RANGER RODEO CLOWN

Pictured above is John Lindsey, the worl d's funniest clown, of Ogden, Utah. who will furnish the comedy at the Ranger Jay cee's annual world championship rodeo on July 28, 29, 30 and 31.

Also pictured with Lindsey is his trained comedy bull, the only one in the rodeo business, and the name of their act is "Bull Iron Ore."

Lindsey will come directly from Ogden t o Ranger for the show.

Sale Of School Lands Increase Permanent Funds

AUSTIN, Bascom Giles, Commissioner of the General Land Office said today that the proceeds from the July School Land Sale helped swell the permanent education funds to $50,000,000 00 for the fiscal year.

This tremendous flood of money into these funds exceeds by five times the largest amount heretofore received for a similar period of operation by any former commissioner, Giles said.

The higher education fund and the public school permanent fund have now reached a total of $215,000,000.00.

The Land Office addad an adfitional $1,144,184.00 resulting from the sale of 210,000 acres located in 68 counties. Only 30 tracts totaling 15,000 acres located in Presidio, Reeves and El Paso Counties failed to receive bids. The amount bid per acre doubled that for any previous sale.

Commissioner Giles pointed out, by way of contrast, that when Texas made its bid to enter the Union, it unsuccessfully offered its entire public domain to the Federal Government for $13,000,000. Now a small fraction of those same lands are bringing in over $14,000,000.00 annually from oil and gas royalties alone for public education.

Cleanup of Testimony By Doctors Urged

MADISON, Wis. (UP) — A move has been started in Wisconsin to improve doctors' testimony in court cases.

The Wisconsin Medical Society and the state bar association are trying to eliminate "flimsy, fraudulent testimony" by physicans summoned as expert witnesses.

The proposal to eliminate nonfactual testimony was suggested by a Madison attorney at a state bar gathering.

Some doctors become "advocates" of the side on which they are engaged, and others are swayed by witness fees, the attoney said.

Americans Are Advised To Avoid Quacks

CINCINNATI, O. (UP)— Dr. Helen L. Coops, consultant on health education in Ohio, believes Americans are too quick to listen to medical quacks and to follow superstitions.

Instead, she thinks, Americans should be "smarter" and consider the source of information on matters of health. That, she said, should be one of the factors in health education programs in the schools.

"Americans are pretty cocky," Dr. Coops, associate professor of physical and health education at the University of Cincinnati, said.

"We think we have a lot of common sense and are sure of ourselves. We pride ourselves on being practical and shrewd, and yet we have some glaring blind spots. In some ways we are the most gullible people on the face of the earth.

"We are particularly vulnerable to advice on health matters and medical care, regardless of the source. We listen to quacks, follow superstitions, and fall for misinformation if it appears in print. We listen to unqualified neighbors and friends and do not hesitate to advise others."

How Pigs Taught U. S. To Eat Clams

DUXBURY, Mass, (UP)—Clam eating in America, they say, originated here in early days of the republic.

One Ruth Alden Bass, a Duxbury housewife ,noticed one day that pigs in the community were busy along the shore rooting up clams and eating them.

Observing that the clams didn't harm the pigs, she tried them and found them good. Ultimately came clams on the half-shell, clam chowder and fritters.

Bees must travel an average of 150,000 miles to gather a single pound of honey.

Giant Pipe Line Planned To Tap Mosul Oil Field

By K. C. Thaler
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—Plans for a new giant pipe line from the rich Mosul oil field of Iraq to the Mediterranean have been disclosed by the annual report of the Shell group, in which Britain has a major interest.

In connection with the report, experts expressed the belief that the oil export center of the world is likely to move from the western nemisphere to the Middle East because of the considerable reserves which so far have not been tapped.

The new pipe line from Iraq, which is to run through Syria, is to have an initial capacity of 100,000,000 barrels a year, and thus to assist in the utilization of Iraq's great oil deposits.

The line will run from Kirkuk in Iraq to Homs in Syria and then proceed to a "suitable terminal on the eastern Mediterranean seaboard." Cnnstruction of the proposed line will take several years.

Meanwhile work is proceeding on a new pipe line from Kirkuk to the existing pipe line terminal at Haifa to increase the oil capacity available to Haifa from 15 to 50 million barrels annually, the report disclosed. It was expected that despite the political difficulties at present in Palestine, the pipe line will come into operation in the last quarter of this year. It will be ready for full operation in the second half of 1949.

