within the next two weeks.

Under a project that would cost $68,450 annually, graffiti-removal crews would operate five days a week. People on probation for criminal offenses would provide free labor, operating under a paid supervisor hired by the city.

Property owners who did not remove graffiti within 14 days after being notified by city code-enforcement personnel could be fined up to $500. But the citations would be issued only as a "last resort," Hale said.

The city will provide free paint and free labor, if needed, she said.

The paint will be donated by paint manufacturers, said Dan Worthey, co-chairman of the Mayor's Anti-Graffiti Inner-City Clean-Up, a volunteer organization that has led graffiti-removal efforts.

Another proposed ordinance provides a fine of up to $500 for possession of spray paint by those under 17.

Officials look into possible link between killings, satanic worship

PECOS (AP) — Authorities are investigating whether satanic paraphernalia found in the home of a 28-year-old man is connected to the stabbings of the man's mother and sister.

Robert Carrasco Chavarria, 28, of Pecos was charged with capital murder after telling police he killed his mother and sister, Feliz Carrasco Chavarria, 68, and Dora Chavarria Machuca, 43.

"We have not linked this crime to anything satanic. However, we are looking to see if there's any connection," Pecos Police Capt. David Montgomery said.

Ritualistic and satanic materials found in Chavarria's residence included satanic symbols and words such as "Lucifer" on the walls, three "double-six" dominoes on a [illegible]ble and a satanic bible.

A "boom box" with satanic music was found covered with blood, officials said.

Police said the two women had just returned from a shopping trip around 7 p.m. Saturday when they were attacked. They had numerous stab wounds in the face and neck.

City evicts indigent residents of underpass shantytown

DALLAS (AP) — To the people living there, it was a home. To city officials, it was an eyesore, health risk and violation of the law.

Dallas police on Tuesday cleared out the shantytown where about 50 indigents had lived underneath Interstate 45 near downtown.

Sgt. Jim Chandler said about 25 people were still living under the highway when police began ordering the residents to leave about 7:30 a.m. Within three hours, all of the homeless people had left, he said.

"Virtually no one is here now," Chandler said.

Health and human services workers transported some residents to shelters. Others found temporary housing in apartments provided by the city, were given bus tickets out of town or simply returned to the streets.

Sanitation workers moved in later in the day to clear away the wood, cardboard and plastic shacks that they had called home.

Most left without resistance, Chandler said, though one man was arrested on a misdemeanor charge of refusing to identify himself to police officers.

But even as they prepared to leave, residents criticized the city's eviction order.

"In America, it can't be a crime to be poor," said resident Ronald Smith. "Why can't we sleep under a bridge in our own country?"

For months city officials had been trying to clear out the shantytown, located just east of downtown. Earlier this month, police began planning to evict or arrest those who remained beneath the bridge, but the American Civil Liberties Union sued to block the campaign.

A federal judge ruled the city could move the homeless people under a criminal trespassing law so long as the statute was applied to all people who trespass on municipal land.

"If we are alerted to other problems, we'll move to do the same thing," said Mark Flake, a spokesman for the city. "It's not like we're just singling out this one place."

The Dallas Department of Human Services estimates there are about 4,000 homeless people either on the streets or in shelters each night in the city.

Chandler said officers would remain at the shantytown throughout the day Tuesday to continue enforcing the evictions. In the future, he said the trespassing law would be enforced by officers as they encounter people living under the highway.

Funding for abstinence program back in bill; conservatives claim victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans were claiming a victory for family values Tuesday after raising a ruckus over the Clinton administration's attempt to eliminate $6.7 million in funding for teen programs that promote sexual abstinence.

House Democrats agreed to put the disputed funding back into an appropriations bill after two Republicans, Rep. Lamar Smith of Texas and Sen. Slade Gorton of Washington, attacked the administration last week.

Standing in the shadow of the Capitol, the lawmakers accused the White House of promoting contraceptives at the expense of abstinence education. They were joined in their protest by eight conservative groups, including the Christian Coalition, the U.S. Catholic Conference and Concerned Women for America.

President Clinton's 1995 budget proposal didn't include $6.7 million funded the year before for the Adolescent Family Life program. The fact that the budget did include some $50 million for youth contraceptive services sparked Smith's ire. "What kind of message are we sending to our young people?" he said then.

'This is a victory for traditional values and a victory for good old common sense.'

—Lamar Smith

The funding was inserted Tuesday in the House appropriations bill that funds the Labor Department as well as the Department of Health and Human Services, which administers the Adolescent Family Life program. The $252.3 billion appropriations bill was approved Tuesday by the House subcommittee, with action now moving to the full committee and then the House floor.

On the Senate side, Gorton will seek to have the $6.7 million reinserted in that chamber's appropriations package for the Labor and HHS departments.

Rep. Neal Smith, the Iowa Democrat who chairs the appropriations subcommittee that writes the Labor-HHS bill, agreed to put the $6.7 million back in after receiving a written request to do from 73 members of Congress.

"This is a victory for traditional values and a victory for good old common sense," Lamar Smith said Tuesday. "It shows that Congress has enough faith in America's young people to offer them more than just contraception."

And, he added: "If we're going to spend $50 million a year on contraceptive services, at a very minimum we should also be telling teen-agers that abstinence is still a better way to go."

Widow of slain Scotsman agrees to settle

HOUSTON (AP) — The widow of a Scotsman shot to death in Houston has agreed to settle a lawsuit she filed against the homeowner who killed her husband.

Andrew De Vries, 29, was shot to death Jan. 7 after he climbed over a fence and banged on the back door of Jeffrey Agee's home in the middle of the night. Agee told police he thought De Vries was a burglar.

De Vries, apparently lost after a night on the town with another Scottish businessman, started knocking on doors in the upscale Houston neighborhood in the middle of the night.

His wife, Allison De Vries, filed a wrongful death lawsuit in February after a Harris County grand jury refused to indict Agee in the slaying.

She had asked for several million dollars in the lawsuit, but sources said she agreed to settle for about $270,000, The Houston Post reported Tuesday.

An assistant for Agee's attorney, William Book, said Tuesday the settlement reached several weeks ago was confidential. Mrs. De Vries attorney, Windle Turley in Dallas, was in a deposition Tuesday and could not be reached by The Associated Press to comment.

Book told the Post on Monday his client was relieved the lawsuit had been settled.

"He's glad it's over," Book said. "He doesn't feel like he did anything wrong."

Book added that though the "legal process is over, he's still going to have to live with what happened."

It was around 4 a.m. on Jan. 7 when Agee heard someone knock at his front door. Police have said De Vries rang Agee's doorbell twice, hiding each time the 40-year-old geologist came to the door.

De Vries then jumped a backyard fence and banged on the glass doors, police said. Agee fired three times through the doors, hitting De Vries twice.

De Vries and Sydney Graves, the other Scottish businessman, were being taken home by two people they had met that night. De Vries became upset when he thought the couple was driving the wrong way back to the hotel and he got out of the car.

Graves also got out, and the two started knocking on doors.

Teen pleads innocent to killing 54-year-old neighbor

LUBBOCK (AP) — A 15-year-old boy standing trial for murder had a fixation on guns and considered himself "Billy the Kid," a prosecutor said Tuesday.

But the teen-ager's attorney says his client had been traumatized by sexual abuse from the slain man's estranged wife.

The boy pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges he killed Jackie Condren, his 54-year-old neighbor in Levelland, last September.

The teen-ager and a 13-year-old friend are accused of entering Condren's home and shooting him in the back Sept. 19.

Hockley County Attorney Pat Phelan said the defendant killed Condren for his car.

"He had told friends he intended to do it," Phelan said as the trial opened Tuesday. "The evidence will show it was a coldblooded, premeditated, senseless murder."

In January, the case twisted bizarrely when Johnell Condren was indicted on two counts of aggravated sexual assault with a child. The indictment charged Mrs. Condren, 40, with having sex several years ago with the older juvenile accused of killing her husband.

Senate votes to conduct narrowly focused Whitewater hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted on straight party lines Tuesday for a Democratic resolution to begin narrowly focused Whitewater hearings by July 29, rejecting Republican demands for a broad inquiry.

The straight party-line vote of 56-43 came after a fiercely partisan debate on Whitewater.

The hearings are to probe the propriety of meetings between Clinton administration officials and banking regulators, and the death of White House Deputy Counsel Vincent Foster, who handled some Whitewater matters for the president.

But they will not, as Republicans wanted, delve into President and Mrs. Clinton's Arkansas land investment, known as Whitewater.

Hearings into that subject will be held only after special counsel Robert B. Fiske Jr. completed his criminal probe of that subject, Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, insisted.

Fiske has said he would be finished with the Washington phase of his work — looking into the meetings with regulators and Foster's death — by the end of July.

The hearings issue has tied up the Senate since the middle of last week with partisan rhetoric, and Whitewater debate continued after the vote — all part of an unrelated airport construction bill.

Hearings to check propriety of meetings between administration officials, bank regulators and death of Foster.

The Whitewater resolution was sponsored by Mitchell, who said Republicans were only interested in "a political circus." But across the country, he said, "nobody's paying any attention to this."

He said GOP senators were trying "to damage the reputation of the president and first lady of the United States. That's what this is all about."

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., the chief Republican supporter of more comprehensive hearings, countered that Democrats were trying to cover up a scandal.

"Would Democratic colleagues accept hearings so limited in scope if there was a Republican in the White House?" he asked.

Sen. Christopher Bond, R-Mo., said the Mitchell resolution would "continue the stonewalling" by Democrats. He called the plan "the Mitchell fig leaf amendment."

Mitchell's resolution calls for the hearings to be conducted by the Senate Banking Committee.

The hearings are to focus on:

- Communications between White House officials and banking regulators relating to the Clintons' former Arkansas real estate investment. The focus would be on the contacts, not the investment.
- The National Park Service police investigation into the death of White House Deputy Counsel Vincent Foster, who handled some Whitewater matters for the president.
- The way White House officials handled documents in Foster's office after his death.

AMA calls for more descriptive movie, TV ratings

CHICAGO (AP) — Letters and numbers aren't enough, the American Medical Association says in calling for more descriptive movie ratings.

It wants ratings to target more age groups, describe violent acts and extend to television programs. It also wants to include future entertainment technologies and to apply ratings to video and music recordings.

At their annual five-day meeting, AMA policymakers voted to support overhauling the current rating system. The action follows recent congressional attention to violence on big and small screens.

"It is not censorship. It is helping parents parent," said Dr. Robert E. McAfee, an AMA trustee and the group's president-elect.

"Given the ubiquitousness of violent programming that can come into your home, that any 4- or 5-year-old may witness . . . we have every right as physicians to begin to do prevention."

The push for expanded and extended ratings came from the AMA's trustees. The AMA's 430 policymakers on Tuesday adopted their recommendations without debate.

Now the 294,000-member AMA, the nation's largest doctors' group, will use its clout to try to get the recommendations on ratings implemented.

Among other proposals, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., has gone as far as pushing a monitoring system, though he has said he would ask his colleagues to abandon legislation if the industry voluntarily monitors itself and makes annual reports.

In Washington on Tuesday, the computer games industry's principal trade group, the Software Publishers Association, said it will develop a ratings system to voluntarily label the sex and violent content of about 2,000 new games that come to market each year. Ken Wasch, its executive director, the group will also try to coordinate its ratings with those of video game makers.

Babbitt: Changes will make species act more flexible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt announced changes Tuesday that will give scientists, states and the public a greater say in how the Endangered Species Act is carried out.

In the 20 years since the act was passed, he said, there was almost "no attempt to broaden the science basis for decision making; in fact (there was) a fairly begrudging and narrow view of the need for broad involvement."

The Interior Department said the changes "will make the act more effective in recovering listed species and enhance its flexibility for businesses and private landowners."

The act, passed in 1973, is designed to protect and encourage recovery of species facing extinction. The Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Commerce Department's National Marine Fisheries Service have the primary responsibility.