Finally, a second pipe line is to be built from Kirkuk in Iraq to Tripoli when work on the Kirkuk-Iraq line is completed. It is scheduled to be in operation in 1950.

Estimates are that Iraq can be developed into one of the world's biggest oil supply centers. Its potential yearly output is estimated at more than 25,000,000 tons, or about five times the present contribution.

Simultaneously, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company reported that construction of a new pipe line from Kuwait on the Persian Gulf to Haifa has made good progress. Unsettled conditions in Palestine, however, have upset its likely operation date, it was stated.

SCHEDULE FOR MOTORCADE IS ANNOUNCED

The time schedule for the motorcade to be made on Friday, July 23, to advertise the Ranger rodeo has been announced by those in charge of the trip.

The following is the complete schedule allowing for a ten minute program in each town and lunch in Stephenville.

Leave Ranger at 8:00 a. m. from the Chamber of Commerce.

Arrive Cisco 8:30, leave Cisco 8:50.

Arrive Breckenridge, 9:40, leave Breckenridge 10:00.

Arrive Strawn 11:00, leave Strawn 11:15.

Arrive Mingus 11:25, leave Mingus 11:35.

Arrive Gordon 11:45, leave Gordon 12::00 noon.

Arrive Stephenville 12:40, lunch there 12:40 to 1:30 p. m., leave Stephenville 1:45.

Arrive Dublin 2:05, leave Dublin 2:25.

Arrive De Leon 2:45, leave De Leon 3:05.

Arrive Gorman 3.25, leave Gorman 3:45.

Arrive Carbon 4:00, leave Carbon 4:15.

Arrive Eastland 4:30, leave Eastland 4:45.

Arrive Ranger 5:00.

The total mileage of the entire trip is 202 miles, requiring five hours driving time at an average of 40 miles per hour.

Only one trip will be made this year, and the Jaycees are asking everyone who possibly can to donate cars and join the effort to advertise the coming rodeo to the people of these towns. The motorcade has previously been most successful in attracting crowds to the rodeo, but it is hoped that Friday's trip will be the best yet.

Those who have cars, either with or without passengers, that will be available for the motorcade are asked to contact George Murphy and register the cars with him.

Dixiecrats Are Planning Their Campaign Now

BIRMINGHAM, July 19 (UP)— Rebel Democratic Leaders, claiming that it was the National Party that bolted them, were back in the grass-roots of their own states today with the job of planning and putting over a political movement in record time.

They hoped that most of the job would be done by Oct. 1, when a Dixiecrat meeting will be held here on a more formal basis than that Saturday in which Rebel yells endorsed a national ticket of Govs. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi.

With little time to spare, they must hold state meetings, name presidential electors pledged to Thurmond and Wright get on their states ballot for November, and turn vocal support into voting strength.

Fighting Still Going On In Palestine Today

CAIRO, July 19 (UP)— Jews and Arabs continued fighting in northern and northwestern Palestine today despite acceptance by both sides of the United Nations ceasefire ultimatum.

Jewish forces charged that Iraq and Syrian troops violated the cease-fire first in the Jenin sector and on the southern shore of lake Galilee. Israeli troops returned the attack and fighting was reported still going on.

Lady Slipper Blossoms Or

MILFORD, N. H. (UP)—Charles S. Emerson, who has spent 12 years developing a lady slipper plant believes this year's growth —sprouting 75 buds—is one of the largest on record.

BIG THREE COMMANDERS MEET TODAY; PLAN BREA K OF SEIGE

BERLIN, July 19, (UP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay was scheduled to meet with the British and French military commanders of Western Germany today, reportedly to ... uss a plan to smash through the Soviet blockade of Berlin with armed convoys.

High Allied sources in Frankfurt said the plan was conceived by Americans who believed that a show of force was the only way to unmask Russias true intentions in Europe.

Britain agreed and final approvel now hinges on agreement by the French, who have accepted reluctantly most of the recent three-power decisions on Germany, these sources indicated.

An official American spokesman denied that the three governors would discuss a plan to break the Soviet siege of Berlin. He said they would confer on German counter-proposals for a Western German government.

The plan, as reported in Frankfurt, calls for the Western Allies to send an armored train or armed truck convoy through the Russian blockade into Berlin with food supplies.