A focus of the new policies is closer cooperation between the two agencies, as well as with state and local government agencies, nongovernmental groups and private citizens.

The act, said Babbitt, has "been rigidly isolated in a federal sort of track, without a generous expansive approach to all the governmental units that have such a huge stake in conservation of natural resource and land use planning."

The policy directives "constitute our first, but by no means our last, administration response to some of the issues involved in carrying out the act," Babbitt said.

The new policy establishes a peer review process in which expert opinions of three independent specialists will be sought. The same process will be used for plans to recover endangered species.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Welcome an opportunity to take charge of a tough project. Greater job responsibilities and additional income go hand-in-hand! Short business trips will yield better results than long ones. Working conditions show slow but steady improvement. A bonus is likely at Christmas. Romance remains an important factor in your personal plans. Be more discerning when choosing a partner professional, or otherwise. Refuse to be rushed into making a permanent commitment.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: baseball player Wade Boggs, actress Helen Hunt, country singer Waylon Jennings, artist Saul Steinberg.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be a professional! Set aside differences or hurt feelings and negotiate a compromise. Your stock with VIPs soars when you finalize an important agreement.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The emphasis now is on cultivating new allies. Cooperation and teamwork are the keys to success. Helping someone in need wins you a friend for life. Be generous.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Look for ways to put some pizzazz into your daily routine. Enlisting the cooperation of co-workers and family members will boost production. Learn to do more with less.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It pays to be extra-cautious. Check credentials and get promises in writing. Rely on expert advice when making investment decisions. A one-on-one appointment could work out better than a group meeting.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Although a co-worker's advice sounds like criticism, it contains a wise lesson. Success comes from being a team player, not from acting like a star.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Positive changes result from a new partnership or pooling of talents. You do not have to socialize with co-workers but you should strive to achieve better rapport during office hours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your considerable charm and energy attract backing for a new project. Rely on ESP to guide you in the right direction. Going along with the crowd could sink your ship. Stand up for your beliefs!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Although old acquaintances can open new doors for you, there will probably be strings attached. Hunches can pay big dividends now. Follow your instincts!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Isolate yourself and you will be able to accomplish much more. Get a new project underway. Evening is starred for romance. Be subtle. Asking too many personal questions could make someone uneasy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Taking your mate or partner for granted would be a mistake. Mend your ways! Efforts to achieve a better job will pay off handsomely. You may prefer a regular paycheck to being self-employed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Teamwork will make this a memorable day. Research and careful attention to detail uncover valuable information. Listen carefully — otherwise, you could misconstrue what someone is trying to tell you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You instinctively know what has to be done. Do it! Communication with that special person becomes easier. Romance may have to wait if you have a lot of duties.

TODAY'S CHILDREN: Restless but super-adaptable, these Gemini can accomplish great things when they are focused. If unable to concentrate, however, they may spin their wheels. The friends they make in school could later help them find fantastic success in the import/export business. These Gemini love to travel and will want to obtain their merchandise first-hand.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♠

The outcome of many hands depends on declarer being able to maintain trump control. South failed in that task on this deal and the result was a four-trick swing!

This was a normal five-card major sequence and North judged well to jump to four hearts on the strength of an excellent trump holding. Playing four-card majors the auction would have been even shorter, since we would open the North hand one heart to facilitate a rebid. The final contract would have been the same, as would the opening lead.

The spade lead was won in dummy with the ace and three rounds of clubs provided a spade discard from the table. Now declarer cashed the high trumps and all would have been well had the suit broken 3-2. But when East showed out on the second round, declarer was in trouble.

A diamond to the king lost to the ace, West drew the remaining trumps and the defenders took the rest of the tricks. Down four.

There's some justification for this line at matchpoints; at rubber bridge there is none. Declarer should have been content to make the game, conceding two trump tricks and a diamond.

After winning the spade lead and taking a spade discard, declarer should cash just one round of hearts before starting on diamonds. The defenders can do no better than take the ace of diamonds and force dummy with a spade. Declarer simply continues diamonds. West can ruff and revert to spades, but declarer can ruff in either hand, cash the other high trump and simply continue diamonds until West ruffs again. The defenders cannot score more than three tricks.

Nicholson, Danson, Henley help save land around Walden Pond

BOSTON — Henry David Thoreau probably wouldn't have been able to afford a ticket. Still, Jack Nicholson, Ted Danson and Don Henley drew more than 600 guests who each paid $250 to save some land celebrated by the philosopher of simplicity.

Jack Nicholson and others drew more than 600 guests.

The event staged Monday night at the Park Plaza Hotel was organized by the Walden Woods Project, which is conserving land around Walden Pond. Thoreau lived in a cabin by the pond in Concord from July 4, 1845, to Sept. 6, 1847, and wrote about it in his 1854 classic "Walden."

Thoreau, who spent $28.12 and a half-cent building the cabin, said of himself: "My greatest skill has been to want but little."

A year ago, the project bought land by the pond with $3.5 million, using a $1 million contribution from the state plus a $2.5 million loan from the Trust for Public Land.

Money raised Monday will pay off $1 million left on the debt and conserve more land.

ALBANY, N.Y. — With Father's Day looming, Broadway producer David Merrick was spared a close call with unwanted paternity Tuesday when the state's highest court ruled he cannot be forced to adopt two children.

The New York Court of Appeals ruled against the 82-year-old Merrick's estranged wife, Etan, who wanted Merrick to follow through an adoption set in motion before their marriage soured.

Merrick's lawyer, Alan Dershowitz, had argued that a man couldn't be legally compelled to be a father.

Lawyers for the children and Mrs. Merrick said the children would lose lots of money if Merrick did not complete the adoption.

Merrick is already the father of two adult daughters.

Ruling 5-1 the court, reversed a lower court's decision that Merrick could not back out of the adoption.

ROCHESTER, Minn. — It's a long way to go for a checkup but King Hussein will only need to come back once a year, a Mayo Clinic spokesman said as Jordan's monarch left Tuesday with his health termed excellent.

NEW YORK — Speaking of enhanced voices, AT&T has signed Whitney Houston to promote its new voice enhancement service.

Whitney Houston to pitch AT&T's voice enhancement.

The long distance phone company said Tuesday that the five-time Grammy Award winner has signed a one-year contract to be featured performer in its national ad campaign for AT&T TrueVoice.

Precise monetary notes struck in the deal were not disclosed.

AT&T TrueVoice, which started last year, improves sound quality on long-distance calls. It is now available in 60 percent of the country and should be in all markets by years' end, the company said.

Houston's last venture into advertising was in a Diet Coke ad in the mid-1980s.

LONDON — While his marriage may be up in the air, Britain's Prince Andrew is moving on the career front. He's getting a new job as a senior helicopter pilot, the Ministry of Defense said Tuesday.

Marriage up in air, but Andrew moves on career front.

The 34-year-old middle son of Queen Elizabeth II and estranged husband of the former Sarah Ferguson will become senior pilot of 815 Squadron in February, the ministry said. This means the prince gives up command of the minesweeper HMS Cottesmore.

A Navy spokesman said the reassignment was neither promotion nor demotion. "As a lieutenant commander you do a number of jobs," the unidentified spokesman said.

The squadron is headquarters for all Lynx helicopters flying with Royal Navy frigates and destroyers. The 500-member helicopter squadron is the largest in Europe.

The main job for Andrew, who flew a helicopter in the Falklands War, will be overseeing other pilots' flying standards.

Baptists elect president who's soft on moderates

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A conservative pastor who promised to reach out to the church's disaffected moderates was elected president Tuesday of the Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

The Rev. Jim Henry's victory was a setback for the Baptists' conservative leaders, who had endorsed the Rev. Fred Wolfe as their candidate.

Henry, an Orlando pastor, defeated Wolfe, head of the convention's Executive Committee, 9,876 votes to 8,023 votes. It was the first close presidential race since 1990, the last time moderate Baptists mounted a serious challenge to the conservative leadership of the convention.

This time, both candidates were theological conservatives, but Henry supported less antagonistic relations with moderates, promising to reach out and seek reconciliation.

"Let's move on ahead," Henry said after his election. "Anything that we can do to create unity without sacrificing principle, let's do it."

He was supported by Russell H. Dilday Jr., whose firing in March as president of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, shook up many conservatives as well as moderates. The seminary trustees said Dilday assailed individuals who believed in the literal truth of the Bible, but opponents said he was let go for criticizing the "hardball politics" of the current conservative leadership.

In his nominating speech for Henry, the Rev. Jack Graham of Prestonwood Baptist Church in Dallas said Henry is a committed conservative who "will not polarize us."

In an Associated Press interview before the election, Henry said his presidency would focus on "healing what has been hurt and saying let's get on with the program."

The election results were seen as a setback for convention leaders who have presided over a conservative takeover of the convention since 1979.

Henry, whose Orlando church has been the biggest giver to the denomination's national causes over the last three years, made one of his campaign themes the need for reconciliation.

Marine recruiter brushed me off in '75, Hillary Clinton says

WASHINGTON (NYT) — First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton said Tuesday she tried to sign up for military service in 1975 but got brushed off by a Marine recruiter who told her: "You're too old, you can't see — and you're a woman."

At the time she was 27 years old and teaching at the University of Arkansas Law school in Fayetteville. Her boy friend, Bill, also was on the faculty and the two had been dating since attending Yale Law School together. They were married Oct. 11, 1975, in Fayetteville, a year before Clinton's election to his first public office as state attorney general and a year after his first campaign loss, a 1974 race for Congress.

"I wanted some experience serving in some capacity in the military," Mrs. Clinton told a luncheon audience of some 300 people, including members of Congress, military representatives and supporters of the Women in Military Service Memorial Foundation. She noted that she was a lawyer and wanted to find out about possible active duty, or the service in the reserves or the National Guard.

"So I went to our local recruiting office — and it was just my bad luck that the person sitting there wasn't a day over 21," she recalled.

"He said: 'How old are you?'

"'Twenty-seven,' I replied."

"He looked at me — I didn't wear contact lenses then and I had these very thick glasses — and he said, 'How bad is your eye sight?'

"I said, 'Pretty bad.'

"He said, 'How bad?'

"So I told him. And he said, 'Yup, that's pretty bad.'"

She said the recruiter turned her down, telling her: "You're too old, you can't see — and you're a woman."

The young Marine added: "Maybe the dogs will take you," Mrs. Clinton said, referring to a derogatory term some Marines use to describe the Army.

"I said, 'This is not a very encouraging conversation — maybe I'll look for another way to serve my country.'"

Mrs. Clinton's anecdote brought a loud ovation from the audience attending the luncheon, which was honoring pioneering women in the military.

Mrs. Clinton is honorary chairman of the foundation, which is raising funds for a memorial in Arlington Cemetery to women who have served in the military. The luncheon was sponsored by Good Housekeeping Magazine and AT&T.

Later, Marine Corps spokesman Chief Warrant Officer Bill Wright issued a statement: "We won't attempt to dispute the first lady's recollection, but if she was ill-treated by a Marine recruiter in 1975, it certainly is unfortunate, unprofessional and a mistake we regret."

CINCINNATI — Running back Lorenzo White, who played for the Houston Oilers last season, had a tryout with the Cincinnati Bengals on Tuesday. It was one of the auditions White is doing for several NFL teams.

The Oilers paid White $1.5 million last season. He has reportedly been offered half that wage by the Oilers for this year.

The Bengals said they have not begun serious negotiations with White or his agent, Bob Huebner.

The Bengals' off-season free agent signings have included running back Steve Broussard, wide receiver Tim McGee, safety Louis Oliver, offensive linemen Darrick Brilz and Eric Moore, linebacker David Braxton and tight end Troy Sadowski.

The Bengals said Tuesday they have signed college free agent Jake Kelchner, a quarterback from West Virginia. Kelchner helped lead the Mountaineers to the Sugar Bowl last season, passing for 10 touchdowns and running for four more.

BB salary cap

NEW YORK — Owners did exactly as expected on Tuesday, proposing a salary cap to the Major League Baseball Players Association in exchange for a 50-50 split of revenue and elimination of salary arbitration.

Under the plan, which the union is expected to resist, players would become eligible for free agency after four years of major league service instead of the current six. However, players' old clubs would be able to match the highest offer until a player has six years of service.

Management negotiator Richard Ravitch estimated players will receive 58 percent of $1.72 billion in revenue this season — about $1 billion, including benefits. He said the proposal, a seven-year contract that would be phased in over the first four seasons, is needed because of a growing diparity in the payrolls between clubs from large and small markets.

New York finally wins Stanley Cup

■ The Rangers defeat Vancouver to win their first Stanley Cup title since 1940.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Fifty-four years of waiting, 54 years of wanting, are over. The New York Rangers are Stanley Cup champions at last!

The Rangers capped an extraordinary championship series by beating the Vancouver Canucks 3-2 Tuesday night in Game 7.

As the tense final seconds ticked off the clock at Madison Square Garden, where the home team had never before hoisted the most famous trophy in team sports, 18,200 raucous fans released more than five decades of pent-up passion.

Fireworks exploded, smoke filled the arena, everyone wearing white jerseys hugged, and fans exchanged high-fives and screamed as rock music blared from the Garden audio system.

The announcement that Rangers defenseman Brian Leetch won the Conn Smythe Trophy as playoff MVP was barely audible over the triple-digit-decibel celebration of the end of hockey's cruelest curse.

Finally, 4,232 games after last winning Lord Stanley's cup in 1940, the Rangers tasted sweet success again.

The fourth championship for New York, which also won in 1928 and 1933, ended the league's longest title drought. That dubious distinction now belongs to the Detroit Red Wings, who haven't won since 1955.

Canseco's bat flies again

■ Jose Canseco is leading the sports page not supermarket tabloids after the lost season of 1993.

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Jose Canseco seems to have found the formula. His bat speed increases as his driving speed declines.

He's managed to stay away from the speeding tickets, car crashes and other exploits that made him a supermarket tabloid regular. He's recovered from elbow surgery, and he leads the Texas Rangers with 19 homers and 62 RBIs.

"After last year, a lot of people wrote me off," Canseco said after driving in a career-high eight runs Monday. "It's been nice to come back and show the fans that I've got something left."

His lost season of 1993, shortened by an ill-advised stint as a relief pitcher, seems now only a bad memory.

Canseco hit three homers Monday night — including a mammoth 480-foot shot estimated to be the longest recorded homer in Arlington — powering the Rangers past the Seattle Mariners 17-9.

This time last year, Canseco was a major question mark. A one-inning stint as a relief pitcher in a 15-1 loss to Boston on May 29 — an appearance he wanted — resulted in what was eventually diagnosed as a torn ligament in his

Janzen rolls after Buick victory

■ Hot and cold Lee Janzen could become first player to win U.S. Open title after winning the week before.

By Alan Robinson
AP Sports Writer

OAKMONT, Pa. — Lee Janzen will trade 50 weeks of misery for two weeks of memories anytime.

Janzen nearly won the Buick Classic at Westchester last June, walked away with the U.S. Open at Baltusrol a week later, then all but disappeared from the PGA money winnings list for the next 11½ months.

He didn't have a Top 10 finish for 50 weeks, missed four cuts and didn't make the Top 20 this year until placing fourth in the Kemper Open a week before Westchester.

OK, so what's up?

How can a golfer be so good when he's hot and so cold when he's not? Is he the prototype big-game player, an athlete who can't get interested or enthused enough for the routine but needs a challenge like the Open to get his game — and himself — going?

"For whatever reason, my game has turned around," Janzen said. "I think maybe you just get so fed up with what you are doing that you get to the point where something has to happen."

What he certainly didn't expect to happen was winning the Buick, the same tournament he almost won a year ago. But he did.

No golfer has ever won the week before the U.S. Open and the Open, too.

"Yet," Janzen said Tuesday.

It wasn't a statement of overconfidence or braggadocio or a bold prediction, but one of fact. When the

Lucas takes Philly helm

By John F. Bonfatti
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA — John Lucas took charge of the Philadelphia 76ers on Tuesday and his assessment of the situation was honest.

"We won't win the NBA championship next year," he said, "but we hope to be a better team."

Lucas doesn't have to do all that much to accomplish that goal as the 76ers have lost 160 games in failing to make the playoffs the past three seasons.

Owner Harold Katz signed Lucas to a four-year contract as vice president of basketball operations, general manager and coach.

The general manager's job opened last month when Jim Lynam left to coach the Washington Bullets.

Lucas, 40, who resigned as coach of the San Antonio Spurs last week after a falling out with management, will take the coaching job away from Fred Carter. He had a 32-76 record in 1½ seasons with the 76ers.

Philadelphia has promising 7-foot-6 center Shawn Bradley, emerging forward Clarence Weatherspoon and not much else. Still, Lucas talked optimistically about the team's future.

"I don't think we're a bad basketball team," he said. "I think we need to work at being a better basketball team."

In his first NBA coaching job, Lucas

Germans loosen up with rock band

By Fred Lief
AP Sports Writer

■ World Cup Roundup

Hard rock is the music of choice of defending champion Germany. It's not clear what sort of music is coming out of the Brazilian camp, only the sounds are ominous.

With soccer's showcase three days away, the German team is loosening up as evidenced by its thumping team video "No Pain, No Gain" and an appearance by the German rock band The Scorpions.

The Brazilians, who ordinarily sway to samba, know from pain all right, but have precious little gains to show for it.

Ricardo Gomes, a fullback and cornerstone of the defense, was cut from the team Tuesday after pulling a thigh muscle in a tuneup game against El Salvador on Sunday. His removal suddenly raises questions about the defense of the three-time champions.

Few worries at the moment for Germany. The German Soccer Federation threw a party in Westmont, Ill., on Monday night. Among those on hand were The Scorpions, who took a break from their U.S. tour to join the German team, which opens the tournament Friday against Bolivia in Chicago.

The German team traditionally records a World Cup song before each tournament.

Captain Lothar Matthaeus said Gomes would have been sidelined for at least a few weeks.

The injury is the latest in a series of casualties to beset the defense: Mozer (hepatitis), Aldair (knee), Branco (back) and Ricardo Rocha (muscle pains).

This is more dirge than samba for Brazil.

In other World Cup news:

—Nigeria's soccer team received a meager World Cup sendoff, with not even the players' families attending the airport farewell.

"This is very sad," star scorer Rashidi Yekini said Monday from Lagos International Airport. "I have never seen this kind of departure before."

The players waited for four hours on the runway while the flight crew got U.S. visas for the team.

Opposition groups this week have called for protests and strikes against the military government, which nullified a presidential election a year ago and has become increasingly repressive.

STANLEY: Rangers win

(From 1C)

Three stars who had not shined recently — Leetch, Adam Graves and Mark Messier — came through when it mattered most for the Rangers, who also got a 28-save performance from Mike Richter.

Leetch finished the playoffs with 11 goals and 34 points, second-highest ever in both categories for a defenseman. He is the first American-born player to win the Smythe.

"The Stanley Cup is what we all play for and the Cup here in New York is just amazing," Leetch said. "This was the toughest game I've ever been a part of, just so tough to win.

"It wasn't the 54 years, it was just never having been through it before. Mark kept telling me the fourth game would be toughest you'll ever have to win in your life, and it was."

Messier, the team captain and one of the greatest clutch players in hockey history, held the 32-pound Stanley Cup aloft to the delight of the crowd. He handed it to Leetch, who in turn handed it to Jay Wells. The 35-year-old defenseman, who had never won a title, kissed the trophy before passing it on.

"I'm so numb, I don't know what to say," said Messier, who was on five Stanley Cup champions at Edmonton. "This is completely different — the pressure, the magnitude of being under the microscope, erasing all the ghosts."

Vancouver, still without a championship since joining the NHL in 1970, had the Rangers scrambling in the third period to protect the prize.

Martin Gelinas just missed the net with Richter out of position with 6:40 to go; about a minute later, a shot by Nathan Lafayette hit the post.

In the end, however, the Canucks couldn't complete what would have been one of hockey's all-time comebacks.

They trailed three games to one before winning twice to force only the 10th Game 7 in Stanley Cup finals history. But New York, by virtue of having the league's top regular-season record, got to play Game 7 at the Garden and was determined not to become just the second team ever to blow a 3-1 finals lead.

Vancouver had the NHL's 14th-best record but earned its second trip to the finals by upsetting Calgary, Dallas and Toronto in the first three rounds. The Canucks were swept by the New York Islanders in 1982.

"Vancouver played beautifully," Richter said. "The sign of a winner is to come back under adversity."

According to legend, the infamous Stanley Cup Curse was born after the Rangers' success on the ice and at the gate forced the Garden's original hockey tenants — the New York Americans — to fold in 1942. Americans founder Red Dutton said the Rangers wouldn't win another title in his lifetime.

Dutton's jinx worked overtime, well past his death in 1987. In fact, until this year, the Rangers got as far as the finals only three times (1950, 1972, 1979) since Dutton unleashed his hex.

Rivals reveled in the Rangers' misery.

The derisive chant "19-40! 19-40!" has been heard in opponents' arenas for years. It became especially popular on Long Island in the 1980s, when the Islanders — who didn't even join the NHL until 1972 — won four championships.

But Tuesday night, the fans at the Garden got to chant: "1994! 1994!"

New York was in control most of the game Tuesday night but Vancouver made it close on Trevor Linden's power-play goal, his second of the night, with 15:10 to go.

But the Rangers clamped down on defense, Lafayette hit the post, Richter turned aside the Canucks' final seven shots on net and the celebration began.

The Rangers scored twice in the opening period, the only time all series they had a two-goal first-period lead.

Leetch voted Stanley Cup MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — He is a defenseman, committed to the blue line, dedicated to keeping things orderly in his own end of the ice.

And yet, Brian Leetch caused more mayhem in the offensive zone than anybody else in the Stanley Cup playoffs and that's why he won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the MVP.

It was Leetch who scored the first goal Tuesday night, his 11th of the playoffs and the one that started the New York Rangers off to their 3-2 Cup clincher.

And it was Leetch who seemed to be on the ice all the time, buzzing at the blue line, looking for a break that might produce another scoring chance.

He never had a better one than the one he converted midway through the first period. And when he got the chance, he made very sure to make it count.

Sergei Zubov and Mark Messier created the opportunity in Vancouver's end with some pinpoint passing. In an instant, Leetch had the puck on his stick, perched on Kirk McLean's doorstep.

Like a draftsman bent over a blueprint, Leetch measured his shot oh so carefully. McLean was down and out of position, easy pickings. Leetch, though, took his time.

With a packed Madison Square Garden in a frenzy, Leetch waited and waited, an eternity it seemed, 54 years to some, perhaps. Finally satisfied that he had a wide-open shot, he pulled the trigger and the Rangers were on the way to their first Cup since 1940.

It would not be easy. Vancouver crept back, first to 2-1, then to 3-2. In the third period, Leetch's concentration turned to his own end. With under 14 minutes to play, he broke up a 2-on-1 rush in the Rangers end. Two minutes later, he ran Trevor Linden off the puck.

As the clock ticked down, Leetch logged more and more ice time. With 91 seconds to play, he dove at the corner of the net to kick the puck out of danger. A moment later, there was Leetch again, lofting the puck out of his end of the ice, doing what defensemen do best.

Finally it was over and Leetch lifted the Stanley Cup over his head. He was the first American and sixth defenseman to ever win the MVP trophy.

He finished as the leading scorer in the playoffs with 11 goals, 23 assists and 34 points. He was a plus-19, meaning the Rangers scored 19 more goals than they allowed when he was on the ice.

Russians crazy over Stanley Cup Finals

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian pride was so thick in the downtown Sports Bar on Tuesday night, even Pavel Bure couldn't have sliced through it.