Its full agreement is reached in today's meeting, it was reported, a new three-power note advising Russia of the new move may be sent to Moscow next week end.

Congress Will Get New Anti-Inflation Bill

WASHINGTON, July 19 (UP)— The White House said today that the Administration will submit a new omnibus anti-inflation bill to the special session of Congress. It will be sent shortly after President Truman delivers his message to the special session July 26.

White House Secretary Charles G. Ross would give no details of the new price bill. But he said it will include some of the 10 anti-inflation measures which Mr. Truman requested last November.

At that time, the President asked for stand-by powers to impose price and wage controls and consumer rationing. Ross today would not say whether these particular proposals will be in the new bill.

The cost of living continued to go up since Mr. Truman's original proposals, most of which were not enacted. Hence, he is not expected to drop his quest for these stand-by powers.

Mr. Truman discussed plans for the special session yesterday in an hour and a half conference with Sen. Barkley, the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee.

Ross said that Mr. Truman may submit his message to the special session on opening day, or on the second day, if that conforms with the wishes of congressional leaders.

Enlistment For Army Air Force Announced Today

Young men between the ages of 18 & 19 years will be accepted for enlistment in the Regular Army and Regular Air Force after July 21st for a one-year tour of duty it was announced today by Sgt. James O Hendrick of the Eastland Army and Air Force Recruiting Station.

Each recruiting station is being allotted a quota to be filled and the quotas for the Air Force will be very small. For the first few months it is anticipated that a relatively few men will be enlisted under this provision of the newly enacted Selective Service Law.

Any interested person 18 years of age and who has not reached his 19th birthday should apply at once to the Recruiting Station located at 311 West Main Street in Eastland for complete details on application, training, and the fulfilment of future military obligation.

Superfortresses Ready For The Training Flights

LONDON, July 19 (UP)— The biggest superfortresses fleet ever based in England was being readied today for "training flights" over Germany.

Sixty superforts and five C-54 skymasters were dispersed at three RAF bomber bases after arriving from the United States without incident over the week-end.

Col. Stanley Wray, representing Lt. Gen. Curtis Lemay who commands U. S. Air Forces in Europe, was to arrive from Germany today to address 700 of the airmen. He probably will brief them on the German flights.

Col. John B. Henry, commanding the 28th group, said he did not believe there would be any flights before Thursday.

"The men are being confined to station," Henry said. "They will not be allowed leave until Col. Wray has addressed them. So far as I know this is a routine training flight."

British newspapers, suggesting that the flight was not an ordinary training mission said it was now up to Russia to make the next "show of force."

Abbey Theater Plans To Expend

DUBLIN (UP)—Dublin's world-famed Abbey theatre, which has given so many actors to Holiywood, is to be remodled and extended.

The little building, with entrances through green docrs from Malborough Street and Lower Abbey street, it to be incorporated in a new national theater.

The scheme for the new theater was first mooted some years ago, but has been held up, like many other projects, by the war. While it has an intimacy all of its own, the auditorium is not muc bigger than a good sized drawing room or lounge.

It has been felt for some long time that the national art should have a building in which the works could be produced to greater effect and which would permit of larger audiences .

Western Union Meets At Hague

THE HAGUE, July 19 (UP) — Foreign ministers of five countries banded together as the Union of Western Europe called a special super-secret session today to discuss the Berlin crisis.

The ministers of Great Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherland, opening a two-day conference here, decided to hold their second session this afternoon with only 1 advisor each.

The opening meeting was devoted to economic and financial matters.

The ministers refused officially to confirm that the German crisis was the subject at the afternoon session.

But British and ouner officials confirmed that it was on the agenda. Patrick Dean, British foreign office expert on Germany, arrived from London this morning to attend the afternoon meeting with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Several officials hinted strongly that the ultimate result would be a meeting of the Big Four Council of foreign ministers on Germany. But no one at this time wanted to weaken the hands of the West with Russia and say so.

Big Three Refuse to Talk With Russia

LONDON, July 19 (UP)— Official sources said today the three western powers would refuse to take part in any talks with Russia in Berlin, or probably anywhere else, about Germany until the Soviets lifted their blockade there.

The firm stand was expected to be set forth in the American-British, and French reply to Russia's note last week rejecting the prior demand for removal of the blockade.

Bills Not Much Good Except For Taxes

CHICAGO (UP) — A man entered the Upper Avenue National Bank in Chicago to cash a couple of $10 bills.

The bills turned out to be bank notes issued by the old State Bank of Illinois in 1821.

Bank officials did some research and found that by 1826 the bills had dropped so much in value that the legislature ordered them retired. Some $75,000 of the notes were burned in a ceremonial bonfire.

The research disclosed that the bills were "legally receivable" by the state treasurer in payment of taxes and dues owing the state.

The man was advised by the bank to try to pay his taxes with them.

Where Pershing Will Lie In State

While the great and small of the nation file past in final tribute, the body of Gen. John J. Pershing will lie in state on this historic catafalque in the Capitol in Washington. Being inspected by Earl Jenkins, of the Capitol Architect's Office, the catafalque has held the remains of Abraham Lincoln, John Garfield, William McKinley, Warren Harding, William Howard Taft, Admiral Dewey and the Unknown Soldier. Freight 'Slippage' to Russia Bothers U. S. Export Officials

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—"Slippage" is the name given to the newest racket in international trade now bothering U. S. export control officials who are devising new control methods to beat it.

Steel exports offer an example. They may be shipped out of the United States to a destination in Belgium or Holland. On paper the steel looks like material to aid in European reconstruction. Unloaded in Antwerp or Rotterdam, however, the goods may be transshipped to Russia, Poland or other countries behind the iron curtain.

Similarly, machine tools shipped to Switzerland may find their way to Czechoslovakia and beyond. Farm machinery for North Africa may go to Yugoslavia, or to Syria or Lebanon and then to Black Sea ports. Flour or other foodstuffs shipped to Cuba or Brazil may also end up in Eastern Europe.

What part of U. S. postwar exports have been slipping away from countries of declared destination is unknown. Some estimates put the figure as high as 20 per cent, but that may be an exaggeration.

DURING the war, all U. S. exports were under tight control, first through Board of Economic Warfare, then through Foreign Economic Administration. But when Congress passed the Second Decontrol Act a year ago, it specified that wartime controls should be ended as fast as possible. Trade was to be returned to private enterprise. The only export controls left were for the protection of supplies at home.

Machinery for controlling exports became skimpy. An exporter who wanted to ship goods abroad merely filed application in triplicate with OIT—Office of International Trade—in Department of Commerce.

A rush of applications developed. Sharp traders applied for licenses, then went hunting for customers. Sometimes shipments were made a year or more after the export license was granted.

This gave the crooks another chance to clean up. An exporter would get a license for say 12 tons of flour to Cuba. When this was approved, it was no trick to raise the license to 120 or 1200.

There was no port check to make sure that license agreed with dock release, export declaration, bill of lading, or original application.

A few violators were nevertheless caught and barred from further export trading. But there was no penalty, so by and large they all got off easily. Nobody knows how many didn't get caught.

WHEN Congress came back last January there was enough experience to make a case for tighter control. Many congressmen were bothered by transshipments to Russia and her satellites.

Regulations were therefore tightened. Quotas were assigned to individual countries, instead of to broad trade areas. A positive list of some 475 items that could be shipped abroad was made up by OIT.

Some new techniques of enforcement are being worked out. Instead of merely stamping approval on an application, licenses may be printed on safety paper so that figures and destinations can't be altered. A check-up system is proposed so that license, declaration, dock release and bill of lading must all agree.

Tighter controls on exports are absolutely essential if the Marshall Plan recovery program is to be a success. "Slippage" to iron curtain countries must be prevented.

How to police this crooked business outside the United States, where the American government has no authority, is something of a problem. Economic Co-operation Administrator Paul Hoffman wants to keep his own organization small. He is depending on Department of Commerce export control machinery to do the job for him.

One new enforcement device now being considered is to make banks responsible for seeing that export papers are in order before making payment of funds to exporters having a piece of the Marshall Plan business.

Bill Henry's Olympic History Is Excellent Job of Recording

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—One bent upon swelling the Olympic fund, and desiring tangible returns, could do worse than invest in a copy of "An Approved History of the Olympic Games" (G. P. Putnam's Sons, $5).

Any earnings due the author, William M. Henry, are to be turned over to the national and international Olymic organizations. And going into the final trials the fund was $200,000 short.

No other person is so well qualified to write a book of this kind or compile such data. Bill Henry, long-time Los Angeles sports editor and columnist, currently Washington correspondent and radio commentator, was technical director of the very successful Games in Los Angeles in 1932.