"Our Russian guys are on both teams and they don't hold back," said Pavel Milyutin, 22, who came to the bar to play pool and talk hockey.

"They're like the cosmonauts. Heroes."

Russians won't be able to watch the seventh and deciding game of the Stanley Cup finals until Wednesday night, when it will be shown nationwide. But many have been avidly following the series between the Vancouver Canucks and the New York Rangers in newspapers and delayed late-night broadcasts.

"Russian Attack on the NHL Throne," the daily Izvestia trumpeted last week. The newspaper noted that not only is this the first year Russians have played in the championship, "they're the ones who have made all the difference."

Russians have played in the NHL for several years, but only one has played on a Stanley Cup winner. He was John Gottsellig, who was born in Odessa, Russia, and played on the Chicago Blackhawks when they won the Stanley Cup in 1934 and 1938.

Bure is a star in Moscow as well as Vancouver. The son of Olympic swimmer Vladimir Bure, he was a standout at Moscow's Central Red Army club, and jerseys with his name are sold at flea markets and tourist shops.

CUP: Ireland to start 34-year-old goalie

(From 1C)

Bulgaria on June 21 in Dallas.

—The wife of German goalkeeper Bodo Illgner says soccer's establishment is antagonistic to women. In the latest tiff over whether sex can harm player performance on the field, Bianca Illgner spoke in response to the ban on wives and girlfriends at the German team hotel in Chicago.

"I find it antiquated how women are handled," she told the German magazine Stern. "The way the soccer world is, I find it very hostile to women."

She visited her husband at training camp in Germany two weeks ago, drawing criticism from players and officials.

Said the goalkeeper: "There's no argument supporting the separation."

—Ireland goalkeeper Packie Bonner starred for his country in the 1990 World Cup and will be in goal Saturday against Italy. He is 34 years old and doesn't want to hear any talk about getting old.

"Some of the world's finest goalkeepers — Dino Zoff, Peter Shilton and Pat Jennings — were approaching 40 when they quit," he said. "I can do the same."

—The whole world's watching, and Pasadena, Calif., wants its due. City officials were insulted when World Cup organizers put up a giant sign at the Rose Bowl indicating the site of the tournament final is part of Los Angeles.

Pasadena is a half-hour drive from Los Angeles. The Pasadena City Council ordered the sign removed.

"The audacity to put that sign up at the site of the Pasadena Rose Bowl goes beyond the pale," Pasadena City Councilman Bill Thomson said.

JANZEN: Golfer rolls

weather is hot, his game is on and the putts are dropping, the 29-year-old Janzen is a threat to win any tournament, even another U.S. Open.

Can he keep this roll going, win another U.S. Open and join Curtis Strange (1988-89) and Ralph Guldahl (1937-38) as the only repeaters in 50-plus years?

"Who knows?" he said. "What we try to do once we're playing well is maintain that focus and whatever we're doing in our swing, try to figure out what the key is and engrave it in our mind to keep it going as long as possible."

If his recent history is an indication, that means at least one more week.

But while his 1993 Open championship was a shocker to the golf world, since he hadn't even made the cut in his three previous Opens, it was no less so to Janzen.

Suddenly, he was a big name in golf, an Open champion, not just another face in the crowd but a recognizable one. Dealing with that attention proved as distracting and troubling to Janzen as his disappearing golf game.

"I guess it's the expectations of other people, of what they think you might do, of what they think you are going to do now because you win the U.S. Open," Janzen said. "They expect you to maybe win more tournaments or win more majors or whatever. That is probably the toughest thing. If you don't play well, you hear people asking what is wrong."

Now he can answer what is right.

"I knew it would eventually turn around," he said. "I knew it wouldn't last."

LUCAS: Ex-Spurs head to coach Philadelphia

took over a Spurs team that was 9-11 and it immediately won 24 of the next 27 and finished 49-33. This year, the Spurs were 55-27 but were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs by the Utah Jazz.

Lucas said he decided to come to the 76ers because he wanted the chance to make all the basketball decisions.

"That is a role I did not have an opportunity to be in where I was," he said. "San Antonio was a great opportunity for me. Upper management wanted to go in another direction. They needed an opportunity to have a clean start. I needed an opportunity to have a clean start also."

Katz said Lucas' coaching record speaks for itself and he's confident Lucas will do well with the two other jobs.

"John has run his own business for the last eight years," Katz said. "John knows business. We sat down (Monday) and I can honestly tell you John knows more than some of the guys who had this job before."

Lucas, a recovering drug addict, founded a chain of drug treatment centers in Houston. He also owns the Miami Tropics, a summer pro team that has featured recovering addicts.

"I'm grateful for people like Harold for giving guys like me opportunities," Lucas said. "I don't look back at where I came from. I'm real grateful about that, but I'm looking at the future and where I'm going."

Lucas said the 76ers, 25-57 last season, will play an up-tempo, pressing style.

"I believe in winning. I believe in effort and I believe in playing hard," he said. "We're going to turn this around. When? That's a good question, but we're going to do the work to get it turned around."

He said Bradley, who weighs 253 pounds after gaining 16 pounds since the end of the season, "has a chance to be a great player" but that the 76ers need a strong inside player to complement him.

"We've got to be patient with him," Lucas said. "Let's let him be who he is and put people around him that make him a better player without all the pressure of being a great player right away."

Lucas said he would talk with former 76ers guard Maurice Cheeks about possibly being an assistant coach. He also said he would talk to Carter about remaining with the organization.

Bagwell drives in three in Astro victory

Associated Press

■ NL Roundup

SAN FRANCISCO — Jeff Bagwell drove in three runs with two doubles and a homer Tuesday, leading the Houston Astros to a 7-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Bagwell, who is hitting .647 against the Giants this season, increased his league-leading RBI total to 62, going 4-for-5 with three runs scored.

The Astros broke open a tie game in the fifth inning with consecutive doubles by Chris Donels and Bagwell to make it 4-3. Ken Caminiti walked to chase Giants starter Salomon Torres (2-5), and Bryan Hickerson came on and gave up a run-scoring single to Luis Gonzalez. Tony Eusebio's sacrifice fly scored Caminiti for a 6-3 lead.

Consecutive two-out doubles by Hickerson and Darren Lewis cut the lead to 6-4 in the sixth, but right fielder Mike Felder ended the threat by making a diving catch on pinch-hitter Mark Carreon.

In the seventh, Bagwell hit his 18th homer, his third this season and fourth in his career off Hickerson.

Brian Williams (4-2) went 5 2-3 innings for his fourth consecutive victory. He allowed four runs on eight hits.

John Hudek pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Houston scored two runs in the first as Bagwell and Gonzalez each had an RBI double.

Marlins 7, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS — Knuckleballer Charlie Hough confounded St. Louis, throwing a five-hitter and striking out a season-high nine as Florida ended a five-game losing streak.

Kurt Abbott broke a 2-for-17 slump with his second grand slam of the season as the Marlins, who had lost six of their previous seven, broke the game open with a five-run seventh.

Hough, 46, struck out the side in the first inning, struck out two more in the fifth and didn't allow a runner past second base in his first complete game since July 25, 1992 and his first in 64 career starts in the National League.

Hough (5-4), who won for the first time in five starts, hasn't allowed the Cardinals an earned run in 24 innings over the last two seasons.

Phillies 3, Mets 2

NEW YORK — John Kruk broke up Dwight Gooden's shutout bid with a solo homer in the seventh, and Gooden had a costly throwing error later in the inning that helped Philadelphia beat New York.

Gooden, who struck out 10 for the first time in more than two years, retired 14 batters in a row between the first and sixth innings, but the Mets led only 1-0 entering the seventh.

Kruk's homer, his second of the season, came on the first pitch of the seventh. Two outs later, Milt Thompson had an infield single and Gooden (2-3) threw the ball into right field, enabling Thompson to go to second. He scored on Kim Batiste's single.

Philadelphia got its third run in the eighth. Mariano Duncan singled with one out, and he was safe at second base when Kruk's potential double-play ball was thrown wide by second baseman Jeff Kent. Daulton followed with an RBI-single.

Braves 3, Rockies 1

ATLANTA — Kent Mercker struck out nine and allowed only three hits in seven innings, leading Atlanta past Colorado.

It was Atlanta's 11th win in its last 14 games and came one night after the Rockies beat the Braves for the first time in 17 attempts.

Expos 12, Pirates 7

MONTREAL — Pedro Martinez pitched five solid innings and Larry Walker hit a two-run triple before both were ejected during a fifth-inning brawl in Montreal's victory over Pittsburgh.

Marquis Grissom was 3-for-3 with two walks and four runs and Sean Berry had three RBIs as the Expos scored a season-high 12 runs.

The brawl began when reliever Blas Minor hit Walker on the hip with his first pitch in the fifth. Walker charged the mound and landed three punches before the teams piled on. The game was delayed for more than 10 minutes.

Six players were ejected: Kevin Young, Ravelo Manzanillo and Rick White of Pittsburgh and Martinez (6-3), Walker and Jay Bell of Montreal.

In the previous half-inning, Carlos Garcia — who broke up Jeff Fassero's no-hitter in the ninth inning Monday night — was hit by Martinez's first pitch.

Angels outduel Kansas City for 1-0 win

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Chuck Finley pitched a seven-hitter and outdueled Mark Gubicza as the California Angels scored an unearned run to beat the Kansas City Royals 1-0 Tuesday night.

Finley (5-5) raised his career record in Kauffman Stadium to 5-2, walking one and striking out eight. It was his second shutout of the season and 10th of his career, and fourth complete game.

Gubicza (4-6) struck out a season-high eight, walked only one and gave up eight hits in 7 2-3 innings.

The Angels scored a run in the sixth without a hit, but were helped by two errors. With one out, Spike Owen walked and stole second, then went to third on catcher Mike Macfarlane's throwing error. With two out, shortstop Greg Gagne bobbled Tim Salmon's grounder, allowing Owen to score.

Twins 5, Red Sox 4

BOSTON — Minnesota won its sixth straight game and sent Boston to its sixth consecutive defeat, taking advantage of three errors for a the victory.

The Twins scored unearned runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings. Dave Winfield broke a 4-4 tie in the fifth with a sacrifice fly.

Baltimore's Lonnie Smith slides safely into third as New York's Wade Boggs waits for the throw in the second inning Tuesday.

The Red Sox lost their eighth in a row at Fenway Park. They have dropped 11 of their last 13 overall.

Third baseman Scott Cooper, shortstop John Valentin and first baseman Mo Vaughn made the Boston errors. Vaughn let Cooper's throw go through his glove in the fifth, allowing the tying run to score and setting up Winfield's sacrifice fly.

Indians 7, Blue Jays 5

CLEVELAND — Albert Belle and Eddie Murray started the eighth inning with home runs on consecutive pitches as Cleveland beat Toronto for its 13th straight home win.

The streak at Jacobs Field matches the Indians' best since they won 14 in a row at Cleveland Stadium in 1954 — the year of their last pennant. They also won 13 straight home games in 1965.

Belle and Murray each drove in three runs off Juan Guzman (6-6). Belle hit an RBI single in the first, then added an RBI double in the third before Murray followed with a two-run single.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE — Wade Boggs singled home the go-ahead run against Lee Smith, capping a two-run rally in the ninth inning that lifted New York over Baltimore.

Smith (1-1) blew his third save chance in 27 opportunities. The Yankees beat Baltimore for the second straight day, giving them consecutive victories for the first time in June.

Athletics 5, White Sox 2

CHICAGO — Steve Ontiveros pitched one-hit ball for seven shutout innings and Oakland beat Chicago.

Ontiveros (2-2) gave up a leadoff single to right by Julio Franco in the second inning, then retired the next 18 batters. He struck out four and walked one.

The White Sox, who finished with five hits, scored in the eighth off John Briscoe. Warren Newson homered in the ninth off Dennis Eckersley, and Chicago went on to load the bases with two outs. Eckersley retired pinch-hitter Frank Thomas on a routine fly ball for his seventh save.