Though other interesting tomes have been done on the subject, this is the only truly authentic and approved history of the Games.

Separating fact from fable, Henry has done an excellent job of recording events in the true light of their significance as they pertain to international competition.

Henry relates how Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the Games, foresaw the rise of rampant nationalism, and how he recognized that it would be, if carried to excess, bad for everything he cherished.

THE Olympics are meant to be "for the rare and solemn glorification of the individual athlete, and team sports should have no place either in the stadium itself or in connection with the Games.

"It was this feeling for the individual that led Coubertin to insist on one thing which he could control, that there should be no point scoring in the Games.

"Larger countries with larger teams might use the point scores to add up an impressive total and thus, by sheer weight of statistics, bury the individual athlete and lose sight of his identity and the quality of his performance.

"The adding up of points, too, he felt, would make for greater nationalism, and he was against that.

"The means by which he forestalled this possibility has been the subject of bitter criticism, but its efficacy is the envy of other world organizations, such as the United Nations, that have found themselves denied freedom of action for the international good by the selfishness of individual countries."

A full chapter is devoted to each Olympiad. Highlights are touched upon, complete results tabulated.

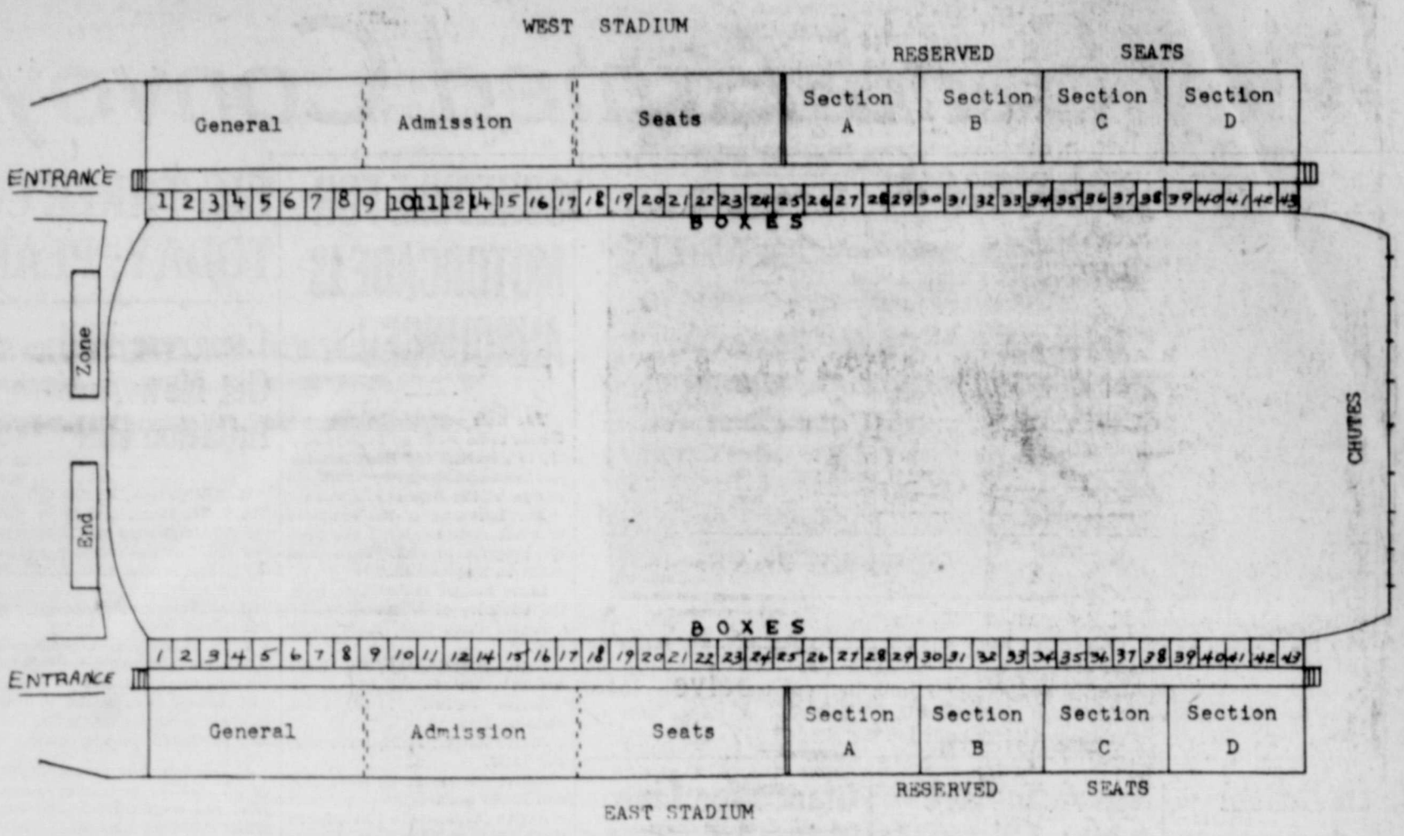

"An Approved History of the Olympic Games" is written with a broad international viewpoint, and leaves the reader with a new respect for the seemingly dominating body, the International Olympic Committee, and with a better understanding of the true Olympic spirit.

Pool at Gorman for Saturday, July 17. Ownby Drilling Co. No. 1 Clayton are still pulling pipe and WOC on the killing off job which they were forced into by the unexpected entrance of live oil into the 8-inch casing as they entered the Marble Falls Monday morning early. Mr. J. Wade Driver of Dallas who is in charge of drilling operations on this project tells me that they will drill approximately 30 feet deeper before finishing off the well.

J. W. Baldwin No. 2 J. N. Watson are running tubing and will probably acidize Sunday.

Virgil Taylor on the J. W. Baldwin No. 3 Sanders are shut down waiting for drill pipe after having moved a spudder in to finish off the well.

Hunter and Mellard No. 1 Black well are drilling at 679 feet. They encountered oil sand at 657-665 which could be the extreme tip of pay sand which was found in and around Carbon some years ago at about the same shallow depth.