Scott Sanderson (4-2) went 3 2-3 innings. He gave up five runs and eight hits.

California trades Smith to Baltimore

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels granted the wish of outfielder Dwight Smith on Tuesday, trading him to the Baltimore Orioles in exchange for a player to be named later.

Smith hit .262 with five homers and 18 RBIs for the Angels. In his final at-bat with the team, as a pinch-hitter, he homered during their 12-7 loss to the Kansas City Royals on Monday night.

To fill Smith's spot on their roster, the Angels activated infielder Rex Hudler from the 15-day disabled list.

CANSECO: Texas slugger back to old form

Major reconstructive surgery in which a tendon from his right forearm was used as a graft, was performed on July 9 and Canseco's season was history.

In 1993 Canseco played a total of 60 games, hitting .255 with 10 homers and 46 RBIs, amid whispers that his skills had greatly deteriorated. Acquired from the Oakland A's in a blockbuster deal on Aug. 31, 1992, Canseco's bat speed was missing and his attitude was less than ideal.

Following surgery, Canseco dedicated himself to his rehabilitation program and by last November, Rangers officials saw a player who reminded them of the guy who had 42 homers, 124 RBIs and 40 stolen bases for Oakland in 1988.

"I saw him in December and I said then that he was back," Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said. "That wasn't B.S. I've been in the game 20 years and I know when the bat is flying through the strike zone."

The early-season long-ball drought by two-time defending American League home run champ Juan Gonzalez has placed more focus on Canseco, who sat out the previous three games with a hip injury.

Missing from the Rangers lineup on Monday night were power threats Will Clark (stomach virus) and Dean Palmer (ribcage muscle).

"I think you see what a difference he makes in our lineup and to our team," Kennedy said. "With Clark out of there, Jose really picked up his game."

Canseco's deeds inspired others. Gonzalez and Ivan Rodriguez had consecutive homers in the eighth, Gonzalez's two-run shot giving him eight for the year. David Hulse, Esteban Beltre, Rusty Greer and Billy Ripken all had three hits in the Rangers' 22-hit attack, which tied a club record for a nine-inning game.

"Everybody was rooting for him to go out of the yard. Everybody dreams about doing that. Heck, I'd take his night for a week of games," Hulse said.

Canseco's 5-for-6 game was the best of his career and his 14 total bases set a club mark. When he struck out in the eighth against Goose Gossage in an attempt for his fourth homer, the Ballpark in Arlington crowd of 38,363 recognized his big night with a standing ovation.

"It means all the work in the off-season has paid off," Canseco said. "The fans have been great, awesome. Even when I was struggling and striking out three times, they were behind me."

Navratilova begins final grass stint

Associated Press

■ Tennis

EASTBOURNE, England — Martina Navratilova began her farewell to grass-court tennis Tuesday with a 6-3, 6-3 victory over German Christina Singer that put her into the third round of the Eastbourne grass court tournament.

Navratilova, who since first playing in the Wimbledon warm-up tournament in 1974 has won the title 11 times, got off to a shaky start against 98th-ranked Singer, losing her first two service games. On each occasion, however, the 37 year-old American broke straight back.

"I thought I was doing pretty well handling the emotion, but then when I stepped on the court it hit me and I thought; 'Oh my God.' It was that and the fact I haven't played singles for a while which was the reason for my slow start," Navratilova said.

Third-seed Kimiko Date of Japan lost a marathon battle with 55th-ranked Silvia Farina of Italy, 5-7, 6-3, 10-8, and sixth-seeded Sabine Appelmans of Belgium was upset 6-4, 6-3 by 106th-ranked Nicole Arendt of the United States.

Navratilova lost her serve to trail 0-2, but won six of the last seven games as she eased into the third round, where she will face Italian Laura Golarsa.

This is Navratilova's last year on the circuit and her appearance in Eastbourne this week has drawn a large number of her fans.

"I have made a lot of fans over the years here, some are not alive anymore," Navratilova said. "I remember a couple of old women sitting in the same spot in the last couple of years, but they are not around. It's definitely a passage of the time here."

Martina Navtratilova won her match at the Eastbourne grass court tournament in preparation for Wimbledon.

Manchester Open

MANCHESTER, England — Second-seeded Patrick Rafter of Australia served 20 aces Tuesday to beat Britain's Chris Bailey 6-3, 6-7 (7-5), 6-3 in the first round of the Manchester Open grass-court tournament.

Another seed, No. 4 MaliVai Washington of the United States, took only 56 minutes to defeat Brett Steven of New Zealand 6-1, 6-2. No. 3 Andrea Gaudenzi of Italy was upset 6-4, 6-3 by Venezuelan Maurice Ruah.

Washington won five straight games to go 5-0 up in the first set, and another five in a row to round off the match.

His second-round opponent will be Karel Novacek from the Czech Republic, who defeated South African Grant Stafford 6-3, 6-2.

Halle Grand Prix

HALLE, Germany — Marc Goellner upset last year's finalist, Andrei Medvedev of the Ukraine 6-2, 7-6 (10-8) Tuesday in the opening round of the Halle Grand Prix.

Goellner, who helped Germany win the Davis Cup in 1993, warded off a set point in the second-set tiebreak before stopping the second-seeded Medvedev.

Jonathan Stark ousted Karesten Braasch of Germany 6-3, 6-2, while Germany's Bernd Karbacher upset France's Guy Forget 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 (7-4).

Defending champion Henri Leconte of France beat Daniel Vacek of the Czech Republic, 6-1, 7-6 (6-2), while seventh-seeded Alexander Volkov of Russia outlasted Germany's Hendrik Dreekmann, 6-3, 3-6, 5-7.

No. 1-seeded Graf to open Wimbledon with Lori McNeil

■ Luck of the draw favors Martina Navratilova in her final appearance on the grass courts.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Steffi Graf will face a familiar threat when she opens defense of her Wimbledon title next week.

Tuesday's draw matched the top-seeded German against serve-and-volley expert Lori McNeil, the last person to beat Graf in a first-round match.

By contrast, the luck of the draw favored Martina Navratilova for her final Wimbledon appearance. The nine-time champion will play a wild card ranked No. 461 in the first round, and won't have to worry about Graf until the final.

In the men's field, Pete Sampras will open defense of his title against fellow American Jared Palmer, No. 56 in the rankings.

McNeil, ranked 20th in the world, beat Graf in straight sets at the Virginia Slims Championships in New York in November 1992. The 30-year-old Texan is also on a roll, having won the Wimbledon warmup tournament last week at Birmingham.

"It's definitely a challenge, and I always look forward to a challenge," said McNeil, who has failed to live up to past expectations at Wimbledon, never advancing past the quarterfinals in 10 appearances. "I'll give it everything I have and see what happens."

History, not to mention the best forehand in the game, will be against McNeil. No defending women's champion has ever lost an opening match at Wimbledon, and the victory in New York has been McNeil's only triumph over Graf in nine career meetings. The two have never met on grass.

If Graf, a five-time Wimbledon champion, gets past McNeil, she has a relatively comfortable path through the next rounds. Then, in the semifinals, she could run into French sensation Mary Pierce, who beat her in straight sets in the French Open semifinals.

Pierce, however, also has a potentially difficult opponent in the opening match of her Wimbledon debut. She'll face fellow Frenchwoman Julie Halard, ranked No. 19 in the world.

Navratilova opens her 22nd Wimbledon against 19-year-old Briton Claire Taylor, the second-lowest ranked player in the women's draw.

"I've never heard of her," the Czech-born American said after winning a second-round match at Eastbourne. "But now that you've told me, I'll scout her."

Taylor, who used to stand in line with her father to get tickets to see Navratilova play on Centre Court, said she wouldn't be intimidated by the No. 4 seed.

"I'm going to absolutely love it," Taylor said. "You can't get a better draw than that. I think she's great, but I'm not going to be in awe of her. I want to be her equal. I don't think the players fear her, but they admire her."

Navratilova won't face a proven grass-court player until the quarterfinals, when she may have a chance to avenge her semifinal defeat last year to Jana Novotna, the No. 5 seed this year.

Sampras has a potentially tricky fourth-round opponent in 15th seeded Yevgeny Kafelnikov, a rising Russian star who came within two points of beating Sampras at the Australian Open. Kafelnikov, however, has never played at Wimbledon and does not like grass.

Sampras' projected quarterfinal opponent is French Open champion and No. 4 seed Sergi Bruguera, a Spanish clay-court specialist who has won only one match at Wimbledon.

In the semis, Sampras could face two-time champion and No. 3 seed Stefan Edberg. Edberg, however, must first recover from a month-long slump that has seen him make early exits from three consecutive tournaments.

In the quarters, Edberg is projected to face sixth-seeded Todd Martin of the United States.

Second-seeded Michael Stich of Germany, the 1991 champion, opens against a qualifier.

Dan O'Brien won the 100 meters portion of the decathlon at the USA-Mobil Track and Field Championships Tuesday in Knoxville, Tenn. His time of 10.31 seconds is his career fastest legal time. Matthew Shelton, left, finished behind O'Brien in his heat of the 100.

Dan puts on show, Dave a bust

■ USA-Mobil Track

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Just like two years ago, the Dan and Dave Show was a bust.

This time, however, Dan O'Brien was hot — so hot that he set a world best for the first day of the decathlon — and Dave Johnson was not.

After five events at the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships at the University of Tennessee's steamy Tom Black Field on Tuesday, O'Brien was overpowering and Johnson was 14th in the 22-man field.

The confident, poised O'Brien, the world record-holder, two-time world champion and defending national champion, had 4,738 points halfway through the two-day, 10-event competition. That broke the previous record of 4,720 he set en route to his world record of 8,891 points at Talence, France, in 1992. O'Brien also had 4,747 in 1991 at New York, but the mark was not accepted because of the lack of a wind gauge.

The struggling, uncertain Johnson, seeking his fifth national title, had 3,991 points.

This was their first confrontation since their celebrated meeting at the 1992 U.S. Olympic trials at New Orleans, where O'Brien failed to make the American team after no-heighting in the pole vault and Johnson went on to win and eventually earn the bronze medal at the Barcelona Games.

Prior to the trials, television commercials featuring the two decathletes had posed the question, "Who is the world's greatest athlete — Dan or Dave?" And the answer was, "To be settled in Barcelona."

With O'Brien out of the Games and Johnson injured, the issue never was truly settled. Since then, the two, while still rivals and friends, have gone their separate ways.

One month after the Games, O'Brien set the world record and last year won his second straight world title, while Johnson missed the 1993 season after undergoing surgery on the navicular bone in his left foot.

In addition, they no longer are tied to the same shoe company that produced the popular TV commercial.

O'Brien set the tone in Tuesday's first event, the 100 meters. After false-starting twice, and two others false-starting once each, the composed O'Brien blazed down the track in 10.31 seconds, an American record and the second-fastest legal decathlon 100 ever.

Johnson, meanwhile, had the slowest time, 11.22, his slowest in ~~seven years~~.

The performances gave O'Brien a 1,020-812 lead over Johnson.

The results were similar in the second event, the long jump. O'Brien soared 25 feet, 7½ inches, while Johnson went only 22-9¾. That gave O'Brien a 418-point lead over Johnson, who was 19th at that point.

"Those two events proved that he's far ahead of everybody," said Mike Keller, one of O'Brien's coaches. "That's pretty good for this time of year. But September is what we're looking to."

September is when the world's best multi-event athletes will gather at Talence for their annual international competition.

"By September, I think he will be ready and get a good chance at 9,000 points," Keller said. "That meet will be set up perfectly for him. Everyone will be there and the atmosphere will be right."

Until then, O'Brien will compete in one more decathlon, next month at the Goodwill Games at St. Petersburg, Russia.

Gordon crew chief angry with finish

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

■ NASCAR

Ray Evernham said it's a good thing nobody took his blood pressure after Sunday's race at Pocono International Raceway.

The crew chief for the Hendrick Motorsports team that fields Chevrolets for 22-year-old Jeff Gordon was furious over a confusing and controversial episode at the end of the UAW-GM Teamwork 500.

Gordon was third on the track, for a while was dropped to eighth and wound up sixth.

"When I left the track (after meeting with NASCAR officials)," Evernham said, "I didn't really know where we had finished, but I knew we didn't finish third.

"I really didn't know that we had officially finished sixth until Monday morning when I talked to our scorer," he added.

The confusing situation unfolded like this:

Gordon was running third when the final caution of the race came out for Mark Martin's blown tire with seven laps remaining. All of the leaders, including Gordon, pitted for fresh tires.

The driver who only two weeks earlier won his first Winston Cup race, came out of the pits in third but, working his cold tires a little too hard, spun into the wet infield grass.

By the time Gordon was able to extricate his car from the mire, five of the lead lap cars had passed him. But, with the caution flag still flying, he moved right back into the pack and resumed his place in third.

NASCAR officials ordered Evernham to tell Gordon to fall back to eighth. The angry Evernham didn't do it.

The laps were winding down and the other drivers and more than 70,000 spectators were anxiously waiting to see if the race would be restarted or finish under yellow.

NASCAR amended its position, telling Evernham to put Gordon behind sixth-place Mark Martin.

Gordon's multi-colored DuPont Lumina never moved and NASCAR finally restarted the race with one lap remaining and watched Gordon follow winner Rusty Wallace and runnerup Dale Earnhardt across the finish line.

When asked why he moved back up to third after spinning, Gordon, who insisted he never knew about the controversy until after the race, said, "All I know is that you can't pass under caution, so you can't lose a spot under caution,"

"They told me to go back up there (to third) and I did, and no one else ever said a word to me on the radio," Gordon added. "Ernie let me in. They all let me in."

By Tuesday, Evernham was downplaying Sunday's angry reaction, saying, "It's just like a football coach walking up and down the sideline and throwing his clipboard when a play doesn't work. You don't see (New York Knicks coach) Pat Riley stay on the bench when he doesn't agree with a call. It's tough to keep your emotions in check."

CBA moves to Chicago

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — After six years in Texas, the Continental Basketball Association's Wichita Falls Texans are relocating to Chicago following the sale of the team.

Major Networks, an investors group from Chicago, bought the club for $800,000, Texans owner Lanham Lyne said Monday. The team will be renamed the Chicago Rockers.

Lyne said he has heard that the new owners will move the team to the Rosemont Horizon in Illinois, "although that's not a definite. If not, I think they're looking at an arena near Oakbrook, Ill., on the west side of Chicago."

"Their main deal is syndicated radio programming," Lyne said of the new ownership.

Lyne and a group of local investors purchased the team in 1990 from Steve Baxter and Bret Hanes, who moved the Mississippi Jets to Wichita Falls in 1988 from Biloxi, Miss.

The Texans won the CBA championship in Lyne's first year as owner.

"We thought it was something very good for the city, but not enough people wanted it. That's what it boiled down to," Lyne said.

"Most people understand it was a business decision. We've lost money every year we've had the franchise and tried several different things, but none ever worked."

The CBA Board of Directors levied a $150,000 fine for relocating the franchise at a late date in the season, Lyne said. He said the new owners and he would "work together" in paying the fine.

The Chicago Rockers, coached by John Treloar, will be part of the 16-team league.

Teams in the CBA play 56 games in a regular season that spans November through March. Officials are still considering sites for the Rockers' home games.

The league, the official development league for the NBA, has advanced the careers of NBA players John Starks, Anthony Mason and Jo Jo English.

Other teams in the CBA league include Rockford, Ill., Grand Rapids, Iowa, Pittsburgh, Omaha and Oklahoma City.

Prices gain

NEW YORK — Crude oil prices broke through the $19 level during Tuesday's trading, but settled just short of the mark in a day largely absent of significant market-moving news.

West Texas Intermediate for July delivery settled at $18.95 per barrel, up 16 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange. Much of the day's trading was driven by purchase orders triggered by the oil market's late rise the day before, analysts said.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $17.75 a barrel.

It was crude's highest close since finishing at $19.01 last June 29. Crude has been bouncing around its highest levels in highs for the past month.

The market rose Tuesday despite widespread expectations of an increase in weekly supply figures. Continued tight supplies in the Midwest, with pipelines flowing at capacity, have underpinned much of the market's gains in recent weeks.

After the market closed on Tuesday, the American Petroleum Institute said oil stocks last week fell 2.21 million barrels to 326.63 million. Supplies were off slightly in the Midwest.

The API said refineries increased their operations in the past week to 96.2 percent of capacity from 95.1 percent the week before. Gasoline supplies were up 2.45 million barrels to 219.21 million. Distillates, which include heating oil, fell 732,000 barrels to 113.80 million.

Natural gas prices were mixed, with contracts for delivery in July settling at $2.130 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 0.9 cent. Later delivery months were lower.

Stocks advance

NEW YORK — Reassuring inflation news inspired a bond rally that helped hoist the Dow Jones industrial average to its highest close since late March.

The broad advance on Wall Street was led by hard-charging cyclical stocks. The Dow industrial average climbed 31.71 to 3,814.83 as investors snapped up shares of companies particularly sensitive to changes in economic activity.

It was the first time the popular blue-chip indicator has finished above 3,800 since March 24 when it closed at 3,821.09. Since that time, worries about rising interest rates and inflation have tempered investors' buying interest.

Gainers led losers by about 11 to 7 on the New York Stock Exchange where trading volume came to 288.38 million shares. On Monday, 243.38 million shares changed hands on the Big Board's floor.

A range of stock measures moved ahead. The NYSE composite index rose 1.34 to 255.10 and Standard & Poor's 500 stock index added 3.27, rising to 462.37.

Met Life, Travelers to combine

Two of biggest names in insurance to form largest health-care business in nation

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Two of the biggest names in insurance, Metropolitan Life and Travelers, are combining their health-care businesses in a new company they said would be the largest of its kind in the nation.

The merger, announced Tuesday, will include 13 million customers and bring in total premium revenues of about $17.6 billion a year. The revenues and number of customers will make it the biggest health care insurance company in the country, the companies said.

The new business, which doesn't have a name yet, will cut costs and boost profits by speeding up conversion of traditional health insurance policies to cheaper managed care programs, executives said. That could eventually mean cheaper premiums for customers.

Managed care programs, which include health maintenance groups and local networks of independent doctors, have grown rapidly in recent years as employers try to cut workers' spiraling health care costs.

Those programs save money by combining large numbers of customers to allow for bulk discounts with doctors, hospitals, drug companies and other health care providers.

Unlike traditional health insurance, which allows customers to choose their own doctors and hospitals, managed care restricts their choices.

"It's a time of great change and we think we are in the best position to meet those changes with a very powerful organization we're creating here," said Harry Kamen, chairman and chief executive officer of Met Life.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and Travelers Inc. currently operate managed care programs in most states, but analysts said they've lagged behind competitors.

"Over time, the hope is if they get more of the market, you should see either a decline in premiums or at least a substantial slowing of increases as they pass some of these cost savings onto their subscribers," said Bernard McDonagh, an analyst with Piper Jaffray in Minneapolis.

The new company will be owned equally by Met Life and Travelers. Met Life, which has the larger share of customers at 7.1 million, will contribute $280 million to the deal.

Travelers, which has 5.9 million health care customers, will contribute $370 million.

Shares in Travelers gained $2 to $35.50 on the New York Stock Exchange on Tuesday. MetLife, as a mutual company, is owned by its policyholders.

European phone companies to buy 20 percent of Sprint

NEW YORK (AP) — The state-run telephone companies of France and Germany said Tuesday they would buy 20 percent of Sprint Corp. for $4.2 billion, a major move toward creating a global telecommunications empire.

The deal, expected for weeks, could take more than a year for regulators to approve. It immediately aroused protests from critics ranging from rival AT&T to France's biggest labor federation.

For Sprint, the deal is a chance to catch up with AT&T Corp. and MCI Communications Corp., which already have some international deals.

For Deutsche Telekom and France Telecom, it provides a toehold in the United States, the largest phone market in the world.

In time, just a handful of global telecommunications companies may emerge, a change that could mean some upheaval in countries where state-run phone systems are an important source of national revenue.

"By 1998, the remaining monopolies in Europe will also be eliminated," Helmut Ricke, chairman of the management board at Deutsche Telekom, said in Bonn.

The three companies are aiming for new and more efficient services for businesses and consumers and want to be carriers for smaller phone companies.

However, just getting the deal finished will take a lot of work.

Sprint stock fell amid uncertainty about how long it would take to close the deal and the perception that the investment from the European companies would be worth less when it does arrive. Sprint stock closed down $2.75 on the New York Stock Exchange at $37.12½.

Executives said they would try to reach a final agreement on terms by the end of the year and hope for regulatory approval by March 1995.

The 1995 date could be optimistic, as the Federal Communications Commission and the Justice Department have taken more than a year to decide whether or not to allow British Telecom to buy a stake in MCI for $4 billion.

AT&T issued a statement asking U.S. regulators to base their approval on the French and German governments making their markets as open as the United States.

May consumer price, retail reports indicate inflation remains in check

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices turned in a better-than-expected performance in May while retail sales posted a second consecutive monthly decline, the government said Tuesday.

The Clinton administration and private analysts hailed the reports as evidence that inflation remains in check with the economy slowing enough to make sure prices don't get out of hand down the road.

For this reason, analysts predicted that the Federal Reserve, which boosted interest rates four times from February to May, will be content to remain on the sidelines through most of the summer.

The Labor Department's consumer price index edged up a modest 0.2 percent in May as lower energy prices and the biggest one-month drop in airline ticket prices in 25 years helped to offset higher fruit and vegetable prices.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that retail sales dipped 0.2 percent in May, reflecting sharply lower automobile sales. The May decline followed an even bigger 1.1 percent April setback, marking the first time in a year that retail sales have posted back-to-back declines.

Since consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of economic activity, sales decreases are normally cause for alarm. However, economists welcomed this slowdown after a year in which consumers had spent heavily on big-ticket items.

"This is just what the doctor ordered," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at Lehman Brothers in New York. "The economy had been growing too fast for its own good and that carried a big risk of future inflation. This slowdown will keep the expansion going longer."

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen, the administration's chief economic spokesman, offered a similar view of Tuesday's economic reports, saying they continued to show an extremely good underpinning for sustained growth.

"Inflation is pleasantly low in this phase of the business cycle," Bentsen, said in remarks to North Carolina business leaders.

Xerox, Electronic Data Systems seal deal

N.Y. Times News Service

Xerox Corp. and Electronic Data Systems put the final touches on what is considered the largest commercial outsourcing contract ever awarded.

In a deal first announced in March, Xerox said it would turn over all its worldwide computer and telecommunications networks for EDS, an $8.6 billion unit of General Motors Corp., to operate.

The 10-year, $3.2 billion contract is not only the biggest such deal in the growing "outsourcing" market, but also analysts said it is the first such agreement made on a global scale.

Under terms of the contract, EDS would operate Xerox's data processing, telecommunications and computer-network services in 19 countries. In addition, 1,700 Xerox information-system workers in those countries would transfer to EDS by the end of the year.

Patricia Wallington, Xerox's chief information officer, said that 1,100 employees in the United States, Britain and Canada would make the transition first on June 30.

EDS would assume control of four major parts of Xerox's information systems operations: data center operations, worldwide voice and data telecommunications, desktop systems support, and maintaining and enhancing existing business-support applications.

"What distinguishes this deal is that it's the first truly global outsourcing contract," said Susan Scrupski, editor of Infoserver, a newsletter that covers the outsourcing industry.

Dallas Express posts strong first-month results

By Mella McEwen

DALLAS EXPRESS AIRLINES, which last month began flying from Midland International Airport, has reported its first month's results.

McEwen

In May, the airline's first full month of flight operations, Dallas Express boarded 1,145 passengers, and boardings for early June were up almost 65 percent from May levels.