Mr. Angstadt reports that he has delivered the tubing from Jarecki to the Mellard and Clemens No. 1 Pete Mauney so it is presumed that operations will continue soon on this digging.

Practically all wells i nthis area are WOC at the present as was reported in yesterday's column. The Halliburton boys should have a busy week end and Monday and Tuesday provided all heads can get together and get started bringing in these wells.

A rough estimate of the present status of the Kirk field and including the outlying dry holes seems to be summed up as follows:

Approximately 35 producers; between 10 and 15 dry holes—and as I said that includes those as far off as Tom Sessions Frazier up in the Kokomo community, the Files, the Warren and the Rainey, to the south of Gorman, and the J. C. Cook and Tommie Thompson to the southwest of town, and approximately 12 to 16 drilling operations and locations in process of development at all times.

France and Gillespie No. 1 Mc Mullen WOC. Gilchrist's rig will be moved onto the Slone property right south of the France-Gillespie set up we understand where Gilchrist has contracted to drill some for W. B. Johnson. Johnson has 840 acres of the George T. Slone property.

U. P.'s news staff in Canada now is 25 times bigger than it was ten years ago.

Better Mousetrap Has Its Points At That

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Eight years ago W. A. Uttz caught his finger in a mouse trap. Today, with Bing Crosby' aid, he has done something about it.

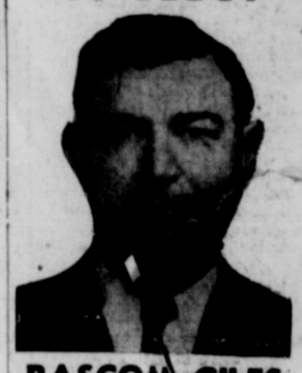

Uttz has invented a better mouse trap. The six-inch strip of pressed aluminum has saw-tooth tapered jaws operated by a spring lever that permits disposal of the catch, untouched by human hands.

Uttz perfected the trap and sent it to Crosby's California research foundation, a clearing house for gadgets. The foundation approved the design, sold the patent and obtained Uttz the guaranty of a royalty each month.

A motion-picture camera has been developed which can take 11,000,000 frames a second. Sixteen frames is normal.

The progenitor of the Lee Swiss Straw hat was introduced in England in 1779 by Admiral Nelson, who made it the summer uniform hat for his crew.

Farmhand, 75, Enters Governorship Race

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UP)—A 75 year old farmhand, Goldie B. Davis, has filed as Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl's Republican opponent in the September gubernatorial primary.

Davis never has tried his hand at politics before, never has held public office and won't say why he wants to be governor.

"Just gonna wait 'til the votes start pouring in," he says. "Plenty of time to talk about it after that."