"We are extremely pleased and encouraged with these results, which reflect increasing awareness of our airline," said Dallas Express President Charles Beckum.

The airline offers daily flights from Longview/Kilgore, Abilene, Waco and Midland to Dallas Love Field. The airline also serves the Abilene to Midland market. It flies a fleet of five PA31-350 Chieftain aircraft that have a seating capacity of 10.

Just opened in a kiosk in Plaza Oaks shopping center at Wadley Avenue and Garfield Street is ESPRESSO U.S.A.

Jay Brown, a partner in the enterprise, said they offer gourmet and flavored coffees, espressos, capuccinos and iced teas.

Also sold are granitas, a frozen capuccino bar, Italian pastries and muffins. Espresso U.S.A. features a different flavored coffee, tea and granita each week.

The drive-through kiosk has outdoor seating.

Hours are 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Two new businesses have opened their doors this week.

Opened Monday was FRIENDZE at 4612 Billingsley Blvd., down from Woods Boots. Friendze carries jewelry components and accessories.

Also open is ROSA'S CAFE AND TORTILLA FACTORY, which opened its third Midland location Tuesday on Midland Drive just south of Loop 250.

Midland Park Mall will be hosting a number of civic events through this weekend.

Information on the Read America summer program will be available on signholders near the Jurassic Sand Sculpture. The Midland Bruisers under-14 soccer team will be giving out information on a fundraiser at the Community Booth. As will Community and Senior Services, which will be giving out information on new senior programs today from 7 to 9:30 a.m. and again on June 23 and June 27 in the Food Court.

Wilshire Baptist Church members will be operating the train as a fund raiser Friday evening, all day Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

Also, KCRS-FM will host a remote broadcast from the mall as part of its Spring Fling, co-sponsored by Dr Pepper and American Eagle.

Friday and Saturday, shoppers who spend at least $75 can get free gift wrapping for up to three packages, with proceeds going to benefit the American Society of Clinical Oncology for breast cancer research.

Midlander Jim Sicard has opened DENT ANGEL in the Midkiff Business Center at 1308 S. Midkiff Road.

Using special tools to get underneath the metal, he can remove door dents and hail dents without repainting the automobile. Most work is done at his shop, but small dents can be removed on-site.

Mella McEwen is a business/oil writer for the Reporter-Telegram.

Tea vs. cancer

Its surprising, but true. Scientists are increasingly discovering broad anti-cancer activity in plain old tea, particularly green-type Asian tea. That may be one reason green-tea-drinking countries such as Japan have lower rates of many cancers, they say.

Recent studies even suggest that tea may help inhibit cancer growth. Researchers at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, have found that putting green-tea extract on mouse skin cancers actually causes the tumors to partly regress. Adding green-tea chemicals to animals drinking water helped block development of skin cancers.

Also dramatic is work at the New Jersey Medical School at Rutgers. Researchers found that tea chemicals were up to 43 percent effective in inhibiting the ability of leukemia and liver tumor cells to make DNA, necessary to reproduce themselves. Thus, the tumor cells were not able to spread the cancer. There is a growing body of evidence that tea polyphenols can inhibit carcinogenesis, concluded researcher Harold Newmark.

How? One way: Tea chemicals sop up or neutralize cancer-causing free radicals and nitrosamines, say experts.

Caffeine anxieties

If you let your kid drink caffeine, there are pluses and minuses.

So finds a new study by psychiatrists at the University of Minnesota. They had 21 kids ages 8 to 12 drink a can of cola either with or without caffeine.

Not surprisingly, the kids who got the caffeine felt less sluggish and did better on tests of attention and manual dexterity. Numerous studies have found the same stimulant effect of caffeine on the performances of both youngsters and adults.

But, the down side was the kids who got the caffeine also felt more anxious.

Unquestionably, caffeine can produce the jitters and anxiety. Indeed, some studies have identified caffeine as a major cause of anxiety in many adults. In high doses, caffeine can trigger full-blown panic attacks.

Reactions to caffeine are highly individual. But if your kid is anxious, curbing caffeine may be a solution, say experts.

Amazingly, one study found that nearly three quarters of all children over the age of 6 months regularly use caffeine, according to the Medical Tribune, a newspaper for physicians.

Carbos for Parkinsons

Anyone with the neurological disorder Parkinsons disease may do better if they eat lots of carbohydrates and little protein. That is, if they are taking levodopa, the commonly prescribed drug for the problem.

Thats what Christopher OBrien, M.D., at the Colorado Neurological Institutes Movement Disorders Center has found. In a study, he had patients eat a diet with a ratio of seven carbohydrate grams to every one gram of protein. They walked and moved around better than patients eating a high-protein diet.

The problem is, says Dr. OBrien, levodopa is not fully effective when patients eat too much protein. On the other hand, with too little protein, too much levodopa reaches the brain. In either case, tremors and uncontrolled muscle movements may occur.

The right dose for best brain levels of amino acids is a seven-to-one carbo-to-protein diet, according to Dr. OBrien and other researchers.

A tip: Divide the number of grams of protein into the number of grams of carbohydrate as noted on a foods label. If the number is seven or close to seven, youre on target, says nutritionist Jennifer Stack of New York University.

Here's the dirt on gardening injuries

By Lynn Bulmahn
Associated Press

WACO, Texas — Working in the yard makes your garden grow, your property better looking — and can be harmful to your hands and fingers.

In fact, injuries occurring in the yard and garden are second only to industry as the most frequent source of trauma to the hand.

Not surprisingly, such injuries are more common during the warm weather months, when more people work outside.

Jim King, of HealthSouth sports medicine and rehabilitation center, said few people realize how vulnerable their hands are to yardwork injuries — until it's too late.

King, a certified hand therapist and director of the chain's Waco location, listed the ways people can injure their hands while gardening.

Chief among them is misuse of power lawn equipment. This includes lawn mowers, mulching machines, electric hedge trimmers and other tools.

"It only takes a second to lose a finger," he warned. "When you are around power tools designed to cut limbs, you can cut your hands as well."

The obvious danger is amputation. Avoiding it takes only a little common sense, King said. Never stick your hand in the machinery.

"You need to stop the engine before removing the grass catcher or adjusting the wheel height," King said. "Never remove the guards, disable the engine sensor or otherwise interfere with safety equipment on the lawn mower. It's there for a purpose."

Before using any power equipment, read the directions. Then follow them. Never use a piece of machinery for a purpose other than the intended one.

Never try to service a piece of electrical equipment — such as an electric lawn mower or edge trimmers — without first unplugging it.

On gasoline powered mowers or other equipment, remove the spark plug wire. This assures the equipment will not start while you're servicing it, King said.

ANOTHER HAZARD posed by power machinery is vibration.

"Vibration in different tools such as trimmers and chain saws are really tough on people," King said.

Exposure to this vibration can cause nerve irritation or constriction of blood vessels within the hands. This is particularly true for smokers. Also at risk are people with Raynaud's disease, diabetes, or other peripheral nerve or circulation problems.

People suffering from on-the-job repetitive motion injuries, such as carpal tunnel syndrome, may easily re-injure their hands when using vibrating power tools.

Taking frequent breaks helps minimize the damage from such tools. So does wearing padded gloves, such as those worn by bicycle riders. These gloves reduce the vibration your hands receive, King explained.

Machinery isn't the only hazard to hands. Harsh chemicals can cause problems, as well.

When handling yard chemicals such as pesticides, King urges people to wear long-sleeved shirts and rub-

Warm weather brings new health hazards for children

Associated Press

Parents. Be alert for the health hazards that "come out of hibernation" as warmer weather arrives, including:

Traffic: Review kids' street and sidewalk safety habits. The smaller kids may be crossing on their own for the first time this year, and where there's a ballgame, there's a ball that can roll into the street, too.

Bike: Make sure bikes are in proper working order, that kids know the rules of the road (or sidewalk) and that they wear bike helmets. Bike safety helps prevent accidents; helmets help kids survive when accidents do happen.

Water: Start refreshing kids' swimming-safety knowledge. If you have a pool, make sure unsupervised kids can't get near it.

Animals: Update pets' rabies vaccination, and remind the kids never to approach a wild animal. Remind kids to use caution with stray animals, too; they can be injured by wild animals.

Insects: If anyone in the family is allergic to bee or wasp stings, get a bee-sting kit to treat allergic reactions and learn how to use it. Adults and teens can carry their own kits.

Spiders: All states except Alaska have the poisonous black widow. The brown recluse, also poisonous, lives primarily in the midwestern and south-central sections of the United States. Both favor warm, dark, dry places. Teach kids not to play in likely spider "hideouts."

Wounds: Cuts and scrapes are inevitable. Make sure the kids' tetanus shots are up-to-date and check your first-aid kit. Because each family's needs are different, ask your pediatrician what should be in your home first-aid kit.

Preventive treatment cuts risk of depression after childbirth, study says

By Malcolm Ritter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Women at risk of plunging into debilitating depression after giving birth sharply cut the hazard by taking preventive medication when they had a baby, a study found.

Doctors generally do not try that preventive strategy now, since they are reluctant to medicate people who are not sick.

But since antidepressants take at least two weeks if not much longer to take effect, waiting for the illness to appear means some women have to cope with depression and their new baby at the same time.

The study included only women who had suffered post-birth depression before, which put them at heightened risk when they had another baby. Most had taken medication for their prior episodes.

Some 10 percent to 15 percent of new mothers suffer depression after giving birth, usually within three months, said Dr. Katherine Wisner, an assistant professor of psychiatry and reproductive medicine at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

Far more serious than the more common and relatively brief "baby blues," post-birth depression is a persistent illness that may require hospitalization. Symptoms can include sadness, irritability, anxiety, loss of appetite and inability to sleep despite exhaustion, even when the baby is sleeping.

The condition can interfere with the mother's emotional relationship with the new baby and cripple her ability to cope with the demands of child care. Some evidence suggests that infants of such mothers may be hampered in long-term emotional and mental development.

Wisner reported her study May 25 at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association. She said it had been accepted for publication in a psychiatric journal, and that the work was done without any funding from pharmaceutical companies.

Researchers sought to prevent the depressions by starting women on an antidepressant within 24 hours of birth and continuing for at least the three months of high risk.

Results showed that only two of the 17 women who chose to try the strategy had a recurrence after birth, compared with five of eight women who decided otherwise. The drugs caused no major side effects, Wisner said.

Wisner said she could not rule out the possibility that the treated women were simply responding to the psychological benefit of taking a pill, the so-called placebo effect. Only another study in which some women take medication and others take dummy pills will be able to overcome that, she said.

The National Institute of Mental Health has agreed to pay for such a study, she said.

Women who chose the preventive therapy were counseled about the risks and benefits of breast-feeding, which can pass drugs to infants. But Wisner said antidepressants are available that do not appear to reach a breast-feeding baby.

She also said she would like to find a preventive psychotherapy in addition to medication.

Takayaki Naito, marketing representative for a new Japanese-style medical office in Englewood Cliff, N.J., demonstrates a self-administered blood pressure tester during opening ceremonies June 6 at the health care facility. The medical office, called in Japanese "Ningen Dock" or "human dry dock," is a one-stop clinic for yearly physicals based on similar models in Japan. The facility is sponsored by Englewood Hospital and Medical Center and the Tokyo-based Noguchi Medical Research Institute.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Oriental artwork adorns the walls. Simulated rice-paper screens provide privacy. Patients wearing imported robes and slippers can sip tea and converse in Japanese while awaiting test results.

It's health care, Japanese-style.

A clinic is opening next month in Englewood Cliffs, across the Hudson River from New York City, for the tens of thousands of Japanese citizens working at more than 400 Japanese corporations in the New York-New Jersey area.

"For us it is rather difficult to explain how we feel toward pain or aches of the body in a foreign language," said Hiroshi Tsuyama, general manager at Sumitomo Marine and Fire Insurance in Warren. "If we can talk in the Japanese language, it is very good for us."

Englewood Hospital and Medical Center is opening the "ningen dock," which translates as "human dry dock." It's a kind of clinic popular in Japan.

Tennis elbow courts even those who don't play

By Dr. Paul Ort
Associated Press

Every summer, physicians see an upsurge in cases of tennis elbow, yet many of these patients haven't been on a tennis court.

Instead, they've been in airports, bus stations and parking lots carrying heavy suitcases full of vacation paraphernalia. Others have been swinging a golf club, or throwing a baseball, or pounding a hammer.

Not used to such physical stress, people who suddenly begin to tax their arms often develop tennis elbow, a lay term for tendon inflammation.

Painful and restricting, tennis elbow is fortunately a reversible condition, but only if you properly rest and recondition the affected arm. Otherwise, whether you are a tennis player, golfer or luggage handler, the condition will return.

Tennis elbow occurs at the bony prominences on both sides of the elbow. The tendon that connects arm muscle to the elbow becomes inflamed because of overuse and underconditioning. In other words, you use the arm too much, without having built up strength and flexibility.

To treat tennis elbow, pack the elbow in ice and rest your arm for a few days. Also, don't sleep on your arm since the pressure can worsen the condition.

Once the initial pain decreases, you may begin a gradual exercise program, designed to stretch and strengthen the tendon.

Start with stretching exercises. Bend your arm fully with the fist closed, as if you were lifting a dumbbell. Then extend the arm with your fingers straight. Do 15 repetitions, four times a day.

Next, do strengthening exercises by lifting your straightened, stiff arm sideways to a horizontal position. Repeat the exercise frontways. Do 10 repetitions, twice a day, and add repetitions as you gain strength.

Within a matter of weeks, you should be ready to add weights to your strengthening exercises. Start with 1 to 2 pounds and add weight as you feel your strength grow.

At first, exercise may aggravate your tennis elbow. Inflammation causes the tendon to shrink. Exercise will stretch the tendon and eventually the pain disappears. Exercises alleviate tennis elbow in 95 percent of all cases.

For some patients, physicians may prescribe cortisone shots or nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory medications for pain relief. These treatments may ease the pain of the inflammation, but they don't treat the underlying cause.

Occasionally, tennis elbow is treated by placing the patient's arm in a cast, to immobilize the elbow. If that treatment fails, surgery may be performed. However, this is a rare and last resort measure.

Dr. Paul Ort is an associate professor of clinical orthopedic surgery at New York University School of Medicine.

DEAR ABBY

Woman addressed by wrong title is irritated to a degree

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 40-year-old woman with a Ph.D., and I also happen to be married.

Van Buren

Although I love my husband, I prefer to be addressed as "Dr." rather than "Mrs." However, this seems to be a problem for most people. Would it be impolite of me to correct someone who has addressed me as "Mrs."?

What, if anything, should I say to such a person? — DR. FINDLEY

DEAR DR. FINDLEY: I would not recommend correcting a person for failing to address you as "Doctor." However, if you are asked how you prefer to be addressed, it is quite proper to state your preference.

I once received a letter from a gentleman who had earned a Ph.D. in English literature. He called himself "Doctor," and made reservations for airline travel and hotels as "Dr. Smith" (not his real name).

He was a passenger on an airline when another passenger suffered a heart attack, and the captain immediately summoned "Dr. Smith" to administer medical attention to the stricken passenger.

A very embarrassed doctor of English literature begged off the assignment, explaining he wasn't a medical doctor.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is a recent leg amputee, and I heard that some time ago you published the name of an organization that matches up shoes for one-legged people. Any help you can give me will be very much appreciated. — ST. PETERSBURG READER

DEAR READER: You heard right. The organization provides a computerized service to match potential partners to share the cost of shoes. It was started in 1986 by Georgia Hehr, an R.N. who needs only one shoe herself.

Open to any adult or teen whose feet have stopped growing, the program can benefit amputees, people wearing a brace on one foot, those with mismatched feet, and anyone with a one-foot problem who still wears one regular shoe (U.S. and Canada only).

Those interested should contact The One Shoe Crew (TOSC), 86 Clavela Ave., Sacramento, Calif. 95828-4647. There is a onetime $3 registration fee; a onetime $10 partnership fee when a match is found; a $5 donation per shoe is requested, but is waived if financial difficulty exists, plus $2.50 postage per shoe.

TOSC is non-profit — monetary donations and donations of new and unused single shoes and/or mismatched pairs are welcomed and are tax-deductible.

DEAR READERS: A thought to ponder: "By working faithfully eight hours a day, you may eventually get to be a boss and work 12 hours a day." — Robert Frost

Low-fat 'junk food' wins raves

By Linda Anderson

Recently I spent a pleasant hour or so with a group of ladies who wanted to know about taste-testing. Since they wanted to actually participate in a taste test, and I wanted to make it memorable for them, I decided we'd test the ultimate in junk food — and a contradiction in terms besides — Low Fat Twinkies.

Hostess Twinkies have been around for years and years, loading young bodies with sugar and not much else, but maintaining their hold on the national comfort food level. Most of us grew up with that golden sponge cake with the creamy white filling, and now our children are too.

But since it's not politically correct these days for foods to have very little nutritional value, Hostess has come up with Hostess Lights, a line of the company's traditional products but with reduced fat. Low Fat Twinkies are part of this new line.

A 13.5-ounce box of Low Fat Twinkies containing 10 individually-wrapped cakes costs $2.79, or almost 28 cents per Twinkie.

Label advertising claims these new, more nutritionally correct cakes contain "Over 70 percent Less Fat Than Regular Twinkies" with "Only 2½ Grams of Fat Per Serving."

The company's new philosophy is on the back of the box: "Hostess wants to help you eat well and enjoy your favorite snack products at the same time. Hostess Lights are specially formulated to be low in fat and most importantly, taste great!"

And of course, the box carries one of those new nutrition labels that are causing such a stir. The label reveals that one serving (two Twinkies) contains 230 calories, with 25 of those calories from fat. It also shows that one Twinkie has 120 calories (with 15 of those calories from fat). Wonder what happened to the other 10 calories and the other five fat calories?

The ladies all sampled the Low Fat Twinkies and decided they tasted a little rubbery, but not bad at all. For two or three of the tasters, it was the first time they had tasted Twinkies. They were impressed.

If you need some junk food and you want to feel a little less guilty about it, you might want to give Low Fat Twinkies a try. Still trying to figure out where those other calories went, though...

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

Rosalinda Luna

Outreach Scholarship Winner Announced

Outreach Health Services is extremely proud to announce and congratulate the Bettye J. Wallace Community Scholarship Program winner for the 1993-94 school year.

This year's recipient is Rosalinda Luna, daughter of Adan and Rosa Luna. She is a graduating senior at Midland High School.

Rosalinda has been named to "Who's Who Among American High School Students," and Student of the Month. She is a member of National Honor Society and also does volunteer work with the Midland area Salvation Army. Rosalinda will attend Midland College this fall to begin work on her bachelor's degree in Nursing.

The Bettye J. Wallace Scholarship Program required students planning on a career in the health care industry to submit a written essay of no more than 300 words on this year's topic, Why Home Health Care Is Important to My Community. Rosalinda joins the ranks of Outreach Scholarship winners selected this year in the surrounding cities of Seymour, Vernon, Coleman, and Haskell.

Outreach Health Services, a Medicare state-certified and licensed home health care agency, works to assist young people across Texas. Furthering education is one of Outreach's primary goals — both inside it's own agency, as well as to individuals in the community. Outreach scholarships are made available each year through contributions made to this fund by Outreach employees.

GARDEN: Injuries in yard can be prevented

(From 1D)

ber gloves. These help protect the skin on the hands and arms from chemical burns. It also helps guard against allergic reactions.

Although it's usually wise to wear gloves to protect your hands, there is one exception.

"Occasionally, you may get a glove caught in the piece of equipment, and it will yank your hands in," King said. "Thick leather gloves are really bad about this. Thinner gloves are better."

Make sure your gloves fit your hands, and watch where you put your hands when you're around power machinery.

"I always tell people don't let your hand get out of your visual field," King said.

That's a good rule even when you're not around power machinery. King said one man was bitten by a rattlesnake when he reached over a woodpile on his farm. He hadn't looked where he put his hand.

Never reach into a hole or behind an object. Snakes or bugs may lurk there. If you must lift old boards, rocks or semi-permanent structures, wear heavy gloves. Even better, move the item out of the way with a shovel or other yard tool.

Infections can result from puncture wounds or even simple cuts and scrapes during hot summer months.

"In the summertime, there's more moisture outside, which leads to a lot of bacteria," King said. "This can lead to infection."

It's no wonder such infections occur. "We all get cuts and nicks working in the yard, but instead of taking care of it, we put our glove back on and rub dirt and sweat on it," King said.

One youngster suffered a serious infection from a simple rose bush thorn. The tendon sheath on his hand had to be opened surgically and drained.

"The bad thing about puncture wounds is that they tend to draw the bacteria so far into our bodies that our body has a tendency to close it off," he said. "Use special care to clean a wound and cover it."

Wrapping cords or ropes around your wrists and hands can be hazardous.

Never wrap a rope around your hand to pull or hold anything in such a manner that the rope could tighten, King said.

King said he knew of one man cutting a tree limb who did this. When the tree limb — which weighed several hundred pounds — fell, its force crushed his hand.

Another common cause of injury is tripping or falling in the yard and using your hand to try to break the fall. This can cause a fractured wrist.

People commonly trip on such things as yard clutter, sprinkler heads or kid's toys, King said. Know where these items are in your yard. Better still, keep your lawn clear of such items.

CLINIC: 'Ningen dock' is system in Japan

(From 1D)

Like ships given a thorough inspection in dry dock, patients undergo extensive annual examinations that can last a half-day to three days.

Tsuyama said the ningen-dock system is popular — and mandatory for employees of many companies in Japan — because it is convenient and helps in the early detection of cancer and other serious diseases.

"In America, if you want to check every part of your body you have to take an appointment with each doctor who specializes in that part of the body," he said.

And that, clinic representatives say, would cost much more than the $300 to $2,500 charged at the ningen dock.

After their exam, patients have an hour-long discussion with a doctor, who goes over the results and dispenses advice.

"Our basic philosophy here is that you really need to look at defined populations and determine what their needs are — be it the Japanese or be it the jazz musician," said Ellsworth Havens, senior vice president at Englewood Hospital, where he also developed a free clinic for uninsured jazz musicians.

For Tsuyama and his 25 Japanese employees, the clinic will provide a way for them to receive the kind of health care they're accustomed to without having to return home, as they do now.

Agreements already have been signed with about a dozen companies, including Minolta Camera Co., Ricoh Ltd., Bank of Japan and Mitsubishi Corp.

The Noguchi Medical Research Institute of Tokyo is providing medical staff for the clinic, which will employ Japanese doctors and nurses.

In accordance with ningen dock procedures in Japan, all test results will be given to patients before they leave. And because of the high incidence of stomach and esophageal cancer in Japan, extensive gastrointestinal testing will be performed with special non-invasive equipment.

fessor in the departments of psychiatry and obstetrics-gynecology at the University of Chicago, said she considered the study "an important piece of work."

Post-birth depression is "a horribly disabling, horribly painful disease," she said. It is not always easy to recognize quickly, she said, and prevention is "one step beyond being able to jump on it right away."

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?
YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:
★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?
Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?
Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?
A small deposit is required.

The Best Paying Hard Work You Will Ever Find!

Resthaven Memorial Park and Mausoleum is adding to its existing very successful sales team. Thorough training. Very lucrative commission and bonus schedule. These are full-time positions, selling the before-need cemetery and memorial property.

Many successful sales people in this industry were formerly in Life Insurance Sales, Secretaries, Real Estate Sales, Apartment Managers, School Teachers, and others. Direct selling experience helpful but not a requirement. An automobile is required. Applicants should understand that evenings and weekends are the most productive hours.