Not So Very Long Ago—
. . . most abstractors were wondering where the next order would come from. Then came the gradual rise in the price of petroleum products, release of more building materials, and increased inflation which swelled the price of lands out of all reason. These factors and others contributed greatly to the demand for title work. But thru good times and bad—for more than 25 years—we have never thought it wise to sacrifice quality for quantity. And that's our business platform today!

Nebraska Diggers Seek To Solve Mystery Of Prehistoric Indians

CAMBRIDGE, Neb. (UP) —A Smithsonian Institution archeologist is trying to solve a three-fold mystery concerning the prehistoric people who once inhabited tiny villages along Medicine Creek in south Nebraska.

The archeologist, Marvin Kivett, is investigating remains of villages on the site where Medicine Creek dam now is being biult.

He is trying to determine where the aborigines came from, at what period they lived, and what happened to them.

"It is interesting to note," Kivett said, "that remains of a similar culture have been found in the Texas Panhandle. The only difference was that the Texas villages had stone huts, while the Medicine Creek people used logs for their homes."

Kivett also reported that a piece of shale, in which was carved a picture of a human face, was found recently.

"This type of carving," he said "usually is associated with the prehistoric inhabitants of the southeast."

Now working on the remains of a third village in the dam site area Kivett believes that each was occupied at a different period. All were before the coming of the white man, he said.

There is no evidence of horses, metal or glass, which were brought by the whites. Kivett would like to ascertain as definitely as possible the times of the settlements, but hasn't found too much in the way of clues.

As to what happened to the people, the researchers still are baffled. Kivett said he has found no evidence of warfare, or any sign that such peaceful farming folk were wiped out by invading tribes.

In fact, Kivett admitted that so far he has found only one burial place, and that contained only one skeleton—that of a man, with one arm missing. The archeologist still has many people to account for. Kivett had expected to find that the people buried many bodies in each burial place.

This one burial place, he said, was on a high hill, was dug only about 17 inches deep, and contained a few pieces of pottery, arrowheads and some beads made from gulf coast shells. Kivett conjectured that the shell beads must have been traded from one tribe to another, to reach Nebraska.

These people kept two kinds of dogs, Kivett said. They raised corn, beans and domesticated sunflowers. They kept bees and caught fish, mussels, crayfish and turtles in the creek.

Kivett said Medicine Creek valley is receiving possibly more archeological attention this year than any other site in the United States, with three agencies participating; University of Nebraska, Nebraska Historical Society and Smithsonian Institution.

Radio Amateurs On Gulf Ready If Storm Hits

BILOXI, Miss. (UP)—Rampant elements of nature in the future will meet stiffer resistance in the way of communications around Biloxi when the hurricane hit the gulf coast last September.

Last year, all communications from the stricken area went over a tiny radio set in hangar No. 1 at nearby Kessler Field. Calls for assistance, emergency calls to worried relatives and wire service stories, all took their turn on the tiny radio set.

But the shrimp net forstalls any such situation in the future.

The shrimp net is the unofficial name of the gulf coast amateur radio net, which was organized after last September's disaster by some 26 hams in Biloxi and 12 at Keesler Field. All are prepared to make immediate contact with the outside world in case of another distaster.

Meantime, they are having a lot of fun and have made many international friends. Most of them are trying for the certificates passed out by the National Amateur Radio Club on the presentation of 100 cards from different countries, or cards from each of the United States. Many are exchanging stamps, with their new-found foreign friends.

One of the leaders of the Biloxi group is M. Sgt. Joe Melton, who is stationed at Keesler Field. Melton lives in a Biloxi court that was flooded last year but he has built a portable set which he can move on a moment's notice.

Melton has endeared himself to Keesler Field soldiers by one of the radio services he now performs. If he contacts a ham in the home town of a soldier at the field, he arranges for the soldier to have a radio chat with his family.

Melton's radio activities have netted him an unusual present. When he told a Kentucky ham he had never seen blue grass, the Kentuckian bundled up some of the cured grass and sent it to his gulf coast friend.

Shooting Ranges Yield Fortune In Lead

CLEVELAND (UP)—A storage battery company here is getting lead from some unusual "mines".

The company reports that "pay dirt" in the form of shotgun pellets is being struck in trap and skeet ranges throughout the country.

At Kansas City, for instance, Russ Elliott estimates that more than 200 tons of lead are obtainable on the grounds of his shooting park. Elliott mines his vein with a stripped-down wheat combine. The lead-laden earth is shoveled into the combine and the lead separated from the dirt.

At the current price of 15 cents a pound, Elliott's lead is worth $60,000.

Farmer Makes a Beachhead in a Wheat Field

Billy Koelsch, St. John, Kan., wheat farmer, hitched his combine to a war surplus landing barge when heavy rains made his fields too muddy for ordinary tractors. Koelsch's ingenuity saved his wheat crop, which yielded about 30 bushels to the acre. With regular equipment, he would have had to wait another week before he could harvest.

Stormy Weather In Kansas Makes Family Housing Problem Difficult

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UP)—Ordinary housing troubles are minor compared to those of the Lloyd Magbys of Hutchinson.

Mrs. Magby and her five children lost four homes in two weeks. She shouldered much of the heart break herself, with her husband plying his trade as an oilfield worker out of town.

Here's the story:

Getting set to build a cement-block house on their corner lot, the Magbys first setup a 16-foot square tent as a base of operations. That was last fall. With the home-to-be not far beyond the foundation stage, money ran out. The tent served as family headquarters.

Then the recent stormy weather began raging in the Hutchinson area. Mrs. Magby and the children—Ruth 17, Lois 12, Arlen 9, Virginia 8, and little Earl 3— were asleep. The tent home was torn down in the high wind, but they escaped unhurt.

Arthur Magby, a brother-in-law, came by the next day and helped put up a wooden shelter. Another storm wrecked it.

Magby again pitched in and with his wife's assistance, finished another crude structure. It went down before pounding winds the next morning.

Still not licked, the Magbys set up two frame buildings, small and a bit on the rickety side, with the assistance of the older Magby children.

The stormy weather had passed. Things seemed brighter.

The little surburban lot did get brighter, but only from a destructive cause—fire. An oil stove exploded and the Magby temporary residence was wiped out again. It happened while Mrs. Magby was at work in a laundry.

Mrs. Mamie Hause, Mrs. Magby's mother, took the family into her home.

"I'd get out of there," said Mrs. Hause. "That's a bad spot."

But not Mrs. Magby.

"One of these days our luck will turn," she said. "We're going to build that house."

Mrs. Hause, a large, gray-haired woman, sighed. Until a fifth temporary home is ready and work re-started on the concrete-block house, the Magby's will stay with her.

Fairy Godmothers Enlisted To Help Nervous Children

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UP) —By the time trees get red in Utah canyons again next fall, Therma Pettey will be in action. She will have called in her fairy godmother and scores of other helpful little creatures and characters of storybook fame to help her aid children.

The imaginative Mrs. Pettey from the Utah town of Holladay wants to help little children get over their nervous and emotional habits which psychologists call tics.

She figured there'd be a whole legion of valuable helpers from fairyland who'd love to help but they've just never been asked.

The helpful "fairyland" cure will be personalized by real-life recordings from the fairy godmother and her helpers, telling the child that his partcular habit will get him nowhere.

Records Go Over

She tried making a few records while she was on the west coast visiting her sister, the film star Laraine Day, and they went over big, she reported.

The first one she ever made was for Laraine's six-year-old daughter Angela. The six-year-old Angela had a nervous habit of biting her upper lip. So the godmother—or Mrs. Pettey, told her via a recording that fairies and brownies and the other small people who help good little children lace their shoes, wouldn't like it very much if she kept on chewing her lip.

And it worked. Laraine Day says her daughter no longer bites her lip.

When she came home Mrs. Pettey decided that here was a chance to help children get rid of their tics.

Mostly the records will help children in the three to six-year-old group. That is because they're more imaginative and because that's when most children start their bad habits, she said.

Program Planned

Mrs. Pettey will start a program called "Behind the Scenes of Fairyland" over a local radio station in the fall. This series tells popular fairy tales with the "Pettey" twist, or as the characters themselves see the story. Eight scripts are ready to go now.

The erstwhile "fairy godmother" figures that the recordings will just be an added feature for the program. When parents get bothered by junior's habits they can ask for help and right away there will be a recording from fairland with Black Sambo and Tom Thumb, maybe and fairfair godmother telling him that sucking thumbs and biting nails is not such a good idea.

"The advice will probably be the same thing that they've been told all along—it'll just be sugar-coated," she explained.
